

City To Remove Parking Meters

Removal Is Part Of City Program On Court Street

Parking meters will be coming off Court Street, as part of a city council plan to boost business in downtown Prestonsburg.

Removal of the meters comes as the latest element in a program which has already seen Court Street repaved, sidewalks rebuilt and a new parking lot nearing completion off Front Street.

A two-hour limit will be placed on Court Street parking, which will be reserved for shoppers and others visiting here. Store employees will be asked to use city parking lots, said Councilman William O. Goebel III, who submitted the plan to council.

The first month's figures bear out the wisdom of his creating a detective section in the city police department, Police Chief Stan Fletcher told members of the council Monday night.

"I am especially proud to report the (August) statistics on burglaries and thefts," Fletcher wrote in a memo to the council. "Detectives Larry Woods and Mike Ormerod investigated 15 burglaries and theft complaints and solved all 15 cases." In addition, files were closed (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

This Town...That World

Yes, I am not especially pleased to report, this office will be open—and, presumably, working—on Labor Day.

Incidentally, I'm dumb enough to be unable to understand why it should be called Labor Day when it's a day when almost everybody does nothing. It honors labor, granted, and the honor is richly merited. But why not get realistic about the matter and call it Labor Holiday?

A MATTER OF CATEGORY

TRIAGE (pronounced, I am told, tree-edge)—now there's a new word in my vocabulary. It's not in our Webster's Unabridged, but I am told it dates back to war days when the casualties mounted and the medics had to decide who belonged to which of three categories—(1) the slightly wounded who could wait; (2) the fatally wounded who could wait because it would make little difference, anyhow, and (3) those with a good chance of survival who should get immediate treatment. Now, it has got into emergency rooms of hospitals... where, to date, I have always been in one of the first two categories.

Slayer of Cline Asks Set-Aside Of His Sentence

A McDowell man who pleaded guilty in 1982 in the kidnap-murder of a young gas station attendant has asked that his prison sentence be set aside.

In a motion filed on his own behalf from the state reformatory at LaGrange, Elisha Branham, 26, last week petitioned Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley to set aside sentences imposed on him for robbing, kidnapping and murdering Michael Dwayne Cline in July, 1981. Cline was 17 when he died.

Branham, who received life sentences on both the murder and kidnap charges and 20 years for robbery, now says his conviction was based on a coerced confession and that he received inadequate assistance from his lawyer.

Cline was night attendant at an Allen gas station on July 9, 1981, when Branham allegedly held him up, abducted him and shot him in the head. His body was not recovered until August 15, when it was found beside the Daniel Boone Parkway in Perry county. Branham was arrested 10 days later in Texas City, Texas.

He pleaded guilty the following March to murder, kidnap and robbery charges, receiving three sentences—two life terms and 20 years—to run one after the other. In response to Branham's later argument that he could not lawfully be required to serve one life sentence after another, Judge Conley last month ordered that those sentences be served concurrently.

In moving to have the sentence set aside, Branham said that, when Floyd (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

OPERATIONS of the Southern Explosives Corp. (SEXCO), pictured, and the Austin Powder Company prompted a delegation of about a dozen Auxier residents to petition the fiscal court last week to shut the plants down. They said workers unloading ammonium nitrate hammer on the sides of railway gons to shake the white powder loose, causing a disturbance which begins in the early hours and sometimes goes until late at night. The chemical, which is used in explosives manufacture, hangs in a pall above their homes, corroding their roofs and threatening their health, they said.

James "Dee" Caudill, president of the Auxier Community Development Club, said 230 persons have signed a petition to try and force the powder companies out of Auxier.

Not all Auxier residents are unhappy with their corporate neighbors, however. Dixie Campbell, who lives directly opposite the SEXCO plant, said she would "never say anything against" the firm. She was not asked to sign the petition to oust the company and would not have signed it if she were. "I would sign a petition to hold it," she said. "I don't want to knock nobody out of work." Noise from the plant doesn't bother her and it doesn't extend into the nighttime hours, she insisted. Moreover, workers from SEXCO helped her when her late husband, who suffered from a lengthy illness, needed to be carried to and from the house. "They have always been good to us," she said.

Enrollment at PCC To Top 1983 Record

With students still registering, Prestonsburg Community College has already passed last year's record mark for fall enrollment and seems certain to top the overall record set last spring.

This marks the sixth year of steady growth for the school, noted P.C.C. Director Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., who hopes the phenomenon will not go unnoticed by the state legislature when monies for higher education are next parcelled out.

The previous record enrollment for a fall term was set last year, when 1154 students signed up; the overall record was reached last spring, when 1224 were registered.

Dr. Campbell reported 1139 enrolled here Monday, the fourth day of registration. With another full day of registration to go—students will be accepted for classes until Sept. 5—the earlier records would apparently be exceeded, with more than 1300 students expected to enroll, the director said.

Surveys will be conducted this year to assess the need for two new courses at the college. If there is enough interest, courses in dental hygiene and data processing will be added to the curriculum next fall, Campbell said.

The community college urgently needs to build more classrooms, a matter Campbell hopes the next legislature will "take a hard look at." Monies set aside for the community colleges by the last legislature were cut from the budget by Gov. Martha Layne Collins.

"We've about reached capacity," Campbell said. "We could perhaps take a few hundred more, but it's pretty tight."

New Flood Plain Ordinance Sets Stricter Regulations

If you live in the flood plain, you will need a permit before you build a new home or bring in a mobile home; and if your property falls within the narrower category of a floodway, you may not be permitted to build at all.

That, at any rate, is what is laid down in a lengthy ordinance passed by the Floyd fiscal court last week as a condition of this county's remaining in the federal flood insurance program—although a state official at the fiscal court's Friday meeting noted that similar ordinances have not been strictly enforced here in the past.

Under the Flood Damage Prevention Ordinance, owners of property that stands at least a one-percent chance of being flooded in any given year must apply to the county for a development permit before they do any new building or substantial remodeling, and must get a certificate of compliance before the new building is occupied.

To comply with the law, new buildings or trailers in the floodplain must be elevated so that the lowest floor, and that means the basement if there is one, is above the 100-year flood level. In addition, mobile homes must be anchored so they cannot float away.

No building or filling will be permitted in the floodway—the very path of the floodwaters—unless an architect or engineer certifies that the fill or construction will not raise the flood level.

"Sounds pretty darn close to zoning," grumbled Magistrate Ed Caudill. And Kenneth Roberts said he wished federal bureaucrats would pass their own laws instead of making local officials take the heat. But the magistrates agreed to pass the ordinance rather than jeopardize Floyd's participation in the government-backed flood insurance program or its eligibility for federal disaster assistance.

Deputy Judge-Executive Morris Isaac hailed the law as possibly "one of the most important ordinances the fiscal (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Democrats Pick Knott Co. Clerk For State Post

Knott County Clerk Jim Rose is the Democratic nominee for state representative from the 92nd legislative district, and it was indicated this week that he will be without Republican opposition.

"I haven't heard it mentioned," said Bill Jack Darby, a member of the Floyd County Republican Executive Committee, when asked if his party will field a candidate.

Rose was named the nominee last Friday by Democratic Executive Committee members from Knott, Floyd and Letcher counties at a meeting held in Hindman. The committee action became necessary when Chris Perkins, the Democratic nominee for the state legislative post, was nominated to run for the U.S. House seat made vacant by the recent death of his father, Congressman Carl D. Perkins.

The 92nd legislative district includes all of Knott county, 11 precincts in Floyd county and six precincts in Letcher.

The nominee is a native of Floyd county, the son of the late Orville and Myrtle Rose. He will continue in office as county clerk till next January.

And when he leaves office as county clerk the vacancy will create a problem for the Knott county judge-executive, who will be required to appoint a successor.

Sewage Fouls School Grounds

For nearly four months, raw sewage has been bubbling out of the ground in a shallow depression between playing areas at Clark Elementary School and parents of students there expressed growing concern about the problem at a meeting last week of the school PTA.

Ever since the May flood knocked out a lift station, sewage has oozed in a slow, stinking river, about 25 feet wide, across a field to Middle Creek, perhaps 300 feet away. The worst area, around the idle lift station itself, is about 50 feet from play areas and perhaps 100 feet from a classroom building.

Floyd Health Department officials say they were notified of the problem only on school opening day, Aug. 13, when a parent lodged a complaint with Health Dept. Administrator Earl Compton. Clark school officials have been instructed to keep children well away from the affected area, said John Bailey, health department environmentalist.

Ned Bush, health coordinator for Floyd schools, acknowledged that school district officials were aware of the problem earlier but said they first thought the damage was less extensive than it turned out to be and were then uncertain whether the cost of repairs would be covered by federal disaster relief monies.

The C.I. Thornberg Co., a Huntington firm, has been instructed to repair the plant, for an estimated cost of $3475. Asst. Superintendent Ray Brackett confirmed Tuesday. Randy Clark, Thornberg sales engineer, said repairs may take several weeks.

TRADITIONAL GROUNDBREAKING rite at a Stephens Branch site, near Martin, last Friday, signalled the start of construction on a 60-unit public housing project. The $2.7 million complex is being funded by the federal Department of Housing and Urban Development. It will consist of one-, two-, and three-bedroom apartments for families of limited means.

With help from the fiscal court and the Big Sandy Area Development District (ADD)—and some self-help from the communities affected—water lines will soon be extended up various hollows in this county, Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo announced Tuesday.

The ADD board's approval Monday of grants totalling $63,000 from the Area Development Fund will enable 10 additional miles of water lines to be laid, Stumbo said.

Prestonsburg city water system will be extended up Hollybush and Caney, tributaries of Middle Creek, and to Bucks Branch of Beaver Creek. The Beaver-Elkhorn Water District will get extensions up Stephens Branch and Salyers Branch, on Right Beaver Creek, and Simpsons Branch of Left Beaver. The Sandy Valley Water District will run a line up Cold Water, a Big Sandy tributary lying between Betsy Layne and Harold.

Of the ADF grant, $3600 will go toward completion of the Ford's Gap water line already under construction near Auxier, and $2200 was earmarked for testing equipment for the Mud Creek water system.

While the grant money will enable the county to purchase pipes, the individual utilities and volunteer workers in the local communities will assist in laying them. "I'm real proud of it," Stumbo said of the project.

Court Approves Overtime Paid Clerk's Staff

Despite a warning by the county attorney that they were undermining their own authority by doing so, members of the Floyd Fiscal Court voted last week to overlook unauthorized expenses incurred by a former county clerk.

In a letter to the court, County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. cautioned Friday that, while the court could lawfully "forgive" some $18,424 claimed by former county clerk Thomas Lafferty, Jr. in unauthorized "overtime" payments for his staff, to do so would set a precedent and weaken its authority to set a ceiling on county officials' salaries.

Fees collected by the clerk are supposed to be turned over to the county after authorized expenses have been taken out. The fiscal court theoretically decides how large a staff the clerk may have and how much they may be paid. A recent audit covering the nine months Lafferty was in office last year revealed that the clerk paid his deputies $18,424 more than the maximum set by the court.

Unless the fiscal court wished to overlook the unauthorized payments, $70,357 was owing to the county in clerk's fees, the audit showed. With Magistrate Lowell Samons abstaining, the court voted not only to forgive the unauthorized expenditures but also to honor an additional claim of $1708 which the former clerk charged for "assisting in the final settlement of his fee account."

In explaining his vote, Magistrate Ed Caudill said that Floyd fiscal courts have not closely scrutinized the clerk's (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Jenny Wiley Theatre Closes '84 Season, Starts Work on 1985

As the last person was filing out after the final performance of the 1984 season, plans were already under way for 1985 at the Jenny Wiley Theatre.

"I am pleased to announce the tentative 1985 slate of shows pending availability," said Keith Stevens, managing director of the theatre. "It's a season of family entertainment and just plain fun!"

Leading off the season will be the perennial favorite, "The Sound of Music." "This is a show for the entire family, with songs everyone knows and loves," said Stevens. The story of the Von Trapp family is one of the best-loved and most performed musicals ever written.

Broad slapstick and mistaken identities are featured in the hilarious farce, "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." Rounding out the season will be the magic-filled musical, "Pippin."

"In many ways, the 1984 season was highly successful," said Stevens. "The quality of the three shows—"Fiddler on the Roof," "Joseph and the Amazing Technicolor Dreamcoat" and "Annie"—was the best in the theatre's history, and attendance reached the second-highest total ever."

But the summer was plagued by the same problem that hurt so many people in the region—the weather. The flood hit just as the season ticket and fundraising campaigns were gearing up, not only affecting the campaigns' timing but also people's ability to give. The flood also caused the need for extensive work on the "turntable," which is used to revolve the sets, plus the need for a whole new dance floor.

Once the season started, the theatre was forced to cancel seven performances because of rain. On top of the cancellations, 10 other performances were rained on, which drastically cut attendance on those nights.

"All in all, due to things beyond our control, the Jenny Wiley Theatre is facing a $24,000 shortfall as we close the books on 1984," Stevens said.

The Jenny Wiley Theatre is embarking on a special fundraising campaign between now and October 1 to meet this shortfall. "We ask that if people are interested in making a contribution to the theatre, or if they would like more information, to please call us at 886-9274," Stevens concluded.

"The best answer to anger is silence." German proverb

Data on Artists, Craftsmen Sought

Joining the swing toward modern, more efficient information systems, the Kentucky Department of the Arts is developing a new word processing system that will let them keep more up-to-date, easily accessible lists and information about the state's artists and craftspeople.

To update this Resource Directory, the department recently sent out a mailing request for information to 3500 of the state's visual artists and craftspeople. Commissioner Crit Luallen said that the new system would streamline the speed and efficiency with which the department can reach artists and craftspeople around the state.

"When a buyer contacts us looking for a source for woven baskets, for example, someone here had to manually search our files for sources," she explained. "If some company is looking for—say equine artists to show or purchase their work, we'd spend a great deal of search time. With this computer program such requests will be very quick and simple to answer. It is a big step forward for us."

The program will also enable department staff to notify artists and craftspeople about upcoming events, award competitions in the area and other pertinent information.

The computer program, which was established by the Southern Arts Federation for use by all arts agencies in the south, will initially contain just basic information, but the department will eventually develop a more detailed program geared toward business data, according to Luallen.

"This will be an ongoing program, and we hope to strengthen the lines of communication between the department and the artists and craftspeople throughout Kentucky. We want any artist and craftsman who may not have received our initial mailing to contact us so we can add them to our system," Luallen said.

To register with the department or for further information, contact the Department of the Arts, Berry Hill Mansion, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, telephone (502) 564-8076.

Awards for High School Seniors

Kentucky high school seniors with outstanding leadership skills are eligible to compete for more than $200,000 in scholarships through the Century III Leaders program.

Students will be judged on their leadership qualities, school and community activities, and awareness of current events in the competition, which begins in mid-September. Applications will be available from high school principals.

The Century III Leaders program, which is in its 10th year, is sponsored by the National Association of Secondary School Principals and is financed by the Shell Companies Foundation.

"This program to prepare the students of today to meet the challenges America will face in its third century is another example of the growing partnership between education and industry," Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald said. "Through their participation in Century III, students will be inspired to take on leadership roles in community and social issues and to explore their responsibilities as adults in a changing world."

Winners from the various high schools will compete at the state level, where top contenders will be interviewed by a selection committee.

Two winners and two runners-up will be named in each state and the District of Columbia, and they will compete for national honors in a Century III Leaders conference to be held in Williamsburg, Virginia.

State winners will receive $1,500 college scholarships and expense-paid trips to the conference, and the runners-up will receive $500 scholarships. The national winner will receive a $10,000 scholarship, and the nine runners-up will each receive $500.

Each participant must submit an application, prepare a "Projection for Innovative Leadership" and take an examination on current events. The entry deadline for the 1984-85 competition is Oct. 22.

Subject of Book, Ledford To Appear At Folk Festival

In May of this year, the University Press of Kentucky published a book entitled Dulcimer Maker-The Craft of Homer Ledford, by R. Gerald Alvey.

The book is about Homer C. Ledford, of Winchester, Kentucky who is widely recognized as one of the finest makers of handcrafted musical instruments in the world. Although he has made ukuleles, banjos, guitars, mandolins and fiddles, Mr. Ledford is best known for his dulcimers. In addition to being a superb craftsman, he is also an excellent musician and entertainer who delights his audiences wherever he goes.

The book opens with an anecdote from Homer Ledford's performance at the eighth annual Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival. He has been on the festival's program for seventeen of its eighteen years and will return again this September.

Ledford will perform during the program of traditional music of Appalachia on Saturday evening, September 8 at 7:00 p.m. in the amphitheatre.

This program is just one part of the three day Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival which will be held September 7-9 at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park near Prestonsburg.

Days is that period of about six weeks in July and August when the weather is at its hottest, sultriest, most (gasp!) stifling. Astronomically speaking, it's when the Dog Star rises and sets with the sun. But the barnyard lexicon has it that then is when the snakes all go blind and strike at the slightest noise, when sores won't heal, dogs go mad, and the water is pizen and you shouldn't go in swimmin', and on through the collection of old wives' tales designed to keep the young'uns safe, and reasonably civil. That's Dog Days. And ahead, we shudder to think, are dogsled days.

Acid rain is another part of the weather about which almost everybody talks a lot and does nothing.

A character whom The Licking Valley Courier lists as Mom Garris says: "Statistics show that thousands are killed by intoxication while only one is killed by a mad dog; yet we shoot the dog and license the liquor."

court will ever pass." But Caudill told Isaac, a coal operator, that the county's flood problems could be better eased with stricter regulation of stripmining. A delegation of Auxier residents petitioned the fiscal court to shut down operations of the Austin Powder Company and the Southern Explosives Corporation (SEXCO), which they said generate noise, dust and corrosive fumes. Workers unloading ammonium nitrate pound on the sides of railway gondolas all at hours and the air is heavy with pollutants that threaten their health and eat away the roofs on their houses, said James "Dee" Caudill, president of the Auxier Community Development Club.

Assistant County Attorney Janet Stumbo was instructed to write the firms, Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo assuring the Auxier delegation that "we'll see if we can't get it cleaned up." But one woman in the group indicated that might not be enough. "We don't want it cleaned up," she said. "We want it out."

An ongoing struggle between different groups over use of Allen Park facilities has erupted again, some golf enthusiasts complaining to the court that Allen grade school football players have taken over part of their turf. Judge-Executive Stumbo said he would talk to school authorities to see if a compromise could be worked out.

Another long-standing dispute will be referred to the county attorney. Bascom DeRossett complained that for 10 years he has been unable to dissuade two of his neighbors from encroaching on a county road in New Allen. Raymond Childers and Carl Martin have built their front fences out on the public right-of-way, making the road there too narrow for two cars to pass, DeRossett told the court.

William Clutter, an Abbott Creek locksmith, criticized the court for hiring a Lexington firm to replace locks on the county voting machines, a task he said he could have done for $1000 less. County Clerk Carla Boyd said she, not the fiscal court, had the locks changed and that she chose the Lexington firm in order to get the job done quickly.

fee account in the past. "It's an old tradition that we leave them alone," he said, adding, with a reference to long-time clerk C. Ollie Robinson, "We never fooled with Ollie." Magistrate Kenneth Roberts, who seconded Caudill's motion to accept Lafferty's settlement, noted that "we made an amendment similar on the sheriff."

County Attorney Turner acknowledged in his letter that "in the past the court has forgiven overtime expenditures for the sheriff's office" but such claims, he said, have never exceeded $3000. "Here we have $18,424 in less than a year," he noted.

"I would simply caution the court that to approve overtime expenditures of this size, which were accumulated in nine months, establishes a precedent and undermines the court's responsibility and power to limit salaries in county offices," the county attorney wrote. (Lafferty was in office from Feb. 25 through Nov. 9, 1983.)

"If the court continues to approve these unauthorized expenditures," he added, "they may find the exception has become the rule."

Magoffin Teacher Drowns In Dewey Boat Collision

Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad members during dragging operations at Dewey Lake for the body of Stanley G. Arnett last Sunday morning.

A Magoffin county teacher was drowned and three other persons were injured early Saturday night when two boats collided on Dewey Lake.

The body of the victim, 37-year-old Stanley Gene Arnett, of Bloomington, a teacher in the Millard Hensley Elementary School, was not recovered till Sunday morning.

The victim's wife, Daisy Arnett, a passenger in the teacher's boat, suffered fractured ribs and was treated at the Highlands Regional Medical Center. Another occupant of the Arnett boat, Brenda Hughes, and Jerry Thomas Scott, about 30, of Meta, Pike county, operator of the other craft, sustained minor injuries.

The tragedy occurred around 9:45 p.m. at Arrowhead Point. Investigators said Arnett, travelling down the lake, had apparently rounded the point when he was met in the darkness by Scott's boat, which was headed up the lake. The oncoming Scott boat vaulted completely across the other craft, it was said.

Arnett was thrown from his boat and never surfaced. The two women were taken to shore by Scott and later admitted to the hospital.

The report which indicated Arnett may have been operating his boat without lights could not be confirmed.

The Floyd County Emergency & Rescue Squad began the search for the teacher's body Saturday night and continued dragging operations till 2 a.m. Sunday. Dragging was resumed after daybreak Sunday, with the Floyd squad being joined by rescue squads of Magoffin, Johnson, Pike and Knott counties. The search ended at 10:15 a.m., when the body was found in 35 feet of water by the Pike County Rescue Squad.

Coroner Roger Nelson said the teacher's death was by drowning and that injuries resulting from the collision were minor. The Arnett boat was severely smashed.

The victim was a son of Ella Mae Arnett, of Salyersville, and the late Harry James Arnett. He was a graduate of Morehead State University and was a teacher of the fifth grade at the Millard Hensley School. He was a member of the Methodist Church and the Salyersville Masonic lodge.

Surviving, besides his wife and mother, are two children, Fred Douglas and Gina Lynn Arnett, of Bloomington; one brother, Jerry Lynn Arnett, Salyersville; five half-brothers and a half-sister, Larry James Arnett, Jerry C. and Haden Arnett, all of Hendricks, David B. Stephens and Dale Stephens, both of Salyersville, and Mrs. Cathy Joseph, of Hendricks.

Funeral services will be conducted at 2 p.m. today (Wednesday) from the Prater Memorial United Methodist Church at Salyersville, the Revs. Herald Whitaker, Larry Nicholes and Samuel T. Allen officiating. Burial will be made in the Birch Patrick cemetery at Bloomington under direction of the Dunn and Kelly Funeral Home.

One-Way Ticket Out of County Set for Jacobs

His attorney will buy him a one-way bus ticket to Detroit as part of the deal James Jacobs struck Monday in Floyd Circuit Court.

Jacobs, 36, of Wayland, was due to be tried on a burglary charge—he was accused of stealing a TV from Larry Coburn's house last September—when, following a short recess in the court proceedings, he pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of criminal trespass.

He received a one-year sentence, with credit for the 65 days he has already served in the county jail. The remainder of the sentence was probated, on the understanding that Jacobs leaves this county by Friday. Public Defender Ned Pillersdorf said he has agreed to buy Jacobs a Greyhound ticket, one way, to Detroit.

Jacobs' mother died during his most recent incarceration.

In another plea bargain struck in circuit court Monday, Larry Dean Moore, 23, admitted breaking into Allen Hoover's house at Wayland last Dec. 9 and stealing a stereo system.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley accepted a recommendation by Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen that Moore serve a one-year prison term. Because he would soon be eligible for parole if he were sent to LaGrange—Moore has served 107 days here—Conley probated the rest of the sentence.

In arguing for probation, Public Defender Pillersdorf said his client felt he had resolved a chronic drinking problem while in jail. Since 1980, Moore has been convicted nine times on public drunkenness charges—five times in this county and four times in Knott—and once on an assault charge. A former Wayland resident, his address is now listed as Lackey.

Information Wanted

Can anyone who reads the Times tell me where "Bad" Talt Hall is buried? We saw his grave some years ago, but in a search for it this July, we could find no trace anywhere, nor did anyone we asked know of it.

The same fruitless search has been ours for the grave of Anthony Hall, soldier in the American Revolution. Not a D.A.R. that I asked had any idea of it; some had never heard of him.

Does any reader know where Millard Fillmore Hall was born? Lastly, is it true that there is a yearly Hall reunion every 4th of July, in or near Hazard?

Any help will be appreciated. MRS. ROBERT MARTIN, Martin, Ky. 41649

"NO-NOD" ANTIHISTAMINE

Even 40 years after the discovery of antihistamines, they ease allergy symptoms only at the cost of making the sufferer drowsy. Before long, however, you may be able to get a "no-nod" antihistamine. Already, people in Europe and Canada take non-sedative antihistamines. It is expected that the Food and Drug Administration will approve the compound "terfenadine" for sale in the U.S. by the end of the year. Antihistamines work by traveling through the blood to the eyes and nasal passages, where they block the local effect of histamine on the irritated membranes. The drawback is that they attach to receptors in the brain causing drowsiness. The new antihistamines bypass the brain.

Our pharmacists at COOLEY APOTHECARY are highly skilled in their field and take great pride in being able to provide you with prescription medications at everyday low prices. First call your doctor and then have him call us. Discover for yourself why we are considered by many in this area as the drug store with a difference. We are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30; Sat. 9-4.

HANDY HINT:
Terfenadine was introduced in Europe in 1982 and has since become the leading prescription antihistamine.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND Health Educator

The Health Department will be closed Monday September 3, in observance of the Labor Day Holiday.

The Family Planning Clinic at the Floyd County Health Department offers many choices of birth control. The program is staffed by physicians from the area who help individuals coming into the clinic make decisions about which form of birth control is best for them.

Federal Regulations require that family planning clinics charge a fee for services given in their clinics. A sliding fee scale based on family income and size is used to determine the amount paid by each individual.

The Family Planning Program is open to all people regardless of sex, race, color, or national origin. For more information call 606-886-2788 and ask for Family Planning.

A nutrition program is also offered at the health department that supplies some foods to pregnant or breastfeeding women, infants and children under 5 years of age. This program is limited to those persons at nutritional risk and that also qualify within income guidelines. For more information call 606-886-2788 and ask for the WIC Program.

PSC Chairman Seeks To Review Records

The state's Public Service Commission chairman has announced that he will work to establish a financial field audit program for utilities subject to the Commission's jurisdiction.

PSC Chairman Richard D. Heman said state law gives the Commission authority to periodically examine the financial books and records of utilities it regulates. While the Commission requires specific financial information from companies, Heman said he will encourage instituting a regular review of each utility's fiscal records.

"The consumers of utility service deserve no less," Heman said. While utilities are required to submit certain financial information in rate proceedings, the Commission does not have the ability to obtain and verify the information. "With this ability, the Commission's confidence in the data's validity will be increased," he said. Heman added that financial audits will reduce the volume of information requested by PSC staff in rate proceedings, thus decreasing the cost of a rate case to utility customers.

"I believe we owe it to Kentucky ratepayers to substantiate the information presented to the Commission at face value," he said. Heman noted that access to a company's fiscal records would also allow the Commission to gauge a company's financial performance.

Heman said "an overwhelming majority" of other state commissions perform periodic fiscal audits of regulated utilities. He added that instituting the policy in Kentucky would not require any new legislation, just a decision by the Commission to begin the practice.

During his 22 years as a member of the PSC staff, Heman said he had requested that a financial audit program be adopted. "My observations over the years, plus my discussions with representatives from other state commissions have convinced me that this is an omission in Kentucky policy that needs correcting," he said.

Currently, the Kentucky Commission is conducting management audits of each utility with accessible yearly in-state revenue exceeding $100 million, which includes 10 companies. Legislation mandating the audits was passed by the 1984 General Assembly, and the Commission intends to expand the program. "A financial audit program would not only complement the management audit effort but allow the Commission to conduct targeted financial studies that would be useful in rate proceedings," Heman said.

In addition, Heman has instructed Commission staff to investigate the potential of merging some of the 145 water districts and the 35 water associations presently regulated by the PSC. A law passed in 1972 encouraged the reduction of the number of water districts and associations serving Kentucky customers.

While the legislation empowered the Commission to initiate and order mergers when feasible, Heman said this has not been done, and that a larger number of water districts and associations exist now than when the legislation was passed in 1972. Heman noted that the few mergers authorized by the Commission were in response to applications or petitions. He said that as mergers occur, duplication of costs and efforts will be eliminated, resulting in better customer services and lessening the need for rate increases.

Heman is also advocating that a consumer hot line be established at the Commission. "The Commission needs to be readily accessible to utility customers who have problems, and we need to respond quickly," Heman said. Currently, two PSC staff members work with customers and companies to work out complaints and problems. "In order to be truly responsive to consumer needs and concerns, I hope to strengthen our consumer services staff," he said. Heman added that he hoped to resolve more complaints and problems with less formality, including holding conferences with the customer, company representatives and PSC staff.

Heman said he is anxious to begin the management audit of the PSC, which was included in the 1984 legislation. "I believe this audit will recognize that the Commission is understaffed and underfunded in several important areas," he said. "This situation must be remedied if the Commission is to meet its responsibility and contribute to the growth and development of the Commonwealth," Heman added. He said he expects an audit of the Commission to examine the agency's structures and procedures.

Heman said he looks forward to working with the Commissioners, PSC staff and state government administrators to implement these initiatives.

What Next?

Many strange things have been brought into our office in the way of garden produce—giant squash and pumpkins, six-foot-long beans, potatoes in odd shapes and sizes, but this is a first—a tomato grown in a bottle. The fellow who brought it in left before we could get his name, but he said the pre-bottled tomato was grown by A.B. Robinson on Spurlock Creek.

Dirty Chimneys Cost Homeowners Millions

Improperly maintained chimneys cause 40,000 fires in the United States each year and cost homeowners $23 million. Many of these fires are caused by the creosote deposits found in most chimneys.

"Chimneys should be inspected for creosote build-up at least once a year, more often if a stove or fireplace is used frequently," said Larry Piercy, Extension specialist in agricultural safety in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Creosote, which is produced when wood burns, escapes from the fireplace in the form of smoke and condenses on the inside of the chimney. Creosote is highly flammable, and deposits one-fourth of an inch deep or more should be removed.

Once ignited, creosote can burn at temperatures up to 3,000 F. The strong upward draft caused by high-temperature chimney first can lift burning creosote out of the chimney and on to the roof, possibly spreading the fire to the rest of the house, or even neighboring houses.

Chimney cleaning is a messy and sometimes dangerous task which may require climbing onto the roof. Although chemical cleaners are available, Piercy said most have been proven ineffective. The only sure way to clean a chimney calls for hard labor.

One method involves hoisting a bundle of chains up and down the chimney to knock the creosote loose. However, this may crack the chimney flue liner or mortar, providing a direct route for a chimney fire to spread to the rest of the house.

A better method is to use steel brushes of the proper size and shape to fit the chimney, using extension rods to reach the entire length of the flue. These brushes can be expensive and hard to find.

As the chimney is being cleaned, the dust and soot inside will have only one direction to go—down. There are two ways to avoid getting soot all over the house: fasten a sheet over the opening of the fireplace, or call a chimney sweep.

For those inexperienced with cleaning chimneys, Piercy recommends hiring a good chimney sweep. Be sure the chimney sweep is insured. Ask for references or call the Better Business Bureau to check out a chimney sweep's background.

A good chimney sweep will have a selection of brushes to choose from. They come in all sizes and shapes. Grant

Logan, a Lexington chimney sweep, estimates that a good assortment will cost about $2,000. Chimney cleaning costs about $60.

All chimneys need to be inspected, even those which are used only occasionally. "Even with a gas flue, a bird's nest could block the flue and gas fumes would come back into the house," said Logan.

An experienced chimney sweep also can spot improper installation of wood stoves or damage to the chimney. Logan recommends that a new wood stove be checked once a week for the first month after installation, then once a month for the rest of the year. After that it should be checked at least once a year.

Lexington Fire Marshal Tom Parker cautions that the area behind a fireplace insert also should be checked, especially after chimney cleaning, since the loosened creosote may fall behind the insert.

Once the chimney has been cleaned, proper use of the stove or fireplace can reduce creosote buildup. The newer, more efficient stoves and fireplace inserts allow less heat loss through the chimney. The lower temperature inside the chimney encourages the accumulation of creosote.

Wood burning between 385 F and 535 F produces the most creosote. At higher temperatures the creosote is burned as it is produced, leaving less creosote to condense in the chimney. Piercy recommends burning the fire at 1,100 F. To determine the temperature of a wood stove, attach an oven thermometer to the flue pipe about 20 inches above the stove. When the thermometer reads between 200 F and 400 F, the fire is burning at the correct temperature.

If the chimney and stove pipes are free from excessive deposits, accumulation can be controlled by burning a hot fire for about 15 minutes each morning in order to burn off any thin layers of creosote which may have formed the previous day. This should be done only if the chimney has been thoroughly cleaned or an inspection has determined that the chimney doesn't need cleaning.

Should a chimney fire occur, Parker and Piercy agree that the first thing to do is call the fire department. If possible, the air supply to the stove or fireplace should be cut off. However the fireplace damper should not be closed, since this will force smoke into the house.

Occupants of the house should leave quickly. If the fire in the stove or fireplace is still burning it should be extinguished since it will add heat to the chimney fire. Piercy recommends use of an approved fire extinguisher, or throwing baking soda onto the fire.

Parker said a fire extinguisher containing Halon is, "most recommended for creosote fires," and should be used on the chimney fire if it can be reached easily. He added that all homes should have a fire extinguisher, but it should be tested in advance in order to know what to expect when it is used.

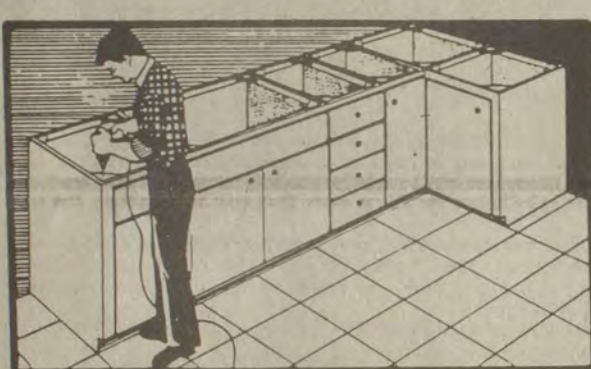

Although bats are often seen as omens of evil in the United States, in China bats are considered bearers of good luck, happiness and long life, says International Wildlife magazine.

The EPA has fined a Chicago pesticide manufacturer $450,000 for marketing a worthless product that supposedly repelled rats, mice and roaches with painful high-frequency sound waves, reports National Wildlife magazine. One restaurant owner said he'd been bilked when he saw two roaches mating in the trap.

CHEVROLET FIGURES IN REDUCTION OF ACCIDENTS

Traffic accidents are being effectively reduced at Cleveland, Ohio, by a newly organized and unique homicide squad that is doing much to insure the safety of that city's streets.

The plan, which is being studied in other localities in the hope that by adopting it traffic fatalities elsewhere may be lowered, consists in maintaining a squad of trained investigators competent to secure evidence that will hold in court and fix blame on the person responsible for the accident. Two police officers—a sergeant and a patrolman—comprise the working crew. As soon as a traffic accident is reported these officers hurry to the scene in their Chevrolet used expressly for this purpose and secure all available data. One man is a skilled photographer and takes pictures of the scene from a number of different angles. The other carries a typewriter and makes out a complete report right on the spot.

The names of all parties to the accident are taken, as are those of all witnesses, and statements from everybody are typed. By getting statements immediately, as well as photographs to introduce into court at trial, the police have complete and accurate information on which to base a prosecution if anyone is shown to be at fault.

In addition to its Chevrolet which has the essential speed and snap to get the investigators to the scene quickly, the squad has complete photographic equipment including a dark room for developing pictures immediately after an accident, two offices to which principals and witnesses are often brought and quizzed, filing cabinets, and draughting materials to make sketches of the scene. This squad is said to be the only one of its kind in the United States.

Already the squad has secured many manslaughter convictions, while convictions on charges of reckless driving and fleeing from the scene of an accident has run into the thousands.

Miles and Alma Thomas, of Dwale, who were married August 21, 1929, were honored with an anniversary dinner at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Philip Nelson, of Louisa, Sunday, August 19. Mr. and Mrs. Thomas have six children, Lowell, Harold Vernon, Frieden Dean, Mrs. Bonnie Lois McGuire, Mrs. Emma Nelson, and Mrs. Linda Rice; 19 grandchildren and nine great-grandchildren.

September, Annual Child Find Month

The month of September will be very special for "special" or exceptional children in the Buffalo Trace and Big Sandy areas, as the month has been designated Child Find Month.

According to project coordinator Cynthia Champer, of the Eastern Kentucky Educational Development Corporation (EKEDC), of Ashland, which coordinates a nine-district educational coop in the Buffalo Trace area, and a 10-district project in the Big Sandy area, the month is an annual event, designed to find those children who are either first priority—meaning they are exceptional or handicapped and not receiving any services—or second priority children, who are receiving limited or inappropriate services.

"Throughout the history of our discretionary grant projects (five years in Buffalo Trace and four in the Big Sandy area)," Mrs. Champer said, "we still find that parents are often unaware where to turn for help for their child. Our projects are designed to cooperate with local school districts in providing supplemental services in such areas as referral, testing, evaluation and placement, in addition to therapy and other services where needed and indicated."

"Additionally, in many of our school districts, the project services, in addition to child find, are ones that the districts have been unable or limited in the amount of services they can provide—and our projects provide these supplemental services."

Another benefit that comes from involvement with the projects is that personnel who provide such testing and evaluation services are employed through an outside agency (EKEDC), which makes their work more credible in that it is not tied to that of a particular district or area, she added.

The Big Sandy Diagnostic Service Centers employ Jeff Howe, psychologist, who is headquartered in the Floyd county schools, and serves the Pike county, Pikeville Independent, Morgan, Magoffin and Floyd county districts.

Mark Poston is also employed as a clinical psychologist with the Big Sandy Diagnostic Service Centers, with his area of service including Johnson, Elliott, Lawrence and Martin counties and Paintsville independent schools.

Harlan Woman First To Get KIFA Award

A Harlan county woman has become the first person to receive the Kentucky Forest Industries Association reward for providing information leading to the arrest and conviction of a person charged with forest arson, officials of the state Division of Forestry have announced.

The reward check of $500 was presented to her by Association President William Steele.

"The Association made this reward available two years ago in an effort to help reduce forest arson in Kentucky," explained state Forestry Director Donald A. Hamm. "More than one-third of all forest fires occurring in Kentucky each year are deliberately set. In 1983, there were 709 forest arson fires, burning 14,449 acres," he said.

"While arson fires make up approximately 35 percent of the year's total of reported fires, they burned approximately 45 percent of the total acreage damaged by forest fires," Hamm reported. Forestry officials attribute the larger impact of arson fires in part to the time of day and the locations chosen by arsonists.

During 1983, there were 2,032 forest fires reported in Kentucky. "The loss to the state's economy from these fires will eventually exceed $29 million, so you can see why we are so concerned in putting the forest arsonist out of business," Hamm said.

Celebrates 75th Birthday

Daisy Mitchell, of Beaver, celebrated her 75th birthday Sunday, August 5, at her home.

In attendance were her children, grandchildren, sisters, and many relatives and friends. A dinner and cake were served. She received many gifts, greetings, and phone calls.

Mrs. Mitchell is the widow of Crit "Dude" Mitchell and the daughter of the late Rev. Jerry and Mary Jane Hall, of Ligon.

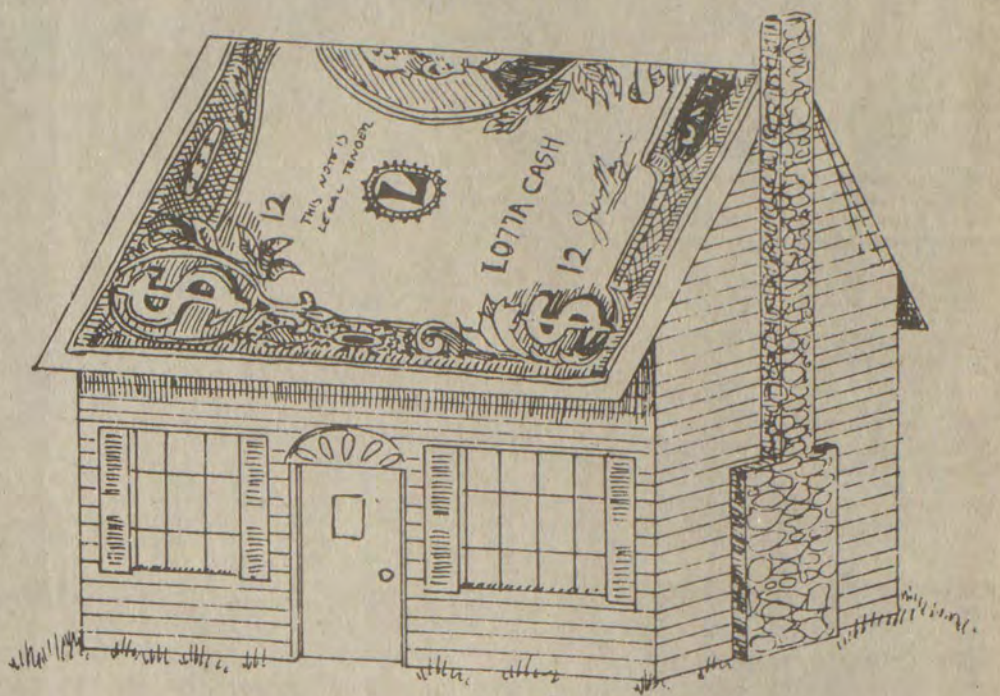

Blue and Gray To Clash Again

Some 800 Union and Confederate "soldiers" are expected to clash Sept. 2 at Cumberland Gap National Historical Park as part of a reenactment of Civil War military life scheduled for Aug. 31-Sept. 2.

The battle is the climax of three days of parades, a musket-firing competition, lectures, and other events recalling the 1860s. The event is co-sponsored by the 63rd Tennessee Volunteer Infantry, Cumberland Gap Park, and the Abraham Lincoln Museum in Harrogate, Tenn.

Sunday's clash will be patterned after the first day's battle at Gettysburg. It will incorporate members of infantry, cavalry and artillery units, as did the original engagement. Troops will march from their camps Sunday morning and begin the reenactment at 2 p.m.

AS IF THE MAY FLOOD WAS NOT ENOUGH, John Shepherd's apartment building, on the old Middle Creek road at West Prestonsburg, has been threatened four times in as many weeks by a muddy torrent from a reclamation project at the head of Sally Stephens Branch. Shepherd said mud from the site, where a stripmine was reclaimed recently by the Red Fox Mining Co. under a federal program for cleaning up abandoned mines, has blocked a six-foot drainage culvert. After a heavy rain, muddy water swirls around his building and some trailers in the nearby Owens Trailer Park. On Friday last week, the tide came to within an inch of his floor, threatening to ruin the new carpet he laid after the building was flooded in May. "This is my livelihood," Shepherd lamented, as he picked his way through inches-deep mud. "People will look at this and want to move away."

Resource Conservation Awareness Week

Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo this week proclaimed August 27 through August 31 Resource Conservation Awareness Week in Floyd county. The week is sponsored by the Floyd County Food and Agriculture Council of the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Sharon Conley, chairperson of the council, looked on as Judge Stumbo signed the proclamation.

A Conservation Partnership

Restoration, protection, preservation of agricultural land—for 48 years the Agricultural Conservation Program (ACP), through a farmer-government partnership, has been working to ensure the present and future of our agricultural resources. Rich, abundant, soil and clean, plentiful water are essential to the nation's prosperity. We all benefit from the conservation of land and water resources. Properly protected and preserved, these resources will provide food, clothing, housing and recreation for this and future generations. But soil abused and poorly managed, depleted by erosion, loses its productivity. Without conservation, water supplies are drained faster than they can be renewed. And lakes and streams polluted with sediment, animal wastes and chemicals threaten the health and safety of our communities.

Conserving our agricultural resources is a major responsibility—a responsibility that often is too big and expensive for the individual farmer to accomplish. Yet conservation must be accomplished if we are to continue to have the resources to provide for food, fiber, water, shelter and recreation. A grassroots conservation approach to natural resources and farm management ensures abundant agricultural resources and farm management ensures a productive agricultural economy.

The ACP was authorized by Congress in 1936 to begin solving the pressing land and water resources problems brought about by severe drought and economic depression. Since that time, ASCS through the Agricultural Conservation Program has cost-shared on more than 2.5 million miles of terraces to control runoff water and erosion (a distance of more than nine times to the moon); planted over 7 million acres of trees for erosion control and forestry purposes; built and preserved over 14 million acres of wildlife habitation (7 times the acreage of Yellowstone Park) and improved more than 5 million acres of farm woodland. And these are just a few of ACP's accomplishments.

Today's farmer has, along with funds available under ACP, the advantage of the expertise of technicians who help (free of charge) develop farm plans consistent with conservation. But erosion and sedimentation remain a great problem for future generations.

With August 27-31 designated as Conservation Awareness Week, Floyd County farmers should take a sharp look at their farming operations. Are there areas for improvements—conservation wise? Are woodlands overcrowded with scrubby growth? If so, ASCS will be accepting applications for cost-sharing thru August 31 on the following practices: Establishment of Permanent Vegetative Cover; Improvement of Permanent Vegetative Cover; Cropland Protective Cover (winter cover crop); Permanent Vegetative Cover on Critical Areas; Forest Tree Plantation; Forest Tree Stand Improvement; Site Preparation for Natural Regeneration; Permanent Wildlife Habitat.

Contact your local ASCS Office for further details—886-2802.

Information Wanted

In the August 8th issue of this paper, there was mention of a reunion of the Darby family at Dewey Dam Park. Mention was made of "their mother, who is 84 years old." Well, I have been trying to get information on the Darbys for quite some time and I hope some of your readers can help me.

My grandmother, Dydemus (called Dee) Bentley, married James Robert Frasure. Dee was born in 1873 and James in 1875. Dydemus Bentleys parents were Jarvey Bentley, born 1850 and died 1933. His wife was Mary Magdalene Darby, born about 1854. The only info I have on her is she is probably buried in Floyd county and when my grandmother Dydemus was living she told me Mary had sisters named Nancy Ann and Nellie and brothers named Patrick, Louis and Linus. Mary's parents were supposedly James and Sally Darby. I have no maiden name for Sally. There is a James Darby mentioned in the Morgan County census of 1830 and I can go no further.

I am trying desperately to make contact with someone who can help me on info on this Darby line and if possible, a picture of Mary Magdalene Darby-Bentley. Her children were Caner Dydemus, Parthena, Delseny, Albert, Mose, Loveny. I have the details of her children and descendants but no one seems to be able to supply info on Mary Magdalene. Any help would be sincerely appreciated. My volume 2 of the Bentley-Frasure Family will be printed in approx. 4 months and I would like to include information on her.

Broken Propane Line Evacuates Steak House

The Middle Creek Volunteer Fire Department responded at 11:30 a.m. last Saturday to a call from the Prestonsburg Fire Department after a bulldozer had pushed a rock over the hill behind the Western Sizzlin' Steak House and overturned a high-capacity propane tank, breaking a line connecting the tank to an identical propane tank beside it.

Bill Callihan, local Disaster and Emergency Services coordinator, was at the scene when the Middle Creek squad arrived and had already begun the evacuation of the steak house. By this time a large cloud of propane had formed in the valley, but within minutes of their arrival Fire Chief Edgar Stephens and Glenn Vaughan were able to approach the tank and turn off the propane.

At 4:30 the following morning the Middle Creek squad again responded to a call from the Prestonsburg department. A house fire on Short Branch of Abbott Creek had broken out while the residents were sleeping. All members of the household escaped without injury, except the mother who suffered from minor smoke inhalation. The Middle Creek squad was unable to save the structure but prevented any damage to two nearby homes.

Responsive to the Worker

By VICTORIA WALTRIP
Media Director, Kentucky Labor News
Growing up in the coalfields of Eastern Kentucky, John C. Wells has had personal experience in knowing family and friends who became victims of the dangers of coalmining. He has shared the grief of deaths that could have been prevented and seen the suffering that accompanies black lung. For these reasons, Wells considers nothing more important in his department than assuring health and safety on the job. "I believe when men and women go to work in the morning it is their right to come home in the same condition as when they left," he said.

Firm but Fair is the new battle slogan for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration. Under Wells' direction, the top lawyers in the department were instructed to concentrate their efforts on reducing the backlog of OSHA cases. Within a year, the backlog was reduced from five years to 18 months. In addition, Secretary Wells went to the Kentucky Supreme Court to guarantee entry of OSHA inspectors into all plants and job sites. Previously, these inspections had been delayed or denied by the companies. Further protecting the workers, Wells made it a worker's option on whether to publicly release complaints against companies. Wells instrumented this change in hopes that workers will become more willing to provide information without fear of company retaliation.

As Labor Commissioner, in an effort to help workers gain access to the programs that benefit them, Wells instructed his staff to develop 'plain English' booklets on laws and regulations governing the worker and his environment. This concept resulted in three easy to understand booklets on OSHA, Wage and Hour, and Workman's Compensation.

Under Wells' administration the Black Lung program has been drastically altered to the benefit of the black lung victim. The Department has made it clear that they do not require claimants to be sent to 9 to 15 different doctors, and they have reduced the number of attorneys needed in the special fund cases. In addition, Wells has opened a black lung clinic in the coal fields, cutting the time it takes to review a black lung case from an 18-month average to 12 months, and mandated uniform physician fees on black lung examinations.

In addition to overhauling the Black Lung Program and increasing the effectiveness of OSHA, Wells has become personally involved in bettering labor-management relations. "Labor and management are not two separate entities but two halves of a whole," said Wells. "I feel that Kentucky is very receptive among labor and business in working together. It will be difficult to change things, and it has taken a sense of leadership to even start talking."

According to Wells, harmony in union-management relations will produce improved working conditions, increased productivity and enhanced quality, increased profitability and job security, and economic development as the resultant climate attracts new industry.

Wells has devised a five-point plan for the operation of the new Department of Labor which calls for concentration on leadership, good management, quality service, accessibility and labor-management relations. But the ultimate goal Wells has chosen for the Labor cabinet is to see that the department actually becomes responsive to the needs and interests of the working person. "My goal is to make Kentucky's Labor Cabinet, Kentucky's advocate for labor," said Wells.

(Mr. Wells is a native of Auxier.)

New Federal Law Hits Delinquent Parents

The new federal child support enforcement law gives Kentucky additional means for collecting child support from delinquent payers and the Cabinet for Human Resources plans to take full advantage of the new provisions, according to Hansom Williams, director of the Division of Child Support Enforcement.

"Parents who owe child support should be on notice that the state plans to use every measure available to us to collect overdue payments," Williams said.

New sanctions include the ability to impose liens against real and personal property for past-due child support, to withhold state and federal tax refunds, and to withhold wages after payments have been delinquent one month.

"Parents can no longer hide their assets in property and claim inability to pay," said Williams. "And when they are delinquent in child support payments and have a state or federal tax refund coming, we're going to tap that, too," he added.

Another new way the law presses parents to pay is to require states to give child support payment information to credit companies.

"When the delinquent payments reach $1,000, we must tell credit companies if they ask," Williams stated.

Fathers of children whose paternity has not been established by the time the child is 4 can no longer breathe easy—the federal legislation extends the time for paternity establishment until the child's 18th birthday. Kentucky law now puts the limit at 4 years of age.

In addition to allowing the state to "get tougher" with delinquent child support payors, the law requires the state to offer additional services to the AFDC family and to begin serving non-AFDC families.

For the AFDC recipient whose benefits end, child support collection will automatically continue. Another benefit for AFDC recipients is continued Medicaid eligibility for those families losing their AFDC benefits because of increased child support payments. Under the new law, the state must continue to provide Medicaid benefits for four calendar months beginning with the month of ineligibility.

Williams emphasized that families who have never received AFDC may use the division for child support collection. "Up to now, our efforts have mainly been concentrated on AFDC families, but beginning Oct. 1, we will use the full force of the law to help non-AFDC families as well," Williams said.

Another significant provision of the law allows the state to use federal parent locator services as soon as the case is activated rather than waiting until state locator resources are exhausted.

Williams said the new legislation, when fully implemented, is expected to dramatically increase the requests for service from his division.

It was announced that the Rebekah State Assembly meeting will be held October 7-10, in Lexington. Delegates named to this meeting are Hope Whitten, Rebecca Bingham, Mary Zemo, Violeta Wright, Virginia S. Goble, and Maman Leslie.

CARD OF THANKS

The sons and daughters of Annie Gray thank all who were so kind and considerate during our time of grief. We want to thank those who sent food and flowers and gifts of love. We especially thank the Community Methodist Church and its pastor for such a nice funeral and comforting words, and Brother Jack DeRosset and Viola for standing beside us through three days and nights. Thanks also to the Floyd Funeral Home for its comfort and help. All comforting words and help were greatly appreciated.

The word "million" didn't come into being until around 1300. Until then, the largest number word was "myriad," which was Greek for 10,000.

New Job Training Offered by State

Governor Martha Layne Collins said last week that a new job training program launched by the state can provide wider opportunities for Kentuckians by helping attract growing business and industries to the state.

"Today, training goes hand in hand with economic development," Governor Collins told the board of directors of the Bluegrass State Skills Corporation, a new cooperative effort among business, labor, education and the state.

"We must make certain there is never any doubt about whether our men and women can do the job," Governor Collins said. "For me, the Bluegrass State Skills Corporation is a means of making sure they can. We can always ensure a business or industry that Kentuckians have the necessary skills...and if they don't, our people are willing and able to learn and we have the means of teaching them."

The Governor pointed out that Kentucky must take advantage of the changing nature of America's economy. She said the skills corporation would enable more Kentuckians to acquire the skills necessary for jobs in the rapidly growing information and service industries.

The Bluegrass State Skills Corporation will award grants to educational institutions to work with businesses to train and retrain. The businesses will be required to provide matching money or services.

Information Wanted: How Well Do Rules On Cutoffs Work?

The state Public Service Commission wants to know how well regulations governing utility disconnections are working, and is inviting representatives of gas and electric utilities and consumer organizations to comment on the rules.

"The administrative regulations governing emergency and hardship reconNECTIONS have been in effect for one full heating season, and the Commission wants to evaluate their effectiveness," said P.S.C. Chairman Richard D. Heman. Specifically, the Commission is concerned that the regulations can be easily implemented by utilities and are sufficient to meet customer needs, Heman said.

At a formal public conference on Sept. 13, Commission staff will discuss the current regulations with gas and electric company officials, the Legislative Research Commission, Human Resources Cabinet and legal services agencies statewide. Also, representatives of the Citizens Utility Board, Utility Rate Cutters of Kentucky and various aging advocacy groups have been asked to participate in the conference. It begins at 1 p.m. Sept. 13 in the P.S.C. hearing room, 730 Schenkel Lane, Frankfort.

Heman said broad comments regarding the disconnection and hardship regulations from members of the public will be accepted at the conference or in writing. Persons wishing to file written comments should submit them by Sept. 7 to Forest Skaggs, Secretary, Public Service Commission, P.O. Box 615, Frankfort, Ky. 40602. Those wishing to speak at the conference should register by writing to Mr. Skaggs at the above address by Sept. 10.

One area of concern is the existing regulation which requires a utility to reconnect service to a residential customer who applies between November and March, if the customer has been issued a certificate of need from the Human Resources Cabinet; has paid one-third of the outstanding bill or $200, whichever is less; and has agreed to a repayment schedule for the outstanding charges and new charges.

Heman said the Commission will consider any suggestions for amending or modifying the current regulations.

The number of self-employed Americans reached 9.1 million in 1983, an increase of 30 percent since 1970, according to a recent study by the U.S. Department of Labor's Bureau of Labor Statistics.

Summer's End Near—Park Pools Are Closing

The beginning of school and the closing of the three public pools in the county are sure signs that summer is well on the wane. A few more days of swimming remain at the Archer Park and Jenny Wiley State Park pools, but Labor Day will see the last splash there, and the pool at the Floyd County Park at Allen has been closed since August 15.

While the pools will close at the parks, other activities will continue and a softball tournament is scheduled for the weekend at Archer Park.

At Jenny Wiley, Superintendent Russell said no special activities are planned. He added that all regular park facilities remain open with camping areas open through October. The park at Allen remains open to the public, also.

Drug User Needs Help From Start

By GEORGE ROSS, Ph.D.
As pointed out in a previous article, the disease of chemical dependency has four distinct stages, initial usage, problem usage, psychological addiction and physiological addiction. In my professional opinion, it is never too early to intervene, especially in the case of a young person. For whereas the disease may take six to eight years to fully develop in an adult, the disease progresses to maturity in young people in a six month to two year period of time. More importantly, the disease also affects the emotional and physical well being of other family members. And in the case where the family unit consists of more than one teenager, it is not uncommon to find all of the children actively engaging in drug usage.

A recent study appearing in the Journal of the Florida Medical Association reports the results of early intervention treatment of 314 adolescents. The youth, the study indicates, began using drugs at an average age of 12½ (youngest 7, oldest 17), had used drugs for 3½ years, and was 16 years old on entering the program. The typical client was a polydrug user, with emphasis on alcohol and marijuana. Furthermore the study stressed that chemical dependency is a progressive disease and spontaneous recovery is rare. Most importantly, the study emphasized that the youth did not have to hit bottom in order for the parents to seek help for the youth, especially since youth at the later stages are more resistant to treatment.

The study also emphasized that the majority of the youth were doing drugs for over two years before their parents realized it. In addition, less than 30 percent of the parents were aware their children were also engaging in other criminal activity.

The overall results of this study clearly suggest that early intervention is essential in increasing the chances of your child's recovery from this deadly disease.

August 27-31 Designated Conservation Awareness Week

By BILL PHILLIPS
Kentucky Division of Forestry
With 83% of Floyd County being forested, conservation of our forest resources should be uppermost in our minds. But as in the case of, "You don't miss the water until the well runs dry", sometimes we fail to appreciate things we have in abundance.

Much of our forest land has been reduced in value by man's careless activities. The value of the timber itself has been reduced by needless forest fires. Associated values of wildlife habitat and watershed protection are also reduced as a result of forest fires. Scenic and recreational values of the forest suffer from a variety of man's abuses such as littering or dumping of trash.

Since our forests are renewable, forest conservation does not mean preserving every acre of forest land. But rather, it means the wise use of the forest resources for the benefit of man and wildlife. Conservation of the forest, soil, and water can begin by sowing grass and planting tree seedlings on bare ground where construction or mining has taken place. Thinning existing stands of timber which might be too crowded for optimum growth will keep the trees growing vigorously making them less susceptible to insect and disease problems. These activities plus the proper harvesting of timber and preventing fires in hardwood forests are examples of conservation which can enhance the forest resources for generations to come.

This is the week designated for conservation awareness, but every week is for conservation activities. Every person is affected by his or her surroundings in one way or another. If everyone practices conservation of natural resources, everyone will benefit in the long run.

Two Conservationists Receive Major Awards

The Kentucky Association of Conservation Districts, at its 41st annual convention held in Owensboro recently, presented two major awards to top Kentucky conservationists:

—The 1984 Distinguished Service Award went to Harry C. Brown, Frankfort, assistant director of the State Division of Conservation.

—The 1984 Conservation Person of the Year Award went to Eddie L. Wood, Lexington, a former Kentucky State Conservationist, recently retired.

Since he joined the Division of Conservation in 1948, Brown has administered the Equipment Revolving Fund, a program, unique to the United States, which has placed more than $30 million worth of equipment in Kentucky's conservation districts. He was praised by association officials for his "many years spent working with conservation districts, assisting them in securing equipment for conservation work."

"The conservation work this program, and the equipment it made available, has done is immeasurable," said Stanley Head, director of the Division of Conservation. "Hundreds of farm ponds, miles of diversions, sod waterways and other permanent conservation practices dot our landscape through the use of this equipment. The program has never lost a penny and has accumulated more than $900,000 in interest over the years to continue the program," he added.

Wood received his award for "invaluable service to conservation" in Kentucky. "During his tenure as State Conservationist, morale was high and the productivity of personnel within the Soil Conservation Service was increased. He was able, through his own enthusiasm for conservation, to relay a dedication to those working with him," Head said of Wood.

THE COLUMBIA BUDGET PAYMENT PLAN

The graph shows a bell-shaped curve representing heating bills over a 12-month period. The x-axis is labeled with months from AUG. to JULY. A horizontal double-headed arrow spans from August to July, indicating the duration of the budget plan. The curve peaks in the winter months (Dec, Jan, Feb) and is lowest in the summer months (May, June, July).

Our Budget Payment Plan keeps winter from throwing you a curve.

"For thousands of Columbia customers, our Budget Payment Plan has evened out heating bills and made them predictable, even when winter is like last winter: much colder and longer than anybody predicts. The plan means there are no big jumps or surprises in your gas bill, no matter how cold it gets.

"It works this way. Columbia calculates what you'll probably pay for natural gas over the next year based on your previous usage and weather averages. This figure is divided into 12 equal payments. So starting this August, you pay the same amount every month. And you end worries about dips in the temperature showing up as higher heating bills.

"Make sure winter doesn't throw your budget a curve. To join the Columbia Budget Payment Plan, all you do is pay the 'Budget' amount on your August bill.

"Columbia also suggests a new service called Checkfree," which provides the option of having your monthly bill paid by the bank where you have your checking account—but not until about ten days after the bill has been sent to you. Columbia Gas offices and most banks have application forms. Check into it.

"Look for the explanation of the Budget Payment Plan and Checkfree in your August bill, and call your Columbia office if you have questions. Join the thousands of Columbia customers already using these two free, convenient services. For them, the cost of winter is more predictable."

Hampton Is Promoted To Air Force Major

Steve Hampton, son of Bess Hampton, of Columbus, Ohio, has been promoted in the U.S. Air Force to the rank of major. Hampton is chief of the junior program operations branch at Maxwell Air Force Base, Ala., with Headquarters, Air Force Reserve Officer Training Corps. His wife, Tommie, is the daughter of George M. and Euna Laven, of Allen. He received a master's degree in 1978 from Troy State University, Alabama.

Flood Insurance Program Prepares for the Next One

The National Flood Insurance Program (NFIP) has announced a schedule for increased training efforts for insurance agents, claims adjusters, and mortgage lenders in eastern Kentucky and neighboring states to assure efficient response to future flooding in the area. Flooding in early May was severe enough that President Reagan declared major disasters for the states of Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia.

Federal Insurance Administrator Jeffery S. Bragg noted there were only six certified NFIP insurance adjusters in the Pikeville area when the May flooding generated more than 3,000 claims there. Bragg said the limited number of local adjusters made it necessary to ask independent adjusters from other parts of the country to handle the adjustment process. "These professional adjusters, while trained to adjust flood losses anywhere, were faced with the problems of unfamiliarity with the affected area and extremely scarce accommodations," Bragg said. "More adjusters in the area, which is frequently subject to flooding, will expedite the NFIP claims settlement process."

Adjuster workshops have been scheduled for Monday, this week, at the Holiday Inn-Midtown in Lexington and today (Wednesday) at the Carriage House in Paintsville from 1:45 p.m. to 5:30 p.m.

Flood incidents usually generate an increase in new applications for flood insurance, because area residents recognize they could be subject to flooding and they learn that flood losses are not covered by their homeowners insurance.

There is also an increase in demand for flood insurance because this coverage is required if certain applicants are to receive federal disaster assistance.

To help insurance agents meet this increased flood insurance activity, NFIP is sponsoring agent workshops to instruct property-casualty insurance agents on applying for and handling flood insurance policies. One such workshop is being held today (August 29) at the Carriage House Motor Hotel, Paintsville. Any property-casualty agent may attend, but reservations must be made through the NFIP regional office in Atlanta at (404) 843-0222.

Bragg also reported almost 95 percent of the claims filed after the May flooding have been closed and more than $28 million has been paid to NFIP policyholders through the Flood Insurance Claims Office in Pikeville.

Announces Office Opening

S.M. El-Amin, M.D. has announced the opening on Aug. 15 of his office for the practice of internal medicine and general medicine in the Paintsville Clinic Building.

Dr. El-Amin received the B.S. degree from University of District of Columbia, Washington, D.C. in 1970 and taught school in the District of Columbia for two years. He received a U.S. Public Health Service scholarship to study medicine and attended Meharry Medical College from 1972 to 1976 when he received the MD degree. Thereafter he did a one-year rotating internship at Hubbard Hospital, Nashville, Tenn., and while there was selected for a three-year training program in internal medicine. He served in this program from 1977 to 1980 and during 1979-'80 was chief resident in internal medicine. He was then commissioned as a lieutenant commander in the U.S. Public Health Service where he served till this year.

Dr. El-Amin is married and has three children. He is currently admitting patients to Highlands Regional Hospital and has applied to Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center to do likewise.

Past 60 years of age, this man played the violin quite well. He performed concerts with the finest symphony orchestras in the United States and helped raise almost $6 million for musicians and orchestras. Who was he? According to the September Reader's Digest, he was the king of radio, Jack Benny—and you thought he was just a comedian!

IN LOVING MEMORY

Elder Leonard Hall, born February 17, 1919, at McDowell, Ky. and deceased July 31, 1983. He joined the Old Regular Baptist Church, May 18, 1969. He was an ordained minister and a faithful member for 14 years.

A year has passed now that Dad, a loving father and husband, was taken from us. The days still come and go, just as the seasons continue to change, yet the hurt which aches in our hearts is still new. There is not a day that passes that he does not enter our hearts and minds. We miss him dearly, but God had a more important plan for him, and we realize this. The emptiness in our lives will never be healed. We loved him very much and would love to have kept him with us, but,

"He saw a light at the end of the tunnel, Where love was awaiting him there. All cares and troubles he left behind As he climbed the golden stair. But he saw a light at the end of the tunnel, There to meet his Lord face to face. And he will be in the Home that he longed for,

Saved by his heavenly grace." Sadly missed by all, THE FAMILY

ACTION NEEDED NOW "Modern People News" has revealed plans for the filming of a movie based on the sex life of Jesus, in which Jesus is portrayed as a swinging homosexual. This film will be shot in the United States this year unless the public outcry is great. Already a French prostitute has been named to play the part of Mary Magdalene, with whom Christ has a blatant affair in the movie. We cannot afford to stand by and do nothing about this disgrace. It is time for us to stand up and be counted! We must not allow this perverted world to drag our Lord through the dirt. Please help us to get this film banned from the United States as it has been in Europe. Let us show how we feel. Detach and mail this form below to the address given. Make copies and give to your friends and others. ONLY ONE NAME PER COPY, PLEASE.

Attorney General Scott 301 South Second Street Springfield, Illinois 62706

Dear Attorney General Scott: I would like to protest, in the strongest terms possible, the production, filming and showing of any movie that supposedly depicts the sex life of Jesus Christ, by "Modern People News", 901058 West Addison Street, Franklin Park, Illinois 60131.

Such a blasphemous movie would be an outrage and contrary to the truth. We strongly urge you to take proper action against this moral corruption.

Attention, Please: The Pikeville Ky. Tent Crusade with Evangelist R.A. West Has Been Cancelled Due to difficulties beyond our control, the tent meeting has been moved to Varney, W. Va. at the R.A. West Revival's Campgrounds. The Dates Are: Wednesday, August 29 thru Sunday, September 16 At 7:30 p.m. Nightly I would like to express my sorrow, and apologies to all the thousands of people in Kentucky who have looked forward to this Crusade in Pike County. We were expecting a turnout of several thousands of people in the 10-day period. Please, if you know or have a relative or friend in another state or area who is expecting to attend the Pikeville Crusade, notify them of these tragic circumstances which have arisen. People are already having to return to Indiana, Ohio and Illinois, disappointed. You can see how important it is to get the word out to anyone who may be traveling a long distance as many already have. Once again, I am so deeply sorry about the cancellation of the Pikeville Tent Crusade. I pray God's blessing upon all the people in Kentucky. Evangelist R.A. West

To Play for ALC Lady Eagles

Melinda Hopkins, at left, junior from Price, has been awarded an athletic scholarship at Alice Lloyd College where she will play on the Lady Eagles team, it was announced last week by Mrs. Tammy Oakes, head coach of the team.

Miss Hopkins played basketball for the Lady Eagles during the 1981-82 season when she compiled an impressive set of statistics, averaging 5.9 points per game with a 45% field goal average. She was 86% from the free throw line with 2.2 rebounds per game, and defensively, she had a steal average of 1.6 per game.

Coach Oakes said, "Melinda will bring experience and a strong outside shooting ability to the line-up. She has always been a strong team player and has the ability to provide positive leadership to an already seasoned team."

HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

Also attending was Mrs. Crisp's sister, Justine, and her husband, Bud Dings, visiting her from Riverview, Michigan. After cake was served and numerous gifts were opened, they attended the final performance of "Annie" at the Jenny Wiley Amphitheatre.

Growing Child

SETTLING SIBLING DISPUTES

One of the major obstacles to harmonious relationships among siblings is the constant arguing, bickering, and fighting that goes on between them.

You probably won't be able to eliminate all such interaction, but you can help your children learn to settle their disputes in constructive ways. This will help them understand and feel better about each other so they'll be less apt to fight when they disagree (perhaps even when you are not around as well!)

Following are some guidelines from Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter, to help you help your children settle their disputes more amicably and with respect for each other.

When your children argue or fight over something, try to get the whole story of what caused the problem before jumping to conclusions and blaming or punishing anyone. Even in a situation where a child seems to hurt a younger sibling who can't tell his side of the story, give the child a chance to tell hers.

For example, say to her, "You must really have been mad at the baby to hit him," and then let her explain. Let her know her angry feelings are acceptable but that you can't let her hit him.

In an argument between two children who can both talk, give each a chance to tell her point of view. You can help this process by describing the situation rather than judging it: "It looks like you two can't agree on which television program to watch. You both seem pretty upset. Want to tell me about it? Laurie, you go first. Then Joey, I want to hear your side of the story." This kind of approach will save a lot of hurt feelings and resentment between your children, and it will help them learn to settle disputes themselves without fighting.

After each child has had a chance to tell her or his point of view in a dispute, help each also see the other's side of the situation. If you try to convince a child (or an adult) that the other person is right, she will resist you because you're saying at the same time that she is wrong. On the other hand, if you can show each child that you understand and accept her side, then she'll be more willing to also listen to the other's side.

At this point, with your continuing help in translating each child's feelings to the other as needed, they should be able to work out some sort of compromise. You've helped them over this particular conflict and shown them a model they can learn to use to settle differences in the future, both with each other...and with others.

South Central Bell To Replace Cable

South Central Bell will replace underground cable in the north-central area of the county, it was announced last week. The replacement is necessary due to frequent flooding in the area. New cable will replace the existing cable with a new carrier-size aerial cable to meet the ultimate distribution requirements.

Art Willett, local Bell manager, said the work involved would cost $72,000 and is a part of the statewide $100 million that South Central Bell will spend during 1984 in their overall construction program to upgrade and maintain service in Kentucky.

'Russia's Terror Weapons' Unveiled in Reader's Digest

The Soviet Union is actively pursuing a global chemical and biological weapons strategy that could "fulfill the plaques and pestilence in apocalyptic prophecy," the September Reader's Digest reports in an exclusive article.

Investigative reporters Jack Anderson and Dale Van Atta, drawing on top-secret intelligence data, write that the Soviets' master plan includes:

The stockpiling of chemical and biological weapons on Cuba.

Production of toxins that could be the deadliest ever.

Tailoring intercontinental missiles so they can carry biological or chemical agents to American targets.

Anderson and Van Atta write that United States intelligence has known about the chemical and biological weapons on Cuba for several years. They say the situation is "so terrifying that it could surpass the Cuban missile crisis in portent."

Cuban defectors, including one trained by Soviet instructors as a chemical and biological warfare adviser to Fidel Castro's army, have described Soviet chemical units and underground storage sites on Cuba, "some so sensitive that they were protected by surface-to-air missiles," they write. "These facilities, one defector warned, are 'part of a chemical and biological strategic system developed by the Soviets and more dangerous than anyone in the U.S. can realize.'"

Anderson and Van Atta say the Soviets have had ample opportunity to test their secret weapons. Victims have included Lao hill tribesmen, Kampuchean resistance fighters, Afghan mujahedin, Thai soldiers, Iranian revolutionary guards, Chinese soldiers, even civilians in the Soviet Union. "A realistic estimate puts those killed at more than 30,000."

Poisons in the Soviet arsenal range from "yellow rain," which causes its victims to bleed through every body orifice, including ears and eyes," to nerve gases that cause a "terrible dance of death," to a particularly horrendous chemical agent used in Afghanistan that causes the skin to turn black and flake away from the bones in less than a day.

Anderson and Van Atta say the U.S. must take immediate steps to defend against such weapons and particularly to "deter Soviet supplied terrorists from using" chemical and biological weapons in America. Their suggestions:

Upgrade intelligence gathering. All chemical and biological agents used by the Soviets must be identified and defenses against them prepared.

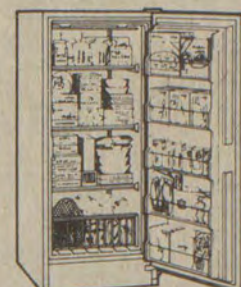

Create two national SWAT teams to deal with chemical and bacteriological threats by terrorists. Also, establish a national serum bank for use during massive epidemics.

Exports of chemical or biological agent precursors and gene-splicing information from the U.S. to Soviet-bloc countries must be halted.

The U.S. government should vigorously pursue verifiable chemical-and biological-weapons bans.

Wheeler has early show biz roots

By Nancy M. Reichardt

At the tender age of 3, Ellen Wheeler (Marley Love on "Another World") got her first taste of performing professionally when she appeared as Trouble in "Madame Butterfly." The production was presented in a theater owned by her parents, who are both actors.

"My father started his career as a hooper during the Hollywood musical era and all of us learned to dance because of his career beginnings," remembers Miss Wheeler. "My younger brother and I used to do George Burns-Gracie Allen comedy routines when we weren't pretending to be Fred Astaire and Ginger Rogers." Today, Miss Wheeler still keeps in shape with dancing and aerobics classes.

"In high school I was very involved in the drama department and won all kinds of awards," says Miss Wheeler, who appeared in many theatrical productions throughout her childhood.

"After graduation, my parents said, 'So, are you going to go to Hollywood now?' But I was only 17 and too scared to do it. At the age of 29, however, I packed up and went to Tinseltown; just like a thousand other kids," recalls

Ellen Wheeler

Miss Wheeler, who was one of the lucky ones, since she landed an agent, some commercials and guest-starring roles on television.

Miss Wheeler, who is also a singer, was working on an album, "for a real small label," she says, before she moved to New York City and "AW."

A practicing Mormon, Miss Wheeler admits that "there are certain things I won't do on-screen, such as a nude scene. Also, since I don't smoke or drink, I won't do either on-screen if I can't fake it," she says. "I do, however, realize that as actors we have to portray what goes on in real life and I also feel that acting should mirror what's going on in society so that people can see what is good and what isn't."

GRANDVIEW U.S.A., (R-Warner Bros.) Starring Jamie Lee Curtis, C. Thomas Howell and Patrick Swayze. ★

By J.T. YURKO

"Grandview U.S.A." opens with scenes that could be taken from a Coca-Cola commercial. Here is Norman Rockwell's vision of America. Cute little children eat ice cream; puppies frolic in a field; and a young couple gaze at a crimson sunset.
 "Grandview U.S.A." closes with similar scenes. This time we are presented with a summer parade complete with high school bands, local beauty queens, a few fire trucks and a few local politicians. These bookend glimpses of one small-town show the U.S.A. at its proudest, but also at its most naive.
 The movie that the scenes surround shows a different America, a small town not filled with pride but almost sinking in quiet despair. Small-town life has been the subject of many films, but "Grandview U.S.A." most resembles Peter Bogdanovich's "The Last Picture Show." These films seem to be asking the same question: "Is there life after high school?"
 C. Thomas Howell plays the high school valedictorian who would like to head for oceanography school but whose father is against it. He takes his girl to the prom, but backseat romancing gets Dad's car stuck in the mud (does this sound like "Risky Business"?). Jamie Lee Curtis plays a divorcee who lifts Howell out of the mud and lifts his spirits as well with a little post-graduate field work in biology. And I don't mean frogs. She's trying to keep up a run-down demolition derby stadium nearby.
 The film revels in small-town ennui and not much more. There's a little sex, a little farce in the form of Troy Donahue as a swinging appliance salesman, and even a little MTV as a dream sequence takes the form of a rock video. Randall Kleiser and screenwriter Ken Hixon don't seem quite sure whether to go all out for comedy, tragedy or satire, so they include a little of each. Not much of it works. Indeed, this look at angst in America isn't worth much of a look.

again. Viewers rarely leave the house after eight hours of watching; rather, they take two aspirin and fall asleep.

So, if you lose big on opening day, (or worse, lose close,) don't panic. True, with one in the L column you're four, maybe five defeats from mathematical elimination. But your resolve must be absolute; miss not a down all year, for that down could be the down when your team begins to impose its will.

Success today, however, can be equally distorting to your sense of reality.

At 12:30 p.m. (ET) on last season's opening day, Jets fans in New York tuned in to the "NFL Today" on CBS, lusting with Super Bowl expectations. They fidgeted through a New York Giants-Los Angeles Rams encounter. About 3:45 p.m., they flipped to NBC's "NFL '83" to feed on the pundits' prognostications that the imminent San Diego Chargers-Jets battle could be a preview of the AFC title bout. With their anticipation gargantuan, the Jets faithful finally saw their kelly greens play reasonably stupendously in beating San Diego. Yet, they finished the year 7-9.

Football seasons appear to be short propositions because each team has only 16 chances to win. But when a team loses — let's say your team; everybody has a team — the world churns indifferently, while you and yours massage pulled hamstrings, undergo arthroscopy and overhaul the offensive line.

In reality, 16 weeks constitutes fall and much of a long, hard winter. Hence, the mature, farsighted viewer won't allow his or her network habits to peak too soon for fear of either ocular or emotional rupture by Election Day.

The problem is that football is not baseball, where a team can leisurely locate its character and rhythm over the course of three fashion seasons and still be in the pennant race. Usually, a football squad bursts through the tunnel on opening day totally formed, either executing the plays or not. To see them not executing can be debilitating.

The Kentucky Garden Journal

By Bonnie Lee Appleton

COOPERATIVE EXTENSION PROGRAM
KENTUCKY STATE UNIVERSITY

Autumn is on its way, and with it comes one of the best times to renew home environments with new landscape plantings. "Fall is For Planting" banners are up at garden centers everywhere. It's not just a campaign to build sales, it's excellent advice.

Fall planting of shrubs and trees is recommended for several reasons: cool air temperatures paired with warm soil temperatures promote root growth; soil moisture generally increases; top growth slows down and tops go dormant, reducing stress on roots.

What are the steps to do-it-yourself landscaping? First and most importantly, have a plan to work from. Don't just haphazardly place plants in front of the house.

Measure the areas to be landscaped. Sketch out the dimensions and shapes of beds, and the locations, spacings and varieties of plants to be used. Find out the mature sizes of plants, optimum locations, etc.

Consider hiring a landscape designer to draw your plan. A professional is already familiar with what plants thrive in our area, their mature sizes and cultural requirements, and can spot potential problems often not recognizable to the homeowner.

Garden centers will often provide recommendations if you purchase plants from them and bring in photos and measurements of the house and area to be planted. Be sure to note placements of windows and roof overhangs, downspouts and faucets, etc.

When the design is complete, select quality plants from reputable nurseries. Be sure plants will be in proportion to the landscape when they reach mature size.

You're now ready for the actual installation. First, establish the boundaries of the planting beds. You can use a garden hose to mark the edge of curved beds and spray-paint a line along its side. Remove existing plants that are not desirable.

Next, remove existing sod with a sharp spade or lawn edging knife. If possible, rototill (or use a spading fork to break up the soil) for maximum aeration. Before digging be sure to know the locations and depths of underground utility lines to avoid damage and personal injury.

You're now ready to plant. After placing plants in the locations specified in the design and making any necessary adjustments, dig holes twice as wide and six inches deeper than the root balls. Remove pots or "plastic" burlap, or loosen regular burlap from around the plant stem and tuck into the hole—it will rot. Place the root balls in the holes, backfill, tamp the soil, and water thoroughly.

For thorough control, spread a one-section thick layer of newspapers over planting beds or use a chemical weed preventer that comes in granular form, or both. Using a spade, edge the beds along the painted line by making a V-shaped trench three inches wide and three inches deep. The trench will discourage grass roots from invading the beds and will help keep the bark mulch from spilling onto the lawn. Spread a three to four inch layer of shredded or nugget-type bark mulch and rake it level.

Finally, cleanup; sweep soil from walks and drives and cart off rocks and other debris. Rake spilled bark mulch from lawn areas back onto planting beds. Now stand back, admire your new landscape, and pat yourself on the back for a job well done!

Hot Foods Prescribed For Healthier Living

It has all the ingredients of the hottest health food and diet craze ever.

According to the September Reader's Digest, eating spicy Mexican food—especially the "Tex-Mex" variety souped up with hot chili peppers—provides significant amounts of vitamins and minerals, can help cut down salt intake and even reduce the risk of respiratory problems.

"Very low in fat, peppers have only 22 calories in 3½ ounces. Ounce for ounce, they have 2½ times more vitamin C than do oranges, and they supply vitamin A, protein, iron and potassium. Fans claim that peppery food makes salt unnecessary," writes food authority Jack Denton Scott.

The Digest also reports that Dr. Irwin Ziment, professor of medicine at U.C.L.A., believes that eating chilies "stimulates the lungs and sinuses to produce watery secretions to loosen mucus in the airways and that people who habitually eat spicy foods have less chronic obstructive lung disease and fewer problems with sinusitis."

Cats Win Opener Over Estill Co.

The Prestonsburg High School Black Cats opened a new season with a new coach in great style last Friday night, trouncing visiting Estill County, 41 to 6.

Coach Charles Williams was almost as pleased with his team's defense as he was with the offense, and was hoping this week that both would hold over through Friday night's game with the Cats' traditional gridiron foe, the Paintsville Tigers. The game will be played at Paintsville.

The season-opener with Estill County was featured by long gains for the Cats. On the third play of the contest, John Goble raced 79 yards for a touchdown. Two more touchdowns were scored in the first half—one after Shag Branham, safety, had intercepted a visitors' pass on their 49 and returned it to the 4, from which point Chris Hooker scored; the next, on a 58-yard punt return by Branham as the half ended.

The second half was equally productive for Prestonsburg. On the first scoring effort of the period John Goble's pass to Pete Greene was good for 50 yards. The fifth touchdown came on Wendell Burke's 12-yard run, and the last on a pass of the same distance from Cliff Miller to Brian Keathley.

Game time at Paintsville Friday is 8 p.m.

Bassin' Buddies in London Tournament

The Bassin' Buddies traveled to London, Sat., Aug. 18, for a night tournament on Woods Creek Lake. Hopes ran high for a good catch after the tough tourney in July at Carr Fork and things looked good after several members had prefished on Friday night and all reported catching several small keepers. But, as usual, old Mr. Bass had something to say about the fishing on Saturday night. As it turned out, most of the fish brought into the scale were caught before dark or right after daybreak—the night fishing was extra tough.

Paul Hagans and Tom Martin brought two fish in which weighed 2 lbs. to take first. Tee Watkins and Paul Horn followed with two fish that went 1 lb. 14 ozs. for second place. Delbert Ison and David Smith also caught two fish which weighed 1 lb. 9 ozs. for third.

If you have never fished Woods Creek you should give it a try, it is truly a beautiful lake. It is loaded with all types of cover, both deep and shallow. Be sure to go into the dock and see all the pictures of all the huge fish that have been taken in the past few years, including the new state record which was taken this year. May seems to be the best month for the big fish.

Our next tourney will be on the home waters of old Dewey where several fish will be expected to be brought to the scale. Anyone who would like to see the weigh-in should be at Jenny Wiley Dock on Saturday, September 15, at 7 p.m.

DAY HOMEMAKERS TO MEET SEPT. 11

The Prestonsburg Day Homemakers, will hold their first meeting of the new club year, Tuesday afternoon, Sept. 11, at 1 o'clock in Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church. The lesson will be on "Preparing Vegetables and Fruits, Using Herbs and Spices."

Plan Class Reunion

The Wheelwright High School class of 1974 will hold its 10-year reunion at Wheelwright High School during the week-end of August 31 through September 1 (Labor Day week-end). All graduates are invited and encouraged to attend. Activities will begin with a reception Friday night at 8. A picnic and dance will be held the following night. Contact Greg Hall, Benita Riley, Jolene Crawford, Keith Caudill, Sherri Deaton Dusina or Debbie Hall Engle for further information.

TRAINING LESSON SLATED

The training lesson for Floyd County Homemakers who are scheduled to lead programs on "Preparing Vegetables and Fruits by Using Herbs and Spices" will be held at 10 a.m. today (Wednesday), at the Kentucky Power office, and Mrs. Frances Pitts, home demonstration agent, urges all program leaders to attend.

In State Tourney at Maysville

By BOB AKERS, Coach
July 21, Rudd's Raiders, of Prestonsburg, represented the Floyd County Junior Olympic Softball League in the State Tournament at Maysville by virtue of coming in first during the regular season.

Saturday morning, the Raiders lost a heartbreaker to Portland Recreation Center of Knox County, 6 to 5, even though out-hitting them 11 to 10. This put them in the loser's bracket in the double elimination tournament. Their second game was an easy 13 to 1 victory over North Middletown. Three for three hitting by Steve Webb and four RBI's by James Allen gave winning pitcher John T. Combs his first state tournament victory.

In possibly the most exciting game of the tournament, the Raiders came storming back in the late innings to defeat Don's Boys, 13 to 12. Trailing by the score of 12 to 1 going into the bottom of the 6th, RBI singles by Kevin Williamson, Brent Akers, Derrick Johnson, and Mike Campbell were topped off by a three-run homerun by Jim Conley, making the score 12 to 9 going into the 7th and final inning. With one out and runners on first and second for Don's Boys, Mike Campbell made an outstanding over the shoulder catch at shortstop that saved a sure run. An RBI single during the bottom of the 7th by Todd Miller, following base on balls to Bobby Akers and Kevin Williamson set the stage for James Allen's game winning three-run homer, his second of the game.

In their fourth game, the Raiders scored 10 runs but were defeated, 19 to 10, by Little Rock from Bourbon county. Playing in their fourth game of the day, the Raider's defense began to slow down and Little Rock took full advantage of each mistake. Five players hit .500 or better—Jim Conley, .500; Todd Miller, .500; Steve Webb, .538; James Allen, .583 and Kevin Williamson, .556. Home run hitters were Todd Miller, 2; Jim Conley, 1; Steve Webb, 1, and James Allen, 2.

College Aid Available From Private Sources

Students who think they cannot afford the college of their choice should think again. Despite reductions in federal student aid programs, a substantial amount of aid remains available from non-government sources. Philanthropic organizations, churches, corporations and professional associations award over $3 Billion worth of grants, scholarships and loans each year.

These programs are not limited to geniuses and all-star athletes. Eligibility often is based on occupational goals, work experience, geographic preference, military service, union membership and other personal factors. For example, some former newspaperboys are eligible for $3,000 awards from Newspaperboy Scholarships, Inc. Students who have worked part-time in a retail food store may receive $1,000 grants from the P. D'Agostino Scholarship Fund. There are scholarships for students of Armenian, Syrian and Lebanese descent, for children of New Haven Railroad employees, and children of veterans of the armed forces.

There are thousands of scholarship programs. The problem is a lack of information.

An organization called National Student Services helps students identify the specific aid programs for which they qualify. Using an extensive computer database NSS matches individual student characteristics with the eligibility requirements of every known student financial aid program.

This program is available to all students whether they are currently in college, about to enter, or just beginning to apply.

Individual students can obtain more information and a Student Financial Aid Dataform by sending a stamped, self-addressed business size envelope to National Student Services, 619 61st Street, Brooklyn, NY 11220.

Honey Festival Slated For Weekend at Jackson

Breathitt county's 7th Annual Honey Festival will be held at Jackson throughout the Labor Day weekend. Festivities will begin Friday night when Breathitt County and Russell meet in the Honey Bowl. Throughout the weekend, Appalachian arts and crafts will be displayed under a 330-ft. tent on Main Street, with free country music each day. There will be concerts by Stoney Creek on Saturday and Sunday nights.

Falcon Coal Company will conduct mine tours, Saturday, and the 10,000 meter Honey Run will begin at 9 a.m., Sunday at the LBJ School and continue around Panbowl Lake.

A coal truck parade will highlight activities Labor Day, followed by a Music Works concert.

The folks at Jackson say, "Come on over."

WHAT ABOUT OTHER FUNERAL DIRECTORS
We wish to take this opportunity to compliment the other fine funeral directors in the community for their service to the community over the years. We've met a lot of other funeral directors and we feel our competitors certainly compare most favorably. We think our community is fortunate in having such a high and professional level of funeral service for them.
Their being here, as we are, provides members of the community with choices—in service, in economy, in the many intangibles that are inherent in our competitive free enterprise system.
We hope you will consider us (as well as our professional colleagues) capable, and worthy of your trust—should the need for funeral services arise.
You will find us quick to respond to your needs and sympathetic to your wishes. We'd like to think our fine facilities and meticulous attention to the smallest details set us apart from other professionals in the community. Our main concern is your peace of mind. You may be certain that every detail will be attended to that needs being done. We know you would have it no other way.

Child Sexual Abuse Series Airs on KET

In a pioneering television effort, "Child Sexual Abuse: What Your Children Should Know," takes a look at the harsh realities of child sexual abuse and provides simple, practical, workable techniques that will significantly reduce the chances of child victimization. The five-part series, hosted by Mike Farrell, premieres on KET Monday, Sept. 17, at 8:00 p.m., and continues through Thursday, Sept. 20. Two programs will be aired on Tuesday, Sept. 18.

The five separate shows are designed to reach specific audiences: parents and other adults; young children (grades K-3); older children (grades 4-7); teens in junior and senior high school, and young adults (senior high school). Parents are encouraged to watch the appropriate programs along with their children. The final message is positive: There is much that we can do to guard against sexual abuse of children.

The programs in this series offer prevention information, ways to recognize the symptoms of child sexual abuse, and intervention techniques. They offer children and adults a comfortable vocabulary for talking about sexual abuse and demonstrate ways that children can be taught the safety and prevention skills that will make them less vulnerable.

"Child Sexual Abuse: What Your Children Should Know" is produced by WTTW/Chicago.

COMPLETES ARMY COURSE

Army Reserve Pvt. Larry K. Collins, son of Carl D. and Launa Collins, of Emma, has completed a combat engineer course at the U.S. Army Training Center at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo.

Rate Superior in Piano Competition

Among these who competed in the recent Kentucky State Piano contest were those pictured above, who are students of Mrs. Susan Compton Newsome, of Grethel, and who all received superior ratings. They are, in front from left, Pam Jenkins, Leenata Maddiwar, Misty Daniels, and Neeraj Maddiwar. In back, from left, are Greta Mullins, Angel Wood, Lora Hardwick, and Tammy Mitchell. Not pictured are Lisa Collins, Tina Gearheart, and Angel Justice, students of Mrs. Newsome, and Patti Howell, student of Libbi Hall, of McDowell.

Students who received excellent ratings were Kris Bevins, Neeraj Maddiwar, Angel Wood, Tammy Mitchell, Kim Akers, and Sabrina Curry, all students of Mrs. Newsome, whose students at the senior high level received more superior ratings than those of any other piano teacher in the seven regions of the state.

Special—Word of the Day At June Buchanan School

Bright and early last Thursday morning 42 neatly dressed and alert young people filed into the Ralph Edwards Auditorium on the campus of Alice Lloyd College. Special was a word that was repeated many times during the first assembly of the June Buchanan School student body. These students are special because they represent the first students to attend the newly organized June Buchanan School. They are special because they have opted for a special type of education, one which will focus on a college preparatory program.

As the students and staff members sat listening to the introductory remarks by James L. Akers, director of The June Buchanan School, and Dr. Jerry C. Davis, president of Alice Lloyd College, one could not help but miss the school's name-sake, Dr. June Buchanan. "Miss June," as local people call her, has not yet returned from her home in Syracuse, New York.

It seemed only appropriate to quote Miss June when introducing the faculty, "A good teacher is a person who can, each day, take you to the stars and bring you back again." With such a small pupil/teacher ratio, this will be the plan of the day. These teachers will not be hindered with discipline problems, cumbersome scheduling, and outside distractions. Every effort has been made to insure that an environment conducive to academic pursuit is maintained.

"Above all else, I will get more personal satisfaction in seeing you graduate from The June Buchanan School," Dr. Davis told the students. "When you graduate, you will have a diploma that will stand up against any in the nation."

Attending The June Buchanan School are students from Floyd, Knott, Perry, Martin, and Rowan counties. The school has also drawn out-of-state students from Ohio and Indiana. "Attendance has exceeded our greatest expectations," commented Dr. Davis. "We are pleased that so many have responded so favorably."

A special dedication program will be held September 18, at which time Miss June will be presented The Founders Book. The Founders Book is a listing of names of friends across the nation who have contributed to fulfilling the dream of those wanting something special, a quality education.

The Passing of a Friend

By ALICE MCDONALD
Superintendent of Public Instruction

When U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins died Aug. 3, education lost one of its staunchest defenders. The Democratic Party lost a valuable senior statesman, and the nation lost a man whose name had become synonymous with public education in the United States.

For the people of Kentucky and Hindman, the loss was personal as well as political. Through his 36 years in Washington, Carl Perkins had remained a neighbor and a friend, never losing his ties to the land and people of his native Eastern Kentucky. He was likely to be there almost any weekend, driving around in his battered, old Ford to talk to friends or admire a neighbor's hogs.

In Carl's death I lost a frequent counselor and wise adviser on educational issues and public life. But most of all, I lost a good friend, and one always mourns the passing of a friend.

In some ways we were an unlikely pair: the homespun country politician at the height of his career and the young schoolteacher from Louisiana setting out to make her mark on the world. He was known for his rumpled suits; I favored ultrasuede. But we clicked instantly. We had a common ground, and that was education.

I'll never forget my first meeting with Carl Perkins. I had been living in Louisville about five years then, since my marriage to a young Kentucky lawyer I had been introduced to in New Orleans. I had just been elected president of the Kentucky Young Democrats, and I was working in Walter "Dee" Huddleston's first campaign for the U.S. Senate.

That was 12 years ago, in 1972. When I arrived in Hindman, Carl Perkins met me when I got off the van. It was obvious that he was surprised to see me.

"I was expecting a boy," he said with that little half-smile I came to know so well.

As we set out for a day of campaigning, he cautioned me that we were in the mountains and that some things might be different from what I was accustomed to. And I might say here that, through Carl's tactful guidance over the years, I have been able to gain a much deeper appreciation of the unique qualities of the people of Eastern Kentucky, qualities that Carl Perkins himself exemplified so well.

KSP Aims at Lowering Labor Day Accidents

With a tougher drunk driving law in effect and the use of visual display radars, Kentucky State Police plan to keep the number of motor vehicle accidents and fatalities down this Labor Day weekend.

Visual display radars will be utilized along major highways in the state. These VDR's visibly show the speed being traveled by the passing motorist. The units provide the public with the opportunity to check their speed and reduce it if necessary.

State Police will also be enforcing the new DUI law which went into effect in July of this year. Stiffer penalties and increased flexibility for DUI stops and arrests may result in a decrease of those driving drunk. But Kentucky State Police Commissioner Morgan T. Elkins says the public can play a big part in reducing alcohol-related accidents. "Action RAP-ID, our toll-free hotline to report drunk drivers, is there for concerned citizens to use and help us reduce fatal accidents," says Elkins. To report a possible drunk driver, call 1-800-222-5555 and give the location where the vehicle was last seen, which way it was traveling and a description of the vehicle. The caller can remain anonymous.

With increased emphasis on the life-saving potential of safety belts and child safety seats, State Police will be recognizing those individuals over the coming Labor Day Weekend who are "saved by the belt." Individuals who may be involved in a serious accident but are saved from severe injuries or death because they are wearing occupant restraints, will be recommended for the Commissioner's Survivor's Club certificate by the investigating officer. This also applies to those parents who place their children in child safety seats. Kentucky's law does require children 40 inches tall and under to be secured in a federally-approved dynamic crash-tested safety seat.

State Police will again participate in Operation C.A.R.E. (Combined Accident Reduction Effort) which complements the aforementioned activities scheduled for the holiday. Operation C.A.R.E. is a multi-state effort over the holidays to reduce accidents by increasing enforcement of the speed limits, drunk driving and encouraging the use of occupant restraints.

Over the 1983 Labor Day Weekend, six persons died in six accidents on Kentucky's highways. None were wearing occupant restraints and, as a result, one was partially ejected from the vehicle. Fifty percent of the accidents were alcohol-related.

The 1984 Labor Day weekend will begin at six p.m. on Friday, August 31st and end at midnight on Monday, September 3rd.

STEPHEN R. ALLEN CERTIFIED PUBLIC ACCOUNTANT

July 24, 1984

To the People of Kentucky
Honorable Martha Layne Collins, Governor
Honorable John M. Stumbo, County Judge/Executive
Members of the Floyd County Fiscal Court

We have examined the statements of assets and liabilities arising from cash transactions of Thomas D. Lafferty, Jr., County Court Clerk of Floyd County, Kentucky as of November 9, 1983 and March 31, 1984 and the related statements of receipts and disbursements and excess fees for the periods from February 25, 1983 through November 9, 1983 and March 31, 1984. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted auditing standards, the Standards for Audit of Governmental Organizations, Programs, Activities and Functions, issued by the Comptroller General of the United States and the Audit Guide for County Fee Officials, issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky. Accordingly, our examination included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

The accompanying financial statements are prepared on the cash basis as prescribed or permitted by the State Local Finance Officer, pursuant to KRS 68.210. Consequently, certain revenues and the related assets are recognized when received rather than when earned, and certain expenses are recognized when paid rather than when a liability is incurred. Accordingly, the accompanying financial statements are not intended to present financial position and results of operations in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

In our opinion, the financial statements referred to above present fairly the assets and liabilities arising from cash transactions of Thomas D. Lafferty, Jr., County Court Clerk of Floyd County, Kentucky as of November 9, 1983 and March 31, 1984 and the receipts and disbursements and excess fees for the periods February 25, 1983 through November 9, 1983 and March 31, 1984 on the basis of accounting described above applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding period.

We did not conduct a study and evaluation of internal accounting control as we concluded that the audit could be performed more efficiently by expanding substantive audit tests. Therefore, we placed very little reliance on the internal accounting control system.

We also conducted tests of compliance with state laws and regulations, and unless otherwise noted below, the tested items were in compliance with applicable state laws and regulations. During our examination, nothing came to our attention to cause us to believe that the untested items were not in compliance.

Areas of noncompliance are as follows:

Failure to Issue Receipts

The County Court Clerk failed in some instances to issue receipts as required by KRS 64.840.

Publication of Financial Statement

The County Court Clerk failed to publish an annual statement for this term of office, resulting in a violation of KRS 424.220.

Disallowed Disbursements

The County Court Clerk's disbursements included payments which were not allowed on the Computation of Excess Fees. We have deducted these payments from the disbursements totals as shown on page 6 of this report. We refer the fiscal court to Note 2 of our report.

The fiscal court may at its discretion agree to accept any or all of the amount shown as "Deputies Salaries in excess of Fiscal Court Order". Any amount accepted by the fiscal court would serve to decrease the amount of excess fees due for the particular audit period.

Stephen R. Allen
Stephen R. Allen

The above transmittal letter accompanies the audit report presented to fiscal court and is published pursuant to KRS 424.

The Right To Representation

By JIM KELLY,
Social Security District Director,
Big Sandy Area

Most people who have business dealings with Social Security handle their own affairs with some help from Social Security personnel. So our aim is to make certain that those entitled to benefits get them, and we even help applicants establish their right to them.

However, a person who wishes to be represented in his or her dealings with Social Security may arrange for this. The representative may be a lawyer or any other qualified person. Social Security personnel are prepared to assist by providing a list of legal service organizations, such as the Legal Aid Society or State or local bar associations, from which the names of attorneys may be obtained.

There are some limits on who may represent a person in his or her dealings with Social Security. First, the representative must be an individual, not a corporation or organization.

Second, a person cannot act as a representative if he or she has been prohibited from engaging in such activities because of having violated provisions of the Social Security law.

Third, under certain conditions a current or former employee of the Government may not be able to act as a representative. Further details about this restriction may be obtained from any Social Security office.

Once a representative is decided upon, the appointment must be made in writing. A form for this purpose is available at any Social Security office. The representative's authority ends when final action is taken in the case or when the person being represented asks that it end.

Cable T.V. Signal Thieves Put On Notice

The Floyd County Cable TV Association announces today the beginning of a concentrated effort to locate and prosecute, to the full extent of the law, all cable TV thieves in their local cable system.

The association stated that they are now in possession of the new State of the Art Electronic Detection gear that will enable them to quickly pinpoint all unlawful hookups on the cable systems, once they begin the procedure the first of September.

The group said they decided to conduct the search when it became evident that there were hundreds of these illegal hookups within their systems.

The association said that in many cases illegal hookups created electronic problems within their systems that affect the signal quality to paying subscribers and they are determined to provide the best service possible to their paying customers by eliminating the illegals.

The group also said, since the Association's main interest and business is providing cable TV signals to paying customers, and not the prosecution of those persons involved in an illegal hookup, that to all persons who call their cable company's office before the search begins, to request a legal hookup to the cable service, no questions will be asked and no embarrassing comments will be made by their personnel.

The association urges those of you who are hooked up illegally to call! If not, be prepared to face the embarrassing and, very probably, costly consequences! The decision is yours.

The operators also request that customers who have extra sets connected to their systems and are not being billed, please contact your local cable company.
