TUESDAY'S SNOW may have delighted the youngsters and added a touch of Yuletide atmosphere, but for motorists, and Department of Highways crews, who were caught somewhat by surprise, it was bad news. The scene above, of floundering vehicles unable to successfully top the Sammy Clark Branch hill along the Prater Creek road, was taken at midday as icy conditions still persisted.

Two Voice Support But Vote Delayed 'Til Jan. 13 Meet

In response to his presentation before members of the Floyd fiscal court Friday, Billy Arms got some strong individual endorsements for an unmined minerals tax but not the formal court approval he sought.

A member of the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition and vice-chairman of a task force appointed by Schools Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. to study the financing of Floyd schools, Arms said the schools could reap an additional $448,875 yearly and the county an extra $377,332 if unmined coal was taxed at the same rate as other real property. The East Point landowner said a bill that will come before the 1984 state legislature would make owners of coal reserves-frequently large landholding companies based in other states and overseas-bear a fair share of the tax burden here and would encourage them to mine their coal. Alluding to a recent report by a study commission appointed by former Gov. John Y. Brown, Jr.-which discouraged efforts to levy an unmined minerals tax, saying it would not be a "quick fix for the fiscal ills of eastern Kentucky"-Arms said his group had never proposed the measure as a "quick fix" but as 'a step in the right direction. "We're for it. We all know what he's saying is the truth," said Magistrate Ed Caudill. And Magistrate Lowell Samons offered his support, too. "I've been for that legislation for years," he said.

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. cautioned that any new tax would be borne not by the mineral owner but by the coal operator, a point disputed by Arms, who said operators would assume that burden only with respect to the coal they have actually leased

At least, Turner said, any proposal for a tax on unmined coal should be linked with provisions eliminating the low agricultural assessment on wealthy Bluegrass farms and levying sales tax on central Kentucky's celebrated horse

Court Orders Gas Supply Kept Open

In the absence of Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, who was ill, District Judge Harold Stumbo issued an order in circuit court here Friday, restraining Dave Stephens from cutting off gas to a number of Cow Creek residents Linzie Hunt, Bill Jack Darby and Braxton Thompson said Stephens, who supplies natural gas to some Cow Creek families, had threatened to disconnect them as of Dec. 18. Judge Stumbo's order means the gas will flow at least until a hearing can be scheduled. Plaintiffs are represented by John Earl Hunt. Claims made in a suit pre-to replace general managers in 11 of the state's 12 district highway offices, sent only one side of the issue in dispute.

A BELLY LANDING was the last thing in the world pilot Thomas Tate and passenger Glenn Farley expected as they touched down Monday at Combs Airport following a business trip to Knoxville. The landing was smooth enough, according to Tate, but when the wheels and gear collapsed for some as yet unexplained reason, the craft, a single-engine Mooney owned by Ward Engineering, skidded on its fuselage several hundred feet down the runway. Luckily, the plane stayed upright and came to rest with no injury to either of the men, both Paintsville residents. When asked of their reaction to the harrowing incident, Tate replied, "Well you just ride it out." Appraisal of damage to the plane was being made this week.

Motorists trying to get to work Tuesday found roads untouched by highway crews since the early morning snowfall Coal trucks ground to a halt on the Mud Creek road at the mouth of Branham's Creek and Abbott Mountain was reported slick, as were various other roads designated "priority 2" by Transportation Cabinet officials.

Even the county's three "priority 1" highways-US 23, KY 80 and KY 114-which are supposed to be the first cleared, had not seen a plow or salt truck by the time most motorists were on their way to work. Denton Billiter, district engineer at the state Bureau of Highways' Pikeville office, acknowledged that the snow removal operation was slow to get going Tuesday.

After some early snow showers Monday evening, road crews worked the highways until early Tuesday morning and anticipated no more precipitation. When the main snowfall came around 5 a.m., the person responsible for calling the crews out again slipped up, Billiter said. It was 8 a.m. before the salt trucks rolled again, he said.

In future, the district office's night watchman will be assigned to alert road crews when significant snow is reported at night, said Billiter, who is in charge of the Pikeville office while Chief Engineer Kirby Ison is on vacation.

Besides the three top-priority highways, seven Floyd roads are designated 'priority 2." They are KY 1428, KY 3 from US 23 north to KY 3026, KY 7, KY 404 from KY 114 to KY 850, KY 550, KY 122 and KY 979.

Pink Slips, Pay Raises Mark Fiscal Court Meet

Possible pay increases for clerks-but bill, incurred 18 months before by pink slips for road workers-were handed down by Floyd fiscal court Friday, in its last scheduled meeting of the year.

Salary hikes for county court clerks were authorized by the court without dissent, in marked contrast to the scene four months ago, when the court's refusal to grant them a raise sparked a three-day walkout by deputy clerks.

As the result of the intervening election, a different clerk and new deputies now staff the county clerk's office andbeginning next month, when she will take over from the sheriff responsibility for collecting motor vehicle taxesher deputies will have a heavier workload as well, County Clerk Carla R. Boyd told the court.

Although she said she would not be able to grant them immediate raises, Mrs. Boyd was authorized by the court to employ 12 fulltime workers at salaries ranging from $800 to $1200 a month and four part-time workers. In May 1981, the last time the court set the clerks' salaries, 10 deputies were authorized at monthly salaries ranging from $500 to $1000 and three part-time clerks were allowed.

Mrs. Boyd readily conceded that her late uncle, C. Ollie Robinson-who was said to have employed as many as 20 deputies while he was clerk-"never did abide by the fiscal court." Thomas Lafferty, Jr., who succeeded Robinson as clerk, sought raises for his deputies in August but was told the court could not legally increase salaries at that time and, in any event, could not afford a

According to Friday's order, Mrs. Boyd, who earns $2457 a month as clerk, will be permitted a chief deputy at $1200 a month, two assistant deputies at $1000 each, two deputies at $900 and seven at

Because of the onset of winter, however, 20 of the county's 27 road workers were laid off. With so many let go, the county might as well "close the whole thing down," said Magistrate Kenneth Roberts, whose daughter, a heavy equipment operator, was one of those laid off. But Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said grader operators should be retained to keep the roads open in the event of snow. The workers laid off will be rehired when weather conditions permit, he said.

Claims totalling $22,240, submitted by two firms for preparing voting machines for the November elections, will not be paid until they can see what they are paying for, the magistrates asserted.

A contract for the work was let by the court to the Coal Bit Company, whose president, Mrs. Ruth DeRossett, submitted a bill for the agreed-on price of $7240. But Harp Enterprises, of Lexington, said to have been hired by former County Clerk Thomas Lafferty, Jr. to do the same work, presented a bill for $15,000.

Shortly before November's election, Harp threatened to withhold printed ballots unless the county paid a $9000 This Town...That World "This Town... That World" is a case

"It was 15 years in the making. We're real glad." That was how Joe McCauley, director of the Big Sandy Area Development District, greeted the announcement last week that a contract has finally been let for construction of a road to serve the Cliff community, including a public housing project there.

Transportation Cabinet officials said the contract was awarded to H and S Equipment Rental Co., of Flemingsburg, which submitted the low bid of

HOW CAN I HELP A CHILD UNDERSTAND THE REALITY OF DEATH?

It is important to realize that children differ in their ability to understand and accept the fact of death.

When the death is a member of the immediate family, a child should be included in the activities and preparations for the funeral. The way in which adults react during this time is the greatest influencing factor in teaching the child the accepted manner of learning to live with death.

Questions often arise in their minds. These are to be encouraged and answered with a loving concern for the sensitivities of the child. Explain that it is alright to feel sad and to cry, to feel lonely and hurt. Point out, however, that death is real and irreversible. Avoid the fairy stories and white lies which will only confuse and Re-living the happy memories involving the deceased should be encouraged. Statements of sincere religious beliefs can offer comfort to a child with a religious upbringing. Your pastor, priest or rabbi wants to be of help at such times.

Sometimes we can be of personal assistance. Remember, your concerns are ours,

Broadway Play Slated In Huntington, Jan. 25

The Marshall Artists Series will sponsor a performance of the Broadway play "Agnes of God" at the Keith-Albee Theatre at 8 p.m. Wednesday, Jan. 25.

"This is not part of any of our regular series programming, but the opportunity to bring this fine drama to the Tri-State Area was one the Artists Series Board could not pass up," said Mrs. Nancy P. Hindsley, MU cultural events coordinator.

"The touring cast for this production is a stellar one: Susan Strasberg as the psychologist, Peggy Cass as the Mother Superior and Lynn Chausau as Agnes," Mrs. Hindsley said.

The daughter of noted acting coach Lee Strasberg, Miss Stransberg has a number of Broadway credits to her name and recently completed a film, "The Other Side of the Wind," with director Orson Wells.

Miss Cass, a popular television quiz show panelist who has been a regular on "What's My Line?" and "To Tell the Truth," is a veteran Broadway actress and may be best remembered for her role as Agnes Gooch in the original "Auntie Mame.

A graduate of the Juilliard School, Miss Chausau is a member of Acting Company, a repertory theatre group which will perform here in March.

"If you have an avid theatre-goer on your holiday shopping list, a ticket to this production might make you a very popular Santa Claus," she said.

Tickets will be for reserved seats, but season subscribers will not automatically receive tickets for their regular seats," Mrs. Hindsley said.

The Artists Series Box Office, located on the first floor of Memorial Student Center, is open weekdays from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. and tickets may be reserved by calling the office at 696-6656.

Tips For Holiday Telephone Calling

Christmas in Kentucky has its own special meaning for everyone. For South Central Bell, it means lots and lots of telephone calls, according to Art Willett, local manager for Bell.

"Christmas is always a busy day for long distance calling in Kentucky," Willett said. "This year should be no different and we've got some tips that will help make for trouble-free holiday Dial your calls direct. "Our operators will have plenty to do," Willett said, "so you'll save time dialing your calls yourself. It's also the cheapest way to call long distance.'

The best time to call on Christmas Day are: before 10 a.m.; between 3 and 6 p.m.; or after 9 p.m. You'll beat the rush even easier by calling on Christmas Eve, and because it's on Saturday this year, all calls-in-state or out of stateare priced 60 percent off.

Most calls will go through smoothly. But if circuits are tied up, just try again a few minutes later, and you'll probably get through.

Willett added that Bell's regular discounts apply throughout the Christmas and New Year's weekends: a 40 percent discount on calls to other states between 5 and 11 p.m. Friday (35% within Kentucky) and 60 percent off on all calls from 11 p.m. Friday to 5 p.m. Sunday.

Manufacturing industries will still be an important source of new jobs during the next decade, according to new projections published by the Bureau of Labor Statistics in the November Monthly Labor Review.

No bond hearing has yet been scheduled for McGuffey, who was still awaiting extradition from Tennessee when the bond hearing for Marshall was held.

Both men, who were held originally in the Floyd jail, were recently transferred, Marshall to Franklin county and McGuffey to Clark. However, Marshall was ordered transferred to Pike county jail Monday, his attorney explaining that the psychiatric tests for which he was moved to Frankfort have now been completed. McFarland, who has been lodged in the Pike county jail, wil be moved elsewhere, it was said.

Also being considered by Judge Luker are motions by Pillersdorf that Marshall's trial be severed from McGuffey's and that, in case his client is convicted, a different jury consider the question of guilt than that which will consider the question of penalty.

In asking that the two be tried separately, Pillersdorf said McGuffey had reportedly made statements that tended to implicate Marshall. In moving for separate juries, the defense attorney argued that by the time jurors have been "death-qualified"—that is, questioned by attorneys as to their willingness to impose a death penalty—they are likely to infer the defendant is guilty and so more likely to convict.

Luker said he would rule on the defense motions and hear any further motions at a Jan. 20 conference in London. In setting a Feb. 13 trial, the judge said he would be willing to hold it in Johnson circuit court if that court is available. Because of fear that Marshall could not receive a fair trial here, the trial was moved from Floyd county by agreement of the judge, prosecutor and attorneys.

Poinsettias Must Have After Christmas Care

Poinsettias are one of the favorite Christmas plants. They are usually purchased in full bloom just before Christmas. The owner is then concerned with getting them to bloom again the following Christmas. It is usually easier to take cuttings from the old plant than trying to get it to flower again.

The bracts (bloom) will begin to fade in January. After this happens, let the plant get almost completely dry and store in a cool basement or other storage place. Even when dry and dormant the plant must not be exposed to freezing temperatures. In spring, you can place the plant outside in the garden and pinch off the tips of the stems to get more

For next Christmas take cuttings from the old plant. Cuttings should be about 6 inches long and should be taken in late July or early August. Root the cuttings in a small pot or cutting bed with a peat and sand mixture. Put them in a shady place and keep them moist for best

Rooted cuttings may be potted in a light potting soil. You can put just one cutting in a 4 inch pot or several in a large pot. Water and fertilize them freely. Application of a liquid fertilizer every two or three weeks will give good growth. Never allow plants to dry out while they are growing. Don't leave the plant outside for very long in cold weather. When you bring them indoors, place them in a well lighted location and preferable when the temperature is at least 60 degrees at

After October 10 be sure they get no more light than the normal daylength. If they must be kept inside where the rooms are lighted, either move them to an unlighted room at sundown or cover them completely with a box painted black inside. One flash of light after sundown is just as harmful as leaving the lights on. The bracts should start to color about the middle of November and be in full bloom by the middle of December.

S.S. Earnings Base Increased for '84

The annual earnings base—the maximum amount of annual earnings that counts for Social Security—will increase to $37,800 for 1984, up from $35,700 the 1983 base, Jim Kelly, Social Security District Director for the Big Sandy Area, said recently.

The increase is based on the change in average earnings levels from 1982 to

The effective Social Security tax rate for employees will be the same in 1984 as it was for 1983, 6.7 percent. This is true although the tax rate for employers will be 7.0 percent, Kelly said. The reason is that 1983 legislation which raised the tax rates gave employees a .3 percent credit, given when the tax is deducted from earnings.

The end result is that a person who has the same earnings in 1984 as in 1983 will pay the same Social Security tax.

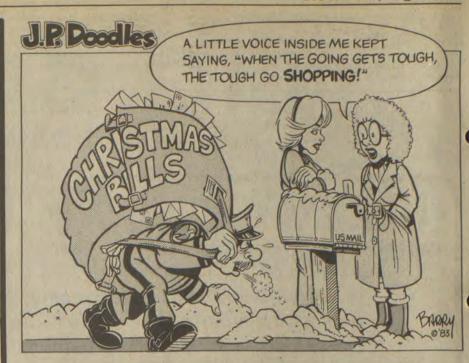

Other Social Security figures will increase in 1984 also. The annual exempt amount used in the annual earnings test will increase to $6,960 for people 65-70 and to $5,160 for people under 65 all of 1984. The 1983 figures are $6,600 and

"The earnings test is the measure used by Social Security to determine whether a person will receive benefits during the year. A person whose annual earnings do not exceed the annual exempt amount will receive all benefits for the year. These rules do not apply to people drawing disability, as they must report earnings of any amount," Kelly cautioned.

A person whose earnings exceed the annual exempt amount will have $1 in benefits withheld for each $2 of earnings over the exempt amount.

The amount of annual earnings required for a person to earn one quarter of coverage, the measure of Social Security work credit, will increase to $390 in 1984, up from the 1983 figure of $370. A person will earn four quarters of coverage, the maximum possible, if his or her annual earnings amount to $1,560

More information about Social Security taxes and benefits can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government.

Christmas Tree Farm Maintained By State

For the past fourteen years the Kentucky Division of Forestry has been raising Christmas trees for wholesale marketing at the Kentucky Ridge State Forest in Bell county.

The project was begun in 1970 at the initiative of Parrott Partin, state Forest Aide and Jim Winter, District Forester. Both men are credited with seeing that the project has continued successfully over the years, said Forestry Director Donald A. Hamm.

These men have worked to see that the project succeeded, that it demonstrated the commercial feasibility of setting out Christmas tree plantations in power line right-of-way areas," he said.

Tree plantation areas under the project total approximately three acres. In choosing and evaluating sites for tree planting, consideration was given to accessibility and the absence of droughtstress, Hamm explained. Some proposed sites were rejected due to rock outcroppings or southwest exposures.

Initial preparation at the sites selected involved cutting brush with hand tools and applying suitable herbicides to the freshly cut vegetation stubs, he said.

Seedlings were then planted on fivefoot spacings. Both Scotch pines and white pines were used, with white pines preferred because of their attractiveness, better response to pruning and greater adaptability to a vareity of sites.

Forestry officials said that weed control is critical in the early years of seedling growth. At the Bell county sites, amazine herbicide is used to kill competing weeds for three years after tree planting. Hand tools and labor by residents of the Bell County Correctional Facility keep weeds controlled around the older tree plantings.

Forest officials said that the trees are "sheared," or clipped and shaped annually, usually in mid-summer. The shearing is done by Partin and Winter personally. Rotation of trees on the site ranges from seven to ten years. Longer periods of time are required on steeper slopes, Hamm explained, to allow the stumps to become tall enough make sure that the tips of the trees bottom limbs are off the

Each year the trees are evaluated for maturity and some marked for harvest in October. The first major tree harvest was in 1977. That year the University of Kentucky Forestry Club was the biggest customer. Total cash receipts for 1977 tree sales were $1,600. Sales of the 1,615 trees harvested from 1977 through 1982 totalled $8,140 which was added to the state's general funds.

Forestry officials said the main hazards encountered in producing Christmas trees has been insects, needle blight and theft. The insects can be controlled with insecticide and the blight with a fungicide known as bordeaux mixture, but theft is a unsolved recurring headache.

A total of 281 trees have been stolen from the division over the years, officials said. "We have prosecuted ten cases so far," Hamm said. He noted that the total losses during the six seasons since the trees were large enough for harvest have been greater than the average annual harvest total.

The main constraints in the state's project are the limits set by the terrain, which make the use of mechanized equipment impossible and forces the operation to be a very labor-intensive one, said District Forester Winter.

"Christmas tree plantations in power line rights-of-way can be an attractive money-making land usage when operated as a small family business where labor costs can be deferred until the harvest pay-off," said Winter.

Expert Offers Tips On Keeping Party Drinking Controlled

Safe driving during the holiday season begins before you hit the road, says expert George Niva of Western Kentucky University.

"If someone drinks too much at your house, you are responsible. That's what it means to be a host. See that he gets home safely, but don't let him drive,' says the associate professor of health and safety who is also project director of Kentucky's Alcohol Driver Education

Drinking and driving are a nationwide problem, with up to 55 percent of the nation's traffic fatalities in 1982 related to alcohol. Such national attention has been focused to the problem that President Ronald Reagan recently proclaimed Dec. 11 to 19 National Drunk and Drugged Driving Awareness Week

According to Melvin Perkins, public affairs officer of the Kentucky State Police, Kentucky recorded five traffic fatalities last holiday season; four were alcohol related.

The KSP has issued a set of guidelines for anyone anticipating hosting a party to help alleviate the alcohol road problem, Niva says. "Using just one of these ten guidelines will help make a dent in the problem, but using them all in combination will be effective in combating this long-standing problem," he

The KSP offers these ten ways to encourage responsible drinking when planning your holiday party:

*Serve attractive non-alcoholic drinks for those who choose not to drink alcoholic beverages;

*Serve snacks so guests need not drink on an empty stomach, especially foods which act as a buffer for alchol and not salty foods which increase thirst; *Avoid carbonated mixers in favor of non-carbonated ones, such as fruit juice, since carbonation speeds alcohol ab-

*Keep the cocktail hour short;

*Measure drinks and don't "double-*Wait a while between drinks, giving toward the end of a party in anticipation of the journey home; and

*Create a climate that discourages over-indulgence, but do assume responsibility for guests who over-indulge; see that they get home safely or invite them to stay later or overnight.

*A common misconception about drinking is that you can sober a person up in a short time with black coffee or a cold shower. "Only time can sober him up," Niva says. "It will take about one hour for every drink he's had.

So before going out on the road this holiday season after partying all night, think about your alternatives and make this a safe season on the road, he says.

Second Mortgages Provide Money For Needed Home Improvements

UK Information Services The wisdom of borrowing money on your home depends on several things including the use of the money and the repayment rate, says a University of Kentucky administrator skilled in the real estate business.

Dr. John C. Wolff, Jr., director of the Kentucky Real Estate Education and Research Center, says second mortgages can be obtained in several ways and from several lending sources.

"Homeowners who have built up equity in their homes might want to take a second mortgage to obtain money to start a business, but if they put the money into a risky business venture than it would be unwise," Wolff said. "They could lose both the business and their home.

"On the other hand, if the homeowner is going to borrow money at 14 or 15 percent and get a guaranteed return on his money of 25 to 30 percent then it would obviously be considered a prudent thing to do," he added.

Homeowners often take out second mortgage loans to get money for home improvements such as adding a room or remodeling the bathroom or kitchen, he

"If the person borrows $5,000 and uses it for home improvements that are going to make his house worth $5,000 more, it might be a desirable thing to do. But if you weren't thinking of selling the house, you'd have to decide how much more a remodeled house would mean in pleasure and enjoyment for the family.

Recent quotes on second mortgages loans for five years were at 14 3/8 percent interest. For 15 years, the rate is 14 5/8 percent. These are fully amortized loans. Additional costs of a loan (to be paid by the borrower) include loan origination fee, attorney fee for title search, appraisal, and survey. These can range from three to five percent of the loan.

"What you save in one place can be taken up in closing costs at another," Wolff says. "These costs vary so it's best

You can borrow up to 80 percent of the appraised value of your home in some

If your mortgage is near to being paid off most of the payment goes to principal and little to interest, thus there is a relatively small amount that's deductible for taxes.

Some types of second mortgage loans are lower than the current conventional rate which is around 14 percent. The current rate for these second mortgage loans is 112 percent above prime and prime is 11 percent at some banks in Kentucky. Rates on these loans will vary with the prime rate.

Fixed rate second mortgages also are available. These are about 15 percent but the final rate is set five days before the loan is closed.

Loans can be repaid up to 15 years. For example: a $10,000 loan at 15 percent repaid completely over 15 years would amount to $139.96 a month for principal and interest (PI) and would total $25,192.80.

Some loans are made with the stipulation that the last payment must be made in large, lump sum

Lump sum last payments are called balloon mortgages. Recent increases in long-term interest rates have made it increasingly difficult for homeowners to refinance existing mortgages with "balloon" payments that are coming

At the same time, notes the Realtor News, the higher interest rates could mean a new surge in balloon mortgages and other creative financing techniques.

Balloon loans are frequently second mortgages a homeseller or financial institution makes that are added to any assumed loan or new first mortgage. They often carry interest rates that are several percentage points below new conventional financing.

Approximately 900,000 balloon loans were made in the U.S. between January 1980 and August 1982. The greatest part were due to be paid off in 1985. The drop in interest rates between the fall of 1982 and the spring of 1983 encouraged many homeowners to refinance their balloon loans with long-term mortgages before the due date, according to the National Association of Realtors.

The balloon payment can be a large percent of the original loan. A $10,000 loan at 15 percent figured as if it would be repaid over 30 years would be $126.45 a month (principal and interest). At the end of 15 years, the balloon payment would be $9,030. The total paid over 15 years for this loan would be $31,791 ($126.45 multiplied by 180 months, plus

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Charles (Wayne) Samons, who passed away Dec. 17, 1982.

Son, It has been one year since God called you home. We all remember that awful day when your life was taken away. We miss you on the holidays. You were always there to fill the air with happiness. But now you are in a better place with God up in heaven. Son, you are resting in a peaceful sleep. Son, I go to your grave, I sit and cry. The pain in my heart, I can't bear. Sleep peacefully, son, for one day we'll be together again. Sleep peacefully, son.

Yuletide Blues Are Not Uncommon

The blues: they hit at some point in almost every person's life. The holiday season makes the effects of depression worse for some, according to Dr. Gary Silker, a clinical psychologist in Morehead State University's Counseling Cen-

"It is my belief that the holidays don't cause more depression," Dr. Silker said. 'Professionals see more people who are depressed, but the linkage there is that people who are already depressed feel the effects more over the holidays.' Several of the situations he deals with at MSU's Counseling Center involve problems with relationships or family.

'Usually, especially around Thanksgiving and Christmas, professionals have to deal a lot with people who are having feelings like 'I'm not comfortable with being around my family or loved one'," Dr. Silker said.

Another part of the depression which can manifest itself during a holiday break, or during the winter months, is that of cabin fever: where a person is almost or completely, cut off from the rest of their world, due to the season's cold and snow

'When someone speaks of cabin fever," Dr. Silker explained, "it usually means that people are fixed into a very limited routine. The weather's bad, they stay inside and interact with the same people. The range of variety in their life is very restricted.'

Dr. Larry Bart, also a clinical psychologist at the Counseling Center, feels that the best way to combat the stress and depression which can accompany such an experience is activity.

"Activity is the bottom line," Dr. Bart said. "The less you do, the more the sense of confinement is going to be a problem.

Dr. Silker agreed.

The Christ Candle The Light of The World

The Christ Candle, the fifth and last candle to be lit this Advent Season, December 24, the year of our Lord 1983, joining together the Candles of Hope, Preparation, Joy and Love.

Perhaps this is the Candle for Counting our blessings. Blessings—with so much hunger, heartaches, sickness, and loneliness—Where are the blessings, you say?

Have you heard about the food and clothing pantries? To name two, the local church women sponsor one at Archer Park, Senior Citizens Center, and Fitzpatrick Baptist Church sponsors one on the Middle Creek Road.

Lonely? To my knowledge most all church doors will be open Christmas Eve and Christmas Day. Come and be a part of the celebration of the Birth of Christ.

Sickness, heartache—sometimes when we count our blessings we find out our own sickness and heartache are there no more but are in the hands of God if we will so ask.

As we begin the count down of this Holiday Season, bringing to a close the Advent Season, and begin a New Year, I would like, on behalf of the Local Church Women, to wish each and every one of you a very merry Christmas and to tell you a few of my blessings. I'm blessed with a beautiful and loving family, with friends and neighbors who through times of trials and tribulations, sickness and heartache are always there, saying a prayer and giving support. I'm blessed with ears to hear and eyes to see. As my daughter and granddaughter participated in plays expressing their love of Christ, I'm blessed with the knowledge of knowing I can again shed a few tears of joy this Christmas eve as I did last year when my two youngest children accepted Christ as their Lord and Savior and were accepted into the church. Last but not least, I'm blessed that God placed me in a country where I'm free to worship as I please, where a newspaper can and will allow me to share with you my feelings of this beautiful Advent season.

To you the Floyd County Times, we extend our most heart felt thanks.

Joy to the world, the Lord has come.

VA To Begin Ex-Pow Information Hotline

The Veterans Administration will inaugurate a special toll-free telephone information hotline for former prisoners of war on Monday, December 12.

The hotline has been established for ex-POW's to inform the VA if they feel they are not being recognized as ex-POW's at VA medical centers or regional offices, or if they feel their treatment is not consistent with the intent of the Prisoners of War Health Care Benefits Act of 1981.

The Act broadened VA's authority to provide health care for ex-POW's and also liberalized rules for determining whether certain medical conditions can be considered service-connected.

The 24-hour toll-free number, 800-821-8139, is available to over 93,000 ex-POW's nationwide, and will be staffed by a select group of POW specialists from the Washington, D.C., regional office during regular business hours (8 a.m.-4:30 p.m. EST). After-hours and weekend callers may leave a recorded message on the hotline.

The new information hotline will supplement the existing toll-free services provided for all veterans to VA regional offices nationwide, and it will also complement the ex-POW coordinators assigned at all 172 VA medical centers.

Red River's Hopes Of Nat. Wild River Status With EPA

The Daniel Boone National Forest has transmitted the Red River Wild and Scenic River Draft Environmental Impact Statement and Study Report to the Environmental Protection Agency according to Forest Supervisor Richard H. Wengert, Winchester. The document is also being made available for general public review

The U.S. Congress authorized a study in 1978 to determine if a section of the Red River should be included in the National Wild and Scenic River System. The river is a designated state river under the Kentucky Wild Rivers Act.

The Forest Service document evaluates four alternatives for future management of Red River and identifies a preferred alternative.

Comments on the Draft Environmental Impact Statement and Study Report are welcome and encouraged according to Wengert. Individuals and organizations interested in reviewing the report can call the Forest Supervisor's office by phoning (606) 745-3100. GIFTS FOR THE SPORTSMAN

Looking for a last minute Christmas present for Uncle Harry, the quail hunter, or Brother Bob, the bass fisherman? A 1984 hunting or fishing license might be just the thing.

All Kentucky sport licenses expire at midnight, Dec. 31, so the sportsman will need a new one before his first trip of 1984. There isn't any problem about size or color and the price, in these inflationary times, is reasonable.

A resident hunting or fishing license costs $7.50 each and a combination license at $14.00 allows the sportsman to both hunt and fish for a full year. While youngsters under 16 years old do not need a fishing license, young hunters must have a junior hunting license ($4.00), issued with parental permission.

The only persons who don't need licenses are Kentucky residents who have reached their 65th birthday, landowners or tenants and members of their immediate families hunting or fishing on lands which they own or reside and resident servicemen on furlough of four or more days who hunt or fish in the county where they lived before joining the service.

If Uncle Harry lives out of state, you'll have to spend $16.00 for an annual nonresident fishing license or $40.00 for a year-round hunting license. Short term licenses are available for non-residents; a three-day fishing license costs $5.00 and a 15-day fishing permit, $6.50. A three-day small game hunting license is $14.50, but isn't valid for deer or turkey

Since the funds from license sales are used to finance the operations of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, that Christmas present to Brother Bob is also in effect a gift to fish and wildlife conservation in Kentucky. The money spent for licenses will ultimately be used for scientific research and management, stocking, law enforcement and education.

Trout Stamp Art Contest Under Way

Artists from throughout the United States are being invited to enter original artwork in the second annual contest to select a design for the Kentucky Trout Stamp. The stamp, a license issued to trout fishermen by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources since 1971 to fund trout stocking programs across Kentucky, now features a full color reproduction of each year's winning entry. In addition, a limited edition art print featuring the winning design may be available beginning in 1983.

Entries will be accepted from December 15, 1983 until March 15, 1984. Artists wishing to submit an entry should request complete rules, entry requirements and procedures by writing: Trout Stamp Contest Coordinator, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Rt. 1, Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 or telephone (502) 564-4336.

The first annual trout stamp contest was won in 1983 by F.P. "Tony" Bennett of Harlingen, Texas whose winning entry was selected from 87 paintings submitted from all over North America.

Winning Season And when a sportsman buys hunting By LAURA COOLEY or fishing equipment, he also benefits Prestonsburg's Ladycats are off to a conservation by an 11 percent federal excise tax on such goods. The funds winning season with a 3-2 record, thus from this tax are prorated back to the

Corps of Engineers Real Estate Tax Law To Seek Bids On Yatesville Project

The U.S. Army Corps of Engineers will advertise for bids on the Phase I construction of the Yatesville Dam project on January 12, 1984, according to Colonel John W. Devens, Huntington District Engineer. Phase I construction work includes the construction of the outlet works tunnel and stilling basin. The action follows a review by the Department of the Army of the statutory responsibilities placed upon it by different legislation pertaining to the project, Devens explained.

Departing from the previously announced plans, the district has been directed to obligate funds for project features that do not impact environmental issues currently under investigation. Devens indicated that the district was directed to continue the Supplement to the 1972 Environmental Impact Statement (SEIS) simultaneously with project construction.

The Yatesville Dam project, on Blaine Creek of Big Sandy River in Lawrence county near Louisa, was authorized by Congress in 1965 for flood control, water quality control, general recreation, and fish and wildlife enhancement. Construction of the dam began in January 1977 only to be halted in August of that year when no funds were included for the project in the Fiscal Year 1978 Appropriations Bill.

Early in 1983, the Corps announced that it intended to undertake an intensive one-year analysis of water quality conditions along Blaine Creek. The evaluation was deemed necessary because of the apparent continuing degradation of the quality of ground and surface water. This water quality problem appears to be a result of previous and current gas and oil production in the Yatesville basin.

Devens said that wording in the Fiscal Year 1983 Supplemental Appropriations Bill concerning construction of Yatesville Lake led to the review at Army level to resolve the question of compatibility between that bill and other previous general legislation, such as the National Environmental Policy Act.

Bids on the construction project are scheduled to be opened February 29,

The term "on the nose" originated in radio from a sign made by directors putting a finger alongside the nose to indicate that a program was running precisely on schedule.

Collins Urges Holiday Safety

Gov. Martha Layne Collins made a plea last week that motorists throughout Kentucky "be extra careful on the highways over the coming holiday season.

'At a time like this, when families throughout our Commonwealth are gathering to renew old times and celebrate what ought to be the happiest of occasions, I can't think of a more terrible happenstance than to suddenly be confronted by a police officer, at your door, bearing the news that a loved one has just been killed on the way home," she said.

The governor said that one of her first offical acts, since taking office as Kentucky's chief executive earlier this week, was to personally ask state police to mobilize all the resources and manpower at their disposal to prevent a repeat of the high traffic death toll reported over Christmas and New Year's 1982. Last year, 16 persons were killed in accidents over those two holiday periods.

And of those sixteen, Collins said, nine were alcohol-involved.

Collins, who was a signator to a proclamation declaring this week to be Drunk and Drugged Driver Awareness Week in Kentucky, called that proclamation one of the most important such documents she'll ever sign in her next four years as governor.

"Not only am I appalled that drunk drivers account for half of all the fatalities currently being reported in this country," she said, "but, as a mother, the statistics really hit home when you're told that the alcohol-involved crash is the leading cause of death for young Americans between the ages of 16

Collins' remarks are supported by a Kentucky State Police study describing the typical driver in a fatal Kentucky accident as being between 16 and 24 and attributing the cause of the crash to drinking and speeding.

State police said that their patrols over Christmas and New Year's will be instructed to be particularly alert for both the drinking and speeding driver.

One of the tactics they will use to spot the drinking driver is the safety checkpoint where motorists are stopped for license checks. Drivers on the road during peak traffic periods, and traveling through areas where the past fatal accident experience has been high, can expect to see troopers stopping vehicles and checking the drivers, they said.

The air patrol also will be used and, according to KSP Deputy Commissioner Morgan T. Elkins, it has proven to be a highly effective tool in spotting both speeders and other drivers under the influence of alcohol.

Elkins also urges anyone seeing a driver on the road who appears to be intoxicated to call state police via their toll-free ACTION RAP-ID hotline. The number is 1-800-222-5555, and callers are not required to give their name. "All we need is a description of the suspect vehicle, including its license number and the direction in which it is headed," he said.

As part of the KSP's holiday safety effort, both motorists and their passengers also are being reminded by messages taped for radio and television use to use their safety belts and to keep their children in safety seats if they are forty inches or under in height.

The best defense against being hurt or killed on the highway in an alcoholinvolved accident, Elkins said, is not to drink yourself and to keep your safety belt buckled.

Oldest Female Veteran Honored On Birthday

In a message to Luhrman, VA Administrator Harry N. Walters sent congratulations and best wishes "on behalf of a grateful nation.'

The oldest male veteran is 109-yearold Harry Chaloner, of Florida. Chaloner is a veteran of the Spanish-American War, who also fought during World War I.

TERMS OF ENDEARMENT (Paramount - PG) * Starring Debra Winger, Jack Nicholson, Shirley MacLaine

By J.T. YURKO

The first two-thirds of "Terms of Endearment" is a perceptive and witty comedy, while the last third is a tragedy sure to bring out the handker chiefs. So is the film a comedy or a tragedy?

The answer is that the film may seem to shift gears midway, but when looking back, it all falls nicely into place. This is a well-conceived, beautifully orchestrated movie, a tale of the heroic struggles of everyday life, and the facing of death.

Shirley MacLaine and Debra Winger may be competing against each other for Acade-Awards next year. mother and daughter they dis-play a relationship that is special, yet universally recog-nizable. Miss Winger's daugh-ter is simple yet loving and forms a perfect counterpart to Miss MacLaine's slightly neurotic but eminently likeable

The film's director and writ-er, James Brooks is a former the movie "Starting Over." He has an ear for dialogue and an ability to create memorable characters.

Jack Nicholson plays an over-the-hill astronaut still trying to navigate women into his bedroom. His potbelly holds a lot of beer and the walls in his house are filled with pictures of his past achieve-ments, proof that he knows how to enjoy life, even if his style disagrees with that of next-door neighbor MacLaine. Don't bet against Nicholson at Awards time, either,

"Terms of Endearment" occupies your memory for some time as you begin to see how cleverly Brooks interweaves the comic and tragic elements. The film begins and ends with a funeral. Yet, this is one of the best lifeaffirming movies you will ever

Christmas day specials

by Kim Cooper

On Christmas, the story of the holiday is told in "Star Spangled Night," a special episode of the animated show, "The Flying House," airing on the CBN Cable Network at 7:30 p.m.

The Flying House" involves a bumbling professor, three children and a companion robot who travel through time warps in an airborne house. On each trip, the group experiences historic events of the past and meets famous people

On "Star Spangled Night," the characters find themselves on the road to Bethlehem where they meet Mary and Joseph. The children get a job tending sheep and witness the angel's announcement of the newborn king. After baby Jesus is born, King Herod gives orders to kill every boy under 2 years old.
The children aid Mary and Joseph's efforts to save the child.

The problems are not over for the 20th-century characters when they discover technical difficulties with their time machine, which delays their return.

Also airing Christmas day will be the classic film, "It's a Wonderful Life" with Jimmy Stewart, Donna Reed and Lionel Barrymore. Stewart plays a despondent businessman who is taken on a journey to see what would have happened had he not been born. The comedy-drama is one of Stewart's best

MONTEZUMA'S REVENGE

If you are among the many who are about to take advantage of the low cost of vacationing in Mexico this year, here is further good news. There is a relatively new antibiotic-sulfa drug combination which has been found to be truly effective in combating what is referred to as "Traveler's diarrhea." This bacteria-induced diarrhea affects one in three people who travel to Mexico. The prescription drug combination of the antibiotic "Trimethoprim" taken with the sulfa drug "sulfamethoxazole" can relieve a high percentage of cases of traveler's diarrhea in 24-30 hours. Minor side effects, such as skin rashes, may occur.

All prescription items, over the counter remedies, and convalescent aids are available at COOLEY APOTHECARY. Join your many friends and neighbors who already are familiar with us. We are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. A very Merry Christmas to you and yours!

May Rebuild Ky. 3, Says Highway Chief

State Transportation Secretary Floyd Poore says reconstruction of KY 3 from Inez to U.S. 23 just north of here will get serious consideration in Gov. Martha Layne Collins' administration.

Preliminary engineering was done several years ago, but the project had been shelved during John Y. Brown Jr.'s administration. A new regional airport is being built adjacent to the route at the Johnson-Martin county line.

Poore also said an additional 10 miles of KY 645, a new four-lane highway from Ulysses on U.S. 23 to Inez, would be a 'top priority.'

New Computer Program To Aid Burns Victims

Doctors will be able to follow the progress of burn victims and even keep computerized drawings showing how fast the burns are healing, thanks to a new computer program developed at the Marshall University School of Medicine.

'With this information we can predict the patient's nutritional needs, plan appropriate surgery and see whether the burns are healing as fast as they should," said Dr. Carol Scott-Conner, an assistant professor of surgery. "With the computer, we have a simple way to record changes in the burn wound and

At the heart of the Marshall computer program is the standard Lund and Browder chart, a human-shaped figure divided into 33 sections. Using this, doctors can determine what percentage of body area is injured. This percentage helps predict chance of survival, length of hospitalization and fluid and food needs, Dr. Scott-Conner said.

Putting this chart into a computer program can help solve what she calls one of the big problems in burn treatment: knowing whether patients are making

"A patient with a severe body burn goes through a long and complicated hospital stay and undergoes many operations for skin grafts and area involved and make it even harder to get an

"The computer can let us see whether a patient is healing 'on schedule,' "she' said. "If not, treatment might need to be speeded up. We are presently comparing the healing rates of survivors with those of patients who do not survive major burns.

To make the Lund and Browder chart the computer asks, for each of the 33 body sections, how severe the burn is and how much remains unhealed. By entering this information each week, doctors can get a chart print-out for the patient's file and a calculation of how fast the wounds are healing. The computer can even display charts for two place that is easy for a child to reach. Open shelves are best, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter.

Toys on an open shelf are inviting. A child can reach them without help, and can put them away (maybe with a little help!)

Don't use a toy chest. It may keep the toys out of sight and make the room look neat, but toys will get jumbled inside, parts will get lost, and worst of all, there is danger of the lid falling on the child's head or hands

Open toy shelves can be used to teach a child many things. You and the child can decide where each new toy will "belong." In this way you can help a child understand categories: blocks go here; cars, trains and trucks nearby. Balls and outdoor toys go here; books and records

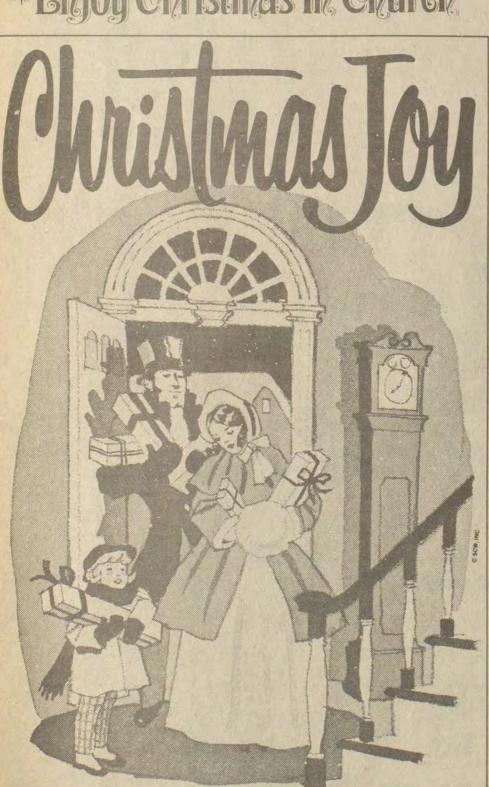

Later on, whenever a new toy is received, the child can figure out its category and where it should go. This kind of orderly thinking is helpful in learning mathematics and

To help a child remember where each toy goes, you can put a picture of it in the right place-either directly on the shelf or on the wall behind. As the child puts toys away, he will learn to match the toy to its picture. You can use the cover illustration if the toy came in a box, or take photos or make drawings. If you print the name of the toy near the picture, the child will get used to the idea that everything has a name. All these activities are pre-reading (While you are putting pictures of toy on the shelf, flatten out the part of the packaging that has the manufacturer's name and address, the toy name and model number. Having this information on file will make it much easier to order repair parts or return merchandise.

Putting toys away can be a learning game. One day you could suggest, "Let's put away all the red toys first,"

ALLEN LUMBER CO. ALLEN, KY.

And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night. And, lo, the angel of the Lord came upon them, and the glory of the Lord shone round about them; and they were sore afraid. And the angel said unto them, Fear not: for, behold, I bring you good tidings of great joy, which shall be to all people. For unto you is born this day in the city of David a Saviour, which is Christ the Lord. And this shall be a sign unto you; Ye shall find the babe wrapped in swaddling clothes, lying in a manger. And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace, good will toward men.

Peter Ustinov hosts the critically acclaimed TV adaption of the Royal Shakespeare Company's stage production, originally aired on Mobil Showcase last year. The Charles Dickens classic features 39 actors in 150 roles that Dickens wove into his 900-page account of the fortunes and misfortunes of his dauntless young hero, Nicholas Nickleby, and his sister Kate

The story begins when Nicholas is consigned by a miserly uncle to teach in a boarding school. Nicholas soon rebels against the harsh surroundings and sets out to seek his fortune with his companion, Smike. He joins a theatrical troupe and finally secures a position with a counting house. Depending on what your hobbies are and your ideas on recycling items, you undoubtedly have boxes or bags or piles or drawers of "goodies" you simply cannot part with. These can include ribbon from every gift received, mayonnaise jars for canning, newspaper for garden mulch, and of course, the proverbial aluminum foil and string collections.

And what do gardeners collect? If you peek in the corner of a basement or chen sink, you may find what I find each jungle size.

a couple of quick projects and a recipe to put some of that collection to good use? Clay pots are required so forget the plastic ones and scrounge from a friend if more are needed.

Small clay pots (one and one-half to three inches in diameter) are excellent for wind chimes. Tie beads or pebbles to lengths of string or yarn, then thread through the bottom hole of the pot so the pots hang upside down like bells. Tie the strings to lengths of branches (those covered with lichens add an interesting look), balancing for weight difference and varying string length. Be sure neighboring pots touch in order to get the chiming effect when the wind blows.

A Selection For Christmas

For all ages.

By PATTY DEMPSEY
In the midst of presents,
Christmas cards, wrappings and ribbons, there is a wonderful way to create a time of peace and quiet for the family. It is reading together as a family or tucked away in a corner by oneself
the stories of Christmas.

What better way to relax with the family, then to enjoy together the meaning of Christmas found in such stories as THE LITTLE ANGEL.

If there is a stocking still hanging empty, then a Christmas book would make a wonderful gift to be kept and enjoyed for Christmases to come.

A good place to inquire about the books listed below and others is your public

CHRISTMAS A BOOK OF STORIES OLD AND NEW, Selected by Alice Dalgliesh, Illustrated by Hildegard Woodward. Charles Scribners. A collection of Christmas stories. Good for reading aloud or telling.

CHRISTMAS IN THE STA-BLE by Astrid Lindgren, Illustrated by Harald Wiberg. Coward. "There was a Christmas long ago and far away." So, begins the mother as she tells her daughter of the first Christmas. Beautiful fullpage pictures.

CHRISTMAS TIME by Gail Gibbons, Holiday House. Brightly colored pictures with easy text on the traditions of Christmas.

A MERRY MOUSE CHRIST-MAS ABC by Priscilla Hellman. Doubleday. ABC rhymes with lovely, glowing pictures. All about Christmas!

LITTLE MOUSE NIBBLING by Tony Johnston, Drawings by Diane Stanley. Putnam. The story of a very shy little mouse who is afraid to go outside her home. A cricket helps her understand that "You must seek a friend to have a friend." Such a gentle story. THE LITTLE ANGEL by Charles Tazwell, Illustrated by Katherine Evans. Children's Press. One of the most beautiful of Christmas stories. The Littlest Angel's gift becomes a wondorus shining star because he gave it in

THE NIGHT AFTER CHRISTMAS by James Stevenson. Greenwillow. After all the gifts are opened, the old teddy bear and a doll are thrown away. A dog helps them to find new homes. A good story for after the holidays.

THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS by Clement C. Moore, Paintings by Grandma Moses. Random. Several artists have illustrated this well known poem, but Grandma Moses has added another lovely one filled with her paintings. It is a large book with lots of Christmasy, winter scenes.

'The Merry Widow' Ballet Special Slated On KET

"The Merry Widow," a beguiling, romantic ballet about a woman determined to recapture the lover she lost when she was young and poor, will air on KET Monday, December 26, at 8 p.m.

This television production of "The Merry Widow" is danced by the six principals and a 20-member corps from the New York City Ballet, costumed in elegant 19th century Parisian fashion. Featured are Patricia McBride, Peter Martins, Rebecca Wright, George de la Pena, Warren Conover and Larry Long. The musical score is performed by members of the Chicago Symphony Orchestra.

Based on the Franz Lehar operetta, "The Merry Widow" ballet has been captivating the dance world since its debut at Chicago's Lyric Opera House in November, 1955. The one-hour program includes an introduction by Ruth Page, the choreographer.

The plot of the ballet revolves around the efforts of the ambassador of a small German ducy, stationed in Paris, to persuade the young diplomat to marry a wealthy widow and save the duchy from bankruptcy.

"The Merry Widow" was produced by WTTW, Chicago.

IN THE SPIRIT OF THE SEASON...

The Best of Wishes for the Holiday Season and for always. May the Holiday Season find you feeling joyful for this is the most joyful of all seasons. . . . May you also find Peace in the meaning of Christmas.

Chimney fire - don't let it happen!

By Jay Hensley

A chimney fire sounds like a freight train and looks like the Fourth of July, but it's a lot more probable around Christmastime. Much like a firecracker, a fire in your flue is full of sound and fury and can be VERY dangerous. Which is why so many homes burn down during the holidays — shortly after piles of Christmas wrapping paper or evergreen branches are fed into fireplace or woodburning stove.

wood. The latter gives off less

In a damaged or deteriorating unlined flue, flames can reach out through cracks or mortarless joints in the chimney structure to set nearby combustibles on fire. Or the chimney itself can stay SO hot for SO long that it catches wood structure close to it on fire through simple heat conduction. Sparks or burning debris landing on the roof can total your house, even if you have a faultless flue.

What Causes It? Creosote, very flammable stuff that can burn with blastfurnace intensity, is the culprit. (Creosote PLUS homeowner ignorance and carelessness). Creosote is present in some of those volatile chemicals in the woodsmoke going up your chimney. It can condense into a dark, watery liquid that trickles back down the inside surface of a chimney and/or stovepipe. Some of it is burned off quickly and harmlessly, but some goes through further chemical change and forms a deposit that sticks like glue to flue walls and stovepipe. As this builds up, it becomes more

As it dries, some of that creosote peels off into curly tinder dry flakes of it piled up on smokeshelf or in stovepipe elbow, flames licking up the flue from a roaring fire can set it on fire. If stovepipe sections are not fastened securely together with sheet metal screws, the tremendous suction and force of the flue fire can rattle them apart and dump flaming creosote on the floor. If your chimney is not super-stout and the fire does not burn itself out quickly, the whole house is in danger.

creosote on flue walls and

If a chimney fire happens, get everyone out of the house and call the fire department. It's also good to keep a special chimney fire extinguisher or two on hand. Keep an ABC fire extinguisher on hand, too. and don't be without smoke detectors. After a fire, chimney needs cleaning and/or repairing; maybe even relining.

You can prevent chimney fires by making sure your flue is lined and in good repair, by having it inspected and cleaned on a regular basis, and by learning how to build the kind of fires that inhibit the build-up of creosote.

It's also important for your flue to be the right size for the stove or fireplace insert it serves. Most fireplace flues are of incorrect size (too big) and design to safely serve a solid-fuel appliance. That's why even a stout, lined fireplace flue often requires an inner lining that "direct connects" the stove clear to the top of the chimney.

MERRY CHRISTMAS! Be super careful in operating your stove or fireplace during the holidays, then call a chimney sweep to inspect your whole heating system as soon as possible

Plans Free Real Estate Tax Law Seminars

A series of free seminars on real estate tax laws will be conducted in eight Kentucky cities during January.

The seminars, titled "Real Estate Tax Law for the Real Estate Professional," are aimed primarily at real estate professionals, but are open to the public.

The dates, times and locations of some of the seminars closer to this area are:
Jan. 17, 9 to 11 a.m., Morehead State University, Crager Room, Adron Doran University Center, Morehead.

Jan. 18, 7 to 9 p.m., University of Kentucky Recital Hall, Center for the Arts, Rose Street and Euclid Avenue.

Jan. 24, 9 to 11 a.m., Howard Johnson's Restaurant, Exit 25-I75 and U.S. 25, Corbin.

Topics will include how to explain tax advantages to prospective homeowners and how to compare renting to buying. Participants will also learn how to present small investment properties such as duplexes and four-plexes. Information will also be given on how to keep your tax records so you will have to pay only those taxes required by law.

Registration forms for seminars can be obtained by calling (606) 257-4827, or by contacting Kentucky Real Estate Center, 303 Mathews Building, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky. 40506-0047.

The seminars are sponsored by the Kentucky Real Estate Education and Research Center and funded by Kentucky Real Estate Commission.

Christmas Trees Are Growing State Crop

Each year, Christmas tree shoppers in Kentucky are finding more trees that could bear the label "Grown in Kentucky.

The majority of trees that decorate Kentuckians' homes at Christmastime still are cut in Michigan and Wisconsin and transported southward. But an Extension specialist in forestry in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture says more Kentucky grown trees are hitting the market each year.

"Kentucky is a good state for Christmas tree growing,' reports Dr. Deborah B. Hill. 'Kentuckians are learning that the trees will grow on land that won't support other crops. They can be planted on slopes and in various soils, and the investment is relatively small.'

According to Hill's survey, Christmas tree growers are listed in 27 of the state's 120 counties. All sections of the state are represented-from Hickman County in western Kentucky to Greenup County in the northeast part of the

Some tree growers have not yet started harvesting trees while others already sell trees as nursery stock or retailers who set up tree lots. Several have "cut-your-own" opera-

Species vary from the very common Scots pine to white pine, Virginia pine and Doug-

Some growers start with one-year-old seedlings purchased for as little as $30-40 per 1,000 from the state Division of Forestry. Others prefer a head start with three or four-year-old seedlings which might cost $1-1.25 per tree.

Hill points out that since about 1,000 trees can be planted on an acre, and trees commonly sell for around $20 each at a cut-your-own farm, Christmas tree growing can be a financially rewarding endeavor with careful planning and proper management.

"Start-up costs can be moderate and, with careful planning, you could have a crop to market every year once trees begin to mature," said Hill.

The age of salable maturity of trees depends on the age of seedlings planted and the natural growth rate of the tree species, as well as on soil quality and climatic factors, notes the specialist. .

Hill emphasizes that Christmas trees are a labor intensive crop. "It's very important that people not get the idea that they can plant trees and leave them until harvest-management is very important," she stressed.

Hill lists several important points to consider before deciding to get into the Christmas tree business.

One is the age of stock to plant. "Although the initial cost of older stock is greater than the cost of stock from state nurseries, the trees probably will be ready to market much sooner than those from younger stock," explained

Under average Kentucky growing conditions, returns on investments should be available from 5-10 years after initial planting and probably every year thereafter, according to the specialist. She adds that new trees should be planted each year to provide an annual

The ground needs to be prepared for planting and trees planted early-preferably in March or April. Flat land is preferable because it makes mowing easier between rows

Tree seedlings can be planted by hand or by machine, but Hill says a good hand planter can plant almost as many trees per day as a person on a planting machine, particularly on steeper slopes. Seedlings should be planted a minimum of five feet by five

Depending on the species grown, regular pruning or shearing may be necessary to maximize the desired conical shape. Hill says some tree species require shearing or pruning only once a year, some twice and some none at

"It is important to be alert for insect and disease problems with foliage of trees, and with small mammals in Christmas tree plantations," said Hill. She suggests diversifying plantings because monocultures usually are more susceptible to such problems than mixed species

Once trees have become established, growers may want to add fertilizer or other additives to enhance needle color, or an antitranspirant can be applied to the foliage to prevent needles from drying out.

When trees are large enough to be cut-about five feet-growers can choose from several routes for marketing. Hill notes the three most common are (1) selling to wholesalers, (2) selling to retailers, or (3) selling direct to the customer on a cut-your-own basis.

"All three methods have their positive and negative aspects," said Hill, "but it is generally though that the cutyour-own method gives the greatest return on investment to the grower."

MSU Elderhostel Slated Jan. 15-21

Morehead State University's first winter Elderhostel is scheduled Jan. 15 through 21:

The Elderhostel is a program designed to provide a learning experience for people over 60 years-of-age, said George Eyster, director of the Division of Continuing Educa-

"This program filled up really fast. We'll probably have 19 states represented,' Eyster added.

In Memory of Our Dwayne

The vule tide season is here once again, And your absence has left us empty. The Christmas fun laughter, and cheer, Are no longer with us dear. We know your Christmas is better than

For you're in a better place. But we have your memories and you have our hearts, Although, you're far away. We placed an ornament in our tree, In Memory of you, Dwayne. It is an Angel dressed in white, Holding candles so pretty and bright. We put it there for all to see, And it lit up our Christmas tree. It lit up the Angel's face too, And Dwayne, that reminds us of you. Our hearts are holding the memories, As a candle holds the flame. If only the twinkling lights at night, Could take us back to better days. We miss your love, your eyes, the gleam That glistened from your smile. And anytime we stop and close our eyes. We can see you with your beautiful

Each day is passing and Christmas is

But it can never be the same, Our hearts are so empty, Without our darling Dwayne. Dwayne, you're in our every thought, On Christmas and every day.

We love you and miss you. DAD, MOM, RITCHIE, EDDIE AND RECILLA

Needs of Elderly Stressed By State During Holidays

FRANKFORT, KY.—Kentuckians who have seen more of Christmas past may be the very ones who most need a little of Christmas present. That's why the Cabinet for Human Resources is encouraging people to remember the state's 60,000 senior citizens, and the agencies that serve them, over the holidays.

Human Resources Secretary Al Austin said both public and private agencies providing services to older persons can use a little assistance in making the Christmas season brighter for their clients.

"Many of the programs and agencies funded by the cabinet already have holidays events or special projects planned and could now use some help in stretching their resources to meet their goals," Austin said. "This assistance could be anything from the offer of a few hours of holiday volunteer work, some inexpensive, gift-wrapped personal items, or a cash donation—all of which can be readily used to extend some caring to senior Kentuckians during the holidays."

Peggy Mooney of the cabinet's Division for Aging Services said, "Whether they are in a nursing home, confined to their own home or even make infrequent visits to a senior citizens center, many older Kentuckians face Christmas Day as just another day in a long succession of days marked by loneliness and barrenness. The agencies that provide senior services must get year-round use out of their available funding. A holiday donation of time, money or a small Christmas gift can truly make a difference and would be remembered beyond the holidays."

In some parts of Kentucky, senior citizens are using their holiday energies to extend the Christmas season to others. "In one area of northern Kentucky, clients and staff at the senior citizens centers went on a tour of nursing homes across the border in Ohio," Mooney said. "Donations received by these and other centers are being used to take Christmas plays, kazoo bands, choruses and baskets of fruit and candy to neighborhood nursing homes."

The Division of Aging Services offered these projects and/or ideas for the public to assist senior citizens programs over the holiday season:

*The Newport Adult Day Center operated by the Salvation Army, provides trained care for the frail elderly who cannot remain alone during the day. The center is in need of general items for holiday gifts such as slippers, make-up, cologne and after-shave lotion as well as specific items such as a record player, a new blood pressure set and a medical weighing scale. Needs for other adult day care programs may be determined by contacting the local center.

*Homecare is a program that provides health and social services to elderly citizens who are unable to leave their homes because of physical disability or illness. The Human Resources-funded program is looking for small, giftwrapped items as well as for individuals or groups interested in sponsoring some service to Homecare clients. Most communities in Kentucky are served by Homecare programs, and inquiries may be made be made through the Area Agency on Aging or a local senior citizens center.

*"Adopt a grandparent" is an idea developed by high school students who share their Christmas cheer by selecting the name of a person as an "adopted grandparent" and visiting the individual on Christmas Day, delivering a hot meal from the family table and just sharing the presence of a visit with someone who may not see anyone else on that special day. Information on this concept may also be obtained from the Area Agency on Aging.

*The Long-Term Care Ombudsman's Office in the cabinet is working to link civic groups around Kentucky with nursing homes in their communities or neighboring towns for visits to residents, Christmas caroling, and delivery of small, personal gifts. The ombudsman's office may be reached in Frankfort through a toll-free number, 1-800-372-2991.

Mooney noted there are many such services in communities across the state, and in most cases the agencies can use all the help they can get at any time of year, but especially at this time.

"The Christmas to New Year's Day period is a time of family and friends for most of us who can get out and around to visit and to just take in the spirit of the season. It is particularly important for those people who have shared the Christmas spirit for so many years not to be forgotten by the rest of us this year," she said.

Part of a series of messages from South Central Bell

What's going to happen to my phone service?

As of January 1, 1984, South Central Bell and other local Bell telephone companies will be separated from AT&T.

After divestiture, there will no longer be a Bell System as we know it today. But South Central Bell will still be your phone company. As part of a holding company called BellSouth, we'll continue to provide dependable service. For your home. And for your business.

Some things won't change.

Although there will be many changes, you'll notice very few unless you choose to change your existing home or business phone service. You'll still call on South Central Bell to order or change a phone line, to ask billing questions, to get local calling options and services and to obtain repair of phone lines. At the time of divestiture you'll still dial long distance calls the same way. And at first, you'll still get a single monthly bill.

Some things will change.

• Even though you'll dial calls the same, using the South Central Bell local network, South Central Bell will actually provide only a portion of your in-state long distance service. For other in-state and out-of-state long distance calls you can choose a primary supplier of long distance service from a variety of companies.

- As part of the many pricing changes brought about by competition and divestiture, local phone rates are likely to go up, and long distance rates will probably come down.
- Phones you currently lease will become the property of AT&T (you'll lease from them) and they will be responsible for repair of those sets.
- Responsibility for repair will be split between South Central Bell (for phone line problems) and equipment suppliers (for equipment and set problems).
- There will be some changes in the way your monthly phone bill is set up.

Coping with change.

At South Central Bell we're continuing to do everything we can to make these changes as easy as possible for you. And nothing will change the high quality of service you've come to expect from us.

You'll be hearing more about specific changes and what they mean to you in other ads like this — and in your monthly phone bill insert. Meanwhile, if you have questions or want more information, return the coupon below. Or call on us at the Bell Answer Center, toll free 1 800 555-5000, 11 a.m. till midnight EST, Monday through Friday.

ough Friday. We're still your phone company.

Like the Wise Men of old, let us bring our gifts before the Holy Child. May the star of that first Christmas night guide us all with its holy light to peace on earth.

Christmas Plants Need Special Care

Oh, how lovely! You got a red-flowered azalea, a delicate pink-flowered cyclamen, a purple gloxinia or a giantflowered amaryllis as a Christmas gift. Sure perks up the house and your spirits

Well, just wait! Your hothouse lovelies don't like the typical home environment. Give it a month and the azalea may be dropping not only flowers but also leaves, and the cyclamen or gloxinia will be collapsing into a lifeless heap. Now what do you think of that generous gift?

Before you ruin a friendship by dumping your faded posey on the icy compost pile, learn what you can and can't do, should or shouldn't expect, with holiday gift plants.

The azalea: First, it was grown and forced to bloom in a greenhouse. It isn't hardy so don't plant it outside. Keep it warm, in bright light and well watered. Pinch back the tips once the flowers die.

The poinsettia: Much work has greatly improved poinsettias. Leaves and colored bracts (modified leaves) persist longer. Keep it warm, moist and fed in bright sun. Prune back in late spring and move outside in summer. Put on short day regime (no artificial night light) starting in early October to color for next

The chrysanthemem: Like the azalea, it was forced and is not hardy enough for outdoors. Keep in full sun, cool

Take cuttings in summer. force flowers next winter with a short-day regime.

The amaryllis: This is a flower produced from a large bulb. The flower spike and large flowers develop first, then fade as leaves grow. While flowering, keep in bright light and moist. Cut the flower stem out when the flowers die, and water and feed the leaves. Put out for the summer, then allow to dry and rest for fall. Pot up and water four to six weeks before Christmas next year.

The gloxinia: It grows in cycles and is hard to keep. Keep in a cool, bright, humid location and keep well watered until leaves yellow. Gradually stop watering, let tuber rest dry eight to twelve weeks and then water and fertilize to get a new cycle of leaves and flowers.

The cyclamen: Cyclic growth like gloxinians. Treat

The kalanchoe: These can easily be grown and propagated. Cut off dead flower heads, give full sun and water only when dry. Put outside for summer and prune back. Put on short day regime in fall.

The ornamental pepper: Generally a throw-away once fruits fall. Give filtered sunlight, warm temperatures and keep soil damp.

The Christmas cactus: Expect the flowers to drop and generally not rebloom. Keep

Hunting, Fishing Licenses Suggested As Holiday Gifts

1984 hunting and fishing licenses are available at county clerks' offices and designated outlets throughout Kentucky, according to officials of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife.

The 1983 license expire December 31 and sportsmen are encouraged to purchase all necessary licenses, stamps, and permits as early as possible. One way to insure that the sportsman in the family hunts and fishes legally is to give licenses and stamps as Christmas gifts.

Another gift idea and of special interest to sportsmen and stamp collectors this year is the 14th Kentucky trout stamp. The 1984 trout stamp features the painting of a rainbow trout submitted by Texas wildlife artist Tony Bennett in the nationwide trout stamp design contest held by the Department of Fish and Wildlife this past March. Since this is the first trout stamp to feature such a design, stamp collectors may want to make sure they have one or more of the stamps to add to their collections. The serially numbered stamps are 11/2" x 21/4" and are available singly, in books of ten or pages of five and the cost is $3.50 per stamp in any

An edition of fine art prints, limited to 950 is also being issued featuring the winning trout stamp design. The 61/2"x9" prints are signed and numbered by the artist and come with a trout stamp of corresponding number. They are available through any fine art dealer which normally carries Paul Sawyier prints or may be purchased directly from Paul Sawyier Galleries, Route 3, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Timely Tip: Since gardeners are big recyclers, why put your Christmas tree out as trash after Christmas? Recycle it in one of several ways. If you have a shredder, shred it for mulch. If you have strawberries, pull the branches off and use them to hold winter straw mulch in place. If you like birds, position it near a window and string with popcorn. If you like wildlife, put it in a wooded area for their use as a protective habi-

Dr. Mary Hall Retains Membership in AAFP

Dr. Mary Hall, of McDowell, has completed continuing education requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians, the national association of family doctors. The Academy formerly was called the American Academy of General Practice.

The requirements call for the members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years. Members become eligible for re-election at the end of the third year following their election to membership. The Academy, the country's second largest national medical association, was the first national medical group to require members to keep up with medical progress through continuing education.

The Academy, founded in 1947 and headquartered in Kansas City, Mo., was instrumental in the establishment of a new primary specialty in family practice in 1969. The new specialty is expected to increase the numbers of family physicians available to serve the public in the future. The Academy's continuing education program is the foundation of eligibility for the family doctors now in practice who apply for certification in the new specialty.

State Warns Parents Of Toys Containing High Lead Levels

While toy monsters are meant to be menacing in appearance only, the Cabinet for Human Resources has found some potential health hazards in a few "prehistoric creatures" being sold in Kentucky stores.

The potential problem stems from the levels of lead in the paint used to add color to the toy monsters. Edsel Moore of the cabinet's Radiation and Consumer Product Safety Branch said laboratory tests in Frankfort revealed that painted surfaces on these toys contained more than the maximum percentage of lead considered safe by state and federal standards.

One such toy is a large flying monster included in a boxed set called "Fighting Glowgons." The set is imported from Hong Kong by Arco. Moore said his office has asked Arco to recall all sets distributed to Kentucky. The company has agreed to do so.

High lead levels also have been found in giant rubber insects labeled "Big Bugs" and distributed by Ben Cooper, Inc. These also are imported, said Moore, and a recall will begin when all tests are completed, probably within the next few days.

Several "Giant Prehistorics" from Hong Kong also were found to contain more than the allowable level of lead. Moore's office is working with retailers, a Louisville distributor and a New York importer to have the toys removed from sale. Moore said the "Giant Prehistorics" toys carry no trademark or label that consumers can identify, but they are marked as being from Hong

"We have learned that other kinds of animals may also be involved, and we're working to determine the scope of the problem," said Moore. "Not all rubber animals or monsters contain high levels of lead, but right now I would advise parents to be wary of any painted toy of that type made in Hong Kong if a child under age 3 will have access to it."

His office has notified consumer safety counterparts in neighboring states and the regional office of the U.S. Consumer Product Safety Commission about the lead levels found in the imported toys.

Moore said the high level content is a potential problem only when the lead-base paint gets into a child's mouth. "The toys we tested are not so high in lead that they pose an immediate threat," said Moore, "but they do have lead in excess of the .06 percent standard. Therefore, we want to be safe and protect young children who might chew on these toys and get the lead into their systems."

Children under age 3 are extremely susceptible to any heavy metal, he said, and high levels of lead in the bloodstream can lead to malnutrition, anemia and mental retardation.

During August and September, Moore's office coordinated inspections of toy manufacturers, wholesalers and distributors in Kentucky. In November a survey included examination of 10,800 toys and children's products at 141 retail firms in 40 Kentucky counties. The imported monsters with excess lead content were the only toys found to be out of compliance with safety standards. However, Moore is awaiting lab reports on two imported wooden toys suspected of having high lead levels. He also is consulting with regional officials in Atlanta on two objects, a pacifier and a friendship pin, which may not be labeled according to consumer safety standards.

"The fact that we found relatively few exceptions to those standards indicates to me that efforts of state and federal agencies and the cooperation of American toy manufacturers have made a significant impact," said Moore. "Most of the toys on retail shelves today are safe when used as intended."

Moore urges consumers to call his office at (502) 564-4537 if they feel they have purchased one of the monsters covered with lead paint or if they question the safety of any toy or children's product.

Christmas Day Specials On KET

KET presents the sounds of the season with Christmas Day musical specials. The syncopated sounds of horns and drums with the excitement of precision marching are featured on "The Festival of Champions," airing at 2 p.m. on KET. The marching band competition, inaugurated seven years ago at Murray State University, is an invitation-only and Tennessee.

Next, at 3:30 p.m., KET airs one of the most unique and joyous events of the holiday season, "The Sing-It-Yourself Messiah." Three thousand San Francisco Bay area music lovers will gather in the beautiful San Francisco Conservatory of music for what has become a holiday tradition as the audience becomes the choir, accompanied by the Conservatory Orchestra.

Host for the two-hour program is Bill Triest. Intermission will feature a look at the San Francisco Conservatory of Music's educational programs, as seen through the eyes of its students. Two hundred students train there for careers in opera, symphonic music and the concert stage.

Then, John Williams and the Boston Pops Orchestra team up with a very special guest from the North Pole on "Christmas at the Pops," airing at 8 p.m. The Boston Boys Choir and the Tanglewood Festival Chorus present a medley of inspirational Christmas carols by composer Alfred Burt and the audience joins in the fun with a singalong of traditional holiday carols.

"The Festival of Champions" is produced by Murray State University Television. "Sing-It-Yourself Messiah" is produced by KQED, San Francisco. "Christmas at the Pops" is a production of WGBH, Boston.
