October's bright, blue weather seems to invite pubic observances and the week will see two festivals held in this county. The first Jenny Wiley Festival will begin here today (Wednesday) and the third Harvest Festival at Betsy Layne will begin tomorrow (Thursday).

Store windows here will display throughout the four-day event the clothing, books, tools, newspapers, and other articles of everyday life in the valley's early days.

Tonight, a gospel sing will be held at

When Jason Slusher, 6, a first grader at Martin Elementary School, noticed what appeared to be a price tag on the speckled butterfly that turned up in his front yard last Thursday, his curiosity was aroused-After all, butterflies are free, aren't they?

Turned out that the tag bore a serial number and a message asking that the butterfly be returned to the Zoology Department at the University of Toronto, Canada, where it had been released, apparently to allow researchers to study its migratory habits.

7:30 in Pike Auditorium, Prestonsburg Community College. Groups present will include The True Believers, The Sammons Family, the Heaven Bound Quartet, Deliverance, The Redemptions, Harborman, Heavenly Way, and Jack DeRossett.

In the three days following, the schedule of events will include the Jenny Wiley Pageant at the amphitheatre, Jenny Wiley State Park, an oldfashioned pie supper, the Jenny Wiley Bowl game here where Miss Jenny Wiley will be presented at halftime ceremonies, a golf tournament, long rifle competition, 10-kilometer run, a parade with bands and floats, fiddle, banjo, and harmonica competition, and a street dance on Saturday evening to conclude the festivities.

At Betsy Layne, the Harvest Festival will get under way at 6 p.m. Thursday with a majorette contest at the D. W. Howard Fieldhouse. Friday's events will include the Harvest Bowl game followed by the Harvest dance. On Saturday, there will be canoe races, parade, and square dance with crowning of the Harvest Queen. In addition there will be a flea market, games, contests, and arts and crafts on display throughout Saturday. At noon Sunday, a dinner is scheduled at the Betsy Layne school lunchroom, and a gospel sing at the D. W. Howard field house at 3 o'clock will conclude the Harvest Festival.

Next week at Martin, the 13th Red, White and Blue Day will be held with its theme this year honoring the working man, foundation of America

Company Asks Another Raise In Rates Here

If you live within the city limits of Prestonsburg and burn 20,000 cubic feet of gas next winter, which is the average wintertime consumption per home here, your gas bill will be $94.30 a month.

That's $43.23 per month more than last winter, before the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission granted Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company a tentative but whopping rate increase.

And there could be even worse news ahead. Kentucky West Virginia served notice Monday on the Prestonsburg Utilities Commission that it is applying for what the commission considers yet another rate increase-56 cents per 1000 cubic feet, effective Nov. 1.

That's $11.20 more, if it's granted And those familiar with the federal commission's track record on gas rates pessimistically predict it will be.

Based on an average consumption of 20,000 cubic feet per home, wintertime gas bills inside Prestonsburg averaged $51.07 before this year's rate increase and $62.30 for homes outside the city limits that are supplied by the Pres-(See Story No. 4, Page 4)

David Road Job To Cost $211,753

The state Transportation Cabinet has awarded a contract to resurface five miles of KY 404, the David-Prestonsburg road.

Mountain Enterprises, Inc., of Whitesburg, received a $211,753 contract to resurface the road from KY 850 to KY 114.

"We have spent $1,032,454 in 1982 putting new blacktop on 35 miles of Floyd county roads," Transportation Secretary Frank Metts said. "By resurfacing the roads now, we are providing better maintenance while reducing the need for more costly repairs in the future."

In the past two years the state's paving cycle has been reduced from an average of once every 25 years to once every 13 years.

Funding for the resurfacing program has been increased to $90 million. enabling the state to resurface one mile in 10 of 25,000 miles of statemaintained roads, Metts said.

"I think it's great. I just hope they can make it stick," she said, after a federal judge found in favor of 16 Dinwood residents in their dispute with a coal company and federal surfacemining officials.

ound, at any rate

Although coal was still being run through the Dinco Coal Sales tipple this week, the effect of 3 ruling by Judge G. Wix Unthank in U.S. District Court in Pikeville last Wednesday will be to shut the operation down until the company obtains waivers from all residents living within 300 feet, attorneys for the residents said this week

Getting the waivers does not appear likely. Many Dinwood residents have complained since the tipple was built in 1979 that the noise, dust and truck traffic it generates is a nuisance and a threat to their health. And Mrs. Debord indicated this week she will not rest easy until the tipple operation comes finally to a halt

Attorney David Rubinstein of the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund (ARDF), who represents Mrs. Debord and several other residents, said they 'would have to take appropriate action" if the company continued to operate the tipple.

Unthank's ruling reversed a December, 1981 decision by an adhad nullified a notice of violation issued to Dinco by a federal surface mining inspector in July that year.

The company was cited by OSM inspector Steven Cassel for operating a tipple within 300 feet of occupied dwellings without the required waivers. In throwing out the citation, the administrative law judge said the tipple was not covered by a 1977 federal surface-mining law because it was not 'at or near" the mine from which it drew coal.

That interpretation of the law is "clearly erroneous," Judge Unthank wrote in last Wednesday's opinion. The fact that the tipple is operated "in connection with" a surface coal mine is enough to bring it within the law's embrace, he argued. The meaning of the phrases "at or near" and "in connection with," which occur in the 1977 Act, has been the subject of continuous debate since the law was enacted.

Unthank said the U.S. 6th Circuit Court of Appeals last year ruled in a similar case "that Congress intended for tippling operations to fall within the Act's gambit." He remanded the case to the Interior Department "for further proceedings not inconsistent with this opinion.

The ruling could affect residents liv-(See Story No. 5, Page 4)

of the task of deciding the case on its merits. And Circuit Judge Hollie Conley wasn't claiming to be Solomon. But at least he would like to work out a solution that was acceptable to all the parties involved, he told litigants in court here Friday.

At issue were the claims by two Allen Central High School students that they had been treated unfairly in the process by which the school's varsity cheerleaders were chosen last May. Mary Click and Angie Osborne said their decision not to do an "optional" routine' counted against them in the judging, costing them their place on the squad.

The school board found no evidence that Allen Central officials had violated the rules, so the girls' suit was returned to circuit court where it had begun-and where Judge Conley struggled to work out a compromise Friday. As it happened, two of the 10 girls

Even Solomon might have despaired originally chosen as cheerleaders have since resigned. Dineen Martin and Melissa Samons, both juniors, cited pressure of homework as the reason for their decision, said Judy Slone, the school's cheerleading sponsor.

The judge seized the opportunity, suggesting that the plaintiffs be permitted to fill the resulting vacancies. School officials balked at the idea. According to the rules, vacancies are supposed to be filled by election. And if anybody was to be drafted onto the varsity squad, there were other girls with a prior claim, they argued.

Amy Mayo, who came in 13th in the original judging, would have a prior claim over Miss Osborne, who placed 14th, and Leigh Reynolds, who came in 11th, would have to be preferred to either plaintiff, the argument ran.

In that event the selection process would have to be voided and begun anew, ruled Conley, by now clearly (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

District Court Plea of Guilty Ends Mine Case

A West Prestonsburg man entered a guilty plea in district court Monday to a charge of mining without a license. He was fined $300 and equipment already seized by mining officials was ordered forfeited

Hershel Owens was accused of hauling more than 550 tons of coal on Labor Day from a stripmine on Open Fork of Middle Creek, for sale to a Martin coal firm. State police and officials of the Department of Mines and Minerals shut the operation down, impounding a drill, bulldozer and endloader valued at more than $100,000.

Owens claimed he was not mining coal but was preparing a mobile-home site. He pleaded guilty to the charge, his lawyer said, because of the costs involved in defending the action.

The attorney, Cassie J. Allen said that, owing to the value of the equipment seized, it was not clear that ground.

Helping the elderly stay out of institutions and giving work to the jobless... These were the goals of a six-week program that concluded recently at Prestonsburg Community College and trained women as homemaker and home-health aides

The six who graduated from the program last week will now begin 10 weeks of on-the-job training, which will qualify them for employment in county health departments

The training programs, which are being funded through the state Department for Human Resources and the East Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program, reflect the efforts of former Human Resources Secretary Dr. Grady Stumbo to provide care for the elderly in their homes as an alternative to more costly and less personal institutional care

Joe Smith, newly-appointed Deputy Secretary for Human Resources, and P.C.C. Director Henry Campbell presented certificates to the six trainees at a ceremony last Wednesday

First Defendant Ruled 'Repeater' Fined and Jailed

Early last month, with the opening of legalized beer outlets, County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. announced a "get tough" policy against alcohol-related offenses,-public intoxication and drunk driving-"repeat" violators, in particular.

Each morning Assistant County Attorney Eric Hall has been checking jail records and the lists of individuals arrested on these charges, and then comparing them with district court records to determine if any of the defendants are repeat offenders.

Monday morning, this week, the first "repeater" was caught. It was found that Elisha Adkins, who had temporarily been considered a first-time violator of the law against driving under the influence of alcoholic beverages (DUI), had been in court earlier on the same charge.

The result: District Judge Harold Stumbo set his fine at $500 and sent him to jail for 90 days.

(If the defendant had not been identified as a repeat offender, his fine would have been less and any jail term imposed could have been subject to probation.)

When Turner announced his plans for more strict control of the drinking problem, he warned out-of-county violators that first-time offenses could draw heavier penalties-not, he said, to discourage visitors from other conties but to make certain the county would not be a "dumping ground" for "riff-raff" and a haven for drunks and drunk drivers.

"We're going to stick with this program. The records will continue to be checked, and I will continue to recommend heavy penalties for repeat violators," Turner said.

Either way was fine with him, said John Wesley Mann, plaintiffs' attorney-either seat his clients or do it all over again. A re-run would be acceptable to the Board of Education, said David Barber, the board's attorney. Again, it was Jane Fitzpatrick, Mrs. Slone's lawyer, who demurred.

If the alternative was to start from scratch, her client would agree to admit Miss Click and Miss Osborne to the squad, she said.

And so the judge ruled, although whether he had found a solution acceptable to everyone was obviously in doubt.

The plaintiffs were clearly elated. "I feel great," Delores Dingus, Mary Click's mother, said later. "I believe the system works." For Allen Central Principal James O. Dingus, it was a decision he "could live with." And Mrs. Slone conceded she has "no choice but to do what the judge ordered."

But that didn't mean she thought the decision fair. Apart from the claims of other girls who narrowly missed making the squad and might legitimately feel they should have filled any vacancies, the circuit court ruling takes no account of the feelings of those who abided by the rules and accepted the decision of the selection judges, she said. On their part, there will "most definitely be some resentment," Mrs. Slone predicted.

February: May well have twice the usual snowfall; temperatures, 1 degree below average. The table of contents ranges the information scale from anecdotes to the zodiac. It's a compendium of information. One article devotes considerable space to the matter of insomnia and how to lick it. In the course of a quite serious discussion of the subject, the Almanac diverts to inform us that an early New England cure was to smell your socks after taking them off for bed. But it doesn't tell how then to bring the sleeper back to consciousness.

THE REASON

The economy is down. Things are rough. And our Jimmy Goble tells this one to prove it:

This vendor of that great American dish, the hot dog, was selling his customers short-that is to say, the meat portion went only halfway the bun, leaving the other end plain bread. Then there came the inevitable complaint. And the vendor's explanation:

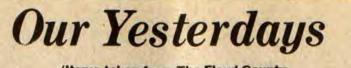

'My friend, times have got so tough that it's just impossible for me to make both ends meat.'

AWARD FOR IT

There was something almost magical about the sound as a group of us looked and listened from a small bridge overlooking this little rivulet that rambled past. One challenged the others to describe the sound.

We tossed out words such as quiet, whispering, purling, babbling, gurgling, other standard terms. Then came this one: "susurrant," which is a very good word (I later learned), even if it does fall short of soothing the ear. (Maybe the trouble lies in the way I pronounce it.)

For want of a better word, I'm settled on "peaceful." For here we stood, not fifty yards from a busy reception center on the one hand, with motor vehicles grinding and snorting; on the other, people-man, women, children-scaling a mountainside, velling back and forth, question, answer, comment. A babel everywhere but here where a tiny sliver of earth's waters wound its unfretful way past it and us all

(Continued from Page One) tonsburg system. After the Regulatory Commission tentatively approved for Kentucky West Virginia (supplier of Prestonsburg's gas) an increase that was said to be 116%, the same volume of gas now costs $94.30 in Prestonsburg and $105.50 outside.

Kentucky West Virginia asked in its application that the new rates become effective last May 1. A protest filed by the Prestonsburg Gas Consumers Ass'n delayed the effective date till Oct. 1, with a final adjudication of the matter depending upon a possible fullscale hearing, but the utilities commission here, fearing a decision favoring the gas company, has charged the higher rate since May 1, reasoning that it would be easier to make refunds to customers if the rate increase is denied than to back up to May 1 and add the amount due onto consumers' current bills.

And now the possibility of another 56 cents per 1000 cubic feet has the Prestonsburg utilities body disturbed. 'Most frustrating," Bill Harvey Howard, utilities superintendent, described the situation. "There's nothing we can do, unless the protests that have been filed succeed."

Barkley J. Sturgill, attorney for the Consumers Association, said this group will continue to battle the proposed increases, and has not lost the hope of some relief through an evidentiary hearing.

The U.S. Energy Department has cut its projected increase of gas costs slightly from a report made earlier in the year. Forecasters said slumping demand has prodded natural gas pipeline companies to begin trying to get out of contracts that force them to take high-cost gas.

But Edwin Rothschild of the Citizen-Labor Energy Coalition said few pipeline companies have sought to roll back the high prices because the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission has been so lenient in allowing them to simply pass through their higher costs to customers.

'At a time of huge gas surpluses and at a time of deep recession when gas consumption has dropped, a 19 percent jump in prices is ludicrous," Rothschild said.

To Clarify The Record

On July 27, we announced the Department's intention to deny federal funds under the National Direct Student Loan (NDSL) program for the 1982-83 award period to those institutions with a default rate greater than 25 percent. A listing of institutions with default rates greater than 25 percent as of June 30, 1981, which received a tentative federal allocation of zero for this reason, was provided to the news media at that time. Although this listing was correct, it did not take into consideration the fact that subsequently 92 institutions successfully appealed this denial of federal funds. Therefore, immediately following the first press announcement, the names of the 92 institutions were also released to the news media.

Alice Lloyd College, Pippa Passes, Kentucky, is one of the 92 institutions which successfully appealed its tentative zero allocation for the NDSL program on this basis. From information we have received, it appears that your newspaper did not have the second release regarding the 92 institutions prior to the publication of your article on this matter.

We would, therefore, appreciate your assistance in the clarification of this matter to your readers.

For organizational purposes, the National Association of Civilian Conservation Corps Alumni (NACCA) is trying to locate about 2,000,000 former members and other persons who were connected or affiliated with the Civilian Conservation Corps (CCC) during the 1930s and 1940s. Attorneys for OSM and Dinco Coal Sales owner George Newsom, of Paintsville, said Monday they had not decided whether to appeal Unthank's decision. Some observers predict the case will go as far as the U.S. Supreme Court

Besides Rubinstein, ARDF attorney Thomas Fitzgerald argued the case for Dinwood residents Mary and Ivan Debord, Wanda Gregory, Everett Hunter, Sadie Hunter, Georgia Keans, Danny Moore, Douglas Moore, Wanda Moore, Mary Moore, Tim Pack, Debbie Pack, McIntire Risner, Loretta Risner, James Ward, Jr., and Veronica Ward. The Dinco case was argued by David Short, formerly regional director of OSM, now with the Frankfort law firm of Stites, McElwaine and Fowler.

(Continued from Page One) district court had jurisdiction in the case. Nor could that court have decided ownership of the coal involved, she said

"Sometimes a man chooses the course that is economically feasible, and this my client has done," she said.

Owens was the first to be convicted in this county under a new law setting up a special task force to investigate illegal mining. In addition to the fine and forfeiture of equipment, he could have been sentenced to a year in jail.

The impounded equipment will be offered for public sale although owners and lessors-if they can prove they were unaware it was being used illegally-must be paid for their interests in the equipment before the state realizes any return from the sale. Ivel Moore, of Minnie, is said to be the owner of the endloader and the First Commonwealth Bank is also reported to have an interest in the equipment.

Mrs. Allen called her client a "victim" of the new illegal mining law and said his case had received undue publicity. Coverage of the case had 'saturated" the media and could not have been greater "if he had kidnapped a judge," she told District Judge Harold Stumbo.

The attorney said her client "was preparing a mobile home site and being paid by the hour for contract bulldozer work. He was not mining coal.'

Tylenol Found In Floyd, Pike To Go to Lab

Some 41 bottles of Extra-Strength Tylenol bearing the same lot number as that on a bottle found at the home of a Chicago man who died from cyanide poisoning over the weekend had been turned into the Pikeville state police post by Tuesday.

The bottles, which were from Pike and Floyd counties, all bear the lot number 1801MA. Three were turned in by a Pikeville merchant, three by a Hi Hat grocer, 26 by officials at Kentucky Wholesale and Tobacco Co. at Allen, Tylenol distributor for this area, and the others by individuals, police said.

The bottles are being turned over to the U.S. Food and Drug Administration in Lexington and from there they will be sent to the agency's laboratory in Atlanta for analysis, it was said.

The bottles turned in here were reportedly the first of the 1801MA lot to show up outside the Chicago area, where seven people have died in the past week from cyanide poisoning associated with the capsules.

There have been no reports in this area of people becoming ill after taking the capsules others have challenged the commission's approval of many of the pipeline rates, but there has been no ruling on any of the cases yet.

Tylenol of other lot numbers remained on area store shelves this week, but no sales were reported.

Along those lines, the executive committee of the Northeast-Midwest Congressional Coalition said last week it is preparing legislation to make natural gas pipeline operators renegotiate contracts holding them to such high-price gas purchases.

Eight congressmen discussed the problem of the long-term, high-price contracts in a meeting last Wednesday with C. M. Butler, chairman of the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Residential heating oil prices, which have gone from 49 cents a gallon in 1978 to $1.20 last year should average the same amount over the next six months, the Energy Department's report said.

While fuel oil prices have stabilized, natural gas still is a better bargain this winter, priced 33 percent lower than its energy equivalent in heating oil.

But the Reagan administration is expected to push in Congress next year for accelerated decontrol in the belief that controls should be removed from all gas supplies, not just gas discovered since 1977

Gasoline prices actually will decline briefly from the current $1.34 per gallon average, the DOE says-to $1.31 in the first three months of next year before beginning to rise to $1.39 by the end of 1983.

The forecast said overall energy use in the United States will decline this year for the fourth straight year, and that foreign imports of oil will drop to 4.6 million barrels a day, the lowest since 1972.

Hospital Observing Respect Life Week

Respect Life Week is being observed, October 3-9, by Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, and other Catholic health care facilities with an emphasis on wellness and holistic health.

Holistic health, a balance of spiritual, mental and physical well-being, is seen by the Catholic Church as an individual's obligation to the sacred gift of life. "Every individual is responsible for maintaining personal health in respect for God's creation," said Sister James Edward, Administrator.

Our Lady of the Way Hospital's Respect Life programs include a reception honoring employees with the presentation of service awards. The hospital also is taking advantage of this special week in celebrating its anniversary. September 15 marked the 35th anniversary of the hospital's opening in Martin.

For details concerning Respect Life Week, contact Sister James Edward at Our Lady of the Way, 285-5181.

Ownership Clarified

Home Medical Rentals does not own the building it presently occupies on the Auxier road and did not evict the previous tenant, Medi-Home Care, as reported in last week's Times, a spokesman for Medi-Home Care said this week. While Home Medical Rentals secured an option to buy the building, the firm has not finalized the purchase, the Times has learned. And, while Medi-Home Care's lease was not renewed, this was a decision of the owner of the building, not of Home Medical Rentals, it was said.

Spill Hazards Involve Fire Marshal's Office

As technology advances, the potential for human-caused calamity increases. One of the top areas of concern involves accidental spills of hazardous materials.

The State Fire Marshal's Hazardous Materials Section oversees the public's interest in case of such an accident.

For example, the effects of a freight train derailment 50 years ago would probably only be felt by the people immediately involved. That is not the case now. Several thousand people were evacuated from their homes, many for as long as four days, after an Illinois-Central & Gulf tanker train left the tracks near Muldraugh on the morning of July 26, 1980.

The evacuation was necessary because several of the cars involved contained dangerous chemicals. Numerous local, state and federal agencies worked for four days on the disaster. Their efforts paid off when two damaged tank cars were harmlessly exploded. The only injuries were to trainmen when the the accident occurred.

The Hazardous Materials Section of the State Fire Marshal's Office provided essential assistance in the Muldraugh derailment.

"Our responsibility was to identify the materials involved, to see if further assistance was necessary and to stablize the situation as much as possible," said Deputy State Fire Marshal Gilbert Ellis, who heads the section.

Ellis, along with 16 other specialists, make up the Hazardous Materials Section. Their backgrounds range from insurance sales to work in the petroleum industry.

They receive quarterly training on the latest developments in hazardous materials, handling accidents, finding resources, and getting assistance. They also have to read a large quantity of materials, including the 16 volumes of the National Fire Code.

The group receives recognition in Kentucky and state Public Protection and Regulation Secretary Neil Welch says they are seen as leaders in their field outside of the state. The state Department of Housing, Buildings and Construction, which includes the Fire Marshal's Office, is one of 13 agencies in the Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet.

For more information about the Hazardous Materials Section, they are located in the 127 Building, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. The telephone number is (502) 564-3626.

Registration Compliance Reported Average Here

The Selective Service has released updated statistics showing the compliance rate for registration of young men, both at the state and national level.

As of July 18, 8.4 million men have registered for a compliance rate of 93%. These figures include men born in 1960, 1961, 1962, 1963, and the first six months of 1964.

At the state level, Wyoming leads the nation with a compliance rate of 98%. At the median level are states such as Virginia and Pennsylvania both at 92%. Rhode Island has the lowest compliance rate in the nation at 84.3%. The compliance rate in Kentucky is 92.4.

Thomas K. Turnage, the director of Selective Service, noted that the registration program is a very successful one. He said, "I can think of no other program—either in the public or private sector—that has an 93% success rate. I'm proud of the young men of this nation who have accepted their responsibilities as citizens and have complied with the law."

Young men are required to register with Selective Service within 30 days of their 18th birthday. They register at any U.S. Post Office, filling out a very simple form that asks only for their name, address, telephone number, social security number, and date of birth.

Director Turnage continues to stress that his interest is in registering people, not prosecuting them. He encourages late registrants to come forward and register. "If young men willfully and knowingly fail to register, however, I am obligated by law to send their names to the Justice Department for possible prosecution."

In mid-August, the government mailed out approximately 33,000 letters to non-registrants, warning them to register or face possible prosecution. Another 175,000 letters will be mailed later this year.

Veterans Administration

The Veterans Administration has just completed a 20-week-long renovation of the Cave Hill National Cemetery located in Louisville.

Dennis P. Gura, director of the Zachary Taylor and Cave Hill National Cemeteries, said that $20,000 was spent in a project in which all headstones were raised, realigned and cleaned.

Over the years, the Cave Hill cemetery had fallen into disrepair. Paul T. Bannai, chief of Memorial Affairs of the VA in Washington, and Arthur S. Hamerschlag, area director of the National Cemetery office in Atlanta, visited the two national cemeteries in Louisville and ordered the renovation.

The Cave Hill cemetery was one of the first seven in the national cemetery system. The land was donated in 1861, and there are 5,600 graves of veterans in what is now a part of a private cemetery located at 701 Baxter Ave.

The Zachary Taylor National Cemetery is also located in the Louisville area, but like Cave Hill, there are no more spaces available. Zachary Taylor does have space for cremated remains.

Spaces are still available at Camp Nelson, Nicholasville, and since two more acres have been donated to the Lebanon cemetery, spaces will be available there soon, Gura said. Marlow's Country Palace, where guests were served a buffet and entertained by Marlow Tackett and the Southern Comfort Band which consists of the Whited family.

A beautifully decorated eight-layered wedding cake in lavender and pink, made by the bride's mother, was served with the other foods.

The groom sang the solo, "Lady", to his bride.

For their honeymoon, the couple spent several days in Myrtle Beach. They are now residing in Branham Village at Prestonsburg.

Auxier Highlands Cub Scout Pack 876 won third place, overall, for their float during the weekend's Apple Festival activities at Paintsville. In addition to picking up a trophy for the achievement, the 52-member pack was also awarded $150 prize money

Their float depicted the double blockhouse-type fort built by Auxier at Blockhouse Bottom.

Pack members from Auxier, East Point, Prestonsburg, Paintsville, Van Lear, Hager Hill, Maytown and Wayland rode on the float as well as five cub sweethearts which included Angie McKenzie, Kathy Hale, Christy Bishop, and Heather and Stacy Robinson.

Two Accused Of Coal Truck Scam

Attorney General Steven L. Beshear and Kentucky State Police Commissioner Billy Wellman announced recently additional arrests in an ongoing probe into stolen coal mining and construction equipment being conducted by the Leviticus Project, a federally funded task force created to investigate crimes in the Appalchian coal industry. Both the State Police and the Attorney General's Office are members of the project.

Arrested and charged with eight counts of defrauding an insured creditor were Samuel Clifford Gilbert, 50, and Darrell Reynolds, 28, both of Corbin.

The arrests were the results of an intensive undercover investigation where State Police purchased five semitrucks including two 1982 models, and 1981, 1980, 1975 models. Also purchased were a 1983 Chevrolet pick-up and two 1981 East coal trailers.

The estimated total value of the recovered vehicles exceeded $388,000. The announcement of these arrests brings the total number of individuals charged in the probe to 12. Thus far the value of recovered equipment exceeds one million dollars.

Investigators state that Gilbert arranged to sell vehicles that he owned to undercover agents with the intent to report the vehicles stolen.

CREDIT CARDS

Have you ever ordered anything by phone and then paid for it with a credit card? If you do that very often, the likelihood of your becoming a victim of consumer fraud will increase. A new type of fraud in Kentucky involves the illegal use of credit card numbers. According to Attorney General Steven L. Beshear, "Recently, the illegal use of credit card numbers has risen substantially in Kentucky and consumers need to be aware of how to avoid falling victim to such schemes."

The situation works like this: Perpetrators of the scheme obtain legitimate credit card numbers from credit cards that are currently negotiable. After obtaining this number, the perpetrators then proceed to place an order with the number, usually over the phone or through the mail, thus billing the order to the account of the innocent consumer. The perpetrators then receive the shipped merchandise and no evidence of foul play appears until the innocent consumer discovers the purchase on his credit card account 4-6 weeks later. Consumers often wonder why their numbers were chosen to be abused. Many times, less-than-reputable businessmen will copy your number down after you have paid for a purchase with a credit card. The businessmen then pass names matched with correct credit card numbers along to an underground network. where most abuse will begin. Credit card numbers are sometimes found in trash cans. Many times, after a day of sales, stores will dispose of the carbon copies made by credit card purchases. A carbon copy will contain all of the information that both the customer's and the store's card receipts contain. Thus, the perpetrators of a credit card number scheme may find credit card names and numbers outside of a store by rumaging through the trash piles. Other times, consumers are tricked into giving out their credit card numbers. The system works in a fashion similar to this: A consumer will receive a phone call from someone posing as a bank official; the bank official will then initiate a conversation about credit cards, and sometime during the course of the converstaion, the official will ask the consumer for his/her credit card number so that the bank might check the card out with the computer. In almost all cases, the individual identifying himself as a bank official has never had any affiliation with that bank. There are several steps that you, the consumer, can take to decrease the likelihood of this happening to you. Attorney General Steven L. Beshear issues this advice: "Consumers should be very leery about using their credit card numbers when ordering by mail. If you aren't dealing with a wellknown, reputable business, don't use the card. Consumers should never give their credit card numbers over the phone to anyone posing as a bank official. If a bank needs your credit card number, go in person to discuss it with them. By being very judicious when developing economic crime units to deal with such problems. Fraudulent use of a credit card is a crime and is subject to criminal prosecution.

By being cautious when giving out your credit card number, you can reduce your chances of becoming a victim. If you do become a victim, don't panic. Most credit card companies are willing to correct the problem. By federal law a card holder's liability for the unauthorized use of his credit card may in no instance exceed $50. Remember, your credit card does not represent credit-it represents your hard-earned cash. So, treat it with the respect you give your checkbook. For further information about credit cards, or to file a consumer complaint, contact the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 or call tollfree 1-800-432-9257.

"Women and Law," Slated at PCC

Attorney General Steven L. Beshear announced last week that representatives from his staff, in conjunction with the Kentucky Commission on Women, will present a program on 'Women and the Law" next Wednesday, October 13, from 8:30 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. in the auditorium of the Pike Technology Building at Prestonsburg Community College. The program is being sponsored by the Prestonsburg Displaced Homemakers Program.

"The purpose of the 'Women and the Law' program is to educate the women of Kentucky about the laws that exist which directly affect their lives and the rights and responsibilities that accompany these laws," said Beshear.

"The idea for a program of this type originated from the numerous requests we have been receiving during our citizen access programs all over Kentucky. During these programs, many women have expressed concern about their lack of information of the legal realities which govern their lives," added Beshear

The program will include presentations in the areas of domestic violence (child and spouse abuse and rape), marriage and divorce (family law, property settlement, maintenance, child support/visitation rights), finance (consumer protection, small claims court, estate planning/wills) and women in the workplace (equal opportunity, affirmative action, sexual harassment)

"Today, whether by choice or out of necessity, more and more women are entering or re-entering the work force. Last year alone, some 1,300 Kentucky women suddenly found themselves the sole breadwinners for their families because of the desertion, divorce or death of their husbands. In addition, many women are opting to remain single far into adult life or permanently. Consequently, these women need information as to existing laws affecting them," said Beshear.

The Prestonsburg "Women and the Law" program is the 10th program of this type conducted by the Office of the Attorney General, involving 67 counties and over 500 individuals

The "Women and the Law" program is free and open to the public. For more information, contact Patricia Watson, Coordinator, Prestonsburg Displaced Homemakers Program, at (606) 886-3863, or the Office of the Attorney General at (502) 564-4047.

Nature Trails... By RUFUS REED

The virgin yellow poplars which once stood proud on the hills of our region were the tallest hardwoods of North America. They stood with their heads in the clouds and their toes firmly planted in the humus rich soil of our hills and valleys. They grew 200 feet tall, with a trunk diameter of eight feet. The yellow poplar (tulip tree) is the state tree of Indiana and Tennessee.

The tree blooms in May, with large, pale yellow blossoms, which are splashed in the throat with deep orange. The blooms are so rich in nectar it often drips down on the uplifted face of one looking at the blossoms. The bees work like mad to get the rich nectar.

The inner wood is golden yellow; the outer wood is white and from it paper is made for our books and magazines.

Once in Lawrence County I found an old log house more than 100 years old made of yellow poplars. The outside of the logs was black from age. Under this black, the wood was still sound, yellow as gold.

Medicine made from the bark of yellow poplar is a good remedy for cholera in children.

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS "Scientists have identified a powerful agent that may control diabetes, bowel disease, blood fat and colon cancer," reported Mrs. Hansel Bradley, speaking on "Fiber Power" at the September program meeting of the Lackey-Garrett-Wayland Woman's Club at the home of Mrs. Maxine Martin, Wayland.

Mrs. Bradley explained that it has been discovered that "dietary fiber", a part of all plants, including beans, whole grain cereals, fruits, vegetables, seeds and nuts is the agent that may protect us from numerous ailments. "Scientists caution, however," continued Mrs. Bradley, "against too much enthusiasm at this stage, but they do urge us to regularly eat a variety of fruits, vegetables, beans, nuts and cereals and less of the fatty meats and other excess fats and oils." At the close of the program Mrs. Bradley passed out a sample menu for one day.

Officers were elected for the current club year as follows: President, Mrs. Otto Martin; first vice-president, Mrs. Bobby Joe Castle; second vicepresident, Mrs. Marie Mullins; recording secreatry, Mrs. Don Hughes; corresponding secreatary, Mrs. Marcellous Dunfee; treasurer, Mrs. James E. Martin, Mrs. Maxine Martin, three times past president, installed the officers for the two-year term.

During the business session the club president again outlined the club's goals for the incoming year. It was decided to sell pecans again as a money-raising project. A discussion was held concerning the club's daughter club dinner, which has been tentatively planned for November.

Mrs. J. C. Wells reported that she had taken a supply of magazines to the Golden Years Rest Home and the club president asked that paperback westerns and mysteries be collected to be mailed to the veterans' hospital. A collection was taken for arthritis and an amount equal to that collected was added from the club treasury. It was decided that the club would plant a tree, when the new Hueysville Church of Christ is completed, in memory of Imalle W. Spillman, a former club member who passed away last November. Mrs. Spillman was a member of the church, which burned in December, 1981.

Those present at the meeting were LaFaye Hughes, Loretta Martin, Maxine Martin, Mrs. Felix Coburn, Joyce Stevens, Avanelle Wells, Marsella Bradley, Libby Martin, Marie Mullins, and Launice Dunfee.

This month's club meeting will be held Monday evening, Oct. 18, at the home of Mrs. Hansel Bradley, Garrett, with Mrs. Marie Mullins program leader on the subject, "Education". Each clubmember is urged to invite a guest to this meeting.

"TRUE MOUNTAIN" is a drawing by Tom J. Whitaker of Lora K. Stephens, who has become something of a legend in Martin and both Beavers where she taught school in the early 1900's. Though well-past retirement age, Mrs. Stephens has a store and newsstand near the railroad tracks at Martin. She said recently, "I haven't really worked hard all my life, but I have worked continually. I have always worked, lived a good life and done what I wanted to."

The drawing of Mrs. Stephens is from a series by Mr. Whitaker called "Thine Eyes Can See" and will be on display at the Prestonsburg Community College library, November 11 through November 18.

MARSHALL DAVIDSON Master Commissioner, Floyd Circuit Court

Miss Paula Janette Harner, daughter of Wayne and Edna Mae Hicks Harner, of Jackson, Mich., and Mr. Clifford D. Rulison, son of Clyde and Marian Rulison, also of Jackson, were united in marriage July 23, at 6 p.m. at the Brookside United Methodist Church in Jackson. The double-ring ceremony was performed by the Rev. Wm. Torrey, and nuptial music was provided by Chuck Wirick, organist. The bride chose a gown of sheer polyester knit chiffon, lined in acetate taffeta. It was trimmed with delicate Chantilly lace and applique accents, with sheer front and back yokes. The empire waistline had a flounced skirt with lace trim that extended to form a chapel-length train. Her bridal hat with chantilly-type lace and applique trim matched her gown and had a nylon net back bow and train.

Miss Michelle England served as maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Shari Harner and Miss Cathy Rulison, sisters of the bride and groom. Lisa and Kari Gearhart, nieces of the groom, were flower girls.

Mr. Scott Shuberg served as best man, and Mr. Randy Harner, brother of the bride, and Mr. Marc Nelson were ushers and candle lighters. Light blue was the color scheme chosen for the 10-7-3t.

THE EASTERN KENTUCKY

The bride's cascading bouquet of beautiful silk flowers, including roses, carnations, and baby's breath with long lace streamers was made by her mother. She also made nosegays for the bridesmaids and the maid of honor, the flower girl's baskets, combs with matching flowers, and corsages for the mothers, grandmothers, and aunts.

The reception was held following the ceremony at St. Rita's Hall where a five-piece band played country-rock music for the remainder of the evening.

After flying to Florida on their wedding trip, the couple now resides in Jackson, Michigan.

The bride is a granddaughter of Raymond and Virgie Hicks, of Hippo, and a niece of Wanda and Billy Ray Hayes, of Hueysville, and Loyce and John Kirk, of Inez.

Aspirin works by acting on the prostaglandins, which are hormone-like biochemicals that influence a number of crucial events in the body. Although the exact way that aspirin works is not fully understood, there is new evidence for even more functions that it can perform. The Dartmouth Medical School Sleep Clinic found that aspirin, taken 30 minutes before bedtime, induced sleep in 6 out of 8 insomniacs. After 3 nights however, it lost its effectiveness as a sleep-inducer. For those who experience sleeplessness only once in a while, aspirin may take the place of a mild sedative.

It is amazing how many uses the simple medication aspirin has. It is used for reducing fevers and swelling, combating pain and sometimes even works as a mild sedative. But always follow directions and never exceed the proper dosage. At COOLEY APOTHECARY we're a full service drug center. We maintain an up-to-date supply of thousands of RX products to fill your needs-when you need them. Located at #2 Town Center Bldg. Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-4. 886-8106.

PHARMACY FACT:

Follow instructions on the aspirin label. As few as 12 aspirins taken in one day can cause a toxic condition in some individuals.

Marcella Bailey outside her home holding Collector's Bible received during Bicentennial.

"On October 7, 1980, at the request of the Honorable Carl D. Perkins, member of congress, an American flag was flown over the United States Capitol at Washington, D. C. This flag was flown for Marcella Bailey."

So reads the inscription accompanying a flag sent to Mrs. Bailey at her home near Langely where the flag now rests alongside a Collector's Bible given her during the Bicentennial in 1976

Mrs. Bailey can't actually recall all the honors she's received since her founding of the Red, White, and Blue Day about 13 years ago. But she does have a vivid recollection of events that led to its beginning.

"I was at home, just being an oldfashion housewife, working, and I had time to think about the condition our country was getting into...Back in the Sixties men were burning their draft cards, burning and destroying the flag ... I would work in my kitchen and I'd think, 'What can I do?' ... I love my country. I felt like a parade would be one way we could let America see and know we still love her. I wanted a Red. White, and Blue Day Parade... Then I'd say 'no, Marcella, NOT YOU!' "

But Marcella's conscience was not to be denied and the idea born in a modest Eastern Kentucky home has since become a reality. Tentatively dubbed the Veterans Day Parade, this event was held in Prestonsburg, November 7, 1970, and cost its founder only $20 (a fee later picked up by donors). Following the theme of "America, the Beautiful" the demonstration drew a crowd estimated at 10,000 and received this enthusiastic review by the Floyd County Times: "The gathering exceeded the crowds here for the Floyd County Sesquicentennial, persons familiar with both events said. The Sesquicentennial was a giant and costly effort. Saturday's observance was the idea of one woman, Mrs. Marcella Bailey, of Langley, and its success was not dependent upon the amount of money raised but on the aroused interest of the county.'

National Guard, along with three or four staff members, was waiting to do the honors and nobody on the stand knew where the cake was. We didn't find that out until later. "I was really embarrassed. "'General Wellman, did anything like this ever happen before? I asked. "''NO, Marcella,' he said (not unkindly)

" 'Well, the only thing I know to do is to send over to I. G. A. and get a Betsy Ross cake,' I offered.

"General Wellman didn't go along with this, so we just eliminated the cake-cutting ceremony that year ... "Then there was the time Bob

DeRossett gave someone $35 to bring a cow to the Parade because so many children had never seen a cow milked. "Well, as it happended the woman that was to do the milking came late and she couldn't find her float. So there we were, no milkmaid and no pail. "Now a man had brought some water in a big Clorox bottle to clean the cow's sack, so he just got upon the float, used the water for that purpose, and when the Parade started, there he sat on the float milking right into that Clorox jug. Oldtimers just couldn't get over that. You know, there wasn't such a thing as Clorox back in our day. "I've

MAKE YOUR NEW LIVING PLACE A BRUNCY COMMUNITY

Marcella can account for this "aroused interest of the county"

"I did a lot of letter writing," she recalls. "And talking on the phone to school principals, teachers, parents, veterans groups-just talking to everyone and getting them motivated ... civic organizations ... churches... They got busy. They all got busy and helped.

Participation in the Red, White, and Blue Day activities has soared since its early beginning. Joining the schools, churches, and Veterans groups have been Shriners, firemen, bankers, politicians, merchants-people from all walks of life.

And the list keeps growing.

"Friday," Marcella recalls, "I had a call from a lady, local, and she wanted me to get in touch with a group of cloggers from Virginia that are interested in coming-free! Almost everyone is ready to cooperate.'

Marcella is appreciative of many people for their efforts in promoting the Red, White and Blue Day, and mentions several by name.

"There's Monroe Vanderpool of Hippo, Eva Collins and Curtis Clark, of Prestonsburg, Ben Spradlin, of Martin. and Ken Kurtz of Lexington (Newscaster, Channel 36), Maureen Hensley, of Goose Creek and Irene Hayes of Hueysville.

Again the list goes on. Of course, flags have sometimes been "hoisted in reverse" on Red, White, and Blue Day, and Marcella carries memories of these occurrences with mixed emotions:

"There was, for instance, the year the World's Largest Freedom Cake arrived early-too early to be received by the proper people-and the delivery man, more intent on a home-fencing project than a cake-cutting ceremony, viewed the mounting traffic with a wary eye, then headed straight back to whence he came.

"He didn't know where to leave the cake, so he just took it back with him,' recalled Marcella.

"Well, the time came to cut the cake. General Billy Wellman of the Kentucky

A Salute from Marcella Bailey Hamilton-Carter

Continued from Preceding Page) had many a laugh over this and so have a lot of other folks.

It is in Martin that the celebration is to be held this year, and Marcella is both proud and apologetic about money-raising events that help finance the event.

"Up until and including 1981, we operated on donations alone," she says. "In 1982 we started working on fund-raising activities ... We've had two bake sales and raised $679.00; just lately we took in $1,168.00 on a chicken n' dumplin' dinner. Of course, some people gripe about donating for these sales. I don't think they know just what all is involved in keeping the parade going ...

Learning "just what all is involved" is something grandsons, Chris and Shawn Bailey, are being taught early by Marcella. Her encouraging words of "Well, children, you're workin' for your freedom" helped speed their young, inexperienced hands as they wrapped freshly-made brownies for a recent bake sale. She will probably continue such guidance in the years ahead.

Marcella realizes times are hard but says lack of money won't bring Red, White, and Blue Day to a close,

"If the Depression worsens, I think the Day should go on," she asserts. "We can deal with the situation. If you have good ideas you can take simple things and make them work.'

And Marcella, despite a recent illness requiring hospitalization, looks forward to a big observance this year. Noting that Red, White, and Blue Day has been listed in the National Archives at Washington, D. C. and is the largest parade of its kind in Kentucky, she expects record-breaking attendance from Floyd and surrounding counties.

'Our theme this year is: Foundation of America-The Working Man," she asserts. "The event is scheduled for October 16 in Martin, and begins with the Flag-Raising Ceremony at 10 a.m. Other activities include cutting of the World's Largest Freedom Cake (It will be there this time!), speeches, patriotic singing, beauty pageants, square dancing, gospel singing, entertainment by 'High Pockets' (internationally known stiltwalker) and so on."

It goes without saying that also on hand will be a child carrying an open Bible, the "Statue of Liberty" and a 14-foot impersonator of Uncle Sam. And, of course, lots of Red, White, and Blue flags. These have been a tradition ever since the festival began.

'God comes first," Marcella maintains, "Then freedom. Our little ones need to be taught. They're our leaders of tomorrow."

There followed a discourse on the sad state of world affairs after which Marcella concluded. "You know, I'd like to be a world-wide, goodwill ambassador. I think that a person with good character, sound common sense, and a lo-on-ong talk with international leaders could soon bring most of the problems we have to an end,

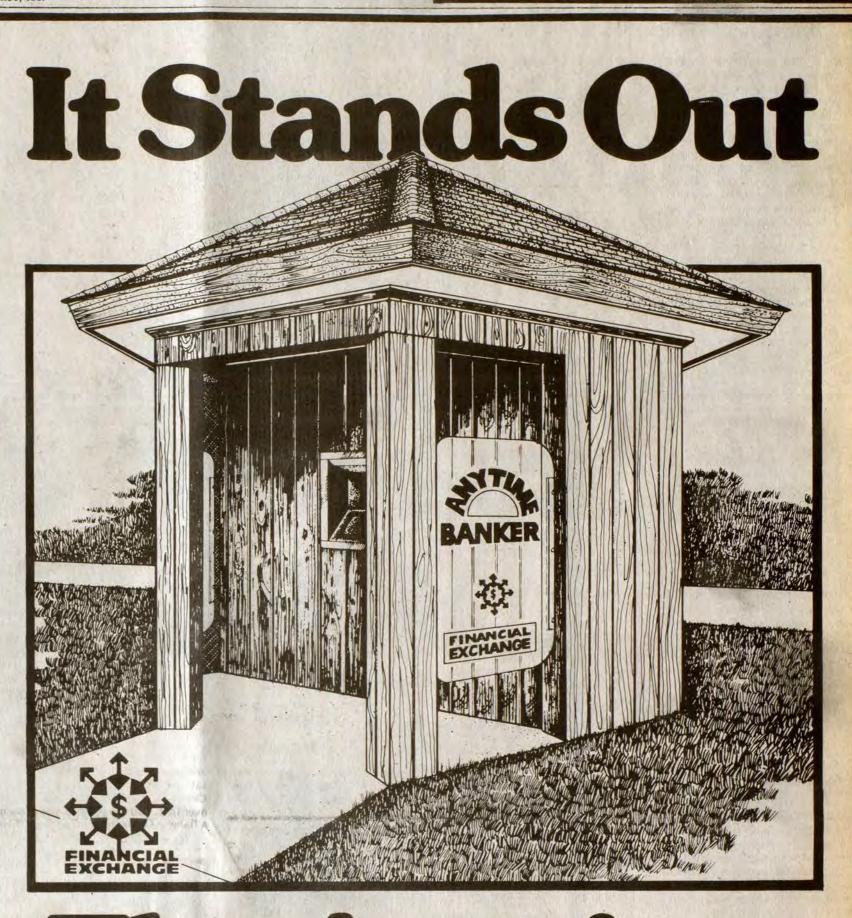

"Of course," she says in afterthought, "It would take a lot of patience, too.'

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing.

After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. the agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant. After rehabilitation, the rent(including utilities) cannot exceed the

Safety Tips For Trick-Or-Treaters

There is one night in the year when spooks, witches and hobgoblins make their appearance. It is a night filled with fun for kids of all ages. The spooks generally go from house to house promising relief from trickery in return for a treat of some sort.

This night of fun can and has in the past turned to tragedy because of ill fated accidents. The Kentucky Optometric Association has some recommendations for homeowners, drivers and spooks which can help keep this Halloween safe and enjoyable.

For drivers:

1. Use the weekend before Halloweeen to check headlight adjustments, inspect wiper blades and replace worn ones. The morning of October 31, wash your windshield, headlights and mirrors and check mirror adjustments.

2. On the road Halloween night, reduce speed, keep your eyes moving to spot youngsters, avoid wearing sunglasses or deeply tinted eyewear; and if glasses have been prescribed for driving, be certain to wear them.

For homeowners:

1. Inspect lawns in advance and fill holes, repair steps and tighten any loose railings.

2. Before darkness on Halloween night clear lawns of lawn and garden equipment, toys or any objects a child might trip over.

3. At dusk, yardlights and porch lights should be turned on to light the way for trick or treaters.

For spooks: 1. Use makeup instead of masks. Ill fitting masks or those with small eyeholes can block a childs' view of cars, steps, curbs and obstacles in their path.

2. Decorate costumes front, sides and back with retro-reflective material. Optometric studies indicate it is the only material safely visible to drivers at night even at illegal speeds of 70 and 80 mph.

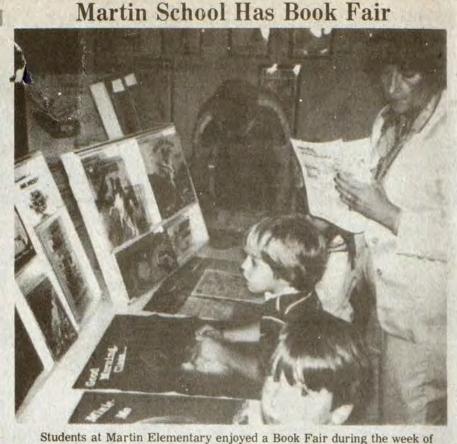

3. Carry a battery operated flashlight or lantern to aid in seeing and being seen.

The Kentucky Optometric Association hopes these recommendations will help you recall this Halloween with pleasure for many years to come.

The first program in "NOVA's" ninth season, "The Case of the UFOs, "airing Tuesday, October 12 at 8 p.m., and repeating Thursday, October 14 at 9 p.m., introduces serious investigators who are carefully sifting, researching and interpreting UFO reports. Higher Academic Requirements Get Mixed Reaction at Meeting

The "quest for quality in education", specifically through the possible use, beginning in 1987, of increased academic requirements was the theme of a recent Academic Quality Conference held at Morehead State University.

The conference, sponsored jointly by Morehead State University and the 35-member educational consortium known as the Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corporation (EKEDC), of Ashland, was designed to involve area superintendents and other support administrators in planning for the curriculum necessary for the admission of high school seniors into college.

However, the meeting which focused on the work by the Pre-College Curriculum Committee, which was formed to implement the recommendations of the Prichard Committee to the Kentucky Council on Higher Education, drew some criticism not only from school superintendents but also Kentucky Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber.

Addressing the crowd of approximately 150 persons, Barber said that, while he did not oppose improving Kentucky's educational system, he was concerned with two major areas.

"While the State Board of Education will be responsible for enforcing these policies, if approved," Barber said, "it (the Pre-College Curriculum Committee) is only a statuatory committee that has no effect on approving or disapproving college admissions. Relatedly, I am concerned about the GED and vocational student, and also phasing this program in to accommoddate everyone."

Barber said that while he was not opposed to the amount of courses that would be required under the new system, he indicated concern over the naming of both courses and curriculum to be taught.

"Not only does this seem to be getting into the business of the State Board of Education," Barber said, "but, more importantly, the cost factor of absorbing these changes, especially in personnel, will cause particular hardship in eastern Kentucky."

A much similar view came from the Reaction Panel, composed of superintendents, Allan Osborne, Paintsville Independent, Dr. Dan Branham, Martin county; and Ken Johnstone, Boone county.

Osborne called for not only a definition of terms, such as "successful" and an "average versus full load", but also that similar sessions be held post haste in order to allow for input on the proposal.

Dr. Branham said that while he also was not against quality education, "our business is to educate all the children."

"We want to give them enough common goals, involving parents and, even more importantly, being sensitive to the needs of children."

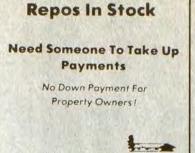

Mrs. Weinberg also told the educators present that this was not the minimum curriculum for every high school student, but only for those who were college-bound.

"With a program such as this," she said, "we can match student needs and abilities with programs from which they can benefit."

"Additionally, such a program draft will be monitored and changed, with approval, for the next four years before it goes into full effect."

"Increased quality in education must and can only come from a system of reality that is judged by strict standards."

education to be successful in the world of work," Dr. Branham said, "and, I don't want to be faced with the dilemma of a student receiving a satisfactory high school education and then not being able to enter college or only with restrictions."

"But on the other hand, we do intend to make available all courses necessary to the college-bound student."

Ken Johnstone, though commending the Council for its work in attempting to upgrade local efforts, questioned why there had not been any superintendent input on the proposal.

"We are the ones who will be accountable for this new educational criteria, if it is approved," Johnstone said, "so shouldn't we have some input too?"

Lois Weinberg, co-chairman of the Pre-College Curriculum Committee, served as keynote speaker to address the positive implications of such a proposal for area educators.

Mrs. Weinberg, a mother and the daughter of Former Governor Bert Combs, challenged educators to prepare themselves and their students to meet a world of higher learning.

"Since our original input into the industrial society," Mrs. Weinberg said, "we have and are moving into an era of new technology, where there will be no lack of education, but only perhaps the delivery-system."

"We need to teach children how to learn by such methods as having all levels of education work together for

Yanks To Drop Paintsville Team

The New York Yankees baseball club is dropping its affiliation with the Paintsville Yankees in the rookie Appalachian League.

Paul Fyfee, director of the Paintsville team, said Bill Livesey, development director for the parent Yankees, told him the decision to end the affiliation is because of a cutback in the team's minor-league operations.

Paintsville had delivered three Appalachian League pennants since it began its affiliation with New York four years ago. The team finished second in the league last summer.

Fyffe said his club is negotiating with at least two other major league teams and a new working agreement may be announced within a few days.

The announcement followed the disclosure that Pikeville is losing its Appalachian League team, the Pikeville Brewers.

Bruce Mano, coordinator of minor leagues for the parent Milwaukee Brewers, said the team may be moved to the Pioneer or Northwestern leagues on the West Coast. The Brewers spent only one season in Pikeville.

Mano said he regretted the decision, but because of a housing problem in Pikeville, the team had to move. Many of the Pikeville players had to live in Pikeville College dormitory rooms.

Books From Libraries

The right of a school board to remove books from school libraries was the issue in question in the U.S. Supreme Court decision in Pico V. Island Trees (New York) Union Free School District.

The issue arose in 1975, when a list of 'objectionable'' books was obtained from a conservative organization and some of these books were found in the Island Trees' school libraries. The board directed the superintendent to remove the "objectionable" books from the libraries. A group of students then filed suit claiming their free speech rights had been violated.

In a 5-4 vote, the Supreme Court told the Island Trees School Board that it must go to trial to show that its purposes for removing books from its school libraries were constitutionally permissable. The case now goes back to the district court where the decision will probably set a new standard for trial courts concerning a school board's right to remove books from its school libraries. The trial will probably determine whether Island Trees Board removed the books for permissible educational reasons or if the board had violated the first amendment by seeking to suppress ideas.

Prestonsburg, Kentucky.

She was relieved of her duties and responsibilities for this earthly life, Sept. 27th, at Lynwood California; thereby claiming her reward by her Lord in its fullest extent.

She was preceded in death by her sister, Lois, in 1951.

She is survived by her beloved husband, Getie, of the home, Huntington Park, Calif.; one sister, Mrs. Ernest H. Dillion, Perisburg, Va., two nieces and two nephews.

Getie and Irene have been adherents of the United Methodist Church of Huntington Park for 32 years. She especially enjoyed her church and her participation in her activities. They were a team of the program of the Benedicti Class of that church.

She preferred a quiet life at home with her husband, the only exception being that of her church activities. Her husband praises her with the words of Proverbs: There are many fine women in the world but you, (Irene) were the finest of them all.

G.F. "Buddy" Wyrick is a brother of Mrs. A.C. Carter. Irene and "Buddy" visited Prestonsburg many times. "Buddy" Wyrick made his home in Prestonsburg for several years and other parts of the state and he was a Kentucky state highway patrolman before going to California.

Mrs. Irene Robertson Wyrick's remains were returned to the Mercer Funeral Home of Bluefield, where the funeral was conducted October 1, 1982 at 2 p.m. and the burial followed in the Monte Vista cemetery at Bluefield 1t.

Parent Killer Can't Collect

Children who have killed a parent will no longer collect Social Security benefits on the record of a parent, Jim Kelly, Social Security district director for the Big Sandy area, announced today.

New regulations formally prohibit benefit payments to any survivor who is found by a court to have intentionally caused the death of the worker on whose earnings record the benefits are based.

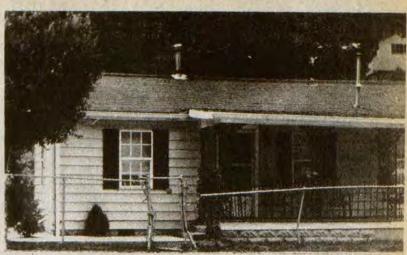

"Commissioner of Social Security John A. Svahn ordered Social Security offices to stop processing claims from these children immediately, when he received reports from California that focused on two individuals who received survivor benefits even though they were found responsible for causing a

DOWNTOWN PRESTONSBURG

The first day of school is one of the biggest days in our child's entire life. Right? And whose hand leads the child on its educational journey? Of course, the same hand that rocked the cradle-its Mother. Who is better able to understand the needs of our children than a Mother? A good Mother devotes her life to caring for her child. And where are there more children than in a school? I can't remember when we've had a mother as a school board member. Oh, mothers have been allowed to be teachers, but not to be in on the rules and policy making of our school system.

Well, it's high time we had a mother as a member of the board! I'm not throwing off on the fathers, but I just believe we need to give a mother a chance.

I've joked and guarreled with Karen Marcum, my sister, for the last 5 years telling her that she spends more time than the board members do studying the Kentucky School Laws, Rules, and Regulations. And anything else pertaining to schools that she can get her hands on! It's time we in Floyd County do something to help ourselves. Vote for my sister, Karen Nelson Marcum, and take a step forward for our children. Number Three on the Ballot and Number One in my heart!

parent's violent death." Kelly said.

"These rules strengthen the wellestablished principle that an individual should not profit from intentionally causing another person's death through criminal acts. This action is mainly directed at juvenile delinquents who have been found by a court to have intentionally killed a parent but for various reasons have not been convicted because they were juveniles."

"Prior Social Security policy denied benefits only to persons convicted of a felony for intentionally causing a worker's death. In some states felony convictions are not possible for individuals who are under the jurisdiction of the juvenile court system. On that basis, Social Security previously paid benefits to children in this category who otherwise qualified for benefits," Kelly said.

"The law has always prohibited Social Security payments to adults who were guilty of the felonious homicide of the worker on whose record they applied. For example if an adult killed their spouse, they cannot draw Social Security on the record of the deceased," Kelly said.

"Social Security offices will be working closely with the courts in enforcing these provisions," Kelly said.

The first bloom on the chestnut tree at the home of Albert Miller, of Cliff, was killed by a late frost last spring, but that was only Round 1. The second blooming resulted in the large chestnut shown in photograph. A smaller chestnut on the branch is the result of the third blooming, and evidence is visible at tip of branch of the fourth bloom of the year. Mr. Miller says the chestnut is about 20 years old and this year's was its first multiple blooming.
