

This Town...That World

With all its uncertainties, we look forward to the new year. Come to think of it, only way out of looking forward to it is to shut your eyes and be dragged in, screaming.

SANTA SAYS...

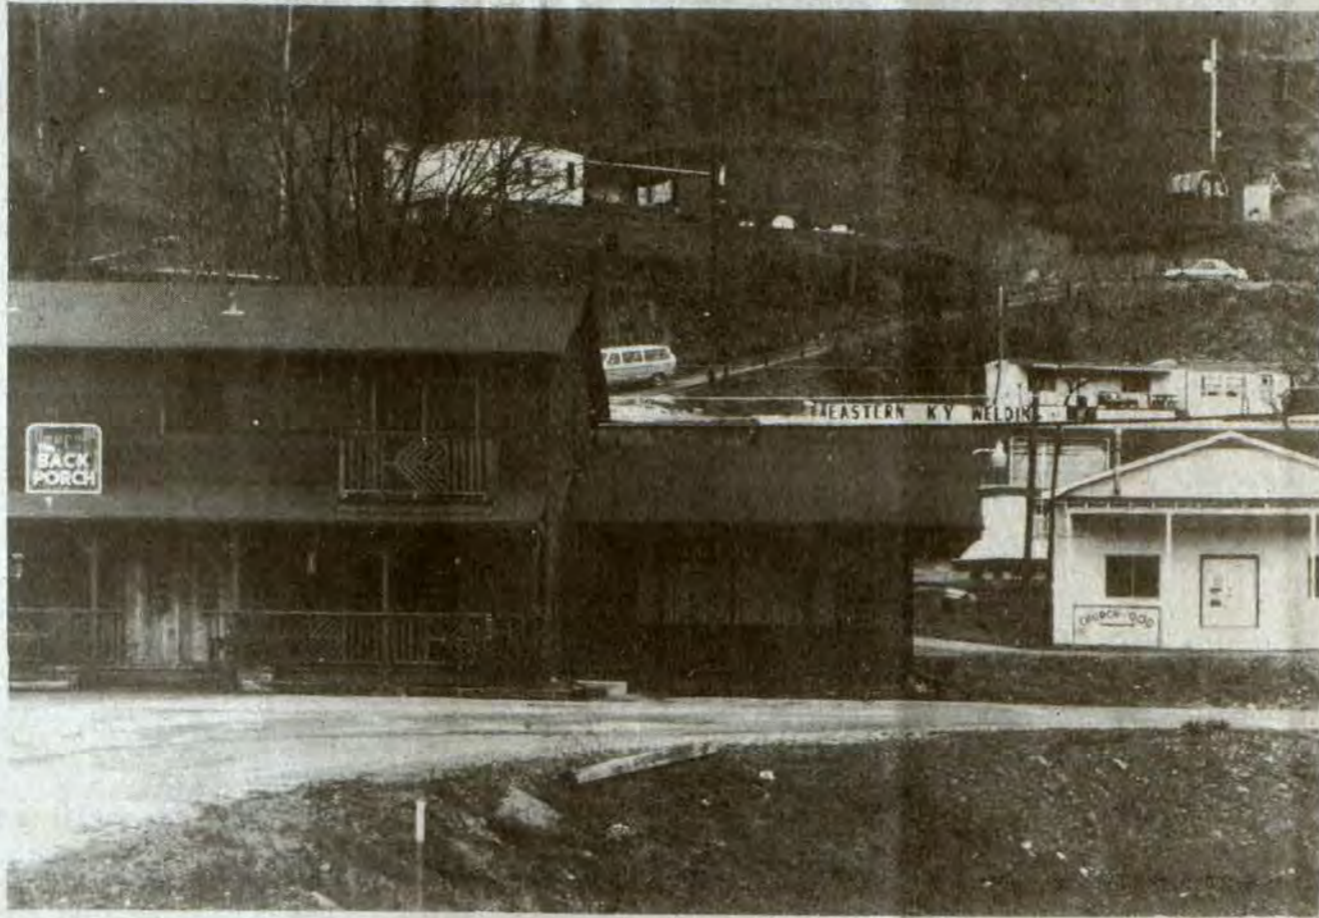

Haven't interviewed the old gent yet, but Santa is quoted as having remarked that he didn't mind all the long hours and miles required of him to treat the children but that the galling part of his job was trying to satisfy all these adults who don't believe he exists, anyway.

THE TAKE

For Christmas I came up with the usual collection—plus a foot-warmer, three bird-feeders and a Murphy's Law calendar. The foot-warmer came on a day when the weather was around 75 degrees. Two of the feeders are up, filled with sunflower seed as a special invitation to the cardinals, and to this hour not a redbird has shown his beak. That leaves the calendar, and it's a dandy. Besides excerpts from Murphy's Law, it has sparkling bits of commentary on a whole flock of topics. For example, this one:

"Only adults have difficulty with child-proof bottles."
I may have been more in the mood for that one than usual, since only a short time earlier I had used a can-opener on one.

BETSY LAYNE NEIGHBORS, the Back Porch restaurant and the Church of God, may soon have to find a way to pursue in harmony their different callings. Since a U.S. Supreme Court decision overturned a similar law in Massachusetts earlier this month, the Kentucky law which allowed the church to block the restaurant's application for a beer and wine license recently will soon be invalidated here, some believe.

36 of 37 Bills Drug Related; One for Murder

Meeting Monday in a session that lasted only one day, the new grand jury of the Floyd circuit court voted 37 indictments, all of which except one accused defendants on drug-related charges.

The lone indictment that was not connected with the traffic in narcotics was the murder bill against Alfred Music, who is accused of the slaying at Martin Dec. 10 of Curtis Hall.

Music, who also was wounded in a shootout at his home, remains in a Lexington hospital but was reported as recovering. State Police Detective Danny Stumbo, who made the indictment, said Music would be arrested immediately upon his leaving the hospital.

Only drug charges and the Martin shooting indictment were considered by the grand jury during the day. Other cases will be brought to its attention when it convenes the first Monday in February for a regular session, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said.

State Police Detective Ernie Dudley was the complaining officer in each of the drug cases, and most of the drug sales were reported by Detectives LeRoy Buckner and Johnny Creech, undercover agents for the State Police. Those indicted, with condensed grand jury notes, follow:

David Lee Allen, two indictments selling three-fourths ounce of marijuana to Detective Johnny Creech for $20 and by selling three "dimes" of phenylclidine (PCP) to Detective Creech for $30; George E. Barnett, Jr., by selling to Detective Creech one gram of cocaine for $100; Dodie Lyn Cooley, selling 52 amphetamine units to Detective Buckner for $20; Otis

Gas Rate Rollback Depends on Appeal

The Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co. announced last week that it will roll back the gas rates it charges wholesalers—transmission firms, private and public distribution companies—to the level charged before last October 1, but that is a reprieve from high fuel bills that isn't likely to benefit the individual consumer soon.

Wholesalers benefitting from the reduction explain that they can't afford to cut their prices back in line with the wholesale reduction, because Kentucky West Virginia has appealed the rollback order issued by the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission (FERC), and if it wins that appeal the distribution companies will be required to refund Kentucky West Virginia all of the rollback.

If, on the other hand, the order withstands the appeal, Prestonsburg and other gas distribution systems which buy from Kentucky West Virginia will make the refunds to customers or, if they prefer, give them credit on future bills.

Before Oct. 1, the rates charged to municipal utilities firms and others by Kentucky West Virginia were $1.45 per dekatherm. These rates were raised on Oct. 1 to $3.10 and to $3.53 on Nov. 1. (The $3.53 per dekatherm amounts to $4.31 per 1000 cubic feet of gas.)

All this and more developed during an informal meeting of city and gas officials last Tuesday with the Public Service Commission. Because of the short notice of the meeting, the date for a formal session at which those testifying would be under oath was postponed 30 days.

R. J. Stewart, Kentucky West Virginia vice-president, who announced the price rollback, also said his company wants the prices for gas from its old Eastern Kentucky wells to be unregulated under a section of the Natural Gas Policy that permits the price of gas from wells drilled into the Devonian shale formation to go on the market without regulation.

That matter also will be settled by court decision. At issue before the Supreme Court is whether the old wells (those drilled before 1973), on which the drilling costs have already been recouped, should come under deregulation.

Bill H. Howard, Prestonsburg utilities superintendent, who was one of those who joined the sometimes heated discussion of gas rates, said that when Mr. Stewart was asked how deregulation of these old wells and a higher rate for their gas could be justified, he replied, "We don't have to justify it. It's the law."

Local opponents of higher rates pointed to the higher fuel costs at a time when unemployment is 17 percent.

They also said they could understand the reason for a rate increase on gas from old wells.

Council Delays Plan Approval Asked by Curtis

Promising better police protection at less cost to the city, Prestonsburg Police Chief Jim Curtis sought city council approval Monday for scheduling changes that he said would give him more flexibility in deploying the city's 11-member force.

He came before the council with his request only because his plan would lengthen one officer's work week and so increase her pay check, the chief explained. Otherwise he would consider the scheduling change his own prerogative, he said.

Curtis did not disguise the fact that the planned change is likely to be unpopular among rank-and-file officers, however, since it reduces their opportunities for overtime earnings and eliminates what the police chief described as "mini-vacations" built into the present schedule.

In fact, if he was their union representative he would fight against the change, Curtis conceded.

Council members, who have expressed concern in recent months about the amount of overtime paid city police officers, asked for two weeks to consider the proposal. Whether the plan is popular with officers "does not really concern" him, said Councilman Bill Ray Collins. But Mayor Harold Cooley, anticipating "flak from people in the (police) department," cautioned council members to "be sure" before coming to a decision on the proposal.

The mayor offered to intervene in a conflict between Prestonsburg fire dispatchers and the Martin police and fire departments, a dispute which Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said has already resulted in verbal abuse and could grow into something more serious.

The problem stems from an earlier agreement between the two cities which permitted Martin to share the radio frequency assigned to Prestonsburg, Blackburn said. Lengthy, personal radio conversations by persons in Martin, including the police chief's wife, were interfering with other communications, the Prestonsburg chief said.

Despite a citizen's complaint about the sale of alcohol here on Christmas Day and a recommendation by City Manager David Evans that such sales

Loss of Elderly Program In This Area Threatened

A program that stood to benefit about 600 elderly persons in Big Sandy-area nursing homes appears likely to be lost because of an internal squabble in the agency that was supposed to manage it, officials of the Big Sandy Area Development District confirmed Tuesday.

The Big Sandy ADD was the top-scoring applicant among seven which sought and four which were awarded funding under the Long Term Care Ombudsman Program administered by the state Human Resources Cabinet.

But the actual recipient of the grant—amounting to about $5,500 in "seed money" for a six-month period—was the Christian Appalachian Project (CAP), a Lancaster-based organization headed by Floyd county Catholic pastor, the Rev. Ralph Beiting.

And the person who designed the proposal—which state officials awarded 98 points out of a possible 100—and who was expected to implement it here was a 55-year-old CAP volunteer, Elisa DeVos.

On Tuesday, about a week after the grant was awarded and four days before the program was due to take effect here, DeVos was fired. She cited difficulties in her work relationship with Father Beiting as the reason for her being asked to leave the agency. Beiting could not be reached Tuesday for comment.

A native of Brussels, Belgium, DeVos came to Floyd county recently after a career in social work spanning three nations and half a dozen states in the U.S. Under the program she designed, she would have been—for the first six months at least, and possibly for much longer—an "ombudsman," or advocate, for the elderly here.

Restaurant May Test the Law On Liquor Sales Near Churches

Proprietors of a Betsy Layne restaurant may be the first to test a state law that allows churches to veto liquor licenses for nearby businesses.

Kenneth and Betty Robinson, owners of the Back Porch restaurant, said this week they have asked the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board to reactivate their application for a license to serve beer and wine to their customers.

Their bid for the license was initially turned down after members of the nearby Church of God filed an objection under a Kentucky statute that allows a church to block a liquor license application if the establishment seeking the license is located within 200 feet of the church. The law gives schools similar veto powers.

However, that was before the U.S. Supreme Court, in a Dec. 13 ruling, struck down a Massachusetts law that granted veto power to any church within 500 feet of an establishment seeking a liquor license.

Except for the difference in distance, the Massachusetts and Kentucky laws are very similar, Catherine C. Staib, the ABC's board's general counsel, noted this week. And Edward Farris, the state distilled-spirits administrator, said recently that the Supreme Court decision appears to strike down the Kentucky law applying to churches.

Farris said the liquor board sees about "half a dozen" cases a year in which churches veto liquor businesses. The board's attorney said Monday that, as far as she knew, the license application filed by the Back Porch was the only one blocked by a church protest in this county.

Robinson said he felt from the start that the law giving a church veto power over his business was "unfair and unconstitutional." The unfairness was compounded by the fact that the opening of a package beer store, even nearer to the church than the restaurant is, had gone unchallenged, he added.

Shannon Acquitted Of Burglary, Arson

A Circuit Court jury took just 15 minutes Monday to find Rudolph Theodore Shannon, of Auxier, not guilty of charges of first-degree burglary and second-degree arson. He had been accused of removing property from the Town Branch house of Grady Nelson while armed with a hammer and of intentionally setting fire to the house, last May 18.

Shannon's attorney, Public Defender Ned Pillersdorf, said his client was innocent of the charges and that the prosecution case was wholly circumstantial. Shannon had been confined in the county jail since his arrest in August.

THE WEATHER, over the holidays, has hardly been suitable for roasting chestnuts over an open fire or hearkening to distant sleighbells, but for schoolchildren on Christmas vacation, the spring-like temperatures have been just fine. Denise Smith (left), of Prestonsburg, and friend, Gina Williamson, of Pikeville, were at Archer Park, Tuesday where they were photographed whiling away the warm afternoon tossing rocks into Middle Creek.

The Sandy Boyd Case

EDITOR'S NOTE: The Floyd County Times was recently made aware of allegations that a series of news stories which it published between April, 1981, and January 1982, concerning Sandy Boyd, of Dana, were "inaccurate, unfair, and damaging" to his reputation. The stories dealt with criminal misdemeanor charges which had been brought against Boyd, then head teacher at Prater Creek Elementary School, alleging that he had supplied marijuana to a juvenile. When the youth recanted his story at the trial, the teacher was found not guilty.

In its coverage of the case the Times intended no implication that Boyd was an habitual user of marijuana, or was at that time a user of other illegal drugs, or that the not-guilty verdict rendered in the case was improper. The editor of the Times, Norman Allen, and the reporter, Ron Martin, state that there was no desire or intent on their part to humiliate Mr. Boyd or to damage his standing among others.

A reexamination of the incident from Mr. Boyd's perspective follows:

The incident began when, in April, 1981, a 17-year-old junior at Betsy Layne High School was arrested for selling marijuana to another student. When questioned where he got the marijuana, the youth implicated Sandy Boyd, although he said later in court that the naming of Boyd had been suggested to him by others and that he went along in order to shift criminal responsibility away from himself. The boy confessed that he had falsely charged Boyd when the case was finally tried in January, 1982, but by then Boyd had resigned his job with the Floyd County School System under pressure and had not been rehired the following terms.

NEW YEAR RESOLUTIONS

A lot of us wake up, perhaps not feeling too well, on New Year's morning and firmly resolve to mend our ways and straighten up our acts. After the usual resolution not to engage in any more New Year's Eve parties (at least for another year) we get down to the serious side of things.

Among the commitments to get more exercise, forego deserts, stick to the budget, pay more attention to the wife, kids and the dog and not buy any more hunting and fishing gear than we absolutely need, we should take a close, hard and objective look at our conduct afield to see if there is room for improvement there.

Chances are there will be. Although the great majority of us outdoorsmen aren't full-blown slobs, we do tend to get careless at times, and this is something that it's becoming more and more important that we do not.

The hunter (and the fisherman) has been coming under attack in recent years from a small but noisy group of folks who are intent upon outlawing all hunting, fishing or trapping. These anti-hunters are a hard-core bunch and there's nothing much we can do to change their minds.

But we do need to be concerned about the non-hunting (as opposed to anti-hunting) public—the majority of people who just don't care either way. Let the anti-hunters get the voting majority on their side and we've got real troubles.

Studies have shown that while many people do not oppose hunting on moral, ethical or environmental grounds, they have a very negative attitude toward the hunter, seeing him as an unsafe, careless, trespassing slob.

Unfortunately, there are those few out there who do handle firearms unsafely, who do tromp over other people's property without asking permission, who do pepper road signs with shot, who do litter—the list could go on and on.

The problem is that these are the hunters who get all the notice. The safe, careful and ethical hunter does nothing to get attention or grab headlines. He leaves no trace of his having been in a particular area and he makes nobody mad—hence he doesn't get remembered or talked about.

So among our New Year's resolutions should be one in which we promise to take a close look at our attitudes and actions while we're engaged in hunting and fishing. Pay particular attention to those small, thoughtless, unconscious acts—throwing a can or sandwich wrapper on the ground, for example—which seem insignificant but which, when multiplied by all who do them, can have definite ill effects.

We should also resolve to learn more about the history of sportsmen-financed conservation—how hunters and fishermen, through their license fees and excise taxes on their equipment, pay for wildlife programs to the tune of over $200 million annually. We should be able to defend our sport with facts—and the facts are on our side, which is why the anti-hunter appeals only to the emotions.

Another good resolution is to get involved in conservation issues—to write that letter to your congressman, instead of just talking about it, to learn what problems confront wildlife and the out-of-doors in your areas, to take action to assure the future of the out-door sports you enjoy.

Finally, resolve to take a close look at line 21 of your Kentucky state income tax return. This line allows you to contribute a portion of your tax refund to wildlife. These tax deductible contributions will support non-game wildlife programs and the acquisition of natural areas by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and the Kentucky Nature Preserves Commission.

How Can I Make Known My Funeral Preferences?

Usually your preferences can best be made known by your pre-planning some or all of the funeral service with a funeral director.

If you feel reluctant to give "instructions" to your family, you might make a list of preferences and suggestions covering your wishes. We have simple forms which will help guide you as you fill them out.

After completing the forms which entail no obligation on your part, then advise your family about your preferences and where you will keep the Pre-Plan Form.

We find people have a greater ease of mind once this is done, just as after filing a will or setting up an insurance program. It takes a load off the family later on and it makes sure your preferences will be respected.

There are many choices and options in pre-planning. You would be well-advised to discuss them with your funeral director. We will be glad to explain your options in detail. To help you reach an informed decision, we can also give you some reading material for your study. Stop by or phone for your free copy.

Mediation Brings Sharp Decrease In Strikes, Reports Labor Dept.

Work stoppages have decreased dramatically and the success rate of preventing work stoppages through mediation has burgeoned throughout the commonwealth, according to the Kentucky Department of Labor.

The department's encouragement and participation in mediation is part of the agency's efforts to improve labor-management relations in Kentucky, said Charles McCoy, director of the Division of Employment Standards and Mediation.

Since 1979, work stoppages in Kentucky have dropped 22 percent, McCoy said. In addition, when work stoppages have occurred, the average length has decreased from 29 days to 25 days in 1982.

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. pointed out that the reduction in work stoppages will be instrumental in spurring economic growth throughout the state. "A productive, stable and responsible work force is an essential ingredient in attracting new business and industry to Kentucky," Brown said. "When labor and management work together in a spirit of mutual cooperation, all of us will benefit."

McCoy also noted that in disputes where the department has provided mediation, work stoppages have been avoided in 51 out of 74 cases, or roughly 70 percent of the time since 1981.

If the parties involved had halted operations for an average of 25 days in the 51 disputes resolved by the department, the direct loss of wages to the commonwealth would have been great, McCoy said. Instead, thanks to the Labor Department's intervention, and to the cooperation of the parties, he said, more than $7 million in wages was kept for the workers and for the state economy during last year alone. This figure assumes an average working wage of $7.25 an hour for a 40-hour work week.

The department does not claim that medication is an absolute cure, McCoy added. But statistics show that when a work stoppage did occur where medication was being used, the average length of the strike was cut from 25 to 21 days during 1981 and 1982.

"Parties involved in a dispute ought to utilize mediation provided by the department," the director said. "This is particularly true since figures show that the success rate of resolving disputes improves greatly with mediation."

The department has offered full-time, voluntary mediation since October, 1977. McCoy said this means that the Labor Department "provides a mechanism for parties involved in a dispute to resolve the dispute with confrontation."

He added, "This generally means that a third party—a neutral party—talks with everyone and uses problem-solving techniques and persuasion (to respond to the situation) rather than using confrontation. It is the only process that preserves free collective bargaining to protect the rights and responsibilities of the parties involved."

The drop in work stoppages has accompanied other improvements within the division. Since 1979, the division budget has been reduced 16.4 percent, personnel has been cut 27.4 percent, work stoppages have been reduced 62 percent, yet productivity—or the number of investigations—has jumped 21.3 percent.

"We are most encouraged by these figures and hope that labor and management leaders across the commonwealth will continue to address problems through mediation," McCoy said.

For more information on Kentucky's mediation program, contact Charles McCoy at the Department of Labor's Division of Employment and Mediation in Frankfort, or telephone (502) 564-2784.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

There are two symbols on prescription forms that may have aroused your curiosity if you have closely scrutinized them. The familiar R symbol with a slash mark through its tail, is an abbreviation for the latin verb "recipe". It means "take thou". The slash mark is a contraction of the sign of Jupiter. This symbol is an order to the pharmacist from the physician. The physician invokes the name of Jupiter so that the pharmacist does not make a mistake. "S" or "Sig.", another symbol on the prescription form, means "mark thou". It is here that the physician writes the instructions for taking the medicine in abbreviated latin.

Fair Tax Coalition Sees Need Of Leadership from Eastern Ky.

What happens before the lawmakers get down to making laws during the special legislative session set for next month may be at least as important as the lawmaking itself, according to a citizens' group which is active here. For the first item of business on the agenda, they note, is the selection of House and Senate leaders.

For members of the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, the leadership question is critical. The group, which gathered considerable support here for two bills in the 1982 General Assembly, blames legislative leaders for their defeat.

One of the bills would have imposed a "realistic" tax on unmined minerals. The other would have strengthened the rights of surface owners where coal rights have been sold under broadform deeds. House Speaker Bobby Richardson, Speaker Pro Tem David Thompson, and Floor Leader Jim LeMaster were responsible for killing the bills even though the proposals enjoyed solid legislative and popular support, the group claims.

Moreover, "there is a disproportionate lack of eastern Kentucky legislators in key leadership positions," the coalition noted in a recent newsletter.

The group could give "no indication at this time" as to whether either bill would be urged for consideration during the special session and voted recently to take no position on the one issue which is already on the agenda, the proposed flat-rate income tax.

Nor has there been any response yet to a recent request by Rep. Greg Stumbo that the overweight truck law, which was passed by the 1982 General Assembly but has since been blocked by court order, be brought up again for discussion in the special session.

Senate Bill 144 was designed to permit coal trucks, for a fee, to carry loads in excess of posted weights. State Transportation Department officials criticized it as leaving them vulnerable to lawsuits, however, and a group of Whitesburg coal operators successfully petitioned Franklin Circuit Judge Henry Meigs in October to block enforcement of the law.

In a recent letter to the governor, Rep. Stumbo, one of the bill's chief sponsors, asked Brown to put the matter "on call" for the special session. Unless the governor adds them to the agenda, the legislature cannot address the overweight truck, unmined minerals tax, or other issues.

In his letter to Brown, Stumbo claims that Transportation Department officials, including former Secretary Frank Metts, originally agreed that SB 144 was "a viable solution" to the chronic problem of overweight trucks.

"The concept behind Senate Bill 144 is sound. It was a measure designed to help, not hinder or hurt, truckers or coal operators," the legislator wrote. "It was also designed to provide badly needed monies for the resource recovery roads which are subjected to the day-to-day pounding and battering created by the hauling of loads in excess of weights that the roads were designed to carry."

Stumbo refers in his letter to criticism that the Transportation Secretary might be liable if, having issued a permit for an overweight truck, a bridge collapsed on account of it, causing death or injury. The lawmakers addressed this problem, he said, by earmarking for bridge repair all permit fees collected in the first year.

WHAT ABOUT FIREWOOD INSECTS

Those beetles, wasps, ants or termites that sometimes show up around the woodpile might make your skin crawl, but they probably won't do any other harm, according to an Extension entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"There are a number of insects associated with firewood which may cause unwarranted alarm to homeowners," said Dr. Chris Christensen.

There also is a large wasp that develops in some types of firewood, especially dead elm, according to Christensen. "These wasps may emerge and cause consternation, and the homeowner may be frightened that the beetles or wasps may attack them or the structural lumber in the home, but neither fear is justified," he said.

Carpenter ants and termites also may be found in firewood, but Christensen said it is highly unlikely that these will invade the home from that source. "Both are social insects, and the integrity of the colony usually is so disturbed when the wood is cut and split that establishment in the home is not possible."

Pennsylvania wood roach nymphs also may be found in firewood, but these insects are not capable of establishing indoors, explained the specialist.

"Some people don't want any of these 'bugs' in their homes, no matter how innocuous they may be," noted Christensen. He suggests these steps to prevent insect invasion of homes from firewood.

—Do not stack firewood in or against the house or other buildings.

—Bring in amounts of firewood that can be used up in a couple of days and keep it stacked in the cold portions of the house (garage or unheated porch).

—Do not leave firewood in the house over the summer.

Christensen says firewood should not be treated with insecticides. "It is unnecessary and expensive."

It's Gruis-some . . .

One Man's View of Kentucky

(Editor's note: Readers of Glenn Rutherford's column in the Louisville Courier-Journal will have heard already of Phil Gruis. He is the newspaperman whose disparaging views on Kentucky—eastern Kentucky, specifically—appeared in the Spokane, Wash., Spokesman-Review in November and were reported by Rutherford early this month.

Rutherford's readers were quick to respond. They include a Lexington woman who held writers like Gruis responsible for eastern Kentucky's reputation as a center of hillbilly poverty. Another Lexington reader found the Washington columnist on target, however, in criticizing "the littered countryside, especially in the mountains."

Gruis' column, which follows, first appeared in the Spokesman-Review on Nov. 14 under the headline, "It Takes a Special Breed of Person To Live in Kentucky."

A fair number of people have asked me why I came to Spokane. Some have suggested that I reconsider, pointing out the virtues of Newark.

But absolutely no one has asked me why I left Kentucky.

How come? Is the answer so obvious? What do you know about Kentucky, anyway? They don't know anything about you. The more wordly Kentuckians think Spokane is a suburb of Seattle. As far as the others know, it's a moon of Jupiter.

Now, there are some fine people in Kentucky. And in some ways it's nice to see that tradition is still prized. The rolling, green countryside is pretty. And there's some good Southern food—especially if you're fond of possum.

But, in answer to that unuttered question, there are many reasons why I left Kentucky after a term of 20 months and 20 days. Here are a few.

In Kentucky, as elsewhere, teeth sometimes fall out of people's mouths. In Kentucky, people don't replace them. Kentuckians leave strange imprints on their sandwiches.

In Kentucky trash is thrown everywhere but in the trash cans. They believe that creeks were put on Earth to serve as repositories for old tires, abandoned grocery carts and expired refrigerators.

They don't clean the streets there. When dogs, cats, skunks, liberals and other critters are squashed by cars, no one collects the corpses. They lay there until they are pounded into black grease. Cairns of cigarette butts stand at intersections with stoplights.

Compared to the mountain men of Eastern Kentucky, Marines, Klansmen, Nazis and SWAT team members are pansies. Even Central Kentuckians do not pass through Eastern Kentucky with their car windows rolled down, or at less than 60 mph—unless they have kin there.

There is little public land in Kentucky. If you want to walk in the forest, you had better own it.

Kentucky rates among the very lowest of the 50 states in its support of schools and of people in need. There are some very twisted people prowling the streets who, in most other states, would be institutionalized, or at least confined to the state Legislature.

The ragweed count thereabouts is the highest in the country. And it's so humid that in 57 minutes, on the average, bread molds, potato chips will and moss begins to grow on your armpits.

They have peculiar laws in Kentucky. The sale of booze is outlawed in counties where they make some of the world's best bourbon. Beer and liquor and a lot of other things aren't sold on Sundays. Playboy magazines may be sold only in plain brown wrappers.

In Kentucky, which is prime tobacco country, many people remain convinced that cigarette-smoking isn't terminal.

At University of Kentucky football games, black players, when they screw up, are taunted from the stands, called spearhuckers.

Some lawns still sport the little, ceramic black men in red jackets, holding lanterns.

Some teachers tell Polish jokes in their classrooms.

They also tell Iowa jokes in Kentucky. ("What's the best thing to come out of Iowa? An empty bus." "What do you call 5,000 Iowans at the bottom of the Mississippi River? A good start." Etc.) Being Iowa-born, and willing to admit it, I have learned to take such jokes in good humor. But from Kentuckians?

If you call to inquire about a house to rent, the first or second question from your prospective landlord will be, "Do you attend church regularly?"

The disparity between rich and poor in Kentucky is outrageous. It happens that frivolous owners of sprawling, verdant horse farms will spend more just to have a fun weekend than some people will earn in 15 years of drudgery.

They still have debutante balls. Men still hoot and whistle at pretty women on the streets.

A Kentucky conversation:

The man in the grocery store is about 45, with black hair and graying sideburns, short sleeves rolled way up, belly bulging over his belt. He scratches himself too vigorously and his face is blank.

The man's wife is with him. She is as wide as an aisle. (In Kentucky, if it isn't fried, they don't eat it.) She wears bright yellow pants—through which the lines of her underwear show—and a pink knit blouse. So much flesh rings her middle that her arms cannot hang straight. She has a cheerful, shining face, unmarred by wrinkles.

The third player is an old woman, gray, sprightly, hunch-backed, in a white print dress. She wears a string of beads, powder on her face, bright red lipstick. For her, grocery-shopping is a dress-up occasion.

My guess is that she is a widow, and one who has adapted well to life alone—better than many of the older women I see in stores, tenuously surviving on their own after decades of dependence, sadly buying now for just one, adding up the prices with apprehension, scowling into their baskets.

But this woman is clear of eye, bright of tooth, quick of smile. She seems kind and cheerful and eager.

The four of us strike our grocery-shopping poses near the deli. Then the wife breaks for the ice cream freezer. Husband, hands on cart, calls out, "That's fattening. That's fattening."

The old woman is amused. Smiling, she looks from one to the other and asks hubby, "Do you have her on a diet?"

"No," he laughs, "I like my women fat."

And that's why I left Kentucky.

Old Christmas Party

The annual Old Christmas party will be held at May Lodge, Sunday, Jan. 9, beginning at 2 p.m. There will be the traditional wassail bowl, old-fashioned cookies, and other "goodies," and Kentucky's champion banjo picker, and other musicians will be on hand to make the occasion an enjoyable one. Mrs. Edith James and Mr. and Mrs. Chalmer Frazier, directors of the event, invite all to attend.

HERE FROM LYNCH

Mrs. Forrest Skaggs, of Lynch, came here several days prior to Christmas to be with her mother, Mrs. Troy B. Sturgill, at her home, and was joined there a few days later, by her husband, Dr. Skaggs. Other members of Mrs. Sturgill's family who came for a visit at various times during the holidays were the Skaggs' son, Forrest Skaggs, Jr., Mrs. Skaggs, and their son, Andrew, William B. Sturgill and daughter, Mrs. Mary Hartley, and her daughter, Emma, all of Lexington, and the Barkley Sturgill family of Prestonsburg.

Is Science/Math Shortage Real?

By MORRIS L. NORFLEET
President, Morehead State University
If you are not involved in education, you may not be aware that Kentucky and the rest of the nation are trying to cope with a worsening shortage of teachers of science and mathematics in elementary and secondary schools.

In Kentucky during the 1981-82 school year, there were 547 math teachers and 256 science teachers who were not certified by the Kentucky Department of Education to teach in those subject areas. In other words, these teachers did not have sufficient college training to meet the minimum state qualifications.

No one can say that all or most of these teachers do a poor job in the classroom but it stands to reason that even the most dedicated teacher must have adequate preparation in his or her academic discipline to be totally effective.

EKU Sets Records In Winning Title

RICHMOND, KY.—The 1982 Eastern Kentucky University Colonels football team, national champions in the NCAA's Division I-AA with its recent 17-14 victory over the University of Delaware in the Pioneer Bowl, rewrote the school record book in several categories, both team and individual, during the past season.

Seventeen seniors closed out their collegiate careers in grand fashion sporting a 13-0 record this past season and a fine 46-7 during the past four years.

"This whole season has been surprising," said EKU head coach Roy Kidd. "But I certainly don't want to take anything away from our young men. Each and every one of them gave a terrific effort. They believed in themselves and went out and proved that they were the best team in our division week after week. You have to like a team like that."

School records set or tied by this season included: most wins, 13; undefeated season, 13-0 (tying the 1940 team which went 8-0-0); and most consecutive games won—13, (tying the mark set during the 1939-40-41 seasons).

Individual school records set or tied included: most TD's scored in a single game—4, Terence Thompson (tied by three others on four occasions); longest punt return—88 yards, Tony James vs. Austin Peay; most extra points kicked in a season—39, Jamie Lovett (tying 1979 mark of David Flores); and most passes attempted in a season—254, Tuck Woolum.

Other season individual records were: most yards passing—1,923, Woolum; most yards total offense—1,983, Woolum; most TD passes thrown—14, Woolum (tying 1966 mark of Jim Guice); and most kickoffs returned—24, Tony James (tying Jerry Parrish's 1981 mark).

"The 1982 team will always have a special place in my heart and my memories because of its never-say-die attitude and gutty performances," Kidd said.

Eastern, who has won 23 of its last 24 games, was ranked No. 1 in the nation for the last nine weeks of the season and won its second consecutive Ohio Valley Conference title in 1982, upping its undefeated string of OVC games to 18 now.

The Colonels have played in the national championship for the past four years, winning the I-AA title in 1979 and finishing in the runnerup slot in 1980 and 1981.

KICK A LIFELONG HABIT IN JUST FIVE DAYS!

EXAMINE THE FOLLOWING FACTS:

Is "will power" the answer? Of the 85% who try to quit smoking, a mere 3% are able to make it without outside help. Where does that leave the other 97% who want to stop? Do they lose? In most cases they do.

Until a few years ago it seemed a near "impossible dream" to be free of the desperate preoccupation of smoking, but now at our STOP SMOKING CLINIC, for those seriously desiring to quit we can guarantee you will stop smoking in 5 days or your money back. The reason we feel so certain you will stop is our medically approved method. In case after case it has proven a near 100% success rate, and that's in 5 short days.

If you SERIOUSLY want to "kick" the habit, PLEASE call us for an interview. you will NOT be accepted for this program unless we feel we CAN help you.

KET Special Dramatizes Hitlers Rise To Power

Adolf Hitler's Nazi dictatorship rose out of "Operation Hummingbird," the 1934 massacre of hundreds of Germans opposed to his regime.

Sir Hugh Greene, a Berlin correspondent for a London newspaper at the time, recalls, through eyewitness accounts from survivors, the events that led to the brutal massacre.

"Hitler's Night of the Hummingbird," was produced in 1981 by Christopher Oligati for BBC Enterprises.

Pets Fall Victim To Animal Traps

Trapping activity, which comes with the arrival of cold weather in this area, can mean serious problems for pet owners.

Teresa Ousley, wife of Dr. Rudolph Ousley, Prestonsburg veterinarian, said, an alarming number of trap-related injuries to dogs and cats had occurred during the late fall season.

Gangrenous limbs are common among victims of hunters' traps. Mrs. Ousley explained, since the jaws of the trap often prevent adequate circulation of blood, if an animal can be located soon after being caught in the trap, chances of recovery without surgery are much greater, she pointed out.

Much of the danger to domestic animals results from traps being set without hunters first obtaining permission from landowners, according to Mrs. Ousley. "If pet owners don't know traps are on their property, then they naturally don't make any effort to restrict their animals to certain areas and keep them away from others," she said.

"Trappers should be responsible enough to at least let pet owners know where their traps are," she said. "That would certainly reduce this kind of injury."

KET Special, Jan. 12 Studies Rain Forests

The world's rain forests occur only in a narrow belt around the Equator, blanketing some three-million square miles of the earth's tropics. "Rain Forest," the "National Geographic Special" airing Wednesday, January 12, at 8 p.m. in KET's new season, looks at the forests of Costa Rica, its lush foliage, varied animal life—and threatened status.

Burgeoning human populations are encroaching on the world's rain forests; some experts believe that, at the current rate of destruction, rain forests could disappear by the end of this century. The program examines this crisis and presents the beauty and versatility of a rain forest and its life.

"Rain Forest" is produced by the National Geographic Society and WQED/Pittsburgh.

How the Sun May Work for You

Constantly rising fuel costs have forced many families to seek what they believe to be the cheaper alternative—solar energy. There are, however, several practical factors to consider about solar heating systems, as the January Reader's Digest points out.

The trend toward solar heating has already attracted some 60,000 to 80,000 sun-lovers, the majority of whom are quite satisfied with the extraordinary savings. "With just $6000 in solar features added to the cost of a new $100,000 house, you can reduce heating expense 85 percent," says contractor Michael Corbett, of Davis, California.

Active Solar. It is equally important that the prospective solar homeowner be aware of the expense involved. Active solar heating, in which the warmth of sun-heated water on the roof panels is stored in basement tanks, is far more costly than passive solar heating, in which the sun comes in through windows and is stored by heat-absorbing materials inside the house.

Passive Solar. Calculate costs. If petroleum fuels continue to rise by at least five percent each year, then each square foot of south-facing window, combined with good insulation and solar storage, will save you a gallon of oil or its equivalent. This is your payback.

When installing a new system, consider future buyers and avoid extreme alterations. According to real-estate experts, attractive solar homes with conventional heat backup appreciate in value faster than conventional houses.

Although solar heating requires more personal attention than conventional home heating methods, the rewards in terms of financial savings may make it worthwhile. It is important to consider all aspects of installation and maintenance before making any major alterations.

Appalachian Writers Featured By KET

Three Kentucky writers share their experiences of life in the Kentucky mountains in a new series on KET. The half-hour series, "Appalachian Writers," airs Thursdays at 10:30 p.m., premiering January 20.

The programs focus on Harriette Simpson Arnow, who was born in Wayne county; James Still, who lives in Hindman, and Gurney Norman, who is an English professor at the University of Kentucky. These novelists write about Eastern Kentucky in times of crisis—the Depression, World War II, out-migration and rapid cultural change.

In the program, the authors read excerpts from their books and relate their writings to their experiences in the Kentucky mountains. Arnow, Still and Norman draw on the rich tradition of Appalachian culture and history to present their characters and situations.

"Appalachian Writers" is a production of WSJK-TV, Knoxville. KET is more great company this season.

★ CANCER HOPELINE ★

Q. Like all women I fear breast cancer, but just how likely am I to get it?

A. One out of 11 American women will have breast cancer at some time in her life. The signs of breast cancer (a lump or thickening, puckering or dimpling of the skin, scaling, or a discharge from the nipples) may be found by many women. This is because breast tissue is naturally lumpy and uneven; in addition, normal lumpiness may be exaggerated before the menstrual cycle begins, during pregnancy or breast feeding, when using birth control pills, etc. Should the lumps not disappear before her next period begins, a woman would be advised to see her physician.

The best insurance for cure. Get your copy free by calling the Cancer Hopeline toll free at 1-800-432-9321 from 9-5 weekdays, or write to 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, Ky. 40536.

Q. I have endometrial hyperplasia. My gynecologist says it is not cancer but may be pre-cancerous. I'm taking progesterone one week every month. Should anything else be done?

A. Certainly, you have a right to seek a second opinion about your condition and the treatment of it. Some background material may be of help in making such a decision and/or in discussing matters with your current gynecologist.

In October, 1982, the American Cancer Society published results of a study of 365,812 women, data for which was collected from 1959-1965. It showed no identifiable pattern for developing breast cancer. Published in CA, a journal for cancer physicians, research centered on a six-year study of living habits related to cancer. Of the women studied, 3,130 developed breast cancer during the study period. Results also indicated that even women without the usually accepted high risk factors were still at risk.

The endometrium is the lining of the uterus (womb). Endometrial hyperplasia occurs when there are too many endometrial cells. It can develop into cancer. However, while every case of hyperplasia does not result in cancer, uterine cancer always goes through a hyperplastic stage before becoming cancerous. Therefore, hyperplasia is a definite warning.

The study concluded that all women should be treated as being at appreciable risk of breast cancer, be taught breast self-examination, and have periodic mammograms. Women over 35 were said to be a substantial risk.

As you no doubt know, the symptoms are bleeding. Menstrual periods are heavy, and there is breakthrough bleeding at irregular times. There are three tests for hyperplasia: aspirating endometrial cells by means of suction through a fine needle, "jet" washing out of uterine cells for analysis, and performing a D and C (dilation and curettage), which is a minor surgical scraping procedure. The Pap smear is not conclusive in detecting hyperplasia.

High risk factors are: history of breast cancer in mother or sister; history of breast surgery for a non-malignant breast condition; Jewish ethnic background; menopause at age 50 or older; menstruation before the age of 12; never married; first live birth at 30 years of age or older or no live births; college graduate (as indicator of high standard of living); daily alcohol consumption; 10 percent or more above average weight.

In older women, hyperplasia may be due to changes occurring during menopause. At such times, a physician may decide to withhold any treatment until menopause has been completed. If the hyperplasia continues after menopause, hysterectomy (removal of the uterus) is usually recommended.

Low risk factors are: no history of breast cancer in mother or sister; no breast surgery; non-Jewish heritage; menopause before the age of 50; menstruation after the age of 12; married; first live birth before the age of 30; did not graduate from college; no daily alcohol consumption; at average weight or less than 10 percent above it.

Many treatments for the same condition are possible, depending on individual cases. The physician is best equipped to know what should be done; therefore, two women with similar symptoms and/or diagnosed conditions should not be upset if treatments are different.

Illegal Credit Card Use Considered Fraud

"Use of a credit card illegally is considered fraud and carries a rather severe penalty," Art Willett, South Central Bell manager, said this week. The company has been plagued recently with a rash of calls charged to celebrities such as Bert Reynolds and others. "A few people in Floyd county are attempting to use this celebrity trick again," Willett said, and went on to tell of one sweet, young thing who had talked all night, long distance, to her boy-friend.

He said that one case in this county has been referred to South Central's security department, and that there will possibly be others. According to Willett, the use of a credit card number of a well-known performer has been made before, and in that instance several arrests were made. "The same thing will happen this time," he added.

Federal law allows the penalty of up to five years in jail and up to $1,000 in fines to be imposed.

"The use of someone else's credit card is not an innocent prank. It is fraud that costs lots of people lots of money. We want this practice stopped and we will take the steps necessary to do so," Willett said.

IS CHRISTMAS GUEST

Mrs. Peg Hewlett was the Christmas dinner guest of her granddaughter, Mrs. Larry Epperson, Mr. Epperson and children, at their home at Water Gap. Other dinner guests of the Eppersons were Mr. and Mrs. Franklin Salisbury and children, Teresa and Stevie, of Martin.

May File Soon For Help With Heating

Applications for help in meeting winter fuel needs will be taken in two stages, Phyllis Stanley, director of the Big Sandy Area Agency on Aging, announced this week.

Persons who are 60 or over and those receiving 100 percent disability may make application under the state Home Energy Assistance Program beginning Jan. 3. Beginning Jan. 17, any who are without heating fuel, or who foresee that they will be without fuel in 15 days, may apply for assistance under the program.

Applications will be received here at the Department for Social Insurance. Those who use gas or electricity for heating must bring a billing statement along as proof, and those applying because of a cutoff or threatened cutoff must bring the cutoff notice from their utility company, it was explained.

Homemakers may make application for clients of the Big Sandy Homecare Program.

To be eligible an individual may earn or receive up to $500 a month; a two-person household is allowed $600; in a three-person household the income level may not exceed $700; and for a four-person household the limit is $800. Moreover, the applicant may not have over $5000 in liquid assets, such as a savings or checking account, one month prior to the month of application.

Senior citizens are invited to call their local senior citizens' center for information regarding transportation to the application office.

A short business session was held, at which time the altar was draped in memory of Mrs. Myrtle Russell, of Texas, past president of the International Association of Rebekah Assemblies, who died in November.

All 25-year-and-over members were honored at this time. Mrs. Goble gave a reading, after which she turned the program over to Mrs. Dorothy Osborne, Mrs. Sue Moore and Mrs. Rebecca Bingham, who introduced those being honored. Welcomed and receiving Rebekah Charms from the lodge were Effie Hopkins, Venelia Rinehart, Virginia Goble, Mabel Jean LeMaster, Theckley Short, Norma Stepp, Mary Zemo, Nell Howard, Ethel A. Hall, Mamon Leslie, Joyce S. Allen, Burieta Gearhart, Florence Reynolds, and Winifred Blackburn.

At the close of the meeting, all took part in the exchange of Christmas gifts and the revealing of "Secret Sisters" for the past year. Enjoying the fellowship hour and the covered dish dinner preceding the meeting were Virginia Goble, Alicia Adkins, Norma Stepp, Theckley Short, Venelia Rinehart, Mabel Jean LeMaster, Violetta Wright, Paulena Owens, Dorothy Osborne, Kelly Sue Moore, Rebecca Bingham, Jean Hickman, Nola Stepp, Maman Leslie, Sally Mae Goble, Belle Conn, Myrtle Allen, Effie Hopkins, Mary Zemo, Joyce S. Allen, Burieta Gearhart, Florence Reynolds, Ethel A. Hall, Lorena Wallen, Helen Ormerod, Blanche Kinsley, Sue Moore, Dolly Pretrey, Rebecca Rasnick, Winifred Blackburn, and Nell Howard.

The next regular meeting will be held January 4, at 7 p.m., at the I.O.O.F. Hall. The new officers will be installed at this time.

When the Celsius scale was first devised, 0° was the boiling point of water, 100° the freezing point of water.

VA Questions and Answers

Q—What is Agent Orange and how did it get its name?

—Agent Orange was a herbicide, or defoliant, used in Vietnam to kill unwanted vegetation and to defoliate trees to deprive enemy forces of ground cover. The herbicide was called Agent Orange because it was shipped in orange-striped barrels.

Q—I understand the VA has started charging a fee for processing home loan applications. Is this true?

A—Yes. A recently enacted law requires that a funding fee of 1/2 percent of the loan amount be collected by the VA in connection with all home loans closed on or after Oct. 1, 1982. Veterans receiving VA compensation for service-connected disabilities or spouses of veterans who died in service or from a service-connected disability are exempted from these provisions of the law.

Q—I am a World War II veteran and now 65 years of age. Do I automatically qualify for a VA pension?

A—No. You meet the age and war-time service requirements. However, you must also meet the income and net worth requirements.

Q—Will the Veterans Administration treat Vietnam veterans who have health problems that they believe may have been caused by exposure to Agent Orange?

A—Yes. Under Public Law 97-72 passed last year, the VA can treat eligible veterans for certain disabilities which may have been caused by exposure to Agent Orange. Guidelines have been issued to all VA medical centers in order to implement this.

Q—What is the difference between disability compensation and disability pension?

A—Compensation is paid to veterans with disability rated 10 percent or more which was incurred in or aggravated during active military service. Pension is paid to needy war veterans who are permanently and totally disabled from non-service connected causes prior to age 65 or who have reached 65.

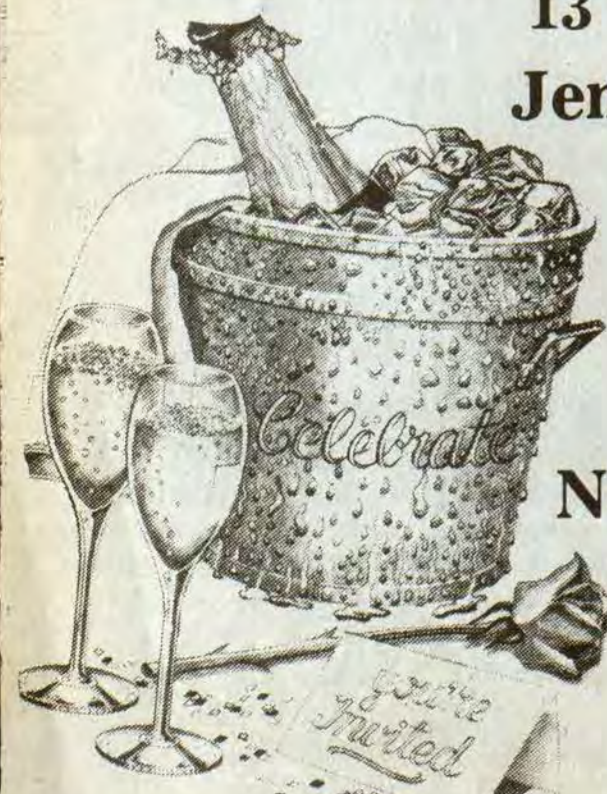

Q—Are World War I veterans eligible for VA outpatient medical care?

A—Yes, all veterans of World War I are eligible for VA outpatient care for any medical disability while in an approved VA treatment program.

Some of the ways to do business with us are changing.

But we're still as close as your phone.

The telephone industry is changing—reorganizing. That means more options for you. And some changes in the way you do business with us. If you've done business with us lately, you may have gone to one of our retail outlets. Now, if you need help with phone service, call us first.

- Call a South Central Bell service representative if you want to:
 - order new phone service.
 - change your existing service.
 - disconnect your service.
 - ask a question about your bill.
 - exchange or return sets purchased or leased from South Central Bell. (We cannot exchange or take back sets purchased or leased from other suppliers.)

Call South Central Bell's repair service if you have trouble with your service or with a phone set that is leased from South Central Bell. (For service or repair of phone sets that you own—whether they came from South Central Bell or another supplier—you should follow the warranty instructions or other maintenance arrangement made at the time of purchase.)

You'll find the phone numbers for your service representative and repair service in the front of the South Central Bell phone book. When you call us, in many cases we'll be able to complete your business or solve your problem while you're on the phone. In other cases, we may offer to mail equipment or parts to you. Or you may be referred to a phone company service center to complete your transaction. If so, we'll tell you where the nearest one is and when it's open.

Some things won't change. During 1983 South Central Bell will still provide you with dependable local and long distance phone service. We'll continue to be responsible for phones that residence and business customers now lease from us. And we'll continue to lease telephones (and to sell some selected phones) as long as they're available from inventory. (With regulatory approval, we do plan to offer single-line residence and business customers the option of buying telephones that are now leased from us.)

There'll be more changes in the telephone industry in the coming year or so as South Central Bell and other Bell operating companies are separated from AT&T and reorganized into regional companies. This change in organization, to take place in 1984, will affect significantly how you get and use telecommunications services.

But no matter how things change, South Central Bell is committed to seeing that certain things remain the same. We'll still have good, dependable people and the same goal: providing you with the best, most advanced telephone service at reasonable rates.

We'll keep you informed. But in the meantime, if you have any questions about the changes in the industry or about how to do business with us now, call 1 800 555-5000, toll free, 10 a.m.-11 p.m., Central Time, Monday through Friday. Or write for a free brochure, "Let's Talk About Change."

Relief from Seasonal Stress

The holiday just over is the loveliest one of the year, but it is also probably the most stressful. The tempo of life picks up, houses and schedules are rearranged, social gatherings are numerous, meals are bounteous followed by rich desserts and flowing spirits, and pleasure and excitement are pressing. Genuine celebration is healthy, but the speed and changes of the season do cause tension and result in stress. Stress is defined as "the tension felt inside due to pressure on the outside." It is necessary to life and cannot be avoided. Furthermore, stress can be good because it keeps a person alert, able to react quickly and avoid danger. However, when the pressure gets too great, a person is likely to feel symptoms of anxiety or depression. The heartbeat becomes rapid or uneven, breathing becomes labored, palms sweat, and nervousness, dizziness, and trembling may occur. The person may feel unable to slow down, relax, eat, or feel tired, worried, or sad. In this day and age it is more difficult to find outlets for stress. Since we cannot run from our stressors, climb a tree, or club our opponents, as prehistoric man did, it is important to search for relief and safety valves. And so how can a person begin to avoid unhealthy stress, now that the holiday rush is over? Thank goodness we are just in time for a New Year's resolution! Make it regular, strenuous exercise. Learn to effectively relax; be quiet inside oneself. A healthy diet with less sugar, salt, fat, and artificial additives, and more fiber, fresh fruit and vegetables really helps. Get sufficient sleep and rest. Don't take on too much at one time; plan changes and space events. Accept what cannot be changed and look for the good. Ventilate by talking to a friend. Or find a hobby. It's a good time to get started handling one's stress, in order to be around for many more holidays, merry and bright, to come. If you would like more information on stress and how to find relief, contact your local Mountain Comprehensive Care Center Resource Center by calling 886-8572, or toll-free 1-800-422-1060. Finally, the MCCC staff would like to wish you a happy season, and a healthy year ahead!

Best Protection for Winter Is Knowing What To Expect

Winter officially began Dec. 21. If the cold weather we've experienced in December hasn't already caught everyone's attention, January and February probably will. So, amid the holiday hubbub, it's a good idea to start preparing for a long winter's night—two.

"Winter weather takes its toll in lives and property," Wilbur R. Buntin Jr., Disaster and Emergency Services executive director, said. He pointed to some figures from last year. "Severe weather in 1982 caused at least 350 deaths and $8.2 billion in direct economic losses," he said. "While we can't change the weather, we can at least anticipate and prepare for it so that when winter hits, we will be better able to handle the complications it can cause."

The most important protection against winter storms is knowing what to expect and when to expect it, Buntin said. "With proper advance notice, people can avoid being caught in winter storms, or be better prepared to cope with them," he said.

One of the most important things we can do at this time of the year is keep posted on weather conditions through local newspaper, radio and television reports. To do this, we need to be sure we understand winter weather terminology.

As with all weather terms, a warning is more severe than a watch, Buntin said. A winter storm watch means severe weather conditions could affect your area. You should take precautionary measures and continue listening for further advisories. A warning means severe weather is imminent.

This brief glossary defines those terms used most frequently in winter storm forecasts:

Heavy snowfall warning. This generally means a snowfall of four inches or more during a 12-hour period, or a fall of six inches or more during a 24-hour period.

Snow flurries, snow squalls or drifting snow. These conditions are important to anticipate because there may be less visibility and roads may become slippery or blocked.

Blizzard. This is the worst winter storm, a combination of heavy snow, cold air and strong winds. A blizzard warning is issued when heavy snow is expected accompanied by winds of 35 miles per hour or more.

Freezing rain, freezing drizzle. This means rain in likely to freeze as soon as it hits the ground, coating everything that is exposed, including roads, with ice or ice glaze. An ice storm is a heavy accumulation of ice from these conditions.

Sleet. This means falling ice particles, usually mixed with rain. If enough sleet accumulates, roads and sidewalks become slippery and hazardous.

Travelers' advisories are issued to indicate dangerous driving conditions due to snow, sleet or freezing rain. Often, specific routes and highways are named. Buntin suggests listening to local forecasts for travel advisories if you are planning a trip by car.

Backslider's Calendar

JANUARY: I hereby resolve to start to church this year. But I'll wait till February. Gotta get over the holidays. They take a lot out of a fellow.

FEBRUARY: Weather is terrible, so I'll start when it warms up a bit. My blood is too thin this time of year.

MARCH: Lots of sickness just now. Got to keep away from those bugs.

APRIL: Easter...big crowds...they won't miss me.

MAY: I've been holed up all winter and now that the weather is getting pretty, it's time to hold reunions.

JUNE: I'll wait until the baby is older. How on earth do some folks bring their babies at two weeks of age, and then never miss a Sunday?

JULY: Boy! The heat is terrific! That air-conditioning in the church might give me chills, and anyhow we've got that cabin and boat for Sundays.

AUGUST: Preacher's on vacation. He'll never know if I miss. Never liked those guest preachers anyhow, but when the preacher gets back...

SEPTEMBER: School's started. Vacation threw me behind in my work. Got to make one last visit to my relatives before the snow flies.

OCTOBER: Leaves are beautiful this time of year...I can worship God outdoors anyhow...

NOVEMBER: Getting colder...can't stand warm church buildings with a lot of people in them. I'll start back to church when it gets warmer.

DECEMBER: This is the month of Christmas. I don't have time now for the church; besides, next month is January and I'll resolve right now to get started the first thing next year.

Pike Co. Dedicates Unit For Multiple Handicapped

For many children, the term, "multiple-handicapped," means having more than one handicapping condition, such as in the case of a Down's Syndrome child.

But in Pike county last Thursday the term took on new meaning when the Pike county schools officially dedicated their multiple-handicapped unit.

The unit, which presently serves seven children and could serve up to 10, is located adjacent to the Mullins High School on U.S. 23, six miles north of Pikeville.

According to Pike County Superintendent James T. Dotson, the opening and dedication of the new facility represented yet another way that the local school district could assist the children in need.

"We have a lot of things and people to be thankful for," Dotson said. "It is touching work, this work with special or handicapped children, but the effort and time is well-deserved because it brings a ray of sunshine into all our lives."

Childrens Theater Closes '82 Season With 'Comedy Show'

Mr. Speck, Captain Kick, Lois Late, Fred Rogers...Ha! They sound like names we might hear on the TV tube. But no, these and many others were portrayed by the 25-member PCC Children's Theater recently, when they presented their version of The Comedy Show in the college's Pike auditorium.

Two performances were given for the public, followed by two shows for approximately 250 girl scouts.

The Comedy Show was a collage of original and classic skits, including parodies of shows like Gunsmoke, Star Trek, Superman, and Frankenstein.

Participation in the children's theater has increased dramatically, growing from eight children when it began 18 months ago to the 25 who appeared in this month's production. As a result, said Theater Director Keith Conn, two groups will be formed next season, one for children aged 8 to 11, the other for those aged 12-15. "This will allow me to work closer with the youngest group and also allow both groups to attempt productions of greater artistic difficulty," he said.

In order to "pay the bills that result from building a program such as the Children's Theater," the group is soliciting donations, Conn said. To make a contribution, call 874-8071.

Travel Data Update May Boost Tourism

The state Office of Tourism Development has set up a new system to more efficiently handle travel-information requests, while at the same time yielding valuable marketing data for state and private tourism interests.

The computerized system went into effect Dec. 1, said Dale Smith, commissioner of the Department of Economic Development, which includes the tourism office.

A Louisville firm, Literature Control Inc., was successful bidder for the contract to operate the system. Under the new procedure, when someone calls the tourism office to make a state park reservation or ask for travel information, a tourism office staff member compiles data from questions like: Where do you live? Are you planning to take a vacation in Kentucky? What are your particular vacation interests? Are you married? Do you have children? The staff member then encodes the responses on a form that is sent to Literature Control.

The firm's computer produces a personalized letter from Gov. Brown to the tourist, which is accompanied by several state travel brochures. In the meantime, the demographic and geographic data is entered in the computer system.

The system replaced cumbersome, manual processing of travel requests, said Whitney Babcock, who oversees the tourism office as deputy economic development commissioner. For the tourist, the new system means a prompt, personalized response. But it will be equally important to the state, Babcock said.

"This system will create a data base that will give us a much more accurate picture of tourism activity in Kentucky," he said. The more information we have, the more we can focus advertising efforts on the most viable markets.

Previously, the state was able to gather only fragmentary information from travel information requests, and none was captured in computers, said Babcock.

Once enough data is gathered, in about six-months, the state will make available the data without charge to the private tourism industry in the state, Babcock said. Literature Control will be able to produce ready-made mailing labels based on the data. So a tourism commission in Eastern Kentucky will, for instance, be able to get a list of Michigan campers who have expressed an interest in visiting Kentucky. The tourism commission then could follow up with its own marketing efforts, Babcock noted.

"This will be a real boon for the private industry," Babcock said. "Data like this can really stretch the advertising dollar."

RIVERVIEW MANOR Nursing Home here goes "all out" during the Christmas season with all sorts of attractive decorations. These life-size choristers were made and painted by Riverview orderly Oscar Stone and Mrs. Stone who works at Methodist Hospital, Pikeville. Administrator Eleanor Robinson said the yearly decorations are made not only for the enjoyment of residents and staff at Riverview, but as a means of encouraging people of all ages to visit the facility.

Drowning Deaths Are Down By 20 Percent

Kentucky had 20 percent fewer drowning fatalities in 1982 than in the previous year, officials of the state Water Patrol announced recently.

The statistics, which included both boat-related and non-boat related deaths, were compiled by the Division of Water Patrol and state and local officials throughout Kentucky.

"We are pleased by this reduction in the number of drownings, but our ultimate goal is to reduce even further the number of Kentuckians losing their lives by drowning," said Walter Patrol Director Larry Hatfield.

"Deaths can be avoided if all sportsmen, hunters and boaters will use caution on the waterways, especially during the winter months when hypothermia is an additional danger in all water activities," he said.

"To avoid hypothermia, or the rapid loss of body temperature in the central portion of the body, anyone on the state's waterways should dress warmly, make sure that each boat passenger has a proper personal floatation device and use caution in any movement while on board. You don't have to fall overboard to be a victim of hypothermia in the winter months, so we stress dressing warmly for any outdoor, water-related activity," Hatfield added.

The Kentucky Division of Water Patrol is responsible for overseeing all boating laws and promoting safety on the waterways of the commonwealth.

Offers Free Booklet On Underground Living

Are you tired of paying high gas and electric bills?

Why not live underground where you not only reduce your bills, but also reduce your exterior maintenance; the house is termite-free and rot-proof and is insulated from noise and air pollution; roofs don't need replacement; pipes don't freeze; fire risk is small; and even more important is the preservation of the earth's natural surface.

Professor Lester L. Boyer of Oklahoma State University's architecture school has been doing research on the subject of earth sheltering for the past four years.

Boyer has produced an up-to-date brochure which answers the most commonly asked questions concerning earth-sheltered housing such as "Don't underground structures cost a lot more to build?" and "How deep should you put an underground dwelling?"

The brochure also contains a bibliography on underground buildings as well as a list of underground building resource people.

University Extension at the University of Kentucky has received permission to reproduce this brochure and distribute it to Kentuckians. For a free copy of "Living Underground" send a legal-sized self-addressed stamped envelope to: Nofflet D. Williams, University Extension, 103 Frazee Hall, University of Kentucky, Lexington, KY 40506-0031.

A FAIR FOR FLOYD COUNTY

The Floyd county fair is an event belonging to all of the county and to no one town or section thereof. And, this being true, it is the duty of Floyd countians to take that pride in the fair which would incite them to make of it an occasion which will compare favorably with that to be conducted this year in any county of Eastern Kentucky.

Less than a month intervenes between this date and the opening of the fair here. Immediate action must be taken, if the fair is to be the success which it deserves to be. A definite program remains to be worked out; funds to cover all expenses must be raised; the interest of those having exhibits must be secured—the task which must be done is no small one.

Procrastination will effect none of these things—will tend only to make of the entire event a hastily-arranged affair, roughly conceived and unsatisfactory withal. Immediate action and conscientious effort will achieve what should be the aim of all—a fair of which Floyd county may be proud.

"DON QUIXOTE" MODERNIZED

Filmed for the screen, the many and unsuccessful attempts to span the ocean by air would make a modernized version of Don Quixote that would almost be recognizable as such.

Don Quixote fought and shivered his fair lance in the spirit of chivalry. He was Chivalry itself. It mattered not whether the cause great or small, he promptly gave his attention to it. He was brave, excessively so, but he charged a windmill, it will be remembered; therefore, charged in vain.

As brave were the fliers who have gone to their deaths in the sea. Theirs was the spirit of the age—to conquer. But they defied something too great for them, therefore defied for naught.

Only now are officials awakening to the true import of the disasters which have resulted from these foolhardy attempts to conquer the ocean-barrier by air. They have now realized that trans-Atlantic air passage is a thing of the future, not of the present.

They now know that the tragic parody on Don Quixote has gone far enough.

J. M. Richie, of Illinois, was the guest of relatives here Tuesday, leaving Wednesday morning for his home, accompanied by his father, T. J. Richie, who will spend the winter there. James P. Francis and family, of Martin, were guests recently of Mr. Francis' brother, H. C. Francis, and family. While here they purchased their fall and winter supply of merchandise.

FRIGIDAIRE saves average of $105.36 a year over ice refrigeration

Amazing facts reported by FRIGIDAIRE users Low cost of operation an achievement of FRIGIDAIRE engineering

MANY still regard electric refrigeration as expensive. To prove that this is not true of Frigidaire, we sought the opinion of some 20,000 users.

Saves $105.36 per Year The answers were startling. They indicated savings even greater than we anticipated. According to carefully tabulated records, an average of $105.36 per year—over and above all operating costs! These amazing economies are due to two things: (1) No ice bills. (2) No food waste.

A Scientific Achievement Frigidaire represents years of research and development on the part of Frigidaire Engineers, and the Research Department of General Motors—the largest organization of electrical, chemical and mechanical engineers in the world. In Frigidaire modern science has incorporated elements that the exterior of the cabinet can't reveal. New, Low Prices To the wealth of evidence in favor of Frigidaire, add the new, low prices—the lowest in Frigidaire history. A complete model with Duco-finished enamel-lined steel cabinet—all ready to attach and operate from any convenient electric outlet—for the amazing price of only $180 f.o.b. Dayton.

Few Dollars Puts It in Your Home Frigidaire is used each day in the year. The whole family enjoys it. And it pays for itself with the money it saves, as proved by the signed reports of users. Visit our display room and see the new models. A small deposit puts one in your home. Then pay a little each month under liberal General Motors terms. Come in today.

HENRY PORTER DEALER ALLEN, KENTUCKY FRIGIDAIRE PRODUCT OF GENERAL MOTORS

FOR CIRCUIT JUDGE

C. B. Wheeler

TO THE PEOPLE OF THE 31st JUDICIAL DISTRICT OF KENTUCKY, COMPOSED OF FLOYD AND KNOTT COUNTIES:

I take this means of announcing my candidacy for the office of Circuit Judge which many of you already know. It may seem rather early to start a campaign through the newspapers, as the election is two months off. My reasons for doing so are, First: I made no primary campaign for the nomination and it was therefore unnecessary for me to advertise my primary candidacy, and for this reason my ideas as to the judgeship have not been placed before the people who have a right to know the kind of a judge I will be when elected. Second: I want to fasten upon the minds of the voters, and especially those who oppose me, the fact that I am a candidate so there will be no further necessity of any time being lost in circulating the worn-out propaganda that "he will not run." In my declaration as a candidate in the primary I made affidavit that if nominated I would not withdraw. That one thing settles that question definitely. Aside from that reason I am in the race to win; am going to be elected by a large majority and expect to battle every inch of the way from now till victory is complete. I make this statement now to allay the anxiety of those who hope I will quit.

In regard to the first proposition stated, namely, my ideas of the judgeship. As stated, the people who elect a judge and whose servant he is or should be, have a right to know the kind of judge they are voting for before they vote. Their homes, their property, their lives and their liberty are all at stake. The future of the country as a home for our children when they are grown up and we have passed away is involved. Whether civilization progresses or retrogrades, or whether we have made our country better or worse by having lived in it is involved.

The circuit judges of Kentucky have more power over the people and more to do with their welfare, comfort and security than all the other officers of the state combined. The circuit court is in each county, at each man's door, with power to regulate his conduct toward his fellow man and to decide controversies between citizens over property rights, many of which decisions can not be appealed to a higher court. Therefore, the happiness and prosperity of the people depend largely upon their circuit judge.

It is clear then that one elected and serving in this position should be well qualified to perform the duties of the office. Now, what are those qualifications? I take it, the people are interested to know whether the candidates seeking their votes are qualified. This question is not new. In old times the people were oppressed by pettifoggers, shysters and venal judges who prostituted their high office. Christ in one of His parables made use of the example of an unjust judge, an official moved by personal consideration in the performance of his official duties, as an illustration to point one of his morals. The Greeks and Romans were alive to this failure to measure up to high standards on the part of judges. Horace, a Roman, vigorously asserted that a CORRUPT JUDGE IS NOT QUALIFIED TO INQUIRE INTO THE TRUTH. Finally Magna Charta of England dealt specifically with reforms demanded in the judicial administration and provided that no judges should be chosen who are not learned in the law AND DISPOSED DULY TO OBSERVE IT.

Now what are the characteristics of a good judge? Socrates says they are four-fold. He contended that a judge "Must hear courteously; answer wisely; consider orderly; decide impartially." Rufus Choate in his analysis of the best judge, said: "He must be profoundly learned in all the learning of the law and must know how to use that learning; he must be a man not merely upright; not merely honest and well-intentioned—but a man who will not respect persons in judgment."

As to the integrity and impartiality of judges he further said: "He shall not respect persons in judgment. He shall know nothing about the parties; everything about the case. He shall do everything for justice; nothing for himself; he should look only to the balances and decide the case in favor of the side of the weight of the evidence though the preponderance may be so slight that the quivering of the balance is barely discernible."

These are my ideals of a good judge. If I am elected I will strive with all the ability and power I possess to make that kind of a judge. No one coming into my court, rich or poor, man or woman, shall have cause to feel that I have not given them a fair trial and courteous treatment.

As to my qualifications, I have devoted my whole life to the study and practice of the law. I am 57 years old and have practiced law 36 years. The question of qualification is for the people to decide, as is also the question of the kind of judge they want. My claim to support is based solely upon my qualification to do the duties of the office. No other question can effect their performance. Politics has no place in this race nor in the work of the judge after election. No one will say that the politics of a litigant should be inquired into or considered in the trial of any case and therefore no political party or person could be benefited by the politics of the judge. Besides, the law expressly provides that the judges shall be taken out of politics, so that the only question is who will best serve the people as judge.

I will see as many of you as possible before the election, but hope this message will reach you all. I will greatly appreciate your support and promise that I will always strive to do justice to all and that you shall not have cause to regret supporting me.

—Political Adv. C. B. WHEELER.

Homemaker "Placed"

Courage and determination are part of being a "displaced homemaker." That much is demonstrated by Marisa Johnson, who is now employed at Prestonsburg Community College as a library technician after her recent graduation from the Displaced Homemaker Program.

Her brown eyes sparkle as she talks about her job and her new ability to support her two small children.

Discovering after her divorce that she lacked "employable skills," Mrs. Johnson nevertheless had the basic requirements for the Displaced Homemaker Program—she was head of a household and had no income.

As part of the program, Mrs. Johnson selected an office skills course at Mayo State Vocational School, where she also completed her G.E.D.

Applications are now being taken for the Displaced Homemaker Program. A three-week orientation is being planned for Jan. 17-Feb. 4. For information, call 886-3863, extension 255.

PBS in the spotlight

"The Making of a Natural History Film," a look at the ingenious techniques used in making wildlife films, airs Tuesday, Jan. 4 on "Nova."

'Nova' marks 10th year

"Nova," the popular PBS series, will celebrate its 10th anniversary with a rebroadcast of their first program "The Making of a Natural History Film," to air Tuesday, Jan. 4. (Air dates may vary; please check local listings.)

A fascinating look at how wildlife films are made, the hour-long program will also treat viewers to a nostalgic look at some of the decade's most popular "Nova" offerings, ranging from the amazing world of animals to the spectacular scenes of spouting volcanoes.

"The Making of a Natural History Film" features the staff of the Oxford Scientific Films unit, a unique collection of brilliant — if slightly irreverent — producers who have developed the equipment and perfected the camera techniques that allow them to capture on film the wondrous world of nature. Included in the "Nova" footage is pioneer footage of the hatching of a chick from inside an egg, the birth of pinhead-sized water fleas and the courtship rituals of a stickleback fish.

The filmmakers, most of whom are biology and zoology experts, describe how extreme patience and persistence are critical to the extraordinary success of their work. Many times the Oxford unit spends more time setting up for a sequence than filming it.

The winner of numerous awards, including an International Emmy, "The making of a Natural History Film" is a BBC/Time-Life co-production.

CBN CORNER

'I Spy' scores again

by Kim Cooper

Two American undercover agents travel the world involved in humorous mischief and adventure in the TV series, "I Spy," now shown on the CBN Cable Network Monday through Thursday from 8 to 9 p.m., Eastern.

Bill Cosby as Alexander Scott and Robert Culp as Kelly Robinson play the incomparably funny undercover team. The duo masquerade as a tennis student and his instructor whose spy activities lead them in and out of undercover calamity.

On Jan. 3, "I Spy" features Cosby and Culp along with guest star Leslie Uggams (Tonia). Tonia is used as a pawn in a plot by Italian revolutionaries to turn Robinson and Scott against each other. Meanwhile, Scott and Tonia fall in love.

On Jan. 4, an unmanned American plane crashes in Italy and agents Robinson and Scott are dispatched to retrieve its cargo — an atom bomb. After the plane went down in a small town, it was dismantled and distributed to the townspeople as souvenirs. Robinson and Scott embark to find the missing parts.

Agents Robinson and Scott are entrusted with the life of a fellow agent on the Jan. 5 episode. The agent is being used as bait though and they end up in more of a mess.

On Jan. 5, the 10-year-old daughter of a former German collaborator becomes a pawn in her vengeful mother's plot to sell World War II secrets to the highest bidder. Robinson and Scott become involved to protect the girl when it becomes apparent that she is unaware of the danger she is in.

Kim Cooper is publicity director of the CBN Cable Network.
