In Fall on Rails

John Dee Mitchell, 29-year-old auto mechanic, was killed late Saturday night when struck by a train near his home at Dwale

The tragedy occurred about 11:15 p.m. and apparently resulted when Mitchell slipped and fell on the railway tracks in the path of an oncoming "shifter" composed of three locomotives. Coroner Roger Nelson, who joined state police in the investigation of Mitchell's death, said the train engineer said he saw the victim fall and attempt to rise. He said the train at that time was so near Mitchell that it could not be stopped in time to prevent hitting him.

The victim was a son of Bill and Lizzie Hamilton Mitchell, of Dwale. Besides his parents, he is survived by two children, John D. Mitchell, Jr. and Diane Mitchell, both of Dwale; four brothers, Kennel Mitchell, of Prestonsburg, Andy, Raymond and Keenis Mitchell, all of Dwale, and four sisters, Frances Adkins, Kingman, Ariz., Bonnie Lafferty, of Allen, Geneva Stanley, Clyde, O., and Bertha Hunter, of Dwale.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m. today (Wednesday) from the chapel of the Floyd Funeral Home, the Revs. David Garrett and Henry Crider officiating. Burial was in the Newsome cemetery on Mink Branch, near Printer.

County Attorney Says Armstrong Statement Due

An explanation is due from Attorney General David Armstrong, Floyd County Attorney Arnold Turner, Jr. said yesterday (Tuesday), as to why allegations of forgery against County Clerk Carla Boyd were never presented to the grand jury that indicted 16 people, including five county officials, last December

The fact that the 18-month state police investigation that led to the indictments also resulted in 174 allegations of forgery against Mrs. Boyd was revealed Tuesday in a news story by Lexington Herald-Leader reporter Lee Mueller.

According to the story, case records indicate that between 1980 and 1982. when Boyd was deputy clerk under her uncle, the late C. Ollie Robinson, she allegedly conspired with him to defraud the state and county of funds by typing fictitious receipts for truck registration payments. The state Transportation Cabinet last month asserted a $319,000 claim against Robinson's estate for registration fees it never received from the Floyd clerk's office.

Investigators said Boyd admitted typing the false receipts, sometimes at a rate of seven or eight a day, explaining that "it was her duty to do as she was instructed." The clerk's office was closed here Tuesday-"due to a death in an employee's family," according to a sign

County Attorney Turner, whose request in March, 1983 led to the state police probe of Floyd county finances, said he was "surprised, number one, that there is some substance, possibly,

Tiff over Boundary Lines Threatens Fire District

ed last week to derail a drive by Allenarea residents to establish a taxing district in support of their ailing fire

The dispute arose when Allen Fire Chief Roy Compton drew the perimeter of the proposed fire protection district at a radius of about five miles from the firehouse-the distance insurance companies have agreed to recognize as the limit of Allen's firefighting capacity.

The trouble is, the traditional boundary-which gives Allen jurisdiction over an area stretching to the limits of Betsy Layne's fire district in the south, Martin's in the west, and Prestonsburg's at Lancer-would encompass an area since claimed by the newlyformed and energetic Cow Creek volunteer fire department.

The Cow Creek firefighters, smartly turned out in their blue uniforms; showed up at a meeting in the Allen firehouse Thursday night to protest the plan.

Compton, insisting he wanted no friction between the two departments, initially agreed to accept Bill Woods' Grocery, on old U.S. 23, as the boundary between them. That would put Calf Creek and Emma, as well as Cow Creek, within the limits of Cow Creek's jurisdiction.

That suited Ralph Leslie, an Emma resident and a member of Cow Creek Fire Department. Cow Creek, with a sixinch main and fire hydrants installed with volunteer labor, has hopes of receiving a Class 8 rating from the Insurance Services Office (ISO). It could provide Emma with better service and without imposing a tax—which is "only a method for getting from people unwillingly what they won't give willingly"-Leslie argued.

But another delegation from Emma, for whom Okie Sparks did much of the talking, insisted they wanted to stay with Allen. Compared to Cow Creek's hopes for a favorable ISO evaluation, Allen's shaky Class 9 rating is at least a bird in the hand, they argued.

For some Beaver Creek and Prater Creek residents at Thursday's meeting, the question of precise boundaries was secondary to the need to set in motion the machinery that would establish a taxing district. That is the only way to provide a steady income for the Allen fire department—and to guarantee that homeowners will be able to get affordable insurance coverage—they argued.

Attorney Eric Hall counseled against circulating a petition before fixing a boundary, however, and the meeting decided to draw the line yet again. Within the pale are the communities of old and new Allen and Dwale. The proposed district takes in U.S. 23 as far

A squabble over boundaries threaten- south as Kentucky Machinery, Inc. and as far north as Rudd Equipment. Included also are Daniels Creek and Prater Creek as far as the grade school.

> Along new KY 80, Grayson Coal and Stone Co. would mark the western perimeter; the Lancer-Water Gap road would be included to the east. Beaver Creek would be encompassed as far as the Martin city limits, including Arkansas Creek to the mouth of Pickle Bean

> Along old U.S. 23 (KY 1428), the Emma bridge would form the dividing line, with Emma and the west bank of the Big Sandy included in Allen's jurisdiction, the east bank (including Cow and Calf Creek) in Cow Creek's territory.

> Emma residents can make their views known at a hearing on the proposed fire protection district to be scheduled by the Floyd fiscal court, Compton said. If a majority of the residents there want out, Allen will not try to hold them in against their will, he said.

> Cow Creek partisans, confident that the loyalty of Emma residents is with them, vowed to protest the inclusion of that section within Allen's bailiwick.

District Court Sentences Hit Drunk Drivers

District Judge Harold Stumbo turned down a request by a drunk driver Monday that he be sent to an alcoholic treatment program. In sentencing Donald R. Whitaker to 30 days' jail, Stumbo said. the law gave him no other choice. It was Whitaker's fourth drunk driving conviction, the third since a newer and tougher law took effect in Kentucky last July.

Police arrested Whitaker, 23, of Prestonsburg, at 1:15 a.m. on April 6 after he ran a stop sign on KY 3. As he entered a guilty plea Monday, Public Defender Sandra Simmons asked if her client could be referred to a treatment program at the Jackson Detention Center but the judge said the new law obliged him to send repeat DUI offenders to jail. He also ordered Whitaker to pay a $500

Austin Akers, 34, of Grethel, failed to appear in court to answer a drunk driving charge brought by Prestonsburg Police Sgt. Gerald Clark. Clark said Akers' car was weaving from side to side on KY 1428 at Lancer, around 1:30 a.m. on Feb. 15. The driver smelled of alcohol and failed a sobriety test, he said. Akers was convicted in his absence (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

This Town...That World

President Reagan must know more this week of the frustration that was Jimmy Carter's when American citizens were held hostage.

STAPLE ITEM

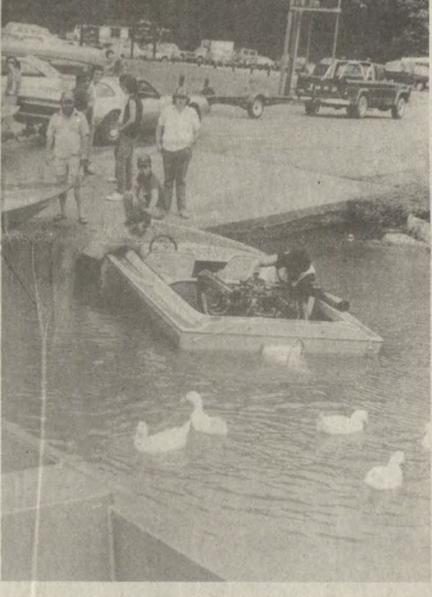

There was a time when I complained rather bitterly about the hand stapling machine and what it has done, physically and emotionally, to anybody who attempts to open his mail, as I do, without the help of a set of tweezers, or a screwdriver or, maybe, a stump-puller. Almost everybody for a while got into the stapling act, but I recall one instance, in particular.

This piece of mail arrived in a heavy manila, catalog-type envelope, the flap of which had first been securely sealed, then stapled, over and over again, clean across the flap. And after all thatkerwhack!—a staple had been driven in the middle of the envelope, to keep the sheet of paper inside from sliding around, I suppose.

But I must apologize for the show of temper occasioned by the staples. Only this week came a "missive" that not only was stapled but also taped across the

The Difference between Nightmare and Dream...

Barren Strip Mine Site Converted to Farmland

Before today's children have grown old, the Appalachian hills could be a cratered wasteland, providing a home only for the toughest and the pluckiest. Or they could be bountiful with pastures, supporting plump livestock and busy communities.

The difference between the nightmare and the dream, it was argued atop a Martin county mountain last week, depends to no small extent on the outcome of a massive undertaking there to transform a working stripmine into productive farmland.

Begun three years ago as a joint venture of the Martiki Coal Corporation and Morehead State University, the 15-year scheme has had from the start its skeptics as well as its boosters. But on this flawless spring day, as three tour buses disgorged guests in sight of a gently sloping pasture-waist high where it was still unharvested, studded with round bales where the mower had been-the boosters clearly felt they had the better of the argument.

Even as a mammoth dragline ripped up chunks of rock on a distant plateau and a procession of giant trucks carried the overburden away, 130 tons at a time, a herd of sleek Angus cattle grazed on pasture newly-coaxed from the rocky surface the mining operation has long since left behind.

In a series of steel and concrete sheds-identified as farrowing, gestation, nursery and finishing units-240 sows are systematically turning out 5000 market hogs a year. No common pigs, these, gulping down slops and wallowing in mud, but disciplined producers in a virtually germ-free environment, their daily regimen scientifically designed and computer printouts keeping track of each sow's breeding record.

The swine operation also yields 16 tons of manure a day-a circular boom spray could be seen spreading it on a nearby field-a critically-important by-product for an operation that rests essentially on the ability to produce soil on the barren plateaus left behind by the mining method aptly called mountaintop removal

A "high rise" laying house-with 80,000 hens in tiered pens on the upper story, the lower level a collecting area for their rich droppings—is set to begin operation in two weeks, producing eggs for market and 11 tons of fertilizer a day. Between them the swine and poultry operations will produce $250,000 worth of fertilizer a year-the key to restoring the topsoil on these 4000 exploited acres and reclaiming them, project managers say, at a rate of 200 acres a

Those for whom the mining industry in general, and Martiki in particular, have been anything but models of respect for the environment or concern for the wider community, skepticism about the current project—its long-term viability, its replicability over wide areas, its penchant for turning public funds into private profits-will die hard. And, in the otherwise inspirational speeches that followed a catered lunch under a yellow marquee, a note of defensiveness could be heard.

Mike Duncan, chairman of the MSU Board of Regents, hailed the project as one in which "no taxpayers' money' was invested. It was the result, he said, of the "largesse and foresightedness of a railroad company, a land company and a coal company.

If no one was putting a dollar figure on Morehead's contribution-the state university is responsible for running the whole operation-former Gov. Edward T. "Ned" Breathitt later told a group of reporters that Martiki Coal and Pocahontas Development Corp., the other partners in the scheme, were each

Endangerment Case Leaves Divided Jury

A Floyd Circuit Court jury was unable to reach a verdict yesterday (Tuesday) in the trial of Martin Shepherd on a charge of wanton endangerment.

After the jury deliberated unsuccessfully for four hours, with nine jurors said to be in favor of acquittal and three for conviction at that time, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley declared a mistrial shortly after 8 p.m.

Prosecutors had argued that Shepherd, 38, fired a shotgun into the home of Rady and Bonnie Davis on KY 850 near David, as the couple and their son were sitting on their front porch, around 9:15 p.m. last August 26. Shepherd claimed that he had spent that evening drinking and playing cards with friends.

Shepherd operated a stripmine on the nearby property of his father, Dewey Shepherd, when a dispute over royalties arose with the coal owner, Knott District Judge Graham Martin, and mining equipment was ordered removed from the site. The equipment was stored temporarily on the parking lot of Rady Davis' beer store, a circumstance that prosecutors suggested had provoked the younger Shepherd to shoot at Davis' material and using it to fill hollows at the base of the slopes, restoring a clogged stream channel, and revegetating the area. The safety of four families is reportedly being threatened by the Funds for the reclamation projects were awarded to Kentucky through the federal Office of Surface Mining under provisions of the 1977 Surface Mining Act and are used to repair damage done by mining operations before the landmark Act was passed.

An acquaintance remarked recently that he wished Mother's Day and Father's Day had been observed in his neighborhood while his parents were yet living, adding that it would have been a privilege to honor them on their special days. I maintained a discreet silence, although the temptation was strong to get a bit noble and remind him that one doesn't have to have a special time for honoring Mom and Dad.

Last Sunday's Father's Day was one of my best. I was remembered as usual, of course. But what made it especially pleasurable was the fact that nobody gave me a pair of pants that had to be

Thompson Gets Term In Bill Collector Case

A Harold man who drove a bill collector from his property received a jail term last week in Floyd district court. Orville Thompson, Jr. failed to appear to answer a charge by Donnie Allen, a collector for Kentucky Power Company, that Thompson menaced him with the butt end of a gun. He was sentenced to 30 days in jail-a bench warrant was issued for his arrest—and ordered to pay $157.50 in fine and court costs. Allen was said to have been threatened on March 26 as he tried to collect an unpaid electricity bill from Thompson. A power company spokeswoman said Thompson subsequently paid the bill. The company pressed the charge, however, as a means of protecting its employees, she said.

(Continued from Page One) to the rumors (of wrongdoing on Boyd's part) and, number two, that it wasn't presented to the grand jury.

"If they have any evidence that would have been sufficient in their judgment to win a verdict of guilt, it ought to have been presented," said Turner, who added that he intended to find out why it was not presented and whether a grand jury might yet get to review the evidence. "It seems peculiar if they have a signed admission but did not introduce it," the county attorney said.

'The bottom line is, only one man can explain it-Armstrong-and he needs to do it," Turner said. Armstrong failed to return a reporter's call Tuesday.

Phillip Damron, attorney for some of those indicted in December, told Mueller he was not surprised that the material was not submitted to the grand jury. Damron charged that the "special prosecutors had targeted specific individuals for prosecution while willfully omitting others" and that "the primary purpose of the original indictments was to influence the May elections. 'All I can say is that my request (for an investigation) was not politically motivated-it was made two years before the primary-but, as to how it was handled by the state police, the attorney-general or the commonwealth's attorney, I can't answer for them," Turner said in reply to Damron's But sources close to the state police investigation let him know, when the indictments were handed down in December, that they were "not totally happy with the way prosecutors had presented evidence to the grand jury, Turner said.

'This was one of the hardest investigations they ever worked in eastern Kentucky. They felt they had hundreds of counts, involving many other individuals (than those actually indicted), that could have resulted in indictments," said Turner, who added that he did not know if Boyd was one of those to whom the investigators were referring. "They felt they had a lot of information that didn't go anywhere.

In typical cases cited by investigators, an individual or firm registering a truck in the clerk's office might have paid a $200 fee and, months later, Boyd would type and sign a phony license receipt indicating they had paid only $50. The case against her was listed as closed on March 18, however, "due to a lack of prosecution.

In a development that he said was unrelated to the report of allegations against Boyd, Floyd Republican Chairman Ronald Frasure announced Tuesday that Ray Dempsey, Republican candidate for clerk in November's general election, had withdrawn on account of failing health and that the Republican executive committee will meet shortly to name another candidate.

Dempsey, a retired miner and preacher, lives at Weeksbury. He tendered his resignation a week ago, Frasure said. Asked whether he thought this week's revelations concerning Boyd enhanced the Republican candidate's chances in November, Frasure said, 'We think our overall chances are good regardless-but it certainly won't hurt.

DISTRICT REBEKAH MEET HELD, SATURDAY

The District 4 Rebekah meeting was held Saturday evening, June 15, at Inez, with Allison Rebekah Lodge No. 134, host lodge. Preceeding the meeting, a chicken and dumpling dinner was enjoyed. Members of the Inez Lodge opened the meeting, after which District President Mrs. Marge Thacker, of Pikeville, conducted the business of the District.

Those who were introduced and received special recognition were Mrs. Nell Thompson, of Louisa, the Rebekah Assembly president; Mrs. Frances Fraley, Inez, warden; Mrs. Wilma Castle, Paintsville, district deputy president; Mrs. Mary Zemo, assistant conductor, and Mrs. Mabel Jean LeMaster, past president; both of Prestonsburg.

Mrs. Thacker welcomed those in attendance and noted that the banner for most members present would go to Miriam No. 31, Prestonsburg.

District Deputy President Mrs. Wilma Castle conducted her school of instruction in the form of a trivial pursuit game.

The members were reminded that the next meeting would be for the nomination and election of district officers Saturday, September 21, at 6 p.m. at Pikeville.

Mrs. Thompson, the Assembly President, made a short talk, reporting on the annual picnic and homecoming held at Nolan Lake Youth Camp near Litchfield. She displayed a set of two paintings, which the Grand Lodge I.O.O.F. and Rebekah Assembly are offering for sale.

Those attending from Miriam Lodge were Mesdames Mabel Jean LeMaster, Theckley Sort, Maman Leslie, Mary Zemo, Rebecca Bingham, and Sue Moore.

LESSON ON PREJUDICE Michael Rosenberg, 15, of Middle

Creek, was one of 60 delegates to Kentucky's first Anytown USA, a weeklong experiment held at Leitchfield and designed to dismantle prejudice and build self-esteem among teenagers.

Kentucky Hospitality?

We had occasion to travel to London, Kentucky this past Sunday to pick up my granddaughter for a week's vacation. At the last toll station before arriving in London we stopped to use the restroom facilities. I found the door of the building locked and a sign on the door which read, "No Public Restroom"

We traveled on to London and picked up my granddaughter and on the way back home at the same toll station we asked why there was no restroom. We were told by the attendant that all the stations had received a letter from Frankfort advising them to close the restrooms to the public and lock the front door of the buildings. We traveled on to the next toll station and asked the same question and were given the same

Now, I should like to pose some questions to our Governor, our Department of Highways, and to our Department of

No. 1: How do you expect people to travel the Daniel Boone Parkway and other such parkways in our state where restroom facilities if not open at the toll stations must be found some place off the highway and sometimes at quite a distance?

No. 2: Are the restrooms on all the other toll roads in the state closed to the public, or are just we in Eastern Ken-tucky inconvenienced and discriminated against'

No. 3: How in the name of common sense can we induce tourists to come to our various parks when we have no public restrooms on our highways? It seems to me that would be the same as inviting someone to one's house but saving, "Please do come to see us, but you can't use our bathroom." This would be the ultimate in discourtesy. I am sending a copy of this letter to Frankfort to our Governor, as well as copies to the two named departments in state government and to our legislators. As a taxpayer as well as a tollpayer, I do not just ask, I demand an answer to the questions posed in this letter.

If there is anyone reading this letter who feels the same as I do, I ask that you please also get in touch with Frankfort. MRS. OTTO MARTIN,

In Appreciation

The Home Economics Department of Sheldon Clark High School would like to make a public thank-you to the Professionals of Highlands Regional Hospital. Recently, our students were treated to a very thorough and in-depth tour of their facility. The department heads and support staff were very cooperative and informative on the methods and techniques used in their respective fields. Too many times only the negative is publicized in our area. I feel that Highlands Regional has a sincere desire help the people in Eastern Kentucky, in the most positive of approaches. The professionals were warm and kind to our students, the future of Eastern Kentucky. To this we say, "thank you, Highlands.

Talented Students In Cultural Workshop

Forty talented students from Kentucky high schools will have the opportunity to work with successful artists, musicians and writers at the first Kentucky Humanities Institute, which opened Sunday at Transylvania University in Lexington.

The institute, which will continue through June 29, is being sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Education and Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald.

McDonald said the purpose of the institute was to expose participants to a variety of disciplines, including art, dance, architecture, drama, film, music, philosophy and writing, and encourage them to develop their creativity and thinking skills.

Workshop leaders will include author Mary E. Mebane, Kentucky writer Billy C. Clark and artist Sam Gilliam of Washington, D.C. The students will also see performances by Walden Theatre, directed by Nancy Niles Sexton, and the dance ensemble of the Youth Performing Arts School. Both groups are from

The program will include field trips in the Lexington area and to Louisville and Columbus, Ind.

Participants were selected on the basis of applications and recommendations from teachers and school ad-

Local Druther's To Test Seafood 'n Pasta Salad

Druther's International, Inc. has selected the Druther's at North Lake Drive in Prestonsburg, to test their newly-developed Seafood 'n Pasta Salad in this market.

The new salad is made with a blend of king crab and white fish, plus rotini, pea pods, cherry tomatoes, broccoli, and black olives.

Based on sales results from test markets, Druther's will consider introducing the Seafood 'n Pasta Salad chainwide.

Highways Dept. Asks Candidates To Help With Signs Cleanup

In a continuing effort to work with local communities on clean-up campaigns, the Department of Highways is asking candidates to remove their signs from the roadsides and right-of-way.

In a letter to candidates the Department said:

"The Department of Highways has had several calls and requests to remove the signs and campaign stickers; however, we feel you should have an opportunity to remove them yourselves as you may want to recover some of the materials. After the next 7 to 10 days we will be removing the remaining signs.'

Unemployment Overpayments To Draw Continued Reminders'

More than 22,800 Kentuckians who payroll records. The average overpayowe money to the state's Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund can expect to receive monthly bills until they have paid their debt, thanks to a $50,000 grant from the U.S. Department of Labor to the Cabinet for Human Resources.

'Currently more than $9.2 million is at stake," said UI director Mae Girkey. "The grant will enable us to streamline our efforts to recover these overpayments. We will use a computer to store the names of recipients who have been overpaid and how much they owe. They will receive monthly billings until the balance is paid. We expect this to be much more efficient than having staff manually update records and send out

Each statement will contain a different message. "In the past, when claimants had been overpaid, we sent letters notifying them that if they didn't repay the funds we would file liens against their property," Girkey said. "Later, if they hadn't at least begun to repay the fund, we notified them that we are filing a suit to recover the money. Under the new system, these messages will be printed at the bottom of the monthly bills.

Most of the overpayments are not the result of fraud, Girkey said. "An applicant begins receiving benefits as soon as eligibility is determined. However, if an employer appeals our determination that a claimant is eligible and that appeal is upheld, we stop paying benefits and request the claimant to repay the money," she said.

Sometimes overpayments are made because a claimant didn't understand the eligibility rules or reported the wrong date he or she returned to work, Girkey said. In the latter case the division catches the error when comparing claimants' records with employers'

Last December the UI division notified 22,733 people that their state income tax refunds would be intercepted to collect overpayments. The result: people voluntarily repaid $366,505, and $559,496 was recovered through income tax refunds. However, almost $8 million remained outstanding.

'Some people have made partial payments, then let the payments lapse,' Girkey said. "They, too, will receive a bill from us.

Since 1981 the UI division has borrowed $332 million to help pay benefits. "We've finally repaid those loans," Girkey said. "To help maintain the solvency of the UI Trust Fund, we need to collect the outstanding overpayments. This will help us keep employers' UI tax rates as low as possible.

Optometrists Announce Kentucky Vision Care

The American Optometric Association announced its Kentucky "VISION" Project June 16 at press conferences in both Louisville and Lexington. The Kentucky "VISION" Project is designed to provide free, full scope vision care for the working poor of the state.

Kentucky's optometrists will give a full day of their time in July to examine and treat, without charge, those patients referred to them by the screening agency. As part of the optometrists' ongoing effort, they are also donating one examination per month for the remainder of the year.

Through their state-wide network of units, the Salvation Army will act as the screening agency for the project. There is a growing segment of society who are not eligible for Medicare or other assistance programs, but cannot afford much-needed eye care. These are individuals who work, are able to pay their rent and buy their food, but nothing else. Screening committees are being set up in all Kentucky counties and guidelines for eligibility are being drawn up. Once qualified patients have been screened, they will be assigned to a doctor in their area. By contacting the Salvation Army locally, or calling toll-free 1-800-635-EYES, persons with vision problems can begin the processing

In addition to the optometrists' services, suppliers, optical laboratories, manufacturers and clinics are donating equipment, lenses, frames, treatment and special "know-how" to insure that each patient receives the treatment he

I would like to take this means to thank everyone who voted for me and supported me in my campaign for Magistrate of District 1. I greatly appreciate every effort, gesture and kind expression that were made on behalf of my candidacy. Even though I lost the election, I won in knowledge and experience. All of you who worked, supported and voted for me were very dear friends and neighbors-for all of this I am thankful. ## Bonnie Wells One of Trio In Top Negotiator Roles

Nashville Tenneseean article as top negotiators in three metropolitan departments there is Bonnie Wells, formerly of Prestonsburg:

She is chief negotiator for the Metro Board of Education, and her job involves, among other things, dealing with an education association which represents 3400 Nashville teachers.

A daughter of Mrs. Marsha Wells, of Prestonsburg, and the late Sam Wells, and a former teacher herself, she is a member of a teaching family. Her brother, Randall Wells, is a member of the Morehead State University faculty; her sisters, Mrs. Lillian Watson and Mrs. Roberta Davidson, have taught in the schools here over a period of years, and another brother, Milford "Toodles" Wells, was a teacher at the time of his death a few years ago.

The Tenneseean story points out: A former college English teacher, Wells returned to high school teaching in Metro in the mid-1970s while obtaining a law degree.

She was hired to lead negotiations and employee relations for Metro schools just after finishing the YMCA Law School here in what she admits was a rare promotional move-from a member of the employee bargaining group, the Metro Nashville Education Association, to chief negotiator for the school board in one year.

'They said they either wanted a teacher or a lawyer, and then went out and got both," laughed Wells, who emphasized her qualifications and not her sex were considered by school officials weighing her candidacy for the job.

Wells-whose office shelves are lined with both English literature and law

Private Sewage Systems Need Health Dept. Permit

Floyd county farm owners may not know it, but a state permit is required when private sewage systems are installed. Permits are available through the Floyd County Health Department.

According to Earl Compton, administrator, permits for rural houses on farms with private water supplies were not required prior to 1982. That year the General Assembly passed a new law that stated onsite sewage disposal systems were not considered plumbing, in effect eliminating the exemption from the permit requirement. Responsibility for the systems was switched from the Department for Housing, Building and Construction to the Department for Health Services.

Farm owners needing system inspections or desiring more information may call the Floyd County Health Department at 606-886-2788.

CHEWING GUM

Despite some of the television commercials you may have seen, dentists do not as a group like to promote gumchewing. On the other hand, if you insist on chewing gum, keep these facts in mind.

Most brands are made with sugar for taste, and that's a no-no for teeth. The ones made without sugar, use chemical products to achieve the sweet taste.

If you must chew, at least pick a sugarless gum. The gum base can act as a cleanser or detergent for the teeth, even stimulating the gum tissues. It also may stimulate the flow of mouth saliva, an indispensible natural cleansing agent for the entire mouth. But-and there is a buthabitual chewing can overtax the teeth and, occasionally, a gum chewer can lose a filling or cause muscle spasm from all this jaw activity. Gum can also force food particles deeper into crevices.

Orphaned Fawn Adopted by Dog

(From The Licking Valley Courier) A fawn and its new mama have created something of a sensation at Morgan County veterinarian Bill Holbrook's animal farm near West

In fact, a steady stream of curious and interested visitors has visited Dr. Holbrook's kennel ever since his dog, a Rottweiler named "B.A.," with puppies of her own, adopted the fawn a few days

Morgan County Conservation Officer Rexford Childers recently confiscated the young deer after it had been illegally taken from the wild-which is against Childers said that when he confiscated the fawn it showed signs of severe digestive problems due to an inadequate diet and would have died shortly.

Childers turned to Dr. Holbrook for help. Holbrook and his wife, Agnes, who is helping care for the fawn, devised a special milk supplement that is similar to the mother's milk the fawn was used to before its capture, and began bottle feeding the youngster.

The special feeding formula and bottle-feeding worked and the fawn began to thrive. Even so, something important was lacking-a mother to love and care for the new fawn.

B.A., a healthy mama with eight bouncing puppies and an excess of milk, solved that problem. Not only has she taken over nursing chores, she enjoys licking and cleaning the fawn as though it was one of her own puppies. She actually seems to favor the fawn when her natural offspring get a little too greedy and try to crowd their adopted sibling away from the dinner table, so to speak.

Even if they are successful in raising it, Dr. Holbrook says chances are very slim that the fawn can ever return to the wild. The tender and loving care it is receiving in its new environment would leave it ill prepared to survive in a wild setting, Holbrook says,

When asked by visitors what the future may hold for the fawn, Dr. Holbrook's comment is "We're just taking it one day at a time; we'll decide that when and if we do raise it."

Noting the constant stream of visitors and their obvious concern over the fawn, Conservation Officer Childers expresses the hope that the publicity surrounding the fawn's plight and rescue will serve to prevent similar incidents in the future.

"Without the constant care of concerned and knowledgeable people, the fawn would have died; in the wild, it would have starved to death or fallen prey to some predator," Childers said.

He explained that it is common for a doe to "place her young away from her while she feeds" and return to it later. But, he said, if the doe returns and detects human scent on her fawn, she will abandon it.

'That is why it is illegal to catch or handle or disturb a baby deer in any way," Childers said. "People who come upon a baby deer and attempt to catch it or pet it because they believe it has been abandoned, in all likihood are themselves signing its death warrant, he said.

"Should you discover a fawn alone, do not disturb it in any way," urges Childers. "To do so is illegal. If you suspect the doe has been killed or will not return, contact your local conservation officer.

ASTHMA AND SULFITES

Do you have asthma? Be particularly cautious about taking a trip through a restaurant's salad bar. In many restaurants, sulfites are sprayed on lettuce, avocado dips, French fries, and other foods to prevent discoloration and spoilage. These sulfite compounds may trigger an allergic reaction among approximately five percent of the eight to ten million Americans with asthma (plus an unknown number without asthma). Reactions vary from mild to those that are occasionally life-threatening. People with asthma may cough, wheeze or feel a tightness in the chest and shortness of breath. Other symptoms include shock, loss of consciousness and abdominal pain. It is suggested that you ask restaurant personnel if sulfites are used before partaking of the salad bar.

COOLEY APOTHECARY meets the highest level of professionalism in our business and would be honored to become your pharmacy. Feel free at any time to consult with the pharmacist regarding any medications you or one of the members of your family may be taking. Patient profiles are maintained so we can check for drug interactions and for your convenience at income tax time and for insurance purposes. We are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

HANDY HINT:

People who react severly to sulfites should carry adrenaline with them. It will buy time until emergency care is available.

Hearing Set Friday On Care Facilities

A public hearing has been scheduled by the Cabinet for Human Resources on four proposals by long-term care facilities in eastern Kentucky

Under its proposal, Riverview Manor, of Prestonsburg, would add five intermediate care beds, utilizing existing space at a cost of $4,821. Phelps Community Medical Center, Phelps, is requesting to convert 18 personal care beds to intermediate care, while the Salyersville Health Care Center, Salyersville, is proposing to convert 21 personal care beds to intermediate care. And Paintsville Manor would construct at Staffordsville a 60-bed intermediate care facility at a cost of $1,312,500.

The hearing is set to begin at 9:30 a.m., June 21, in the first floor conference room, Cabinet for Human Resources building, 275. E. Main St., Frankfort. It will be conducted by a hearing officer on behalf of the Kentucky Health Facilities and Health Services Certificate of Need and Licensure Board, which plans to review the proposals on July 17.

Pike Man Held For Possession Of Money Order

A Pikeville man was being held Tuesday in Floyd county jail in lieu of a $20,000 bond after state police charged him Monday with possession of a stolen money order.

Acting on a tip from workers at the Weddington Plaza branch of Pikeville National Bank, police arrested Frank M. Didomenico, 33, and charged him with criminal possession of a forged instrument.

The bank employees notified authorities when Didomenico tried to cash a money order that was stolen over the weekend from the Stanville post office.

The public defender has been appointed to represent the accused man and a preliminary hearing in the case has been scheduled for next Monday.

McMillen To Retire From the Pastorate

The Rev. Ira McMillen, Jr., former pastor here of Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church, recently announced that he will retire from the pastorate, effective August 31.

The announcement was made at Greenview Baptist Church, Florence, Ky., where he has been pastor the last five years. His retirement will end more than 43 years in the pulpit. His Kentucky pastorates have been in Lexington, Prestonsburg, Ashland and Florence. He was pastor of the Mason (Ohio) Baptist Church before going to Florence.

"There is a part of me," he told his congregation, "that would like to continue on but my body is saying to me that it is time to change directions in my ministry and get some relief from the weekly and daily routine which I have followed for more than forty years.'

The veteran minister recently passed his 65th birthday. He and Mrs. McMillan will continue to reside in Florence.

PUBLIC NOTICE

BUDGET HEARING ON GENERAL REVENUE SHARING The City of Martin will hold a public hearing at 10:30 a.m. on July 1, 1985 in City Hall, Martin, Ky. for the purpose of hearing written and oral comment from the public concerning the proposed annual budget for fiscal year 85-86 and the use of revenue sharing funds as contained in that proposed budget, summarized below.

General revenue sharing (GRS) is a program of general fiscal support from the federal government to state and local governments with only limited federal requirements about how the money should be spent. Decisions on the use of these funds are made at the local level, by the government and people closest to local problems. The revenue sharing regulations require a hearing on the proposed use of these funds in relation to the overall budget before the budget is adopted each year.

All interested citizens, groups, senior citizens and organizations representing the interests of senior citizens are encouraged to attend and to submit

The United States Achievement Academy has announced recently that April Ratliff has been named a 1985 United States National Award winner in history and government.

This award is a prestigious honor very few students can ever hope to attain. In fact, the Academy recognizes less than 10% of all American high school students.

April, who attends Betsy Layne High was nominated for this National Award by Mrs. Harmon, a history teacher at the school. April will appear in the United States Achievement Academy Official Yearbook, published nationally.

"Recognizing and supporting our youth is more important than ever before in America's history. Certainly United States Achievement Academy award winners should be congratulated and appreciated for their dedication to excellence and achievement," said Dr. George Stevens, Executive Director of the United States Achievement

The Academy selects USAA winners upon the exclusive recommendation of teachers, coaches, counselors or other school sponsors and upon the Standards of Selection set forth by the Academy. The criteria for selection are a student's academic performance, interest and aptitude, leadership qualities, responsibility, enthusiasm, motivation to learn and improve, citizenship, attitude and cooperative spirit, dependability, and recommendation from a teacher or a

Fireworks Safe Only on Display Not in Hand

Parades, picnics and fireworks displays are all July Fourth traditions enjoyed by most Americans. Another, often overlooked tradition, comes in the aftermath of the holiday-those news stories about people blinded or maimed by fireworks.

The Kentucky Society to Prevent Blindness reports that in 1984, fireworksrelated injuries rose 19 percent over the previous year. An estimated 9,857 people required hospital emergency room treatment last year, 1,255 of them for eye injuries.

"Fireworks are not toys," cautions Elinor Zollinger, Executive Director of the Kentucky Society. "Without doubt, we need to keep fireworks out of the hands of young people.

In a recent study conducted by Arkansas ophthalmologists, bottle rockets were found to be responsible for nearly three-fourths of all fireworks-related injuries resulting in permanent vision loss.

"Small, but lethal, a bottle rocket is a single firecracker attached to a stick and shot from a stationary object. Usually the suggested object is a pipe but many people use soft-drink bottles,' says Zollinger. "These bottles can

Flying glass can strike the face and eyes of bystanders, often causing severe, painful or blinding injuries.

Among the other commonly available fireworks involved in injuries are firecrackers, M-80's, Roman candles and snakes. Even sparklers are unsafe. A blinding burn can result if the sparkler makes contact with the eye.

We recommend that people enjoy fireworks the one safe and sane way this July Fourth," Zollinger adds. "That is, view them at a licensed public display, not on a street corner or in the backyard.

Forgotten U.S. Soldiers

(In The Lexington Herald-Leader) In his poem "The Waste Land." T.S. Eliot seemed quite certain that April was the cruelest month.

Former Army artilleryman Nebraster V. Bowman could never be that comfortably specific about the year he spent in Korea. As far as he was concerned, 1952 was not even divided into months. It was simply a hellish whole, one long, loveless flirtation with death.

For him, the months blurred together, and 1952 became a continuing longdistance dialogue between his cannon and theirs, a montage of major battles, a succession of severe seasons filled with ice, fire and fear.

He remembers not so much the dates and the places as the sweating and the shivering. Remembering places him behind his 105mm howitzer, endlessly aiming at a distant, unseen enemy-and ducking that foe's equally anonymous retribution.

'We were lucky," he says now. "Our battery only lost five men.

Bowman has an indelible memory of his return from the Korean War He remembers stepping off the train in his native Trenton, N.J., proud of his uniform and the battle stars that adorned it. He remembers hurrying from the station platform, full of the feeling that his country had asked and he had responded with his best. He remembers hailing a taxi.

'When I got in the cab, I mentioned to the driver that I had just gotten back from Korea. He said, 'So what? Where do you want to go?

The veterans of World War II returned as heroes. They sailed home to blaring bands and ticker-tape tumults, to a nation eager to hug and kiss. Less than decade later, the Nebraster V Bowmans came back from an equal hell to a nation that said, "So what?"—and then let them promptly pass out of its thoughts.

And so now, with the belated recognition and honor being bestowed on the people who later fought in Vietnam, it is the soldiers who served in Korea who loom as the truly forgotten American veterans of modern times.

There is little to remind the American public that between 1950 and 1953 the nation fought a bitter war in which 54,246 U.S. soldiers were killed and an additional 103,248 were wounded.

There is no national monument to the people who served in Korea, and little has been written about their war. World War II and Vietnam engendered scores of histories, memoirs and novels. The Korean War did not. "There is virtually no literature of the Korean War," said Samuel Hynes, a Princeton University English professor who served as a Marine pilot in World War II and as a squadron operations officer during the Korean War. "We are just about disappearing in the literature of Vietnam-it's up to our necks-but there is practically nothing about

While it may be a pretty bleary public memory, the bloody Korean experience is not lost on the men and women who served there. And neither are the indifference and subsequent national amnesia that colored their return.

"I felt bitter when I got back," said Bowman, 54, a guard at the Philadelphia Museum of Art. "But the hurt was even stronger than the bitterness. I felt we had gone over there and done the best we could. I felt we were entitled to the same kind of reception the soldiers got after World War II.

The bitterness and the hurt have healed over the years. Today, exartilleryman Bowman simply feels

Why, one might ask, were the war and its veterans so forgettable?

MISSIONARY TO JAPAN TO SPEAK HERE

Takahiro Oue, Baptist missionary to Japan, will speak at the Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church during services there Sunday morning, June 23. Saturday afternoon, June 22, at 1 o'clock, the members of the W.M.U.'s will host a tea honoring him in the church's annex. All members of the church and their families are invited to attend both events.

TO HONOR REV. HUNTER

A reception for the new Methodist, Ashland District Superintendent, the Rev. Harold Hunter, and his wife Marjo, will be held at the First Methodist Church, here, Sunday, June 30, at 3 p.m. in Fellowship Hall. All church families are invited to this event.

Why was the American public so indifferent at the time?

The answer is manifold. Its mosaic pieces can be obtained from those who have studied the war-and those who

Louis T. Iglehart, 61, a Washingtonbased documentary writer-director who flew Marine fighters in both World War II and Korea, sees the national indifferences to the war and its returning veterans partly in terms of spiritual fatigue. In his view, America was still so emotionally exhausted by its total commitment to winning World War II that it couldn't have marshaled a lot of enthusiasm for this conflict even if it

"I think we were tired," Iglehart said. We had just gone through a big, big war and this, by comparison, was a very small piece of business. I think everybody was just buzzed out. They had given us all they could during World War II, and there was just nothing left."

Another aspect of the war that bred apathy and forgetfulness was its limited scale and objectives.

Lives were indeed being lost. The U.S. death toll for the three-year involvement in Korea (54,246) was almost as high as the one for the decade in Southeast Asia (58,022). And lives were being disrupted, Because so many of the people who fought in Korea were reactivated World War II veterans, the interruption of careers was considerable. Hynes, for example, had just landed his first college teaching job when he was called up. George Roy Hill, who would one day direct Butch Cassidy and the Sundance Kid, The Sting and many other films, was pursuing his earlier ambition to be

'I was desperately unhappy because I thought I was on my way to an acting career," Hill, a former Marine flier, said. "I remember I was riding the bus down Madison Avenue (en route to an acting interview) and opening my mail when I came upon this thing that said I

Gridders Here Get Free Tests

Prestonsburg Blackcat running back Wendell Burke clinches his fist after having a blood sample drawn by Highlands Medical Center laboratory director Don Hicks (right) as a part of the free service afforded the football team.

Highlands Regional Medical Center and Radiology Management Services, Inc. recently provided free diagnostic tests of several Prestonsburg High School football players for the upcoming season. The tests were performed on players selected for screenings by Blackcat team physician, Dr. Roger

"We felt this would be a valuable community service," said HRMC Administrator Clarence Traum. "We started with Prestonsburg because the Blackcats' team physician is a member of our active medical staff. We hope we can do this again for Prestonsburg and for other high schools in our fourcounty service area.

The Medical Center's laboratory and radiology departments performed the tests as ordered by Dr. Jurich, and Dr. David White, of Radiology Management Services, interpreted the x-rays. All of these services were contributed. Tests performed included complete blood counts, urinalyses and x-rays.

Summertime Is Catfish Time

By ART LANDER, Jr.

Summertime is catfish time. As hot weather approaches, many fishermen begin their search for "whisker fish" in ponds, creeks, and rivers, as well as manmade impoundments.

Of the three species of catfish most often caught by Kentucky anglers—the flathead channel and blue catfish—the channel catfish is by far the most widely distributed. Some of our best catfish "holes" are tailwater areas, although channel catfish are abundant in many of the small, state-owned lakes managed by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Catfish are found in all of the state's major impoundments, especially Kentucky Lake, Lake Barkley, Dewey Lake, Barren River Lake, Green River Lake,; and Rough River Lake. But during the spawn in June the tailwater area below Kentucky Dam is in a class by itself, supporting unbelievable numbers of catfish and quite a few real lunkers. Fish in the 20-pound class are common, and blue catfish predominate the creel.

The fish congregate there because of the availability of forage fish—threadfin and gizzard shad, skipjack herring and minnows. During the generation of electricity, many of these forage fishes are sucked through the intakes, and chopped up by the turbines. This constant "chumming" keeps the catfish scavenging in the "boils." Thus, cut bait, preferably gizzard shad viscera and gills, is often very effective. Except for periods of extremely cold weather in winter and bright sunlight in summer, shad can be easily taken with a long handled dip net as they school around rip-rap or bridge abutments. Castnets, minnow traps and seines are also effective, but be sure to check the regulations or consult with your conservation officer before gathering live bait.

Many anglers belive that you've got to use a big glob of bait to catch big catfish. That's not the case. In fact, the big finicky catfish often prefer only the choicest morsels-shad gills and viscera. To cut out the gills and viscera: 1) peel back and break the gill plates, 2) turn the fish on its back and make a quarter inch cut behind the gills, 3) grab both gills between the thumb and forefinger and pull, and 4) disembowel the shad by cutting with a knife from its ven through its body cavity. The bloody red meat of the gills, and the smelly viscera are irresistible to big catfish.

Fishing tailwater areas require the use of specialized gear-a heavy action rod, a spinning or casting reel spooled in 20 to 50-pound test monofilament, three-way swivels, one to four-ounce sinkers, 1/0 hooks and a good depth finder so that rock piles, humpbacks and channel droplines can be located. Threeway swivels are ideal for making bottom-bouncing rigs, with the sinker on the bottom, and a dropline trailing in the current. Often, multiple hook rigs are used. Fish along rip-rap and eddies behind submerged rock piles.

Catfish will also take a wide variety of other bait-chicken livers, minnows, small bluegill, catalpa worms, prepared dough baits (blood or chicken scent), nightcrawlers, crayfish, and "stink baits," which appeal to the catfish's strong sense of smell. These evil smelling concoctions may be made from a number of revolting ingredients such as chicken blood and intestines, carp dough, soap, cotton, clay and any number of foods or seasonings such as Limburger cheese and mustard. Often the ingredients are placed in the hot sun in a jar with the top tightly screwed on, so that the whole mess will become rancid. Many stink baits are the results of many years of experimentation and are guarded secrets.

The state record blue catfish weighed 100 pounds and was taken from the Tennessee River below Kentucky Dam on August 21, 1970, by J.E. Copeland of Benton. The state record flathead catfish was also a monster, tipping the scales at 97 pounds. It was caught by Esker Carroll on June 6, 1956 from the Green River. The state record channel catfish weighed 22 pounds, five ounces, and was caught by Wallace Carter of Lawrenceburg on October 6, 1978 from a farm pond. Maybe this summer will be your summer to tussle with a monster catfish.

FALL PREVIEW II Last week, we took a look at the fall plans of CBS. This week, we turn to NBC, which will be introducing two new hour shows and four new half-hour series. In "Hell Town," Robert Blake will play a very tough priest. You've probably never met a real-life priest who's so handy with his fists, but Blake's popularity may pull this series off realistic or not.

Each week on "Misfits of Science," research scientist Dean Paul Martin and his 7-foot-4 colleague, Kevin Peter Hall, will turn a misfit into a superhero. (It sounds a little like "Fantasy Island" meets "The Six-Million Dollar Man.")

Bea Arthur

In "The Golden Girls," "mature" women share a house in Miami. It stars Bea Arthur and Betty White, and is from the producers of "Soap" and 'Benson.'

In "227," Marla Gibbs (of "The Jeffersons") plays a good-hearted busy body who keeps tabs on everyone in her apartment building.

"Amazing sounds like NBC's version of "Twilight Zone." But Steven Spielberg is the executive producer, and he has promised that top Hollywood directors such as Martin Scorsese, Clint Eastwood and Peter Hyams will be involved.

'Alfred Hitchcock' is an updated version of the classic series.

Jackie Gleason

TOGETHER AGAIN Jackie Gleason and Art Carney are planning to work together - and it won't be as Ralph Kram-den and Ed Norton this time. Their new project is "Izzy and Moe," a CBS TV movie about two New York Prohibition agents during the 1920s.

According to CBS, Gleason will play "the ambitious Izzy, always full of grandiose schemes," and Carney will be "his reluctant partner and pal, Moe.

It doesn't sound all that far removed from "The Honeymooners," does it?

Sumo wrestling comes to America

By Adam Beckerman

Bulging beyond their glorified G-strings, the two mammoth rikishi prepare their minds and bodies in a four-minute ritual. Handclapping alerts the gods that heavy flesh-banging is Legs thick as imminent. stuffed duffel bags slowly tilt heavenward, then stomp the clay surface of the 15-foot ring, frightening off demons. Salt tossed about purifies the battleground.

"Most wrestlers take a handful and just flip it anywhere," says Jesse Takamiyama, the recently retired Hawaiian-born sumo wrestler and for years Japan's most visible and popular commercial spokesman, promoting popular everything from soft drinks to software. "I'd just take a pinch and drop it here and there. The crowd really dug that.

Now, squatting in the middle of the dohyo, the wrestlers glare at one another, then retreat to their corners for more salt and some ceremonial wiping of the brow before resuming the face-off.

"You are nervous," says Takamiyama, a gentle, thoughtful man whose voice is permanently reduced to a choked whisper as a result of a training injury. "You get butterflies. You think of your style of wrestling." In Jesse's case, this was a most successful style, allowing him to fight for almost 20 years - until a mere 26 days before his 40th birthday - and in

1.654 consecutive matches, a record that earned him the handle "Lou Gehrig of sumo." "If I started thinking of what my opponent might do, and how I should react, it messed me

The referee gestures to begin. The two gargantuan toddlers bolt against each other, and stick. When either wrestler is forced out of the ring or touches the clay with any part of his body other than his soles, he loses. Usually the match takes less than 15 seconds.

"To me, sumo is like a Takamiyama continues. "The two people are sitting, drinking and eating. There is quiet. Then suddenly it becomes very loud. But there's never booing. You cheer for your favorite, or you sit still.'

Legend attributes the creation of the Japanese state to a sumo match some 1,500 years ago, when a warrior representing the sun goddess Amaterasu defeated the champion of an opposing deity in a monumental shoving match. On Monday, June 24, Madison Square Garden Cable will televise highlights from the Grand Sumo Tournament held earlier this month in New York. Don't miss the 21year-old Hawaiian Salevva Atisnoe, who makes his American debut as Konishiki. This new star is thought to have a chance at becoming the first foreign Grand Champion, and the heaviest. Konishiki tips the scales at 490 pounds.

retailer. We can give you the names of several.

CAN A MONUMENT OR MARKER BE MATCHED TO A VERY OLD ONE?

Yes, any kind of marker or monument can be matched reasonably well regardless of the age of the original one. This is one of the personal services generally available from your memorial counselor.

The usual manner of matching an existing monument or marker is to make a rubbing of the original. By placing rubbing paper, similar to carbon paper, on the stone, the lettering and any decorative pattern from which the matching piece can be made. Hand carving and other features can be duplicated, too.

After the pattern is taken, the measurements, height and other specifics are noted and used to match the original. We advise that before this procedure is begun you contact a reputable monument

Martin County Coal Wins Safety Awards

Three Martin County Coal Corp. mines were recently honored by the National Safety Council for outstanding safety performances in 1984. Lee Construction surface mine, 3-C surface mine, and the Black Bear underground mine were awarded "President's Citations" by T.C. Gilchrest, president of the National Safety Council.

The award-winning mines did not experience a single nonfatal, days-lost accident during 1984. This accomplishment represents nearly 250,000 employee hours of accident-free exposure.

Martin County Coal Corp. mines have received several safety awards from the National Safety Council, the largest worldwide safety organization. In accepting the awards for Martin County Coal, Bernie Dalton, chief mine inspector, said, "We have the best-trained and the most highly skilled work force in the coal industry. Every employee of our company is involved in our safety program. This is the reason we are able to achieve an outstanding safety record year after year.

Judds To Perform In Ashland, June 30

A concert by the award-winning country music duo, The Judds, and a golf tournament are the highlights of the 1985 Hospital Benefit June 29 and 30 for Our Lady of Bellefonte Hospital and King's Daughters' Medical Center of Ashland.

This annual fund-raising event is organized to support a combined effort to provide first-class medical care for

The Judds, the mother-daughter singing team who are natives of Ashland, will appear in concert Sunday, June 30, at 8 p.m. at Putnam Stadium at 29th and Elm Streets in Ashland. Advance tickets for this rain-or-shine performance are available at ticket outlets or at the gate.

The Judds are returning for their first hometown concert with a list of national country music honors. Recently, the team was named top vocal duet of the year by the Academy of Country Music and received a Grammy Award for best new country act. In addition, they won the 1984 Country Music Association's Horizon Award for talented newcomers, and their song, 'Why Not Me," was named song of the year by the Academy of Country Music.

The annual benefit golf tournament is scheduled Saturday, June 29, at Bellefonte Country Club and is limited to 128 golfers, Tee-off begins at 8 a.m.

Log House Building To Be Course Topic

Kentucky Housing Corporation (KHC), Morehead State University (MSU) and Frontier Housing. Inc. will co-sponsor a two-week course in log house construction, June 22 through July Participants in the course will build a log house on MSU's campus. The house will be moved to a permanent site and completed by crews working for Frontier Housing. The house will then be sold to a lower income family through a low interest KHC mortgage.

'KHC is co-sponsoring this course for several reasons," said KHC executive director F. Lynn Luallen. "We are constantly searching for innovative means to provide safe, decent and sanitary housing to Kentuckians of lower to moderate incomes. Eastern Kentucky has the natural resources needed to construct the log houses. We are confident that co-sponsoring this course with MSU and Frontier Housing will not only produce more affordable housing for the eastern Kentucky area but will also stimulate the local economy.

Scholarships covering tuition and room and board are available through Frontier Housing.

If You Want Me-Just Whistle

(Smithsonian News Service)

This dog's name was Quetch... Well. Quetch it was the was a cross between a West Highland terrier and an Aberdeen) that first suggested the idea that the Mongrel's Club should have a museum of its own. With his passion for collecting, he was probably counting on getting the job of museum curator for himself-which he eventually did.

In Doctor Doolittle's Garden. published in 1927. Hugh Lofting enchanted children and their parents with his account of a Dog Museum. "The Musuem was not confined to natural history. It was also an archaeological or historical museum. The bones department was perhaps the largest. Personally, I don't think that any student of comparative anatomy would have found it scientifically very helpful. For the bones were mostly beef, mutton and ham bones.'

The idea of a dog museum just naturally makes one smile. But today, there really is a dog museum. And, "it's the only one of its kind in the world," according to its director, William Secord. The Dog Museum of America in New York City opened to the public in September 1982. "Our mission," Secord says, "is to collect. preserve and exhibit artifacts and works of art and literature related to the dog, so that people can learn more about the dog's important role in history and in our lives.

The Dog Museum of America is one of an unprecedented number of new museums created since the Second World War in an attempt to preserve the richly embroidered but ever-fading tapestry of the planet's past. Admittedly, this museum is a special place. For one thing, "well-behaved" dogs are welcome.

Secord's own Manchester terrier, Tommy: a spaniel named Rory, and a part-poodle, part-bouvier named Binky joined an enthusiastic crowd of art lovers last fall at the opening of the museum's ninth major exhibition, 'The Dog Observed: Photographs 1844-1983." This collection of canine images, demonstrating that the dog and the camera have been a dynamic duo ever since photography's debut in

Beef Cattle Referendum Is Called For July 12

The Kentucky Beef Cattle Association will hold a referendum Friday, July 12, 9 a.m. to 3 p.m., to vote on a 15-cent per head assessment increase to strengthen consumer education efforts and market development.

If the assessment passes, it will bring the total assessment to 25 cents a head. The referendum will be held in all 120 counties, with polling taking place at the local ASCS office in each county. Producers will be permitted to vote only in their counties of residence. If a producer has cattle in a county other than the one in which he lives, he will still vote in his county of residence. A corporate producer will vote in the county in which the corporation's principal place of business is located. Eligible voters from outside the Commonwealth will be permitted to vote in the county in which the farm is located.

If the referendum passes, everyone licensed to operate a livestock market in Kentucky, as well as operators of meat packing or slaughter establishments and order buyers, will be required to deduct the additional assessment from the purchase price to the seller.

If passed, the assessment will be deducted beginning on Sept. 1, 1985. A full and complete copy of the referendum regulations is available at ASCS offices and the local county extension agent office.

A copy of the full regulations are also available through the Department of Agriculture. To obtain a copy, write to Division of Markets, 7th Floor, Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

The show's curator, Ruth Silverman, former associate curator of the International Center of Photography, editor of The Dog Observed (Alfred A. Knopf. N.Y., 1984) and owner of two "shaggy mutts" named Jessie and Noodle, admits that initially she had trepidations about an exhibition of dog pictures in the sophisticated New York art world. "At first, I showed the photographs rather secretly because I thought people would laugh at the idea, but happily everybody loved it.

The ancient symbiotic relationship of human and dog is, in fact, no laughing matter. In the old world and the new, the dog, widely thought to have been the first domesticated animal, has been an integral part of human history. Remains of a domesticated dog dating back 14,000 years have been found n Iraq alongside human artifacts, and excavations have revealed that human and dog shared Jaguar Cave in Idaho more than 10,000 years ago. The dog has willingly followed mankind-"dogged its steps"-over much of the Earth. Humans, in their turn, have molded the dog, through breeding, to ever-changing needs.

In the murky beginning of their relationship, man and dog hunted together in order to survive. For at least 4,000 years, dogs have been used for herding and protection. Arctic dogs have provided humans with transportation. food and clothing. Large St. Bernards-without kegs of brandy-rescued travelers lost in snowy Swiss Alps. Small terriers killed plague-carrying rats in the cities-earning their name of old, "earthe dogges." In October 1957, Laika became the first space dog, circling the Earth in Sputnik I.

Armed combatants, messengers, mine detectors and mascots, dogs have served in wars since ancient times. In war or peace, over the centuries, the dog has taken its place in science and art, in commerce and politics, in sporting activities and in the human heart.

The dog inspired prehistoric man to depict its form on the walls and ceilings of his caves 10,000 to 25,000 years ago, and from that day to this, its image has appeared on ancient tombs, in churches, on coins, stamps, coats-ofarms, pottery and tapestries, in paintings, sculpture, bas-reliefs, illuminated manuscripts and photographs.

Withal, a dog called Man Ray was unique. The blue-gray Weimaraner was artist William Wegman's constant companion and art partner for 12 years. Wearing zany costumes and disguises. Man Ray, named for the avant-garde artist, was the subject of hundreds of Wegman's video works. drawings and photographs. Together, they made people laugh at the world's pomposity. A canine stand-up comedian. Ray was transformed into a dinosaur, a pot roast, Louis XIV and Brooke Sheilds in designer jeans. But covered with flour or wrapped in tinsel. he maintained his basic dog dignity. In January 1982, seeing that the dog was in failing health, Wegman made some serious portraits of Ray, who died of cancer two months later. What he had admired most about Ray, Wegman He looked as if he wouldn't laugh at his

The bond between dog and master has been a theme of Western literature since Homer told in The Odyssey of the faithful Argus who alone recognized his long-absent master Ulysses. In the children's classic, Lassie Come-Home, it is the English "come-home" dog who endures a torturous 1,000-mile odyssey to return to her young master.

Another English canine has become perhaps the most famous dog in America. Nipper, the little black-andwhite fox terrier who sits listening to 'his master's voice" emerging from the horn of an old-fashioned phonograph, has been the RCA Corporation's trademark for more than 50

raud, who, inspired by the dog's apparent curiosity about the voices coming from the "talking machine." painted "His Master's Voice."

Dogs have even, on occasion, done the talking for thier masters. President Harding never had too much to say about world affairs, but his Airdale, Laddie Boy, had his own special chair at cabinet meetings. Franklin Roosevelt's Scottish terrier, Fala, was a furry foil who played straight dog in the president's verbal sparrings with his Republican opponents. According to FDR. Fala resented Republican attacks on his canine integrity.

Along with politics, the showing of dogs is one of America's most popular amateur sports. The first dog show was held in England in 1859 at Newcastleon-Tyne. Today, there are nearly 10,000. dog shows, obedience trials and field trials held yearly in the United States under the rules of the American Kennel Club, which has registered almost 30 million pure-bred dogs in its 100-yearold history. this one: SUPPORT YOUR LOCAL BLOODHOUND, GET LOST!

The pampered pet dog has been around since ancient times. Egyptians mourned their dead dogs and mummified their bodies. Greek and Roman greyhounds were covered with golden cloth for bad-weather outings. Chinese emperors gave high rank to pet Pekingese. In Tudor England, small spaniels were not only lap dogs but were carried around in ladies' bosoms. But there was not a greater dog lover than Queen Victoria, who kept all manner of dogs and influenced the public to do the same. By the end of World War I, the pet dog had become a fixture of American family life. There would be no Dick and Jane without Spot.

Now, in spite of the fact that almost 40 percent of American households have dogs, some may subscribe to the philosophy, ascribed to W.C. Fields, that anyone who hates children and dogs can't be all bad. These curmudgeons clearly don't realize how much dogs do for us every day, and, if we're smart enough, will do for us in the future.

Wall paintings from 100 B.C. depict a dog guiding a blind person. Today, there are hearing-ear dogs who awaken deaf people each morning and dogs who carry crutches and turn out lights for the disabled. Because a dog's sense of smell is thousands of times stronger than a human's, dogs help dairy farmers single out cows in season, police officers uncover narcotics, the Agriculture Department find forbidden fruit and gourmets dig up truffles. Dogs have found gas leaks in underground pipelines and gypsy moth egg masses in forests.

Talli guards the Statue of Liberty. The golden retriever is an explosives detection dog. "Although her main job sometimes seems to be public relations," says her handler, U.S. Park Service ranger Jay Lippert. "She just loves the kids.

The mysterious bond between human and dog endures in spite of a still-ambiguous relationship. There are 40,000 practicing veterinarians in America, treating dogs in clinical specialities such as cardiology, dermatology, pediatrics, oncology, neurology, surgery and psychiatry. Yet we put 4.4 million unwanted dogs to death every year.

Considering that Canis familiaris, "faithful dog," has helped us, inspired us, played and suffered with us since before the dawn of civilization, it would seem that Professor Quetch had a pretty good idea in that Dog Museum of his. The wonder is that it took people so long to realize it. The dog speaks our language. By its actions, much louder than words, it says, "If you want me, just whistle.'

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Warning Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness. hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others

The following nine symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations are often the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these may spell back trouble.

(1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain

These signals may indicate your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will likely become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these warning signals . . . call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Tuning into Fish, Wildlife...

By ART LANDER, JR.

Radio-location telemetry studies enable biologists to extend their observational powers when studying the movement and behavior of fish and

The technique, which was first utilized on wildlife in the early 1960's, is particularly effective when studying animals which live in remote areas, are extremely secretive and difficult to approach or are nocturnal in their habits. Radio-location telemetry is also well suited when studying an animal that is generally harassed by conventional means of observation such as up close inspection or viewing through field glasses.

In a fisheries management application, radio-location telemetry projects are appropriate when studying anadromous or highly mobile fish such as the landlocked "striper," or rockfish as he's known in Kentucky. Biologists of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Fisheries, are investigating the feasibility of a radio-location telemetry project that would involve tracking rockfish in Lake Cumberland. One project goal would be to investigate the possibility of any natural reproduction. and to track the fish as they disperse throughout the lake after the spawning season ends

While a majority of the "stripers" appear to be congregating in the Indian and Beaver Creek embayments, biologists could track the seasonal movements of rockfish from shallow water in winter when the fish are feeding heavily on shad, to summer's stressful heat when rockfish go deep to seek out cool water which is rich in dissolved

Through the use of battery-powered transmitters, which may be attached either by a collar or surgically implanted just below the skin or in the body cavity, biologists are able to follow the animal's movement by monitoring 'beeps" with a portable, directional receiver. Usually, the animal's exact location is plotted through triangulation, by taking several directional readings along a straight line. These readings are usually taken from access roads, high points such as hills or fire towers, or they may be taken from an airplane, if the animal has a big home range and may travel for miles in search of food, a mate or suitable cover.

Radio-location telemetry studies are often costly and complex but the data they provide may be critical in helping wildlife biologists pinpoint the daily or seasonal movements of animals, their habitat preferences, mortality factors, dispersal (which animals go and why), reproductive potential, and behavioral characteristics such as mating rituals.

In the past decade, several radiolocation telemetry studies have been done by Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources wildlife biologists. The animals involved were wild turkey at Mill Creek Wildlife Management Area in Jackson county, raccoons stocked in several counties in

Meat, Poultry Hotline To Give Free Service

If the best things in life are free, the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Meat and Poultry Hotline can be added to that list on July 1, when the service becomes

"An estimated two million cases of food poisoning occur every year, and many can be prevented by proper food handling," according to Donald L. Houston, administrator of USDA's Food Safety and Inspection Service. "The hotline's home economists can help consumers with questions ranging from how long to keep meat and poultry in the refrigerator to how to pack a safe picnic lunch

"Changing the hotline to a nationwide toll-free number allows us to reach just about anyone who needs our help," said Houston.

Consumers dialing the new number-(800) 535-4555-can get food safety tips for meat and poultry products and report problems experienced with such products. The toll-free hotline will operate from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. EDT.

the eastern Kentucky mountains, otters in the Land Between the Lakes, and more recently, whitetailed deer in Knott county. A radio-location telemetry study done in the early 1970's assessed the survivability of stocked raccoons, whereas the study now being done on deer released in Knott county is geared towards providing biologists with a better understanding of mortality factors and habitat preference in that county's herd.

With technology improving almost daily, the transmitters used in these studies have become smaller and more reliable through the years. They emit a different "beep" when the animal or fish is stationary than when it's on the move. The transmitters are tailored to the size of the animal they're attached to and may be powered by solar cells or longlasting nickel cadmium or lithium chloride batteries. They can be fitted on animals ranging in size from elephants to hummingbirds, and their signals may be picked up on a receiver from up to a mile away, depending on the terrain.

While the transmitters aren't a burden to the animals they are placed on, biologists admit that objects may make the animal more susceptible to predation or hunting pressure. Not many hunters will pass up a shot at a goose with an orange collar around its neck.

New Hospital Administrator

Former administrator of Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Sister James Edward Roach, reviews a contract with Sister Monica Justinger who assumed leadership, June 7. The two worked together for two weeks to ease the administrative Sister of St. Agnes Monica Justinger succeeded Sister of Charity James Edward Roach as administrator of Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, June 7. Hospital personnel expressed their appreciation for Roach's three years of service with a prayer service and reception held May 24.

Our Lady of the Way Hospital made many improvements under Sr. James Edward's leadership. Computer services were added to the hospital's business offices, medical records and purchasing departments. The obstetrical, X-ray, central storage and admissions areas of the hospital were remodeled. Renovation of the emergency room expanded its capacity by three beds. X-ray and cardiology services were updated.

During her administration the hospital acquired the Seton Complex, a large two-story building near the hospital, which is presently used for doctors' offices. Plans call for rehabilitation and educational services to also be housed

Sr. James Edward's initiative in acquiring and establishing the hospital's mobile health clinic helped her merit a fellowship in the American College of Hospital Administrators during her term at Our Lady of the Way.

'Administration personnel and hospital staff look back over the three years with a sense of gratitude," said Susan Stewart, RN, CNA, director of nursing service. "All at Our Lady of the Way Hospital will remember Sr. James with affection and esteem." She also said the hospital extends a "warm welcome" to Sr. Monica.

Sr. Monica's former administrative position was at Penrose Hospital, Colorado Springs, Colo., which, like our Lady of the Way, is a member institute of the Sisters of Charity Health Care Systems, Inc., of Cincinnati, Ohio. Prior to that, Sr. Monica was a nursing home administrator in Victoria, Kansas.

Two Complete Training

Jimmy DeRossett, of Prestonsburg, and Dan Combs, of Dema, both of Commonwealth Life Insurance Company's KY Mountain Agency, have completed extensive sales training at the company's home office Career Agent Training School in Louisville.

Jim Seagraves, senior vice president of Store Operations, said, "Family Dollar looks forward to locating in Prestonsburg and being part of a fine business market." Jack Baker, the firm's district manager for the area, said, "Family Dollar offers excellent employment opportunities in this area and throughout the 20 states in which our stores are located. As many local people as possible will be employed at the new store." Baker added that Family Dollar is a rapidly expanding company and always interested in talking with management trainee candidates.

Family Dollar was founded in 1959 with a single store in Charlotte, N.C. and today has more than 5,831,044 square feet of total sales space in the chain's 910

Section Three, Page Twelve

The prevailing attitude in the "Show Me" state of Missouri seems to be, 'Show me a good cause, and I'll willingly pay more taxes," says National Wildlife magazine. In both 1976 and 1984, as other tax-raising measures were defeated, the citizens of Missouri approved increases in the state sales tax to fund conservation programs. So far, no other state has followed suit.
