THE VIEW DOWN the new Cliff road, looking between roadcuts on broad stretches of bottomland, seems to have opened up the Cliff area visually as well as physically providing improved access to the community. The road, which extends six-tenths of a mile from KY 1428 to the Stephens Branch road, is a joint project of the state and city of Prestonsburg and is being built at a cost of $810,588. Required by federal officials as a condition of funding for the Cliffside housing project there, it is also hoped the road will encourage industrial development of the area.

Official Parley On Police Probe Again Postponed

Cancellation of a meeting scheduled last Friday between state and local officials has again raised questions here about when-or if-the findings of a state police investigation into a former Floyd county administration will be presented to a grand jury.

Some Floyd officials are also concerned that the repeated delays in winding up the investigation could make prosecution difficult should a grand jury return any indictments as a result of the probe

PREDICTION:

Neither President Reagan nor Walter Mondale will smile as often-we might say, as continually-today as they did during the campaign. For one there'll be nothing to smile about; for the other it will be a combination of jaw-tiredness and a feeling that it's time to get serious.

Because the camera doesn't lie and is impervious to all blandishments, pleas and bribes to do so, I have no affinity for

If all its subjects were those unaware creatures-dogs, cats, horses, even babies-which refuse to play the hypocrite and bare the teeth in a fatuous grin, the camera would be much more acceptable. But this is not the case; human beings of grownup vintage hog the show, and the consequences are plumb discouraging. It wasn't always so. Time was when. folks faced the lens, ramrod straight, jaws clenched, with neither smirk nor smile, as if facing the firing squad. But that sort of grim tableau usually wound up as much a washout as our presentday efforts to crack the makeup with a smile spreading from here to there.

Parkway Water Sale To City System Seen

Only eight of the water district's 154 customers showed up to vote but, of them, seven said it was time to sell.

The vote last Thursday means that the Parkway Water Association-organized 10 years ago to serve Middle Creek residents-will probably sell its distribution system to Prestonsburg Utilities, the city system from which it presently buys its water.

Prestonsburg Utilities Superintendent Bill H. Howard said this week that the city system has indicated it would be willing to take over the Middle Creek system for the price of the relatively small debt still due on it.

Of the Farmers Home Ad

Customers have read their own meters and the commissioners have taken care of any maintenance that needed to be done. But, as the system ages, maintenance is becoming more burdensome, noted Holly Leach, a water specialist with the Water Resources Assistance Corporation (WRAC).

Prestonsburg's purchase of the Parkway system would offer no immediate relief to residents to the west of that system's boundary, said Howard. A group representing residents from Rough and Tough west to the Magoffin county line approached the state Public Service Commission in February with a view to establishing a water district there. But Howard said that water lines could be extended to that area only if the

Anti-Abortion Group Trains Workers For Counseling Service

REV. JIM SAVELY

About 80 people turned out for a presentation at the First Baptist Church at Allen last Friday by the Rev. Jim Savely-an associate of the Rev. Jerry Falwell, nationally-known for his TV ministry and support for conservative political causes-who described his organization two years ago of a ministry to provide alternatives to abortion for women with unwanted pregnancies.

The presentation was part of an effort by a group newly-organized here to provide a similar service in this area.

A training day was held Saturday for those participating in the counseling and support program and another, shorter session is scheduled for this Saturday, Nov. 10, beginning at 10 a.m.

"We were relieved to see the turnout," said Arnold Turner, Jr., one of the organizers of Alternatives, Inc. Already, enough people have signed up to enable the service to get under way, although more volunteers are needed, he said.

With votes from all 48 Floyd precincts tallied-including absentee ballots-Mondale was ahead here by 10,259 votes to 5218.

In the U.S. Senate race, which was proving a cliffhanger statewide, Walter 'Dee" Huddleston was well ahead of Republican challenger Mitch McConnell here-10.278 votes to 3346.

The warmly contested race for school board member on Left Beaver Creek ended with veteran board member Dr. Mary Hall (1459) defeating Henry "Doug" Bailey (1396)-a difference of only 63 votes.

A proposal to amend the state constitution to allow sheriffs to be re-elected for successive terms was narrowly defeated by voters in this county-3305 voting in favor, 4627 voting nayalthough the measure was expected to fare better across the state.

Bear Hollow will continue to be split between Floyd and Johnson counties, a proposal to cede it to Johnson county failing by a small margin. 3383 votes were cast in favor of the measure, 3438 against

Right of Search Issue in Case The propriety of a search will be at issue in the trial of two carnival workers arrested on the grounds of Prestonsburg grade school during the recent Jenny Wiley Festival, their attorney indicated last week Tery R. Warner, 28, of Reedsville, Ohio, was charged with trafficking in marijuana on October 11. Prestonsburg auxiliary police officer Bobby Carpenter said he peered into a van parked near the Snyder Amusements carnival which was then operating on the school grounds and saw Warner splitting a quantity of marijuana into smaller parcels City police officers searched the van, confiscating the pot and also a 9 mm. pistol from which the serial number had been erased. The owner of the van, Benny L. Branham, 33, of Pomeroy, Ohio, was charged with possession of a defaced firearm.

Hollie Conley, Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen, and County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., was apparently intended to work out a procedure for presenting to a grand jury the results of a year-and-a-half inquiry into the financial management of the county in 1982.

County Attorney Turner, who called for the investigation on March 3, 1983 after a report by the state Local Finance office alleged various irregularities in the county's financial practices, said he was notified by the attorney-general's office Tuesday that Friday's meeting was cancelled. The meeting was not rescheduled, he said.

Commonwealth's Attorney Allen said he got word Thursday from Barbara Whaley, who has been named special prosecutor in the case, that the planned meeting was off. Mrs. Whaley was not available this week for comment on the cancellation.

Clarification

Criticism he directed at the prosecution for its handling of the case of former circuit court bookkeeper Delores Calhoun was aimed at the state auditor's department, not at the office of Floyd Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen, Phillip Damron, Mrs. Calhoun's attorney, explained this week.

'The Commonwealth's attorney was fair with us," said Damron, "but everything I said about the auditors stands. They basically handled the prosecution; they were the ones who presented the case to the grand jury." Dismissal of charges against Mrs. Calhoun is anticipated in the light of her recently passing a lie-detector test. Damron's criticism of the zeal with which his client was prosecuted was reported in a story in last week's edition of The Times.

group is able to get federal grant funds. Meanwhile, two other districts that do have government money are reportedy hoping to advertise for construction bids within the next few months.

Some "paperwork" remains to be done before the city of Martin is ready to seek a builder for its new water treatment plant and distribution system, for which $1.4 million in grant and loan money has been set aside, Miss Leach said.

A project that has been at least four years in the planning, construction on the Martin system may be ready to bid before Christmas and is expected to take about a year to complete, she said.

Paperwork is also slowing progress on the water system planned for Prater Creek, Commissioner Ervin Akers said recently. The project, to be financed by grant-loan package totalling $1 million, is now in the hands of a Cincinnati bond attorney, he said.

It needs the help of businesses, in particular, as it plans the founding here of a Business Crime Watch designed to check the loss of thousands of dollars a year to shoplifters.

Police Chief Sam Fletcher announced this week that one of the first steps toward establishing the Crime Watch will be a meeting at 7 p.m. tomorrow (Thursday) at the Prestonsburg Municipal building.

"We're asking that a representative from each business in Prestonsburg attend this meeting," Fletcher said. Working together, we can save thousands of dollars lost to shoplifters each year here in Prestonsburg.

Women Accused by Employer Winners of Damage Awards

If employers have a dispute with their workers over a debt, swearing out criminal warrants against them is not the way to go about resolving it. That is the lesson to be drawn from awards given three women by a Floyd district court jury last week, said an attorney for two of the women.

Nola Ritchie, of the Knott county community of Fisty, was awarded $2500-the maximum award possible in district court-and Charlotte Combs and Irene Coots, both of Viper in Perry county, will each receive $1300 as a result of their suit alleging malicious prosecution on the part of The Vacuum Cleaner Company, located until recently at the junction of US 23 and KY 80 at Water Gap.

Named as defendants were James Collins, Glenna Collins, Tim Collins and Edith Collins, partners in the unincorporated vacuum cleaner firm, sometimes identified as The Kirby Company

The three housewives first became involved with the firm in August, 1983, when they answered an advertisement in the Hazard Shopper Stopper for appliance sales trainees, to start at $983 a month. They were given to understand, they said, that they got paid as long as they each demonstrated the Kirby Heritage vacuum cleaner 60 times during the month. But the written contract they signed implied they were on their own, without any guaranteed salary.

Sales of the vacuum cleaner-which is valued at from $650 to $1000, depending on the number of attachments included-were dismal. While the three women said they logged three demonstrations a day, five days a week, they sold only one cleaner among them.

When they put in for their month's pay, they were denied it; in turn, they held on to the vacuum cleaners they had been using for demonstrations.

That prompted James Collins to swear out warrants accusing them of theft and ordering the sheriff to pick up the cleaners. The theft charges were later dismissed in district court here, but not before all three women were hauled off to the county jail and one of them-Mrs. Ritchie-was lodged there for more than two hours.

seeking the $983 they say they were guaranteed for their month's work, $1000 each for the vacuum cleaner company's alleged fraud in switching the terms of its agreement, and $1000 each for malicious prosecution.

the jury ordered that Mrs. Combs and Mrs. Coots be each paid $300; Mrs. Ritchie, about whose work there was conflicting testimony, was awarded nothing on that score. All three were awarded $500 in punitive damages. And all were

IT WAS A DIRTY JOB, but somebody had to do it! The pieeating contest, one of many activities of this year's Betsy Layne Harvest Festival, found most contestants looking like Christi Stumbo, shown here giving it her all. The festival, held Thursday through Sunday, marked the fifth year of the event.

A Martin pediatrician who was dropped recently from the staff of Our Lady of the Way Hospital filed suit against the hospital last week, claiming he was unaware of the policy he was accused of violating and that he was insulted by hospital nurses

Dr. Gopal Majmundar, a native of India, lost his staff privileges after a committee of his colleagues found, in a June 7 hearing, that he was guilty on four occasions of breaching hospital policy. The committee's findings were later upheld by the hospital's board of directors.

In a suit filed in Floyd Circuit Court, Majmundar-who is commonly known as Dr. Gopal-claims the hospital acted arbitrarily and maliciously in sacking him. Because he is unable to use the hospital, which is next door to his home and office, his practice is losing $3000 a month, he claims in his suit. He also seeks to recover $100,000 for damage allegedly done to his professional reputation and $200,000 in punitive damages.

In three of the charges against him, Majmundar was accused of treating patients in the hospital emergency room himself instead of deferring to the physician on call as hospital policy requires. He admitted one of the patients to Highlands Regional Medical Center, even though there were beds available at the Martin hospital, it was said.

Majmundar said he was unaware of the hospital policy and that in treating the patients, and admitting one of them to Highlands, he was following patients' wishes.

The same is true of his decision to transfer a newborn baby from Our Lady of the Way to Cabell-Huntington Hospital last April, the doctor said. He requested the transfer because the baby's mother "said the nurses can't take care of her here," Majmundar told the medical staff executive committee. But the idea that the nurses could not take care of the baby was first suggested by Majmundar himself, and in the presence of the baby's family, protested nurses Cindy Kidd and Virginia Hall.

The nurses "are insulting me," the doctor replied.

Majmundar is represented in the suit by Paintsville attorney G.C. Perry, III; the hospital, which is operated by the Sisters of Charity, is represented by Ross E. Wales, of the Cincinnati law firm of Taft, Stettinius and Hollister. In another suit filed here last week, the Mac Mining Company, of Pikeville, seeks $344,359 in damages from Prestonsburg coal operator Edgar Jones and German Stumbo, of McDowell, a contract miner who once worked for Jones.

The defendants are currently facing prison terms as a result of their convic tion in U.S. District Court last May of conspiracy to drive the Ray Mac mine out of business. The East McDowell stripmine was the target of several days

Jehovah's Witnesses Plan Special Assembly

The Allen Congregation of Jehovah's Witnesses is now making plans to attend another one of their semiannual circuit assemblies, November 24 and 25, according to Meredith Spurlock, local spokesman. This two-day seminar will be held at the Raleigh County Armory located on Route 19.

The entire program will focus attention on the theme "Repudiating Ungodliness and Worldly Desires". The talks, demonstrations and round table discussions will help all in attendance to see why this is so important. Some 1,500 delegates from twenty-four congregations in Kentucky, Virginia and West Virginia will be in attendance. Each morning the program will begin at 9:55 and conclude at 4 in the afternoon.

One of the highlights of the two-day meeting is the baptism and talk on Saturday morning at 11:30. The District Overseer, James A. Hinderer, from the world headquarters in Brooklyn, New York, will deliver the public talk at 2 on Sunday afternoon on the subject, "War At Armageddon-Is It Near? What Will It Mean?" Donald Frager, Circuit Supervisor, will present information directly intended to alert the family to the many dangers present today in a world full of ungodly desires.

According to Mr. Spurlock, "The program is open to the public and there is no collection taken.'

No tampering was uncovered during last year's x-raying of candy, either. While Addington was happy about that, he added, "We shouldn't let our guard down just because all our x-rays so far have been negative. Parents should continue to check their children's candy every year."

HRMC donated the labor and facilities involved in x-raying the candy, while the E.I. Dupont Company again donated the film.

Your Chance To Be Heard

If mere talk is a reliable barometer, it may be confidently assumed that almost everybody is interested in the young people of Kentucky and, particularly, in improved chances of their education.

Now, with better schools a statewide issue, these same people will be given the opportunity to be heard at "town meetings" scheduled in almost every county of the state. (The Floyd county meeting will be held on the evening of Thursday, Nov. 15, at Allen Central High School.)

This is Floyd county's opportunity to speak out. How well this meeting is attended and how constructive the statements made there will pretty well establish how deep and sincere is our interest in education.

We would hope that these public forums in the various counties will not deteriorate into name-calling or bitter reminiscences of individual failures to promote education. Rather, we think, these meetings should be opportunities for citizens—most of them parents, perhaps—to state as plainly as they can what they would like for schools, teachers, curricula, teaching practices, discipline, the like, to be.

Eventually, we as taxpayers will be asked to demonstrate that we are willing to invest in such a program. That is the so-called "bottom line." These town meetings are the necessary prelude to future action for better schools and better-educated citizens, and we should answer "present" for this important roll-call.

Why Town Forums On Education?

By ROBERT F. SEXTON, Executive Director

Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence

Education has been a much-discussed topic for the last few years. How often have you heard someone say, "The problem with the schools isn't so much what to do, it's how to do it"? And how often have you heard "people get the schools they deserve; schools just won't improve until people get involved and show they care"?

Both statements are fundamental to improving education in Kentucky. Coming up with good ideas isn't easy, but many sincere people are trying. Much has already been accomplished by Governor Collins, Superintendent McDonald and the 1984 General Assembly. Now Governor Collins has a Council on Educational Reform, Superintendent McDonald has a Committee for a New Direction, members of the General Assembly have been working on new ideas since before the last legislative session; and our citizens' committee, the Chamber of Commerce, and groups of school teachers, parents and many local school officials have been concerned for some time.

But when the time arrives for turning ideas, no matter how good they are, into reality, "how to do it" becomes the big challenge. Yet the solution is right in front of us—to create change people really do have to show that they care and they do have to get involved.

The first step is for people to come together in their communities to think about and talk about, and then to do something about, their own schools. To encourage this local discussion we are working with the Governor and Superintendent of Public Instruction and many groups and businesses which are concerned about Kentucky education to organize "town forums" all across Kentucky.

These forums will be held at 7:30 p.m. Eastern time on Thursday, November 15. One hundred seventy-five school districts, out of a total of one hundred eighty-four, have committed to have meetings. Parents and citizens, teachers and school officials, business people and others will gather to talk about what we really want our schools to be doing.

This meeting is just the first step toward engaging the public in the schools. If these first town forums go well and if enough people care, they will continue through local commitment into 1985 and beyond. Real reform will take time.

Educational improvement will come only when people prove, especially to those running the schools and those in elected office, that they care enough to act. Our Governor and legislators must hear that their efforts for education are supported. And the cynics must have that challenge that "people get the schools they deserve" answered with "we want good schools, and we're going to get them!"

Find out about your town meeting—help organize it—attend it. Your school superintendent will probably know the details about your town forum. Or you can call or write us and we will tell you who is organizing the town meeting in your area. We can be reached at (606) 233-9849 or (606) 885-6902 or at P.O. Box 1658, Lexington, Kentucky 40592.

day, attorney Gary Johnson persuaded the court to reduce the original felony charge against Warner to a misdemeanor, since the amount of marijuana seized—about seven ounces—is less than the eight ounces required for a felony.

The facts that his clients are from out of town, are carnival workers, and that the carnival was located on school grounds—a cause of some public ire here—should not be held against them, Johnson said.

Moreover, the police search may have been illegal because it was conducted without a warrant, he said. "This van is his residence, his home, his castle. He is entitled not to have it searched unless there is a warrant," the lawyer argued.

But District Judge Harold Stumbo, noting that a police officer claimed the marijuana was visible to anyone looking in the van window, said the officer "can walk around, search and arrest on the basis of what sees."

A pre-trial hearing is scheduled for the two defendants on Dec. 3.

to be called off at short notice, and some Floyd officials are known to be concerned that the delays may make it harder for a grand jury to conduct its own investigation and for the prosecution to prove its case if any indictments are returned.

As it is, the one-year statute of limitations precludes prosecution of any alleged misdemeanors turned up by the probe. If it turns out that—as a result of fraud, misfeasance or misappropriation—the county has grounds for a civil claim against anybody, it would need to be pressed without delay, the county attorney said. And the reliability of witnesses who might be called either by the grand jury or the prosecution in the course of criminal proceedings is often diminished with the passage of time, he noted.

"If there are crimes to be prosecuted, delays don't help the case. Memories get fuzzy," said Turner. "And the other side of it is, if there has been no wrongdoing, the air needs to be cleared. It needs to be put to rest."

Murder Victim's Husband, Estate Named in Action

A suit filed by the First Commonwealth Bank seeks the sale of property belonging to Clyde Douglas Marshall and the estate of the late Glenda S. Marshall in settlement of a $639 debt. Marshall borrowed $5306 in May, 1983, and he and his wife borrowed a further $10,132 the following month, but made no payments on the loans, the suit says.

The monies the Marshalls borrowed from First Commonwealth were repaid by an insurance company, except for the sum the bank seeks to recover, in the present suit.

Mrs. Marshall was bludgeoned to death in June, 1983 and her body was pushed over Sizemore Mountain, near Minnie, in a burning car. Her husband was acquitted of a charge of conspiring to have her murdered. His younger brother, Bobby Gene McGuffey, is serving a life sentence after pleading guilty to the murder.

New Flag May Fly For Veterans Day

A new flag will soon be flying over the downtown area of Prestonsburg, fulfilling a dream of the Kiwanis Club to recognize Veterans of the Vietnam war from this area, and to provide a patriotic focus for the community. The flagpole is presently being constructed and will be installed at the west end of Court Street. It is hoped that the flag can fly for the first time on Veterans Day, which will be this Sunday (Nov. 11).

A dedication ceremony for the flag will be held on the following Saturday, Nov. 17, at 2 p.m., to which the entire Floyd county community is invited. All veterans, and particularly those of the Vietnam War, are encouraged to come for the ceremony. The Prestonsburg High School Band will play, and there will be a brief dedication service.

The flag for the community has been provided by the Citizenship Committee of the Kiwanis Club, under the leadership of "Huck" Francis. President of the club is Tim Hites.

For Better Morals

Since reading the last edition of The Times and hearing many comments from Christian people and good citizens, I feel impelled to try to force my arthritic hand into writing a letter that expresses the "shock" of many in our community and, we hope, in other communities of Floyd county.

We appreciate and encourage the suggestions of Mrs. Sandra Conn Howell, in the last issue, concerning the "Cloud Over the Jenny Wiley Festival." It really is sad that a festival could not be one o enlighten children of their Heritage. The bands, floats, etc., are a great contribution toward that and possibly many other fine things were a part, also.

We join Mrs. Howell in her suggestions that a carnival was not exactly conducive to the education of children or to the purpose of the Festival.

My latest concern is the front page article "Male Strippers at Auxier Club Get Clean Bill," when our Sheriff said that he found "nothing out of the way, at all." From what we oldsters have seen on television before we can cripple to the set to turn it off, we question Mr. Hale's judgment and his purpose.

As for the mix-up about roadhouse licenses, when, since the 1940's, was the ruling voided by the county or the state? At that time, and for several years after, my husband and I operated a gas station and short order luncheonette, on Rt. 23, feeding school children and sober people with nothing stronger to drink than coffee and soda pop. One day I was approached while working alone, by a man who carried the proper identity (apparently), saying that we would have to buy a "Roadhouse License," to which I replied that we did not run a roadhouse. He based his demand on the fact that we had a music box, which, we were careful to choose proper records for. Later, we did away with the music, rather than buy a roadhouse license.

I'm telling our experience to raise the question: When was the requirement for Road House voided and why did it just begin being in force again in January, 1984? Why are those "Party Places" and liquor stores and beer joints, not being policed by Floyd county sheriff's deputies instead of good citizens being forced to call upon state policemen to sometimes protect their homes from the overflow, from such places?

People were promised protection, if the last local option was voted wet. Well, it was voted wet by those who were (misled) and those who didn't bother to vote.

Are we Christian people and the good citizens going to accept "drunk driving" from liquor and drugs and say nothing in defense of our young people by sitting idly by? Some organizations are doing their best to fight drugs and alchol. The school system is seemingly, trying to help, too.

I, though disabled to attend meetings, can express my views and those of other senior citizens, and the Christians can pray for those who sell and those who partake of alcohol and drugs. Also, we can pray for and appeal to county and state officials to enforce the laws we have with tougher (unreduced) sentences for "drunken drivers also appeal to our Senators and Representative to check the state laws. The case of the young couple recently killed at Harold, while on their way to a Bible Camp, by a drunken driver should make us "sit up and think" and surely pray, Let us pray and encourage our officials! I write this because I'm interested and others are interested in the "decrease of crime" in Floyd county and our state as well as in the whole Nation and the whole world. ANGELINE S. GEORGE Betsy Layne, Ky.

Gov. Collins Suggests People Get Involved

On November 15, the Prichard Committee will take another important step in opening discussions on the future of education in Kentucky. I would like to ask for your personal support in making the people of Kentucky aware of how critical their involvement is in its success

The committee's "Town Forums," to be held at 130 locations across Kentucky, will give local citizens the opportunity to become involved in education discussions at the grass roots level. The forums will make it possible for every Kentuckian-not just educators-to express his or her views about our educational system.

As I have repeatedly said, educational improvement in this state must begin with support on the local level. Only at the local level can we develop the interest, the concern, and the support for a new commitment to education in Kentucky.

The more people who participate in the town forums, the more successful they will be. The more people who participate, the wider the range of views the Prichard Committee will hear. I would like to ask you, as a leader of community opinion and concern, to encourage your friends, neighbors, and-yesreaders, to take part in these important meetings.

Only through an informed and involved populace will we be able to bring about the improvements so necessary for our children

Employ the Handicapped

President Reagan has proclaimed Oct. 7-13 as National Employ the Handicapped Week this year. And the Disabled American Veterans (DAV) hope you'll devote some of your editorial space to this public awareness effort during this week-long observance.

Having lost a leg in Vietnam, the goals of National Employ the Handicapped Week are important to me. They're important to 2.2 million other disabled veterans and another 30 million handicapped Americans. Though we can do the same job as similarly qualified nondisabled people in nearly every instance, we face employment discrimination all too often.

Please help us break down the negative and unrealistic attitudes that have created this discrimination.

RONALD W. DRACH National Employment Director Disabled American Veterans

Yea, Blackcats! We, the fans, would like to take this opportunity to congratulate the Prestonsburg Blackcat football team on their fine season. Friday night they were gracious and courageous in defeat as they have been all year in victory. Congratulations also to our coaching staff. To Coach Williams, you gave us an exciting season packed with surprises and fine coaching. We know it's been a hard first year, but we hope it was worth it. Also thanks to Wimpy Clark, Gordie Johnson and John Goble. You've done a great job with this team.

There is a special group of boys that we, unfortunately, have to say goodbye to. They are all fine kids and we will miss them: Mike Gunter, A.O. Onkst, James Little, Bill Tom Moore, Mark Bays, Gordie Ratliff, Sean Dotson and Chris Hooker. A special note on three of these boys: Gordie Ratliff, Sean Dotson and Chris Hooker. Gordie was injured for most of the season and had to be hospitalized. I know how hard this was for him. As for Sean and Chris, Friday night both were injured and didn't dress out. But at halftime we were down, and these boys tried to dress out. Sean's knee was very swollen, and he couldn't get his equipment on. Chris did dress, without the coach's knowledge, and came onto the field early in the third quarter. This took tremendous courage. Chris' unselfish act brought tears to a lot of loyal fans in the stands.

Also the band, majorettes, flag girls and cheerleaders did a fine job of entertaining the fans and keeping moral high. Thanks.

We look forward to a great group of freshmen, sophomores, and juniors for next year and hope we can have an even better year.

Thank You

I, along with the Red, White and Blue Day Committee, want to thank everyone for helping make the 15th annual Red, White and Blue Day a great success. Special thanks to the City of Martin for the use of their town.

The date for the next year's event-1985-is Saturday, Oct. 19.

The 14-ft. international stiltwalker, Uncle Sam, was on his way to perform at Red, White and Blue Day, but due to car problems in Columbus, Ohio, he had to cancel out. But hopefully, he will be here in 1985

An Auxier man was seriously wounded early Saturday morning as he reportedly entered the home of another Auxier resident.

The wounded man was listed by Kentucky State Police as Ervin Ginther, about 20. He was shot in the lower abdomen by a bullet fired, State Police said, by James (Dee) Caudill, whose home Ginther was entering at about 4 a.m. He was taken to the Highlands Regional Hospital, where his condition was described Tuesday as "stable."

No arrest had been made and no charge had been filed Tuesday, it was said. State Detective Fred Bailey investigated the shooting.

Panel Near Model Code of Conduct In State Schools

An advisory council is putting the finishing touches on a code of student. conduct that will serve as a model for codes to be developed in the state's 180 local school districts.

Members of the Kentucky Council on Student Discipline reviewed and recommended changes in a draft of the proposed code at a meeting in Frankfort on Oct. 29

The meeting was the last scheduled for the council, which was appointed by Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald in response to legislation approved by the 1984 General Assembly

McDonald said a revised version of the model code, incorporating suggestions and additions proposed at the meeting, would be sent to members for their approval and comments before being submitted to the State Board of Education later this month.

Chief Judge Julia Adams of the Clark-Madison district, who heads the council, noted that the requirements spelled out in the model code "are merely recommendations and guidelines" for the codes of conduct to be developed by local districts

Under the legislation, Senate Bill 26, the discipline guidelines are to be sent to local districts by Jan. 1, after their approval by the state board. Under a procedure provided in the guidelines, local districts are to form committees to write their own codes of student conduct.

After approval by the local board of education, each code will be reviewed by the state board to verify its compliance with the broad guidelines of the model code.

The target date for implementing local codes is September, 1985. The legislation calls for distribution of the local codes to all students and parents in the district.

The guidelines recommend steps to orient each school and community to the code, saying, "The objective is to have all participants understand that discipline is an integral component of education and to appreciate the code's contribution to an orderly learning environment.

In addition to recommending procedures and content for local codes, the model code spells out student rights and responsibilities and deals with such issues as corporal punishment, criminal violations, repeated infractions, suspension and expulsion.

Objectives of the discipline code, as given in a foreword, include a reduction in dropouts, improvement of school climate and effectiveness, improvement of teachers' morale, increased student self-control and greater involvement of parents and the community in local schools

The guidelines provide that schools with existing codes of student conduct can have those codes reviewed by local committees and either submit them in their present form, if they meet the guidelines, or modify them to meet the guidelines before submitting them to the state board for approval.

Worth Support, Not Holy War By RON MARSTIN

Anyone with any doubts that it's a human life that is ended by abortion should have been at the First Baptist Church in Allen Friday night.

Alternative to Abortion...

The 80-or-so who watched "A Matter of Choice" saw, in unsparing close-ups, tiny bodies dismembered by suction or burned to a candy-apple sheen by saline injected into the mother's womb. Human bodies. Recognizably, inescapably human.

Some wept. Others endured with stomachs churning in incredulity and revulsion. When the call went out for people willing to take up the fight, many came forward. The first recruits in the newly-organized Alternatives, Inc., they would be trained the next day in how to counsel young women, unwed and pregnant, who might otherwise have recourse to an abortion clinic.

The Rev. Jim Savely, an associate of the Rev. Jerry Falwell and director of the Save-A-Baby Ministry, assured them they were part of a "snowballing" movement. There are already 191 groups like theirs in the U.S., he said. If a thousand such groups could be organized, and if each could reach 500 "girls" a year, that would be half a million abortions derailed, one-third of all abortions recorded in this country each year.

Who could quarrel with such a goal? As Savely put it, "even the liberals can't come against us" for something as obviously decent as helping desperate young women see their pregnancies through to term.

In fact, the growth of groups like Savely's will not sit comfortably with everyone. Those whose uppermost concern is that the woman be helped to make a truly free choice-assured equal encouragement whether her decision is to abort or continue her pregnancy-will worry about the bias in counseling offered by organizations committed firmly to the "pro-life" choice.

And some may find Savely's benevolence overly paternalistic and sectarian. Only a certified illness will excuse from church services the "little girls" he shelters in his Lynchburg, Va. home for unwed mothers. And their babies, he boasts, will be placed only in homes of "born-again Christians, involved in a Bible-believing church.

But organizers of Alternatives, Inc. point out that, while they will gladly accept help where they can get it, theirs is not a Falwell ministry. Nor do they make any apology for their pro-life prejudice, which they offer as a counterweight to the pro-abortion bias in much "birth control" counseling.

The question of what choices should be open to a woman with an unwanted pregnancy is one of the most divisive issues of our times. It is an area where strategies commanding across-theboard support are rare. Alternatives, Inc. proposes to make it as easy as possible for a woman facing a decision about abortion-often an unwed teenager-to carry her fetus to term, to raise the baby, or put it up for adoption. Surely that is a proposal that most, even of those on the other side of the abortion watershed, can support. The same cannot be said of the crude propaganda movie with which this compassionate cause was launched. Savely's coy warning Friday night that the sight of an undraped woman might not be suitable for young viewers missed the point. It was not the sex that made "A Matter of Choice" offensive: it was the violence. Not just the inherent violence of abortion, either-the movie's legitimate point-but the calculated bullying of a filmmaker wielding his art like a club. That sort of thing is done by both sides, of course. The case for liberalized abortion laws can be made with scenes of carnage-spreadeagled women, their insides lacerated by butchers with coathangers-as bloody as anything produced by the pro-life side. But propaganda, however effective in drumming up enthusiasm for a cause. is no way to find a solution to one of the nation's most unyielding social dilemmas

Even when it focuses on a truth, as "A Matter of Choice" surely does, it does so only by ignoring other truths, belittling other viewpoints, denying any real clash of values. The issue is cast as a showdown between the godly and damned, with total victory for the godly the only acceptable outcome.

It is naive to think the abortion issue will be disposed of so cleanly. However much we might hope for a less ambiguous solution, we have no alternative but to work out a balance between the rights of fetuses to live and the rights of women to control their own lives.

Alternatives, Inc. deserves support in its efforts to help some of the women caught up in this painful dilemma. Many more might rally to its cause if, in doing so, they are not asked to take sides in a holy war.

Prosecutor Moves To Have Charge Dropped Stolen property charges against Prestonsburg pawnbroker Edward Kuss will apparently be dismissed in circuit court here on a motion of the prosecutor. Kuss was accused in March this year of having three microwave ovens and two stereos stolen from Mountain Mobile Homes in Paintsville. But Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen said inquiries Kuss had made of a city police officer prior to his arrest suggested that he did not intentionally receive stolen property.

THE GREAT PUMPKIN? Martha Murphy, Food Service Supervisor at Highlands Regional Medical Center, carries the last tray of goodies into the Bank Josephine for a Halloween party catered by HRMC. What looks like a large pumpkin is actually a punch bowl. Watching are HRMC Security Guard Charlie Bumgardner and Bank Josephine Customer Service Representative Sandy Wilson (in costume for the upcoming party).

Highlands Regional Medical Center is now offering a catering service to businesses and individuals in its service area.

Although HRMC remains a not-for-profit medical facility, basic changes in the industry are forcing hospitals across the country to look for new ways to generate revenue, according to Highlands Regional Administrator Clarence C. Traum. "One way is to offer some of our non-medical services to the community, priced in such a way as to produce some additional revenue," Traum said. "Catering is a good example. We have the facilities, because our cafeteria must produce literally hundreds and hundreds of meals a day. We have the expertise, as just about anyone who's tried our fare will tell you. We have the manpower. Everything we need to offer quality catering is here, so why not use it?

The most recent non-hospital event catered by HRMC was the Bank Josephine's employee Halloween party. "The food was delicious," said Vice President Wanda Caldwell. "It was really good. They were right on time, and they planned very well. We had exactly the right amount of food, with everyone getting what they wanted and without us paying for food that went to waste. We were very pleased.'

'Swore To Tell the Truth' ... Man Says He Lives by Stealing

Arraigned before Judge Harold Stumbo in district court here Friday, Jeff Mullins, 24, of Ligon, took the oath and gave predictable answers to the standard questions asked of defendants needing court-appointed lawyers: no, he had no money, no job, no income, no car, no savings.

"Then how do you live?" the judge inquired.

'I steal," came the reply.

"What do you think of someone who comes before the court and savs he steals for a living?" the judge asked of the small courtroom audience. "Well, he asked me," Mullins answered, "and I swore to tell the truth.

Mullins is accused of helping Randy Crisp steal guns and jewelry from the home of Darrell Prater. Also appearing in court with him Friday was Jeff Murphy, 19, of Wayland, who is charged with stealing guns and a stereo from Lloyd Shepherd and tools from Tommy Terry. He also faces a charge of possessing marijuana.

Both men, who appeared in court wearing ankle chains, were returned to the county jail pending preliminary hearings to be set within 10 days.

American Bee Industry Endangered by Disease

The U.S. Department of Agriculture wide distribution prompted officials to has called for a nationwide effort to prevent the spread of a foreign disease that threatens honey bees.

The potential significance of the problem goes far beyond a limited supply of honey. Honey bees are estimated to pollinate more than half the food crops grown in the U.S.

Acarine mite disease, is caused by microscopic pests that live inside the bees themselves, restricting their breathing and limiting their ability to Affected bees are not able to gather food for the colony and entire swarms may starve during the winter if a sufficient number of bees in the hive are suffering from the disease.

The disease was first discovered in England in 1921. In 1922 the U.S. passed the Honeybee Act which prohibited the importation of honey bees from any country other than Canada.

Since 1921, however, the disease has spread throughout Europe, parts of Asia and most of South and Central America. The disease was first discovered in the U.S. on July 3, 1984 in Wesalco, Texas. it is presumed that the disease entered the U.S. from Mexico where it is widespread.

Authorities have monitored the disease since July 1984 and recently discovered it in Florida New York call for a nationwide sampling of bee hives to determine the exact extent of the disease in the U.S.

Dr. Rudy Scheibner, assistant state entomologist and Extension entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, is coordinating the sampling among Kentucky beekeepers.

"We will examine 5,000 bees collected from across Kentucky. With cooperation from beekeepers and beekeeper associations, we are gathering samples of 100 bees from each of 50 hives. We will be gathering bees from large operations and from hobbyists with only a few hives. The bees will then be sent to U.S.D.A. laboratories in Beltsville, Md. where they will be examined for the presence of the microscopic mites," Scheibner said.

Kentucky beekeepers notified of the problem and the program underway to control it have responded well and indicated a willingness to participate in the sampling, Scheibner said.

Hives in which the disease is discovered will be depopulated; the bees will be killed but the hive itself can be re-used.

No plans have been announced to help beekeepers for the expense of repopulating hives but Scheibner said S.D.A. is working with national

An Organization For Nutty Kentuckians

I have the pleasure of being an educational member of a very interesting and enjoyable, but not widely known, organization in Kentucky-the Kentucky Nut Growers Association. I just hosted their fall meeting at Kentucky State University and had such a good time I want to tell you about the group; many of you may wish to join.

When I say this is an organization for nutty Kentuckians, I don't mean that it is an organization for people with weird personalities. The KNGA is an organization for people who like to raise nuts and nut trees—as a hobby or to make some bucks. The association numbers in excess of 200 not only from Kentucky but also from Indiana, Tennessee, Missouri, Ohio, Illinois, West Virginia, Arkansas, Wisconsin, Oregon, Virginia, Nebraska, California, Florida, Massachusetts, North Carolina, Iowa, Michigan, and least I forget, Greece!

The purpose of the association is to provide information about nut tree culture to promote nut tree growing not only in Kentucky but also in neighboring states. Information is shared in two major ways: (1) by the quarterly newsletter, The 'Kernal', edited by Leslie Wilmoth from Elizabethtown and (2) by fall and spring meetings and summer grafting and budding workshops. All this available for the modest membership fee of $4 per year or $7 for two years (write Secretary-Treasurer Henry Converse, 2317 Seneca Lane, Paducah, Kentucky 42001 to join).

The fall and spring meetings are always fun. Held at different locations around the state on Saturdays usually in April and October, they start out with informal visiting and a potluck luncheon that from my past experience has been a gourmet delight. Then it's down to business with a business meeting and door prizes (plants, seeds and nuts donated by members).

The highlights of the fall meetings are the nut exhibits and the seedling nut contests. Members bring every type of nut that can be grown in Kentucky to display and compete for cash prizes. To the spring meeting members bring scionwood (for grafting and budding special varieties), plants, cuttings and seeds to give away and swap. It's a great way to increase plant holdings and plant knowledge.

Those of you who visit the agricultural exhibits at the State Fair have undoubtedly seen the plates of nuts entered for ribbons. Most of these nuts are entered by KNGA members, who get a preview of their competition at the association's fall meeting.

Whether you favor pecans, walnuts, filberts, Chinese chestnuts, heartnuts or hickories, you'll find other enthusiasts in the group. The KNGA is a wonderful way to meet new people, learn new information and collect new plants. Isn't it nice to know you're not the only nut around!

Timely Tip: Our warm October weather has kept our lawns growingbe sure to give them a final tidy-up mowing before cold weather comes to stay. Rake up heavy clippings and leaves to avoid smothering and killing the grass beneath.

Major Renovation Under Way To Auto Dealership Here

The purchase of the former Ken Isaacs Oldsmobile-Pontiac-Cadillac-AMC-Jeep automobile dealership here by Ed Walters, of Paintsville, along with major new construction and renovation work, represents an investment of some $2/-million, it was said this week.

Improvement work on the dealership was begun around October 1, the date of purchase of the facility, and will result in considerable enlargement of the business as well as general modernization and facelift.

Major renovation and construction includes the following

-Construction of a new, 30 X 70-ft. two-story building to be used strictly for parts

-Complete remodeling and restructuring of the service department including purchase of newest, computerized diagnostic tools and service technology

-Relocation of body shop and enlargement by three times over existing facility.

-Expansion and complete cosmetic overhaul of the front section of the dealership with enlarged showroom and new offices

In addition, a large lot, adjacent to the business has been purchased and blacktopped, and will be used for Walters' expanded line of vehicles. Another parking lot will be used for employees cars to alleviate crowding on the access street to Riverside Drive which runs beside the business.

A spokesman for the new dealership said a tentative completion date has been set for January with a hoped for grand opening the following month.

'We hope the public will bear with us while this work is being completed," he said, pointing out that 150 new vehicles are due to begin arriving within the next few days.

Receives Plaque

Mrs. Carla Boyd, Floyd County Court Clerk, was honored recently by the Auxier Hornets basketball team for her help in raising funds for the purchase of new uniforms for the team. She is pictured here with Coach Bob Castle who presented her with a plaque. To raise the needed money, Mrs. Boyd graciously agreed to become the "victim" in a dunking stool situation in which, for a fee, pitching marksmen could toss a softball at a lever which dropped the county official into a 500-gallon tank of water. Enough money was raised to purchase the uniforms as well as warm-up suits.

By RAY HOWELL

From the opening kickoff it was evident that the Hazard Bulldogs came to Blackcat country to play football, and play they did, beating the Prestonsburg Blackcats 19-14.

In first quarter action the Cat defense held on the initial drive only to find the Bulldogs breaking their defense for a Hazard touchdown. Hazard's speed and Prestonsburg's mistakes would soon dictate the outcome of the game. Hazard leading 6-0 with the two-point conversion no good, the Cats found themselves in a catch-up situation and momentum on the Hazard side.

In the second quarter Prestonsburg was plagued with three successive penalties, driving the Cat's kickoff team back five yards at a whack to find themselves kicking from their own 25-yard line. This gave the Bulldogs excellent field position as they received the kick and were downed on P-burg's 32-yard line. The Cats could not hold as Hazard drove on in for their second touchdown. The extra point was good, Hazard leading 13-0.

On the ensuing kick by Hazard to Prestonsburg, the Blackcats coughed up the ball on their own 37-yard line, again giving the Bulldogs good field position as they capitalized with their third touchdown. The extra point was no good and with 4:59 left on the clock the Cats found the Bulldogs leading 19-0.

The Blackcats came alive as John Goble handed off to James Little who charged into the endzone for Prestonsburg's first score. With a successful point-after kick, the Cats appeared to get a sign of life before the half ended and they headed to the locker room trailing for the second time this season. Score at halftime was Hazard 19, Prestonsburg 7. The third quarter was scoreless with both teams playing good defense.

Fourth quarter action found the Cats ratching hard to turn the scoreboard

Dewey's Fishery Termed "Stable"

Recent electro-fishing at Dewey Lake met with what Kerry Prather, Division of Game and Fish biologist, termed "average" results but also indicated the impoundment has a stable fish population.

(Electro-fishing administers an electric shock which stuns but does no permanent injury to fish.)

Game fish found during the study included both largemouth and Kentucky (spotted) bass, muskie, white bass, crappie and bluegill. Fishing was done during both daylight hours and at night, with night fishing producing better results.

Although no lunker bass or keeper-size (30-inch) muskie were found, Prather said he knows the lake has both. He surmised deeper fishing was perhaps needed to reach larger fish.

One find that surprised Prather and his assistants was the number of white bass turned up. The lake during recent years has been believed devoid of white bass-some were stocked there at one time in an attempt to re-establish the species in the lake-as the result of muddy water at spawning time, but the recent electric-fishing showed a sizeable spawn last spring.

The shad population, Prather said, apparently has been reduced to the point that shad is no longer "over-abundant." A population study, which involves limited chemical poisoning, may be undertaken next year, it was said.

as Pete Green caught a Goble pass for a 50-yard gain to maintain momentum for the Cats. Goble then found Mike Gunter in the endzone for the Cats' second touchdown. With the point after kick good, the score narrowed to 19-14 as time was rapidly slipping away.

The Blackcats attempted a last minute attack and moved the ball well until Hazard made a crucial interception with seconds remaining in the game.

'Carrier Watch,' Aid to Elderly

The U.S. Postal Service and the National Association of Letter Carriers with cooperation of Big Sandy ADD is implementing a program entitled Carrier Watch.

Carrier Watch is an emergency program in which the post office will notify a social service agency when elderly registrants are not emptying their mail boxes which may be an indication that they are in need of assistance.

All senior citizens 60 years of age and older living in the five counties of BSADD may join the Carrier Watch Program. These are the steps:

-The senior citizen completes the registration form listing personal details and the names of contact persons or agencies whom he or she wishes contacted in time of emergency

-The Carrier Watch Program completes a card for each registrant which is forwarded to the post office within the appropriate location.

-The registrant will be given a decal that will be placed in the mail box where only the local carrier would see it. The blue-and-white decal is visible only to the mail carrier and owner of the box.

Because the local mail carrier is usually familiar with the habits of the mail box owner, he is able to gauge an unusual accumulation of mail in any mail box marked with the decal.

If an unusual accumulation of mail is found in the marked mail box, this alerts the mail carrier to the fact that there may be an emergency. The carrier will immediately notify his local post office who in turn will notify the Carrier Watch Program at Big Sandy ADD.

A soon as the Carrier Watch Program receives a call from the local post office signaling a possible emergency, a telephone call is initiated to the Carrier Watch registrant if the person can be reached. The contact person or persons listed on the registration form are contacted and informed that an unusual accumulation of mail has been found in the registrant's mail box. If an acceptable explanation is given for the registrant's absence, this is noted and the post office is so advised. If no explanation is given. the Carrier Watch Program will send a person to the registrant's home.

If the person cannot gain access to the registrant's home and cannot establish his or her whereabouts by checking the persons nearby, the worker will call the local police to request that a police officer open the door to determine the kind of assistance the Carrier Watch registrant may need.

Floyd Unemployment at 12%

The unemployment rate in 78 Kentucky counties dropped between August and September, according to Cabinet for Human Resources figures released Oct. 31. The rate increased in 38 counties and remained the same in four

The figures reflect the statewide rate decrease, from a revised 8.7 percent in August to a preliminary 8.5 percent in September. Nationally, the rate dropped from 7.3 percent in August to 7.1 percent in September.

Forty-eight counties reported rates of 10.0 percent or above in September, the same as in August.

Bluegrass area counties continued to dominate the list of those with lowest rates. Scott and Woodford counties tried for the lowest rate, with each reporting a rate of 3.7 percent. Bourbon and Trimble counties each reported a rate of 4.0 percent, followed by Jessamine with 4.1 percent.

For the second month in a row Carter county reported the highest rate in the state, 20.4 percent. Letcher county followed with 20.1 percent.

The number of working Kentuckians was estimated to be 1,579,300, down from August's estimate of 1,579,400 but 42,900 greater than the 1,536,400 reported in September 1983.

Meanwhile, an estimated 146,000 were unemployed, down 4,600 from August's figure of 150,600 and 19,100 below the September 1983 report of 165,100.

State labor market analyst Ed Blackwell said seasonal factors caused the drop in the statewide rate. "With the reopening of schools, we showed a gain of 14,300 jobs in education," he said. 'This figure reflects the return to work of cafeteria and custodial personnel, bus drivers, and others who are not paid when school is not in session." Agricultural employment was up by 4,700, he added.

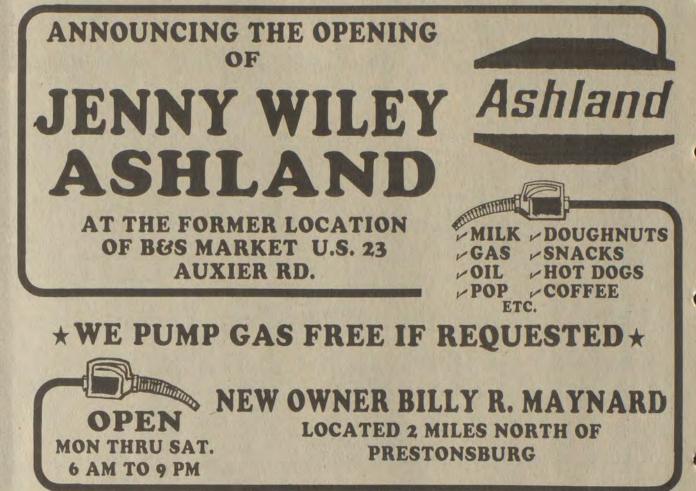

In the Big Sandy district unemployment decreased from a revised rate of 11.4 percent in August to a preliminary rate of 11.3 percent in September. Rates ranged from a low of 5.9 percent in Martin County to a high of 13.4 percent in Magoffin county, as four counties in the district reported rates above 10.0 percent. Floyd county's rate was 12 percent, as was Johnson county's. Pike county was at 11.9 percent.

The monthly sample of unemployment insurance benefits recipients in the district showed 46.3 percent had worked in mining, 14.1 percent in trade and 11.0 percent in manufacturing.

PUBLIC NOTICE. U.S. ENVIRON-MENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY Region IV, 345 Courtland Street, N.E. Atlanta, Georgia 30365, 404/881-3544 DATE: November 8, 1984. NOTICE OF A PUBLIC MEETING TO REVIEW THE PERFORMANCE OF THE COM-MONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY IN AD-MINISTERING THE STATE NPDES PROGRAM. On April 26, 1983, Governor Brown submitted to the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency, Region IV. a proposal to administer the National Pollutant Discharge Elimination System (NPDES) within the Commonwealth of Kentucky. Hearings were held in Owensboro and Lexington to receive comments from the public regarding this proposal on August 23 and 25, 1983. On September 30, 1983, the Administrator of the Environmental Protection Agency approved the request and authority to administer the NPDES program was transferred to the Commonwealth. In the letter to Governor Brown approving the transfer of the NPDES program, the Administrator stated that EPA will conduct a formal audit of the Kentucky NPDES program after one year of the Commonwealth's administration of the program and solicit public comments on the state program administration. That audit was conducted during the month of October 1984 and a draft report of the findings has been prepared. A public meeting will be held on December 13, 1984, at 7:00 p.m. in the Civic Center-Capital Plaza, 405 Mero Street, Frankfort, Kentucky, to receive public comments on the Commonwealth's administration of the NPDES program. Single copies of the draft report of the audit findings may be obtained by writing Ms. Earline Hanson at the above address. A final report will be prepared by EPA after consideration of the public comments received. Comments to the draft report or on the Commonwealth's administration of the NPDES program may be submitted at the meeting or in writing by December 31, 1984, to Ms. Earline Hanson at the above address. Section 402 of the Federal Water Pollution Control Act Amendments of 1972 created the NPDES under which the Administrator of the U.S. Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) may issue permits for the discharge of pollutants into navigable waters. Section 402(b) of that Act provides that the governor of a State desiring to administer the NPDES permit program to control discharges into waters within its boundaries may submit to EPA a complete description of the program the State intends to administer. including an opinion from the State Attorney General that State laws provide adequate authority to carry out the described program. The Administrator is required to approve each such submitted program unless it does not meet the requirements of Section 402(b) and EPA's guidelines. Among other authorities, the State must have: (1) adequate authority to require and issue permits which comply with all pertinent requirements of the Act; (2) adequate authority, including civil and criminal penalities, to abate violations of the permit; and (3) authority to ensure that the administrator, the public, or any other affected State, and other affected agencies, are given notice of each permit application and are given the opportunity for a public hearing before acting on each permit application. EPA's guidelines establishing "State Program Elements Necessary for Participation in the NPDES" were published in Volume 37 of the Federal Register, December 22, 1972, beginning at page 28390 (since then published as 40 C.F.R. Part 124). Oral statements will be received and considered; but for accuracy of the record, all testimony, if possible, should be submitted in writing. Statements should summarize extensive written material so that there will be time for all interested persons to be heard. Persons submitting written statements are encouraged to bring additional copies for the use of the panel and other interested persons. The following are other policies and procedures which shall be observed at the public meeting: (1) The Presiding Officer shall conduct the meeting in a manner that permits open and full discussion of any issues involved; (2) The Presiding Officer may, in his discretion, exclude oral testimony if such testimony is overly repetitious of previous testimony or irrelevant to the decision to continue approval or require revision of the submitted State program; (3) Members of the panel may ask questions of witnesses and respond to questions and statements of witnesses; (4) A tape recording of the meeting, together with copies of all submitted statements and documents, shall become a part of the record; and (5) The record shall be left open until December 31, 1984, to permit any person to submit additional written statement. Please bring the foregoing to the attention of persons who might be interested in this matter. It:

Rain Causes Problems As It Halts Harvest

The weather has turned the tables on Kentucky farmers, says the Kentucky Department of Agriculture. With summer's dry weather turing into a rainy fall, farmers are suffering from harvesting delays which are becoming serious.

"The corn for grain harvest is the least advanced for this date since 1967. Sovbean combining is the least advanced for this date of any year on record," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell.

Soil moisture is surplus in Western and West Central Kentucky and mostly adequate in the Eastern part of the Commonwealth.

The corn for grain harvest is 51 percent complete as compared with 70 percent a year ago.

"Fields are generally too wet to support harvesting equipment, although farmers are using 4-wheel drive combines where available. The water is standing on lower, poorly drained soil and most of the bottom-land fields are too wet," Boswell said.

Also, moisture content of the corn has remained high and a limited amount of sprouting in the fields has occurred. Corn in storage has often required artificial heat to minimize or avoid spoilage.

Approximately half of this year's crop is being held on farms for use or sale later.

The soybean harvest has made only limited progress in recent weeks as most of the soybean production takes place in the extremely wet western part of the state. The soybean harvest has progressed 20 percent as compared to the 50 percent average for the harvest.

Progress with burley tobacco also has been slowed because of the wet weather. Burley has been in very high case for almost three weeks, with too much moisture for ideal stripping and baling. Stripping had progressed to 11 percent by Oct. 28 as compared to 14 percent a year ago.

The long period of high humidity and lack of breezes has darkened early cut tobacco and slowed curing. The humidity has also caused mold on some housed tobacco.

"However," Boswell said, "burley is in relatively good condition.

Fall wheat seeding is only 40 percent complete compared with 52 percent last year. If the harvesting delays continue, some acres which had been intended for wheat will go unseeded this fall.

"It is frustrating to us that the rain we could have used during the summer is now causing such delays in harvesting. But there is one very bright spot. Pastures have improved considerably and are providing good fall grazing,' Boswell said.

EXPIRATION DATES

The expiration date on over-the-counter and prescription drugs indicates when a product should no longer be used. After that date, the medication begins to chemically break down and lose its effectiveness. Some prescription drugs, such as tetracycline can actually become toxic. One of the broken-down chemicals in outdated tetracycline can severely damage kidneys. When taking outdated drugs, such as allergy pills, symptoms may not be relieved and your doctor may pursue another, unnecessary, treatment. Over-the-counter drugs usually have an expiration date stamped on the box label. Many pharmacists type expiration dates on labels of prescription drugs. If not, ask for it.

COOLEY APOTHECARY offers complete patient profiles and plenty of free parking. Join your friends and neighbors who already rely on us and let us have the opportunity to become your pharmacy. We are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

Outstanding Kentucky high school seniors who were Governor's Scholars this summer reunited recently at the University of Kentucky. They are, from left, Dawn Koch, Maysville; Ron Lawson, Prestonsburg, and Britt Metcalfe, Harlan.

About 170 Kentucky high school seniors who participated in this year's Kentucky Governor's Scholars program visited the University of Kentucky Lexington campus Oct. 12 for Governor's Scholars Day.

This was the second group of Governor's Scholars to visit the UK campus this fall.

This second group—many accompanied by their parents—were among those Kentucky high school students who attended classes at Centre College last summer. The other group attended Eastern Kentucky University.

Bond Issue Offers Low-Interest Money For Home Building

Gov. Martha Layne Collins has announced a new single-family program through which more than 2,500 Kentucky families may be eligible to become homeowners. This program is the result of a $100,000,000 bond issue sold by the Kentucky Housing Corporation (KHC) to provide home mortgage money for low and moderate income households. "This administration is aggressively pursuing its commitment to help Kentuckians buy safe, decent, and sanitary housing at prices they will be able to afford," Governor Collins said.

To be eligible, families may have up to $25,000 gross income and may purchase a house not to exceed $46,000 in cost ($52,000 in certain Eastern Kentucky counties) and must have the ability to make the mortgage payments. In most of the state, federal law requires the applicants to be first-time homebuyers.

According to Lynn Luallen, executive director of the Kentucky Housing Corporation, "The 10.80% interest available through KHC is approximately 2.6 percentage points lower than is available in the market place for a fixed rate loan. On a $46,000 loan this is a difference of about $88 in the monthly payment."

Ruth Ann Blanton, of Prestonsburg, Region 11 vocational guidance counselor, received two outstanding counselor awards at the annual Kentucky Association of Counseling and Development meeting held in Owensboro, October 24-26. The first was the Outstanding Vocational Counselor Award; the second, the Dr. Kearney Campbell Award, which is the highest counseling award given by the association. Mrs. Blanton is the first vocational counselor to receive this award.

Both awards are given on the basis of dedication to students, professionalism, community service, attitude toward her work, membership in professional organizations, the recommendation of her superiors and other factors. Ms. Blanton is a member of the State Advisory Council for Vocational Education, the American and Kentucky Vocational Associations, Eastern Kentucky Vocational Association, Kentucky Association for Counseling and Development, Committee on Sex Equity, and other professional associations. She serves as a counselor at the Mayo State Vocational-Technical School and at the Garth and Millard Area Vocational Education Centers.

Bronelle Skaggs, vocational education regional administrator commented: "Ruth Ann Blanton is an excellent counselor. She is dedicated, competent, willing and concerned. Her first interest is helping students find the appropriate vocational program to enroll in so they can successfully prepare for a productive job. I am pleased that the association has recognized her contribution to our students and to vocational education. We are proud to have her as a member of our staff.'
