Board Faces 'Finals' With State, Monday

Forum Slates Public Meeting Here Tuesday

Floyd school administrators should find out next Monday whether they have passed or flunked the test set in July by the state Board of Education. And Floyd citizens will have a chance on Tuesday to discuss the report card with a state education official.

On the agenda of the state board's Sept. 9 meeting will be Floyd county's response to a "show cause" order issued by the state panel on July 2. The order challenged Floyd officials to show why the school district should not be held academically deficient under the terms of Senate Bill 202. Under the 1984 law, which has yet to be tested in practice, the state could take control of a school district which does not meet minimum academic standards

On Tuesday Robert Spillman, an associate superintendent in the state Department of Education and a vigorous critic of Floyd school administrators, is scheduled to address a public meeting here on the troubled relationship between state and local education officials

At the meeting, set for 7 p.m., Sept. 10 in the Prestonsburg grade school, Spillman will share the platform with state Rep. Greg Stumbo. The House majority leader will discuss the implications for Floyd county of education bills passed in July's special legislative session. The meeting is being sponsored by the Floyd County Education Forum.

Pike Truckdriver Ordered To Pay Store Damages

A Pike county truckdriver must pay the owners of a Melvin liquor store $6000 for damages done when his coal truck struck a pole, causing it to fall onto the store, two years ago.

Bill See and Willard Stanley, Jr. operators of S. and S. Liquors, on KY 122, claimed in Floyd Circuit Court last Wednesday that Marvin Newsome, of Virgie, did $15,000 worth of damage to their store when the telephone pole he hit crashed through the roof.

Newsome admitted he struck the pole but denied he caused it to topple.

In a directed verdict, Circuit Judge Hollie Conley held Newsome responsible for the damage. A jury decided on the amount

Meanwhile, three charges against Stanley, who is a son of the state Commissioner of Mines and Minerals, were dismissed August 21, after a Lexington psychiatrist testified that he is not competent to stand trial.

Stanley was indicted on two counts of armed robbery and one count of wanton endangerment stemming from a series of incidents, including a lengthy police chase, on Sept. 16, 1982. Dr. William Weitzel testified that the defendant is suffering from schizophrenia.

Burke Files Suit Claiming Patent Rights Violated

A Prestonsburg man claims in a suit filed recently in U.S. District Court that a Betsy Layne machinery firm is illegally marketing his invention.

Billy T. Burke, of Cliffside, argues in the suit that Summit Machinery, Inc.-R.E. Sommers is named as its agenthas "constructed, used and/or sold" a machine Burke invented for washing coal and for which he was granted a patent in October, 1983.

Summit had access to his trade secrets while it was licensed to sell his machine, known as the Burke Energy Separator, in this area; now the firm is using the information for its own advantage, drawing customers away from him, plaintiff claims.

He asks the court to enjoin Summit from further infringing on his patent rights; for at least $200,000 for the "theft" of his trade secrets, and $500,000 in punitive damages.

In a suit filed two weeks earlier Burke claimed that two other firms, Powerscreen of America, Inc. with offices in Louisville, and Powerscreen of Eastern Kentucky, based in Mt. Sterling, have also violated his patent rights.

That appears to be the import of a commentary on the results of statewide testing which appears in the current issue of the Communicator, a newsletter published monthly by the Floyd schools administration. It is an interpretation that has left some parents said one mother, who asked to remain anonymous for fear of upsetting negotiations between a local school principal and school administrators. "They're saying our kids are basically dumb, that no matter what they provide for them they're not going to do any better."

"They're continually putting our kids down for the fact of where they live,'

While Floyd students do appear to be at a disadvantage on account of where they live, the reason is not necessarily that they are "dumb," replied schools psychologist Larry Jervis, author of the Communicator article, since poor scores on intelligence tests may unwitting reflect cultural and economic conditions

Grigsby Says Schools Off to a 'Good Start'

School finally opened at Garrett Elementary, a countywide search is on for kindergarten and elementary teachers and conflict flared last week as parents at Tram demanded better bus service. Yet Supt. E.P. "Pete" Grigsby, Jr. said, all things considered, Floyd county is off to a pretty good school year.

Grigsby said he had not received any complaints from parents at Garrett since repairs recommended by architect Randy Burchett had been implemented, though he cautioned that didn't necessarily mean everyone was happy there. Classes resumed Tuesday at the troubled school after more than two weeks of controversy that saw parents keep their children home, organize into committees, and finally form a picketline, turning away buses and closing down the school.

Burchett said he had gone back to Garrett Sunday to inspect workers' progress, and reported the improvements were about 85% completed. Said Burchett, "I think they're ready to go back

The structural floor system of the ground floor of the old high school building, now used as part of the grade school, had been ordered replaced, while beams were to be installed to shore up sagging second-story. An older building, used until this term, has deteriorated past the point of repair. To help accommodate the extra students now in the old high school, additional classrooms were constructed in that building's auditorium.

Principal Ralph O'Quinn seemed pleased things were finally returning to normal at Garrett, but appeared to have his hands full with his duties, declining comment on the situation at the school because he couldn't "take time away from my children to talk to newspaper reporters," he said.

With kindergarten mandatory for the first time this year, Grigsby said certain problems, such as finding space to hold classes, solutions for schools with too few kindergarten-age children to warrant a class and locating qualified teachers were bound to present them-Grigsby chided the state Board of Education for requiring programs such as kindergarten while not supplying needed funds or considering space requirements. He said, however, that the county's kindergarten problem was '90% solved," with only Prater, Drift, Auxier and Wayland grade schools having less than the 27-student average daily attendance necessary for them to be considered as half-classes and allow in structors to be hired. The kindergartens at Auxier and Wayland, he said, were close to the minimum attendance requirement and teachers would probably be hired for those schools, but children at Prater and Drift might have to be bused to other schools. Grigsby said the school board should know this week what attendance figures will be around the county, as those statistics traditionally peak and stabilize after Labor Day.

The superintendent said a major problem faced by the county was a shortage of qualified kindergarten and elementary teachers, predicting the scarcity would continue throughout the term. He said this problem was being felt statewide, and was "just one of those

Highlands Folk Fest To Start At Park Thursday for 20th Time

There will be pickin' and singin', story-tellin' and more at Jenny Wiley State Park as the Highlands Regional Folk Festival gets under way tomorrow (Thursday).

This week, the annual gathering of musicians, singers, story-tellers, poets and craftsmen celebrates its 20th year of preserving and expanding the cultural heritage of the Southern mountains. Director Kathryn Frazier says she hopes this will be the best year ever.

'We've got many acts who performed at the early festivals, and a lot from the very first one, to come back this year." she said. "And the arts and crafts display should be about twice as big as last year," she added. More than 40 groups or individuals presenting everything from folk toys to herbal remedies are expected.

The festival, founded in 1966 by Mrs. Edith James, is designed to present a broad spectrum of mountain culture, and this year a new art will be showcased-break dancing. Mrs. Frazier said the dance, to be demonstrated by members of the Job Corps Center here, is fresh and innovative and will serve as counterpoint to the traditional folk dancing to be demonstrated by such groups as the Hillbilly Square Dancers and the Kentucky Heritage Jr. Dancers.

A highlight of the festivities will be tomorrow night's concert by the nationally renowned McLain Family, presenting a program of Bluegrass and folk tunes that should delight fans of mountain music. The McLains performed at the very first festival, back in 1966, and recently appeared at Carnegie Hall with the New York Symphony.

Other events tomorrow include a performance by champion fiddler J.P. Fraley, the Homer Ledford show, and the Ratcliff Family Band.

Beginning at 7 p.m. Friday will be a performance of the Festival Band, a posting of colors by Boy Scout Troop 27, and a performance of the Hillbilly Square Dancers, called by Kelver Stiltner. Maude Slone will show off her harmonica and hoedown talents, while Jim Johnson, Ron Dobler, Jonda Poynter and Roger Smith will be pickin' and singin'. Dr. Carl Clark will lead the Kentucky Heritage Jr. Dancers.

After intermission, the Festival Band will perform again, followed by cloggers Danette and Michael Flannery, "Singers and More," with Betty

Runway Paving Near at New Airport

The second major phase of construction on the new Big Sandy Regional Airport is well under way and it is "at least a possibility" that the facility could be in use late this year.

The airport, in planning and development for nine years, has a 100-foot-wide runway stretching nearly a mile in length, and a parallel taxiway the full length of the runway. It will be lighted, and also will have directional approach equipment.

The site is in Martin county at that county's juncture with Floyd and Johnson counties, adjacent to KY 3, and roughly equidistant from Paintsville, Prestonsburg and Inez. The Kentucky Department of Transportation already has begun design on reconstruction of KY 3, to provide four-lane access to the airport from US 23, between Paintsville and Prestonsburg, and eventually through to Inez.

Airport board chairman Bud Perry, of Paintsville, said Adams Construction, of Pikeville, has the $1.4 million paving and lighting contract. The company has already placed the base stone that precedes paving on the site, and has paved the taxiway and ramp.

Final work has been done on the grading and seeding, under the firstphase construction contract held by E.H. Hughes Co. That also was a $1.4 million project. Additional funds have been expended to relocate power transmission lines and a natural gas service line, and reconstruct a coal-haul road around the airport property.

The terminal area will be developed separately. A tentative design has been approved which will provide space for approximately 50 hangars, from multiaircraft corporate units to individual small aircraft "T" hangars. Also in the tentative terminal design is an office and hangar for airport operations, a fueling area, and a parking area for vehicles.

A joint development of Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Floyd counties in Eastern Kentucky, the regional airport is funded primarily through the Federal Aviation Administration, the Kentucky Department of Transportation and the four participating counties. Basic construction is costing approximately $5 million, and the terminal/hangar area is projected to cost another $1 million.

About 150 acres of reclaimed strip mine property was donated for the project by Pocahontas Development Company

Perry said the airport board has gotten "good reaction" to a survey of potential users, and already has committments for several corporate hangars in addition to facilities for smaller aircraft.

"A committee of the board, including experienced pilots, is concentrating on operational plans," Perry said, "That will be a major factor in our final decisions concerning the terminal area.' Because the FAA does not participate in funding development off the main landing area, other sources of funds have to be found for part of the cost of terminal development, he said. 'The state has been exceptionally cooperative, and we anticipate their funding help as we move into the terminal area, but it still will be difficult to finance," Perry said. "We expect it may have to be done in stages unless we are successful in locating other grant sources.

That is the "biggest potential delaying factor we see at this point," he said. Operations will be postponed until at least minimal facilities are available for aircraft operations.

While the new airport will be capable of handling large aircraft, there appears little likelihood of either commercial or commuter service in the immediate future. Deregulation of airlines has eliminated commercial service from many areas, and the elimination of subsidies has limited expansion of commuter lines. "While we are hopeful that situation will change as time passes, we are realistically anticipating that the new airport will primarily serve corporate aircraft, possibly offer charter service and provide several other advantages that will develop more jobs in our area of Eastern Kentucky. "It has taken us a long time to get this far, and we still have much to do before the new regional airport is all we want it to be," Perry said, "but moving into. the paving phase this month provides the light at the end of the tunnel."

The airport board is also optimistic about potential "off-airport" development. The site is surrounded by an (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Stretching more than a mile across reclaimed strip mine land on a mountain top is the new Big Sandy Airport, a joint project of Johnson, Martin, Floyd and Magoffin counties. Paving is in progress now. The area at left is for aircraft parking, and the long, paved strip is the taxiway. The main runway, right center, is 100 feet wide and nearly a mile in length.

From Suffrage To Gender Gap

By LINDA ST. THOMAS Smithsonian News Service

When women "got the vote" in 1920, some people predicted—and feared—the end of femininity and the family and the beginning of unneeded social reform and elections determined by an unpredictable but solid bloc of women's votes.

The predictions did not come true. In fact, the elections following passage of the suffrage amendment were anticlimactic compared to the years of intense effort to win the vote. In the 1924 election, only one-third of the women eligible to vote cast their ballots. As late as 1960, the voter turnout rate for women was still 11 percentage points behind the rate for men. Moreover, it appeared that the way women voted was indistinguishable from the way men voted.

Today, 65 years after women began voting (the 19th Amendment to the Constitution became law on Aug. 26, 1920), political historians talk matter-of-factly about gender gaps, women's issues, the feminist vote and the impact of a female vice presidential candidate on an election. In 1980, for the first time in history, the proportion of women who reported voting (59.4 percent) was higher than that of men (59.1 percent).

When the 1980 and 1984 election returns were examined, pollsters took note of the long-awaited difference in men's and women's votes in presidential, state and local races and labeled that difference the "gender gap."

The term may be new, but the phenomenon has been developing for some time, says Marjorie Lansing, coauthor of Women and Politics: The Visible Majority. Within the past decade or so, Lansing says, the women's movement has been accompanied by the "growth of an invisible majority (formed by women) in the electorate which has coalesced at times to influence public policy."

Ethel Klein, a political scientist at Columbia University and author of Gender Politics, says that "even when men and women vote for the same candidate, a women's vote exists so long as women vote for that candidate for different reasons." If, for example, women vote for a Democrat because of the party's position on social services or defense spending while men vote for the same candidate because of unemployment and labor issues, Klein contends, there is "a women's vote irrespective of the fact that both men and women voted for the Democrat."

In several 1984 state elections the gender gap was more pronounced than in the landslide presidential election, according to data compiled by the Center for the American Woman and Politics at Rutgers University. Women's participation, in fact, determined the outcome of races in Illinois, Michigan, Massachusetts and Iowa. (Since ballots are anonymous, information on how men and women vote comes from exit poll interviews and opinion surveys conducted by major national news organizations.)

The journey to the gender gap was long and difficult. Officially, it began with an 1848 Seneca Falls (N.Y.) convention which resolved "that it is the duty of the women of this country to secure for themselves their sacred right to the elective franchise." But women's interest and involvement in elections goes back to the first presidential campaigns, when women worked behind the scenes, organizing political meetings and luncheons, making campaign items and attending rallies.

Many mementoes of these early campaigns, as well as treasured suffrage artifacts, are collected, studied and exhibited in the Smithsonian's National Museum of American History in Washington, D.C.

Some 19th-century election objects were made by women and others were aimed at women, but all had a distinct "home" appeal—sewing boxes, ceramic tableware, quilts and pendants. The thinking at the time was that "women would influence the votes of their husbands and sons even though the women themselves could not go to the polls," Edith Mayo, political history curator at the museum, says. "Ironically, political activities and party affiliations were considered family affairs. After the first 15 presidential elections, some women were ready to progress from influencing male voters to voting themselves. Thus began the decades-long suffrage movement in America. A tour of the museum's "We the People" exhibition gives a glimpse of that struggle: the table on which the Seneca Falls "Declaration of Sentiments" was written; the desk used by suffragist Susan B. Anthony who devoted 54 years to the cause; picketers; banners; parade posters and sashes, fans ("Keep Cool and Raise a Breeze for Suffrage") and a Washington, D.C., jail key to the cells where suffragist demonstrators were imprisoned in 1917.

Organized efforts to secure the vote for women began in 1867 with a state referendum in Kansas. It failed. But in 1869, Wyoming became the first state to enfranchise women and two national suffrage associations were formed, later merging under President Susan B. Anthony to become the National American Woman's Suffrage Association.

Universal suffrage, many women hoped, would become a reality through victory state by state. And so, according to records kept by suffrage leader Carrie Chapman Catt, there were 47 campaigns to convince state constitutional conventions to write suffrage into their constitutions, 277 campaigns to adopt suffrage in state party platforms and 480 efforts to ask state legislatures to submit suffrage amendments to their voters. By 1913, nine states, all west of the Mississippi, had enfranchised

Confronted in 1916 with seemingly endless stalemate and questionable vote recounts in some states, historian Eleanor Flexner explains in her book, Century of Struggle, "the eyes of more and more suffragists began turning to Washington, where in the nation's capital, a new suffrage venture was under way."

That year, 5,000 NAWSA members lobbied the Republican Convention to get suffrage on the platform. Meanwhile, suffragists continued to "work on" Congress, although interest in the federal suffrage amendment was at an all-time low, Flexner says.

The opposition that confronted suffragists on both state and national fronts was formidable: political parties that could not be sure of winning if women were enfranchised, big-city political machines suspicious of women's desires to "clean up" politics, brewers and liquor lobbies concerned that women voters would support prohibition, wealthy "antis" (as suffrage opponents were called) who argued that voting would place a burden on women whose place was in the home, and Southern politicians who did not want newlyenfranchised women calling attention to their racially discriminatory voting policies. And there was the psychological barrier, Mayo adds, of a society based on women in private rather than

Despite the obstacles, the movement steadily gained ground. NAWSA launched an aggressive new strategy (Mrs. Catt's "Winning Plan"), the role of women changed as millions entered the work force during World War I and, gradually, both men and women came to believe in the equity of a democracy which allowed all citizens to vote.

hich allowed all citizens to vote. In addition, suffrage activities were becoming more visible to the public. Newspapers of the day were saturated with suffrage stories. Parades, conventions, auto pilgrimages and pickets were organized by both factions of the movement—the mainstream NAWSA and the National Woman's Party, an activist group headed by Alice Paul, a social worker and suffragist who had been trained in the militant British women's movement.

In 1917, the first suffrage pickets, organized by the Woman's Party, stood silently outside the White House gates with banners asking Woodrow Wilson, "Mr. President, What Will You Do For Woman Suffrage?" It was the first time any group had picketed the White House, and crowd reactions ranged from curiosity to sympathy. However, as the nation entered World War I and as the suffragists' signs grew bolder and were perceived as unpatriotic, onlookers became violent. Although the women were not the perpetrators of this violence, they were the ones who were arrested-and jailed. By year's end, 97 women were serving terms of up to six months. The charge: obstructing sidewalk traffic.

By 1918, 11 states, including New York which was crucial to the movement's success, had granted "full suffrage" (as opposed to presidential suffrage). In May 1919, Congress passed the suffrage amendment and it was then ratified by the states. In August 1920, the amendment became law, 26 million American women became voters and the NAWSA was renamed the League of Women Voters

Thus ended a 72-year effort and began a new women's battle, as Carrie Chapman Catt put it, for entry through the "locked door" of political parties. "If you really want your vote to count," Catt told suffragists in 1920, "make your way there." To Open Hiking Season

Was Vote Fraud Confined Only to Martin County?

Since the Martin county grand jury has indicted some twenty residents of the county on election fraud charges of one kind or another and a further probe into the primary election held there last May is promised, one may, quite naturally, wonder if other counties don't need the same kind of scrutiny.

Surely Martin is not the only county where votes were for sale and were bought, or where voters received "help" illegally, or where the vulnerable absentee voting law was abused.

The keen interest which opposing factions in Floyd county have in controlling the composition of the list of precinct election officers somehow hints that those officers must have a value to the group that sponsors them that transcends the plain business of conducting a fair and impartial election.

It is important that honest votes not be offset by illegal votes. Perhaps every circuit court would render a real service by empanelling a special grand jury after each election to take a close look into what happened.

And the problems encountered with the absentee ballot should be a concern of the next General Assembly. The law should be amended to require advance publication of the name and address of each person applying for an absentee ballot, with the reason for applying. That would lighten the work of any grand jury called to investigate election fraud, and it would put an end to the mass absenteeism of voters.

teachers is Prater Elementary, where an instructor is being sought for a seventh grade class. Grigsby said someone had been slated to take that position but had opted to teach at the Mountain Christian Academy in Martin

On another front, a group calling itself the Concerned Parents of Tram last week protested the way their children were being bused to and from school. They claimed, according to published reports, the buses did not pick up their children on schedule, and at times the children were "neglected" and caused to endure the elements while waiting for their bus.

Grigsby said he had not personally been contacted by the group, but county school transportation head Ed Patton said that he and assistant Adrian Bentley had spoken with them and apparently worked out the problem.

Patton said the problem had been corrected when his office implemented service with a full-size bus on the right fork at Tram, and began using a smaller bus for two runs on the left fork, which is inaccessible to the larger bus.

Patton said he was unaware of a reported offer made by a Tram resident to drive a bus free of charge to insure the children received proper care, but said he wished the man, or others like him, would contact him. "We could use more drivers," he said. Patton said service to Tram was better this year than last, when "we didn't get a complaint

But even with all the problems faced by county schools this year, Grigsby said he believes things could be worse.

"I believe we're off to a good start," he said. "With the exception of Garrett, we're off to an excellent start.'

WHY THEY COME BACK An aging man who had driven, or been driven, all the way from the West coast to Eastern Kentucky for a reunion at his old home was asked (the story goes) why he had at his age made such a trip. His reply is not available, verbatim, but it ran to this effect:

"For one thing, I felt up to the trip, and I considered that I might not feel that well again. But, mainly, it was to see old faces and places again and to be here in person. Oh, sure, I can sit a long way off and see these people with whom I shared those great early years when we were young and felt so good that nightfall was as bright as sun-up. I can sit out there and see back here the old apple orchard, places where we played; those hidden, quiet spots where the shade was dark and the moss grew so thick and green you wanted to lie down and roll on it.

"That's memories-recollectionsand I'm thankful for them. But it's not like being here with the people and being in, not just at, the places I've looked back to, wherever I've gone, all these

Eastern Kentuckians certainly have no monopoly on feelings like that, but since the day migration to other states and distant cities began this is what regularly brings thousands of them

TWIN SCOURGES-AND WE'VE GOT BOTH

The morning newspaper has an article about the trouble they're having down South with the iniquitous kudzu vine. The article says this pestiferous gift of Japan to the U.S. has spread even as far north as Kentucky (to which we reply, show us a part of Kentucky where it hasn't been for years).

Kudzu, like that other scourage, multiflora rose, was at one time promoted by state and federal agriculture people, and, now that we've got both, nobody seems to know what to do about the situation. We have an idea that this is a twin problem that should be the concern of the U.S. Department of Agriculture and that afflicted farmers should get federal financial help toward eradication of both parts, if, indeed, eradication is possible.

The multi-flora rose that was recommended to farmers as a "living fence" now clutters countrysides till it's a living offense. The kudzu that was recommended as an erosion preventive grows so fast and far that any attempt by individual farmers to control it would be like sweeping the tide out with a broom.

At one time kudzu, a farm publication reported, provided feed for hogs, down South. That was great till the owner decided to round up his hogs. They were so deep in the stuff, he couldn't find

The article, "Floyd County Report on KEST (Kentucky Essential Skills Test)," in the August issue of the newsletter actually reports on the results not of the KEST but of the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills (CTBS), which was administered to grades 3, 5, 7 and 10 in all Floyd schools last April.

The report noted that students here scored lower than the state average on the tests-Floyd ranked 174th out of Kentucky's 180 school districts-but went on to say that the students did better than expected in view of their ability, as measured on yet another test, known as the Test of Cognitive Skills

The TCS is described in the article as 'a potential learning index... an indicator of student ability and a predictor of academic success." Taking into account their TCS rating, Floyd students "scored beyond their ability level" on the CTBS, the report says. "Students in Floyd county should have scored much lower than they did with consideration of their measured ability," the report continued.

That's the kind of interpretation that infuriates the mother quoted earlier. "It's an insult to our heritage, an insult to our children's heritage," she said this

Another parent, who said she feared retaliation by school administrators if her name were used, agreed. "Native ability, that's all you ever hear," she said. "It throws the blame back not only on our children but on our parents. People in Floyd county are not that "I wouldn't go so far as to say Floyd students are dumb," said Jervis. "What I would say is that they are not as exposed as are some other children to an atmosphere which is conducive to

While tests like the TCS are supposed to be free of any cultural bias, "it is hard to take the culture out of a test," Jervis said. That means, he explained, that in an area where relatively few parents read to their children, where there are few books in the home, and where children are not familiar with libraries and museums, they are more apt to do poorly on tests designed to measure their likelihood of succeeding in school.

The school system cannot evade responsibility for the thin cultural air that Floyd youngsters are forced to breathe, argued one parent, who noted that the school where her two children are enrolled lacks a library.

Overcrowded and ill-equipped classrooms are also the responsibility of school officials, she said, adding, 'Teachers don't get any help. With what the board of education is providing teachers, it's surprising the children are doing as well as they are.'

Agrees With Article

The following article from a recent issue of the LEXINGTON-HERALD expresses perfectly the way I (and I think many others) feel about Kentucky's obligation to its teachers. Every Kentucky legislator should have a copy of this article

DON'T REWARD TEACHERS: PAY THEM By Shirley Baechtold

The passage of House Bill 6, while clearly a victory for education in Kentucky, was hardly ar rousing triumph for teachers. Disturbingly evident is a continuing reluctance to pay Kentucky teachers fair salaries, the kinds of salaries that could restore our prestige, buoy our spirits and convince those 'brightest and best' graduates that teaching is a desirable profession.

The hard core of opposition to the longevity raises and the insistence, by some, that future pay raises be tied to something called "teacher performance" are simply indications that many Kentuckians are still unwilling to accept teachers as professionals who can be trusted to perform competently, with or without punitive checklists, career ladders and promises of merit

Strangely lacking in the rhetoric surrounding the "teacher accountability" issue is testimony from the teachers themselves. Many teachers-indeed, perhaps most of us-believe that such reward systems are divisive and demeaning. Moreover, our journals report that reward systems, in states where they have been tried, have not worked.

If I could speak for the teaching profession, I would say, to the legislators, to the administrators, and to those who are deciding the future of Kentucky's education: We are professionals. Don't reward us for doing our jobs-pay us.

Decide what our jobs are worth, according to today's standards. Pay us in terms of how close you can come to those standards-not in terms of how little we will settle for. Many of us look at the statistics—the average salaries or median salaries-and wonder how we became the forgotten minority, the group whose salaries lie far below the mean. These low salaries can be equated with low morale, but not with low effort. Our commitment to teaching transcends salary issues, and most of us are giving our best because our commitment demands it, not because our evaluators demand it. Pay us for doing our jobs Pay us in good faith.

And in good faith, we will continue to do our best. If we don't, get rid of us. As in other professions, we have our share of mediocrity and, yes, a small percentage of teachers who are ineffective or even incompetent. If we are clearly incompetent, fire us; we too deplore incompetence in our profession. If we lack basic skills, don't hire us, even if we are related to the chairman of the school board.

If you think we are ineffective, tell us-not by innuendo or oblique actionbut straight out. Perhaps we can show you a teaching situation that makes effective teaching impossible. If you know ways we can become more effective teachers, show us. If we still do not improve, replace us. Get us out of harm's way and hire the brightest and best young graduates. Pay them for doing the job.

Like other professionals, we become more effective when we practice what we are trained to do. We become better teachers through teaching, not by taking classes that tell us how to teach. Provide us with summer employment or grants through which we can practice our craft.

Also, like other professionals, we consider it important to keep up with the literature in our fields, and we contribute time, talent and money to our professional activities. Encourage us in these activities, but don't reward us. Professional growth is necessary in our jobs. Pay us for doing our jobs.

We oppose merit pay systems, but not because we fear that we do not "measure up" as effective teachers. We oppose them because they denigrate our profession and because they cloud the salary issue. We are wary of being evaluated by administrators whose academic priorities may be very different from our own. We are wary of the evaluative criteria: Can teaching effectiveness be measured fairly and accurately? How do you document warmth, energy and creativity? We are wary of the political implications of reward systems: Will winning coaches move up the career ladder faster than losing coaches? Will teachers in competitive fields such as science, math and business be more likely to be rewarded than teachers who can be more easily replaced?

Finally, we are wary of the apprehension, the dissension, and the bitterness merit pay decisions can create. We don't want to compete with our colleagues, who are also overworked and underpaid, for a share of merit dollars. Even more divisive are merit raises based on a percentage of one's salary, for this system puts a greater value on the meritorious service of high-salaried personnel and further alienates and discourages beginning teachers and the aforementioned "forgotten minority."

Monetary rewards will not make us work harder or teach better. Effective teaching brings its own rewards, and none of them come in a paycheck. Higher salaries will help us teach better either, but they will help us live better. Higher salaries will raise our spirits and restore some of our professional pride and prestige. And perhaps higher salaries will enable us to say in good conscience, to our children and to our brightest and best students, "I wish you would consider becoming a teacher.

Ex-Principal Says Rights Infringed

For the past several months representatives of the Floyd County Board of Education have given blanket statements to the Floyd County Times. During this time no one has asked for the facts. The people of Floyd County deserve to know the truth and the suspect manner in the way the school board functions.

The Floyd County Board of Education employs a bookkeeper in each high school to handle all money, write receipts, keep ledgers up to date according to law, and make bank deposits. At the end of each month the bookkeeper prepares the monthly financial report for the school. My bookkeeper at Wheelwright High School gave me the report each month and I checked it for accuracy. All reports that I signed were correct and have been proven accurate by two audits. A copy of the financial report is sent to Mr. Ray Brackett each month. He never, in my tenure, called and said there was an error or something needed to be corrected. On January 30, 1985 the state auditors came to Wheelwright High School for an audit. They told me our bookkeeping records were being kept according to Kentucky School Regulations and everything was in good order.

On March 7 we had a pre-planned bomb threat at Wheelwright High School. It was so well planned that it lasted two days after I was transferred to another school. I did not resign as principal of Wheelwright High School, but was transferred to a teaching position out of my field of certification (which is against state law).

Later a politically motivated audit was conducted on the same books. Remember, the books were in good order in January and very little school was held in February due to the weather. I was not informed of the audit. No one contacted me for a response, and I have not been allowed to see the books. I received a form letter which had been sent to several school employees in May requesting I attend the June school board meeting. The letter did not indicate any charges and only that the accounts were in the red.

At the June 19 board meeting my attorney and I met with the board, in executive session, for a hearing. That was the first time I was completely informed of the board's purpose for the hearing. The hearing was then re-scheduled on June 26. My attorney advised me to offer a financial settlement since I was responsible for the action of other employees. I made an offer which included total payment for school pictures lost in the mail. We left the meeting with no acceptance of the offer and waited for a response which never came.

The ledgers of our school, the monthly financial statement, and the bank balance has been proven to be correct by two audits. The letter of the law has en satisfied by everything being recorded on the ledger that agreed with the bank balance to the penny. The spirit of the law does not imply a person is responsible for entries never recorded in the ledgers.

The Board of Education could have accepted my offer, but chose to try my case in the newspapers, by letting their representative make incorrect, inaccurate, and false statements to the press. All my rights were violated, and false statements to the press. All my rights were violated, after the executive session, by remarks printed in the Floyd County Times that has damaged my personal and professional reputation. The board, also, took on the role of the court and decided if other employees were guilty or innocent. In our free country a person is innocent until proven guilty in a court of law.

I have a continuing contract of employment with the Floyd County Board of Education. Each day I am not placed in a position is a violation of state law. If the board does not honor my continuing contract, other teachers may receive the same treatment in the future. No teacher will be safe from politically motivated hirings, firings, transfers and placement.

A Solution To Being Tired

Do you know an adult who is tired of: Eating what everyone else eats at a restaurant because they do not want anyone to know that they cannot read the menu?

Refusing a promotion because they do not want anyone to know that they cannot read enough to fill out an applica-

Living in fear because they had to drop out of school to support a family and never had a chance to learn to read?

You can share this message with someone who cannot read, or you can help eliminate someone's anxieties by getting involved.

For information call (606) 285-5111 and say that you would like to help an adult read, or that you know someone who cannot read.

In 12 hours or less, you can be trained to teach someone to read.

If you cannot get involved by teaching, perhaps you would like to send a donation. The cost of one set of teacherstudent materials is about $50.00. Please send donations to Martin Christian Appalachian Literacy Project, Attn: Sister Mary Gervase, P.O. Box 337, Martin, Ky. 41649.

See You There!

Most folks from East Kentucky are joining the momentum gathering to change the image of the area while creating a pride among residents in our unique heritage. I am no different from any other proud East Kentuckian and very much want the rest of the state and country to know how special we are.

I believe that it is the obligation of any group of people to preserve and hand down undiminished to those who come after us, as was handed down to us by those who went before, the natural wealth and beauty which is ours.

The upcoming Highlands Folk Festival at Jenny Wiley Resort Park is an excellent opportunity for us all to get out and mingle with the out-oftowners-and help make their weekend in Eastern Kentucky a memorable time for our visitors.

In addition, it should be a time for celebrating the event's 20th anniversary. Edith James, of Prestonsburg, who founded the gathering, says it is the oldest continuing event of its kind.

It is a respected and professionally planned festival and receives recognition and assistance from the National Folk Festival

It features traditional music, songs and dances of the Eastern Highlands. It will have topnotch Appalachian arts and crafts exhibited and sold in the Jenny Wiley amphitheatre parking lot. And these musicians and artisans are not only from Kentucky but from several other Appalachian states. It is truly a legacy of which to be proud.

We are fortunate this year to have scheduled the McLain Family to enter-

And you will even be able to swap a tall tale or two if the urge strikes. Quilting, clogging, food, I could go on and on but then you wouldn't have time to attend the festival to enjoy all the entertainment

Kathryn S. Frazier, from Prestonsburg, is this year's director, and she and her staff deserve a large dose of congratulations for their unselfish contributions to making this another successful

My family and I will most definitely be there to enjoy the festivities. And several other state leaders are planning to attend and enjoy the various activities. I will be looking for you there!

GREGORY D. STUMBO. (House Majority Leader)

Camping Season Resume

We have just concluded another successful camping season at the Ky. Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch in Gilbertsville, Ky., and I would like to acknowledge Sheriff Henry Hale of Floyd county and his department for their part in making our summer camping season one of the best in the nation. Our reason for being is to provide a summer camp opportunity to economically disadvantaged children throughout the state and unless the iff or denuties make the effort to secure the children and provide the transportation to and from the Ranch, these children would not be able to attend our camp and enjoy the facilities and experiences available to them.

We had an excellent staff of trained counselors this year who dedicated themselves to the care and teaching of over 700 children for the ten week camp-

I am looking forward to our continuing service to children with our Halloween Party, Christmas Party, and Easter Egg Hunt next spring. We, the staff at the Ranch, are committed to serving our state's less fortunate children to the best of our ability and certainly appreciate the help that has been given

Would Preserve the Old

My husband (Don) and I have enjoyed your newspaper very much. It still has the flavor of a small hometown paper, plus the progressive look of a town that is developing fast.

So many beautiful children and young people!

We love the front pages of 1927. We missed them in your last three issues. We followed with interest what you said on the old Jones house, because of my husband's family is descending from James Derossett and we work hard on the family tree.

Could you write some articles on old families and old happenings of interest, with pictures when possible?

Somebody mentioned that the old Derossett log cabin could be rebulilt on a city lot if Prestonsburg city fathers were interested. What a wonderful idea (not because it is of our family but because it is part of the early history and the city is fast losing its traces of the

On 12th Street in Ashland, there is an old log cabin that was going to be demolished until somebody put it in A-1 shape. It shelters now several craft shops.

Same Name, Same Breed

But Not Same Man, Dog Michael Dale Wallen, of Allen, who owns a doberman pinscher, says he is not the same Michael Wallen, of Prestonsburg, who was listed in last week's Times as owner of a doberman alleged to have attacked a nine-year-old girl last April near Dewey Dam.

Democratic Factions Flex Muscles in Strength Test

While the voting machine may have reduced the human element at the polling booth, it certainly did not eliminate . In an otherwise stormy meeting of Floyd Democrats last Wednesday, that much at least was clear.

The meeting's central issue—it was also a test of strength between two factions within the party-was whom to nominate as polling-place officials for the elections coming up in November and May

Despite the conventional civics-text wisdom-that voting in a democratic society is secret and uncoercedpartisans on both sides of Wednesday's nominations battle seemed unwilling to leave anything to chance. Choosing the right election officers cannot guarantee a victory at the polls but, in some precincts, it can apparently make a difference

When Morris Isaac, Martin coal operator and chairman of the Floyd Democratic Executive Committee, presented for committee approval his list of 192 nominees for the polling-booth posts, there were those who said he was trying to "set up the precincts" to facilitate a victory next May for state Rep. Jim Rose, whose district embraces 11 precincts in this county.

(For some members of a Democratic faction led by Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, thwarting Isaac was part of a larger strategy for containing the influence here of state Sen. Benny Ray Bailey, of whom both Isaac and Rose are reputed to be political allies.)

(Isaac, formerly deputy judgeexecutive, was fired by Stumbo in June, after he allegedly came out in support of Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen-also said to be an ally of Bailey-in the last days of Allen's unsuccessful race against Stumbo in the May primary.)

Delores F. Dingus, executive committee vice-chairman and county finance officer, proposed an alternate list of nominees, one that Isaac characterized as "John M. and Shag's list"-a reference to the judge-executive and to school board member Ray "Shag"

"John and Shag run the school board; now they want to run the committee,' said Isaac, who described his own nominees as having "grassroots"

By the time the issue was voted on-11 committee members voted for the alternate list, while Isaac was joined only by Gary Lovely-it was a foregone conclusion. An earlier vote, on a successor to replace Oliver Williamson on the committee-Williamson died last October in an auto accident-had already indicated which way the wind was blowing.

In that vote, 10 voted for John M. Stumbo to take Williamson's place, while three-Isaac, Lovely and Ernest G. Burchett-voted for Pauline Williamson, the dead man's widow, as his successor.

Precinct officers—two Democrats and two Republicans in each of the county's 48 precincts-are selected by the county board of elections. The county clerk and sheriff are automatically members of the board, which also includes a Republican and a Democratic representative. Under party rules, the party's representative on the elections board is supposed to select precinct officers from the list furnished by the party's executive committee.

Heightening interest this year in the selection of precinct officers is not only

Under the child labor standards of the Fair Labor Standards Act, youths aged 14 and 15 may be employed in a variety of jobs including, office work; various food service jobs, including cashiering, waiting on tables, busing tables, washing dishes and preparing salads and other food (although cooking is permitted only at snack bars, soda fountains, lunch counters and cafeteria serving counters); sales work and other jobs in retail stores; errand and delivery work by foot, bicycle, and public transportation; and most cleanup work.

the split among Democrats but also the fact that Floyd Republicans are fielding an unusually wide slate of candidates in November. The potential of election officials for influencing the outcome in a close election may be gauged by reports that the cards issued to precinct officers are sometimes bought and sold. According to one knowledgeable source, a card can fetch up to $500 in a tight race.

Dr. Ladaga Opens Office

Lou Ladaga, M.D., M.S. (surgery), Ph.D. (surgery), announces the opening of his office for the practice of general and vascular surgery at the Paintsville Clinic Building, 111 Main Street, effective July 22.

Dr. Ladaga received his M.D. degree in 1957; his Master of Science in Surgery at Tufts University, 1964, and his Ph.D. in surgery at McGill University. Canada, in 1967.

In 1964, he was designated a teaching and research fellow at McGill University Medical School, Montreal, Canada, returned to the United States as an instructor in surgery at the Tufts University Medical School from 1967 to 1969 when he was appointed to a teaching fellowship at the Harvard University Medical School and as an assistant in surgery at the Massachusetts General Hospital. He then became an instructor in surgery at the Boston University Medical School until 1979 at which time he became assistant clinical professor in surgery at the Texas Tech Health and Science Medical School and at the same time served as a general and vascular surgeon at the Malden Hospital, Malden, Massachusetts. Since 1979, he has held the same position at the Midland Memorial Hospital and Parkview Hospital in Midland, Texas. He was elected a Fellow of the American College of Surgeons in 1972.

Dr. Ladaga is married and the father of three children. His wife is a registered and certified hospital dietitian. Dr. Ladaga is currently doing surgery and hospitalizing his patients at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Puffins do it differently. Unlike other diving birds which propel themselves through the water by kicking their webbed feet, puffins use their wings to actually fly underwater. After converting from a "plane" to a "submarine", puffins can move rapidly enough to catch fastmoving fish, such as herring

SAM M. WALTON bunder and Chairman of the Board

DAVID D. GLASS
President and Chief Operating Officer

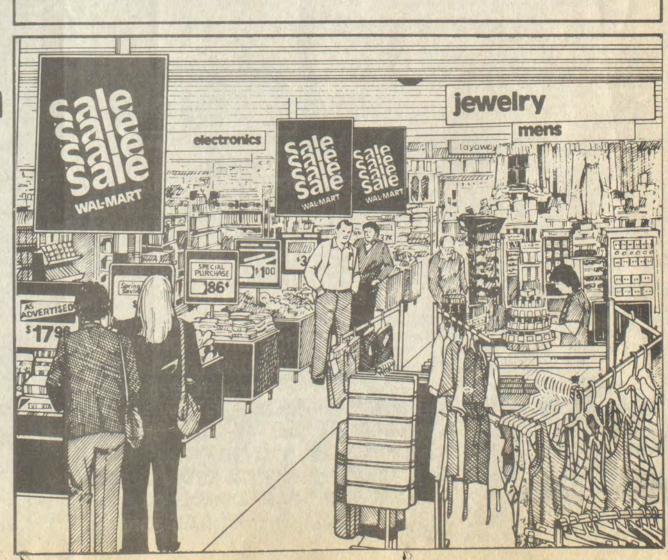

All of our 90,000 associates are very enthusiastic about our company's opening a new store in Prestonsburg. The addition of a new store is always exciting, and we want you to know how very proud we are to be a part of your community. By locating in an area such as yours, we are continuing a long tradition and philosophy of operating stores in healthy and growing communities with a bright future.

Along with a wide selection of quality, name-brand merchandise at low prices every day, our store associates will strive to provide friendly customer service and 100% guaranteed satisfaction.

To help us serve you better, we need the benefit of your observations and impressions. They are extremely valuable to us and to your local management team. At the service desk in your store you may pick up your "Letter to the President" form which you can fill out and send to us. If you have a suggestion, complaint, question, or just want to share an opinion—TELL US. Your comments will help us as we constantly strive to improve the ways we serve you every day.

ONE-STOP DISCOUNT SHOPPING!

Our store features over 35 departments offering you incredibly low prices on the things you need, for the way you live today . . . that's "THE WAL-MART WAY." We have everything from fashions to hardware, from lawn and patio supplies (including live plants) to fine jewelry, from electronics to home fashion coordinates, and much more!

FEVER PITCH

Most parents are frightened by a child's fever. It turns out, however, that the real cause for concern may be parental misinformation about this symptom. The fact is that a temperature of less than 101°F. is not a fever. It should not be treated. Fever alone is not a reliable guide to the seriousness of an illness. According to the American Academy of Pediatrics, a fever of 102°F. is lowgrade; 104°F. is moderate. In spite of parental fears, and except in newborns, any fever under 106°F. is actually harmless. That is, although the child could experience discomfort, it has no neurological consequences. As with any symptom, report fever that persists beyond 24 hours to your pediatrician.

Our pharmacists at COOLEY APOTHECARY are pledged to further and maintain the highest ethical standards of the pharmaceutical industry so call your pediatrician or family doctor first and then have him call us. We maintain an up to date supply of thousands of RX products. Our pharmacists are proud to be part of an important team whose main goal is to keep you and your family healthy. You'll find us located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

Tourism Dept. To Give Fall Foliage Information

For the first time, travelers to Kentucky this fall will be able to get up-todate information on the state's beautiful fall foliage. Tourism Secretary Wendell Combs said last week.

Through a cabinet program called 'ColorFALL Kentucky," a visitor will be able to call a toll-free phone number, 1-800-225-8747, to obtain a region-byregion summary of foliage conditions. The information will be updated weekly. The program starts Sept. 24, unless leaf conditions dictate an earlier or Combs said ColorFALL Kentucky will be similar to established fall foliage programs in other states. "The fall-foliage season is very important to the tourism economies of New Hampshire, Vermont, and other states," Combs said. "We believe there is excellent potential for growth for fall-foliage sightseeing in Kentucky.

ColorFALL Kentucky is a cooperative effort of the Office of the Secretary, the Department of Travel Development, and the Department of Parks. Under the program, state park naturalists at eight reporting stations throughout the state will report to the Department of Parks central office the progress of leaf color changes. The information will be depicted on a map and also reported in an accompanying news release. The weekly map and release will be sent to TV weathercasters at 25 stations in Kentucky and surrounding states. More than 300 newspapers and radio stations in the region also will receive the map and Department of Travel Development telephone operators will be provided the map each Tuesday.

THE HELLBENDER

Across the watery depths it crawls, its slimy, two-foot-long body crowned by a large, flat head with small, beady eyes and a wide mouth. Its greenish-brown skin hangs loosely along its sides in large folds. What is this thing? A miniature Loch Ness monster? Some creature that crawled the earth millions of years ago? No, this bizarre, grotesque animal, which looks more like a bad dream than a living creature, is the fifth largest salamander in the world and lives right here in Kentucky. It is Cryptobranchus alleghaniensis, or the Hellbender.

The Hellbender lives under rocks in deep, swift streams and lakes. They are found all over Kentucky, except west of the lower Cumberland River, and are most common in the upper reaches of the Cumberland, Kentucky and Licking river systems. They eat crayfish, stream insects, and almost any other animal living in the water that they can catch. The females, which are lager than the males, lay twisted strands of pale, yellowish eggs in late summer and early fall. A male will guard the eggs from several females for two or three months until they hatch into inch-long

Many Kentucky fishermen are familiar with the Hellbender. In fact, they will cut their line and lose their tackle rather than touch it's slimy body, for it's reputed to be poisonous. Actually, the Hellbender is not poisonous and. although it lookes mean, is not particularly vicious. But be careful, because it does have teeth, and it will bite if provoked. You can tell a Hellbender from a Mudpuppy, another large aquatic salamander, because a Mudpuppy is smaller and has bushy gills on each side of its head.

Hellbenders are often eaten by catfish and occasionally injured by fishermen. Their greatest enemy, though, is increasing development. Siltation, water pollution, and thermal pollution may be eliminating them from some regions.

The Kentucky Nature Preserves Commission is concerned about the Hellbender and other endangered species. Why should we care about the welfare of such an ugly creature? As a living fossil, this primitive salamander has taught us about the biological history of our continent. The closest living relative of this species lives in Asia, supporting the idea that the Asian and American continents were once joined. The Hellbender has a place in the nature of things—just as much as a beautiful butterfly or a soaring bird.

to be another tough game in a schedule that is considered the toughest the team has ever had, but the Cats were easy 34 to 0 winners.

"It was a fine team effort," Coach Charles Williams said of the game. Why was the score so lopsided? "Maybe we were quicker," he replied," and we made some changes on defense that kept them scoreless.

The touchdown parade for Prestonsburg began on the third play of the contest with a 53-yard scoring run by "Shag" Branham. Then B.D. Nunnery ran for two markers, one for six yards, the second on a 22-yard dash. Ronnie Slone raced for 41 yards for the fourth touchdown, and Clifford Miller, substituting at quarterback late in the game, wound up the scoring on a one-yard run.

Hackworth kicked the extra point on four attempts. Two-point conversion attempts on two occasions failed. Paintsville opened its season last Fri-

Most drugs sold in pharmacies in the United States are safe and work as intended. Just the same, it's best to exercise great care when taking any medication: don't take more than the recommended dosages and watch out for undesirable side effects, the September Reader's Digest advises.

That advice should be especially heeded when taking such commonly available over-the-counter medications like aspirin and cold remedies, or frequently prescribed drugs like birth control pills and tranquilizers.

Specifically, The Digest offers these consumer tips on 10 commonly used drug types:

-Aspirin. Never take more than two 5-grain tablets every four hours for a maximum of 10 days-three for fever. Before taking another drug or undergoing surgery, tell your doctor if you've been taking aspirin.

Some potential side effects: stomach pain and nausea. Ringing in the ears is also possible, but that's generally the sign of a high dose and goes away when you stop taking the drug.

-Acetaminophen. Although this aspirin substitute is generally free of side effects, a large overdose can lead to serious, even fatal liver damage. The recommended dosage is the same as for

-Antacids. It's best to take them one hour after meals and not with other medicines. Excessive use can lead to constipation or diarrhea.

-Cold Medications. No drugs can cure a cold; they can, however, relieve symptoms. Thus if your doctor prescribes cold medication, ask why. If it's an antibiotic-which will not cure the cold-it may be a waste of money.

-Allergy Drugs. Like cold medications, generally they only relieve symptoms. Antihistamines should not be taken by people with glaucoma, or by men with enlarged prostates, and not combined with alcohol. Besides drowsiness, they can cause dry mouth, nose and throat.

-Antibiotics. Because these prescription drugs work over time, it's important to keep taking them even after your symptoms disappear. Also, read the label to find out if they should be taken only on an empty stomach. Watch out for allergies, and be careful of overuse, which may lead to the development of resistant strains of micro-organisms.

-Birth Control Pills. "The Pill" is the most widely studied drug in history. After two decades, scientists have learned that:

The risk of heart disease and stroke increases in women over age 35 who smoke while on the pill.

It's not recommended for women with high blood pressure, diabetes, liver disease or a family history of heart disease, regardless of age. Hormonal fluctuations in pill users can alleviate symptoms of depression in some women and worsen them in others. There's no firm evidence that the pill

Newer-formula pills-containing lower doses of estrogen and progesterone-are less likely to cause weight change, breast tenderness, abdominal cramps or skin discoloration, but more likely to cause menstrual irregularities.

-Diet Aids. The Food and Drug Administration (FDA) is still weighing evidence before deciding if phenylpropanolamine (PPA) contained in diet aids is completely safe. (The FDA finds PPA safe and effective for shorttime use.) Two Washington, D.C. con-

Mae Rife of Mt. Manor Nursing Home, here, at right, displays one of quilt tops that she recently completed. She has pieced 10 quilts in the last three months although when she came to Mountain Manor in February she was suffering from greatly impaired eyesight which is now much improved. Mrs. Rife, 69-year-old widow from MaGoffin county is the mother of eight children. She says she puts her trust in God and tries to stay busy. "These two are the best medicines in the world," she says.

State Education Department, Supt. McDonald Under Fire

Supt. of Schools E.P. Grigsby, Jr. and the Floyd County Board of Education, who have been hard-pressed by the state Department of Education to forestall a possible state takeover of the Floyd school system, were not displeased to learn last week that the state department and State Supt. Alice McDonald are themselves under fire.

-The state Department of Education has incorrectly spent $186,876 in federal child nutrition funds, according to a federal audit of the state Division of Food Services

-And Commonwealth's Attorney Morris Burton, of the Franklin Circuit Court, announced that he will investigate allegations that a state-owned print shop did personal work for Supt. McDonald

The nutrition audit, conducted by the Food and Nutrition Service of the U.S. Department of Agriculture, also lists many problems in the state's management of child-nutrition programs.

Many of the problems were traced in the 36-page report to personnel practices in the division, including the hiring of unqualified employees and disjointed management.

'I think we'd have to say that there are some very serious deficiencies that require prompt action by the state," Charles Kirby, regional director of the Special Nutrition Programs, said.

Those actions include repayment of the nearly $187,000 that the audit says was improperly spent by the division, he

If the state disagrees that it should repay the money-and it has indicated it will resist paying at least a big chunk of it-the matter could end up in court, Kirby said.

A story in the Frankfort State Journal recently quoted two unidentified Department of Education employees as saying they had seen the printing work done at the agency's shop in Frankfort.

The allegations concern a brochure describing rental opportunities at a Florida condominium owned by McDonald and her husband, Glenn, and invitations to his birthday party in May.

Speaking through her spokeswoman, Barbara McDaniel, Supt. McDonald called the charges "absolutely false.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Warning Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

The following nine symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations are often the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these may spell back trouble.

(1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals may indicate your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will likely become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these warning signals . . . call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

World Traveler To Be at Maytown

The Rev. Bob Varney, pastor of Maytown First Baptist Church, invites the public to visit the church on September 15 at 2 p.m. to see slides that Lloyd NeSmith, of Florida, will show and describe, since he has visited more than 100 nations, and has more than 5000 slides taken in them.

Mr. NeSmith was at Mayo High School from 1926 to 1929 as mathematics instructor, so a special invitation is extended to former students of his. He is recognized as a distinguished Methodist layman who devotes his spare time to showing slides to patients in nursing homes, hospitals, senior citizens, children, etc. under auspices of civic or religious organizations and groups. The views he has selected to show in Maytown are chiefly about Greece, where St. Paul spent considerable time, Russia, Turkey and others. Various publications have featured reports on his journeys. He returned last April from a trip around the world.

He and his late wife, Pauline, have had close friends in Maytown for almost 60 years. They last visited Maytown in August of 1974

Grethel Club Meets

The Grethel Homemakers' Club met Aug. 26 at the Grethel Baptist Church annex with the president, Arietta Hall, presiding.

The lesson, "Table Toppings," was taught by Floyd County Extension agent Frances Pitts. A sample table setting was displayed, plus many examples of placemats, napkins, napkin rings, table linens, and centerpieces.

The annual Floyd County Homemakers' meeting will be held Sept. 25 at the First Methodist Church, Prestonsburg. Each club is to bring a homemade item for table decoration and each club is to model a homemade item for the style show.

Copeland's African search

By Barton Weiss

Stewart Copeland, the drummer from the Police, has a new 55-minute video called "The Rhythmatist." It is supposedly about Copeland's search for African rhythms, but it is actually more of an extended travelogue through scenic Africa, where the fairhaired Copeland dressed in black and loaded with electronic equipment - seems a bit out of

The soundtrack LP from this clip will probably out-sell the video, but the video is the primary artistic work. It's the first extended musical piece for the home-video market that's neither concert- nor cliporiented, and is definitely worth seeing.

Fogerty scores again
The best new video this week is John Fogerty's "Vanz Kan't Danz," fea-turing the clay animation of Will Vinton (the originator of the technique called claymation), who is making his first venture into music videodom.

YEAR OF THE DRAGON (R-MGM/UA) Starring Mickey Rourke, John Lone, Ariane. * *

Five years and $44 million ago, Michael Cimino present-ed "Heaven's Gate." Hollywood had seen plenty of other big-budget and over-budget disasters, but none of them approached the critical and popular denunciation of that

But for all its faults, "Heaven's Gate" was never inept. The movie as a whole may have been a total flop, but Cimino directed every scene with a visceral urgency. And even Cimino's earlier (and highly acclaimed) "The Deer lacked viewpoint. Hunter" Hunter" 'Deer struck a common nerve, but in retrospect, individual scenes were considerably more powerful than the overall film.

Cimino's latest effort, "Year of the Dragon," demonstrates that he is still able to wring every ounce of emotion out of a scene. But step back for a moment and the overview is cloudy and ambiguous.

The movie features Mickey Rourke as a cop who rushes in where others fear to tread. Sent into Chinatown to stop gang violence, he uncovers kind of organized crime that makes "The Godfather" gang look like a couple of petty larcenists.

By J.T. YURKO The Chinese immigrant population is treated very differently from the way in which Cimino treated the Eastern Europeans in "Heaven's Gate" or the Polish/Slovak steelworkers in "Deer Hunt-er." In fact, the Chinese are portrayed with an overt racism that can only partially be dismissed because of the criminal occupations of the characters.

Like "The Deer Hunter," the main protagonists are compulsive neurotics. Rourke wants to crush the crime ring with a fervor that goes far beyond anything he owes in re-turn for his paycheck, and John Lone as the self-ap-pointed Godfather of Chinatown has a lust for power that can only be described as aberant.

Cimino doesn't pull any punches with stylistics. Violence and tension are his playthings, and he manipulates them - and us - with sledgehammer results.
"Year of the Dragon" only demonstrates that Cimino is now capable of presenting a film on budget. It features no great stylistic or thematic breakthroughs.

organic techniques.

Organic Gardening Pays Off

In addition to the compost, Martin is using a couple of other gardening techniques, isolating the different crops and insulating them with black plastic cover.

'The logs I put around the beds keep the different vegetables isolated. I can grow more of each in less space, and have fewer weeds," he said.

The plastic, he said, holds heat, allowing him to work a little earlier in the year. Later in the year, when the soil begins to dry out, it helps retain mois-

One of the few problems Martin is having with his organic garden is shared by his other gardens as well. The tomatoes, it seems, are coming in a little rough this year. Several vines have produced mutated clusters growing as one tomato, where there should have been two, or in some cases three or four. Martin attributes this to the weather, with swings in temperature and moisture being the suspected culprits.

Martin said that every year he plants more than his family could possibly use, and he gives much of the excess to friends and relatives.

'I do it more as a hobby," he said. "I give some to my mother, some to my father-in-law and mother-in-law.' And, he said, he never sells his produce.

"When you sell it, people don't think it's as good, but when you give it away, they really like it," he said.

Labor Day Week-End "Quiet," Officers Say

Things were pretty quiet in the county over the Labor Day weekend, according to law enforcement officials.

Police Chief Stan Fletcher said his department recorded only six arrests, three for driving under the influence, three for public intoxication.. Officers were said to have investigated one minor traffic accident and the theft of a vehicle from Ed Walters Motors.

The only traffic accident investigated during the holiday period occurred Saturday when vehicles driven by Lois Meadows, of Blue River, and Byron Nunnery, of East Court St., collided as the Meadows vehicle attempted to change lanes. Fletcher said damage was

The biggest investigation city police were involved in during the holiday, said Fletcher, involved the theft of a 1986 Jeep CJ7 from the Ed Walters lot. The incident occurred Saturday when two juveniles reportedly removed the jeep from the dealership and went joyriding. Fletcher said officers recovered the jeep at Corn Fork, and his department was pressing charges against the suspects.

A spokesman for the Floyd county Sheriff's Department said things were equally quiet across the county. Deputy Paul Auxier said this year was "the quietest Labor Day in a long time," indicating that the department investigated about the same number of complaints as on a normal weekend, with "just a few public intoxication" arrests being made.

At Kentucky State Police Post 9 in Pikeville, Trooper Homer Coleman said things were pretty calm throughout the Post's five-county area

"There was nothing serious, thank God," said Coleman, who said troopers had issued 348 traffic citations and made 25 DUI arrests in the five counties. Statistics for Floyd county alone were unavailable. Coleman said a normal weekend would see about half as many DUIs, but in general "it was a normal weekend for us.

"I think we've done an exceptionally good job for the people this week," he said. "Any time you can get 25 people who are intoxicated off the road and slow down 348 speeders, you make things a lot safer.

Parents Can Help Their Youngsters Learn

Can parents help their youngsters with their schoolwork? The answer is a resounding "Yes!" from America's top teachers. In a report prepared for the September Reader's Digest, some of the nation's "Teachers of the Year" share their tips on how parents can be part of the educational process.

-Show interest. If you ask, "What did you do in school today?" and your child responds, "Nothing," make your questions more specific. If she continues to be the uncommunicative clam, at least she knows you care about school.

-Be positive. Children learn best when they feel good about themselves. so try to recognize even the smallest improvements. Never use humiliation or ridicule.

-Children learn best from someone they respect. If you have differences with the teacher, take them up with the teacher directly. Do not criticize the teacher to the youngster. -Teach your child to wash the dishes, or care for the family pet, or make his own bed. Teachers say they can spot students who have chores: they do better at schoolwork.

-Don't worry too much if your youngster is reading "trash." It's the reading habit that's critical. Introduce good literature in paperbacks—it's less intimidating that way

—If there's a point in the homework that the child doesn't understand, don't jump in with a long explanation. A better way is to ask her what she does understand. This should show you where the problem lies.

-Teen-agers are struggling to become independent. They may act as if they don't want you to be involved, but do it anyway. Always find ways to say, "I'm interested. I care.

WHEELER WINS ELECTION FOR CIRCUIT JUDGE

Wins By Majority of 45 Votes Over Judge Williams

CFFICIAL RETURNS IN

Two races for circuit judge in the recent election resulted in the most interesting political campaigns conducted in Kentucky this year and in the barest margins for the victors.

In the Floyd-Knott district, C. B. Wheeler, of this place, defeated Judge W. W. Williams, candidate for incumbency to the office, by a majority of 45 votes, official returns show. In the Bell-Harlan judicial district, Repfesentative D. C. "Baby" Janes defeated Judge J. G. Forrester by a margin of Returns, as approved by the election commissioners of Floyd and Knott counties, show that Judge Williams polled a total of 4,723 votes in this county, and 1,689 in Knott. Judge Wheeler received 4,874 votes in Floyd and 1,583 in Knott.

Sampson's majority over Beckham is well over 20,000, it is believed. Fortythree counties are still out in the official tabulation, and the minor state races are, as a result, undecided. At this time, the Democratic ticket is reported ahead. The final count may, however, reverse the present status of candidates for these offices.

O. H. Stumbo, Democrat, of Prestonsburg, won out over George T. Roberts, Republican, of Harold, for circuit court clerk by a majority of 378 votes. Stumbo polled 4,944 votes to Roberts' 4,566, returns show.

For State Senator from the Floyd-Pike-Knott district, H. D. Fitzpatrick, Republican, of Prestonsburg, defeated Dr. Alex L. Hill, Democrat, also of this place, by 1,039 votes, with Kennedy precinct in this county not counted in the race. The winner polled 4,590 votes in Floyd, 7,370 in Pike and 694

A great improvement was noted in children who had been examined at the fair, a month ago.

There are still a large number of children in Prestonsburg who were not present Monday, Dr. Rice said. The health department is anxious for the mothers to make a practice of bringing the children once a month to the clinics. These clinics will be held on the second Monday afternoon of each month from 1 to 4 o'clock.

A record is kept of each child, so that at any time the mothers will be able to know just how much progress their children are making.

It is also advisable for all school children to have diphtheria toxin-antitoxin to protect the children from diphtheria, Dr. Rice said. This gives a life immunity. Any mother who has seen her child suffering with diphtheria will realize the great value of the toxin-antitoxin

HEARING BEFORE COMMISSION

Producing and Consuming States Arrayed For Fight

CASE OPENED WEDNESDAY

Hearing of the new lake cargo rate cases started before members of the Interstate Commerce Commission at Washington Wednesday, November 16. James D. Francis, chairman of the lake cargo rate committee representing the operators of southern West Virginia, Eastern Kentucky, Virginia and Tennessee, together with other operators, left for Washington Sunday eve-

Before the hearing opened on Wednesday it was promised that there would be arrayed on the side of the southern railroads which are seeking to reduce rates to the lake ports, official and private support not only from the coal producing states, but from the great coal consuming states of the northwest as well.

Other States Affected

The consumer states, which pay the freight, and who stand to benefit by the proposed cut, have manifested great interest in the cause, while the coal producing states have rallied vigorously to the support of the operators and the roads

The game in which evidence is to be taken, first at Washington and later at Minneapolis, is that of the Chesapeake and Ohio, Norfolk and Western and Louisville and Nashville railroads which filed a schedule of tariffs involving a 20 per cent reduction on coal to the lake cargo ports. This reduction, offered following a series of conferences of railroad officials with coal operators, would have, if permitted to have become effective, offset a 20 per cent reduction previously ordered by the commission in behalf of shippers from Pittsburgh and Ohio No. 3 The schedules, however hastily suspended by the commission, and the hearing ordered which began Wednesday.

It is anticipated that the Pennsylvania operators who have been fighting for a number of years for an increase in the differential spread between rates from their fields to the lake and those from the southern

IN APPRECIATION

We would like to thank our family and friends for their love and sympathy given to us in our time of need, from the passing of our loving daughter, Rose Chiffon Hayden.

Sincere appreciation to Rev. Jerry Smith, his wife Vivian and the Church of God of Prophecy of West Prestonsburg, for their kind words and prayers. They did not let us cross the mountain of sorrow, alone.

Special thanks to Rev. Robert Varney, Auxier choir, pallbearers, Floyd Funeral Home, and Sheriff deputies— Paul Auxier, John K. Blackburn, Buck Layne, and Hershel Owens for the fine escort service. Well done.

Our deepest appreciation to you all.
For the flower of a rose, may stay here on earth—but our daughter and sister,
Rose, will stay in our hearts.

We love you, GENE AND GARNETT HAYDEN AND FAMILY

Miss Hale at Seminary, Plans Return to Area And Service to Youth

Judith Lynn Hale, better known as Judy, has recently been accepted and is now attending the Southern Baptist Theological Seminary in Louisville. She will be seeking a Master's degree in Christian Education with an emphasis on Youth Ministry.

She is a 1980 graduate of Prestonsburg Community College and a 1983 graduate of Pikeville College. While a student at Prestonsburg Community College she was an active member of the Baptist Student Union and served as president. While attending Prestonsburg Community College she was a member of First Baptist Church (Irene Cole). As a student at Pikeville College she was also active in Baptist Student Union where she served as president and vicepresident. She also served on the Spiritual Life Committee and took part in weekly chapel services, and is presently a member of the First Baptist Church, Pikeville.

Miss Hale has been the church secretary for the First Baptist Church, Pikeville, for the past two years as well as serving as Pike Association youth director for 27 Southern Baptist churches and missions in the Pike county area. She also has served as youth minister for the Elkhorn City Baptist Church

Asked what her goals were for her life, she said, "I want to attend Southern Seminary where I can be prepared to fulfill the calling the Lord has placed on my life and to grow in a deeper spiritual relationship with my Lord. After graduation from Southern I would like to come back to this area to work with young people. Young people I know best live in this area, because I know how it is to live and grow up here. But I, like the prophet Isaiah, have said to the Lord, 'Here am I, send me.'

Miss Hale is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Hale, the granddaughter of Mrs. Wilma Hale and the Watt Hale and of Mrs. Emma Jane Campbell and the late Arthur Campbell.

Anyone For French? PCC is now offering a conversational

French class for individuals, married couples or families who wish to learn enough of the language to travel and communicate in a French-speaking country. Emphasis will be placed on vocabulary, pronunciation and popular phrases which are necessary in specific social situations. The study will enhance an appreciation for French culture and customs. For those who wish to pursue the language more thoroughly, additional classes may follow at the completion of this introductory one.

Conversational French will be taught by Teresa Hernandez, an assistant professor in the division of biological sciences. Ms. Hernandez has traveled extensively in France, where she was a student, and she lived for one year in Algeria, where her knowledge of the French language was thoroughly put to

The Conversational French class will meet at PCC on Mondays, 7:00-8:00 p.m. beginning September 23 and continue for 12 weeks through December 9. For those interested, please contact Juanita Ratliff for information on registration. Telephone 886-3863, ext. 215.

Remembered for Kindness

Floyd county has lost a very outstanding citizen in the death of Ella Miller Robinson, who was a nurses' aide at Our Lady of the Way Hospital.

Ella always had a smile for everyone. She had a soft and friendly voice, and she was so good to the patients. She was also good to the families who were under such pressure from sickness of loved ones. She was always there to lend a helping hand.

We're sure that all who knew Ella loved her and will miss her as much as we will.

Rural Development Specialist Duff Retires After 34 Years

Dr. Mike Duff, community development specialist in the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture, has retired after 34 years of service to Kentuckians at the local, regional, state, national and international levels.

Duff's career with the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service began in 1951 when he was appointed assistant county agent in Laurel county. In 1954 he became county agricultural agent in Lewis county.

From 1957 to 1963 Duff was coordinator of special programs for the Extension Service. In 1960 he earned a Ph.D in Extension administration at the University of Wisconsin. In 1965 he was appointed to the rank of associate professor and named chairman of development programs in the Extension Service.

Duff became a full professor in 1969 and was moved up to become assistant director for development programs.

Duff's leadership and dedication to excellence have been the hallmark of his career. As a county agent he trained two state champion dairy judging teams as well as state champions in engineering, swine production, public speaking, forestry and demonstrations. During his tenure in Lewis county the county won the Outstanding State Award for pasture improvement. The Lewis county 4-H dairy and poultry juding teams won the state and national championships. Many 4-H'ers from Lewis county entered the University of Kentucky and at least three earned the Ph.D degree.

Duff is a founding member of the National Community Development Society, a regional president of the Council of Southern Mountains, Inc., a director of the Kentucky Conservation Council, secretary of the Kentucky Development Committee, and a member of the board of directors of the Mountain Maternal Health League Affiliate World Population Council.

During his career Duff has served as an advisor or consultant to the U.S. Agency for International Development Institute of Rural Education in Chile, the University of Notre Dame, the Council of Southern Mountains, Inc., the University of North Carolina Policy Institute, the Rockefeller Foundation, the University of Missouri, the W.K. Kellogg Foundation, the University of Louisville Urban Student Center, Florida A & M University, the Governor's Office, and several other organizations.

Upon the announcement of his retirement cohorts of Duff at the state and national levels expressed their admiration and appreciation of his contributions to his field and to the people of Kentucky.

Dean Charles E. Barnhart of the *University of Kentucky College of Agriculture said, "Mike is totally dedicated to the Cooperative Extension principle of practical education for the improvement of home, farm and community."

In recognition of his outstanding and longstanding contributions to the development of the people and communities of Kentucky the Kentucky Development Committee, an organization of public and private agencies involved with community development, has not only voted to bestow its highest honor upon Mike Duff—it has named the award after him. Henceforth, individuals recognized by the KDC for their contributions to community development in Kentucky will receive the, "Mike Duff-KDC Community Development Award."

The average weekly earnings of production workers in the manufacturing industries decreased from $369.42 in March to $369.02 in April.

In Memory of FRANK CRISP Who Died August 28, 1980

Five years have passed since you've been gone, But yet your presence still lingers on.
Your warmth, your charm and your loving ways, Were priceless to us through all those days.
You and Mom were a happy pair,
As everyone knows, they would see you there,
Sitting on the porch any time of day,
or walking to town on a Saturday.
Time goes on and Mom's still here,
With us to keep your memory dear.
We share her loss and want her to know,
She's as special as you, and we love her so.

We Love You, Mom From: Phyllis, Pat and Janet

OWENS FOR MAGISTRATE

Jackie Edford Owens wishes to thank all the people who came out and brought their kids for his victory celebration and November Kick-off, Saturday, August 24, at Molly Owens field. Although the weather was bad and hampered some of the crowd, we still had a great time and some good food.

WHY SHOULD YOU VOTE FOR ME?

I'm the ONLY DEMOCRAT running for magistrate in District 2. I do have opposition by William Flannery on the Republican ticket and Birchell Duff on the INDEPENDENT ticket, a NO PARTY ticket. I am a DEMOCRAT, but I do respect the Republican party, however an INDEPENDENT is just out to bust both the Democrat and Republican parties by TRYING to steal our votes.

If you really want to make a change let's not let a few politicans and BIG

WHEELS push for an INDEPENDENT magistrate, because the Democratic and Republican parties are too smart for their political tricks.

I was CHOSEN by the Democratic party to REPRESENT them in the November election. I plan to do just that STRONGLY!

Churches Complete Training

The Wayland/Maytown United Methodist Churches have completed another training semester of Evangelism Explosion.

The participants received 4 months of training. During that time they learned how to effectively share the Gospel of Christ with a non-Christian, lead them in a sinners prayer, and immediately follow-up a new convert.

The training consisted of classroom lectures, homework, and weekly visitation in the community. Over 75 visits were made during the last training

The churches will conduct another training semester from September through December, with six more people being trained.

Branham-Bailey

The marriage of Sharon Ann Branham and Alec Grey Bailey will take place Saturday Sept. 7 at 7:30 in the evening at the Paintsville Country Club, the reception to follow. The gracious custom of an open wedding will be

INVITATION TO LEASE OFFICE SPACE

The Finance and Administration Cabinet of Kentucky desires to lease approximately 616 net square feet of office space to be located in Prestonsburg, Kentucky. Parking to accomodate four (4) vehicles must accompany the space. Space must be available for occupancy on or before October 1, 1985.

Responses may be made by any person in writing on or before 10:00 a.m., Friday, September 13, 1985. You need only to designate the type and location of the property, the name, address, and phone number of the property owner, and the date of availability of the property for lease. Lease Requisition Number PR-3174 should be clearly marked on the outside envelope of each proposal submitted to Room 171, New Capitol Annex, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601.

All responses received will be publicly opened and read at the above designated time. You will be notified by a representative of the Leasing Branch so that an appointment can be made to inspect the proposed facility.

Property must be approved by the office of the State Fire Marshal, meet OSHA and handicapped accessibility specifications, as well as existing applicable building codes. For any additional information, contact Ms. W. H. Lile of the Leasing Branch at (502)

WHY IS A WILL SO IMPORTANT?

It is a sobering fact to find out that if you do not leave a legally acceptable will, the state supplies a ready-made one which may or may not carry out your desires. An oral or handwritten will is not considered legal in many states and will not necessarily be considered in the handling of your estate.

When a legal will has not been recorded, the possibilities of inequities are many. These inequities can often lead to additional expenses and heartaches to your survivors at a time when many other decisions must also be made.

To make out a will with a lawyer's guidance assures you that you—and not the state will direct the distribution of your estate.

If you do not know a lawyer to help with your will, contact the nearest bar association, your bank or someone used to dealing with lawyers. Making a will is a difficult and emotional task, another reminder that death will indeed come to each of us. Drawing up your will and making your pre-need funeral arrangements are two necessary steps which every adult ought to make. We sug-

Chamber of Commerce Donates $1,500 To Jenny Wiley Theatre

The Floyd County Chamber of Commerce this week donated $1,500 to the Jenny Wiley Theatre.

Chamber of Commerce President Rob Schissler said the Chamber is designating the money to help with the theatre's advertising expenses. By doing so the Chamber's gift will be matched by the Kentucky Department of Travel Development's Matching Fund Program at the rate of 50 cents for every dollar of theatre advertising.

This is not the first time the Chamber of Commerce has helped the theatre. Last year, it gave the theatre $1,000 and loaned it $1,500. In addition to financial support, the Chamber of Commerce commends the theatre to individuals and businesses considering moving to this area.

Asked about the Chamber's gift, Jenny Wiley Theatre General Manager Steve Cornwell said "The theatre is very grateful for the generous gift and we are thankful for the good relationship we have with the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce. I look forward to working with the Chamber in the future as we both work to make our area a good place to live."

KET Progam Explores World Food Crisis

Nearly one-fourth of the world's population faces starvation. "The Edge of Survival," encoring on Tuesday, September 24, at 9:00 p.m. on KET, sounds a note of hope for the world's poor and hungry millions by offering a number of unique solutions to the problem.

Filmed on location in India, Brazil, Ecuador, England, and the United States, this documentary includes interviews with Nobel Peace Prize-winner Mother Teresa of Calcutta; former U.S. Secretary of Agriculture Bob Bergland; and Swami Muktananda of Ganishpuri, who preaches self-determination. Also interviewed is a direct descendent of the Rev. Thomas Robert Malthus, who, 200 years ago, theorized that starvation is nature's check on population growth.

Key sequences include visits to the world's largest rice plantation, created by American billionaire Daniel Ludwig in the Amazon region of northeast Brazil: to Salsavdo in the central plateau of Ecuador, where the government at first promised and then denied 5 acres of good farmland to two Indian fishing communities, where international aid worked against the impoverished fishermen; and Versova, where the women of the village took matters into their own hands and reversed poverty into prosperity.

This film, narrated and introduced by Fritz Weaver, won the 1982 World Hunger Media Award and was a top finalist in the 1982 American Film Festival. It is used as a training field by both the Peace Corps and Save the Children.

'The Edge of Survival' is produced by Wharton International Films, Inc.

Victim-Rights Groups Gain Ground

A Maryland mother whose daughter was raped and murdered in 1982 has made the courtroom consideration of victims' rights and the prosecution of assailants more likely across the Stephanie Roper was shot to death in a suburban Maryland community; her assailants were picked up hours after the discovery of her body. As the September Reader's Digest reports, her parents understood immediately the importance of a water-tight conviction. 'Don't do anything to violate their rights," her father told the arresting detectives. "We want them brought to justice.

The courtroom held surprises for the Ropers. While one defendant's former teacher and his prison minister were permitted to speak on his behalf, the judge ruled that Stephanie's character and her parents' grief were legally irrelevant. Further, the jury was permitted to find "mitigating" factors in determining sentence, including consideration of the guilty man's consumption of drugs and alcohol and the despair his execution would cause his family. The sentences both men received were light.

Roberta Roper convened the Stephanie Roper Committee to draw up a list of needed legislative reforms. They included the need to eliminate voluntary intoxication as a mitigating circumstance, to force courts to consider 'victim-impact statements" and to make life sentence without parole an alternative for a convicted murderer.

She traveled the state, drumming up signatures and support before she confronted the Maryland General Assembly. And when she did testify before a joint General Assembly hearing, she brought with her 24 boxes of supporting petitions signed by more than 90,000 Marylanders. By the time the General Assembly adjourned that session, three Roper bills had passed and were subsequently signed into law.

'Now Roberta turned the attention of her growing, 7000-member organization toward the courtroom," the Digest article continues. "To make sure the courts were following the new laws and to provide support for victims' families, Roper Committee members wearing 'I am a Victim' buttons began attending murder trials.

The Roper Committee-now one of the largest victim-rights groups in the United States-continues to make an impact. Three additional laws it originally drafted became Maryland state law as of July 1, 1985. Victims of violent crime or their families can now request notification of parole hearings and decisions and can file updated impact statements. Judges need no longer sequester victims of violent crime after they testify and may prohibit the release of a victim's or witness's address and telephone number during a criminal

HONORED WITH SHOWER

A miscellaneous shower honoring Miss Sharon Ann Branham and Mr. Gary Bailey was given on Saturday, August 17, with an evening cookout at the home of Mr. and Mrs. John Phillip Sammons. The party was hosted by Sharon Sammons, Paul David Wells, Tommi Sue Branham, Sarah Cross, Kathy Rust, Debbie Thomas, Betty Calhoun, and Stephanie Turner.

Wal-Mart To Open Soon in Shopping Center

The new Wal-Mart Store in the Prestonsburg Village Shopping Center will be opening very soon, according to Jim von Gremp, director of Corporate & Public Affairs for Wal-Mart Stores, Inc. In making the announcement, von Gremp said, "The store is almost complete and the final preparations are being made now for the store's grand opening, to be announced later.'

"Wal-Mart is very excited about the realization of this project and looks forward to becoming active members of the community," he added.

The store will offer name-brand, quality merchandise in 36 departments. Low prices, along with friendly customer service, have made Wal-Mart one of the most successful discount chains in the country.

Wal-Mart has been recognized by Dun's Business Review as one of the top five best managed companies in the United States. In addition, the company was cited in the best seller book, "In Search of Excellence.

Charles G. Sparks, assistant manager of Wal-Mart's Winchester store, has been named manager of the Prestonsburg area.

Heart Association Urges Right Diet

From September 8 through 14, the American Heart Association is sponsoring a national nutrition event called American Heart's Food Festival. It is designed to focus public attention on the importance of adopting a low-fat, lowcholesterol diet. These items have been found to be directly linked to health, and are a major underlying cause of heart disease. This information is particularly important to Kentuckians since cardiovascular disease is the number one cause of death in the state, killing nearly one-half of all Kentuckians who died
