Grant Funds Misused, Says State Auditor

More than half of a grant that was supposed to help juvenile offenders will have to be paid back to the state because it was misused, according to an auditor's finding disclosed at last week's meeting of the Floyd fiscal court.

Under the last county administration, $26,600—most of it channeled through the state from the federal Law Enforcement Assistance Administration—was earmarked to provide support staff for juvenile court here from July, 1980 to June, 1982. The idea was to refer young offenders to various helping agencies rather than haul them before the court and stigmatize them as delinquents.

In fact, a good part of the money went to pay two workers who were already on the county payroll—a violation of the terms of the grant, the auditor said.

One employee who was earning $1461 a month as county finance officer was paid $1200 for "extra work" over a three-month period in 1981, it was said. Another worker earning $883 a month as a secretary in the county judge's office was named juvenile support staff worker as well, for an additional $882 a month.

In each case, the two jobs for which the employees were paid were done with the same normal work hours, the auditor said.

The $1200 lump sum payment charged against the first year of the grant and the whole $13,300 awarded in the second year should be returned to the state, according to the auditor, although the county may dispute the auditor's findings within 30 days.

Grace Damron was later identified as the employee who was paid the lump sum, while Janet Tackett received the additional salary as juvenile worker. Mrs. Damron said this week the payment she received was for typing up juvenile reports at home, after her regular working hours. Mrs. Tackett declined to discuss the duties she was assigned as juvenile support officer.

County Personnel Officer Thomas J. Lafferty, Jr. said that, as a result of the misuse of the grant, the county has lost state funding for its juvenile support officer. "Now I'm going to have to go back to Frankfort like a dog with its tail between its legs to try to get the grant back," he said.

The fiscal court voted to refer the matter to the County Attorney.

Officials Drive Own Vehicles But Pay High

Just in case anyone gets the wrong idea, the Judge-Executive's 1983 Chrysler New Yorker and the magistrates' new pickups are their private vehicles and were paid for out of their own pockets, Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. was anxious to make clear last week.

This timely reassurance coincides with a report that some fiscal court members in Kentucky are spending too much public money on their own salaries and expenses.

Bill Wiley, a staff member of a legislative subcommittee that met in Frankfort last week, presented figures to the committee that apparently raised the question in some legislators' minds of whether fiscal court magistrates are paying themselves too much for what is generally a part-time job.

Moreover, since many of the best-paid magistrates are in coal counties, which receive severance tax money, one committee member suggested the legislature might reconsider its policy of returning severance tax money to those counties.

In a report to the Subcommittee on County Officials' Compensation of the interim Joint Committee on Counties and Special Districts, Wiley said 24 counties are paying magistrates more than $10,000 a year. Three-fourths of these counties receive severance tax money.

In fact, magistrates in six of the 24 counties earn more than $20,000—including Floyd, where magistrates are paid $20,843 in base salary and $300 a month for expenses, and the judge-executive receives $28,386, a mileage allowance, and $300 a month—picked up by the state, in his case—for expenses.

Hazelrigg Adjudges Hospital in Contempt

Highlands Regional Medical Center is not to do anything to interfere with two doctors in their practice of anesthesiology at the hospital; the hospital is to make necessary supplies and equipment available to the physicians, and any failure to do so could result in a fine of $500 a day.

Moreover, the medical center's refusal to allow one of the physicians to use hospital supplies last Friday puts the hospital in contempt of a court order issued a day earlier.

Such is the substance of an order issued Tuesday by Johnson Circuit Judge W.B. Hazelrigg. Hazelrigg, who is standing in for Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley in Conley's absence, handed down the order in response to a petition filed Monday by lawyers for Drs. Mina Majmundar and Ermelinda R. Arriola.

staff privileges at the hospital, had protested the contract, claiming it effectively revoked their rights and privileges.

In an affidavit filed Monday, J. K. Wells, an attorney for the plaintiffs, said that Dr. Arriola went to Highlands to perform anesthesia last Friday but hospital officials denied her access to supplies she needed.

Highlands' attorney Phillip Damron told her he did not interpret Thursday's injunction to mean the hospital had to make supplies available to her, Dr. Arriola said.

Judge Hazelrigg ordered Highlands officials to appear in court Tuesday to show why they should not comply with Thursday's injunction and why the hospital "should not be punished for its contumacy in disobeying said order."

(Those with whom Highlands is seeking to contract for anesthesia services were erroneously called anesthesiologists in a Times report last week. While both nurse anesthetists and anesthesiologists specialize in anesthesia, only the latter are physicians.)

"THE WORKING MAN and Labor" being the theme of this year's Red, White and Blue Day parade, UMW president Sam Church, Jr. was an appropriate grand marshal. The burly union leader was in town for another reason, too. Both he and Rich Trumka, the UMW lawyer who is challenging him in a bid for the presidency, were making final campaign appearances here before the Nov. 9 union ballot.

Union Opponents Woo Miner Vote

Candidates Make Pitch Last Week To Floyd Miners

Both United Mine Workers president Sam Church, Jr. and challenger Rich Trumka brought to Floyd county this week their campaigns to win the minds and hearts of the nation's unionized coalminers. The two will vie for the UMW presidency in a Nov. 9 balloting by the union's 155,000 members.

Church addressed a rally at Allen Central High School Saturday before taking his place as grand marshal in Martin's Red, White, and Blue Day parade. Trumka met with miners and campaign workers here before leaving last Thursday for more of the same in Alabama.

To hear Church tell it, the 13 years in age and longer mining experience he has over his opponent—Trumka is a UMW attorney—is the critical difference between them. The upcoming election, he told a crowd of about 200 miners in the Allen Central gym, offers a clear choice between a seasoned leader who has served his apprenticeship "from top to bottom" and a "young lawyer with a lot of promises and a big question mark beside his record."

This Town...That World

FISHING REPORT

Remnants of the "old gang" made that long-deferred fishing trip last week, and I have no report to make except to say without equivocation that the cost per fish caught jumped nationally by at least a dollar a pound as a result of our efforts.

IN THE SUPPORTING CAST

We went to Fontana Lake, in the Great Smokies region of North Carolina, and a nor'easter swept down from the distant peaks three days in a row, blowing the harder on each succeeding day. But we had sightseeing as a backup to fishing, and that helped.

I am not exactly a stranger to the Smokies and have for several years now contended that it's the grandest place of them all: hundreds of miles of roads taking you up to where you can look out, up and down to thousands of acres that are truly wilderness—where there is no road, all free of pollution, even free of humans unless somebody gets lost and ventures unwittingly deep into the wild.

You stand at an overlook and read from a bronze plate the following, an excerpt from Harvey Broome's "Out Under the Sky of the Great Smokies":

"Man has created some lovely dwellings, some soul-stirring literature. He has done much to alleviate physical pain. But he does not, in his cities, create a substitute for a sunset, a grove of pines, the music of the winds, the dank smell of the deep forest, or the shy beauty of a wild flower."

Stumbo Says Brown, Metts Welshed on Weight Law

At the start of this month a law was to take effect which, it was hoped, would solve the problem of getting coal to market without destroying the roads on which it is hauled.

The legislation—Senate Bill 144—is still bogged down in a mire of legal objections and second guesses, amid scattered opinions that it was not a workable bill to begin with.

That sort of talk is a sore spot with a prime mover of the legislation, Rep. Greg Stumbo, especially when it comes from people he says worked on the bill with him, approved it, found it workable at the time—and are now trying to put as much distance as they can between themselves and SB 144.

In testimony before the interim Joint Committee on Transportation late last month and in a recent letter to the Times, Stumbo made no secret of his disgust with Gov. John Y. Brown and Transportation Secretary Frank Metts over what he sees as their turnaround on the overweight-truck bill, once the legislation began to generate some controversy.

But Stumbo has vowed to defend the measure even if it costs him his political future—as some have suggested it might—as the best idea anyone has yet come up with to solve the chronic abuse of Eastern Kentucky's roads.

Under the law which Stumbo promoted and which was enacted by the 1982 General Assembly, coal operators can run trucks above the posted weight limits if they are willing to pay for the damage done to the roads. They could simply buy overweight-load permits, with most of the proceeds going into road and bridge repair.

Any operator buying a permit would be exempted from the state's weight-distance tax, which was also imposed by the 1982 legislature. Nor would he have to pay the excise tax on motor fuels.

The levy under SB 144's special permits is 4 percent of the value of the load hauled. The weight-distance levy is 2.8 cents for every mile on loads of 60,000 pounds or more. Short-haul operators could apply for a partial exemption from the levies if they logged less than 30 miles on a round trip.

As Stumbo sees it, the overweight permit offers coal haulers a "real deal" and he thinks that truckers who drove their rigs in a convoy to Frankfort to protest the bill last month don't understand it.

For one thing, he argues, it shifts the burden of compliance from the trucker to the operator; it allows both to keep doing what they've been doing for years—haul overweight loads—but to do it legally; and it generates money to maintain the roads.

In its first year the measure could generate between $750,000 and $1 million for road repair in Floyd county alone, Stumbo figured. Because bridges are the weak link in the system, they would be repaired first, he explained.

What is more, Brown and Metts knew exactly what the new law was about and they were for it, he contends.

Delay of Trial Granted Bevins, Slayer of Five

The trial of Okie Bevins, charged with the murder of five persons at Allen, Oct. 16, last year, has been continued in Greenup circuit court till January, The Times learned this week. The trial had been set for Nov. 29 in that court in a change of venue from the Floyd circuit court.

The continuance, granted by Greenup Circuit Judge James Atkinson on motion of defense attorney Lester Burns, sets the trial for January, but the Greenup circuit clerk was unable to provide a specific date because the continuance order had not been transmitted to that office by the judge.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said that his first knowledge of a continuance request came last Wednesday when he received a copy of the defense motion. Early this week, he was uncertain what had happened. If the Greenup court took any action on the Burns motion, he said, it was taken without the commonwealth having an opportunity to protest.

"We were ready and anxious to go to trial," Allen said.

The 71-year-old Bevins is charged with murder in the slayings of Michael Halbert, Roger Click, Rufus Hamilton, Jarvey Hamilton and Roger Hatfield. He also has been charged with the shooting and wounding of three other men on the same occasion.

Bevins remains a prisoner in the Laurel county jail at London, without bond.

Plaintiffs Fare Badly in Trials

Last week wasn't the best for plaintiffs in district court here. One, who even the defense attorney conceded was a "credible witness," failed utterly to convince the jury, which found for the defendant after deliberating less than 10 minutes.

Another not only had his complaint thrown out of court but found himself on the defensive before the trial was over.

As Joe Younce told the story, Charles Sartin, of Wheelwright, was driving by the Younce home on Abner Mountain in late July when his car broke down and he asked permission to use the Younces' phone. Before Sartin left, Younce said he saw him take a plastic bag out of the trunk of the stalled car and dump it over a bank next to Younce's house.

In the bag was a dead dog, he said. Sartin, 24, an unemployed pipelayer, was represented by Public Defender Ned Pillersdorff. He said that what he had taken from the trunk of his car was a gas can and that he had dumped no dog on the Younces' property. He was acquitted.

Election Officers Named Again; Only One Change Made

Heading the advice of County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., the Floyd County Board of Elections repeated its selection of polling booth officials Monday.

County Court Clerk C. "Ollie" Robinson said the list was unchanged except for the replacement of Mrs. Juanita "Boots" Adams by Clyde George in No. 2 precinct here.

The group that had challenged the original list, claiming a quorum was lacking when the Elections Board compiled it, had also objected to Mrs. Adams' appointment, since she is the wife of Dr. J. D. Adams, a candidate for school board member. In the face of the challenge, Mrs. Adams promptly resigned.

Besides himself, Sheriff Henry Hale and Republican Chairman Bill Jack Darby attended the Monday afternoon meeting that approved the new list, Robinson said.

UNCLE SAM, a 14-foot-tall, stilt-walking, flag-waving version of the familiar patriotic figure, has become a tradition at the yearly Red, White & Blue Day activities, and this year he was there again towering over the parade and crowds in Martin which were said to have exceeded last year's attendance.

What Is The "Sudden-Infant-Death" Syndrome?

This is the occasion when a child, well cared for and robust, usually between the ages of three weeks and twelve months, is put to bed; a short time later the mother returns to the bedroom to find the child dead. There is no sign of struggle although the child may have changed position.

This type of death is often called "crib death." It is a particularly devastating experience for parents of the child. They suffer feelings of guilt which they shouldn't. If they have used normal care and precaution, there's absolutely no reason for them to blame themselves. In situations such as this, it is recommended that the parents consult their minister, doctor or psychiatrist.

Ongoing medical research has not yet been able to find any reason for this type of death; nor can they predict or prevent it. "Old wives tales" and much misinformation surrounds the sudden death of an infant under these otherwise normal circumstances.

Should this happen to someone you know, try to understand their own helplessness and the lack of knowledge now available.

The schools are OURS. We pay taxes and support these schools. It is our responsibility as concerned parents and citizens to be involved in seeing what is being done with our tax money. This money, contrary to the beliefs of a "chosen few," belongs to our children. They're the ones who should be benefiting from our tax dollars. We place a great deal of money in the hands of our school officials as well as the educational futures of our children, and we should hold these officials accountable. They have a job to do, and we have a duty to determine how successfully they're doing it. MOST PEOPLE WHO TAKE UP "SCHOOLBOARD WATCHING" AREN'T, AFTER ALL, DOING IT FOR SPORT. Skaggs In Betsy Layne Concert

(The success of Thursday night's Ricky Skaggs concert at Betsy Layne came as no surprise. Indeed, only three days prior to his Betsy Layne appearance the young musician-singer from Lawrence county was named by the Country Music Association, Male Vocalist of the Year. In addition, he was awarded CMA's Horizon Award. The honors officially put Skaggs at the "top" of the country music world and, luckily for the Betsy Layne Band Parents organization which sponsored the concert and the near capacity crowd which attended, his Floyd county appearance represented one of his first public performances following the prestigious awards. The following article is derived from an interview with Skaggs conducted by Wende Buchanan before Thursday night's performance.)

tioned were plans for a new album called "Ricky Skaggs Favorite Country Songs."

When asked what he calls his music, his reply was swift and certain, "Country music. Bluegrass is a label that has been struck on the music for years and years, you know, because Bill Monroe came from the Bluegrass state of Kentucky. It doesn't make the music any more Bluegrass than Ralph Stanley's music. Ralph hardly ever calls his music Bluegrass—it's just old mountain music."

The tight schedule keeps him on the road a great deal and has cut deeply into his private life, or as he phrased it, "What private life?" He and his wife, Sharon White, of Buck White and the Down Home Folks, recently bought a house in Hendersonville, Tennessee. However, unpacking and traveling do not mix easily. He said, "I had to go on the road to get some rest."

As for goals Ricky quipped, "Pull off this show." In a more serious vein he continued, "I never really set too many goals, I just try to let everyday provide for itself and let everyday take care of itself... Skaggs has been a musician since the age of five when his father first taught him to play the mandolin. Not long after that he made his first Nashville television appearance. However, when asked if he might have lost part of his childhood, he replied with a chuckle, "Well, I am still in my childhood."

"Waitin' for the Sun to Shine" has sold over 430,000 albums and rocketed the group to the top of the charts. However, the group has not been idle since the record's release. The newest album, "Highways and Heartaches," containing the single "Heartbreaker," was cut in about 210 hours. Also, men-

JIMMY "BLUE", JIMMY & KAREN MARCUM

This is a little poem I sat down and wrote
To try to get you all to go out and cast your vote.
Election time is near, and we must all decide
Who is best, who is worse, who is most qualified.

So drive your cars down to the polls
Find a place and park 'em.
Hurry into the polls
And cast your vote for Marcum.

Clubwomen in 64th Annual Meet

The GFWC-KFWC 64th annual seventh district fall meeting was held last Wednesday, at the Carriage House Motel, Paintsville, with the district governor, Mrs. Gualene Smith, Pikeville presiding. The Allen and Drift Woman's Club co-hosted the event.

The welcome was given by Mrs. Joe Hinchman, of the Allen Woman's Club, with the response by Mrs. C. L. Vaughn, president of the Elkhorn City Woman's Club.

Governor Smith introduced the following state officers: Mrs. Thomas McCoy, Jr., Catlettsburg, president, KFWC; Mrs. Richard Reilly, Lexington, first vice-president; Mrs. O. W. Dotson, III, Woodburn, third vice-president; Mrs. John O'Boyle, Jr., Middlesboro, fourth vice-president; Mrs. Thomas A. Poore, Benton, treasurer, and Mrs. Douglas Banks, Lewisport, aide to the president.

Mrs. McCoy, KFWC president, gave the main address, calling attention to her administration theme, "Committed to Service." She urged each clubwoman to realize that "federation" is a joint effort, that "it means everyone working together." She pointed out that "we have done it in the past and it is more important that we do it in the future" as we consider all the needs of our communities.

Mrs. Richard Reilly, speaking on "Membership" admonished her listeners to create a task force to make the public aware of the need for volunteer workers. She urged that new members be given recognition and to let them know what the club can do for them and what they can do for the club.

Mrs. Douglas Banks explained the Rebate Program and displayed items for sale.

Mrs. O. W. Dotson, III, spoke on "International Affairs" and suggested that each club agree to send $3.50 to the Seventh district governor to help cover expenses for the Ambassador Program sponsored by the GFWC-KFWC (housing visiting foreign students in homes of club women in communities across the state).

Following the luncheon, the Rev. and Mrs. Timothy Jessen provided entertainment with the Rev. Jessen at the piano. Their vocal selections were "Sunrise, Sunset" and a duet arrangement of "Let There Be Peace In The World" and "It's A Small World After All". The Rev. Jessen is pastor of the Prestonsburg Drift Presbyterian Churches.

During the mini workshops covering the departments of the GFWC-KFWC time was given for each of the state officers to explain some of the projects of her particular department. Also "reporting" was discussed with special emphasis on the Score Card. It was pointed out that for the purpose of reporting the club year now is counted from January 1, 1982 to December 31, 1982, and reports will be due to be received at headquarters by January 15, 1983 on this year's club work.

Highlight of the afternoon department reporting was pep talk by Mrs. John "Angie" Banks, chairman of the Seventh district Crime Reduction Department. In the costume of McGruff, the TV anti-crime dog, she made suggestions as to how "take a bite out of crime".

Mrs. Burnis Patrick, district vice-governor, presented certificates to clubwomen who had entries in the arts and crafts exhibits. Red, white, and blue ribbons were placed on the items during judging. First place winners in the various categories were: Painting, Jackie McCoy; mixed media, Oralee Deskins; photography, Mary Pauline Fox; crafts, Alice Kendrick; crewel, Clara Shaw; crochet, Mary Hinchman; knitting, Sophia Cahill; cross stitch, Alice Kendrick; quilts, Oralee Deskins. Some of the first-place winners were also second place winners in other categories.

Miss Alice Kendrick acted as recording secretary in the absence of Mrs. Alvin Stinnett. Timekeeper was Mrs. Melvin Reed, Magoffin County Woman's Club. The Exhibits committee was composed of Mrs. John Reed, Mrs. Jimmie Conn and Mrs. Dennis Adams. Registration and coffee hour hostesses were Miss Ruby Akers, Mrs. C. H. Cahill, Mrs. Joe Hinchman, and Mrs. Thomas Porter. Table decorations, favors, name tags, etc. were provided by the Allen Woman's Club.

Clubs represented at the meeting were Allen, Drift, Elkhorn City Area, Inez, Jenkins, Lackey-Garrett-Wayland, Magoffin County, Pikeville, and Prestonsburg, for a total attendance of 45.

The 1983 district contests will be hosted by the Paintsville Junior Woman's Club and the invitation for the 1983 fall district meeting was given by the Magoffin County Woman's Club.

WPRT Honored by Weatherman

Gil Russell, left, of the National Weather Service's Jackson office, presented an award to WPRT radio, Thursday, for "outstanding performance... in educating and informing the public of weather particulars." Receiving the award on behalf of the station was Manager Mike Ormerod, center, while Emergency Service Post 9 Coordinator Rev. Compton, right, looks on.
 "This is the first award to a radio station in eastern Kentucky that I know of in the two years I've been with the weather service," Russell said. Steve Collier, former WPRT news director, recently received a similar award for his personal contribution to the service.
 Present news director Lola Potter and managers Ormerod and Rick Darby said the radio station would continue to provide the service and Ormerod cited Compton's and assistant Carol Howard's cooperation as a "major factor" in making the service possible.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

Astringents are chemicals that cause skin enlargement at the top of hair follicles. They also slightly enlarge and mildly inflame sweat glands. This causes a tightening of the skin and a stop to the secretion of sweat. For this reason, it is an ingredient in underarm antiperspirants. A second property of astringents is their ability to cause a living skin cell to die. Because astringents have a low penetration rate, this action only occurs quite close to the skin's surface. At the same time, the skin and small blood vessels harden close to the skin's surface. Thus, astringents are also used in styptic pencils.

If you are using an antiperspirant and notice a burning sensation or a rash, then you might be allergic to the astringent chemical in the product. You might want to switch to a simple deodorant instead. At COOLEY APOTHECARY, INC. we always try to help you with questions of health. We're a full service pharmacy, and we also carry convalescent items. If you want the best in personal and professional service, see us at #2 Town Center Bldg. Open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. 886-8106.

Good News Report

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN
Director of ACTION

How do you like your miracles? This one comes sunny side up. His name is Chan. His sister's name is Sophan. They were separated from each other and their parents during the genocidal terror that Pol Pot and his communist murderers inflicted on the Cambodian people, beginning in 1975. Chan was only 15 then, but somehow he managed to survive, taking refuge in the highland jungles, hiding in the tree tops, working his way with others toward the Thai border. Reaching sanctuary in Thailand was perhaps more difficult for him than anyone else because he could neither talk nor hear. Chan is a deaf mute. But he did escape from Cambodia, and he was sheltered by a Cambodian family in a refugee camp, even though they could not converse with him.

Amazingly, Sophan also had reached Thailand, and once, agonizingly, through the gates of the camp she caught sight of Chan, but because she was with a group of people headed for the United States, there was no chance to make contact with him. That was in 1979.

In the spring of 1981, Chan arrived in Phoenix, Arizona, hoping to begin a new life. But how could he when it was impossible for him to communicate and therefore to learn? For nearly a year, he was passed from one Cambodian family to the next in a vain effort to find help. No one could understand him. He couldn't be fitted into a training program, much less a job.

Almost in desperation, the Catholic Relief Agency handling Chan's case called Colleen Mooney, refugee coordinator for the Santa Ana, California, office of the U.S. Catholic Conference. Could she help? Could Orange County accept a deaf mute Cambodian?

Colleen was reluctant to say yes. The case was loaded with serious potential problems. Suppose Chan was also retarded? Even if he weren't, any family who took him in would have to be English-speaking as well, and there weren't all that many. There also was the consideration of community backlash against additional refugees. She was inclined to beg off, but there was something about the bleakness of the case that wouldn't let go, and finally she agreed to take him "and leave it in God's hands."

Through the agency's case worker, Chansa Klo, a Cambodian family was located that was willing to accept Chan. They were to pick him up at John Wayne Airport when he arrived on the flight from Phoenix. Fine, but then a problem arose. The family had no car, and Chansa Klo couldn't use hers because she had a doctor's appointment. She looked around for help and called on her friends, the Chaus. As refugees, they had been her first clients. Could they possibly be on hand to greet the newcomer?

They could, and when Chan stepped off the plane, the first person he saw was his sister, Sophan, for she was Mrs. Chau. There are no spoken or written words to describe that reunion or the odds that it would ever take place. Brother and sister didn't need any words because as children they had developed their own sign language. But in any language, it spells miracle.

Today Chan is attending a school for the deaf in Anaheim, California. Far from retarded, he is very intelligent, and understandably, the most enthusiastic student in his class.

For Chan to be able to take that incredible step into Sophan's hands, a number of people all the way from Thailand to Phoenix to Santa Ana, had to say yes—to take an extra step, and it is that extra step that makes all the difference in life.

'Previn And The Pittsburgh' Play Rachmaninov On KET

Andre Previn conducts the Pittsburgh Symphony Orchestra in a celebration of the composer Rachmaninov's work Wednesday, November 3, at 9 p.m.

Pianist Horacio Gutierrez appears as the featured guest in the one-hour program, part of public television's "Previn and the Pittsburgh" series.

The show spotlights Gutierrez, Previn and the orchestra as they discuss and perform the works of this legendary romantic composer. With Previn conducting, Gutierrez plays Rachmaninov's "Third Piano Concerto," considered by many to be the soloist's signature piece.

Taped before an audience at Heinz Hall for the Performing Arts, the special also features Previn and Gutierrez as they share anecdotes about the life and work of the composer.

Born in Havana, Cuba, Gutierrez, age 34, appeared as guest soloist with the Havana Symphony Orchestra at the age of 11. He moved to Los Angeles with his family in 1962 and in 1967 became an American citizen. Gutierrez is a graduate of the Juilliard School of Music (New York) and won the coveted Tchaikovsky Competition in Moscow in 1971. "Previn and the Pittsburgh" is produced by WQED, Pittsburgh.

Adapted from the classic detective stories from famed British writer G. K. Chesterton, "Father Brown" stars the late Kenneth More in the title role.

Father Brown is a soft-spoken man with good humor and an interest in people. He uses his priestly insight to look into the darker side of man's nature to solve the mysteries behind crime.

English audiences loved the series, which aired there earlier. It is set in the late 1920s.

★ CONSUMER ALERT ★

DENTURES

Today, more than ever before, people of all ages are wearing dentures. Because more people are wearing dentures, consumers should be aware of deceptive practices involving the marketing of dentures. Attorney General Steven L. Beshear says, "Consumers from all walks of life are being misled by deceptive dental practices. Although the elderly are the most heavily targeted group, they are not alone with denture problems."

Consumers face a wide variety of problems with dentures. Many times, consumers will find bargain prices advertised, only to discover a lot of hidden charges. Sometimes, consumers will only see a dentist on an initial visit. After the initial visit, the dentist will never seem to "be available." Consumers may even have to pay cash in advance just to see the dentist. Later, if they become dissatisfied with their dentures, they may discover that they cannot get their money back. Consumers should always be on the lookout for these types of practices.

There are several steps consumers can take to avoid being "ripped off" when buying dentures. First, always insist on seeing a licensed dentist. Do not allow a laboratory technician to make your denture impression. Laboratory technicians are not licensed to make impressions, nor do they usually have any training to do so. Second, be cautious about paying in advance. Attorney General Beshear says, "Consumers will often pay a large cash sum in advance only to later become dissatisfied with their dentures and not be able to get a refund." Beshear also added, "Be sure your dentist delivers what he advertises. If he advertises personal attention, make sure you get it. If you go back for an adjustment, make sure a licensed dentist does the adjustment. The dentist can then be sure the dentures fit properly."

The Kentucky Dental Association offers a special program to senior citizens. The program is called "Dentures Access Program" and it allows senior citizens who could not normally afford dentures to have dentures made at reduced prices. To become part of this program and receive its help or to receive further information, senior citizens should call this number toll-free: 1-800-292-1855.

The Attorney General's Division of Consumer Protection provides a variety of consumer information and mediates consumer complaints. Write to them at 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, or call the toll-free Consumer Hotline: 1-800-432-9257.

Pikeville College Operates "In the Black" Once Again

Highlighting the 1981-82 fiscal year at Pikeville College was the affirmation that the college had once again operated "in the black"... the second year in a row. The Annual Fund income is derived from a variety of sources including individuals, churches, tuition, government programs and grants from corporations and foundations.

According to Ronald W. Taylor, Director of Development, "Our balanced budget was made possible through the generosity of hundreds of donors and dozens of volunteers. The final Annual Fund total for the year shows almost $1,200,000 raised, about $2,000 per student. This income, combined with prudent management and budgetary restraint, combined to make the year such a success."

Mrs. Lon B. Rogers, Board of Trustee member and chairman of the Advanced Gifts Campaign, other local trustee members and community leaders raised in excess of $200,000 for the Advanced Gifts Campaign. "It is unbelievable the amount of time and energy Mrs. Rogers gave during the campaign. The consistent hard work by her and all of the 27 local volunteers made it possible for such a productive campaign," Taylor continued.

Over $46,000 was raised through the 1981-82 Phonathon with Walter P. Walters, a Pikeville College trustee emeritus, serving as chairman. Walters served as a member of the Board of Trustees from 1970-1978 and was awarded an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters degree for his outstanding service to the college and the community during the 1978 Commencement exercises. Walters' involvements with the Phonathon included daily checking of the total giving, reviewing pledges, contacting those who had pledged but not contributed and offering encouragement to everyone involved. His efforts, combined with those of Pat Fritz, Alumni Director, and the 83 volunteers who devoted their time and efforts, helped provide Pikeville College with a successful Phonathon, an integral part of the over-all fund raising efforts of the college.

All of this, along with Dr. Jackson O. Hall's leadership and inspiration to every member of the college community, contributed to a balanced budget for the 1981-82 fiscal year.

"Operating in the black, for the second year in a row, will enable Pikeville College to pursue support from foundations we have not been able to contact in the past. Many large foundations will not consider giving support to colleges unless they have a balanced budget...now we have a proven record," Taylor continued. "We are looking to the new year with optimism and enthusiasm."

State Program Finds 141 Jobs

An innovative program that trained welfare recipients for jobs and helped provide stable staff for Kentucky's mental health hospitals placed 141 people in permanent jobs before it ended.

The Kentucky Health Care Employment Program (KHCEP) ceased operation Sept. 30, 1982. The program, which began under the direction of Dr. Grady Stumbo Oct. 1, 1980, was originally scheduled to operate only one year. However, because of the success of the program, it was continued an additional year when money became available.

KHCEP was a one-of-a-kind demonstration project which paid welfare recipients on-the-job training at the cabinet's mental health hospitals.

A total of 141 of the program's 227 participants were placed into unsubsidized jobs and are no longer on the welfare rolls, according to Human Resources Secretary Buddy Adams. Most of these people were placed in permanent jobs in the institutions after their training, he said.

The program's success in placing welfare recipients in permanent jobs means savings for the taxpayer, Adams said. "Welfare payments were reduced by $255,289 annually when the 141 participants went to work. Also, as working citizens, they have paid $329,396 in state and federal taxes and social security."

These figures do not include Food Stamps and Medicaid or the taxes all of the participants paid while receiving training.

"When they started training, the majority of the participants had little or no marketable job skills and had problems with child care and transportation, said Adams. "This program demonstrated that welfare recipients, even those who have barriers to overcome, can and will work when given the opportunity."

"When KHCEP began in 1980, staff turnover at state mental institutions was high, Adams said. "Hard economic times greatly reduced the turnover. We were not able to place as many of the program participants into the jobs at institutions as was planned."

New cars just aren't what they used to be.

Electronic ignition	Improved fuel economy
Reduced maintenance	Better handling

They're better.

Recent engineering advances make new cars better values than ever before. Everywhere you look, from fuel economy to handling, new cars give you more for your money than previous models.

More mileage for your money. An average new car gets over 50 percent better gas mileage than the average car of just seven years ago. That can translate into hundreds of dollars a year in savings at the pump.

More advanced design. The high technology advances available in most new cars mean even more savings and better performance. For example, with an electronic ignition, your new car will require fewer tune-ups, burn gas more efficiently, and start better in cold weather. And you never have to replace the points.

Less scheduled maintenance. Routine maintenance on new cars is reduced to a minimum. With average driving, you may need to change your oil only once a year. Spark plugs last up to 30,000 miles. You may never need a lube job, and most batteries are maintenance-free. More carefree driving comes with every new car.

Better handling. More exact steering, independent suspensions, and better brakes and tires make new cars shine here, too. Plus, their aerodynamic styling not only improves fuel economy, but also gives new cars greater stability.

When you add it all up, today's new cars are better than ever, and give you more value for your money. But, don't take our word for it. Go to a showroom and see for yourself. There's never been a better time to get into a new car.

Get into a new car now.

Computer Project Funded
By Department of Education

Computers have come of age in businesses, homes and schools across the country. To help students keep up with the latest in computer technology, Kentucky's State Department of Education, 26 Kentucky school districts and KET are participating in a national project designed to advance the use of small format computers, also known as microcomputers, in schools. Kentucky's participation in this project, sponsored by the Agency for Instructional Television (AIT), has been funded by the Kentucky Department of Education.

Each of the 26 school districts and participating Kentucky state agencies will be part of a national consortium to design the computer project. According to Harry Hinkle, KET's director of instructional television (ITV) programming, once finished, the project will include instructional materials for students to sharpen their thinking and problem-solving skills. The package will also include in-service activities for teachers and policy research studies for educators and administrators.

Eight computer programs for students in grades 6-8 will be used in conjunction with the "Thinkabout" instructional series. Students will ask and answer questions about what they have seen in the television series, using a microcomputer as a learning aid.

During the next two years, the participating agencies will review instructional designs and scripts and will test materials in classrooms. The project is slated for completion in 1984.

The 26 Kentucky school districts participating in the nationwide consortium are: Beechwood Independent, Bourbon County, Boyd County, Campbell County, Fairview Independent, Fort Knox Dependent, Fort Thomas Independent, Franklin County, Greenup County, Greenville Independent, Hancock County, Jefferson County, Kenton County, Lyon County, Martin County, McCracken County, Monroe County, Montgomery County, Muhlenberg County, Oldham County, Owensboro Independent, Pendleton County, Scott County, Southgate Independent, Trimble County and West Point Independent.

KRTA Officers at Workshop

The Kentucky Retired Teachers' fall workshop held at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, Sept. 16, was attended by state and local officers. From left, they are: front row—Virginia S. Goble, vice-president of the Eastern District, K.R.T.A., Prestonsburg; Virginia Murrell, president, K.R.T.A., Somerset; Margaret Weatherell, past president, K.R.T.A., Louisville, and Norma S. Stepp, president, Floyd County Retired Teachers' Association, Prestonsburg; second row—Dr. J.M. Dodson, executive director of K.R.T.A., Louisville; Ted Crosthwait, State coordinator, Frankfort; May K. Roberts, past president, F.C.R.T., Prestonsburg; Russell Boyd, member-at-large, Paintsville; Ann Scutfield, vice-president, F.C.R.T., Martin, and Lester Weatherell, K.R.T.A. representative, Louisville.

Allen Women Meet

The October meeting of the Allen Woman's Club was held at the home of George and Josephine Evans. The meeting was called to order by president Ferne Ankrom, who presented a program entitled, "V.I.A. for Operation Help." Reports were read by secretary Mary Hinchman and treasurer Diana Reed. Business included final plans for hosting the 7th District fall meeting, a KWFC survey, and support of the athletics fund. Members present were Ferne Ankrom, Hollie Blanton, Pat DeRossett, Mary Hinchman, and Diana Reed. The next meeting will be at 7 p.m., November 2.

Only The Name Is The Same

Marvin Dixon, Sr., of Prestonsburg, is not the Marvin Dixon whose name was listed under District Court news in the October 13 issue of The Times.

Late Fall Sessions Slated At PCC

The Community Services Program of Prestonsburg Community College will begin the second session of "Beginning and Advanced Gymnastics" at Archer Park Gymnasium next month. Robin Carlson and her team of assistants will provide instruction to those who would like to enroll for the first time and to those who wish to continue from the first session. All classes are scheduled on Mondays for a 6 week period, November 1-December 6. The beginning class is from 3:30-4:30 p.m., advanced from 4:30-6:00 p.m.

Lorraine Bailey is also offering a second session in "Cake Decorating" which will begin on the same date. The enrollment is limited to 18 and all participants must have a beginner's cake decorating kit. The class is from 6:30-9:30 p.m. on November 1-December 6 in Room 216 of the Pike Building.

The rudiments of knitting and crocheting will be taught in a 6 week course by Judith Carr. Students will learn how to properly read patterns and translate them into actual pieces of work, and Ms. Carr will offer various techniques for more perfect work. This class meets on Mondays, November 1-December 6, at 6:30-8:30 p.m. in Room 106 of the Pike Building.

TO THE VOTERS OF EDUCATIONAL DIVISION NO. 1:

Serving on any board of education is a task involving the proper management of business pertaining to that particular board. The normal business encountered by members of the Floyd County Board of Education involves the budgeting and expenditure of approximately 15 million dollars of taxpayers money annually. This expenditure of taxpayers money is strictly for the purpose of providing the proper environment which is conducive to the educational process of 10,000 pupils enrolled in the Floyd County Public School System.

The many tasks of a board member involve making decisions such as curriculum, staffing the schools with over 500 certified teachers and 200 non-certified personnel, managing a fleet of over 75 buses transporting over 7,000 students daily, the implementation of job descriptions delineating responsibilities and the maintenance of a multi-million dollar complex of old and new school facilities. The management of the total school system by board members is no joking matter. I, as your present board member, have attempted to serve you in a businesslike fashion.

I, James D. "Doc" Adams, based upon my past record representing you as your school board member, feel that I am qualified to continue.

PUBLIC NOTICE TO OWNERS OF RENTAL HOUSING

The Floyd County Housing Authority is administering a Section 8 Moderate Rehabilitation Program in Floyd County using funds provided by the Department of Housing and Urban Development.

Under this program, owners will rehabilitate rental units which are now substandard or have major building systems or components requiring repair or replacement. The cost of this work, which must total at least $1000 per unit, may be financed by a local lending institution, by the owner, or by any other source available to the owner. The agency does not make rehabilitation loans or grants, but will assist owners to obtain financing.

After required rehabilitation work has been completed, the agency and the owner will execute a contract which establishes a rent for the unit(s) that will cover rehabilitation costs, meet monthly operating expenses, and allow a reasonable profit on the owner's investment. For a fifteen year period, the owner will rent the rehabilitated unit(s) to eligible lower income tenants, who will pay approximately 25 percent of their income toward the rent. The agency will pay the remainder of the rent directly to the owner. The initial occupant of a rehabilitated unit may be the owner's present eligible tenant.

After rehabilitation, the rent (including utilities) cannot exceed the following Maximum Rents:

BEDROOM SIZE
1	2	3	4
206	244	282	319

The agency's current funds will allow rehabilitation of 35 units of rental housing as follows:

1 BR	2 BR	3 BR	4 BR
8	18	7	2

No unit will be assisted which results in the permanent displacement of a current tenant. Proposals from owners will be received by the Housing Authority until further notice.

Owners who wish to submit a proposal must obtain an application form from:

Got A Small Business Problem? Call "SBA Answer Desk"

Beginning at 8:30 a.m. Thursday, October 14, just pick up the telephone and dial, toll free, "SBA Answer Desk" at 800/368-5855. That's the number of a new small business information and referral service being offered by the U.S. Small Business Administration (SBA).

Experts from SBA's Office of Advocacy will staff "Answer Desk" telephones from 8:30 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. Monday through Friday and will be prepared to handle questions from small business persons needing help or guidance with problems connected with their firm and government. During other hours, calls will be handled by a recording device and answered the next business day.

"SBA Answer Desk" is being started as an important and needed service to primarily help small business men and women deal with the complexities of government," B. B. Wells, district director, Louisville office, said today.

"Full-time information specialists will take calls on this toll-free line. If they cannot answer a question directly, they will be ready to refer the caller to the appropriate government office in Washington or around the country. Our information specialists will be supported by a wide variety of resource materials."

"It is not the intention at the outset of 'SBA Answer Desk' to become involved in case work or personal inter-governmental advocacy. We first want to study the kinds of questions and problems we encounter with 'Answer Desk' calls."

"We will provide help and referral services to all who call. Although we probably will not be able to immediately resolve all problems, our staff will provide callers with information and referral service. In the long run, SBA will gain by analyzing suggestions and complaints and direct research and policy efforts to solve these problems."

SBA officials said they anticipate "Answer Desk" calls to include queries about federal contracts and government loans, government paperwork and regulations and small business training and counseling available through SBA and other agencies.

Police Vow Crackdown On Hallowe'en Violence

It is unfortunate but vandalism has become as much a part of Halloween as ghosts and goblins. Each year destruction of property and other "dirty tricks" are reported throughout the commonwealth.

In 1981 at least three incidents on Halloween night went beyond vandalism. A Knott county man visiting in Perry county died after being shot in the chest. The gunfire apparently came from a passing car. In Cumberland county a woman was hit by buckshot as she was riding in the back of a truck.

On Halloween night in Johnson county last year, a teenager was permanently injured after being shot in the head by a man apparently angered by a roadblock put in place by trick-or-treaters.

What is it about Halloween that seems to bring out the worst in some people? Maybe the anonymity of wearing masks and being out after dark fosters a feeling that "anything goes" on Halloween.

Whatever the reason, the tradition of Halloween vandalism and violence will not be tolerated by the Kentucky State Police. Troopers will be on duty to protect the public and serve as a reminder that the law is still the law, even on Halloween.

Extra troopers will be patrolling in every county on Halloween. Special details will be assigned to areas identified as potential trouble spots.

The state police are advising motorists to watch for rocks or other objects which may be thrown across the highway or dropped from an overpass. Motorists should also watch for obstructions placed in the road.

In addition to guarding their own safety, drivers should look out for young trick-or-treaters who may not be looking out for themselves.

Ideally, children should be collecting treats only during the time set by local authorities for the observance of Halloween. This year Halloween comes on Sunday, Oct. 31, but the official observance will vary in different locations.

The state police are also asking for parents' cooperation in making a safe Halloween this year.

Parents of trick-or-treaters should not allow their children out after dark when visibility is low. As an additional precaution, children should be in Halloween costumes which allow them to see and be seen by drivers.

*Trick-or-treaters can see better if they wear Halloween makeup rather than a mask. If a mask is worn, it should have large eye openings. The mask should fit well so it won't slip. *The costume itself should be bright or white. Reflective tape can increase visibility. (The costume should also fit well. A costume which drags the ground could trip the child and cause him to fall.)

*Children out at dusk should carry a flashlight, perhaps in a jack-o-lantern. They should never carry candles.

The state police advise parents to accompany their children on their Halloween rounds. If this isn't possible, the children should be accompanied by a responsible adult or teenager.

It is safest for children to collect treats only in their own neighborhood along a route determined by their parents.

In any case, children should be told not to eat any of their Halloween treats before bringing the treats home for examination by their parents. Parents should wash and examine fruit and discard damaged fruit, candy which is unpackaged or has a torn wrapper, and other suspicious items.

To Hear Citizens

Attorney General Steve Beshear will be in Pikeville, Prestonsburg and Elizabethtown later this month to learn about the concerns and complaints of local citizens.

The Prestonsburg meeting will be Oct. 28 from 9 a.m. until 1 p.m. in the circuit courtroom of the Floyd county courthouse.

These programs are designed by Beshear to make the office of the attorney general accessible and responsive to Kentuckians by bringing him and members of his staff into the region to meet with citizens.

To Speak at Hazard

The workload can be lightened measurably with an enthusiastic, humorous outlook, as William P. "Deacon" Headley will prove when he speaks to the National Management Association of Ky. W. Va. Gas Co. October 22, at the LaCitadelle in Hazard.

A long time associate of Columbia Gas, Headley is a special representative in the Communications Department and has been a popular after-dinner speaker for many years.

In the guise of "The Deacon"—his own tongue-in-cheek characterization of old-time, circuit-riding preacher complete with swallow-tail coat, black hat and string tie—Headley will blend rhyme and humor with common sense advice in his message, titled "Stop and Smell the Roses."

Headquartered in Columbus, Ohio, Headley is a member of the National Speakers Association, the International Platform Association and American Society of Safety Engineers. He is a Certified Safety Professional and a member of the Veterans of Safety. He is a life resident of Columbus, where he is active in Kiwanis and Masonic bodies.

If you're not careful, your TV or CB antenna could put you in touch with a lot more than you bargained for.

Like many do-it-yourself projects, installing your own TV or CB antenna can save you money. But unless you take proper precautions, it could put you in touch with our power lines.

And the slightest contact between you, your antenna and our lines, could be fatal.

So, before you put up your antenna, here are a few suggestions you should follow.

First, we recommend you have a professional do it for you.

Okay, if you're determined to do it yourself, look out for power lines. The ones attached to poles. And the ones attached to your house.

If you can't tell a power line from a phone line, don't experiment. Steer clear.

Then make sure you locate your antenna (including supporting mast and guy wires) at least one and a half times its total height from all power lines. Which means, a 30-ft. high antenna should be 45 feet away from all power lines in all directions.

That way, if it falls during construction, or gets blown down during a storm, it won't hit any lines and endanger you or your neighbors.

Wait for a calm day, assemble the antenna where you intend to put it up, be sure to ground the antenna properly and get somebody to help you.

And remember: Ladders don't mix any better with power lines than do antennas.

Hallowe'en Still Casts Its Spell

By INK MENDELSON
Smithsonian News Service

If faith can move mountains, belief did a pretty fair job on one country road in County Mayo, Ireland, in 1959. Rather than build a road as planned, construction workers went on strike because the proposed route would have destroyed a fragile fairy palace in its path. The county commissioners, not wishing to disturb either the fairies or the folk who believed in them, rerouted the road.

Many of our contemporary holiday celebrations are rooted in just such a rich soil of older beliefs. In America today, Hallowe'en is trick or treat. More than 2,000 years ago, in what is now France and the British Isles, it was a matter of life and death. For the Celtic people of Gaul and Britain, the night of Oct. 31 was one of thanksgiving, and, at the same time, one of terror.

Firsthand descriptions of the Celts come from Julius Caesar who wrote an especially vivid account of the Druids of Gaul—the priests who were the guardians of worship and the arbiters of human sacrifice. Celtic worship centered around the chief Druid god, Baal, whose visible emblem was the sun. The festival of Samhain (Saveen) or "summer's end," which fell on Nov. 1, the Celtic New Year's Day, rejoiced in Baal's harvest gifts but also mourned the sun's fading powers.

Omens sometimes took gruesome shapes. On Oct. 31, the last night of the old year, it is said, Saman, the lord of death, gathered the souls of all those who had died the past year and decreed what form they would take in the coming year. Bonfires, which were literally bonfires, lighted the hills. Animals and human beings—usually criminals and prisoners of war—were burned alive as sacrifices to Baal and the now ascendant evil spirits. From their appearance in death, the priests saw omens foretelling the future.

Did their omens foretell the Druid demise? Caesar conquered Gaul and Britain and made it part of the Roman Empire, and subsequent Roman rulers outlawed human sacrifice and cut down the Druids' sacred oak groves. They forbade the practice of the Druid religion as well and banished or killed many of the priests. Roman festivals, like the November harvest festival honoring Pomona, goddess of fruit, ended with Samhain. Apples and nuts, not human beings, were offered to Pomona. Nevertheless, many Druid customs lived on for hundreds of years until Christianity became a force in that corner of the world—and even beyond.

Christianity gave Hallowe'en its name, if not its customs. In 835, Pope Gregory IV established the first day of November in the Christian calendar as All Saints' Day, or Allhallows. The festival honors all of the Christian saints and martyrs, known and unknown. Oct. 31 is Allhallows Even (Eye), shortended to Hallowe'en.

It was likely no accident that the very day chosen to honor Christian saints was the Druid Samhain. Old gods and beliefs are not willingly surrendered. The Christian church adopted the policy of incorporating what it considered harmless pagan folkways in an effort to win over the folk. New branches were thus grafted onto the old Druid oak.

In the Middle Ages, however, church opposition to non-Christian practices stiffened. In response, witchcraft and satanic cults spread throughout Europe in defiance of the church. On Hallowe'en, especially, the witches and warlocks gathered in eerie rites at sabbaths to mock the festival of All Saints.

The figure of the witch is as old as the Bible, which tells the story of King Saul seeking the advice of the Witch of Endor about the outcome of his impending battle with the Philistines. The witch called up the prophet Samuel from the dead for his prediction. Angered at being summoned by a forbidden practice, Samuel predicted that Saul would lose the battle and his life. Samuel was right.

Witches—old wise women sought after for charms, herbs and fortune telling—were an accepted part of Greek and Roman society. In the Middle Ages, as Christianity struggled to eliminate witchcraft and satanic cults, witches were held to be an evil force that must be erased. Long after witchcraft had any significant impact in Europe, witchcraft persecutions continued, reaching their height in the height in the 16th and 17th centuries.

Harvard historian George Lyman Kitredge wrote in 1928 that, in calculating the number of people who died as a result of these persecutions on the continent from the 14th to the 17th centuries, "...half a million is thought to be a moderate estimate." Other estimates have ranged from 1 to 9 million. There were thousands of other victims in England, Scotland and America.

The first execution for witchcraft in New England was not, as might be believed, in Salem, Mass., but in Hartford, Conn., where Alse Young was hanged on May 26, 1647. From the first settlement to the end of the 17th century, 34 people died as a result of the witchcraft persecutions in New England.

Hallowe'en Casts Its Spell

(Continued from Preceding Page) The Salem witchcraft trails began in February 1692 and ended in January 1693, having claimed 22 lives. More than 400 others, including John Alden, of Boston, 70-year-old son of the Priscilla and John Alden, of Plymouth, were accused but survived the ordeal. In the end, a trial judge, a group of jurymen and one of the accused recanted. A short and unhappy chapter in American history was near its close. If the Puritans brought an abiding belief in witchcraft to America, they didn't bring Hallowe'en. The Puritans rejected church holidays such as Allhallows and would have branded the boisterous antics of the folk holiday as the work of the Devil. However, other English colonists kept old world Hallowe'en customs like apple ducking and telling ghost stories. Hallowe'en became a nationally observed holiday in America only after the great Irish and Scottish immigration in the mid-19th century.

These newcomers brought their Hallowe'en celebration as a bonus—a Hallowe'en treat. Americans learned to play games of divination with the apples and nuts of Pomona's festival. Hallowe'en party-goers bobbed for apples to find out if love were true, tossed apple peelings over their shoulders to read in their shapes the initials of future husbands and placed seeds on their palms to tell fortunes. Couples carefully watched blazing nuts in the fire; if a pair of nuts burned to ashes together, a couple expect a happy life, but if they could expect a happy life, but if they crackled or flew apart, quarrels and separation were in the offing.

The Irish and Scottish brought a bagful of Hallowe'en tricks: as well—some of them the shadowy survivals of Druid rites. In the late 1800s, Hallowe'en pranks reached new highs—goblins and evil spirits were blamed for buggies on the roofs, front gates in the treetops and overturned outhouses—and new lows, as teachers found snakes instead of apples in their desk drawers. At the turn of the century, young people built bonfires, rang doorbells repeatedly, threw unmentionable objects in front halls and flour in people's faces.

Inevitably, civic conscience reared its righteous head. Communities all over America started to organize Hallowe'en. By the 1930s, Hallowe'en had become a regular safe and sane epidemic. Los Angeles, naturally, offered dramatic events at its playgrounds. Chicago's municipal playground regulations required directors to provide games, costumes and a big bonfire. With barely an autumn leaf in sight, Miami Beach presented its annual Hallowe'en Frolic.

Today, in spite of new urban dangers, costumed figures are back on city streets in full force—but with a difference. In the last few years, the pint-sized witches and ghosts have been joined by lots of grown-ups.

For children and adults alike, Hallowe'en today is just for fun in spite of its frightening beginnings. Certainly, no one believes in witches, goblins, ghosts or other supernatural creatures anymore. Well, perhaps only in fairies. Et tu, E.T.?

BETSY LAYNE BAND CONGRATULATES EASTERN KENTUCKY'S 1982 HARVEST QUEEN

KIMBERLEY JOHNSON

Miss Kimberley Johnson is the 1982 Harvest Queen. She is the daughter of Ms. Jo Johnson of Ivel and Mr. Lloyd Johnson of Pikeville.

The Betsy Layne Band would like to say "Thank You" to all who helped to make our 3rd annual Harvest Festival a great success.

The purpose of our festival is to provide wholesome entertainment for our students and their families here in the mountains. It has grown each year because our community works harder. Because of their hard work, the Betsy Layne Band is growing each year.

Our aim in the Harvest Festival is to get the entire community involved. If everyone would participate and use their talent, we are sure that this will grow into a beautiful week for all.

Hats off to you parents that come out each year and work so hard in all our activities. I am sure your reward will come with the growth of your children. We invite all parents to get involved.

This Festival is for your child, your school, and for your community.

Let's all stop at this time and thank God for the privilege that we have in taking part in all these activities. His work is revealed in the beauty of Eastern Kentucky at this time of year.

Again we say: To God be the glory for the things He has done.

Nurse-Midwife Says She Was Threatened By Toler Cr. Couple

A Toler Creek couple is scheduled to appear in district court here Nov. 3 to answer a charge that they terrorized a nurse-midwife as she returned from a house call there last week.

Robert Keathley and his wife, Karen, are accused of threatening the life of Sister Roberta Naegele, a Catholic nun employed as nurse-midwife at the Mud Creek Clinic, after she had made a call on Keathley's sister.

The midwife told police that, after visiting her patient's home in the early evening last Monday, she found a tire on her car slashed. Then, as she drove out of the hollow, her way was blocked by a car parked across the road and the Keathleys emerged, pounding on the car windows and threatening her, she said.

After a time she was allowed to go on her way but was told to leave the state or harm would come to her, Sr. Naegele said.

According to one report, Mrs. Keathley recently had a miscarriage and the Keathleys felt hostile toward the nurse-midwife. The midwife was said to be making a routine call on Keathley's sister, whose baby she delivered recently, when she was threatened.

Strange Things Are Happening

In the Strange Things Are Happening Department, enter this one. Mrs. Billy Allen of the Prater Fork near Hueysville, reports the harvesting Monday of four bushels of white half-runners. Not only is this an unusually late harvest, but it resulted from beans self-sowed from last spring's planting. Mrs. Allen said, "We didn't sow them. We didn't hoe them, but they grew anyway." And Monday, the Allens were busy adding them to the more than 100 quarts of beans they had already canned.

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration was created to establish "separate but dependent responsibilities and rights" for employers and employees for the achievement of better safety and health conditions.

Blackcats Win over Knott Co.

By WENDE BUCHANAN
Prestonsburg defeated Knott County Central 40-8, Friday night here as they celebrated homecoming.
Halfback Robert Midgette made the first touchdown of the game for a 6-0 score (the extra point was no good). With 4:58 remaining in the first half halfback John Anderson pressed forward for the Black Cats, second touchdown and with B. J. Sturgill's extra point kick increased the score to 13-0.
Early in the second quarter John Anderson scored again for a 19-0 score. A conversion attempt, however, was incomplete. Quarterback Todd Nairn then scored with 2:50 remaining for a halftime lead of 25-0.
Knott county picked up a touchdown in the third quarter and with a two-point conversion increased the score to 25-8. Neither team scored again until halfback Jamie Adkins broke loose early in the fourth and with the extra point the score stood at 32-8. Later in the quarter freshman fullback Philip Lewis scored and freshman halfback B.D. Nunnery made a two-point conversion for a final score of 40-8.

Prestonsburg's offense finished with 340 yards rushing and 38 passing for a total of 378 yards. Knott County, in comparison, had 121 yards rushing and 60 passing for a total of 181 yards.
Adkins was the leading rusher with 155 yards in 10 carries. Midgette followed with 63 yards in 6 carries and Anderson had 18 yards in 3 carries. Lewis also had 18 yards in 3 carries. Nairn finished with 38 yards passing.
The leading tackler was Bryan Pace, fullback, with one solo and 13 assists. Lewis followed with one solo and nine assists. Quarterback Gordie Ratliff had one solo and eight assists. Randall Hager, tackle, had zero and 10, Sean Dotson, guard, had three and 10 and Randall Slone, halfback, finished with one and four.
In retrospect Coach P.A. Haywood said of the game: "Well, we were pleased to win. However, it was what you might call a backluster performance on our part. We will have to play a lot better next week." Haywood referred to Friday's game here with upriver rival Pikeville.

Marion Coburn Passes To Rest At Hueysville

Hueysville, Ky., Sept. 4 (Spl.)—Marion Coburn, well-known man of this and Knott counties, died here Wednesday night, Aug. 31, of ulcer of the stomach, which condition was largely caused by Mr. Coburn spent most of his life in and Mr. Coburn's life for twenty-four years; and which caused him to go through life a cripple.

Mr. Coburn spent most of his life in Knott county, his native county. He was married there, and is the father of two sons, Roy Coburn, this place and Rolla Coburn, of Hindman. Both of the boys were present when their father passed away. Mrs. Coburn died some years ago.

Mr. Coburn has been in failing health for some time, and was so weakened that death easily won in the final struggle. Dr. R. W. Duke, Physician of this place, and personal acquaintance of Mr. Coburn for many years, did what he could for the suffering man.

Mr. Coburn died here at the home of A. J. Coburn, merchant of this place, and relative of the deceased. The body was taken to Hindman for burial, the procession leaving here Thursday morning, Sept. 1. Mr. Coburn is survived by his two sons, mentioned above.

BOX SUPPER FRIDAY NIGHT

A very nice time was enjoyed by a large crowd, assembled at the school house here last Friday night, when a regular, old-time box supper was successfully carried on to raise funds for the use of the school.

Fred Lawson, county agent, had heard of the box supper, and he took advantage of it. Mr. Lawson had been to Bosco before, trying to get people interested in better methods of farming. However, he had received no attention. But he caught a large crowd together at the box supper and opened the exercises with a speech, in which he urged the farmers of this place to take up better methods of farming. He also proposed to start Junior Club work among the students of our school.

Next act, F. P. (Chick) Allen, this place, was chosen to bid the boxes off. Mr. Allen has filled this capacity in Hueysville for a long while, and he does credit to the work. A remarkable collection of boxes were on the market, all handsomely prepared.

The bidding was pretty lively, and all the boxes were soon sold. J. W. Huff, treasurer, reported $35.55 taken in. This money will be used to purchase some much-needed supplies for the school. A large chart will be bought for Mrs. Damron's room, where a very large crowd of little tots attend.

INJURES HAND

George Bailey, son of the elder George Bailey, merchant of this place, suffered a badly injured hand the other day when his hand was caught between an iron post near the road and a truck he was driving. However, after the hand had been dressed, George started to Human Settlement School, where he will attend this year.

A large crowd attended Bosco theatre last Saturday night to see "Bronco Billie" and his acts.

PERSONAL MENTION

Misses Cara Hayes and Golda Huff were out motoring Sunday afternoon with Hobart Hayes.

Johnnie Allen and Claude Huff were out motoring Friday night, Saturday night and Sunday.

Miss Ora Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Blatcher Allen, Salt Lick, returned to Hindman Settlement School Saturday, where she will attend this year. Miss Allen, with several others from Salt Lick and Bosco, attended the same school last year.

Misses Blanche Allen, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Green Allen, this place, and Opal Coburn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. C. Coburn, left for Mayo College, where they will attend school this year.

year. Miss Allen last attended Berea College, Berea, Ky.

It is reported that Miss Lottie Patton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Patton, this place, was married to Verlie Blair, at Pikeville, a few days ago. However, relatives of the young lady only said they heard that such was the case. Miss Patton became acquainted with Mr. Blair a year or two ago, while staying with her sister, Mrs. Frank Wolfe, at Garrett. She has been staying with Mrs. Wootsie Martin, another sister, of Estill, for some time. Mr. Blair has also been residing in the same town.

Misses May Allen and Rebecca Turner, both of Salt Lick, attended Bosco theatre Sunday afternoon. It was the first Sunday show in this theatre for some time.

Mrs. Dewey Hayes, who has been away visiting relatives, returned Sunday.

Mrs. Mary Reid, of Lackey, was visiting her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Wm. this place Monday.

THREE LAWRENCE COUNTY CHILDREN VICTIMS OF FLAMES

The charred bodies of three children, all under four years of age, in a tragic scene presented citizens.

Orr section last week after fire had destroyed the home of Rev. Estill Leadingham and burned to death his three youngest children: Alice Lucile, 3; Jewel Maxine, 2, and Estill, Jr., 9 months.

The tragedy occurred on Tuesday of last week while the parents were away from the house a few minutes. According to reports reaching here, Mrs. Leadingham had gone to the well for water, leaving the three children alone, and when she returned, in about ten minutes, found the house in flames. Being unable to get to the room in which she had left the children, she called to them and, receiving no reply, hastened off to a neighbor's home, thinking perhaps they had gone there. Finding they had not been to the neighbor's home, she hastened back and heard the screams of the children, but the fire had cut off their escape and none could get to them.

After the fire their remains were taken from the ashes and put in a box. Only one body could be distinguished. Burials were made the following day in the family cemetery.

Three other children were away at school at the time.

The Leadingham home, which was a section about three miles from Webbville, this county.

It is believed that the fire caught from the cook stove in the kitchen. The house with all its contents was consumed.—Big Sandy News.

LOVE PASSED BY

Love passed by!
In the long ago
She passed me by in the springtime,
sweet,
She passed me swiftly on dancing feet,
But barely a glance for her had I, barely a glance had I,
For pleasure was tripping along my way
And beckoned for me to come and play.
And so—
With blushing cheek and glances shy,
Love passed by!

Love passed by!
In the long ago
She moved with slow and stately grace,
Through the sweating throng at the market-place,
But barely a glance for her had I, barely a glance had I,
For my shoulders were burdened by fortune's load,
As I jostled my way on that crowded road.
And so—
With lagging step and wistful eye,
Love passed by!

Love passed by!
In the long ago
But never again we two shall meet
On winding road or busy street,
Tho' ever a searching glance have I
And a longing gaze have I,
Ah, well, then, for ambition's goal
Ah, well, for the toll of pleasure and gold,
Which brought me a vain and weary
Since love passed by.

HILL BALLADS HANDED DOWN FROM ELDERS

Below, The Times publishes a feature article written by Emmanuel Sargent, a Louisa boy, who is now connected with the Lexington Leader, in which paper the story appeared in the edition of Sunday, August 28:

The mountain people have a music all their own; a music as yet untouched by the jazz of the modern youth or the grand opera of the musically-inclined people of the cities; a music which has been handed down from generation to generation in most instances unwritten and unrecorded.

The ballad is the chief music of the mountain people. The main reason for this is the characteristic of making a thing personal. The hill people feel that the things they sing about have happened or will happen at some future date and they will tell you as much.

The language of the ballads has been handed down in unwritten form as the legends. They have come singer to singer without book or manuscript and in this way have been changed, no doubt, in many instances. In some cases, too, the words have been changed to meet difference in environment. With few exceptions, however, the origin of the songs can be traced to English, Scottish or Irish sources.

The "singin' school" is an institution of the mountains. In some instances these schools meet once a month during the summer. I have known many to ride fourteen miles or more on a horse or mule or in a wagon and attend the "singin' school," then return this long distance at night, with no light except the moon to guide them.

Song books are seldom used, for the songs are all familiar to the mountain people and old and young alike make the hills and woods ring with their music. Books are not the only thing lacking, for seldom do they have musical instruments, but these handicaps mean little to the people of the mountain districts.

Church All-Day Affair

In church, which is an all-day affair, music plays a large part. Here, too, musical instruments are lacking, for they are hard to obtain in the mountains and also some of the people there have a religious prejudice against any kind of music in church, except singing. Written music is sometimes found in the church. In some places it is written in shaped notes and the singer reads from the staff. It is also a rather usual matter for the leader to read a line and the congregation to sing it after it has been read.

The mountain hymns have a powerful grip on the listener which can only be obtained by hearing the hill resident sing them in the little church built of logs and dimly lighted with an oil lamp. Many of the hymns are mournful to the extreme and the emphasis is placed on the uncertainty of life, or rather the certainty of death, and the judgment which is sure to come.

For the most part these songs of the mountains are unnamed. I recall one "popular number" which I have heard sung hundreds of times, yet no one could tell me the title. The chorus of the song was:

A railroad boy, a railroad boy,
A railroad boy for me;
If ever I marry in this wide world,
A railroad's wife I'll be.

This was in a community far removed from a railroad and many of the people had never seen a train. There are innumerable verses to the song, all setting forth the disadvantages of any occupation except that of a railroad man.

The principal entertainment for the people of the mountains is music. They go so scattered in some sections that a picture show could not be run profitably, dancers could not get together and few community gatherings of any kind can be held, for it is not safe to travel over the poor mountain roads or along creek beds at night. The few young people of the neighborhood, therefore, gather at some home and there sing songs to the music of an old-fashioned organ or to a violin. In many instances they sing without the aid of any instrument.

Musical Instruments Few

Musical instruments in the mountains are few and far between. The principal ones are the fiddle, the banjo, and the dulcimer. The old-time fiddler is an institution of the mountains. When the mountain people dance, the fiddler takes the place of the modern orchestra and his "Turkey in the Straw," "Sourwood Mountain," or "Sugar in the Gourd" sets the feet a-moving. The modern dances have not yet reached the mountains, but I have seen many a mountain girl that could out-do the most expert jazz devotee with one of her jig dances. The organ can be found in a few instances in the

TRIPLETS ARE BORN TO MR. AND MRS. HARDIN

The following news item taken from the Cincinnati Enquirer will be of interest to Paintsville people as it concerns Mrs. Alice Hardin who before her marriage was Miss Alice Tague. Mrs. Hardin was a teacher in the Paintsville school before her marriage. She is a daughter of Dr. and Mrs. C. A. Tague. Dr. Tague was formerly connected with the Jno. C. C. Mayo College and for one year was pastor of the Mayo Memorial church of this city. The Tague family is well-known in Paintsville, where they have many friends. Mrs. Hardin became the mother of triplets—three boys—at a Covington hospital Monday, August 22.

The news item follows: "Records were shattered in the maternity ward of St. Elizabeth Hospital in Covington, Ky., Monday night, Aug. 22, when triplets and twins were born in adjacent rooms. Five lusty youngsters, three boys and two girls, born within a few hours of one another, set a new record for the hospital."

"Triplets, three boys, were born to Mrs. Alice Tague Hardin, daughter of Rev. C. A. Tague, 1911 Scott boulevard, Covington. The father of the boys is Naval Lieutenant D. W. Hardin, who is aboard the U. S. S. Texas cruising from the Atlantic to the Pacific. Rev. Mr. Tague was so elated over the arrival of the triplets that he radioed the news to Lieutenant Hardin.

"Twin daughters were born to Mrs. Lucille Collins, wife of Edward Collins, 715 West Thirty-first street, Latonia. Collins yesterday was not willing to concede happiness to Rev. Mr. Tague as they exchanged congratulations outside the maternity ward of the hospital."

By J.T. YURKO

One of the more recurring themes in several recent motion pictures has dealt with couples who undergo midlife crises. The kids are grown, the career seems to have stagnated and the spouse just doesn't set off any more sparks. In Paul Mazursky's new film "Tempest," John Cassavetes is a wealthy, well-regarded architect who contracts midlife crisis fever. This is helped along, however, when his wife (Gena Rowlands, Cassavetes' real-life spouse) decides to have an affair with his boss.

With his barely pubescent daughter at his side, he decides to return to his roots and heads for Greece. His wife follows them seeking custody of the daughter so Cassavetes, daughter, and new mistress Susan Sarandon all head for an obscure Mediterranean island. There they gleefully abandon civilization to get back to their real roots.

It must be difficult for the average man on the street struggling from paycheck to paycheck to sympathize with a character who has everything and throws it all away. As Mazursky sets up this film, we are never quite sure who is sane and who isn't or who's guilty or innocent.

The film then becomes a Shakespearean morality play. Characters are all one-dimensional representations of various emotions and attitudes — such as the Neurotic, the Earthy, the Insecure. This modern fable of loves lost and regained is played against a splendid natural backdrop, but the various events are so coincidental that they become theatrical. Indeed, the players in this tale actually take bows at the end of the film.

Raul Julia fares best as the earthy Greek. His comic moments are a welcome respite for what is essentially a long and windy tale signifying little. When Mazursky is good he's very good, but here he barely comes close.

HBO looks at American sport champs

By Steve K. Walz

Outstanding accomplishments of such great American athletes as Babe Ruth, Muhammad Ali, Eddie Arcaro, Billie Jean King and Joe Namath will be celebrated in "Champions of American Sport," an exclusive HBO sports program, scheduled to debut in early 1983 on the cable network.

The show will be hosted by ex-NFL star Merlin Olsen, now featured on the NBC drama "Father Murphy." The show is based on the "Champions of American Sport" exhibition organized by the Smithsonian Institution's National Portrait Gallery.

Merlin Olsen

plays a wide-open offensive game that can quickly put an opponent out of action. Utah is considered to be a growing football power. Players to keep an eye on include San Diego State quarterback Rick Hanson and Utah receiver Tony Graham.

ESPN EVENTS — ESPN has debuted two new series this month — "Future Sport" and "Ski School." "Future Sport," which is hosted by tennis expert Vic Braden, focuses on the relationship between science and sports. "Ski School," which coincides with the beginning of the fall ski season, is geared to teaching the recreational skier the finer points of the sport.

CHA CHA ON FILM — Twentieth Century-Fox will produce a film based on the life of Shirley "Cha Cha" Muldowney, the only two-time fuel-dragster champion. The film, which will be released in 1983, stars Bonnie Bedelia as Miss Muldowney. Other stars cast in the project are Beau Bridges, Hoyt Axton and Dean Paul Martin.

WESTERN SHOOTOUT — San Diego State takes on Utah in an NCAA gridiron battle, to be aired Saturday on the TBS cable network. San Diego State
