

Court Delays Vote on Funds For Bus Drivers

Shortage of Money
Cited by Roberts;
Grant To Be Asked

"I'm for the senior citizens," Magistrate Kenneth Roberts want to make clear. "But everyone else is having to tighten their belts and they are going to have to, too."

The issue came up at a special meeting of the fiscal court last Friday when Magistrate Gerald DeRossett asked when the county's three senior citizens' centers were going to get the $4500 they were promised to pay for their bus drivers over the next three months.

Some elderly citizens depend on the transport for basic needs like getting their groceries, DeRossett said. Magistrates Ed Caudill and Lowell Samons cited the court's "obligation" to the senior citizens and said they still favor funding for the bus drivers.

But the county is short of money for gravel and some old people "draw as much as you do," Roberts said to his colleagues. "I won't be for it," he added, in response to a decision by Judge-Executive Jerry Lafferty, Jr. to defer further discussion of the matter until the next regular meeting of the court on Feb. 18.

The county will apply for about $200,000 in federal grant monies to lay water and sewer lines from Prestonsburg to the site of a proposed motel on (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

VOCAL OPPONENTS of a proposed regulation that would have proscribed music and dancing where beer is consumed, Martha and Ron Hurley, of Minnie, argued at a hearing on the proposal last Friday that the county should allow places where local bands can perform and that proprietors should be held responsible for policing their own establishments. Members of a country-music band called Fancy Free, the Hurleys complained that they usually have to travel out of the county for a chance to play.

Second Hearing Told New Plan On Beer Sales

No one, apparently, wants rowdy beer joints. But there is a better way to prevent their proliferation here than by a regulation proposed recently that would ban games and music where beer is sold.

That was the consensus of a group which appeared at last Friday's hearing on the regulation—the second of three public hearings, arranged by Floyd ABC Administrator Denzil Allen—to offer its own suggestion for control of beer outlets here.

According to a proposal outlined by Sandy Boyd, owner of a Harold package store, no beer drinking would be permitted on any premises without an entertainment license. An entertainment license would authorize games, music, dancing and—on premises with the required state and county beer licenses—beer consumption as well.

Before issuance of an entertainment license, according to this proposal, the applicant's "capability" should be scrutinized closely, there should be adequate parking space, the entertainment should not interfere with the neighboring business or residential community, a cover charge should be levied to pay for a deputy to be on duty, and half the proposed tax on liquor sales should go to the Sheriff's department to beef up law enforcement.

"We can do without roadhouses—where people just come in and drink and do nothing else. Maybe they're the reason we had trouble in the past," (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Report of Mine Reopening Held 'Too Optimistic'

Recent newspaper and television reports of the return of hundreds of Eastern Kentucky miners to work were at best over-optimistic, The Times learned late last week.

South East Coal Co., which has mines in Knott and Letcher counties, has returned a reported 650 miners to work, and Beth Elkhorn in the Jenkins area has recalled 350 who had been idled.

But the report that National Mines is reopening its main operations on Caney Creek, a few miles from Wayland, are premature. A more accurate report is that it has given a few contract miners on Jones Fork, Knott county, the green light for work, but even that may be only temporary. The main mines, which employ about 400, remain "down" and the prospects are admittedly "not good."

Some see better days ahead with a renaissance automobile industry and the promise of more metallurgical coal being needed for steel production. But Harry LaViers, Jr., of South East Coal, is not one of these. He fears the coal market as it once was may never be back.

He notes that around Thanksgiving, South East had piled up 250,000 tons of coal that it couldn't sell.

"We decided that the steel industry wasn't going through a business cycle, (See Story No. 10, Page 4)

Floyd Co. Ed Council To Hear Dr. Bolick

Dr. Teresa Bolick, professor of psychology at the University of Kentucky, will be the guest speaker at the next meeting of the Floyd County Education Council, February 15, at the Coal Building in Martin at 7 p.m.

Dr. Bolick, who holds a PhD. in psychology, specializes in children and families. She is a graduate of the University of North Carolina and received her Master's and PhD. degrees from Emory University, Atlanta, Georgia.

Dr. Bolick will speak on special education and its meaning at the meeting, Tuesday evening.

McDowell Man Says Grandson, Girl Robbed Him

Three holdups—two in this county, the third in Pike—last Thursday and Friday netted robbers approximately $30,000 in cash and materials, and as of Monday noon none of the robbers had been apprehended.

In only one of the three incidents were suspects named. This was in the first of the robberies, last Thursday evening about 6 o'clock, at McDowell, where 76-year-old Prophet Moore was robbed, he said, of "nearly $1000" and a 1975 Ford Granada. Mr. Moore waited outside the grand jury room here Monday to ask, he said, that his grandson, Terry Moore, and his step-granddaughter, Brenda Giddings, be indicted.

The second holdup occurred around 3 a.m. Friday on Bull Creek, near here, where two unidentified men robbed Mrs. Emma Lou Gray, 45, at her home and escaped with silverware, six diamond rings, $170 in cash and Mrs. (See Story No. 11, Page 4)

Liquor License Probers Solicit Help by Public

A state police team which has been in this county for some weeks investigating reported violations in the issuance of beer and whiskey licenses, appealed this week for public assistance in the probe.

The police involvement came at the request of the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board last December. At that time, ABC Commissioner Edward A. Farris wrote to KSP Commander Billy Wellmann requesting an investigation by police of charges that bribes were solicited from some license applicants.

An attorney for a number of unsuccessful applicants this week challenged county officials to declare whether or not they attempted to influence the granting of licenses. Speaking at a hearing Friday on a proposed regulation for retail beer outlets—the only elected officials present were Sheriff Henry Hale and Magistrates Gerald DeRossett and Lowell Samons—Gary Johnson charged that, amid the concern for regulating taverns, there is "a more important issue on which the fiscal court has been strangely silent."

"The public interest would be best served," Johnson explained, "if county officials would say publicly whether or not they had anything to do with who got licenses and who did not."

The two magistrates present immediately asserted that they had done nothing to influence the granting of licenses.

Amid rumors that police investigators may have unearthed evidence of influence peddling in the issuance of licenses, a police spokesman this week urged anyone with information to call the Pikeville state police post.

School Board Delays Mineral Tax Support

Even as they welcomed the prospect of tax revenues on liquor sales, members of the Board of Education proved unwilling, at their regular meeting last Wednesday, to endorse a tax on unmined minerals.

In his third appearance before the board on the issue, Joe Szakos, representing the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, asked for board endorsement of a bill in the state legislature which would tax coal in the ground at the same rate as surface property is taxed.

Revenues from such a tax could amount to "several hundred thousand dollars," Szakos said.

Woman's Death Results in Suit For $1.5 Million

Surgery performed by two physicians on a young Auxier woman at Highlands Regional Medical Center last February was unnecessary, was done negligently, and caused her death, the woman's husband and mother claim in a suit filed in Circuit Court last week.

Patricia Bentley, then 21, entered the hospital February 3 last year and was operated on the following day for removal of an ovarian cyst, family members said. The next day she was dead.

The suit filed by the dead woman's husband, Elmer Bentley, and her mother, Ellree Hyden, also names her two children—Crystal Lynn West, 6, and George Edward Bentley, 4—as plaintiffs and seeks a total of $1.5 million in damages.

Attorney Asks Grand Jury To Probe 'Vigilante Justice'

Young offenders here need protection from angry crime victims bent on "vigilante justice," a Prestonsburg defense attorney said this week.

Gary Johnson, who made his case before a circuit court grand jury Monday, cited two recent cases to bolster his claim. In both cases, young men allegedly involved in property crimes were shot and seriously injured by the property owners, the attorney said.

While the alleged thieves were subsequently apprehended, however, charges have never been brought against those who shot them.

Johnson said he asked the grand jury either to return indictments against the property owners, to investigate the two incidents, or at least to indicate in its report that it would not tolerate crime victims' taking the law into their own hands.

The grand jury's report is not expected until later this week.

In one of the cases cited by the defense lawyer, Sam Williams, 25, of Little Mud Creek, was accused of breaking into a Honaker grocery store owned by Terry and Joanne Lykens last May.

As he fled the scene, Williams was shot in the back with a .38-caliber revolver, sustaining injuries to various internal organs, it was reported. The injured man's sister swore out a warrant against Terry Lykens in connection with the shooting, Johnson claims.

Williams later pleaded guilty to a third degree burglary charge, drawing the maximum five-year jail sentence, which was probated, however. The facts that he had no previous criminal record and was disabled by the injuries (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

This Town...That World

Ground Hog Day I forgot. But not Valentine's. The groundhog has nothing to sell or advertise—retiring fellow, he—except a mere shadow, and that's our excuse for forgetting.

"Storm to sweep state. Temperatures in the teens. Snow 2 to 4 inches." Blah-blah. If this keeps up, a whole generation of youngsters is going to wind up skeptics—if they ever learn to read.

ADMONITION

Those who think a little junk tossed here and there, or a little water pollution, won't hurt are referred to one of several Russian proverbs recorded recently by columnist James Reston. It reads:

"Don't spit in the well; you'll be thirsty, by and by."

CLOAK OF DESPAIR

As winters go, this one hasn't been too severe. Yet the season palls on most of us. Although there have been the usual Christmas cheer and New Year's hi-jinks, there's a deadness about it that leaves many of us feeling that we've taken up permanent residence in the rut. Maybe it would help to begin thinking of spring—new (See Story No. 7, Page 4)

Board Denies Beer License Near Church

The state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board yesterday (Tuesday) upheld administrators' decisions denying beer and wine licenses to owners of a Betsy Layne restaurant. The board decision appears likely to lead to a court challenge to the state law that allows a church to prevent a nearby business from selling alcohol.

Kenneth and Betty Robinson, owners of the Back Porch restaurant, appeared before the board in Frankfort Tuesday to appeal the decision late last year by Malt Beverage Administrator John Crimmins to deny them a beer license and the decision by Distilled Spirits Administrator Michael Davidson denying them a restaurant wine license.

The license applications were rejected after members of a nearby Church of God filed an objection under a Kentucky law that allows a church to block issuance of an alcoholic-beverage license if the business seeking the license is within 200 feet of the church.

A RARE BREED...There's hardly been enough snow the entire winter to construct a decent snowman. This example, though ragged and misshapen, represents quite a feat, really, considering that it was made from Saturday's mere slip of white stuff which had all but disappeared by the time the snowman was finished.

Mine Victim's Widow Sues for $3.7 Million

Negligence on the part of the RFH Coal Company at Craynor caused the death of her husband in the explosion that rocked the firm's No. 1 mine on Mink Branch last January, Unnie Hall, 21, has charged in a suit filed in Circuit Court here and in U.S. District Court in Pikeville.

The young widow is seeking $3.7 million in damages as a result of the blast which killed Ronnie Hall, who was 25 at the time of his death, and six other miners last Jan. 20.

Named as defendants in the suit are Rita Faye Hamilton, Joyce Ann Hamilton, Gail Hamilton and Dorie Hamilton, owners of RFH Coal, the company listed on federal records as operator of the mine; the Joyce Ann Coal Co., a successor to RFH; the B.J.L. Coal Co., of which Jeromia Dean Tackett is named as principal; the Joseph Mining Co., with corporate offices in Hoskinson (Leslie county) and a tippel at McDowell; and the Elk Horn Coal Corp., said to have provided RFH Coal with engineering and other services. (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Joyce Ann, Gail and Dorie Hamilton are widows of three brothers killed in the explosion; Rita Faye Hamilton was a sister to the three brothers.

The suit notes that RFH Coal was cited last April by investigators from the federal Mine Safety and Health Administration for failing to install line brattice, material designed to direct a stream of air to the mine's working faces in order to keep those areas free of highly-volatile coal dust; for allowing dangerous amounts of coal dust to accumulate and not applying enough rock dust to settle it; for overloading the charges used to blast coal from the face of the seam; and for improper storage of explosives and detonators.

The ventilation system in the RFH mine was so arranged that the air stream actually carried coal dust to the mine's working areas; charges were detonated without the required stemming material used to prevent the charge from firing back into the mine; no water spray system was being used to settle coal dust on two conveyor (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Lily May Ledford At Natural Bridge

Before there was a park at Natural Bridge excursion trains used to bring visitors to Powell County to see the bridge. They'd stop on what is now Hoedown Island and chances are a mountain girl with a fiddle would meet the train.

"I'd play the fiddle and pass the hat," Lily May Ledford recalls, "sometimes I'd make a quarter or fifty cents. Sometimes I'd lose the hat!"

On February 18 and 19, Natural Bridge State Park is having a history and music weekend. Lily May Ledford and Dick and Anne Albin will do a concert on Saturday night at 8 p.m. Wilson Frances, the park naturalist, will talk on "Ghost Railroads of the Red River Gorge" Friday evening and Anne Albin will do a workshop on ballads and songs in Kentucky on Saturday afternoon.

Lily May was raised in Powell County in "pinch-em-tight" holler in the Red River Gorge. She went to WLS in Chicago at the age of 19 to perform on the National Barn Dance and then on to star as a member of one of the first and girl string bands on radio at Renfro Valley. The band was called the "Coon Creek" girls.

"We wanted to be called The Wildwood Flowers, we all had flower names...Rosy, Blackeyed Susan, Lily..."

Mr. Lair named the girls "Coon Creek Girls" and the name stuck until 1958 when the group disbanded. Back then the music was called "hill billy". Now, it takes Lily May before college and festival audiences across the country. She is releasing a record album in the Spring.

"Lily May is a treasure," says Powell County musician Dick Albin, "the songs she knows are important enough; but, more than that, seeing and hearing her is experiencing the best in what a vaudeville and country music trooper can do."

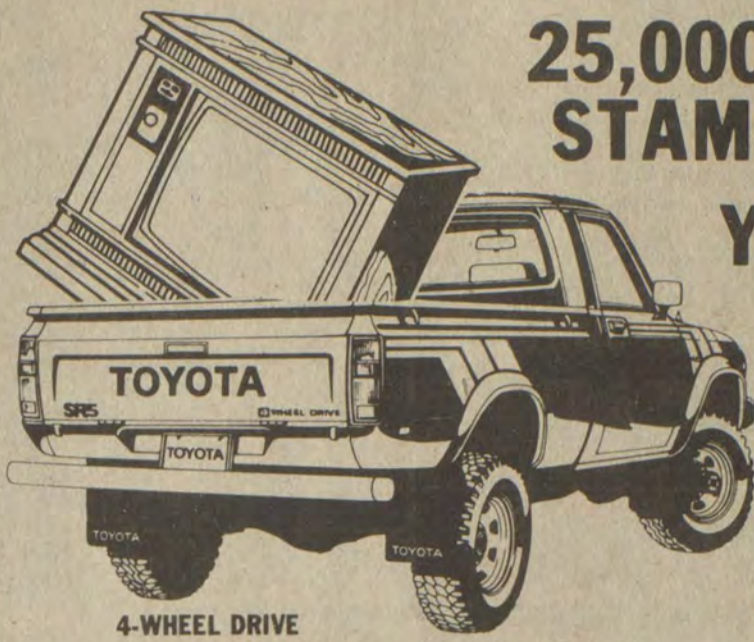

The Albins work with the parks department coordinating special musical events and doing concerts. They have toured the country doing mountain folk music and original songs. Anne is collecting folk music in Powell County.

The signs of railroads in Powell County are still here. You have to know where to look and Wilson Frances will point out the tunnels, bridges, and remains of tracks in "Ghost Railroads of the Red River Gorge" on Friday evening at 8 p.m.

Through the latter part of March, rooms at Natural Bridge are priced at a special two-for-one rate for the weekends. For information contact the lodge at (606) 663-2214.

Tie for Most Parents Present

Two first grade classes at Prestonsburg Elementary tied for the January P.T.A. attendance competition, both having the same number of parents present at the new year's first meeting. Pictured are Mrs. Blackburn's class (top), and Mrs. Rice's class. School improvements were discussed and a Valentine dance was scheduled for Friday, Feb. 11.

Next scheduled meeting of the Prestonsburg P.T.A. is Monday, February 14 at 7 p.m.

GOV.'S MANSION RESTORATION WORK SAID PROGRESSING

Restoration work on the Governor's Mansion in Frankfort is moving along "pretty much on schedule," according to Clayton Farmer, commissioner of the Department for Facilities Management, who added, "We are still anticipating a March move-in date."

Farmer said all of the major mechanical work is completed—electrical, heating, air conditioning and plumbing—although a few bathroom fixtures still must be installed.

Special Session Looks At Teacher Shortage

Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber, in response to an invitation, appeared on Jan. 31 before the Sub-Committee on Elementary, Secondary and Vocational Education of the U. S. House of Representatives in Washington.

The sub-committee, chaired by Carl D. Perkins, of Kentucky's 7th district, is considering emergency legislation to resolve a critical nationwide shortage of qualified math and science teachers.

Sponsored by Perkins, the bill calls for $300 million for 1984 to upgrade teachers' skills in math and science. A student loan program for persons desiring to become qualified teachers of mathematics and science is one feature of Perkins' bill.

The camel has been called the "horse planned by a committee." But this comic definition ignores the essential role camels play in everyday desert life. According to the February Reader's Digest, the Arabs eat them, beat them, ride them, race them. They drink their milk, use their droppings for fuel. And camel's hair is prized for brushes, clothing, even tents.

REBEKAHS MEET

Miss Melissa Lynn Wicker, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Wicker, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. Edward Lee Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Estill Lee Carter, of Prestonsburg, were united in marriage at 8:30 p.m., November 24, at the First Baptist Church in Prestonsburg, Kentucky. Rev. Dean Pack performed the double-ring, candlelight ceremony.

The church was decorated with white and pink silk carnations, rosebuds, and greenery. Brass spiral candelabra with tall white tapers and greenery were placed on each side and back of the altar. A single brass candelabrum with white tapers and greenery was placed by each pew of the mother of the bride and mother of the groom.

Nuptial music was provided by Mrs. Betty Kalos, pianist, Mrs. Alice Gray Buchanan, church organist, and Miss Dee Dee Kalos sang "Author of Love," "Time for Joy," "If," and "The Lord's Prayer."

The bride was escorted to the altar by her father and given in marriage by her parents. She wore a traditional full-length formal gown of white satin and alencon lace, featuring a scooped neckline and molded bodice enhanced by alencon lace and seed pearls. The puffed sleeves were appliqued with elegant seed pearls and iridescents. The princess style skirt swept to a chapel-length train and her waltz-length, fingertip veil was highlighted with seed pearls and edged in matching alencon lace. She carried a cascade of white silk rosebuds, baby's breath, and miniature pink bows.

Miss Kara Alexander was maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Miss Tia Music, cousin of the groom, Miss Renita Haywood, and Miss Debbie Schneider. All attendants wore full-length cherry taffeta gowns with fitted bodices and low scooped necklines. Each carried a bouquet of white and pink silk carnations, white rosebuds and baby's breath. The flower girls were Miss Heather Wicker, sister of the bride, and Miss Tracy Stallard, cousin of the bride. Each wore full-length pink taffeta gowns with ruffled neckline and puffed sleeves trimmed with lace. They carried a white lace basket with pink rose petals.

Mr. Chris Carter, brother of the groom, served as best man. Groomsmen were Mr. Sam Huffman, Mr. Jack Wells, cousin of the groom, and Mr. Dewey Layne. The ringbearer was Gary Michael Mullins, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gary Mullins, of East Point. Miss Gayle Martin, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest registry.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church annex where the bride and groom received their guests. Assisting with the reception were Mrs. Ella Faye Music, Mrs. Janet Rowe, Mrs. Gwen Alexander, Mrs. Carol Holland, and Mrs. Rose Collins, who also served as wedding director.

The couple spent their honeymoon in Gatlinburg, Tennessee, and are now residing in Georgetown, Kentucky where both are attending Georgetown College.

Floyd Woman's Recipe Wins Award of $100

(From The Lexington Herald-Leader) It's rich, it's creamy and looks beautiful and tastes of that wonderful favorite, peanut butter.

It's Chocolate Peanut Butter Dessert and is the grand prize winner in the "What's Cooking in the Blue Grass" Cookbook contest.

It is the original recipe of Sheila Hall of Wheelwright (Lower Burton).

"It's just a recipe that I put together myself. I like to bake and have been cooking since I was a little girl," says the 23-year-old clerk-typist for the Turner Elkhorn Mining Company in Drift.

The three judges were quick in agreeing that Miss Hall's recipe was a winner. Their comments were "it's attractive looking, it is delicious, would appeal to all ages and could be served as a family dish or for company."

The creator of the winning dish says she cooks as a hobby and also "working in the kitchen relieves tension."

Right now, in addition to cooking, she is spending a great deal of her time preparing for her wedding. She will marry John Ellis Pack, of Drift, this summer and "I hope he likes my cooking."

Miss Hall says she learned a lot about cooking by watching her mother and grandmother. Her mother was a school teacher and Miss Hall used to help her by starting the evening meal.

She says she created the recipe because she likes to experiment and also she likes peanut butter and chocolate.

The winner likes to cook for other people "and when they say they enjoy what I have prepared it makes it all worthwhile."

Miss Hall will receive $100 for her chocolate and peanut butter recipe.

Haggle over Land Stays Cliff Road

Property owners and city officials this week were still negotiating the purchase price of a tract and house at Cliff which lie in the path of a planned road there. Hagglng over the value of the Sam George property has long proven a stumbling block to construction of the road.

According to a report filed in Circuit Court in December, commissioners assessed at $57,000 the value of the property to be taken for the road. Condemnation could apparently proceed if the city of Prestonsburg deposited that amount with the court.

The George family is said to have asked $100,000 for the property, however, and negotiations over the price to be paid were said to be continuing this week.

Some $42,000 toward the purchase of the road has been put in escrow by the Floyd County Community Development and Urban Renewal agency. The difference between that sum and the final purchase price will apparently have to be made up by the city.

The earliest authenticated strike of workers in the United States in a single trade occurred when Philadelphia printers gained a minimum wage of $6 a week in 1786, according to "Important Events in American Labor History, 1778-1978," a U.S. Department of Labor publication.

The Wage and Hour Division of the U.S. Department of Labor was established in 1938 to administer the landmark Fair Labor Standards Act, which contains minimum wage, overtime pay, recordkeeping and child labor provisions.

TV VIEWERS... GET IT ALL NOW... WITH YOUR OWN SATELLITE TV EARTH STATION FOR ONLY $1995⁰⁰ COMPLETE, INSTALLED!

DON'T BE FOOLED BY THE LOW PRICE

The Gillaspie is not a toy or kit you have to assemble. It is a complete system which includes the same 6-foot "dish" antenna which was the sensation of the recent Satellite TV Trade Show in Atlanta. Of some 150 antennas demonstrated, from 8-foot to 20-foot diameter, Gillaspie's was the only 6-foot. Sophisticated TV engineers approached this easily installed antenna, suitable for nearly any home, in utter disbelief, but their skepticism vanished when they viewed the studio-monitor quality pictures it delivered when coupled to the Gillaspie 7600A receiver that is the heart of your Gillaspie Satellite TV Earth Station.

Perhaps Only A Receiver as Good as the Gillaspie can deliver good video from a 6-foot antenna, but deliver it does, and we guarantee it with our money-back-if-not-satisfied warranty*. The Gillaspie 7600A receiver has been proven the standard of the industry with over 8,000 units in use by tv stations, cable systems, industrial users, and individuals throughout the world.

Sounds Too Good to Be True: Is It Legal? Perfectly, as long as you don't charge admission and open a theatre in your home. The Federal Communications Commission has specifically deregulated satellite tv reception by private individuals for personal enjoyment.

Miss Slone, Mr. Allen Wed, Dec. 11

The marriage of Miss Dottie Jean Slone to Mr. Ronald D. Allen was solemnized in a double-ring ceremony at the Fitzpatrick Baptist Church at 3 p.m., Saturday, December 11, by the Rev. Kenneth Prater, Jr.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Slone, of David, Ky., and Mr. Allen is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry E. Allen, of the Middle Creek Road.

Preceding the ceremony, nuptial music was presented by Mrs. Susie Poe, pianist, of the Middle Creek Road. The selections were, The Wedding Song, The Rose, and Endless Love.

Arched candleabra on either side of altar were filled with white tapered candles. The center arch was entwined with greenery and red and white roses, secured with three white satin bows.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a floor-length gown with a Queen Anne neckline and fitted bodice of chantilly lace and rhinestones. A small white satin ribbon draped from the side of the waist. The long full sleeves of sheer polyester and lace were gathered onto wide fitted lace cuffs. The full skirt was edged with a ruffle of matching lace, and ruffles made up the attached chapel-length train. The long veil of illusion was trimmed with matching lace and attached to a lace headpiece with rhinestones. The bride's bouquet was of white and red roses and baby's breath secured by white and red streamers.

Mrs. Shirley Salyers, of Alger, Ohio, sister of the bride, was maid of honor. She wore a gown of red velour and carried a bouquet of white and red roses with white and red streamers. The bridesmaids were Mrs. Bobbie Slone, of Martin, Miss Connie Slone, of David, and Mrs. Cheryl Slone, of David. Their gowns matched that of the maid of honor but were worn in alternating colors of red and green. Their bouquets were a spray of white and red roses with white and red satin streamers.

Miss Teddy Lee Pack was flower girl. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Johnny Pack, of Drift.

Mr. James Ellie Ousley, of the Middle Creek Road, cousin of the groom, served as best man, and the ushers were Darrell Prater, of West Prestonsburg, Glen Slone and Palmer Slone, both of David, Ky.

The ringbearer was Stephen Stumbo, son of Mr. and Mrs. Gregory Stumbo, of Drift, Ky.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Slone wore a street-length dress of rose double knit polyester and a corsage of white roses. Mrs. Allen, wore a three-piece suit of white and red and her corsage was of white and red roses and baby's breath.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the church. The three-tiered cake with fountain was decorated with red roses. Mrs. Betty Ousley, Mrs. Margaret Bentley, Mrs. Josie Baldrige and Mrs. Lori Slone assisted at the reception.

Mrs. Nancy Slone, sister of the bride, presided at the guest registry. The bouquets, corsages and floral arrangements were made by Mrs. Margaret Bentley, of McDowell, Ky.

After a wedding trip to Cincinnati, Mr. and Mrs. Allen will reside on the Middle Creek Road, where they hope to have their new home completed soon.

Say State Tax Not Turned In

Attorney General Steven L. Beshear has announced that on Jan. 26, the Franklin county grand jury indicted W. J. M. Polan, a resident of West Virginia, and Crest Coal, Inc., of Magoffin county, on 92 counts of theft by failure to make required disposition of property.

The indictment is the result of a three-month investigation conducted jointly by the Office of the Attorney General's Special Prosecutions Division and the Department of Revenue.

According to Beshear, Polan, as president and sole stockholder of Crest Coal, Inc., withheld Kentucky state income tax in the amount of $100 or more from 92 employees of Crest Coal, Inc. during 1981 and failed to pay the amount withheld to the state treasurer. The indictment alleges that during 1981 Polan and Crest Coal, Inc. withheld $67,161.59 from its employees which was not then paid to the state treasurer.

PRESTONSBURG'S STOP SMOKING CLINIC OFFERS A PROVEN MEDICALLY ACCEPTED METHOD FOR SMOKERS TO STOP FOR GOOD WITHOUT WITHDRAWALS OR WEIGHT GAIN—IN JUST FIVE DAYS! (MONEY BACK GUARANTEE).

KICK A LIFELONG HABIT IN JUST FIVE DAYS!

EXAMINE THE FOLLOWING FACTS:

Is "will power" the answer? Of the 85% who try to quit smoking, a mere 3% are able to make it without outside help. Where does that leave the other 97% who want to stop? Do they lose? In most cases they do.

Until a few years ago it seemed a near "impossible dream" to be free of the desperate preoccupation of smoking, but now at our STOP SMOKING CLINIC, for those seriously desiring to quit we can guarantee you will stop smoking in 5 days or your money back. The reason we feel so certain you will stop is our medically approved method. In case after case it has proven a near 100% success rate, and that's in 5 short days.

If you SERIOUSLY want to "kick" the habit, PLEASE call us for an interview. You will NOT be accepted for this program unless we feel we CAN help you.

"The data show that the area of acid rain has spread southward and westward from the northeastern United States and that acidity has generally intensified in the Northeast since the early 1950s."—A New York state scientist.

"The idea that there has been a clear increase in the acidity of precipitation in the United States over the years is not well established."—A federal government scientist.

Acid rain—is it the "ecological issue of the 80s," "a uniquely modern, post-industrial blight...as widespread as the winds that disperse it," or a "tempest in a teapot...much ado about nothing"? The answers aren't in yet, but one fact is certain: Acid rain is a complex phenomenon about which reputable scientists disagree.

Clouding the controversy is a multitude of uncertainties about the nature, causes, extent and effects of acid rain and the potential remedies for its real or perceived threats. Acid rain has been blamed, many say unfairly, for killing aquatic life in lakes and streams, stripping forest soils of nutrients, damaging crops, corroding buildings and materials and even endangering human health. The stormy debate is gathering hurricane strength as the new Congress prepares to take up regulatory action that could cost industry billions of dollars a year.

Just what is this stuff that has scientists from the State University of New York to the Smithsonian Institution immersed in study?

In the first place, acid rain is not just rain. It is also hail, snow, fog, gases and dry particles—collectively called "acid deposition." Water in the atmosphere exists initially as a weak acid because carbon dioxide, a natural constituent of air, dissolves to form carbonic acid. If nothing else were present, "pure" rainwater would have a "pH"—a term used to denote acidity—of about 5.6 (pH 7 is neutral).

But other substances reaching the atmosphere tend to shift the pH higher (more alkaline) or lower (more acidic). Many of these substances result from naturally occurring processes. Dust and debris carrying slightly alkaline soil particles are swept from the ground into the air; volcanic eruptions spew sulfur dioxide and hydrogen sulfide, both of which react to form sulfuric acid; lightning creates nitrogen oxides which in turn form nitric acid. Decay of organic matter, sea spray and fires also add rain-altering chemicals.

In the North temperate regions of the world, however, the real assault on the atmosphere comes from man, not Mother Nature. The main culprits appear to be sulfur dioxide and nitrogen oxide gases injected into the air from the burning of fossil fuels by utilities, boilers of all kinds and vehicles.

In the atmosphere, a host of chemical reactions—only some of which are well understood—occurs, transforming these gases into acids. The acids fall to earth as wet and dry deposition, a process that probably has been going on since the Industrial Revolution.

Recently, however, the situation may have been aggravated by super tail smokestacks constructed to comply with the Clean Air Act of 1970 to reduce local air pollution. These stacks discharge emissions high into the atmosphere where they hitch rides on the prevailing westerly winds, perhaps for hundreds of miles and many days, before they rain down.

Therein lies the political crux of the controversy. Environmentalists and some scientists claim that emissions from the Midwest have caused an increase in acid precipitation in the northeastern United States, damaging hundreds of lakes in the Adirondacks and Canada and threatening thousands more.

These claims are so convincing to some that the last session of Congress came close to passing a bill that would have required large reductions of sulfur dioxide emissions in 31 states at a cost, mainly to the electric utility industry, of billions of dollars. At least some of this cost would be passed on to consumers in the form of higher electric bills.

"The question is," an EPA spokesman says, "do we know enough about acid rain to pass this kind of regulation? We think the rhetoric is outrunning the science."

Some scientists agree. For starters, solid evidence is lacking that links emissions in one part of the country to the acidity of rain falling in another, a link known as the "source-receptor relationship." Only "rudimentary" steps have been taken in this area of research, says Dr. Volker Mohnen of the State University of New York, Albany.

Since 1978, Mohnen and his colleagues have been using meteorological data to track the origin of parcels of air arriving with rain and snow at Whiteface Mountain in the Adirondacks. "So far, the most we can determine is where the air has been in the 48 hours prior to rainfall," Mohnen says. "The research tells us nothing about where the acidity originated and what might have happened to the rain-bearing air parcel in the days in between."

Of the source-receptor relationship, Mohnen says, "With current meteorological data, we cannot identify the 'smoking gun.' But I am firmly convinced we will find it as our meteorological network is extended and refined and we carry out more research."

Mohnen and others are especially concerned about regulations focusing solely on sulfur dioxide. For one thing, nitrogen oxides are playing an increasingly important role in acid deposition, especially in the eastern United States. "Many people think if we reduce sulfur dioxide emissions, the problem will be solved. Well," he emphasizes, "it is not that simple."

Even measuring the acidity of rain is far from simple. Dr. David L. Correll, a Smithsonian biochemist, points out. He has been measuring and tracking the acidity of rainfall and its effects on ground and surface waters and soil for nearly 10 years at the Chesapeake Bay Center for Environmental Studies near Annapolis, Md.

"The pH of rain changes quickly with time," he explains, "because particles in the rain may dissolve and bacteria in the water can convert chemicals, especially nitrates, into other substances that alter the 'true' pH."

In fact, much of the early data used to support the claims of increases in acidity is not based on direct measurements of pH, Correll says, but rather is calculated from measurements of other chemicals in the water—a less accurate way to determine pH. "That's not surprising," he notes, "because prior to the 1960s, virtually no one in the United States was interested in acid rain and few people measured the pH of rain."

Correll is among the few scientists who have made direct, long-term measurements of rainfall pH. His studies show that, in the last eight years, the mean annual acidity of bulk rainfall at a site near the Chesapeake Bay has increased almost fivefold.

In contrast to Correll's finding, a United States Geological Survey study of bulk precipitation in New York state between 1965 and 1979 found no statewide trend in the pH of rain, although acidity did increase somewhat in the western part of the state.

The longest continuous record of U.S. rain pH values is from the Hubbard Brook Experimental Forest in New Hampshire. Data from 1964 onward show no significant trends in pH. Yet one of the study's directors, Dr. Gene E. Likens of Cornell University, is "convinced that the area of acid rain has spread southward and westward from the northeastern United States and that acidity has generally intensified in the Northeast since the early 1950s." He bases this conclusion on an analysis of existing pH data, both calculated and measured.

Likens' contention, supported by a number of scientists, is countered by others who agree with Dr. Jack Pickering of the USGS in Reston, Va. Says Pickering, "The idea that there has been a clear increase in the acidity of precipitation in the United States over the years is not well established because no one has been monitoring pH that long or over a widespread area."

Reputable scientists also disagree about the extent to which acid rain has damaged aquatic and terrestrial ecosystems. According to Robert F. Flacke, former Commissioner of the New York Department of Environmental Conservation, "More than 300 lakes and ponds (in the state) have already lost—or are in danger of losing—their fish populations."

He places the blame squarely on acid rain, although a utility industry study points out that a combination of factors may be at work, including increased recreational uses of these waters and reduced levels of fish stocking in lakes, ponds and streams between 1960 and 1980.

More important, perhaps, than these factors is the undisputed fact that many of these lakes and ponds are especially vulnerable to acidification because they are perched atop bedrock and thin soils containing naturally low levels of alkaline minerals that "buffer" acid waters. A large proportion—between 50 and 80 percent—of the world's freshwater occurs in such terrain, according to a National Academy of Sciences' report.

Nor is acid rain confined to the eastern United States. In December 1982 scientists at the California Institute of Technology measured acid fog along the coast near Los Angeles with a pH of 1.7—the most acidic precipitation yet measured in the United States, more than three hundred times more acidic than most rain in the East and about two thousand times more acidic than rain in parts of the world remote from industrial activity.

Acid Rain . . .

Acid rain may also seriously strip soil of key nutrients, other scientists say. Near the Chesapeake Bay, the Smithsonian's Correll has found that potassium, calcium and magnesium, critical elements for plant growth, are literally being displaced by acidic elements in forests and to a lesser extent in pastureland and cropland.

Time is the critical factor, Correll warns. "If this loss of critical elements continues, we're eventually going to be seeing dead forests. It could take a few years, or it could take decades, but it will happen."

And the list of concerns and areas needing further research grow daily. When freed from soil minerals by acid rain, aluminum, an abundant metal, washes into lakes and streams where it can kill aquatic life.

Two reports expected early in 1983—one from EPA, one from NAS—will try to get a fix on some of these unknowns and recommend areas for additional research.

So the debate all washes down to these critical questions: At what point do we know enough to pass appropriate regulations, and how much time do we have to take corrective measures?

But, says EPA Administrator Anne M. Gorsuch, "Our experience of recent years should teach us not to rush in with quick fixes where we know that we have an inadequate understanding of existing conditions."

Mrs. May K. Roberts, of Prestonsburg, was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Lydia Wilson, of Inez, on a recent trip to Lexington on business.

SUPERMARKET "SPECIALS"

Newspapers across the commonwealth carry numerous advertisements proclaiming special savings on items at local food stores. These advertised specials can mean real bargains for the smart shopper who compares the advertisements and shops where the lowest prices are advertised. But, what if an advertised item is sold out when the shopper arrives or is almost impossible to locate in the store?

According to Attorney General Steven L. Beshear, this situation may constitute an unlawful act by the grocer. Rules of the Federal Trade Commission, reinforced by Kentucky's Consumer Protection Act, provide certain guidelines for the use of advertised specials by food retailers. Some special savings are often used as "bait advertising" to get you into the store so that a more expensive sale can be made. Although "bait advertising" is unlawful in Kentucky, some stores have a habit of always being "sold out" of advertised specials. This is in violation of Federal Trade Commission regulations regarding retail practices, as well as the Kentucky Consumer Protection Act. The four conditions of an advertised special are:

The grocer must have in stock an amount of the advertised item sufficient to meet the expected demand.

The advertised item must be conspicuously displayed in the store for easy location by the shoppers.

The advertised item must, for the period of the sale, be priced at or below the advertised sale price.

The advertisement must clearly state any specific restriction on, limitation of, or exceptions to the availability of the advertised item. These include limits on the quantity of the item each shopper may purchase, as well as the minimum amount of total purchase necessary to take advantage of the special. If the advertisement is made by a food chain, it must indicate which of the chain's stores, if any, are not participating in the special.

"If the supermarket has sold out of the advertised special, ask for a raincheck," says Beshear. "This is a ticket or credit allowing you to purchase the item at a later date at the presently advertised special price. While this policy may be fair, the Federal Trade Commission rule says that a raincheck in itself is not enough to comply with the law. You have a right to the product at the advertised price the first time you go to the store."

Getting the most for food dollars is easy if you make wise use of advertised specials. Compare the advertised prices and read the advertisement fully. Don't be a victim of "bait advertising".

If you have trouble locating a sale item, do not hesitate to ask the store manager to assist you. If an advertised item is not available at the supermarket, check the ad to make sure there are grounds for a complaint. If there are, complain to the store manager. If you do not get results, contact the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Ky., 40601-1875. Or you may call the toll-free Consumer hotline: 1-800-432-9257.

Role of Public In Schools Recognized

Gov. John Y. Brown Jr. has proclaimed Feb. 6-12 Community Education Week in Kentucky to recognize the importance of involving citizens in local community planning.

Citing the increased public demand for citizen involvement in decision-making processes, Brown said that "great social and economic benefits" can be derived by the commonwealth through citizen involvement in community education.

"Support for community education is growing in Kentucky," said Henry G. (Gippy) Graham, unit director for community education in the Kentucky Department of Education. "More school districts each year are becoming alerted to the need for community education."

Community education involves opening schools and publically funded facilities to the public for use by the entire community—from pre-schoolers to senior citizens.

★ GOOD NEWS REPORT ★

By THOMAS W. PAUKEN
Director of ACTION

"I'm just wild about Harry" is something of a theme song at the Muscular Dystrophy Association (MDA) in Grand Rapids, Michigan. Harry is Harry VanderLaan, who traded a career as president of the Christian Labor Association to become a highly valued volunteer, along with his wife, Jean, in ACTION's Retired Senior Volunteer Program.

Before his retirement in 1972, Harry's hobby had been woodworking. He built toys and rabbit hutches for his grandchildren and did general home repair for his friends. Now his hobby has become a most important vocation for the MDA. The association had a summer camp on Lake Michigan, but the facility was not barrier-free and could not accommodate the needs of the nearly 70 campers who wished to attend the one-week summer session.

Muscular Dystrophy campers are confined to wheel chairs when outdoors. They also require wooden ramps to get about, some constructed to permit travel in three different directions. Each ramp can cost as much as $1,000—half of that as labor expenses. MDA was faced with the hard fact that it could not afford to equip and operate the camp.

That is, until Harry went out and looked over the site. He announced that if the MDA would supply the lumber he would do the rest. The rest consisted of developing a formula to construct 16 new ramps of various lengths and sizes—one for those who wanted to ride, horseback and needed Harry's innovative style to make it possible. He also built special bedside stands for each camper. It was a huge undertaking by any measure, but Harry VanderLaan, an orderly thinker, with a keen eye, an agile mind, and a sparkling sense of humor to go with his wizardry, took on the challenge and quietly accomplished what some deemed impossible.

Not only did his workmanship make the camp operable; he and Jean also intended to help in any way they could—for each camper is assigned a volunteer as an aide.

That was last year, and as a result

Harry was named VIA Senior Volunteer of the year. This year his talents have been directed toward building equipment for handicapped pre-school children. Everything these children need must be constructed with care, scaled down to size and designed for special use. If the county had to pay the going rate, the cost would be prohibitive, but with Harry in his workshop all things seem possible. (Incidentally, when he's not there on Tuesdays you'll find him serving as a Red Cross driver.)

Usually, while Harry is measuring the angles in his workshop, Jean is at the Kent Community Hospital where she has been assisting as an RSVP volunteer for the past nine years. The way the VanderLaans look at it, "we have been very fortunate." Harry, 74 says, "What we do is the least we can do. We have God-given gifts that we're simply sharing."

And in that sharing you can understand why in Grand Rapids they're "just wild about Harry."

NATURE TRAILS

By RUFUS REED

The Indians depended on herbs for medicine and each tribe had a "medicine man" skilled in preparing healing draughts and potions. He usually mixed his medicine in a stone basin called "the Indians' apothecary shop."

"One of their best herbs was common dooryard plantain. They used poultices of plantain leaves to cure bee-stings, insect bites, snake bites, eczema, old sores and carbuncles. One of our old poets once wrote, "The Charities that soothe and heal and bless are scattered at the feet of men like flowers. But we're prone to give these little heed and often trample them underfoot. One of these lovely herbs is common plantain, found in fields, lawns and waste places. In the spring, if you feel weak and rundown try two or three messes of greens fixed as follows: When poke shoots get about four inches high, pick equal parts of poke and plantain and cook together. Let this mixture simmer, and while it is simmering, break into it a couple of raw eggs and stir well. After a few days of eating this, you'll feel like whipping a bulldog! The genus name of common plantain means "sole of the foot," as the leaves often lie flat, like a foot. The species name of our common plantain is Rugellic, so named for Ferdinand Rugel, who is said to have first found plantain in the Kanawha Valley and reported it to the botanists. Seeds of plantation are produced in long spikes and are highly valuable as food for the birds. They are gathered as food for canaries and other caged birds. We have three other kinds of plantation in our region—buck plantation, bracted plantain and hoary plantain (white). None of these is of any value as food.

Our common plantain, or dooryard plantation, as I call it, is the valuable one. It is recommended highly both as a food and medicine. A poultice of plantain leaves is recommended for erysipelas eczema and burns. A tea made of dried plantain leaves is also used for dropsy. It is also used as a remedy for piles and hemorrhoids when properly applied. Plantain tea mixed with the tea of yellow dock makes a medicine to cure ringworm. Plantain poultices help to cure old sores and ulcers.

So we should never despise any plant, no matter how humble and lowly it may be.

Floyd Co. Surveyor Gets Mean With Floyd Co. Fiscal Court

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY
OFFICE OF THE ATTORNEY GENERAL
FRANKFORT

April 16, 1979

Mr. Elmer Rice
Floyd County Surveyor
Banner, Kentucky 41603

Dear Mr. Rice:

You wrote to request that you be informed of the duties of the county surveyor. We are enclosing copies of all statutes relevant to the county surveyor's duties and to the requirements for holding that office (pertinent statutes marked with a red check mark).

You also asked whether the fiscal court has to furnish the county surveyor an equipped office in the county courthouse. Pursuant to KRS 73.110, copy enclosed, and Jefferson County Fiscal Court v. Gregg, 265 Ky. 61, 95 S.W.2d 1130 (1936), the fiscal court must provide the county surveyor with an office equipped with the necessary furniture and equipment to carry out the official business of that office in the county seat. Though the fiscal court must provide the surveyor with an office located somewhere in the county seat, the office does not have to be in the county courthouse.

Yours very truly,

ROBERT F. STEPHENS

A statement on behalf of: The Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club

In recent weeks, certain accusations and rumors have been circulated in an apparent attempt to discredit The Dewey Lake Fish & Game Club. Whatever the ultimate aim of those who would degrade the image of the club, the following "track record" is offered as proof of the integrity of an organization which, although beset by the same ups and downs of enthusiasm and activity which affect any such club, has furthered the goals of conservation and preservation of the environment in this area for nearly 20 years.

Carl Thomas, writing in "Happy Hunting Ground", the League of Ky. Sportsmen magazine, had this to say of the club: "The Dewey Lake Fish and Game Club in Floyd county has, through its many projects, become recognized as one of the outstanding working conservation clubs in Kentucky."

Working with local civic groups and in cooperation with the Corps of Engineers in many instances, some of the many activities to which club members have dedicated themselves follow:

- ✓ One year after being organized the club purchased a near-100-acre tract on Stratton Branch for club grounds.
- ✓ Constructed modern trap range on club grounds in 1969 with most labor and materials being contributed by club members and interested businessmen.
- ✓ Engaged in regular planting of food plots for large and small game in Dewey area.
- ✓ Felling trees, with permission of Corps of Engineers, to create fish "cover" at Dewey.
- ✓ Worked with Water Pollution Commission, state and county officials in attempting to restrict mine and other waste water disposal into Dewey reservoir.
- ✓ Won Conservation Organization Award, a top state conservation honor, for its work in fish and game conservation in the Dewey reservoir area.
- ✓ Led a campaign to restrict what it considered destructive timbering operations in the upper Dewey Lake area. Enlisted the support of the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club and County Judge Henry Stumbo.
- ✓ Hosted League of Kentucky Sportsmen Convention in 1967, one of the largest conventions ever held in Eastern Kentucky.
- ✓ Planted and distributed autumn olive trees for planting on spoil lands.
- ✓ Presently working with Kentucky State Police and all county and municipal law enforcement agencies of the area to establish a police firing range. (The club's range is already used by police for firing practice.)
- ✓ Provide club grounds for yearly AMA-sanctioned motorcycle hillclimb races.
- ✓ Conduct annual fish fry which is a community-wide event as well as a major fund-raiser for the club.
- ✓ Lodged formal objection to the reopening of a three-day rifle hunting season on deer in the Dewey Lake area at the recent Kentucky Federation of Sportsmen meeting at Johns Creek.

The club maintains its bank accounts at the First Commonwealth Bank, Prestonsburg. First Commonwealth President Burl Wells Spurlock made the following comment concerning the club: "Based on my experience, I have no reason to doubt the integrity of the club, its officers or directors, and the manner in which the organization has conducted its business through the years."

With a membership of approximately 300, efforts are now under way to attract new membership and rekindle major club activities. With a trailer lot located on its club grounds complete with free gas and hookups, a caretaker is being sought who owns a mobile home to locate there to protect planned renovation of the club grounds and facilities from vandalism which has proved a problem in the past.

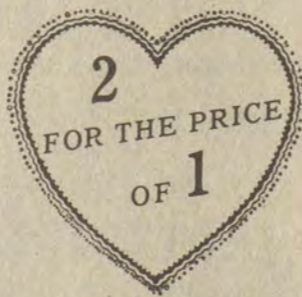

Those interested in joining may contact officers or directors.

'4-Wheel Drive Country'

In response to "Part of Blame for Problems Laid to Board" in Feb. 2 issue of the Floyd Co. Times:

I am one of the 80 or more licensed beer outlets in Floyd Co. I also have a carry out and grocery store in one of these places where we need a four wheel drive to get in and out of.

I think our county attorney, Arnold Turner, Jr., should put the blame for our roads where it belongs. We, the people on these dirt roads, know that our officials over our roads have been in Floyd Co. longer than our A.B.C. Board. They don't have anything to do with our roads, but I met four of the A.B.C. Board members. I believe they hoped, like I did, that the money I paid the county for my license would be used to fix our roads. We pay our taxes and have to make a living, just like people out on these four-lane highways do.

I also think the A.B.C. Board did a great job in screening the applicants. At least, they did me.

So Mr. Turner should look away back in to Floyd County's road conditions. If our officials don't want us backwoods people to have decent roads to travel on, then where is our tax money going to and why do we have to travel in and out of these roads and hollows to other places to work, and try to make a living. I hoped when I started my business on this road that I could be able to help the people around me. I know what it's like to have to drive 4 or 5 miles to get a roll of bread.

Dec. Jobless Rate Hits High Record

A record high 192,800 jobless Kentuckians has caused the state's unemployment rate to rise from a 10.8 percent revised November rate to a 11.3 percent preliminary December rate.

The comparable national jobless rate was a nonseasonally adjusted 10.5 percent. Kentucky's unemployment rate for December 1981 was 9.5 percent.

According to Cabinet for Human Resources labor market statistics, the number of jobless Kentuckians increased 6,600 from November to the record-setting December estimate. December's number of unemployed is an increase of 35,200 from December 1981.

The December unemployment rate for the state's bituminous coal mining industries climbed to 30.2 percent from the 26.8 percent November rate. The December jobless rate in Kentucky's construction industries was 27.5 percent and the manufacturing industries' rate was 16.7 percent.

Kentucky's civilian labor force declined from 1,718,100 in November to 1,710,500 in December. The civilian labor force includes only persons currently employed and unemployed persons actively seeking jobs.

The number of Kentuckians employed during December was estimated to be 1,517,700, down 14,200 from November. The decrease is attributed largely to a 15,000 drop in the state's agricultural employment.

According to Human Resources statistics, the state's nonagricultural wage and salary employment was estimated to be 1,550,100 in December, a gain of 3,700 jobs. This increase was due primarily to seasonal retail sales jobs for the Christmas season, an upswing in tobacco manufacturers' jobs, plus a recall in transportation equipment industries. Jobs in Kentucky's manufacturing industries increased only slightly from November to December.

VISITS PARENTS

Mrs. Mary L. Bingham, of Ashland, has been here for a visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Vaughn.

In 1981 about 47 million women were in the labor force, compared to the 32 million in 1971, according to a Labor Department publication.

GROUNDHOGS

I've never been able to understand why any self-respecting groundhog would want to come out of a snug, warm burrow in February just to verify what the rest of us already know—that winter isn't over yet.

But even without the folklore about shadows and cold weather, the groundhog is a right interesting creature. For one thing, he often goes around under an alias, calling himself a woodchuck.

One name is about as good as the other, because as far as wildlife biologists have been able to determine, he neither hogs ground nor chucks wood.

The groundhog, classified as a rodent, is the second largest member of the order Rodentia occurring naturally in Kentucky (five points to anyone who knows what the largest is).

His closest relatives are squirrels and chipmunks, even though the family resemblances aren't immediately obvious since he lacks much of the speed and grace of his smaller cousins.

His vegetarian habits sometimes get him in trouble with gardeners and his excavations make him less than popular with farmers, but he's still a valuable member of the wildlife community. For one thing, his burrows provide excellent hiding places for a number of other species and biologists suspect that the more a groundhog burrows in a given area the more rabbits there will be. Foxes, opossums, raccoons and skunks also live or hide in groundhog holes.

Free ranging dogs probably represent the greatest threat to groundhogs, although it takes a brave (or foolhardy) dog to tackle a full grown "hog". They are good fighters and, when inspired, can run at speeds up to 12 miles per hour. They can also swim and, like the other members of the squirrel family, won't hesitate to climb a tree if necessary.

There are a lot of dedicated groundhog hunters around Kentucky, most of whom consider shots of under 100 yards unsporting. Shooting groundhogs 200 to 300 yards away demands special rifles, a good eye, steady nerves and offers a real challenge to the marksman.

There is no closed season on groundhog hunting except for the "no guns" period between Nov. 1 and the opening of the small game season the third Thursday of November. But since most woodchucks have gone into hibernation by the end of October, hunting is naturally limited to spring, summer and fall.

Landowners usually welcome groundhog hunters because of the need to keep woodchuck numbers down. And with meat prices what they are, it's worth pointing out that these animals, when properly prepared, can be good eating.

In areas where hunting cannot be allowed for safety reasons, the county conservation officer can offer advice on controlling groundhog populations if these animals are causing crop or pasture damage.

Finally, the groundhog furnishes outdoor columnists something to write about in early February, when absolutely nothing else is happening. He also gives readers of this column a chance to collect five points if they correctly identified the beaver as our largest native rodent.

Those five points, along with $3.00, will buy a one-year subscription to the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' bi-monthly magazine, Happy Hunting Ground. Send name, complete address and payment to Division of Public Relations, Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources, # Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601.

$9 Million in Grants For Small Operators

Natural Resources Secretary Jackie Swigart has announced that, since 1979, Kentucky's small coal operators have received aid totaling more than $9 million in services from a state-federal program known as SOAP, the Small Operators Assistance Program.

Small operators, those mining or intending to mine less than 100,000 tons of coal a year, are offered two basic services by the program, Swigart said.

"This program offers the small operator help with the financial burden of gathering information required in the comprehensive-mining permit application," she said. "Our grants save the small operator on the average of $18,000 to $20,000."

Information covered by SOAP grant awards is of two types—geologic and hydrologic, explained SOAP manager Bob Nickel. "We help the small operator by awarding grants to help pay for the collection and analysis of these two types of data," he said.

Grants to fund this information-gathering are awarded directly to the professional engineering and environmental firms selected, Nickel said.

"In addition to reviewing applications and awarding grants to qualified operators, we will help small operators with site-related problems, if possible, and with problems in filling out their applications for assistance," he added.

Interest in the program has grown over the years, he said. "I think this is due to the increased awareness, among the state's small operators, that we're here to help and that the hydrologic and geologic data which can be provided by SOAP will be required in future permit applications."

About $5.8 million is available to be granted to small operators during calendar 1983, Nickel said. "The SOAP staff already has awarded 123 grants this month," he said. "This brings our total of active funded projects to more than 500. By the end of January, we anticipate having about 550 active projects. This will make the Kentucky SOAP program by far the largest in the nation," Nickel said.

Nickel, who joined the program in late October, explained that this large total represents many working hours on the part of the 18-person SOAP staff. "We have a relatively small staff, compared to the size of the program, and these people have been working very hard to see that the state's small operators are helped as quickly and efficiently as possible," he said.

Money for the program comes from funds paid by coal producers to the federal government on each ton of coal mined. "This isn't free money which we get from Washington, it's a portion of the money which Kentucky coal operators have already paid into," Nickel said.

In addition to the Frankfort staff, there are SOAP representatives in each of the regional offices of the state Department of Surface Mining.

"In addition to our immediate goal of aiding the small coal operator, we are using the data gathered under these grants to build a historic long-range base of hydrologic and geologic data about Kentucky's coal-mining regions."

Auxier Devel. Club To Meet Monday Eve

Jack Thompson, mayor of Ashland, will be special guest at the meeting at 7 p.m. Monday of the Auxier Community Development Club in the cafeteria of the Auxier Grade School. There will be refreshments served and a door prize awarded.

The club meets on the second and fourth Mondays of each month.

The U.S. Labor Department enforces laws that protect the safety and health, job, and pension rights of workers.

This data will be of great use to the state's coal operators, state agencies and citizens," Nickel said.

"In the future, this data base can be used to significantly reduce the time needed by an operator to gather required information on a potential mining site. With much of that information already on record here, some types of data collection may not be needed," he said.

"Our program is mandated for 15 years so we have several years ahead of us," he said. "During that time we hope to assist as many of Kentucky's small coal operators as possible. That's the basic purpose of the SOAP program."

For additional information on the program, contact SOAP, Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, 3rd Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky., 40601; or telephone (502) 564-2356.

HRMC Auxiliary Donates Ventilator

Clarence Traum, administrator, gives his official thanks to Sarah Goble (center) and the Highlands Regional Medical Center Auxiliary for donating a new ventilator.

The LP4 volume transport ventilator is the latest addition to the Highlands Regional Medical Center respiratory care department, due to the efforts of the women's auxiliary. The group raised over $5400 to purchase this piece of equipment.

The ventilator is mobile and compact. It can be attached to the back of a wheelchair to move critically ill patients within the hospital. It also can be put in an ambulance for transporting patients in an emergency. The machine facilitates breathing for patients who can't breathe on their own, just like the larger ventilators.

"This is the most recently developed instrument of its type," explained Ramona Hall, director of respiratory care. "It's an innovation that will benefit our patients greatly."

First Aid and CPR Courses Set at PCC

The vital skills necessary to assist the injured and institute life support techniques will be taught in two courses offered by the Community Services Program of PCC this Spring.

Larry Adams, member of Floyd County Rescue Squad, will conduct three week courses in "Multi-Media First Aid" and "CPR-Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation".

Participants of "Multi-Media First Aid" will be trained in mouth-to-mouth lifesaving techniques, obstructed airway maneuvers, proper application of dressings and bandages and appropriate methods of moving an injured patient.

The course began Tuesday, this week, and will continue till March 1 from 6:30-9:30 p.m.

In "CPR", training will include obstructed airway maneuvers for choking victims and mannequin practice for CPR technique. Participants will also gain an understanding of the heart and how CPR saves lives.

Adams will give instruction, beginning Tuesday, March 8 and continuing till March 22 from 6:30 to 9:30 p.m.

Texts will be provided by the instructor for both courses. For further information, contact Linda Compton at 886-3863, Ext. 215.

Award-Winning Klan Study To Air This Month

Actor James Whitmore narrates an in-depth exploration of the people behind the masks in "The Klan: A Legacy of Hate in America" on Monday, February 21, at 7:30 p.m. on KET.

Prompted by the renewed Ku Klux Klan threat across the nation, the award-winning film includes original footage, still photographs and rare newsreels, documenting the rise of the Klan from 1865 to the present. Lynchings, ceremonies and clips from the D.W. Griffith film classic, "The Birth of a Nation," depict a dark side of America, which Whitmore calls "still very much alive."

James Ertel, editor-in chief of the Encyclopedia Britannica Yearbooks, calls the film a classic, while Barbara Van Blake of the American Federation of Teachers calls it "essential viewing for young people."

Guggenheim Productions, Inc., an internationally-known Washington, D.C., film company, produced this film which Georgia State Senator Julian Bond says, "strips away the masks of the Ku Klux Klan."

11 Power Co. Workers Retire

Eleven employees in the Pikeville division of Kentucky Power Company retired February 1 under the company's one-time early retirement offer which is part of the electric utility's broad range of cost-cutting measures.

Across the company, 24 employees accepted the offer, according to W.W. Zoellers, division manager. He explained that in Kentucky Power and its seven sister operating companies in the American Electric Power System a total of 461 employees retired.

"With this program, we were able to achieve a sizable reduction in total employment and on a voluntary basis. This is a much-preferred means of meeting the objective of the current cost-reduction program related to payroll costs," Zoellers said.

The Pikeville division employees who retired:

—James R. Burdsal, customer services manager. He began work for Kentucky Power in 1947 as an engineer, and also worked as the company's local transmission and distribution superintendent before he was named customer services manager in 1980.

—Jacob Perry Cline, Jr., right-of-way agent; was hired in 1947 as a clerk, and worked as an engineering aide and in the substation crews before being promoted to right of way agent.

—Harold M. Coleman, stores superintendent who had been on the company's long-term disability program since 1978. His career began in 1948 when he was hired as a storeroom clerk. He was promoted to storeroom supervisor in 1952.

—Ralph Damron, technician, who began work in 1945 as an engineering department rodman. He later was promoted to technician.

—Frances Huffman, customer accounts clerk; was hired in 1942 as a clerk, and also worked as a cashier in the accounting department.

—Betty Robinette, managerial secretary, who began work in 1942 as a clerk in the payroll department.

—Marvin Sword, technician. He started as a meter reader, and was promoted to engineering clerk in 1967. He became a technician in the engineering department in 1975.

Specials Highlight World War II Events

Each Friday night during February, KET will present the "Peter Batty Specials," four programs by British documentary filmmaker Peter Batty that highlight World War II events. The specials will air at 10 p.m., beginning February 4.

"The Battle For The Bulge" tells about the last German offensive in World War II. Fought in 1944, it involved one million troops and was the climax of the invasion of Western Europe. "Battle For The Bulge" will air February 4.

"The Battle For Cassino" will be shown on February 11. When the Allies landed at Anzio and began the march to Rome, the Italian monastery on top of Monte Cassino became the site of conflict between Germany and the Allies on May 18, 1944, as Hitler attempted to protect Rome.

"Operation Barbarossa," Hitler's code name for the German attack on the Soviet Union, tells the story of the largest land battle ever fought, on June 22, 1941. KET will air this program on February 18.

The final program, "The Birth Of The Bomb," to be shown on KET on February 25, tells the story of the development of the Atomic Bomb from the closing days of 1938—when the research began—until August 6, 1945, when the Bomb was dropped on Hiroshima.

Unemployment Is Program Subject

A new KET-produced public affairs program, focusing on the current high unemployment rate in Kentucky, airs Wednesday, February 23, at 7:30 p.m. "Brother, Can You Spare a Job?" features an overview of unemployment within the commonwealth with live segments via KETS from Louisville, Morehead, Murray, Bowling Green and Northern Kentucky.

Viewers and prospective employers will be able to view over 320 "video resumes" of unemployed blue and white collar workers. Host Fred MacFarlane, the newest member of KET's public affairs crew, intersperses comments between the on-camera interviews.

Sizemore's Work In Museum Show

A showing of the oil paintings of Floyd county artist Tim Sizemore will begin, within the next few days, at the Owensboro (Ky.) Museum of Fine Arts.

The show, entitled—"Art: The Naive Approach," will run through March 20 and will also feature guest curator Arthur Jones as special speaker.

Sizemore, 29, is instructor of art and social studies at the David School and is well known for his paintings of Appalachian life and mountain people. He is a resident of West Prestonsburg.

Help Repeal A Bad Law.

CONGRESS WANTS A PIECE OF YOUR SAVINGS.

WHAT THEY NEED IS A PIECE OF YOUR MIND.

Recently, Congress quietly passed a withholding law that will cost American savers and investors the use of 10% of their interest and dividends.

In simple terms, effective July 1st, 1983, this new law requires banks and other financial institutions to deduct 10% of the interest or dividends you earn on your savings and investments. That money then goes to the Internal Revenue Service in much the same way as payroll deductions are now handled.

The sponsors of this law have told us it was designed to catch a small minority of Americans who evade taxes on their interest and dividends. But the truth is the law penalizes the great majority of America's savers and investors who pay their taxes faithfully. What's more, the federal government is now receiving all the necessary information to curtail tax cheating.

Though the law does include exemptions for some low income and elderly Americans, if they go through the red tape of filing an application, most savers and investors will forfeit some of the money they could earn in compounded interest.

We urge you to join our efforts by writing letters to your representative in Congress and to the two senators from this state. Tell them you want the 10% withholding tax repealed, because it would impose an unfair penalty on savers like yourself.

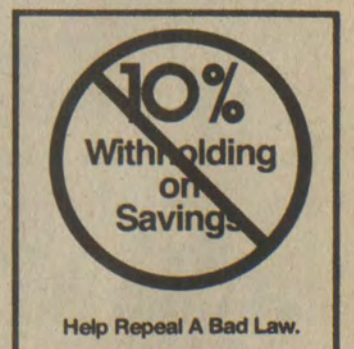

For assistance in contacting your representative and senators please ask any of our bankers. If we all act now, Congress will get a clear message from the voters back home, and they will work to repeal this needless law.

PLEASE FILL OUT THE FORM AT RIGHT, SIGN, AND MAIL TO:

WE STRONGLY URGE REPEAL OF THE 10% WITHHOLDING LAW BEFORE ITS PROPOSED EFFECTIVE DATE OF JULY 1, 1983.

Governor's Quilt Made at David Crafts

David Appalachian Crafts, at David, recently completed a special quilt for Governor John Y. Brown and his wife, Phyllis George Brown.

The David Craft Center was commissioned by the Governor's staff to design and execute an original quilt to be given as the staff's Christmas gift. Five months time and effort went into the designing, piecing, appliqueing, embroidering and quilting of the double-sized quilt.

The quilt top consists of 12 blocks each of which depicts significant events and places in the Browns' lives. The places of importance which are represented in applique and embroidered blocks are Cave Hill Place, the State Capital, the Kentucky Derby and a block representing the Governor's Mansion in Frankfort with the words "Save the Mansion" embroidered in bold letters. A comprehensive block of the state of Kentucky has intricately embroidered landmarks throughout the state denoting crafts, coal, tobacco and horses.

Two blocks are reserved specifically for each individual's accomplishments. Phyllis Ann George's block displays her Miss America honors and her involvement with CBS and the NFL. Governor Brown's block displays the Kentucky Fried Chicken and Boston Celtic's emblem. Both blocks have the couple's signatures embroidered on them.

Both the professional and personal lives of the couple are represented in four separate blocks. The couple's marriage on March 17, 1979 and the birth of their son, Lincoln Tyler George Brown on June 17, 1980 express the personal events and the Commonwealth of Kentucky and National Democratic Party emblems represent the professional events. Finally a colorful "Christmas 1982" block with Christmas tree and gifts dates the quilt.

Meticulous quilting stitches in the shape of the state of Kentucky, leaves and cable designs border the entire quilt. The quilt also has a runner on the back which allows it to be used as a wall hanging.

Six women from David Crafts were responsible for the creation of the quilt. Designers were Mary Pineau and Elizabeth Baranick, and block craftswomen were Joy Ousley, Mary Pineau, Elizabeth Baranick, Debbie Rollins and Mary Lou Manardo. The quilter was Carolyn Triplett.

The completed quilt was presented to the couple on Dec. 16, 1982.

COAL DEVELOPMENT JOBS FOR OUR PEOPLE

STATE SENATOR
BENNY RAY BAILEY

When President Lyndon Johnson came to East Kentucky in 1964 to visit Inez and Paintsville, huge crowds greeted him. Most of the people in the crowds carried signs that read, "HELP COAL AND YOU HELP ALL APPALACHIA." President Johnson, like many of our elected leaders before and after him, chose to ignore these pleas and announced a federally funded "War on Poverty." Ten years later, the "coal boom," brought about because of the Arab embargo on our oil supplies, demonstrated quite vividly what the coal industry means to America and, particularly, to East Kentucky.

The "coal boom" put more of our people to work, brought about more regional development, and put more food on more tables in five years than all the various government programs put together. While all of us support government assistance for our disabled, our elderly and our needy people and while we recognize the need for structured programs supported by government to promote area development and add to the quality of our people's lives, we must recognize the right of every American citizen to opportunity for employment at wages sufficient enough to allow every single citizen to fully participate in the American Dream. In our area, coal is the key to jobs for our citizens.

We have spent millions of dollars in this nation trying to harness the atom for nuclear energy, to harness the sun for solar energy, and to "create" exotic forms of "new" energy; and we have ignored the answer to the solution of America's energy needs. We need a comprehensive government policy on coal development to insure America's energy needs and to insure our people adequate jobs.

Benny Ray Bailey has worked hard in the State Senate for our people. Benny Ray believes the responsible development of our coal resources is in the best interests of all East Kentuckians. He'll continue to work for us. How to provide jobs for our people is the most important question facing our government at the present time. For our area, coal is the answer.

NATIONAL SALUTE—Valentine's Day is the time to salute hospitalized veterans—often far from family and friends. Appropriately, friends and families will mark Feb. 14 by visiting loved ones in VA medical centers. Patients will also receive visits by service organization members, sports stars, beauty queens, Camp Fire Girls and government officials. Nancy Reagan is the honorary patron of this year's salute.

Methane for Car Operation

Can today's automobile operate efficiently on the methane gas that is such a hazard in coal mines? The answer may be found in a joint experiment being conducted by the University of Louisville and the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet.

The university's government law center is coordinating the experiment with technical assistance from the Speed Scientific School. The project will involve operating 25 state vehicles on methane gas for six months.

Methane, or natural gas, is available from several sources in the state. The gas is present in coal seams and underground faults and is produced from decomposing agricultural wastes. It is the same gas used in gas heaters in homes throughout Kentucky.

The Transportation Cabinet is volunteering 13 vehicles and $150,000 for the project.

Some of the vehicles will be fueled with liquefied methane and the remaining with compressed methane. The six-month experiment will test the vehicles under normal operation on city streets and open highways.

It is the first such test by a state government in the nation.

"We were excited when the university approached us with this proposal," said Transportation Secretary James Runke. "Methane is plentiful in Kentucky. It has the potential to save us tremendous amounts of money and free us from dependence on imported oil."

In 1980, Congress passed an act encouraging the use of methane as a renewable and clean resource. The Kentucky General Assembly approved a resolution in 1982 directing the Transportation Cabinet to implement a methane fuel demonstration program.

Methane gas in coal seams has been responsible for numerous mine explosions. By first drawing off the gas, coal mines could be made safer and the fuel could be used for transportation.

Akers has been interested in energy problems since the oil embargo of 1974. As development secretary he played a major role in creating the state's energy research center at Spindletop in Fayette County.

He is also secretary of the Interstate Coal Bed Methane Committee, comprised of six states interested in developing coal bed methane as an energy source.

The 25 test vehicles include state pickup trucks, vans and sedans. The university is providing 12 vehicles, including small cars and pickups.

The drivers will fill their tanks at the university. The vehicles will be equipped to use methane or gasoline to allow the transportation employees to fill their tanks at convenient times.

Akers said methane is ideal for fleet vehicles which fill up at a central location.

Beech Aircraft Corp. of Wichita, Kan., is providing assistance with the liquefied methane. Advanced Fuel Systems of Kentucky is providing compressed methane systems. Both companies have contributed fuel stations and training to the university.

"Kentucky could play a key role in developing this important energy resource," Akers said. "This state has both the reserves and the distribution system to produce methane in quantity."

Vocational Ed Center Observing Nat'l Week

The Floyd County Area Vocational Education Center at Martin has invited the public to visit it during National Vocational Education Week, Feb. 6-12 from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m.

This year's theme is, "Vocational Education: An Investment in People." The nation is investing $7 billion dollars annually in preparing individuals for work through vocational education programs.

The Center offers eight programs: auto mechanics, business and office, carpentry, electricity, health services, machine shop, mine mechanics and welding to students from the five Floyd high schools.

Grant Deadline Near

The Kentucky Arts Council has announced revised guidelines for grants to support and develop the arts in Kentucky communities. Grants are available for the following programs: arts organizations; community arts development; artists support; and arts education development. The next grant deadline for most programs is March 1. Some arts education deadlines are April 1.

Those interested in information on initiating new arts events in their communities or helping further existing arts programming are encouraged to contact the council. Staff is available to advise on program planning, grant application, and organizing new arts groups.

The Kentucky Arts Council is a state agency devoted to the development of all art forms in all Kentucky communities and to the support and encouragement of Kentucky's artists. Write or call the Kentucky Arts Council, Berry Hill, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call (502) 564-3757.

ASK YOUR ACCOUNTANT!

Should I open an Individual Retirement Account?

That's a question that many people have asked us in the past twelve months. The answer is probably no if you have your retirement arranged so that you can live a life-style in retirement that will allow you to do all the travel, hunting, fishing, and relaxing that you have always wanted to do while working. However, you may not have all your financial arrangements made to live that life-style. We are of the opinion that your social security benefits will not provide the life-style that most people desire. Ask your accountant about a First Commonwealth Individual Retirement Account. You can now deposit up to $2,000.00 per year in the IRA if you are employed. This account could grow to a several hundred thousand dollar retirement fund. Best of all your contribution is tax deferred as well as the interest it earns. You can still take advantage of this opportunity on your 1982 tax return if you have not filed. Ask your accountant. An Individual Retirement Account may be your condo in Florida or a cabin in the mountains or a carefree trip to Europe. Let us give you all the details today.

Task Force Approves Minimum Standards in Five Subjects

A Department of Education task force has voted to approve levels of minimum competency in five subject areas.

Working under a charge from Superintendent of Public Instruction Raymond Barber, the proposals developed by the Basic Skills Steering Committee will be field-tested in February and March. After refinement based on classroom experience, the proposals will be recommended to Barber for possible implementation throughout Kentucky. The committee's final report is due in Barber's office in May 1983.

Dividing itself into subcommittees, the group has worked all year to define the minimum basic skills in reading, writing, spelling, mathematics and library-reference skills. The results of their efforts were approved by the whole steering committee at a meeting in Frankfort on Jan. 24, 1983.

"What we have now is a skeleton," said Dr. Donald Hunter, head of the Bureau of Instruction. "It is in no way a whole entity. If it is implemented, individual school districts must flesh it out into a full curriculum for their students."

The scale of minimum basic competencies is designed to ensure that pupils throughout the state are studying the same things at roughly the same grade level. Not only does it mean that a third-grader transferring from Ashland to Paducah will be welcomed with the same minimum course content he left in Ashland, it also means that students will have mastered all the basic skills they need for college or vocational career by the time they graduate from high school.

By pinpointing the grade level at which a skill should be mastered, moreover, the guidelines will aid teachers in making sure their students are adequately prepared for promotion to the next grade. It will also assist in counseling students and in assessing the need for remediation.

"Kentucky has a list of approved textbooks," Hunter said. "Other than that, what is taught in the schools is pretty much left up in the air."

Of course, Hunter said, each skill must be introduced long before the expected date of mastery and reinforced afterward.

"These are only minimums," Hunter said. Having a definite time by which a skill should be mastered will go a long way in revealing when a student is lagging and in preventing that lag from continuing, he observed.

"I feel good about it," Hunter said. In presenting the skills continua in the area of library and reference skills, subcommittee chairman Jim Norsworthy, Louisville, observed that approval would make Kentucky No. 1. No other state is believed to have a curriculum or a schedule of minimum competency in reference skills, he said.

In its research, the spelling subcommittee found that 5000 words and their repetitions make up 99.2% of child or adult writing. The committee developed and proposed a specific list of 20 words per week for 30 weeks for grades 2 through 11. If followed, the student leaving 11th grade will have mastered the spelling of 6000 words, including the 5000 most used in speaking and writing.

"The student will, of course, know other words as well," Hunter observed. "A person's reading vocabulary is always larger than his writing vocabulary."

By making "communicating ideas" its number one objective in the skills continua for writing, the steering committee also broke new ground. Heretofore, schools have emphasized grammar and punctuation over content and the composition of thoughts. In the next decade, the ability to communicate thoughts in writing will assume paramount importance, the committee said.

Observing that poor readers will not read fiction, the reading subcommittee structured its proposals to stress ability to obtain word and content meaning from written passages. It also agreed with the reference skills subcommittee that librarians play a crucial role in teaching the love of reading to youngsters.

"We want to guarantee that when he graduates from high school, the student is reading at least on the ninth grade level," Dorothy Jones said in presenting the reading committee's proposals.

At the present time in Kentucky, graduation from high school is geared to passage of designated courses and not to mastery of designated skills, Hunter explains.

"These are minimums," he said. "They do not absolve schools from their responsibility of seeing that students achieve 12th grade reading skills. They do set a floor for acceptable performance. A ninth grade reading level is the lowest we would accept for graduation."

"It used to be that a person could graduate with a fourth grade reading level," Hunter continued. "That is no longer adequate preparation for life. A person who reads on the ninth grade level can handle college work," he says.

Finally, the math subcommittee included two sections on computer literacy in its proposals. Eighty percent of Kentucky's school districts are believed to have computers now. Another 10 percent plan to acquire them in the next 12 months.

Throughout its afternoon deliberations the steering committee expressed concern about obtaining relevant data from "achievement" tests. The Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills-Form U and its accompanying Test of Cognitive Skills are the best test instruments on the market for comparative rankings. As Kentucky moves toward a curriculum based on minimum skills, however, a test specifically designed to measure student mastery of those skills may become necessary.

The committee plans to consider the testing question further in its next meeting.

★ Cancer Hopeline

Q. The doctor who delivered my son in 1942 and my daughter in 1947 is dead. I had several miscarriages, and he gave me a drug to prevent them. I think it was DES. How can I find out, and what should my children and I do?

First, if your children were born in a hospital, contact the medical records department. Be sure to give them the date of each child's birth and the name of the physician. If your children were born at home, it may be more difficult. A good place to begin is with the physician who took over your physician's practice when he died. Usually, old records will be filed away somewhere. Other possibilities are the county medical association or asking the oldest physician in town or your physician's relatives if they remember what was done with his old records.

If you learn that you were treated with DES, it is vital that your current physician and those of your son and daughter be aware of it. DES (diethylstilbestrol) is a man-made estrogen hormone that was developed about 40 years ago. It was widely prescribed for women who had complications during pregnancy, especially vaginal bleeding with a risk for miscarriage or when the mother had diabetes. Probably, the mothers of several million young men and women took DES. Only in 1953 was it determined that DES may not have been as effective as originally believed.

In 1971, scientists determined a connection between maternal ingestion of DES during pregnancy and a rare form of cancer of the cervix and vagina in their daughters. Current data suggest that this cancer will occur in more than one case per 1,000 women exposed to DES. This form of cancer usually occurs among women in their late teens or early twenties. Even though your daughter has passed the high risk age, she should inform her physician if you took DES.

Sons of women who took DES during pregnancy may have certain reproductive and urinary tract changes more frequently than other men. It is not known whether such abnormalities affect the fertility of DES-exposed sons. No increased risk of cancer has been found among DES-exposed sons. Assuming you did take DES, your son and his physician should know it.

A follow-up study of DES-exposed mothers indicated that they had a higher incidence of breast, cervix, endometrium (lining of the uterus), uterine, and ovarian cancers than unexposed women. It is important to note, however, that not all scientists agree that the number of cancers is significantly higher among DES-exposed mothers. Your physician needs to know if you took DES so that he/she can keep a close check on you.

For more information about DES and a list of DES drugs that may have been prescribed for pregnant women, contact the Cancer Hopeline and ask for brochure "Questions and Answers About DES Exposure During Pregnancy and Before Birth." Call the Hopeline at 1-800-432-9321 Monday through Friday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Write for this brochure or other cancer information at 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, KY 40536.

Q. My father has cancer of the prostate and I am afraid of getting it. Could blood in the urine be a sign of this? How is it diagnosed?

In men over 50, continuing urinary difficulties may indicate prostate cancer. Such difficulties include a weak or interrupted flow of urine, the need to urinate frequently (especially at night), inability to urinate or difficulty in starting urination, blood in the urine, a flow that is not easily stopped, or painful or burning urination. Pain in the pelvis, lower back, or upper thighs may also be a sign of prostate cancer. Sometimes such pain is the first or major symptom.

These symptoms may also result from a non-cancerous enlargement called benign prostate hypertrophy (or BPH). More than half the men in the U.S. over 50 suffer from BPH, which often requires surgical removal of part or all of the gland. Only a physician can tell if the symptoms are due to a benign or malignant enlargement or other illnesses.

The initial step in diagnosing this cancer is a rectal examination. During an internal examination of the rectum, the physician can feel irregular or unusually firm areas that may indicate a tumor. Fortunately, almost all prostate cancers begin on the part of the prostate that can be felt by a rectal examination. Prostate cancer is one of the most frequent tumor types in men.

If you would like more information, we encourage you to write us at the Cancer Hopeline, 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, KY 40536, or call our toll free number 1-800-432-9321. We have pamphlets on prostate cancer as well as material on other types of cancer.

Eight Are Indicted In Kidnapping Case

A federal grand jury last week indicted six men and two women on charges of conspiring to kidnap Kathy Osborne Niece, of Letcher county, last month.

Named in the indictment were Marvin Osborne, Marion Alfred Osborne, Charles Douglas Osborne, Teresa Ann Osborne, Larry Glen Osborne, Roy Junior Adams, Ronald Lee Caudill and Michelle Caudill.

The five-count indictment also charges Marvin Osborne with unlawfully carrying a gun during the kidnapping. Two other counts charge Marvin Osborne with receiving and possessing a gun after having been convicted of a felony.

The defendants pleaded not guilty to the charges in U.S. District Court in Pikeville Monday.

The eight were arrested by FBI agents and state troopers shortly after Mrs. Niece, who had been missing for three days, walked into a Virginia grocery store. All are related to Mrs. Niece by blood or marriage.

The FBI said earlier that two of the defendants had agreed to release Mrs. Niece, without the knowledge of the others, after she offered to pay them $5,000. Authorities had charged that the suspects hoped to obtain a $500,000 ransom from the victim's father-in-law.

The indictment charges that the eight "did unlawfully, knowingly and willfully combine, conspire and confederate with each other and others unknown to the grand jury" to kidnap Mrs. Niece.

Among other things, it charges that on Jan. 17 Mrs. Niece received a call from an "unknown female" instructing her to go to the Childers Gulf Station at Isom, where she was later threatened by Marvin Osborne.

In addition, it is charged that Teresa Osborne called Mrs. Niece on Jan. 18 and instructed her to go to the A&P parking lot in Whitesburg. Later that day, the indictment alleges, Marvin, Alfred and Charles Osborne "met, seized and abducted" Mrs. Niece at the parking lot of Maloney's Department Store in Whitesburg.

The grand jury further charged that Mrs. Niece was held until Jan. 21 at a mobile home at Partridge in Harlan County where Marvin and Teresa Osborne lived.

While she was held there, the indictment alleges, Ronald and Michelle Caudill, Marvin and Teresa Osborne, Larry Glen Osborne and Roy Junior Adams met at the trailer at various times "and discussed the division of and the use of ransom money to be demanded in return for the release" of Mrs. Niece.

On Jan. 20, the indictment charges, Alfred, Marvin and Teresa Osborne forced Mrs. Niece to write and then record a message demanding the $500,000 ransom and saying that Mrs. Niece would be killed if it was not paid.

Marvin Osborne "held a gun on Kathy Osborne Niece while the ransom demand was being recorded," the indictment charges.

Teresa Osborne, the indictment says, called Bob Polly of Whitesburg, a friend of Mrs. Niece, and played the recorded ransom demand over the phone.

The grand jury said that on Jan. 21, Marvin and Teresa Osborne drove Mrs. Niece to near Pound Gap, Va., where she was released.

Enterprise Zone System May Attract Industry

The Kentucky Enterprise Zone Authority announced during a Jan. 25 meeting that it will begin taking applications for state enterprise-zone designation.

The authority will be sending out some 800 informational letters informing local officials and others about the new economic development program. The letter notes the deadline for submission of 1983 applications is May 1. Commerce Secretary Bruce Lunsford, whose agency staffs the authority, said the enterprise zone concept has promising potential for Kentucky communities. "We are hopeful that enterprise zones will be a catalyst for economic growth in the areas selected," Lunsford said.

An enterprise zone is an economically depressed area where tax incentives are offered, red tape is cut and regulations eased to attract qualified existing and new business, and therefore strengthen the local economy. To qualify, a business must hire one-quarter of its work force either from among local residents or among the long-term unemployed or public assistance recipients living elsewhere.

Warner Bros. Records has signed Freddy Fender. His debut single, "Chokin' Kind," produced by Huey Meaux, has just been released.

Fender scored with two No. 1 singles in 1975, "Before the Next Teardrop Falls" and "Wasted Days and Wasted Nights."

Commenting on "Doin' It the Hard Way" from the Bellamy Brothers' LP, "Strong Weakness," David Bellamy said: "It's a ballad about a man and a woman in love. But the interesting thing about it is that they're the happiest when the love's tough. They're only happy when there's problems to face."

Producer Walter Haynes and Bill Monroe have been in the studio recently working on a new concept album — to be called "Bill Monroe and Friends."

Definitely scheduled to work on the sessions are Larry Gatlin, Ricky Skaggs, Mel Tillis and Johnny Cash. Dolly Parton, Emmylou Harris.

THE YEAR OF LIVING DANGEROUSLY. from MGM/UA Entertainment Co. Directed by Peter Weir. Screenplay by David Williamson, Peter Weir, C.J. Koch. Starring Mel Gibson, Sigourney Weaver, Linda Hunt. Rated 'PG' ★ ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

The deluge of films released around Christmas is always followed by a slow season. Studios need to release something to keep some sort of cash flow going, so they usually release films that will never reach blockbuster status.

Many of these films, unfortunately, are lost in the cold as people are hesitant to go out in the cold. A few of these films are quite remarkable, such as Costa-Gravas' "Missing," released last year about this time.

"The Year of Living Dangerously" is just such a film, and similar to "Missing" in many ways. It concerns the political upheavals in an underdeveloped country, but more specifically, how this affects the lives of the people involved.

The film, coming from noted Australian director Peter Weir, may be an early sleeper. Weir has directed such films as "The Last Wave" and "Gallipoli" and this one will insure his status as a talented and concerned director.

The film is set in Indonesia of 1965, a time when revolution is in the air. Mel Gibson, star of "Gallipoli" as well as such films as "Mad Max," plays a reporter assigned to cover the political and cultural turmoil of the nation. He gets caught up in the people and their plight, especially through his photographer, named Billy Kwan in the film but actually played by New York actress Linda Hunt.

Here is the most moving performance in the film and the bond that holds the film together. She acquaints Gibson with the country's troubles as well as introduces him to Sigourney Weaver — who plays an attache in the British Embassy who may or may not be a spy.

A love story set against turbulent political background is old fodder for epic films, and this one is nearly textbook perfect. "The Year of Living Dangerously" doesn't have the sweep of a "Dr. Zhivago" to be sure, but the issues and the romance are still there.

Dyslexia Testing Slated At Hindman

Dyslexia screening will be offered for Floyd county children, Feb. 18-21, at the Knott County Human Resources Center, Hindman.

Mrs. Cliff Latta, Prestonsburg director of the Reading Research Program for Dyslexic Children, said this week that parents who wish to have their children tested should contact the center as soon as possible.

Dyslexia is a learning disorder that makes it difficult for many children to learn to read and write. Some 15 per cent of the population is estimated to have dyslexia, Mrs. Latta said.

"The problem is one which can be overcome if the children receive special tutoring," she said. "Ours is a volunteer program that involves both the parents and children in a weekly tutoring session."

The tutoring session, lasting 13 weeks, begins Feb. 22 at Hindman, and plans are underway to start a similar program in Floyd county beginning next fall.

Before any child is eligible for the program, however, he must be screened to determine if dyslexia is actually present. The screening—a series of standard I.Q. and other school tests—is done by the Kentucky Association for Specific Perceptual Motor Disability, under whose auspices the Knott county program operates.

If the child qualifies, he may be able to enter the spring semester program, Mrs. Latta said. A six-week summer school for dyslexic children is also offered at Hindman by the Hindman Settlement School. Children must have attended one semester of tutoring before being eligible for the summer program.

To request screening for your child, write to Tutorial Program, Hindman Settlement School, Box Q, Hindman, Ky. 41822. Parents should include their child's name, age, school year, address and telephone number.

Children from first grade through high school are eligible.

Anyone wishing additional information may contact Mrs. Latta at 886-6100.
