Suit To Require Animal Shelter Filed by Woman

John and Bonnie Faulkner have a soft heart when it comes to stray cats and dogs: they have taken care of plenty of them. But they also think the fiscal court should be taking responsibility for the dozens of abandoned animals roaming Floyd hollows. And they say the law is on their side.

A hearing is expected Friday on a complaint filed by Bonnie Faulkner in Floyd Circuit Court. She seeks a writ of mandamus compelling the fiscal court to comply with a state law that requires counties to maintain animal shelters.

A similar motion was sustained by Johnson Circuit Court Judge James A. Knight and the Kentucky Court of Appeals recently upheld a decision compelling the Carter county fiscal court to establish a dog pound, she noted in her

Hager Reviews Dropout Causes As Board Meets

Of the 813 freshmen in Floyd high schools last year, only 650 made it into this year's sophomore class.

What happened to the other 163? That is a question that school administrators need to address if they are to stem the tide of students dropping out of high school here, Assistant Superintendent Ron Hager told members of the Board of Education last week

The assistant superintendent said also that only half the school district's handicapped students are in classes adapted to their needs

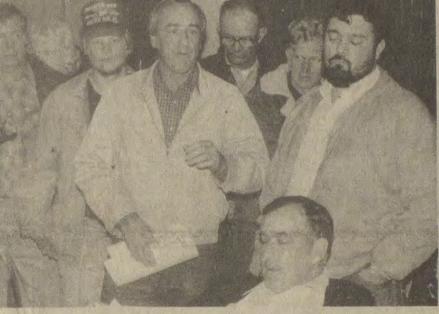

Hager delivered to the board a performance report compiled under a new state law requiring that school districts give out certain statistics by October 1 each year. Initially published in the Sept. 26 issue of The Times, this year's report listed attendance figures, retention rates, student test scores, dropout rates, the number of graduates going on to college or trade school, the percentage of students in special education classes and the percentage classified as poor. By next October, the state's school districts will also be required to list goals and to report on spending, education and personnel. The number of students completing high school last year was equal to 48.3 percent of those who had begun high school four years earlier, well below the state average of 65.8 and the 70 percent reckoned by state education officials as

Whether or not to establish a fire protection district is a burning question sarrett-area residents. Bruce Scott, left, and Terry Triplett, memb the Garrett Volunteer Fire Department, argued in favor of the proposal Friday before a meeting of the Floyd fiscal court. The question of setting up a fire protection district is dividing Garrett-area residents and leaving only a thin line for their magistrate to walk. Bruce Scott and Terry Triplett were at the fiscal court Friday to argue the merits of the proposed ordinance, which was scheduled to have its third reading prior to being voted into law. But Frank Martin, who runs a gas station in Garrett, brought along a petition bearing 360 signatures of people opposed to the plan. Volunteer firefighters, Scott and Triplett said rural fire departments can no longer make it without the tax support that a fire district can raise. The tax that homeowners would pay for fire protection—a dollar for every $1000 of assessed valuation—would be more than offset by reduced insurance premiums, they argued.

But Martin said Garrett residents had not been told the fire district would mean higher taxes and, in any event, the area would be better served if the town incorporated and maintained a fulltime fire department, he said. Magistrate Kenneth Roberts said he would be willing to "give these boys so much a year" as a voluntary subscription but "would not vote to put a tax on

A public hearing on the issue was set for 11 a.m. Dec. 19 in the courthouse annex here.

Elmer Morrison, chief of the Wayland volunteer fire department, introduced a proposal to set up a fire protection district there. Before it is enacted, the proposed ordinance will be published and read at two more meetings of the fiscal court.

Coal Operator To Pay $57,000 Federal Fines

A Hueysville coal operator has agreed to pay $57,000 in federal fines for alleged safety violations at the Knott county mine where eight men died in an explo-

The fines resulted from an agreement between the U.S. Department of Labor and Incoal Inc., a firm operated by Orville Adkins and three members of his family. The four, who are also incorporated as Adkins Coal, operated a mine near Topmost where the explosion occurred on Dec. 7, 1981.

In approving the settlement, Administrative Law Judge James A. Broderick wrote that the "operator does not admit" that the violations occurred. The judge also noted that the settlement allows Incoal to pay the fine in installments, a concession resulting from the operator's pleading that the firm is in shaky financial condition.

The settlement takes care of all the safety charges brought by the U.S. Mine Safety and Health Administration after the disaster, which the agency blamed on illegal blasting procedures. The agency initially sought fines amounting to Still pending is a civil suit brought against the Adkins family and Island Creek Coal Co. by survivors of seven of the eight victims. Island Creek owned the coal rights where the accident occurred. The suit is scheduled for trial in Knott Circuit Court in February.

Don't noise it abroad in Tickey, but not in living memory has Floyd county voted Republican in a presidential (Tickey)

Not even in 1972, when Richard M. Nixon won 520 electoral college votes to 17 for George McGovern; when the GOP won majorities in all states but Massachusetts and the District of Columbia; when Kentucky gave the Republican candidate a 300,000-vote

The vote in Floyd county that year was 7544 for McGovern, 6099 for Nixon. It's the closest a Republican has ever come to carrying this Democratic stronghold.

Nationally, Republicans experienced another landslide victory in 1980, when Ronald Reagan carried all but four states and the District of Columbia. Along with Georgia, Minnesota, West Virginia and Rhode Island, Floyd stuck with the Carter-Mondale ticket, 10,975 votes to 4179.

And, although the nation and Kentucky voted overwhelmingly for the Republican candidate last week, Floyd again voted two-to-one for the Democrat.

President Reagan won an unprecedented 525 electoral college votes, compared to 13 for Walter Mondale—the smallest number received by a losing candidate since Alf Landon's eight against Franklin D. Roosevelt in 1936. All states but Minnesota and the District of Columbia gave Reagan majorities, including Kentucky, where the president won 60 percent of the vote.

But in Floyd county it was Mondale, by a handy 10,259 to 5218.

Only six of Floyd's 48 precincts voted Republican last week: three around the county seat (Courthouse, Trimble

Tickey? Republican presidential candidates don't always carry it but, if the GOP is going to win a majority in any Floyd precinct, it will be Tickey

Back in the 1930's, when the original Mud Creek precinct of Antioch was split up, people who lived around Grethel voted in a schoolhouse at the mouth of Branham's Creek. The new precinct took its name from a well-known trader who lived nearby—Tickey John Hall.

Tickey John stood out from the crowd. For one thing, he made a packet of money buying and selling cattle up and down Mud Creek. For another, he was a Democrat.

Today there are 544 registered Democrats in Tickey, as against 112 Republicans. But it was not always that way. And even if the registration figures show a Democratic majority, the polls often tell a different story.

The 230 voters who turned out there last week favored Reagan over Mondale by 124 votes to 106, confirming their choice of four years ago, when Tickey was the single Floyd precinct to back Reagan over Jimmy Carter.

In 1976, the Republican candidate did not even carry Tickey, but the margin was slim. At Grethel, 122 voted for the Georgia peanut farmer, 115 for Gerald

In 1972, the year of the Nixon-McGovern race, a record nine Floyd precincts were caught up in the Republican avalanche, Tickey among them. Four years earlier, Tickey had been the sole precinct in the county to choose Nixon over Hubert Humphrey.

The last time a Democratic presidential candidate won big in Tickey was in 1964, the last national Democratic landslide. Lyndon Johnson won a whopping 82 percent of the Floyd vote, beating Barry Goldwater in all precincts. In Tickey, the vote was 201 to 91, an impressively large margin for a Democrat.

$26.2 Million Needed For School Buildings

A report just released gives the state would absorb pupils now attending ducation Department's view on Daniels Creek, Dwale, Home Branch Education Department's view on Floyd's school building needs. Local board members will have their say next month and are expected to take exception to some of the state recommendations. But, in any event, the issue is likely to remain academic for the time being: the school district's bonding potential-its ability to borrow construction funds-is currently nil.

Top priority, in the view of a state Division of Buildings and Grounds team, which recently visited the county to check on its school facilities, is construction of a new 650-student elementary school at Allen. It makes no mention of a middle school which Floyd board members would like to see built in Pres-mends construction of an eightclassroom addition at Clark Elementary, a 12-room addition at Betsy Layne Elementary, and a 700-student high school to replace McDowell and Wheelwright high schools on a site between the two schools.

The expansion at Clark and another proposal, further down the list, to build 16 extra classrooms at Prestonsburg Elementary, is apparently intended as an alternative to the Floyd board's proposal to build a middle school for Prestonsburg students at Lancer.

It was a sunbright time, of crisp nights and clear, shining days; when a rooster crow or the fall of an axe on an adjoining farm could be heard in the sort of hush that prevailed as if Nature were holding its breath in anticipation or dread of harsher days ahead-and all this cloaked in the unmistakable smokeblue haze that was the season's trademark this week he thought it "utterly ridiculous" that state officials would first give the Floyd board approval to purchase a $250,000 site for the middle school and then exclude the school from its construction plans. Local school officials will have an opportunity next month to submit to the state their own assessment of the district's building

In any event, neither the state nor Floyd officials' dreams are likely to materialize any time soon. After laying out a building program estimated to cost $26.2 million, the state report noted that "the Floyd County Board of Education has no bonding potential at this time.'

Of 28 school sites in this county, the state classified 18 as poor—including 10 in the flood plain. Most buildings were held to be in good or fair condition, although buildings at McDowell, Daniels Creek, Dwale, Home Branch, Spradlin Branch and Spruce Pine were designated "poor.

Other state proposals, in order, call

Renovation of Allen Central High School; construction of a six-classroom addition at Betsy Layne High; renovation and addition at Prestonsburg High. -Renovation and expansion of Prater and Prestonsburg grade schools; construction of a new school, on KY 80 south of Martin, to replace the existing Martin and Maytown schools; and construction of a new school at Garrett to replace the existing Garrett and Wayland

-Construction of an eight-room addition at W.D. Osborne Elementary; a new central office facility; a warehouse on the site of the old Allen Elementary; replacement of Betsy Layne Elementary.

Expansion of the Prater, Prestonsburg and Osborne schools would enable them to absorb, respectively, the Spruce Pine, Bonanza and Melvin schools.

In the meantime, the report says, the old Betsy Layne High School building should be razed, all temporary units should be removed from Harold, and the "asbestos abatement program" should be continued.

The discovery of asbestos in ceilings at Prestonsburg High School created a storm of controversy here until it was removed in 1979. Supt. Grigsby said this week he was "not aware of any problem of that magnitude" in any Floyd school but that school officials would be checking on the situation.

"I hope when they get over worrying about whether their child has a book they'll start worrying about the curriculum, and when they start worrying about curriculum they'll see they have a responsibility for their child's education," said Mrs. Rosenberg, the mother of two children in Floyd public schools.

For their part, school officials here have been supportive of the town forum, advertising it at a recent principals' meeting and at a teachers' in-service day. Many schools are reportedly planning to send a notice home to parents, urging them to attend.

"I plan to be there and I know some board members will be," said Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. "We need citizen support if we're going to get some things through the legislature; I will be interested to find out how people would be willing to support (construction of) better school buildings; we need to know how citizens think and feel.

Denied Move to Johnson, Arms Calls for 'Yes or No' from Floyd

Like Jason in quest of the golden fleece or Diogenes' search for an honest man, Bill Arms will settle for nothing but a yes or a no. A yes or a no, he is discovering, is not easy to come by.

First there was his request, contained in a question on last week's ballot, to let Bear Hollow, where he lives, attach itself wholly to Johnson county. Yes or

The votes came in about as even as they could be-3295 in favor, 3296 against, with the reckoning of absentee ballots tipping the scales a little further toward the nays

So Arms went back to the Floyd fiscal court Friday. "I'm here to seek a definite yes or no," he said. He wanted Floyd county to assume responsibility for maintaining the narrow dirt road that twists for 2.3 miles along the Floyd-Johnson line near East Point. "That's all I'm asking.

Too much, replied Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo. "We've got 450 miles of roads in this county. We'll do whatever we can," he said. "But you can't get a yes or a no.

Arms said there are about 28 schoolage children in the two dozen families who live on Bear Hollow and that they are sometimes unable to get out to school in the winter. "I do not intend to have our children wade the mud. I'm asking you to abide by the law," he told the court. "And I'd appreciate not hearing the same old excuse we've been hearing for 14 years-'no money.

It was to no avail. "That's what you're going to keep hearing," said the judge, because we don't have the money.

Residents of upper Cow Creek also had to be satisfied with a pledge that 'we'll do what we can" to maintain the road there, which Woodrow Burchett said is "in pitiful condition."

"I've got a horse; I can ride down," Burchett explained, "but a lot of people don't have horses." And a neighbor, Palmer Woods, noting that nearby roads have received attention in recent months while Cow Creek has been neglected, said he was curious to know calculating a school district's "holding power"-that is, the percentage of ninthgraders completing high school-may paint the dropout problem in unnecessarily harsh colors. Of the 1983-'84 freshmen who did not make it into this year's sophomore class, some are repeating their freshman year and some have transferred to other school districts, he noted. "These are not dropouts," he said.

Moreover, Floyd's high dropout rate may be caused in part by economic conditions over which school administrators have no control, Hager explained. Some 58.7 percent of this county's students were classified as economically deprived last year, compared with 35.8 percent statewide, he noted. "Sometimes students can't afford textbooks in high school, so they tend to drop out. That is something (state officials) may not take into account," Hager said.

Nevertheless, "we know we have too high a dropout rate," the assistant superintendent said, adding that the school district's pupil personnel department is working on a plan to reduce the rate, perhaps by offering special tutorial programs for marginal students or by better identification of those who would benefit by special education classes.

While 6.2 percent of Floyd students were in special education classes last year-representing a rise of 11/2 percentage points over the past two years-that figure is still well below the state average of 10.4 percent.

"Twelve percent of our students are eligible for an exceptional children's program," Hager told the board at its regular meeting last Wednesday. "We need an additional 30 (classroom) units to catch up with the rest of the state.' The problem is one of inadequate state funding, he said.

In other business, the board voted to buy 10 new buses—a 71-passenger diesel, two 21-passenger models, and seven 16-passenger units. Transportation Director Ed Patton said adding the smaller buses to the regular fleet will eliminate some of the contract drivers now using private vehicles to haul students in and out of the more inaccessible hollows.

One of the 16-passenger buses will be fitted with a hydraulic lift for the benefit of handicapped students, he said. Supt. E.P. Grigsby said later the speciallyequipped bus was being purchased at the request of parents of students at the Dwale special education school.

Hired were:

Cosetta Newsome, paraprofessional for adult education; Patsy Lynn Case, Ruby Ellen Caudill, Michael Cooper, and Mark Martin, emergency substitute teachers; Anna Lou Hamilton and Melvina Hall, Headstart bus drivers at Betsy Layne; Scottie Garrett, janitor at Betsy layne gym; Jeff Case and Nadine Springer, substitute janitors; Kathy Hatfield, aide and substitute driver at Dwale; Nannetta Yates, Roberta Powers, and Linda Ousley, substitute cooks, and Sandra Akers, regular cook.

Michele S. Romans, clerk at McDowell; Emma Pack, teacher aide at McDowell; Cledis Stephens, Steve Slone, Hobert Adkins, Terry Hamilton, Donna Fraley, Robert Johnson, Stanley Henson, Randy Martin, and Monroe Jarrell. substitute bus drivers; Charlene Ousley, substitute driver at Dwale; and Jeannie Hicks, Carl Compton, Sharon Patton, and Rhonda Puckett, regular bus why. "Are we the outcasts of the world. or what?" he asked.

At least there was good news from the county court clerk's office. An audit confirmed that County Clerk Carla Boyd turned in to the county $10,569 in excess fees between Nov. 10 last year, when she took office, and Dec. 31, a collection rate that Jim Rogers, of the state auditor's office, called "very exceptional for this Magistate Kenneth Roberts had two proposals he said would benefit county workers. One, which would have increased the number of sick days workers could take without getting a doctor's slip, failed for want of a second. The other, giving county workers the day off for elections, was passed as confirming a de facto practice.

Bids were received for reconstruction of a flood-damaged footbridge at Wayland, William C. Hart and Damon Newsome offering to do the job for $16,499, Polley & Trent, of Bardstown, bidding $18,194. The court decided to award the contract to the low bidder 'pending FEMA approval"-a proviso that may prove significant in view of the fact that the federal disaster office assessed the cost of repairing the bridge at only $8000.

Hamlet Lovely was appointed commissioner of the Beaver Elkhorn Water District; Debra Gipson Stumbo was named to replace Larry Leslie on the county housing authority; Jailer Lawrence Hale was authorized to appoint Albert Conn as parttime deputy.

An East McDowell road which has become a bone of contention between Hamilton and Newsome families will remain open as a county road, the court following a recommendation of a survey team headed by roads foreman Sam H. Fitzpatrick. Taken into the county roads system were the Prater heirs road at Hueysville and the Dotson subdivision on Rough and Tough.

LETTERS To the Editor

The views expressed here are those of the writer, and not necessarily those of this newspaper. No unsigned contributions will be published.

Thank-You From Sheriffs

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the voters in Kentucky for their support on election day, November

Not only was history made on the national level, but sheriffs made history of their own in Kentucky. After four defeats on prior attempts to change the law that prohibited sheriffs from seeking re-election, we finally made it.

Our deep appreciation also goes to the newspaper editorial writers, radio editors and television editors and owners who endorsed our amendment.

Now that it has passed, the Kentucky sheriffs and deputies can continue the progressive programs such as the Ky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch that they have begun and instigate new ones that the Kentucky Sheriffs' Association and the National Sheriffs' Association initiate periodically.

The confidence the voters and editorial board have shown with this overwhelming victory will most certainly build a much better Sheriff's Office in each county for the future.

Cox Dept. Store Leaving P'burg After 44 Years

The A.W. Cox Department Store closed its doors here this week, ending a 44-year stay in Prestonsburg.

It was a second business lost within a month by the central business district. The Brown Produce Company moved its stock and equipment a few weeks ago to its new location outside Louisa.

Tom Winter, vice-president of finance for the Charleston, W. Va.-based company which operated the store here and other member-stores of the Cox chain, said the closing here was the result of a loss in sales which had extended over the last three years. "There just wasn't enough sales volume," he said. Closing of the store, and especially its closing with Christmas and its normally brisk business near, surprised city officials. "The first we knew about it was this (Monday) morning when they sent word from the store to some of our employees that they should pick up layaways they had bought, for the store was closing," David Evans, city manager, said. At the time of quitting business here the store had five employees. Cox's opened here in 1940, first occupying the Fitzpatrick building at the corner of Court and Arnold Avenue, diagonally across Court street from its present location in the Abigail Grant building.

Social Security

Earnings And Social Security
By JIM KELLY
Social Security District Director

For The Big Sandy Area
More and more retirees are working after they start getting Social Security benefits. For some its a matter of financial need, and the additional earnings help make ends meet. For others, parttime work is a matter of emotional need. They find that work keeps them active and involved, relieving what may have become the pressure of filling emp-

Whatever the reason, such part-time work by retirees causes one of the biggest overpayment problems Social Security faces today. This is because there is a limit on how much a person under 70 getting Social Security checks can make without affecting the amount of the check. And most people may not be as careful as they should be in keeping track of their earnings.

The limit changes with increases in average wage levels. For 1984, the earnings limit for people age 65 through 69 is $6,960 and for people under 65, $5,160. For each $2 of earnings above the limit, $1 in benefits is withheld. The earnings limit does not apply to people 70 and over.

Benefit overpayments occur when the people do not report excess earnings to Social Security so that the check may be adjusted. The most common scenario involves the annual earnings report submitted to Social Security by April 15, on which people are expected to report total earnings for the past year estimate their earnings for the current year. If there is a change in earnings later during the year, many people may not report it until the next earnings report is due. In the meantime they have been receiving checks based on an erroneous estimate of earnings. The law requires the overpayment of benefits be repaid. This is usually accomplished by refund or by deducting installments from future checks until the amount of the overpayment is repaid.

The way to avoid overpayments is to report any change in earnings estimate as soon as possible. This way, the check can be adjusted before there is a large overpayment. Changes can be made by calling or visiting the Big Sandy Area Social Security Office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

Kilpatrick, Others To Attend Book Fair

Noted columnist, James J. Kilpatrick, best-selling novelist, Steven Birmingham, and black political activist and writer, Le Roi Jones, will headline the 80 or so authors, editors and photographers expected in Frankfort for the third annual Kentucky Book Fair, Nov. 17 at the State Library.

The three will be on hand at this year's Fair to sell and autograph their books.

The '84 Fair will feature a range of books from award winning fiction and children's literature, to an impressive list of works on public affairs. For those who love college basketball—and what Kentuckian does not?—there will be several books on that great sport.

The Kentucky Book Fair, which has proved very popular in the past few years, is a nonprofit event, sponsored by the Frankfort State Journal and a group of interested volunteers who make up the Book Fair Committee. Profits from the event are used to support library programs and young writers throughout Kentucky. This year, a $1,000 grant will be awarded to a Kentucky public school library for the purpose of purchasing books. The committee will also contribute $500 to the "Sy Ramsey Memorial Fund" for deserving journalism students of the University of Kentucky.

The Department of Libraries & Archives building is located at 300 Coffee Tree Road, off the East-West Connector in Frankfort.

ALLEN

WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

The Allen Woman's Club held its monthly meeting, Nov. 7 at the Allen Park. Those present were Jo Ann Adams, Diana Reed, Pat Derossett, Bonita Porter, Mary Hinchman, Hollie Blanton, Judy Hester, Janice Porter and Janie King, and guests, Ruby Akers, Anna Sue Stumbo, and Patty Beckman. The club was very proud of Judy Hester, who won first place at the fall district meeting at Jenkins in the crochet category. Miss Akers showed a film on Hazardous Waste Options. The annual Christmas party was set for December 1. Mary Hinchman will be attending the GFWC Southeastern Region annual meeting to be held in White Sulphur Springs, W. Va. Committees were appointed for the Christmas Parade on December 15. Devotion for the evening was read by Pat Derossett. "Election Day 1984". Refreshments served by Mary Hinchman and Denise Queen.

Honored on 65th Anniversary

The children and grandchildren of Mr. and Mrs. Bradley Blackburn, of Salem, O., hosted an open house from 2 to 5 p.m., Sunday, November 4, at the New Garden Methodist Church, there, in honor of thier 65th wedding anniversary.

Mr. Blackburn and the former Cora Justice were married Nov. 2, 1919 at the Baptist Church in McCombs, Ky., by the Rev. H.C. Boyd.

Mr. Blackburn retired in 1961 from American Standard in Salem, where he had been employed as a crane operator.

They are members of the Freeville Baptist Church in McCombs. Hosting the open house were their children, Allen Blackburn of Lisbon, John Blackburn of Salineville, Celia Brown of Salem and Mrs. Ray (Lorraine) Ketchum of Mechanicstown. They also have 19 grandchildren and 16 greatgrandchildren.

Also attending from Endicott were Mr. and Mrs. Archel Blackburn and Scottie, Mrs. Gerald George, Michael and Jason.

Many friends and relatives were present to share the occasion with Mr, and Mrs. Blackburn.

Second Birthday

Michael Christopher Childers, son of Michael and Patricia S. Childers, of Langley, celebrated his second birthday at home.

Chris received many gifts. Those attending were his great-grandmother, Maggie Martin, Dave and Leila Harvey, Kimberly Brown, Dusty and Misty, Mr. and Mrs. Sheridan R. Martin, Gayle and Rodney, Matthew Harvey, Willard Ritchie, Jr., Bill and Brenda Collins and Billy.

The paternal grandparents were the late Jackson Edward Childers, of North Judson, Ind., and Leila Harvey, of Garrett. The maternal grandparents were the late Bennie and Janie Sellard of Endicott.

Peace Seminar Slated Here Next Saturday

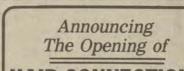

Unity in India and opposition to violence everywhere will be emphasized at a peace seminar scheduled at 4 p.m. next Sunday at Prestonsburg Community College.

The public is invited, and "all lovers of peace and sympathizers of India are requested to attend," said a spokesman for the seminar group.

Scheduled to participate in the seminar are Congressman Chris Perkins, State Rep. Gregory Stumbo, PCC Prof. Robert McAninich, and other local and regional leaders.

For further information contact Dr. Gan Maddiwar or the Family Health Center at 285-9221, Martin.

Proof that America had an early love for chocolate lies in the fact that the country's first chocolate mill was erected in Massachusetts in 1765.

"Glamour You Can Afford"

"I'm a Columbia Gas research engineer. My job is to help find new ways to use natural gas more efficiently. I'm also a Columbia Gas customer, paying the same rates as any other customer for the natural gas I use in my home. Like everybody else, I'm concerned with holding down costs. As we test new technologies in our lab, we're always looking for the most effective ways to make natural gas more of a value for you, and for ourselves. For example, the new generation of gas appliances is the most gasstingy ever. But we and other industry researchers are refining them even more, to save even more. Through our efforts and those of thousands of other Columbia employees, Columbia is working to hold down costs. It's true now, and will continue to be in the future. Because the more efficient we can make your gas appliances, the more we'll all save."

By HAROLD COOLEY

Sweat is produced by two sets of glands in the body. The eccrine glands turn on the flow when temperatures are hot or when you physically exert yourself. The apocrine glands act in response to emotions. Keeping cool, comfortable and odor-free calls for the use of either a deodorant or anti-perspirant. If wetness is not a big problem, a deodorant will probably be fine. Most deodorants contain anti-bacterial ingredients that mask odor. Anti-perspirants, on the other hand, stop the flow of perspiration as well. They usually contain aluminum salts which block the pores from releasing moisture. Aluminum zirconium, often found in roll-ons, is the most effective of these salts.

Arkansas Home-Building Concept, Seminar Feature

Kentucky home buyers will soon be able to purchase new homes at market prices as the result of a joint venture by the Louisville Office of the Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) and the Home Builders Association of Kentucky (HBAK).

A task force composed of 18 representatives from HUD, home builders, mortgage bankers and realtors from around the state recently toured a modest-cost housing subdivision in Crittenden County, Arkansas. According to Fred H. Porterfield, manager of the HUD Louisville office, the reaction to what the task force saw, "was enthusiastic."

"There is a great deal of excitement among the task force participants," Porterfield said. "The subdivision that we saw demonstrated for all of us what can be done to hold down the cost of a new home so that young families and others of moderate incomes can afford to own a home.

"Nearly 100 families in Crittenden County with an average income of $27,500 have found they can afford to move from an apartment to a new home for about the same monthly payment that they had been paying for rent," Porterfield said.

builders and mortgage lenders in Kentucky," he added.

HUD and HBAK, along with mortgage bankers and realtors associations of Lexington and Louisville are sponsoring a day-long seminar Friday, Nov. 2, and are expecting about 1,000 builders, lenders and realtors from around the state to attend. In addition to a task force report on the Crittenden County housing development, other featured speakers will include U.S. Senator Walter D. Huddleston, a member of the Senate Appropriation's Committee, and HUD under Secretary Phillip Abrams.

Panels composed of state and federal government representatives, builders, mortgage bankers and real estate brokers will discuss various steps that can be taken to lower the cost of home ownership.

The seminar will begin at 8:30 a.m. at the Ramada Inn East Convention Center, 9700 Bluegrass Parkway, Louisville. Registration for the seminar is at 8 a.m.

Our Feathered Friends Need Continued Feeding

Did you know that once you begin feeding the birds this winter you mustn't stop? If you do, you may kill them.

Once you start putting out food, birds will come to depend on it and won't develop other food sources, said Dr. Burt Monroe, an ornithologist and chairman of the Department of Biology at the University of Louisville.

"Birds will come back year after year if you continue to feed them," Monroe said. "You just make it easier for them. Most birds come in early winter to establish their food source, so don't start to feed them early if you intend to stop during the winter."

He continued that you don't have to put out food everyday—every other day will do. That way the birds will develop alternative food sources.

The birds most common in the Louisville area that will be searching for food this winter are cardinals, juncos, whitethroated sparrows and towhees.

To attract these birds, the best food is mixed birdseed. Sunflower seeds, cracked corn and chopped fruit are good, too, and breadcrumbs are still welcomed by the feathered foragers.

Monroe suggests putting foods on a platform to discourage dogs and cats from gobbling up the goodies. As for the squirrels, however, he admits it's nearly impossible to keep the incredible acrobats off feeders.

Tough Discipline, Standards, Said Crux of School's Appeal

MORE COMMUNITY INVESTMENT...A pre-fabricated building that will contain a gym, cafeteria, a science lab and classrooms is under construction on the campus of the Mountain Christian Academy, near Martin. It represents an additional investment of $700,000 on the part of the local community. The main building, behind which these students are participating in a physical education class, was built at an approximate cost of $1.4 million. (CAP News Service)

By GLEN TAUL
Assistant Coordinator of Community Relations,

Christian Appalachian Project
When Mrs. Janet Baldridge first entered the Mountain Christian Academy near Martin, "there was a peace and calm in the whole building.
Not because it was quiet," she said.
"There seemed to be a presence here."

While attending a meeting of MCA's Christian education instructors, Baldridge, who teaches Christian education in the seventh grade, said one of the mothers commented, "there's something here. I just feel like I'm in church when I'm here."

"I think any place where God is invited in, and he's welcomed, his presence is going to be there," Baldridge said. "And this is the way I feel about this school."

An air of excitement about learning also exists at MCA. Mrs. Karen Salisbury said her daughter Jennifer cared little about going to school while in kindergarten but, since attending MCA, her second grader has hurried her to be at school by 8 a.m. every day, 30 minutes before it starts.

Other parents have told Baldridge of noticing similar changes in the attitudes of their children.

Mountain Christian Academy, which is sponsored by the Christian Appalachian Project, began its second academic year in September with an enrollment that jumped from 150 students at the end of the 1983-1984 school year to 276 this year.

"Our primary goal is the education of the total child," said Sister Judy Yunker, MCA principal.

Another goal is to promote community through Christian education, total family involvement, and the fostering of an ecumenical spirit.

family involvement, and the fostering of an ecumenical spirit.

The difference between MCA and public schools, said Yunker, is the liberty and opportunity to pray and to have Christian education as part of the curriculum.

"We're a school that has over 14 different religions co-operating together, which is quite a challenge, especially for the parents who are Christian education instructors, to impart a Christian educadenominational," she said.

An academically sound Christian school is what parents indicated they needed when the Rev. Ralph Beiting, president of CAP, was transferred to Floyd county in 1981 by the Covington diocese of the Roman Catholic Church.

tion in a way that is totally non-

"When I first came, I wanted to learn from the people what they needed," the Rev. Beiting said. "Wherever I was, I'd ask people what they needed most in Floyd county. And their most frequent response was a good school."

Organizational meetings which led to the formation of MCA began in 1982 with as many as 50 people attending each meeting.

The next year MCA's main building was started, but was unusable until later in the school year. While the work was being completed, kindergarten through ninth grade met, at the invitation of a Baptist congregation, in a Baptist church.

A capital investment of about $1.1 million has been made by CAP and the local community, which has contributed about $316,000. And upon completion of phase two, which will be a building that includes a gym, a science lab, and cafeteria, another $700,000 will have been invested.

At the organizational meetings, a consensus was formed on the qualities desired for the school. The parents wanted a school that emphasized academic excellence, direct involvement by parents, discipline, Christian instruction, and community involvement.

"They wanted a school that incorporated as many (economic and social) segments of the community as possible and fostered a truly ecumenical spirit," said Beiting.

Presently 14 Christian denominations and one religion are represented at the school and students have been involved in community projects such as helping the elderly or cleaning up around the lake

The annual tuition is $1,100 per student. Scholarships are available. This year 40 percent of the students are on scholarships which includes mothers working at MCA to help reduce expenses.

The board of directors include doctors, lawyers, businessmen, and homemakers, said Salisbury, secretary and member of the board. And they include Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, Episcopalians, and Catholics.

"We have a reputation for being strict disciplinarians and good academically," Yunker said. She attributes MCA's increased enrollment to this reputation.

"We expect a lot of our students," she said. They are expected to behave themselves, have respect for themselves, others, and their teachers, and work when asked. Homework is assigned daily.

assigned daily.

The curriculum is designed to educate a child in the liberal arts as well as the practical skills needed for daily living. Art and music are part of the curriculum with social studies being a strong department.

A big emphasis is being placed on science, but the strongest push is toward mastering communications skills from impromptu speaking to speaking on television. MCA is putting a lot of time in speech contests and closed-circuit television to help students express themselves articulately before people.

One of MCA's goals is to train Christian leaders, Yunker said. As a Christian leader, no matter the field or business entered, he or she must be able to articulate their views in order to make an impact.

Sports is encouraged at MCA as a part of educating the student's total being. The sports offered are because most students can participate in them, or students can continue to use them later in life either socially or individually, or the sport is relatively inexpensive.

Basketball, tennis, golf, and volleyball are now offered, and dance is offered as an alternative to the physical education class. In the future it is hoped that soccer will be offered and played at intervarsity levels.

The success of MCA's program depends primarily on the competence and dedication of its faculty. Teachers are certified under criteria for non-profit organizations in contrast to those required for public school teachers. They can be certified if they have a bachelor's degree and experience in their field. Courses in education are not required.

"We are trying to provide teachers with an environment which they can function at a professional level," Yunker said, "which means from an administration point of view, the stricter we become, the easier it is for teachers to teach and students to learn."

The classes are small and teachers are able to give individualized attention. This situation has allowed teachers to convey a joy in going to school.

In the classes Salisbury has observed, she has noticed that the teachers enjoy what they are doing. In the social studies class that I observed, the teacher required strict decorum but encouraged the students to participate and ask questions.

Nation To Pay Tribute To Women Vets, Nov. 11-17

For the first time, the nation will pay special tribute to its 1.2 million women military veterans.

President Reagan has signed a Congressional resolution proclaiming Nov. 11-17 as "National Women Veterans Recognition Week." The resolution calls for an observance to "create greater public awareness and recognition of the contributions of women veterans, to express the nation's appreciation for their service, and to inspire more responsive care and services for women veterans.'

Administrator of Veterans Affairs Harry N. Walters has urged all VA facilities to plan appropriate programs to emphasize VA's role in serving women veterans.

'Women have played a vital part in the defense of our country from the legendary Molly Pitcher of our American Revolutiuon, through all other conflicts and in peacetime," Walters said. "They wee on the beaches at Anzio nursing the wounded, they were prisoners of war in the Phillipines, and they have piloted our military aircraft."

Women veterans make up 4.1 percent of the 28.2-million total veteran population. Latest figures show Kentucky has 13,100 women veterans.

Everyone does not get cancer. Two out of three Americans never will get it.

I have gladly served the people the last three years...l look forward to serving you for at least another four years.

HRMC Honors 68 for Service

Karen Daniels, orthopedic technician at Highlands Regional Medical Center, accepts a gold necklace from HRMC Administrator Clarence C. Traum in recognition of her 15 years of continuous service to Highlands and to its predecessor, Prestonsburg General Hospital. She was one of 68 employees who received pins or necklaces for reaching 5, 10, 15, or 20 years'

Highlands Regional Medical Center recently honored 68 of its employees for reaching benchmark years of service. The employees were honored after a dinner at Jenny Wiley Lodge.

Employees reaching five years' continuous service with the Medical Center were each given a pin, while pins also went to employees reaching their 10th year. Two employees received gold necklaces: Karen Daniels, in recognition of 15 years' service to Highlands Regional and its predecessor, Prestonsburg General Hospital; and Shirley Turner, who has been with the two hospitals a total of 20 years.

Highlands Regional Board of Trustees Chairman Burl Wells Spurlock and Administrator Clarence C. Traum, who himself received a five-year pin, presented the awards after the banquet.

Five-year honorees were Jean Blackburn, Lorna Branham, Connie Butler, Norma Calhoun, Brenda Cantrell, Nell Cartmell, Princess Chandler, Betty Conn, Geneva Cox, Sherry Dingus, Angela Fannin, Freda Fannin, Connie Ford, Lucille Francis, Myra Gillespie, Patsy Griffey, Ruth Hackworth, Kizzie Halbert, Margie Hale, Virginia A. Heck's Closed 2 Days After Thursday Fire

Heck's department store in Highlands Plaza was shut down for two days last week by a small fire which began in a storage area.

The fire, which is believed to have broken out shortly before 6 a.m. Thursday, triggered an automatic sprinkler system. It was discovered by Joe Terry, assistant manager at the store, about 45 minutes later.

Manager John Seely said the fire was apparently caused when merchandise was stacked too close to an electric heater suspended from the ceiling in the store's warehouse. No estimate was available of the damage, much of which was caused by water and smoke.

To protect customers, any foodstuffs or medicines that could have been contaminated by smoke were discarded, Seely said. The store reopened Saturday for business.

SHOWER HONORS BRIDE-ELECT

Miss Patricia Lee Sturgill, bride-elect of Mr. George E. Barnette, Jr., was honored Friday evening, Nov. 7, with a miscellaneous shower at the home of Mrs. Nancy Martin. The color scheme of pink and white was carried out in the decorations and refreshments. The serving table, covered with a pink cloth with an overlay of white lace, had for its centerpiece an arrangement of pink and white roses, entertwined with greenery, and was flanked with candelabra holding tall, pink candles. Gifts of china, silverware, linens, and other miscellaneous items were displayed. Mrs. Lucille Nunnery and Mrs. Ann Latta were assisted by other hostesses in serving refreshments to a large number of relatives and friends who came throughout the evening bringing gifts and best wishes. Hostesses were Mesdames Nancy Martin, Kathryn Frazier, Adrian Blackburn, Shirley Holbrook, Marguarite Fannin, Eileen Burchett, Eve May, Lucille Nunnery, Clifford Latta, Virginia Tackett, Henry Burke, and Garland Godsey.

Seventh Day Adventists Begin Annual Fund Drive

This month marks the beginning of the 76th annual community service appeal of the Prestonsburg Seventh-day Adventist Church.

Unpaid volunteers will be ringing doorbells between now and Christmas in the fund-raising program. It is the only public request made for funds by the Adventist Church.

According to Paul Hoover, pastor of the local congregation, each volunteer will be distributing this year's pictorial report of the church's Community Services program.

'More than ninety cents of every dollar received is used in community service programs," he said. "Only about 10% of the total budget for the church's humanitarian projects comes from this appeal. The rest is provided by church members.

Pastor Hoover noted that funds received are divided among local, state, and international community service programs. During the recent flooding in Eastern Kentucky Adventists distributed two semi-trailer loads of clothing, bedding and other items to the hardest hit areas. The Adventist Development and Relief Agency is presently working on the famine in Ethiopia. They have food, medicines and other items ready for shipment to Ethiopia. These are just an example of the work of the Adventist Community Service. The church in Prestonsburg, located on the Mountain Parkway, will receive a percentage of the proceeds for stop-smoking plans, health screening clinics, and emergency disaster relief.

CHURCH TO MARK FOUNDING

One hundred seventeen years ago, the United Baptist Church at Bonanza was established, and throughout these years, members of this church and their pastors have "weathered the storms" experienced by all churches, and have faced the future with courage. On "the third Saturday and the Sunday following," which has long been the method of deciding the time for this church to meet, and this time falls on November 17-18, there will be a celebration there, commemorating the birthday of this church. The Rev. Lemuel Williams, the pastor, will be joined by other ministers of United Baptist Churches' throughout this area in honor of the event. All members are urged to attend, and the public is also invited.

Elmer G. Morrison

Elmer G. Morrison, 88, of Wayland. died Saturday, November 10, at the Riverview Manor Nursing Home, here, following a short illness.

He was born November 4, 1896 at Woods, a son of the late Melvin and Docia Kendrick Morrison. A retired contractor, he was preceded in death by his wife, Mallie Martin Morrison.

He is survived by one son, Elmer H. Morrison, of Wayland, and one grandchild.

Funeral services were conducted yesterday (Tuesday) at 11 a.m. at the Hall Funeral Home, with the Rev. Weyman McGuire officiating. Burial was made in the Davidson Memorial Gardens, Ivel.

Mrs. Virgie Hall

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 11 a.m. at the Wheelwright Methodist Church for Mrs. Virgie Hall, 66, of Homestead Florida, formerly of Wheelwright, who died Friday, November 9, at the James Archer Smith Hospital in Homestead, Fla., following a short illness.

Born at Hollybush, June 28, 1918, she was a daughter of the late Hawk and Mary Slone and was married to Marion Hall, who preceded her in death. She was a member of the Church of Christ at Weeksbury for 25 years.

Surviving her are two sons, Bill Hall, of Wheelwright, and Herbert Hall, of Homestead, Fla.; one daughter, Nannie Hall, of Homestead, Fla.; two sisters, Mrs. Allie Johnson, of Bevinsville, and Mrs. Clearsie Slone, of Hindman, and 10 grandchildren.

The officiating minister will be Bennie Blankenship, and burial will be made in the Monroe Hall cemetery at Bevinsville under direction of the Hall Funeral

Seeks Settlement In Spouse's Death

A Dana woman who shot her husband to death last March went to court this week in an effort to force an insurance company to honor an insurance policy on his life.

Geraldine Conn Jarrell claims in a suit filed in circuit court here that the Travelers Insurance Company has refused to pay $60,000 due to her as beneficiary of an insurance policy on the life of her late husband, Jackie Lee

Her husband died March 17 "as a result of accidental means," and she filed a claim with the insurance company the following month, she said.

In August, a murder charge against Mrs. Jarrell was dismissed on a recommendation of Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen, who said she had been a victim of spouse abuse.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC HEARING AND SPECIAL CALLED MEETING OF FLOYD COUNTY FISCAL COURT

Notice is hereby given that on December 14, 1984, at 10:00 a.m., a special called meeting of the Fiscal Court of Floyd County, Kentucky, will be held at the regular meeting place of the Fiscal Court, at which meeting the Fiscal Court will conduct a public hearing in regard to the County issuing approximately $6,500,000 of County of Floyd, Kentucky Economic Development Revenue Bonds pursuant to Sections 103.200 through 103.285 of the Kentucky Revised Statutes, to finance the acquistion, construction and equipping by The First Commonwealth Bank of Prestonsburg, Inc. (the "Bank"), of a bank and commercial office building for use by the Bank as its home offices and for lease of excess space for commercial office purposes. The building will be located at the northwest corner of North Arnold and Friend Street in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, and will consist of a five-story building of approximately 71,000 square feet with an adjacent parking area. The bonds will not be general obligations of the County, but limited obligations payable solely from loan payments made by the Bank pursuant to a Loan Agreement between the County and the Bank.

At such meeting, the Fiscal Court proposes to give second reading to and consider for enactment an Ordinance authorizing the issuance of the Bonds.

Prior to the consideration by the Fiscal Court of the adoption of such Ordinance, interested individuals may express their views, both orally and in writing, on the proposed issue of bonds and the location and nature of the proposed facility to be financed. (Signed) Carla Robinson Boyd, County Clerk, Floyd County, Kentucky.

White Hall—Historic Crossroads

By JEFF LEWIS

It is a proud and solitary mansion the ancestral home of a proud and singular man.

As the visitor follows the winding approach to White Hall, home of Kentucky statesman and orator Cassius M. Clay (1810-1903), one is struck by the notion that nature marked out its location for a place in American frontier history even before Gen. Green Clay (father of Cassius) claimed the land in the 17890s. Situated upon one of the highest eminences in the Bluegrass, yet very near the point of the earliest fords and ferries across the Kentucky River, White Hall commands a view south toward Richmond and north toward the gentler rolling hills of Fayette County for miles in either direction.

"I write in the house where I was born. It is a well-burned brick structure, with heavy range work of Kentucky marble and grey limestone...(At White Hall) Even at that day (1812) the original forests...were almost unbroken by the axe. The tulip, walnut, ash, Kentucky coffee-bean, beech, and other magnificent trees rose at places to sixty feet without a limb, with native vines carried up with their growth perhaps centuries

-from The Memoirs of Cassius Marcellus Clay

The house took on its present form in the 1860s. Clay commissioned his friend, Polish emigre architect Thomas Lewinski, to design a three-story, doublewinged structure with a large central hall. The house built by Clay's father was incorporated as one wing; the other wing features a large ballroom. Wrought-iron balconies and carved wooden cornices adorn the front of the mansion, in a style that may be described as Italianate.

Within are displayed many of Clay's own furnishings—an 1859 Steinway piano, one of the first in Kentucky; chairs decorated in petit-point with hunting scenes, tributes to the talent and dexterity of Clay's wife and daughters; a copper-bottom tub carved from a single massive log of yellow poplar, adjoining one of Kentucky's first indoor 'privies!

On view as well are the souvenirs of a long and illustrious career. Always controversial because of his stand against slavery (and the fiery barnstorm speeches he made in support of that stand), Clay was rewarded when Abraham Lincoln named him Minister to Russia in 1861. Two portraits in particular commemorate this, the high point of Clay's life: one of Czar Alexander II riding in a sled (given to Clay by the Czar himself), hung in the central hall; and the other, in the ballroom, of the famed "Russian ballerina," a

Most revealing of the man himself and of the life he led at White Hall is the library, just off the south entrance, where Clay spent most of his time. His favorite books—Diplomatic Correspondence, the Short Horn Herd Book, Donnegan's Latin Lexicon, and the Nouvelle Methode Anglasise—are still on his desk (Clay, a competent Latinist, struggled with French while at Alexander's court)

Candlelight tours of the mansion supplement the regular guided tours. White Hall is open weekdays.

The highlight of this year's Fall Festival was the crowning of the royal court. These students were selected by the kindergarten three sixth grade students. King and Queen winners were (center) Jennifer Ousley, daughter of Karen and Jack Ousley, and Jimmy Stratton, son of Ann and Johnnie Stratton. Prince and Princess winners, at left, were Leigh Billips, daughter of Teresa and Edward Billips, and John David Clark, son of Donna and John Clark. Duke and Duchess winners, at right, were Heather Lynn Collins, daughter of Paula and Charles Edward Collins, and Shane Branham, son of Sharon and Gary Branham, of Auxier Road. These students were presented flowers, crowns and trophies.

Wearing a Hat Can Keep You From Catching Cold

"Put on your hat or you'll catch your death of cold," mothers warn during the winter season. But does wearing a hat actually guard against colds?

To some extent, the warning rings true, said Dr. David Weigman, an associate professor of physiology at U of L. Extremities such as the head, hands, feet and ears tend to lose heat more rapidly than other areas of the body.

Exposing these parts to very cold temperatures over a long period can cause heat loss and frostbite. However, if the exposure is going to be relatively short, covering these parts won't make a lot of difference, Weigman said.

Your mother also may have told you to eat hot soups to keep well, but there is little medical evidence to support that advice. "Mostly, it just makes the person feel better," according to Weigman.

What can cause colds, though, is dry air, which is the type of air we breathe in the winter. Inhaling dry air makes a person more susceptible to sore throats and disease he said.

Keeping a vaporizer or humidifier in the home can do a lot to counteract that problem, Wiegman said.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 836-5056

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Prater Creek Mining, Inc., P.O. Drawer A, Harold, Kentucky 41635-0330, intends to transfer its permit to NERCO Eastern Coal Company, 4225 Malsbary Road, Cincinnati, Ohio 45242 for an underground mining operation affecting a surface disturbance of 4.08 acres and underlying an additional 528.00 acres located 2.0 miles northeast of East McDowell in Floyd county.

The proposed operation is approximately 2.0 miles south from KY 2030's junction with Little Mud Creek Road and located 15 feet south of Upper Wolfpen Branch of Little Mud Creek. The latitude is 37° 28' 30". The longitude is 82° 41' 40".

The proposed operation is located on the McDowell U.S.G.S. 712 minute quadrangle map. The surface area to be disturbed is owned by Emmett Lawson. The operation will underlie land owned by Elkhorn Coal Corp., Susie & Lewis Jr. Knott, Grover Moore, and Emmett & Velma Lawson. The operation will affect an area within 100 feet of a public road. The operation will not involve relocation of the public road. This application includes a variance from approximate original contour in that a highwall will remain at the face-up area after mining.

The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, 6th Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601

State Finalist

Miss Melissa Ousley, 17, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Ousley, of Prestonsburg, has been selected to be a finalist in the 14th Annual Miss Kentucky National Teen-ager Pageant to be held at the John L. Hill Auditorium at Georgetown College in Georgetown, June 14, 15, 16. There will be participants from all over the state competing for the title. The Miss Kentucky National Teenager Pageant is the official state final to the Miss National Teen-Ager Pageant to be held in August.

Kimberley Norris, of Idabel, Oklahoma, is the reigning Miss National Teen-ager. She received more than $50,000 in prizes and awards at the 1984 National Pageant.

Each contestant in the State Pageant participates in the Volunteer Community Service Program of the National Teen-ager Pageant. This program encourages teenagers to share in school and civic affairs.

Contestants will be judged on scholastic achivement-leadership, poisepersonality, and appearance. There is no swimsuit competition. Talent may be presented at the option of the contestant or an oral essay on the subject, "What's Right About America?

OLWH To Provide Mobile Medical Services In Floyd

Beginning the week of November 26, Our Lady of the Way Hospital will extend its services to four sites within its present geographical service area. Clinic days and locations are: Mondays, beginning November 26, at the David School in David; Tuesdays, Tram; Wednesdays at the Church of Christ in Hueysville; Thursdays and Fridays in Wayland. A mobile health van will provide clinic services to these areas from 11 a.m. to 4 p.m. daily; programs and services to patients will emphasize wellness and preventive care.

The scheduled rural health services result from the administration's desire to make medical services more readily available to area residents, thereby enabling those with minor health problems to obtain medical care sooner. In taking health services out to the community, the hospital hopes that transportation difficulties will be minimized and patients will be aided in avoiding the more expensive cost of emergency room treatment,

The cost of care to patients will be covered by grants and patient fees. The privately-sponsored project will have no federal funding. A social worker from the hospital will be available at each clinic site to evaluate the need for adjusted payment.

Medical services to be provided at each of the clinic sites include: welladult/well-child care; adult and child physicals; common childhood illnesses: care for burns, wounds, minor injuries; removal of sutures: blood-pressure checks; screenings and preventive medicines; immunizations; pneumonia and flu vaccines. Additionally, some types of lab work will be done at the clinic sites; in other instances, lab samples drawn at the clinic site will be processed overnight at the hospital's laboratory.

Patients who are being seen at one clinic site are free to seek services at any of the other sites. Efforts will be made to coordinate clinic care with the medical care currently being provided by the patient's primary physician.

The mobile health unit will be staffed by a nurse practitioner, an intake worker, and a social worker; physicians' services will be available at specified times. To ensure confidential care and the protection of property, the van will be stripped nightly of records, money, drugs, and equipment.

Prior to the opening of clinic services on November 26, OLWH's mobile health van will be in each of the sites for open house. Area residents are invited to come by and see the facility and meet the clinic staff.

Mouie Nostalgia

By Marc Minnelli

There's bad trash. And there's good trash. Then there's great trash — and the greatest trash film of all time is the 1967 epic "Valley of the Dolls."

Based on Jacqueline Susann's best-selling novel when the book was released in 1966 everyone was trying to figure out who was based on whom - the film relates the story of three young women who plunge into the sordid, drug-filled, drunken-stupor world of show biz. There was Barbara Parkins, who played naive Anne Welles, and Sharon Tate, who played the doomed Jennifer North. But it was Patty Duke who stole the film: As the boisterous, manipulative, downtrodden tramp Neely O'Hara, Miss Duke sunk her claws into the part. It is the best thing she's ever done - outside of Brooklyn Heights.

Some of the film's scenes are classics. Who will ever forget the high-camp scene when Neely pulls off the wig of aging star Helen Lawson (played by Susan Hayward), and flushes it down the toilet? And who could forget the scene in which Neely belittles her husband, played by Martin Milner, emphasizing her crassness by flicking a cigarette butt into her pool, as the strains of the films' theme waft through the air? Where has such great filmmaking gone?

Question: In what fictional show did Neely star in on Broadway?

THE RAZOR'S EDGE, (PG-13-Columbia Pictures) Starring Bill Murray, Theresa Russell and Catherine Hicks. *

By J.T. YURKO

"The road to salvation is a narrow path," says the high priest at the Indian mountaintop temple. "It is like walking on the razor's edge." Bill Murray has come to the mountaintop in search of happiness. Embittered by his experiences in World War I, Murray has rejected the comfortable but constricting post-war American lifestyle. Like Dustin Hoffman in "The Graduate," one can sense his disillusionment; we expect someone to come up to him and say just one word: "plastics.

Murray plays Larry Darrell, a sort of hippie of the Roaring '20s who can't go back to the old homestead now that he's seen Paree. He leaves his fiancee to find himself in Europe, taking on odd jobs ranging from fish packer to coal miner. A well-read coal miner tells him of the secrets of India, and away goes Murray on a pilgrimage in search of self.

"The Razor's Edge" is based on the book of the same name by W. Somerset Maugham, and for the fine film starring Tyrone Power made after World War II. Is Bill Murray in the same league as Tyrone Power? One needn't be a high-priest to know the answer to that question. Murray is an incredibly talented performer, and may yet produce a fine dramatic role, but this film doesn't contain it.

That's only Murray's fault. Although Murray co-authored the script with director John Byrum, it is an illconceived, poorly executed project. Maugham's tale may have some timeless messages adaptable to a post-Vietnam America, but Byrum and Murray have 'mishandled the story's presentation. There are scenes in this film that linger far too long, while others skirt the satire of a "Saturday Night Live" sketch.

As if to make sure he doesn't fall into too many traps, Murray decides that the best way to act is not to act at all. He goes through the film as stiff as a board, the most complex character in the story turned into a one-dimensional wanderer who lets the others around him compensate by overacting.

Murray gets an "A" for effort, but this "Razor's Edge" may turn out to be his downfall rather than his redemption.

Work Ok'd To Aid Drainage Problems

A lot of work, at the very least, and ultimately, a considerable outlay of money, may be required to cope with drainage problems which regularly plague the Friend Street-North Arnold Avenue section of Prestonsburg.

These conclusions were reached following discussion of an engineer's report by members of the Prestonsburg City Council, Monday evening.

The problem was brought to the attention of the council at a meeting two weeks ago by Prestonsburg attorney Clifford Latta, whose home on North Arnold is among several threatened during heavy rains, and again. Monday night by another resident. Gladys Allen.

"The water coming out of Trimble Branch is so great it's backing up water everywhere," was the way Councilman Bobby Watson summed up the dilemma. But the problem originated and has since intensified with the construction and associated filling of former drainage "sump" areas by new businesses, council members agreed.

Forty-two-inch pipe behind Druther's Restaurant, for example, is now inadequate to accomodate runoff which has, through filling activity, become concentrated into a smaller

"Since construction of the floodwall," said Mayor Harold Cooley. 'people, with or without the city's permission, have installed their own pipe and filled in the area." In reponse to Mayor Cooley's statement, council members agreed with a suggestion by Councilman Paul H. Thompson that 'some sort of drainage ordinance should be included in the zoning process to avoid these problems.'

Citing the engineering report, compiled by John Hill Engineers, of Prestonsburg, council members discussed installation of larger diameter pipe but were at a loss for a suitable funding plan for such large scale excavation work.

Mrs. Allen, who said there were times when "I have to wade the water up to my knees to get to my car," complained that trash and debris are regularly dumped into the low bottom area behind some of the businesses along U.S. 23 in the North Arnold area and the consequent damming effect is. in her opinion, a major cause of runoff problems.

Street Superintendent Leonard Joseph supported Mrs. Allen's grievance pointing out that workers had carried two truck loads of trash out of a culvert in the area last Friday. "I think it would help to keep it cleaned out," he said. In addition to garbage, weeds and brush which are allegedly thrown into the drainage area, siltation has clogged some sections of pipe reducing their capacity by as much as half, it was said.

It was decided by the council that warnings be issued to all businesses to discourage indiscriminate disposal of brush and debris, followed by clearing of the pipes in question. But City Manager Dave Evans warned that "you have a lot of methane gas in there," the cause of recent and widelypublicized deaths to workmen in a Salyersville sewer line, and workers, who will probably begin clearing work shortly after Thanksgiving, will have to be equipped with suitable breathing devices to minimize the danger.

In the meantime, Evans said, cost estimates on replacement of pipe will be made.

Considering, at council's last meeting, the possibility that some insurance companies may be shortchanging the city in returning adequate license fees, City Manager Evans, charged with devising a suitable means of auditing the firms, suggested that all companies involved first be identified through inquiries to local agencies. "Then we can see which ones aren't paying and force them to begin payment, and later pick three for a random audit to see if they're paying enough.

The council ruled to turn down a request by Ed Walters, new owner of the former Ken Isaacs auto dealership here, that he be allowed to lease or otherwise use Hughes Street, a short lane connecting Riverside Drive with U.S. 23, for expansion of the business. A group of Riverside residents had requested that the street stay open for access to their homes.

The yearly audit report for the last fiscal year ending June 30 was submitted to council members for study with discussion expected at the next scheduled meeting, November 26.

CIRCLE MEETS

The regular monthly meeting of Annie Allen Circle, W.M.U., of the First Baptist Church was held at the church annex Monday evening, Nov. 5. The president, Mrs. Ruby Garrett, presided. The possibility of delivering Thanksgiving baskets to shut-ins of the church was discussed. At the request of the pastor. the Rev. Steve Hopkins, it was agreed that the W.M.U. would serve dinner to the pastors and Sunday school directors. who are scheduled to meet here December 3. It was decided that the Eliza Broaddus goal for this year would be $15.00, and Mrs. Garrett said that the Lottie Moon goal had been met. A report on the Associational meeting held at Salyersville was given, and it was announced that the next meeting of the Association will be at the local church. Mrs. Sarah Laven was in charge of the program about the relationship some residents of the U.S. form with people of other nations through missionaries. Assisting with the program were Mesdames Ruby Garrett, Zella Archer and Patti Minns. Mrs. Vivian Fraley, Mission Support chairman, presented the Prayer Calendar, giving the names of missionaries having birthdays during the month of November, and they were remembered with prayer. From a table decorated in keeping with the Thanksgiving season, the hostess, Mrs. Carl Woods, assisted by other women of the church, served a dessert course to Mesdames Ruby Garrett, Eva Collins, Patti Minns, Vivian Fraley, Sarah Laven, Myrtle Allen, Zella Archer, Dolly Pettrey, and Ora Bussey. Recipes from the evening's menu, wrapped as scrolls and fastened with Thanksgiving seals. were presented as favors. Mrs. Garrett invited members to attend the Christmas dinner at her home early in December

Holiday Meals, New Treatments Featured In Diabetes Classes

Preparing meals worthy of the holiday season but still safe for diabetics and some new ways of treating diabetes are the highlights of November's "Living Well with Diabetes" classes at Highlands Regional Medical Center. This month's sessions are scheduled for November 14 and 21, from 3 to 5 p.m. each day in the cafeteria at the Medical November's first session will be highlighted by pointers in preparing holiday meals that are safe for diabetics. This session has been scheduled to coincide with Thanksgiving, but the information should be useful throughout the holiday season, according to Food Services Director Sue Wilkerson. On November 21, Dr. Alan J. Hyden will speak to the group about new developments in the treatment of diabetes.

The classes will also feature problemsolving discussions. These, according to Wilkerson, have been very effective, largely because diabetics share many of the same problems.

(For more information about the twice-monthly "Living Well with Diabetes" classes, call Sue Wilkerson at 886-8511, extension 556.

Groundbreaking Set For New Bank Here

Groundbreaking ceremonies for the new First Commonwealth Bank building to be erected on the property formerly known as Garfield Place will be held at 11 a.m., Saturday. Taking part will be Burl Wells Spurlock, president and chairman of the board of directors; Betsy Lambert, Blaine R. Hall, Clifford B. Latta, Woodrow W. Burchett, Charles W. Miller, and Marvin E. Music, Jr., directors. Honored guests will be Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo and Prestonsburg Mayor Harold W. Cooley.

Architects for the new bank building are Johnson-Romanowitz, of Lexington, and contractor is Ervin Akers, of Dana. Richard E. Martin, of Prestonsburg, is project supervisor. Construction is expected to be completed within 18 to 24

The public is invited to attend the groundbreaking ceremonies.

Woman's Suit Says Sponges Were Left In Body by Surgeon

A Melvin woman who had a hysterectomy in January had to go back to hospital nearly five months later to have surgical sponges removed from her abdomen, she claims in a suit filed last week in Floyd Circuit Court.

The suit filed last Wednesday by James and Roberta Reeves asks for a jury trial and unspecified damages against Martin gynecologist Dr. Chandra Varia and Our Lady of the Way Hospital. It says Dr. Varia operated on Mrs. Reeves on Jan. 21 and left behind a "large foreign body" which a pathology test revealed to be "surgical pads and/or sponges.

The existence of the sponges came to light on June 24, when Mrs. Reeves returned to Our Lady of the Way complaining of pain and fever. They were removed by Dr. Gan Maddiwar, a surgeon at the hospital, she says in her

(Claims made in filing lawsuits give only one side of the issue in dispute.)

MAYTOWN NEWS

Hope Ann Gray attended the 25th Junior Youth Assembly at the Continental Inn in Lexington and the Capital in Frankfort, Nov. 1-2-3. This Youth in Government Program was offered to the talented and gifted classes in the Floyd county schools. More than 30 students were accompanied by their T.A.G. teacher, Miss Sharon Martin. This educational opportunity allowed students from all parts of the Commonwealth to submit written legislative proposals, run for state office, debate youth legislation, serve on committees. and see the General Assembly process in action. Hope Ann served in the senate sessions. This three-day model legislative session was highlighted by the students attending the Governor's Banquet. Miss Gray is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Gray. Miss Martin is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clem Martin.

Mrs. Earl E. Webb, Mrs. Lula Webb and Mrs. Thurmal Click were shopping in Lexington, last Tuesday.

Several friends from Maytown attended the household shower for Mrs. John Patrick Ousley (nee, Jennifer Robinson) Saturday evening, Nov. 10, at the Martin lunchroom. She received many nice gifts including hand-made quilts, blankets, silver, cookware, linens and other useful items. Refreshments were served to the guests by the hostesses Audrey Scarberry, Loujean Gibson, Martha Sparkman, Rose Risner, Audrey Ousley, Janet Halbert, Clara Ousley, Reba Halbert, Ann Marie Robinson, Della Halbert, Patty Robinson, Della Hicks, Peggy Stephens, Doris Robinson, Carla Boyd, Glenna Bradley, Marcella Damron, Judy Kidd, Sianna Risner, Thelma Pruitt, Clara Risner, and Velma

Mr. and Mrs. Norvel Fetty, of Huntington, were the guests last week of her mother, Mrs. Homer Martin, of Eastern, and of friends here.

To Observe 100th Birthday

The children of Samuel Preston Taulbie Lewis, one of Eastern Kentucky's oldest men, announces that he will observe his 100th birthday Saturday, Nov. 24 at his home at Tram. Relatives and close friends have been invited to join him for the occasion.

A native of this county, Mr. Lewis is a son of Harvey and Sarah Lewis, and at one time was employed as a miner. He was named for Preston (Press) Taulbie, noted Eastern Kentucky orator and former Congressman who was shot and killed on the Capitol steps in Washington, D.C. during his term of

Gospel Sing Scheduled

A gospel sing is scheduled for Sunday, Nov. 18 at the Word of Life Fellowship Full Gospel Church on Island Creek, Pike county. Beginning at 7 p.m., the program will feature Royalty, from Phelps.

Refreshments will be served and the public is invited. Pastor is Elmer Kittle.

IS IT WRONG TO CRY?

When a friend or loved one dies, it is only natural for your emotions to give way to grief—and for you to cry.

Tears are therapeutic in more ways than many of us realize. They give us an emotional outlet, providing us with specific physical action we can perform. At the realization that the loved one is gone, tears may come easily for both adult and child—and this is good! Children may even be encouraged to let out their feelings of grief by crying.

Most do not need extra encouragement since it is so natural to weep in sorrow. It is not unmasculine to cry at the death of a loved one or a dear friend. It's a misconception that "big boys shouldn't cry." This is all a part of the early 20th Century training in the old school of the "stiff upper lip" and "grin and bear it." If there is an emotional hurt, then the pain should be recognized, acknowledged, and expressed—in this case, through tears.

Your questions and comments on this and other subjects are welcome—in private or publicly through this column.

PUBLIC NOTICE OF BLASTING SCHEDULE

Application No. 636-8035 Wheelwright Mining Inc., Box 7, Price, Kentucky 41654, shall conduct blasting operation on it's acre.

Mining permit, application number 636-8035. Said operation is located approximately 11/2 miles north of Kentucky State Route 122 junction with Hwy. 979. Latitude 37° 24' 08". Longitude 82° 44" 28". The surface of the area to be mined is owned by Wheelwright Mining Inc.

Blasting will be conducted each day, Monday through Saturday from 11:00 a.m. to 12:00 p.m. and 2:00 p.m. to 5:00 p.m. Any major alteration from the blasting schedule will be published. Unscheduled blasting may occur in emergency situations where lightening, rain, other atmospheric conditions or the safety of the operator or public requires unscheduled detonation.

Control of the blasting area will be maintained by blocking access roads to the blasting area ten (10) minutes prior to the blast. Post detonation access to the blasting area will be allowed only after an inspection and determination that no hazards exist.

A predetonation warning, consisting of three (3) long blast of air horn/siren will be given. After personnel are cleared from the area, two additional long blasts will be given two minutes before detonation of explosives. Just prior to detonation, one additional long blast of siren will be sounded. Personnel are to remain in clear area until a satisfactory postdetonation inspection of the blasting area has been made. A postdetonation all clear signal, consisting of a series of short blasts on the air horn/siren will be given. These signals will be audible over a minimum distance of one half mile.

The preceding notice is published pursuant to Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement Provisions and the regulations relating there to Kentucky Permit Number 636-8035.

Winter Heating Aid Applications Resumed

The Cabinet for Human Resources began taking applications again Monday for assistance to pay winter heating bills. All low-income Kentuckians are eligible to apply for help during this second phase of the federally-funded Home Energy Assistance Program which continues through December 31.

Applications will be taken at most local Social Insurance offices throughout the state, but in some communities applications will be taken at other locations. Clients should check with their local Social Insurance office to find out where to apply for HEAP benefits.

During the first segment of HEAP, ending Oct. 26, approximately 53,000 applications were taken from only those households with elderly or disabled members. Social Insurance Commissioner Jack Waddell said low-income elderly or disabled persons who failed to apply during the first part of HEAP may apply during the second part.

With $9.7 million available for distribution from Nov. 12 through Dec. 31, the Cabinet for Human Resources expects to be able to provide funds to approximately 77,000 applicants.

A third phase of the Home Energy Assistance Program was added this year to assist low income households who are without heat either because of utility cutoff or inability to purchase heating fuel. Waddell said his department has reserved $4 million for this third, or "hardship", phase of HEAP which begins on Jan. 7.

The first U.S. President to ride in an automobile was Theodore Roosevelt.

Official Named To Coal Council

month by U.S. Energy Secretary Don Hodel. It will serve as an advisory committee to provide recommendations to the executive branch of the federal government on government-industry cooperation in coal-related matters. It is patterned after the prestigious National Petroleum Council, set up in 1946 to further government-industry cooperation that had proven successful during World War II.

Secretary Hodel explained: "The Reagan Administration believes that the time has come to give coal-our most abundant fossil-fuel resource—the same voice within the federal government that has existed for petroleum for nearly four decades.'

The Council, a self-funded advisory committee chartered under the Federal Advisory Committee Act, will assist both government and industry in determining ways to improve cooperation between them in such areas as coal research, production, transportation, marketing and utilization.

In his announcement, Hodel indicated that the Council's membership would be increased from the initial 23 to 100 to 125. The existing members represent coal companies, electric utilities, railroads, coal-related manufacturers, state government, universities and several energy/economic/mining associations.

Others from Kentucky among the 23 original members of the Council are: Larry Forgy, president, South East Coal Sales, Lexington, and James L. Rose, president, LEECO, Inc., London.

Another AEP executive has been named to a key post in another national coal organization. He is John C. Brennan, senior vice president-public affairs of the AEP Service Corporation, Columbus, who has been elected a director of the American Coal Foundation, Washington, D.C. He will represent the nation's utilities on the ACF board, which was organized in 1981 to promote the advantages and uses of coal.

The seven-state AEP System is the nation's largest coal user. It is currently projecting the generation of a record 115-billion kilowatthours of electric energy in 1984, of which about 87% will come from coal.

Twenty of the AEP System's 22 major power plants are coal-fired. One is nuclear, and one is pumped-storage

KET's 'NOVA' Looks At the White Shark

The great white shark often has been called the most ferocious predator in the sea, a lear-inspiring creature with a reputation as a man-eater. But is this reputation deserved, or is the great white shark a poorly understood giant in

In "Jaws: The True Story" NOVA takes a look at the great white shark, examing the fears, the legends, and the facts that surround it. The program will air Tuesday, December 4, at 8:00 p.m. on KET.

In attempting to unravel the mysteries surrounding the shark, NOVA visits expert Dr. John McCosker of the California Academy of Science's Steinhart Aquarium in San Francisco. He presents the latest information on the predator. The program features spectacular footage, shot by renowned underwater cameraman Al Giddings, which sheds new light on questions surrounding the great white. We learn, for example, that it is one of only a few species of sharks that are warmblooded; we also learn about the great white shark's unique sonar-like sensory system, an important tool in locating

Appalachian Troubadour Offers Concert Series In Elementary Schools

Floyd county elementary school children have been singing this week about litter, to kick off a week-long antilitter campaign.

A free musical concert was performed in the auditorium of the schools by "the Appalachian Troubadour." The troubadour is Michael Johnathon, musician from Mousie, Knott county, who uses banjo and guitar to communicate the themes of garbage, environmental awareness, and community pride to school children.

Anti-Litter Week (Nov. 12-14) is part of an educational program jointly sponsored by the Kentucky Clean Community Program (part of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet) and East Kentucky Beverage. The program uses the 'Waste in Place' curriculum and involves inservice training for teachers; an anti-litter campaign carried out by the school; and a free musical concert for participating schools.

The Troubadour Concert schedule for Floyd schools follow.

Monday, Nov. 12-9 a.m., Stumbo Elementary School; 1:30 p.m., Harold Elementary School.

Tuesday, Nov. 13-9 a.m., Betsy Layne Elementary School; 1:30 p.m., McDowell Elementary School.

Kentucky May Benefit From Potato-Chip Gap

By ANDREW DAVIS University of Kentucky/ College of Agriculture Dick Roberts has his eyes on the potato chip industry in hopes they'll need help from Kentucky.

Dr. Roberts, an Extension horticulturist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, thinks Kentucky might be able to help the potato chip industry, which recently has had trouble getting enough potatoes to make into chips.

"We would like to," Roberts said. Kentucky has only a handful of growers, but Roberts still thinks Kentuckians can help the industry.

There are seven potato chip companies in or near Kentucky. Roberts said the majority of Kentucky potato growers are under contract to Frito-Lay.

Last year, Frito-Lay and Gordon's Chip had to shut their doors because they did not have enough potatoes. Roberts said Kentucky can help the industry with their problem.

'There's a window in the market," he said. "We can fill the order."

According to a study by the College of Agriculture, Kentucky might be able to fill the mid-summer void.

"The major advantage for Kentucky growers is the close proximity to (the) market," the report reads.

"The potato chip processing plants in Kentucky and nearby states begin hauling potatoes from Florida and southern Alabama in early summer. As the season progresses, potatoes are purchased from states more to the north in order to keep the plants operating continuously.

"Kentucky fits into the production and marketing scheme for a six-week period from July 15 to the end of August," Roberts said. Most Kentucky potato farmers plant in early April and harvest in early July

Roberts said it's very costly for companies to transport potatoes from as far away as New York and Maine, two big potato producing states.

The potential for more Kentucky growers is there, Roberts said. The companies offer farmers a guaranteed price of $5.50 per 100 pounds, which, in a good year, makes it very profitable for growers

According to the report, Kentucky farmers could make more than $1.6 million annually if the potato crop were increased to meet the companies' demand of 1,518 acres.

Harold Hempfling of Valley Orchard has been in the business for more than 30 years. He cautioned farmers who are thinking of getting into potatoes that it will take a lot of work and effort before they begin to show a profit.

Hempfling said 1984 was one of the worst years he has ever had, but he is not going to leave the potato business.

"There's money to be made in potatoes," he said. "In a normal growing season $5.50 is a fair price. It's risky. It's a gamble every day you get up.

John Mayer of Bardstown started in the potato business this year. He said he was unhappy with his results. He got only 150, 100-pound-bags per acre.

He said, however, he would stay in the business for another year, in hopes that his return would increase. If not, he wouldn't grow any more potatoes for

Workshops To Answer Questions About Jobs

Where are job openings in Kentucky? For what occupations are there more trained workers than available jobs? When employers view Kentucky as a site for a new business, what do they want to know about the labor force?

These are some of the questions which will be answered this month at a series of workshops sponsored by the agencies which make up the Kentucky Occupational Information Coordinating Committee (KOICC).

The workshop for this area will be held Nov. 28 at the Mayo Vocational School,

"These workshops are for vocational education staff, school and employment service counselors, and people involved in economic development, such as planners for area development districts, local governments, and Job Training Partnership Act programs," said KOICC Coordinator Don Sullivan.

Frito-Lay, with whom he has a contract. "There's no way you can do it (make a profit) in a year," Hempfling said. "It could take about five years. Experience is three-fourths of it, though. Roberts cautioned everyone that they could lose big money. Hempfling said farmers must look at the entire picture before entering the business. He added that they just look at the big contract price the companies pay and sometimes get into the business too quickly. Roberts said it is very expensive to enter the potato industry. He estimated if a farmer buys used equipment, it also said potato farming is open only to farmers who can commit 40 to 50 acres a year to the companies. Roberts said tobacco farmers who are looking for an additional or alternative crop may want to consider potato farming. Milton Schuffett, professor of agricultural economics in the UK College of Agriculture, said tobacco farmers would be more likely to get into potato farming as a second source of income. "They're going to stay in tobacco as long as they can," Shuffett said. "They might want to as a second source of income. Farmers are always looking for additional income.'

Roberts said it would be an economic boost for Kentucky as a whole if there were more potato farmers because there would be more tax revenues to collect. He added it would take a major effort from bankers to help finance the farmers the first few years.

"The potential is there," he said. "We can do it.'

MARY ANN TOBIN AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS COMMONWEALTH

OF KENTUCKY

October 8, 1984

To the People of Kentucky Honorable Martha Layne Collins, Governor Honorable John M. Stumbo, County Judge/Executive Members of the Floyd County Fiscal Court

We have examined the statement of receipts, disbursements and excess fees of the County Clerk of Floyd County for the period November 10, 1983 through December 31, 1983. Our examination was made in accordance with the Standards for Audit of Governmental Organizations, Programs, Activities and Functions, issued by the Comptroller General of the United States, and accordingly, included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances.

The Sheriff and former County Clerk have contracted Steven R. Allen, Certified Public Accountant, to examine the statements of receipts, disbursements and excess fees of their offices.

As recommended by the State Local Finance Officer, pursuant to KRS 68.210, the accompanying financial statement is prepared primarily on a cash basis. Consequently, certain revenues and the related assets are recognized when received rather than when earned, and certain expenses are recognized when paid rather than when a liability is incurred. Accordingly, the accompanying financial statement is not intended to present financial position and results of operations in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

In our opinion, the accompanying financial statement presents fairly the receipts, disbursements and excess fees of the County Clerk for the period November 10, 1983 through December 31, 1983, in conformity with the accounting system described above, applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year.

We also conducted tests of compliance with state laws and regulations, and unless otherwise noted below, the tested items were in compliance with applicable state laws and regulations. During our examination, nothing came to our attention to cause us to believe that the untested items were not in

We did not conduct a study and evaluation of internal accounting control as we concluded that the audit could be performed more efficiently by expanding substantive audit tests. Therefore, we placed very little reliance on the internal accounting control system.

Comments, recommendations and areas of noncompliance are as follows:

All excess fees reported herein have been paid to the County

A receipts and disbursements ledger was not maintained as required by the Uniform System of Accounts. However, the County Clerk is in compliance in 1984.

Receipts for moneys were not issued on recordings and other miscellaneous receipts as required by KRS 64.840. However, the County Clerk is in compliance in 1984.

The annual settlement was not presented by March 15 to the fiscal court as required by KRS 64.152. In future years, we recommend compliance with this statute.

> Yours for a better Kentucky, Mary Ann Tobin State And tor of Public Accounts

Those Fallen Leaves Still Have Value

Quicksand, Ky.—Home gardeners who rake fallen leaves into piles and burn them are sending a valuable resource up in smoke.

Dr. Terry Jones, Extension horticulturist at the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture Robinson Substation, said colorful autumn leaves do not lose their attractiveness when they fall to the ground.

"Most of the beautiful fall color in Kentucky has past, and the leaves are falling like rain. In the past these leaves were raked into piles and burned or bagged and hauled off to the dump,"

Jones said.

"But that pile of leaves is a valuable resource. Composted leaves can serve the same important function as peat moss at much less cost." Jones said.

moss at much less cost," Jones said.

While most types of leaves are suitable for composting, oak leaves can also be used immediately for mulch.

"Generally oak leaves make the best mulching material because they are stiff, decompose slowly and do not pack tightly around plants. Soft leaves, such as maple, ash and poplar, tend to mat and should not be used directly as mulch," Jones said.

The addition of soil and feritilizer to a compost pile will hasten the deomposition of the leaves.

Jones gave these tips for making a compost pile:

compost pile:
Alternate layers of leaves six to 10 inches deep with layers of soil one inch

Sprinkle one and one half cups of 10-10-10 fertilizer and two-thirds cup of dolomitic limestone per packed bushel of leaves over each layer of leaves before the layer of soil is added.

If the compost is to be used on acidloving plants, use three-fourths cup of ammonimum sulfate in place of the limestone.

Finished compost piles should be no less than three feet wide and three feet high, since smaller piles will not decompose very well.

For more information about making a compost pile, call or stop by the county Extension office and ask for Horticulture Fact Sheet HO-34, Making Compost.

Plan Dyslexia Screening

Dyslexia screening sessions, sponsored by the Hindman Settlement School Tutorial program, will be held Dec. 10 and 11. The purpose of the screenings is to identify those children who have the characteristics of this learning disability. Those children would then be eligible to enroll in one of the after-school tutorial programs located in Knott, Perry, Floyd and Letcher counties.

If you have a child who has difficulty in the areas of reading, writing or spelling and would like more information about this screening, call Lori Unruh at 785-5024 or Ann Latta at 886-6100.

Preschool Opens at David

Thanks to the combined efforts of many people the former Scout lodge at David is now a mountain-top preschool.

The David Preschool, which opened in mid-October, is providing 15 four-andfive-year-olds from the David area with an academic program from 9:30 a.m. to 12 noon Monday through Thursday. The teachers are Juanita Shepherd, Sue Tussey and Sister of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary Donna Schauf, all of David.

Students are transported to and from the preschool via a school van. The curriculum includes reading readiness, math readiness, storytime, music, physical education, Bible storytime and practical life skills.

Grants from Kentucky's O.E. Robinson Mountain Fund and the Sisters of Charity of the Blessed Virgin Mary, of Dubuque, Iowa, made it financially feasible to open the preschool.

An additional grant from Middle States Coal Company of David assisted with remodeling and road repair costs. Contributions of private individuals from Iowa and Illinois, as well as the tuition paid by students' parents, are meeting remaining needs.

Did you know that of a total of twenty six amendments to our Constitution, three are directly concerned with insuring the right of citizens to vote? This is evidence that the Constitution is a working basis for government—not just a static document. The Daughters of the American Revolution urge you to celebrate Constitution Week, September 17th through 23rd, by resolving to be a citizen who votes responsibly. Read your

Named Commended Student

Prestonsburg High School has been notified that one of its seniors had been designated a Commended Student in the 1985 Merit Program.

Robert May, principal, announced recently that Mark Tussey, son of Mrs. Marie Tussey, of Allen, and the late Grover Tussey, placed in the top five percent of over one million participants in the 30th annual competition and will receive a Letter of Commendation in honor of outstanding promise for future academic success.

An officer of National Merit Scholarship Corporation (NMSC), which administers the program, stated that, "The exceptionally high test performance of young people who are named Commended Students in the extremely competitive Merit Program is deserving of recognition in their communities. To acknowledge the attainments of academically talented students and to credit schools for the part they play in the development of these youths are important in a nation that values excellence. We sincerely hope that their accomplishments thus far will motivate these students to pursue higher education and to acquire the skills they will need to become productive adults and contributing citizens in a free society.'

Participants entered the current Merit Program by taking the PSAT/NMSQT in the fall of 1983 when most of them were juniors. Although the qualifying test scores of the 35,000 Commended Students designated nationwide were very high, they were slightly below the level required for semifinalist standing in the competition for some 5,500 Merit Scholarships to be awarded in 1985. The 15,000 seminfinalists in this year's competition were announced publicly by NMSC on September 13.

Miss Stumbo Represents Floyd As Institute for Teachers

"ambassadors of the classroom" have returned to their home communities after a reunion with other participants in the first Commonwealth Institute for Teachers and an opportunity to suggest educational improvements to the state's top education officials.

The follow-up weekend at the Executive West in Louisville was the first of two scheduled for the teachers who took part in the enrichment seminar held at the University of Kentucky in

Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald, who earlier challenged the teachers to become "ambassadors of the classroom," said their suggestions for change and their research papers giving community opinions on education would be submitted to staff members of the Department of Education for review and recommendations.

'These outstanding tead throughout the state represent a valuable pool of talent, and the department intends to make full use of their commitment, their talents and their expertise," she said.

The group includes Carol Stumbo, who teaches at Wheelwright High School. Of the Institute for Teachers Miss Stumbo

"The Commonwealth Institute for Teachers has provided me with not only some good friends, but also with resources that have helped my teaching. By bringing teachers together from all over the state, the Institute has allowed all of the participants to share ideas, concerns, and problems. Each member of the Institute has come to feel, I believe, that whether it be in Jefferson County, Fayette, or Floyd, teachers can make a difference in the quality of education offered in Kentucky. The State Department of Education has given us that opportunity to make a difference by listening to the classroom teacher and treating what we have to say as important.

Topics of discussion during the weekend session included teacher evaluation, teacher effectiveness, proposals for a career ladder for teachers, and ways of involving the institute members in educational improvement at the state level.

The Equal Employment Opportunity Commission's "Guidelines on Discrimination Because of Sex" provide that unwelcome sexual advances, requests for sexual favors, and other verbal or physical conduct of a sexual nature constitute sexual harrassment when submission to such conduct is made either explicitly or implicitly a term condition of an individual's employment, according to "A Working Woman's Guide tok her Job Rights," published by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

As Energy Secretary, Evans Spearheads Research on Coal

By JEFFREY MARX Herald-Leader business writer (Reprinted with permission from the Lexington Herald-Leader)

George E. Evans Jr. is as comfortable seeking a couple of million dollars in a corporate deal as he is luring a smallmouth bass from a secluded Canadian lake.

In either setting, he just tries to enjoy a conversation and maybe a common interest with some of the biggest names in Kentucky business. Since December, when Evans joined state government as energy secretary, much of his serious work has involved promoting the coal industry.

"You'd look at him and think he would always wear a tie and sit behind a big desk," said University of Kentucky basketball coach Joe B. Hall, Evans' fishing buddy. "But he is as much at home in a canoe, with a big fishing rod."

Or sitting on the UK basketball bench, puffing on a fat victory cigar. Or wearing heavy boots and a safety lamp for a trek through a deep mine.

In 1942, three-quarters of a century after his grandfather left Wales to dig coal in America, Evans, a native of Charleston, W. Va., began his career as an independent coal operator in Eastern Kentucky.

Ever since, through the launchings of numerous small ventures of his own and the pressures of holding executive positions with large companies like National Steel Corp. and Island Creek Coal Co., his creed has been the same: Let's make a deal, but let's also make sure we have some fun while we're making it.

During an interview last week in his spacious office off Ironworks Pike in Lexington, Evans, 66, said: "I'm a firm believer that you have to have fun at what you're doing every day. I demand it. People who can't have fun don't enjoy being around me very much.'

But make no mistake. Evans, who came out of retirement for the second time to join the administration of Gov. 'Martha Layne Collins, is indeed concerned with pioneering advances in energy research, especially as it affects

In contrast with most Cabinet-level agencies, the Energy Cabinet has no regulatory or enforcement powers, so it is committed to research and education. said Mark McDaniel, Evans' principal

In 1971, Evans lobbied thengubernatorial candidate Wendell Ford for funds to open a modern center for energy research. Thirteen years later, in his Cabinet role, Evans oversees the Kentucky Center for Energy Research Laboratory, the fruit of his earlier effort.

"And I feel a strong obligation to it, because it really hasn't done what I had in mind," Evans said. Where past emphasis had been on academic research, current emphasis is geared toward applied research, because "this lab has to function to the benefit of the people of Kentucky," he said.

So far, research has been concentrated in two major areas:

· The use of dry "scrubbers" in coalburning facilities to replace a washing system now used in coal preparation to remove sulfur and other potential pollutants from the coal

At a Glance

George E. Evans, Jr., Secretary, Kentucky Energy Cabinet, Lexington. Birthplace: Charleston, W. Va., June 7, 1918.

Family: Wife, Jo; three daughters; and eight grandchildren. Education: B.S. in commerce, University of Notre Dame, 1940.

Career: Various capacities, including president and owner, several coal companies since 1942, vice president, Island Creek Coal Co., Cleveland, 1966-1968. President, National Mines Corp., Lexington, 1974-1978. President, coal development division, National Steel Corp., Lexington, 1978-1983. Appointed to Cabiniet, Dec. 29, 1983. Quote: "I don't give a damn about money. Somehow or other I never have."

The dry system would eliminate the possibility of dangerous byproducts of the washing process that could harm water supplies near a preparation plant, Evans said.

· A "fluidized bed combustion system" that mixes various combinations of coal and limestone and reduces emissions of nitrogen oxides and sulfur oxides, which industry critics point to as a cause of acid rain-rain that is thought to be polluted by coal-fired power plants.

The mixture is doing a "near perfect job" in removing the troublesome products of coal burning, Evans said.

The center is also researching various uses of solar energy and other alternate energy sources, "but they're still related to coal," Evans said.

In fact, it was Evans' concern for coal that led to his placement in an otherwise all-Democratic Cabinet. Why else would he have been the one chosen to serve, as he said, as the "token Republican"?

"I don't always look to see how they're registered, but he had a tremendous background in coal," Collins said of the appointment. "I have been to several national meetings with him where we were trying to get an energy policy based on coal. These people all hold him in very high regard... (so) it is certainly a help to Kentucky to have him in that slot."

Stonie Barker Jr., who last week retired as chairman of Island Creek Coal Co., said a good administrator without a coal background might be able to perform the role Evans does, "but he wouldn't have the industry at heart like George would.

Quipped Evans: "The way I knew for sure I was secretary of energy was when I was answering to two women instead

Before joining government, Evans was president of National Steel's coal development division.

He was content living in Lexington with his wife, Jo, following the lives of their three daughters and eight grandchildren, traveling to almost all of UK's basketball games, and fishing with his cronies whenever possible.

Ten years ago, Mrs. Evans was diagnosed as having cancer. One doctor said she had no more than six months to live, Evans recalled. It turned out that the diagnosis was correct, but the prognosis wasn't. Through surgery and chemotherapy, Mrs. Evans survived. therapy, Mrs. Evans survived.

Except for finding his wife the best medical attention he could, he felt powerless, he said. The experience reinforced his attitude toward life and material things.

"I don't give a damn about money." he said. "Somehow or other I never have, and I don't know how you say that.

"I've shared a lot of my earnings with other people that were loyal to me by giving them stock in a company that I started when it cost nothing. I had a couple of guys that made over a million dollars in just one deal. They were loyal, dedicated people.

Don Johnson of Lexington is one of Evans' close friends and sometime business partner. Johnson made a mark in the coal industry with his own company in Pike county, then made the mark in the horse industry by selling a yearling last year for a record $10.2

"He's not the kind of person that will ever retire," Johnson said of Evans. The two are co-owners of Sprite-Flite Jets Inc., an executive flight service based at Blue Grass Airport. "When he's 90, he'll look to do something constructive, and the money has nothing to do with it."

Indeed, Evans seemed more at ease discussing his vast collection of miners' lamps than his annual government salary of $59,499. The money was trivial compared with the sentimental value he attaches to the lamps, which date back to the 1870s.

One "investment" that excites Evans is represented by a framed stock certificate hanging on the wall behind his desk. It verifies that he owns 1.05 million shares of Fisherman Extraordinarius Unlimited, a mock company listing Evans as president and Joe B. Hall as secretary

On one fishing trip, the close association with Hall led to trouble. The two waged an impromptu bet on who could hook the next fish. Hall was the victor, but to Evans went a mixed bag of spoils.

Evans, a University of Notre Dame graduate, was forced to sit on the Wildcats' bench and cheer for UK in a game against the Irish. As usual, Evans couldn't depart without stirring up a lit-can get away with almost anything. But don't be fooled, warned Hays T. Watkins, chairman and chief executive Va., who has bargained with Evans many times.

"George is very pleasant, but a very tough negotiator," said Watkins, whose company operates several major coalhauling railroads. "Don't ever let that pleasant exterior fool you. I'd rather have him on my side than have him negotiating on the other side of the

Floyd Hay, M.D., and author of "The Country Doctor," and Bill Mardis, a nationally-noted columnist, will be the guests of Nolan Kenner on the November 16th and 23rd editions of "Bywords," KET's Friday evening public information series which airs at 7:00 p.m. (ET).

"The Country Doctor" was written by Hay as a testimonial to the rapidly fading profession of the rural physician, who was expected to be an internist, pediatrician, surgeon, and general practitioner. A difficult task in ideal circumstances at best, Hay points out it was complicated by rough surroundings and the lack of proper medical equipment. Dr. Hay's book is a lively compilation of pictures and anecdotes about "The Formation of Clinton County, "Early Days at Maple Hill," and personal recollections of his student days at Berea College

Bill Mardis is the assistant managing editor of the (Somerset) Commonwealth-Journal and writes the "Your Humble Reporter" column. The column has gained notoriety for its old Anglo-Saxon dialect, and is noted for its timetested folklore and comments about "city folks." Mardis has won numerous awards from the Kentucky Press Association for his news stories and commentary.

KET Wins Three Program Awards

At the recent SECA (Southern Educational Communications Association) annual conference, KET received a Certificate of Merit for public television programming for the evening program, "A Night at the News." The producer for the program was Kirk Lehtomaa.

Also at the SECA confeence, the program "School Marm" from KET's inschool series for junior high students, 'Kentucky's Story," won a Certificate of Merit in the Instructional Television Programming division. Tom Ward is the producer of "Kentucky's Story."

KET's third award was presented at the PBS Program Fair, held in Seattle, Washington in October. KET was runner-up in the Corporation for Public Broadcasting's Performance Programming category for "Two Can Play," produced by George Rasmussen.

Highlands Regional Medical Center has signed a contract to provide clinical facilities for students of Mayo State Vocational School's practical nursing program. The agreement calls for students training to be licensed practical nurses to receive supervised learning experiences and observation at the Medical Center, according to HRMC Director of Nursing Drema Osborne, R.N.

We also provide the same service to Prestonsburg Community College's R.N. program," said Osborne. "Our new expansion made the agreement with Mayo possible by giving us the space to handle more students." Included in the expansion is a four-room learning center that opened in July.

'We're delighted to be able to use the facility," said Melody Trimble, coordinator of Mayo's practical nursing program. "We know the benefit that it's going to bring to the students. It'll be a clinical experience that will bring them ou can cut your heating bills by adding a heat pump to the gas or oil furnace you already have.

"If your heating bills are high, add on a heat pump."

An add-on heat pump saves you money because it shares the job of heating your home. It goes on only when electricity is the most efficient, economical source of heat.

And all summer long, you get the comfort of air conditioning. Because in the summer, the heat pump reverses itself and pumps the heat out of your house while keeping the cool air circulating.

Because an add-on heat pump uses your existing furnace, most installations don't involve any changes at all to your ductwork.

If you think about the savings, the air conditioning, and the low cost of installation, adding on a heat pump is a pretty smart move. Call us and find out more.
