City Feels Loss Of Produce Firm

KENTUCKY 41653

The Brown Produce Company ended 43 years in Prestonsburg last week-end, moving to larger quarters near Louisa, and not only was one of the city's major employers gone but five empty or unused buildings were left behind.

The "aching void" left here became more painful as the move deprived the city treasury of between $15,000 and $20,000 in occupational taxes and other revenues.

The bulk of goods and equipment worth an estimated $750,000 was moved last week in a round-the-clock operation to the building outside Louisa which was formerly occupied by the Louisa Carpet Mill. Brown's quarters there have a floor area of 100,000 square feetroughly three times the space used here. The change to Lawrence county came a little more than a year after repair and renovation of the carpet mill building were begun. Cost of the work was placed at that time at $2.3 million. The carpet company building, a prefabricated steel structure, has 225,000 square feet of floor space in all and is located on a 28-acre site with a 100-vehicle parking area.

Of the 65 persons employed by Brown Produce here, only a few are going to Louisa, John F. Brown, vice-president of the company, said. "A lot of our people have known of our plans to move for some time," he said, "and have been going to other jobs. To replace them, we've been picking up people from Lawrence and Johnson counties who have a shorter distance to travel.

The move mainly affects delivery and warehouse employees. Management and sales force will continue to reside here.

Left vacant here are the company's main office building, the former J.H. Nunnery building, one on Graham street, one on Third, adjacent to Wholesale Appliance, and a South Arnold Avenue building holding refrigeration units.

The city's loss in occupational tax returns alone will approximate $12,000 a year, City Treasurer Brenda Hayes said. Added to this will be the loss in license fees, the $150-a-year unloading license charged each company delivering foodstuffs and other orders at the

The Brown Produce Co., largest of its kind in the area, was founded in 1941 by George D. Brown, and is now owned and operated by his sons, George C., Lloyd and John F. Brown. Beginning with a single truck and dealing mainly in chickens, eggs and roots, the company's 14 delivery trucks now range all over eastern Kentucky and parts of Ohio, West Virginia and Virginia.

JACK O'LANTERNS, some grinning, some scowling, and some, like this one, looking a little like Carmen Miranda bedecked with the fruits of harvest, were common throughout the county over the past week.

Next Steps in Probe Set for Discussion At Meet Here Friday

A lengthy investigation by state police into the financial practices of an earlier Floyd county administration may finally be coming to a head.

State and local officials, scheduled to meet this Friday, are expected to decide on the procedure to be followed in presenting the findings of the 18-month probe

The investigation has apparently focussed on 1982 spending practices of Floyd fiscal court. It was launched at the request of County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. after officials of the state Local Finance office issued a report charging numerous irregularities in the way the county administration had been doing business.

The state took over complete control of county finances in April, 1983.

Scheduled to meet Friday with two special prosecutors from the state attorney-general's office are Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen, and County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. One of the attorney-general's representatives, Barbara Whaley, has reportedly been assigned to prosecute the case here.

Commonwealth's Attorney Allen said this week he did not expect the meeting to discuss the findings of the police

Dismissal of Charge Against Woman Near

Theft charges against a former bookkeeper in the Floyd Circuit Court clerk's office will apparently be dropped, but prosecution and defense attorneys both predicted this week that the case of money missing from the office since 1981 is far from over role allegedly played in it by the state auditor's office. "It was prosecuted with a lot more zeal than was necessarythey were determined to show she was the only one who could have taken the money-and this is not even the function of the auditor's office," Damron said.

A four-count indictment handed down in May last year by a circuit court grand jury charged Delores Jean Calhoun, of the Lancer-Water Gap road, with failing to account for $21,915 for which she was responsible between Dec. 1, 1979 and June 30, 1981

The charges against Mrs. Calhoun stemmed from an audit of the circuit court clerk's office begun in 1981 and reported last summer, when Dr. James B. Graham was state Auditor of Public Accounts. It covered a period when, as bookkeeper, Mrs. Calhoun was responsible for monies paid into the district and circuit courts and the driver licensing office here. On four occasions in 1980 and 1981, the audit revealed, sums received in the circuit clerk's office were never deposited in the bank. The diversions were concealed for a time by a "rollover" process, by which cash skimmed off one day was replaced by funds taken in on a subsequent day, the auditor said.

This Town...That World

NO CELEBRATION, PLEASE Sometime in the Hallowe'en-Election Day season my birthday rolls inexorably in, even as the tide, not to mention time. The dates for the witches and goblins and the voters to do their stuff vary from year to year, but this date I have with time stands pat, however much I would like to delay it.

Which birthday is it? Never mind. Just say it's venerable enough to be honored, though I wonder by when Time was when you could get by with lying about your age, but there are too many records extant on me-school, draft, social security, insurance, etcetera, etcetera-for me to dally with the cold, unvarnished, discouraging truth.

Let's just say I am too old to celebrate

White House to Bear Hollow... These and More on Ballot Voters To Study Tuesday

Who will be the next President of the United States and what shall we do about transferring the Bear Hollow section of Floyd county to neighboring Johnson county?-these are among the wide-ranging and widely divergent issues to be considered by Floyd couny voters when they get inside the voting booth next Tuesday.

As the voting date approaches, the political scene in this predominantly Democratic county was quiet. Statewide, interest centered on the efforts of the Reagan-Bush ticket to win the state over Democrats Mondale and Ferraro in the presidential race. The race for (American Party), Gus Hall and Angela Davis (Communist Party), Sonia Johnson and Richard Walton (Citizens Party)

For U.S. Representative in Congress Carl C. Perkins is the Democratic candidate to succeed his late father, Congressman Carl D. Perkins, in the Seventh district House seat. He is oppos-ed by Aubrey "Jack" Russell, Republican.

Gregory D. Stumbo, Democratic incumbent, is unopposed for state representative from the 95th district, all of which lies in this county, but Jim Rose, Democrat, is opposed by Christopher C. Slone, Independent, for representative from the 92nd district. The district includes all of Knott county, 11 precincts in Floyd and six precincts in Letcher county.

probe but only to set up a procedure by which those findings would be presented. The question of whether the evidence will be put to a regular session of the Floyd Circuit Court grand jury, a special session of the same jury, or a specially-appointed jury has yet to be decided, he said.

Areas reportedly looked into by the state police's special investigations unit include the fiscal court's purchase of insurance, appliances and janitorial supplies.

Defense Granted Look at Findings Thru Shot Tests

The responsibility of expert witnesses to cooperate as fully with defense attorneys as with prosecutors was argued in Floyd Circuit Court Tuesday, when the attorney representing a woman implicated in a 1983 shooting death asked the judge to order a state forensic anthropologist to turn over reports of experiments he conducted for the prosecution

Michael Fleet Johnson, Pikeville attorney representing Linda June Wilson, said he had difficulty obtaining reports of experiments conducted by Dr. David Wolfe at Mrs. Wilson's home and later in the district courtroom here. The experiments attempted to reconstruct the shooting in an effort to buttress the prosecution version of events leading to the death last May 29 of Larry Wilson.

Tennessee Firm Sues Local Radio Station

Prestonsburg radio station WDOC wrongfully obtained its services and has refused to pay for them, a Tennessee firm claims in a suit filed Friday in Floyd Circuit Court.

Attorneys for Broadcast Technical Service, of Blountville, Tenn., say WDOC manager Gormon Collins hired

Special Judge Stephen N. Frazier is expected to dismiss the charges this week as the result of a polygraph test given to Mrs. Calhoun in Chicago last Wednesday, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen confirmed Monday. The lie-detector test indicated the defendant was telling the truth when she denied either taking the missing money or benefitting from it, he said.

Phillip D. Damron, Mrs. Calhoun's attorney, hailed the decision to drop the charges as a victory for justice. "I have felt from the time I took her case that this lady is innocent," he said.

The defense attorney had harsh words for the prosecution and especially for the my birthday. I maintain that this word, 'celebrate," is sadly abused when it pertains to the natal date of anybody past age 60. "Celebrate" connotes a party, silly headpieces, games, hi-jinks, squeals, whoops of joy, much giggling. Lord, spare me a real celebration! Why not use the word "observe" instead of "celebrate"? I can observeeven as through a glass darkly-with a minimum of effort, disturb nobody in doing so, be kind to my blood pressure and look no sillier than usual

The truth is, I haven't "celebrated" a birthday since the time when they had to hook up the electric fan to help me blow out all those candles.

The vote is likely to be heavy in Educational Division 4 because the incumbent board member, Dr. Mary Hall, is opposed there by Henry "Doug" Bailey. The incumbents in Districts 3 and 5. Fred Newsome and James Arville Duff, are unopposed.

The price agreed on, according to Broadcast Technical Service, was $23,500-one third to be paid when the application was completed, the balance due when the FCC issued a construction permit.

The Tennessee firm says it completed the application in January-it calls for a switch in frequency from 1310 KHZ to 600 KHZ-and billed the radio station for $7833 on Feb. 6 but that Collins has refused to pay it.

Group Formed To Offer Alternatives to Abortion

"Words come cheap. It's not enough just to say there are alternatives. We want to give them alternatives."

The speaker is Gail Curry. She is talking about alternatives to abortion. And about the birth of an organization called, appropriately enough, Alternatives, Inc

The idea was conceived as the result of a chance encounter between the Currys-she is principal of a small Christian school here, her husband is safety director at a Martin county mine and pastor of a Prestonsburg churchand Arnold Turner, Jr., who is Floyd county attorney but involved in this venture as a private citizen and believer.

"We wanted to see an end put to the holocaust of babies in America," Mrs. Curry said last week in an interview in her office at the Prestonsburg Christian Academy. "We want to get across that abortion is not the answer to a mistake."

The answer for a pregnant woman with questions about whether she can carry her fetus to term, according to Mrs. Curry, is support-moral, psychological, and financial. The organizers of Alternatives, Inc. hope their support will convince the woman she can bear her baby but, even if she decides to have an abortion, she won't be abandoned, Mrs. Curry said.

"I don't believe we could say to her, 'Go ahead. It's okay if you have an abortion. It's your decision.' It goes against God's word-that's my personal feeling. But if she decides to go ahead, we want to be there, to love her, to stand by her."

One of the reasons she and her husband helped organize the group, Mrs. Curry said, is to counsel women who have already had an abortion and, perhaps years later, are trying to deal with the emotional consequences. Their counseling experience-Curry is pastor of the evangelical Rock of Revelation Church here as well as safety director for Pontiki Coal Corp.-suggests that women can run into problems later if they go into an abortion ill-advised and misinformed, Mrs. Curry said.

One source of misinformation, she charges, are the so-called "birth control" clinics which list their services in the phone book. "The majority get to feel (abortion) is the easy way out of a mistake. They're told it's just a blob, not really living. They don't have enough knowledge about abortion. They're not told about the psychological difficulties that can arise.

'Even in our small town there are girls who have had more than one abortion," Mrs. Curry added. "For them it's a form of birth control." Alternatives, Inc. can show them a better way, she believes

One thing the group would like to provide some day is a home for unwed mothers. But already, Mrs. Curry said, there are families here and elsewhere willing to shelter a pregnant woman until her baby is born. The group will see she gets information, counseling and medical care-starting with a free pregnancy test-and any financial help she needs, Mrs. Curry said.

Counseling will extend to families, too. "A pregnancy can be a traumatic experience for the whole family," she said. 'That's where the girl really needs support, but many families only think of the embarrassment.'

A public meeting to drum up support for the organization has been scheduled for this Friday, Nov. 2, at the First Baptist Church at Allen. The meeting, which begins at 7 p.m., will be addressed by Jim Savely, a minister with the Save the Babies Foundation.

That is an offshoot of the Rev. Jerry Falwell ministry, a fact that does not bother Mrs. Curry but which she concedes may concern some. Five years ago, Falwell founded Moral Majority, now reckoned to be a significant power on the political right.

The Falwell input will be strictly informational, she insisted, adding, "They are not running the organization. They offered to help us set things up here but we want this to be our own ministry.'

Indeed, for a committed "pro-life" advocate, Mrs. Curry admits to some questions of her own when it comes down to the classic "hard cases" of abortion ethics-where a pregnancy is the result of rape or incest, where a seriously deformed baby is anticipated, or where the life of the mother is at risk

"I'm not saying I would never say (an abortion is justified). I'm not that narrowminded. I'm a woman, I have children," said Mrs. Curry, the mother of four daughters, aged seven through

Training Session Here Preps For Nov. 15 Forum on Education

LISTENING INTENTLY to a team of professional consultants, who were at Prestonsburg Community College last week to train leaders for statewide meetings on the future of Kentucky schools, were Myra Salisbury, left, and Barbara Gullett, both of Wheelwright. Mrs. Gullett has been named facilitator for a "town meeting" to be held Nov. 15 at Allen Central High School, one of dozens of meetings scheduled across Kentucky that night as part of a campaign to promote grassroots discussion on the state of the schools. The meetings are being sponsored by the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence.

If organization makes a difference, look for smooth operations when people across the state gather next month for grassroots meetings on the state of the public schools.

About 30 people from a dozen counties were put through their paces at a training session held at Prestonsburg Community College last week for those selected to run the town meetings scheduled Nov. 15 in as many as 174 of Kentucky's 180 school districts.

Barbara Gullett, of Wheelwright, was there-she will be facilitator at the Floyd county forum to be held at Allen Central High School-as were her counterparts from counties as far distant as Boyd. In one of six workshops being conducted around the state, they received tips from professional consultants on how to hande everything from fuzzy acoustics to fireband orators. The town meetings are the brainchild of the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence. Named for its chairman, Lexington attorney Edward F. Prichard, the 75-member panel completed a highly-regarded study of the state's colleges and universities before turning its attention last year to the secondary schools. Like the classic New England town meeting, the committeesponsored forums will be designed to give as many people as possible a chance to say their piece, said Steve Kay, one of the consultants who conducted last Wednesday's training session here

Unlike the traditional town meeting, however, the Nov. 15 forums are aimed not at making decisions so much as simply getting people talking to one strictly non-partisan. Local school officials will be welcome, Kay told participants at last week's workshop, but "they will be there as citizens, like everyone else.

Participants will be invited to rank in importance the things they would like to see happening in the schools. The information gathered here and in other meetings across the state will be summarized later in a published report.

Sponsors hope local organizations will be formed to carry on the process begun in the Nov. 15 meetings. A second series of meetings is anticipated statewide sometime in 1985.

Kentucky Fishing Report

Council Revokes Cable System's Rate Hike

A television service rate increase imposed on Prestonsburg motel proprieters earlier this month by Cablentertainment, Inc. was judged out of line last week by Prestonsburg City Council members who voted to declare the rates invalid and demanded of the cable system refunds to businesses that had already paid the new fees.

The rate hike, revealed to the council through the complaints of local motel operators and constituting the latest in a long series of conflicts with the cable system, was discussed at the council's regular meeting of October 22 and it was then that disgruntled council members called for a special meeting with Cablentertainment officials the following Wednesday.

Council members came to the meeting angry that, among other things, a rate change had been affected by the cable company without first being approved by the city, a condition which, the council claims, is clearly outlined in Cablentertainment's franchise

Motel owners were miffed as well since Cablentertainment, allegedly without forewarning, levied a $3.00 per in-room set fee and asked for a month's payment in advance. Previously, motels paid only $.99 per set or only the $9.00 monthly rate required of households. For some, such as Jack Sizemore, owner of the Blue Sky Motel, the hike meant he would pay $60 more a month than before.

Sizemore said he learned of the new policy when some of his customers came to him one day a couple of weeks ago complaining that their tv's were not working. "The picture was just gone," commented Sizemore, who also said some of his guests moved out to another motel because of the loss of reception. Cablentertainment reconnected the lines later that day, said Sizemore, "but they said it would cost $3.00 a set and asked for a month's advance pay.'

Cablentertainment executive Bill Randall said the Blue Sky was disconnected in error explaining that a certain amount of confusion had accompanied an audit which is currently being carried out in preparation for sale of the franchise to another cable system. (The transaction is expected to be carried out during the week, according to City Manager David Evans.)

Randall, accompanied by local Cablentertainment official Dave Barton and several other system employees, assumed a more aggressive defense of the company's policies than in previous meetings. "In today's world," he said, "ninety-nine cents is really not a realistic motel rate." He said that figure was established by the previous system, Flannery & Dingus, before Cablentertainment took over early in 1982. they only provided five channels which they didn't have to pay for," he added. Randall pointed to the numerous channels now offered and stressed that most of them are from satellites and, consequently, "we are charged." Referring to the motel room televisions, he said, "these are also clearly business-related sets and we felt it was unfair for commercial subscribers to be subsidized by residential subscribers, and, at $.99 a set, that's what was happening. Council members did not specifically disagree with the amount of the rate increases but rather the manner in which they were levied. Councilman Paul Hunt Thompson, who pointed to a franchise agreement clause which, he said, "clearly requires the cable operator to submit any rate increase for approval from the council," chastised Cablentertainment for an alleged consistent lack of cooperation with the city saying, "Why didn't you come before us and talk about what you were going to do? We're not unreasonable." And, Councilman Bill R. Collins asked, "Why is it you've had the franchise since 1982 and just now, when you're getting ready to sell, you decide to raise rates?"

Randall told the council that "this is an extremely difficult community to work in," explaining that the system has found it necessary to police accounts since the company's audit has revealed "widespread theft." According to Randall, "there are at least 100 accounts in this community who aren't paying their bills and we aren't through with the audit yet." He said the system had "cleaned up" illegal tv cable connections "only to go back two days later and find them reconnected."

"This is theft of services," Randall said.

Referring to the impending sale of the system, Randall commented, 'We're only trying to hold it together and provide good service...and we're trying to bring illegal subscribers in line.

Councilman Thompson, who made the motion to nullify the rate increase, said he felt no reluctance in forcing Cablentertainment to roll back rates and make necessary refunds since the company never gave the council the chance to approve the higher rates. 'We would have tried to work with you all rather than you just arbitrarily establishing a rate increase," he said. 'What's to stop you from going and charging residences the same as commercial? We need to make a clear distinction.

City Manager Evans said this week he expects representatives of the new cable system to appear before council at the next regular meeting.

another about educational issues.

The town meetings will open at 7:30 p.m., in time to catch an introductory program on Kentucky Educational Television including Gov. Martha Layne Collins and Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald. It seems likely they could form the basis for legislative action in the 1986 General Assembly aimed at reforming the state's schools. But the only immediate goal, Kay stressed to the facilitators here last week, is that ordinary people be given a chance to answer the question, "What should our public schools be doing?

AN OPEN LETTER TO THE VOTERS IN EDUCATIONAL DIVISION #4

A Board Member's job is similar to mine as a physician. We examine problems, seek their solutions and treat them accordingly. Like every school system in the nation we have problems. Therefore, it is very important to have someone with experience to continue our battle to improve our schools by alleviating these problems as they occur. I have that experience!

My opponent has not presented a platform. Instead, he has constantly been critical of our school facilities, our school employees and teachers, and most importantly our students' achievements. But why should he hesitate to criticize our school system? His children don't attend our public schools. They attend the Private School in Martin.

My achievements during the past years are many, as previously listed. There are many more needed and these include two new high schools at McDowell and Wheelwright.

In addition to the general public, there are many school employees supporting my campaign. I have earned their respect, not by just helping to provide jobs, but also by caring about them and their famililes. I have been "campaigning" for several years by making friends and trying to improve family lives-in health, with jobs, and with an improved school environment for their children and grandchildren. I will continue to do this in the future. REMEMBER, as long as I am your Board Member no political faction, no county or state official will ever be in control of our educational division. Unlike my opponent, I have no political obligations and have only one faction to consider-Our Children. As an experienced member of the Kentucky School Boards Association, I ask you to help me continue to improve our school system. Experience is of the utmost importance at this time and it is up to you voters in Educational Division #4 to vote for our most precious asset—our children—the future of our nation. Sincerely, Dr. Mary Hall School Board Member Educational Division No. 4

Eastern Kentucky Coal Also Needs a Break

The Tennessee-Tombigbee waterway, which drew the ire of environmentalists and other taxpayers, has been built, nevertheless, and now promises, according to Governor Collins, the opportunity for much development for the western Kentucky area as well as for sections of other states to the south that are near it.

One beneficiary will be west Kentucky coal. The cost of shipping coal from that field, it is said, will be reduced by $3.89 per ton from the $7 paid for rail line shipment.

That is great for west Kentucky coal. But what of coal mined in eastern Kentucky, at the other end of the state?

The federal government spent a reported $2 billion on the Tennessee-Tombigbee, but now the Corps of Engineers is unwilling to spend a comparatively paltry $5 million on the locks and dams that would again make the Kentucky River navigable and a means of transporting coal to market.

Both the Big Sandy and the Kentucky river valleys deserve cheaper transportation of coal by river barge. And the federal government, which has permitted locks and dams on both rivers to deteriorate and become of no practical use, should now pay the bill for getting them in shape on both these rivers.

The state of Kentucky has agreed to maintain and operate the Kentucky river locks and dams if they are repaired. It should do no less for those on the Big Sandy. If the billions spent on the Tombigbee project, plus the cost of upkeep, can be justified by industrial development along the canal and cheaper coal transportation, surely a few millions spent on two rivers in this eastern corner of the state is not unreasonable.

The Hidden Pollution

Almost as frightening as the possibility that the day will come when there will be no water at all is the prediction that soon the underground water supply in all parts of Kentucky will be contaminated.

This look into the future reads like a page from the Doomsday Book. It means that the widely accepted theory of "out of sight, out of mind" is tragically fallacious. The knowledge that we have of surface water pollution shrinks in importance beside the fact that all those subterranean waters from which drinking water comes will be dangerous, even fatal, to those who drink it.

One wonders. Could the contamination extend to other growing things which draw from this new cesspool lying deep below the surface? And could every spring fed from such underground waters in turn pollute the larger bodies of water which they feed?

Perhaps these are questions better left to the scientific community to answer. Yet one overriding question remains: What

Commonwealth's Attorney Allen said state Auditor Mary Ann Tobin agreed last week to send a new team of auditors to make a complete investigation of the circuit clerk's books. "It's a complicated situation and I don't think it's over by any means," he said. "Based on the polygraph, we don't believe Delores Calhoun did it but we're not ruling out she may have been involved in some way."

Mrs. Calhoun is believed to have been questioned by the polygraph examiner also on what she knew about where the missing money went, but her attorney said she agreed to take the polygraph test only on condition that the examiner report to the court only on the crimes of which she was accused.

Damron said he had also advised his client not to comment on the case at this time. "She has been through quite an ordeal," he noted, adding that she has also been the target of "a lot of threats to physically injure her."

The defense attorney said there should be a thorough investigation of the alleged irregularities in the clerk's office but that the probe should extend also to the auditors themselves. "What you might find is that a simple case of embezzlement isn't so simple," Damron suggested. "What you might find is conspiracy, obstruction of justice, embezzlement, perjury, terroristic threatening, and maybe a lot more things we don't even suspect yet."

He also said his client had grounds for a wrongful prosecution action but that no decision had yet been made about filing such a complaint.

Both Commonwealth's Attorney Allen and Blake Meadows, the investigator from the state auditor's office who prepared the case against Mrs. Calhoun, defended their handling of the case, Meadows saying he sees "no reason at all" to change his original conclusion that Mrs. Calhoun was responsible for the missing money.

Nor did he see that anything was to be gained by investigating the clerk's office further, said Meadows. "We issued a report. The report was accurate. It contains our belief as to what happened," he said, adding, "There was no bias on our part. We were assigned a job to do and we did it the best we could."

Circuit Court Clerk Frank DeRossett said his "books are open to any auditors, state or private, at any time." He emphasized that he had never accused Mrs. Calhoun of any crime and had on several occasions "begged" her, unsuccessfully, to discuss with him the accounting discrepancies turned up by the audit.

Before her examination in Chicago last week, the former bookkeeper had been twice scheduled to take a liedetector test conducted by a Kentucky State Police examiner in Ashland. She failed to keep the first appointment and, on the second, was reportedly so agitated the test proved inconclusive.

The third test was administered by Leonard Harrelson, of the Keeler Institute—the organization that developed the polygraph test, is still regarded as a leader in the field, and (Continued from Page One)

17. "It's easy to stand up and say you're pro-life. But to really look at a (particular) case... I'd need to do some thinking."

But she insists the "hard cases" represent only a tiny fraction of abortions done in this country—which totalled 1.5 million in 1983, according to Alternatives' figures. The vast majority, she claims, are "abortions of convenience." Funding for Alternatives, Inc. has come so far from the pockets of its organizers. But the Rev. Ralph Beiting, Catholic pastor here and board chairman of a funding agency called the Christian Appalachian Project, is reportedly hoping to tap that organization for grant money. And organizers hope Friday's meeting will generate public support for the venture.

Legal assistance for a woman wanting to give up a child for adoption is one service he sees Alternatives, Inc. providing, said attorney Turner. And the adoption alternative is one that the Rev. Timothy Jessen, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church, also cited as one that should be made easier for young, unwed mothers.

"There is a pretty strong tradition in this area that (a baby born out of wedlock) be raised by the family, so adoption is an alternative not widely considered here," Jessen said. "A teenage girl needs a lot of help if she chooses to sign her baby away. It's a pretty awesome thing."

Regardless of how she chooses to deal with the situation, "a girl with a socalled problem pregnancy is likely to be frightened, anxious, guilty and fearful," the pastor said. "She needs someone to talk to and unload her feelings."

Jessen tried unsuccessfully several years ago to organize a Floyd chapter of Right to Life, but found little interest here in that organization's almost exclusive focus on legislation. He and other organizers of Alternatives, Inc. are banking on wider public support for an initiative that demands no political activism but offers a concrete opportunity to help.

HOSTESS TO D.A.R.

Members of John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolutiuon, were entertained on the day of their regular meeting, Oct. 13, with a pot-luck luncheon at the home of Mrs. Olga Preston, at Border's Chapel, Ulysses, Kentucky. Mrs. Preston's daughter-inlaw, Mrs. Mary Preston, gave the devotional, and her daughter, Mrs. Frances Brackett, Regent, welcomed the guests and members. The ritualistic service was conducted by Mrs. Margaret Alley, chaplain-protem.

The President General's message was read by Mrs. Margaret Collins. From this message, members were reminded that October 11 marked the 94th birthday of this society, and was the result of the foresight, energy, and iniative of their founders.

The National Defense program was presented by Mrs. James B. Goble.

The regent, Mrs. James B. Goble. The regent, Mrs. Brackett, said that the Kentucky Soceity, NSDAR, invites members to attend the State Board of Management meeting, at the Springs Motel, Lexington, Nov. 2. Mrs. Brackett added that a meeting of this organization's executive board would be held at the same location, on November 1. The Regent thanked all members who helped with the D.A.R. display for the recent Jenny Wiley Festival, and she added a special thanks to Mrs. Sally Goebel, of the Ben Franklin Store, for use of the store's window for this purpose.

is to be done?

Whatever the action that is to be taken to head off what could be a catastrophic situation must be taken soon. Once these underground waters are polluted, they can't be purified; they cannot be filtered and chemically treated as in the case of surface waters. Whatever is done to this water supply is irreparable, or nearly so.

The only way out of this mess is to stop creating more of a mess. The chemicals, the sewage and all the other man-made contaminants must be disposed of by some means other than committing them, like a dead something, to the soil to seep down and return again in the form of pestilence.

shooting of Wilson at the Buck's Branch home of Linda Wilson, the victim's exwife. Mrs. Wilson has been charged as an accomplice. The two are scheduled to stand trial Jan. 7.

In preparation for the trial, which was last scheduled for Dec. 28, 1983 but postponed on account of ice-slick roads, the prosecution had reconstructed the death scene in a section of the district courtroom here. A shot was fired at a mock human skull and the resulting distribution of blood compared with that noted at the time of Wilson's death. A similar experiment was also conducted earlier in the kitchen of Mrs. Wilson's home.

Johnson said he had tried unsuccessfully to get reports of the experiments, including a videotape of the second experiment, and asked the court to assist him in his efforts.

In support of his request, he called to the witness stand Dan Jack Combs, the attorney who represented Frasure and Mrs. Wilson before his elevation in January to the state Court of Appeals. Combs said he had never received reports of the experiments, which he claimed yielded results quite different from those noted at the death scene.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said he had no objection to the defense receiving reports of the experiments, which he insisted supported the prosecution case. But he had accidentally erased the videotape of the second experiment and Wolfe told him he had made no written report of either experiment, the prosecutor said.

Circuit Judge Hollie Conley agreed to order Wolfe to furnish the defense with any written reports he planned to give the Commonwealth and otherwise to make himself available to be interviewed by defense attorneys.

New Trial Sought After Story Change

A Hi Hat man sentenced last year to a 20-year term in the state penitentiary on rape and other charges has filed a motion for a new trial on grounds that one of his alleged victims has changed her story.

James Mullins pleaded guilty in Floyd Circuit Court in June, 1983 to charges that he assaulted and raped two women at Price the previous March.

According to an affidavit filed with his motion for a new trial, one of the women, Laudy Huff, now says her original allegation was false. Moreover, says Mullins, he has reason to believe the other alleged victim will also recant.

In a statement signed and notarized Aug. 31 this year, Mrs. Huff said she "had been willingly living with (Mullins) for some time" on March 20, 1983, when the offense allegedly occurred. She claimed in an earlier statement that she swore out warrants against Mullins only because her ex-husband, Clifford Huff, forced her to do so.

Mullins had beaten Huff in a fight at a party the night of March 20, Mrs. Huff said in a June 27, 1984 statement and, out of revenge, Huff forced her to fabricate charges against Mullins. "This has been on my conscience for some time and has troubled me greatly," Mrs. Huff wrote in explanation of her recent change of heart. "I feel that now I have to make a clean breast of things. James Mullins is innocent of the charges for which he is in prison today."

No date has yet been set for a hearing on Mullins' motion.

"STRAIGHT TALK, PLAIN FACTS AND COMMON SENSE"

As I campaigned along Left Beaver Creek this past week, people told me that a person who looked remarkably like our Superintendent of Schools had been seen along the creek campaigning for my opponent.

than honest. Would you?

People may ask this person who is posing as our superintendent if Mary Hall supported putting a utility tax on our people; they may ask this person if Mary Hall supported a building program that built new high schools on Right Beaver and Betsy Layne while ignoring the high schools on Left Beaver Creek; they may ask if Mary Hall supported a building program that put "Wheelwright on the tail end"; or they may ask this person WHY a person with the same training is paid $1000 per month more to work in the superintendent's office. The people on Left Beaver may ask if this person can name one single time in 12 YEARS IN OFFICE when Mary Hall didn't vote 100% for your programs that increased the school budget to over $17 million per year, yet neglected our schools and our children. You see, people have to ask someone, they never see Mary Hall.

Friends, we don't have to have a school system that sets a priority for the education of our children that says, in effect, "someone has to be last." We don't have to have high school buildings on Left Beaver Creek that were built in the 1920's and 1930's when our annual school budget is over $17 million. We don't have to have strict monitoring by the State Department of Education to make our school administrators follow the law. We have the knowledge, resources and manpower to do better and we must do better for our neighbors' children, our grandchildren and our children.

My opponent has been in office for 12 years. Quite a long time and long enough for us to judge her record. In those 12 years, there have been two new high schools built in our county, but none on Left Beaver Creek; she voted to raise your utility bills, then took it back before the election; she voted to pay those in the superintendent's office some $12,000 more per year than those teaching our children: she tells you about educational improvements in Left Beaver Schools but fails to mention that practically every single item she lists is mandated by State Law; she tells you there has been a 13% increase in test scores but fails to mention that WHEEL-WRIGHT AND McDOWELL STUDENTS SCORED LOWEST IN THE TEST. Congratulations Mary. you and Pete have proven your point, somebody does always have to be last. But, does it always have to be Left Beaver Creek. We think not.

HENRY D. BAILEY

I know this is not our superintendent of schools. Educational literature tells us it is highly unprofessional conduct for a professional educator to campaign for board members and we know our superintendent is a professional educator. Pete, you should find out who this impersonator is and ask him to stop his activity. After all, someone may think he is you and ask him if it is true that you said, "If you rank them from 1 to 180, someone has to be 180", when asked about the test scores of Floyd County students, or if it is true that you said "Wheelwright was on the tail end" of your building program, or if it is true that you said Floyd County people were only interested in "cheerleaders and taxes," or if it is true that you pay your friends who work in your office $1000 more per month than classroom teachers, or if you supported putting a utility tax of some $800.000 per year on the elderly, disabled and working people of Floyd County. If they ask this impersonator these questions he won't know and may tell the people that you were "misquoted" or that you didn't say these things or that you "didn't mean it." This would not be being truthful with the people and we all know you wouldn't want this person who is impersonating you to be less

We can't afford 4 more years of Mary Hall. After 12 years, isn't it time to give someone else a chance? Someone who will work with you to set educational priorities that give our children the very best educational opportunity available. Someone who will be honest with you, visit with you, seek your advice and counsel and see to it that Left Beaver Creek is treated fairly in all matters. That person is Doug Bailey. Vote for Doug Bailey for school board member. He'll restore pride to our schools and make you proud to say, "That's my Board member."

VOTE FOR Henry "Doug" BAILEY SCHOL BOARD MEMBER "EQUAL EDUCATIONAL OPPORTUNITY FOR EVERYONE'S CHILD."

continue to review individual cases regarding whether a husband and wife are both responsible for paying utility bills when only one spouse contracted

In April, the Commission solicited comments on the issue from all utilities under its jurisdiction, the state Attorney General, the Kentucky Commission on Women, and interested consumer groups. Then, the Commission considered developing a set of standards for all utilities to follow in instances involving liability for a bill in cases of divorce, separation and relocation.

After reviewing the comments, P.S.C. Chairman Richard D. Heman said the Commission would best serve consumer interests by not adopting strict standards, but continuing to resolve these problems case-by-case. "Complaints of this nature are varied," Heman explained, "and no specific regulation could begin to address the majority of these problems.

with an outstanding utility bill, and the same utility refuses to provide service to the couple's new residence until the old bill is paid. Should the company be forced to provide service? Is the new spouse responsible for the wife's debt? Or, say a husband alone has signed for utility service and he falls behind in payments. The utility terminates service and the husband moves. Should the utility resume service under the wife's name? Is she responsible for paying the back bill in her former husband's name? Suggestions from the 24 utilities and three groups that responded to the Commission's request are almost as diverse as the liability issues. The Kentucky Commission on Women recommended that a user of service be liable for a bill. even though no contract may exist between the utility and the user. Owen County Rural Electric Cooperative said a utility should be allowed to deny service to any facility occupied by anyone who has had some responsibility for a past due account. Kentucky Legal Services Program argued that it is unreasonable for a utility to use termination of service, or refusal to connect new service, as a toll to collect delinquencies. Kentucky Utilities contended that it allowed one spouse to apply for service for the household as a convenience. "Merely because one spouse chooses not to sign the contract creating service should not absolve him or her from paying the accrued charges when they both benefited from the service. Heman said other comments included suggesting that the P.S.C. stay out of these matters, and allowing utilities more discretion in dealing with individual matters. "A flexible case-bycase approach in resolving these complicated situations is often fairer to both the customer and utility," he said.

Antenna Installation Can Be Risky Operation

Antenna installation for television or amateur radio use can be a tricky procedure. There is more involved than mounting a mast on the side of a house or implanting it into the ground.

W.W. Zeollers, Pikeville Division manager of Kentucky Power Company, said the proper method of antenna installation is to allow at least one-and-a half times the length of the antenna's mast in distance from the nearest overhead lines.

"That kind of distance should allow for a margin of safety if the antenna should fall during installation, in a storm, or for some other reason. The main idea is to take every precaution possible to keep the antenna from ever falling into power lines because the antenna and its mast are excellent conductors of electricity," Zoellers said.

Steps should also be taken to secure the antenna by methods other than just its support mast-guy wires, for example. Any support structures should be situated in a conspicuous place and be out of the normal pedestrian traffic.

Another important facet of installing an antenna is for the person to get help in completing the project. Antennaes are bulky items and are difficult to handle under the best of conditions. They can be hazardous when one person is trying to do the job of getting the antenna and its mast up a ladder for final installation," Zoellers added.

In addition to the recommendations for installation, Zoellers said it is best to wait for a calm day before attempting to perform such work.

Aside from professional installation, Zoellers said a few extra steps in preparation could make the difference between a safely-completed job and one riddled with either close calls or some injuries.

Says No 'Clean Bill'

Exception is taken with your article in last week's edition in which the caption read, "Clean Bill" on the roadhouse at Auxier called "The Warehouse."

For going on 4 years now, the local residents in this residential neighborhood have complained almost continuously about the loud, bone chilling, thumping music which is heard coming from the galvanized aluminum interior of, first, the Star Burst skate center, and now, The Warehouse honkytonk.

On the night of the male dancers exhibitions, there were four households that called in protest to the loud screaming and the thumping music. Your article was very inaccurate when it stated county officials as saying, "We have had no complaints.'

KRS 244-120, which discusses a disorderly premises condition and physically offensive condition around roadhouses, has been ignored by those who should have been controlling this atrocious condition.

Why don't the state and county officials please see to it that the operators of a loud roadhouse in a community that has several homes in close proximity either turn it down or shut it down? We sure miss Buford Pusser

FREDDIE GOBLE Auxier, Ky.

Auxiliaries Have Powers of Arrest

An article appeared in last week's Floyd County Times concerning the authority of the Prestonsburg Auxiliary to enable th our community to understand our policy, I am providing the following information. In conjunction with KRS 95.445, City Ordinance 3-75, and Attorney General's Opinion OAG 82-183, members of the auxiliary police force will possess the same powers as regular police officers, including the powers of arrest. Thus, auxiliary officers, generally, have the powers of regular police officers which are not limited to the time they are on duty. The city of Prestonsburg has one of the finest auxiliary units in the state of Kentucky. All members attend training exercises to increase their knowledge of police work to insure maximum efficiency in providing this community the type of protection and service it needs. I'm proud to serve with these citizens who donate their time, and often their money in striving to maintain a professional organization. To each of these officers I extend a personal "Thank You" and to the citizens of Prestonsburg, please feel assured that our auxiliary officers are delegated the same powers and authority as our regular police. STAN FLETCHER, Chief Prestonsburg Police Dept.

Victim 'Accused' When does the victim become the accused? Where in our constitution does it say that a victim should take a polygraph test before police will search for a man who attempts murder? Who protects us when the law won't?

Larry D. Calhoun was shot in the chest when he picked up a hitchhiker, who is known to walk the Middle Creek road all the time. As the man ran away, Larry drove to the Gulf Station from where he was taken to the hospital. An officer questioned him before and after he was admitted to his room. Larry was in a great deal of pain with a bullet in his lung and could not give full details. The Floyd County Times quoted state police as saying Larry wouldn't cooperate, but 8 hours later Larry was able to give a full description of the assault, the family made 6 attempts to get the State Police to come and take the description. Frankfort had to be called and then it took 14 hours before an officer came, just to call the victim a liar. The State Police are asking Larry to take a polygraph test before they will even begin looking for suspects.

What if my child or your child is his next victim? Where do we go for help? The police? Where but in our area can a person attempt murder and still walk our streets? These questions need to be answered because the safety of our community is at stake.

Two Floyd High Schools Many people believe that odd numbers In Close Up Program

High school students from across the Tri-State have once again been invited to take a first hand look at the workings of the federal government in Washington, D.C. later this year.

The invitation was issued on behalf of the board of directors of the Close Up Foundation by John Pinkerman, the community coordinator for Tri-State. who has been traveling throughout the area for a series of meetings with students and teachers. Floyd county high schools which will participate are Allen Central and McDowell.

Pinkerman explained that for a full week in Washington the students will investigate the federal system and have the opportunity to question some of the leading and behind-the-scenes law and policy makers.

"CLOSE UP seeks to transform the city into a classroom and uses its vast human resources as teachers," Pinkerman said. He added that the program is open to all students and that there is no limit on the number of participants from each school.

Founded in 1970, CLOSE UP has grown to become the nation's largest government studies program, having graduated more than 140,000 participants.

A teacher from each participating school will accompany the students, not as a chaperone but to participant in a parallel program designed to offer educators new insights and materials for use in their classrooms.

To ensure that all types of students are able to participate, CLOSE UP provides fellowship funds for teachers and low- to moderate-income students. Funds for these fellowships are made possible through a Congressional appropriation and by matching local support from R.J. Reynolds Industries, Inc.; MAPCO Inc.; and Ashland Oil, Inc. Pinkerman said that the local students may also have the opportunity to participate in a national television program on the Cable Satellite Public Affairs Network (C-SPAN).

The public is invited to inspect the items on display during regular library hours, now through next Monday.

A NEW KIND OF BIRTH CONTROL PIL

Many women, a few years ago, switched to oral contraceptives with low concentrations of estrogen and progestin. This was to reduce the risks of cardiovascular diseases as well as the risks of other less dangerous side effects of pills with higher hormone doses. Now, the Food and Drug Administration has approved a new kind of birth-control pill, called the "triphasic". It is designed to correspond with a woman's natural cycle. It provides varying hormonal dose levels to reduce such side effects as missed periods and to aid the body in adjusting to the new hormonal levels. The triphasic pill is currently available by prescription.

Woodland Chemistry Brings Fall Colors

As the days grow shorter and the nights grow cooler, billions of tiny cells in millions of leaves are working to produce Mother Nature's greatest outdoor art show.

Those tiny cells are scurrying to get their work done before Jack Frost puts an end to the annual preparations. Contrary to what many people believe, the freezing temperatures that bring us the first taste of winter are not what causes the beautiful colors that mark autumn in the woods.

It is the cool nights and the short days which cause trees to prepare for the winter that gives us the colored leaves of fall. The first frost of the season usually marks an end to the trees' preparations for winter, and a beginning of the fall foliage festival that may last for several weeks.

Extension Forester Doug McLaren, of the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, explained how the trees and leaves spend the summer getting ready for their annual extravaganza.

During the growing season the cells in the leaves are filled with green chlorophyll which gathers sunlight and turns it into energy the trees use to produce food for themselves.

Each cell has in it a small amount of two other substances; carotene, which is bright yellow, and xanthophyll, which is a soft, mellow yellow.

Chlorophyll is an unstable substance. That means it disappears from the leaves into the air, and the trees have to replace it. Carotene and xanthophyll are more stable and they remain in the leaves.

By September the nights are growing cooler and the days are getting shorter. This signals the trees to prepare for winter. One of the things the trees do as they prepare for winter is stop replacing chlorophyll as it disappears from the leaves. This allows the carotene and xanthophyll to become predominant, and the yellow colors begin to take over.

The leaf cells in some trees also contain a substance called anthocyanin. Anthocyanin is reddish-purple. As the days get shorter and the nights cooler, it becomes harder for trees to remove sugar from their leaves and much of that sugar is turned into anthocyanin. All of fall's colors are a blend of reds, yellows, purples and oranges. And they all come from carotene, xanthophyll or anthocyanin.

The especially bright and colorful trees in the autumn woods in Kentucky are the maples, sumacs, sassafras, blackgum and sourwood. Scarlet oak and northern red oak also are very pretty. Hickory and yellow poplar are noted for their brilliant golden yellow display. The bright, sunny days and crisp, cool nights most of Kentucky has enjoyed recently should provide a very special autumn for us all this year, from Majestic in the mountains of Eastern Kentucky to Sassafrass Ridge on the banks of the Mississippi.

How To Teach Children To Care About Others

Raising children who are helpful, considerate, and sensitive to the needs of others is no easy task. An article in the October issue of PTA Today, the national PTA's magazine, offers suggestions for how parents can teach children to care about others.

According to Thomas Lickona, a professor and developmental psychologist, and author of the article, the following ideas can help parents raise caring children:

SUPPORTS DR. MARY HALL

During the last Senate race, in which I ran against Benny Ray Bailey, I discussed many issues with you, the voters of this county, as well as the other counties in Senatorial District Number 29. The most important issue, and the one most discussed was that of education. I ran my campaign with education as one of the strongest planks of my platform.

I feel that we here in Floyd County have one of the most positive and progressive Boards of Education and Superintentent in the state of Kentucky. I have great confidence in our teachers, students, and administrators, as well as our Board Members here in Floyd County.

I have some big and important questions in my mind at this point concerning the upcoming school Board election in District Number 4. If Doug Bailey is elected, who will our Board Member really be? Could it be his brother, who is State Senator, or will it be his wife, a vocal opponent to the School Board? Also, he talks of his concern for public education, when we all know his own children are students in a private school at Martin. What is his real goal?

I want to take this opportunity to endorse DR. MARY HALL for School Board member in Education District Number 4, and to urge all of you in District 4 to vote for and elect a proven leader as your Board Member, November 6, 1984. She's proven that she is only interested in the children, and that's what it's all about.

children.

-Use the power of positive example. Parents can influence children's moral development by setting a good example, and by using sources such as children's books that feature kind and caring characters. At the same time, parents should limit children's exposure to bad examples. One way is by controlling television viewing.

-Give children plenty of love. Build a strong bond of love between parent and child by spending time together. It will help children value themselves, and in turn learn to value others.

-Foster a caring atmosphere in the home. Share and discuss everyday experiences at the dinner table. When conflicts arise within a family, try to solve them fairly, in a way that meets everyone's needs. When problems develop outside the family, members can offer support to one another.

-Give children responsible family roles. (A Harvard study shows that the more responsibilities children are assigned the more they learn to care for others.) To become a contributing family member, youngsters can share the housekeeping, help in the kitchen, care for a pet, play with or read to a younger sister or brother, or pitch in on the yard work, gardening or house repair. Parents should not pay children for such duties because it will take away the experience of being helpful.

-Extend caring beyond the family. Teach children to become responsible members of the neighborhood by shoveling snow or cutting the grass for elderly neighbors. Children can contribute to the community by working for causes or charities.

—Sensitize children to other's feelings. Help children understand the hurt of a child who is locked out of a game or made fun of by others.

Pikeville College Prexy Resigns

Dr. Jackson Hall announced recently his resignation as president of Pikeville College, effective by December, next year, or earlier if a replacement is found

After his announcement, Hall said. "I don't know where I'm going, what I'm going to do. I have no invitations. I came to this conclusion even against the advice of... mentors who said, "Get vourself a job and then resign."

The president added, however, that a new top administrator would help the school, particularly in the area of increasing the college's $2.5 million endowment. Pikeville College's endowment, a financial base for generating funds, is "paltry, compared with the need the institution has," Hall said.

Last December, Hall received a noconfidence vote by a majority of the college faculty.

In a letter to the trustees, Hall cited two reasons for his resignation:

-The need to have a new leader for 'a major effort to undergird this college with financial stability to move it into its second century and to preserve its Christian and private heritage.

-A desire that the new president 'have time to become familiar with the institution and to rally volunteer leadership and support essential to a successful effort

Although Pikeville College has had balanced budgets for three out of the last four years, its enrollment is down this fall from 445 full-time equivalent students to 410.

The college suffered because of a $722,000 debt incurred in 1982-1983 and declining enrollment in its mining technology program, attributed to a slump in the coal business.

Now, Hall said, "The ambiance is positive, and this institution is back on its way up the mountain.

Miss Noble, Mr. Frasure Wed

Section One, Page Fifteen

The wedding of Miss Janet Noble and Mr. Allan Frasure was solemnized Saturday, Oct. 13, at the home of the groom's mother, Judy Hager. The ceremony was held in a lawn setting with a golden arch decorated with pink and white carnations. The bride, given in marriage by her father, James Lee Noble, wore a candlelight white wedding gown with white lace trim and pearls. She carried a bouquet of pink and white miniature carnations with baby's breath

Mrs. Kim Frasure, sister-in-law of the groom, served as maid of honor. Her gown was pink chiffon with a pale pink ruffle, and she carried one long stemmed pink carnation with pink and white ribbons.

Ronnie Frasure, brother of the groom, served as best man.

Ashleigh Frasure was flower girl and carried a white basket of pink and white rose petals with pink and white ribbons.

Mrs. Stella Ruth Noble, mother of the bride, wore a bone print dress and her corsage was of miniature carnations. The mother of the groom wore a grey chiffon dress, also with miniature carnation corsage.

The wedding reception was held at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Frasure, Jr.

Mr. and Mrs. Frasure now reside on the Water Gap road, near Prestonsburg.

CHRISTIAN MINISTERS

In the last several months a number of concerned Christians have come together in an effort to develop a program that will meet a need in southeast Kentucky. Through a newly formed non-profit corporation, Alternatives, Inc., they are seeking to make available counseling to women who find themselves in the midst of a crisis pregnancy and are considering abortion. The goal of Alternatives, Inc. is to see that these women are aware of morally acceptable alternatives, and that no woman chooses to abort a child simply because it is more economical, more convenient, or less stressful.

The immediate tool to be utilized is a toll-free 800 number for counseling that will become active in the month of November, 1984, and free pregnancy testing will be available. We are also pursuing a way to train volunteer counselors who will approach this task from a Christian prospective. The upcoming yellow pages of the telephone directory for the Big Sandy Area will contain the toll-free number and a general ad both under "Clinics" and "Birth-Control".

Our purpose for this ad is to ask that you extend an invitation to any individuals in your congregation to attend a seminar being taught by Mr. Jim Savely, a Christian who has developed a complete ministry around a program such as Alternatives, Inc. This seminar will be held Friday, November 2, 1984, from 7:00 p.m. to 9:00 p.m., at the First Baptist Church of Allen, Kentucky. The church is located on U.S. 23, approximately one-half mile south of the traffic light at Allen. All public is invited to this session. The next morning, at 9:00 a.m., a training session will be held for those volunteering their services for such a ministry.

If any person desires to learn more, or wishes to assist us, please call 606-886-8189 or write:

Alternatives, Inc. P.O. Box 388 Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653 medical service to citizens of Floyd, Knott, Letcher, and Perry counties who cannot afford to pay for care and medicines, according to an announcement by Community Care Services, Inc. The clinic is located upstairs at the Knott County Middle School in Hindman. Among those served will be those with high medical bills, those who cannot pay for private care although they are employed, persons temporarily out of work, and those who are unable to attend local health departments. Anyone with private insurance, Medicare or Medicaid, and those above the poverty income level will not be seen in the clinic which will be staffed entirely by volunteers.

Physicians, pharmacists, physician assistants, lab technicians, nurse practitioners, nurses, pastors, mental health workers, dental hygienists, dentists, counselors, secretaries, health educators, janitors, and many others will donate their skills and time to the clinic which will be open from noon until 6 p.m., Saturdays only.

Those who wish to receive services, for more information, or to volunteer services, write to Theresa Francis, P.O. Box 699, Hindman, Ky. 41822.

ABORTION

A controversial issue, but one every citizen, whether Christian or not, needs to come to grips with. What is the truth and what should be your response?

Mr. Jim Savely, a Christian Minister, will be conducting a meeting this November 2, 1984 for those who wish to learn more or become active in a local interdenominational organization seeking to meet local needs.

Mr. Savely is currently heading a ministry that is reaching monthly 2,000 women in crisis pregnancies and has thus far saved over 10,000 babies from abortion. On Friday night, Mr. Savely will have an information presentation. On Saturday, he will teach the basics of an outreach ministry.

Please plan to attend.

53,000 File for Help With Winter Heating

The first segment of this year's Home Energy Assistance Program ended Oct. 26 with approximately 53,000 applications from Kentucky households seeking help in paying winter heating bills. At the same time, officials with the Cabinet for Human Resources announced that there will be some additional funds to be carried over when the next segment of HEAP begins on Nov. 12.

Social Insurance Commissioner Jack Waddell said that eligible applications received to date won't exhaust funds available for the initial HEAP segment. which covered low-income households with elderly or disabled family. members. "We are estimating that once all of the eligible applications are funded, there will be approximately $1.6 million left over. This money will be added to the $7.6 million in assistance available during the next application period from Nov. 12 through Dec. 31,' he said ond segment of HEAP is open to all lowincome Kentucky households, there is no prohibition against applications by people who missed the segment just completed. "There may have been some eligible elderly or disabled Kentuckians who for some reason failed to apply during the period set aside for them," he said. "They are still eligible to apply beginning Nov. 12 for the same level of benefits as received by those who have already applied.

Last year nearly 36,000 applications were received during the elderly and disabled segment of HEAP in Kentucky. For the total program in 1983-1984, 100,000 applications were received and 91,458 households received heating bill assistance.

This year, a third-segment of HEAP benefits will be available in January for low-income households without heat in the residence either because of utility cutoff or inability to purchase additional heating fuel. HEAP funds totaling $4 million have been set aside for that segment.

How To Change Your Child's Behavior

For weeks Dad nagged Jimmy about his "lack of respect for adults.

But the more Dad talked, the worse Jimmy behaved. Finally, a friend told the father, "You can only change yourself-you cannot change someone else's behavior. And if you do try to change someone else's behavior-adult or child-you have to be prepared for the possibility that that person will choose not to change.

This doesn't mean that there is nothing a parent can do to help a child change behavior that is undesirable. But first parents must consider why their efforts in this area often fail, according to Growing Up, the child development newsletter for school-age children.

One of the main reasons for trouble is failure to communicate. Because a parent feels hurt or angry, they assume the child knows how they feels. They withdraw or sulk. Or they become martyrs, suffering silently. And all the while, the child is totally unaware of how they are feeling!

So parents must learn to talk to their children about the relationship between their feelings and the child's behavior. Even when parents learn to talk about how they feel, their words are sometimes so abstract that they mean little to the child. For example, what a parent means by "lack of respect" may not be understood by a child. A child needs to be told in concrete terms about specific actions. Remind the child to say "Please" and "Thank you" rather than tell him to "show more respect."

In all of this, parents need a balanced perspective. Is putting the toothpaste back on the same shelf really the most important topic for the breakfast table? Is length of hair really more important than family peace?

Parents can change a child's undesirable behavior if they learn to change some of their behavior. Here are some suggestions.

Talk to the child about the behavior without shouting or nagging.

Be specific about what you like or don't like, want or don't want.

Try to think about the problem from the child's point of view.

Be consistent in instructions, rewards, and punishments.

Keep cool and keep things in perspective.

The Growing Up newsletter follows a child's development throughout the school years. For more information, write Growing Up, P.O. Box 620N. Lafayette, Indiana 47902. Include child's school grade when writing.

YMCA of Kentucky Slates Mock Election

Thousands of Kentucky students in grades 7-12 and hundreds of parents will be participating, Nov. 1, in the 1984 National Student-Parent Mock Election. Sponsored nationally by Teachers Guides to Television Family Institute in New York, the mock election gives students a chance to learn, first-hand, about the American political process. Students in all 50 states will also be casting their ballots on November 1.

The YMCA of Kentucky, which sponsors annual conferences such as the Kentucky Youth Assembly and the Kentucky United Nations Assembly, has informed every middle, junior and senior high school social studies teacher in the Commonwealth of the event. Co-Directors Michael Haynes and David Milby say 800 teachers in more than 200 schools from 82 counties have responded since the initial memorandum was sent in early September. The final mock election packets, which include the list of candidates and instructional information dealing with the election process, have been mailed to these participant schools

Students will be casting their ballots for President, Vice President, the U.S. Senate, and local Congressional races, in addition to important questions of the day.

The mock election headquarters will be the Lexington Continental Inn. A tollfree number has been provided by the hotel which teachers may use to phone in their school's results. The State YMCA expects most of these calls to be placed between 2 and 4 p.m.

The Kentucky Mock Election Headquarters will be linked directly to the National Mock Election Center in Fort Worth, Texas by computer.

The mock election will be held in conjunction with the opening session of the 25th annual Junior Kentucky Youth Assembly. The 700-plus middle and junior high school students attending will also be voting. Outstanding senior high school state YMCA youth in government participants will be operating the computer system as well as taking results by phone.

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND Health Educator There will be a glaucoma screening clinic at the Floyd County Health Department, Monday, November 5. This clinic is a free service of the health department and is open to persons of all ages, but those age 40 and over are especially urged to take advantage of this free service since this is the high risk age for the disease.

The health department will be closed Tuesday, November 6, for election day.

TO THE VOTERS OF EDUCATIONAL DISTRICT #4

The Floyd County Times

This coming Tuesday I ask for your vote that I may continue in the office of Board Member for Left Beaver Creek. My interest in continuing in this office is quite simple—I want to serve and make a difference in the quality of life for the residents of this area. As the daughter of a coal miner, raised in Wheelwright, Kentucky, I have first-hand knowledge that a good education will open doors to those willing to enter. After becoming a physician, I returned to Left Beaver with a desire to give the wonderful people of this area what I felt they needed most—good health care. But as time went on, and the days turned into months and the months into years, I realized that for the quality of life to change for the people of Left Beaver, then the quality of education must change. With that in my heart I ran for Board Member some years ago and have continued to serve you until this date.

Elsewhere in this paper you can find an ad listing what I consider to be recent improvements in the schools of Left Beaver, that were accomplished by a day-to-day and month-to-month labor to improve the system. If reelected, I will continue that labor without discouragement and with the sober realization that a good school system is built by adding one change after another, constantly seeking excellence.

I also renew to you a pledge made to you when I first sought this office. As your Board Member, I do not seek nor will I accept, the endorsement or support of any elected county or state officials. Only by such a pledge can a Board Member truly be responsible to the parents and education professionals in their district. I have no burning ambition to control the Courthouse, patronage, or who gets the jobs and who doesn't with State or local government, and I certainly do not want to see this office occupied or controlled by people who do. So I appeal directly to those voters of Educational District #4 who have the personal integrity to recognize what this race is all about, and ask that you keep this Board Member position beyond the reach of any individuals who would desire to use your schools and your teachers to further their own political power and political machine. As long as I have held this office, I have never found it necessary to clear any vote or judgement with any other elected official, or politician. My decision was simple—"what's best for the children?" Let's keep it that way.

Governor Stresses Quality Teaching

Governor Martha Layne Collins last week told a group studying teachers' pay that to improve education in Kentucky the state must develop a system that encourages and rewards good teaching.

"Teachers remain the key to quality education," the governor told the Career Ladder Committee. "Nothing matters as much as the man or woman in the classroom asking the questions that provoke thought, inspire curiosity, trigger discovery and encourage academic achievement."

The committee, a group established by the General Assembly and appointed by the Governor, is to design a new system for paying and recognizing teachers. The new system, called a Career Ladder, would reward them for doing a good job in the classroom.

In another major education appearance, Governor Collins told Associated Press editors meeting in Lexington, Oct. 26, that she would campaign throughout the state "to make sure that education is the number one item on the public agenda—statewide and locally."

Before both groups she stressed the strong link between better schools, better jobs and a better quality of life in Kentucky. "The direct connection between education and jobs is stronger than ever," she told the editors. "And we must get across the point that economnic growth creates new social, recreational and cultural opportunities for everyone."

During its first meeting, Governor Collins told the Career Ladder Committee that designing a Career Ladder is a compliment to the teaching profession. "We are recognizing what every national study of education tells us: Good teachers are the key," she said, "We are saying that other efforts to improve our schools—higher standards, tougher curriculum, more math and science—all of these are of limited value unless we find a way to encourage good teaching."

The governor noted that currently teachers "Never get a promotion based on merit... No matter how good they are. No matter how dedicated they are. We must change this."

Governor Collins said Kentuckians "will be willing to pay teachers more when they know we have a system that rewards and encourages quality teaching. This is a fundamental reality: At the same time Kentuckians are willing to reward good performance, they are asking for more accountability."

She said the Career Ladder would attract more topflight students into teaching and would encourage them to stay in the classroom rather than moving into administration or another field.

LET'S TELL THE TRUTH, DOUG!

During the past several weeks, Mr. Doug Bailey's advertisements in this paper, whereby he opposes me in my race for Board Member, have become more and more bold in their bending and ignoring the truth. Recognizing the impossibility of addressing every misrepresentation he's made, I would ask the voters to consider the following:

1. Teachers and Administrative Salaries. Mr. Bailey infers that administrative salaries are grossly disproportionate to teachers' salaries. However, he fails to tell you first that the administrators are compensated for twelve months' work while teachers are paid for nine months' work. Further, he fails to use the facts that show that a teacher with 11 years' experience, compared to an administrator with 11 years' experience, when compared on a monthly basis is relatively the same wage amount per month.

2. Mr. Bailey wants to infer that I attempted to place a tax on your utilities, when in truth and fact, it was upon my motion that the majority of the Board voted to halt a move to have the tax placed on your November ballot.

It is my hope that Mr. Bailey's failure to speak the truth through his advertisements results from a lack of understanding of the fundamentals of how people are paid for their work for the Board and how utility taxes are imposed. However, if these misrepresentations continue and expand, as I fear they may, I respectfully suggest to my opponent to not let his ambition crowd-out basic integrity and honesty.

AN AITERNATIVE

TO ABORTION

Young women in the Big Sandy Area needing help with stress pregnancy and looking through the yellow pages of the phone book will find an alternative listing from the various abortion "information and advice" services. It is called "Alternatives, Inc.", and while the listing is a "toll-free" 800 number, those who call will not be talking with a clinic miles away in the metropolitan areas of Cincinnati or Louisville. These women will be talking with local persons seeking to give them counseling and love in a time of confusion, stress and painful decisions.

Alternatives, Inc., has grown out of a shared belief by a number of Christians of several denominations and churches that there is an urgent need for this kind of caring service to be provided in our area, especially in a society that now views abortion of unborn infants as a convenient birth-control option. In the context of counseling and concern, it hopes to provide an alternative to abortion and the support necessary to follow that decision through.

In order to learn more about such programs that are already operating elsewhere, Alternatives, Inc., is welcoming to our area Mr. Jim Savely from Lynchburg, Virginia, where he is active in such a ministry with the Thomas Road Baptist Church. He will lead a seminar on Friday night, November 2nd, at the First Baptist Church of Allen, from 7:00-9:00 p.m. On Saturday persons who are interested in taking part in the counseling process can receive appropriate training. It will be held at the same location beginning at 9:00 a.m.

The local group that is organizing Alternatives, Inc., will be developing its own program after assessing local needs and interest. It welcomes the assistance and help of any who are interested in its goals. This weekend's program should provide a good introduction to what can be done through such a ministry. Any who are interested in helping with the program, or in learning more about it can call 886-8189 or write to Alternatives, Inc., at Box 388, Prestonsburg.

VOTE STRAIGHT DEMOCRATIC

The last four years, under the Reagan Administration, Eastern Kentucky has suffered. We have seen an outright attack on Medicaid and Medicare for the elderly, restrictions on Social Security payments to the disabled, curtailment of free lunches for hungry school children, elimination of substantial monies for public education, elimination of loans for college students, restriction of Black Lung benefits for disabled coal miners, elimination of funds and programs for our senior citizens, a virtual halt to public monies for economic development to provide more jobs, a turning away from the use of coal as the primary source of energy, a tightening of the grip of the bureaucracy upon small coal operators and surface miners, and an abandonment of any sincere effort to improve health care. The Democratic Party remains committed to our region to guarantee every Eastern Kentuckian a chance in life. This means a job for those who can work and modest help for those who cannot, due to age or disability. This also means a committment to see that the children of the unfortunate and disabled do not suffer. The late Carl Perkins spent much of his public career battling for programs and policies that reflect the values of the Democratic Party. Carl is gone, but the struggle continues. We, the undersigned, cling to the policies of the Democratic Party that have served Floyd County so well and ask that you do the same by voting straight Democratic on November 6, 1984.

Cats End Season With 39-20 Win

By Tim and Ray Howell The Prestonsburg Blackcats ended their regular season Friday night and capped a perfect Homecoming night with a 39-20 victory over Morgan County High.

Playing before a packed stadium, the Blackcats won the toss and chose to receive the kickoff. With good ball control and play execution, the Cats marched downfield to the 20-yard line as John Goble handed the ball to B. D. Nunnery for a 20-yard touchdown run and Prestonsburg's first score. With fine blocking by the offensive line, the score came quickly with only 2:06 elapsed in the first quarter. The extra point was secured on a Goble kick.

Prestonsburg's Phillip Lewis recovered a fumble on the 27-yard line with 3:52 remaining in the first quarter to set the next TD as James Little the Prestonsburg five yard line for a first and goal situation. The Blackcats defensive line met the challenge and held as Keith Slone stopped Hopkins on the one yard line on a fourth down play. Prestonsburg took over, but with their backs to the goal were unable to sustain a drive and were forced to punt.

Once again P-burg's defense went into action stopping Morgan County on their own 25-yard line. The Cats took over and B. D. Nunnery ran for his second TD from the 35-yard line giving his team a 31-0 lead.

In fourth quarter action Morgan County received the kick to gallop for an impressive 82-yard run for their first score.

Prestonsburg speedster Ronnie Slone then dashed for a 30-yard run to the Morgan County 19 to set up the touchdown as Slone ran it on in. Wendel Burke carried the ball in for the extra point making the score 39-6. With six minutes remaining in the game the Cats' second team moved in and Stacy Marshall made an interception only to find it nullified due to a penalty on Prestonsburg. On the ensuing play, Morgan County secured their second TD to narrow the lead, 39-12. With 5:20 remaining, Morgan County picked up their final TD to end the game Prestonsburg's win capped off a fine regular season standing of nine wins and one loss. The Blackcats will face the Hazard Bulldogs who also have a 9-1 record this Friday night here in a regional match-up. If the Blackcats win over Hazard, they will face powerful Somerset the following week in state tournament competition.

Last February the Bassin' Buddies held a fishing seminar that featured Billy Westmoreland. The main point of Billy's lecture was not to fish the banks all the time. Well, at least one member of the Bassin' Buddies was paying attention.

Tee Watkins arrived at Lake Cumberland one day before the scheduled Saturday, Oct. 13 tournament, with only one thing on his mind, and that was to find a fishing pattern for the next day

Tee spent the day in Beaver and Otter, looking for something differentwater color, water temperature, brush, rocky points or shad activity. The last one paid off.

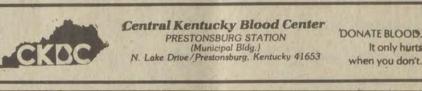

He found a mud flat with shad activity. He fished the flat with a spinnerbait that had a small, dull hook. This way, he could find fish and shake them off, hoping to catch them Saturday. After shaking off nine keeper fish, he left the flat, hoping the shad would not do the same before the tournament.

Saturday morning, Tee was back on the flat, but no fish and, worse yet, no shad. He fished the nearby stickups and a rockwall. Nothing. But about 10 o'clock the shad arrived on the flat. Tee tried his spinner bait, now with a larger and sharper hook, but no fish. Now what?-And then it came to him. Billy said, "Get off the Bank." Tee placed his boat over the channel, switched to a crank bait and made a cast that fell several yards short of the bank. As the bait passed over the breakline and entered the channel-bam! There were the fish. With half the day gone, he still put keeper fish in the boat to win the tournament

The weigh-in went like this: Tee Watkins and David Smith, first place, with 10 lbs., 1 oz.; Doug Young and Mike Roe, second, 4 lbs., 11 oz.; Don Bryson and Fonnie Arrowood, third place, 4 lbs., 1 oz. Doug Young also won the Big Fish Honor with a 1 lb. 14 oz., Ky. spotted bass. The tournament was sponsored by Maggard & Joseph, Mick & Jim's, Anel

Meade Jewelry, all of Paintsville.

The Bassin Buddies will fish their last tournament of the year at Laurel Lake, Oct. 27 found himself heading for pay dirt. An unsuccessful two-point conversion attempt ended the quarter with Prestonsburg leading, 13 to 0.

Second quarter action found the Blackcats maintaining excellent defense as Morgan County could not move the ball with any success. Prestonsburg's next big break came when Gordie Ratliff punted a beautiful 45-yard kick to Morgan County, to follow it up for a fumble recovery on the 25-yard line. This set up a pass play as John Goble found Mike Gunter for a 15-yard touchdown pass.

With 2:14 remaining in the first half, James Little saddled up for his second TD run, taking the ball on the 29-yard line and in for the score. The Blackcats headed for the locker room at half leading 25-0.

Third quarter play found Morgan County fighting to get back in the game and their first big threat came when Hopkins came up with a 25-yard run to

The first clock was built about 1360 and was off by about two hours each day.

'Guardian' explores violence

By Amanda Bruce

Don't miss "The Guardian," on HBO Nov. 5 and 11. It is a stirring, powerful drama about today's violent world and the moral decisions man must make about his own protection. It will leave you with unsettled thoughts and feelings, which is the best effect a drama can have on an audience.

Martin Sheen and Louis Gossett Jr. are the princi-pal characters. Sheen plays a tenant seeking to protect his Manhattan protect his Manhattan apartment building from murderers, rapists and thieves. Gossett plays the security guard he hires. But, in true Frankenstein fashion, the guard's pow-er becomes overwhelming er becomes overwhelming and Sheen's character wants him gone — until he's faced with the need for personal protection in the waret way the worst way.

The acting is superb, the story is finely drawn, even the music is terrific it's sinister in a subtle, unnerving way. This is the first of HBO's premiere films to really earn that

The Arts & Entertainment Network has a double-header for dance lovers on Nov. 8 and 9. "Cruel Garden" is a fiery riveting dance about the power of evil, inspired by the life and work of the Spanish poet Federico

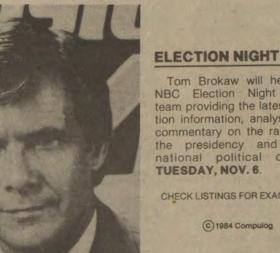

Garcia Lorca. The unusual performance, which won the 1982 Prix Italia for music, is marked by eerie lighting, vibrant costumes and sinister makeup. It's a perfect work for television because the facial expres-sions of the dancers seem important as their movements.

"Classically Cuban" fol-lows "Cruel Garden," and tells the story of prima ballerina Alicia Alonso, who left her fame in the United States to return to her native Cuba and found the first Cuban National Ballet there. Over 60 and still performing, Miss Alon-so talks about her feelings about dance, Cuba and art. Newsreel footage provides the history and inter-views with her and her dancers provide the information. There are also excerpts of performances. C 1984 Compulog

When the Bugs Go Away— Storing Pesticides, Cleaning Sprayers

By now the summer's insect problems have begun to decrease significantly the weather is cooling down, many insects have or are going into their overwintering stage, and fruits and vegetables have been harvested and their plants thrown away. It's time to winterize spray equipment and safely store leftover pesticides (the same guidelines apply to insecticides, fungicides, etc.).

Whether you applied spray materials with a hose-end, compression (pumpup), pump, slide or trigger sprayer, either wash the spray container thoroughly with soapy water and rinse, or rinse it several times. If it contains spray material, dispose of the excess according to label directions. Be sure rinse water is also run through all hoses, handles and spray nozzles. Hang the sprayer upside down to drain and dry. Complete drying is especially important for certain metal sprayers to prevent corrosion.

If you have more than one sprayer and were applying pesticides with one and herbicides with another, be sure they are appropriately labeled. It helps to write directly on the sprayer with a waterproof marker either "for herbicides only" or "for pesticides only". Unscrew nozzles and clean out any debris particles. Do this also to any nozzle screens.

With compression, slide and pump sprayers, inspect cap and lock nuts, or hoses and clamps, where hoses meet the containers, and O-rings or gaskets at the spray control valve. On compression sprayers also check plunger caps and plunger cylinder seals or gaskets for wear. Order replacement parts as needed, and apply oil to moving parts according to the sprayer's instruction manual. Now inspect your collection of bottles, bags and other pesticide product containers. If only a small amount of chemical is left, dispose of it according to label directions. Dispose of any leaky containers, any containers whose labels you cannot read, and any chemicals two or more years old. Most chemical companies only back their products for two years. Date containers you bought this year and plan to save. Store chemicals in their original con-store chemicals in their original containers only. Don't transfer them to other bottles or bags—you might contaminate the chemical, you might put it in the wrong type of container for proper storage (some chemicals are light sensitive and might decompose and become ineffective if transferred from a brown to a clear bottle), and you will lose valuable, even life saving information on the container label. put in trash) any diseased or insectinfested leaves, fruits or whole plants when practical. Never compost this material—many problems will overwinter and reappear next year. Garden sanitation should be your number one control measure against pests on your plants.

Timely Tip: Have your soil tested to know whether your lawn needs lime in addition to fertilizer this fall. Applying lime when it isn't needed can raise the soil pH to the detriment of many of your trees and shrubs.

In Special Program

Thursday, Nov. 1, at 8 p.m. (ET), KET will present an hour-long program, 'Special Edition Comment: Kentucky Governors' Colloquy." The program, moderated by Al Smith, regular series host for KET's Friday night series, "Comment on Kentucky," will feature three former Kentucky governors: Lawrence Wetherby (D) 1950-1955; Bert Combs (D) 1959-1963; and Louie B. Nunn (R) 1967-1971.

Smith will pose both serious and humorous questions for the governors, and lead them into reminiscences of their administrations, and of Kentucky politics as it used to be, before party lines began to blur in the elections. They discuss some of the former Kentucky political "Kingmakers," and agree that there is no one in the state today to lead political parties in this capacity.

The atrocious use and distortion of the facts and truth as used by Doug Bailey against Dr. Mary Hall, the members of the Floyd County Board of Education, and Supt. Pete Grigsby, Jr. should be put straight! Anyone who knows anything about our school system can tell you that our CTBS scores have steadily improved over the past several years under the present administration and now ranks higher than any of our surrounding counties on the latest test results. Our school district ranks 148th instead of 176th as Doug Bailey stated!

Apparently, he is still tied to the past with his ancestors and church schools because he and his busy wife, Anne, send their children to the Christian Academy near Martin and not to our public school system. Most of our Floyd Countians who are really interested in improving our school system send their children to our ever progressive Floyd County Schools and support instead of criticizing our administration and teachers in their efforts to teach our children.

Why does Doug and Anne Bailey send their children to private schools? Why do they belong to a group calling themselves the FCCEC which always opposes the present school board and administration? Why do they not belong to the McDowell PTO instead of the FCCEC?

Also, why does Doug Bailey's brother, Senator Benny Ray Bailey of Knott County, want more power? Doesn't he have enough already?

And lastly, if Doug Bailey were elected, who would be the board member in Left Beaver Creek, his wife Anne, or his brother Benny Ray?

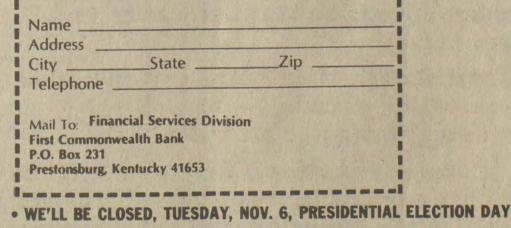

All upright, sober, and honest citizens in Floyd County are urged to support our present members of the Board of Education and Supt. Pete Grigsby, Jr. They are doing an excellent job and Dr. Mary Hall deserves your vote at the next General Election on Nov. 6, 1984. Let's keep good and progressive people in office; not those who want to live in the past!

Carl "Chris" Perkins To Congress 7th District

Elect

Fellow citizens in the 7th District:

Nobody knows better than I that there will never be another Carl D. Perkins. The 7th District was fortunate to have the effective representation, the dedication, the wisdom and vision of Congressman Carl D. Perkins for over three decades.

Our district will miss the influence and power he wielded in office because of his seniority and legislative experience. Now, we must build again.

I ask for your votes on November 6 with one promise, that my only purpose in Washington, D.C. will be to serve you. I learned the importance of public service from watching my father at work in the House of Rrepresentatives, its committees and with various governmental agencies. I learned that one person can make a difference in government.

The 7th Congressional District office will always be there to serve you. Please feel free to call or write me anytime.

> Respectfully, Carl Chris Perkins

VOTE DEMOCRATIC

Carl Chris Perkins is the Democratic candidate for both the two-year term beginning in January and the unexpired two-month term of Carl D. Perkins beginning after the election.

You must vote twice to elect Chris Perkins to both positions. The full twoyear term ballot follows the U.S. Senate race which is beneath the presidential candidate portion of the ballot.

The important special election for Chris Perkins to fill out the unexpired term, which will give him two more years of legislative seniority, will be the last item on the ballot, following the non-partisan elections.

Test scores in my district have shown marked improvements over the past several years. I feel that we have made academic progress in our district since I have been your Board Member. To support this statement, the CTBS test scores in my schools have shown a 13.2% average increase for school year 1984 as compared with the 1983 scores!! I pledge to continue to serve the people and children of Left Beaver Creek to the best of my abilities as your school Board Member! The record speaks for itself!

Sincerely, Dr. Mary Hall

ARE FLOWERS STILL APPROPRIATE FOR A FUNERAL?

A remembrance of flowers express the spirit of the heart often so hard to put into words.

Flowers convey a respect to the departed and an expression of caring to the bereaved. During the time of deep sorrow, flowers become the visible expression of sympathy and love, adding a background of warmth and beauty to the funeral setting.

Flowers, like the divine words of scripture, speak of life and love which are eternal. They soften the sad picture of death and add their fragrance and beauty to cheer the bereaved.

Though fleeting in physical life, the beauty of flowers live on in memory and are often considered a symbol of eternity.

When ordering flowers, be specific about the type you want and the expense. It is an added courtesy to request that your full name and address be written on the back of the presentation card to help the bereaved when the acknowledgment cards are sent to you.

Iguanas are Studied As Source of Food

By MADELEINE JACOBS Smithsonian News Service

In the highlands of Peru, Bolivia, Colombia and Ecuador, thousands of campesionos sit down every night to a tasty dinner of deep-fried, home-grown guinea pig.

In parts of Venezuela, the natives often enjoy a traditional dish of black beans, rice, plaintains and meat from the capybara—a huge (up to 100 pounds), water-dwelling rodent raised on ranches and harvested like cattle. And, in Panama, peasants and farmers sometimes make a meal of iguana stew—that is, when they can find this large leaf-eating lizard.

Iguanas, for centuries sought after for their meat and eggs, have dwindled drastically in number or disappeared in many parts. of Central and South America. Hunger is at the root of their demise. To supply food to an evergrowing population, the natives have not only overhunted the animals but have destroyed much of the iguana's habitat—irreplaceable tropical forest to make way for farms and rangeland.

Now, however, thanks to an innovative research and management project underway in Panama, iguanas may soon be rejoining the smorgasbord of unconventional animals providing nutritious food for millions of proteinstarved people in Latin America.

The project is aimed at increasing wild iguana populations and establishing methods to raise iguanas on "ranches" or farms, either on a small or large scale. In both cases, a percentage of the animals would be "harvested" each year for food.

Commercial production and use of iguanas are still a decade away, says Dr. Dagmar Werner, a biologist and project leader at the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute in Panama. But for the first time ever, researchers there have developed a method of artificially incubating and hatching iguana eggs with virtually 100 percent success. In the process, hundreds of iguana eggs have been hatched—"a definite breakthrough in iguana management," Werner says. In the past year, Werner and her assistants also have raised hundreds of wild-born iguana hatchlings in captivity. With little more than half a square yard of living space per animal, the iguanas have grown as fast or faster than their wild counterparts. Unlike their wild kin, which suffer a 90 percent mortality rate in their first year of life from birds, carnivorous lizards and other creatures, the captive-raised iguanasprotected from predators-have had nearly a 100 percent survival rate. This lends further support to the feasibility of ranching and repopulation plans.

Iguanas, specifically the green iguana scientifically known as Iguana iguana, may very well be ideal animals for such food-producing schemes. An important food source in Latin America since prehistoric time, iguanas are still prized as game animals by the campesinos who typically cook the meat-it tastes somewhat like chicken-in a heavily spiced stew. Also considered delicacies are iguana eggs; boiled in salt water for preservation, the eggs are reputedly an aphrodisiac and cure for various ailments One of the iguana's undisputed virtues is found in its choice of diet. The reptiles are herbivorous, preferring leaves in the treetops that other animals cannot readily reach and digest. A special digestive system enables iguanas to convert this vegetation into high-quality protein with an efficiency comparable to that of cattle. Iguanas also breed prolifically during their average 10-year lifespan. After reaching sexual maturity at about three years of age, females lay one large clutch of eggs each year-30 to 40 eggs on the average. Moreover, the lizards; which do not carry human diseases, are especially suited to captive management: Although iguanas are often aggressive in the wild, they have been kept in captivity in high densities without problems.

says Dr. A. Stanley Rand, a biologist at the Smithsonian Tropical Research Institute. About 16 years ago, Rand and a series of visiting scientists and students began studying the social system, reproductive and mating habits and ecology of iguanas.

They have focused their attention on a nesting site, Slothia Island, a tiny islet adjacent to Barro Colorado Island, the Smithsonian's 3,600-acre nature preserve in the Panama Canal. Each February, about a hundred female iguanas swim across the narrow channel linking Slothia and Barro Colorado Islands, staying only long enough to dig complex burrows and lay their eggs.

Rand was initially drawn to iguanas because of their complicated and interesting lifestyles. "But we were also aware that their numbers were decreasing at an alarming rate," he recalls. "If we were ever to work out an intelligent management plan, a conservation plan, we needed to know how fast these animals grow, how long they live and so forth, before we could think about ranching them or 'cropping' them."

Out of the wealth of data on iguanas grew the current management effort. It is also a conservation project: One of its major goals is restoring iguanas to areas where they have been depleted. The project is part of a larger Smithsonian activity aimed at increasing food supplies in Latin America without destroying the tropical forests to provide farmland or rangeland. The program is supported by the W. Alton Jones Foundation in collaboration with Panamanian institutions, including the Directorate of Renewable Natural Resources, the Institute for Agricultural Research and the University of Panama.

First Birthday

The custom of using paper money as we do today began in England in the 1600's.

People stored their valuables with goldsmiths, who, in turn, issued receipts which were used as money.

Joda Brianne, daughter of Jeff and Kim Newsome, of Banner, celebrated her first birthday, Sept. 18. She received many gifts.

Her grandparents are Earl and Anna Lea Hall, of Banner, and Ray and Joy Newsome, of Teaberry.

Many of her relatives and friends attended.

EKEDC Board Member

Charles A. Brown, superintendent of Fleming county schools, has been elected 1984-'85 chairman of the EKEDC board of directors.

Brown, who was honored in ceremonies Wednesday at the Holiday Inn-North, Lexington, succeeds Carter County Superintendent Harold Holbrook.

Elected along with Brown was a new executive committee, as follows:

Dr. Douglas Cole, chairman, Superintendent of Boyd county schools; vicechairman, Pete Grigsby, Jr., superintendent, Floyd county schools; chairman-elect, Jack Webb, superintendent, Greenup county, and committee members, Dr. Steve Towler, superintendent of Hardin county schools; John Brock, superintendent of Rowan county schools; Rayden Hammers, superintendent of Butler county schools, and Harold Holbrook, superintendent of

Carter county schools. Pete Grigsby began as superintendent of Floyd county schools in 1976.

He holds bachelor's and master's degrees and Rank I in education from the University of Kentucky, where he also holds certification in superintendency and principalship. Grigsby's past educational experience includes teaching, principal and assistant principalship, athletic director and assistant superintendent.

He is a member of Phi Delta Kappa, KASA, KASS, EKSA, Economic Aid Board for Floyd County and the K-Men Association. He and his wife, Phyllis, have three children.

Who Gets The Family Silver?

It's bad enough when a parent dies. It's worse when the surviving children find themselves in serious squabbles over who gets the family silver, the ring or the power tools. And this is often the case, warns Barbara Bartocci in the November Reader's Digest.

'Few people reach maturity without feeling they were deprived of some affection when they were children," says Rich Davis, a family psychiatrist in

LAW OFFICES

Kentucky Associates: Washington, D.C. Lexington Charleston, W.V. Inez Prestonsburg Columbus, Ohio Frankfort Greenup Winchester Hindman

Kansas City, Mo. "At the time of a parent's death, feelings of early childhood are reactivated, such as 'Mother favored my sister,' or 'I never was sure if Father loved me. I need proof.' " A particular object may symbolize that proof.

"When fights take place," Bartocci writes, "adult brothers and sisters usually fall into the same family roles they held as children and squabble over the same things ... Seldom do siblings feel they are being grabby. The rationalization is, 'I deserve this.'

Experts in the field of grief advise a cooling-off period of at least a month for making decisions. If squabbles begin, it's a sign you're not ready for decisions, especially if the death was unexpected.

Another way to avoid family argument is the "French fry" method, named for one mother's technique to keep her two sons happy when dividing a plate of French fries. One sibling does the dividing; the other gets first choice. Probate attorneys agree that their clients should not only make complete wills but also compile an informal list spelling out who should get which family mementos. In many states, such lists can be made without an attorney and are legally binding, The Digest article points out.

"As for me," Bartocci concludes, "I wrote letters to my two brothers several years ago, suggesting that we agreelong before the need-on how we should handle ourselves when the time came to

Kentucky Students Edge Up In College Testing Scoring

College-bound students in Kentucky registered a half-point increase this year on scores in the American College Testing program, reversing a downward trend that began in 1970 and bringing the scores to their highest point since 1976-77

Composite ACT scores of the 28,033 Kentucky students who took the test averaged 17.9 on the 36-point scale, compared with a national average of 18.5, a report provided by ACT officials shows. Nationally, about 1 million students took the exam, which tests ability in English, mathematics, social studies and natural sciences

Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald said the improved scores of Kentucky students reflected a growing emphasis on academic excellence in the state's public schools.

"Kentucky students are beginning to narrow the gap between their achievement and that of students in the nation as a whole," she said, noting that the national average rose only 0.2 of a point for 1983-84.

High school seniors in Kentucky showed a corresponding increase in scores on the Scholastic Aptitude Test, for which results were announced earlier. SAT scores were up four points on the verbal section, to 479, and five points on the math section, to 518. Scores are on a scale of 200 to 800.

More Kentucky students take the ACT test, however, because the state universities require it for entrance. Only 3,308 students, about 6 percent of the 1984 high school graduates, took the SAT, which is more likely to be taken by students planning to attend private or out-of-state colleges.

The group taking the ACT test consisted of 12,388 men and 15,645 women. The composite score of men taking the test was 18.6, and that of women was 17.3. Women scored higher on the English portion-18.5 compared with 17.4 for men-and men scored higher on

COW CREEK HOMEMAKERS MEET The Cow Creek Homemakers Meet was held Oct. 16 with the following members present: Louise Carey, Mary Zemo, Joan Garrett, Ina Jo Lafferty Dottie Lafferty, Imogene Caldwell, Hester Leslie, Fannie Goble and Frances Pitts.

All members are urged to attend the next meeting scheduled for Nov. 20, at the church annex.

the math portion-17.2 compared with 14.8. The combined scores were 18.0 on English and 15.9 on math.

Students who took the test were asked to evaluate their education. The response of Kentucky students was excellent, 17 percent; good, 45 percent; average, 27 percent; below average, 5 percent; and very inadequate, 7 percent.

The aspects of their high schools rated as satisfactory by the highest percentages of students were guidance, 63 percent, and instruction, 62 percent. Only a third said they were satisfied with assistance provided for special needs. School policies drew the highest 'dissatisfied'' ranking, with 32 percent, but 45 percent expressed approval of school policies.

Of those taking the test in Kentucky, 38 percent planned to seek bachelor's degrees, and 44 percent hoped to go beyond that level, either to attend graduate school or get a professional degree.

INTRODUCING The Landing

In the early 1900's, the riverboat would steam into town. At the sound of the whistle and the calliope, all Prestonsburg would gather at the Upper Landing to see what news, goods, or travelers had come up the Big Sandy.

At this same location, the carefree charm of a bygone era is recalled today at "The Landing," the new name for Prestonsburg's foremost address...at an affordable price.

PUBLIC NOTICE

The Association's Board of Directors are considering the sale of the Association to the City of Prestonsburg. This action is being considered because of the increased costs and time involved in keeping the water system functioning properly. The Association has 184 customers spread over approximately three miles, yet we do not have a paid full time maintenance person. We have been able to make the Association's service reliable over the years through the volunteer labor of the Directors and the use of part time labor and/or contract labor. But the economies of scale are not in our favor. We're too small to make enough money to make needed repairs and requested expansions. The system is fast approaching ten years of age and major repairs and maintenance needs to be done

As stated above, the Board has begun preliminary negotiations with the City of Prestonsburg to purchase the system. If the sale should take place, the City would purchase the system including the outstanding indebtedness and assume responsibility of operation and maintenance including reading the meters

UNITED STATES OF AMERICA DEPARTMENT OF THE INTERIOR OFFICE OF SURFACE MINING RECLAMATION AND ENFORCEMENT In the matter of: Property owned by David Richard Leslie and Mary A. Leslie located in the vicinity of Prestonsburg, Floyd County, Kentucky. PUBLIC NOTICE, FINDINGS AND

NOTICE OF INTENT TO ENTER PROPERTY TO CONDUCT RECLAMATION ACTIVITIES BAISDEN/DILLON SLIDE

KY-84-074

TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN: The United States of America, acting

by and through the Department of the Interior, Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, pursuant to Title IV of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977, 30 U.S.C. 1231, et seq., has determined that an emergency exists constituting a danger to the public health, safety and general welfare from the adverse effects of past coal mining practices in the vicinity of Prestonsburg, Floyd County, Kentucky. Since the surface owners of that certain property where entry must be made to abate the adverse effects of past coal mining practices will not give voluntary consent to enter the property and Section 410 of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977, 30 U.S.C. 1240, provides for entry by the United States of America, its agents, employees and contractors, and having made Public Notice based upon certain findings and upon diligent investigation of the facts pursuant to 30 CFR 877.13, the following findings are made.

Certain land southeast of Prestonsburg, Floyd County, Kentucky has been adversely affected by past coal mining practices to wit:

a. Said land, proximate to the waters of Big Sandy in the vicinity of Prestonsburg, Floyd County, Kentucky and located easterly of a point on County Road 1428 that is approximately 2.2 miles southeasterly along said County Road from its intersection with State Highway 3, and at approximate coordinates of longitude 82 degrees, 42 minutes, 32 seconds West and latitude 37 degrees, 38 minutes, 58 seconds North has been adversely affected by a landslide creating a hazardous condition to the health and safety of the public;

b. The landslide threatens several residential dwellings;

c. The proposed project will consist of exploratory drilling and, if appropriate, excavation and disposal of spoil material, drainage control, regrading and revegetation of the disturbed areas;

d. The owners of the property, where entry must be made, are David Richard Leslie and Mary A. Leslie by virtue of a deed dated May 24, 1978 and recorded in Deed Book 340, page 288 of the Floyd County, Kentucky records.

Diligent efforts have been made to secure voluntary consent for entry from the purported owner but without success. Time is of the essence and the authorities granted under Section 410, 30 U.S.C. 1240 for the protection of the public health, safety and general welfare are right and proper.

Based on the above findings, the undersigned declares that:

a. A landslide located near Prestons-

The rates currently charged by Parkway appear to be adequate except for the amount charged for any water purchased above the 10,000 gallon level. This is one area the Board feels is important to the members and will keep that foremost in our minds during the negotiations. We will ask our attorney to make a part of the condition to sell that the rates only be raised when City raises all its other rates and that the raise to Parkway be the same percentage.

In order for the sale to take place, a vote of the membership must take place. A meeting to secure the vote of the membership will be held November 1, 1984 at 7 o'clock p.m. at the Clark Elementary School. Please plan to attend this meeting at which time we can answer all your questions and secure vour vote.

burg, Floyd County, Kentucky constitutes an extreme danger threatening the public health, safety and general welfare;

b. Control and abatement of the landslide in question, a product of past coal mining activities, is necessary; and

c. No other person or agency will act expeditiously to abate the dangerous conditions.

NOW, THEREFORE, having made reasonable efforts to obtain consent from the surface owners prior to entry upon the property, the United States of America, acting by and through the Department of the Interior, Office of Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement, its agents, employees, and contractors, shall enter upon the property referenced in paragraph 2a above, and shall do all things necessary and expedient to protect the public health, safety, and general welfare. Such entry will begin on or about September 24, 1984 and continue until the work necessary to abate the danger is completed. Such entry shall be construed as an exercise of police power and shall not be construed as an act of condemnation of property nor of trespass thereon. Pursuant to the provisions of Section 410, the moneys expended for such work and the benefits accruing to the property as entered upon shall be chargeable against the land and shall mitigate or offset any claim in or any action brought by the owner of any interest in the land for any alleged damages by virtue of such entry; provided, however, that this provision is not intended to create new rights of action or eliminate existing immunities.

Notice is further given that, as a result of such abatement and reclamation efforts, the value of the surface estate may be enhanced; if so, Section 408 of the Surface Mining Control and Reclamation Act of 1977, U.S.C. 1238, provides for the possible institution of a lien against the property interest to secure any such increase in value for the United States of America.
