Highlands Regional Medical Center's 64,000-square-foot expansion, seen here as an appendage to the original hospital structure from a side view, represents an increase of two-thirds in total space and provides for considerable enlargement of most departments in addition to providing space for 47 new acute care beds. Surgical facilities, for example, are expanded from three to seven suites, one of which is pictured in the accompanying photo. Many Departments will make use of more than twice the space than before, and one, Physical Therapy, has enlarged by more than seven times. The $10 million project also provides for extensive renovation in parts of the original med center structure.

$10 Million Expansion Additions to Facilities End Two-Year Effort

Despite snow-slick roads Sunday afternoon, organizers of Highlands Regional Medical Center's open house had little reason to feel disappointed at the numbers who turned out to see the hospital's $10 million expansion.

Hospital spokesman Kurt Pickering said around 200 persons took a tour of the new facility. "It makes me wonder how many would have come out if the weather had been good," he said.

The 64,000-square-foot expansion, which has been under construction for a little over two years, increases the area of the original building by twothirds. The added space will accommodate 47 new beds, for a total of 184. All departments have been much enlarged, a new coronary care unit has been opened, and the capacity of the hospital's emergency room has been

Whether the hospital will be able to attract enough patients to keep the expanded plant operating on a sound financial basis is an issue some observers will be following with interest.

Travel on US 23 Gap Limited, Work Said Nearly Ready To Start

Work could begin as early as Friday to clean up the rock that has fallen in recent weeks onto U.S. 23 between here and Paintsville, said Kirby Ison, district engineer in the state Highways Department office in Pikeville

The 12-mile stretch, always a potential hazard for motorists, has been a frightening obstacle course in the past few weeks, as the cold snap resulted in a series of rockfalls that sent massive boulders tumbling to the pavement.

A large fall near the American Standard plant two weeks ago brought a chorus of protests, including one from officials at Our Lady of the Mountains School in Paintsville, which buses pupils along that route

Highways officials declared at the time that the road was not safe to travel. Part of the rockfall has since been cleared, however. It may be scant comfort to motorists who are still anxious about rocks jutting from the cliff face, but Ison said attempts had been made to dislodge those that appeared most in danger of falling. Four dynamite charges failed to budge them, he said.

A contract is expected to be let today (Wednesday) or tomorrow for removal of the fallen rock and work on that project could begin before the week is out,

In addition, state Transportation Secretary Floyd Poore has authorized expenditure of $65,000 as part of a longterm improvement of the road Transportation officials are reported to be negotiating with a consultant to design a plan to stabilize dangerous sections of the highwall, a project that could involve removal of rock, contouring of the rock face, or securing it with metal

Perhaps the busiest telephone in Eastern Kentucky during the recent days and nights of bitter cold was the 'weather phone' at the First Commonwealth Bank here. Come the sweltering heat of next summer, do you think pressure of that sort will be on the weather line? Can't be. We'll all be too busy asking everybody we meet if it's hot enough for them.

Arrest of Two Tennesseeans Held Possible Break in 'Ring'

A Tennessee-based drug ring, which is believed by Prestonsburg police to have been operating in this area since October, may have been broken with the arrests of two Tennessee men last Wednesday on charges related to the forging of prescriptions. Although police became aware of the possibility of an illegal drug operation through reports from a local doctor and a pharmacist, the first real break in the investigation came last Wednesday when, through a lucky coincidence, Police Capt. #### Turner Says He Will Not Seek Re-election As County Attorney

County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. will not seek re-election, he disclosed

The surprise announcement comes as several other attorneys have "put out feelers" for the job. Two of them, David Barber and Danny Caudill, have already said they are candidates.

Turner, who is completing his second four-year term, said he has "struggled with the decision" over several months. A recent religious conversion figured prominently in his decision to quit politics, at least for the time being, he

"The overriding consideration of it all has been my relationship with Jesus Christ and how to best use my life for Him." Turner said. As county attorney, he played a key role in setting up a county-wide solid waste collection service and a systemlater overturned by the state appeals court on a technicality-for regulating cable television operators. In stepping down at the end of this

Half of Tolls On Mt. Parkway End Tomorrow

If the Mountain Parkway were advertising for more traffic, its ad might read: "Effective Thursday midnight, Jan. 31, tolls reduced one-half.

And it would be no idle come-on. For midnight Thursday is the magic hour when two of the tollgates on the parkway will close permanently, leaving only the tollgates at Campton in Wolfe county and Gullett in Magoffin remaining open. And these two will also become toll-free at midnight, July 31, when the last of the bonded indebtedness is paid.

Closing this week are the Waltersville and Natural Bridge toll plazas. That will cut 80 cents from the total of $1.60 drivers of autos have been paying since the Parkway opened 22 years ago. That happy situation results from the amortization of the bonds that were sold to build the portion of the four-lane highway from Winchester into Powell county. And from the flat "No" that Gov. Martha Layne Collins gave to the proposal that the tolls continue to be collected to pay for maintenance of the

But not everybody will be happy about the closings. Thirty-eight persons who work at the two plazas slated for closing can't escape a feeling of sadness. They'll be out of jobs temporarily, although they are said to be scheduled for state employment elsewhere.

The highway, with its extension to Prestonsburg, was built during the administration of Gov. Bert T. Combs, and it is named for him. Hailed as a major traffic breakthrough for Eastern Kentucky to Central Kentucky and Lexington, the highway has been as beneficial, perhaps, to Lexington as it has to the mountain counties which it serves.

Auxier Nightclub Draws Suspension

Because the volume control knob is in her hands, the operator of an Auxier nightclub must be held responsible for the noise that has set her neighbors on edge, the state Alcoholic Beverage Control Board has ruled.

The board handed Rita Wells, operator of The Warehouse, a 20-day suspension of her retail beer license after finding that, between January and November last year, she had allowed loud music to disturb nearby residents.

The panel also found that, in applying for her 1984-1985 license renewal, she had falsely claimed to be the owner of the business. That failure has since been rectified, Mrs. Wells filing a valid lease for the premises, and the noise problem has also been reduced as a result of the installation of insulating material, the board acknowledged. But in a Jan. 21 order signed by Board Chairman Edward A. Farris, The Warehouse is forbidden to sell or serve alcoholic beverages from the start of business on Friday, Feb. 1 at least until the close of business on Wednesday,

For the 15 days remaining in the suspension period, which runs through the close of business on Saturday, Feb. 23, the licensee may choose to pay a fine

instead, at the rate of $10 a day. (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Old Bridge Pier Stirs Recollections

When the former Johnie B. Clark stood last October alongside an old pier of the now-dismantled bridge which connected Prestonsburg with the railway station on the other side of the Big Sandy for a snapshot by her husband, George C. Billips, it meant more to her than merely posing for another picture.

Writing from her home in Rolling Hills, Calif., Mrs. Billips explains why . Well over 60 years ago, my parents, Mr. and Mrs. John B. Clark, owned a restaurant next door to the bank (the old First National) by that bridge, and we played on the river bank...so many memories, such as how exciting it was to go across the bridge to watch the train come in.

"I was pleased to see the river bank had been cleaned off and a much-needed parking lot had been put in, also that the old bridge abutments were left stand-

City Council Meets In Short Session

Monday evening's meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council although television was again discussed as well as a reaffirmation of city police cooperation with Highlands Regional Medical Center.

In the matter of television programming in Prestonsburg, council members discussed the replacement of Channel 11, a Public Broadcasting System channel from West Virginia, with a different type of programming since KET provides largely the same PBS fare. Between Nickelodeon, which airs primarily children's shows, and the American Christian Television System (ACTS), a Christian-oriented station sponsored by the Southern Baptist Convention, the council opted for

City Manager David Evans said local churches would provide the $7,500-$8,000 amount to acquire the channel, and a five-member committee from area churches would determine the 20 hours of local programming which would be aired weekly

Tuesday, however, Evans said a conversation with Consolidated Communications, Inc., the current cable system holder, indicated that system officials would first conduct a market survey to determine viewer preference. Evans said Cable Communications was considering WEAH, a West Virginia station which airs vintage movies for a good part of their programming. Some council members were dismayed that Chicago's popular cable channel, WGN, was not yet available through Consolidated Communications since the company had agreed to provide the channel as a prerequisite to a past rate increase. Evans commented that cable system officials here argued that its satellite receivers were unable to pick up WGN due to the angle of WGN's satellite transmitter. WGN representatives, however, assured Evans that it would be a "simple matter" for the system to receive its broadcasts.

Don Goble, director of safety and security at Highlands Regional Medical Center, was reassured by the council that Prestonsburg police would cooperate fully in the future in responding to any emergency calls that might arise from the hospital. Goble pointed to a recent incident at the facility involving a "drunk and disorderly" which, he said, could have developed into "a very serious situation."

Goble said because the Sheriff's Department and state police were hard to contact at times, the full cooperation of city police was of vital importance.

In other business, the resignation of long-time Archer Park board member Marthann Damron was accepted. Mayor Harold Cooley said recommendations for a replacement would be discussed at the next council meeting.

The council also decided to hang onto a 1981 Chevy Citation previously used by City Manager Evans after a mechanic's estimate showed that $250 could return the vehicle to operation. Councilman Bill Ray Collins said the car would be useful for city building and safety inspectors and vowed that he would foot the bill for having the vehicle painted-red.

Heat Systems Said Cause Of Blazes Over Past Week

Although little damage was reported in two house fires which occurred here on two consecutive days over the past week, the blazes point to the need for closer scrutiny of home heat systems, Prestonsburg Fire Department personnel said this week

A faulty gas line connection in a floor furnace was said to have caused a fire which damaged a single-story, stucco and frame house at the Goble-Roberts Addition, Friday, according to Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn. Three trucks were dispatched to the scene and firemen were able to restrict the fire to the area of the furnace although some smoke damage was reported.

Luckily, Leonard "Lightning" Joseph, who rented the house from its owner, Mrs. Geraldine Cisco, had removed most of the contents in preparation for a move to another dwelling, it was said.

A chimney fire at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Burl Wells Spurlock, Saturday afternoon, also resulted in a call to the fire department although the blaze did not spread from the eight-inch stove pipe where it originated, it was

Paul Chaffins, city building and safety inspector, said Mrs. Spurlock helped avert the potential spread of the blaze by closing the dampers on the wood stove, thereby restricting oxygen to the Chaffins stressed the importance for all residents who burn wood or coal to have their flue or chimney inspected and cleaned regularly. Chaffins said homeowners in the city could call him for inspections and he added that there are also area professionals who offer inspection and cleaning services.

Anti-Abortion Group Receives CAP Grant

Alternatives, Inc. has been granted $1,500 by the Christian Appalachian Project to help in its program of providing alternative choices for pregnant women considering abortion.

The money will be used primarily to purchase pregnancy test kits and prepare educational materials, according to Arnold Turner, Jr., a trustee of Alternatives, Inc.

Twenty-one volunteers have recently completed 16 hours of training for telephone work, and pregnancy tests are now available free of charge at Alternatives' office in Prestonsburg.

Alternatives was formed by a group of concerned Christians to offer counseling and financial aid, if needed, for women who are in the midst of a crisis pregnancy and are considering abortion.

A goal of Alternatives is to make it possible for a woman, after being confirmed that she is pregnant, to choose from among several alternatives to complete the pregnancy rather than abort. These options may range from financial assistance for medical services and other material needs to housing for unwed mothers or adoption by licensed Alternatives' services are available in Floyd, Johnson, Lawrence, Martin, Pike, and parts of Knott counties. Cooperating physicians in Prestonsburg and Pikeville will perform pregnancy tests in emergencies, and transportation will be provided for women who have no way of getting to the organization's office.

Women living outside of Floyd County can contact Alternatives via a toll free number-1-800-633-9155-for service or more information. Floyd Countians can call 886-2025. The number is listed in the yellow pages of the Big Sandy Area telephone book under "Birth Control" and "Clinics.

The phones are now being answered between 12 noon and 8 p.m. with provisions for call forwarding during the off hours, according to Turner.

"It is important," Turner said, "that Christians affirm their love in Christ for women who find themselves in crisis pregnancies, and support them as they carry their unborn children to full

Time To Shape Up

When a man named Bernhard Goetz shot four youths on a New York subway recently, he immediately earned the sobriquet, "Subway Vigilante," and the good wishes of a sizeable portion of the nation's population.

The grand jury which investigated the case has refused to name Goetz on a shooting and wounding or attempted murder indictment. Instead, he was indicted only for illegally carrying a pistol

As one columnist put it, the heart endorses Goetz's violent reaction to the demands of the four youths who accosted him as well as the refusal of the grand jury to indict him, but the mind is not so impulsive.

Most of us subscribe to, and are willing to practise, the theory that every individual is entitled to self-defense. But is the judgment of what amounts to a situation requiring violent self-defense to be left with just any individual? If so, what is to protect any of the rest of us against any person who decides to do some killing and the only reason for it is his or her own word that it was done in self-defense? A veritable Pandora's box filled with crime and criminal intent could be opened.

However we may look upon the situation, one thing stands out boldly, and perhaps in this way Goetz may have fired the shots that will be heard all across America:

This is the fact that laws have protected criminals and forgotten the innocent too long; and courts have been too slow and too lax in their enforcement of whatever remains of the law to protect peaceable citizens against those who are at war with society.

The message is: If the law as it stands on the statute books and as it is administered isn't enough, more and more individuals will protest violently and take the law into their own hands. It is time to shape up.

before construction of new medical facilities, a group of Johnson county residents angrily opposed the planned expansion here since Paintsville Hospital had its own construction plans. State health planners, arguing that there was not sufficient demand to justify construction at both sites, turned down a bid by Paintsville Hospital to replace its antiquated facility. After successfully challenging the ban in court, however, the Johnson county group went ahead with its plans, opening the Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center in September, 1983.

In styling themselves as "regional" medical centers, both hospitals continue to insist on their responsibility to serve an overlapping, multi-county area. And, despite the planners' forecasts, Pickering said the opening of the Paintsville hospital does not appear to be having any marked effect on the number of pa-while costs soar, hospital populations are generally dipping, however, and only time will tell whether demand in this area will be able to sustain the two new facilities. The average occupancy rate at Higlands has dipped from around 85 percent to 80 percent over the past five years but, in the context of the industrywide slump, that is a relatively modest falloff. Pickering said.

Of the 137 beds currently available at Highlands, 122 were occupied Monday—an occupancy rate of 89 percent. The rate so far for January, usually a busy month for hospitals, has averaged 82.3 percent, however, and the average figure for the last six months of 1984 was 81.5 percent.

Were the 47 new beds opened up, that would translate to an occupancy rate of only 60 8 percent. Hospital managers anticipate, however, that their expanded services will result in physicians referring more of their patients to Highlands.

The Warehouse operator must also

"take necessary and proper steps, as feasible," to prevent noise from disturbing neighbors "unduly," the board order says.

As the result of a Jan. 8 hearing in Frankfort, the ABC board found that live bands play in the metal frame building three nights a week and that bands sometimes practice there on nights the nightclub is closed.

For a long time prior to Nov. 16 last year, the bands, and sometimes the nightclub patrons, disturbed residents, especially those living behind the building, the panel found.

The entertainers were so noisy, the lyrics of their songs could be distinguished at a distance of 150 feet, a fact constituting "a significant noise problem" for neighbors, the board concluded.

Shortly before Nov. 16, the licensee and her husband, Mike Wells, spent $1500 on insulating the building, with the result that the noise has been reduced, an improvement the state panel acknowledged as a mitigating factor.

But the noise reduction has been uneven and the volume of the amplifiers used by entertainers there is within the licensee's control, the board noted (Continued from Page One) tions. We'll take money from wherever we can get it." Recktenwald said, noting that the state provides very few lunds for projects like the one envisaged here.

One proposal would see a single facility serving five counties and capable of housing 12 to 18 individuals, with a staff of two to five workers and an annual budget ranging from $90,000 to $150,000 Another would see several smaller residences, each housing three or four people, spread over the five-county district.

An important consideration, Recktenwald noted, is the availability of jobs, since a major goal of the halfway house is to get people back to work. Residents will be expected to pay board and to become self-supporting, he said.

"A lot of these people may be highly skilled but have lost one job after another on account of their drinking or drug problem," Recktenwald said. "It will be our job to help them become employable again. We want to get them back into the job market at any level."

One thing of which he is certain, there will be no lack of clients. Drug and alcohol dependency is fast become the nation's No. 1 health problem, he said, and, while there are treatment programs available, follow-up support is often lacking. "There are a lot of people out there, scrapping and scraping to hold on," he said.

Anyone wanting to knew more about the proposed halfway house is invited to contact one of the trustees. They are, besides Recktenwald: Betty Becknell, Ellis Buchanan, Teresa Cox, Randy Crum, Clay Goebeler, Dr. Allen Hyden, Rex Music, William Osborne and Rob Schissler.

OPENING A CAN OF WORMS

Two pieces of mail, both received Tuesday morning, have me in something of a dither. One caught my attention first, mainly because it was the bulkier. It was a can of worms from Johnson Fishing, Inc. (address, in case you're interested, 1531 Madison Ave., Mankato, Minn. 56001). These artificial worms, I am assured, really catch fish. They look, taste and smell like live bait, because they're made of fish.

Now, with this weapon at hand, I'm ready for the snootiest bass in the pond. But, lo! there's this second item that came in the mail. (It comes from Midland, Texas, and I think I know who sent it.) It's a clipping of a newspaper column by one Sanford L. Jacobs, who blasts the very idea of using such bait. Says it's not sporting and is a violation of the true spirit of fishing.

So there, or here, I am, loaded with sure-fire bait but pretty well sold on the idea that a plain, unadorned, nonsmelling, tasteless lure is weapon enough for the likes of me.

Which leaves me torn between the nether horns of a dilemma. Between the Charybdis and Scylla of practicality (namely, catching fish) on the one hand and rainbow idealism on the other.

There's a strong chance that I'll work out a compromise. I'll fish, let's say, the first two or three hours with standard gear, but if the shadows begin creeping down off the hillsides and I've had the usual "not a smell," there's a better than even chance that in desperation I'll give this bait that does smell a try.

Board Grants Early Release For Mrs. Davis

The seven-year sentence of a Lexington and Prestonsburg woman for the fatal shooting of her husband ended Jan. 14 with her release from the Kentucky Correctional Institute for Women after she served just two months of her term.

The release of 65-year-old Ella M. Davis came more than a year before her March, 1986 parole date. The Kentucky Parole Board had agreed last month to consider Mrs. Davis for early parole at the request of her attorney, State Senator Michael R. Moloney, of Lexington.

Mrs. Davis, who is living here with her sister, was convicted in Fayette circuit court of second-degree manslaughter in the fatal shooting of her estranged husband, Kenneth Davis, 59, in 1982 at her home in Lexington. Davis had been forbidden by court order to enter the home. She claimed the shots were fired in self-defense.

Early paroles such as Mrs. Davis' are rare, said Betty Kassulke, warden of the women's prison. "I would say it happens here once a year," she was quoted as saying.

Harry Rothgerber, chairman of the state parole board, commented on the parole:

"I didn't think the best interest of society would be served by further incarceration. The board did not consider her to be a threat to society or believe there to be a danger of continuing criminal or violent activity in the future. We thought she was ready, willing and able to be a law-abiding citizen."

Lawyers Absent, Two Convicted

Justice was meted out swiftly in district court Thursday to two defendants whose attorneys failed to appear in court. The lawyers' absence, moreover, drew a pointed rebuke from the district judge.

For Bill Tom Shepherd, 33, of David, who was scheduled to be tried on charges of drunk driving and driving on a suspended license, his lawyer's absence earned him a three-day jail sentence for "not being ready for trial."

John Earl Hunt, who agreed to represent Shepherd minutes before his jury trial was scheduled, asked that the trial be postponed because Shepherd's regular attorney, David Barber, was in Knott county.

Moreover, Hunt argued, the sheriff's department had not yet served a subpoena on Michael Allen, of Risner, whom he described as a "key" witness for the defendant.

But District Judge Harold Stumbo, noting that a jury panel had been called out at public expense, said it was the defendant's responsibility to see that his attorney was in court.

The shortful department and not

The sheriff's department could not have been expected to serve the subpoena, which was requested only the day before the trial was scheduled, the judge said. "That is not adequate preparation," he said. "It looks to me like a pure effort to avoid trial, to ignore the court."

Shepherd was earlier scheduled for trial last Sept. 27, but did not show up, according to court records.

Prestons burg, police officer Cerold.

Prestonsburg police officer Gerald Clark arrested Shepherd in the Goble-Roberts Addition around 3 a.m. last July 21. The defendant has two previous drunk driving convictions, one on Oct. 1, 1980, the other on Jan. 6, 1982.

In another trial scheduled in district court Thursday, Tony Whitaker, 22, of Pikeville, was sentenced to two days in jail and ordered to pay a $200 fine, in addition to the normal court fees, after being found guilty of driving while intoxicated last Oct. 14.

State Police Sgt. Peter McLouth said he stopped Whitaker during a routine traffic check on KY3 at Lancer. The driver failed a field sobriety test and registered 17 percent on a Breathalyzer test, the officer said.

Neither the defendant nor his attorney appeared in court. Assistant County Attorney Eric Hall said Whitaker's lawyer, Sidney W. Trivette, of Pikeville, had indicated earlier that he was not ready for trial.

"These people are just ignoring trial dates," Judge Stumbo said, adding that "it wouldn't take me much" to jail the absent attorneys.

In response to a request by Hunt, who asked if Shepherd could be released if his regular attorney could explain why he was not in court, Stumbo said, "It would have to be an awful good excuse. It would have to be almost death."

"We'll try to have that done," replied the stand-in attorney.

Barber explained later that his client failed to notify him of the scheduled trial date and added that the problem could be avoided if the clerk's office sent notices of court appearances to attorneys as well as to defendants.

As it happened, Shepherd later entered a guilty plea on the drunk driving charge and the time he spent in jail was counted in lieu of a $200 fine. He was sentenced in addition to 30 days in jail, the term probated for a period of two years

Whitaker's sentence was later set aside, his attorney pleading confusion about the trial date, which had been rescheduled on account of bad weather. No new trial date has been set.

Theft of Coal Claimed in Suit

The developer of a shopping mall on Katy Friend branch, near here, is stealing their coal, a group of property owners claims in a suit filed last week in Floyd Circuit Court.

The group acknowledges that it sold part of its surface property to the Commonwealth Development Corporation, the Crestwood-based firm which is building a $10 million shopping mall at the junction of U.S. 23 and the Mountain Parkway.

As part of the deal, CDC was also given the right to extract coal uncovered in the course of excavating and developing the site, with a $2-a-ton royalty to be paid to the mineral owners.

Over the past four months, the developer has been removing coal but has made an "intentional effort to conceal" that fact and has refused to give any accounting of it, plaintiffs allege. They are asking the court to force CDC to list the quantity of coal removed from the site, its destination and shipping dates.

In addition to the royalty originally agreed on, the mineral owners also seek triple damages on account of CDC's alleged attempt to defraud them.

Listed as plaintiffs are Pat Wareham, Myrtle Allen, Abigail Grant, Russell Pelphrey, Julie Henry, Theresa Stark and Mark Bolling, They are represented by Janet L. Stumbo, attorney.

(Claims made in the filing of lawsuits give only one side of the issue in dispute)

Lake Cumberland Rockfish Kentucky State Record

By ART LANDER, JR.

It's official! The 49-pound, 8-ounce rockfish caught from Lake Cumberland on December 4, 1984 by Robbie Bell, of Monticello, is a Kentucky state record.

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources certified Bell's rockfish as the new state record after evaluating the information on the fish's size and how it was caught, viewing a photograph, and talking with witnesses. The massive "striper," taken from the Beaver Creek embayment on a rockfish jig rigged with a 6" white curlytail, measured 48" in length and 291/4" around the girth.

An accomplished rockfish angler, Bell said he has caught about 36 rockfish during the past year, but never one close to the size of the record. "When I first hooked it I thought it was only about a 10 or 12 pounder, but then I saw it," he explained, adding that "the fish peeled off about 40 yards of line, then it turned around and swarm towards the boat.' Bell said he boated the rockfish when it tired after a final run of about 20 yards.

Bell's catch surpassed a state record which stood for more than five years; the state's previous "biggest ever" rockfish weighed 47 pounds, and was caught on November 28, 1979 by Forest Reed. Bell's catch was made while casting for rockfish which were feeding on shad in the shallows. His reel was spooled with only 12-pound test monofilament, relatively light line for rockfish angling, and it may be that Bell's rockfish is a line class world record as well, according to information listed in the 1984 World Record Game Fishes, published by the International Game Fish Association (IGFA) of Ft. Lauderdale, Florida.

The current 12-pound line class world record listed in the booklet is a 47-pound rockfish taken on March 23, 1983 from the Flint River in Georgia. Before Bell's catch can be certified as a world line class record with the IGFA, an application process, similar to that which is reguired by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources for state records, must be completed.

Kentucky state record fish can only be taken on sportfishing tackle (rod and reel or pole and line), using either live or artificial bait. Fish taken on commercial gear, by trotline, snagging or snaring, are not eligible. To qualify for consideration as a state record, the fish must be weighed in the presence of three witnesses on a scale certified legal for trade, and an application detailing the catch must be completed and signed. For a list of current state records and application forms write: Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife, Division of Public Relations, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, or telephone 502/564-4336.

Survivors of 7 Topmost Victims To Share Award

Survivors of seven of the eight miners killed in an underground explosion at the Adkins Coal Co. mine at Topmost on Dec. 7, 1981 will share an estimated $5.15 million, according to a settlement worked out last week

The settlement calls for a $2.15 million lump sum payment to be made by Island Creek Coal Co.; Orville Adkins, of Hueysville; Adkins' wife, Dixie; his son, Adam, and Adam's wife, Sally. In addition, the survivors will receive monthly lifetime payments reckoned to be worth

Most of the money will be paid by Island Creek, attorneys indicated. The Adkins company and its insurer, Old Republic Insurance Co., will reportedly pay $1.15 million of the lump sum and $150,000 of the future payments.

Plaintiffs, who included the widows of five of the victims and the mothers of two unmarried victims, sought $52 million in damages. Trial of the case was scheduled Feb. 4 in Knott Circuit

The amount each family will get under the settlement will vary, depending on how many children are in the family and on other factors, but future payments will average about $12,000 per family each year, an attorney said.

The family of the eighth victim was not a party to the suit.

Pending still in Floyd Circuit Court is a $3.7 million suit stemming from a mine explosion that occured on Mink Branch of Mud Creek six weeks after the Knott disaster, killing seven.

Unnie Hall, 22, widow of Ronnie Hall, who was 25 when he died in the blast that tore through the RFH Coal Co. mine, filed suit on Jan. 18, 1983, naming as defendants the RFH Coal Co., four members of the Hamilton family who were partners in the company, the Elk Horn Coal Corp., Joyce Ann Coal Co., BJL Coal Co. and Joseph Mining, Inc.

A default judgment was handed down in July, 1983, against Joseph Mining, Inc. when that company failed to file an answer to the complaint. But principals in the firm were later identified-they are Arnold Turner, Sr., Arnold Turner, Jr., Joan Chaffins, Anita Gibson and Donise Turner-and were reinstated as active defendants in the case

Like Island Creek Coal Co. in the Topmost case, Elk Horn Coal has been named as a defendant because it owned the coal rights at the doomed mine and subleased them to the local operator. In each case the coal owner reserved the right to design the mine plan and furnished the engineering, but both claimed they did not exercise sufficient dayto-day control over the mines to be responsible for the explosions there.

In 1983, 46 percent of Hispanic families-including almost 1 million related children-were maintained bo women, according to "20 Facts on Women Workers," published by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor

City Fire Dept. Shows Good Report

The Prestonsburg Fire Department hasn't put out as many fires as last year and Chief Tom Blackburn is proud of it.

His firefighters are better equipped and trained than ever before, he's quick to point out. It's just that the number of fires and other emergency runs in 1984 were down over last year.

In '84, responses to calls or "runs," as they are called, were down from 200 in 1983 to 167. Blackburn believes this is due primarily to the city's diligence in building and safety inspection and general concentration on preventive measures.

'Our total runs are down and we haven't lost a house this year, Blackburn pointed out.

LAKE MARKET MAY BE LOST TO THIS FIELD

Operators Thwarted By I. C. C.

COAL MEN TO APPEAL

All hope of coal operators in the Kentucky, West Virginia. Tennessee and Virginia fields for a freight rate cut on Lake-bound coal was destroyed the Interstate Commerce Commission, suspending the reductions recently proposed by southern railroads.

The suspension is effective until March 28, 1928, and came almost two weeks before the proposed cut would have taken effect. As Eastern Kentucky operators expressed keen disappointment at the action taken by the Interstate Commerce Commission, Pennsylvania coal men were jubilant, terming the suspension a real victory

Rates affected by the suspension are those made by the Chesapeake and Ohio, the Louisville and Nashville, and the Norfolk and Western railways, proposing a cut of 20 cents on the net ton freight rate for goal from the southern fields. This reduction was made by the southern carriers in order to protect themselves and the coal industry of the sections which they served against the 20-cent freight reduction given Pennsylvania coal by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

Eastern Kentucky coal L tion of the commission practically barred from competition with the hope for prosperity in this field is held until the rate on coal from the southern fields is admitted to market under a reduced rate.

Although Kentucky coal has been at a disadvantage in its competition with northern coal for the Lake trade by reason of freight differentials existing previously to August 10, when the 20cent reduction was given Pennsylvania and Ohio coal, this state's industry has with reasonable success competed with its northern rivals because of economic wage scales, favorable natural conditions and a superior quality of coal.

Now, however, all hope of competition i destroyed until conditions are better adjusted. Operators in this section have for months been operating at an exceedingly small profit or at a loss. and they cannot continue to cater to Lake trade at the further risk of los- Barnes. ing heavily.

Raiders led by Prohibition Agent R. of Magoffin county, out up seven stills on Alum Cave and Brushy Forks of Licking river last week, destroyed several hundred gallons of beer and mash and a quantity of whisky, and captured six alleged still owners.

On Alum Cave five stills were destroyed. Cleve Stephens and son, Warnie Stephens, of Salt Lick Creek, this county, and Emory Jones and Branch Nealey were captured.

After cutting up two stills on the Brushy Fork, the raiders captured two men, one of whom was Henderson Shepherd. Name of the other man is not available. All six of the men captured gave bond for their appearance in Salyersville court.

When the still with which Jones and Nealey are charged with possessing was found, no one was at the still. About two hours later, however, when members of the raiding party passed the place en route back to the top of the hill, where their horses were hitched, they found Jones and Nealey diluting whisky.

No resistance was encountered by the officers during the raid.

TO ALL FLOYD COUNTIANS

When I had just met many of you eight years ago, while seeking the county attorney's office, I carried with me a lot of ideas that I thought would make you a great county attorney. Over the years of service, after testing the strengths and weaknesses of this office, I slowly resolved that my ambition to do a good job had to be fulfilled by a simple principle: when called upon daily to make a judgment, a recommendation, or a commitment to act, that I would do what I saw as right and fair for all concerned. I, more than anyone else, know I have not always been correct, but I have always sought to be. I feel no county attorney can offer more to the public than this.

During the last several months I have struggled with the decision of whether to seek re-election or not. I have looked at life intently with a new found faith in Jesus Christ, and considered my duty to Him, to my family, as well as my desire to serve you. The overriding consideration of it all has been my relationship with Jesus Christ and how to best use my life for Him. The stumbling block to my seeking re-election, no matter what course of thought I take, continues to be that the time required for another term as county attorney is not compatible with what I feel the Lord requires of me.

Accordingly, I will not seek the office of county attorney for another four-year term. It is my intent, for now, to continue to serve you as county attorney, until January 1, 1986, and look forward to proving to some that one can be a friend and helpful, even if not currently seeking public office.

To the many relatives, friends and citizens who have supported me, I thank you, and quickly add that this is not intended to be a departure from politics. I simply choose not to seek the county attorney's office in 1985, in an attempt to redistribute the precious little time given in life to serve God, family and fellowman. It is my sincere hope, if circumstances allow, that in the near future I may seek elective office, with your support.

Named to Watercolor Society

Artist Gary Akers, whose "Summer Afternoon" is shown above, was recently named to the American Watercolor Society, becoming one of its youngest members.

Native Floyd county artist Gary Akers has been named to the prestigious American Watercolor Society Akers at age 33 is one of the youngest members to be admitted to the society. To be eligible for membership, an artist must compete against 2,000 contemporaries, 150 of whom are chosen for the society's annual show. Artists who are selected for the show three times within a 10-year period are then reviewed for membership in the society. The selection process can take from four to ten years. Only 10 new members are accepted each year.

Akers, only the third Kentucky artist to be so honored, says he is pleased to have been accepted in only seven years. "It's something that I've always worked toward." Akers has achieved national recognition for his paintings, winning such honors as the American Watercolor Society's

"Mario Cooper Award" and the Top Merit Award in the "Aqueous' 83-Kentucky Watercolor Society. Akers will have an exhibit of his egg tempera and watercolor paintings at Closson's Art Gallery, Cincinnati, Ohio in April. He will give a presentation of his dry brush techniques in watercolor and egg tempera at Jenny Wiley State Park, Saturday, Feb. 23. The artist now resides at Union, Kenticky.

It's been called our national disgrace, but there are steps you can take to keep your child from becoming such a statistic. Chief among them is to have your child fingerprinted.

Highlands Regional Medical Center is helping in this effort by setting up a free fingerprinting station. All children still living with their parents or legal guardians are eligible. HRMC will fingerprint any eligible child who is brought Parents can take advantage of this offer at any time, but HRMC officials suggest an especially good time would be Sunday, Jan. 27, during Highlands Regional's open house. HRMC is inviting the public in that day for a first-hand look at improvements in health care now available in the Big Sandy area with the completion of the $10 million expansion of the 11-year-old facility.

Frozen Canned Food Requires Caution

Consumers should be careful in handlng canned foods which have accidentally frozen during the recent frigid weather. Commercially canned foods should be left to thaw at room temperature, and any which leak should be discarded. Cans should be checked carefully especially around the rim and seam for

If the contents of the can have caused the can to bulge or weaken during the freezing, the can should be discarded. If the can has not bulged nor weakened, the food may be consumed, but should be eaten as soon as possible. Cans should not be allowed to freeze a second time.

In the case of home canned foods, jars should be checked carefully for cracks and even those without cracks should be checked for proper sealage. When frozen, contents may expand, pushing up against the lid breaking the seal. For a safe seal, the lid should be slightly caved after thawing and when tapped with a metal spoon the jar should produce a high pitched sound. If properly sealed the food is safe to consume, but as in the case of commercially canned food, the jar should not be allowed to freeze a second time.

To prevent canned goods from freezing, jars can be wrapped in newspapers or covered with blankets or quilts.

Armstrong Warns Buyers Of Jewelry Discounts

Have you noticed the huge discounts offered by numerous gold jewelry retailers? Many businesses advertise savings of 60, 70, or even 80 percent off the "former" or suggested retail price of certain gold items. Are those offers real bargains or simply exaggerated claims?

Kentucky Attorney General David L. Armstrong warns consumers to be cautious when purchasing "discounted" gold jewelry. "Not only may consumers be paying more for gold jewelry than if they had bought it from a non-discount store, but the quality and durability of such items may be inferior," he said.

To insure that you receive the quality you paid for, Armstrong recommends that you note both the "karat" (normally engraved on the clasp) and the thickness of the gold jewelry before purchasing it. Because gold is a very soft metal, it is usually mixed with base metals to increase its durability. A "karat" expresses the quality of pure gold, with 24-K reflecting pure gold, and 14-K meaning 14 parts pure gold, 10 parts base metal.

Consumers should be wary of seemingly high prices on 14-K, 12-K, or 10-K gold jewelry, or unrealistically low prices for 18-K or 24-K gold jewelry. "The higher the karat, the higher the price should be," Armstrong said. "Moreover, the style of the piece is also important. Lower priced items such as gold chain necklaces tend to be thinner.

and made of less gold/base metal material, making them easier to break."

According to a recent study published in a prestigious medical journal, some types of arthritis medication, taken by people with heart disease, can actually worsen the heart condition. The report says that non-steroidal, anti-inflamatory drugs (NSAID's), which are often used in the treatment of arthritis, can block the body's ability to reduce the heart's work load. NSAID's interfere with the body's ability to produce prostaglandins. As a result, the body may not be able to decrease the amount of force needed to pump blood through the vessels. This will put strain on the weakened heart. It is important that people with both arthritis and heart disease realize the possible connection between NSAID's and their heart condition. They should discuss it with their doctors.

Plans Special Valentine For Statue Of Liberty

The National Society Daughters of the American Revolution has proclaimed Thursday, Feb. 14 (Valentine's Day) as Liberty Love Day, when all its 211,000 members will participate in a one-day nationally coordinated effort to raise funds for the restoration of the Statue of Liberty. Locally, John Graham Chapter is sponsoring this effort, with each member making her own contribution and contacting at least five nonmembers for donations.

The Statue of Liberty will be 100 years old in 1986 and a major undertaking is in progress to restore the majestic monument. The ravages of time, salt air and pollution have taken serious toll. Work is being done on the skeletal structure as well as the outside to insure the preservation of this great symbol of Freedom. It will take over two years to complete the restoration and cost a total of $45 million, according to the Statue of Liberty/Ellis Island Foundation. The rededication is scheduled for the Statue's birthday—October 28, 1986.

Both the Statue, built in France, and its pedestal, built in the United States, were funded by private citizens. The total restoration is being paid for in the

WHS Trojans Lose To Betsy Layne

(Stats by Malletta Campbell)
While Wheelwright wasn't able to avenge a recent loss to Betsy Layne, the scrappy Trojans gave the powerful Bobcats a run for their money in a Friday night game at Betsy Layne.

During most of the game,
Wheelwright trailed, but rarely by more than a couple of baskets. At the end of the first quarter, for instance, it was Betsy Layne on top, 15-12. The halftime score looked bleak for the Trojans as they trailed 31-24, but by the conclusion of the third quarter, Wheelwright had again narrowed the score, trailing 39-35. By the game's end, however, the Bobcats had cinched the contest, 58-52.

Leading the Bobcats in scoring was Jeff Campbell with 21. Duran Hall had 11, Brett Meade and Jimmy Parsons 10 each, Dwayne Kidd 4, and Davy Mitchell 2. David Hall turned in a fine performance for the Trojans collecting 24 points. John Isaacs had 13, Tony Hutton 8, Tim Hughes 4, Jack Hall 2, and Darrell Triplett 1.

Saturday night at Johns Creek, Betsy

Layne won convincingly, 65-51, although the score had been narrowed by Johns Creek at the end of the third quarter to 45-44.

Brett Meade led the Bobcats with an impressive 26 points and Jeff Campbell and Jimmy Parsons scored in double figures with 16 and 11, respectively. Duran Hall and Dwayne Kidd had 6 each.

For Johns Creek, Keith Runyon hit for 22, Steve Ray 14, Jim Hamilton, 6, Steve Spurlock and Reggie Maynard 4 each, and Tim Thacker 1.

Betsy Layne will travel to Ashland this weekend for a Friday night game vs. Boyd County, and Saturday night against East Carter.

Alcohol Abuse Drama To Air On KET, Feb. 21

John Ford Noonan's critically acclaimed 1982 Broadway play, "Some Men Need Help," a powerful drama about alcohol abuse, will be televised on "American Playhouse" on KET, Thursday, Feb. 21, at 8 p.m. (ET). Treat Williams and Philip Bosco will re-create the roles they originated off-

The drama is a duet for two passionate players: a man who wants to die, and a benevolent neighbor who wants him to live. The conflict between them is sometimes profane, and often funny.

The action begins with a classic device from suspense friction-a knock at the door, and a stranger coming in out of the rain. It soon becomes a clear, however, that this is a morality play with a distinctly modern twist.

The hero (Williams) is a boozed-up Scrooge who sees no point in living, now that his wife has walked out on him. The good fairy (Bosco) is a Mafia-tinged Italian from the Bronx. "What's this trying to save me all about, anyway?" Williams asks. "You trying to make up for people you killed?

The answers are as unexpected as the questions. Through its warmth and humor, "Some Men Need Help" will appeal to anyone who's ever struggled to rekindle a belief in his own life.

VIDEO SCEN

Video Hits seeks Yuppie audience

By Barton Weiss

Video hits and misses

MTV Network Inc.'s second network, Video Hits (VH-1), has been playing the mellow hits for about a month now, trying to find a mix to attract that elusive Yuppie audience. While MTV's original recipe is spicy, ecletic and innovative, the new network is more like traditional radio it follows the charts rather than breaking new acts.

One of the really nice things about VH-1, however, is that it plays much more black music than MTV or any contemporary hit radio station, which is where the format comes from.

But it will take several months before VH-1 works out the bugs of adapting radio into television for adults. MTV jocks have learned how to talk to the teen set, but the radio-trained VH-1 VJs seem awkward in front of the camera.

The birth of VH-1 will enable MTV Networks Inc. to improve its bad-boy image Since VH-1 gave the axe to the violent and degrading images, it has allowed MTV to go even farther and has freed it from having to please everybody

Sony has brought video 45s and LPs to the home market, and is now releasing several clip compilations this week. Turner-Private Dancer, will probably prove to be the most popular. These make up the backbone of one of the most gratifying comebacks in years.

THE COTTON CLUB, (R-Orion Pictures) Starring Richard Gere. Diane Lane and Gregory Hines. * *

BY J.T. YURKO

Harlem's original Cotton Club during the '20s and '30s was almost as famous as the stories behind the scenes of Francis Coppola's "The Cot-ton Club." This period piece is said to have cost some $47 million dollars. But the cost of a film is irrelevant to the average moviegoer; tans don't want to see Coppola's books. They want to see his movie

The original Cotton Club was the place to go for a swinging night out in New York City Patrons could see and hear the best black entertainers around, such as Duke Ellington or Cab Calloway But although all the artists were black, you had to be white to sit in the audience. The finest talents had to leave by the back door

"The Cotton Club" is part gangster film and part movie musical, and Coppela works hard at mixing the two genres. This is an original film. There are not many musical-gangster films, and with its violence countered by social comment, "Cotton Club" is light years away from Marlon Brando singing to his dice in "Guys

Coppola's tale follows two sets of brothers: One pair are from the white-gangster world (Richard Gere and Nicholas Cage); another are performers at the Cotton Club (Gregory Hines and Maurice Hines) They are all trying to rise to the top of their professions, or at least to survive in a world in which they often feel trapped. The rat-a-tat of the dancers tap dance is paralleled by the machine gun bullets of a mob

The concept does always work, and each scene s an exercise in over-direction. Coppola moves his camera for no reason at all, and he cuts far too often. It's a shame, because the dancers and per formers in the film are all first rate, and don't need an editing ob that chops strong perfor mances to bits. Coppola also borrows a few stylistic tricks from 30's movie making by using wipes for scene transitions and montages for pas-sages of time. In this film, such tricks seem frivolous and indul gent. What we should have had are characters with a bit more depth, and a lot more music

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Terry Dwayne Johnson who passed away Jan. 30, 1982—a loving brother, son and husband. One heart of gold stopped beating, Two shining eyes at rest; God broke our hearts to prove to us That he only takes the best. When God took Terry from us He didn't go alone; Each of us went with him, The day He took Terry home. To some he may be forgotten, To others he may be a part of the past; But to us who loved and lost him His memory will always last. It's such a lonesome home without Terry And sad has been the way: For life and home are not the same Since Terry was called away. So if you have someone who is really special.

Cherish them in a loving way, Cause you'll never know real heartache Until they are taken away.

We love and miss you so much, Terry. MOM AND DAD, JEANICE AND TERESA

Animals may have their own pets. An elephant at the San Diego Zoo was very attached to a Shetland pony who shared his quarters.

I will support any legal method of REDUCING the Magistrate salary and keep road workers on full time—buying more gravel or fixing one more road, with the extra money, -whatever is needed the most. THAT'S A PROMISE!!

Workers' Comp Underwriter Terminated

State Insurance Commissioner Gil McCarty has suspended Ideal Mutual Insurance Company's license to transact business in Kentucky after receiving an order of rehabilitation, with a finding of insolvency, from the New York Insurance Department.

All policies currently in existence with Ideal Mutual terminated as of midnight, January 26, with agents being advised to replace or rewrite all business before that date.

Ideal Mutual has written business in Kentucky since 1946 and has specialized principally in workers' compensation coverages.

This insurer during 1983 had booked more than $200,000,000 of premiums on a countrywide basis. Its premium volume in Kentucky totaled $3,192,000 in 1983, of which $2,624,000, or 82.2%, represented workers' compensation coverage on Kentucky employees. In the first 9 months of 1984, Kentucky premium volume was reported in the amount of $2,324,000 for all insurance coverages underwritten by Ideal Mutual.

A meeting of state insurance guaranty associations located throughout the United States was held in New York City on January 15, at which time representatives of the Kentucky Insurance Guaranty Association and the Kentucky Department of Insurance were present. During this meeting it was indicated that the New York Insurance Department would move to place Ideal Mutual into liquidation by the end of January. at which time all state insurance guaranty associations would be activated to cover policyholders' and claimants' unpaid losses, and claims for return premiums on policy cancella-

The Kentucky Insurance Guaranty Association provides, by statute, coverage of up to $50,000 for any one covered claim, including those claims for return premiums to policyholders.

Until this Association commences its review and subsequent payment of outstanding losses of Ideal Mutual, some Kentucky employers are stepping in on a voluntary basis and advancing funds to Kentuckians whose bi-weekly workers' compensation checks have been suspended temporarily.

The Kentucky Labor Cabinet has indicated that the Workers' Compensation Board has no authority to borrow funds to pay existing awards and that for those persons whose payments have been suspended, they will have to rely on the Kentucky Insurance Guaranty Association's funds for eventual payment of their awards.

The Department of Insurance is working closely with the Kentucky Insurance Guaranty Association to explore the possibilities of expediting payments of awards. The Association will communicate those procedures to be followed by claimants and policyholders in processing their claims, after advices have been recieved from the New York Insurance Department.

The Kentucky Insurance Department has been informed that existing business of Ideal Mutual is being rewritten in part with the Forum Insurance Company, Schaumburg, Illinois, which is a subsidiary of the Montgomery Ward Insurance Group.

Working Couples May Get Tax Break Up To $3,000

For several years, the tax laws were such that when both a husband and wife worked they paid higher taxes on their joint income than they would have by filing returns as single taxpayers.

That situation changed when Congress passed the Economic Recovery Tax Act of 1981, giving an important new tax break to a married couple when both work and file a joint return. This is the third year married taxpayers have been able to take this deduction.

The most that may be deducted on the 1984 return is the smaller of 10 percent of the qualified earned income of the lesser-earning spouse, or 10 percent of $30,000, for a maximum deduction of

This deduction may be taken on either Form 1040A or Form 1040. If Form 1040A is used, the deduction must be figured on Part III of Schedule 1. Schedule 1 must be attached to the return. If Form 1040 is used, the deduction is figured on Schedule W, which also must be attached to the return. In either case, a joint return must be filed.

Not all income qualifies for this deduction. The income must be earned income -wages, salaries, tips, etc. Income one spouse pays another does not qualify. Neither does such income as interest, dividends, pension, unemployment compensation, deferred compensation or nontaxable income. Also, certain adjustments must be made to earned income to arrive at qualified earned income. For example, deductions for payments to an IRA, or deductions for employee business expenses have to be subtracted from earned income in arriving at qualified earned income. These adjustments are figured on Part III of Schedule 1 for Form 1040A or Schedule W for Form 1040.

Taxpayers who have questons on the deduction for working couples may call the IRS toll free at 1-800-424-1040.

KET Examines Dangers Of Professional Boxing

The American Medical Association recently made headlines by calling for the abolition of professional boxing, and the American Academy of Pediatrics and American Neurological Society have also endorsed banning the sport. Growing concern about brain damage to fighters, and a string of deaths in the ring, are explored on "Down For The Count," a "Frontline" program to be aired on KET Tuesday, Feb. 19, at 9 p.m.

"Boxing is the only sport in the world where the clear intention is for one person to inflict bodily harm upon another person, mainly to the head where brain damage must ensue. This is now a matter of medical fact. I don't think improvements or controls are the answer. I think abolition is the answer." So says Howard Cosell, the nation's foremost boxing sportscaster until a few months ago, when he publicly denounced the sport and resigned all television announcing duties for professional

"It all seemed so true and logical to me, that boxing was an avenue of escape for the underprivileged," says Cosell. But the whole argument is specious. Only a handful ever succeed at it. The rest wind up fractured people.

Attempts to regulate boxing and make the sport safer for the fighters have been stopped when the issue has been raised

Medic Convicted On Fraud Count

A Fulton county physician who practiced in Owsley county was sentenced Jan. 10 by Franklin Circuit Judge William Graham to two years probation stemming from a felony conviction on charges that he submitted more than 100 false and fraudulent claims to the Kentucky Medicaid Program, according to Attorney General David L. Armstrong.

In addition to the probated sentence, Dr. Emmanuel D. Anama will be required to make restitution and pay civil penalties and fines totaling more than $25,000 and to provide community service of 10 hours a week for six months.

According to Armstrong, the claims were filed while Anama was practicing medicine in Booneville in 1982 and 1983. During a four-day trial early last month attorneys from Armstrong's office presented evidence that Anama initiated an office policy that enabled him to bill Medicaid for patients he had never seen. Under that policy, according to Armstrong, Anama's staff was authorized to provide prescriptions to Medicaid patients who merely telephoned or stopped by the doctor's office. After supplying the prescriptions, Medicaid claim forms charging for office visits were prepared. reviewed and signed by Anama.

"In each of the 122 fraudulent Medicaid claim forms presented in the case.' Armstrong said, "Medicaid was charged $20 for a 'routine follow-up office visit even though the doctor never saw the patient." According to Armstrong, Medicaid regulations dictate that a physician must have contact with a patient before the physician bills Medicaid for a

Testimony from several former employees as well as from numerous Medicaid patients showed that prescriptions were obtained from and office visits billed without any physicianpatient contact.

Evidence revealed that on one occasion when Anama was out of the state, some 20 claim forms charging for office visits were submitted for prescriptions filled in Dr. Anama's absence.

Sixty million Americans who spend more than a half-billion dollars a year on birdseed are doing it all wrong, say some wildlife experts. Like people, birds are often very fussy about what they eat, says National Wildlife magazine and so much of the commercial birdseed mix sold goes uneaten. National Wildlife reminds bird lovers that different birds like different foods. For instance, blue jays prefer peanut kernels and woodpeckers prefer beef suet.

In the early 1900's, the riverboat would steam into town. At the sound of the whistle and the calliope, all Prestonsburg would gather at the Upper Landing to see what news, goods, or travelers had come up the Big Sandy.

At this same location, the carefree charm of a bygone era is recalled today at "The Landing," the new name for Prestonsburg's foremost address...at an affordable price.

New Trees and Shrubs for 1985

We generally spend so much time at this time of year poring over seed catalogs, making wish lists of all of the lovely new flowers and vegetables we want to raise, that we forget that other types of new plants are introduced yearly, including trees and shrubs. As mundane as most Kentucky home landscapes are, I think it's time to get people to look for and ask for new trees and shrubs to color our landscapes with.

With all of the trouble people have trying to grow flowering dogwood as lawn specimens in full sun-a very poor location for these understory, shade-loving trees-I wish more people would consider growing Korean dogwood (Cornus kousa). Korean dogwood are more sun, heat and drought tolerant than our native, have flower buds that are more cold hardy, and have much showier fruit that resemble large red raspberries. Korean dogwood bloom after they leaf out, usually two to four weeks after the flowering dogwood. Their bracts (the showy petal-like parts) are pointed rather than indented as with flowering dogwood. They are equally as showy as small specimen trees, and with the in-deserve very serious consideration for home landscapes. Another tree sporting flashy color is the new 'Flame' cultivar of the Amur maple. Amur maple are small specimen and screen maple trees, not large shade trees like their sugar and red maple relatives. This new cultivar has a fiery red fall color sure to draw attention bracted cultivar called 'Rosabella,' they anywhere it is planted. For those who like Southern magnolia, the marginally hardy magnolia with the large glossy evergreen leaves, there is a new dwarf called 'Little Gem.' Because Southern magnolia is listed as hardy through USDA hardiness Zone 7 (which includes southwestern and southeastern Kentucky) it should be placed in very protected locations in more northern areas of Kentucky or it probably will not survive its first winter.

A small specimen tree rarely planted in Kentucky is the Korean stewartia. Here is a tree yielding year-round interest by way of deep green foliage in spring, white camellia-like flowers in early summer, red-orange foliage in fall, and exfoliating (peeling) orange/gray/ brown bark in winter. So few of our plants offer true year-round interest that this tree definitely deserves consideration

Want something in a new medium-sized tree to shade a porch or patio? Consider the 'Raywood' cultivar of the Claret ash (Fraxinus oxycarpa), an ash from southeastern Europe. This is a fast growing, compact, round headed tree

> American ash and the sweet gum. There are also plenty of new azaleas and rhododendrons, roses and perennials such as daylilies and hostas, so rather than get stuck in the same old rut, distinguish your home's landscape and select one of 1985's new plant introduc-that is seedless, meaning less litter and no seedlings. Its fall color makes it special-a deep wine red to rival the Timely Tip: Walnut trees produce a chemical called juglone that is toxic to many plants. Avoid planting the following near walnuts: alfalfa, apples, birch, blackberries, grapes, lindens, pines, potatoes, and tomatoes. Also avoid using walnut leaves, bark or wood chips as mulch around susceptible plants.

More and more Americans find farm ing a satisfying sideline, says the recent issue of National Wildlife magazine. Within four years, between 1978 and 1982, the number of small farms increased 17 percent. Of these 637,000 U.S. cent of them derive most of their income from outside employment. bought the land to enjoy it, not to make a living from it," says National Wildlife's Alan Wentz.
