PSC Expresses Gas Cost Hope

Says Small Gas Companies May Be on Way Out

In town on a public relations exercise this week, the state Public Service Commission held out some hope to consumers that runaway gas prices might yet be checked.

The panel expressed concern that jury-rigged gas hookups and crumbling distribution lines could see people killed in east Kentucky this winter.

They wished small gas company operators well but warned that, for some of them, the writing might already be on

And, in a gesture that drew approving nods from industry representatives in the audience, they distributed a fact sheet showing that natural gas is still a bargain by comparison with most other heating fuels.

While the PSC does not have authority over interstate gas companies like Kentucky West Virginia and Columbia Gas, the two big wholesale suppliers in this area, the state panel has been able to win some relief for Kentucky gas consumers by intervening in the federal rate-setting process governing those firms, Commissioner Laura L. Murrell told a small audience-made up mostly of local gas distributors—at May Lodge on Monday night.

Water Patrol Holds Victim Responsible In Boating Crash

Responsibility for the boating accident last Aug. 25 on Dewey Lake which claimed the life of Stanley Arnett, Salyersville teacher, has been placed on the victim himself as a result of an investigation made by the Kentucky Water Patrol in conjunction with the U.S. Corps of

In a report of findings, dated Sept. 25, Johnnie L. Brashear, Water Patrol officer, said that Arnett, after making a downstream turn to the left, failed to straighten his boat direction after making the turn and was still travelling left across the lake and across the upstream path of a boat being operated by Jerry Scott, of Meta, Pike county, causing the collision in which Arnett died.

Operating his boat at night, the victim was not wearing a flotation device, nor were his two women passengers, the accident report says.

McCarty Claims Insurance Firm To Pay in Full

Despite doubts expressed by some state officials, Kentucky Insurance Commissioner Gil McCarty said last week there is no way a Martin insurance agency will avoid paying a $500,000 penalty levied on it for violations of state insurance laws

An eight-month investigation by the state Department of Insurance found that B & M Insurance Agency had overcharged 92 small coal operators some $2 million on workers' compensation policies over 18 months.

Some state officials said last week there was no way to guarantee the agency would pay back the $500,000, which the insurance department ordered split among the overcharged coal operators. Some expressed the view that the operators were satisfied with the arrangement and would not want to collect refunds from B & M. But McCarty said his department would track refund checks and investigators would make on-site visits to see the money is

"If there is even a smell of B & M using any muscle on operators in this case, we'll be all over them like fleas on a dog," McCarty said.

Howell Admits State in Error On 'Debt' Claim

In a letter to Judge Executive John M. Stumbo, Al Howell, state local finance supervisor, admitted last Wednesday that the state erred when it was claimed that former County Court Clerk Thomas D. Lafferty, Jr. owed $729 received as overpayment while serving as Floyd county clerk.

In the Floyd County Times issue of September 26, reference was made to a September 5 letter from the state Division of County and Municipal Accounting by State Local Finance Supervisor Howell, claiming the alleged overpay-

However, Mr. Howell and Robert L. Purdom in the September 26 letter to Judge Stumbo stated, "The state auditor's office has rechecked Mr. Lafferty's audit report for the period covered and determined that he has not been overpaid.'

The letter further apologized for any inconvenience that the September 5 letter may have caused.

Pleas of Guilty Settle Charges Of Murder, Rape

Murder and rape charges were the subject of separate plea bargains Monday in Floyd Circuit Court.

Ruth Greer, 27, of Grethel, indicted for murder in the June 7 shooting of John Paul Blair by the side of the Mud Creek road entered a plea of guilty to a reduced charge of manslaughter. Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen recommended to the court that she be sentenced to 10 years in the state peni-

Eugene Marsillett, 34, of West Prestonsburg, pleaded guilty to a charge of raping a 12-year-old girl between September and December last year. As part of the deal, rape charges involving two younger girls were dismissed. The commonwealth's attorney recommended a nine-year prison sentence.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley ordered the probation and parole office to prepare pre-sentence reports on the two defendants and sentencing in both cases was set for October 30.

MONDAY, OCT. 8

Just to prove that we are no "laughing Alice" and can gripe with the best of them, we note here that next Monday is another holiday which we will not be able to observe through rose-colored glasses. It's Columbus Day, moved from the traditional October 12 when Chris 'discovered" America some time after Amerigo Vespucci and certain Norsemen had already paid a visit to our fair shores. Whether Columbus had a better press agent than those others, we do not presume to know, or care, but official celebration of his day on a Monday leaves us with the task of getting out a paper at a time when:

1. The postoffice is closed and no mail (with both news and ads) will be available till around 10 a.m. Tuesday, which happens to be our press day.

2. The courthouse is closed to business-has been closed since quitting-time Friday—except for the jail (which we would shun), and all its (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

At Odds on Some Points, But...

Schools Head, Critic Agree People Get What Is Deserved

Cheerleaders and taxes. An unlikely duo. But, for Floyd Schools Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr., they share a distinction that says a lot about why county schools are in the shape they are.

Among the educational concerns that have stirred up Floyd parents and citizens in recent years, nothing has excited people as much as cheerleaders

'What has brought out the biggest crowds? For what issues have they packed the boardroom?" the superintendent asks rhetorically. "Cheerleaders

In his third term as the chief executive officer of Floyd schools, Pete Grigsby was defending his administration last week against the latest in a string of critical comments by one of the state officials who have been monitoring county schools here for the past year.

But on this point Grigsby and Bob Spillman, the state Department of Education's associate superintendent for local services, were in agreement: to a large extent, citizens get the kind of schools they deserve.

In separate interviews with the Floyd County Times and the Ashland Daily Independent, Spillman pointed to the comjobs are used to reward friends and plaints he receives from parents as a punish enemies, Spillman said. fair indication of what they are worried The naming of two men-Frankie about. For every question about lax Francis and Wayne Ratliff-to replace discipline, there will be a parent fuming Blanche Dingus as head of the food serthat Johnny was suspended. For every vice department was one switch that caller concerned about the integrity of raised some eyebrows. And some the school day, others lament that the parents of children in the schools' gifted athletic program is being shortchanged. and talented program were puzzled and And who ever complains about a teacher

'goofing off" "They complain about cheerleaders and majorettes, or why their kids can't continue to practice basketball (during school hours)," Spillman said. "I'd feel much better if they were calling to complain that their child is six weeks into senior English and hasn't written a paragraph yet.

But Spillman is not about to let Floyd school administrators off the hook. Take Grigsby's argument that Floyd citizens 'turned us down' when the board sought, at considerable political risk, to raise tax revenues for education earlier this year. "I would be the last one to say the schools don't need more money," the state official said. "But I'd be the first to say they're going to have to clean up their management before they get it.'

Spillman said management of the Floyd school district is fragmented; political loyalties still appear to count more than competence in the hiring of teachers and administrators; and a sweeping reorganization in the central office here in June-a "fruitbasket turnover," the state official called itfurther eroded public confidence in the

To illustrate the link between management and morale-and also to show what can be done without money-Spillman pointed to the case of the school janitors, recently reorganized here under state direction. It is not the age of the building that makes one school hum with industry while another grinds along listlessly, he argued. "Everyone will tell you, some schools were clean and orderly; others had dirt in the hallways and broken bathroom fixtures. It doesn't matter if it was built in 1930 or 1980, a child entering a clean, orderly school knows he's there for a

The difference, Spillman contends, is a matter of management. The school district has plenty of custodians; it certainly spends enough on cleaning supplies. But it took a team of state advisers to point out that naming some as supervisors could do much to insure that school janitors spent less time congregating in boiler rooms and more time

The problem is not that Floyd has too many people in administration, as some critics have suggested, Spillman said. The problem is "in the way they view their management responsibilities.' Management is piecemeal. "It's as though there is no Floyd county school system, but a McDowell system, a Wheelwright system, and so on... There is no pulling together of the whole... You get constant buck-passing.

At another level the problem is politics: the perception that good teachers can't get or hold a job here on their merits alone. "You hire a person, you expect 10 to 12 votes: that's how you control the system.

Calls he gets suggest that a central office shakeup orchestrated by Grigsby in June-some of it over the strong objection of Board Chairman Dr. J.D. Adams-has fueled public feeling that political loyalties. (See Story No. 5, Page 4) Judge Permits Coal Company Intervention

Spillman argued.

In a Printer family's battle with state environmental officials over the application of Kentucky's new broadform deed law, the stakes appear to have been raised significantly by a judge's decision to allow 11 coal companies to intervene in

Over the objections of Maggie Taylor, her son, Marion Taylor, and her daughter, Elizabeth Stone-who recently sued the state Natural Resources Cabinet to void a permit allowing Tripple Elkhorn Mining Co. to conduct stripmine operations on their land-Franklin Circuit Judge Ray Corns allowed the coal companies to enter as parties to the

Representing the coal firms is former state Supreme Court Chief Justice John Palmore, who has indicated he will challenge the constitutionality of a law passed earlier this year by the General Assembly which says that broadform deeds allow only those mining methods in use at the time the deeds were Coal companies allowed to intervene in the case are Island Creek, Falcon, Golden Oak, Hazard, Highland, Kentucky Union, Kentucky River, Lost Mountain Mining, Matewan Minerals, Pembroke and Shamrock.

For more than a year, the Taylors have been in court arguing that stripmining on their land was forbidden by a handwritten instruction on the bottom of the 83-year-old broadform deed that Triple Elkhorn said gave it the right to mine. The landowners' case appeared stronger as a result of the new state law which took effect July 13, but Natural Resources Secretary Charlotte Baldwin ordered on July 27 that Triple Elkhorn be issued a stripmine permit.

Meanwhile, in a separate but related lawsuit, the Kentucky Court of Appeals refused Friday to reconsider its order returning to Floyd Circuit Court the Taylors' earlier case against Triple Elkhorn and CSX Minerals, Inc., holder of the disputed deed.

Knott Woman's Body Found Near Here; Suspect Jailed

The body of a Hindman woman was recovered Sunday from the Big Sandy River across from Highlands Regional Hospital, near here, and a 19-year-old neighbor has been booked for murder at the Knott county jail.

State police said Phyllis Slone, 38, of Owens Branch, was apparently strangled in her home around 4 p.m. Friday, following an argument over her 15-yearold daughter's plans to marry. Arrested on a warrant charging murder was Gerald Scott Ritchie, who lives next door and is described as the daughter's boyfriend.

Ritchie also faces a first-degree assault charge for allegedly striking 13-year-old David Slone, Jr., the dead woman's son, on the head with a club. The assault on her son reportedly occurred about the same time as Mrs. Slone was killed.

A spokesman at the Hazard state police post said Ritchie and the girl wanted to marry and argued with the girl's mother over the proposal. An unconfirmed report said the dead woman was strangled with a belt. The girl was also arrested on a juvenile petition.

State Det. Lloyd Hunsaker said Ritchie and the girl brought the victim's body to Floyd county in her car and later abandoned the car in Clintwood, Virginia. The two did not get married but left the car in Clintwood, possibly to suggest an alibi, he said.

The woman's death came to light after the injured boy was taken by his father, David Slone, Sr., to Hazard Appalachian Regional Hospital, where he remained Tuesday in serious condition

The families of three men killed when their auto collided with a school bus at Maytown on August 31 have filed a lawsuit claiming $3,015,000 in damages.

Also killed were two passengers in the car, Jackie Bentley, 27, of Estill, and Worley Craft, 60, of

NEA Offers Training Program On Child Abuse and Neglect

A pioneer training program designed to help teachers, school systems, problems. parents, and community groups cope with the widespread problem of child abuse and neglect has been announced by the National Education Association.

'Child abuse and neglect have been swept under the rug for too long,' declared NEA President Mary Hatwood Futrell. "What we're attempting to do is to bring our communities—teachers, school administrators, parents, youth groups, churches, police, and social service organizations-together to tackle this ugly problem.

Futrell noted that, this year alone, some 500,000 children will fall victim to either neglect or physical, sexual or emotional abuse.

The NEA program covers how to detect child abuse and neglect in the classroom, how to report it, how to talk to an abused child, how to work with abusive parents, and how to teach an abused child who returns to the classroom. The program, while tailored specifically for teachers, shows how teachers and communities can work

Gibson Nominated Realtor of Year

Bill Gibson, president of Action Properties Corp., Pikeville, has been nominated for the 1984 Kentucky Association of Realtors Realtor of the Year.

To be nominated, a realtor must exhibit faithfulness to the Realtor code of ethics of organized real estate, promote good real estate practice among other real estate brokers and educate the public about the real estate profession.

Gibson has exhibited such spirit in his efforts to promote professionalism in real estate. It was through his endeavors that the Big Sandy Board of Realtors was established in 1979. He has served as director, a vice-president, and president for the board. He assisted in the formation of the Coal County Board of Realtors at Hazard.

On the state level, Gibson has served as vice-president and a director of the Kentucky Association of Realtors and has served on committees studying professional standards, membership, longrange planning, and real estate legislation. He has recently been nominated treasurer of the Kentucky Association of Gibson is a member of the Pikeville Rotary Club, the Pikeville Chamber of Commerce, and is a director of the East Kentucky Homebuilders. He is past president of the Paintsville Rotary Club and was appointed by former Governor Wendell Ford to serve on the Kentucky Economic Development Commission. He is a past director of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce and served as the national director of the Kentucky Jaycees. He is presently a member of the faculty of Prestonsburg Community College, where he teaches Real Estate Marketing.

Marshall Family Reunion

The Marshall family reunion was held Sept. 1 at Archer Park. Approximately 125 attended from several states, including Indiana, Michigan and Ohio. Entertainment was provided by Claude Marshall, of Auburn, Ind., Grace Tincher, of Louisville, Paul Hubbard, of Louisa, Louellen Tincher, of Jackson, and Ellis Marshall, of Warsaw, Indiana.

Awards were made in several categories. Winners were: oldest man, Lonnie Tincher, of Louisville; oldest woman, Oda Howard, of Hueysville; youngest, Melissa Hall, of Ypsilanti, Mich., great-granddaughter of Sid Marshall; travelled farthest, Mrs. Frank Hall, of Ypsilanti, Michigan.

The centerpiece of the NEA training program is a teacher's handbook on the detection and reporting of child abuse developed by Cynthia Crosson Tower, an assistant professor and coordinator of the Human Services Program at Fitchburg State College in Massachusetts.

There are at least three reasons, Tower points out, why teachers and school officials should be concerned with child abuse and neglect

· The trauma created by abuse and neglect is as much an obstacle to learning as any perceptual or physical difficulty.

· Teachers are in daily contact with children. They are often the adults best situated to help the abused child.

· Teachers are required by law, in all states, to report child abuse and can, in fact, be held liable for failure to do so.

In the past, Tower adds, some teachers have hesitated to become involved in child abuse cases, often because they felt uncertain about the signs of abuse. In other instances, teachers haven't known exactly how or where to report abuse.

The NEA child abuse and neglect program addresses these concerns. It includes leaflets for parents, workshop materials, data on reporting suspected child abuse cases, a profile of abusive parents, and audio tapes for use by teachers. The total training program includes 19 separate components.

Take a Second Look

In this edition of The Times appear two items, both of which are worthy of attention.

One of the items warns hunters, landowners, the public in general that another fire season is at hand and that more senseless, criminal destruction of timber is certain unless we become aware of the value of woodland and make a purposeful effort to protect it.

The other lists prices of tree seedlings and advises landowners that they should be planted this month and next.

This second item deals with reforestation, a matter of prime importance if these hills are not to become bare and desolate because their cover was taken and none given back.

The steps involved here-forest protection and reforestation-belong together. In some cases landowners have given up on reforestation, pointing out that the planting of trees is in vain and a waste of effort and money as long as the young trees are subject to destruction by fire.

The value of wood products grows as the supply of timber decreases, but the true worth of trees may be more fully realized if we will consider that their destruction sets up a destructive cycle. A living tree draws up moisture through its roots and returns it to the atmosphere through its leaves, and that vapor becomes a part of the rain that later falls. But as trees are felled or killed by fire this process ends and the area is threatened by future drouth. So will new deserts be made. Take a second look at those items in the paper.

Witnesses in the Blair shooting said it followed an argument that broke out between Blair and Randy Hall, 39, in the back of a pickup. Miss Greer, who was driving the truck, told police she glanced in the rearview mirror and saw Blair knock Hall out of the truck with a punch. She ran the truck over an embankment, grabbed a .38-caliber revolver from the console, and fired at Blair, hitting him in the back of the head.

"John didn't say anything, he didn't have to. I saw what he did to Randy and I shot him for it," police said she told them. And Gene Williams, of Akers Branch, the hollow at Grethel near which the shooting occurred, said Greer told him. "I'd shoot anybody for Randy.

The mother of four children who are being raised by others, the defendant could have received a life sentence if she were convicted of murder. Manslaughter carries a penalty of from 10 to 20 years.

In explaining his willingness to bargain with the defendant, Commonwealth's Attorney Allen said his questioning of potential jurors-18 on the panel of 28 were women-made him doubtful they would return a murder conviction. Indeed, the fact that some of the eight persons traveling in the pickup were reportedly drunk might have led the jury to convict the defendant only of reckless homicide, a lesser charge than manslaughter, the prosecutor said.

Defense Attorney Ned Pillersdorf worried that the jury might not be persuaded by his argument that Greer fired at Blair only to protect Hall. The Commonwealth's was "a fair offer," he said.

An unemployed miner, Marsillett admitted having sexual relations with the girl named in his indictment. The girl was subsequently delivered of a baby suffering severe birth defects but still surviving. A Class C felony, the rape charge carries a maximum 10-year

Charges that he had sex also with an 11-year-old girl and a nine-year-old girl were dropped because they were not substantiated by the report of a physician who examined the children, said Commonwealth's Attorney Allen. Classified as Class B felonies because of the younger age of the alleged victims, conviction on either of those counts would have carried a sentence of from 10 to 20

Questions People Ask Ministers Most

In an age many would call godless, polls still show the vast majority of Americans do attend church, do pray regularly and do consult their clergy when confronted with personal problems and questions of faith.

According to the American Association of Pastoral Counselors (AAPC), an organization that certifies clergymen who do counseling and psychotherapy, people's concerns are often quite similar. Some of the main ones, as revealed in the October Reader's Digest, are these:

article declares, "there is a great difference between unanswered prayer and ungranted petitions. Prayer, they say, is not meant to be a wish list." And, they add, the answer may not be what

What can I do when I am so discouragble confronts us is seldom beyond our "And when extraordinary demands are strength to endure and cope with them.

How can I best pass on my religious beliefs to my children? Ministers agree that the key to involving one's children in one's faith is to set the example for them. Too often, says the Rev. Alan Loy McGinnis of the Valley Counseling Center in Glendale, Cal., "the message children get is that going to church or temple is something they have to do but What have I done to deserve the troubles I'm having? People rarely question why they deserve a great joy that comes their way, The Digest article points out. "We assume we should have joy," says Rabbi Joel Oseran of University Synagogue in Los Angeles. "But it is just as valid to ask 'Why me? when a good thing happens. In Judaism, he explains, one says a blessing when something joyous happens; it is a way of reminding the recipient that God has a part in each event.

What can I do to make this a better world? Says Lutheran pastor James Austen of Colorado Springs: "A promising world is built of small acts of kindness and compassion. Every day we have a chance to make someone's life resulting from a Federal Energy Regulatory Commission investigation into the gas company's rates. The investigation had been requested by the

The state regulatory agency is being represented by a Washington, D.C. law firm in current FERC hearings on rate increases sought by wholesale suppliers. As recently as last spring, analysts predicted rate hikes of as much as 20 percent in January, 1985, when additional natural gas reserves will become deregulated. But Murrell said the outcome now appears more hopeful for consumers. "We're not going to see the flyups on January 1 that people anticipated," she said.

Nine Kentuckians died in gas-related accidents last year and that number could easily rise this year if householders don't exercise more care in running gas lines from the meter to their homes, warned Larry Amburgey, the PSC's chief investigator.

Potentially fatal problems arise when a number of neighbors, often family members, tie into a single existing line and when plastic lines, designed for underground use, are strung along the ground or even up in trees, he said.

Amburgey said the PSC is working with local gas companies in trying to identify dangerous taps and have the householder correct them. To be better prepared for emergencies, the agency is also encouraging gas companies to keep up-to-date maps of their systems, to install enough shutoff valves, and to test them annually, he said.

The cost of gas and of maintaining east Kentucky's smaller, detriorating systems may mean that some of them will have to consolidate, be absorbed by larger companies, or simply go out of business, said some PSC panelists, who noted that a couple of firms had already

'Despite all efforts, there may come a time when some small gas utilities will not be viable. The cost may be more than consumers can bear," cautioned Commission Chairman Richard Heman.

That came as no surprise to Mike Little, operator of small systems at Melvin and Phelps. "If the rates keep going up, it's not going to be hard to abandon them," he said. "I'm for sale."

For all its problems, however, the price of natural gas still compares favorably with that of other fuels, panelists pointed out. Of seven fuels listed on a flyer distributed at the meeting, only coal and wood were cheaper than natural gas. Electricity was the most expensive fuel listed.

The seven fuels were ranked according to their cost per dekatherm. A dekatherm, or one million BTUs, is roughly equivalent to a thousand cubic feet. (With high-BTU gas, like much of what is used in eastern Kentucky, a dekatherm is yielded by somewhat less than a thousand cubic feet.)

The ranking: Eastern coal, $3.79; wood, $5.37; natural gas, $7.95; No. 6 fuel oil, $8.82; No. 2 fuel oil, $10.90; propane, $13.06; electricity, $18.50.

Coroner Explains Fees

In reference to a report in last week's Times that autopsies ordered by Floyd Coroner Roger Nelson have resulted in claims on the county, mostly by ambulance companies, amounting to $7379 in the first three months of the current fiscal year, Nelson points out that the claims cover a period beginning in January, 1983. The claims accumulated because county officials indicated there was no money to pay them, he said.

The first self-winding clock dates back to 1783. The patents for it was awarded to Benjamin Hanks of Litchefield, CT.

As for the central office reorganization, Grigsby insists the creation of an assistant director's job in the food service department makes sense in view of a proposal to centralize purchasing and accounting in that department; and the switch in coordinators of the gifted and talented program also anticipates an expansion of that program, he said.

Repeating a charge made by the state board of education this summer, Spillman said that, while Floyd officials have responded readily enough to state prodding, they have shown little initiative in identifying and correcting problems on their own.

In reference to the state probe that began here in response to complaints from a citizens' group in June, 1983, Spillman said "When we went there, under every rock we turned over we found exactly what we were told we would find.'

"We can't turn all the rocks over from Frankfort," he adds. "It's time for the Floyd county board to start turning over rocks on its own.'

Grigsby professes to find that line of criticism hard to understand. Certainly, many recent improvements in Floyd schools have come in response to criticism. But some of the most important changes have come about as the result of state scrutiny that Floyd administrators themselves invited, he

"We asked for the accreditation team to come in. We chose to participate in the school effectiveness project. We took the chance of drawing criticism to our own district. We can list accomplishments and changes," the superintendent argued. And he drew on a favorite verb to describe the criticism still trickling in from Frankfort: "If someone wants to nitpick, they can.'

"For that matter, we could probably turn over some rocks downstate," he added. "There might be a few things under their rocks, too.' What do Floyd countians think of their schools? Not much, apparently, says Spillman, who said it "just blows my mind to find there are 100 students from Floyd county enrolled in Pikeville city 'Apparently Pikeville does an excellent job. That shows it's not impossible to have a good school system in eastern Kentucky. Somehow there should be a way to accomplish that in Floyd county," the state official said.

"I think a lot of people have given up," said Spillman, an impression he says is strengthened by the fact that only one of three board members up for reelection this year has any opposition.

The opposite is true, said Grigsby. People send their children to non-county schools for a variety of reasons-some because they want them educated in religious values, some because they have never had a commitment to public schools-and the fact that this year's board races have stirred up little opposition, the superintendent said, only goes to show that most Floyd countians have confidence in a board he describes as "the best qualified the county has ever

Schools Can't Do It All For Parents

By WILLARD ASHWORTH, JR. (In The Lexington Herald-Leader)

Parents have relieved themselves of the whole job of raising their children. The only responsibility they want to have any part in is the making of the babies. The responsibility of rearing the child has fallen almost entirely on the school systems. If anything goes wrong with the finished product, the school is often blamed

Schools were never intended to do the complete job of rearing and educating the child. They can only furnish the tools with which to do the job. There is no way under God's great sun that the school alone can educate anyone. The education has to be acquired by the individual child himself, with help from the parents and the school. How are the schools supposed to educate a child who watches the late show and comes to school too sleepy to keep his head up and his eyes open? How can we point out the importance of an education to a child whose parents are better off on welfare and other social programs than are most teachers who work for a living? How can the school expect homework to be done in homes where TV stays on 18 hours a day? Why should the school provide breakfast for children whose parents are too lazy to get up in the mornings?

How do we explain to children that it is OK for parents to cheat on free meal applications, but not on income tax? How do we explain to the child who pays for his lunch but can't afford a pop after lunch why the child who eats free always has one, sometimes two pops?

There are two types of sciences that we try to teach in our schools. One is physical science, the other social science. Physical science deals with the universe and the laws which govern it, while social science deals with man's behavior. Physical sciences are theories that seem to explain why. Social sciences are actions and reactions. People learn from people. They look up to or down on people. Children follow in the footsteps of their parents. Parents are the most influential people in the lives of their children

If parents put education first, children will do likewise. If parents set good examples, children will follow. If parents try, children will try

Schools can only offer the child an opportunity for an education. Most children will not take advantage of the opportunity without encouragement from good solid parents.

I am now teaching my second generation of children. This I have been doing for some six or eight years. The third generation is on the horizon. The attitude of the second generation has actually grown worse toward education than was the attitude of their parents. If we don't change that attitude we cannot possibly hope to change the child. Education has to have meaning to these people. It has to be shown that education will have a dollar value. There must be some way to prove that education can provide for a more enriched life

Our federal government has done more to hinder education than any other single body. All of our great social programs that required nothing back in return have created nothing but poverty and ignorance. We have allowed a generation of people to raise whole families withou having held a public job. We are going to have to insist upon parental involvement in education.

Schools should not be required to produce a better product. Parents should. (Willard Ashworth, Jr., of Happy, Ky., teaches elementary school in Perry

Church Holds Opening Services

The Seventh-day Adventist Church recently held an open house for its new church building on Bert T. Combs Mountain Parkway, located five miles west of Prestonsburg. Services to officially open the church were held September 15 with a full house in attendance from the community and other Adventist churches during the Saturday morning service. Clay Farwell, president of the denomination's organization in Kentucky and Western Tennessee, delivered the keynote address. He challenged the congregation to use the new church as a base to serve the Prestonsburg community.

Before moving to its present location the congregation met at the First Presbyterian Church in Prestonsburg. "We are indebted to the Presbyterian congregation for the hospitality and generosity they extended to us," said Adventist pastor, Paul Hoover. "Their attitude is typical of the Prestonsburg community as a whole." Rev. and Mrs. Timothy Jessen, from the First Presbyterian Church, presented a vocal duet at the open house.

The church sanctuary seats 100 and has an adjoining mothers' room with a one-way glass for privacy. The building has its own baptistry, kitchen, fellowship hall and classrooms for the children. "We hope to one day have a church school in our facilities and have planned with this in mind," said first elder, Walt Snyder.

According to Belinda Baker, church clerk, three new members have been added to the congregation since opening September 1. Adventists are a conservative church which is now adding over 1,000 new members each day to its world-wide membership.

Services are held Saturday morning, the seventh day. For Adventists that is God's Sabbath, a day of rest from the regular activities of the week. Adult and children's Bible classes begin at 9 a.m., with the worship service following at 10:30 a.m. Guests are always welcome.

POUNCE

Now you can learn first-hand about all the things cats would like their owners to know about them. I'm POUNCE. Just write to me at the address below and I'll answer your questions, too!

In addition to a regular brushing, is there ever a need to help my cat with other grooming, or will she take care of herself?

Grooming is an important part of the well-being and health of your cat. The earlier it's started, the less difficult it will be. And there's more to it than regular brushing. A kitten's eyes require attention to keep them clean. A mild salt solution applied with a cotton or soft tissue is ideal.

You also should check the kitten's mouth regularly. Clean her teeth with a damp cloth dipped in salt and baking soda. Routine nail clipping is another consideration. This will protect the drapes and furniture, while a scratching post will help keep your cat's nails short and reduce the need for clipping. And here are a few more tips about brushing your cat: Long-haired cats need to be brushed almost every day to keep their coats from becoming matted, short-haired cats should be brushed less often. If you've neglected to comb out tangles, the only way to remove the matted fur is to cut it with scissors. Routine brushing and combing help prevent hair balls and cut down on cat hair

I'd like to adopt one of the neighbor's cats, but already have a dog living in my home. Would I just be asking for trouble by providing a home for both pets, or can a friendship be worked

Even if there is a dog in the house, or another cat, the pets should establish a friendly relationship within a few days. In the beginning don't throw them together or leave them alone unwatched-give them time.

Generally, an older cat or dog adopts a new kitten and mothers or fathers it as its own. A pecking order soon is established and, if there are several pets, one will be the protector/ provider and another will be the protected.

If you have questions about your cat, write to POUNCE, 555 Jackson Blvd., Chicago, IL 60606. POUNCE Treats For Cats, made by Puss 'n Boots, are available in a free Taste Test Kit that includes coupons and more! Just write to the same address.

DIURETIC OVERUSE

Although diuretics are often prescribed for water retention they are not the answer to preventing recurring bouts. While occasionally taking a diuretic for mild edema can do no harm, making a habit of using them can worsen the problem and can also be dangerous. A diuretic interferes with the normal functioning of the kidneys. Once the medication is discontinued, the kidneys begin to overreact by conserving more salt and water than ever. The result is an unpleasant "rebound edema" that can last for several weeks. Frequent diuretic use can also result in the depletion of potassium which, in turn, can lead to weakness, dizziness, nausea and constipation.

Have your physician call any prescriptions into COOLEY APOTHECARY, The Drug Store with a Difference. Our pharmacists maintain an extensive inventory of all medications and they are pledged to further the highest ethical standards of our profession. You'll find us located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

> "No pains, no gains." English proverb

My number one priority is to insist on an excellent education for our children. Our lowered expectations affect all students at: all levels. Excellence and expectations of excellence are contagious. Turning our schools around takes the commitment of all people, people who are committed to children and education and the future of Floyd County. Our children are our future and we parents must stand up and insist they are educated to meet the needs of our future.

Jan. 30, 1913, the same year the federal income tax was authorized. Woodrow Wilson was the president, and air mail would begin five years later. Sanford Reffett was born Jan. 27, 1913, in an eastern Kentucky farmhouse near Dock, Ky. A midwife—also known as a 'granny doctor," according to Reffettattended the birth of Harrison and Rebecca Reffett's first child.

Three days later Reffett's birth certificate was put in the mail. The two-cent stamp on the envelope was ample postage, but it never arrived at the Reffett place, "a little bitty farm" situated in hills and hollows of Floyd County.

At age 15 he moved to Pyramid, Ky. He married and he and Mrs. Reffett lived in Hueysville, Ky. for many years. A well driller by profession, Reffett moved to sunny central Florida near Lake Weir, in south Marion county, in 1967.

The post office in Dock, Ky., a rural facility located in a portion of a country grocery store, was closed in 1969. The old building was getting a cleaning earlier this year when a dusty letter with a two-cent stamp was discovered.

It was Reffett's long lost birth certifi-

The woman who found it knew the Reffett family. She called Sanford Reffett's 67-year-old sister, Tina, who stil lives in Floyd county, and Tina gave it to her younger brother, Virgil, 62. He recently delivered the musty mail to Sanford-more than 71 years after it was postmarked.

"It looks like it is a thousand years old," Reffett said of his birth certificate. "It surprised me," he said. "I had a duplicate of it (obtained in 1930 from the state records office in Frankfort, Ky.).

Diabetes Classes Set

"Living Well with Diabetes" classes have been scheduled at Highlands Regional Medical Center on October 10 and 17, from 3 to 5 p.m.

In addition to presentations on these subjects, the classes also feature problem-solving discussions. These are considered especially effective for diabetics since they share many of the same problems. Thanks 'Copter Pilot

In our haste to hold the 13-year-old Babe Ruth Regional Tournament, we neglected to thank a most helpful person, Mr. James Lacy Porter, of Allen, Kentucky

With Floyd county's first-ever-hosting of a Babe Ruth Regional game close at hand; we found the field to be hopelessly wet due to an earlier rain.

Enter Mr. Porter upon finding out our problem, he left work and flew his helicopter over to and hovered above the Babe Ruth Field at Allen Park, completely drying the infield so we could play and win our first ever regional baseball tournament at Stumbo Memorial Field.

Thanks James Lacy, from the boys and their parents.

OSCAR RICE, Allen, Ky.

Says Children Unattended

Once this year I went to Prestonsburg Elementary to pick up my first grader. I found him out wandering around the hallway unattended before time for school to be let out. On another occasion, my sister went to pick him up before time for school to be let out and found him wandering around the hallway.

After talking to the teacher and principal, I was told that the teacher had to leave early for bus duty. If they have to have someone on bus duty before all the kids are let out, why don't they have someone who doesn't have to leave a group of young children? Don't they have coaches and an assistant principal who could be outside for a few minutes until all the children are let out? I feel that it is extremely dangerous to leave small children unchaperoned.

BRENDA K. GREER, HC 71, Prestonsburg

Acknowledges Help

I wish to thank The Times for printing my request for information on Bad Talt Hall; and those who wrote me such kind letters. I misplaced one of those letters; when that person gets no reply, I hope she will write me again.

I was told that Bad Talt Hall was buried in Wise, Va., in Jenkins, "and in the family cemetery"-wherever that is? Does anyone know?

I marvel that Eastern Kentucky does not have road markers about their famous, as well as infamous sons. Why is this not done? There is the fallingdown home of Confederate Captain Bill Bolen Hall; the spot where Garfield Place was (what a sheer disgrace to the county to let that place go into private hands!): The place where Bad Talt Hall was born-the place where he is buried-places that live in story and

People travel to see the grave of Doc Holliday, of Jesse James, other outlaws—why not Bad Talt Hall? Tourists mean money; money aids the local economy, and historic markers do attract outsiders.

Someone asked me about a book that had been written on Bad Talt Hall, and where it could be purchased. I have never heard of such a book. Is there one? Can it be purchased, anywhere?

I was told he has a son-very old, of course-in one of the county's rest homes. I am seeking verification on that. He may be senile and not able to help anyone.

Thank you, everyone.

Eligible Voter List Posted for Election

A list of the names of all known eligible persons to receive ballots in the upcoming annual ASC committee election is available in the county ASCS office. Farmers will begin nominating candidates for the ASC election on October

On the local level, ASCS operates under a farmer-elected committee system. This year's election will be by mail ballot between November 23 and December 3. Voters may get ballots at the county ASCS office here

Anyone who meets the following requirements is eligible to vote in these farmer committee elections: any individual of legal voting age with an interest in a farm as owner, tenant, or sharecropper who is eligible to participate in any ASCS program.

Several general provisions relate to ASCS voter eligibility. A wife who operates a farm with her husband can vote if her name is on the deed of conveyance. Any person under legal voting age can vote if he or she runs a farm, and a legal guardian who runs a farm for a child can vote for the child. No person can be denied the right to vote because of race, sex, age, color, religion, or national origin.

W'wright Police Dept. To Do Fingerprinting

Parents of school children in the Left Beaver section may next week have a record of their children's fingerprints. The Wheelwright Police Department will be making fingerprints of Wheelwright High School students, Monday, October 8; Osborne Grade School students, Tuesday, October 9, and Melvin Grade School students, Thursday, October 11.

The fingerprint records are being made in cooperation with the Kentucky Task Force on Missing and Exploited Children, and while it is hoped they will never be needed, could be of invaluable assistance in locating a missing child.

Consent forms will be sent home to be signed by parents, and no child will be fingerprinted without a valid consent form. All fingerprints and records are to be kept by the parents, and the police department will retain no records.

Parents whose children were not in school on these days or those with preschool children may bring them to the Wheelwright City Hall to be finger-printed.

ple I have been researching the Moore families in several Eastern Kentucky counties for over five years. One family originated in North Carolina and the other in Virginia. They moved to Floyd county and from there to other Eastern Kentucky counties. I probably have more information on these families than any other person. I have information on at least 200 families. These people are descended from a Revolutionary War

I have spent much time researching records and talking to many of the older generations. If you have not been contacted by me or answered my requests for information, will you please write to me now. Send your name and address and I will send forms for listing information about your family. When you write, if possible, explain how you are related to the Moore's. Give the names of your parents, grandparents, and greatgrandparents. I want to hear from you, no matter how distant your Moore

Cats Easily Down Belfry

A loose ball brought on this bit of action at Belfry last Friday night. Prestonsburg players are shown in white jerseys.

When the Prestonsburg Black Cats went to Belfry last Friday night for their annual game with the Pirates, it might have been a reunion of most of the Prestonsburg players with their former coach, Philip Haywood, but there was little of sentiment about the occasion.

The Cats defeated Belfry in convincing fashion, 20 to 0, with an overpowering attack both by land and air. Coach Charles Wgeeler's boys had a total of 208 yards passing, with young John Goble hitting five different receivers. They added a rushing total of 188 yards.

The Pirates on the previous Friday defeated Pikeville by the same 20-0 score. Belfry posed its biggest threat of the game when it took the opening kickoff and ran the ball back to the Prestonsburg 6. The Pirates never came that near again to paydirt.

Michael Gunter was on the scoring end of two passes by Goble-the first in the opening quarter, good for 70 yards, and the second coming in the second quarter. On the first marker the run for extra points failed, but the kick was good on the second. The Cats did not score again till the final period when James Little ran in from 7 yards out. The kick was good.

The Black Cats play Lawrence County here Friday night.

Betsy Layne Bows To Elkhorn City

By MALETTA CAMPBELL The Betsy Layne Bobcats traveled to Elkhorn City to take on the Cougars Fri-

The first quarter was scoreless with Elkhorn City keeping the ball for eight minutes, but the Bobcats defense held them scoreless. In the second quarter with little over two minutes to go, Elkhorn City's quarterback, Mitch Isenhoff, threw a 15-yard pass to Monty Ratliff for the first touchdown of the game. Ratliff went on to score the twopoint conversion and the Cougars took a halftime lead of 8-0.

As the second half started, the Bobcats' defense broke down. James Hunt, of Elkhorn City, scored giving the Cougars a 16-0 lead, with quarterback Mitch Isenhoff getting the two-point conversion with the start of the final quarter, the Cougars drove down the field once more and broke the Bobcats defense to make the score 24-0. The Bobcats tried for a comeback when Bill Campbell scored from two yards out to make the score 24-6. Then, with a little under two minutes to go, Campbell scored again on a pass from quarterback Bud Newsome to make the final score 24-12.

Sri Lanka Plans Controversial Dam

Food shortages, high unemployment, an unfavorable balance of trade and an impending energy shortage are among the severe problems facing the small island nation of Sri Lanka, formerly known as Ceylon.

In "The Fountains of Paradise," airing Tuesday, October 23, at 8 p.m., NOVA takes a probing look at Sri Lanka's Mahaweli Irrigation Project, a bold, billion-dollar-plus gamble designed to transform this poor Third World nation into a modern and prosperous

Though three out of four Sri Lankans work in some form of agriculture, the country has been unable to produce sufficient rice to feed its people

The aim of the Mahaweli Irrigation Project is to make Sri Lanka selfsufficient in both food and energy production. The plan is to divert water from the nation's mightiest river, the Mahaweli, to irrigate the dry zone, permitting rice to be grown there and generating electric power to create new industry as well. To accomplish this, more than 150,000 families must be relocated. It is a massive technological and social undertaking, and both its monumental price tag and its farreaching goal of reclaiming over one million acres of dry land have attracted worldwide attention.

Construction of the Mahaweli project was originally scheduled to take 30 years. But, in a risky and controversial move, the current Sri Lankan government decided to accelerate and attempt to complete it in six years. The project is now partially finished.

NOVA is produced by WGBH/Boston.

Man Who Was Stabbed Two Months Ago Dies In Lexington Hospital

A 23-year-old Martin man, who was free on bond pending trial for burglary, died in a Lexington hospital last Wednesday, more than two months after he was stabbed at the home of a family member

Fayette County Deputy Coroner Louis Hager said Dennis Wayne Conn, of Arkansas Creek, died at the U.K. Medical Center at 4:50 p.m. Wednesday. He said State Deputy Medical Examiner John Hunsaker performed an autopsy, but an exact cause of death had not been determined.

Conn was stabbed at an Arkansas Creek house last July during a family argument. State Det. Danny Stumbo is investigating the incident but no arrests had been made this week.

A burglary charge on which Conn was scheduled to be tried November 19 was dismissed Thursday by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley. Conn was accused of stealing six quilts belonging to Sadie Lee Hicks Chaffins from the West Garrett home of the late Beatrice Hicks on July 8 last year.

Det. Stumbo said no charges were filed after the July stabbing because Conn indicated he did not want his assailant. a family member, prosecuted. Whether charges will now be filed will depend partly on the result of the autopsy and the wishes of the family, he said.

Born on March 11, 1961, Conn was the son of Dennis and Margaret Walters Conn. In addition to his parents, he is survived by his wife, Teresa Rose Conn; a brother, Gabriel Conn; and two sisters, Lisa Conn and Susan Bryant, all of Martin.

The Christmas fund-raising plans have already begun for the residents at Riverview Manor Nursing Home, here. In addition to the original crafts made annually, this year a new project, the 'Cabbage Patch' replica (complete with adoption papers), has been introduced. The residents were so fond of the original Cabbage Patch dolls, they decided they would make their own replicas. The task of making dolls helps the residents recall the earlier era when all dolls were handmade. The dolls will be ready for "adoption" at the Apple Day Festival, Paintsville, October 5 and 6. Energy Aid Program Changed The Cabinet for Human Resources is the subsidy and hardship segments making significant changes in the way it operates the federal home energy assistance program this year. The program will begin earlier, the amount each individual household receives has been reduced, and $4 million has been reserved to help those in greatest need this winter, according to Department for Social Insurance Commissioner Jack Waddell

'By stretching the money to serve 50 percent more people and beginning the program earlier, we hope to avoid long waiting lines and provide some assistance to all who need it," said Waddell

Although Congress has not yet acted on the final home energy assistance appropriation, Kentucky expects to receive approximately $30 million, the same as last year's HEAP allocation.

As in previous years, HEAP will be operated in two parts. The first, or "subsidy" part of the program will be open for applications from the elderly and disabled Oct. 15 through 26, and for all low income households Nov. 12 through Dec. 31. Half of the subsidy allocation will go to households with at least one member who is 60 or older, or is totally disabled

During the second part of the program, the $4 million reserved for "hardship" cases will be distributed. Low income households which are completely without heat may apply for hardship assistance beginning Jan. 7, 1985 and continuing through May 31.

All households are eligible for HEAP benefits from both the subsidy and hardship parts of the program. The Department for Social Insurance will discontinue taking HEAP applications in both before the projected ending dates, if all available funds are spent sooner.

Kentucky's total HEAP grant will be allocated as follows: 10 percent for the legislatively mandated Home Care for the Elderly program; 13 percent for the Department for Employment Services' home weatherization program; 2 percent, or a minimum of $500,000, for a pilot project to test retrofitting of gas furnaces to increase efficiency, and 75 percent for direct benefits.

Half of the hardship funds will go to clients who purchase from a supplier that bills monthly, such as an electric or gas company; the remaining half will go to those who buy from small suppliers, such as coal or wood vendors, and pay at the time of purchase.

Last year's Home Energy Assistance Program provided direct benefits to approximately 91,500 households.

Pikeville College Slates Anniversary Observance

Pikeville College will celebrate 95 years of educating students of this region on October 6. Starting as an academy, a way to provide basic education in a disadvantaged region, Pikeville College has grown into a four-year college, offering more than 20 areas of study as well as an active community education outreach program through the Center for Lifelong Learning.

Festivities to mark the anniversary began with an Alumni Association breakfast, Sept. 29. Other activities involving students, faculty-staff and community people will be featured during the week of October 1-5, culminating in the Founders' Day Convocation at 11 a.m. Oct. 6 in Faith Chapel. Pikeville College special guests will be David A. Zegeer, giving the Founders' Day address, and Wilfred Martin, receiving an honorary Doctor of Humane Letters.

Convocation will also feature performances by the Pikeville College Chorale, Jerry Waddell (organist and PC Chorale director), Jim Andy Caudill (music faculty member), and several students from the college.

The community is welcome to participate in and attend all scheduled events. Here is a partial listing of times and locations for these events:

Susan Huffman, director of Alumni Affairs at Pikeville College, has announced that the graduating class of 1959 will be honored during Founders' Day, 1984. Forty-six students completed degrees in that year, most in areas they meant to teach.

Everyone is welcome to reminisce with these graduates at the picnic, Oct. 4, from 5 p.m. until 6 p.m. at the college gymnasium.

How Much Can You Afford To Burn?

By STEPHEN R. BRACKETT District Forester,

Kentucky Division of Forestry Can you afford to burn $223,200? Well, that is what the average amount of damage is to Floyd county woodlands each time a wildfire escapes.

These figures are in addition to the immediate cost to the taxpayer or, in many cases, the person responsible for allowing a wildfire to escape, for fire suppression cost.

Immediately, these figures seem drastically high, but many people don't realize the accumulated cost of timber burned and the resulting loss to our economy in forest products and related jobs over the next 75 years, which amounts to an average of $2,000 per forest acre lost to our economy. Division of Forestry statistics show that the average-size forest fire in Floyd county for the past 10 years has burned 111.6 acres.

October 1 marks the beginning of the fall forest fire hazard season in Kentucky. The majority of fires occurring in Floyd county can be prevented by observance of two simple fire protection laws.

No burning before 4:30 p.m., says KRS 149.400. It is unlawful for any person to set fire to any flammable material except between the hours of 4:30 p.m. and 12 midnight, if material being burned is within 150 feet of timberland or flammable material leading to woodland.

No burning anytime without taking proper precautions, KRS 149.375. It is unlawful for any person to set fire to any flammable material, anytime, without first piling materials to be burned, and carefully cleaning around them so that fire cannot escape.

In addition to the precautions, a fire cannot be left unattended.

Persons not observing these proper burning practices are in violation of Kentucky Revised Statute and face a minimum of a $100 fine in district court.

For more information contact the Division of Forestry District Office at Prestonsburg, (886-8562) or your local state forest warden.

Learn About Firefighting

Onda Lowe Hunt's practical arts class from the Prestonsburg Grade School this week visited the Prestonsburg Fire Department where Capt. Larry Adams instructed the class on the life of a firefighter. Instruction includes fire safety tips around the home, fire prevention programs, arson investigations, aerial truck demonstration, firefighters' protective clothing and fire behavior.

KEA Takes Tough StandOn Law Setting Class Sizes

The Kentucky Education Association is urging its members to report violations of Kentucky's new class-size law for kindergarten through grade six.

"Is your classroom in violation of Kentucky's new class-size law?" asks the latest edition of the organization's newspaper, the KEA News.

"If so, KEA stands ready to support you in efforts to make the size of your class conform to the state-mandated number," says the article.

"Getting the class-size law passed in the General Assembly was one of KEA's major victories and now we stand ready to make sure that it is enforced," said KEA President Ion Henrikson

KEA President Jon Henrikson.

Those teaching kindergarten through third grade should have no more than 29 in the classroom. For grades four through six, the maximum is now 31. Excluded are classes in vocal and instrumental music, art, physical education, and special education.

These are absolute maximums, not averages, for all grades at a certain level in the school building.

For teachers who have more than the maximum number of pupils, KEA is recommending that they remind their principal of the new law that went into effect July 1. If that does not get results, they are urged to call their KEA field representaitve.

By now, according to KEA, class-size adjustments should be complete and school officials should be taking steps to rectify any situations that do not meet the requirements of the law.

The law says that if class-size maximums cannot be met, districts must apply to the state superintendent of public instruction for exemptions. This application must state the reason why the class is above the maximum size and contain a specific plan for reducing the size the next year.

The State Board of Education has ruled that a district may not exempt any more classes than enroll 20% of the students in any given school.

Henrikson said KEA's position is that the state superintendent should not be lenient in granting exemptions.

Rice, it is believed, was introduced to America in 1647 by Sir William Berkeley, governor of Virginia. He directed that a half bushel of seeds be planted. The yield was 16 bushels.

WARM HEAT vs. COOL HEAT

GAS FURNACE

A 40° difference is why people feel more comfortable with natural gas than with a heat pump.

The difference between a natural gas furnace and a heat pump is the difference between feeling comfortable or uncomfortable at the same thermostat setting.

130° vs. 90°. A heat pump delivers air that's been warmed to only around 90°F. That's cooler than body temperature, so it actually feels cool.

But a gas furnace sends out a much warmer heat —around 130°F—so most people find it a lot more comfortable.

Single heating system. Along with the comfort comes savings. Because unlike a heat pump, a natural gas furnace does a full-time heating job, down to the coldest temperatures. It doesn't need a back-up system.

Less maintenance, longer life. You can also count on a natural gas furnace to maintain top efficiency, longer. It should need only minimum service. A heat pump's compressor may be warranted for only 5 years, while the heat exchanger of a high efficiency gas furnace is warranted up to 20 years.

Ask your heating contractor about the differences between a natural gas furnace and a heat pump. The 40° difference, the lifetime efficiency difference, and the warranty difference.

Warm heat vs. cool heat. All things considered, you'll be more comfortable with gas.

Kentucky's tourism and travel industry contributed nearly $2.3 billion to the state's economy last year, according to a study conducted by the Kentucky Tourism Cabinet.

Those expenditures generated more than $157 million in state and local tax revenues.

Tourism Secretary Wendell Combs said the recently published study confirms what the Collins administration has known all along: tourism is big business.

"Tourism is a vital, growing industry," Combs said. "We're working hard to develop the industry even further, and I'm optimistic we'll see the results of our efforts over the next several years."

The $2.3 billion figure represents both direct expenditures totaling $1.36 billion and indirect sales of $912.9 million.

Total expenditures climbed 5.1 percent during 1983 after two important factors are taken into account. They are the effects of inflation and of the large increase in 1982 expenditures resulting

Wildlife Refuge Promotes Nature, Reckoned Good for the Soul, Too

By CURTIS HUGHES

Many of you will have seen the sign—
"Shooting Range"—on KY 80 as you bypass Martin. The shooting range is on the Lafferty Memorial Wildlife Refuge, sponsored by the Eastern Kentucky Wildlife Federation.

A day camp will be held at the refuge each summer to teach young people from this area about wildlife conservation, gun safety and first aid. The shooting range enables Federation members to enjoy practice and competition in archery, pistol, rifle and shotgun.

A wildlife refuge is simply an area of undeveloped land where people and nature can meet. It is an outdoor classroom where natural history and conservation principles are taught. This has become increasingly important as industry and housing demand more space. Mankind has done wonders in advancing technology, compared with advancements in the conservation of nature's living systems.

People are concerned with things they know and understand; they tend to ignore what they don't understand. If people would spend a few hours a month in nature's classroom, the great outdoors, they would get to know the natural world.

They could smell the wildflowers, touch the rich earth, hear a mountain

The Tasty Green Apple

Are you an apple snob? Will you only eat a bright red apple that has been buffed to a reflective shine? Oh, you've graduated to yellows too? Well then, it's time to take the really big step—to green apples, not just for cooking, but for offthe-tree fresh eating too.

By Bonnie Lee Appleton

The grande dame of the green eating apples has found a comfortable spot in the grocery produce section amongst our old standbys like Red and Golden Delicious. I'm sure you've noticed that the quality of our old standards is often poor—usually mushy—when we have to settle for cold storage apples for off season apple eating. Not so with this super green lady.

By now you may recognize her name-Granny Smith. Catchy name, but it wasn't made up. Granny Smith was actually Mrs. Mary Ann (Granny) Smith, a lady who discovered the grassgreen apple with the white lenticels (dotlike breathing pores) on her acre of land near Sydney, Australia, in the 1840's.

Despite skeptics who predicted that Granny Smith would never suit the American consumer, in the past two decades this local novelty has become first a European top seller, and now an American top seller. Although still imported from Australia, and from other Southern Hemisphere countries such as New Zeland, South Africa, Chile and Argentina, many American growers, especially in Washington, Oregon and California, have added it to their

Can it be grown in Kentucky? Yes. Is it being grown in Kentucky? Yes, several orchards across Kentucky are now growing Granny.

Can you grow it in your yard? You bet, so watch for it as you get mail-order catalogs from such nurseries as Stark Bro's, Miller, Kelly Bros., Hilltop and Hastings. Trees are also being produced locally by such companies as Raintree Orchards and Nursery in Anchorage, Kentucky. This tree is bound to sell quickly, so place your order early for planting this fall or next spring.

Granny Smith has some unique characteristics. In Australia the fruits ripen in April and May, so in Kentucky they'll ripen from mid-October to mid-November. That puts Granny Smith last on the calendar of ripening. In this area that generally still permits enough time before damaging frosts.

Unlike most apples, Granny Smith is self-pollinating—it will set an abundant crop with its own pollen, although increased production will result with a pollinator. And it can serve as a pollinator for several other varieties.

Because Granny Smith's ripe color is green, or occasionally green with a pink

Fall Drawdown Slated

The annual fall drawdown of two lakes in Virginia began this week.

Monday (Oct. 1) the lowering of North Fork of Pound River Lake in Wise county, near the town of Pound, by 9.4 feet at a rate of about 15 feet per day was begun. It is expected the drawdown will be completed by December 1.

The next day John W. Flannagan in Dickenson county on Pound River, a tributary of the Big Sandy River, began its drawdown of 46 feet at a rate of about 1.5 feet per day to elevation 1350 feet to allow for the replacement of low flow

The lake level is expected to reach 1350 feet by November 1. After the valve replacement is complete, the pool will be raised to elevation 1380 as soon as flow conditions permit.

tint in northern areas, it does not have the problem of poor color due to low light. And its keeping ability in cold storage is excellent. If not used fresh it is recommended for cooking, baking (especially pies) and frying, and for cider, juice and wine. Its semi-tart, less acid, white to greenish white flesh is very flavorful.

The trees are resistant to cedar apple rust, a disease that is often very significant in Kentucky due to the abundance of red cedars that are alternate hosts for the disease. The trees are available in standard, semidwarf, dwarf and new compact spur (smaller than semidwarf but up to twice as much fruit on small stubby branches called spurs) form trees. It even doubles nicely as an ornamental or specimen tree in the landscape. So now when you think apples, think red, yellow and green.

Timely Tip: Get any fescue or bluegrass lawn renovation completed now while temperatures and moisture levels favor quick seed germination and establishment.

Safety Threat from Drugged Driver "Virtually Ignored," Digest Says

America's current campaign to make clude the drugged driver. Their efforts the nation's roadways safer by cracking down on drunk drivers, while unquestionably successful, is too narrowly focused. The problem of drugged driving, which poses just as much a threat to public safety, is virtually being ignored, Reader's Digest reports in its October issue.

'Today people are driving under the influence of drugs that are at least as intoxicating as alcohol," says Charles V. Welti, deputy chief medical examiner of Dade County, Fla. "As medical examiners, we see the dire results of drugged driving in dead bodiesincluding countless innocent people test he takes: breath, blood or urine.

"Since no drugs show up on an alcohol breath test, drugged drivers who've had little or no alcohol invariably opt for it,' writes The Digest's Peggy Mann, who has been alerting the public to the dangers of marijuana for years.

are also a potential source of trouble. Doctors sometimes forget to mention a drug's effects on driving, and may neglect to ask about other drugs a person is taking that can increase the driver-impairing effects of the new drug. Over-the-counter medication can cause driver impairment, too. Drugs such as antihistamines, cough suppressants, muscle relaxants and decongestants can cause drowsiness, dizziness, slowed reflexes and general disorientation.

Despite a growing body of knowledge about the hazards of drugs and driving, government agencies and citizen activist groups remain silent on the subject. This, writes Mann, could give a falsely reassuring message to drug users-too many of whom already believe it's safe to drive "high."

In keeping with its policy of helping to remedy the threat to public safety from drug abuse, The Digest recommends the following "decisive steps" to help combat the hazards of drugged driving:

The Six-Hour Day...

A Letter to Parents from Supt. McDonald

Dear Parent

Not long ago, the Louisville Courier-Journal ran a story about the coach of an outstanding American university. This coach had just booted one of his best players off the team because, he said, the player was not paying sufficient attention to his studies. The story went on to report that, from time to time, the coach pointedly reminds his team that the game will end on graduation day.

That coach has his priorities just right. Whether it is college, or elementary and high school, young people go to school to learn. They must learn to read, write, spell, do mathematics, to inform themselves about history, civics and science. They go to school to train their minds so that they can attend higher education or obtain a good job and one day be able to support themselves and their families.

It takes a certain amount of time to accomplish that training. The six-hour day has been Kentucky state law for 32 years, and most of Kentucky's school districts work hard to protect those hours for instructing the children.

Some districts, however, have permited a variety of extracurricular activities to cut down the time designated for teaching. Pep rallies, basketball practice, weeklong band trips, magic shows, money-raising events, and senior release programs have reduced the time spent on learning.

You, the taxpayers, support Kentucky's public schools to the tune of $1.5 billion a year. That money provides a full scholarship to every child to attend school six hours a day, 175 days a year, every year from the first through 12th grade.

This is your child's education, so these are very precious hours. If they are lost, your children will pay the price. They will pay it in lost opportunity, in skills not learned, in test scores that are not as good as they should have been, and ultimately, in earning power lost. Yet in some districts, the time for learning is frittered away, sometimes at the parents' urging.

Because state law calls for a six-hour school day, and because the State Board of Education feels so strongly about the importance of six hours of instruction every day, the state board has issued a new regulation to uphold the integrity of that learning time.

This regulation outlaws events and activities that are not related to instruction. Activities that can be conducted include:

PUBLIC NOTICE

An application for a place of entertainment license has been filed by Bobby Crum, of Tram, Ky. The nature of the business will be Corner Bar and Carry Out.

The County Attorney's Office is required to file a written report to the County Judge Executive's office reflecting if the person applying is "not of good moral character or who will not, in the judgment of the Court, (County Judge Executive) obey the laws of the state in the carrying on of the business".

Any interested citizen having information relative to said applicant's lack of "good moral character" or willingness to obey the laws of the state in the carrying on of the business is requested to file the same in writing, with the County Attorney's office. Said written information shall be signed, dated, and reflect the current address of said citizen, and must be delivered to the County Attorney's office no later than the 11th day of October, 1984.

ARNOLD TURNER, JR. Floyd County Attorney 1. The courses listed in "The Program of Studies for Kentucky Schools, Grades K-12"

2. Enrichment or experimental courses approved by the state board.

3. Co-curricular activities such as club meetings and assemblies, as long as they are directly related to the instructional program and are scheduled so as to minimize absence from class.

4. Homeroom in the morning and afternoon to check attendance for no longer than 20 minutes a day.

Under these criteria, a properly supervised study hall and physical education are both legitimate parts of the six-hour day. Practice for interscholastic sports is not, nor can it be made part of a physical education class.

Senior release programs are popular in many high schools. The State Board of Education has determined, however, that it does not have the authority to approve state payment for students who are not in attendance in class, even though they have been officially released from school.

Local schools are free to make the release if they choose; they just cannot expect state payment as if the students were in class all the time. This same concept, moreover, applies to other activities such as class trips that are popular, and perhaps even traditional, but that are not instructionally related.

Such decisions will be made in the local districts, just as they have always been made in the local districts. In deciding, local school boards will apply the criteria of reasonable behavior outlined in the state board's regulation.

That regulation takes into account factors such as frequency, duration of the activity and the number of students involved. For its part, the state board will use the same criteria in evaluating local decisions on these activities.

Readers concerned about school sports will be interested and reassured to know that the Kentucky High School Athletic Association has gone on record as being opposed to member schools conducting regular-season, district or regional play on instructional time.

The association reports that it tries to schedule events on non-school days, but that some events, such as golf and tennis, present problems because they require the use of non-school facilities.

The state board and the association will discuss this problem in depth in November. Meanwhile, the KHSAA deserves Kentucky's commendation for its efforts to protect our young athletes' time for learning.

In closing, let me say that many of the things we want for our childen and our schools cost money. Time costs money too, but it will not cost one cent more to use wisely the time we have already been given for the task of teaching and learning.

Six hours a day, 175 days a year, from the first through the 12th grade, is all the time our children have to prepare for the next great stage of their lives.

You, the parents, want the best for your children, for their sakes, educators ask your help in safeguarding their time for learning. Together, we will help our young people excel in their studies.

ALICE MCDONALD Supt. of Public Instruction

In addition to the musical entertainment, free camping is offered to those attending the festival. The festival grounds are within easy walking distance of other Apple Festival events.

This year, for the first time, a free shuttle service will be offered, with a shuttle bus running from the vicinity of the festial to downtown Paintsville at periodic intervals.

There will also be a Bluegrass Band Contest at 6:00 p.m., Friday, October 5, with the first place band receiving a $300.00 cash prize and the privilege of playing on Saturday night's show.

A new feature of the festival will be a "Parking Lot Pickin" contest. Judges will determine the best "Parking Lot" band at midnight on Saturday night. For those who have never been to a bluegrass festival, parking picking is the music which is played by the campers and people who come to the festival. These amateur musicians are often some of the best in the country.

State Board Probes Pike School System

By MARY ANN ROSER

(In The Lexington Herald Leader) Serious management problems in the Pike County school system—including misspending of student activity funds, use of improperly certified teachers and overcrowded classes-are under scrutiny by the state school board.

In an unusual move, the Kentucky Board of Education ordered a complete financial audit of the school system earlier this month. The audit is in addition to a routine one that is being performed for the local board by an accoun-

'The state doesn't do a complete audit unless there are serious problems," said Robert Elder, assistant director of the state division of accreditation. State auditors were in Pike County this week, and findings will be released to the state board in November, he said.

Problems over the destination of funds from the student activity account, which is used to pay for club activities, athletics, books and other student activities, came to light in May when state officials did a preliminary accreditation review of the Pike county school district,

The accreditation team found that the school system was using some of the money to pay salaries of staff and to contract labor. It also reported that school officials had used improper bidding and purchasing procedures.

The activity account comes mainly from student fund-raising efforts, including athletic-ticket sales and concession sales, said Robert Spillman, associate superintendent for local services with the Kentucky Department of Education.

"It's not unusual for $100,000 to pass through one of those accounts in a given year," he said.

In addition to the misappropriation of funds in that account, the preliminary accreditation report given to the state board Sept. 12 turned up 14 other problem areas. Among the findings:

• Thirty-three leaders were not certified for the grade level or positions to which they were assigned.

• About 305 classes were being taught by teachers "out-of-field." That means they were teaching subjects outside the major or minor fields of study.

· Eight high schools in the system did not meet course level requirements.

· Basketball practice, fund-raising activities and ball games were conducted during the school day, which is not

• Some Headstart and kindergarten students were counted twice to increase the amount of state attendance funding.

August Unemployment Lowest in 34 Months

Kentucky's unemployment rate dropped in August to its lowest level in 34 months, according to Cabinet for Human Resources figures released

The rate fell 1.1 percent, from a revised 9.8 percent in July to a preliminary 8.7 percent in August. "This is the lowest state rate since October 1981, when it was 7.0 percent," said state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell. He attributed the decline to seasonal factors.

The comparable national rate for August was 7.3 percent, down from 7.5 percent in July.

An estimated 149,500 Kentuckians were unemployed in August, the lowest number since October 1981, when 118,400 were out of work. The figure is 19,600 below the July estimate of 168,700. In August 1983, 183,100 Kentuckians were jobless, and the unemployment rate was 10.8 percent.

Meanwhile, total employment rose 12,600 in August to 1,578,000. Major employment gains were recorded in agriculture (9,600, as the tobacco harvest season was under way, Blackwell said. Other gains were in trade (2,300), state and local education (1,500), bituminous coal mining (1,300) and services (1,000).

"Manufacturing employment decreased 1,600, mainly as a result of a decrease of 700 jobs in food and kindred products and a loss of 500 jobs in the paper, printing and publishing cate-Blackwell said.

The civilian labor force decreased from 1,734,500 in July to 1,727,500 in August. "Part of the decline can be attributed to students dropping out of the labor force to return to school," Blackwell said. The civilian labor force includes non-military persons who are working and unemployed people who actively are seeking jobs.

After hearing the preliminary report, the state board ordered the audit and directed the school system to correct immediately all statutory violations.

The board also said it would do a full accreditation review of the school system during the 1985-86 school year to give Superintendent Charles Wright time to correct problems.

Wright was hired as superintendent in July. He had been an instructional supervisor. The board did not renew the contract of 11-year superintendent James Dotson, and he retired at 62.

Spillman said Thursday that Wright was cooperating with state officials, and 'he's trying to correct some things."

In March, the Pike county school system was the target of a grand jury probe into numerous complaints from residents about mismanagement and wrongful spending practices.

PLACES IN THE HEART, (PG-Tri-Star Films) Starring Sally Field, Lindsay Crouse and Ed Harris. * *

By J.T. YURKO

Lesson No. 1 in any creative writing class is "Write what you know about." Director Robert Benton has taken to heart this advice with his new film "Places in the Heart." The story is set in Benton's own home town of Waxahachie, Texas, and tells the tale of a family similar to that of his own

Following the enormous success of "Kramer vs. Kramer Benton penned and directed "Still of the Night," a title that aptly described the film's activ-ity at the box office, despite Meryl Streep and Roy Scheider as headliners. So the need for Benton to return to familiar ground brought him back to his birthplace.

Set in Depression-era Texas "Places in the Heart" is a warm tribute to the people of those times: how they strug-gled to make ends meet, how they kept their families together in spite of innumerable hardships.

Sally Field stars in a role reminiscent of "Norma Rae, that of a single mother trying to fight the odds. Still, the fact that the role is similar doesn't make this performance any less powerful. Miss Field plays woman without Norma Rae's fieriness, but with just as much quiet grit.

Her character is no Ma Joad, but this film is no "Grapes of Wrath" either. Even though the film takes place in the 1930s, there's no gritty realism, no dust-bowl silhouettes. "Places in the Heart" is drawn more from Benton's own nostalgic recollections town histaligic recollections than from documentary newsreels. Nestor Almendros's almost-too-pretty cinematography is a crisp and colorful as a Kodak snapshot, and one wood on it black and and one wonders if black-andwhite film was ever considered. Benton has come home again, and his warmth for family and heritage readily comes across on the screen.

Orwell feted on A&E

By Amanda Bruce

To students of literature, the year 1984 has always conjured up images of totalitarianism. George Orwell's masterful book was so frightening in its depiction of a world controlled by Big Brother that the year is popularly seen as a metaphor for oppression. As this year nears its end, the Arts & Entertainment Network commemorates the book and its author. October is "Orwell Month" on the channel, with six programs scheduled to honor the novelist. The month begins with "Orwell on Jura: The Crystal Spirit," premiering Oct. 9 and repeating Oct. 10, 21 and 22. The 90-minute BBC production details the last three years of Orwell's life, which he spent writing "1984" on the island of Jura, off Scotland's coast.

The tall, lanky and gravelly voiced actor Ronald Pickup plays Orwell as a Pickup plays Orwell as a reticent, confident man. His dedication to his work is awesome as he forges onward to complete the novel despite his suffering from tuberculosis. For three years he lived in spartan surroundings on the remote island writing his dark novel and talking about "the pursuit of truth." It doesn't sound like the stuff of exciting movies, but "Orwell on Jura" grows on you. It's a quiet, deliberate film that hooks the viewer with the strength of its central character. We care about Orwell even as he remains aloof from the people who love him, such as his sister. We want to see how he copes after the death of his wife; how he raises his son after expressing an interest in fatherhood; how he feels about his soon-to-befamous novel.

The scenery is lovely The movie was filmed on the farm Orwell actually lived on in Jura. Many of the scenes are shot in soft amber lighting or a hazy fogginess, which adds to the stillness of the drama.

The channel is also run The channel is also running a five-part biography of Orwell that begins this week, on Oct. 10, with "Such, Such Were the Joys." Four other shows are scheduled: "The Road to Wigan Pier" airing Oct. 17; "Homage to Catalonia" airing Oct. 24; "The Lion and the Unicorn" airing Oct. 31: and "1984" ing Oct. 31; and "1984" on November 7.
