There Are Slugs In My Garden.

Mother Nature seems to have created at least one creature that each one of us is repulsed by, in some cases downright frightened by. For some it is spiders, for others snakes, and for still others it is bees. While I'll never die of fright from squashing a slug when I pick up a flower pot from a cool, damp location, I certainly don't relish the encounter.

Over the years I've been clipping articles pertaining to slug control. Many of them are novel but may provide some relief. I'll give you a list of some to consider, but first, it's important to know something about slugs in order to best choose a control.

In essence, a slug is a snail without a shell. There are many species giving rise to many sizes, colors, and reproductive schemes. In Kentucky they are active from the time the ground thaws in spring until it freezes in fall or winter. Slugs feed on new flower and vegetable transplants. They feed on mature vegetable plants, perennial flowers, and lawn grasses. They feed on plants in the ground or on plants in containers on the ground or on any object or surface they can crawl up. Very few non-woody plants are exempt from potential feeding.

Slug feeding is evidenced by the holes they chew in leaves and stems, and by the slimy trail they leave. Even when the trail dries, it will shine when the light hits it right.

One problem in controlling slugs is their nocturnal feeding habit. They feed at night and hide during the day. The other problem in controlling them is their hiding places. They prefer dark, cool, humid places such as under mulch, rocks, boards, pots, and dead leaf piles. These are also the areas in which they lay their eggs, the state in which some species overwinter.

The first line of defense is sanitation. Keep vegetable gardens and flower beds free of litter and other favorite hiding places. You may have a dilemma if you mulch your plants to conserve moisture and suppress weeds but find the slugs like to live under the mulch.

Pesticides can be used to control slugs. Pelleted slug baits are probably the easiest to use, but be sure to read and follow label directions. Some chemicals can be used around food plants only in certain formulations.

Public Gets More Time For Forest Land Comment

The U.S. Forest Service has extended the time period for the public to review and submit written comments on the Proposed Forest Land and Resource Management Plan for the Daniel Boone National Forest from April 11 to April 18, according to Forest Supervisor Richard H. Wengert. The extension is being made due to a delay in publication of the notice in the Federal Register.

The proposed plan for the 679,000 acres of the Forest outlines a "preferred alternative" for managing the principal resources—recreation, timber, wildlife, soil and water, minerals and wilderness. Other alternatives for managing the Forest are described in a companion document, the Draft Environmental Impact Statement.

Wengert stated, "After the comment period ends on April 18, 1985, the Forest Service planning team will have approximately three months to review all comments submitted by the public. Unless the extent of public comment is such that a substantial revision is required, the final Environmental Impact Statement and Forest Plan will be a supplement to the draft documents..."

Now to my collection of controls or slug remedies if you want your mulch but don't want to use a pesticide.

—The classic: a shallow container of beer (fresh or stale) sunk in the ground. Slugs either drown in the brew or become inebriated and forget to hide from the heat, dehydrating sun.

—No beer around the house? Try fermented grape juice or baker's yeast in water.

—Make protective barriers around plants using coal tar, soot, ash, cinders, sand or lime.

—Save the round, spiky ball-type fruit of the sweetgum tree. Use it as an abrasive mulch the slugs can't crawl across.

—Stay up late, watch the slugs go to work, then spray them with either a 50:50 solution of vinegar and water or a 25:75 solution of ammonia and water.

—Surround plants with mats of window screen scored to produce a rough surface.

—Eat the melon from half of a cantaloupe, fill the shell with soapy water and sink it in the ground near susceptible plants.

Timely Tip: As spinach seeds absorb water to begin germination they develop a mucilaginous coating that attracts fungi capable of killing the seed embryo or young spinach seedling. To prevent this, soak the seed for 10 minutes prior to planting in a 75 percent solution of commercial bleach.

Wins Regional Art Show

Paul Rice, an Allen Central High School junior, was selected as first-place winner in the category of ink drawing in the Kentucky Art Education Association exhibition.

The exhibit was held at Morehead State University in the Claypool-Young Art Building. The exhibition project was supported by the Kentucky Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts. The selection of all-state finalists from each regional exhibit was made by a KAEA judging team. Only one all-state finalist award was given in each art classification.

Rice's drawing will be sent to Frankfort by Morehead State University for the Kentucky All-State Exhibition which will be judged by Dr. Al Hurwitz, an internationally known art educator.

The Allen Central High School student's work was selected from entries throughout the area surrounding MSU. Most counties were represented. His was one of the three selected from Allen Central as suitable for entry in regional competition. Also entered from the school were the works of Paul Combs and Dan Moore. The entries were submitted by Mrs. Carolita O'Quinn, their art instructor. The students entered in the regional exhibit were taken to Morehead for "Students Day" by Mrs. O'Quinn.

The winner of the pen and ink category is the son of Jerry and Claudine Rice, of Hueysville.

An acrylic painting by Paul Combs received "Honorable Mention." He is a senior at Allen Central and is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Adron Combs, of Garrett.

The all-state exhibition is scheduled to open April 27 in Frankfort. Some entries will be selected for a traveling exhibition through the coming summer.

Floyd Unemployment Rate Highest in Area for January

Floyd county had the highest unemployment rate in the Big Sandy area in January when unemployment rates rose in 80 Kentucky counties.

Statewide the unemployment rate for January was 9.7 percent, up from 9.3 percent in December. Nationally, the January unemployment rate was 8.0 percent, up from 7.0 percent in December. The rates are not seasonally adjusted.

Bluegrass counties which do not rely on heavy manufacturing for an economic base continued to report the lowest rates. Six counties reported rates below 5.0 percent, with Scott and Woodford reporting the lowest, 3.1 percent. They were followed by Trimble, with 3.8 percent, Fayette, with 4.2 percent, Bourbon, with 4.3 percent and Jessamine, with 4.9 percent.

Six counties reported rates above 20.0 percent, with Letcher county having the highest, 26.4 percent. Menifee county reported the second highest rate, 21.7 percent, followed by Breathitt, 21.3 percent, Edmonson, 21 percent, Carter, 20.4 percent, and Marshall, 20.3 percent.

State labor market analyst Ed Blackwell said seasonal factors pushed unemployment up in January. "We normally see a decline in agricultural and construction jobs at this time each year," he said. "Also, some people who have temporary jobs during the holiday shopping season stay in the labor force and look for other jobs."

An estimated 1,527,700 Kentuckians were working in January, down from 1,575,900 in December.

In the Big Sandy district unemployment remained at 14.1 percent for the second month in a row. Martin county's 8.7 percent rate was lowest and only single-digit rate in the district. Floyd county's 16.3 percent rate was highest.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 59.8 percent had worked in mining, 12.9 percent in construction and 10.5 percent in trade.

Unemployment in the Kentucky River district jumped from a revised December rate of 15.0 percent to a preliminary January rate of 19.0 percent. All eight counties reported double-digit rates, ranging from 15.5 percent in both Lee and Owsley counties to 26.4 percent in Letcher, the highest rate in the state.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 48.3 percent had worked in mining, 14.4 percent in trade and 10.7 percent in construction.

Commissioner Turner On Nat'l Committee

Jimmy P. Turner, chairman of the Kentucky Railroad Commission, was recently appointed to the Committee on Transportation of the National Association of Regulatory Utility Commissioners (NARUC) by Association President Susan M. Knowles.

The Committee on Transportation, established in 1983 to replace the NARUC Committees on Motor and Air Carriers and Railroads, created a task force which has been working to develop a model uniform state transportation code. In addition, the committee has been working on a proposal for a centralized registration system for interstate motor carriers and has been active in evaluating congressional legislation concerning uniform regulation of interstate motor carriers.

Before joining the Kentucky Railroad Commission in 1975, Turner was a GMAC representative from 1964 to 1969 and operated a construction business from 1969 to 1976.

The biggest complaint against some politicians in Floyd county—is that after they win their election and get in office—they sit down in their chair, put their feet up on the desk and wait four years until the next election. Then—they come out of "hibernation"—STRIKE A LICK OR TWO—and loudly say "look what a good boy am I." MOST of our roads in District One haven't seen a NEW GRAVEL or an OLD GRADER in 3½ years. If you have had enough of this kind of "bull and baloney", now's your chance to do something about it—change it with your vote. Vote for new leadership! Vote for service to the people! Dr. Martin Retains Membership In AAFP

Dr. Lowell D. Martin, of Martin, has completed continuing education requirements to retain active membership in the American Academy of Family Physicians, the national association of family doctors. The Academy formerly was called the American Academy of General Practice.

The requirements call for members to complete a minimum of 150 hours of accredited continuing medical study every three years. Insurance Situation Worse As More Underwriters Quit

"It's getting worse," said Prestonsburg insurance man Roy Ramey, as yet two more of the insurance companies serving his clients announced this week that they would no longer be offering coverage to homeowners without fire protection.

The reason is that underwriters are experiencing heavy fire losses here, made worse by inadequate fire protection and high arson rates, insurance agents and state officials reported in a recent meeting in Pikeville. Bad roads also mean above-average auto claims, it was said.

Kentucky Insurance Commissioner Gilbert McCarty said six companies, affecting 11,000 Kentucky policy-holders, were "broke," and 91 were on a list for special scrutiny because their financial positions were weak.

Problems with homeowners insurance apparently are widespread in regions rated by the Insurance Services Office, an industry rating service, as Class 9 or Class 10 risks. Class 9 areas have fire departments but inadequate water systems, and Class 10 areas have no fire protection.

Outside of Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne fire districts, much of Floyd county is rated as Class 10 risk. Allen has a Class 9 rating, but is currently strapped for funds needed to upgrade its firehouse and equipment. Fire departments in Garrett and Wayland, which recently received a Class 9 rating, have announced they are quitting for want of tax support.

Because banks can't risk making loans on properties not protected by insurance, the growing insurance squeeze affects banks and builders, state Banking Commissioner Ballard Cassidy, Jr. told the Pikeville Chamber of Commerce gathering. The state and industry officials agreed that money spent by governments to prosecute more arson cases and improve water systems and fire departments would be repaid in insurance premium savings.

Floyd Game Clubs Get Quail Chicks

Quail, long threatened by man, found a helping human hand last week, as game clubs around the state took delivery of thousands of day-old chicks.

The Dewey Lake and Floyd County Fish and Game Clubs each received 1000 of the chicks last Thursday from the state Department of Fish and Wildlife, under a program which has been in operation for the past several years.

Under the program, club members agree to raise the game birds for six weeks and then to release them in a suitable habitat, in an effort to replenish a stock ravaged by winter and threatened by continuing losses of the farmland on which they depend for survival.

The chicks delivered here last week were hatched on the state game farm at Frankfort and will be released in mid-May. How well they will do after that is uncertain, but conservationists are hopeful that enough will survive to make the project worthwhile. "The success rate is not great," said Chalmer Howard, president of the Dewey Lake Fish and Game Club. "Pen-raised birds have trouble adapting to the wild. But a percentage do, and we hope it will be enough eventually to improve the population."

Reclaimed stripmines are proving capable of supporting quail, if they are sown with trees and grasses the birds need, Howard said. "We are encouraging stripmine operators to keep wildlife in mind when they are reclaiming," he said.

Quail are hunted from late November to mid-February, when they begin to nest.

Holy Week Services Now in Progress

Holy Week services, which are sponsored by the Prestonsburg Ministerial Association, in cooperation with the Local Churchwomen, are in progress at the Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church, and will continue through Good Friday, April 5, beginning each day at 12 o'clock, noon. Bringing the message today (Wednesday), will be the Rev. Tim Jessen, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church; the message will be delivered on Thursday by the Rev. Jennings West, pastor of the Lancer Baptist Church, and on Friday, by the Rev. Lowell Langefeld, pastor of the First United Methodist Church. Light snacks will be prepared by women of the participating churches, and served by the Social committee of the host church.

Easter Sunrise Services will be held Sunday morning at 7 o'clock, at the Amphitheatre, Jenny Wiley State Park, with the Rev. Chris Platt, pastor of St. James Episcopal Church, delivering the sermon, and Miss Elizabeth Frazier and members of the Prestonsburg High School Chorus furnishing the music. In case of inclement weather, the service will be held at nearby May Lodge.

Persons throughout the area are invited to attend.

ALLEN

The Allen Woman's Club held its monthly meeting at the Allen Park on March 5. Those present were Judy Hester, Belle Conn, Mary Hinchman, Diana Reed, Barbara Whitt, Hollie Blanton, and Jo Ann Adams. The guest for the evening was Imogene Cole. The club discussed the possibility of having a rummage sale later in the year. The following officers for 1985-86 were named by the nominating committee: Mary Hinchman, president; Pat Derosssett, vice-president; Denise Queen, secretary; Judy Hester, treasurer. The new officers will be installed and clubwoman of the year will be announced at next month's installation dinner, April 2. The club discussed a letter from Prestonsburg Junior Woman's Club asking if the Allen Club would sponsor a contestant in the Miss Floyd County Pageant. The club decided to sponsor her if she was from Allen. Motion was made by Diana Reed to contribute $50 to KET. Also discussed was the Spring district meeting to be held in Whitesburg on March 30. The officers will be the hostesses of the Installation Dinner in April. Mary Hinchman and Hollie Blanton were hostesses for the evening.

PENTOXIPYLLINE
 A new drug has been introduced to the market that is designed to treat the arm and leg pains associated with hardening of the arteries. Pentoxipylline apparently works by increasing the flexibility of red blood cells so that blood can flow more easily to the extremities. When arteries harden, the flow of blood to the leg and arm muscles is restricted. Pain occurs because this restriction causes a restriction of oxygen. The condition can make walking even short distances painful. In clinical terms of the drug, some patients suffered nausea, dizziness and headaches. However, the Food and Drug Administration has indicated that the side effects appear to be related only to the size of the dose.
 By anticipating the drug and medicinal needs of folks in this area the pharmacists at COOLEY APOTHECARY keep in stock hundreds of drugs and medications for immediate availability. We know that people who are ill or in need of drugs depend on us for ready access to prescribed medication. For everyday low prices on over the counter remedies and prescription medications many of your friends and neighbors have already come to rely on us. We are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

CREATIVE MANAGEMENT: AN APPROACH TO PROGRESSIVE LOCAL GOVERNMENT

A major problem facing all local governments is disposal of solid waste. Many local governments choose to institute costly programs of collecting the waste and searching for a place to "hide" it in a landfill. A look around Floyd County will convince us that these time worn policies aren't working.

Perhaps we should look at solid waste disposal in a different light. Actually, we have two problems that are inter-related. Solid waste, garbage, clutters our countryside and detracts from the natural beauty of our area; our unemployment rate remains in double figures. One approach, recycling, offers a step in the direction of solving both problems.

Research shows us that for every 10,000 pounds of materials recycled, 36 jobs are created! Camden, New Jersey, has a recycling plant that prepares used oil for industrial heating oil; Houston has an aluminum smelting plant that uses only discarded cans; Fresno, California, has a cellulose insulation plant that uses 600 tons of newsprint per week; there are four crumb rubber plants in the U.S. that produce powdered material from old trees; mini-steel mills require 100% scrap feedstock; prices for used glass have risen from $20 per ton to $60 per ton. In fact, in 1983, recycling handled over 10% of the nation's solid waste.

Will recycling programs offer an answer to Floyd County's solid waste disposal problem? Maybe, maybe not. It is a complex approach that requires our elected leaders to be able to understand the nature of the problem. However, the solid waste problem is so immense in our county that such innovative solutions deserve, at least, our attention.

The nation, the state and our county are moving into the last half of the 1980's. Instead of a "hand-wringing" approach to our problems that offer us time worn approaches, we need new ideas and innovative approaches. We must be assured that our elected leaders truly "look at things as they could be and ask why not?" James R. Allen has a college degree and a law degree from the University of Kentucky. James knows that our county has problems, but James sees the problems as upside down opportunities.

Our problem with solid waste disposal offers Floyd County a unique opportunity to try innovative programs that assist in disposal of our solid waste while at the same time create jobs for our people. That's the kind of leadership we need in the last half of the 1980's. Vote for James R. Allen—it's a vote for innovative programs to solve the problems of Floyd County.

Engineers Initiate Volunteer Program

As the result of the passage of Public Law 98-63, the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers is now permitted to accept the volunteer services of persons who live in communities near project areas. The new law permits several activities to be performed, such as building trails, picking up litter, and assisting in the planning of programs that will be presented to the public.

Willie Murray, U.S. Army Corps of Engineers resource manager, said he will be glad to accept the volunteer services of people in the area. "Now that the law allows us to use voluntary services, we can work together with the community to perform a variety of activities that will help to develop and maintain the natural beauty of Dewey Lake."

Other area lakes also are included in the program.

Until the acceptance of Public Law 98-63, the Corps of Engineers was prohibited from accepting the services of volunteers. The Corps' objective now is to utilize voluntary service in a manner which will be mutually beneficial to the volunteers and of interest to the public.

(Persons wishing to volunteer their services or learn more about the Corps' Project Volunteer Program, may call the Dewey Lake office at 789-4521 or the Huntington District office at (304) 529-5608.)

SWEET TEETH

Q. What kind of diet makes for good teeth?

A. A healthy diet, with little or no sugar in it, is definitely better for teeth than one rich in sugary foods.

Children adapt the diet habits of their families. If elders eat sweet foods, the children inevitably follow suit. Any form of sugar in foods, including syrups, is a threat to teeth because mouth bacteria metabolize sugars promptly to form the acids that eat away tooth enamel, and the process of decay is well on its way.

Once children are old enough to snack on their own, it's smart to see that healthful, non-sugar items are available: raw carrot or celery sticks, nuts, plain yogurt, fresh fruits. Apples and cheddar even have teeth-cleaning properties. These will satisfy between-meal hunger and provide protein, fiber, vitamins and minerals. Good diet makes a big difference in dental health.

COMPETENCE IS THE ISSUE

These have been difficult times for Floyd County. We've had hard times financially, and instability in the Courthouse. A simple check of the record will reveal that we've had six (6) County Judges in seven (7) years. The time has come for each of us to take a sober and earnest look at the monies available and the problems that abound. This is no time for self-serving ambition by any office seeker desiring to increase either his or his backers' power and influence.

During the last few weeks my opponent has made much of his college education as if that degree in itself qualifies him for the position of Floyd County Judge-Executive. However, I respectfully submit to you that competence, simple integrity, and determination to fulfill your duty are the most important qualifications for any office holder.

When I became your Floyd County Judge-Executive, the County finances were such that the Commonwealth of Kentucky had taken direct control over the County's monies. The matter was further complicated by a significant decrease of revenues, from coal severance tax. Nevertheless, I was determined to show competence and common sense in my decision making and invest the hours and effort needed to fulfill my sworn duty. For example, in spite of the difficulty of saying no to many of my friends, I eliminated much local purchasing and insisted that no bills could be paid unless they were prefiled in this office at least one week to the Fiscal Court Meeting. Further, I implemented a policy that no purchase, by any county employee or magistrate, of supplies for or on behalf of the County would be honored and paid by the Fiscal Court unless those purchases were first cleared by my office and had issued thereon a purchase order. The savings have been dramatic. In spite of the fact that my first full year's budget was over One Million ($1,000,000) Dollars less than the preceding year, we finished the year in the black. I have demonstrated both common sense and a willingness to get the job done with what we have available.

I humbly submit that this was true even of the years I spent as a representative of Educational District No. 3 of the Floyd County School Board. While my opponent and his supporters may wish to malign our school system, the simple fact is that I got the job done as a representative for Educational District No. 3. During the years that I had that honor, nineteen (19) one and two room schools were replaced with two new elementary schools at Harold and Grethel, as well as a new high school at Betsy Layne.

So my opponent can continue to talk about his own education and heed the leadership of his State Senator, but it doesn't change the simple fact that the people need an individual who will competently and earnestly strive to fulfill his duty. As for myself, this I have done. I can truthfully say I do not seek this office at the direction of any other elected official, nor do I intend to "capture" it for the future manipulation of certain ambitious individuals.

Finally, I repeat a simple promise. I will view each and every dollar of your monies as an opportunity to do public good, not an occasion to increase or spread anyone's political influence.

THE BEST LAW ENFORCEMENT IS DONE 'ON THE ROAD'—NOT IN THE COURTHOUSE.

Visible patrol prevents crime.

Rapid response increases apprehension. It's just common sense and good management of limited funds.

Some issues:

1. Administrative training of Deputies reduces administrative time and increases county patrolling.
2. Trained Deputies produce a higher percentage of valid arrests and cut down useless Judicial System and Sheriff's Department time spent on bad cases. Again, this frees more hours for county patrolling.
3. 24-hour dispatch, yes. But it's the dispatcher in the sheriff's office, not the Deputies. The Deputies are on patrol in their assigned areas and are not only maintaining preventive visibility but are a shorter distance from the place they need to be.
4. Acquiring Federal Grant programs for equipment and special training, rather than spending only the limited funds of the people of Floyd County.
5. Acquiring Federally supported veterans' programs and on-the-job wage payments for Dispatcher training programs.
6. Accessing the Insurance Industry's salary replacement payment of $2,500 a year to all professionally qualified full-time law enforcement officers.
7. Applying sound business management and administrative principles to the function of the Sheriff's Department. Cut down the office cost and spend those funds on improved field work that better protects and more ably assists the people of Floyd County.
8. Better law enforcement through training and better management.

Efficient, professional law enforcement is the job you elect the Sheriff to do. This is part of the way we intend to do that job.

Comp Care Centers To Receive $400,000 To Treat Tippy Drivers

Approximately $400,000 to help treat convicted drunken drivers will be available after April 1 to Kentucky's 14 regional comprehensive care centers, Cabinet for Human Resources officials announced last week.

"The funds will be used to reimburse the centers for alcohol and drug abuse assessment, education and treatment for clients who can't afford those services," said Mike Townsend, director of the Division of Substance Abuse in the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services.

The money will come from a $150 service fee assessed all convicted drunken drivers under the provisions of Senate Bill 20, also known as the "Slammer Bill." The bill was passed by the 1984 Kentucky General Assembly. Townsend added that the money received by the department will be allocated to each region on the basis of the amount of fees collected from the 14 geographic areas.

"The money we currently have earmarked for the comp care centers comes from fees taken between July 13, when the program went into effect, and January 31," said cabinet budget director John Cubine. "The program's budget for the first two years is just over $1 million per year." He added that Human Resources receives 45 percent of the total funds, the Justice Cabinet gets 26 percent, 25 percent is returned to the counties and four percent goes to the Transportation Cabinet.

Townsend said that once the program gets started, the money will be distributed on a quarterly basis to the comp care centers.

"This program will allow us to provide more assessment, education and treatment services to people who are high risk for developing substance abuse problems," noted Townsend. "It will also allow family members to get involved with the treatment process. We will ask the families to become involved with the process whether it is education or treatment."

He added that the care will be provided through the comp care residential and outpatient treatment programs and financial support will be based on the person's ability to pay for treatment.

"The program will help to identify thousands of drivers with drinking problems and get them started in a treatment program," said Townsend. "That should help the offender and the family get a better handle on the drunk driving problem in our communities."

LEADERSHIP—IT MAKES A DIFFERENCE

How does Floyd County pay for government services? Through taxes which you pay directly to the county government and through "sharing" of a portion of the taxes you pay to state and federal government.

Some of the sharing of taxes you pay to state and federal government is automatic. The area development fund and revenue sharing are given to the county governments on a pro-rata basis. However, a great deal of money—literally billions of dollars—are available to county governments through grant programs. County governments compete with each other for these funds. How successful has our county government been in obtaining these funds for our people over the past two years?

Information available from the State Department of Local Government tells us about grants awarded by three of the major funding sources to Floyd and surrounding counties over the past two years. Grants to Floyd County from the Appalachian Regional Commission, the Land and Water Conservation Fund and the Community Development Block Grant program over the last two years amounted to $416,774.19 or about $8.60 per person; Knott County received about $1,292,577.00 or about $71.80 per person; Magoffin County received about $817,047.20 or about $54.46 per person and Pike County received over $3 million from these sources. Even tiny Martin County, which has approximately 25% of the population of Floyd County received $570,062.96 or $153,288.77 more than Floyd County.

These grants provide transportation services, senior citizens programs, recreation facilities, water/sewage services, solid waste disposal services, industrial development facilities and countless other services which our people need and deserve. Don't we need these kinds of services as much as our neighbors? Why did we not get our fair share?

Is it because our local government officials don't know about the grants available? Because they don't care? Because they don't understand the complex process of developing successful grant applications? Whatever the reasons, the facts are that we received less grant money for our people than any county in our area. Our people expect more from our local elected leaders; they deserve more from our county government.

James R. Allen is a college graduate with a law degree from the University of Kentucky. James knows and understands that local government is becoming more and more complex. James has the academic training to relate to the more technically advanced aspects of our society while maintaining the personal characteristics necessary to relate to our people. James R. Allen will bring the full force of all available resources of local, state and federal government to bear on solving the problems of Floyd County. Vote for James R. Allen—it's a vote for fair and equitable treatment of Floyd County in all matters of government.

A LEADER FOR A CHANGE

"No Stone Unturned?" Meeting On Cemeteries

Seven million grave sites lie scattered across the Commonwealth from Pikeville to Fulton. Many can be found in neglected family graveyards, overgrown with weeds, broken tombstones, and sunken burial sites. Often these cemeteries contain invaluable historical and genealogical information on Kentucky's earliest settlers and pioneers.

Saturday, April 27 a half-day conference on Kentucky's family cemeteries will be hosted by Morehead State University and sponsored by the Historical Confederation of Kentucky, an alliance of local historical and genealogical societies.

The meeting, "No Stone Unturned?" offers information on restoring and stabilizing run-down graveyards. Current statutes protecting cemeteries will also be reviewed. Among the featured speakers are William B. Chescheir, Kentucky Historical Society who will discuss the Kentucky Cemetery Records Project, a statewide effort to record and computerize family cemetery information. Organizations and individuals interested in compiling and publishing cemetery records will receive guidance from Samuel McDowell, McDowell Publications. A session on locating and recording family graveyards will feature Roy Preston, Magoffin County Historical Society. The day's highlight will be a trip to a local cemetery for transcribing and stonerubbing.

Jointly sponsored by the Northeastern and Southeastern regions of the Confederation, "No Stone Unturned?" is open to everyone interested in preserving Kentucky's family cemeteries. Historical and genealogical organizations are invited to bring book displays and share news about their projects and activities. Registration is $7.00 per person which includes a luncheon and all activities. Checks should be payable to Morehead State University and mailed to Dr. John Kleber, UPO 697, Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky. 40351. The program begins at 9:30 EST in the Patty Bollin Room of the Lloyd Cassidy Bldg. Those desiring further information should contact Dr. John Kleber, History Department, Morehead State University, (606) 783-2090 or Betty Jo Lykins, Magoffin County Historical Society, (606) 349-2395.

'Child Find' Drive Scheduled for April

The Kentucky Department of Education is trying to find handicapped children who are not attending school or who are in school but are not receiving the special education they need.

A campaign to find these children, titled "Child Find," has been scheduled during the month of April, Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald said.

Parents, relatives, public and private agencies, and concerned citizens who know of unserved handicapped children are urged to refer these children to their local school districts.

Handicapped children include those who are mentally retarded, deaf or hearing-impaired, seriously emotionally disturbed, orthopedically impaired, deaf-blind, multihandicapped or with specific learning disabilities.

Lois Adams, who heads the Department of Education's Office of Education for Exceptional Children, said information on the child's name, age, suspected handicap and parents' address and phone number should be given to local school officials, who in turn will get in touch with the parents to determine whether the child needs special education and, if so, to plan an individualized education program for the child, she said.

ABOUT ANIMALS

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association

ABOUT ANIMALS is a copyrighted service of the Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association provided by this newspaper as a public service. ABOUT ANIMALS solicits response from readers, both comments and questions. Some questions will become topics for future columns.

Control of Fleas

"Adam had 'em!" wagged the poet, and so have most of our pets at one time or another, to say nothing of larger animals. Elimination of fleas is both a matter of importance as well as the topic of this column.

Kittens and puppies can die as a result of flea infestation, while adult animals suffer much misery from flea bites, which can cause "hot spots" and/or become the site of secondary infections. Beyond that, the flea is the means of transmission of the most common species of dog and cat tapeworms.

The most commonly seen indication of fleas is continual scratching, though this can also occur from other causes. You should, however, check for further indications if your pet scratches frequently. Examine the nape of the neck or the back of the animal's tail. If the hair has thinned in these areas and/or if you see small scabs, suspect fleas.

Key To Control

The key to control is understanding the life-cycle of the flea. Adult fleas feed almost exclusively on the blood of cats and dogs, only rarely on humans or other, larger animals with tougher skin. They may also be present on the smaller wild animals, which are frequently a source of infestation of domestic animals. Yet, with all the trouble they cause, only about ten percent of the flea's life is spent on the host animal.

After an incubation stage the eggs hatch into larvae and feed for about two weeks, then they retire into cocoons as pupae. After an incubation period ranging from a week to a year, depending on temperature, they hatch into adult fleas and begin to repeat the cycle. Be assured that even the bitterly cold winter in Kentucky this year did not kill all the pupae.

Methods of Control

Any successful method of flea control must include not only the animal but its sleeping quarters as well, and quite often the areas of the house in which the animal is allowed.

For the animal, there are several preparations available, either as sprays, powders or roll-ons, as well as medications and collars which make the animal itself a flea-killer.

Some caution is necessary when using patent preparations. Almost none of the aerosols used to spray furniture or bedding are suitable for use on the animal. Some preparations suitable for dogs are not safe for cats, especially kittens.

Read labels carefully. It should also be noted that fleas, like most other insects today, are continually developing resistance to insecticides and what worked last year may not be effective this year.

Fleas in the bedding, in the house and in the yard must also be controlled or reinfestation of the animal will occur. Bedding can be destroyed. Several commercial preparations are available which effectively kill fleas in rugs or upholstery. Concentrate on rugs, curtains, drapes and furniture at keen level or lower. Remember the baseboards and window casings. Spray, wait the recommended time stated on the package, then vacuum.

Consult your veterinarian or your county agricultural agent for information on how to control fleas in the yard.

With Extreme Caution If all else fails inside the house, consider using one of the various "bug bombs" that have come on the market lately, aerosol sprays that are set off in the house and claim to do a complete fumigation job. They do kill a wide spectrum of pests—fleas, moths, roaches, silverfish, flies, spiders and so on. They also kill fish, birds and almost anything else.

If you choose to use this method, be sure to completely cover fish tanks and turn off pumps which oxygenate the water and cover them as well. Remove all animals—birds as well as pets—and their feeding and water dishes. Be sure the house is clear of people. Follow instructions carefully. Then be sure to air the house thoroughly before returning the pets or the people, wash all dishes that were uncovered. Vacuum thoroughly and mop linoleum or tile floors.

These insecticides are extremely dangerous and unless you are experienced in the use of pesticides, you might consider calling a professional exterminator who guarantees his work.

Your veterinarian keeps up-to-date information on which insecticides are currently working on fleas in your area.

Earthquake Threat Subject of Meeting

Public Officials from parts of four Midwestern states were given a crash course in earthquakes during a day-long meeting in Paducah.

The Public Officials Earthquake Awareness Conference is the first of its kind in the United States, and involved more than 300 representatives from local governments in Illinois, Missouri, Indiana, and Kentucky.

Erie Jones, Executive Director of the Central United States Earthquake Consortium, called the meeting crucial. "Local elected officials must be aware that an earthquake problem exists along the Mississippi Valley," Jones said. "Bringing these people together like this serves as a good starting point in achieving that awareness."

The officials were given an overview of the seismic risk to areas along the New Madrid Fault by Dr. Otto Nuttli, noted geophysicist at St. Louis University.

"While I won't say it's a prediction, I will say the likelihood of a 7.6 Richter scale earthquake along the fault is about 7 percent by the year 2000, and 20 to 30 percent in the next fifty years," Nuttli said.

Other speakers touched upon the various problems local governments can expect to face should a quake occur.

Martin Walsh, Building Commissioner for the city of St. Louis, said the political impact of attempting to update codes to include earthquake restrictions may not be as severe as many politicians believe. Walsh also told the gathering they must realize their main objective is to save lives, not buildings.

Lifelines will also be a major problem the local governments will have to deal with should a quake occur. The loss of transportation routes, sewage facilities, water and utilities will make most communities vulnerable, according to Dr. William Hall of the University of Illinois at Urbana.

"Road surfaces may appear safe or unharmed, but the utilities that normally lie beneath the road will be in questionable condition," Hall said.

Other presenters include Patricia Leifer who is conducting a study in several areas along the New Madrid Fault. That study includes an inventory, analysis, and evaluation of the population at risk in these areas.

Dick Rice, Secretary of Public Safety for the State of Missouri, challenged conference participants to return to their communities and evaluate their situation as it regards earthquakes.

He said other areas of vulnerability in addition to sewage, water and electricity must be addressed, including public gathering places such as schools. "It is irresponsible of us as public officials to allow construction of schools without seismic protection and then send our children off to those facilities and hope nothing happens," Rice claimed.

Kentucky Disaster and Emergency Services Executive Director Wilbur R. Buntin, said a similar forum may be planned for the general public in the near future.

Legal Group Seeking Farmers' Legal Aid

Kentucky Attorney General David L. Armstrong and Minnesota Attorney General Hubert H. Humphrey, III last week moved to pass a resolution at the National Association of Attorneys General meeting which calls for relief for farm families in obtaining legal assistance.

"We know that 25 percent of America's farm families are facing severe debt crisis in the wake of mounting costs and inflation," Armstrong said. "The attorneys general felt that it was our responsibility to address at least the one avenue open to us and that is making sure these families are protected legally."

In the resolution, which passed by a voice vote, the attorneys general called on all states, the Congress and the Legal Services Corporation to expand legal services to farm families facing serious financial problems. "We asked that Congress provide direct funding and grants to rural legal assistance providers and to the Legal Services Corporation," Armstrong said. "Too often, farm families are prohibited from obtaining low-cost legal assistance because, at least on paper, their assets exceed the income cut-off point."

The custom of "knocking on wood" began because people hoped the noise would prevent evil spirits from hearing about their good luck and taking it away from them.

Alcohol, Tobacco: A Deadly Mix

Everyone knows that cigarette smoking is hazardous to health and that alcohol abuse can kill. However, not many people know that combined these two substances do worse damages than either would do alone.

According to a special report in the April Reader's Digest, alcohol and tobacco act "synergistically." That means the person who both smokes and drinks heavily may be at greater risk of becoming ill than one who "drinks like a fish" but never smokes, or who "smokes like a chimney" but never drinks.

The Digest cites two major investigations exploring the dangerous interaction between alcohol and tobacco. In one, researchers at the International Agency for Research on Cancer in Lyon, France, found that the person who smoked heavily (a pack or more daily) and who drank moderately (less than a half-liter a day) was five times more likely to suffer from cancer of the esophagus than someone who drank the same amount but smoked moderately (10 cigarettes or less daily).

The risk of esophageal cancer was 18 times higher for someone who smoked moderately and drank heavily (a liter or more a day.) A person who both smoked and drank heavily increased the risk 44 times.

After reviewing scientific studies that reached similar findings about different types of alcoholic beverages and other cancers, including those of the mouth, pharynx and larynx, the U.S. National Institute on Alcohol Abuse stated: "Alcohol has a synergistic effect with tobacco that increases the risk of cancer."

Cancer is not the only risk, however. Other illnesses associated with abuse of either of these two substances also can be made worse when alcohol and tobacco are repeatedly consumed together.

For example, "the synergistic effect of alcohol and tobacco may deliver a powerful blow to the cardiovascular system as well as to the upper respiratory tract. For those prone to hypertension who drink more than two ounces of alcohol a day, high blood pressure is common and with it the increased risk of stroke and heart attack. For hypertensives who combine smoking and drinking, the risks are even greater."

Scientists are just beginning to grapple the "double whammy" effect of alcohol and tobacco, yet the evidence clearly points to the need for increased public education to warn people of the risks they face.

The Digest suggests that another warning be included on cigarette packages, stressing the lethal risks of combining over the long term alcohol with tobacco.

Armstrong, State Jail-a-thon Chairman

Kentucky's attorney general, David Armstrong, has been named 1985 state chairperson of the American Cancer Society's jail-a-thon, a major fund-raising event for the Society. As state chairperson, Armstrong will serve as spokesperson for the special event, attend jail-a-thons around the state and assist in recruiting volunteers. Commenting on the new position, Armstrong said "it is a challenge to help the American Cancer Society raise funds for their many programs and it is the hope of us all that one day cancer will be retired as a disease which knows no bounds."

Armstrong said a jail-a-thon is a special event in which staged arrests are made by a large number of volunteers. Each "arrested" person is taken to a fictitious jail by off-duty police officers where bail is set and the arrested person is put in jail and given a telephone where calls can be made to friends and associates.

Last year, twenty-one jail-a-thons in the state brought pledges of $328,600.

Three Named To Chair Annual Bike-a-Thons

The central regional office of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital announced this week the names of three Floyd county residents who have agreed to chair the St. Jude's annual fund-raising Bike-a-Thon in their respective communities.

They include: Mrs. Bertha Tackett for Beaver; Mrs. Revia Smith, Stanville; and Mrs. Wilda Hubbard in Auxier.

St. Jude Children's Research Hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas. The institution opened its doors to the public in 1962 to combat catastrophic diseases which afflict our children. St. Jude Hospital is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory, and provides total medical care to over 4,200 patients.

At St. Jude, scientists and physicians are working side by side seeking not only a better means of treatment, but also the causes, cures and prevention of these terrible killers.

All findings and information gained at the hospital are shared freely with doctors and hospitals all over the world. Thanks to St. Jude's, children who have leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, sickle cell anemia, and other child killing diseases now have a better chance to live.

The Bike-a-Thon program is dedicated to "Jaime". Jaime is from Ohio and was diagnosed with leukemia in May of 1983, and began treatment at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital. Today, her cancer is in remission and she is doing quite well. Jaime is a living example of the progress and success of the research, patient care, and educational programs of this internationally recognized hospital.

TOGETHER WE CAN:

- *Put Floyd County on a sound financial basis
- *Improve and repair our roads and streets.
- *Provide an effective snow removal program for our roads and streets.
- *Improve county garbage service and clean up roadside dumps.
- *Implement a successful drug and alcohol abuse program.
- *Aid and support county, city and volunteer fire service.
- *Help maintain the Eastern Ky. animal shelter.
- *Provide support for recreational activities for our youth and senior citizens.
- *Extend sewer lines and reduce contamination of our streams.
- *Provide summer jobs to young people.
- *Hold down taxes that hurt our senior citizens.
- *Be sure that the largest magisterial district—with the most people who pay the most county taxes—gets its fair share of county funds and services.

Help Heart Fund Drive

Residents of Mountain Manor recently participated in the annual "Rock N' Roll Jamboree" to raise money for the American Heart Association. Residents enjoyed rocking in rocking chairs, and rolling wheel chairs throughout the day to raise money for the event. Various entertainment was provided. Pictured above are Lincoln Gilbert and Edna Milton.

Mountain Manor would like to thank all those who contributed funds, and helped to make the event a success. A total amount of $306 was raised this year.

Recent Highlands Drive Draws 25 Blood Donors

Twenty-five persons donated blood at Highlands Regional Medical Center, March 24, at the blood drive sponsored by Central Kentucky Blood Center and Highlands Regional Medical Center.

The following dates have been scheduled for upcoming blood drives: April 3, Allen Central High School; May 2, McDowell High School.

The following people took the time to try to share their good health by donating blood at Highlands Regional Medical Center's blood drive:

Donald Willis, Dianna Ward, Jerri Ward, Delina Slone, Keith Gloor, Pearl Goble, Billy Taylor, Tammy Morris, Kurt Pickering, Rebecca Lewis, Cassie Justice, Sherry Clay, Harrison Horn, Twana Meek, Connie Ford, Billie Goble, Beulah Price, Alex Killim, Duane Perdue, Alecia Hamilton, Myra Gillispie, Herry Stengrud, Eunice Hall, Toni Briggs, Tammy Salisbury, Ramona Ratliff.

HRMC Accredited

Highlands Regional Medical Center has again received the maximum accreditation available from the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Hospitals. The JCAH decision reflects the national organization's belief that Highlands Regional meets or exceeds the group's high standards of operation, according to HRMC Administrator Clarence C. Traum.

"This award is evidence of our continuing efforts to provide quality services to our community," Traum said. "While we continue to reinvest financial resources in the hospital and the area, we also strive to meet national standards for performance."

This JCAH accreditation is for a period of three years, now the maximum period possible. HRMC's last accreditation was also for the maximum period, which was then two years.

The decision to try to meet the commission's standards and apply for accreditation is a voluntary one on the part of the hospital. The process involves an on-site inspection by JCAH surveyors, who evaluate the quality of care provided by the facility as well as the environment in which that care is provided. The survey team, which includes health care professionals, bases its evaluations on standards which are, in turn, based on a consensus of national health care professionals.

Food Prices Drop Two Months In Row

Retail food prices in Kentucky dropped in March for the second month in a row reducing the average cost of 40 selected food items by .7 of 1 percent.

The decline brought the marketbasket index down to $60.03, compared to $60.43 last month and $60.2 in January. The findings were part of Kentucky Farm Bureau's monthly food price survey, conducted by the organization since 1979 as a service to consumers.

Three of the six food groupings in the survey showed price increases during March, including pork, poultry and fruits/vegetables, while beef, dairy products and grain-based foods declined.

Beef cuts showed the sharpest price decline of better than 4 percent, while dairy items fell 1.4 percent and grain-based foods dropped just over 1 percent.

Poultry and pork registered modest price hikes of 1.5 and .4 of 1 percent respectively. Fruits and vegetables were nearly 3 percent higher.

Shoppers looking for bargains could choose to visit the supermarket beef section, the survey found. Rib-eye steaks were 15 cents cheaper for the month at $4.65 a pound, T-bones dropped 25 cents to $3.48, and sirloin roast checked in at $2.53 a pound, 16 cents below last month's level.

Other items showing marked price drops were butter, down 15 cents at $2.22 a pound, ice cream, 15 cents lower at $1.59 a half-gallon, and Idaho potatoes, 14 cents down at $2.36 for a 10-pound bag.

On the up side, cheddar cheese cost 15 cents more a pound, at $2.74, and tomatoes had climbed to an average 99 cents a pound, 14 cents higher than the February figure. Bacon and sausage were 8 and 10 cents higher for their respective packages.

Morehead registered the lowest local marketbasket cost in March with Hazard checking in at the high end of the scale. Overall, volunteer surveyors working through Farm Bureau Women canvassed food prices in 27 Kentucky communities.

The local marketbasket averages are Morehead, 51.87; Campbellsville, 56.46; Richmond, 56.50; Scottsville, 56.81; Hopkinsville, 57.11; Tompkinsville, 57.17; Greenville, 58.10; Glasgow, 58.30; Georgetown, 58.84; Salyersville, 58.94.

Greensburg, 59.03; Elizabethtown, 59.66; Somerset, 60.14; Lexington, 60.23; Grayson, 60.39; Greenup, 60.71; Shelbyville, 61.55; Brandenburg, 61.82; London, 62.01; Owensboro, 62.09; Henderson, 62.64; Louisville, 63.28; Dry Ridge, 63.29; Jackson, 63.82; Falmouth, 64.80; Danville, 65.91; and Hazard, 65.99.

Farm prices showed a relatively strong correlation with the March marketbasket survey of retail food prices. Kentucky Farm Bureau market analyst Jeff Hall says beef cattle prices have fallen sharply in recent days, while hogs continue in a price holding pattern and grains reflect large worldwide supply conditions by wallowing at very low levels.

Hall says the cattle situation could be misleading, as farmers are selling breeding stock on the slaughter market, boosting current beef supplies and putting a damper on prices. That type of herd liquidation, however, could cause a price rebound at the retail level, he notes, possibly as early as next month.

The Department of Agriculture's farm price index released March 5, was more than 6 percent below the year-ago level. In comparison with the March 1984 report, Kentucky farmers are receiving lower prices for corn and soybeans, about the same prices for cattle and hogs, and higher prices for wheat and milk.

Official Observes Veteran Teacher at Work

A.J. Crider, science teacher at Prestonsburg High School, and his students were the subjects recently of a day-long scrutiny by Robert Spillman, associate superintendent for local services, Kentucky Department of Education—and Spillman was impressed.

"I was impressed," he said, "with the students, with their level of understanding of what was very technical subject matter."

Spillman commended Principal Robert May on the "discipline and orderliness" of the school and Supt. Grigsby for his leadership and dedication. He noted especially the efforts of Principal May, who oversees a detention hall every day after school.

With 29 years in the classroom, Mr. Crider said he was not at all anxious about being observed by an official of Spillman's rank.

Old Faithful is getting tired. Yellowstone's famous geyser, which has spouted every 69 minutes for almost a century, now makes visitors wait as long as 100 minutes between eruptions, reports National Wildlife magazine. An earthquake is partly to blame, say scientists, but so are tourists who persist in dropping objects into the geyser, thus reducing its water supply.

Bach's 300th Birthday Rates Special On KET

For Mozart, he was the man "from whom one can finally learn!" Brahms considered him his "daily bread and butter" and Debussy saw in his music "the most perfect purity of musical lines."

The man who influenced so many musical greats was Johann Sebastian Bach, the 18th century genius whose inventive works changed the course of music for all time.

"The Well-Tempered Bach with Peter Ustinov," airing Wednesday, April 24, at 9:00 p.m. (ET), on KET, is a two-hour special commemorating the 300th birthday of the Baroque composer. The special examines the music and life of this musical giant.

Hosted by well-known actor Peter Ustinov, a Bach expert in his own right, the two-hour special traces the life of the great composer to examine his influence on the course of musical history. Ustinov talks about Bach's schooling, his various jobs, and his rich family life, revealing many little-known facts about the composer.

"The Well-Tempered Bach" is rich with the sounds of Bach's music. Representing the wide range and versatility of the master's work, religious as well as secular, are excerpts from the "Brandenburg Concerto No. 3," and the "Violin Concerto in E Major." Additionally, there are several of Bach's most-loved organ and vocal compositions, works such as the "Tocatta and Fugue in D-Minor for Organ" and the "St. Matthew Passion."

This program was produced by the Wisconsin Educational Television Network, Oregon Public Broadcasting and Deutsche Welle/TransTel.

... about your Social Security

31,000 Get Social Security

By JIM KELLY
Social Security District Director
More than 31,000 people in the Big Sandy area receive Social Security benefits, and many are retired workers and their dependents; however, Social Security provides much more than just a retirement plan for you before you reach retirement.

Monthly Social Security checks can go to you and your dependents when you retire or are severely disabled and to your survivors should you die. You can get retirement checks if you retire as early as age 62, you can get disability checks if you become severely disabled before age 65. Under the law, you are considered disabled if you have a severe physical or mental condition that prevents you from working, and that has lasted, or is expected to last, for at least 12 months or is expected to result in death.

If you die, checks can be sent each month to certain surviving members of your family. In addition, a lump-sum payment of $255 can be made when a worker dies; however, the payment can only be made if you are survived by an eligible widow, widower, or entitled child.

Eligibility for, and the amount of, Social Security benefits depend on work credits earned in Social Security-covered employment.

These credits are expressed in quarters of coverage. In 1985, you earn one quarter of coverage for each $410 of earnings you have in covered employment or self-employment; however, you can earn no more than four quarters of coverage in a year.

Rice: A Food for All Seasons

By JACK DENTON SCOTT

When we toss a handful of good-luck rice at newlyweds, we're gracing them with one of the world's most important and versatile foods. Besides feeding more than half of the earth's people, those white grains elegantly enhance anything from apples to zucchini. Rice converts even a simple stew into haute cuisine and can cover the entire dining scene: appetizer, soup, salad, side dish, varied main course, dessert—it even supplies us with beer and wine. Superb extender, economical and nutritious, rice tastily expands expensive food and also gives fresh personality to leftovers.

Exactly what is this prolific and palatable grain? Rice (Oryza sativa) is a cereal, a member of the grass family. Growing on a slender stalk two to four feet high, it came originally from wild plants found in Asia. Some archeologists believe that it was first cultivated at least 7000 years ago. Pelting newlyweds with rice originated in China or India—as a fertility rite to grant young couples many children, and prosperity from an abundant harvest.

For a long time in the United States, we probably threw more rice at weddings than we ate. Today, however, 84 percent of our households have rice on hand most of the time, and the per-capita consumption is almost 14 pounds per year.

In addition to the U.S., rice has devotees all over the world. The Italians have made their risottos minor masterpieces. Spain's paella, containing seafood, sausage and chicken, is a traditional dish. The French riz pilafs, the Middle East's pilaus and India's pulaus are classics served with all kinds of meat, poultry and seafood. Indonesians set a whole table with rice and assorted goodies that go with the grain; the feast is called rijsttafel.

Chinese and Japanese go all out for the pearly grain, to the extent that in both languages the word for a meal is rice. Chinese parents admonish their children to eat all of a serving of rice. According to Chinese folklore, each uneaten grain of rice will put a pockmark on the face of a future husband or wife.

A popular Japanese rice dish could be equated with our hot dog or hamburger, since it can be made into a sort of a sandwich. Sushi, cold rice flavored with sweet rice vinegar, is often rolled with raw fish, vegetables or omelet strips and wrapped in seaweed.

Some American rice eaters rank right up there with Orientals. Included in most dishes in Louisiana, rice is eaten three times a day in some rural areas. Creoles in that state create poetry with rice, their gumbos and jambalaya making seafood memorable. It is said that Louisiana's Cajuns can look at a field of growing rice and rattle off the exact number of gallons of gravy needed to serve with that amount of rice when cooked.

But it was the frugal Orientals who first realized the many benefits of rice. Each pound of white rice triples in size when cooked, making 14 half-cup servings. The same amount of potatoes serves only six. Uncooked, rice needs no refrigeration, stores on a shelf almost indefinitely in a sealed container, and doesn't spoil, sprout, shrivel, or lose nutritional value.

Today, with so many of us "eating light," rice desserts can be a big hit, especially in a variety of featherlight custards and puddings for which it is the main ingredient. Although rice is basically a complex carbohydrate, its protein contains all eight of the essential amino acids and also complements the amino acids found in many other foods. Low in sodium and fat, with no cholesterol or gluten, it is a boon to the weight-conscious and those allergic to other grains. It is also low in fiber and easily digested. With nutritionists stressing the need for complex carbohydrates today, rice is way up at the top: one-half cup of cooked rice furnishes 82 calories of energy, enough for a person to walk for 26 minutes.

Most of the white rice we buy in the supermarket is enriched, which means, besides its other assets, it is supplemented with iron, niacin and thiamine. But most of these added nutrients are lost if rice is washed before cooking or drained afterward. Brown rice, with its healthful bran layers, contains all these nutrients naturally, plus fiber, oil and vitamin E.

That same brown rice saved countless lives when doctors discovered that a syrup made from the bran removed in milling white rice cured infants dying of beriberi. Later, scientists identified the life-giving substance in rice bran and called it thiamine, or vitamin B-1.

Perhaps the Chinese, who have known rice for so many centuries, praise it best. "Grain upon grain," wrote Ming Dynasty poet Yang Ji, "fresh and delightful as frost/a dazzling jewel/to what can I compare this treasure?"

Extension Advisory Council Meets

The 28-member State Extension Advisory Council met March 6-7 in Lexington for its annual meeting with officials of the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service.

The advisory council, consisting of two delegates from each of the state's 14 Extension areas, is the statewide liaison and support group for programs and activities sponsored by the College of Agriculture and the Cooperative Extension Service.

The group heard reports from administration personnel and toured the College of Agriculture facilities the first day of the two-day session.

On the second day, the group held discussions on the state budgetary process, and shared news of Extension programs from each area.

"We try to make the advisory council as knowledgeable as we can about the total spectrum of Extension programs and activities," said Randall Burchett, assistant director of UK's Cooperative Extension Service. "They are users of Extension services who also are willing to work to continue strong educational programs."

The advisory council represents the top liaison level for about 10,000 lay leaders and Extension supporters across the state working in areas of agriculture, home economics, 4-H and community development, Barnett said.

"Through a network of county advisory councils, area councils and the state council they can feed information about their needs and problems to us, and we can easily send information and suggestions back," Barnett said. "It has proven very beneficial to us to have these community leaders working to further our mutual goals."

When they visit the information department and see the volume of material on a wide variety of subjects being distributed across the state through Extension programs, they are more articulate in discussing Extension programs Barnett said.

The Extension Advisory Council also elected officers to serve during the coming year.

Dan Hardaway, of Meade County, was elected president with Gary Miller of Greenup County and Sheila Hardy of Fayette County elected vice president and secretary respectively.

The Daughters of the American Revolution urge all Americans to display their loyalty, dedication and patriotism in their daily lives. All are asked to observe February as American History Month by flying the flag of the United States of America and by renewing their pledge to Old Glory, which says, "I pledge allegiance to the flag of the United States of America, and to the Republic for which it stands: one Nation under God, indivisible, with liberty and justice for all."

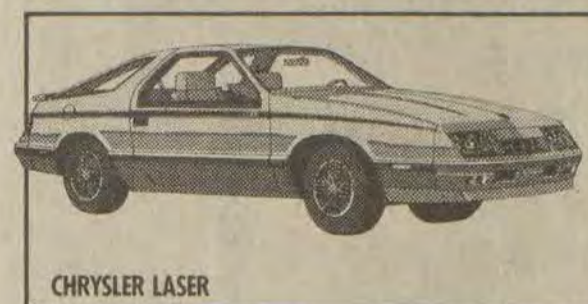

The biggest complaint against some politicians in Floyd county—is that after they win their election and get in office—they sit down in their chair, put their feet up on the desk and wait four years until the next election. Then—they come out of "hibernation"—STRIKE A LICK OR TWO—and loudly say "look what a good boy am I." MOST of our roads in District One haven't seen a NEW GRAVEL or an OLD GRADER in 3½ years. If you have had enough of this kind of "bull and baloney", now's your chance to do something about it—change it with your vote. Vote for new leadership! Vote for service to the people! Vote to get something done! Vote for Bill Ray Collins for a full time working Magistrate in District One.

Wins State Contest

Miss Ruth Danette Gullett, a junior at Wheelwright High School, has won first place in the 1985 state journalism contest. Her essay, "The Employment of the Handicapped," has a special significance for Miss Gullett, whose father lost an arm and a leg in an electrical accident. Her sponsor, Mrs. Delores Woody, and her parents have been invited to an annual awards luncheon in Louisville as guests of the Kentucky Committee on the Employment of the Handicapped. She has also won a $200 U.S. Savings Bond and an all-expense-paid trip to the annual meeting of the President's Committee on the Employment of the Handicapped in Washington, D.C. She will be accompanied to Washington by her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Gullett, of Bypro.

Students To Compete In New Poster Contest

The Attorney General's office and the Governor's Consumer Advisory Council are sponsoring a poster contest for school children in honor of Consumer Education Week in Kentucky, April 22-28.

Last year's poster contest drew almost 1,000 entries from children across the state. This year, the theme is "Consumers Should Know," and "the posters should reflect that theme," Atty. Gen. David Armstrong said.

The contest is open to elementary, middle and high school students, with a prize to be awarded in each of these classifications. Each contestant should place on the back of the poster his or her name and address, name of school and location, and grade. Unfortunately, because of the cost, posters will not be returned to students.

The winners of the contest, their parents and art teachers, will be invited to attend a "Morning in Frankfort" on April 23 including a special ceremony to honor the winners in the Rotunda of the Capital at 10:30 a.m., to be followed by lunch with Armstrong and the members of the Consumer Advisory Council.

Interested students should send their entries to the Office of the Attorney General, Consumer Protection Division, 209 St. Clair Street, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

Blood Drive Scheduled Today at Allen Central

Allen Central High School's Beta Club and the Central Kentucky Blood Center have scheduled a blood drive for today (Wednesday) at the high school gym from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. A blood donation will be an efficient use of your human resource. For more information, call Mr. Dingus or Mrs. Osborne at 358-9543.

In 20-Year Period...

U.S. Spent $1 Billion-Plus On State Deprived Students

More than $1 billion has been granted to Kentucky over the past 20 years in federal funds for the education of economically and educationally deprived children, the Kentucky Department of Education reports.

The 20th anniversary of that program, now known as Chapter 1, is being observed in April.

The late U.S. Rep. Carl D. Perkins, D-Hindman, was largely responsible for the federal legislation that provided the funds, the Elementary and Secondary Education Act of 1965. The enabling provision, then known as Title I, was signed into law on April 11, 1965.

"Chapter I has had a major impact upon the disadvantaged children of Kentucky," Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald said.

In a joint resolution of the Kentucky Department of Education and the State Board of Education, McDonald and board Chairman James Ratcliffe expressed "deep gratitude for the efforts of the late Congressman Perkins in support of the Chapter I program."

The resolution further reaffirms the state's commitment to the educational benefits conferred in the past by Chapter I and those to be conferred in the future to disadvantaged children in Kentucky and the rest of the nation.

The funds supplement instruction primarily in reading and math. The latest figures from the Department of Education show that 98,214 Kentucky children were served by Chapter I funds in 1984.

The Department of Education estimates that 2 million Kentucky children have been served by the program in the 20 years it has been in effect.

The program serves children enrolled in both public and non-public schools. Moneys can be used in any grade level, from kindergarten through high school, said Joanne Brooks, director of the department's Division of Compensatory Education.

"Generally, the local districts choose to apply the greater portion of their allotted funds to the lower grade levels, where it can have maximum impact," she said.

Each district is free to spend the money in whatever way it feels will best improve the academic performance of needy children.

The Department of Education estimates that more than 90 percent of Chapter 1 money is spent to pay the salaries of school personnel. In 1984, for example, 1,636 teachers were paid from Chapter 1 funds.

Other school personnel provided totally or in part through Chapter 1 include aides, curriculum specialists, librarians, counselors, psychologists, social workers and nurses.

Chapter 1 money also buys special materials needed by the teachers of students identified as being educationally deprived. Books of high interest to such students and at appropriate reading levels are also bought from Chapter 1 funds.

Of America's 421 million acres of productive farmland, nearly 40 percent of the cropland is losing soil to erosion faster than Mother Nature can replace it.

A number of activities have been planned to celebrate the 20th anniversary of Chapter 1. Gov. Martha Layne Collins has proclaimed the week of April 7 through 13 as Chapter 1 Compensatory Education Week.

The State Board of Education's resolution honoring Chapter 1 will be one of many honors noted in a national celebration of the anniversary to take place in Washington, D.C., in April.

The Kentucky Department of Education plans to hold an open house to honor the program and to recognize legislators who played a role in enacting the legislation.

Kentucky Fishing Report

Frankfort, Ky., March 25—Typical early spring weather and slowly climbing water temperatures have combined to produce mixed fishing conditions throughout the state during the March 23-24 period covered by this report. The lake-by-lake rundown, as reported by conservation officers at each lake, is as follows:

KENTUCKY: Officer Gerald Alexander reported light fishing activity for crappie in 6-8 feet of water over stumps and brush. Light to moderate fishing activity for bass was also reported with some big fish being taken on spinnerbaits, crankbaits and plastic worms over rocky points and stump beds in 5-10 feet of water. Clear to murky, stable, five feet below summer pool and 53°.

BARREN: Officer John Sawyers reported heavy fishing activity. Bass were being caught by casting crankbaits and jig and pork rind combinations over all types of bank cover. Crappie activity was also heavy with small-sized fish being taken in 10 feet of water over stump beds off the main channel. A few white bass were caught in the tailwaters on jigs and spinners. Clear to murky, rising, 21 feet below summer pool and 54°.

NOLIN: Moderate fishing activity was reported by officer Sammy Renfro. Crappie were being taken over stickups in 10-12 feet of water. Bass were being caught throughout the lake on crankbaits over points and stickups. Light fishing activity was reported in the tailwaters with anglers catching crappie, bass and bluegill. Clear, rising, 15 feet below summer pool and 55°.

ROUGH RIVER: Officer Harold Belt reported light fishing activity with crappie being caught throughout the lake and in tailwaters. In the old river channel crappie were being caught from the banks on jigs, and in the main lake on minnows over stickups, stumps and submerged treetops in 6-8 feet of water. Murky, 20 feet below summer pool.

TAYLORSVILLE: Officer John Wells reported moderate fishing activity. Bass were being caught on jigs and crankbaits in 2-14 feet of water over all types of cover. Crappie were being caught in 10 feet of water over stickups and brush along the shore and in submerged creek channels. Murky, stable, one foot below summer pool and 47°.

HERRINGTON: Light to moderate fishing activity was reported by officer Charles Goode. Bass were being caught in the shallow headwaters and river channel by still fishing live night-crawlers, and crappie were being caught in 10-12 feet of water in the central section of the lake. Clear to murky, stable, five feet below summer pool and 52°.

GREEN RIVER: Officer Buddy Loy reported moderate to heavy fishing activity with crappie being caught in brush and over dropoffs in 5-7 feet of water. Some crappie up to two pounds are being taken. Bass were being taken on jigs and crankbaits from dropoffs, with some smallmouth caught off gravel flats on small orange or chartreuse crankbaits. Crappie were also being caught in the tailwaters on minnows and jigs. Murky to clear, rising slowly, 10 feet below summer pool and 50°.

CUMBERLAND: Light to moderate fishing activity was reported by officers Randy Wilson and Fred York. Crappie were being caught in 4-12 feet of water on small minnows over submerged treetops and brush in headwater flats. White bass were being taken in the heads of embayments on jigs and spinners. Black bass were being caught casting crankbaits on points and spinner baits and jigs over shallow flats. Discharge volumes below the dam hampered fishing for trout in the tailwaters. Clear, stable, 10 feet below summer pool and 47°.

DALE HOLLOW: Officer Marvin Edwards reported light to moderate fishing activity. Bass were being taken by casting and drift fishing large minnows off deep rocky points and channel dropoffs. Crappie were being taken on small minnows and jigs over submerged treetops in 10-12 feet of water, and bluegill were being caught in 4-8 feet of water in tributaries on worms. Clear, stable, three feet below summer pool and 49°.

LAUREL: Light fishing activity was reported by officer Ken Mobley. Rainbow trout were being caught by trolling shallow running shiner pattern crankbaits in the main lake. Bass were being caught on jigs off points in 8-12 feet of water. The lake was reported clear, stable, two feet below summer pool and 50°.

CAVE RUN: Officer Mike Gilliam reported very light fishing activity. Bass were being caught by anglers casting and flipping jig and rind combinations on banks near deep channels. In the upper lake and in timbered embayments muskies were being taken on crankbaits in flats near dropoffs. The lake was murky to muddy, stable, five feet below summer pool and 43°.

BUCKHORN: Light fishing activity was reported by officer Billy Joe Napier. Crappie were being caught still fishing minnows and casting jigs in 5-10 feet of water over stickups and treetops. Black bass were being caught by jigging live nightcrawlers over stump beds. In the headwaters, crappie and white bass were being taken by casting jigs and spinners. The lake was murky, stable at 28 feet below summer pool and 50°.

GRAYSON: Officer Jeff Adams reported light fishing activity. Crappie were being caught in 6-8 feet of water over brush stickups. Bass were being taken by casting rocky points and shoreline stumps with crankbaits. The tailwater activity was light due to heavy discharge. The lake was murky, rising slowly, seven feet below summer pool and 50°.

DEWEY: Officer Dalton Conley reported light fishing activity. Crappie were being taken over cover in five feet of water and in the tailwaters, casting jigs and still fishing with minnows. The lake was stable, muddy, five feet below summer pool and 48°.

FISHTRAP: Light fishing activity was reported by officer Don Bevins. Crappie were being taken in 4-5 feet of water over brush stickups. Channel catfish were being caught on cut bait and liver. In the tailwaters, crappie and trout fishing activity was light due to heavy discharge. The lake was reported muddy, stable, 32 feet below summer pool and 50°.

CARILLON, GIFT TO CHURCH HERE AS MEMORIAL TO LATE RESIDENTS

The new Schulmerich Carillon at the First United Methodist Church on Arnold Avenue was officially dedicated and accepted during the Sunday morning service, March 31.

Eight weeks ago the sound of the Westminster Chimes and the striking of the hours of the day between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m. were first heard in downtown Prestonsburg. In addition, hymns are heard at noon and 5:30 p.m. each Monday through Saturday. On Sundays the peal of bells is heard announcing Sunday School between 9:30 and 9:45 a.m., followed by a Call-to-Worship at 10:45 a.m. Bells are also heard on Sunday and Wednesday evenings calling worshippers to the Sunday evening service and midweek prayer service. A lively peal of bells is available for weddings and other joyous occasions, as well as a tolling bell.

The carillon is a musical instrument of bells. It is made up of a set of chromatically tuned bells, the most beautiful percussive sounds created by man, according to the manufacturer, Schulmerich Carillons, Inc., pioneers in electro-mechanical bells. The company, through experimentation and testing, produce perfect bell tones in miniature. Through specialized electrical equipment, these minute vibrations are amplified to the magnitude of bronze tower bells. Four stentor horns are mounted in the bell tower of the church to carry the sound over Prestonsburg. The carillon has been provided to the First United Methodist Church as a memorial to Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Bradbury, who resided at 101 Maple Avenue for 17 years and both of whom have passed away within the past 18 months. This gift was provided by Mr. and Mrs. Raymond A. Bradbury, of Prestonsburg, Mr. and Mrs. John I. Bradbury, of Rancho Palos Verdes, Calif., and Mrs. Florence Bradbury, of Sparta, Illinois who is the wife of the late Arthur Bradbury's brother, Harry W. Bradbury, also deceased. In addition, memorial gifts from many friends of Mr. and Mrs. Bradbury were used in providing the memorial.

Participating in the dedication service Sunday morning were Dr. Lowell Langefeld, minister, Raymond A. Bradbury, who made the presentation, and Barkley Sturgill, who, as chairman of the Administrative Board, accepted the memorial on behalf of the church. Also participating in the dedication service were Mrs. Raymond Bradbury, her parents, Mr. and Mrs. D. Earl Blackburn, and Mrs. Barbara Heslin, of Stone Mountain, Ga., the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Bradbury.

Raymond Bradbury has stated that he hopes the residents and businesses of Prestonsburg enjoy the carillon bells and hymns played each day as a remembrance of Gertrude and Arthur Bradbury.

HOMEMAKERS MEET

The East Point Homemakers held their regular monthly meeting, March 26, at the home of Mrs. Gayle Gastin. The president, Mrs. Betsy Baldrige, presided. Those present answered the roll call by giving the names of their favorite catalogs. Future workshops are to be on "Covered Albums and Scrapbooks," and "Cutwork," on April 26. Supplies will be needed for these, and those wishing to attend should register prior to that time. It was announced that Laura Bonsteel, of Southern Living magazine, will present a "Quilting" workshop sometime in June.

The forthcoming Cultural Arts camp was discussed, and Mrs. Pitts said that those planning to attend should register by April 15. She also said that there would be an "Upholstery" workshop at camp on May 21-22. One representative from each county is to attend this event.

Mrs. Leatha Kendrick gave the lesson on "The Advantages and Disadvantages of Catalog Shopping." She supplied club members with many copies of interesting and unusual catalogs.

The hostess, Mrs. Bastin, served refreshments to Betsy Baldrige, Dorothy Harris, Sue Burchett, Nola McNicol, Sharon Watkins, Leatha Kendrick, Frances Pitts, Lyda Carol Kendrick, Jeremy and Telah Watkins and Adam Bastin.

The next meeting is to be held at 12:30 p.m. April 23, with Mrs. Arnita Snavelly as hostess.

Ambulance Policy Raises Questions Following Meeting

When the Prestonsburg City Council elected to continue the city's ambulance policy at last Monday's council meeting, the action seemed a routine piece of business. But word of the move apparently spread along the "grapevine," causing concern and consternation among some residents.

The city's policy states that in the event the city must respond to an emergency, the ambulance company within the city limits (in this case, P. & B.) would be called unless otherwise requested by the persons in need of ambulance service.

Apparently some thought that the council's decision denied their right to choose which area ambulance service they preferred. If they were injured they would be transported by P. & B. and that was it. Others voiced objection that the move discriminated against other ambulance services.

Councilman Bill R. Collins this week stressed that the policy allowed first for the individual involved to choose in what manner and by whom they be transported and that the primary purpose of establishing a policy in the first place was simply to specify one ambulance service, in this case, the only one within the city limits, in the event that no other was requested.

"We can't start leafing through the phone book if we're in doubt about how someone seriously hurt should be taken to the hospital," Councilman Collins explained. "The city is simply choosing to call the one ambulance service within the city, the one that pays city taxes, to make the run, but only if no other one is requested by the person who's injured."

Collins said the first move of the city in an emergency involving injury is to dispatch Squad 6, a specially trained and equipped emergency response unit, "and they'll beat any ambulance service to the scene every time." After Emergency Medical Technicians administer first-aid and make an evaluation of the injuries, an ambulance is called if the patient needs transportation to a hospital.

"It's just a continuation of a basic city policy that's been in effect for two-and-a-half years," Collins explained.

MEETING HELD

A meeting-training session will be held at 6 p.m., April 12 at the Drift Woman's Club "for persons interested in improving the quality of life for the nursing home residents in the Big Sandy area, and may want to become volunteer ombudsmen." Interested persons are asked to call Taunya Shelton, district ombudsman, at 886-9402. The program is sponsored by the Big Sandy Area Development District and volunteers in this area.

Cow Creek Area Homemakers Meet

The Cow Creek Homemakers held their March meeting of the Community Building and Fire Dept. on March 19, with the following members in attendance: Molly Hamilton, Virginia Goble, Kathleen Setser, Dotty Lafferty, Frances Pitts, Mary Zemo, Hester Leslie, Ina Jo Lafferty, Louise Carey, Sally Goble and Imogene Caldwell. Most of the ladies worked on twilling. Sally Goble and Imogene Caldwell were the hostesses. The next meeting will be April 16 and all members are urged to attend.

TO THE PEOPLE OF DISTRICT 2:

ELECT

JAMES E. SLONE

Democrat for
MAGISTRATE, DIST. 2

I believe there's enough work needed on our roads to keep every piece of equipment busy eight hours every day.

Most of our roads on which the school buses travel are in deplorable condition. This is inexcusable.

When I am elected I will introduce a proposal before the fiscal court to blacktop every road where the school buses travel for the safety of our children.

I believe enough funds are available, that if properly used, no child would have to walk out of a hollow to catch the school bus.

LET'S BE STRONG VOTE FOR SLONE

Expeditions Attract Research Volunteers

Want to map shipwrecks off Majorca, dig for Stone Age artifacts in Swaziland or birdwatch on the Galapagos Island? They're not your usual two-weeks-in-the-sun vacation.

Earthwatch Expeditions, according to an article in the April Reader's Digest, offers people with special interests the thrill of exotic locales—and the possibility of a tax deduction for volunteering their time and services to scientific research.

Some 13,000 volunteers, ranging in age from 16 to 82, have enlisted in Earthwatch projects. Expeditions last from ten days to four weeks, and the volunteers work side-by-side with experts.

"Earthwatch appeals to the American volunteer spirit," says Brian A. Rosborough, president of the 16,000-member organization. "It's a little like Tom Sawyer. He made painting a fence fun and got his friends to help. We make science research a challenge and ask the public to support it with money and manpower."

Scientists submit proposals to Earthwatch, which evaluates them for their scientific value and potential for public participation. Volunteers usually do not need special skills, although some of the projects require a certain amount of stamina. One regular said, "I want to roam through the wild and rub shoulders with the experts. When I do that, I experience something I don't get by being a tourist. I experience the triumph of adventure."

Free Booklet Gives Facts On Kentucky

Who was Kentucky's first governor? Where did Lincoln county get its name? When was Abraham Lincoln born—and where? The answers to these and other questions of historical significance, can be found in the Kentucky Information Packet that is offered by the Kentucky Historical Society.

The booklet contains information about Kentucky's capitols, famous Kentuckians, important dates in Kentucky's history, and a brief history of the Old State Arsenal and Kentucky Military History Museum. Also included is a complete list of Kentucky's governors as well as a list of all 120 counties, their origins and dates of formation.

This packet is prepared for persons who wish to know more about Kentucky and its history. Students have used this material in preparing their annual Kentucky scrapbooks, and teachers have found it helpful in preparing their teaching unit on Kentucky.

A copy may be obtained without charge by writing to the Kentucky Historical Society, Box H, Frankfort, Ky. 40602; Attention: Helen Prewitt.

"AH, COME ON JAMES"

Most of us Floyd Countians have become accustomed to extraordinary promises and claims by candidates for public office. But, James, last week when you inferred that if you were County Judge we'd probably be getting the General Motors Plant where they're going to build that new Saturn car, that took the cake. If you've been reading the newspapers that I've been reading General Motors allowed some of the Governors of the States to come and talk to them on invitation only and I haven't heard of any other county in the State of Kentucky that was allowed to make a presentation. Surely you know this, which can only mean that you think we don't.

If this campaign is going to be meaningful for the people, then some of you ambitious office seekers are going to have to use a little self restraint. We've been used to being promised the moon but we just can't stand being promised Saturn too.

Sincerely,
EUGENE HALL
Banner, Ky.

Singsational Servants Well-Received

Standing, left to right—M. Meade, J. Justice, D. Maynard, K. Goble, M. Daniels, S. West; sitting—J. Fugate, A. Branham, A. Meade, E. Clevinger, J.P. Skeens, B. Branham, and A. Fugate.

The message is loud and clear: "Children can be servants of the Lord." The kids from Vogel-Day Methodist Church are good examples. They sang their praises for approximately 150 people at the Prestonsburg Community Methodist Church Sunday night, March 24. Their musical, "Singsational Servants," was well received. As the last song was sung, tears were seen—little ones sad because the music was ending, and grownups touched by the message. This children's musical involves several characters: Psalty, the Singing Songbook (Misty Daniels); Songmobile Kids (Ashley and Brad Branham, April and Matt Meade, Joshua and Andy Fugate, J.P. Skeens, and Elizabeth Clevinger); Churchmouse Choir (Staci and Kristi Goble, Christal Woods, Dawn Maynard, Jeana Justice, Matt Mayor and Brian White); Risky Rat (Kristi Goble); and Charity Churchmouse (Sabrina West).

Martin County Court Votes Salary Cuts

(From The Martin Countian, March 27)
 They played political hardball Wednesday at a special session of the Martin County Fiscal Court: John Boone Stepp tossed a fastball; Gene Sisco threw a curve; and John Callahan hit a sacrifice fly.

When the game was over, county magistrates limped off the field with a 50 percent salary cut, and at least three county office-holders faced 30 percent cuts. The pay reductions will take effect Jan. 1, 1986.

Stepp, District 1 magistrate, started the salary-cutting frenzy earlier this month by proposing that magistrates' salaries be reduced by more than half from $804 monthly, plus expenses, to $400. Wednesday he puts his idea in the form of a motion.

Tomahawk magistrate Sisco objected. "I fail to see how those cuts would generate that much money," Sisco said. "I can't see starting from the bottom (with salary cuts)."

Instead, the court should "cut across the board," he said. "That would generate real bucks."

Stepp defended his proposal, saying, "The complaint I hear (from voters) is that magistrates' salaries are too high."

James Kerr, Middlefork magistrate, said he supported Stepp's proposal because the estimated $24,000 annual savings it would generate could be used to raise the salaries of county road workers.

"I promised them boys at the garage a raise," Kerr said.

The vote on Stepp's motion split the court. Stepp and Kerr supported it. Sisco and Earl Harmon, District 4 magistrate, voted no. Hody Ward, Warfield magistrate, was absent.

County Judge-Executive John B. Callahan broke the deadlock and passed the salary-cut proposal.

KET Looks at Life In Ancient Egypt

Who were the people of ancient Egypt? On a given day, what were the activities of an Egyptian craftsman, king or slave? "Ancient Lives," a four-part documentary series premiering on KET Sunday, April 21, at 10 p.m. (ET), explores the tombs and village ruins of Egypt and examines the life styles and the personalities of the individuals of this mysterious society.

Narrated by noted Egyptologist John Romer, each episode of "Ancient Lives" focuses upon the lives and work habits of Egyptians who lived more than 3,000 years ago. Romer tells of their quarrels and rivalries, marriages and deaths, and the effects of floods, pillage and war.

"Ancient Lives" introduces the village of Deir El Medina, home for the thousands of craftsmen who made the royal tombs in the Valley of the Kings. Among the sites the series visits are Tutankhamun's tomb and his gold mask in the Cairo Museum; the great temple of Medinet Habu, where the murals are so fresh they could have been painted yesterday; and the tombs of Kha in Turin which are filled not with gold, but with the everyday objects of an ordinary Egyptian.

"Ancient Lives" is a production of Central Independent Television and is presented by WTTW/Chicago.

Probe Shows Few State Residents Doubled on Stamps

A year-long investigation launched by the U.S. Department of Agriculture found only eight Kentuckians who collected food stamps in more than one southeastern state for the same month, Cabinet for Human Resources officials announced today. The eight individuals identified illegally obtained food stamps worth approximately $3,700.

The investigation computer matched the Social Security numbers of Kentucky food stamp recipients with Social Security numbers of recipients in seven other states to find duplication.

Other states participating in the interstate match with Kentucky included Alabama, Florida, Georgia, Mississippi, North Carolina, South Carolina, and Tennessee. The Florida Division of Public Assistance Fraud conducted the match of more than three million entries and gave each state a list of its food stamp recipients who appeared on other states' rolls.

Kentucky's list contained 430 unverified matches. When the investigation was begun last April, the Department of Agriculture's Food and Nutrition Service estimated that one-fifth, or 86, of the matches would prove to be cases of actual duplication after the matches were verified to eliminate factors such as clerical errors.

Cabinet for Human Resources Secretary Al Austin said he was pleased with the results of the investigation. "It's gratifying to me to know that so few Kentuckians are defrauding the government by obtaining food stamps in more than one state at the same time," Austin stated.

The eight individuals identified as violating the rule of dual participation in the Food Stamp Program had obtained food stamps in Alabama, Florida, Georgia and Tennessee while also receiving them in Kentucky.

The cabinet will begin administrative proceedings to recover benefits issued erroneously.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Warning Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

The following nine symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations are often the forerunners or more serious conditions. Any one of these may spell back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals may indicate your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will likely become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these warning signals, call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Calves Must Have Brucellosis Vaccine

The Kentucky Board of Agriculture has adopted administrative regulations which impose upon Kentucky cattle producers a mandatory program of calfhood vaccination against brucellosis.

Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell pointed out that for the time being, the program is being paid for by Kentucky government, so that there is no cost to farmers who see to it that their heifer calves between four and 10 months are vaccinated on the farm. The Legislature in 1984 appropriated about $400,000 for each year of the 1984-86 biennium for the project. The Federal government has withdrawn from funding the program.

"There is no guarantee that funding of this program will continue, and it is to the Kentucky livestock producers' advantage that this program be utilized. On the farm, the vaccinations cost the Kentucky farmer nothing. If they wait until the animals reach the stockyard, they'll have to pay and the animals may be too old, and therefore lose a great deal in value," Commissioner Boswell said.

He cited a growing number of states with which Kentucky producers do cattle business adopting regulations requiring brucellosis vaccinations for animals entering their markets. "Illinois is the most recent state of about 23 that now require the vaccinations," Commissioner Boswell said. "We ship about 50,000 heifer calves to Illinois, and they require that Kentucky farmers begin a program of vaccination for all animals born after July 1, 1985, in order for them to continue to ship cattle to Illinois. To fail to do that would severely damage our marketing capacity."

The requirement touches all heifer calves born after July 1, 1985, and four months of age or older, either entering the Commonwealth for feeding or breeding, purchased at a Kentucky livestock market and scheduled to be returned to a Kentucky farm, or such animals which change ownership.

The vaccinations must occur between the ages of four and 10 months and be accompanied by a vaccination tattoo in the ear and an official vaccination ear-tag, or in the case of registered cattle, by an ID tattoo. The vaccination must be administered by a licensed, accredited veterinarian or an authorized representative of the Kentucky Department of Agriculture.

The vaccinations must be reported to the department, and, in the case of on-farm vaccinations during the foreseeable future, the costs of the veterinarian's trip and the vaccine will be borne by existing funds appropriated for that purpose, administered by the Department of Agriculture.

Commissioner Boswell noted that representatives of every segment of the Kentucky beef cattle industry have pledged their support of the mandatory vaccination program during meetings held on the issue in recent weeks. "Kentucky must take all necessary steps to eradicate brucellosis in its cattle herds," he said. "We have made significant progress in recent years, from 500 herds down to all but 100 herds certified brucellosis free."

He said that Kentucky is now classified as a Class B state where brucellosis sanitation is concerned. "It is very possible that we can attain Class A status over the next couple of years with this mandatory program," the Commissioner added.

Floyd County Receives Local Records Grant

Floyd County Clerk Carla R. Boyd has received a $6,293 grant from the Dept. for Libraries and Archives' Local Records Program. The funds will be used for document preservation, security microfilming and reproduction in the county clerk's office.

The Local Records Program, authorized by the 1984 General Assembly, is designed to improve the management and protection of Kentucky's vital local records. The Dept. for Libraries and Archives, through the local records staff of its Public Records Division, will coordinate a program of direct services and grants for records assistance to city and county governments across the state.

Thirty-one counties and eighteen cities received $370,656 in funds from the second cycle of grant awards. Funds available to local governments will be awarded several times during the fiscal year. Grants recipients from the next cycle will be announced in July.

To Give Food Vouchers And Shelter Assistance

Selected for Seminar

Johnny Isaac, son of Russell and Frieda Isaac, of Wheelwright, and a sophomore at Wheelwright High School, has been selected to represent his school at the Hugh O'Brian Kentucky Youth Leadership Seminar in Lexington, June 7-9. The seminar will be on the campus of Transylvania University and he will be a guest of the university. He will be one of 217 outstanding sophomores selected by their respective faculties for the leadership seminars.

The Hugh O'Brian Youth Foundation (HOBY) was established in 1958 to seek out, recognize, and reward leadership potential of high school sophomores.

At the conclusion of the State Seminar, one boy and one girl will be chosen to represent the state in a week-long, all-expense-paid International Leadership seminar in Los Angeles, California, August 9-17.

Isaac is an honor student, enrolled in the College Preparatory program. He is a member of the football, basketball and golf teams.

TWO MEN FINED $1,085.00
Lawrence Williams, of West Liberty, and Jack Baisden, Jr., of Verdunville, W. Va., were arrested last Dec. 22 for buying furs without a non-resident license and failure to issue receipts for fur purchases. Both men appeared before District Judge John Gardner, Paintsville, and pleaded guilty. Baisden was fined a total of $692.50 and Williams $392.50. Twenty-three furs were seized in the case and were declared contraband by Judge Gardner and ordered to be turned over to the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

OWENS FOR MAGISTRATE DISTRICT 2 NUMBER 3 ON THE BALLOT

MY PLANS FOR BETTER ROADS AT A CHEAPER PRICE

In order to maintain secondary roads in District 2, a good base is needed along with good ditch lines. My plan to upgrade more roads in Dist. 2 at a cheaper cost is a simple one—by using shot rock, red dog, creek sand and gravel. I will use these materials, shot rock, red dog, creek sand and gravel, that I can obtain in different areas of Dist. 2, so that the trucks can haul more loads per day by having a short, local haul, and cut down truck expenses at the same time, instead of running from one end of the district to the other and not getting many loads per day.

After we have a good base we will then use our gravel for the top coat. With a solid road, the gravel will go further and not sink out of sight as we have seen happen in the past.

As Magistrate of Dist. 2, I will give the PEOPLE back a VOICE in this county office by staying in contact with all CIVIC ORGANIZATIONS, as well as the COMMITTEE MEN, COMMITTEE WOMEN, and CHAIRMEN of EACH precinct and, of course, ALL THE TAXPAYERS of Dist. 2.

AS MAGISTRATE I WILL FILL THE POTHOLE NOT MY POCKETS.

To Chair Bike-a-Thons
At Harold, McDowell

The Central Regional Office of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital announced today that the following individuals in Floyd county have agreed to chair the 1985 Bike-A-Tons in their communities.

Mr. Paul Gearheart for Harold and Mrs. Cheryl Hall for McDowell will each chair separate Bike-a-Thons this spring. St. Jude Children's Research Hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas. The institution opened its doors to the public in 1962 to combat catastrophic diseases which afflict our children. St. Jude Hospital is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory, and provides medical care to over 4,200 patients.

All findings and information gained at the hospital are shared freely with doctors and hospitals all over the world. Thanks to St. Jude's, children who have leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, sickle cell anemia, and other child killing diseases now have a better chance to live.

Funds raised in the events this spring will help assure the continuation of the work at St. Jude Children's Research Hospital.

On All-State Team

Ryan Hamilton, seven-year-old second grader at McDowell Grade School, was named to the all tournament team in the Junior Pro Training League state basketball tournament held at Madisonville, March 15, 16, and 17. There were 17 teams from across the state competing for the championship. The training league is made up of children from ages seven to 10 years old. The McDowell training League All-Stars made their first appearance in the state tournament in which they advanced to the quarter-finals before being defeated by Northern Ky.

Ryan is the son of Ricky and Owen Hamilton, of McDowell, and the grandson of Willis and Earlene Mathews, of Hi Hat, Pay Hamilton, of McDowell, and Dorothy DeRossett, of Prestonsburg.

At Mountain Laurel Showing in N.Y.

Governor Martha Layne Collins stopped by the Mountain Laurel booth at the Pier Crafts Show in New York last month to speak with Lynn Weddington Tucker, owner, who is a former resident of Prestonsburg. The show, attended by some 20,000 buyers, displayed a variety of crafts made in Kentucky. Among the new accounts opened by Mountain Laurel at the show is the historic Sturbridge Village Museum Gift Shop in Massachusetts.

Thank You, John James Audubon!

By LES LINE, Editor of Audubon
If John James Audubon could be here for his 200th birthday on April 26, he'd no doubt be amazed at the strength and breadth of the conservation movement he unconsciously helped to spawn. Audubon himself was no conservationist. There seemed little need for such sentiments during his lifetime, the years between the American Revolution and the Civil War when our wildlife and other natural treasures seemed inexhaustible. And in the eyes of Audubon's in-laws, some of whom had been his partners and creditors in failed business ventures, John James wasn't good for much at all.

"He neglects his material interests," said one, "and is forever wasting his time, hunting, drawing and stuffing birds, and playing the fiddle. We fear he will never be fit for any practical purpose on the face of the earth."

What Audubon did do exceedingly well was to roam the wilds of North America from Florida to Newfoundland, identifying, observing, collecting and drawing the birds of this continent. Whether his subject was a bald eagle or ruby throated hummingbird, Audubon painted them life size. Most important, he was the first wildlife artist to portray birds as living, breathing creatures, and to show them as dynamic and dramatic components of a larger environment.

In so doing, Audubon made millions of Americans aware of birds and of the wonder and beauty of nature. Through his paintings and his lively written descriptions of bird behavior, he sparked a latent interest in America's wild heritage. It is not surprising that, three decades after his death, the fledgling bird-protection movement took his name as its own.

"Audubon's greatest contribution was fostering awareness," says ornithologist Roger Tory Peterson. "Awareness inevitably leads to concern." There are perhaps 20 million birdwatchers in the United States today, ranging from the casual kitchen-window observer with a backyard bird-feeder to the zealot who will travel to Patagonia for a rare sighting. If Roger Peterson is the father of this modern birding boom, as many believe, then J.J. Audubon must be the grand-daddy.

"Birds are a vivid expression of life," explains Peterson, "and because of their high rate of metabolism and furious pace of living they reflect change in the environment rather quickly. Birds are indicators of environmental quality—an ecological litmus that sends out warnings when things are out of kilter."

Which may also explain why so many birdwatchers, from Teddy Roosevelt to Rachel Carson, have spearheaded the environmental movement. Were Audubon present at his 200th birthday party, his response to present-day America would probably be a mixture of distress and joy. He would cry, I think, at the loss of so much of his beloved wilderness and the marvelous wildlife that was integral to it. But he could only be heartened by the legions of nature lovers who are fighting to preserve what remains of our natural beauty and biological diversity, who are even striving to make amends for man's previous mismanagement by restoring endangered species like the California condor and the whooping crane.

Love of nature is an indispensable ally of the conservation movement, and John James Audubon did much to spread this love. Today, as a consequence, an environmental ethic is ingrained in our national consciousness. Audubon's namesake organization, founded to protect birds from market hunters and egg collectors, now numbers more than half a million members. Together with many other citizen conservation groups, the National Audubon Society has broadened its mission to include the protection of all life-animal, plant and human—and the air, land and water on which all life depends.

Happy birthday, John James Audubon—and our heartfelt thanks to you for neglecting your material interests!

Round up the kids and head to Lake Cumberland State Resort Park for a Pioneer Weekend April 12-13. After getting settled into the lodge, visitors can watch a slide program about Lake Cumberland, Friday night. Step back in time to simpler days as you view plants and animals along Lake-Bluff nature trail. Saturday afternoon promises a wagon-load of fun with craft demonstrations sponsored by Berea College and a display of pioneer and Indian weapons. Visitors can even learn the history and methods of building flintlock and black powder rifles.

At the end of a long day, gather around the table for some tasty vittles, including buffalo meat. After dinner, a guest speaker will tell how Kentucky was settled. There is no registration fee or deadline. For more information, call the park in Jamestown at (502) 343-3111.

Committee Recommends Support For Children

"We fear for our children, for we find ourselves fixed upon a course that is leading Kentucky to an inevitable rendezvous with disaster. The gradual decay in the services provided our troubled children is eroding the social fabric of this state."

These comments were made by Lieutenant Governor Steven L. Beshear, chairman of the Protective Services Advisory Committee, as he formally submitted a report, entitled "Kentucky Children: A Critical Moment", making recommendations of this group to the Governor.

The Committee, created on November 13, 1984, was charged by Governor Martha Layne Collins with taking an in-depth look at the state's current system of care for dependent, neglected and abused children.

The Committee's primary recommendation was for additional social workers. "We believe that an essential first step to reform of the system is to provide additional funding so that social workers will have smaller caseloads," Beshear said.

"In fact, all of the Committee's other recommendations are predicated on the addition of sufficient qualified and trained social workers and paraprofessionals," Beshear added. He stated, "These proposals are geared toward a sweeping and fundamental reform of our protective services system."

Since 1980, children's needs have increased dramatically while massive funding reductions were made, causing children to become one of Kentucky's most neglected assets. Between 1980 and 1984, Kentucky's Department for Social Services lost in excess of $18 million in both federal and state funding. In addition, 141 social work positions and 152 paraprofessional positions were abolished during this time.

At the same time that funds and personnel were decreasing, the number of child abuse and neglect reports doubled from 15,668 to 32,713. The number of reported cases of sexual abuse increased from 671 to 2,126, and the number of children in state custody in foster care increased from 2,595 to 2,825.

The Committee has asked Governor Collins to extend the life of this group so that they may meet periodically to review the progress that is being made on the recommendations proposed. The Committee felt strongly that the work of this group is not over and, in fact, may be just beginning.

Huntin' & Fishin'

By DOUG HENSLEY
7th District Commissioner

Dept. of Fish & Wildlife Resources
Because of the results of our last hunter survey, there will be some changes in Kentucky's 1985 hunting seasons. The first change is that squirrel season will begin on September 14. This change was requested by the majority of sportsmen in Kentucky, because many suckling squirrels were destroyed when adult female squirrels were killed during the early season. Hopefully, we'll begin to find more squirrels in the future because of this change.

Deer season will also begin later this year. Gun season will begin on November 9. Archery season will start on October 1 and run through December 31. Archers will have to follow the gun regulations if they bow hunt during gun season. In the counties that have a ten-day season muzzle-loaders will be allowed a special season on November 19th and 20th. Deer hunters should pay close attention to the new deer regulations obtained when they purchase their 1985 deer tags.

The Knott County mass deer stocking has been completed and only time will tell whether it is to be a success.

At our last commission meeting Clay county was chosen to be the next mass deer stocking site. Because of the great acceptance by the people of Eastern Kentucky, the commission felt that the Department of Fish and Wildlife should keep the deer coming.

Clay county will be closed to deer hunting until the stocking is completed. This will cause us to temporarily go back to a deer drawing on the Red Bird Wildlife Management area. The open hunt worked well last year, but it was felt that with Clay county closed, a lot of hunting pressure would be put on Red Bird.

Because deer and turkeys were stocked in the Paintsville Lake Wildlife Management Area, the entire area will be temporarily closed to all hunting and dog training, with the exception of a two-week small game season beginning the third Thursday in November. It was felt that this regulation would enhance the chances of Paintsville Lake W.M.A. becoming a productive hunting area in the future.

With more and more wildlife being stocked in Eastern Kentucky, our wild and stray dog problem looms even greater. Three of our tracking collared deer from the Knott county stocking have been killed by dogs. We must pursue the feasibility of working with our county governments to establish dog pounds and hire dog wardens in all our counties.

Curtis Hughes and the Eastern Kentucky Wildlife Federation have taken over the Floyd county dog pound and are doing an excellent job in operating this facility. Naturally, it takes money to operate a dog pound and I'm sure any donations or help would be greatly appreciated.

Sportsmen, the dog problem will not go away, just by talking about it. Now's the time for action. I believe one of the best things sportsmen, clubs, or citizens can do to benefit the wildlife program is to help in any way to get dog pounds established in their prospective counties.

Congratulations to a Leslie countian, Paul Wells, who caught a 14-pound large mouth bass in Florida. I guess that one will go on the wall.

Our trout stocking program will begin in April. Now's the time to get out the fishing gear and get the frying pan ready. Oh, yes, don't forget to take the wife and kids when you go fishing. You may find that they'll enjoy fishing as much as the "ole pro".

The time is nearing to get those 5th and 6th graders enrolled in Conservation Camp for the summer. The Department of Fish and Wildlife has excellent camp facilities and instructors. The kids will have a great time and will learn a great deal about conservation education. Our newest addition to the conservation education staff is Phillip Glass. He is a very capable individual and I'm sure will do an excellent job training our kids in the 7th district.

With the help of Jim Maggard, our state representative from Jackson, we should see improvements on our launching ramp at Pan Bowl Lake in the very near future. I also understand that Jim is going to introduce some legislation that will help curb our poaching problems. Thanks, and keep up the good work, Jim.

Turkey season is fast approaching, and I understand that a turkey seminar will be held in the fiscal courtroom April 18 in Whitesburg. Charlie Burleson will be conducting this seminar and I'm sure a lot of tips on how to trick that big gobbler will be presented.

A lot of clubs are beginning to get cranked up in the 7th district. With the help of Jeff Preston, Johnson county officer, and Kenny Goforth, Martin county officer, we've organized very productive sportsmen's meetings in Johnson and Martin counties. A lot of sportsmen and clubs are signing up with the League of Kentucky Sportsmen. We need all our counties to get enthused about the probability of having a viable fish and wildlife resource in Eastern Kentucky.

Remember, Sportsmen, if our children are to enjoy the pleasures we've had hunting and fishing, we're going to have to put forth an extra effort to protect and promote our fish and wildlife resources.

If anyone has any questions or comments, please feel free to write or call Doug Hensley, Box 775, Hazard, Ky., or 606/439-1703 during the day or 606/436-2526 at night.

Courses At PCC

The Prestonsburg Community College Korean Karate Club will hold on Sunday, April 28, its third belt promotion tests since the club was started last year. The tests will be administered by Grand Master Hyun ok Shin, a 9th degree black belt in Tae Kwon Do, from Floral Park, New York.

Registration for beginners is now open and the first class meeting will be at 6 p.m., Tuesday, May 7, at Prestonsburg Community College. Tae Kwon Do or Korean Karate is taught by Jeff Weddle, 1st degree black belt. This is a class in self defense and character development for people ages 10 and above. Tae Kwon Do improves flexibility, concentration and stamina while building self confidence and self defense techniques.

Tuesday, April 16, 7-9 p.m. at Prestonsburg Community College is Beginning Photography Part II. This class is offered to those who have had a basic photography class. The purpose of the class was to continue each photography student in the development of his or her individual style. The emphasis will be placed on actual picture taking rather than how to perform basic mechanics.

Aerobic Walking is a class designed for those who are interested in developing and maintaining cardio vascular fitness. The medical profession recognizes that the heart and peripheral vascular system are responsible for delivering oxygen and nutrients for muscular working periods of intense and repeated exercise and increases the ability of the heart and vascular system to work more efficiently.

The class will meet five days a week for ten weeks. Each participant is encouraged to participate three days out of the five each week. An aerobic walking program using cumulative point system developed by Dr. Kenneth H. Cooper will follow a brief warm up with exercises. A book will be available for purchase entitled "Aerobics", by Dr. Kenneth H. Cooper. The program is open to people including young people and adults ages 16 and older.

The third session of Driver's Education for Adults, taught by John Noakes, will begin Wednesday, April 3, 6 p.m., in room 103 of the Martin Student Center. The purpose of the driver education course is to prepare adults to take the driving examination for their operator's license. The first meeting will be a classroom orientation and the instructor will arrange six hours of instruction behind the wheel.

For more information on these classes or to register, call Juanita Ratliff 886-3863, ext. 215.

The chemical that killed more than 2,000 people near a Union Carbide plant in Bhopal, India—methylisocyanate—is not regulated as a hazardous air pollutant in the United States, reports International Wildlife magazine, even though it is manufactured here.

Revised Law Hits Uninsured Drivers

Motorists convicted without liability insurance are facing tougher sentences in Kentucky courts.

The state's revised vehicle insurance law became effective January 1, but many of the arrests made in the first month are just coming to trial.

Under the new law, a motorist caught driving without insurance will lose his operator's license for six months and pay a fine of at least $500.

That's the bare minimum for sentencing, the state's judges were reminded in a recent letter from Bill Wilhoite, director of driver licensing in the state transportation cabinet.

According to Wilhoite's letter, those convicted of driving without insurance will lose their operator's license for six months, guaranteed.

If the driver has one other conviction of driving without insurance, then the driving privilege will be suspended for a year. A two-year suspension will be given if the record reflects two prior insurance convictions.

Before the new law, motorists caught driving without insurance were generally fined less than $500, depending on whether an accident had occurred.

After the six-month wait, motorists who lose their license must apply for reinstatement by submitting a $30 fee and successfully passing the required tests.

Wilhoite said in the memorandum that the Department of Insurance will notify the Division of Vehicle Licensing to notify the Vehicle Licensing of all insurance cancellations and non-renewals.

MAGISTRATE DISTRICT NO. 2

TO ALL FLOYD COUNTIANS IN MAGISTERIAL DISTRICT NO. 2:

It has come to my attention that the people (Voters) of District No. 2 not only want a change, but desire to be a part of the movement that will make this change of direction a reality.

The important role of the office of Magistrate is that of being able to execute managerial responsibility with your (Tax-payers) monies.

I stand on the promise that I will be a voice for you and your concerns. Far too many promises have been made that never had the slightest possibility of ever being fulfilled. I think it is time that people be treated with a fairness to all that will make them proud of their county and community again.

It is truly in my prayers that each Voter in District No. 2 ask yourself this question, "What can I do to make a change?" The answer is simple. You must get out and exercise your right to vote; Vote for a man that will stand up for you and not to glorify himself. That man is Dr. R. D. Marshall. If what I have said is not so, then that is my problem and I alone will have to answer some day for it. Believe what I say my Friends, that I do STAND FOR A CHANGE IN A NEW DIRECTION, with your help.

Wildlife Federation Offers Back-To-Nature Vacations

Thinking about summer vacations? Youngsters and families can join the National Wildlife Federation for a vacation of outdoor activities—excitement and adventure that will give children and adults an appreciation of the natural environment and the out-of-doors.

This summer, the Federation is offering several chances to enjoy a back-to-nature vacation in some of North America's most scenic natural areas: Nova Scotia, the Blue Ridge Mountains in North Carolina, and the Rocky Mountains in Colorado.

Children and teens from ages 9 to 17 will have a great outdoor camp experience at Ranger Rick Wildlife Camp, in the Blue Ridge Mountains near Hendersonville, North Carolina.

Adults and families will discover the wonders of nature at Summit Vacations in Nova Scotia, the Blue Ridge Mountains and the Rocky Mountains.

Ranger Rick Wildlife Camp is an exciting blend of adventures, songs, campfire stories, swimming, boating, fishing and more. It's a unique nature discovery program, carefully planned and supervised to develop the love of nature as campers explore such topics as birds, lakes and streams, plants and energy.

While nature is the main focus at Wildlife Camp, children will also develop basic outdoor living skills and enjoy a host of activities, from beginning mountain climbing to photography and archery.

New this year is a special adventure session for teens. In the Pisgah National Forest, participants will backpack, master outdoor living skills and sharpen environmental understanding through wildlife habitat investigations. The adventure climaxes with a raft trip on the French Broad River.

Summit Vacations offer families and adults the wonders of nature in breathtaking and comfortable locations. Adults can arrange their own schedule of daytime activities from more than two dozen workshops, seminars, field trips and outings. They range from pre-dawn field trips to observing game in the Colorado high country or an ocean ecology cruise in Nova Scotia.

Meanwhile, teenagers and children enjoy challenging programs such as cooperative games, hiking and backpacking. Mid-afternoon through evening, events and activities such as square dances, outdoor game festivals and wildlife slide programs are planned for families.

For more information about Wildlife Camp or Summits, write to Summits and Camps, Dept. CS-85, National Wildlife Federation, 1412 16th St., NW, Washington, DC 20036, or call (703) 790-4363.

Magoffin Approves Work for Prisoners

(From The Salyersville Independent, March 27)

The Magoffin County Fiscal Court met in special session Wednesday night and gave approval to starting a work program for prisoners in the local jail.

The program will be set up primarily for persons convicted of drunk driving who are given the option of doing community service rather than serving jail time. It will be up to the discretion of District Judge C. Graham Martin to offer offenders such a choice.

"It's better for someone to go out and work for five days (as part of community service) rather than have the taxpayers feed him for 30 days in the jail," according to Estill Honeycutt, a representative of Kentucky River Community Care who explained the program to court members. Honeycutt supervises the work program in Knott County.

The much-publicized drunk driving law passed by the 1984 General Assembly and effective last July gives judges the right to sentence convicted first-time offenders to the work program. Honeycutt stated that in Knott County, Judge Martin will give offenders the option of several days of community work or a much longer stay in the county jail.

The community work can be done for the county or any other non-profit organization which qualifies.

Magistrates voted to assign the duties of supervising the work program to Alton McCarty, who is currently employed by the county as sanitation officer. His salary was adjusted accordingly.

Fiscal court members also asked Honeycutt and Claude Conley, also with the Community Care Program, to assist the county in obtaining grant funds to help operate the program.

Former Floyd Residents To Observe 65th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. R.L. May (Hattie and Bob), former Floyd county residents, now of Martin county, will observe their 65th wedding anniversary, April 6. Mr. May, who is retired, was employed by the Glo Coal Company for many years. He has been active in American Legion activities and is a member of the conservation board in Martin county.

Mr. May recently underwent surgery and is now recuperating at home. Both he and Mrs. May would enjoy hearing from friends in this county.

JUST A REMINDER

Carl Duff has not, and will not pull from the race, my campaign is just getting ready for the knock down, not a let down. The people in District 2 need help. I am the man who will see that you get help. I have not been hired by anyone just to run in this race as a vote splitter. Watch for later details in your paper. I have more tapes that will be played on your T.V. stations, KCTV 5, Martin, Ky., and WKYH 57, Hazard, Ky. The times will be in your paper. I am running this race so you can get help, not to make it worse than it is now.

VIDEO SCENE

'We are the World' has its joyous moments

By Barton Weiss

USA for Africa
 Any time you have a video with performances with mega-stars Bruce Springsteen, Cyndi Lauper, Michael Jackson, Diana Ross, Lionel Richie, Tina Turner, Huey Lewis, Ray Charles, Stevie Wonder, Hall and Oates, Kenny Rogers, Willie Nelson, Smokey Robinson, Billy Joel, Paul Simon, Steve Perry and even Bob Dylan, it most likely will be a memorable clip.

And indeed, USA for Africa's "We Are the World" is. It starts off with an animated shot of the earth that gives way to the autographs of the stars. The video builds with each voice sounding more pained than the last, until the tension is released when the group is assembled as a whole in a what looks and sounds like a gospel choir.

The highlights of the clip are a set of visual duets. The first, with a tall Kenny Rogers and a tiny Paul Simon is at first funny, but then it seems to tell us that when "we are the world" size doesn't matter. When Diana Ross and Michael Jackson sing together, it almost sounds and looks like a Pepsi commercial (and that's said without an ounce of disrespect). But the real joy is the Stevie Wonder and Bruce Springsteen scene that seems to embody the passion that video and record are striving for.

This video has to be compared to the Band Aid "Do They Know It's Christmas" video by our brothers across the sea. "We Are the World" is technically a smoother video and it's better constructed to pull at our emotions. But the Band Aid video was held together by immediacy.

With cynics taking potshots at this project, we have to remember that this video, in addition to raising money for this important cause, is also teaching some positive values to an MTV audience that often gets messages of another kind.

TV NOTES

On Sunday, April 7 MTV airs its British show, "The Tube." It's a good way to keep up with the new bands that often take a few months to catch on here. On Friday, April 12, USA Network's "Night Flight" features comedy in music videos. Among the acts whose clips will be shown are Weird Al Yankovic, Spitting Image, Ricky Dees and the Fat Boys.

Miss Liberty came to America by boat in 214 crates. She arrived in New York Harbor June 17, 1886 and was reconstructed on Bedloe's Island (now Liberty Island) over the following year. Dedication was October 28, 1886. On that date in 1966, the rededication of the completely restored Statue of Liberty will take place. Liberty Love Day contributions, made February 14 - Valentine's Day by the Daughters of the American Revolution and their friends, will provide a significant part of the cost of that restoration.

"Child Abuse in Kentucky: A Status Report"

(Part One of Four)
"Last year at least 14,337 Kentucky children were abused, neglected or both. What people don't realize is that, for most of these and probably hundreds of other Kentucky children, the acts of child abuse and lack of adequate care set in motion problems they will face for the rest of their lives."
In making that statement, Anna Grace Day, commissioner of Kentucky's Department for Social Services, emphasized two key points in understanding the child abuse problem in this state. "Most experts agree that the reported and confirmed cases of child abuse are only the tip of the iceberg," she said. "And we have to realize that catching and prosecuting child abusers isn't a final answer. We must be able to treat the victim and the abuser while simultaneously working to prevent other acts against more children."
Gov. Martha Layne Collins has designated April as Child Abuse Prevention Month in Kentucky in conjunction with a nationwide observance of the subject. And the Department for Social Services, under its mandate for services in child abuse cases, is working to increase Kentuckians' awareness of the "long-term" consequences of abuse and neglect.

"An abused child very often grows up to be an abusive adult," Day said. "When they become parents, they tend to respond to their children as they themselves were treated. Without some help these families can get caught up in a cycle of one generation of child abusers raising a new generations of abusers."
Margaret Frederick, manager of the department's Children's Services branch, said, "Extensive treatment is essential for both the abused or neglected child and the adult involved. Both face the possibility of recurring problems years after the act. Early treatment can help prepare the individual to better handle these problems."
In 1984 the department received 32,713 reports of Kentucky children being abused or neglected. While that is more than double the cases reported in 1980, the percentage of cases in which abuse or neglect is substantiated is virtually unchanged (45% in 1980, 44% in 1984).
"Public awareness, sparked by surging media attention, has undoubtedly increased the abuse reports we receive," said Frederick. "We have better trained staff in the field with better skills at getting past the denials and defenses within the troubled family. But we're still frustrated because, first of all, there are a lot of kids being abused we never know anything about. And we really don't have enough staff and treatment facilities to meet the needs of the children we do find."

According to Day, one problem facing those who combat child abuse are the differing views on family violence as the serious problem it is. "Of course there are varying degrees of abuse and neglect. No one should advocate locking the cell door and throwing away the key in child abuse cases," she said. "However, without the proper attention, a troubled family situation is only going to get worse. We are limited in the services and the staff we have available, but we can offer these families positive support now in order to avoid the future trauma of a broken home."
Day said, "There is a tremendous need in Kentucky for education on the full impact of child abuse, spouse abuse and other acts of family violence. The goal of that education must be to build support for increased treatment services to the abused. Without help, very few victims have the strength to overcome the abuse and not be found later somewhere else in the system, unable to deal with their lives, in trouble with the law and facing much more serious problems."
Day and Frederick urged anyone with genuine concerns about the health and welfare of a child to contact the Department for Social Services in their county. A toll-free telephone number is also available for reporting suspected cases of child abuse (1-800-752-6200). "We must depend on responsible Kentuckians to report suspected abuse. We can only help those children we know about and the same is true of the abusive adult who also needs our assistance," said Day. "Professional help with the problem today will almost always make a difference in how the individuals involved cope with this situation for the rest of their lives."
