Prosecution Delighted With Change of Venue

Gas Shut-Off For Toler Cr. Hearing Topic

There were no flaring tempers or angry words, but residents of Toler Creek, faced with a gas shut-off, made it clear at a public meeting held last Wednesday at the Harold Elementary School they were unhappy with the gas company's proposal.

In attendance were some 28 concerned citizens, three representatives from the Public Service Commission, State Rep. Greg Stumbo, a representative from the office of U.S. Congressman Chris Perkins, and lawyers representing both the Toler Creek residents and the City Services Co. (CITGO), the utility threatening cessation of services.

14 Floyd Cases Shifted to Pike For July Trials

While the Commonwealth argued last Thursday that neither the prosecution nor the defendants could get a fair shake if 16 Floyd countians—including five present or former county officials—were tried before a Floyd jury, prosecutors were clearly delighted when Special Judge Will T. Scott agreed to shift the trials to Pike Circuit Court.

"We were pushing for it," said David Lewis, of the state attorney-general's office. And another prosecution source said he was "surprised and pleased" at the venue change, adding, "Every little bit helps."

Meanwhile, an attorney for one of the defendants and Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen added their voices last week to those of critics here who have charged that prosecution of the 16, which followed an 18-month state police investigation into county financial practices in 1982, appears politically motivated and unfairly selective.

Such criticism peaked here two weeks ago, following the revelation that evidence of alleged forgery on the part of County Clerk Carla Boyd had not been presented to the grand jury that indicted the 16 last December.

"Politics is politics, but there's got to be a limit," said Greg Stumbo, who represents District 4 Magistrate Lowell Samons, one of those indicted. "You don't go playing with criminal indictments, with people's rights. You've got to draw the line somewhere."

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen both strongly denied that he has had anything to do with the investigation and asserted that, if he had, he "would have done things differently."

"From the beginning I made a point of staying out of it," the commonwealth's attorney said. "I haven't had access to any of the information (the prosecutors) have. There has been no consultation whatever between them and me. I had no influence on the indictments in any way, shape or form."

"If I had to do it over, I would not have stepped down," said Allen, who disqualified himself when the investigation was first announced. "I wish I hadn't, because of the way it has been handled. If there is any way I can get it back, I'll be glad to handle it. And I'll guarantee that if there is anything there to be prosecuted, it will be prosecuted."

Assistant Attorney-General Lewis called "absurd" charges that the investigation or indictments were (See Story No. 7, Page 4)

Audit UnCOVERS $10,000 Shortage In School Funds

A former principal at Wheelwright High School has been ordered by the Floyd Board of Education to make good more than $10,000 missing from school activity funds this year, and evidence relating to the case will be turned over to the Commonwealth's attorney for possible criminal prosecution.

After meeting in executive session last Wednesday, the board announced that it held Ervin B. Pack responsible for $10,782 raised through various school activities during the year and now unaccounted for. The former principal was relieved of all administrative duties in March and has not been rehired for the coming school year, board attorney David Barber noted.

Board treasurer Ray Brackett said later that discrepancies in Wheelwright High School's financial records were first discovered during an audit conducted earlier this year by the state Department of Education. Unaccounted for were monies raised by juniors and seniors, through activities ranging from class plays to candy sales, to finance the traditional prom and end-of-year trip. Also missing is money raised from library fees, concession booths and athletic events.

A receipt book from which pages of receipts had been torn suggested that a clumsy attempt had been made to conceal that fact that funds were missing. But duplicate receipts kept by coaches and class sponsors enabled investigators to document the amount of money that had disappeared, Brackett said.

Wheelwright was one of three schools initially audited because their activity funds showed a deficit at the end of the 1984-'85 school year. The others were Prestonsburg High School and Auxier Elementary. Audits have subsequently been conducted also at Betsy Layne High School, Clark Elementary, McDowell, Harold, and Prestonsburg Elementary.

All school activity funds—even Wheelwright's—ended this year in the black, and auditors had praise for the manner in which the books were kept in some of the audited schools, Brackett noted.

Pack, 50, was hired as principal at Wheelwright in July, 1983 after a 25-year teaching career, most recently as principal and athletic director at Lynch (Harlan county) elementary and high schools. He was asked to step down as principal of the 280-student school in March after bomb threats had been received at the school and a delegation of teachers told Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. that discipline had broken down and the school needed new leadership.

Pack was reassigned to Melvin and Osborne grade schools and was replaced as principal by Wilbur "Shorty" Jamerson for the remainder of the school year. On Jamerson's retirement at the end of the year, Lonnie Slone was named principal.

Debbie Hall, clerk and bookkeeper at Wheelwright, was cleared by a board investigation of any responsibility for the money missing there, the board attorney said. Football coach Danny Johnson, whose management of funds raised through soft drink sales had also been questioned by state auditors, was also (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

June 30 Deadline...

Board Thinks It's Ready, Spillman Not So Certain

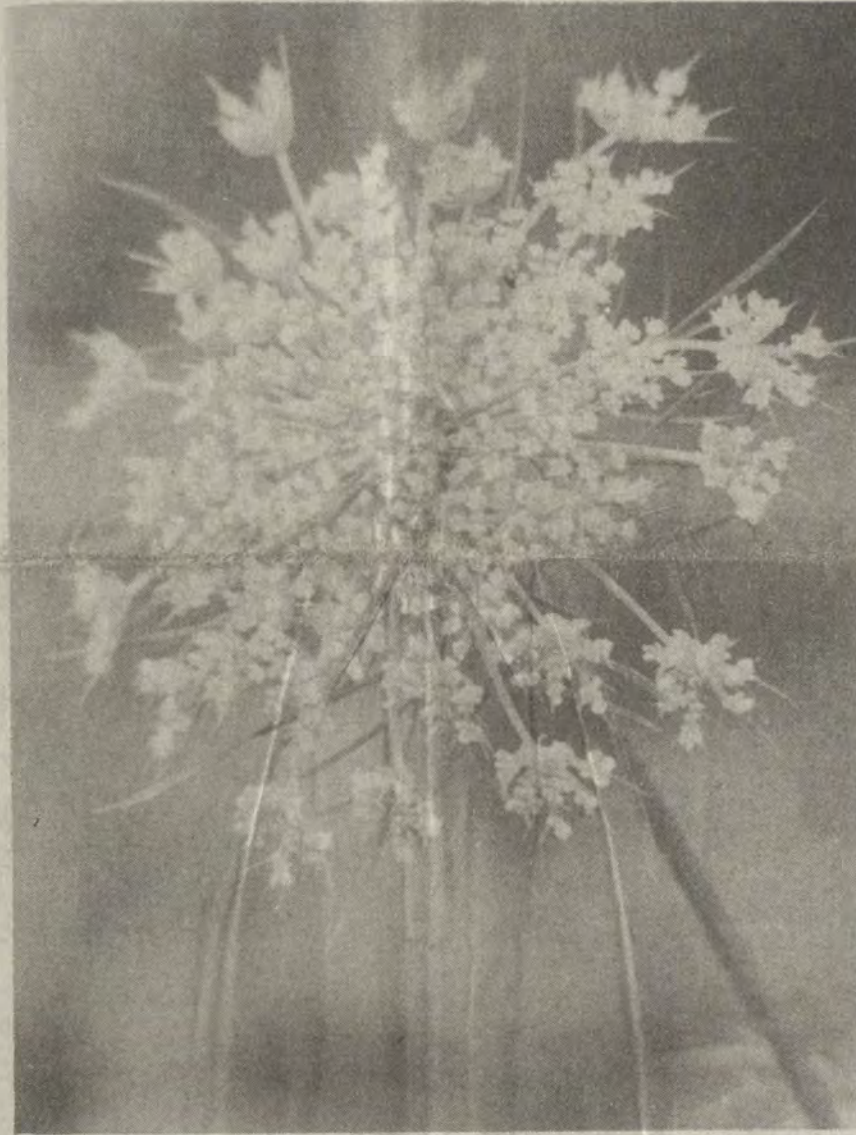

A dramatic move by the state Board of Education yesterday (Tuesday) brought Floyd schools a step nearer to a state takeover. According to reports reaching here last night, the state panel, in its monthly meeting in Frankfort, gave Floyd Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. and the Floyd Board of Education until August 15 to show why they should not be removed from office and to show why the Floyd school district should not be declared academically bankrupt.

Under a recent state law, which has yet to be tested in practice, a school district may be taken over by the state if it fails to meet minimum standards.

Board of Education officials here sounded confident last week that Floyd schools would pass muster by the June 30 deadline set by state Schools Superintendent Alice McDonald, although a state official who monitored a special meeting of the board on Wednesday later expressed doubts about the school district's readiness.

The state Board of Education, which met yesterday (Tuesday) in Frankfort, was scheduled to receive evidence from Floyd officials that they have remedied deficiencies uncovered by recent state inspections here, including audits of lunchroom and activity funds at nine schools last spring.

Assistant Superintendent Ray Brackett told the local board that all (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Music Theatre Marks Its 21st Year This Week

The Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre is celebrating its 21st season with three popular musicals and special, half-price shows tomorrow (Thursday) and Friday.

The plays include "The Sound of Music," "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum," and "Pippin." All have been presented at Jenny Wiley in the past, with "Forum" and "Pippin" being done during the 1979 season. "The Sound of Music" has not been presented since 1971.

The plays will be presented on a rotating basis throughout the summer. "The Sound of Music," which premiered last Wednesday, will be presented again on Friday, while "Forum" opens tonight, and Pippin begins its run on the 10th.

The plays are all Broadway musicals. In its 21-year history, the Summer Theatre has presented only two non-musicals, "Mr. President," in 1966, and "The Legend of Jenny Wiley," in 1967. "Jenny Wiley" was written by Jeanne Jerrems, then an instructor at Prestonsburg Community College. "The Sound of Music" tells the true story of the Von Trapp family, who escaped from Nazi terror in 1938 Austria. It includes such memorable songs as "Climb Ev'ry (See Story No. 5, Page 4)

Martin Water Plant Bids Rated Too High

The city of Martin will finally get its new water lines, it seems, but will not have enough money to rebuild its aged water treatment plant.

That much seemed clear Thursday, when a second round of bids was opened for the project, for which $1.4 million in government grant and loan funds has been committed.

The second round of bidding seemed advisable when bids, which were first sought two months ago, came in considerably higher than engineers had estimated. The decision to readvertise for bids proved costly, however. While the low bid for rebuilding the water plant came in $30,000 lower the second time (See Story No. 3, Page 4) around, the low bid for replacing the water lines was $121,000 higher.

"We took a gamble and we lost," said Holly Leach, water specialist with the Big Sandy Area Development District and a key adviser on the Martin project.

Bids on a water storage tank and a line linking the Martin system with Prestonsburg's came in close to what engineers Haworth, Meyer and Boleyn had estimated. Low bidder on the water tank was Cumberland Harvester, of Lexington, who offered to install it for $90,250. C V & C Construction, of Worthington, said they could lay the connecting line for $179,752.

On the reconstruction of the water treatment plant, however, the engineers' estimate—$292,200—proved well wide of the mark. In the first round of bidding, Kinder Construction, of Morehead, offered the low bid of $585,000, more than twice the engineers' projection.

Southern Construction Company shaved $30,000 off that price in the second round, tendering a bid of $535,000. At the same time, however, Kinder Construction's low bid on replacing the city's rusty water lines jumped from $810,945 in the first round to $931,305 in the second. As a result, it appears likely that the Martin water plant will be shut down and the city will buy treated water from Prestonsburg Utilities, which has the capacity and the will to supply it, Leach said.

Bids cannot be formally awarded until state approval is given. Assuming that approval is forthcoming by August, construction on the new water system could begin as early as September, Leach said. The project is expected to take about 18 months to complete, depending on the severity of the winter, she said.

This Town...That World

Would you say that June is fading into July or that it's melting?

THE ANSWERED QUESTION

The message these terrorists are sending us is not as much "Yankee, go home" as a stern admonition for us to stay home.

And if we do stay home, who is to guarantee that these crazy killers won't come here after us?

We can all ask questions and get no answers, but here is one that pretty well answers itself: How come nobody has hijacked any Russian planes or bombed any of their embassies?

THE EAGLE SCREAMS

July 4, Independence Day, is the time, they say, for us to make the eagle scream. But nobody prescribes by official mandate how we shall go about it.

The day is not a time when this country will trot out its armed might, parade its ability to make war by marching its men and women in uniform, sending aloft its planes in sky-darkening numbers or putting on review its tanks and cannon and all the martial resources of the land. REUNION SCHEDULED

The John Morgan Conley family reunion will be held July 7 at the home place on Salt Lick Creek.

Chemically dependent people are black, white, and brown. They are rich, poor, and middle-class. They are men, women and adolescents who suffer from the nightmare of addiction in your community and others. In 1982, the East Kentucky Health System Agency estimated that 15,000 individuals in the Big Sandy area (i.e., Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin counties) were in need of alcohol and drug abuse treatment. Fortunately, that treatment was available.

Twenty years ago, concerned Big Sandy residents and professionals struggled with an escalating substance-abuse problem and diminished resources. Inpatient hospitalization units were occupied, out-patient clinicians overworked, county jails overcrowded. Other services were usually too far away to be feasible. In answer to the critical need for extended services and alternatives to the "drunk-tank," a detoxification center was established in Floyd county.

The Layne House opened its doors to the troubled in 1975. It was named in honor of Frank Hopkins Layne, a recovered alcoholic who spent thirty-four years helping others stay sober. A non-medical detoxification unit, the facility offered primarily sobering-up and referral services. For the substance abuser, it was a comfortable haven where sobriety could be regained with support and modicum of dignity. Clients were allowed to remain in the unit for as long as five days. During that time they were interviewed, cared for, and referred to appropriate help agencies.

Over the years, Layne House services and programs have been expanded. What began as a sobering-up station is now a therapeutic community for those with chemical dependency problems. In addition to the detoxification unit, clients may choose to participate in a 30-day residential treatment program which includes individual and group therapy and educational services. Residents attend three Alcoholics Anonymous or Narcotics Anonymous meetings per week. Their families are encouraged to take part in the programs and to attend local Al-Anon meetings.

Within this therapeutic community, alcoholism and related chemical dependencies are considered progressive, chronic and, if not arrested, fatal illnesses which leave no part of the individual unaffected. Layne House workers try to involve the participants physically, emotionally, intellectually and socially. But as alcohol/drug counselor Teresa Cox pointed out, these people must ultimately save themselves. "We only provide the tools. Clients have to accept the responsibility for recovery."

The Layne House is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week. Services are available to men and women in Floyd, Pike, Magoffin, Johnson, and Martin counties. The staff is comprised of experienced drug and alcohol counselors. At least one staff member is on duty at all times.

The building itself is located behind and operated by the Floyd County Mountain Comprehensive Care Center. Plans to utilize an adjacent building are underway. According to Drug and Alcohol Program Director Mike Vance, the building will become a recreation and study area for Layne House residents. It will also be available for meetings. Don Howard, an alcohol/drug counselor who has been employed by Mountain Comprehensive Care for 11 years, feels the needed changes will definitely "make the program work better".

In 1984, 125 people received care in the Layne House detoxification unit; 74 participated in the 30-day program. They were chemically dependent people; alcoholics, narcotic addicts, etc... Most were also someone's mother, son, grandfather, friend. Hopefully, neither you nor a loved one will ever need substance abuse treatment, but for those who do help is within reach. For information please contact: Layne House Treatment Center, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, 18 South Front Avenue, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653, (606) 886-8572. For further assistance or crisis counseling phone the toll-free, twenty-four hour help-line number: 1-800-422-1060.

an amicable solution to the problem. Wednesday's meeting was not designed to produce an immediate ruling, however. Rather, the meeting was designed to allow residents who could not attend a May 17 formal hearing in Frankfort to express their concerns in the matter.

In remarks at the outset, Stumbo told the group of his concern for their plight, but cautioned that whatever happened would "have to be decided by law." People were allowed five minutes each to give testimony on why the gas should stay on, and nine chose to do so, though few took their full time. All said basically the same thing—they had relied on the utility for decades and needed the gas.

The 26 families affected by the controversy have been served by CITGO since 1948. In exchange for easements across their land, they have been paying only 35 cents per thousand cubic feet of natural gas. Other subscribers now pay $3.05.

It is CITGO's position that the well which services the families is almost dry, while the residents contend that it can still produce, or other wells could take its place.

Perhaps the most eloquent speaker for the residents was Don Riley. Riley, who appeared at the formal hearing in Frankfort, claimed the only reason the shut-off was proposed was to rid the company of subscribers paying the reduced rate. Said Riley, "They've got seven wells in that area. I don't think anybody with common sense could say they don't have pressure."

And Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, who also spoke at the meeting, agreed. "I've been at the homes where the gas lines are located. The well is on top of a hill, but lines come by the homes. I don't see why, if they plugged the well, they couldn't serve the people from other wells," said the judge-executive.

CITGO has offered the families up to $700 each to convert to propane gas, though just a few years ago it required many of them to spend twice that much upgrading their lines in order to keep their natural gas supply.

David Rubenstein, of the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, who is representing three of the residents, said he felt the meeting had served its purpose, to get the message of the people before the PSC.

What happens next is up to the PSC. Laura Murrell, a PSC member present at the meeting, said she hoped to get the matter resolved soon—certainly, she said, before cold weather hits.

Mountain," "Sound of Music," and "Do, A Deer"

The answer to why Rome fell might well be found in "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum." Written by Broadway composer Stephen Sondheim, this slapstick musical comedy combines young love, roguish slaves, and a mismatched husband and wife with pretty girls, foolish servants and more, for an evening of lively entertainment.

Pippin, described as "a whimsical and lighthearted fable," is set in the mythical land of Charlemagne, and deals with growing up and accepting the imperfections of life.

Directing duties this year are being handled by James L. Kottwinkel, a St. Louis, Mo., native who received his theatre training at St. Benedict's College and the University of Kansas. He has taught theatre at Virginia Tech, James Madison University, and as a guest artist at the University of Toledo. His past directing experience includes the Summer Theatre in Fort Collins, Colorado, Colorado's Creed Repertory Theatre, Kohler Arts Center Theatre in Wisconsin; and an active involvement in arts management work in New York City.

The amphitheatre is planning a Fourth of July celebration tomorrow night and a "Health Care Appreciation Night" on Friday, July 5.

On Thursday, anyone wearing red, white and blue to "A Funny Thing Happened on the Way to the Forum" will receive a 50% discount to the show. During intermission, a $25 savings bond will be awarded the person most patriotically dressed.

Friday night, employees and volunteers of local hospitals will be given a half-price discount to see "The Sound of Music." The showing will also be open to the general public at regular admission.

cleared of any criminal intent, the attorney said.

While Johnson was found to have bypassed required accounting procedures, he had receipts to show that money raised by pop sales was spent for legitimate purposes, the attorney said.

Of other board employees investigated as a result of the state audits, Prestonsburg Grade School Principal Thomas Tackett was found guilty in his management of an ice-cream machine at the school, while the case of school psychologist Larry Jervis, who operated a soft drink vending machine in the school district's central office, is being investigated, not by the local board but by the state attorney-general, Barber said.

All board employees are bonded for at least $5000 per occurrence—certain employees, like the board treasurer, who is bonded for $1.4 million, have higher coverage—and the board is now in process of raising the bond limit to $25,000 on all employees, Brackett said.

politically motivated. "Every prosecutor has to be selective in a sense," he said Friday. "You have to go through the files and sort out any things that are not crimes or where prosecution is prohibited by the statute of limitations. But we selected cases on their merits and nothing more."

Any crimes County Clerk Boyd might have committed—such as official misconduct, malfeasance in office, or facilitation of theft—would be misdemeanors and now immune from prosecution by virtue of the one-year statute of limitations, Lewis said. While some of the sums involved in the clerk's alleged forgeries were in amounts exceeding $100—the monetary line dividing felonies from misdemeanors—facilitation even of a felony is itself only a misdemeanor.

"She could only have been prosecuted if she was a principal (actor) in a felony," Lewis said, adding, "The police said they had no evidence of that." Unless police turn up new evidence, the case against the clerk is now closed, the attorney said.

Of the 16 defendants, trial dates have been set later this month for all but Samons. Depending on a review of documents produced by the defendant and the results of a lie-detector test he is scheduled to take, the single theft count against Samons could be dismissed, Lewis said.

Trial has been set in Pike Circuit Court on July 16 for Thomas Lafferty, Sr. and John Mark Stephens; on July 17 for Robert Duncan; July 18 for Anthony and Alma Castle and Thomas Lafferty Jr.; July 22 for Kenneth Roberts, Naomi Green and Harlos Marshall; July 23 for Irene Merion; July 24 for Edward Caudill and Hugh Fugate; and July 25 for Ballard, Ricky and Jackie Crum.

Ten Years Ago

(July 2, 1975)

Announcing the approval last Friday of $3,331,425 in construction work for Eastern Kentucky under HUD community projects, Congressman Carl D. Perkins said $483,000 of this total will be for water district expansion and for the building of a recreation complex in Floyd county. Residents of the town of Hindman, Knott county, in the Kentucky River watershed, within a matter of months will be drinking Big Sandy water. A HUD grant will be used to construct a water main from Hindman to connect with the Beaver Elkhorn Water District system near Lackey. Kentucky's average salary for classroom teachers this year is estimated at $8890, ranking the state 46th in the nation. Senator Wendell Ford last week recommended the relocation of the present headquarters of the Appalachian Regional Commission from Washington, D.C. to central Appalachia. Traffic accidents within the week have claimed the lives of two Floyd county men. Frank Winford Davis, 24, of Dwaile, was fatally injured last Tuesday afternoon in a collision of his motorcycle and a truck near Allen, and Arthur Spriggs, Jr., 26, was killed late Saturday night when struck by an auto at Drift. There died: Octavia Howell Boyd, 82, of Allen, last Thursday at a Lexington hospital; Eva G. Gatewood, 76, at the home of a daughter in Haverford, Pa.; Caroline Tackett, 61, of Willard, O., formerly of East McDowell, last Tuesday at a hospital in Wayne, Mich.; Katherine N. Calhoun, 40, of New Orleans, La., formerly of Prestonsburg, last Wednesday in a New Orleans hospital; Jack Newsome, 78, of Wayland, Monday at the McDowell hospital.

Twenty Years Ago

(July 1, 1965)

Saturday, July 3, will not end Prestonsburg's Independence Day celebration. Free movies, banjo, guitar and beauty contests will be offered at the Strand Theatre beginning at 9 a.m. Monday. With the June 19 deadline set for connections to be made to Prestonsburg's sewer system past, the Floyd County Health Department is moving toward what may be actual prosecution of individuals and businesses within a matter of weeks. Sixty-nine adults will receive high school equivalency diplomas Friday evening in commencement exercises at Martin high school for the General Education Development (G.E.D.) courses taught in the county. Body of Delzie Conn, 56, Dewey Lake State Park employee, was found after midnight Tuesday in a shallow Prater Creek pool, near his home. There died: Mrs. Flora R. Dingus, 82, of Hite, Saturday at St. Mary's hospital, Huntington, W. Va.; Rev. G. B. (Green) Allen, 82, of Garrett, June 25 at the McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital; Rev. Alonzo (Lon) Childers, 81, of Emma, June 23 at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin; Sgt. James Mullins, 47, formerly of this county, last Thursday in Germany.

Thirty Years Ago

(June 30, 1955)

Work began Tuesday on construction of a Dewey Lake State Park boat dock in a new location on Brandy Keg Cove. Drivers of the Sparks Brothers Bus Company left their buses here Tuesday morning and since that time the company's service from Prestonsburg to Wheelwright and to Hazard has been suspended. Cash prizes, oratory, contests of time-honored origin, baseball games, dancing, free movies, a watermelon feast—these are some of the items on a full day's program planned for July 4th celebrations in Prestonsburg and Martin. Two brothers, Raymond Chaffins, 23, and Bennie Chaffins, 20, were killed June 19 in an Indianapolis, Ind. automobile collision and buried on Rock Fork, near Garrett, last Thursday. The Clear Branch Mining Company tippie which was recently acquired by the Reed mining interests was destroyed by fire early Monday morning. Dewey Lake State Park is one of eight Kentucky parks on which a total of $3,500,000 is to be spent in a building program. Governor Lawrence W. Weatherby announced this week. East and West met here this week when the International Farm Youth Exchange program brought Miss Pushpa Mitra, of India, to stay two weeks at the home of Miss Joyce Ann Sturgill, of Harold. There died: William Osborne, 63, last Friday at his home at Topmost; Willie K. Hall, 75, former magistrate, last Friday at his home at Hj Hat; Randolph D. Spurlock, 62, of Prater, Wednesday at St. Joseph's hospital, Lexington.

Forty Years Ago

(June 28, 1945)

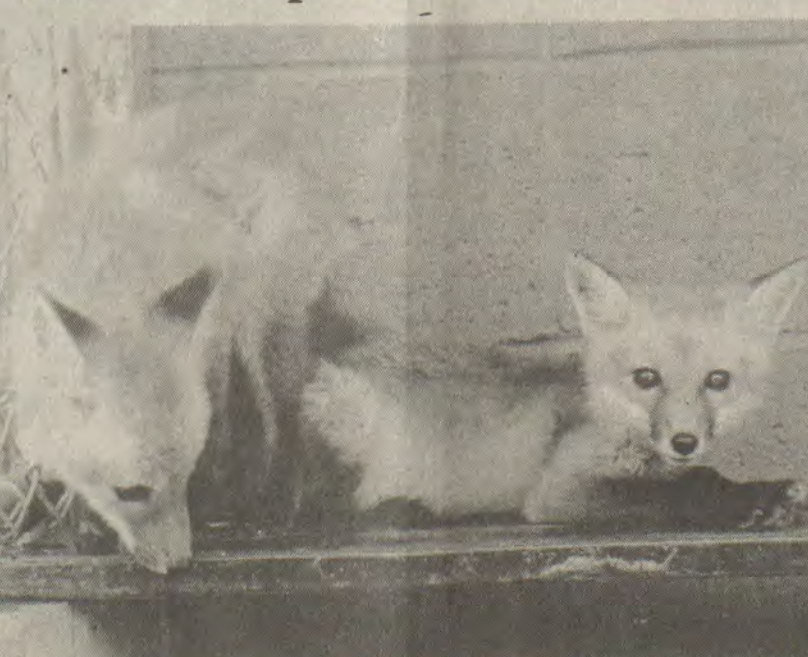

Floyd countians who may be hungry as a result of wartime meat rationing were invited to try their hand at catching the greased pig at the July 4 celebration here next Wednesday. Pfc. Ben Jarrell, of Dana, and Homer C. Powell, of Tram, are reported to have lost their lives in the Pacific theatre of war. Pfc. James Salisbury, of Amba, was reported slightly wounded on Okinawa. Congressman A. J. May was honored Sunday, his 70th birthday, with 175 or more of his hometown relatives and friends calling at his home. The death by a gunshot in his head of Wayne V. Gibson, 30, Tuesday at Lackey is believed to have been accidental. Former Superintendent Town Hall last week traded his home on Second street here and 47 building lots near Betsy Layne to John Allen for Allen's interest in seven gas wells on leases. Allen in turn traded the lots and his interest in three gas wells to Charles Moore, of McDowell, for the Union Grocery building which Mr. Moore recently purchased from Bud Spurlock. The Prestonsburg Vocational Shop will temporarily close next Saturday.

Fifty Years Ago

(June 28, 1935)

Oklahoma officers arrived here Saturday afternoon to claim Earl Jarrett, who is wanted there as a prison escapee—but Jarrett had been freed a day earlier on a writ of habeas corpus. Deputy Sheriff W. M. Griffith was wounded Sunday at Maytown by shotgun fire. Floyd county tax assessment has been certified at $9,884,647. Ill-health this week forced W. M. Caudill, of Murray, formerly of Prestonsburg, to withdraw from the race for Supt. of Public Instruction. Lewis Conley, of Prestonsburg, suffered cuts and bruises Tuesday in the wreck of a car here. Charles Frazier, 10, of West Prestonsburg, suffered a broken leg Friday when hit by an auto here.

Cubs to Help Teach Conservation

Wary redfox cubs retreated to a corner of their pen at the Eastern Kentucky Wildlife Federation shelter at West Prestonsburg. The shelter, originally intended as a refuge for stray cats and dogs, has recently begun to accept orphaned and injured wild animals as well. EKWF—which also operates a shooting range on Bull Creek and a game farm on Bucks Branch—hopes to use the animals as part of a program to teach children about conservation. The organization, which is principally sustained by membership dues, is seeking new members. Call 886-3189.

had yet to deal in executive session, and some purchases for which bids have been advertised but on which the bid deadline has not yet passed, he said.

Spillman bristled also at the board's ready assumption at Wednesday's meeting that it would be given more time to submit a plan for evaluating the superintendent. "I don't know if they'll be given an extension or not," the state official said after the meeting. "What does it mean to set a deadline if people just assume an extension will be granted? The point is, people must be accountable."

"That's all well and good," Brackett said later in response to Spillman's criticism, "but there is also an annual financial report to be prepared, a textbook report, a quarterly report, all by the magical June 30 deadline. It gets a bit overwhelming after a while."

"I don't see that another month is going to make much difference if (by getting an extension) you're going to do a better job, if it means it will give board members more opportunity to read the (evaluation) proposal," Brackett said.

The board treasurer noted that the school district is still awaiting a property tax rate that state authorities are supposed to submit to local boards by July 15.

On two matters that a citizen sought to raise at a June 19 meeting of the Floyd board, Spillman took strong exception to an assertion by an attorney for the board, who said that the board and Superintendent E.P. Grigsby, Jr. had been cleared by the attorney-general of any wrongdoing. "The attorney-general has said nothing to anyone (about charges involving the superintendent and board) as far as I know," Spillman said.

While the two matters are being investigated as part of a state police probe of the county's solid waste system, that investigation is not yet complete, a state police official said this week. Moreover, because federal monies were used to finance the system, results of the investigation would more likely be turned over to the U.S. Attorney than to the state attorney-general, he said.

At the June 19 board meeting here, Everett Akers attempted to ask whether Grigsby had profited from business done between Martin Sanitation Co. (in which he was a partner) and the board of education, and whether the board had improperly transferred a tract of land to John Allen and Adrian Lafferty. Attorney David Barber advised the board not to allow the questions, however, claiming that the attorney-general and the state board had already found the allegations to be groundless.

In other business Wednesday, the board rehired attorneys W.W. Birchett and Associates at a monthly stipend of $175; reappointed Brackett as board treasurer and raised his bond to $1.4 million; voted to continue depositing board funds with the Bank Josephine for another two years, and approved a $195,736 budget for the Summer Youth Employment Program.

Teacher Kenny Caldwell was transferred to Auxier, Jack Stanford to the dropout program, and Patty Elliott to Prestonsburg High School.

Quintana Minerals New Name of Firm

Robertson Coal, Inc. announced last week that it will change its name to Quintana Minerals Corporation, completing the reorganization that began a year ago.

The company also announced that it plans to open a new sales company in Lexington, to handle all coal sales and procurement activities. William D. Bishop has joined Quintana Minerals and will be president of the coal sales division. Bishop, a native of Lexington was formerly manager of marketing for the Sierra Coal Company. The AMCAR office in Cleveland, Ohio, will be shut down and all of its activities moved to Lexington. Quintana Minerals intends to actively expand in coal production and sales activities in the Eastern United States, it was announced.

In addition to its Lexington-based activity, Quintana Minerals owns Blackhawk Mining Company in Prestonsburg. Blackhawk owns coal mines and several long-term coal contracts, and is building a 7,000-ton trainload facility. Quintana Minerals has precious metals operations in the Western U.S. and overseas, also owns and operates a gypsum mine at Blythe, Calif., and holds copper, barite and oil shale reserves.

DEDICATION SERVICE HELD

During services at the Irene Cole Memorial (First) Baptist Church Sunday morning, a parent-baby dedication was held, with the pastor, the Rev. Steve Hopkins, telling those parents whose babies had been born during the past few months that "all who participate will be dedicating themselves to guide the lives God has entrusted to them into becoming what His grace might have them to become." Mrs. Helen Vickers was assisted by Mrs. Sandra Bellamy in presenting small Bibles to the babies and pink or blue carnations to parents. These included: Ronda and Clifton Raines and Daniel Clifton; Judy and Terry Dotson and Lee and Leslie Ann, and Lona Kay and Larry Charles and Erin Summer. Absent were Teresa and Keith Leslie and Heather Leigh.

Instead, we may spend the day as we please. We are encouraged to fly the flag proudly, but nobody tells you that you shall or must. It could be for some a day of rest from the work routine, time for an outing at the lake or a family picnic, or quiet moments of thanksgiving, or for formal celebration if we like—but all as free citizens.

The eagle will scream as long as matters stay that way.

A CIVIL PROCEDURE?

The claim being made to Knott, Perry and Letcher county land under old land grants recalls, somehow, the case of the visitor to Eastern Kentucky in the "old days." His host was taking him on a horseback tour of the countryside when a fusillade of gunshots rang out from a nearby hollow.

"What's the shooting about?" the visitor inquired with some anxiety.

His host grinned reassuringly. "Oh, nothing much," he said. "Just old man Jones and his neighbor straightenin' out a line fence."

ADD FLIMSY EXCUSES

For the category of weak excuses Jimmy Goble submits the following:

The two foxhunters had topped the highest knob around, just before darkness fell, and stood listening to the hounds running a fox along the ridge below when suddenly came a jarring note. It was the tolling of the distant church bell.

"Looks like I'm goin' to miss church tonight," one remarked with a note of regret.

"I couldn't make it, anyhow," the other explained. "My wife's sick."

OF JUNEBUGS, ETC.

Perhaps the least publicized of this fair month's attributes is the Junebug. I'm not fully persuaded that the creature deserves a lot of recognition, but there are those who can remember it as a memorable introduction to kite-flying.

The trick was to capture a Junebug tie a thread around a rear leg, turn the captive free and quickly switch the other end of the thread to a waiting child's hand. Sometimes the bug flew out of sight.

The pastime may have been a bit on the cruel side, but tinkertoys and a whole generation of games and mechanized playthings hadn't come on to the scene at that time, leaving parents the task of hatching up entertainment for their own, with few tools around except their own ingenuity. Out of such necessity came the tying of paper around a cat's feet, to the amusement of the youngsters when the mousetraps took off, trying to walk and kick its feet free in the same motion. Or to give, not the hot-foot but the hot-back to a terrapin to prove that the slowpoke could, with sufficient inspiration, move on out.

Perhaps the most cruel practice of the day was to switch a bullfrog, to prove that he would or could cry. The human society would not have approved, either, that sorry business of tying a tin can containing enough pebbles to rattle to a dog's tail. Some boys of the day found the results amusing—the alarm of the dog, his flight from that noise behind him, his quick, frantic glances over his shoulder to try to discover the source of that infernal rattling and banging.

Let's see—where was I?...Oh, the Junebug... I confess, I have flown them, but never, never did I put a live coal of a terrapin's back or whip a bullfrog or tie a tin can to a hound's tail.

Road Budget To Benefit Toler Road

Governor Martha Layne Collins announced last week that the state has budgeted $380,800 for maintenance and traffic improvements in the approved 1985-1986 Rural Secondary Program for Floyd county.

"In order for roads to be in good condition, it is essential that we keep them maintained," said Governor Collins. "Projects such as the one in Floyd County are an example of our continued effort to improve roads in Kentucky."

Governor Collins said the state will also repave 1 mile of KY 1426, the Toler Creek road; grade, drain and place a gravel surface on .9 mile of Road 5377, the Rice Branch Road (Prater Creek), and 1 mile of Road 5138, the Mink Branch road.

State Transportation Secretary C. Leslie Dawson said the program is estimated to cost $469,159. Dawson noted that the Mink Branch road project will be done by state forces and worked into the schedule as soon as time permits. The Toler Creek and Rice Branch roads are expected to be let to contract and will be advertised for bids as soon as possible.

Governor Collins explained that the criteria used to budget each county for the Rural Secondary Program includes land area, rural road mileage and population.

Rick Roberts To Run In Scottish Marathon

Rick Roberts, who came in second in the 6th Annual 3.3 Mile Mini Marathon held at Grundy, Va., Saturday, is at this time the only Kentuckian who will run in the Glasgow (Scotland) 5th Annual Marathon, second only to the Boston Marathon in which Roberts ran in 1982. He has three sponsors for the event and right now is looking for three more.

An accomplished runner, he has been in 200 races, nine marathons, one grueling 30-miler, among others. Of 25,000 entrants in the Peachtree Road Race in Atlanta, Ga., last year, he was among the top 500 to finish.

Currently, Roberts is acting as race director for the Moonlight Mile to be run at 9 p.m., July 4, on the Island Creek Road off Rt. 40 near Paintsville.

The run, sponsored by Citizens National Bank of Paintsville, is open to ages under 15 through over 50, male and female. There will be two overall trophies and three trophies for each age group. All entrants will be given a Moonlight Mile T-shirt.

For more information, those interested may contact Rick Roberts, 40 State Street, Paintsville, Ky. 41240.

Taylorville Lake Hottest Spot Around, Bassin' Buddies Find

The Bassin' Buddies met on Taylorville Lake, June 22, to battle the bass for the fourth time this year, but didn't realize that this time they were in for a war.

As one member put it, "Bass in this lake are as thick as fleas on a junkyard dog."

Every boat reported catching between 15 and 30 bass over 12 inches long, and bass were caught on every lure tried.

At Taylorville a bass must be 15 inches long to be a legal keeper, but on this day that didn't present a problem. After eight hours of hot action only one boat reported to the scales without a keeper.

The results of the tournament were: Gary Hackworth and Bill Botkins, first place, 5 lbs., 11 oz.; Paul Hagans, second, 4 lbs., 7 oz.; and Charles Fitch and Doug Clay, third, 3 lbs., 6 oz.

The big fish of the tournament at 3 lbs., 5 oz. was taken by Gary Hackworth on a spinnerbait.

The tournament was sponsored by Big Sandy Drugs of Paintsville.

Big Sandy RC & O To Meet in Paintsville

Big Sandy Resource Conservation and Development Inc., will have its regular quarterly meeting Thursday, July 11 in Paintsville at the Highland House starting at 6:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend. Business to be discussed includes proposed community improvement projects for the Big Sandy area.

Youth Meted 60-Day Term In Dist. Court

If you're involved in an auto wreck, it's not a good idea to flee the scene and then report your car stolen. Thomas Ray Goble, 18, of Endicott, learned that the hard way Tuesday, when he received a 60-day jail sentence after pleading guilty in district court to leaving the scene of an accident and filing a false report.

Goble's car ran into one driven by Irene Johnson on Goble Hollow, just north of here, on May 4. State Trooper Jerry Critchelow said Goble left the scene and later called police with false information. Assistant Attorney Eric Hall said the youth reported his car stolen.

In imposing a jail term, District Judge Harold Stumbo said he would probate it if Goble paid Mrs. Johnson the $819 in damages she said her Chevette had sustained.

Goble pleaded he was still in school and not earning an income and added, "I can't get any money if I'm in jail, that's for sure."

"That's your problem," replied the judge.

Others sentenced this week in district court, following guilty pleas or verdicts, were:

Charles Chaffins, drunk driving, two days' public service, $207.50; Timothy Crum, drunk driving, driving on suspended license, two days' public service, $207.50; Donald Eugene Ratliff, drunk driving, drinking on highway, $407.50; Jose A. After Costly Facelift... It's Almost a New Camp Shawnee Camp Shawnee, the wilderness refuge used by area Boy Scout troops since 1951, is getting a face lift from its new administrator, the Christian Appalachian Project (CAP).

The camp, which had fallen into a state of disrepair since the Scouts stopped using it regularly several years ago, has seen in recent months the construction of three new buildings and a pavilion, and the renovation of the old dining hall. CAP has also installed a sewage and water system, things the camp had always lacked. Previously, all water had to be hauled from the lake at German bridge, or from a man-made pond on camp grounds.

CAP acquired Shawnee officially in March of this year after the Bluegrass Council, which coordinates Scouting activities in 50 central and eastern Kentucky counties, decided against spending what was then estimated as $50,000 or more for the needed improvements. CAP has already spent about $100,000 and projects another $60,000-$70,000 over the next year on such projects as a swimming pool and a two-story dormitory. CAP leases the property from the Army Corps of Engineers for $1 per year, the same rate charged the Boy Scouts. As a stipulation of the lease, the camp must be made available to the Boy Scouts.

Kirsten Almo, a Minnesota native and CAP volunteer, is camp director. According to her, Shawnee, which is scheduled to open July 8, will have four one-week sessions this summer. The first two weeks will be for boys; the second two, for girls. There will be accommodations for 75 youngsters in each session. About 60 are expected for the first week.

The camp was still in the midst of construction last Friday, but Almo said she was confident that everything would be in order by the time campers arrived.

In addition to Almo, several other out-of-state volunteers will be working at Shawnee. Assistant director Tom List is a New York City native, as is waterfront supervisor Ann Marie O'Malley, while nurse Susie Smith hails from California. Other volunteers come from Illinois, New Jersey, and California. Eight local residents have been hired. Almo anticipates a staff of 22-24 members.

There will be several "levels" of camping available. In addition to regular dormitory-style sleeping quarters, there are tent platforms for the older children, as well as the potential for overnight camping in the primitive area around the camp.

Activities for the children, who will range in age from 7 to 14, include canoeing, swimming, pioneering skills, Bible school, crafts, drama, nature activities, and games such as basketball, baseball and soccer.

The fee for the camp will be based upon family income, with $4.00 being the average amount charged.

It is hoped that later in the summer, the Fellowship of Christian Athletes will hold a camp at Shawnee to teach children that athletics should be governed by Christian principles, according to Mike Sanders, director of operations for CAP's eastern region.

And the Scouts might be there, too, though not in the regular week-long outings as in the old days. According to E.B. May, Jr., chairman of Troop 27, and advancement chairman for the Lonesome Pine District, there may be some scouts using the camp later in the summer for weekend excursions. Camp McKee, near Mt. Sterling, now handles Shawnee's former programs.

Miss Sundaram Named Academic All-American

The National Secondary Education Council has announced that Aparna Sundaram has been named an Academic All-American. The Academic All-American Scholars must earn a 3.3 or better grade point average. Only scholars selected by a secondary school instructor, counselor, or other qualified sponsor are accepted.

Aparna, who graduated from Paintsville High School, was nominated for this national award by Barbara Conley, guidance counselor. Her biography will appear in the Academic All-American Scholar Directory, which is published nationally.

Miss Sundaram is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Raghu Sundaram.

More Than A Piece of Cloth

(Submitted by Charles W. Clifton, member of Paintsville D.A.V.)

Three Cheers for the Red, White and Blue. It's merely a piece of cloth—more precisely, several pieces—sewn together out of virginal white, rose red, cobalt blue. From the manufacturer's same bolts of fabric come awnings, or parachutes, or spinnakers. But joined together... this certain way... in this special combination... it becomes something else.

It stems from a heritage of having waved defiantly over the Battle of Bennington on the New York/Vermont border and Pork Chop Hill in Korea. It fluttered grimly over Hickam Field on December 7, 1941... and at half-staff, sadly, over the White House on November 22, 1963. The list rolls on: Tripoli, Fort Sumter, San Juan Hill, Corregidor, The Gulf of Tonkin...

It's endured the Berlin Crisis, the Bay of Pigs and Watergate; waved proudly above the marching feet of soliders as Paris was liberated in 1944, and been desecrated under the trampling feet of political protesters during a Chicago convention in 1968.

For a decade, not too long ago, some thought it unsophisticated, naive, not cool, to pay the proper respect owed these colors. It was square to ponder, to honor, what they represented. Even now, to some, they're just an inconvenience to be tolerated as they rise at the beginning of a football game.

Your flag... my flag... our flag. More blue than the sky it flies in, red as the blood of those who've died to protect it, white as the crosses and Stars of David under which those dead are buried. Changing through the years as each new state has added its star—never changing as a symbol of purpose and resolve. A flowing portrait of freedom, equally, for those who would revere or defile it.

So this July 4, Independence Day—or Memorial Day or Flag Day—or even the next time you happen to glance up and see "Old Glory" unfurled in the breeze, take just a moment to really look at it, to weigh—good and bad—what we've endured and enjoyed as a nation over the last two centuries.

Then ask yourself this simple question: "Under what other nation's flag would I rather live?"

Sixty-year chapter members who attended the 60th anniversary program of John Graham D.A.R. Chapter were, from left, Miss Maurine Mayo, Mrs. Edith F. James, Miss Lena T. Porter and Mrs. Ethel S. Cross.

John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, held their regular monthly meeting with a luncheon-program, June 8, at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, with the regent, Mrs. Ray Brackett, presiding. After the lunch, Miss Maurine Mayo gave a brief history of the John chapter, named for the Revolutionary soldier from Virginia who married Rebecca Witten, for whom a marker was unveiled by two great-great-granddaughters, Peggy Wells and Kathryn Stumbo Frazier, June 14, 1928, and which is located on the site of the first courthouse in Floyd county. Other readings by Mrs. Eleanor Horn, Mrs. Margaret P. Alley, and Mrs. Margaret Collins paid tribute to the American flag, with Betty Rowland leading the group in several patriotic songs.

At the conclusion of the program, the regent, assisted by the first vice-regent, Mrs. Eleanor Horn, second vice-regent Mrs. Mae S. Kendrick, and a new member, Mrs. Martha Jo Crisp, pinned the 60-year charter members, Mrs. Ethel Salisbury Cross, Mrs. Edith Fitzpatrick James and Miss Maurine Mayo, of the local chapter, and Miss Lena T. Porter, of the Pikeville Chapter, with DAR pins. Honored in absentia were Mrs. Maude Salisbury Mayo, Mrs. Ruth Salisbury May, and Mrs. Annie Harmon Stumbo, all members who organized the chapter June 12, 1925 at a luncheon given by the late organizing regent, Mrs. Jo M. Davidson, at her home on Court Street.

Also honored were a 56-year member, Mrs. Margaret P. Alley; a 51-year member, Tress Francis May; two 37-year members, Mrs. Anna Mayo Allen and Miss Annie Alice Harris; two 34-year members, Mrs. Leona G. Cooley, and Mrs. Opal S. May; and 30-year members, Mesdames Margaret Collins, Sally H. Goebel, Mae S. Kendrick, Margaret M. Spradlin and Norma S. Stepp.

Guests joining the chapter for the luncheon and program were Mrs. Docia B. Woods, Mrs. Pauline A. Burchett and Miss Betty Rowland, all of Prestonsburg, and Mrs. Astor Meade, of Paintsville.

Turner and Commission Name Governor in Suit

The Kentucky Railroad Commission and its chairman, Jimmy "Gabe" Turner have filed suit against Gov. Martha Layne Collins and Secretary of Transportation G. Leslie Dawson in an effort to establish the railroad commission's constitutional rights and powers.

Turner, a resident of Drift, in effect claims in his suit that the state constitution sets out varied duties for the rail commission but that the Transportation Department has illegally taken the funds which should be available to the commission to carry out such work.

Turner indicated that funds rightfully belonging to the railroad commission have in past years been diverted to the Department of Transportation. Negotiations to clear or change that situation were interrupted by the resignation of Transportation Secretary Floyd G. Poore, and Turner hinted that these negotiations may have figured in Poore's resignation.

Sophomores Selected For Leadership, Parley

Three Floyd county high school students attended the Kentucky Youth Leadership Seminar June 7-9 at Transylvania University, Lexington. They and other high school sophomores from state high schools were selected by faculty and administrators on the basis of scholarship, school activities and potential for leadership. The seminar was a part of a nationwide program for high school sophomores founded in 1958 by Hugh O'Brian, screen actor.

The Floyd students selected are Malasana Cole, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Cole, of Hueysville, student at Mountain Christian Academy, Martin; Damon Newsome, son of Damon and Jeanine Newsome, Prestonsburg High School student; Johnny Isaac, son of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Isaac, of Wheelwright, and a student at Wheelwright High School.

PRESTONSBURG'S OLDEST HOME, the old Johns house whose central portion was built in 1815, is now being dismantled. The structure on First Avenue was heavily damaged by fire in early February and said to be weakened beyond practical restoration. Thus another landmark of our pioneer heritage passes from the local scene.

A jam session and late registration start off the weekend Friday evening at 6 p.m. CDT. It Happened in Ohio

A 28-year-old former Ohio high school athlete is suing the city of Steubenville, Ohio and the Ohio State Board of Education for $1.2 million damages, claiming he never learned to read or write above a first grade level. The action contends that the student was encouraged by officials to participate in sports during his 12 years of school. The suit alleges that school officials failed to spot his reading disability and continued to pass him along.

Trees Need Help?

Growing trees produce a lot more than just wood. They create oxygen, help wildlife reproduce, and they keep the country looking beautiful.

The trees on well over half the nation's commercial forest lands are not growing as fast or as well as they should. The nation needs them—for the oxygen, the wildlife, the beauty—and the wood.

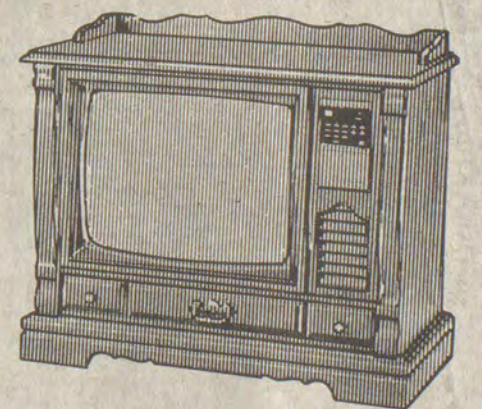

If you own wooded land, and would like to find out what you can do to help your trees grow faster and better, contact Tim Sheehan at the Kentucky Division of Forestry, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg. The telephone number is (606) 886-8562.

MOTION SICKNESS

If there is one thing that can put a crimp in traveling plans, it is motion sickness. If you suffer from motion sickness, you can now rest your mind and your stomach. An old and effective drug is now back in an easy-to-use form. Scopolamine is packaged inside a dime-sized disk that is placed just behind the ear. The self-adhering disk should be applied approximately four hours before beginning an activity that may cause motion sickness. The drug releases at a steady rate for approximately three days and remains in place even through showers and swims. Available by prescription only, the disk is intended for use by adults.

All prescription items and over the counter remedies are available at COOLEY APOTHECARY. Learn for yourself why your friends and neighbors already rely on us. Although we never play doctor, we do render assistance, offer alternatives to a problem and advice when first aid is appropriate. We are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

HANDY HINT:
The motion sickness disk can cause mouth dryness and drowsiness as side affects.

Burchett Hired Park Supervisor

The Prestonsburg City Council met in special session last Friday to approve Tony Burchett, of Prestonsburg, as the new administrator for Archer Park.

A controversy had arisen at the council's June 24 meeting over the proposed hiring of Burchett at a salary of $15,500 a year. Councilmen Bill Ray Collins, William O. Goebel, III and Paul Hunt Thompson were not willing to support the hiring of Burchett at that salary, and there was some dispute over whose job it was to hire an administrator, the council's or the park commission's. A joint meeting of the council and park commission was called for last Wednesday to iron out their differences, and it was decided that council would approve the commission's nominee, but at the salary of $14,500. Council met again on Friday to confirm Burchett's hiring.

Burchett, who began work Monday, is filling a vacancy of about six weeks, left when former administrator David Hereford resigned in late May. Burchett holds a B.S. degree in physical education from Eastern Kentucky University. His duties, according to City Manager David Evans, include overseeing management of the park, including the swimming pool, tennis court, skating rink, etc. Burchett will also be in charge of physical maintenance and any special situations which might occur. He is free to start new recreation programs as well, Evans said.

Mrs. Erma Perry and Mrs. Ethel Wallen, of West Prestonsburg, and their sister, Mrs. Sally Hale, of Buckeye, attended services at the Church of God of Prophecy, Sunday—the first time the three sisters have attended church services together in approximately 35 years.

Workers' Comp Case Closed

State Insurance Commissioner Gil McCarty announced recently the completion of the first phase of his Department's investigation of workers' compensation fraud in the coal industry.

Last September, B & M Insurance Agency of Martin, Kentucky was fined the sum of $23,000 for violations of the Kentucky Insurance Code and ordered to repay $500,000 in overcharges assessed against coal operators who were members of "mine safety groups."

Under the terms of the Insurance Department Order the operators were to be repaid on a pro rata basis. Computations of each operator's share were provided to the Department for review and cancelled checks were filed to verify both the issuance of the draft and acceptance of payment. The final cancelled check was received by the Department last week.

McCarty said that while most operators received their refunds within a short period of time, some had moved and required additional time to locate. In one instance the check had to be placed in escrow due to a lawsuit pending between disputing operators of the same mine.

While this concludes the most significant part of the Department's investigation to date, McCarty said his efforts are continuing and that anyone found to be violating the insurance laws of the State of Kentucky will be dealt with severely.

Judge Denies $98,263 Verdict Against Bank

What a circuit court jury did in February, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley undid in June, when he threw out a verdict awarding $98,263 to a Grayson coal operator.

Unless the judge is himself overruled by a higher court—the coal operator last Friday filed notice of an appeal—Larry Prichard will get nothing of the money he said the Bank Josephine owed him for coal he delivered in August, 1975 to the Lady Washington Mining Company in Louisa.

Lady Washington, which subsequently declared bankruptcy, was already heavily in debt to the Bank Josephine when some of the operators delivering coal to the company were paid with cold checks. One of them was Prichard, who was left holding a dud check for $9094.

Prichard said he approached the Prestonsburg bank, which was closely supervising Lady Washington's financial affairs, to tell them he would deliver no more coal to the ailing company unless the bank guaranteed he would be paid for it.

On the strength of an oral guarantee from Evelyn "Susie" Wells, a Bank Josephine vice-president, he shipped another 5552 tons of coal to Lady Washington, Prichard said. When the firm folded, however, the bank refused to pay for the coal.

After hearing evidence for a day and deliberating for 20 minutes, the jury found for the operator.

Bank attorney William G. Francis then filed motions asking Judge Conley to set the jury verdict aside and to set a new trial. Reiterating arguments made in the original trial, Francis said the bank had no written or oral contract with Prichard. In any event, he said, Dr. Paul T. Brizendine, owner of Lady Washington, had since come across a handwritten contract between Lady Washington and Prichard which would supersede any contract between Prichard and the bank.

In an affidavit, Brizendine said he found the handwritten contract, a week after the February trial, at the bottom of a credenza drawer in his Louisa office. Prior to that time he had forgotten that he had the document, he said.

Ashland attorney Gordon J. Dill, representing Prichard, argued that what he termed Brizendine's "convenient" discovery of the contract made no substantial difference to the case. Since the physician testified during the trial that he did not know of any subsequent contract with Prichard, he could not now claim that the later contract was intended to supersede Prichard's oral arrangement with the bank, Dill argued.

The bank knew what it was doing in encouraging Prichard to keep supplying Lady Washington with coal, Dill said, since keeping Lady Washington afloat offered a chance that the coal company would be able to pay off some of its indebtedness to the bank.

On June 10, however, Judge Conley sustained the Bank Josephine's motion to have the jury verdict set aside, saying he was persuaded by the bank's argument that Mrs. Wells had no authority to offer the kind of guarantee that Prichard claimed and that the coal operator should have known it.

With the judgment now rendered in favor of the Bank Josephine, the bank's motion for a new trial had become moot, the judge ruled.

Prestonsburg Woman New Commission Member

An executive order signed Monday by Gov. Martha Layne Collins named Mrs. Rose Collins, of Prestonsburg, a member of the state Oil and Gas Conservation Commission.

Mrs. Collins, widow of Scott Collins, Prestonsburg attorney, succeeds James F. Robinson, of Ashland, whose term on the commission had expired. Her term will expire June 21, 1989.

The commission is, among other things, empowered to enforce rules and regulations to prevent oil and gas disasters at production sites.

Governor Asks Support Of Education Program

Kentucky is facing the opportunity to set a new course for education. The future of our state, the quality of life, and the availability of jobs for our people depend on all of us meeting this vital challenge.

I have proposed an education improvement plan. It is a comprehensive plan that emphasizes accountability and performance and lays the foundation for the future. The plan will not solve all of our problems overnight, but it is a bold beginning.

My education plan will give our teachers more time to teach and reduce the size of their classes. It will attract and keep good teachers and improve school facilities.

Children from every district in our state should have the same opportunities to learn. This plan will help our less affluent school districts while also offering them the challenge to help themselves.

The plan rewards excellence in teaching. It supports that excellence through teacher scholarships, duty-free lunch periods, institutes, and a pilot career ladder.

I believe in accountability. We want to make certain monies are expended on real teaching needs. The plan provides assistance for teachers, principals, and school board members, balanced by stricter standards, certification tests, and evaluations.

Support from Kentucky's citizens is essential. It is my hope that people will read news reports, become informed about the education plan, and voice support to their state legislators. Our future depends upon it.

MARTHA LAYNE COLLINS
Office of the Governor

The State Road Needs

The COURIER-JOURNAL recently asked how much additional is needed for the Road Fund. The Transportation Cabinet, last week, made a detailed presentation showing a $165 million minimal need just to maintain the "status quo" on the 25,000-mile state system.

The Cabinet's analysis shows that there isn't enough revenue to match federal funds and provide essential services. And this doesn't begin to address local road needs (45,000 miles).

Only six states have a lower motor fuels user fee than Kentucky's 10 cents per gallon. A per gallon user fee of 15 cents would be less than the present taxes on gasoline and diesel in Indiana and Illinois (19-20.5 cents), and about the same as Tennessee, Virginia, and West Virginia, when all fees on motor fuels are considered.

Presently, 31 cents of every state Road Fund dollar goes for debt service. Severance tax diversion compounds the debt problem. A 5 cents per gallon increase will generate an additional $95 million annually. After statutory revenue sharing, some $52 million will be left for the state's primary highways—about what is currently being diverted ($47 million annually).

For the 12-year period ending in 1984, Road Fund revenues were up by 53 percent, but highway maintenance costs nationally were up by 155% (FHWA Maintenance Index). The Road Fund simply cannot provide essential services in maintenance, resurfacing, reconstruction, and safety.

Bailey Opposes Plan To Split College System

There has been some discussion at meetings of the Council on Higher Education about taking the Jefferson County Community College out of the University of Kentucky system and placing it in the University of Louisville system. Why should those of us in East Kentucky be concerned about this possibility?

Most East Kentuckians know of the efforts of our legislators to get needed library/learning resource buildings for Hazard and Prestonsburg Community College. Since the state's capital construction fund does not have sufficient money to pay for these needed additions, most school buildings are paid for with bond funds.

The amount of bonds that can be sold is directly linked to the registration fees paid by students in a particular college system. Since the Jefferson Community College accounts for approximately 25% of the total UK Community College enrollment, if this college were removed from the system the amount of bonds that could be sold would likewise be reduced by 25%. As anyone can see, this would reduce our chances of getting needed facilities for our young people here in East Kentucky by 25%.

That's why I, as state senator representing Floyd, Knott, Perry and Martin county am opposed to taking the Jefferson County Community College out of the UK Community College system. We have a difficult time of it getting the facilities we need for our people here in East Kentucky. Reducing our chances of getting the facilities we need by 25% will make it even more difficult.

Road to Dam Said a Mess

As the Fourth of July holiday promised an influx of visitors to the area, concern about the clutter along the lakeside road leading from Hager Gap to Dewey Dam rose this week.

One of those interested said the appearance of the former scenic route is similar to a garbage dump and that the grass had not been mowed this season.

Asked why the U.S. Army Corps of Engineers isn't maintaining this entrance road to the dam which it operates, Dean Murray, resource manager for the Corps, explained that under present policy the Corps is not allowed to do work on areas which are leased and outgranted, and the state Department of Highways, the Department of Parks and the Girl Scouts hold leases in the area. "There's nothing as Corps employees that we can do," he added.

Murray said he was sure all three of these lessees face manpower shortages and possibly a lack of funds. He said volunteers could do the cleanup work if the lessees do not object, and that Corps personnel, including himself, would give of their spare time to mowing and cleaning up the area if equipment is made available.

Circuit Court Clerks Attend State Meeting

Floyd Circuit Court Clerk Frank DeRossett and Deputy Clerks Dordena DeRossett, Nora McCormick and Pat Reynolds attended the summer Circuit Court Clerks conference in Louisville, June 19-21.

Eighty clerks attended the conference to learn new court-related procedures and new methods of handling financial and office planning.

Kentucky Chief Justice Robert F. Stephens provided clerks with an update on the state's judicial system. House Majority Leader Representative Greg Stumbo of Prestonsburg was the featured speaker at the clerks' luncheon. He discussed the importance of having a good working relationship between the state legislature and the courts.

Other featured speakers included Madison Circuit Judge James Chenault, Appellate Court Clerk John C. Scott and David Kimbel, a former vice president of Louisville's First National Bank.

Miss Cole Represents MCA at Transy Meet

Participants discussed Americans Incentive System and met several of today's leaders in education, government and business.

Deadline To Register State Fair Entries Set

The Kentucky State Fair is fast approaching, bringing with it the chance for thousands of exhibitors to compete — if they register their entries in time.

The fair is scheduled for Aug. 15-24 at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center in Louisville, and the State Fair Board has established a July 9 deadline for exhibitors in all categories except livestock to register for the 1985 fair. The July 9 deadline applies to the following categories: culinary, textiles, fine arts and crafts, plants and flowers, hobbies, antiques, tropical and native fish, home-made wine, vegetables and melons, bees and honey, field seeds and grains, fruits and nuts, Kentucky country ham, eggs, dairy products, tobacco, rabbits, pigeons, and poultry.

The deadline for livestock exhibitors is July 16, said Linda Cornelius of the Fair Board staff.

To obtain an entry form for any category, call the Fair Board at (502) 366-9592 or write P.O. Box 37130, Louisville, Ky. 40233.

Foster Home Drive Termed a Success

A year-long recruitment campaign for new foster parents has been a success, officials of the Kentucky Department for Social Services have announced.

The campaign, opened June 22, last year, resulted in more than 400 new foster homes being approved for participation in Kentucky's foster care program, according to Social Services Commissioner Anna Grace Day. "We set out with a goal of 300 new homes in the first year and a total of 500 additional foster homes by the end of the current biennial budget period in June, 1986," she said. "I'm extremely pleased because the results mean more than a successful recruitment effort. They confirm that public confidence in our foster care program did not bottom out in the face of negative publicity."

In 1984 there were a series of investigations of alleged abuse in a few foster homes and a full-scale review of Kentucky's system of child protective services including foster care. "If anything I believe the revelations of the past 12 months have strengthened our foster care program," Day said. "There is now strong public support for this department's needs to reduce caseloads and increase training. There is more attention being given on the community level to foster care as a local concern rather than simply a state government problem. And foster parents themselves are beginning to take a more active role in their own associations, in our training programs and in talkin within their own community about the needs of the state-wide foster care system."

As of June 1 there were 1,681 approved foster homes contracting with the Department for Social Services. Those homes provided services to an estimated 3,035 children or roughly 200 more than were involved in foster care one year ago.

Day said the recruitment efforts by the department must continue because the program loses a number of foster homes each year. "Last year alone, 158 foster families withdrew from the program and this department was forced to close more than 100 others due to issues such as age or illness of the foster parent, lack of proper care or other family problems," she said. "However, for the first time in several years we were able to screen and approve more new homes than we lost. The citizens of Kentucky should be very proud of that fact."

Unusual Geraniums With Scented Leaves

Very few annual flower beds, window boxes or indoor container gardens have existed without at least one geranium at some time. Native to South Africa, the common geraniums, with their large flower heads in reds, pinks, orange tones and whites, are among our easiest indoor/outdoor flowering plants to grow.

The common geranium has some interesting relatives, two being the fancy leaf geraniums with varicolored leaves of yellows, scarlets and bronze, and the ivy geraniums with leathery leaves shaped similar to English ivy. Still another is the scented geraniums whose leaves are used both for their fragrance and for flavoring.

Scented geraniums are as easy to grow as common geraniums, both preferring a sunny location with well-drained soil. The scented geraniums do flower and can have very striking single and multicolored flowers. The number of flowers per flowerhead is often limited, however, and therefore their floral display is not their major feature.

Gently rub the leaves of scented geraniums and the oils in their leaf cells may leave your fingers smelling like apples, lemons, peppermint or strawberry. In fact, there are several hundred different scents, with major groups such as citrus scents (lemon, lime, orange), mint scents (peppermint, spearmint, apple mint), fruit scents (apple, strawberry, coconut, grape), spicy scents (ginger, nutmeg), and even tree scents (pine, eucalyptus). And, of course, the queen of the scented geraniums, with many variations, is the rose geranium.

Due to the scent in their leaves, these geraniums are used in sachets, tussie-mussie nosegays and potpourri, and are often floated in finger bowls. Due to their flavors, they are used in baked goods (Try putting a few lemon or rose scented geranium leaves in the bottom of a cake pan and pouring a package cake mix batter over them; the cake will take on a gourmet flavor), jellies (try rose in apple jelly), under baked fruit (rose under baked apples or pears), or for beverages such as iced tea, lemonade and fruit punches (rose, citrus and peppermint).

Scented geraniums are available locally at many garden centers, or from growers specializing in herbs. There are also many good mail order sources for them. If you want to collect them, mail order will be the way to get the largest selection because you can buy from scented geranium specialists.

If you know someone with scented geraniums, perhaps you can get some cuttings. Cuttings root better if they are taken in late summer when new stem growth has matured. Cut the stem just below a node (the place where a leaf is attached). Remove all flower buds and all but the top few leaves, and let the cut stem end air dry for six to eight hours to begin to seal it off. Cuttings should root readily in moist perlite or vermiculite. Be sure there is at least two inches of rooting medium below the cut stem end for adequate space for root formation. New plants should be kept indoors in a sunny window for the winter, and can go outdoors after all possibility of frost is gone.

Too Much Sun Can Be Hazardous

Great-grandmother may have had the right idea. In her day the "proper" young lady carried a parasol and wore a hat, gloves, and a long skirt to keep her out of the sun. Today, a deep dark tan has replaced the earlier view of lily white skin as the sign of a beauty.

However, the United Cancer Council warns, great-grandmother was much less likely to develop dangerous and disfiguring skin cancer than are the bathing beauties of 1985.

The United Cancer Council is a not-for-profit organization founded in 1963. With offices in Indianapolis, Indiana and Washington, D.C., the United Cancer Council and its member agencies have long believed that public education was vital to reducing the incidence of cancer in the United States.

"Beauty may be skin deep," asserts UCC Executive Director Michael Hyman, "but skin won't be beautiful for too many summers if abused by over-doses of sunshine. Sunshine is a great thing, but its ultra violet rays can be dangerous. We just want people to know they should be careful and treat it with respect."

The most common form of cancer, close to 400,000 new cases of skin cancer are reported each year in the U.S. alone. Fortunately 95% of the cases are curable if treated early enough. People who are fair-skinned are more susceptible, but it can affect anyone, even blacks. Those with red or blonde hair and blue eyes are particularly at risk for their skin lacks sun-protective pigmentation.

Sun exposure is cumulative in its destructive effect. Most cancers develop in the patient's fifth decade, although the situation may be severe by the age of 20.

Skin cancer is particularly prevalent among people exposed to large amounts of intense sunlight over long periods of time such as farmers, fishermen, gardeners, swimmers, sailors and skiers. Culture patterns also affect prevalence of skin cancer. In the United States where drivers sit on the left, skin cancer most frequently appears on the left side of the face. Similarly, people living in the south are more prone to skin cancer than people living in less "sunshiny" climes.

Despite its frequency, skin cancer is easily diagnosed and treated. While usually not fatal, it can produce extensive deformity and scarring if not attended properly.

Basal cell variety begins as a small fleshy nodule, most frequently on sun-exposed parts of the face and hands. It progresses slowly, reaching one inch in diameter only after several months. In about one year, the lesion ulcerates and begins to bleed, shedding the crust. This process is repeated until treated. Treatment is performed under local anesthesia by a specialist. Lacking treatment, basal cell cancer can spread to surrounding normal skin and cause serious trouble.

Squamous cell cancer usually appears on preexistent, precancerous lesions on any area of the skin or mucous membrane. The lips, mouth and genitalia are likely sites. Treatment is essential as the lesions will increase in size and will spread if unattended. White thickened patches on the lips and mouth and horny growths in sun-exposed areas of the skin may be pre-malignant forerunners of squamous cell cancer. The lesions are benign as long as the individual is not exposed to sunlight.

"We are not trying to return to the ways of yesteryear," maintains UCC's Hyman. "Hoop skirts and parasols are long gone. We are, however, trying to alert the public to the potential dangers they unwittingly expose themselves to. They may be trading a day of sun-bathing now for years of skin cancer later. And I personally don't believe that is a good deal by any standard!"

"We would tell concerned citizens to enjoy the summer. Stay active. But protect yourselves. 90% of all skin cancers develop an uncovered parts of the body."

"Be aware of what you are doing. Cover up. Wear appropriate clothing and apply the proper sunscreens. Then you can enjoy outdoor activities in the sunshine—your whole life long. As great-grandmother would say, 'An ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure.'"

Texas Rancher Named New Chief of SCS

Wilson Scaling, of Clay County, Texas, was named Chief of the Soil Conservation Service (SCS), May 21. He becomes the seventh chief to head SCS during its 50-year history, replacing Peter C. Myers who has been appointed Assistant Secretary of Agriculture for Natural Resources.

On his Clay county farm in north-central Texas, Scaling operates a cow-calf and yearling operation. His conservation activities include proper grazing use, brush management, wildlife conservation, and conservation tillage. Several ponds for domestic livestock and wildlife have been constructed.

Scaling is a past director and member of the Little Wichita Soil and Water Conservation District. He is also a past director of the Texas Association of Soil and Water Conservation Districts and a member of numerous cattlemen's organizations.

A 1961 graduate of Texas Tech University with a B.S. degree in animal husbandry, Scaling served in the U.S. Army Reserves from 1961 to 1967.

As Fields Dry, Farmers at Work

Drier weather gave farmers across the Commonwealth an average of 4.5 days for fieldwork during the week of June 17.

"In some areas, bottomlands were too wet for work and standing water from the previous week's rainstorms had caused some crop damage," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. "However, where conditions permitted, farmers planted soybeans and sorghum, harvested hay and small grains, set tobacco, applied fertilizer and cultivated."

As of June 21, soil moisture across Kentucky was rated 80 percent adequate, 19 percent surplus and 1 percent short. Just a week before, 55 percent of the land was rated surplus.

The state's corn crop is making good progress despite reports of yellowing due to wet field conditions and damage from rootworms and cornborers. State-wide, the corn condition was rated 28 percent excellent, 59 percent good, 12 percent fair and 1 percent poor.

The crop has reached an average height of 23 inches compared to 18 inches at this time last year and 24 inches on the average. Corn in most advanced fields has reached a height of 55 inches to more than six feet.

About 10 percent of the acreage is tasselling. This tasselling figure compares to less than 1 percent at this time last year and the average of 2 percent.

Soybean planting is 64 percent complete, slightly behind the 72 percent at this time last year but equal to the five-year average.

Excess moisture has damaged some soybeans, however, the crop as a whole is rated 13 percent excellent, 58 percent good, 22 percent fair, 5 percent poor and 2 percent very poor.

Tobacco continues to make good progress. Setting in the Commonwealth is complete, and resetting plants has been minimal this year, Boswell said.

Forty-two percent of the acreage is one to two feet tall, and 10 percent has grown to more than two feet in height.

Reporters for the Kentucky Crop and Livestock Reporting Service rated the crop as 18 percent excellent, 58 percent good, 22 percent fair and 2 percent poor.

Growers are experiencing some problems with angular leaf spot, manganese toxicity, temporary phosphate deficiency, anthracnose, other disease and insects. Blue mold has been confirmed by only 4 percent of the reporters for the reporting service.

Wheat harvest is now 29 percent complete, ahead of last year's 15 percent. Yields are variable, however, harvest is expected to advance rapidly as fields dry out.

Grain sorghum planting is progressing slowly. Planting of this crop is now 78 percent complete.

When weather permits, hay harvest is active. Much of the first cutting is of low quality after being rained on or cut overripe because of wet fields. The recent rain should benefit future cuttings.

Pastures are in good to excellent condition.

Governor To Convene Special Session, July 8

Governor Martha Layne Collins will call a special session of the General Assembly to advance her plan to improve education in Kentucky.

The session will convene July 8. The official call, including topics for consideration, will be issued by the governor this week.

"Kentucky cannot wait any longer for us to act," the Governor told members of the Interim Joint Committee on Education as the legislators concluded a three-day conference on education in Louisville.

"Our task is clear," she said. "We have seen that Kentuckians want to improve their schools."

In urging the legislators to adopt her proposed Education Improvement Program, Governor Collins said, "Let it be said that a tradition of mediocrity was shattered at this special legislative session."

"Let it be said that a new tradition of excellence was begun... a tradition that serves the aspirations of hard-working Kentuckians who demand the best in their schools and will accept nothing less."

The plan Governor Collins has proposed includes increased support for teachers' pay and professional development, a reduction in elementary school class size, a writing program, more money for the state's poorer school districts and more training and management assistance for school administration.

Overall, the plan calls for an additional $287.7 million to be spent over the next two-year period. The extra funds would be generated by an increase in corporate fees and taxes.

The plan that Governor Collins has presented to the legislators was developed over the past months through the efforts of many groups and individuals, including her own Council on Education Reform, the Prichard Committee for Educational Excellence and its Town Forums and Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald and her staff.

The governor also received ideas and suggestions from hundreds of Kentuckians as she traveled all across the Commonwealth for community and school meetings on education.

"From these forums, from the groups that studied our education needs, and from the work of this Joint Committee on Education, we have developed an Education Improvement Program that is a plan for the future," the Governor said. "For the first time, Kentucky will have a foundation upon which to build a quality education system."

'Historymobiles' Ready For Service in State

The Kentucky Historical Society will bring its popular "Historymobiles" to schools, parks, county fairs, and community events. Now available for presentation are two historical exhibits entitled "Rivers, Roads, Rails: Transportation in 19th-Century Kentucky" and "The Civil War in Kentucky." Interested groups must schedule visits well in advance, and need furnish only an appropriate electrical outlet and an adequate parking area.

A knowledgeable historian travels with the mobile exhibits, showing the slide presentations and interpreting the displays. Many good dates are still available for the summer. For more information, contact the Historymobile staff at the Kentucky Historical Society, P.O. Box H, Frankfort, Ky. 40602. The telephone is (502) 564-2662.

Technical Assistance For Parks Operation To Be Available Soon

Technical assistance to operate local and county parks and recreation programs will soon be available from the Kentucky Department of Local Government, Governor Martha Layne Collins announced recently.

The Kentucky Outdoor Park and Recreation Assistance program (KOPRA) is designed to help Kentucky communities establish park and recreation departments and apply for federal grants-in-aid and should be fully operational this summer. Assistance will be available for organizing recreation boards, community development planning, fundraising, facility design, programming and maintenance.

"I am very pleased to announce the establishment of this program," Governor Collins said. "I believe KOPRA will be one of the most widely requested services at the state level, and will demonstrate immediate and lasting results."

The Governor added that KOPRA will be even more visible with soon-to-be-published brochures, how-to manuals covering aspects of park and recreation operation, development and maintenance, and listings of local and county job openings.

Richard D. Cole, Commissioner of the Department of Local Government, said the new program will directly complement one of DLG's federal park and recreation funding programs, the Land and Water Conservation Fund.

"The fund is one of the most important park and recreation funding programs currently available to local and county governments in the Commonwealth," Cole said. "It is financed by the National Park Service and has provided millions of dollars in matching grants for projects in Kentucky since 1965."

DENTAL TIPS

Dr. H.G. Sallsbury
RICHMOND PLAZA,
PRESTONSBURG
PHONE 886-2676

CLEANING DENTURES

Q. How should dentures be cleaned?

A. Any foreign elements in the mouth for extended periods, such as braces, orthodontic wires and bands, or partial or full dentures, tend to invite bacterial growth and destroy surrounding tissue. That's why these elements should be kept scrupulously clean. Dentures should be scrubbed with a scrubbing brush (fingernail type) or a denture brush, using an ordinary bath soap. Avoid using hot water or gritty powders. (Soaking dentures in patented commercial cleansers does not get them really clean.)

To help dentures last longer and give you the comfort and function you need, tartar deposits should be removed professionally at regular intervals. Between these office cleanings, dentures can be soaked overnight at least once a week in full-strength white vinegar to soften the tartar, making it easier to remove with a toothpick or brush.

KENTUCKY RIVER TO GET ROCKFISH HYBRIDS

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has stocked 200,000 rockfish hybrids in the Kentucky River between Lockport and Beattyville, according to Pete Pfeiffer, director of the department's Division of Fisheries.

Four locations received 50,000 of these fish, which are the result of crossing a white bass with a rockfish (a saltwater striped bass).

Lockport was stocked June 19 and Camp Nelson, Frankfort and Heidelberg in the Beattyville-Booneville area on June 25.

Rockfish hybrids, which resemble white bass but can grow to weigh 20 pounds or more, were stocked in the Kentucky River for the first time last spring. So far, these fish seem to be surviving and growing well, according to Pfeiffer, who says that the fish stocked last year should reach the 15-inch minimum size limit late this summer.

Two lakes in Kentucky—Herrington and Barren—also received stockings of hybrid rockfish in June, with 50,000 placed in Herrington and 200,000 in Barren. The fish are approximately 1½ inches long when stocked.

SALT RIVER STOCKED AFTER MAJOR FISH KILL

After two major fish kills within one month's time Salt River has been stocked with 29,000 1½" to 2" largemouth bass. The stocked fish should reach "keeper" size by 1989.

TO GET M.A.R.S.H. FUNDS

Kentucky will receive over $28,000 to help improve waterfowl habitat in the state, according to Don R. McCormick, commissioner of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

These funds are being provided on a dollar-for-dollar matching basis by Ducks Unlimited, a nationwide waterfowl conservation organization, as part of its M.A.R.S.H. program. M.A.R.S.H., which stands for "Matching Aid to Restore States Habitat" provides money to the states based on the amount of money donated to DU from each state. More than 3 million dollars will be available nationwide. The more money volunteers raise in a state, the more money is available to that state's fish and wildlife agency, according to Billy Joe Cross, M.A.R.S.H. coordinator for the Mississippi Flyway.

TAGGED BASS WORTH MONEY

There are 500 bass swimming around in Cave Run Lake worth $5 each. These fish have been tagged as part of the ongoing black bass management plan for the lake, and the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is offering the $5 reward for returning the tags. Largemouth bass over 15 inches were tagged, as were Kentucky (spotted) bass eight inches long or longer. A study of the tag returns will help biologists assess the impact of the new regulation at Cave Run which places a 15-inch minimum limit on largemouth bass and removes the size limit from Kentucky bass. Envelopes for returning the tags are available from area docks and sporting goods stores.

Another phase of the bass management plan for Cave Run got underway with the recent stocking of 80,000 smallmouth bass in the lake. Biologists expect that in a few years smallmouth bass will become an important part of the total bass fishery at Cave Run. There is also a 15-inch size limit on these fish.

Enough For A Fish Fry

The one that didn't get away. This catfish was caught by Lewis Dotson, of Prestonsburg and Earnest Hall, of Stanville, from the head waters, of Cave Run. The estimated weight was 35 to 40 lbs. and the length was 38 inches.

Bluegrass State Games To Involve Thousands

Governor Martha Layne Collins recently announced the beginning of the Bluegrass State Games, a series of athletic competitions in the Olympic tradition that will involve thousands of Kentuckians of all ages.

"This year, on August 2, 3, and 4 we will sponsor competition in tennis, track and field, bowling, soccer, softball and equestrian events," the Governor said. "Yet, these first games will be modest in scope compared to what is already being planned for 1986 and beyond."

Collins also appointed the Governor's Bluegrass State Games Committee chaired by Travel Development Commissioner Dr. Bob Davis, to put on the games. Members of the committee represent a broad range of interests, from former Kentucky Olympians to sports association representatives, government and private enterprise.

"Based on estimates by the various sanctioning sports associations that will conduct these games," Governor Collins said, "we estimate that as many as 15,000 to 20,000 Kentuckians may participate."

Governor Collins said the games would provide a wholesome atmosphere in which to promote amateur athletics.

"They will also give Kentucky's best amateur athletes an opportunity to demonstrate their olympic potential and have that potential properly recognized," she said.

"All these benefits aside," the Governor said, "we shouldn't underestimate

Wildlife Series Encores On KET

Lush tropical rain forests, stark polar icebergs and mysterious underwater worlds comprise a few of the exotic terrains explored when the series "Living Wild" encores on KET beginning Sunday, July 21, at 7 p.m. The programs repeat Saturdays at 8 p.m.

Shot in remote locations around the world, the series travels from the desolate shores of Antarctica in the opening segment to the treacherous sea cliffs of the British Isles. This collection of one-hour documentary films features portraits of animal life in which American audiences can view some of the world's most exotic and rarely observed patterns of animal behavior.

Several noted commentators and guides host each segment of the series. On Sunday, July 28, in "Voyage to the Vermillion Sea," naturalists Krov and Ann Menuhin journey to the waters of Baja, Calif., to photograph the whales and giant sharks of that region. Later in the series, David Attenborough narrates "Hunters of the Dugong," filmed in Papua, New Guinea.

"Living Wild" is a tribute both to the earth's vanishing wildlife and to the wildlife photographer's art. The series focuses on the threat of extinction of many of the earth's rarest animal species and suggests that many of these losses may not be recoverable.

"Living Wild" is a production of WGBH, Boston.

1985 N.K.C. Reserve World Champion Winner

Kentucky was well represented at the 1985 N.K.C. World Champion Coon Hunt held in Rome, Georgia, June 20, 21, 22. There were 418 dogs entered in this competition representing fourteen states. Moore's Deep Creek B-Jay, owned by Robert N. Moore, of Prestonsburg, and handled by Jack Sharp, of Insko, Kentucky, was awarded the 1985 N.K.C. Reserve World Championship.

Thank You

The Christian Appalachian Project wishes to express our many thanks to all the people who made The Admiral Dewey Boat Parade and Festival a wonderful success. A special thank you to The Floyd County Rescue Squad, Mr. Leon Russell, Park Superintendent, Mr. Rick Fuller of the Jenny Wiley State Park, Mr. Dean Murry, Resource Manager, Col. John Wilson, Mr. John McGuinn, Mr. John Nicholes of the Corps of Engineers, Mr. Larry and Mr. Keith Jones of McDowell. We would like to remind every one to remember the Floyd County Rescue Squad for the fine service they provide for all of us.

Dog License Deadline Has Already Arrived

July 1 was an important date for "man's best friend."

That was when dogs across Kentucky, ages six months and older, must be licensed for another year.

"The licensing fee of $1.50 is quite reasonable," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. "Half of the fee remains in the county of purchase and the other 75 cents is placed in a fund to cover losses to livestock and poultry which have been damaged by stray dogs."

In 1954, the General Assembly passed the Kentucky Dog Law. It provides for each county fiscal court to employ a dog warden, for each county to create a dog pound and for each county to sell dog licenses.

The Legislature placed the dog licensing program under the administration of the Agriculture Department's Division of Livestock Sanitation.

The license tag must be worn by the dog at all times. Any dog without a tag can be picked up and impounded by the local dog warden.

The law also provides that anyone who does not license his or her dog can be fined between $5 and $100 or imprisoned for five to 60 days or receive both a fine and imprisonment.

"The dog law traditionally has not been popular with many people," Commissioner Boswell said. "However, I think those farmers who have been reimbursed for livestock and poultry losses because of stray dogs will tell you they're glad it's on the books."

The United States is not the largest country in the western hemisphere. It's Canada, with a total area of 3,851,809 square miles.

WOMEN'S SOFTBALL TOURNAMENT SCHEDULED AT LOUISA

The Big Sandy Classic Women's Softball tournament, sponsored by the Louisa-Fort Gay Women's Softball league, will be held July 13 and 14. Teams must provide two blue dot balls. The drawing date will be July 10, at 7 in the Little League Club House at Stella Moore Field. For more information, call 673-3237 or 638-9496.

Prediction...

More Kentuckians To Travel This Year

With the end of the school year, the busiest travel season of the year begins and the Blue Grass Auto Club (AAA) predicts more people will vacation this year than have in the last several years.

The club's auto travel manager Betty Burdine reports that the number of routings the club handled in April and May was 10 to 15 percent higher than those two months a year ago, and Burdine expects the trend to continue. "June and July are traditionally the peak vacation months and we expect to be busier than usual," she said.

Not only are more people taking vacations this year, but they are traveling further from home. Burdine reports that, as usual, the Southeastern United States is the most requested area for routings. Places like Florida, Louisiana and the Carolinas are still the favorites of Kentucky vacationers. But, surprisingly, the second most requested region is no longer the Mid-Atlantic. Virginia and Washington, D.C. have been replaced by California and Nevada, as the Far West has become the No. 2 most requested region.

AAA reports that gas prices have increased about five cents in the last six weeks and that the average family of four can expect to spend about $164 a day on this year's driving vacation—slightly above last year's figure. So why are more people taking longer vacations? "I think people just have more money this year," explains Burdine. "Either that or they're more confident about the economy," she said.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Bessie Parsons would like to express their thanks to all who helped during the passing of our loved one. Thanks to all who sent food, flowers, prayers, and words of comfort during this time of sorrow. Thanks to the ministers, Michael Curry, the Church of Christ, Martin, and those who prepared the grave and the Hall Funeral Home for its courteous service.

Clean Water Is Topic Of Conservation Essay

Clean Water In My Community will be the subject of the 1985 Conservation Essay Contest and the 1985 Jim Claypool Conservation Poster Contest sponsored by The Courier-Journal, The Louisville Times, the Floyd County Conservation District and the Floyd County Board of Education.

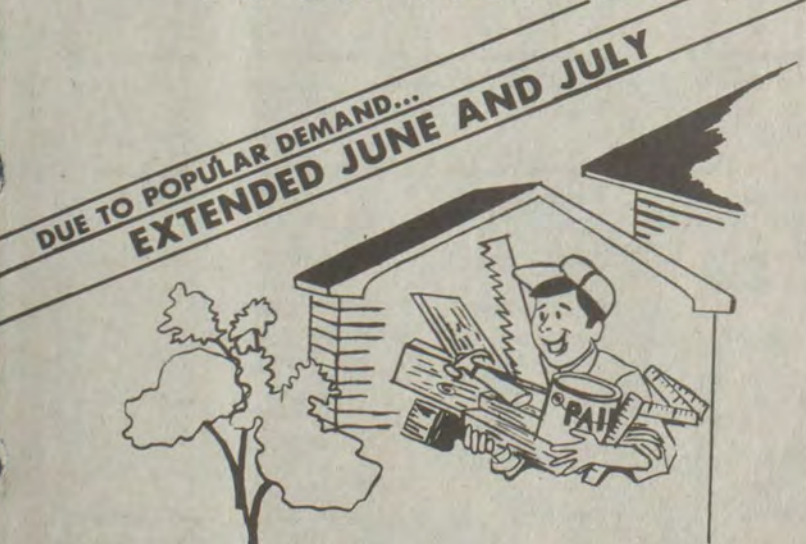

The annual competitions, open to all Floyd County elementary and high school students, may be the largest conservation-oriented contests for school children in the United States. In Kentucky over 39,000 essays and almost 55,000 posters were made on "Trees In My Community" last year. Here in Floyd county over 1,000 students participated in either the essay or poster contest.

The essay contest is in its 42nd year. Over 1.5 million essays have been written by Kentucky students on various conservation subjects since its inception. This will be the 13th year for the poster contest which is open to students in grades one through six. In it, students are asked to make original posters with the subject of the competition as the theme of the posters. Awards of $175 in U.S. Savings Bonds will be awarded to three state winners by the two Louisville daily newspapers. Winners in 121 Conservation Districts will receive plaques. In the essay contest, students in grades seven through twelve are asked to write essays of no more than 1,000 words. The top award winners—121 district winners and three state winners—will receive $6,850 in savings bonds from the Louisville newspapers.

The goal this year is to have 100 percent participation by Floyd county students in the essay and poster contests. Toward this aim the Floyd county Conservation District is furnishing prizes in addition to the ones given by The Courier-Journal and The Louisville Times. First, second and third place school winners of both the essay and poster contests will receive $20, $15, and $10, respectively. Also an awards banquet will be given in honor of all the school winners sometime in the spring of 1986.

For more information contact the local conservation district at 886-3128.

Will Appalachia Be Left Behind Again?

Appalachia has progressed since the days of the War on Poverty, but it is still behind in its ability to provide a decent life for most of the inhabitants.

An improved transportation system has increased commercial and cultural intercourse between Central and Eastern Kentucky; the loss of population through emigration has been halted; people are returning home to the mountains; and delivery of health care has been greatly improved.

But the economy is still dependent on coal, subsistence farming, and public services; a good education is spotty at best; housing is becoming a major problem; Appalachians are beginning to lose their cultural identity; and the most energetic and brightest people are continuing to take their talents elsewhere for successful careers.

A new technological era is fast approaching America, bringing new challenges and new problems. Where is Appalachia now? Is it in a position to take part in tomorrow? Will it be left further behind?

These were the themes and questions that were addressed during the "Appalachia: A Vision for Action" Conference that was held at Berea College, June 6-7.

"Appalachia has the potential in human pride, spirit, and determination to overcome many of the hard challenges it now faces, and certainly will face in more demanding ways in the 21st century," said historian Dr. Thomas D. Clark while addressing about 200 leaders in business, government, education, health care, religion, development, communications, and social work. He warned, however, that "you can't do it in the 21st century by clinging to the 18th century."

Eastern Kentucky is a vital part of the commonwealth. If, Clark supposed, the Cumberland Plateau region were to be severed from Kentucky, the commonwealth would lose its richest source of coal, its abundant timber resource, and its plentiful water supply as well as some of its most scenic parts.

Lexington would "be flat tomorrow," Clark said, if all the Appalachian highlanders were removed. And the universities and colleges would suffer greatly without Appalachian students.

But these natural and human resources have never been used to sustain a highly developed economy in Eastern Kentucky. Since the 1870s, Clark said, the region has experienced sharply fluctuating economic cycles in the coal, timber, and oil and gas industries.

The small farm that once provided sustenance for most of the population is rapidly disappearing from the scene. The result will eventually be a land populated with rural non-farm people who will need to learn new skills every decade if it is employed industrially, Clark said.

He said "this places a heavy burden of modernization on all Kentuckians, and especially upon those in Appalachia."

Outlining the themes of the Conference, Clark told his audience at Boone Tavern that if Eastern Kentuckians and Appalachians are to succeed in meeting the challenges during the next 20 years, they have to provide a high grade of education, clean up the countryside and towns, provide opportunities for the brightest young people to be productive at home, reform politics, improve forest management and create a staple market for wood products, reclaim the water resources from the despoilers, and instill an obligation of being stewards of the land.

U.S. Representative Harold Rogers said the lack of jobs is a bigger problem than poor education. Even if education in Eastern Kentucky improves significantly, graduates will continue to leave home for the metropolitan areas.

One solution to this problem is to train and cultivate new, young leadership and mobilize it to solve problems in local communities. Rogers advocated the establishment of a leadership training program similar to one being conducted by a Northern Kentucky Chamber of Commerce.

Rogers no longer believes that "smoke stack" or textile industries are the solution to diversifying Eastern Kentucky's economy. He pointed to timber products, retirement communities and tourism as areas for developing job opportunities.

Lt. Gov. Steven Beshear said education and new industries not dependent on the coal industry were key factors in Eastern Kentucky's recovery.

Like Clark, Beshear said test scores show Eastern Kentucky schools are "not doing all we need to do to prepare our children for what's coming." The "brain drain" needs to be halted and entrepreneurship encouraged to diversify the economy. Of equal importance is the need for long range planning and goal setting.

Coal is the key to Eastern Kentucky's recovery, said William B. Sturgill, an Eastern Kentucky native who now lives in Central Kentucky. By electrifying, liquifying and gasifying coal, it can develop new markets and provide a stable, dependable economic base.

He also called for educational reform involving community colleges and vocational schools with an emphasis on training for jobs in a high tech society.

For Mike Vallez, vice president of operations for Golden Oak Mining Company in Letcher County, mountain top removal mining promises to create new opportunities for development now and in the future.

Citing experiments in strip mine reclamation at Martiki Coal Company in Martin County, which he helped to develop, Vallez said the strip mining industry is "creating land that will be the backbone of future areas of job location" in Eastern Kentucky.

Dr. John Stephenson, president of Berea College, said that education "is a very serious problem" in Eastern Kentucky. It is more serious than in any other part of Southern Appalachia. A study three or four years ago of educational systems in Tennessee, West Virginia, and Kentucky found Kentucky "much worse in almost all of the dozen or so indicators of performance and school characteristics," he said.

Gordon Ebersole, Bowie, Md., an engineer and former staff member of the U.S. Department of the Interior, worked in Eastern Kentucky during the 1960s. He described efforts by the Congress for Appalachian Development to begin public power projects in the mountains. He said that he believes there continues to be a future for more towns in the mountains.

Tom Gish, editor of The Mountain Eagle, Whitesburg, said that mountain people do not have a common source of information, such as a regional newspaper or regional television, about their region. Satellite television and the arrival of chain stores and fast food establishments are promoting the rapid changes in mountain culture, but the changes are diverting Appalachians' attentions from local and regional concerns. Gish advocated a single television network for all of Eastern Kentucky.

Al Smith, publisher of The Sentinel-Echo, London, Ky. and former federal co-chairman of the Appalachian Regional Commission, said education and communications are natural companions because they are vital factors in breaking the barriers separating people.

Both William Troy, a Methodist minister with the Commission on Religion in Appalachia, and Dr. John Wallhauser, chairman of the religion and philosophy department at Berea College, emphasized that the Christian church should be taking the lead in creating a sense of community within the region.

There are many more questions to be asked and the search for the answers must continue, said Fr. Ralph Beiting, president of the Christian Appalachian Project, which sponsored the conference.

Governor Martha Layne Collins and Labor Cabinet Secretary John Calhoun Wells receive official primacy documents for Kentucky's Occupational Safety and Health Program from Deputy Assistant U.S. Labor Secretary Patrick R. Tyson during ceremonies June 13 in Louisville. Kentucky is the first state in the 48 contiguous states to be awarded full responsibility from the federal government for enforcement of workplace safety and health standards. The presentation took place during the first annual Governor's Safety and Health Conference and Exposition held June 12-14 at Louisville's Ramada Hurstbourne Bluegrass Convention Center.

Some Well Drillers May Be Penalized

Although the July 1, deadline is almost at hand, a number of water well drillers have not applied for certification under a law passed by the 1984 General Assembly, reports Kentucky's Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet.

The law, House Bill 263, was enacted to stop groundwater pollution from improperly drilled water wells. It requires those who commercially drill, alter or repair water wells to be certified by the Cabinet's Division of Water. Those who drill without a certificate after June 30 can be fined up to $1,000 for each violation.

After July 1, 1985, all new water well drillers must have worked for two years under a certified water well driller and must pass an examination given by the Division of Water.

Forms and instruction for obtaining certification are available by writing to Water Well Drillers Certification, Division of Water, 18 Reilly Road, Frankfort, Kentucky, 40601, or calling David Trimble, Division of Water at (502) 564-3410.

Remedy Worse Than the Disease

June and July mark the height of the Japanese beetle season in Kentucky, and many homeowners stand helplessly by as these voracious insects destroy a wide variety of plants and shrubs.

Ironically, those who stand idly by may be doing less harm to their plants than those who buy certain products in an effort to combat the insects. Research in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture has shown that beetle traps, frequently recommended by manufacturers as effective in the control of Japanese beetles, actually result in more damage to nearby plants than does the use of no control methods at all.

Carter Gordon, a graduate researcher at UK, tested the Japanese beetle traps according to manufacturers recommendations and found that they did more harm than good in residential situations. "The traps are sold to homeowners to control the beetles. Frequently it is implied that the traps will control damage to ornamental plants," Gordon said.

Gordon tested that implication by arranging traps around potted grape plants in several arrays, differing according to recommendations by different manufacturers.

"All the placements in residential settings resulted in more damage to the plant than not having one," Gordon said.

It appears that the traps, baited with a floral scent and a chemical signal the female beetles use to attract males, attract more beetles from neighboring areas than they catch. The result is that even though the traps do catch some beetles, there are more beetles feeding in the area than would be there in the absence of the traps.

Japanese beetles entered the U.S. in 1916 and since that time have spread from coast to coast, with notable infestations occurring in Kentucky, Tennessee, Illinois, Michigan, Iowa, Missouri and California.

The adult form of the insect feeds on nearly 300 species of plants. Many ornamentals common to Kentucky are on the insect's menu. Roses seem to be an especial favorite. A notable exception to the beetle's appetite is the dogwood.

Later this summer the adult beetles will lay their eggs. Those eggs will hatch as grubs next spring, and in that stage will pose a threat to the roots of grasses and ornamentals. Often the damage caused by the grubs will go unnoticed until it has reached irreversible levels.

Home gardeners can effectively combat Japanese beetles by infecting the grubs with a disease-causing bacterium. The bacterium, commonly called milky disease, is Bacillus popilliae, and should be available at local nurseries.

Birds and toads are natural predators of the adult Japanese beetles, and moles, shrews and skunks eat large numbers of the grubs.

As for the Japanese beetle traps, Gordon said, "don't use them, at least not in the vicinity of any plants you care anything about."

For assistance in identifying Japanese beetles or in the use of milky disease to combat them, call or stop by the county Extension office.

MIGRATING BIRDS NO LONGER FLY SOUTH FOR WINTER

You aren't the only one who may change travel plans. According to National Wildlife magazine, an estimated eight million ducks, geese and swans that once flew south for the winter now stay in the Midwest during their winter migration. The reason: wetlands drainage along the lower Mississippi River has reduced wintering habitat.

Homemakers Increase Membership

Northeast Area Extension Homemakers Association received the traveling trophy for the largest percentage of increase in membership. A growth of 273 new members brought the membership roster to 3,020. If the Northeast Area Association can capture this award for two more years, they will be awarded the trophy. Floyd and Pike counties increased their membership by more than 100 members.

The Floyd County Homemakers membership is presently 614 with a total of 17 Homemaker clubs.

In the picture, Mrs. Kaye Fourshee (right), KEHA vice-president, presented the KEHA membership trophy to Mrs. Ruby Mauk, Northeast Area Extension Homemakers president.

Conduct Conference at Berea

Fr. Ralph Beiting, center, president of the Christian Appalachian Project in Martin, led a discussion on community and economic development during a two-day conference held in Berea, June 6-7. The meeting, sponsored by the Christian Appalachian Project, heard views on the region's future. Among those attending were, from left above, Dr. John Wallhauser, of Berea College; U.S. Representative Harold Rogers, of Somerset; Father Beiting, Tom Gish, publisher of The Mountain Eagle, Whitesburg, and Lt. Gov. Steven L. Beshear.

Dangers and Penalties Of Electricity Theft Cited by Power Firm

When people steal electricity, they are doing two things, both bad—they are endangering themselves, and they are committing a crime.

Despite these results, a number of persons in Eastern Kentucky have made what Kentucky Power Company calls "unauthorized use of electricity" in recent months. Fortunately, no one has been killed or seriously injured, but a number have been prosecuted in court.

The danger in attempting to steal electricity comes from tampering with electrical connections and touching "hot", or energized, parts. "Electricity does a lot of good things for us, but it must be treated with respect and with knowledge," W.W. Zoellers, manager of the Pikeville Division of Kentucky Power, said. "People unfamiliar with it are taking real gambles when they fool with it."

"As for the court cases, it is against the law in Kentucky to steal electricity, just as it is against the law to steal a car or anything else," he added. That law describes an electricity thief as anyone who receives electric service by altering or bypassing a meter, or changing its reading, or reconnecting service after a company like Kentucky Power has disconnected it.

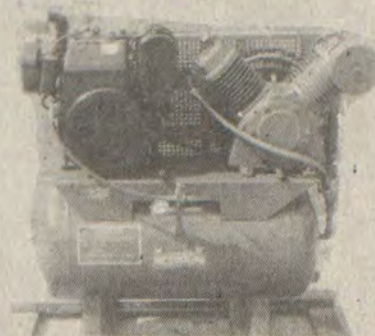

"Punishment can be pretty severe," Zoellers added, amounting to a jail sentence of up to 12 months or a fine of up to $500, or both, if the value of the stolen electricity was less than $100. If it was worth more than that, punishment could be prison term of one to five years.

"We actively pursue any cases of suspected, unauthorized use of electricity, and we have a number of ways of discovering illegal uses of energy. When energy is stolen, it eventually becomes an added cost for our paying customers," Zoellers said. "In fact, it would be to the advantage of all customers if they would let us know of any cases of suspected energy theft." Such calls are treated confidentially.

New research shows that forested land returns ten times the moisture to the atmosphere as deforested land, and produces 50 percent of the rain that falls on it, says National Wildlife's International Wildlife magazine.

Cockroach Invasion Is Only Temporary

Kentuckians horrified or even mildly displeased by what appears to be an invasion of large cockroaches need only manage to endure the pests for a few weeks. They will disappear of their own accord.

People who live in or near wooded areas may be finding very large cockroaches in their homes or being attracted to outdoor lights. Rudy Scheibner said a woodpile that has been allowed to degenerate also may be a source of the roaches in urban areas.

Scheibner, Extension entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said the roaches normally live in hollow trees or under loose bark. Woodpiles that have gotten a little "trashy" may provide hollow spots and loose bark suitable to the pests.

Chris Christensen, also a UK entomologist, explained that these roaches finish development in the spring and the males begin flying around looking for females. When flying at night they are likely to be attracted to developed areas by the lights. As a result, they will sometimes show up in homes. The insects cannot survive in a house, however, so there is no need to take drastic measures to control them.

Homes that feature wood shingles may host some of the insects in the roof, but they cause no damage, so again there is no need for control.

For those who simply cannot tolerate the thought of even an unseen cockroach in their home or on their roof, Christensen suggests the use of long residual pesticides such as diazinon, chlorpyrifos, propoxur or bendiocarb.

July 15th Last Day To Report Corn Acres

Floyd county farmers who have planted corn and other spring seeded crops have only till July 15 to report the acres to the Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service.

Program participants are required to report crops and acres planted and the uses of these crops & acreage conservation reserve. Farmers not participating in the program need to report their crops to insure future benefits and to protect acreage bases.

After farmers report their planted, conservation reserve, and other program acres, ASCS will randomly check farms to verify that the acreage reports are accurate.

Before program participants can receive benefits of the price support and deficiency payments program, the entire farm must be certified correctly.

Reports may be reported any time between 8 a.m. and 4:30 p.m., Monday thru Friday. Farmers who have not reported are urged to do so as soon as possible.

Cutouts from this year's Christmas cards can make intriguing decorations on next year's Christmas wrappings. Cut out silhouettes of angels, Santas, the Three Wise Men, whatever appeals to you.

National Essay Contest Winner

Robert Todd Biggs (center) receives from Gov. Martha Layne Collins congratulations and awards for his hunter safety essay which won national honors.

Robert Todd Biggs, grandson of Martha Stephens, of Hueysville, and the late James Stephens, was recently honored by Gov. Martha Layne Collins, officials of the Marlin Fire Arms Corp., the commissioner and deputy commissioner of the Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources, and the Southeastern U.S. representative of the N.R.A. in the governor's office in Frankfort.

The 13-year-old Biggs, an avid hunter and fisherman, has been named the national winner in this year's Hunter Safety Essay Contest sponsored annually by Marlin Firearms which is open to youths ranging in the ages between 10-19. It marks the first time ever throughout the years of this competition that a youth from Kentucky has been chosen as Marlin's national representative in either the junior or senior divisions.

For his achievement, Biggs was awarded $3000 in U.S. Savings Bonds, a wall plaque commemorating his state and national titles, gift certificates from the L.L. Bean Sports Equipment Co. and a highly prized Marlin original Model 29A lever action rifle with walnut grain stock especially engraved by Marlin's professional gunsmiths with his name, age, date and accomplishment engraved upon the chamber.

RECC Delegate

Richenna Ann Slone, who will be a senior at Prestonsburg High School this fall, was chosen to represent the Big Sandy R.E.C.C. as its delegate to the Kentucky Rural Electric Cooperatives' Washington Youth Tour. The group consisted of 43 qualifying students sponsored by the different Kentucky Rural Electric Cooperatives. They left Louisville June 7 for a seven-day all-expense paid tour of Washington, D.C. Some of the highlights of the tour were visits to the Supreme Court, the Library of Congress, the White House, the Smithsonian Institute, the National Zoological park, the Arlington National Cemetery, a performance at Ford's Theatre, Congressional appointments, and others. The tour was designed to be both educational and enjoyable.

Miss Slone is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richmond Slone, of the Middle Creek Road.

The son of Don and Helen Kidd, of Grethel, he was valedictorian of his class, an Academic All-American and a member of the Beta Club.

To be considered for a Leadership Grant, an incoming freshman must exhibit leadership and achievement abilities in school and community activities and provide MSU with a grade point average and ACT scores for consideration. The grants are awarded on a competitive basis.

Knott Mother of Three Proves Merit of KET 'Study-at-Home'

Colene Bates, of Knott county, enrolled in KET's GED "Study-at-Home" program and has passed her GED test. She says, "I did it, and I have three young children. No one should hesitate to enroll."

Next fall, Mrs. Bates plans to attend nursing school. "I will finally be able to do something I have always wanted to do—help other people," she added.

More than 100 other adults now have a high school equivalency certificate as a result of the "Study-at-Home" program, according to Brenda Griffin, coordinator of Adult Learning Services at KET.

The pilot project, a joint effort of Kentucky Educational Television, the Kentucky Department of Education and the Ashland Oil Foundation, began last fall in 18 eastern Kentucky counties, and, due to the initial success, will expand to a statewide effort next fall.

The program is designed to increase the number of adults in Kentucky who have a high school equivalency degree through the use of KET's GED series, student workbooks and a special hotline to a trained tutor. Students pay a $15 enrollment fee, and after they pass a post-test for the KET program, they are reimbursed a $10 voucher redeemable for the GED test fee.

More than 1000 people called to inquire about the program last fall. From these calls, over 400 received a GED pre-test, and more than 200 who were found to be at appropriate levels for GED study were enrolled. Many of these are now taking the GED test.

Of the program, Griffin says, "Kentucky has an opportunity to go from 50th in the nation in percentage of adults with a high school diploma to first in the rate of improvement, while providing a model that can be used throughout the nation."

KET and the Ashland Oil Foundation will host receptions honoring 1985 graduates of the GED "Study-at-Home" program, with special guest Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald, on Sunday, June 30, in Ashland and Pikeville.

State Getting Help On Pollutant Study

Kentucky is one of only five states in the nation to receive funds from the federal Environmental Protection Agency to consolidate information relating to three major natural resources—air, land and water.

The funds—approximately $200,000—will be used to set up the Kentucky Environmental Protection and Priority Assessment System to furnish daily information to permit reviewers and inspectors and give periodic analytical reports to state officials.

According to Charlotte Baldwin, Secretary of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, the system will give her cabinet a better overall way of looking at environmental pollutants.

"We need to look at the total environment. So many pollutants are removed from one resource but show up in another," Baldwin said.

"For example, something toxic gets in the water and is removed but can show up in the sludge. It makes no sense to only look at the effort on one resource at a time," Baldwin said. "We can better plan and set priorities if we can look at the overall problem."

The system's first phase—furnishing day-to-day information to permit reviewers and inspectors—is expected to be in place in June 1986. By June 1987, analytical data on all the state's major environmental problems will be available.

Campbell Comments On Growth Of Enrollment at College Here

Prestonsburg Community College continued its upward spiral of enrollment during the 1985 summer school registration period, in which 308 students enrolled.

This growth has been steady since 1978, ranging from 20% to 35%. This summer's enrollment is 38.4% higher than the enrollment figures for 1984 and is 25% higher than the previous all-time record of 1983.

Applications for the fall semester of 1985 continue to climb. It is anticipated that a growth of 10 to 15% is a good possibility for this fall.

"This is a dramatic illustration of the need for two additional buildings—a library building of 20,000 square feet and a science building of approximately 44,500 square feet," Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of the college, commented. "We would certainly hope that while the governor and the legislature are addressing the needs of education that they will not forget a small community college serving the Big Sandy communities of five Eastern Kentucky counties."

"A larger library is a must to keep pace with the needs of our students and our community," he added. "Building such a facility would return several classrooms to their proper use. Our science labs are not of a size to accommodate the large classes that we are now experiencing. We need better and more usable rooms, labs, storerooms, lecture rooms, instructors' labs, etc."

USAA Award Winner

Roger Dale Baker, II, has been named a 1985 United States National Award winner in science from the United States Achievement Academy.

Baker, who attends Whitesburg Middle School, was nominated for the award by science teacher Richard Adams.

He is the son of Roger D. Baker, Ermine, and Margaret Bentley, Mayking. His grandparents are Maewood Little, of Wayland, and Pearl Collins, of Isom.

WHAT SHOULD NOT BE SAID TO A CHILD ASKING ABOUT DEATH?

Any kind of fantasy or fairy tale about death will eventually have to be corrected or repudiated. Let's explore some common fantasies:

"She went on a long journey." This can be interpreted by the child to mean the person has abandoned him without saying goodbye. It can further foster the false hope that the person will return some day.

"God took him to heaven." If God took the deceased to heaven because He loved him, the child might conclude that God will take him too! This reaction can be fearful for a child to accept and more that he should have to at his early years.

"She is just sleeping." This can quickly cause a child to fear bedtime, believing that he will not wake up when he should.

Many more expressions could be included. The wisest course is to answer questions about death without such cliches or expressions that will have to be changed or un-learned. Even if an adult cannot provide the correct answer immediately, the search for an answer together can often help you and the child come to grips with the "truth of death."

If we can be of more help on this important subject, please call us.

Stevie Wonder

Hall and Oates (with the Temptations as backup), Mick Jagger, Stevie Wonder and Tina Turner in Philadelphia; and the Boomtown Rats; David Bowie (who will sing a duet with Mick Jagger by satellite if they can get the technical problems ironed out), Rod Stewart, Sting, WHAM! and a special one-time reunion by The Who in London.

Because of the time difference and the length of the concert, some performers will perform in London, hop on the Concord, and perform in Philadelphia as well.

The entire concert will be shown on MTV and broadcast on ABC radio, and concert highlights will be shown during prime time on ABC-TV affiliates as well. Live Aid also intends to send an 11-hour syndicated package to independent stations.

Silly afternoon fun

By Amanda Bruce

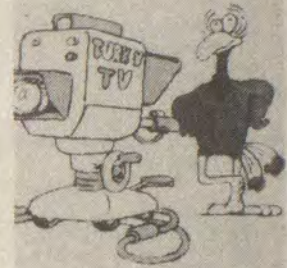

Viewing fare this week ranges from the silly to the lofty to the macabre. First, there's "Turkey Television," a new series on Nickelodeon that will air weekdays at 4:30 (EST). "Turkey Television" is a cross between "Saturday Night Live" and "Laugh-In," and is aimed primarily at young teens.

The show's material is culled from unusual sources. "Turkey Television" includes clips of everything, from TV bloopers to foreign game shows to stand-up comedy acts to music videos. The sources of all the clips are clearly labeled, and a young cast keeps the action moving at a good steady pace.

The youngsters are surprisingly good comic actors, and the program is hosted by an animated turkey named Thurmon T. Turkey, who is assisted by an animated Pilgrim friend, Wellworth Watching.

Subtle, it's not. But it's good silly fun, and it has a lot of potential for entertaining the after-school crowd.

If your comic tastes are a bit more highbrow, you might want to take a look at Kiri Te Kanawa, Ileana Cotrubas and Frederica von Stade, in "The Marriage of Figaro" on the Arts & Entertainment Network. Rossini's comic opera continues the tale of

Thurmon T. Turkey

Figaro, the Barber of Seville, who is about to marry Susana, but is thwarted by Marcellina. It was staged by Peter Hall, the director of Britain's National Theatre, and John Pritchard conducted the London Philharmonic. The opera will be sung in Italian, but there will be English subtitles.

And for those who crave the bizarre, there are two cult films on the USA Network's "Night Flight" this weekend: "Andy Warhol's Dracula," on July 12, and "Union City," on July 13. "Dracula" stars Udo Kier as the blood-thirsty Transylvanian who endears himself to an Italian family with four bitable daughters.

Rock stars Deborah Harry and Pat Benatar make their film debuts in "Union City," a story of murder in industrial Union City, N.J.

Pilots Ed Tatlock and Jim Cline go over a pre-flight checklist while crewchief David Sumner readies the cargo area of a Kentucky Army National Guard UH-IV Medevac helicopter for another emergency neo-natal flight to the mountains of east Kentucky. Guard flight crews will carry out the mission of transporting seriously ill infants from remote areas of the state to the University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center in Lexington through August.

GOVERNMENT EMPLOYEES

Of the more than 2.7 million General Service employees of the U.S. Government, about 4 percent work overseas. To find out how to apply for such a job, consult one of the 86 Federal Job Information Centers. Miss Alison Cross wears a whimsical bikini sewn from dozens of old-fashioned Yo-Yos. This is just one among the original fashions by Mountain Laurel. The Department of Kentucky State Parks, Frankfort, recently bought products manufactured by the local business for 21 of its parks, based on the encouraging amount of business has done at Jenny Wiley State Park Gift Shop. This purchase is of particular interest and benefit to many local craftsmen who sew quality layette items, quilts and apparel for infants and toddlers for Mountain Laurel.

Evans Clarifies Reasons For Shift of UK Contract

By ROBERT T. GARRETT
(In The Courier-Journal)

University of Kentucky energy researchers were behind schedule on 23 of 25 projects they were performing for the state as of April, state Energy Secretary George E. Evans Jr. said yesterday (June 25) in explaining why he transferred a contract from UK to the University of Louisville.

Evans, who announced the transfer of the state's $4.5 million annual contract for energy research last month, said he "made a management decision to find a contractor who could perform the work we were paying for."

Testifying before a legislative committee, Evans also cited as reasons for the switch a series of "unnecessary and disruptive" personnel decisions by UK administrators, UK's "preoccupation with bureaucratic policies and procedures" and UK's use of a state laboratory "to promote university interests to the detriment of the state's interest."

Evans received statements of support for his decision from several lawmakers and criticism from only one, who is from Lexington, during his appearance before the Interim Joint Committee on Energy.

The former coal executive defended his May 29 decision not to renew the 10-year-old contract with UK, saying he was dissatisfied with UK's administration of the contract through its Institute for Mining and Minerals Research.

The move means that, effective Monday, U of L will add about 130 former UK employees to its payroll and will begin operating the Kentucky Center for Energy Research Laboratory near Lexington. The lab is owned by the Energy Cabinet.

Art Gallaher Jr., chancellor of UK's Lexington campus, said yesterday that UK "received no indication from anyone that the projects were behind" and noted that a UK administrator had met monthly with an Energy Cabinet official to discuss research progress.

The UK administrator, Dr. Lyle Sendlein, who has been director of the minerals-research institute for nearly three years, "does not believe the projects were behind" schedule, Gallaher said.

"The fact you would get off on your basic time frame, that's in the nature of basic research," Gallaher said.

Evans has complained repeatedly that UK did not conduct enough applied research that would be of use to the coal industry, and instead tried to turn the state lab into a "campus-oriented, academic research activity."

Responding to Evans' claim that UK stifled valuable research with bureaucratic red tape, Gallaher said: "Well, the state's bureaucracy is a way of administering complex organizations, and those people were university employees."

Gallaher said UK officials would respond in detail to Evans' charges when they appear before the Energy Committee at its next meeting.

In other developments: Evans acknowledged in an interview that he had considered giving the energy-research contract to Transylvania University in Lexington.

But he said he decided against it and never discussed the idea with Transylvania officials because their institution is a liberal-arts school with primary focus on undergraduate education and because he is a member of Transylvania's board of curators.

University of Louisville President Donald Swain said that, after Evans initially approached him about the contract, he did not notify UK President Otis Singletary and encourage working out their institutions' problems because Evans "asked me not to discuss our very preliminary discussions with anyone."

Calling someone a birdbrain may not be as insulting as you think! It was commonly believed that a bird's smaller brain did not have the capacity for memory, only instinct. But according to National Wildlife magazine, birds not only remember, but may even be calculating. Nutcracker birds, for instance, are known to steal pine cones from squirrels by luring them away from the pile while another bird darts in to seize the cone.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Warning Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

The following nine symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations are often the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these may spell back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above)
- (2) Headaches
- (3) Painful joints
- (4) Numbness in the arms or hands
- (5) Loss of sleep
- (6) Stiffness in the neck
- (7) Pain between the shoulders
- (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back
- (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals may indicate your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will likely become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these warning signals... call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.
