This Is Our Last For the Year 1984

The Floyd County Times ends its 1984 publication year with this week's edition.

That is to say, the paper will not be printed next week.

Its next edition will be dated Jan. 2, 1985.

Meanwhile, the business office will be open Thursday and Friday of this week; will be closed thereafter until Christmas is past, and will reopen, full-scale, Thursday of next Four county officials-including three magistrates on the fiscal court-and a former county clerk were among 16 persons named in indictments handed down yesterday (Tuesday) by a Floyd Circuit Court grand jury.

The indictments came at the end of a day of testimony, in which seven state police officers gave evidence, and capped an eight-month investigation into the fiscal practices of the county government in 1982, when the late Jerry Lafferty, Jr. was judge-executive.

Those indicted face a total of 65 counts, almost all of them forms of alleged theft. Conviction on any count-all of them are listed as class D feloniescould bring a prison sentence of from one to five years.

Right Beaver Magistrate Kenneth

Roberts faces 12 charges-11 alleging theft and one possession of a forged check-as does his sister-in-law and county employee, Naomi Green. Named on four counts each are Left Beaver Magistrate Ed Caudill and Hugh Fugate, of Price, an associate of Caudill's and a former employee of Floyd County Solid Waste. District 4 Magistrate Lowell Samons was indicted on a single count of theft by deception.

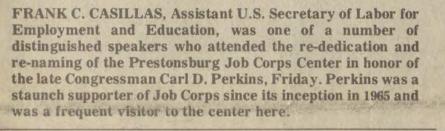

Charged with five counts of theft by deception is Thomas Lafferty, Sr., who was deputy judge-executive under his brother's administration and who is now trial commissioner in Floyd district court. His son, Thomas Lafferty, Jr.personnel officer in his uncle's administration, later county clerk, and now executive assistant to state Insurance Commissioner Gil McCartyfaces six similar charges.

Others named in the indictments were Anthony Castle, of Hueysville, and his mother Alma, each charged on four counts; Ballard Crum, owner of Village Chevrolet at Eastern, and his sons, Ricky and Jackie-Jackie Crum named on four counts, his father and brother facing one count each; Harlos Marshall, of Maytown, two counts; and Robert Duncan, of Hueysville, one count. The seven were identified by police as associates of Magistrate Roberts.

Also charged were John Mark Stephens, of Pikeville, facing two counts of theft by deception and one of possessing a forged check, and Irene Merion,

Builder's Suit Says

Developer Is 'Broke

Even as their $10 million project takes shape here, developers of the Prestonsburg Village shopping center are broke, a disgruntled creditor claims in a suit filed last week in Floyd Circuit Court. The plaintiff asks that the court appoint a receiver to manage the developers' assets.

In the suit filed by Prestonsburg attorney Janice Porter, Hal Hicks, vicepresident of B.C. Hale Construction, says the Huntington, W. Va. firm was subcontracted in January by Century Builders' Associates, main contractor on the Prestonsburg Village job, to do work on the site for $229,000.

After seven months' work, Century Builders' representative Peter S. Zanetti summarily pulled the subcontractor off the job, has refused to pay $21,403 due for work already done, and has cost him an additional $136,381 in lost contract earnings, Hale said.

Named among the defendants in the suit are W and G Prestonsburg Associates, Inc., the Crestwood, Ky. firm that owns the property on which the shoppng mall is being built; John W. Waits, a general partner in W and G and in Commonwealth Development Corporation, developer of Prestonsburg Village, and Century Builders' Associates. Hale, who is asking for $50,000 in punitive damages as well as the sums he claims are owing or were denied him as a result of the termination of his contract, says he believes the three defendant firms are insolvent and have numerous other creditors. He seeks a court declaration that he has a lien on their property, asks that the property be sold to satisfy the debt, and wants a receiver appointed to insure that the defendants' assets are not dissipated.

A suit filed in court presents only one side of the issues in dispute. Zanetti, who is vice-president for development at Commonwealth Development Corporation, did not return a reporter's call.

The suit also lists as defendants Winn-Dixie (Louisville) Inc., Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. (Bentonville, Ark.), and the Cato Corporation (Charlotte, NC), lessees; Chemical Bank of New York, which is financing the project; and Elkins Enterprises, Inc. (Prestonsburg) and Archer and Music Enterprises, Inc. (Prestonsburg), owners of easements on the property.

Feds May Stop Strip Job, Tho' State Issued Permit

Federal mining authorities may step in if mining operations begin on two Stumbo Hollow tracts for which the state has issued a stripmining permit, the director of the Office of Surface Mining's Lexington field office has warned.

The state Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet must have proof that Triple Elkhorn Mining Co. has a right to stripmine the properties owned by Maggie Taylor and her son Marion before it can issue the company a valid permit, said W. Hord Tipton in a Nov. 21 letter to state Surface Mining Commissioner Robert Knarr.

'Federal enforcement action will be considered if mining commences on the area," Tipton wrote in a Dec. 5 letter to the Taylors' attorney, J. Logan Griffith. And the OSM official urged Griffith to let him know if he or his clients "notice any activities at the site which might indicate mining will begin.

Two brothers were lodged in the county jail last week on arson charges, following an early morning blaze last Monday that destroyed a Middle Creek furniture store.

Ricky Lee Perry, 22, and Clyde Perry, Jr., 19, both of the Dotson Community on Middle Creek, were arrested Thursday on arson and burglary charges, state arson investigator Barry McKenzie claiming they broke into Ron's Bargain Barn, on the Mountain Parkway a few miles west of here, and set the building on fire. The store, which was razed by the fire, belonged to Ronald Frasure.

The brothers were also charged with criminal mischief for allegedly damaging a telephone booth at Jenny's Place, another Mountain Parkway store, the same day

They were each held in lieu of a $50,000 property bond, or $5000 cash.

THE ANIMAL SHELTER, formerly operated near here by the Floyd County Humane Society but now long abandoned due to lack of adequate funds, may reopen if plans of the Eastern Kentucky Wildlife Federation are carried through. Seeking to stem the abundance of stray and wild dogs and cats which yearly take a tremendous toll on all types of area wildlife, the Federation is presently acting, with the help of the City of Prestonsburg, to assume the 99-year lease held by the Humane Society. Promise of funds from the county, which is required under law to maintain a shelter, donations and membership fees from the Federation are seen as the primary sources of money to sustain the operation, it was said.

Job Corps Renamed In Perkins' Honor

Amid much pomp and ceremony, a large crowd of area residents listened, Friday, as high-ranking federal and Job Corps officials delivered accolades and recounted stories about the man for whom the Job Corps center here was officially renamed-the late Carl D. Perkins

Job Corps students, many in spit and polish military-type uniforms, greeted visitors who were then welcomed by Kermit Berry, director of the center here, and entertained by the Job Corps Center precision drill team, the center chorus, and musical selections by the Prestonsburg band.

Among those who traveled from a wide area to attend the ceremony honoring the late Congressman Perkins, was the featured speaker, Assistant Secretary of Labor for Employment and Training Frank Casillas

Casillas told the group of area residents, center students and staff, 'By being here, we do more than re-great man: we also reaffirm the commitment to bettering the human condition, which was a hallmark of the character of the late Carl Perkins.' Casillas listed a number of the legislative causes Perkins championed during his long tenure in Washington and calling him "a staunch advocate for the common man," Casillas said. "When the interests of business and labor were put forth in debate, it was Carl Perkins who stood above the crossroads, keeping an eye on what was good for the men and women who did not have a special voice in the cor-

Job Corps, which began operation in 1965, largely through the persistence of the late congressman, was called by Casillas, "an avenue of opportunity for tens of thousands of young people, providing a fresh approach to life as well as the skills for a particular trade.' Plea Bargain Concludes Trial

Trial of a man accused of first-degree assault ended abruptly in Floyd Circuit Court Monday when the prosecution, surprised by some potentially damaging evidence against the complaining witness, offered to make a deal with the defendant.

Several witnesses had already testified in the case against Lawrence B. Hicks, 36, who was charged with beating his landlord, Winchester Francis, 58, of Garrett, with a slapjack on March 15. In what Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Albert A. Burchett described as "a straightforward case," several witnesses testified that Hicks, a man of fairly large build, pulled Francis, a much smaller man, from the cab of his pickup after it had stopped on the Salt Lick road, beat him about the head, and broke his finger. The prosecution sought to show that the alleged assault was without provocation. But Public Defender Ned Pillersdorf told the jury in his opening statement that Hicks had been provoked by sexual propositions Francis allegedly made to Hicks' ex-wife and sister-in-law. And, under cross-examination by the defense attorney, Francis admitted he had displayed a suggestive doll in the women's presence.

When the court reconvened after a recess for lunch, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley dismissed the jury, explaining that prosecutiuon and defense attorneys had reached an agreement in the case. Under the deal, Hicks pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of fourth-degree assault, on the understanding that the Commonwealth would recommend a probated, 60-day jail term and a $200 fine. If convicted on the original charge, the defendant could have received a sentence of from 10 to 20 years.

Commonwealth's Attorney James Allen conceded later that the prosecution case had been weakened by Francis' admission regarding the doll incident, which the landlord said was meant as "a joke," and said his fear that the jury might return a not-guilty verdict prompted him to offer the defendant a deal.

Defense attorney Pillersdorf said his client accepted the offer out of concern that the jury might give him a substantial prison term and in order to spare his ex-wife and sister-in-law the ordeal of taking the witness stand.

Tax Bill Collection Meets Disapproval

Charles Harmon, of Bayes Branch, was billed for taxes on a truck he never owned. Sue Yates, of David, was called delinquent on a payment for which she has a cancelled check.

They are not alone.

Whatever it generates in revenue, the Floyd fiscal court's decision to hire a debt collector to recover taxes on personal property unpaid since 1979 has yielded a crop of angry citizens.

Some of the bills sent out over the past two weeks are clearly erroneous, recipients say. None of them show the charges broken down by year or vehicle. And, for those who want information, the only number listed on the bill is a Paintsville number.

A Prestonsburg number publicized by Eastern Kentucky Credit Exchange two weeks ago when it introduced the collection program had still not been connected this week.

What bothers her most, said Mrs. Yates, is that uneducated folk may be

Fire Protection Districts Losing In Fiscal Court

The effort by members of the Garrett volunteer fire department to have their area declared a fire protection district with a right to levy a small property tax fizzled out last week, after weeks of bamboozled by the dunning notices' "fifty mile" words and not think to question them. And, even if they do wish to mount a challenge, how many people keep records for as far back as 1979?

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. told members of the fiscal court Friday that errors in the notices being sent out by the debt collection agency were creating "a serious problem."

"I know first-hand of too many people getting bills who have already paid their taxes," said the county attorney, who offered to confer with county officials and the collection agency in an effort to find the source of the errors.

While neither the present clerk or sheriff should be held to blame, it is clear by now that tax records in the clerk's office—records now being used by the collection agency—sometimes show as unpaid bills that have in fact been settled, he said.

Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo acknowledged this week that mistakes were turning up as a result of the effort to collect the back taxes. "But how else could we do it?" he asked.

Judge Stumbo said he was drawing some "heat"—some of it politically motivated, he added—but emphasized that the tax collection plan was adopted by unanimous vote of the fiscal court in an effort to collect taxes due at a time when the county needs the money.

Tangible taxes recorded as unpaid from 1979 through 1982 amount to around $790,000—a bill that comes to $1,070,366 when interest and penalties argument in Floyd fiscal court about whether Garrett residents were in favor of the idea.

One suggestion to come out of the dispute was to put the question on the ballot next May. But County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. said at last Friday's fiscal court meeting he could see no legal grounds for doing that. The magistrates should themselves decide the matter, he said.

Magistrates Kenneth Roberts and Gerald DeRossett, the only two at the meeting, voted to deny the fire department's request.

An ordinance which would establish a fire district in the Wayland area received its second reading Friday, amid signs that it, too, might be in trouble. Even before Mack Stewart, a member of the Wayland Volunteer fire crew, read the ordinance, Calvin Howell presented to the court a petition bearing 126 signatures of people opposed to the plan. First reading was given an ordinance authorizing the Blackhawk Mining Company to apply for $2.2 million in industrial building revenue bonds. Henry Hackworth, vice-president in charge of operations, said the firm intended to rebuild and expand its Lancer tipple. The new installation will include a unit train facility-capable of loading 86 train cars a day, compared to the tipple's present 36-car capacity-and will boost the company workforce from 40 to 46 employees, Hackworth said.

If finally approved by the fiscal court, the bond issue will then have to be approved by the state Industrial Revenue Bond Oversight Committee.

Bear Hollow resident Billy Arms issued the court an ultimatum, threatening to take legal action unless the county repairs the road there by Jan. 10. Arms argued that, while the fiscal court continues to take roads into the county roads system, it does not adequately maintain those for which it is already responsible.

The Bear Hollow farmer also criticized the court for permitting a county crew to build a bridge on property belonging to his neighbor, Gertrude Auxier. Magistrate DeRossett defended the bridge construction, saying that Mrs. Auxier hired the crew in a private capacity outside their regular work hours.

Viola Akers, of the Bob Ousley Branch of Spurlock Creek, also pleaded for repairs to the county road there, noting that it is now barely passable except by four-wheel-drive vehicles.

The court voted to write to state Transportation Secretary Floyd Poore, expressing its conviction that tolls on the Mountain Parkway should not be continued when the construction debt is paid off next year. are added. "Would we have been better off to let it go or try to collect it?" the judge asked rhetorically.

Paul Brumback, president of Eastern Kentucky Credit Exchange, said the firm is interested in correcting promptly any errors that turn up on the bills. "We give everybody the benefit of the doubt," he said, adding that the county tax commissioner would issue notices of exoneration to anyone with proof that their tax bill was paid.

Floyd fiscal court voted in February to hire the Paintsville firm to collect unpaid taxes on personal property like cars, motorcycles and boats. The company is bonded, its contract with the fiscal court is approved by the state Secretary of Revenue, and it gets to keep one-third of the taxes it collects.

Brumback predicted that criticism currently being directed at his firm and the county officials who hired him will be silenced when he returns to the county its share of the proceeds.

"I'd love to bring back a check for $300,000 and give it to the judge for repair of the county roads," he said.

COMMUNITY METHODIST WOMEN MEET

The Community United Methodist Women met Dec. 10 at the church, with Mrs. Dreama Osborne, president, presiding. Gifts for the Mini Home and foster children were brought by members, who also made presentations of poinsettas for the church shut-ins. A love offering for the building fund was made. The Klear Day program, held recently in Lexington, and attended by some members of the church, was discussed, as was the possibility of help for the local Loaves and Fishes Food Pantry.

Mrs. Nancy Tackett led the program on "Self-Denial, and "The devotions were given by Mrs. Frankie McClure, whose topic was "Time."

It was decided that the church would be divided into two groups, with those in the 18-39 age bracket forming one group, and women 40 and over the other.

Mrs. Frankie McClure played the autoharp, with other members joining in singing several traditional Christmas carols.

Refreshments were served by the hostesses, Mesdames Frankie McClure and Sherry Shepherd, to: Sue Spradlin, Jean Burke, Sherry Tucker, Terry Allen, Esther Ward, Karen Colvin, Ernestine Collins, Sheryl Sexton, Nancy Tackett, Drema Osborne, Debra Burke, Christine Simpson, Debby Lester, Shirley Daughton, and Mary K. Where Is Appalachia on Map?

Students in introductory geography classes in Kentucky's state universities are seriously lacking in basic geographic information. That is the conclusion drawn from a standardized test of geographic knowledge given to students at Murray State University, Western Kentucky University, Eastern Kentucky University, the University of Louisville and the University of Kentucky

This academic dilemma has been the subject of discussion by members of the Kentucky Geography Consortium, a group made up of departmental chairpersons at state universities.

Over the state, 2,069 students were surveyed according to Dr. Dennis Spetz, state geographer and a U. of L. geography professor. Forty-three percent could not identify Frankfort on a map of Kentucky while 30 percent could not identify Lexington and 20 percent could not identify Louisville. On a map of the United States 52 percent could not identify Washington, D.C. and one student out of every three could not idenmap you assume that the student knows how to read a map," Spetz said. "We canot assume that. The Geography Consortium views geography as an essential skill and we are working to improve its instruction in Kentucky's schools."

For assistance, elementary and secondary school teachers, administrators, and interested citizens are urged to contact University Geography Departments or the State Geographer's office at the University of Louisville. "We are all anxious to help in any way possible,' Spetz said.

On through the years—the centuries, no less—, he became known by different names, depending upon the land he was in and its language: St. Nicholas, St. Nick, Kris Kringle, Pelz Nichol, Sinter Klaas, Sandy Claus and, finally, the present-day Santa Claus. In some countries December 6 is still celebrated as St. Nicholas Day, but Christmas is now more generally accepted as the time for the now-rotund, old gent to do his magic.

Santa is the kiddies' favorite, of course. And he should be a model for us who have grown too old to know him as he should be known. For, whatever he is, and however long he has been around, he has been one who has brought delight to millions and never once has he dishonored whatever name he has been given.

AT THE END OF THE DAY

Christmas Eve and all its expectancy and promise, its moments of hush and hours of hubbub, is a great time. When it arrives next Monday, all the preparations for it will have been done and a few hours of welcome rest will precede the coming of the Day.

But what of Christmas evening—that is, the evening of Christmas Day? Have you ever at its close felt the loneliness creep in where for those brief hours all had been merriment and good cheer? The younger folks are all gone now, the house is silent, almost dark. The Tree still stands with its glitter and lights, but it has a deserted look, now that all the presents are gone. A carol drifts in from the television, a room or so away, but even this fails to soothe. (Continued from Page One) old broadform deeds, the Taylors had challenged Triple Elkhorn's right to stripmine on their property under the terms of a 1903 deed which, the landowners' claim, was never meant to authorize stripmining. The case is still pending in Floyd Circuit Court.

State surface mining authorities argue that property disputes are not theirs to decide and that they may issue mining permits to companies that are otherwise eligible, a policy that threatens to make it harder for landowners like the Taylors to keep the stripminers at bay.

The Natural Resources Cabinet has already issued Triple Elkhorn a permit to mine on the Taylors' tracts but Griffith has sought to block the permit in Franklin Circuit Court, where that issue is also pending.

Even if the state court finds for Natural Resources in that case, OSM may not be able to abide by the decision, Tipton warned, since the federal agency holds that federal law prohibits issuance of the permit.

Griffith said this week he was encouraged by the federal agency's stand. "This is what we've been arguing all along," he said. "Triple Elkhorn has to show it has a right of entry. As long as there's a valid property dispute, (Natural Resources) should not issue a permit."

wife of a Martin funeral home operator, named on one count of theft.

Most of the charges contained in the indictments—including 35 alleging theft by deception—are described only in general terms.

Jim Henderson, a case officer with the special investigations unit which gathered evidence of the county's 1982 financial dealings, said the grand jury returned indictments on all but one of those for whom indictments were sought.

The investigation, which involved as many as eight officers at a time over an eight-month period from July, 1983 to March this year, is continuing and could yield further indictments, Henderson said.

Despite an earlier report that a fresh jury would hear the evidence, the same jurors who have been empanelled all year were seated for Tuesday's special session, with the exception of one juror ummoned to replace Dewey Martin. Martin was said to have been excused because he had worked in the political campaign of one of the officials under investigation. In the absence of Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen, who stepped down because of his ties with the county government, presentation of the evidence and questioning of witnesses was conducted by Barbara Whaley and Dave Lewis, of the state attorneygeneral's office. The police probe on which the indictments are based was prompted by a February, 1983 report by the state Local Finance Office, which charged numerous irregularities in the way the county administration had been doing business. The state took over partial control of the county government in March that year and assumed complete control in April. Control over its affairs was not completely restored to the county until the following October.

Letters to the Editor

The views expressed here are those of the writers, and not necessarily those of this newspaper. No unsigned contributions will be published.

We Apologize

We made a mess of a letter to the editor last week. The writer clearly stated that it takes two to make a CON-VERSATION, but we switched letters around in such senseless fashion that it came out, CONSERVATION. And not only once but twice in the text and again in the headline!

Our apologies to Martie Lafferty, who wrote it correctly and managed to keep her cool when we did it incorrectly.— Editor.

A Big Order Dear Santa,

As you make your rounds this year, we would like to ask you to bring us the following for Christmas. If you can't deliver on Christmas Day, please bring as soon thereafter as possible:

-a gift certificate from the Governor and Secretary of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet guaranteeing protection of everyone's drinking water;

-a gift certificate from members of the General Assembly pledging to establish a fair and equitable tax system, including the taxing of wealthy mineral owners at the same rate as all other property owners must pay. This gift will not only be for the people of Kentucky, but will also delight local school and county officials who are searching for revenues to make up for lost federal funding;

—a gift certificate from the Governor pledging a commitment to enforce existing laws and regulations designed to protect landowners and the public, particularly the broad form deed law passed by the 1984 General Assembly;

—a gift certificate from state officials agreeing to stop their talk and paper shuffling and put an end to the pollution of groundwater and streams by illegal brine discharges from oil and gas wells;

—a gift certificate from the state administration pledging to end illegal and improper disposal of household and hazardous waste materials.

We hope you don't feel like we're asking for too much, Santa, After all, it is our homes and a future for our children that we are really asking for from you. You've been good to us in the past. We're counting on you again. Thanks.

Recommends Fair Play

Here is proof that we all should support and patronize our local places of business.

Local merchants and business people through the years have given freely to Miriam Rebekah Lodge and other organizations when called upon. The list of those who gave is long.

Please try your hometown merchants before going out of town. Turn about is fair play.

OTELIA S. SMILEY,

Heartaches and Blessings

The Christmas season is a good time to take a look at heartaches and blessings. Heartaches and blessings sometimes appear, one for one.

As an example, feel free to look at some things in my life:

Mother passed away when I was 15. I accepted Christ immediately, and depend on him daily.

For a long time, I played music and caroused. Nowadays, I play voluntarily for the old, sick, and needy in nursing homes, health care facilities, and senior citizen centers.

I served two tours in a war zone, and based on faith, I never lost a man.

I got a divorce in 1976. I thought the world had ended, but the blessings have been many—even after this tragedy. Also, I learned to deal with hate.

Everyday problems create in me the willingness to help others.

Heartaches appear to be from Satan! Blessings come from the Lord. Merry Christmas friends!

Opposes Parkway Tolls

Representative Bob Jones has proposed that the tolls on the Mountain Parkway remain after the expiration date of the 20 year bond indebtedness is paid. It is my understanding that the state agreed to absorb the maintenance cost after the original indebtness was paid in full. The people of Eastern Kentucky have fulfilled their obligation, now it is time for the people of the commonwealth of Kentucky to live up to their obligation.

I find Representative Jones proposal to be utterly ridiculous, and think that the people of the commonwealth of Kentucky will agree with me. In the event that any more consideration is given to such a proposal, I would like to suggest that a toll booth be placed on the Watterson Expressway, and also the Crestwood, Ky. area. I am sure Representative Jones' constituents would be as pleased with my suggestion as I am with his proposal.

I know you will join me and my fellow Eastern Kentuckians in strongly opposing the proposal outlined by Representative Bob Jones. I am confident that state government and the people of the commonwealth of Kentucky will fulfill their obligation by removing the toll booths from the Mountain Parkway when the indebtedness is paid in full. JIM ROSE,

State Representative-Elect, 92nd District

Backs Tolls on Parkway I, for one, agree with Rep. Bob Jones

You turn to the little music box to hear its faraway tinkle again, and "Silent Night," hauntingly beautiful, only adds to the loneliness.

You wonder now—was everybody happy? Did you forget anybody?

For that moment of reckoning I highly recommend to myself and each of you Hugh Haynie's great Christmas cartoon which showed a harried individual among all the presents under the tree, asking himself, "Did I forget anybody?"—and there, in the background, shadowy, unnoticed, the figure of the forgotten Christ.

A happy Christmas to you every one!

Right Beaver Toys For Tots Plans Sunday Yule Party

For a number of years, the Potter Clinic at Lackey, in cooperation with local area volunteer fire departments, has sponsored a Toys for Tots Christmas gift program. This year a new ingredient has been added as Thelma and Ken McAskill, owners and operators of the Loose Caboose Drive Inn at Garrett are sponsoring a Christmas party for the Toys for Tots program, Sunday, at the Garrett elementary school.

Unfortunately, according to Mr. McAskill, the smooth operation of the program as it has taken place in past years may have hit a snag. "Due to a communication breakdown or misunderstanding, the entire body of Garrett School has been invited," according to McAskill who said the problem thus created was that the Right Beaver area program, according to its originator, Dr. Ira B. Potter was to identify the truly indigent local children and make sure their Christmas includes a gift.

"We do not wish to exclude anyone, but since we have limited resources, we want to be sure that they are directed in the area of the most needy," a program spokesman said.

"There is a master list of children who have been invited," McAskill said. "Those who have participated in prior years know who they are," and several volunteers from the Toys for Tots program are in the process of getting invitations to those children who have not participated in past years. died: Mrs. Jane Spurlock, 72, of West Prestonsburg, Monday at the Prestonsburg General hospital; Evan S. LOCAL STORY USED BY ALICE LLOYD COLLEGE

A story, "Recollections of Christmases," from a December 1977 issue of the Floyd County Times, is being used as a part of the greetings being spent alumni and friends of Alice Lloyd College, this year. Since the Times' publication, the story has been used by the school in an effort to obtain Christmas "pretties" for needy children; in a fraternity magazine published by friends of the college, and more recently in the book by Robert Sloane, entitled "Alice Lloyd Boston's Gift to Caney Creek."

ment is open to just a few," Casillas remarked. "The fact that Carl Perkins exercised his authority with such decency, personal integrity and justice makes him even more outstanding, and closer to our hearts."

William Goodling, Republican congressman from Pennsylvania, and a long-time friend of Perkins, called the Knott county native "one of the greatest leaders we had in the Congress of the United States." Goodling also recounted several humorous anecdotes from past congressional battles and stressed Perkins' "warmth and sincerity."

The late congressman's son and successor, Congressman Carl (Chris) Perkins, said his father "cared about people," and warned that "we must stand our guard to ensure that the accomplishments of Carl D. Perkins not be discarded, but maintained." He stressed the importance, in particular, of strengthening education, "the future of the country." As Congressman Perkins closed, he awarded an honorary Kentucky Colonel title to Assistant Secretary of Labor Casillas.

Job Corps Center student government leader Charles McCollum, who spoke of continuing improvements at the center and commented that, "everyone has pulled together here," presented Perkins with a Christmas gift, a Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center jacket with "Chris" embroidered on the front.

Herb Watkins, vice-president and general manager of Singer Career Systems, of Rochester, N. Y., said "it was through Carl's work that programs of this type came about." Watkins commented that Perkins would never compromise any proposal that might hurt the Job Corps and called him "the program's chief supporter on the Hill."

Singer Career System's executive director for Region 4, which includes Kentucky and seven other states also spoke, and well-known Prestonsburg artist Russell May presented the original oil painting of the "Carl Perkins Homeplace" to the late Congressman's son as well as a print to the Job Corps Center.

A buffet luncheon for guests and participants followed at the center. that the toll should be left on the Mountain Parkway.

If some people could remember traveling old 460 between Salyersville and Lexington, they wouldn't complain about paying $2.60 to travel a halfway decent road.

I used to have to travel 460 to Lexington and it took three hours driving on a very bad road.

Maybe, they should close the Mountain Parkway for a week, make people travel 460, with coal trucks and tractor trailer trucks trying to pass on a curve or hill. Not very many would be too happy and some wouldn't even make it.

If it will put more money in the road fund, keep the toll on the roads that already have it, and maybe build more toll roads in the future.

Appreciates Lights

I would like to thank the person (or persons) who was responsible for our beautiful Christmas lights we have had put up over our streets in West Prestonsburg. I have lived here for 20 years and its the first time for our lights that I can remember. I, myself and some of my neighbors really appreciate them. It really makes you feel like you are a part of the city and not just the outcast sections. Thank you!

Salutes Fire Crew

On Saturday, December 8, a fire broke out in our home. After determining that we could not possibly control or extinguish the fire, we placed a call to the Prestonsburg Fire Department to come to our aid. It could not have been more than two or three minutes until the Fire Department responded with more assistance than we ever expected. A very efficient group of firemen very calmly and professionally went to work and, with a very minimal amount of damages, quickly put out the fire and began an effort to eliminate some of the smoke with the use of heavy-duty fans.

It is good to know that we can rest securely in the knowledge that expert help is just a phone call away, and we want to take this means to publicly express our confidence in and our gratitude to the Prestonsburg Fire Department.

Boys, our hats are off to you-a job well done!

The marriage of Miss Patricia Lee Sturgill to Mr. George Edward Barnette, Jr. was solemnized at 4 p.m., Saturday, November 24, at the First United Methodist Church, here, by Monsignor Ralph Beiting, assisted by Dr. Lowell Langfeld. The double-ring ceremony was performed before the altar which was flanked by candelabra entwined with baby's breath and a garland of smilax. The altar rail was covered with white fuji mums, baby's breath, ming fern and a garland of smilax.

Pews of the church were marked with clusters of greenery, baby's breath, and fuji mums

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Barkley J. Sturgill, of Prestonsburg, and the groom is the son of Ms. Johnnie B. Stephens, of Martin, and Mr. George E. Barnette, Sr., of Martin.

Preceding the ceremony, wedding music was presented by Mrs. Kathryn Frazier, organist, and Mr. David Banner Leslie, pianist. Mr. B.J. Sturgill, brother of the bride, sang "The Lord's Prayer, "The Wedding Song," and "One Hand, One Heart" throughout the ceremony.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a traditional wedding dress of Empress satin fashioned with molded bodice and vee neckline. The Genevieve sleeves were garnished with rosettes, and soft pleating enhanced the fullness of the skirt. Her fingertip veil was held by an inverted wreath of silk flowers. The bridal bouquet was a cascade of burgundy centered ivory cymbidium orchids and white roses with stephanotis, needlepoint ivy and lemon left greenery.

The maid of honor, Miss Susan Thomas, of Lexington, and bridesmaids, Miss Dorothy Sturgill and Miss Sarah Sturgill, sisters of the bride, wore gowns of burgundy silk taffeta styled similarly to that of the bride. In their hair, they wore dried flowers in shades of burgundy and ivory with ribbon streamers in matching colors

Mr. Roger Barnette, of Martin, brother of the groom, was best man, and groomsmen were Tim Allen, of Martin, and Dr. Halbert Salisbury, III, of Prestonsburg. Ushers were Mr. Thomas L. Hastings, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. B.J. Sturgill, also of Prestonsburg.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Sturgill wore a mauve dress with cymbidium orchid corsage. The groom's mother chose a beige dress with a cym-

William G. Francis asked for postponement of the trial of Carter county coal operator Larry Prichard's 1980 claim against the bank. Prichard says the Bank Josephine owes him $108,264 for coal he shipped in 1975. He is also asking the court to award him $100,000 in punitive damages.

A December 5 story in The Times reported that Circuit Judge Hollie Conley had mistakenly ordered the case dismissed. In fact, the judge explained, the case was set for trial on February 18.

Francis' motion does not detail his claim that the story hurt the bank's case. Prichard's attorney, Gordon J. Dill, Jr., of Ashland, said last week he had not read the article in question.

A hearing on the motion for continuance has been set for this Friday.

Officials Issue Warning Against Fireworks Sales Anyone buying or selling fireworks in thought had acted without criminal inthe city had better check to see they are legal, Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn and Police Chief Stan Fletcher warned this week.

CHRISTMAS SONGS FILLED THE AIR as members of the Prestonsburg High School band, directed by Wally Ratliff, performed at the Community Christmas Concert held at the municipal parking lot, here, Saturday afternoon. Members of the high school's chorus also participated in the concert. The

The warning came after illegal fireworks were confiscated from three area merchants, two of whom were issued citations for possessing them.

Confiscated Wednesday were whistling bottle rockets, jumping jacks, Roman candles and other Korean-made, "class C" fireworks. They had been on sale in the flea market operated by Paul Slone, of Dwale, in the Court Street premises formerly occupied by the Southern Dollar store. Nineteen boxes of fireworks, with an estimated retail value of $1800, were seized from the store.

On Friday, five boxes of similar fireworks worth an estimated $700 were confiscated from the East Kentucky Flea Market operated by Floyd Skeens on the Auxier road. A citation was issued to Danny Hamilton, of Teaberry, who leased the stall where the alleged contraband was on sale.

Another raid by police and fire officials Monday netted three bags, including several large canister-type fireworks, from Pelphrey's Grocery on South Lake Drive. Cited was the proprietor, Jerry Pelphrey, Jr.

In Kentucky, it is unlawful to possess or sell any exploding-type fireworks; only those of the "party favor" variety, like sparklers, are permitted, Blackburn said. Lawful fireworks carry an SFM number issued by the state fire marshal, he added.

None of the larger fireworks, like TNTs and M-80s, which became notorious several years ago for the injuries they were said to be causing have turned up recently in this area, but even some of the smaller fireworks are hazardous, as well as being illegal in this state, Blackburn said. Moreover, the fact that fireworks seized from the Court Street market were stored near clothing posed the threat of an additional hazard in the event of fire, the fire chief said. Slone, who recently opened the flea market there, said he had been told by City Building Inspector Paul Chaffins that the fireworks were legal. Chaffins said he told Slone they were not legal and issued two subsequent warnings to •that effect Blackburn said he did not intend to press charges against Slone, who he tent, but he urged other area merchants to check for the state fire marshal's number before buying wholesale fireworks for retail sale.

Blackburn added, "I do not intend to have bootleg fireworks sold under my nose in this city."

That avowal was echoed by Police Chief Fletcher. "The ones we are trying to protect are children under 9 or 10 years old," he said. "They're the ones who get hold of these fireworks and we want merchants to know we're not going to tolerate it.

Newsome Trial Postponed Here As Witness Ill

Trial of a Prestonsburg man on a murder charge, scheduled to begin Tuesday, has been postponed indefinitely owing to the illness of a key witness in the case.

Frank Newsome, 24, faces trial for the June, 1983 shooting death of Ellis "Bo" Campbell. But attorneys reported Monday that Glen Collins, who had been subpoenaed to testify for both the prosecution and defense, is ill in the Paul B. Hall Medical Center in Paintsville.

Newsome and Campbell, who was 27 when he died, were said by witnesses to have been together in a silver-grey sports car on Conley Fork of Spurlock Creek in the early afternoon of June 15 last year

Campbell was found in the middle of the Conley Fork road around 1:45 p.m. the same afternoon. He had been shot in the head, neck and stomach, apparently with a .22 caliber weapon. He remained in a coma until his death, five days later, at the UK Medical Center in Lexington.

The two men were intoxicated at the time of the shooting, according to a state police report.

Glenna Endicott, whose Indian Hills apartment was also listed as Newsome's address and whose 1979 Chevrolet Camaro was identified by police as the vehicle in which Campbell was shot, told police that Newsome was with her at the time of the shooting and could not have been on Spurlock Creek.

The victim was a son of Ernest "Cat Tail" Campbell and Lucy Adams Campbell, of Water Gap. He left a wife, Linda Hayes Campbell, and two daughters. No new date has been set for trial of Newsome. The missing witness is reported to be in traction, suffering from a back injury.

Candle of Love, 4th Candle; Christ Candle, Christmas Eve By CAROLYN FORD

The candle of love, I think, speaks for itself. The word, "love," is probably the most used and abused word in the dictionary. I wonder if our love for God and our neighbor is not like a pendulum, a weight that is hung from a fixed point in such a way that it can swing back and forth. How can we say we love God and at the same time pass by and ignore that stranger with pain on his face and loneliness in his heart.

God's love swings neither to the left nor to the right. God sent his love straight to earth in the form of His Son, Christ Jesus

On Christmas Eve many churches will be lighting the last candle of this Advent Season-the Christ Candle that symbolizes the light of the world; the candle that tells us God so loved the world that He gave His only Son to die on the cross for us. That, I think, is true love straight from heaven.

As this Advent season comes to a close and a new year begins, I would like to thank all of you who have been such a support to me in your comments concerning these articles. On behalf of the local churchwomen, I would like to thank the Floyd County Times for allowing me to share with you my thoughts of Christmas. My duty was to remind us all to keep Christ in Christmas and now, that seems so strange-you see, without Christ there would be no Christmas. We would never have even heard the word, 'Christmas.

WAYLAND WOMAN'S CLUB MEETS

Lackey-Garrett-Wayland The Woman's Club ushered in the Christmas season on December 3 with a "turkey and trimmins' " dinner at the home of Mrs. Lula F. Coburn, Garrett.

Mrs. Marsella Bradley discussed "Christmas Dinner in America," pointing out the wide differences in food across the various sections of the United States. Summing up the subject of Christmas food, she concluded saying that it matters not where we eat or what we eat as long as it is shared with loved ones, as well as those less fortunate, keeping in mind that amid all the glitter that has become a part of Christmas, there is always to be remembered the true spiritual significance of the holiday.

During a brief business session it was voted to give a contribution to the Town of Wayland Christmas Fund for its annual Christmas treat for children, shutins and the elderly. It was also decided to contribute $25 toward the gift fund for the residents of the Golden Years Rest Home, and in addition each club member present adopted a resident to purchase a Christmas gift for that person.

Following the program and the business, gifts were exchanged among the members. Those present were: Maxine P. Martin, Launice Dunfee, Blanche Bamer, Joyce P. Stevens, Louise West, Elizabeth Duff, Loretta M. Martin, Marie C. Mullins, Lula F. Coburn, Marsella Bradley, LaFaye Hughes, Libby Martin, and two guests, Jo Ann Hall and Loveda L. Coburn.

The next meeting will be held Jan. 21 at the home of Mrs. LaFaye Hughes, with Mrs. Launice Dunfee program leader on the subject of "Education"

Exaggerated discount claims are always suspect. Deep discounts, when frequently offered by a store, may not be discounts at all. Or is it a fictitious price that is meant to mislead you into believing you are getting a bargain???

Beer Licenses Suspended, 3rd Up for Hearing

Two Floyd tavern owners have had their retail beer licenses suspended because of liquor law violations and a third licensee has been summoned to appear before the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board in Frankfort to answer charges that the nightclub she operates is a disturbance to neighbors and that she included false information in a recent license application.

Rita Wells, operator of The Warehouse in Auxier, is accused of allowing loud music there to disturb neighbors over a 10-month period, from January to November this year.

She is also charged with claiming falsely, in an application to renew her retail beer license for 1984-1985, that she had a lease for the premises and is the true owner of the business.

A hearing on the charges has been scheduled for January 8.

In the meantime, Floyd ABC Administrator Denzil Allen ordered 20-day license suspensions for Dottie Rogers, proprietor of Dottie's Place, on Toler's Creek, and Mildred Martin, licensee at Martin's Produce and Grocery, on KY 7 at Estill.

Mrs. Rogers' attorney argued at a recent hearing here that his client was arrested by a state ABC investigator only because his authority was threatened. The hearing before ABC Administrator Allen was to consider whether Rogers should lose her license for allegedly selling liquor in the early hours one Saturday in September.

ABC Agent Darrell Embry said Mrs. Rogers "became loud and boisterous" when he questioned her about an afterhours sale. About two dozen patrons were still on the premises around 12:20 a.m. on Saturday, Sept. 29, and he "decided to leave to avoid a fight," Embry said.

Mrs. Rogers was arrested later on charges of selling after hours and disorderly conduct, charges that her attorney, Gary Johnson, said were prompted by Embry's becoming "angry and upset" when he felt his authority called into question.

Embry, a 20-year veteran with the military police, acknowledged that he 'sensed hostility" at the time but denied his decision to arrest Mrs. Rogers was based on personal feelings.

In the other case, Mildred Martin was accused of permitting alcoholic beverages to be sold on a Sunday. Agent Embry said he bought a case of beer at the store from Mrs. Martin's son, Jackie D. Gibson, at 12:50 p.m. on Sunday, October 14.

Mrs. Martin said her son was home for the weekend from Indiana and did not understand the operation of the store, but Embry testified that the licensee herself rang up the sale.

Allen found the charges proved in each case and ordered 20-day suspensions, to begin with the opening of business on Monday, Jan. 7. Rogers was given the option of paying a $150 fine in lieu of 15 days of the suspension period, which would allow the suspension to be lifted at the close of business on Friday, Jan. 11. Martin was allowed to pay a $100 fine in lieu of 10 days, which would enable her to start selling beer again on Thursday, Jan. 17.

Charges Dropped Against Tackett

Arson and criminal mischief charges against an East Point man were dropped last week in return for his agreeing to receive treatment for a mental illness and to pay restitution to the person whose property he allegedly damaged. Denvil Tackett was indicted in September last year on charges that he had burned a barn, tractor and outbuilding on a property on Lick Fork of Jenny's Creek, near Bonanza, in August. The farm had been purchased from Virgie Tackett, Tackett's mother, the previous November by Donald Lee Reffett, of Van Lear, a sale which was said to have upset Tackett.

Under an agreement worked out between prosecution and defense attorneys last Wednesday, Tackett will receive 60 days' of treatment at Eastern State Hospital, will pay Reffett $1800 in restitution, and will stay off Reffett's property. The agreement also settles a civil suit Tackett brought against Reffett, alleging malicious prosecution.

Chimney Fire Could Ruin Your Christmas

A chimney fire sounds like a freight train and looks like the Fourth of July, but it's a lot more probable around Christmastime.

Much like a firecracker, a fire in your flue is full of sound and fury and can be very dangerous. Which is why so many homes burn down during the holidaysshortly after piles of Christmas wrapping paper or evergreen branches are fed into fireplace or woodburning stove.

In a damaged or deteriorating unlined flue, flames can reach out through cracks or mortarless joints in the chimney structure to set nearby combustibles on fire. Or the chimney itself can stay so hot for so long that it catches wood structure close to it on fire through simple heat conduction. Sparks or burning debris landing on the roof can total your house, even if you have a faultless flue

Creosote, very flammable stuff that can burn with blast-furnace intensity, is the culprit. Creosote is present in some of those volatile chemicals in the woodsmoke going up your chimney. It can condense into a dark, watery liquid that trickles back down the inside surface of a chimney and/or stovepipe.

Some of it is burned off quickly and harmlessly, but some goes through further chemical change and forms a deposit that sticks like glue to flue walls and stovepipe. As this builds up, it becomes more and more dangerous.

As it dries, some of that creosote peels off into curly flakes that fall onto the nearest horizontal surface, such as fireplace smoke shelf or the elbow section of a stovepipe. This growing pile of black flakes is tinder-dry and easy to set on fire.

A low-burning, smoldering fire using lots of green wood or partially-seasoned wood will deposit more soot and creosote than a hotter fire using mostly wellseasoned wood. The latter gives off less water vapor and fewer unburned gases. A hot fire also warms up a chimney faster, which helps set up a good draft. Why is a good draft important? Because it speeds smoke and stack gases out of the chimney and pulls fresh combustion air into the stove or fireplace. Without it the fire cannot get enough oxygen to burn the fuel efficiently.

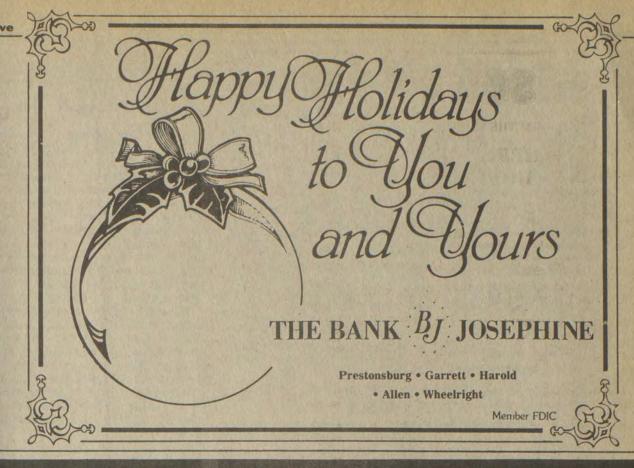

The result of a poor draft is incomplete burning, inadequate heat from stove or fireplace, creosote build-up on flue walls and stovepipes, chimney fires, excessive pollution, and a good possibility of some smoke and unhealthy fumes escaping back into the house.

Once you have a build-up of creosote on flue walls and tinder dry flakes of it piled up on smokeshelf or in stovepipe elbow, flames licking up the flue from a roaring fire can set it on fire.

If stovepipe sections are not fastened securely together with sheet metal screws, the tremendous suction and force of the flue fire can rattle them apart and dump flaming creosote on the department. It's also good to keep a special chimney fire extinguisher or two on hand, and don't be without smoke detectors. After a fire a chimney needs cleaning and/or repairing; maybe even relining.

You can prevent chimney fires by making sure your flue is lined and in good repair, by having it inspected and cleaned on a regular basis, and by learning how to build the kind of fires that inhibit the build-up of creosote.

It's also important for your flue to be the right size for the stove or fireplace insert it serves. Most fireplace flues are of incorrect size (too big) and design to safely serve a solid-fuel appliance. That's why even a stout, lined fireplace flue often requires an inner lining that "direct connects" the stove to the top of the chimney.

quickly, the whole house is in danger. If a chimney fire happens, get everyone out of the house and call the fire Holiday Greetings From Dr. Ray and Virginia Deguzman

Hattie Johnson

It is with a very sad and aching heart that we write the obituary of our darling mother and loving sister, Hattie Collins Johnson. She was born on February 2, 1915 to the union of the late Harve Collins and Lucy Tackett Collins and departed this life on October 20, 1984, thus making her stay here on earth 69 years, 10 months and 18 days.

Mother was married to the late Floyd Johnson who departed this life on April 10, 1975. Although they had no natural born children, they were mother and father to a host of young children in this community, especially to Emil, whom they raised from age four months and Patricia Sue, whom they raised from the age of six months.

Although she was my only sister, I feel that I have not only lost a sister, but in so many ways a mother. Her guidance and counseling meant a great deal to me in my youthful days of growing up.

She is survived by her mother, Lucy Collins of Melvin, Kentucky, one (1) son, Emil Arthur Collins, of Lincoln Park, Michigan; one (1) daughter, Patricia Sue Collins, of Weeksbury, Kentucky; two (2) brothers, Hatler Collins, of Melvin, Kentucky, and Arthur Collins, also of Melvin, Kentucky; one (1) sister, Bonnie Newsome, of Taylor, Michigan; two (2) half brothers, Ray Collins, of Charlottesville, Virginia and Earnest Collins of Mt. Carmel, Tennessee; two (2) half sisters, Geraldine Pride, of Dayton, Ohio and Betty Woods, of Churchill, Tennessee; three (3) grandchildren, Jennifer, Kimberly and Barth. She also leaves a host of friends and relatives to mourn her passing.

Thomas E. Herald

Thomas E. Herald, 38, of Snellville, Georgia, formerly of Prestonsburg, died December 7 following an extended illness

He was a son of Mrs. Mary Alice Herald, of Prestonsburg, and the late Edgar Herald and was a member of the Campus Church of Christ in Norcross. He had been an engineering designer with Lockwood Greene Engineers, Inc., Atlanta, for the past 41/2 years.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by his wife, Mrs. Cathy Callihan Herald; two daughters, Lauren Michaele and Mary Elise Herald, both of Snellville, Ga.; a son, Roger Herald King, of East Point; three brothers, William Herald, of Centerville, Oh., Robert Herald, of Prestonsburg, Steven Herald, of Lexington, and one sister, Patricia Wright, also of Lexington.

Funeral services were conducted December 9 at the Tom M. Wages Snellville Chapel with N.A. Fincher officiating. Burial was made in the Floral Hills Memory Gardens in Tucker,

"The insurance paid for all of my $1,320 in medical expenses while I was recuperating at Owenton Manor Nursing Home for six weeks," she said after the hearing.

Representatives from the nursing home and insurance industries were present at the hearing to provide the committee with insight into the need and demand for long term care insurance. The committee is composed of senators and representatives and was chaired by Senator Helen Garrett of Paducah.

A major problem that was identified was the public's misinterpretation that federal and private insurance programs would fund a nursing home stay.

'Long term health care accounted for 31 percent of the Medicaid budget in Kentucky in 1983," said David Kennell, Principal at the research firm ICF in Washington, DC. "If long term care insurance was purchased by one-half of those individuals 65 years and older, then the Medicaid program would notice a savings of approximately 23 percent.'

According to Kentucky Association of Health Care Facilities President Nancy Versnick, information gathered by the industry indicates that long term care insurance is available, affordable and expanding in the marketplace.

'The coverage should not be limited to nursing home care," said Versnick, "but should also include alternatives such as visiting nurse and home health benefits.

There are now 25 insurance companies writing some form of long term care insurance for approximately 50,000 individuals in the United States.

All senior citizens should have an opportunity to purchase long term care insurance, according to Clara Brown.

'It's hard to purchase insurance when you get old," she said. "A few years back, I had as many as six supplemental forms of insurance that I didn't even need. Now I only pay about $700 a year, and I feel that's reasonable for an 88-year-old lady."

IN LOVING MEMORY

In loving memory of our mother and grandmother, Clercie Jean Slone, who passed away on Dec. 15, 1983. She is sadly missed by her family and friends.

I remember the popcorn At the Sunday matinee. I remember the schoolyards Where I used to play, I remember the mountains So high and green, I remember the creek Where I used to dream. I remember the roads Of dirt and stone. I remember the porched houses That were always home. I remember the fears I had at times. I remember the love That would ease my mind. I remember the words I didn't understand. I remember the discipline In a gentle hand. I remember the hello's And the good-bye's. I remember the unspoken Wisdom of the eyes. Zoning Change Okehed For New Medical Building Approval by the Prestonsburg Zoning & Planning Commission for a zone reclassification of two lots beside the Archer Clinic here is expected to pave the way for the construction of a new medical office building.

The request was submitted recently by Dr. N. Roger Jurich, who presently holds an option on the "front" lot from owner, Press Hughes, adjacent to old U.S. 23 and formerly the site of the Hughes Garage, for construction of a 2,400-sq. ft. building to provide complete office, laboratory and supporting facilities for two doctors' offices. He asked that the lot classification be changed from R2 (residential) to the commercial C2 designation.

Earl Compton, who owns approximately a quarter-acre behind the proposed clinic site, made a similar request

The commission recommended approval of the change at a public hearing Monday night at City Hall. Its recommendation will be voted on by the Prestonsburg City Council at its January 14 meeting. City Manager David Evans said property owners in the area had been contacted and seemed in agreement with the change, and the absence of residents at the hearing also pointed to apparent public approval of the action.

Randy Burchett, of R. Burchett & Associates, Architects, said the building would be of metal construction with brick and wood veneer and wood shingle roof. The site would provide about 20-25 parking spaces, Burchett said.

PRESTONSBURG DAY HOMEMAKERS

Members of the Prestonsburg Day Homemakers met Tuesday, Dec. 11 at Fellowship Hall of the First United Methodist Church. Mrs. Eleanor Horn, president, was in charge of the meeting. The group joined in singing "Happy Birthday," to Mrs. Gladys Blackburn, and to Mrs. Opal. Dingus and Mrs. Dorothy Stover, in absentia. A new member, Mrs. Maurine Mayo, was welcomed. Lunch was enjoyed by Miss Maurine Mayo and Mesdames Eleanor Horn, Dorothy Osborne, Ellen Messer, Rita Francis, Margaret Alley, Betty Roberts, Beckye Short, Ruth Francis, Stella Spurlock, Mabel Donahoe, Mary Jane Brown, Peg Hewlett, Barbara Dawson, Lucy C. John C. Hall Founder Hall Funeral Home

SHOULD THE CASKET BE OPEN OR CLOSED?

This question can only be answered by the family, never by the funeral director.

There are several options available to the family. The casket can be open during the hours of visitation and closed during the final rites or it can remain open during the final rites. It can also remain closed at all times.

The customs of the family's faith and the influence of their clergyman's thoughts may help determine what is to be done.

Modern psychologists tell us viewing the deceased helps the family to accept the fact of death, especially when it may have been sudden or unexpected. If, however, the appearance of the deceased cannot be made acceptable, viewing may be harmful.

The family's own wishes on the desired procedure will always be the guideline for the funeral director at our firm. We respect the family's wishes on all particulars of the funeral service as we try our very best to provide a truly personal and meaningful service.

First Birthday

David Brandon Gibson, son of David A. and Paula J. Gibson, of Prestonsburg, celebrated his first birthday, November 21, with a Gizmo party at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde L. Hicks. He was the recipient of many nice gifts from his family.

Brandon is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Jack Gibson, of the Middle Creek Road, and Mr. and Mrs. Kermit Joseph, of Prestonsburg.

Insurance Fraud Warning Sounded

Gil McCarty, commissioner of insurance, last week warned consumers and agents alike not to purchase or broker insurance through Universal Underwriters, purporting to do business at Suite 815, First Security Tower, Lexington, Kentucky. These underwriters are not authorized to do business in Kentucky and to the knowledge of the state Department of Insurance have no · license.

These underwriters purport to represent Eagle Star Insurance Company of Syracuse, New York. No such company exists, McCarty said.

The alleged underwriters focus on homeowners insurance.

There is an Eagle Star Insurance Company of America, which is a legitimate company authorized to do business in Kentucky. But the authorized Eagle Star Insurance Company of America has been contacted and denies any knowledge of Universal Underwriters and Eagle Star Insurance Company of Syracuse, New York, according to Commissioner McCarty

Perkins Funeral First Of KET Series Focussed On Mountain Culture

More than 100 members of Congress traveled to Hindman to pay their respects to Congressman Carl D. Perkins upon his death last August. They included Majority Leader Jim Wright, Speaker of the House Thomas "Tip" O'Neill and Senator Edward Kennedy.

"A Tribute to Carl Perkins" is the first program slated to air in the "Headwaters" series, which focuses on mountain culture and concerns. The series will air on KET each Tuesday at 7:30 p.m., beginning January 8.

The program includes comments from them, a poem by James Still, and photographs from the Louisville Courier-Journal and Times.

"Women Miners Conference," the second program, features a conference held in Charleston, W. Va., where more than a hundred women miners met to discuss issues which confront them. The program contains music by Guy and Candy Carawan and the Reel World String Band, footage from the Appalshop film, "Coalmining Women," and a keynote speech by Cecil Roberts, vice-president of the United Mine Workers of America. Other programs in the series take a look at personal experiences in violence, frontier nursing, and arts in the public schools.

"Headwaters" is a production of Appalshop, Whitesburg.

Floyd County art student Estill Robinson is among those whose work will be exhibited.

The Prestonsburg Community College Art Department and Library are sponsoring a student art exhibit and sale December 13-20. The show opens with a reception from 6-8 p.m. Thursday, December 13. Students with work in the show are Todd Pack, Johnson county; Estill Robinson and Dan Underwood, Floyd county; Laura Shepherd, Magoffin county; Kent Bentley, Brian, Slate, and Barbara Derossett, Pike county.

The exhibition consists of numerous drawings done on location and in the studio by these student-artists. The works reflect the potential and beginning style or direction of each artist. Also included in the show are several water-colors and collages executed from very mystical to extremely bold.

An art show basically has three purposes: to show art work, to sell, and to educate. An invitation is extended to all to come for either of the above reasons.

May your Christmas bring a basketful of love tied with bright ribbons of joy!

Joseph Ryan Owens, son of Joseph and Teresa Owens, of Garrett, celebrated his fourth birthday with a Masters of the Universe party. He-Man cake, pizza and ice cream were served. Those attending were Margarett Conley, Freeda, Tonya and Rhonda Horne, Kathy and Tara Shepherd, Shelby Conley, Ina and Shawn Robinson, Marie Martin, Shirl, Jeri, and Keli Combs, Barry and Emily Combs, Debbie and Shanna Shepherd, Maudie, Robie and Michael Sexton, Beverly and Eric Conley, Barry Conley, Brenda, Angel, and Greg Horne.

He received many nice gifts from friends and relatives that were unable to attend as well as those present.

Ryan is the grandson of Molly Owens and the late Ralph Owens, of Langley, and Margaret Conley and the late Virgil Conley, of Garrett.

Gifts For The Sportsman By JOHN WILSON

Looking for a last minute Christmas present for Uncle Harry, the quail hunter, or Brother Bob the bass fisherman? A 1985 hunting or fishing license might be just the thing.

All Kentucky sport licenses expire at midnight, Dec. 31, so the sportsman will need a new one before his first trip of the new year. There isn't any problem about size or color and the price is reasonable.

A resident hunting or fishing license costs $7.50 each, and a combination license at $14.00 allows the sportsman to both hunt and fish for a full year. While youngsters under 16 years old do not need a fishing license, young hunters must have a junior hunting license ($4.00), issued with parental permission. The only persons who don't need licenses are Kentucky residents who have reached their 65th birthday, landowners or tenants and members of their immediate families hunting or fishing on lands which they own or reside, resident servicemen on furlough of four or more days who hunt or fish in the county where they lived before joining the service and veterans with military-related total and permanent disabilities.

It's the season to decorate our hearths and homes with holiday cheer...and to wish our many friends a truly joyous Yuletide!

RENTAL CENTER

SAYS: YOU WANT IT?-

YOU GOT IT!

If Uncle Harry lives out of state, you'll have to spend $16.00 for an annual nonresident fishing license or $40.00 for a year-round hunting license. Short term licenses are available for non-residents; a three-day fishing license costs $5.00 and a 15-day fishing permit, $6.50. A three-day small game hunting license is $14.50, but isn't valid for deer or turkey hunting.

Since the funds from license sales are used to finance the operations of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, that Christmas present to Brother Bob is also in effect a gift to fish and wildlife conservation in Kentucky. The money spent for licenses will ultimately be used for scientific research and management, stocking, law enforcement and education.

E DE TOE

And when a sportsman buys hunting or fishing equipment, he also benefits conservation by an 11 percent federal excise tax on such goods. The funds from this tax are prorated back to the states and used for approved fish and wildlife research or management projects or for wildlife land acquisition.

Another excellent and inexpensive Christmas gift idea is a subscription to Happy Hunting Ground, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' bimonthly magazine about hunting, fishing and conservation in Kentucky. A year's subscription costs only $3.00 for six issues and may be obtained by sending payment along with the name and complete address of the recipient to Happy Hunting Ground, Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. If you'd like, a card announcing the gift subscription will be sent in your name.

If you have a stamp collector on your list, a 1985 trout stamp might make a suitable gift. Although these stamps have been around for a while, the new one is the second to feature the reproduction of an original work of art, and the design will change annually. These stamps could be worth much more than their $3.50 purchase price in a few years.

Buying Toys Poses Problems

The knowledge that the Consumer Product Safety Commission tests children's toys leads many people to the mistaken assumption that a toy's presence on the market means it is safe. It is impossible for the CPSC to test even one sample of the more than 5,000 new toys that hit the market each year. It is still up to parents to be sure the toys they buy for their children are safe.

Edsel Moore, of the Product Safety Branch of the Kentucky Department for Human Resources, says parents should be cautious in the selection of this year's Christmas toys.

"Buying toys should be an intricate process, not an impulse. Parents should look for well-made toys, preferably with brand names. But unfortunately, many parents are motivated by price instead of quality," Moore said.

Before buying a toy check it for small, loose parts that can be swallowed easily, and for rough or sharp edges. Stay away from projectiles and explosive caps or loud toys. They can cause injury to eyes and ears.

Larry Piercy, Extension safety specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said parents also should read labels for information on flammability and toxicity.

"And make certain that painted toys do not contain any lead-base paints. Few manufacturers still use this extremely poisonous paint, but some still may," he said.

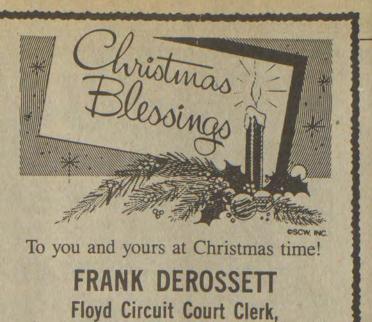

A child's age should be a big factor in the kind of toys purchased. Do not buy toys recommended for children younger than your own—they will be abandoned. Toys too complex will cause frustration or even injury. Although every child develops differently, some basic characteristics for each age group should be followed when buying toys.

 \odot

Concern for children's playthings should not end with the Christmas season. Teach children how to play with toys safely. Children need to be shown that the proper way to unplug electrical toys is by pulling on the plug, not the cord. Check toys, from time to time, for hazards or repairs that need to be made. Children, especially very young children, need to be supervised while playing. Keep in mind that older children's toys may be dangerous for younger brothers and sisters, and should be kept out of their reach.

If you enjoy making your own Christmas decorations, why not make a wreath trimmed with Iollipops? It's colorful and youngsters (of all ages) will thank you for this sweet holiday treat.

INTRODUCING The Landing

In the early 1900's, the riverboat would steam into town. At the sound of the whistle and the calliope, all Prestonsburg would gather at the Upper Landing to see what news, goods, or travelers had come up the Big Sandy.

At this same location, the carefree charm of a bygone era is recalled today at "The Landing," the new name for Prestonsburg's foremost address...at an affordable price.

An interesting thing about children's behavior is that the same discipline problems often come back in different forms at different times.

Parents who recognize these behavior patterns and know some ways to deal with them have a head start in keeping the family peace, according to Growing Child, the monthly child development newsletter. The following basic principles may help.

Don't reward negative behaviors. Most experts agree that behaviors that are consistently rewarded are the very ones which tend to become "builtin"-that is, they become part of the child's behavior pattern. Parents often unthinkingly reward negative behaviors. For example, punishment is often seen as a "reward" by the child because at least the parent is noticing the child and paying attention to him while the punishment is happening. Thus, the child may misbehave to get attention-even if it is painful.

Ignore negative behaviors as much as possible.

At times it is necessary to punish negative behaviors, but punishment does not necessarily mean spanking or other direct action. If you ignore negative behaviors, most often they will simply go away. Why? Because you have taken away the reward simply by not paying attention. You can get a lot of mileage out of this principle if you learn how to use it.

Avoid confrontation.

Try not to get into fights with your child when he is behaving negatively. After all, you are smarter than he is, and you should be able to manipulate the situation (and him) so the behavior does not bring on fights. This takes much extra effort on your part, but it's worth it.

What can parents do instead of punishing or confronting? They can use one of the most effective behavior modifiers: positive reinforcement. Reward positive behaviors.

Pay attention to the positive things your child does, and which you think are good. Praise him for positive accomplishments. Give him attention-a smile, a hug, a compliment—and he is likely to repeat the positive behavior. The Growing Child newsletter follows a child's development month-by-month from birth to six years old. For more information and a free sample newsletter, write to Growing Child, P.O. Among the topics covered at the conference involving district court matters was domestic violence and new legislation establishing this as a case category. The new domestic violence legislation permits district court judges to issue protective orders to keep defendants away from petitioners. Circuit clerks reviewed the process of filing petitions and emergency protective orders. All records on domestic violence cases must be kept confidential, and it is up to circuit court clerks to maintain these files separately from cases subject to public review.

The clerks also examined new procedures for handling DUI cases and revocation of licenses, filing petitions to remove tenants for not paying rent, and dealing with post-judgment remedies for settlement of claims such as garnishment of wages and executions of proper-

Crop Residue Said Cheap Help on Farm

"There's a cheap help available for farmers these days," says Clark Allison. district conservationist with the U.S. Soil Conservation Service (SCS) in Floyd county. "All a farmer must do is recognize this extra helper and use it.

What's this help? It's crop residue, and all a farmer has to do is leave it on the fields instead of plowing it under or burning it in the fall.

How does crop residue help? "Crop residue helps in many ways," says Clark Allison. "One way that crop residue helps is that it prevents splash erosion during winter rains.

When splash erosion is controlled, organic matter stays in the field where it increases the moisture-holding capacity of the soil and makes it easier to cultivate

Another way crop residue helps is by decreasing ditch maintenance. Fall plowing increases erosion during the winter months and increases the amount of sediment deposited in ditches. The sediment from plowed fields contains approximsately five times the organic matter of the soil in the field. In many areas, it is costly to have ditches cleaned and maintained. When you couple this cost with the value of the organic matter, it is better to leave this residue on the field.

 Cancer Hopeline

Q. Is the risk of developing cancer the same for cigar and pipe smokers as it, is for people who smoke cigarettes? A. Most cigar smokers do not inhale the hot cigar smoke that contains harmful particles and noxious gases. So their risk of developing lung cancer is smaller than cigarette smokers. Unfortunately, many ex-cigarette smokers, with set patterns of inhaling, switch to cigars but still inhale-sometimes without knowing it. These people are at the same or even higher risk of developing lung cancer than when they were cigarette smokers. Even tobacco smoke that is not inhaled has harmful effects upon the sites it touches. Once the hot smoke enters the mouth, it can linger in the mouth, travel throughout the windpipe and throat, be dissolved in saliva, be absorbed by the mucous membranes of the mouth, or swallowed and enter the digestive tract. Because of this exposure, cigar and pipe smokers have as high or higher risk for cancer of the mouth, throat, larynx (voice box) and esophagus as cigarette smokers.

Some studies show that cigarette smokers who cut down, or switch to pipes and cigars and do not inhale somewhat decrease their risk of early death. But nonsmokers live longer than either cigar or cigarette smokers. Cutting down may help, but quitting is best.

(For information on how to quit smoking call or write the Cancer Informative Service at 1-800-4-CANCER, Kentucky's Cancer Information Service, McDowell Cancer Network, 915 South Limestone, Lexington, Kentucky 40536.

Q. Our neighbor keeps talking about a macrobiotic diet as a treatment for cancer. What is this all about?

A. The National Cancer Institute (NCI) is looking into the role of diet and nutrition in cancer. Yet, at this time there is no proof that diet alone can treat the disease.

The NCI strongly urges cancer patients to remain in the care of qualified doctors who use accepted and proven methods of treatment. The use of unproven agents may result in the loss of valuable time and reduce a cancer patient's chances for the cure or control of the disease. If a cancer patient chooses to follow a macrobiotic diet while getting standard treatment, his doctor should be informed. Also, in order to insure that enough of the right nutritents are received, it is very important to consult a dietician.

Some people and groups have made claims that such a diet can be helpful in the treatment of cancer. The American Cancer Society, the American Medical Association, the Food and Drug Administration and nutrition experts agree that this diet can be harmful because it is low in both calories and protein and is not an effective treatment for cancer. A standard Macrobiotic Diet often consists of 50-60 percent whole cereal grains, 5-10 percent beans and sea vegetables, 20-25 percent vegetables, 5 percent soup and a small volume of white meal fish and fresh and dried

fruit. Persons on this diet must not eat any sugar, meat or animal products. They must also restrict their intake of fluids.

Clean Out The Creosote To Avoid Chimney Fires

. Removing creosote on a regular schedule is very important because: (1) It acts like an insulator reducing heat transfer efficiency. (2) Large deposits can block the flue making the heater smoke. (3) It is highly flammable and causes dangerous chimney fires.

One-quarter inch of creosote buildup signals cleaning time. Inspect the flue at both the heater end and chimney top. Remember that cooler surfaces will have the thickest creosote deposits. Also, it is unfortunate, but the efficient airtights generate creosote much faster because of their long slow burning characteristics. New heater installations should be inspected every few weeks until you determine creosote build-up rates.

Why all the fuss over creosote?

Creosote is a byproduct of burning wood. It is a highly flammable product or fuel that is located in places where it is not supposed to burn (stovepipes and chimneys).

Once creosote is ignitied, it burns with a fury, in the range of 2000 degrees. Compare that to a normal fire in the fire box of about 500 degrees and you can see how dangerous it could be.

The 2000-degree temperature is hot enough to melt the sand in the mortar joints, which is why the refractory mortar is supposed to be used. Never burn trash in your room heater as trash fires tend to start creosote fires.

Also, chimney bricks are not fireglazed bricks and are not designed for this extreme heat. In addition, the tile liner, which is designed to withstand 1800 degrees, may crack and break, allowing the intense heat to burn into the chimney. The liner expands and actually moves because of the rush of the air currents generated by the 2000 degree combustion.

If any mortar is deteriorated, a chimney fire can get into your attic, causing a very serious fire. Even if the flame doesn't get into the attic, there is a tremendous heat buildup, and that heat is transferred through the brick. This is why the 2-inch space from the chimney to combustibles is required. You may elect to clean your chimney from the roof. You'll need a brush, a weight, a rope, a ladder and a friend. You may, of course, substitute extension handles for the rope and weight. If you use the weight, a burlap bag filled with sand is a good choice.

Brush—a quality steel bristled chimney brush is a good investment for serious wood heater users.

Weight—buy a weight specifically made for your chimney brush or use a burlap bag filled with sand. Twenty pounds should be sufficient.

Rope—it should be long enough to reach the bottom (plus a few extra feet for safekeeping) and strong enough not to break, leaving brush and weight stuck in the flue.

Ladder-resting the ladder against the roof peak or eave is safer than marking each joint if you take it apart. Set up a cardboard box or old sheet at the flue opening in the wall to catch the soot and creosote. Attach the handle to the flue brush and push it into the flue. Work the brush up towards the top of the chimney adding extensions as required. Move the brush up and down the flue until no more creosote falls to the bottom. Collect the debris and toss it into the trash. Special note: You may want to protect your eyes and hands by wearing goggles and gloves.

IN MEMORIAM

(In loving memory of Charles Dwayne Samons, who passed away Dec. 17, 1982).

It's been two years now since he has been gone,

No one knows how I miss him here at home.

His walks and talks I can't see or hear, But No one misses him like me.

I can look out around the old home As I used to do, But I can't see him,

Walking around as he usually did.

His tracks around here are all washed away,

But he is still thought of each night and day.

The good Lord called him home I sure believe

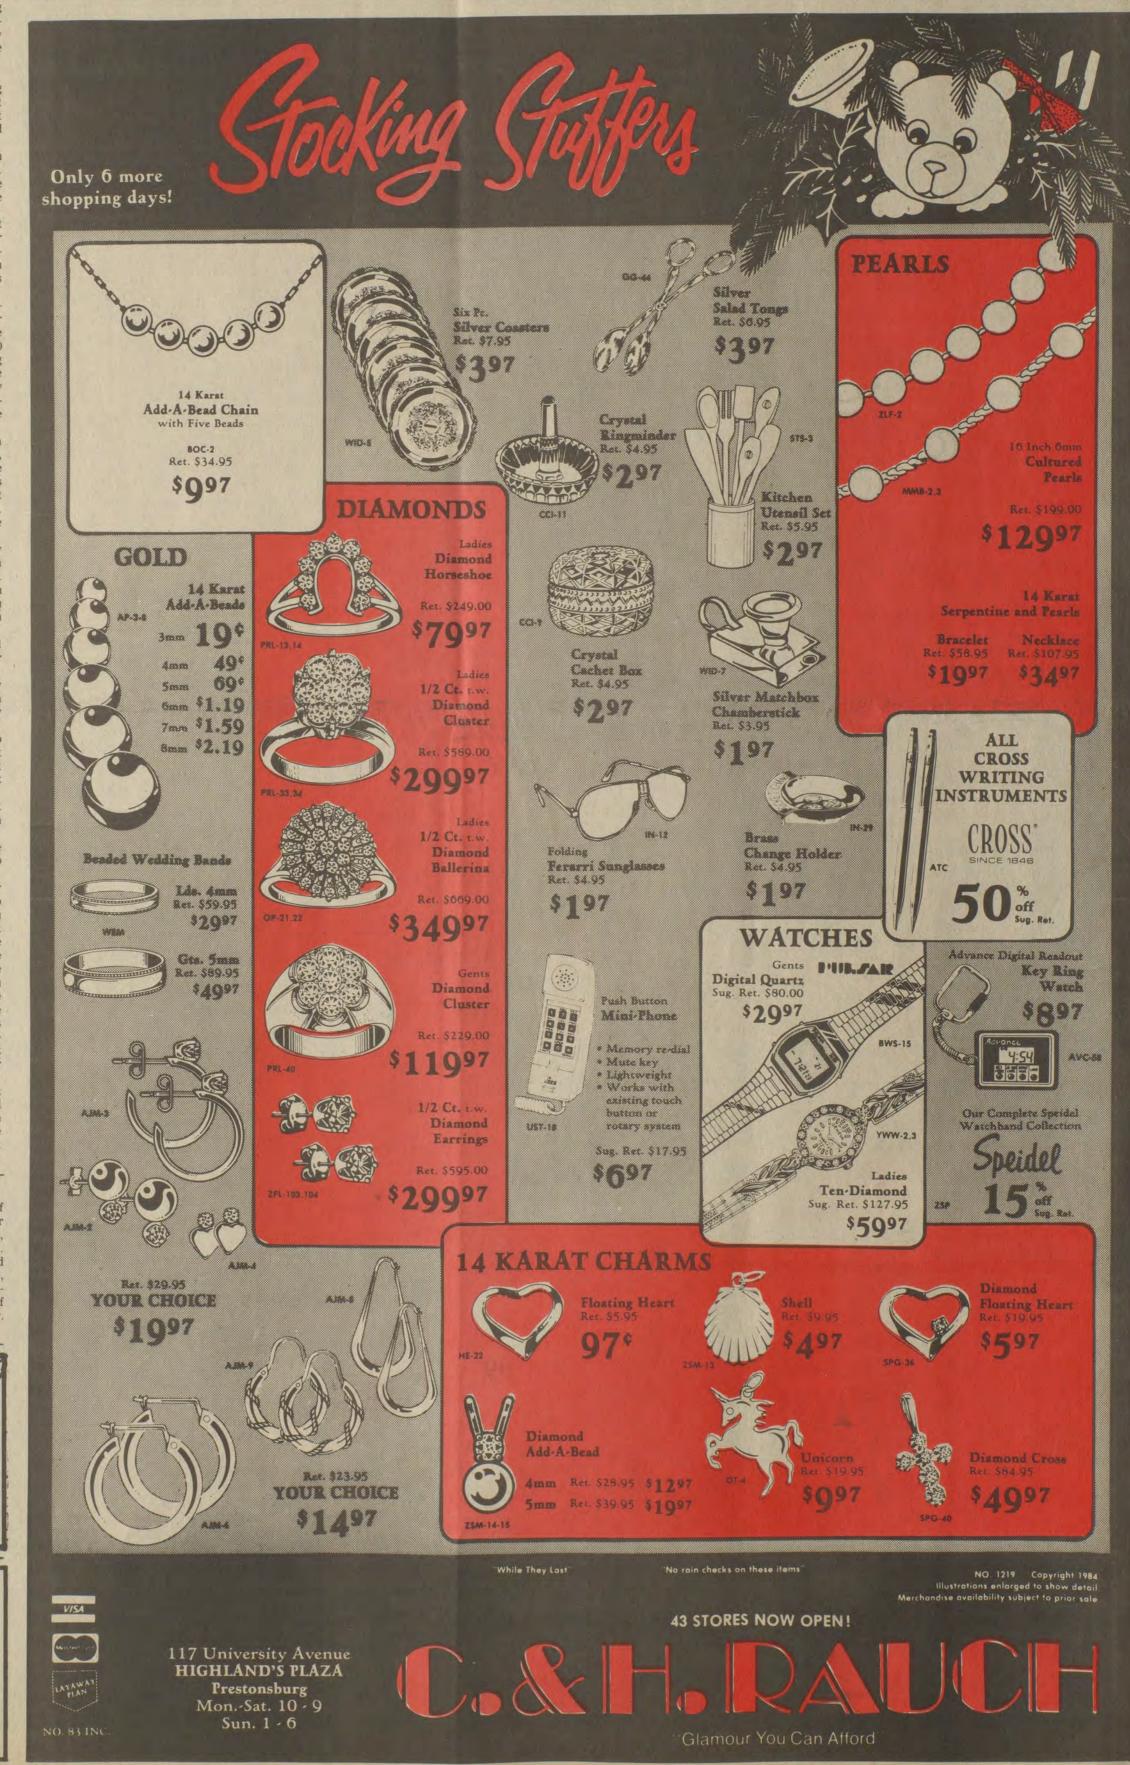

Sadly missed by family and friends.

Happy Holidays

Evergreen, ever bright, are the hopes and joys on Christmas night.

HENRY C. HALE Floyd County Sheriff And Staff

against the sloping side.

Friend—as a safety precaution, have someone hold the ladder while you climb and watch while you work.

Soot will tend to puff out of the heater and into the room while you clean, so plug the stovepipe with rags. Once you are safely on the roof with equipment ready to go, drop your brush down the flue. Move it up and down the entire length of the chimney, scraping off the creosote deposits until you're sure you have a "clean" chimney. Debris can be shoveled out at the ashdoor or at the stovepipe. Note: Never use tire chains to clean a masonry chimney. It not only knocks out creosote, it also knocks out bricks and mortar and may break or crack your chimney liner.

There is another cleaning method that doesn't require climbing the roof. You'll need a flue brush with flexible extension handles. Lay a drop cloth around the heater area to protect carpeting from soot. Carefully remove the stovepipe,

In recent months, investors in 33 1 states, including Kentucky, have been approached by companies offering instant profits by entering oil and gas lease lotteries run by the United States government and the state of Wyoming. Attorney General David L. Armstrong advises would-be investors to be skeptical of such companies and to do some checking before investing.

While it is true that such lotteries exist, consumers do not need the help of filing services to participate. The U.S. Bureau of Land Management offers parcels of federal land available for lease by public lottery six times a year. Any United States citizen can file for a chance to win the option to lease the mineral rights of a parcel by paying $75 per entry.

Section Four, Page Five

Lands available in this program are not within "a known geological struc⁹ ture" of a producing oil or gas field. In fact, a vast majority of leases have little or no market value. The number filed on each parcel varies, with the most promising leases drawing the most filings.

In reported instances, private filing services use high pressure sales tactics to convince the public that they are filing for a "sleeper," a valuable lease with few people purchasing a chance. These companies charge as much as $300 for each filing based on the supposed expertise of their skilled geologists' abjlity to select the "sleeper."

Many of these salespersons use questionable statements and misrepresentations to enhance the attractiveness of land tracts. The Federal Trade Commission has 'charged one company with falsely informing a customer he had won a lease and should submit additional fees when, in fact, the customer had won nothing.

Some filing services misrepresent that they are regulated by the United States Government or the Bureau of Land Management through the use of state or government officials' names in their promotions. "Several consumers have been solicited by a corporation using Alaska Governor Bill Sheffield's name in their promotion, although neither the U.S. government, the state of Alaska, nor the state of Wyoming conduct or endorse any filing services," Armstrong said.

Steps can be taken to protect yourself from the overwhelming number of companies who offer filing services:

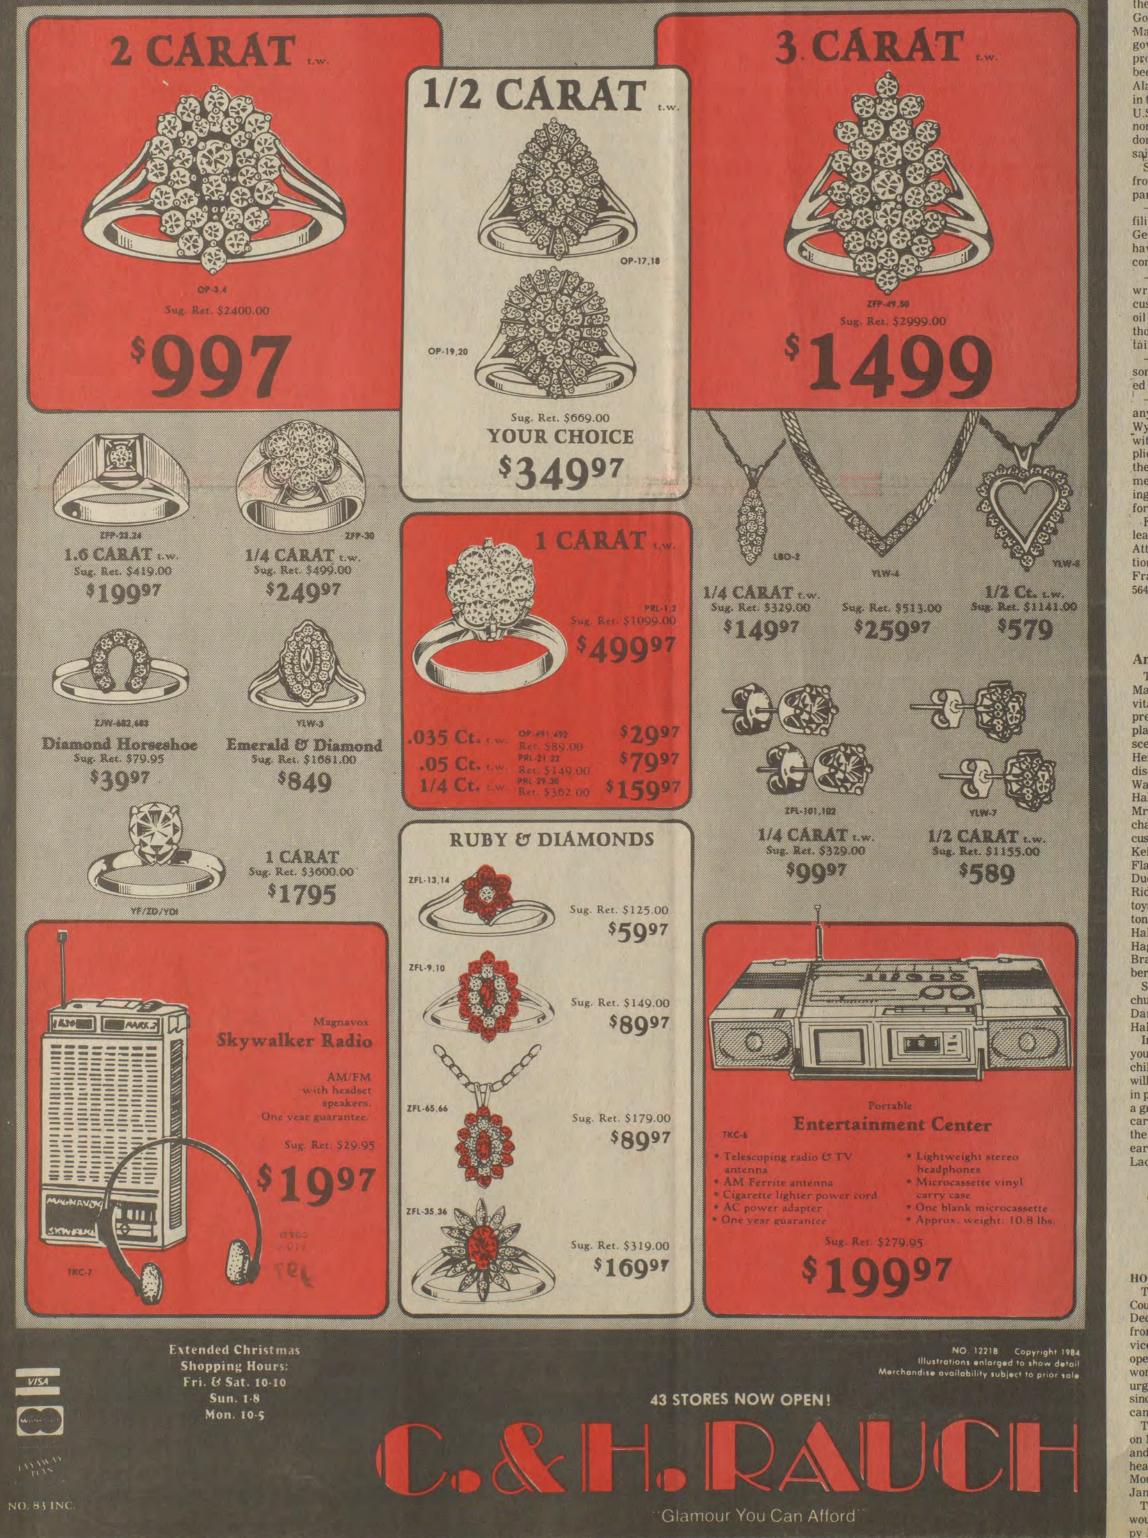

-If you receive a call or visit from a filing company, contact the Attorney General's office to see if any actions have been taken against the particular company or its principals.

-Ask the company for statistics, in writing, on the total number of customers who have invested with the oil and gas lease service compared with those who have been successful in obtaining a lease.

-Consult with a knowledgeable person before investing and don't be rushed into a hasty decision.

-Most importantly, remember that any individual may enter the U.S. or Wyoming gas lease lottery directly without the aid of a filing service. Applicants may contact the Department of the Interior, Bureau of Land Management Office (202) 343-1100 or the Wyoming Commission of Public Lands for informational material.

For further information on oil and gas lease lotteries, contact the Office of the Attorney General, Special Investigations Division, 909 Leawood Drive, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601 or call (502) 564.2348

DIET PILLS

Diet pills, alone, do not magically take off weight. Nonprescription diet pills often include phenylpropanolamine (PPA) and benzocaine, which can reduce your appetite. At best, these pills are only a temporary crutch. They do not help in adjusting your eating habits so that you can maintain the weight loss. Also, the chemical PPA is known to be unsafe for pregnant women or anyone with heart disease, hypertension, diabetes or a thyroid problem. Most prescription diet pills contain amphetamines. Side effects may include nervousness, paranoid delusions, insomnia, nausea, stomach upset and hypertension. Tolerance levels are quickly built up after about six or eight weeks making the pills no longer effective. Diet pills are not magical. At best, they are an aid to weight loss.

If you are really trying to lose weight, it is always suggested that a physician be consulted. If a medication or diet control aid is prescribed COOLEY APOTHECARY can fill it for you. Discover for yourself why we are considered by many in this area to be the drug store with a difference. We are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. HANDY HINT:

Diet pills can lead to drug dependency.

A portrait of the late Dr. Gene N. Combs, a native of Floyd county, has been placed in the newly named Gene N. Combs Radiology Department in Pikeville's Methodist Hospital.

Dr. Combs was the first radiologist in Eastern Kentucky, according to Lee D. Keene, hospital administrator, and had been a member of the hospitals medical staff since 1952. He was instrumental in the development and progress of the radiology department, including the addition of the Linear-Radiation Unit, the Mammograph, the CT Scanner, or "Cat Scanner", and the use of the instruments in the field of nuclear medicine.

Dr. Combs was the son of Octavia Allen Combs and the late Townsel Combs, of Maytown. He was a graduate of Berea College and the Medical School of the University of Louisville, and had been a member of the staffs of the Williamson (W. Va.) Memorial Hospital and the Sharon Heights Hospital at Jenkins.

Participating in the unveiling were Ernest Elliott, Lee Keene, Dr. H.E. Altman and other members of the board and medical staff.

The hospital board of directors has established an endowment in memory of Dr. Combs.

Jean Ritchie Concert Scheduled for Friday

Let Jean Ritchie put you in the Christmas mood Friday, Dec. 21 at the Appalshop theater in Whitesburg as she delights her audience with traditional mountain music and Christmas songs. The performance will start at 8 p.m.

"By whatever idiom of authority one wants to use, there is no disputing that Jean Ritchie is one of the finest authentic traditional folk singers we have in the United States today. She is the heir of a tradition that goes back to the pioneers who settled the Kentucky Cumberlands. Her words and her voice are disarmingly sweet; her writing and singing styles are deceptively simple, but they reveal a natural artist in both mediums ... by absorbing her tale-telling, song singing tradition, enriched by her own creativity, she emerges as an unusual and gifted personality."-New York Times.

Jean was the youngest of a musical family of fourteen. After attending high school in Viper, Kentucky she graduated from Cumberland Jr. College and the University of Kentucky with a degree in social work. She is both songwriter and author, president of Geordie Music Publishing Company and vice president of Greenhays Recordings.

Ask Before Hunting

By JOHN WILSON Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Let's suppose you came home from a shopping trip one Saturday afternoon and found a group of strangers having a picnic in your back yard. How would you react? Wouldn't your first impulse be either to kick them out or to call the police and have them arrested for trespassing' Why, then, should we expect a farmer to react any differently when he sees a group of strangers with guns tramping through his fields? His farm is as much his as your yard is yours, and chances are he has put much more time, money and effort into his land than you will ever put in yours, for his farm is his living, often his sole source of income.

We should all be thankful for the generosity of the farmers who let others hunt on their lands. If some stranger drove up to your house and asked if he could swim in your pool, would you be as generous? The good will of landowners is something that all hunters need to cultivate, because it is a rare and precious thing.

Yet there are still those who refuse to extend to the landowner the most basic and common courtesy-asking permission to hunt on his land. Asking to hunt (or fish, or camp, or hike) is the single most important step in building good relations with landowners, one which should not be neglected by anyone under any circumstances.

Why is asking permission so imporr irst, it snows that you acknow ledge the farmer's rights as a property owner. Down on a basic, psychological level we all have a sense of territory, of what is ours and of what we control, whether it's a back yard or a back 40 acres. Let someone else infringe upon this territory, and all kinds of impulsive aggressions start to surface-again, think of the example of strangers picnicing in your yard. Asking permission confirms these territorial rights; failure to do so violates them.

Second, there has been an increasing amount of rural crime in the past several years. Tractor batteries have been stolen or gas tanks drained, barns broken into or vandalized. This is not the fault of the hunter, but it does make the landowner keep a closer watch on his land. Approach a farmer openly, introduce yourself, even show some identification and he will know that you mean him no harm. But enter without permission, and he will almost have to come chasing after you just to see what you're up to.

Third, asking permission gives you a chance to inquire about the location of outbuildings, livestock, planted fields or other areas where the farmer may not want you to hunt. And inquiring about such things also shows the landowner that you respect his property and his rights

Finally, asking permission makes you less of a stranger and more of a friend and neighbor. Offering to share some of your bag with the landowner will still further cement this friendship. I once asked permission to hike on land that was heavily posted with "no trespassing" signs. "Sure," the owner replied. "Those signs aren't for neighbors, they're for rascals." it all. Ask-and be a Inat neighbor. Don't ask-you're a rascal.

Poachers May Kill More Than Deer

By JOHN WILSON

To most sportsmen, a conservation officer is someone in a uniform who occasionally checks a hunting or fishing license and perhaps gives some information about season dates, regulations, or good places to hunt or fish.

Because the honest sportsman is seldom afield at night, he has little knowledge of the darker and infinitely more dangerous side of the conservation officer's job.

Just how dangerous this job can be was brought home dramatically by a recent event in Scott county. Two officers, Carlton Hall and Don Tegt, narrowly escaped injury or death when their vehicle was fired upon.

The two officers were parked along the Rogers Gap-Turkey Foot Road in the northeastern part of the county about 11:30 p.m. November 30 when a spotlight suddenly hit their vehicle and multiple shots rang out. One bullet hit low on the grill and apparently bounced off the power steering unit on the driver's side. Another entered the hood on the passenger's side. Another four inches higher and it would have gone through the windshield and probably struck Officer Tegt.

Thanks to quick action and close cooperation with the Kentucky State Police, the Scott County Sheriff's Department and the Scott County Police, two men were arrested in connection with the case and lodged in the Scott County jail.

Earl Guy Grimes, 28, Sadieville, was charged with two counts of attempt to commit murder and his brother, Isiah Grimes, 27, Georgetown, was charged with two counts of complicity to criminal attempt to commit murder. Currently, both are being held on a $20,000 cash bond.

This incident serves to remind us that poaching is a serious crime. Jacklighters, who generally use highpowered rifles at night, pose a definite threat to livestock, property and even human life. And in spite of the image that they are just "good ol' boys" out for a little fun, most poachers, conservation officers believe, are in it strictly for the profit they make by illegally selling their illegally taken deer.

To help combat poaching, the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has installed a toll-free telephone line for citizens to report poaching and other violations of fish and wildlife laws. By dialing 1-800-25ALERT, you will be connected with fish and wildlife's Division

The Rockport plant is owned by Indiana & Michigan Electric Co., which, like Kentucky Power, is a subsidiary of American Electric Power Co.

The suit, filed Wednesday, claims that the commission's order ignores Kentucky Power's commitment to the power pool maintained by AEP subsidiaries.

The commission found that it would be cheaper for Kentucky Power to buy electricity from the AEP pool than to contract for power from the Rockport plant. Energy Regulatory Commission had ordered it to enter into the contract, subject to further review.

cond offense, two years in prison and a $50,000 fine. The goal of the legislation is to completely deregulate the cable television industry by the end of 1986. At that time, counties and cities will still collect a franchise fee, but no longer have any control over how the companies are run. The legislation, called "The Cable Franchise Policy and Communications Act of 1984," replaces the patchwork of federal, state and local regulations now in effect, and will put the cable industry under the supervision of the Federal Communications Commission.

Included in the legislation is a provision allowing telephone companies to own or operate cable systems only in rural areas.

Cleaning Pipes, Heaters Messy But Necessary

Cleaning pipes and heaters is a messy job done outdoors if possible. You'll need a flashlight, a wire brush, a dust pan, and a whisk broom. Make sure the pipe and heater are cold before starting.

Mark all joints of the stovepipe. This will make reassembly much easier. Remove the stovepipe carefully and put it in a cardboard box to keep soot from falling where it doesn't belong. Once you have the pipe outdoors, take it apart. Use the brush to scrape off deposits from the inside of each section. Replace any that are excessively corroded and reassemble using your marks as a guide.

Move the heater outside or cover the floor with a drop cloth. Shovel the ashes or sand into a bucket. Use the flashlight to see what the interior looks like. Then reach inside with your wire brush and scrub away. If you have a baffle system, this should be cleaned too. Remove the loose deposits with broom and dust pan. Now use the flashlight again to inspect very carefully for cracks and corrosion. If cracks are small, seal them with furnace cement. If cracks are large or on movable parts, it's best to have them welded. Don't forget to replace the protective layer of ashes or sand.

Most heater owners like to keep the exterior looking new. Use a high temperature paint; it will prevent rust from spreading and will increase the radiant qualities by covering shiny spots. The more modern enamel cabinets can be cleaned with soap and water. Make sure the heater is cold.
