

DESPITE THE POLITICAL and legal battles won in recent years by handicapped persons—public buildings now commonly provide entrances accessible by wheelchair and set aside parking spaces for vehicles bearing the handicapped driver's special license plate—public awareness of their rights still apparently leaves something to be desired.

Like other parking spaces set aside in Prestonsburg for the disabled, a handy spot in front of the county courthouse is frequently used by drivers without obvious infirmity. A truck carrying three able-bodied Prestonsburg Utilities Commission workers occupied the spot when this picture was taken Monday.

Last Rites for Perkins Draw Throng to Hindman

The small town of Hindman has for generations been an interesting place for many—first, as the scene of a mountain feud, then as an early educational center, and, still later, as the birthplace and hometown of Carl Perkins.

Since the death last Friday of Congressman Perkins the little town has in sad fashion gained new prominence. The news media has focused upon it, and the grief spilled out by thousands in every walk of life has been centered there.

For two days, Sunday and Monday, Hindman streets were crowded as hundreds made their way to the Morton Combs Complex of Knott County High School where the body of the veteran legislator lay in state.

And yesterday (Tuesday) morning House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, Jr. led a delegation of approximately 100 congressmen and federal officials attending Congressman Perkins' funeral. These were joined by Gov. Martha Layne Collins, other state, district and county officials—and hundreds of sorrowing Eastern Kentuckians who spoke simply of losing their best friend.

The service was conducted by the Rev. Archie Everage, pastor of the Montgomery Baptist Church, and the Rev. J.S. Bell, interim pastor of the First Baptist Church of Hindman, and was directed by the Hindman Funeral Home. The eulogy was delivered by Congressman William H. Natcher, of Bowling Green, and O'Neill spoke at the service. (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Student Ratings On Tests Better

County Moves Up in Standings Of Ky. Districts

Whatever it means—school officials were cautious in their claims this week—the four grades of Floyd school children who were given a state-required achievement test this spring scored higher than students who took the test last year.

Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr., who remains cool to the idea of pitting the state's school districts against each other in a kind of academic derby, nevertheless expressed quiet satisfaction in Floyd's improved ranking. "We're happy to be making progress," he said. "Our people worked hard on these."

On a battery of tests designed to measure their reading, spelling, language and math skills, Floyd third and seventh grades did better than the national average this year. And although fifth and 10th graders are still below the national norm, their scores show some improvement over last year's.

When compared with other Kentucky school districts, Floyd likewise improved its position, with third and fifth graders somewhat ahead and seventh and 10th graders slightly behind the state median. This county also compared favorably with its neighbors.

Homeowners Protest New Tipple Permit

A bid by owners of a controversial Ligon tipple to obtain a state permit for the plant drew spirited opposition from Ligon and Melvin residents at a hearing here Tuesday.

The Left Beaver Coal Company, a subsidiary of Turner Elkhorn Mining Company, is seeking a permit from the state Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet (NREPC) for its coal-washing plant on Clear Creek. Tuesday's "fact-finding" hearing, held at the Prestonsburg office of NREPC's surface mining division, was designed to allow "citizen participation" in the permitting process, said Hearing Officer Martin Cunningham.

About a dozen homeowners turned out to voice their opposition to the plant and some brought affidavits signed by their neighbors. They don't want Left Beaver Coal Company's permit to be renewed, they said, because runoff from huge gob piles generated by its 12-year-old plant has already contaminated some wells, the waste piles and settling ponds are themselves a threat to nearby homes, and truck traffic leaves the Clear Creek road a ribbon of sludge in winter and a source of choking dust in summer.

Free Fingerprint Record Offered Here, Saturday

Parents are being urged by the Prestonsburg Police Department to bring their children to the municipal building, here Saturday to get a permanent record of their fingerprints to be kept by the parents.

Concern is growing across the country in regard to missing children, and this free fingerprint record could prove invaluable should it ever be needed. The procedure, which takes only a few minutes, will be available starting at 10 a.m., Saturday.

Parents and children are invited also to meet members of the Prestonsburg Police Department, and see a demonstration by the Crisis Intervention Tactical Team while there.

According to Sgt. Sue Blackburn, this could be one of the most important things that parents can do for their children before school starts.

Hearing of Suit Asked To Settle Debtor Identity

The question of whether a $35,000 debt to the First Commonwealth Bank is owed by John C. and Birchell Hall as individuals or by the firm—Hall Brothers Funeral Home, in Martin—in which they were once partners should be settled by the court without further delay, an attorney for the bank argued recently.

But Betty Keathley Hall, Birchell's ex-wife and a shareholder in the old firm, wants the case put off until after the trial—scheduled to begin next Monday—of a suit she filed against the two brothers in 1979.

William S. Kendrick, for First Commonwealth, argued that in June, 1978 the Hall brothers borrowed $35,168 to operate their funeral home, that the note was renewed several times, most recently in September, 1980, and that the money is still due—a position with which John Hall agrees.

As Result of Bidding...

Twice the Insurance At Half Former Cost

Twice the coverage at half the cost. That's what the Floyd school board got as a result of its decision this year to advertise for bids on insuring school property.

In a repeat of a lesson learned a month ago with respect to insurance on the school bus fleet, the board discovered when property insurance bids were opened at its monthly meeting last Wednesday that the state Education Department gave good advice earlier this year. State officials urged local boards to let many companies compete for their insurance business rather than simply negotiate with a few chosen firms.

Of four companies submitting bids on the Floyd schools' $53 million property insurance package, the successful bidder was the Kentucky School Board Inurance Trust, which offered to insure the property for an annual premium of $20,170. The firm, which is operated on behalf of the Kentucky School Boards Association, insures school buildings for more than 60 of the state's school districts.

Other companies and the bids they submitted were: Walter P. Walters, of Pikeville, $29,720; Darby and Allen, of Allen, $48,420; and Burnett and Associates, Lexington, $129,135.

All policies required the school district to pay the first $10,000 of any property loss. For a slightly higher premium, $23,077, the low bidder offered to reduce the deductible to $1000—an option the board took. Floyd paid a $53,000 premium last year, for about half the coverage provided in the new contract, said Board Treasurer Ray Brackett.

The board awarded without bids contracts for flood insurance, workers' compensation, and insurance on high-risk and relocatable buildings to the Big Sandy Insurance Agency, in Martin. The workers' compensation contract was later assigned to Kentucky School Board Insurance Trust, however. Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr., whose brother-in-law, Julius Martin, is part-owner of Big Sandy Insurance, said the contracts were let without bids because insurance firms usually quote similar prices in those categories.

In July, the board contracted with the Walter P. Walters Insurance Agency, of Pikeville, the lowest of four bidders on coverage of the school district's 89-bus (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Classroom Limit Set At 31; New Regs Voted

A change in the way auto license taxes are collected—which meant an early infusion of $127,283 into the school system—helped the Floyd school district end the year in the black, Treasurer Ray Brackett told the board last week in his annual financial report.

The board approved a four percent pay raise for the school district's non-certified employees—including cooks, custodians, mechanics, clerks and drivers—their first raise in two years.

In line with standards set by the state legislature earlier this year, the board set a classroom limit of 29 students in kindergarten through grade three, 31 in grades four through 12. In order to stay within those limits, school principals were authorized to restrict enrollment to pupils living in areas traditionally served by their schools and on the school bus route.

Overcrowding at the Clark and Harold grade schools has been attributed in the past to the number of students attending those schools from outside the immediate community. Under the board policy adopted last week, "outsiders" need not be enrolled this year unless they attended the school last year or already have a sibling enrolled at the school.

State law provides for classes of up to 35 where the school superintendent makes a written request to be exempted from the new size limits. The request is supposed to include specific reasons for the larger classes and a plan for reducing them.

Other board policies adopted last week provide for a uniform method of grading students and for clearer graduation procedures. A plan proposed by high school counselors for the ranking of students and the selection of valedictorians and salutatorians was adopted.

On the recommendation of high school principals, the board said students may not participate in graduation exercises unless they have at least 17 of the required 18 credits and be enrolled in a correspondence course which will make up the credit lacking. For 1987 graduates, 20 credits will be required for graduation.

Eligible students must take part in the graduation exercises unless they are excused by the school principal. With the superintendent's approval, a principal may ban a student from participating in the ceremony "if (the student's) conduct is such that it will bring discredit to the graduating class or school."

Students and their parents must be notified by the principal in writing by the (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

A JAR OF MURKY WATER in front of him, Palmer Humphrey, of Clear Creek, charged Tuesday that the operation of a coal-washing facility there has contaminated the water supply. Humphrey was one of a dozen Ligon and Melvin residents who attended a hearing held at their request by the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, which is considering a permit application by the Left Beaver Coal Company, operators of the notorious plant.

Chris Perkins May Be Choice To Fill Vacancy

State Rep. Chris Perkins, of Leburn, apparently is the odds-on choice to succeed his father, the late Congressman Carl D. Perkins.

Support of the younger Perkins for the post was indicated by several members of the Seventh district Democratic executive committee even before Congressman Perkins' funeral was held Tuesday.

Under party rules the executive committee will name a candidate to run for the unexpired term at a special election to be held as quickly as possible. It may, at the same time, name a candidate to run at the regular November election. The Republican party may go the same route in picking a candidate for the special election but it will be represented in the November voting for the full two-year term by Aubrey Russell, of Ashland, who was nominated at the May primary.

The governor, under the constitution, may appoint a successor to a U.S. Senator, but the constitution provides that a U.S. Representative must be elected, not appointed.

Chris Perkins declined to discuss the political situation prior to his father's funeral.

Attend Graduation In South Carolina

Oscar and Sue Ratliff, of Betsy Layne, are in Charleston, South Carolina, this week to attend the graduation of their daughter, Clisandra Lynn, who will receive her masters degree from The Citadel on August 10.

Miss Ratliff, is a graduate of Betsy Layne High School. She attended Pikeville College, the University of Kentucky, and she received her B.S. degree from the Medical University of South Carolina in Charleston.

She is a registered ASCP Cytotechnologist and formerly was employed at the Pikeville Methodist Hospital with Dr. William Buckley, pathologist, prior to returning to graduate school.

Her maternal grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Willard Ratliff, of Lexington, and paternal grandparents are Hattie Y. Ratliff and the late H.B. Ratliff, of Pikeville.

Clark Graduation Also Marks 20th Anniversary of School

Graduation exercises at Clark School on June 7 marked the completion of its 20th year. It also marked the 20th anniversary at the school of principal John K. Pitts and teacher Wanda Allen, Edna Davis, Delphia Hicks, Nadine Hicks, Pauline Hicks, Edith Jones, Nola Slone, and Mildred Whitaker.

The 75 graduating eighth graders wore caps and gowns, and diplomas were presented by Mr. Pitts, with the assistance of eighth grade teachers, Judy Carter and Earl Ousley.

Parents and friends of graduating students filled Clark's gymnasium. Several of the parents in the audience, who watched their children graduate, had attended Clark in its earlier years.

Michael Joseph Rosenberg, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Rosenberg was valedictorian, and Katherine Janet Mattox, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Mattox was salutatorian. The outstanding history student prize was presented to Ronnie Sheridan Baldrige, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ronnie Baldrige.

Other participants included eighth graders Meredith Click, hostess, Michelle Renee Robinson and Ronnie Sheridan Baldrige, class prophecy; Melissa Sue Rowland and David Ross Stanford, class will; Melanie Ann Adams, class poem; and songs by Phoebe Michelle Bradley, Kimberly Elena Fleming and Nyla Jean Ross.

Mr. Pitts also presented special certificates to eighth grade participants in the talented and gifted program; to eighth graders who qualified for the presidential fitness awards, and to eighth grade students who had perfect attendance during the year.

Ushers were seventh graders, Elizabeth Carol Hamm, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Hamm, and Connie Leann Spencer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Darvin Spencer.

Most of the Clark graduates will attend Prestonsburg High School, while a few who live within school bus routes will follow family tradition to attend Allen Central High School.

Congenital Syndrome Not Linked To Vaccine For Measles, Study Says

ATLANTA—The national Centers for Disease Control have announced new findings confirming their conclusion that there is no link between rubella vaccine and congenital rubella syndrome.

The CDC said Friday that a survey of pregnant women who received rubella vaccine and their children showed no defects compatible with the syndrome in the babies. The findings support other results announced last year.

Since a new rubella vaccine was licensed in 1979, the disease-control agency has reviewed reports of 555 pregnant women who received it.

There were 121 babies born to women susceptible to rubella, and 338 born to women of unknown immune status; all were free of the congenital syndrome, the agency said.

Becomes Bride of Mr. Vaughn

The marriage of Donna McMurtry and Joseph Vaughn was solemnized at Immanuel Baptist Church, Paducah, Ky., Saturday evening, June 12, with the Rev. Steve Freeman officiating at the double-ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles McMurtry, of Calvert City, Ky. The bride's mother is the former Clante Stamper, of Prestonsburg, and the granddaughter of the late Mrs. Sarah Joseph and the late Frank Stamper, of Prestonsburg. The groom is the son of the late Dr. J.F. Vaughn and the grandson of Lillian Vaughn, also of Paducah.

With a formal candlelight ceremony, wedding selections were delivered by Steve Clark, organist, and Mike Edwards, soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a candlelight gown of taffeta with organza overlay featuring a ruffled Queen Anne neckline and sheer organza sleeves. The fitted bodice was adorned in Chantilly lace, schiffle embroidery and pearls.

The mother of the bride chose a baby blue floor-length formal overlaid with chiffon and adorned with pearls. The mother of the groom chose a mauve-colored two-piece suit.

The maid of honor was Karen Davenport. Bridesmaids were Cindy Cosby and Angela Henson. Flower girls were Jennifer Johnston and Emily Vaughn. Jane Henson kept the guest register.

Wayne Hack served as best man, and the groomsmen were Trent Johnston and Eddie Holley. Ushers were Jimmy McMurtry and Tommy McMurtry, and the ringbearer was Nathan Vaughn.

Following the wedding ceremony, a reception was held at the church, with Selah Banks, Gail Pickard, Lucinda Rudd, and Martha Hoggood serving. Following the reception, the couple left for a honeymoon trip to St. Maarten Island in the West Indies.

Mr. and Mrs. Vaughn reside in Paducah, Ky.

Illinois School Age

The Illinois state board unanimously approved a proposal requiring students to attend school until age 18 (if they haven't earned a diploma), raising the mandatory school age by two years. At age 16, students can request optional education programs.

Weight-Loss Machines Won't Do the Job, Says Extension Specialist

Listening to Cathy Peterjohn denounce weight-loss machines, one can almost picture John Houseman saying, "You lose weight the old-fashioned way, you BURN it off."

"No form of passive exercise is effective in weight loss," Peterjohn said. "Rolling machines do not remove or redistribute fat. Vibrating belts do not break down fat. Vibrating tables do not improve posture. Massage is absolutely useless for fat reduction. And electric stimulators can be lethal."

Peterjohn is an Extension program specialist for Food and Nutrition in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. In a recently published brochure on Food and Fitness, Peterjohn answered several frequently asked questions about diet, weight control and nutrition.

One symptom of middle age that seems to mystify many people is how an unchanged diet suddenly leads to weight gain.

"This is called 'middle-age, creeping obesity,' and is common for a couple of reasons. First, as you grow older you become less active, so you burn fewer calories. Second, your metabolism slows down and your body uses fewer calories to keep your heart pumping, food digesting, nerves firing and so on. It has been estimated that for every decade past age 20, there is a 10 percent reduction in the resting calorie requirements," Peterjohn said.

People who want to lose weight will have to reduce their intake or increase their activity. Peterjohn suggests doing both.

"As you become older you should eat less and exercise more. A total fitness program should include exercises for flexibility, muscle strength, muscle endurance and aerobic exercises," Peterjohn said.

Aerobic exercises strengthen the heart, lungs and circulatory system. To be effective, they should be done at a brisk pace, sustained for at least 20 minutes, and repeated at least three times a week, Peterjohn said.

Brisk walking, swimming, jogging, hiking and jumping rope are among the aerobic exercises Peterjohn recommends.

vice. Another congressional colleague, Rep. William G. Hefner, D-N. C., a former gospel music promoter, sang "How Great Thou Art."

A military service was conducted at the graveside in the family cemetery on the Perkins farm near Leburn.

All offices in the courthouse here were closed for the funeral.

News of Congressman Perkins' passing was received here with the deep sorrow that pervaded the Seventh district, and expressions of regret were voiced from all sections of the nation. Flags over the Capitol in Washington and the state capitol at Frankfort were at half-mast, as were flags here at the courthouse, the post office and city hall. The elderly, the poor, wage-earners, retired workers—the thousands whom the Congressman had helped with their personal problems—perhaps voiced the deepest regret.

Perkins died at the age of 71. Fayette county officials indicated he may have been dead of a massive heart attack when his plane from Washington sat down shortly before noon last Friday at Bluegrass Field, Lexington. He had suffered other attacks—the most recent, only a week earlier when he was a patient briefly at Walter Reed Hospital in Washington. But, characteristically, he was back at work in a few days, and he was on his way back to this district, to visit a school at Blackey, Letcher county, perhaps to attend to other constituents' needs, when the fatal seizure came.

Thus ended 35 years of service in the U.S. House of Representatives. He was in his 18th term and was generally conceded re-election to his 19th term next November.

During those 35 years he had established a notable record, becoming chairman of the powerful House Education and Labor Committee and the designer of much of the legislation which has affected the lives of millions of young people in schools and colleges, the elderly in retirement, coal miners affected by the occupational disease commonly known as "black lung," and workers at their jobs. His last legislative victory came when he maneuvered the "equal access" bill for student worship to passage.

Carl Dewey Perkins was born Oct. 15, 1912, in Hindman, the son of James Elbert Perkins, a lawyer, and Dora Calhoun Perkins, a schoolteacher.

After graduating from Knott county grade schools and Hindman Settlement School, Perkins attended Caney Junior College, now known as Alice Lloyd College, of Pippa Passes. He then became a teacher in the Knott county school system, riding a horse to school five miles over a mountain each day for a monthly salary of $59.60.

He married Verna Johnson, who also was a teacher, and they have one son, State Representative Chris Perkins, of Leburn. Other survivors are two sisters, Bevie Pratt, of Hindman, and Reatha Perkins, of West Corina, California.

He took evening classes at the old Jefferson School of Law (now part of the University of Louisville), graduated in 1935, and began practicing law.

Perkins' only political defeat was at the hands of Dan Martin when he ran for County Attorney. It was his first venture in politics.

He first held public office in 1939, when he was appointed to complete an unexpired term as commonwealth's attorney. The next year he served in the Kentucky House of Representatives. A year later he was elected Knott county attorney.

His legal and political career was interrupted in 1943, when he entered the Army as a private. Perkins fought in battles in northern France, the Ardennes, the Rhineland and in central Europe. He was a sergeant when he was discharged from the Army in 1945.

Perkins was re-elected county attorney and was serving as assistant state attorney general and chief counsel for the state Highway Department in 1948 when he took a leave of absence to run for Congress.

fleet, for an annual premium of $26,775. Last year the board paid $35,000 for much less coverage.

State law does not require that school districts advertise for competitive bids on insurance, and Floyd school officials argued last year that the school district is better served by dealing with local firms.

In response to questions raised with state officials by a citizens' group last summer—the Floyd County Citizens Education Council wanted to know why insurance coverage cost so much and why the bulk of the business went to a firm with which the superintendent was connected—Floyd officials said that negotiating directly with local firms results in better service and a "good working relationship."

The fact that the superintendent's brother-in-law is part-owner of Big Sandy Insurance does not lessen the fact that that firm "provides for excellent service and coverage," the Floyd officials contended. In any event, state conflict-of-interest laws apply only to board members, not the superintendent, they pointed out.

The board agreed to advertise for bids, however, after a recent state survey showed that school districts which did not seek bids were paying a lot more for insurance than those which did.

Ten Years Ago

(August 7, 1974)

Gov. Wendell H. Ford announced last Thursday that Floyd county will receive $297,272 in surplus coal severance tax revenues for the 1973-74 fiscal year. The new $439,899 bridge which spans the Big Sandy at Emma is only a few weeks away from its opening. For one of the few times in its long history, Prestonsburg was obliged this week to advertise for city employees. With the coal industry offering high wages for truck drivers, the fire department has lost three regular firemen. Because the lowest of two bids offered on construction of a physical education building at Martin Elementary School and the renovation of the existing classroom building there was $160,000 above the architect's estimate, the bid was rejected at last Wednesday's joint meeting of the Fiscal Court and the Floyd County Board of Education. In a sudden reversal of position, Sen. Marlow Cook last Thursday asked the Senate to restore in a public works bill construction funds for the Paintsville Dam project that he previously had predicted would be "the largest oil slick in the world." Anthony Moore, Allen Central 4-H Club member, won the senior championship in the state 4-H vegetable judging contest held last week at the U.K. Robinson Experiment Station. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Budge Moore, of Garrett. There died: Henry C. Stephens, 83, former Prestonsburg banker and county official, early Tuesday at a nursing home, here; John Tandy Scalf, 84, of Middletown, O., formerly of Prestonsburg, Saturday in a hospital, there; Mrs. Flora May Wheatley Layne, 88, of Buena Park, Calif., formerly of Prestonsburg, last Thursday in Buena Park; Ruth Ann Moore, four-year-old daughter of Benny Lee and Daphne Martin Moore, of Pippa Passes, Thursday in St. Jude Hospital, Memphis, Tenn.; Mrs. Lizzie Hall, 82, of Banner, Friday at a nursing home, here; Sherman Adams, 74, of Brainard, last Wednesday at a nursing home, here.

Twenty Years Ago

The old was giving way to the new this week as Floyd county's sagging, old courthouse was being vacated by county offices which are being moved across Third street into the new courthouse, now being completed. Francis E. Harmon, Jr., was appointed general superintendent of the Princess Elkhorn Coal Division, Princess Coals, Inc., at David, it was announced recently. Ralph Bailey Johnson, 25, of Bypro, who was rendered unconscious in an auto-truck collision on Abner Mountain near Wheelwright, December 11, 1957, died Wednesday of last week at the Frenchburg hospital. He had been unconscious for six and a half years. Elimination of two curves on U.S. 23 from Prestonsburg to Lancer, is planned as a forthcoming highway project. The proposed work would correct the right-angle turn at the Pure Oil Station on South Lake Drive here and the Ball Alley curve. The Floyd County Fish & Game Club has purchased a 54-acre tract of land on Johns Branch of Right Beaver Creek on which it will erect a clubhouse and where it will center its program of annual activities. There died: John Hager, 71, of East Point, Monday at a Winchester, Ky. hospital; James Labon Simpson, 81, of Prestonsburg, Wednesday at the Methodist hospital, Pikeville; Mrs. Mary Scott, 87, Saturday at her home at Garrett; Mrs. Nancy Hicks, 75, formerly of Garrett, Wednesday of last week at Covington; Woodrow R. Mullins, 52, formerly of Garrett, Sunday at his home at Alger, Ohio; Mrs. Martha Hicks, 66, native of Floyd county, last Tuesday at her home at Phelps.

Carl D. Perkins, Democrat, and Curtis Clark, Republican, each won his party's nomination for the Seventh district seat in Congress next November by a large majority in last Saturday's primary. The firm of Akers & Akers expects to begin work Monday on the state office building here. Figures released this week by J.R. (Red) Weaver, Dewey reservoir manager, show that 316,875 persons visited the impoundment during the first seven months of this year. The $445,000 high school building here is approximately two-thirds complete, the contractors, Akers & Akers said this week. The Winnie F. Johns Dogwood Trail Project, designed to establish a "living memorial" to Floyd county's war dead, was formally organized Monday evening. Born: to Congressman and Mrs. Carl D. Perkins, Washington, D.C., August 6, a son, Carl Christopher. There died: Joseph D. Harkins, Jr., 41, Prestonsburg attorney, Sunday at Johns Hopkins hospital, Baltimore, Maryland; Mrs. Mary Hackworth, 85, Sunday at Bonanza; Mrs. Liza Hall, 57, Wednesday at Betsy Layne; Mrs. Mose Evans, of Grethel, last Thursday in a Huntington, West Virginia hospital; Adam Stanley, formerly of Ivel, Sunday at Columbus, Ohio; Mrs. William Woods, 63, of Prestonsburg, Friday at Prestonsburg General hospital.

Forty Years Ago

(August 10, 1944)

Thirteen Floyd casualties are reported from the war fronts: Chester Johnson, of Halo, killed in Saipan, Sgt. Charles Robert Marshall, of Martin, missing after a flight over Germany; Pvt. Harold H. Fitzpatrick, of Martin, missing since D-Day; Dewey Conn, of Printer, missing in France; a son of Mrs. Irene Ball, of Minnie, missing; Sgt. Willie Rice, of Banner, a prisoner of war; wounded—Sgt. Jeff DeRossett, of Sloan, Woodrow Stephens, of Water Gap, Arbie Picklesimer, of Prestonsburg, Carl Humble, Jr., of Dwaile, Pfc. Paul Burton, of Auxier, Pvt. Cleveland Hall, formerly of McDowell, Sgt. Jimmie N. Hall, of Banner. The prestonsburg City Council, which a month ago voted juke boxes back in, last Monday night voted them back out again. William Honeycutt, 39, suffered a broken neck in a dive Friday into shallow water of the Big Sandy river at Auxier and died a few hours later at a Paintsville hospital. Alben W. Barkley won the Democratic nomination for U.S. Senator and James Parks the Republican in Saturday's Primary. Only 1081 Democratic ballots were cast in the lack-lustre campaign. There was no election in four precincts, and the voting records from Hen Hall did not reach here till Tuesday. Not a ballot was voted there. James B. Goble, formerly of The Floyd County Times and Courier-Journal, has been assigned to the staff of YANK, the soldier's magazine. There died: Mervyn Hamilton, 36, formerly of Prestonsburg, July 28 at Pikeville; Mrs. Linville Layne, 22, last Thursday; Mrs. Ida McKenzie, at Wheelwright; Mrs. Rhoda Martin Gibson, 74, Saturday at Langley.

Fifty Years Ago

(August 10, 1934)

Five men and two women were wounded in a Saturday night fight at Melvin. The wounded: Sam Moore, probably fatally, Mrs. Willard Johnson, Mrs. McKinley Johnson, Dove Newsome, Elvan Collins, Robert Stewart and Everett Collins. A. J. May and Harry Ramey won, respectively, the Democratic and Republican nominations for the Seventh district Congressional seat at Saturday's primary. Sheriff M.T. Stumbo and deputies killed 25 dogs here this week after the dogs had been impounded and their owners had refused to buy tags for them. Approximately 500 men were at work last week on 10 of the 28 relief projects planned for this county. Dr. Alex L. Hill, 47, Prestonsburg dentist and Democratic floor leader in the Kentucky House of Representatives, died Monday at a Pikeville hospital. Lawrence Keathley last week sold his theatre at Martin to M.H. Staley, of Lackey. There died: Lewis Branham, 39, Tuesday at his home here; Denny Howell, 42, August 1 at his Betsy Layne home; Boyd Holbrook, 75, Tuesday at his home at Brainard; Mrs. B.H. Terry, 42, of Ligon, Wednesday of last week at a Martin hospital.

He Rests on His Record

Whoever is named to fill the vacancy created in the U.S. House of Representatives by the death of Carl D. Perkins will undertake a most trying task. Some say, an impossible task.

Whoever his successor may be,—and we think it should be his son, Chris—, will be trying to fill big shoes.

The truth is, Carl Perkins has spoiled us all. He has almost literally been at our beck and call all these 35 years of his tenure of office—giving of his vast energies, listening to our calls for help and responding with a dedication born of a genuine concern for our welfare as individual human beings—till we will be expecting of a new Congressman more than one man should be expected to do for, and mean to, thousands of constituents.

Not only the life of almost every individual in his home district has been touched during his 18 terms in the Congress. His work affected and offered hope to an untold number across the nation of the aged, the poverty-stricken, those who worked and the many who because of age, ill-health or unfortunate circumstance no longer worked. And add to all these the host of young people in their learning years, these and those who teach them.

Politicians are wont to say that they stand on their records. Carl Perkins rests on his—and it is one that is a challenge to all who may follow him in the field of public service.

Carl Perkins' Admirable Record

(An editorial in The Lexington Herald)

One has the feeling that given a choice in such matters, U.S. Rep. Carl Perkins would have preferred death to come while he was in his beloved 7th Congressional District or in Washington, where he had served since 1948. Instead, the venerable lawmaker was stricken fatally yesterday at age 71 as he arrived at Blue Grass Airport en route from Washington.

As a congressman Perkins was honor-bound to serve his country, his state and his district, and he did it admirably.

His work on the prestigious and powerful Education and Labor Committee, which he had chaired since 1967, earned him nationwide admiration. His longevity in the House—he was one of five most senior members in the lower chamber—and his efforts in education and in improving the lot of the little people earned him the respect of his colleagues. His work on the Vocational Education Act of 1963, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965 and the provision for black lung benefits in the Coal Mine Health and Safety Act of 1969 made him a champion of many people.

Kentuckians will miss Representative Perkins, as will his colleagues in Congress. While many in both sectors might have disagreed with him, none could doubt the sincerity and dedication with which he served his people—whether they were from his district, his state or his nation.

But Mrs. Hall claims the two brothers incurred the debt individually and not as officers of the company. In 1980, when the note was last renewed, Hall Brothers Funeral Home had already been out of business for more than a year and Birchell Hall, who signed the bank note, had no authority to act on behalf of the company, she contends. First Commonwealth "must simply bear the burden of poor judgment in accepting the Sept. 16, 1980 note from a resigned officer of a defunct corporation," argued William G. Kirkland, Mrs. Hall's lawyer, in response to the bank's recent motion for summary judgment.

As a stockholder, she was not consulted on the question of renewing the loan in 1980, Mrs. Hall noted. But the bank replied that that renewal simply continued an obligation incurred two years earlier, when Hall Brothers was in operation, when Birchell Hall was a partner and Mrs. Hall was not yet a stockholder.

Mrs. Hall acquired a quarter-interest in the firm in October, 1978, when marital property was divided following her 1976 divorce from Birchell. In 1979, John Hall bought out his brother's interest in the business, which now operates in a new location as Hall Funeral Home.

Mrs. Hall sued the Hall brothers in 1979 for mismanaging the funeral home—the case is set to be tried August 13 before Special Judge Stephen N. Frazier—and said she was surprised to learn subsequently that the company allegedly owed money to First Commonwealth.

Of the 1980 note, her attorney argued recently, "it is highly unlikely that the bank would renew the obligations of a defunct, nearly worthless corporation, rather than looking directly to Johnny or Birchell Hall to assume the liability."

"Birchell Hall has now disappeared and Johnny Hall has lost any interest in the affairs of the corporation. Both seem content to attempt to leave the corporation saddled with the debt," Kirkland wrote, "and the bank is either unwilling or unable to seek recourse directly against them." Resolution of the present case should at least be postponed until Mrs. Hall's suit against the two brothers is tried, her attorney argued.

But Kendrick, representing the bank, insisted that the two cases are unrelated. "We have proven... that the ($35,168) is owed by the corporation," he said. "The curtain must fall."

AUXIER

The Auxier Community Development Club which meets on the second and fourth Monday of each month will hold its next meeting at 7 p.m., Monday, August 13, at the Auxier Grade School cafeteria.

Everyone is urged to attend and help our community go forward.

A Danville lawyer, representing two Clear Creek residents whose house the coal company subsequently bought and razed, complained to Natural Resources Secretary Charlotte Baldwin in March that a proposed penalty of $11,300 had been reduced by a hearing officer "even though, in the past, stronger penalties have not brought about compliance."

The attorney, Margaret S. Foley, represented John and Helen Newsome, two of Left Beaver Coal's most vocal critics. The couple moved to Ohio recently after the coal firm bought them out.

Foley also contested an NREPC decision in February to allow Left Beaver Coal to build two new sediment ponds without giving the public an opportunity to comment and without requiring waivers from nearby residents.

Some residents of Orchard Fork, at Melvin, said what they have heard of Left Beaver Coal's record on Clear Creek, which is over the mountain from them, makes them fearful of the consequences for their quiet hollow if the company should extend its operation there.

Janice Berger presented a petition bearing signatures of 22 Orchard Fork residents who said they could not afford to have their water supply destroyed and that they feared "disastrous flooding" if Left Beaver Coal continued its practice of pumping waste water into abandoned mines beneath nearby hills.

Coal company lawyers were not permitted to cross-examine those who spoke at the hearing and one of them, Joe Zaluski, complained that the hearing rules made it difficult for the firm to ask questions at all. Company representatives chose not to make a presentation at the hearing but Zaluski said written answers would be sent to witnesses who had asked questions of the company.

Left Beaver Coal, which operated under an interim permit while the enforcement of surface mining laws was still primarily a federal responsibility, had to apply for a new permit under regulations which became operative when Kentucky assumed primary enforcement responsibility.

The director of NREPC's division of permits must decide to grant or deny the application, a decision which could then be appealed to the Secretary and ultimately to the courts.

But Connie Platkus, for one, hopes it will not go that far. Life at the head of Clear Creek, dominated by Left Beaver Coal Company's looming slag heaps, is already fearful, she said at Tuesday's hearing. "I'm afraid, if it's kept up the way it is, Ligon is not going to be on the map," she said.

The Gaelic language spoken in Scotland and Ireland both had the same origins. Today, although it is the official language of Ireland, only about one in five can speak it.

Housing Project Ceremony Set

Ground will be broken next week for a long-awaited public housing project at Martin, Housing Director Helen Ison has announced.

The ceremony has been set for 1 p.m., August 17, on the Stephens Branch site on which 60 units of public housing will be erected. Before his sudden death last Friday, U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins had been scheduled to do the honors; it has yet to be announced who will replace him at the groundbreaking.

The $2.7 million project, which is being funded by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development, will be built on a landfill created by the construction of new KY 80. It will consist of one-, two-, and three-bedroom apartments for low-income families. Three units will be reserved for handicapped tenants.

The project has been plagued by delays, the most recent a dispute over the right to minerals underlying the site. That conflict was recently resolved, however.

One factor that contributed to Floyd's improved showing, Grigsby said, was its participation in a voluntary program offered by the state to school districts that scored low last year. Under the School Effectiveness Project, 21 school districts received advice from state school officials on how to lift their classroom performance.

In a ranking of the state's 183 school districts, Floyd placed 148th, compared to 176th last year. Third graders here were 130th (179th in 1983), fifth graders 159th (170th), seventh graders 118th (167th) and 10th graders 140th (152nd).

By comparison, Pike county schools ranked 156th, Knott 161st, Magoffin 177th, and Johnson 179th.

In the total "basic skills" battery, 65 percent of Floyd third-graders scored at or above the national average. Last year, 43 percent did. In the fifth grade, only 42 percent equalled the national norm, but that was 10 points higher than last year's percentage.

Of seventh graders here, nearly 52 percent scored at or above the national average, up from 36 percent the previous year. Tenth graders had the lowest overall showing—less than 46 percent on the total basic skills battery—but that figure was 35 percent in 1983.

The test results show a wide disparity among individual Floyd schools and, in some instances, a wide gap between one grade's performance last year and that of students in the same classroom this year.

Of the 27 third graders tested at Melvin this spring, for example, 26—96.3 percent—scored at or above the national median, making them the top-scoring third graders here. Last year, only 40 percent of Melvin third-graders equalled the national norm.

Harold fifth-graders rose 32 percentage points over the class that preceded them; Clark seventh-graders rose by 40 points; Prater seventh-graders were up 45 points. Melvin fifth-graders dropped by 26 percentage points over last year's class, however, and Auxier seventh-graders' score fell by 23.

Ironically, while last year's dismal scores appeared to many to bear a simple message—Floyd schools are doing a poor job—this year's advances seem to raise more questions than they resolve.

Not the least is whether the competitive element introduced by publicizing the state rankings is leading some school administrators to inflate scores or some teachers to "teach the test." There were unconfirmed reports that some Floyd teachers, who had the 1984 Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills in advance, used it to coach their students.

School psychologist Larry Jervis, who coordinated the testing here in April, said teachers were given the test materials about a week in advance in order to become familiar with them but that there were no indications teachers used the materials to coach students. "We certainly hope they wouldn't," he said. "We're trying to set an example for the kids."

The reasons student test scores are improving here, said Assistant Supt. Ron Hager, are that teachers are being better trained in how to administer and interpret the test—a day-long in-service for that purpose has been scheduled this Thursday, for example—and that the test itself is helping teachers to pinpoint their pupils' weaknesses.

"We are not teaching the test," Hager said. "We are teaching the skills that children need to know to get along in life."

And Joyce Everly, who used last year's poor scores as a weapon against Floyd school officials and is reserving her judgment about the significance of this year's improvement, implicitly conceded that better teaching may have something to do with it. "If you keep kids in the classroom and minimize disruptions, they're going to learn," she said.

Last year's decision by the state Department of Education to publish the ranking of the state's school districts was not received warmly by Floyd school administrators, who still downplay its significance. "Regardless of where we rank in the state, there has been improvement in our own district," noted Supt. Grigsby before the state ranking was announced Monday.

The same point was made by his assistant. "More important (than the statewide ranking) is the growth you see in a particular district," Hager said.

The assistant superintendent, nevertheless, had some good words for the publicity surrounding the tests and ranking. It focused the attention of parents, teachers and administrators on the job the schools are doing and encouraged everyone to work harder, he said. "I don't agree with the ranking," Hager said, "but it shook a lot of people up."

COMPLETES UNIT TRAINING

Army National Guard Pvt. William L. Jarrell, son of Curtis L. and Beatrice M. Jarrell of Rural Route 3, Prestonsburg, Ky., has completed one station unit training (OSUT) at the U.S. Army Infantry School, Fort Benning, Ga.

Mr. and Mrs. Roy Robinson, of Arkansas Creek, Martin, Ky., announce the engagement and forthcoming marriage of their daughter, Marlena Jean Conn, to William Lewis Hammonds, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harold Hammonds, of Prestonsburg.

The bride-elect is a graduate of J.H. Allen Central High School and is employed at Maloney's Department Store in Martin. Mr. Hammonds is a graduate of Betsy Layne High School and is employed by Eastern Kentucky Pipeline, of Prestonsburg.

The wedding will take place Saturday, September 8, at 2 p.m. at the Church of Christ on Arkansas Creek. The gracious custom of open church will be observed, and a reception will be held at the home of the bride's family.

Governor Talks Energy Policy

Governor Martha Layne Collins continued to talk coal and the formation of a national energy policy centered on coal during the recent meeting of the nation's governors in Nashville, Tennessee.

The meeting of the National Governors' Conference was cited as one of the most successful in the history of the organization. Governors from 47 states attended parts of the three-day session. The nation's governors addressed a variety of topics, ranging from health care cost containment to a national energy policy.

As a member of the Energy Committee of the National Governors' Conference, Governor Collins says she is in a position to effectively champion coal as the central part of a national energy policy. "I am and have been an advocate of such a policy for years," Collins said, "But now, as governor of the nation's leading producer of coal, I am in a position to effectively push for recognition of coal as a natural alternative to an energy policy centered around questionable nuclear power or foreign oil."

In recent months, the Governor has addressed on a national level the need for a national energy policy centered around the use of coal. Earlier this year she told the American Mining Congress in Chicago that without such a national policy, the nation would be overlooking the most abundant fuel source available. At the National Coal Association in Washington last month, Governor Collins pledged to lead the fight to have coal the centerpiece of a national energy policy. At the same time, she called for a coal summit to be held in Kentucky next spring to explore all of the ramifications connected with the expanded use of coal.

Four Floyd Water Systems Said in Complete Compliance

Last week some water suppliers were listed by the state Division of Water as "persistent" violators of state regulations.

This week, the Division shows the other side of the coin—those suppliers who are in compliance and in that select group are four Floyd county suppliers—Auxier Water Co., Beaver Elkhorn Water District, Francis Water Co. and the Prestonsburg Water System.

A 19 percent improvement rate in the number of community public water supplies not committing any violations of state public and semipublic water supply regulations has been recorded in Kentucky from October, 1983 to March, 1984, officials said.

The number of community water supplies not cited for any violation during the present federal fiscal year rose to 269 from the previous year's total of 227, said John Smither, manager of the division's drinking water branch.

The increase in complying public water supplies is due to a variety of factors, state officials said.

"We have seen the public water supplies operators and officials become more knowledgeable about the state regulations, and an increased public demand for safe drinking water as well as increased state enforcement activity," Smither said.

He noted that increased cooperation between county officials and state water personnel has brought about an increased awareness of the conditions of public water supplies.

"It's a step in the right direction, but it's not yet where we ought to be," Smither said. "There are still too many systems with violations. By the time our next lists of violators and compliance systems are compiled, I hope that the statistics will show that even more systems have not violated any regulations."

How Long Does It Take?

By ALICE MCDONALD

Superintendent of Public Instruction

In 1960, the House of Representatives' Special Committee to Investigate Education released its report to the Kentucky General Assembly. It was only 49 pages long but it was a stinging indictment of a public education system that was deeply entwined in politics and pap.

"It is apparent that much is wrong with education in the Commonwealth that money alone cannot cure...if we are to have a first rate school system we must greatly improve our school administration," the report stated.

"We think it is inescapable that if any area of government should be non-political it is in the public schools," it said.

"A powerfully entrenched political machine can grow up within the framework of the local school system and we believe that this has, in fact, occurred in the greatest number of Kentucky counties," it declared.

"Honest educators of dedicated competence do not need laws to tell them what is right or wrong," the report said. "But self-serving paragons of mediocrity can twist to their ungodly advantage the best laws ever written."

As a remedy, the report recommended "that a citizens' committee be formed in each school district to exercise constant surveillance over school activities as a public service."

"In our opinion," the committee wrote, "soft education is the cancer of the crisis...Some little time may be left for educators to shed their professional arrogance, and for the public to shed its stupefying apathy. Unless this shedding quickly occurs with good heart on both sides, hard education never again can be attained in this state."

Twenty-three years later, the committee's worst fears were reality. While some improvements were made, the committee's observations were as pertinent in 1983 as they were in 1960.

Last spring, the consciousness of America was raised by another report. It was called A Nation at Risk, and it too was an indictment. Its authors made clear that Kentucky was not the only state suffering from the cancer of soft education. The disease had been busy in all parts of the country.

Kentucky responded to the challenge. With the backing of educators, citizens and political leaders, the General Assembly enacted the most sweeping reform of public education since the Minimum Foundation Program was passed in the 1950's. This reform did not take the shape of throwing new money at old problems. This reform emphasized accountability, instruction and programs. Soft courses were stripped from the required curriculum. Teaching of essential skills was required in all grades. Over-crowded classes were capped. Discipline codes and written parental permission for school drop-outs were required.

The legislature sent a clear signal across the land that it intends for the children of Kentucky to receive six hours of instruction every day for 175 days a year.

The legislature intends for school monies to be managed ethically and efficiently, for school administrators and school board members to be trained and up-to-date in their duties and skills, for new teachers to be tested for competence and for students to be tested for mastery of essential skills.

The legislature intends for us to get serious about school and it passed 42 separate pieces of legislation to make sure that we do. Implementation of those bills has occupied the time and attention of the Department of Education, educators and citizens' committees all summer. We have had the opportunity to appreciate the scope of the vision, the extent of the reforms, the seriousness of purpose. The lawmakers heard you, the voters, say that you wanted excellence in education for your children. They have responded. We have responded in implementing the new laws.

Now it is your turn.

So far, you have read about the reforms in your newspapers and heard about them on your newscasts. Not until the school bells ring this fall, however, not until the schoolhouse doors are unlocked and the students and teachers take up books for the new school year will you begin to see and feel the effects. You will begin to experience in a real and personal way the dedication, commitment and sacrifice demanded of those who would seek the goal of academic excellence.

Academic performance—how much did we learn and how well did we learn it—is the order of the days, the weeks and the years ahead. The 1984-85 school year is the beginning. This is when Kentucky takes a new dedication in education. This is when Kentucky begins to show the world that we think as well as drizzle.

WEEKEND GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. Grady Spradlin, of Prestonsburg, had as their weekend guests their daughter, Jeannette and her husband, Jim Craycraft, of Louisville, along with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. James F. Craycraft, Sr., of Tucson, Arizona. Mr. and Mrs. Mike Spradlin, Lea and Angela joined them on Saturday evening for barbecued ribs from the Prestonsburg Drive-In, corn-on-the-cob from the garden and desserts by Linda.

The easy part is over. The laws have been passed. Now it is your task to carry the crusade into the classroom. The idea of a citizen's group for education in every district is 24 years old, but it makes as much sense today as it did when first proposed. Plans are now being made under the sponsorship of the Prichard Committee and with the support of the Department of Education to hold town meetings on education in every school district in November. You will want to attend for you are the guardians of our children's futures. Teachers must teach. Parents must supervise homework and instill seriousness of purpose in their children. School boards must plan wisely and administrators must spend carefully. No one ever promised a free ticket to knowledge. All must work together "with good heart" if we are to achieve academic excellence in this state in this decade.

When another 24 years have come and gone, let our children say of us that we dared to make the difference. Let them say that in 1984, we found the courage to do what should have been done in 1960.

Waddles-Gayheart Vows Said

The marriage of Miss Gwendolyn Renee Waddles to Mr. Samuel L. Gayhart was solemnized Saturday, June 2, at Montgomery Baptist Church, Carrie, Ky., by the Rev. J.S. Bell, with the Rev. Archie Everage assisting.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Diamond Ray Waddles, of Kite, Ky. Mr. Gayhart is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Samuel L. Gayhart of Emmalena, Ky.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a full-length formal gown of white silk organza and alencon lace designed by Demetrios for Illisa. The dress featured a high wedding band neckline, full bishop sleeves and a sheer back of silk illusion with covered buttons. Her princess style skirt extended to a cathedral train. A matching floral wreath highlighted with wired pearls held the bride's veil of imported silk illusion. She carried a cascading bouquet of white roses.

Miss Kim Sears, of Stanford, Ky., was maid of honor, and bridesmaids were Sharon Combs, of Emmalena, Paula Johnson, of Ashland, Sandy Shockey, of Cincinnati, Ohio, Sandra Gayhart, of Lexington, and Pamela Campbell, of Ohio. The bridesmaids were dressed identically in pink faille taffeta gowns. They wore floral wreaths of white sweetheart roses and pink miniature carnations. Their bouquets were of the same flowers.

Stacey Lynn Combs and Jasmine Denee Stone were flower girls.

Mr. Kendall Dick served as best man, and groomsmen were Randy Combs, Paul Randall Thornsberry, Bram Clarke, Diamond Ray Waddle, Jr., and Leonard Mullins. Sean Dale Honeycutt and Anthony Younts were ringbearers.

The mother of the bride wore a lilac faille taffeta gown. Her corsage was of orchids.

The mother of the groom was dressed in a pink and lilac iris print chiffon gown. She wore a corsage of orchids.

Music was provided by J. Robert Morgan, and vocal selections were by Allison Squirers.

A reception followed the ceremony in Freedom Hall of the church.

After returning from their honeymoon the couple is residing at Emmalena, Ky.

You Can't Just 'Try' Pot, You Do Pot, Teenager Warns

By GEORGE R. ROSS, Ph.D.

The following is an excerpt from a letter I received from a fourteen-year-old girl who had successfully completed a drug program similar to Possibilities Unlimited. Her thoughts accurately convey the importance of effective early intervention for adolescents harmfully involved in alcohol and drugs.

"My name is Martha. I'm 14 years old. The drugs I did are pot, alcohol and hash. I did these drugs for two years.

"I never really got drunk or high or anything. I did marijuana about 10 times, hash once. I knew drugs were wrong and could hurt me. I did it for acceptance. I wanted my friends to like me. I didn't want them to call me chicken.

"When I first came to the program, I was mad. I didn't think I needed it. I thought, I don't do many drugs; I don't have a problem. I stayed angry for three or four months and didn't try to change or understand myself.

"I had a bad attitude toward my family, especially my dad. I didn't think they had any control over me. I only wanted to do what I wanted to do, to be with my friends. School was a big joke—a place to go for your social life. I didn't take it seriously or do my homework. When I got bad grades, I thought it was the teacher's fault. I didn't respect any authority.

"But the program, people kept reaching out to me, helping to see that things weren't so great before, that I did need to change some things. I began to realize that you don't have to do a lot of drugs to be a druggie. With my attitude, I would have done more drugs, treated my family even worse.

"I saw that my attitude was a problem. My parents didn't deserve to be treated like I treated them. I realized I could have better than I had. I saw that I wouldn't have gotten anywhere in life because I was so apathetic all the time. I really didn't care about my life or my parents' lives. I only wanted my way. I never thought about where it would get me.

"I've been in the program for a little over 16 months and have been 7th Step almost 5 months. My parents and I still have disagreements. We're not perfect. But we get along a lot better. My dad and I are really close now and I'm back on the honor roll at school. I used to think I had to dress and act like other people wanted me to because I wasn't as good as other people. I like myself now the way I am. I do things because I think they're right, not just to be accepted by my friends.

"I would tell any parents whose son or daughter is like I was to get some help.

If they have a bad attitude, they have a problem and it can get worse. It's not something they'll just get over. It's serious. It damages your relationships and it damages other people. Mostly, it hurts the child. I ruined part of my teenage life. I missed out on a lot of things—from doing drugs and mostly from my bad attitude. You can't just 'try' pot. You DO pot! Once you stick the joint in your mouth, you've done it—and there is a problem. When you're a druggie, things don't get better, they just get worse."

With Columbia's Budget Payment Plan, your gas bill won't change with the seasons.

You can take the surprises out of next winter's heat bills with the Columbia Gas Budget Payment Plan. With the plan, your monthly natural gas bills will be averaged out over 12 months. So you'll pay a manageable amount each month—even when the temperature drops.

It's easy to get on the plan, too. All you need to do is pay the "Budget" amount on your August bill. Nothing further is needed. There's no extra charge, and your meter will be read as usual. Each month's bill will continue to show the exact amount of gas you actually used, along with your budget amount. A review in February determines if your budget amount needs to be adjusted because of weather.

At the end of the Budget Plan year—next July—you will be billed your budget amount, plus or minus any difference between your total annual amount and the actual amount you used during the year.

To simplify bill paying even more, Columbia also suggests a new service called Checkfree, which provides the option of having your monthly bill paid by the bank where you have your checking account—but not until about ten days after the bill has been sent to you. Columbia Gas offices and most banks have application forms. Check into it.

So make your gas bills more predictable... even if the weather isn't. Look for the explanation of the Budget Payment Plan and Checkfree in your August bill.

To The Commissioner Of The Beaver-Elkhorn Water District And To All Parties Concerned:

I would like to notify you that I am resigning my commission with the Beaver-Elkhorn Water District effective immediately. There comes a time in life when personal and business affairs must come first. That time has come in my life that I must concentrate on my personal business. It is with the deepest regret that I must make this decision. I only hope the person who replaces me has the same concern about good water in the home that I have had. A home without good water isn't much of a home. The greatest asset the people of Floyd County have is a good water supply. If, through my term I have helped someone, I am thankful. If I have erred and made mistakes through judgments, I must apologize. I have done the best I know how to do.

I leave my blessing with this Water Commission and the Commissioner to follow. This is a growing system and needs the help of all the people who are on the system. This water system belongs to the people who are on the system. I urge you to get involved and help your Commissioner and keep politics out of your Water District.

Sincerely,
James A. Scott

Periodic Training Now A Requirement For State EMT's

Emergency medical technicians in Kentucky will be going back to school periodically if they want to maintain their EMT certification.

As of July 13, House Bill 493 amends KRS 211.964 to change the method the Cabinet for Human Resources uses to recertify people trained in that health profession. The amendment requires continuing education as a condition for renewal of EMT certificates.

In the past, emergency medical technicians were not required to take continuing education or in-service training but did have to pass written and practical examinations every two years. Those exams will now be required only for persons seeking first-time certification.

The Cabinet for Human Resources is now working on specific regulations for the implementation of the new law. Pat Loar Jones, the cabinet's director of emergency medical services, said the proposed regulations would require each EMT to have at least 16 hours of continuing education or in-service training every two years plus current certification in cardiopulmonary resuscitation.

Jones said cabinet officials plan to submit their proposal to the state's Legislative Review Committee in two to three weeks.

Currently the plan includes an automatic extension of EMT certificates due to expire between July 1, 1984, and Dec. 1, 1985. Those certificates would remain valid until Dec. 31, 1985, to allow time for technicians to meet the criteria of the new law.

Jones said each EMT will be individually responsible for obtaining continuing education courses. The cabinet's proposal would require the course subject matter to coincide with subjects covered in the federal government's EMT curriculum.

The most likely sources of classes or in-service training will probably be vocational education programs, hospitals and community colleges, Jones said. EMTs also will be able to organize their own group sessions and bring in their own speakers or instructors.

To receive credit for training, EMTs will be required to submit written statements signed by their instructors.

Jones said her office will be constantly monitoring the quality of EMT service in the state and the quality of instruction the technicians receive.

"The EMTs are serious about their work and are just as dedicated to quality of service as we are," said Jones. "They will be helping us assess the effectiveness of this new system. If we find problems, we will not hesitate to approach the 1986 General Assembly for changes or refinements in the law."

LONDON—About 2,000 people stood in pouring rain to wish Britain's Queen Mother Elizabeth a happy 84th birthday.

SIDEWALKS HERE ARE LOOKING SPRUCER THIS WEEK as city workmen wield shovels, brooms, and yes, a good old-fashioned wheelbarrow to collect accumulated debris.

Sandy Valley Senior Citizens from the Prestonsburg and Martin centers recently visited Loretta Lynn's ranch in Hurricane Mills, Tennessee, where they met her husband, Mooney, at a vegetable stand near the entrance to the ranch. He is in the center of the picture above, wearing a baseball cap. The group enjoyed a hayride to the ranch and a barbecue, there. They also attended a cook-out at Twitty City, a brunch at the Opryland Hotel, visited Opryland and the Grand Ole Opry.

Conservation Plans

By CURTIS HUGHES

Our Nov. 1 priority at this time is to recruit sponsor-members to help finance the Federation's conservation program. Our goal is to hire at least 20 high school boys from the Floyd county school area—four boys from each high school.

Much of the work involved will be clearing of underbrush and tree planting. Work is planned for each Saturday in September and October. Minimum wages will be paid to employees. ASCS has offered to assist with their cost-share program.

Other activities planned for the future include a shooting range located near Martin. The range will offer practice and competition for archery, rifle, pistol and skeet shooting. A day camp will be held each summer for area youth. Studies will include gun safety, CPR and basic first-aid methods.

The Federation has published its first monthly news pamphlet. The pamphlet can be found at magazine stands throughout Eastern Kentucky.

All public schools are invited to use the Refuge for nature studies and other science-related activities.

The Wildlife Federation has made much progress since 1979. But, to reach our goals we must keep our attention directed toward the future.

For more information call Curtis Hughes (285-3804) or write to The Eastern Ky. Wildlife Federation, P.O. Box 440, Martin, Ky., 41649.

AUXIER

Those attending the Northeast Kentucky Rural Community Development Award Banquet, July 14 at Ashland Community College were Mr. and Mrs. Harley Sturgill, Mr. and Mrs. Howard Ferguson, Mr. and Mrs. Paul B. Wells, and Mrs. Clara Harris. The Times regrets that the names were incorrectly listed in an earlier item.

Auxier was awarded first place in the village category at this meeting.

Award Winner

The United States Achievement Academy has announced that Stephanie DeRossett has been named a 1984 national award winner in mathematics. She was nominated for the award by Mrs. Joyce Watson, her algebra and calculus teacher at Allen Central High School.

Stephanie is the daughter of Frank Jr. and Linda S. DeRossett and granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. David Watson, of Martin, Frank DeRossett, of Prestonsburg, and Louise DeRossett, of Fort Smith, Arkansas.

Student Worship Legislation Perkins' Last House Victory

By RICK BAILEY

(In The Lexington Herald-Leader)
The day before his friend Carl Perkins died, said U.S. Rep. Don Bonker, D-Wash., the two shared a special glance across the floor of the House of Representatives.

"He was near the well of the House, and I was in another area," Bonker, 47, said after learning of Perkins' death. "It was one of those moments when our eyes made contact."

"His look seemed to convey so much. For some reason, I didn't think I would be privileged to work with him much longer."

Bonker, who is in his fifth term, and the venerable Perkins, in his 18th, had worked together for months trying to push through the "equal access" bill that would allow student religious meetings in public schools before or after regular school hours.

The two congressmen, after losing one vote in May, engineered passage of the legislation last week after passage by the Senate in June. The bill is awaiting President Reagan's signature.

"The equal access legislation may be his legacy," Bonker said. "He refused to give up. Time after time he was blocked, but he found a way and prevailed. It took a heavy toll. He said he would lie awake thinking of strategy. He had the energy and the commitment of a new member" of the House.

And he had the savvy earned through years of experience on Capitol Hill.

Bonker explained that Perkins, chairman of the House Education and Labor Committee, planned a sly move to bring the equal access bill back before the House on July 25. A seldom-used procedure called "Calendar Wednesday" allows a committee chairman to bring up a bill.

House Speaker Thomas P. "Tip" O'Neill, who opposed the bill, learned of Perkins' tactic. According to Bonker, O'Neill didn't want Perkins to set a precedent with that strategy, and the two veteran lawmakers negotiated another way to get the bill to the floor.

REBEKAHS MEET

The regular meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 was held July 17, with the Vice Grand Nancy Duff, presiding.

Those who are ill were recorded, and all routine business was transacted. Rebekahs were notified that a new code of laws for Odd Fellows and Rebekahs of Kentucky will be ready for distribution at the annual meeting to be held in October at Lexington.

A committee of Rebekahs was reminded they are to meet with the Odd Fellows at their next regular meeting to discuss matters pertaining to the betterment of both groups.

Birthday greetings were extended to Jean Hickman. The semi-annual report was read by the secretary and it was noted that we have a membership of 163.

The acting noble grand thanked all for coming and taking part. Those present for this meeting were Nancy Duff, Sue Moore, Violetta Wright, Rebeccaingham, Jean Hickman, Mabel Jean LeMaster, Otela Smiley, Paulena Owens, Dotty B. Lafferty and Beatrice Yates.

The next regular meeting will be held August 7, at 7:30 p.m.

The vote for passage was 337-77.

"Mr. Perkins knew how to accomplish his goal, but he was also very gracious," Bonker said. "That's why he had no enemy in the House."

Rep. Don Edwards, D-Calif., led the opposition to the equal access bill, but maintained his strong friendship with Perkins.

"He was the most important public education person in the country," Edwards said. "Every schoolchild should feel at a loss. They're all in debt to him for his devotion to education. He was always on the side of the kids."

Lawyers Being Reminded Of $25 Disciplinary Fee

INDIANAPOLIS—Notices are in the mail to remind Indiana attorneys to pay their $25 annual disciplinary fee, state Court Clerk Marjorie O'Laughlin said yesterday.

The fee, which finances the Indiana Supreme Court Disciplinary Commission, is due Oct. 1. A $2-a-day late fee is assessed up to a maximum of $40. Attorneys who don't pay the fee can be suspended from practicing law.

An unused swing set can turn a backyard into an eyesore...unless you hang flower baskets from the frame, attach a bird feeder to the overhead bar and plant climbing vines to trail up the legs. A thing of beauty!

ONE DAY BRINGS TWO NEW GRANDCHILDREN

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hilton, Sr., became grandparents twice in less than 24 hours recently, the first time when a daughter, Leah Nicole, was born to Mr. and Mrs. Bill Knarr, II on August 2 and again, on August 3, when a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hilton, Jr. Both babies were born in Pikeville Methodist Hospital. The Hiltons' was their first baby; the Knarrs have a 4½-year-old son, Billy III. All are Prestonsburg residents.

Elephants may never forget, but that doesn't mean they aren't trying. Perhaps to forget the anxiety produced by shrinking range land and the competition for food, the August Reader's Digest observes that they get drunk on the alcohol in fermented fruit and grain.

Ranger Squelches Rumor That Beach Contaminated

CAWOOD, Ky.—Craig Shoe, park ranger at Martin's Fork Lake, is trying to rid the park of a pesky problem. Shoe has received a couple of calls a day for the past week concerning rumors that the park beach was closed because lice had infested the sand. Lice, he pointed out, are parasites, do not live in sand and would be unlikely to survive on the beach except on people or other warmblooded creatures. The beach, nine miles south of Harlan on U.S. 421, is not closed and is not expected to close, Shoe said. "I have absolutely no idea where that got started. It's absolutely not true."

It's An Osprey

By EMILY MORSE
It's a bird! It's a plane! Wrong, it's a plane carrying a bird, namely, an osprey. It's been almost two weeks since the last six ospreys were flown into Kentucky from the Chesapeake Bay area and almost all of the young birds have taken their first flight. A total of 16 were brought into the state as part of the Department of Fish & Wildlife Resources' continuing efforts to restore the osprey population. The large fish-eating hawk was seriously affected by pesticide poisoning and the last known nest in Kentucky was reported in 1949. In its third year, the project aims to restore breeding populations to the state through a process called "hacking." Hacking refers to taking the young birds from nests in the wild, transporting them to the release area and placing them in man-made nest platforms, where they are fed until able to care for themselves. When the six-week-old birds first arrived, volunteers watched them daily for two weeks. As acting parents, the volunteers were responsible for feeding them from a supply of frozen fish and taking notes on the birds' exercise habits until they took flight. Wildlife biologist John MacGregor, in charge of the project, said, "Volunteer response was very good."

Because of the volunteers' care, survival rates were very high. The young birds can fall prey to owls, raccoons, and illnesses. Only two of the birds did not survive. Two of the six birds placed at Land Between the Lakes, the Tennessee Valley Authority's recreation area in Western Kentucky, died. "Horned owls probably got them," MacGregor said. Of those placed in artificial nests along Metropolis lake in McCracken county, all four survived. Four others were placed along the Ohio River east of Louisville and two along the Kentucky River north of Frankfort. After the birds leave the nest they migrate to South America and usually return in about three years to the area where they learned to fly. After three years they are old enough to breed, but MacGregor said it may take as long as five or six years before they reproduce. Funds for this project come from Kentucky's non-game wildlife program, which consists of voluntary contributions from state income tax refunds. This program generates around $80,000 annually, which is divided equally between the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and the Kentucky Nature Preserve Commission.

There is a definite pattern of better weather during maximum sunspot activity—even the quality of wine vintage is considered superior during these times.

Martin, Perry, Knott Nights At The Jenny Wiley Theatre

The Jenny Wiley Theatre continues County Nights for its Wednesday and Sunday performances through August 15. Residents of surrounding counties receive a special discount on those evenings when they attend the theatre. This Wednesday night (August 8), Martin county residents will cash in on the discount tickets. Every ticket a Martin countian orders will be discounted $1.00. This discount cannot be combined with any other discount or coupon. Wednesday evening's performance will be "Annie." Sunday, August 12, Perry and Knott county residents will receive the same discount on all tickets they order for that evening's performance of "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat." "When you order tickets for these County Nights, tell the Box Office staff which county you live in and they will discount the tickets for you," said Keith Stevens, managing director of the Jenny Wiley Theatre. One more County Night is scheduled for August 15 when Pike county will receive the discount tickets for that performance of "Fiddler on the Roof."

The great horned owl, though it weighs only three pounds, has eyes as large as a human's, and can sight objects with about five percent of the intensity of light a human requires, says National Wildlife magazine.

SUCCESS OF PERIODONTAL THERAPY

- Q. What factors affect the chances for success of periodontal disease treatment?
- A. All of the following play a part in determining the success of periodontal therapy—
- systemic factors: diseases like diabetes and thyroid problems as well as pregnancy and malnutrition, can affect treatment
  - alcoholism and heavy smoking, through their effects on over-all health, act as deterrents to success
  - age: the younger the patient, surprisingly, the more severe the periodontal problem is likely to be
  - bone loss: chances for recovery are greater if this is not extreme
  - remaining teeth: if the number and locations of these are not enough to support tooth replacements, recovery chances will be poor
  - bite: improper occlusion or bite, if not correctable, can affect periodontal conditions negatively
  - grinding of teeth (bruxism), if not controlled, will affect treatment negatively.
  - tooth root size/shape: a tooth with a long root will have more bone surrounding and supporting it. This protects the tooth and gives it a better chance of heal.

Tips From H.R.M.C. For Better Vacations

Vacations are meant for fun and relaxation, but they can bring their own particular hazards. The Emergency Room staff at Highlands Regional Medical Center, which is specially trained to deal with summertime emergencies, advise taking a few precautions to insure a pleasant vacation. They offer this informational update on three health problems associated with warm weather: ticks, jelly fish stings, and water intoxication.

Some ticks are carriers of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever, a disease that can be fatal if not treated. Symptoms include a headache, muscle aches, fever and chills, and sometimes a rash a few days after a tick bite. Commercial insect repellents help repel ticks, but are no guarantee of safety. When in a heavily wooded area and other spots where ticks abound, clothes should be tucked in (pants into socks, shirt tails into pants) and a "tick-check" should be made, head-to-toe, twice a day. To remove ticks, cover your fingers with a tissue or use a pair of tweezers and grip the body of the tick firmly. Pull straight out, without twisting or jerking. Don't pull so hard that the body pulls off and leaves the mouth behind. It may take several minutes of pulling before the tick releases its hold. Then wash the area with soap and water and apply alcohol. Wash your hands carefully and mark the date down. If symptoms of Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever develop, consult a physician right away.

Jellyfish stings are sometimes a painful part of a trip to the ocean. The best treatment for jellyfish stings, according to the Southern Medical Journal is to sprinkle the injured area with baking soda moistened to make a wet paste. Wipe off any tentacles left clinging to the wound and keep the wounded person still for 30 to 60 minutes. Folk remedies that use bleach, ammonia or sand are not effective and may even cause further damage to the skin.

During swimming lessons or other water activities, children can swallow large amounts of water. This can lead to water intoxication, a condition about which little is known. Symptoms of water intoxication are irritability, lethargy, disorientation, vomiting, and seizures. Parents who recognize these symptoms following an excessive intake of water by their children should contact their doctor. For a healthy vacation, the prescription from the staff of Highlands Regional Medical Center is common sense and care in all activities.

Kentuckian Is Youngest Chief Of Auction Group

VERNON, Ky.—The youngest person ever elected president of the National Auctioneers Association and the second Kentuckian to hold the office is Sammy L. Ford of Rockcastle County.

Ford, 37, co-owner of Ford Realty and Auction Co. Inc. in Mount Vernon, was selected during the organization's annual meeting in Minneapolis last month. He has held a similar position with the Kentucky Auctioneers Association.

Founded in 1947, the national organization has about 6,000 members.

From the State Fair

This year the Kentucky State Fair has chosen to create a special area on the East Lawn of the fairgrounds. Next to our East Lawn Rose Garden will be an herbal garden. The Jefferson County Extension office is setting this up and will provide information about herbs and their uses during the fair, August 9-18.

Next to the herbal garden we will install 16 areas under tent for Kentuckiana Craftsmen to demonstrate and market their craft. In this "little village" there will be the "Fresher Cooker Garden Stage" on which different artists will perform and demonstrate. These artists include Robin Brown, folk singer; M. Vision, with popular and original music; the 26th Street Original Blues Band; Nancy and Blake Barker with folk music and a few others. Between musical sets there will be demonstrations such as "How to Cook with Herbs" and other useful information which fits the setting. There will also be time available when individual craftsmen may use the stage to demonstrate their craft. Fresher Cooker, the sponsor of the area, will have a food booth in the area with sandwiches and drinks. One booth will be for herbs, sachets and things...another will be a potter who will demonstrate the craft.

We want to find choice craftsmen to represent the state. We will provide 10x10 foot tent space, use of table and 1-2 work permits (for entrance and parking on the grounds), and a chance to present an art or craft in a nice environment at the Kentucky State Fair. The cost is minimal, $20 per day (5 or 10 day option). Checks should be made payable to the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center prior to the fair. We are willing to work with each individual if this is a problem.

We know August is a hot time of year; however, we think that by providing a special area we can create an atmosphere which will be enjoyable to the craftsmen and fairgoers. We want craftsmen who are outgoing and willing to show people who visit how a craft is created (last year there were 600,000 people who visited the fair). The area will be open from 11 a.m. until dark (9 p.m.).

Another point of interest: this year we have decided to create a Renaissance Fare in the East Courtyard (this is across from the East Lawn). There will be a lot going on which will be interesting!

If you're interested in participating, contact us as soon as possible at (502) 366-9592 ext. 160.

Beaver Man Booked On Marijuana Count

Aaron Tackett, 38, of Beaver, was booked at the county jail last Thursday on a charge of cultivating marijuana.

The arrest followed a raid on Tackett's property on Tackett Fork of Mud Creek by Deputy Sheriffs John Blackburn and Harold Johnson and State Trooper Lee Weddington. Some 40 plants of highly-prized "sinsemilla" marijuana—the main variety grown in this state—were confiscated and destroyed.

The pot raid was the third in this county in as many weeks but is not likely to be the last, as Kentucky's multimillion-dollar marijuana crop is just beginning to bloom.

Police anticipate their annual battle with marijuana growers will heat up toward the end of next week as the beginning of the squirrel-hunting and ginseng-digging seasons brings more potential informants into the woods where the crop is cultivated.

This is the time, too, when the tops of the marijuana plants begin to appear above the rows of corn between which many growers plant.

Kentucky, along with Oregon, is said to be the nation's third highest pot-growing state, behind Hawaii and California. The potential value of this year's crop has been estimated at around $1 billion. Sinsemilla usually sells for $800 to $1200 a pound, about twice the price of other varieties.

What Prison Is Like

I recently received a letter from a young pen-pal friend requesting my assistance. She explained that her boyfriend was associating with the wrong crowd and that, just maybe, my words could possibly alter his present course. She wrote that she felt sure he was about to break the law and would end up in prison like myself. She begged me, "Please do something!" At the end of her letter she requested that I answer her question, "What is prison like?" She said maybe if he knew in advance what it is really like, he just might stop and think twice before continuing his disastrous course. My following letter of answer I would like to share with all young people with the hope and prayer many of our young will take heed to my words, and that many courses will be altered in time.

What is prison like? It's not the same for everyone. The prison I know is different than the prison you know. Prison is a place where the first prisoner you see looks like an All-American college boy and you're surprised. Later you're disgusted because people on the outside still have the same prejudices about prisoners that you used to have.

Prison is a place where you write letters and can't think of anything to say. Where you gradually write fewer and fewer letters and finally stop writing altogether.

Prison is a place where hope springs eternal; where each parole board appearance means a chance to get out, even if the odds are hopelessly against you.

Prison is a place where the flame in every man burns low. For some it goes out, but for most it flickers weakly, sometimes flashes brightly, but never seems to burn as bright as it once did.

Prison is a place where you find grey hairs in your head or where you find your hair starting to disappear. It's a place where you get false teeth, stronger glasses and aches and pains you never felt before. It's a place where you grow old and worry about it.

Prison is a place where you hate through clenched teeth, where you want to beat, kick and scratch and you wonder if the psychologists know what they're talking about when they say you actually hate yourself.

Prison is a place where you learn that nobody needs you, that the outside world goes on without you.

Prison is a place where you can go for years without feeling the touch of a human hand, where you can go for months without learning a kind word. It is a place where your friendships are shallow and you know it.

Prison is a place where you hear about a friend's divorce, and you didn't even know he was married. It is a place where you hear about your neighbor's kids graduating from school...and you thought they hadn't started yet.

Prison is a place where you feel sorry for yourself. Then you get disgusted with yourself for feeling sorry for yourself, then you get mad for feeling disgusted and then try to mentally change the subject.

Prison is a place where you're smarter than the parole board because you know which guys will go straight and which ones won't. You're wrong just as often as the board members are, but you never admit it and neither do they.

Prison is a place where you wait for a promised visit. When it doesn't come, you worry about a car accident. Then you find out the reason your visitors didn't come, you're glad because it wasn't serious...and disappointed because such a little thing could keep them from coming to see you.

Prison is a place where you forget the sound of a baby's cry. You forget the sound of a dog's bark or even the sound of the dial tone on the telephone.

And, lastly, prison is a place where a letter from home or from a lawyer can be like a telegram from the War Department. When you see it lying on your bed, you're afraid to open it. But you do it anyway and you usually end up disappointed or angry.

Lord knows, I only hope and pray that my letter alters the course of some young person out there who maybe is contemplating committing a crime. Crime, prison is not the smart and in-thing. It's dumb, painful, and I stand as living proof to everyone who reads my letter. The scars and pains prison has caused to this man's life are lasting. Who knows, maybe this is God's will, that I be sitting here this night attempting to stop others from committing the same foolish mistake.

There is one thing I forgot to mention in my answer...Prison is a place where you wake up one morning finding your pillow wet and realize that you are finally maturing.

Honored on 60th Anniversary

Daniel and Norma Akers, of Harold, were surprised on their 60th wedding anniversary, recently, by their children and grandchildren when a large cake and flower arrangement were delivered to their home.

Their son, Eddie Akers, and his family, and their daughter, Towana Frasure, and her family, all of Harold, were there with them. Phone calls come from their daughters, Flora Akers, of Columbus, Ohio; Arzella Akers, of Nicholasville, and their son, Foster Arlon Akers, of Ecorse, Michigan. Emma and Wilson Self, of Huntington, West Virginia, joined the family in their celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Akers were married March 12, 1924.

German Student in Banking Here

Reinhold G. Seibert, of Frankfurt, Germany, is learning about the American way of life in a small town, first hand. He is spending this summer in Prestonsburg, working at The Bank Josephine.

At home in Frankfurt, he is a student at Johann-Wolfgang von Goethe University, where he is majoring in business administration and plans to complete his studies in 1986.

Although Prestonsburg is foreign to Reinhold, the business of banking is not. He has worked as a banking clerk apprentice for three years and then was employed as a banking clerk for an additional five years. At The Bank Josephine, Reinhold is being rotated through the various departments in order to provide him with a broad overview of American banking.

Even though Reinhold's primary purpose in coming to the US for the summer was to observe this country; banking procedures, he also is trying to improve his command of the English language. (He has completed language seminars in Pool, United Kingdom and La Rochelle, France.) Among his hobbies are sports of all kinds, (diving, judo, parachuting, jogging and squash), cooking, photography, and travel. Of concern to residents of Eastern Kentucky is Reinhold's great interest in preserving natural beauty and keeping the area free of litter.

The stem of a type of wild iris—blue-eyed grass—is not strong enough to support more than one blossom at a time. One flower blooms each morning, then dies that night to make room for the next.

HOW TO WIN AT THE LOSING GAME

DIET CENTER

PREVENTATIVE NUTRITION

Today, people are recognizing that they literally are what they eat. They realize that in order to be healthy, they must eat foods that give the body the correct types of fuel to function properly. Too often, people prepare quick, "meal-in-one" type foods. These foods smell, look and taste good, and are almost trouble free in preparation. But many lack vital nutrients, fiber, bulk and what Diet Center calls "staying power."

Consumers are becoming increasingly aware of good health, and it is no longer enough to just eat fast foods that temporarily satisfy hunger. They want food that will make them feel good and supply necessary nutrients.

Diet Center stresses the health benefits provided to the body by eating fresh fruits, raw or steamed vegetables, chicken and fish, and whole grains. Unlike many fast foods, these natural foods supply bulk, vitamins and minerals that are often lost in processing prepackaged foods. And by eating nutritious foods, you will also find you will be eating better for less money.

ORDINANCE

The Following Ordinance will be read for consideration and passage for County Wide effect at the Fiscal Court Meeting to be held Friday, August 24, 1984, at the hour of 10:00 A.M. in the Floyd County Courthouse Annex Conference Room.

FLOOD DAMAGE PREVENTION ORDINANCE Floyd County, Kentucky

ARTICLE 1. GENERAL PROVISIONS

Section 100 Statutory Authorization. Chapter 100 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes gives local government units the authority to adopt regulations to promote the public health, safety, and general welfare of its citizenry. Therefore, the Floyd County Fiscal Court of Floyd County, Kentucky does ordain as follows:

Section 110 Single Title. This Ordinance shall be known and cited as the "Flood Damage Prevention Ordinance of Floyd County, Kentucky" hereinafter referred to as "this Ordinance."

Section 120 Purposes. This Ordinance is enacted to minimize losses due to flood conditions in specific areas set forth herein by regulating development activities which are dangerous to public health, safety and property.

Section 130 Compliance. No structure or part thereof shall hereafter be erected, placed, moved, reconstructed, extended or altered; nor shall dredging, filling, grading, paving, excavation or similar activities be undertaken except in compliance with this Ordinance.

Section 140 Lands Affected. This Ordinance shall apply to all areas of special flood hazard located within Floyd County, Kentucky as identified by the Federal Emergency Management Agency in its Flood Insurance Study dated March 5, 1984, and any revisions thereto which are adopted by reference and made a part of this Ordinance.

Section 150 Interpretation. In interpreting and applying this Ordinance, the provisions contained herein shall be construed as the minimum requirements for the purposes set forth. Wherever there is a discrepancy between the minimum standards set forth in this Ordinance and those of any other lawfully adopted rules, regulations, ordinance or resolutions, the most restrictive or highest standards shall apply.

Section 160 Effect on Previous Ordinances. Ordinances relating to flood damage prevention that exist at the time of passage of this Ordinance, are superseded or amended only as expressly set forth herein. Furthermore, this Ordinance shall be interpreted so that the tenure of existing administrative officials and boards shall not be interrupted.

Section 170 Disclaimer of Liability. Flood protection required by this Ordinance is considered reasonable for regulatory purposes and does not imply that land outside the areas of special flood hazard or activities permitted within such areas will be free from flooding or flood damages. No liability on the part of Floyd County, Kentucky or of any officer or employee thereof shall be created as a result of any administrative decision lawfully made under this Ordinance.

Section 180 Severability. If any court of competent jurisdiction shall declare any part of this Ordinance invalid, such ruling shall not affect other provisions of this Ordinance not specifically included in said ruling.

ARTICLE 2. DEFINITIONS

Section 200 General. Terms not specifically defined in this Ordinance but defined in the latest edition of the Kentucky Building Code shall be construed as defined therein. Where terms are not so defined, they shall be interpreted to give them the meaning they have in common usage and to give this Ordinance its most reasonable application.

Section 210 Definitions.

210.1 - Areas of Shallow Flooding. Areas of Special Flood Hazard designated as AO Zones on the Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM).

210.2 - Areas of Special Flood Hazard. All land within a community that is subject to a one percent or greater chance of flooding in any given year. This area includes all areas designated A on the Flood Hazard Boundary Map (FHBM); and all unnumbered A Zones, Zones A-1 through A-30, and Zone A99 on the FIRM, and all areas of shallow flooding as defined above, and the designated floodway.

210.3 Base Flood. The "100 year" flood having a one (1) percent chance of being equalled or exceeded in any given year.

210.4 - Development. Any man-made change to structure(s) or land including but not limited to erection, reconstruction, alteration, filling, grading, mining, drilling, excavation, paving, dumping or dredging operations.

210.5 - Existing Mobile Home Park. A park or subdivision consisting of a parcel (or contiguous parcels) of land divided into two or more mobile home lots for rent or sale for which the construction of facilities for servicing the lot on which the mobile home is to be affixed (including at a minimum, the installation of utilities, either final site grading or the pouring of concrete pads, and the construction of streets) is completed before the effective date of this Ordinance.

210.6 - Expansion to an Existing Mobile Home Park. The preparation of additional sites by the construction of facilities for servicing the lots on which the mobile homes are to be affixed (including the installation of utilities, final site grading or pouring of concrete pads, or the construction of streets). Any expansion is considered "new construction."

210.7 - Flood or Flooding. A general and temporary condition of partial or complete inundation of normally dry land areas from the overflow of inland or tidal waters; or, the unusual and rapid accumulation of runoff of surface waters from any source.

210.8 - Flood Boundary-Floodway Map (FB-FM). Map issued by the Federal Emergency Management Agency for use during the Regular Phase of the National Flood Insurance Program which is the primary regulatory map to be used by a community with designated floodways. The Flood Boundary-Floodway Map illustrates the flood plain and floodway boundaries; and, in conjunction with the flood profiles and Floodway Data Table in the Flood Insurance Study, indicates the base flood elevations along different flood plain cross-sections.

210.9 - Flood Hazard Boundary Map (FHBM). Community map issued by the Federal Emergency Management Agency for use during the Emergency Phase of the National Flood Insurance Program on which areas of Special Flood Hazard are designated as unnumbered "A" Zones.

210.10 - Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM). Map issued by the Federal Emergency Management Agency for use during the Regular Phase of the National Flood Insurance Program which delineates areas of Special Flood Hazard, premium risk zones applicable to the community, and base flood elevations.

210.11 - Flood Insurance Study. Report provided by the Federal Emergency Management Agency containing flood profiles of the community, the Flood Boundary-Floodway Map (FB-FM) and/or the Flood Insurance Rate Map (FIRM) and the water surface elevations of the base flood.

210.12 - Flood Plain. All areas of special flood hazard defined above, including the "Floodway".

210.13 - Floodway. FEMA designated channel and adjacent land areas of a watercourse that must be reserved to convey the base flood without cumulatively increasing the water surface elevation more than one (1) foot.

210.14 - Floor. The top surface of an enclosed area in a building (including basement), i.e., - top of slab in concrete slab construction or top of wood flooring in wood frame construction. The term does not include the floor of a garage used solely for parking vehicles.

210.15 - Highest Adjacent Grade. The highest natural elevation of the ground surface, prior to construction, next to the proposed walls of a structure.

210.16 - Local Administrator. The local official to whom the county or city government has delegated the responsibility for the administration of the Flood Damage Prevention Ordinance.

210.17 - Mobile Home. A structure, transportable in one or more sections, which is built on a permanent chassis and designed to be used with or without a permanent foundation when connected to the required utilities. It does not include recreational vehicles or travel trailers.

210.18 - New Construction. Structures for which the "start of construction" commenced on or after the effective date of this Ordinance.

210.19 - New Mobile Home Park. A park or subdivision consisting of a parcel (or contiguous parcels) of land divided into two or more mobile home lots for rent or sale for which the construction of facilities for servicing the lot on which the mobile home is to be affixed (including at a minimum, the installation of utilities, final site grading or pouring of concrete pads, and the construction of streets) is completed on or after the effective date of this Ordinance.

210.20 - Start of Construction. The first placement of permanent construction materials (other than a mobile home) such as pouring of slabs or footings or any work beyond the excavation stage including relocation of the structure. Permanent construction does not include the installation of streets or walkways; nor does it include excavation for a basement or foundations, or the erection of temporary forms; nor does it include the installation of accessory buildings, such as garages or sheds not occupied as dwelling units.

For mobile homes, that are not within a mobile home park, "start of construction" means the affixing of the mobile home to its permanent site. For mobile homes that are within a mobile home park, "start of construction" is the date on which the construction of facilities for servicing the site on which the mobile home is to be affixed (including, at a minimum, the construction of streets, final site grading or pouring of concrete pads, installation of utilities, and street construction) is completed.

210.21 - Structure. A walled and roofed building that is principally above ground, a mobile home, a gas or liquid storage tank, or any other man-made facilities.

For the purposes of this definition "substantial improvement" is considered to occur when the first alteration of any wall, ceiling, floor, or other structural part of the building commences, whether or not that alteration affects the external dimensions of the structure. The term does not, include any project required to improve a structure to comply with existing state or local health, sanitary, or safety code specifications which are necessary to assure safe living conditions.

210.23 - Variance. A grant of relief to a person from the requirements of this ordinance which permits construction in a manner otherwise prohibited by this Ordinance where specific enforcement would result in unnecessary hardship.

310.53 - All development in the floodway that is allowed under the provisions stated above shall comply with all other applicable provisions of Article 3.

ARTICLE 4. ADMINISTRATION

Section 400 Permits Required. No development activity shall be started prior to the issuance of a Development Permit; further, no land or structure thus developed shall be used or occupied in whole or in part prior to the issuance of a Certificate of Compliance, all in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance.

Section 410 Local Administrator.

The (Flood Plain Administrator), hereinafter referred to as the "Local Administrator", is hereby appointed to administer and implement the provisions of this Ordinance. The Local Administrator shall be specifically empowered and directed to:

410.1 - Review all Development Permit applications, perform inspection duties, and grant or deny Development Permits and Certificates of Compliance in accordance with the provisions of this Ordinance.

410.2 - Investigate alleged violations of this Ordinance, and institute appropriate action or proceedings to prevent unlawful development activity in areas of Special Flood Hazard and to restrain, correct or abate such violation.

410.3 - Interpret, where necessary, the exact boundary location of areas of Special Flood Hazard.

410.4 - Where base flood elevation data has not been provided, in accordance with Section 140, the Local Administrator shall obtain, review and reasonably utilize any base flood elevation data available from a Federal, State, or other source in order to administer the provisions of Section 310 of this Ordinance.

410.5 - Advise permit applicants that additional federal and state permits may be required, and specify that copies of such permits be provided by the applicant and maintained on file with the Development Permit application.

410.6 - Notify adjacent communities and the Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, Division of Water prior to any alteration or relocation of a watercourse, and submit written evidence of said notification to the Federal Emergency Management Agency Regional Office in Atlanta, Georgia.

410.7 - Maintain and make available for public inspection all applications and records pertaining to the provisions of this Ordinance.

Section 420 Permit Issuance Procedures.

420.1 - Application for Development Permit and Certificate of Compliance shall identify the proposed type and location of development activity and other pertinent information that may be requested by the Local Administrator. The application shall be signed by the applicant and shall contain a clause which gives consent to the Local Administrator to make reasonable inspections to enforce the provisions of this Ordinance without first obtaining a search warrant.

420.2 - Upon receipt of the application the Local Administrator will, within a reasonable time, determine the applicability of provisions of this Ordinance. Where proposed development is not located in an Area of Special Flood Hazard, or where the Local Administrator determines that the proposed development will not adversely affect the flood storage capacity of the flood plain nor conflict with the other purposes of this Ordinance, the Local Administrator may issue a Development Permit and Certificate of Compliance.

420.3 - Where it is determined that proposed development is located in an Area of Special Flood Hazard, all activities shall comply with applicable Provisions for Flood Hazard Reduction as specified in Article 3. Prior to the initiation of construction of any such development, the applicant shall submit proposed measures for compliance to the Local Administrator. Information to be submitted for all development activities includes:

420.31 - A statement of techniques to be employed to anchor structures, and to verify use of flood resistant materials and construction practices.

420.32 - Plans showing that all new and replacement potable water supply and sewage systems shall be constructed to minimize flood damage and hazards to public health.

420.33 - Plans for subdivision proposals in accord with the provisions of this Ordinance. For subdivisions with 50 lots or 5 acres, whichever is least, the developer shall provide base flood elevations if they are not available.

420.34 - Plans showing extent of any watercourse or landform alteration.

420.35 - Sketch plan which illustrates all development activities, including lot dimensions, of all existing and proposed structures, all existing lakes and watercourses on or near the site, wells, and septic systems as applicable.

420.4 - Where base flood elevations are available, the applicant shall provide the following information as applicable to the proposed development activity:

420.41 - Elevation in relation to mean sea level of proposed lowest floor, including basement, of all structures.

420.42 - Elevation in relation to mean sea level to which any non-residential structure will be floodproofed.

420.43 - Certificate from a registered professional engineer or architect that non-residential floodproofed structure(s) will meet the requirements of Section 310.2 of this Ordinance.

420.5 - For development activities in a designated Floodway, the applicant shall provide a certificate from a registered professional engineer that the proposed activity shall not result in any increase in the height of the base flood in accordance with Section 310.51 of this Ordinance.

420.6 - Upon receipt of required information, the Local Administrator will within a reasonable time review the proposed development for compliance with this Ordinance. Where it is determined that proposed measures are adequate to meet the requirements of this Ordinance the Local Administrator will issue a Development Permit. The Development Permit shall be posted by the applicant in a conspicuous place on the premises, in plain view from a public road, during the course of the work until completion. A development permit under which no work is commenced within six (6) months after issuance shall expire and a new development permit shall be secured before work is started.

Where it is determined that the proposed measures are not adequate to meet the requirements of this Ordinance, the Local Administrator will deny a Development Permit. Said denial will be in writing and will be accompanied by a written finding of fact specifying the reason for denial. Upon receipt of a denial of a Development Permit, the applicant will be given a reasonable opportunity to revise and resubmit the application or to appeal the determination as provided for by this Ordinance.

420.7 - For development activity which includes structures, and in areas where base flood elevations are available, the applicant shall submit to the Local Administrator a certification prepared by a registered land surveyor or licensed professional engineer of the as-built elevation in relation to mean sea level of the lowest floor, floodproofed elevation or horizontal structural members of the lowest floor, as applicable. This certification shall be provided within 21 calendar days of the issue date of the Development Permit, and prior to the use or occupancy of said development. All work performed prior to this submittal shall be at the risk of the applicant.

420.8 - The Local Administrator, or his duly authorized representative, will review the certified elevations within a reasonable time and all work performed for compliance with the requirements of Article 3. Deficiencies identified shall be immediately corrected by the applicant and evidence of such correction shall be submitted to the Local Administrator prior to the continuance of work. Failure to provide certified elevations as required by this Ordinance or failure to correct deficiencies shall be cause to issue a stop-work order for the project, revoke the Development Permit, and deny a Certificate of Compliance when a stop work order is issued. The Local Administrator shall inform the Applicant in writing of the specific steps that shall be taken in order to have the permit reissued. It shall be unlawful to continue any work authorized by a permit after revocation of that permit and until the permit is reissued.

Upon submittal of certified elevations and/or determination by the Local Administrator that the development meets all of the applicable requirements of this Ordinance, the Local Administrator shall issue a Certificate of Compliance.

Section 430 Penalties. Knowing violations of or willful failure to comply with any provision of this Ordinance, including violation of conditions established in connection with grants of variance, shall constitute a misdemeanor punishable by a fine of not more than $ 500.00 or imprisonment for not more than 30 days, or both. Any person thus convicted shall also pay all court costs and expenses involved in the case. Each day said violation continues shall be considered as a separate offense.

ARTICLE 5. BOARD OF APPEALS

Such appeal shall be taken within a reasonable time by filing with the Local Administrator and with the Board a written notice specifying the grounds for the appeal. The Local Administrator shall immediately transmit to the Board all documents constituting a record of the action appealed.

Section 515 Manner of Appeal. The appeal of the Local Administrator's decision shall be in writing and shall set forth in detail the aggrieved parties' complaint. The Board of Appeals shall give of the appeal to all affected parties and shall, within fifteen days of the filing of said appeal, hold a public hearing on said appeal. Notice of said hearing shall be published in accordance with KRS 431.060. A record shall be made of all proceedings.

Section 520 Variations. Variations from the requirements of this Ordinance may be granted by the Board only upon demonstration of good cause, determination that strict application of the terms of this Ordinance will impose exceptional hardship upon the applicant, and assurance that granting of a variance is in harmony with the general purposes of this Ordinance. Variations shall only be granted upon a determination that the variance does not exceed the minimum action necessary, considering the flood hazard, to grant relief. No variance may be issued for construction in a designated floodway which would result in any increase in flood levels during the base flood discharge.

In passing upon such appeals, the Board shall consider all technical evaluations all relevant factors, all standards specified in other sections of this Ordinance, and:

520.1 - the danger that materials may be swept onto other lands and injure other persons or property;

520.2 - the danger to life and property due to flooding or erosion damage;

520.3 - The susceptibility of the proposed facility and its contents to flood damage, and the effect of such damage on the individual owner;

520.4 - the importance of the services provided by the proposed facility to the community;

520.5 - the need for the facility to be located at a waterfront location where applicable;

520.6 - the availability of alternative locations for the proposed use that are not subject to flooding or erosion damage.

520.7 - the availability of safe access to the property during flooding conditions for ordinary and emergency vehicles;

520.8 - the expected heights, velocity, duration, rate of rise, and sediment transport of the flood waters and the effects of wave action, if applicable, expected at the site;

520.9 - the costs of providing governmental services during and after flood conditions including maintenance and repair of public utilities and facilities such as sewer, gas, electrical, and water systems, and streets and bridges; and,

520.10 - the compatibility of the proposed use with existing and anticipated development and approved comprehensive and/or flood plain management plans.

Section 530 Exercise of Powers. Based on the factors listed above, and the purpose of this Ordinance, the Board may reverse, affirm, or modify, in whole or in part, the decisions of the Local Administrator.

Every variance granted or denied by the Board shall be accompanied by a written finding of fact based on testimony and evidence, and shall specify the reason for granting or denying the variance within a reasonable period of time.

Any applicant to whom a variance is granted shall also be given written notice specifying, if available, the base flood elevations and the elevation to which the activity may be built or placed and stating that the cost of flood insurance will be commensurate with the increased risk resulting from the reduced lowest floor elevation. Furthermore, the board may attach such conditions to granting of a variance as it deems necessary to further the intent of this Ordinance.

The Local Administrator shall maintain records of all appeal actions for public inspection and shall, upon written request, report variances to the Federal Emergency Management Agency and the Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet.

Section 540 Judicial Review. Appeals may be made from all orders of the Board. Such appeals shall be made within thirty (30) days from the rendition of such order to the Floyd Circuit Court. The judicial review shall be limited to whether the decision is arbitrary or capricious and shall be limited to the record upon which the Board of Appeals based its determination.

Any public comments should be directed to the Floyd County Judge/Executive's Office in the Floyd County Courthouse Annex, Prestonsburg, Kentucky between the hours of 8:30 A.M. and 4:00 P.M., Monday thru Friday.

The Fiscal Court hereby certifies that the Ordinance is true and accurate and written in a way calculated to inform the public of its contents.

I read that Harrison Ford is making a movie in Pennsylvania. Can you tell me something about it? I think he's heavenly. — F.C., Rocky Mount, N.C.

Heavenly Harrison just wrapped "Witness" in Philadelphia and in the Amish country around Hershey, Pa. It's a contemporary thriller in which he plays a detective out to solve the murder of a Mennonite. Australian Peter Weir directed, and co-stars include Patty LuPone ("Evita") and ballet star Alexander Godunov.

MYSTERY SHOW — None of my friends can remember this show, but didn't Tony Curtis do a series that didn't last long in which he played a con man and gambler? Everyone says I'm thinking of his role on "Vegas," but I know I'm not. — R.H.F., Carlsbad, N.M.

I doubt there are many other people who recall Curtis's "McCoy," one of the revolving entries of the "NBC Sunday Mystery Movie" at the start of the 1975 season. Only four episodes were ever aired. The more successful entries were "McCloud," "Columbo" and "McMillan and Wife."

'Hollywood Wives' on TV

By Katy Koontz

"What I write is shocking," says best-selling novelist Jackie Collins, author of the steamy behind-the-bedroom-drama "Hollywood Wives" and creative consultant for the upcoming ABC miniseries based on it.

"But it's not any more shocking than what other people have written. The difference is that I'm a woman covering subjects men have always covered."

Miss Collins, who began her literary career selling peeks at her diary to her grade school classmates for 6 cents a page, has now written nine novels. Three became movies, including "The Stud" and "The Bitch," which starred her sister Joan Collins of "Dynasty" fame.

"Hollywood Wives," says Miss Collins, will eventually become a night soap as well, in the tradition of "Dallas" and "Dynasty."

"We live in such times of violence with horrifying headlines every day that people need some sort of escape. With this show, they'll be able to escape to the world of television," she notes, adding that what they'll see will mirror reality more than most other nighttime soaps do.

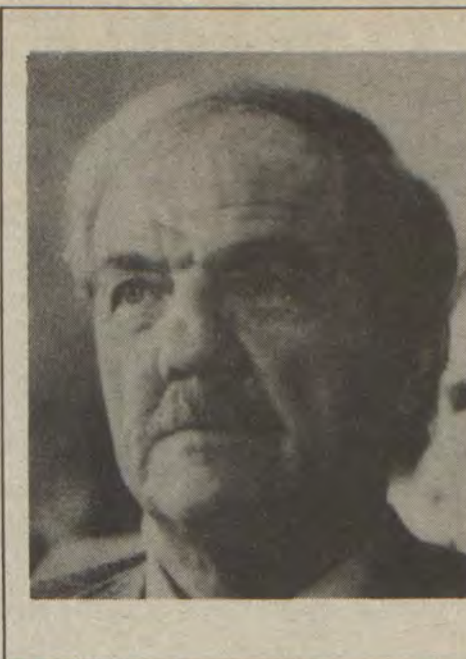

Hollywood's reaction, she says, will be typical. "They'll probably draw the curtains and pretend not to watch the show, like eating a box of chocolates and not telling anyone."

Will the stars still invite her to their parties? "Sure," Miss Collins says. "Hollywood is all about success and this book is a success. People feel they have to have a success at their parties."

Although she says she shuns the town's glitter, will she go to them? "Of course," she replies. "I still have more research to do. My next book is on Hollywood husbands, and they'd all better watch out!"

Jackie Collins brings her steamy book to TV.

Area Idle Rate Drop Continues

Seventy-five Kentucky counties reported a drop in unemployment rates between May and June, according to figures released last Thursday by the Cabinet for Human Resources. The rates went up in 37 counties and remained the same in eight.

In June, 50 counties reported rates of 10.0 percent or higher, compared to 54 in May. The preliminary state rate inched downward from a revised 9.0 percent in May to a preliminary 8.9 percent in June. Nationally, the rates were 7.2 percent in May and 7.4 percent in June.

The Bluegrass area continued to report the lowest rates. For the second consecutive month, Menifee county reported the state's highest rate, 24.2 percent.

In the Big Sandy district the unemployment rate dropped from a revised 13.9 percent in May to a preliminary 12.8 percent in June. Martin county's 7.7 percent rate was the district's lowest and only single-digit rate, while Magoffin county's 16.3 percent rate was the highest.

The monthly sample of unemployment insurance benefits recipients showed 43.6 percent had worked in mining, 18.9 percent in trade, 12.2 percent in services and 11.5 percent in construction.

Unemployment in the Kentucky River district declined from a revised 14.4 percent in May to a preliminary 14.2 percent in June. Breathitt county's 9.1 percent rate was the district's lowest and only single-digit rate. Letcher county's 21.5 percent rate was the highest.

The Big Sandy district report by counties:

Floyd—14,319 employed, 2655 unemployed, 15.6%; Johnson—8,496 employed, 1206 idle, 12.4%; Magoffin—5140 employed, 1019 unemployed, 16.5%; Martin—8405 employed, 641 unemployed, 7.1%; Pike—28,698 unemployed, 5011 idle, 14.9%.

ABC May Locate Agent in Floyd

Plans are under way to relocate seven Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control agents from dry to wet counties, according to Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet Secretary Melvin Wilson.

The reallocation would move agents into several counties, one in Floyd, it was said.

The increased number of wet territories over the past five years has prompted the proposed reassignment, officials said.

The Department of Alcoholic Beverage Control is currently operating with eight more wet territories and nine fewer agents than five years ago. Twenty-three field agents, including supervisors, are assigned to regulate statewide liquor license enforcement today, compared with 32 agents in 1979.

"We're talking about covering more wet territory with fewer agents than ever before," Wilson said. "Our Cabinet and our agency are charged with supervising the more than 8,000 alcoholic licenses throughout the state. We are also charged with protecting the concerns of the consuming and non-consuming public. That's why we're looking at these changes."

The secretary pointed out that he had requested funding for 10 additional agents during the 1984 General Assembly. Funding for all 10 positions was denied, he said.

"The responsibility of this Cabinet and this agency is to serve both wet and dry areas," Wilson continued. "Although that remains our concern, the denial of monies for agents has made enforcement in wet territories our primary responsibility. For example, there are 17 wet areas of Lexington and not one has an agent."

The secretary added that he plans to work with the next General Assembly to alleviate this shortage of agents, "until then, the emphasis must fall on the burgeoning wet territory enforcement," he said. "All possible efforts will be made to maintain an enforcement presence in dry areas."

Reallocation plans call for moving agents into McCracken and Daviess counties in the west and Bourbon, Rowan, Pendleton, Perry and Floyd counties in the east.

The Kentucky Garden Journal

By Bonnie Lee Appleton
State Urban Garden & Home Horticulture Specialist
COOPERATIVE EXTENSION PROGRAM
KENTUCKY STATE UNIVERSITY

By now many areas of your vegetable garden are nearing or have finished producing for the year. A few fall crops, such as leaf lettuce, radishes and spinach, can still be seeded, but you probably still have spots where you have or could clear out nonproducing plants. Should you go to this effort, and if so, then what?

Yes, clear garden areas where harvesting is finished. Shred and compost "clean" plant debris—no disease or insect problems. Throw away plants that have had pest problems. Garden cleanup or sanitation is one of the best ways to prevent 1985 garden problems.

If you mulched with an organic mulch such as grass clippings, straw or newspaper, till or spade this material under. If you mulched with black plastic, consider taking the plastic up so that you can work the soil.

If there are spots in your garden where weeds or pests have been unusually bad problems, consider solar sterilizing your soil. Garden soil can be chemically sterilized (as is done for tobacco beds), but we still have plenty of sun heat in late summer and early fall to let the sun cook out some of the problems.

To solar sterilize an area, remove all plant material and water the soil thoroughly. Cover the moist soil with clear plastic, covering the edges with soil. Now let it cook.

When will it be done? When we sterilize potting soil in containers, we look for a temperature in the center of our soil mass of 140° for one-half hour. This doesn't kill all organisms—many beneficial organisms survive—but most harmful pests and weed seeds will be killed. That temperature is possible outside—a month or so of warm weather should be sufficient.

After tilling in mulch or solar sterilizing, then what? Get out and plant again, not a crop for you to harvest, but a cover crop—a green manure—to feed your soil more organic matter. Are there certain crops to use? You bet.

There are two major categories of cover crops to choose from—legumes and nonlegumes. Both will give you green matter to incorporate into the soil, but the legumes have an added benefit of adding nitrogen—the major plant nutrient—to the soil.

Some of the legumes you can use, and their seeding rate in pounds per thousand square feet are: alfalfa (1), various clovers (1/2 to 1), vetches (1/2), and garden peas and lentils (2-1/2). Be sure to inoculate (coat the seeds) with nitrogen-fixing bacteria. Inoculant is available at farm supply stores and garden centers. Do not use seed treated with protectants such as captan or sulfur or copper compounds, or the bacteria will be killed.

Among the nonlegumes to use as winter cover crops are winter wheat (2-1/2) and annual and winter rye (2). Even late summer seeded kale is a good cover crop that can also be eaten.

Regardless of the crop you choose, be sure to choose one. Your garden soil will be better aerated and drained and yet will hold water after drainage better if you add organic matter to it. The cover crop will also help prevent soil erosion from wind and water, and will help keep a winter weed crop from becoming established.

Guardianship at Work

Who's responsible for adults in Kentucky who can't function as self-reliant individuals? Many have family and friends who help them with day-to-day living, but for those who have no one able and willing to assume the responsibility, the Cabinet for Human Resources becomes their family.

Take the case of Tommy M. He's a 30-year-old mentally retarded man living in Lexington, and Bobbie Moberly, of the Lexington Guardianship Office, is assigned to help him.

"I see Tommy as often as I can," Moberly said. "I check his apartment, see if he needs help with anything—just generally try to find out how he's getting along." It's a familiar statement from anyone who looks after a dependent family member—but for Bobbie Moberly, Tommy is only one of the 173 members of her "family."

The 173 members of Bobbie Moberly's "family" are among 2,275 Kentuckians for whom the Cabinet for Human Resources is currently serving as guardian. In addition to the Lexington office where Ms. Moberly works, the program has offices in Hopkinsville, Louisville and Prestonsburg staffed by four workers in each office. Many of the guardianship clients live in nursing homes or family care homes, but some, like Tommy, live in a house or an apartment.

The Cabinet for Human Resources becomes the guardian of people like Tommy when some individual or agency in the community becomes concerned that the person's disability has reached the point where he can't manage his own personal and financial affairs. That individual or agency then petitions the court to appoint the Human Resources Cabinet as guardian for the disabled person.

Kentucky law calls for guardianship only to the point it's determined to be needed. So after the court petition, an evaluation team made up of a doctor, a psychologist and a social worker determines the degree of disability and advises the court about what type of guardianship is needed. The court may appoint a "full" or "limited" guardian to handle the dependent adult's personal and financial needs. Where the need is only for someone to manage financial matters, either a "conservator" or a "limited conservator" is appointed.

John Clayton, the Cabinet for Human Resources Ombudsman and director of the guardianship program, doesn't downplay the difficulties of being responsible for nearly 3,000 dependent people. But he says Human Resources is doing more than ever before to meet his clients' needs. "The program has grown from merely managing the finances of residents in state institutions to providing a wide range of services for persons living in nursing homes, family care homes and community living situations," said Clayton.

But like any good relative, Clayton would like to do more for the people who look to him as their family. In the next two years, he'll be able to increase his services. The 1984 General Assembly's budget gave the guardianship program funds for four additional workers.

"It won't meet all the need, but it's certainly a step in the right direction," said Clayton.

We're glad you asked! John C. Hall Founder Hall Funeral Home. WHY HAVE I BEEN GETTING SO MUCH UNORDERED, UNWANTED MAIL. After a funeral it is not uncommon for unscrupulous persons to attempt fleecing you and thus adding money to their own pockets. These dishonest, cold-hearted individuals may send unauthorized, unwanted collect packages or fraudulent bills through the mail. The people attempting these hoaxes will try to indicate that these items had been ordered before the death occurred. Remember: collect packages do not have to be accepted; payment need not be made for items sent or billed without authorization. Statements and invoices should be checked carefully to be sure they are authentic. If any questions arise, contact your attorney, the Better Business Bureau or the post office. We just might be helpful in alerting you to other schemes we've heard of and which may be tried. Feel free to stop by or call us. HALL FUNERAL HOME Near Junction of Ky. 80 and Ky. 122, Martin. Cancer Hopeline

Q. Do bumps, bruises, or other injuries cause cancer?

A. No Traumatic injuries to the body are not considered to be a direct cause of cancer. However, sometimes treatment for an injury leads a doctor to find a cancer that had existed before but had not been noticed by the patient.

Q. Will removing all my moles protect me from skin cancer?

A. Removing all the moles on your body would be nearly impossible. People have an average of 20-40 moles during their lifetime. Skin cancer develops from clear skin as well as from moles. One mole in about a million will ever turn into cancer. What you should be watching for is change in a mole, particularly change in color, change in size or contour. Has the mole started to bleed, or is it crusty or pearly looking? If any of these changes occur you should see your doctor. For more information about skin cancer or melanoma call 1-800-4-CANCER and ask for the free publication, "What You Need to Know About Cancer of the Skin" or "What You Need to Know About Melanoma," or write the McDowell Cancer Network, 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, Ky. 40536.

Akers Family United

All of the living children of the late Saul and Mary Akers were united at Galveston, June 9, for the first time since 1954.

Those present were Liz Alley and Lee Akers, of Galveston; Laura Akers, Anna Keathley, and Daniel Akers, of Harold; Francis Hamilton, of Greenwich, Ohio; Vicky Davis, of Forth Worth, Texas; Sally Frasure, of Ashland, and Andy Akers, of Jackson, Ohio.

All the brothers and sisters met at the home place of Lee and Liz Alley at Galveston and later went out to a restaurant for dinner. They range in age from 67 to 91 years.

Jobs Sprouting Up All Over...

Agriculture Is Growing In More Ways Than One

Participants in a Washington seminar recently on Manpower Needs in Agriculture concluded that there will be more professional job openings in the field than qualified people to fill them by 1991.

The U.S. Department of Agriculture hosted the discussion which included leaders from the business and industry sectors, agricultural analysts and policy makers, and university educators from across the country.

If the number of students who graduate from high school and enroll in agricultural courses at a college or university continues to decline, USDA predicts that by 1991 there will be only 87 people for every 100 jobs in the field.

"And these are exciting fields," Dr. John C. Robertson said of the areas in which shortfalls are expected.

Robertson, associate dean for instruction in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said there are, and for the foreseeable future will be, numerous openings in agriculture for molecular biologists, engineers, biochemists, genetic engineers and people with degrees in business administration and education.

"Young people entering colleges of agriculture will find that job opportunities at graduation will exceed those of most other majors, and at comparable salaries," Robertson said.

At the University of Kentucky the College of Agriculture does not fit the perception many people have of being populated by males from rural backgrounds.

"Our male to female student ratio is about what it is in the other professions like law and medicine. Right now every third student who walks through that door is female, and two out of three grew up in the city," Robertson said.

And while many agriculture graduates will spend their career on the farm, there are more and more opportunities for agricultural careers in urban settings.

"Agriculture involves more than just on-farm food and fiber production. A wide diversity of disciplines is encompassed by agriculture, including engineering, business, economics, sociology, and soil, plant, and animal sciences," Robertson said.

Interest in agricultural careers is increasing at UK, but Robertson said the College of Agriculture still has room.

"We have the professors and the facilities necessary to produce the professionals that will be needed in the years ahead, what we have to do now is help the students make the right career decisions," Robertson said.

Selective Service System

Young men born on or after January 1, 1960 are required to register with Selective Service within a month of their 18th birthday.

The registration process takes less than five minutes at the post office. A young man fills out a simple form asking only for his name, date of birth, address, telephone number and Social Security number.

Registration helps keep our country prepared with a pool of names to draw from in case of a national emergency... without interfering with people's lives. When you think about it... that's not a lot to ask for a country as great as ours.

IT'S QUICK. IT'S EASY. AND IT'S THE LAW.

Surface Mining Discussions Set

Discussions of amended and proposed surface mining regulations, solid waste planning regulations and several presentations will highlight the meeting of the Environmental Quality Commission today (Wednesday) in Frankfort.

Scheduled to begin at 9:30 a.m. in the auditorium of the Capital Plaza Tower, the commission members will hear a special presentation by Natural Resources Secretary Charlotte Baldwin on the cabinet's budget, current activities, programs and the upcoming Governor's Conference on the Environment.

The federal perspective on Kentucky's water quality standards program and the state's triennial review will be presented by Jim Kutzman, chief of EPA's Region IV Water Quality Branch.

Under discussion at the meeting will be surface mining regulations dealing with permit definitions and abbreviations, applicability, permitting procedures, criteria and hearing requirements for cancellation of surety bonds after notice of non-compliance for failure to maintain contemporaneous reclamation.

Solid waste planning regulations to be looked at by the commission include dealing with general planning and management of solid waste, submission of area plans, designation of solid waste management areas and solid waste planning assistance.

"Tis the Human Touch... That Counts"

"We wanted to help make people comfortable that come to town," said Mrs. Venelia Rinehart, right, explaining why she and Mrs. Effie Hopkins, left, bought a picnic table and some seats for Prestonsburg's municipal parking lot. And frankly, they hope the idea might catch on, perhaps with some of the city's civic groups.

Especially for older or disabled people, or mothers with children, finding a place to rest a while can be a problem in Prestonsburg—a problem aggravated by the removal of seats from the courthouse—and is probably a major reason more people don't come to town, the two lifelong city residents figure. "We would like to challenge the different (community) groups to provide a little comfort and decorate this town," said Mrs. Rinehart. The city needs a "human touch," she said.

Area Clinics To Get Review of Requests At Hearing Monday

A public hearing has been scheduled for Aug. 13 on three proposed respiratory therapy clinics that were denied certificates of need in May.

The hearing will begin at 10 a.m. in the auditorium of the Department for Health Services building, 275 E. Main, Frankfort. Discussion will center on three applicants, two of which are in this area:

—East Kentucky Health Services Lung Clinic, Hindman, to serve Knott, Perry, Letcher, Pike and Breathitt counties;

—East Kentucky Black Lung Clinic, Paintsville, to serve Johnson, Lawrence, Elliott, Magoffin, Floyd and Martin counties.

The state's Certificate of Need and Licensure Board denied certificates to all three outpatients clinics in May, stating that the proposals failed to meet established criteria for need. At its July meeting the board granted the three applicants' requests for reconsideration.

The hearing will be conducted by a hearing officer on behalf of the board, which will review the proposals again on Sept. 19.

Start your own fan club.

This summer, you can save some energy and money. Don't turn to the air conditioner every time temperatures rise. Shut the sun's heat out with curtains or shades. Try circulating the air with a good old-fashioned fan. Wear loose clothing. And, when you use your air conditioner, for maximum economy, set it no lower than 78 degrees.

The point is, there are plenty of ways to save on energy costs and still live comfortably. And if you'd like more ideas on how to do it, just ask for our free booklets at any of our offices. They're so full of practical ideas, they make energy-saving a breeze.

State Crops Mostly In Good Condition

Kentucky crops are reported in mostly good condition thanks to recent rains, according to Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell.

Forty percent of the state has adequate soil moisture, with 60 percent still listed as short. Some areas, including Campbellsville and Henderson, received none of the recent rain, and Uniontown and Princeton got very little.

"Reports show that corn, soybeans, tobacco, sorghum and pastures are all in fairly good condition across the state," Boswell said. "There are still some problem areas, though."

Some corn plants are showing signs of moisture stress due to inadequate rainfall. Grasshoppers are continuing to be a problem for some soybean fields.

Insect and disease problems have been generally minimal in tobacco fields, though some growers are being troubled by aphids and the viruses they carry. Blooming has occurred on 21 percent of the burley acreage, and a limited amount of topping has begun.

"The hay crop looks in pretty good shape now. Also, it will be aided in regrowth by the recent rains," Boswell said. "Overall, Kentucky crops are doing pretty well."

MEDICATION AND TODDLERS

The major problems in administering medicines to toddlers are taste and consistency. Parents have used numerous methods in disguising medicines that their children dislike taking. Some of the more successful methods include hiding the medicine in well-liked foods such as ice cream. Remember that it may be easier for some children to swallow a ground-up tablet in ice cream than it is to swallow a supposedly good-tasting liquid. Taste the medicine yourself so that you have some idea of what the child has to confront. Whatever system you use to administer your child's medicine, inform your physician. It may be that certain techniques can alter the medication's effectiveness.

If your pediatrician prescribes medication for your youngster have him call it into COOLEY APOTHECARY, The Drug Store with a Difference.
