Business Hours Still Undecided By Association

Questions of when business hours should be and how best to promote the downtown area dominated Tuesday's meeting of the Prestonsburg Business Association.

At the association's last meeting, Sept. 24, the merchants had discussed the possibility of expanding business hours so as to better accommodate customers' work schedules. Tuesday, however, they could not come to an agreement on the best way to implement such changes.

William O. Goebel, III, of the Ben Franklin store, said he didn't think simply changing business hours would help very much. He said the stores should make the change when they begin their Christmas push, "and just flow into it." Goebel also said some sort of promotion was needed to let people know the stores would be open longer and to pique their interest.

But not everyone agreed. Francis store manager Gary Vickers said the move was intended "to change people's ideas about downtown." "We want to start out with these steps," he said, "and some people might even think this is too drastic."

Public Hearing On Rate Change Set October 23

To scattered applause from the audience at its monthly meeting, the Floyd Board of Education decided last Wednesday to seek a 56.4 percent increase in this year's school tax.

The proposed rate—28 cents per $100 assessed valuation on both real and personal property—is the highest of three rates the board may lawfully adopt. An 18.3 cents rate would raise about the same tax revenue as was realized this year, when the rate was set at 17.9 cents. A 19-cent rate would yield about four percent more in revenue and is the highest rate that is not subject to voter veto.

If it were all collected, taxes levied at the highest rate would yield $1.1 million for Floyd schools—$341,026 more than would be produced at the second-highest rate. By law, however, a public hearing must be held on tax-increase proposals and, if the expected tax yield is more than four percent higher than the current year's collection, voters may petition for a referendum on the proposal.

Commenting on the board's unanimous decision to seek the highest rate, Acting Superintendent Ray Brackett said, "That took a lot of courage on the part of this board. I appreciate and applaud it."

"That's what it takes to move this district forward," the superintendent added. "We desperately need those dollars."

Under a new state law, local school districts must levy a tax of at least 25 cents per $100 next year in order to qualify for increased state support. That support could amount to as much as $9 million in construction funds and $1 million for instruction in Floyd county in 1986 and 1987.

Beginning next year, school taxes up to 25 cents will be exempt from the recall provision of House Bill 44, which allows voters to reject increases of more than four percent. This year the recall provision is still in force on rates above 19 cents, however.

Under the proposed top rate, the owner of a house assessed at $35,000 (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

Conduct of Meeting By Brackett Praised

Basking in a glow of praise following his first Board of Education meeting as superintendent, Acting Superintendent Ray Brackett singled out the type of comment that most pleased him. "One person told me it was the most businesslike board meeting they'd ever seen," he said.

Businesslike it was. The public comment segment, which has sometimes seen meetings open on a note of strident criticism, was shifted to the end of the agenda. Last Wednesday's meeting opened instead with a brisk recitation by the superintendent of the month's accomplishments.

Two Floyd Men Die on Highways, One by Hit-Run

Kentucky State Police are following slim leads in their investigation of the apparent hit-run death last Tuesday night of Vincent Crager, 22, of Garrett, one of two Floyd men who died last week in highway mishaps.

Crager's body was found shortly after 9 p.m. in the westbound lane of KY 80, on Rock Fork, about two miles outside Garrett, by a passing motorist. His body had been hit or grazed by as many as three vehicles, Coroner Roger Nelson said.

Head and chest injuries were given as the cause of death. An autopsy was performed by Dr. Hunsacker at the UK Medical Center, Lexington.

The second victim was 24-year-old Pearl Lloyd Salisbury, of Hunter, who died Friday night at the scene of the wreck of his car at Drift. The report of State Trooper Lon Cross said Salisbury lost control of his car while driving south on KY 122. The vehicle went into a ditch which it followed until it struck an embankment and from that point skidded on its side approximately 150 feet, throwing its driver through the sun-roof.

Crager was a son of Vernon Crager, of Salyersville, and the late Shelby Crager. Besides his father, he is survived by two brothers, Dwayne Crager, of Auxier, and Kenneth Crager, Ft. Hood, Texas; one sister, Teresa Crager, of Garrett, and his paternal and maternal grandmothers, Effie Crager, of Hueysville, and Florence Crager, of Garrett.

His funeral was held at 11 a.m. Saturday from the Rock Fork Free Will Baptist Church, the Revs. Clinton Huff and Milford Case officiating. Burial was made in the Chafins cemetery, near Garrett.

Salisbury was a son of Mrs. Ethel Friend Salisbury, of Hunter, and the late Pearl Salisbury. Survivors, in addition to his mother, include two sisters, Mrs. Judith Sandra Hamilton, of Hi Hat, and Mrs. Mildred Ann Moore, of Drift, and one brother, Robert Lee Salisbury, of Hunter.

Funeral services were conducted at 11 a.m. Monday from the chapel of the Hall Funeral Home, the Revs. Lorie Vannucci and Ted Shannon officiating. Burial was in the Salisbury family cemetery at Hunter. Active pallbearers were Randy Vitostae, Teddy, Tommy, Billy, Alan and John Lawson, Willard Conn, Jeff Hayes and Mickey Martin.

Funerals of both victims were directed by the Hall Funeral Home.

This Town...That World

THE MILL GOES GRISTLESS

There was a time when, if I was short of grist for this mill—as I now am—I could pick up the morning newspaper and find something amusing to write about. But no longer.

It could be that with the years I've become a bit cynical, have lost the sense of humor that's needed to find something funny about the passing show as recorded in the daily press. That I concede. Yet it strikes me that the flow of news has altered course in recent years till it runs through a Death Valley of words and events: the threat of nuclear conflict, for example, and the sparring of heads of state while the rest of us cringe; terrorism, kidnappings, innocents held hostage; starvation, pestilence, natural disasters, continuing warrings and threats of more.

Maybe there are those more human items tucked away somewhere but lost in the overshadowing gloom of turmoil and tragedy. And, as I have indicated, it could be that some of the turmoil lies with me. At any rate, it's not funny—not fit, even, for this space.

WELCOME, FRIENDS!

This has been a bit like Old Home Week for me. First off, Monday morning early, James Morell, an old friend of more years than either of us care about admitting, was in from Texas. Then, not an hour later, Joe Hubbard, whom I had not seen in 42 years (the figures are his), came calling from Athens, Georgia.

Old friends are, indeed, good friends.

IN THE MAIL

News of the recent Squirrel Festival held on Slone Mountain in this county reached, via this newspaper, Mrs. Bradley Walters in Flint, Michigan. In consequence she writes, in part:

"I was born and raised in West Virginia and lived 25 years in Floyd county before moving here. Since leaving Floyd county I haven't had one squirrel or white sweet potato to eat. Just got me wondering if I am in the wrong state.

Jenny Wiley Festival Week-Long Celebration

If ever an individual put their heart and soul into a project to make sure it turned out well, Maxine Bierman has done it with the Jenny Wiley Festival, celebrated here this week in its fourth consecutive year.

Mrs. Bierman, who founded the festival in 1982, says its aim is to promote tourism and to bring home wayward East Kentuckians, if only for a few days.

"I'd like it to become a homecoming," she said. "There are so many of us scattered all over the country, and it would be nice if people could have a reason to come back for a while."

The idea to base the celebration on the Jenny Wiley saga came from stories she's heard from early childhood, Mrs. Bierman said.

"I was born and reared at the place at East Point where Jenny Wiley crossed the river after escaping from the Indians," she said, "and ever since I was a little girl my family was always talking about her. It just seemed right that we should honor Jenny Wiley as part of our heritage."

After she came up with the idea, Mrs. Bierman said she went before the City Council, which voted unanimously in favor of the festival and named her director. She then went before the Chamber of Commerce and other civic groups, all of whom supported her efforts.

Though she has support from different quarters, it's still a lot of hard work to organize the many activities which make up the festival. Mrs. Bierman said she is constantly on the lookout for volunteers.

Church Raises Cane To Pay Part of Construction Debt

A mountain tradition, seen less and less frequently these days, is being perpetuated this week at the Cow Creek Freewill Baptist Church.

Church members and interested neighbors are making sorghum molasses, and they're doing it the old-fashioned way. Using a mule-powered mill to squeeze the sweet juice from the sugar cane, where it then flows through a pipe down a gently sloping hill to a multi-compartmented "evaporator," the sorghum-makers patiently wait, stirring the dusky elixir as the water boils away to leave behind only sorghum.

Making the sorghum requires team work, but the man supplying the equipment, and a good bit of expertise, is Cam Garrett, a Floyd county native back home after living in West Virginia from 1947 through 1971.

Garrett and wife Ruby have been making sorghum every year since 1974, they said, but his roots go much farther back. He said when he was a boy he would watch his father make molasses near their home on Bull Creek, helping any way he could. He said he makes it the same way his dad did, but this year has made one notable exception—he's using gas heat to boil away the water rather than a wood fire. And using gas, he said, takes longer.

"But I can't knock the gas company," he said, having worked until his retirement a few years ago in the employ of Columbia Gas.

Though Cam and Ruby Garrett are not members of the Cow Creek Church—they belong to Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church in Prestonsburg—the sorghum profits will go toward defraying remodeling costs at the Cow Creek church.

Much of that work has already been done, including bricking the church and adding six Sunday school rooms. Most of the labor has been supplied by church members, said the pastor there, the Rev. George David Garrett, but still money is needed to pay for the bricks, plaster, wood and nails, and other incidental building materials used.

"We started building about two years ago," he said. "The total cost has been between $60,000 and $80,000, but we only owe about $10,000 now."

But making the sorghum isn't just a way to earn money, said the Rev. Garrett. He said the idea was to do something to get church members and the community involved, and to give children a look at a part of their mountain heritage.

Though others give the minister credit for the sorghum-making idea, he shrugs it off. When told his wife had said he had come up with the idea last winter, saying, "We're gonna raise cane this year!", he smiled and said it was the trustees and the deacons who had made the decision. He gives special credit to "a wonderful elder man who lives on the creek, Paul Griffith, who inspired us with the idea."

The Rev. Garrett also gave thanks to the men who donated fields for the cane planting, John Henry Burchett and former Sheriff Frank Leslie. "We hope the Lord blesses them for it, and I'm sure He will," he said.

Though the sorghum is on sale now at the church, the real fun will be Saturday, from 10 a.m. till 2 p.m., when the church hosts its own sorghum festival. There will be a hopscotch tournament, marble shooting championship, turtle race and other activities, topped off with a panclickin', where the children will get to dip cane stalks in the sorghum foam as it's being made and eat to their heart's content.

And they'll keep making the sorghum, too.

"We'll be making it every day except Sunday until we run out of cane," said the Rev. Garrett. "As long as we have fair weather."

To Compete for Miss Jenny Wiley Title

One of the five girls pictured above will be crowned Miss Jenny Wiley at the conclusion of the fourth Jenny Wiley Pageant to be held tomorrow (Thursday) at 8 p.m. at Prestonsburg Community College.

They are, from left, Marcia Kay Jefferson, 17, daughter of Winston and Linda Jefferson, of Auxier, sponsored by Worldwide Equipment and East Kentucky Mack; Serena Lynn Pitts, 16, daughter of Lacy and Donna Pitts, of Hueysville, sponsored by Jackie Edford Owens and Ned Pillersdorf; Paula Ann Spencer, 19, daughter of Paul and Bonnie Spencer, of Prestonsburg, sponsored by April's On the Avenue and Doug Adams; Kelli Ann Stumbo, 18, daughter of Larry and Chris Stumbo, of McDowell, sponsored by Jan's Floral and Gift Shop; Melanie Ann Webb, 18, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Francis Dean Webb, of Prestonsburg, sponsored by Food City Supermarket.

Parade Route Announced

Saturday's Jenny Wiley parade will begin at the corner of Richmond Avenue and South Lake Drive, continuing down South Lake Drive to Court Street. From there it will go to First Avenue, on to Graham and back to Lake Drive. Then the parade will return back down South Lake Drive to the high school where it will disband.

In an effort to ease traffic problems during Saturday's Jenny Wiley Festival parade here, Police Chief Stan Fletcher has announced there will be no parking that day along the parade route until after the festivities.

The affected streets include North Arnold Avenue, West Court Street, and First Avenue down to Graham Street. "We're asking that people do not park on the street in the downtown area," said Fletcher. He said that cars parked along the parade route would be subject to towing.

The city police will be blocking traffic on Ky. 1428 by the Kentucky Motel, beginning at 1:30 p.m., to accommodate the floats, bands, cars and others to be in the parade. Maxine Bierman, Festival director, stressed that the various groups in the parade would line up by number, and should find a parade official as soon as they arrive so as to be shown where to go.

Fletcher said police would block off all other roads coming into town at about 2:45 p.m.

To Hold Annual Dinner At Natural Bridge Park

The Natural Bridge Park Association will hold its 39th annual dinner meeting Friday, Oct. 11, at 7 p.m. in the park's Activities Center.

Association President George D. Elkins, of Stanton, said the meeting is open to "everyone, everywhere" who is interested in promoting and supporting Natural Bridge State Resort Park.

"It will be a wonderful evening of good fellowship, fine food, and fun with an interesting program, beautiful fall decorations, and about 75 fine door prizes."

"Besides, the autumn scenery at Natural Bridge should be at peak color, a breathtaking sight," Elkins said.

The featured speaker at the NBPA dinner will be John Calhoun Wells, Jr., state secretary of labor. Former Gov. Bert T. Combs, the man for whom the nearby Mountain Parkway is named, will be a special guest at the dinner meeting.

In addition, Park Superintendent Dan Glass will give a report on the park's activities and future plans.

Directors of the association come from about a dozen Eastern Kentucky counties including Powell, Wolfe, Lee, Breathitt, Morgan, Clark, Montgomery, Perry, Owsley and others, and they are responsible for bringing the door prizes which are given away. The top prize has traditionally been a country ham donated by the Powell County Bank.

The evening will begin with a hospitality hour, starting at 6 p.m., at the park's Hemlock Lodge. The dinner will begin an hour later at the Activities Center, formerly known as the Multi-Purpose Building. During the meeting, officers for the coming year will be elected and new directors will be named.

Elkins said the annual dinner meeting usually draws around 200 people, and "we'll be hoping for at least that many this year."

Natural Bridge State Resort Park is located at Slade, in Powell County, on KY 11, approximately two miles south of the Mountain Parkway at Exit 33.

BRINGING BACK NOVEMBER ELECTIONS

Those who know me personally know that several years ago I was a registered Democrat. Many have asked why I changed my party affiliation. I will try to explain. All of my adult life Floyd County has been restricted to a one-party system, meaning that all of our county officials get elected in the May primary where you choose one candidate from a list of a dozen or more persons seeking the same office. Can you get a majority rule with the vote split between twelve people? I hardly think so. It is possible to elect a person with 20-25% of the vote. This means that 75-80% of the voters are unhappy and with good reason. In November the issues become an important factor. As in any election, we must compare the competence of the challenger with the record of the incumbent.

I make no promises I cannot keep. I believe you, the voters, have the right to know how I stand on some important issues that concern not only District 3, but Floyd County as a whole:

1. There should be no "feast today; famine tomorrow" road maintenance. Our roads are used the year around and should be maintained likewise.
2. Our garbage system stinks. The $5.00 dumping fee should be lifted to encourage more people to take their garbage to our county landfill, where it can be disposed of properly. Then the roadside garbage dumps can be replaced with picnic tables and refuse cans.
3. Sanitary water should be made available to every household as soon as possible. Water is not a luxury; it is a life-supporting necessity.
4. Our streams and creeks should be cleaned up not only to prevent flooding, but also because whatever is put into our streams will be pumped back to us in the form of drinking water.
5. More attention should be given to our senior citizens and handicapped.
6. A voter registration and education program for all high schools should be established. By doing so, our youth will understand the principles of the voting machine and may vote with pride. This will also narrow the chances of voting irregularities occurring.
7. All county equipment should be plainly marked, so that at a reasonable distance everyone may know if it is being used on private property.

So, why do we need November elections? It is the only way to have "majority rule," then, only if the majority care enough to vote. Consider the issues; consider all candidates; and vote for a better Floyd County. Remember—ONLY YOU CAN CHANGE IT!

county is already a member of the Jenny Wiley Festival," she said, "and if they want to get involved in the planning and running of it, all they have to do is come to one of our meetings, held every fourth Thursday, January through September."

The festival has grown from a one-day event in 1982, to a week-long series of activities, ranging from a gospel sing to tortoise races. Mrs. Bierman admitted that, though all of the events are special, the centerpiece is probably the Miss Jenny Wiley contest.

She insists that Miss Jenny Wiley is not a beauty contest but, rather, a competition of poise and creativity. The contestants, all Floyd countians between the ages of 16 and 22, are judged in private interviews and evening gowns. They are also judged on portrayal of famous Kentuckians. The girls dress as the character of their choice, such as Col. Sanders or Loretta Lynn, and give a three-minute speech on that person.

This year's festival is dedicated to education, and its theme is "Autumn Leaves."

"With the hills so beautiful, it'll be just a perfect background for our theme—if the weather holds," she said.

With education being the main thrust, this year's parade grand marshal is Dr. June Buchanan, co-founder of Alice Lloyd College at Pippa Passes, Knott county. Mrs. Bierman said that all Floyd educators, active or retired, including school board members, are invited to be in the parade. Another important Kentuckian, Lt. Governor Steve Beshear is scheduled to be on hand, as well.

Past grand marshals have included Former Governor and Floyd countian Bert T. Combs, and Mary Elizabeth Quint, past president of the General Federation of Woman's Clubs.

The first grand marshal was Dr. Arville Wheeler, author of White Squaw, detailing Jenny Wiley's ordeal with the Indians. Dr. Wheeler has been to each subsequent festival in the role of honorary grand marshal.

This year's festivities began last Sunday, with window displays being presented by local businesses and a community service and gospel sing at the Community Methodist Church on Burke Avenue. On Monday, a turkey dinner was held at the Riverview Manner nursing home, with proceeds going to a fund for patient activities. Tuesday, free skating was held for children at the Archer Park rink.

Tonight (Wednesday) at 7 will be the Jenny Wiley Babies and Jenny Wiley Children competition, with the youngsters being judged on beauty and poise, while wearing Indian costumes. Trophies will be awarded, and the event will be held in the Pike auditorium at Prestonsburg Community College.

The Miss Jenny Wiley pageant will be held Thursday, also at Pike auditorium, while Friday will be a talent contest in the municipal parking lot. Admission to the talent contest is free, but contestants will pay a $10 entry fee. Also on Friday will be a concert by acclaimed folk musician Jean Ritchie at 7:30 p.m. in the Pike auditorium, PCC.

But the big day will be Saturday. Activities will begin with the Jaguar Drivers Club displaying their pride and joy along with the Jenny Wiley car club showing antique classic cars and boats.

There will be a 10-kilometer run, beginning at 10 a.m. at Jenny Wiley State Park. At 11 a.m., a costume contest will be judged at the municipal parking lot; with a $2 entry fee for children, $3 for adults; and at 1 p.m. the Terrapin Trot will be held there.

The festival parade will begin at 3 p.m., and a street dance in the municipal parking lot, beginning at 7 p.m., will round out the activities.

Sixty-one percent of women maintaining families in 1984 were labor force participants, compared with 54 percent in 1975, according to "Women Who Maintain Families."

A $25,000 grant from the Kentucky Alcoholism Council will fund a four-week drug abuse program for Prestonsburg students in the seventh, eighth and ninth grades and for their parents, representatives of Mountain Comprehensive Care told the board. Assistant Supt. Ron Hager said the pilot program would be assessed to see if it could be useful in all county schools.

Reciprocal arrangements were approved with surrounding school districts, enabling public school students from this county to enroll in adjacent school districts and vice versa. Some 111 students from neighboring counties are enrolled in Floyd schools—including 50 from Knott, 45 from Pike, and 16 from Johnson county—while more than 140 Floyd students go to school elsewhere, including 75 enrolled in Johnson county schools, 20 in Paintsville Independent, and 36 in Pikeville Independent.

Floyd again has a school nurse, following a four-year hiatus during which Jennifer Martin, R.N. was assigned to public relations duties. With her return to fulltime nursing, the monthly newsletter that she edited will be discontinued but will be replaced by occasional bulletins from heads of departments, Brackett said.

Other hirings included a $200-a-day consultant for a multi-handicapped classroom at Prestonsburg grade school and a $50-a-day busdriver at Tram. Brackett said John Schuster, a special education consultant from the University of Kentucky, will help develop individual curricula for students and will provide inservice training for their teacher. Hiring the consultant was ordered by a hearing officer in a grievance action brought recently by a parent of one of the students.

Adrian Burchett, of Banner, was hired to transport children between U.S. 23 and Stratton Branch at Tram, a distance of about a mile, for $50 a day. Under terms of the contract, Burchett will furnish and maintain a bus capable of hauling 19 children and will buy his own gasoline. The school board will pay the insurance premiums.

Joyce Slone was hired as executive-secretary to Asst. Supt. Ron Hager, a new position. Mrs. Slone, of Eastern, returns to the administrative staff on which she earlier served for 14 years, most recently as secretary to former Superintendent Charles Clark.

Others hired or transferred: Sharon D. Robinson, P.E. teacher at Harold and Wayland; Reba Sue Blackburn, English teacher at Betsy Layne High; Charles Hicks, teacher at Prater; transfer Bridgett Clay to full time P.E. teacher at Clark; Ernie Johnson as assistant girls' basketball coach at Wheelwright; transfer Beverly Little from remediation to replace Danette Fannin as elementary teacher at Prestonsburg Elementary.

Assign the following teachers to remediation units: Sandy Boyd (Betsy Layne Elementary), Sally Hottel (Garrett), Earl Thompson (Martin), Deborah Johns (Maytown), Marlene Little (Melvin); employ the following as temporary remediation teachers: Delphia Hicks (Clark), Sylvania & Hillard Newman (Harold), Pearl Newsome (John M. Stumbo), Bertha Ratliff (McDowell), Ruth Rainey (Osborne), June Stephens (Prestonsburg), Sturneth Innon (Wayland), Mildred Whitaker (Allen); Denise Ray Hopkins, temporary replacement teacher for Patricia S. Barnett; transfer Vicki K. Prater to full time kindergarten at Maytown.

Stephens, Teresa O'Brien Bentley, Sharon R. Sparr, and Don Keith Colvin, emergency substitute teachers; Ruby Campbell (Clark), Janice Epperson (Prestonsburg High), cooks; Grace Taylor (Wayland), Gertrude Blevins (Allen), Virgie Spriggs (Drift), substitute cooks; Ada Gayheart (McDowell), custodian; Teresa Hall (Harold), substitute custodian.

A Look At Litter

Thanks to the Kiwanians for their article regarding littering. A few months past, was driving south on 1428, was surprised to see the dump sites north of Sugar Loaf, all clean.

Saturday, Sept. 28, we had to go to Sugar Loaf. This time, we saw piles of trash on these same dump sites, plus on the east side of the highway in a small ravine they drive in and unload trash and what looked to be discarded utilities.

We are unable to understand why our Sheriff's department and our County Court cannot rectify this deplorable condition. By the same token, why doesn't our city control some of the littering of some of our streets? If we want to be an all Kentucky City, suggest that our Mayor, city manager and council take a walk on some of our back streets and see some of the conditions.

Commissioners or Nothing

In reading in the Floyd County Times about Martin County's alleged election fraud, our own county ought to live up to the law. I am willing to do all I can as an election officer. I think we should ask our Board of Educations to have roped around every voting house, 50 feet from the house as the law requires. That way the candidates can't stand at the door. No strikers should be allowed inside the ropes.

In reading one of our fiscal court reports, I find not only are the magistrates overpaid (earning $1842 a month, not counting expenses of $300 a month), but the whole system is trying to take taxpayers for a ride. Our forefathers left us in good shape but how are we going to leave it for our children? We could play dead or wake up and do something about it.

I always thought when you elected a man for office he became a servant of the people. Not now; it's reversed. No gravel, no bridges, no money, just promises.

We need commissioners with these qualifications: someone that (1) knows what belongs to him; (2) tells the truth; and (3) will take an oath that he will be for the people that are paying him.

We are heading for trouble the way we are going... higher taxes, higher salaries, then bankruptcy. Let's get together before we go into slavery. I say commissioners or nothing.

W.T. (BILL) FOLEY,
Prestonsburg

Says Skeans Hit Mark

I am writing in replay to Robie Skeans' letter in last week's Times.

Congratulations! You've hit the nail right smack on the head. If there is anyone who can read your letter and not feel guilty and ashamed, then may God forgive them.

Floyd County is to blame in our extremely poor school system. All of us who live here are to blame. The School Board, the parents, the rich, the poor, the teachers, the principals, the socialites, the drunks, the city officials, the government officials, the civic organizations, the stores, the taxpayers, the welfare recipients, the Democrats, the Republicans.

We can change. If we would work together, quit pointing fingers, blaming each other and provide our children with the best education possible, our community would prosper even more. We changed the liquor laws, now let's change the inadequate education our children are receiving.

We take up money at street lights for fire departments, organizations, school bands. We put in our change in the polio collections. We offer money for ones whose homes have burned. I'm not saying let's start collecting money on the street corners for the school system, but I do think we should place our children in higher esteem than they are. They are our future. They will be the ones who can make Prestonsburg and Floyd County grow on the map of Kentucky. We need to instill in their characters the incentive to become Senators, Governors and maybe even President. We are failing. We are not setting a very good example.

We must all work together. Fighting, lying, cheating, stealing, taking the easy way out will only result in chaos. Kindness, truth, charity, working peacefully together toward one common goal, which is our children, may send a President to the White House from Floyd County, Kentucky!

I do not have any pat answers or a simple solution; but Robie Skeans was robbed and I wonder if those who did the stealing can sleep at night?

SANDY CONN HOWELL

The number of families maintained by women grew more than 84 percent between 1970 and 1984. The growth is attributed largely to more marriages ending in divorce and more women having children without marrying, according to "Women Who Maintain Families," a fact sheet by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

In March 1984, 10.3 million families had as their principal support women who were divorced, separated, widowed, or never married. These families accounted for over 16 percent of all families in the United States, according to "Women Who Maintain Families," a fact sheet by the Women's Bureau of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Wright Stresses Steps To Follow To Get Fuel Aid

People who think they might qualify for assistance with winter heating bills should pay close attention to the eligibility requirements—it may save them from making an unnecessary trip, and standing in a long line, Ronald J. Wright, field service supervisor for the state Department of Social Insurance, said this week.

The application process will also go smoother if people know in advance what papers they need to bring with them, he said.

As in previous years, money available under the Home Energy Assistance Program (HEAP) will be allocated in three phases—the first for households with disabled and elderly members, the second for all low-income families, the third for mid-winter emergencies. Because the Prestonsburg office of the Department of Social Insurance is too small to handle large numbers of people, applications will again be taken this year at satellite offices on Left and Right Beaver Creeks, Wright said.

The federally-funded program helps pay the cost of electricity, gas, coal, wood, oil, bottled gas or other fuels for people with utility bills they cannot pay. Households facing a heating crisis may receive blankets, space heaters, emergency fuel supplies or minor furnace repairs. Payments during the first two phases are expected to range between $100 and $150. Crisis benefits will be in amounts necessary to alleviate the crisis, up to a $300 maximum.

Applications for the first phase will be taken from Monday, October 21 through Thursday, October 31, from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at Allen Central High School at Eastern and Little Nancy Church at Hi Hat. No applications will be taken at the Prestonsburg office of the Department of Social Insurance until the two satellite offices have been closed out, Wright said.

Persons coming in to file an application should bring with them the following information: (1) a list of all household members and their social security numbers; (2) verification of all household income received last month (September); and (3) a bill or receipt to show where they get their fuel. If a household heats with coal or wood, a verbal or written statement from a landlord or someone else who knows the situation—but not a household member or representative—is acceptable.

To qualify for the first round, a household must have a member who is at least 60 or a member who is totally disabled. To verify disability, the applicant will need to bring an award letter or other statement from the agency providing the disability benefits saying that the benefits are based on 100 percent disability.

A single person can have a monthly income of up to $481 and still be eligible for heating assistance; for a two-person household, the income limit is $646 a month; for three persons, $811; four persons, $976; five persons, $1141.

For a six-member household, the monthly income limit is $1306; for seven members, $1471; eight members, $1636; nine members, $1801; and 10 members, $1966.

Applications for the second phase of the program will be taken at the same locations, beginning Nov. 18 through Dec. 31 or until funds run out. A final phase will run from January 6 through April 30 for any household either without heat, facing a cutoff, or needing emergency repairs.

Some $21.3 million in federal funds are anticipated for the Kentucky program, of which $15.3 million will be available for distribution in the first two phases; $6 million will be set aside for the final phase.

Price's PIC-PAC Supermarkets become Piggly-Wigglys!

Piggly Wiggly, the grocery store that originated the self-service "supermarket" concept in 1916, is making news again in the 1980's. Price's PIC-PAC Supermarkets have elected to add their stores, located in Prestonsburg, Pikeville and Martin, to the growing chain of independent franchised Piggly Wiggly Supermarkets.

Taylor Price reports that store management will remain the same after the transition, and that no jobs will be lost. And, of course, the three new Piggly Wiggly Supermarkets will continue to be locally owned and operated by Taylor Price, Carl Price and Philip Whitten.

Come see for yourself...you'll find continued low prices on national brands, bountiful produce, top-quality meats, and a shiny new "look"!

Leukemia, a disease that affects the blood-forming tissues, kills more children than any other disease—yet kills more adults than children. The Leukemia Society of America, Inc., a national voluntary health agency with 57 chapters located throughout the United States, concentrates all of its efforts towards the problem of leukemia and related diseases, including the lymphomas, multiple myelomas, and Hodgkin's disease.

The most common last name in both the U.S. and Great Britain is Smith.

“Our heat pump is cleaner and better than a wood, oil or gas furnace.”

First of all, the fuel burned by a furnace is expensive, and getting more expensive every year. But the heat pump doesn't burn anything. Rather than generating heat, it pumps the heat that's already in the air. That's why a heat pump saves so much money.

Second, a heat pump is cleaner than a conventional furnace. Because it doesn't burn anything, there's no dirt or soot.

Finally, unlike a furnace, a heat pump becomes an air conditioner in the summer. By reversing itself, a heat pump takes the heat out of the house and keeps the cool air circulating.

Winter and summer, an electric heat pump is a complete comfort system. That's why so many smart homeowners have made the switch from a wood, or oil or gas furnace to an electric heat pump.

Month Long Cold May Be Allergy

QUESTION: For the past three years my 17-year-old son has been suffering from a month-long cold each fall. The products we have tried from the pharmacy have not helped his cold. What product would you recommend?

ANSWER: Each year, beginning in late summer and lasting through early fall, ragweed plants release into the air millions of pollen grains which are inhaled by all of us. For most people this plant pollen is harmless. But for an estimated 20 million Americans, the yearly outpouring of pollen brings on those familiar symptoms: sneezing; itchy, clogged, or runny nose; itchy, watery eyes. Most sufferers can diagnose themselves, especially if they know there's a family history of "hay fever" and the symptoms occur seasonally.

Hay fever is something like a cold that lasts and lasts. But a cold is sometimes marked by fever; hay fever, despite its name, never is. A cold is not characterized by itchy eyes or nose; hay fever usually is. A cold can hit anyone at any age; hay fever seldom begins in anyone after middle age. A cold generally clears up within a week or so; hay fever usually lasts longer and will return, perhaps in milder or in more severe form, the same time next year.

Allergy sufferers have three avenues to obtain relief. The first avenue for relief is simply to avoid the environment in which the allergen exists, which can be next to impossible. Ways to reduce contact with the pollen include: living and working in air-conditioned rooms; living in the city rather than the country; staying indoors until mid-morning at the height of the season.

Another therapeutic alternative is immunotherapy, or "desensitization." In some cases immunotherapy all but cures allergies; in many more it markedly reduces the severity. This is accomplished by injecting diluted extracts of the offending allergen.

The third alternative is drug therapy. Since the sneezing, itching and weeping that comes from allergic responses are caused by the action of histamines, medications containing antihistamines are the primary drug treatment. Antihistamines are most effective when administered at the first sign of an attack, or even when the hay fever victim suspects he or she will be exposed to pollen. There are wide variations in the way patients react to antihistamines, which accounts in part for the large number of these preparations on the market. Tell your pharmacist what products you have already tried and ask him to recommend the product that best meets your needs.

If you have a question for ASK THE PHARMACIST, send it to Dr. Matt McMahan, Pharmacy Department, Cardinal Hill Hospital, 2050 Versailles Road, Lexington, Ky. 40504.

A very special thanks to the staff and nurses of Riverview Manor for the care and love you gave to our loved one, that was beyond your duty. Thanks to Rev. Steve Hopkins and Rev. Roy Tincer and the singers. God bless each one. Thanks to the Floyd Funeral Home for the kind and efficient service.

THE BILL LAFFERTY FAMILY

Dear Friends,

You elected me Sheriff of Floyd County in 1952 on the Republican ticket. The people of District #1 crossed over and voted for the man, not the party. Because of an overwhelming victory in District #1, I was elected. I gave you four years of honest, faithful service. Most people say, I made a good sheriff in spite of the little help I had from the courts. Now, I am asking you to elect my son, Gormon Collins, Jr. your next Magistrate. I know that he will work for all the people in the district, and see that your tax dollars are spent for you and your neighbors. I assure you that he is honest and has the ability and education to do the job as you would want. He will let you the people know when your money is not being spent for your district and who is responsible. If you will remember, in the last 6 months of Governor Louie Nunn's administration, I was in charge of patronage in Floyd County. I had more roads blacktopped and more roads graveled than ever before or since, and no one was discriminated against because of politics. My son Gormon Collins, Jr. will be that kind of Magistrate. He will be available to all the people all the time in District #1. I appreciated your help then, and I ask for it now to elect my son, Gormon Collins, Jr. your next Magistrate.

Yours truly,

Gormon Collins, Sr.

TO THE VOTERS OF DISTRICT 2:

My name is Sandy Duff and my father, Birchell Duff is running for Magistrate in the November Election on the Independent Ticket. One of his opponents, Jackie (Edford) Owens, insists on reminding the voters of District #2 every week that he is the only Democrat running for the office of Magistrate. My father is also a Democrat and has been his entire life. The office of Magistrate is for the people to decide who would serve them best and be the most competent and reliable person for the job. I am sure that most of the voters of District #2 know my father and they know that he is a highly respected, honest, and very reliable person. He will do the job to the best of his ability. My father will not slander and degrade his opponents because he is not that type of person. Mr. Owens keeps telling us that he is a heavy equipment operator. I'm sure he is and he may be a very good one, but that isn't the issue. The magistrate is not the one that operates the equipment. The Magistrate has to make decisions as to which roads need the greatest work done on them and how the money should be used in each area of District #2. This takes an intelligent and mature person. I hope when (you), the voters of District #2, go to the polls and vote November 5, that you think of the type of person that you want for your magistrate.

Flowering Bulbs For Indoor Winter Use

If one of the things that perks your spirits up after a long cold winter is the sight of yellow daffodils and red tulips braving a chilly spring day, enjoy some of these beauties indoors this winter. While you shop for bulbs to plant outdoors this fall, pick up a few extra for indoor forcing.

Although paper-white narcissus are the most commonly used forcing bulbs, success can be had with various daffodils, tulips, crocus and hyacinths, as well as exotics such as Dutch iris, freesias or lily-of-the-valley (actually grown from a rhizome like iris). The keys to success are quality bulb selection, proper planting and adequate conditioning.

Buy large, top quality bulbs. Many of the bargain bulbs, especially those sold mail order, are too small to bloom outdoors the first year, and therefore are unlikely to force successfully.

For greatest visual effect, use only one species of bulb in a container and only one color or variety of the chosen bulb. Staggering planting time and bulb species can give several months of color.

Three items are important when selecting containers: the number of bulbs to be forced, the depth of the container and its drainage provisions. Bulbs can be forced in bulb glasses filled with water or gravel, in shallow clay pots aptly named bulb pots, in shallow bonsai trays or an array of other choices. If a potting medium will be used, allow for one and one-half to two inches of medium below the bulbs, and be sure that at least the lower two-thirds of the bulb can be covered. This usually means a container at least three to five inches deep.

All containers except forcing glasses should have drainage holes. Good drainage is essential to keep the bulbs from rotting. Four or five good size daffodil or tulip bulbs should be used in a six-inch pot, one individual hyacinth bulb or three crocus bulbs in a four-inch pot. A light potting mix (one to two parts potting (not garden) soil to one part perlite or vermiculite or one part each peat moss, sand and sterilized garden soil) should be used.

To keep the potting soil from washing out the drainage hole(s), cover the hole(s) with a flat rock or clay pot shard, a piece of window screen, or a sheet or two of newspaper. Do not fill the bottom of the pot with gravel or pot shards—this practice works against good drainage when a drain hole is present.

Put a layer of potting soil in the container so the top of the bulbs will be slightly below the container's rim. Place the bulbs on the soil, flat side down. Bulbs may touch or may be an inch or so apart. Fill in and firm around the bulbs, leaving no more than the top third exposed. Water the container by setting it in a tray of water. Let it soak until the surface of the potting soil feels moist, then let excess water drain away. Put a label in each pot telling species and color.

Most garden bulbs have not been precooled when they are sold. Unless you know that the bulbs have had a chilling period, once they are potted up and watered they will need to be put in a cool, (35° to 55°F) dry, frost-free area to promote good root growth (refrigerator, unheated cellar, cold frame, etc.). Be sure the potting soil can be kept moist during the cold storage period.

Normally after 10 to 14 weeks, depending on species, a few inches of leaves will have emerged and a few roots will be visible at the drainage hole. Move the pots to a warmer location (60°F) for a week or two, then to a warm, sunny location.

Once the flowers fade, keep the foliage growing as long as possible. The bulbs usually won't reforce a second year (except amaryllis), but can be planted outdoors the next fall for restrengthening and future bloom in the outdoor bulb garden.

Salute To The Fireman

National Fire Prevention Week

Carelessness has no boundaries. No one can predict when or where the next tragic fire will happen. That's why it's important that we all do our jobs and practice fire prevention in every way. Make it your business to look for fire hazards...in the home, on your property and where you work! Fix any faulty wiring...immediately; empty trash regularly...avoid buildups; keep heating and cooking equipment in top repair; store old oily rags in metal containers. Make sure you and everyone in your family knows what to do in a fire emergency...before it happens. Play it smart...be fire safe!

Fire Prevention Message From Cow Creek Volunteer Fire Department.

There's a 90 percent return rate for beverage containers in states with deposit laws, reports International Wildlife magazine. That impressive figure may soon prompt Florida, New Jersey and Pennsylvania to join nine other states which already have bottle bills. Some environmentalists believe this will greatly boost the chances of a national law requiring deposits on all beverage cans and bottles.

Constructing Raised Beds

Fall is a good time to undertake construction projects that can enhance a landscape or a food garden. One such project to consider is the construction of raised beds.

Raised beds in the landscape can serve several purposes. They can create a focal point or area of interest by way of elevation changes and the types of edging materials used to construct the beds. (They may be necessary if some type of construction—a driveway, patio, etc.—causes an elevation change.) They can reduce maintenance by serving as permanent edging around planted areas and raising an area that may need occasional weeding. They can also help contain plant material that has a spreading habit such as herbs, many perennials and ground covers and a variety of prostrate shrubs.

Another important use of raised beds in the landscape involves modifying the soil environment to permit certain plants to grow. If you wish to grow plants that do not tolerate "wet feet" or poor drainage—plants like yews, dogwoods and azaleas—but are faced with a heavy clay soil, a raised bed can help. The bed can be outlined and filled with good topsoil that drains well, or organic matter can be incorporated into the entire bed area to promote drainage. (Note—the entire volume of soil in the bed should be amended, not just individual planting holes.)

There are many choices for edging materials. Among the most common are pressure treated landscape timbers (do not use timbers or ties recently treated with creosote), rough-finish redwood and cedar boards and whole or split logs. Masonry bed edgings include brick, concrete blocks and various field stone.

Raised beds in the food garden function just as raised beds in the landscape to improve drainage in heavy or compacted soils. They can be used to turn wet, low-lying areas into productive gardens, and they allow earlier planting in the spring because the raised seedbed dries up and warms up faster than surrounding areas.

When seeds are planted in raised beds, the chance of their washing out during heavy rains is minimized. When irrigation is needed, it can be easily accomplished. Soaker hoses or other types of trickle (slow water release) irrigation systems can be placed atop or along each bed, or when plants are big and roots have grown deep into the bed, walkways can be flood irrigated.

If you like to grow carrots or the long, straight white radishes, raised beds will give several extra inches of good soil in which these root crops will better develop. And weeding around plants will be easier due to less stooping and bending.

A garden of well-tended raised beds is very attractive, and can help integrate food plants into the landscape. Raised beds can serve as permanent growing sites for perennial crops such as asparagus and strawberries (they can also serve to contain the rambling of strawberry runners). And they can help to decrease soil compaction by directing traffic off of the planted areas.

Fall construction of these beds will allow you to benefit from them next spring. They can be beds edged with timbers, ties or boards as with landscape beds, or they can be edgeless beds constructed by raking soil up from a walkway on one side of the bed, and then again on the other side. Organic matter and fertilizer can be incorporated into the bed prior to raking the top of the bed level. Make the beds wide (18 inches) so that garden productivity is not reduced due to the walkways. Even if you don't want to convert your whole garden to a raised bed system, try building a bed or two this fall to experiment with next spring.

Sir Laurence Olivier Tells About His Life

"Laurence Olivier: A Life" is an award-winning two-part "Great Performances" presentation which tells the story of Britain's greatest living actor. For the first time on television, Sir Laurence Olivier will talk openly about a life filled with incident and romance, both on and off the stage and screen. In the first 90-minute program, to be aired on KET Monday, October 28, at 8:00 p.m., Olivier takes us from a childhood spent in the shadow of the church, through early triumphs, to his astonishing debut as a film director with "Henry V" in 1944.

The second program, to be aired on KET at the same time on Monday, November 4, looks at Olivier's life from 1945, with his stage zenith at the Old Vic, through to the semi-retired family man of today. The cornerstone of both parts is an extensive interview between Lord Olivier and Melvyn Bragg filmed over a period of nine months at Olivier's Sussex home.

Kathy Sims, new nursing faculty member at PCC (left) with Clara Garrett, coordinator of the associate degree nursing program at the college.

Dr. Henry J. Campbell, Jr., director of Prestonsburg Community College, announced last week the addition of Kathy Sims to the nursing faculty at the college.

Mrs. Sims is a summa cum laude graduate of Vanderbilt University where she received both her B.S. and M.S. degree in nursing. She came to PCC from a position as nursing supervisor at the Humana McFarland Hospital in Lebanon, Tennessee. Prior to that, she was at Baptist Hospital, Nashville, Tenn., as neurosurgical staff charge nurse. Mrs. Sims is associated with the sophomore faculty at Prestonsburg Community College. She is married to Thomas Sims, counselor at PCC.

Dr. Campbell expressed his pride in the PCC nursing program. Every graduate receives at least one local job offer. In 1985 96 percent of its graduates passed the Nursing Board exam on a first attempt. In 1984, PCC graduates ranked nationally in the top quarter of all nursing graduates taking the exam, and in the top quarter for all state associate degree programs.

Honored at UK Homecoming

Miss Marshall and her escort, Wally Ridener, at UK Homecoming.

Gina Marshall represented Prestonsburg Community College as its princess during the 1985 University of Kentucky Homecoming activities Sept. 28. The Prestonsburg princess was one of 13 women representing each of UK's community colleges. The princesses were introduced prior to the start of UK's football game against the University of Cincinnati.

Miss Marshall, a physical therapy sophomore, is the daughter of Don and Judy Marshall. She serves as a Student Congress senator and belongs to both the tennis and table tennis clubs.

Two Major Highways To Get Reflectors

The state Transportation Cabinet has awarded a contract to Swanston Equipment Company, of Fargo, North Dakota, for the installation of reflecting pavement markers on various interstate routes in Districts 5 and 6; and on various federal and state routes in Districts 2, 3, 5, 6, 7, 9, 11 and 12.

"This project is 100 percent federally funded and will help make Kentucky's highways safer," said state Transportation Secretary C. Leslie Dawson. "The small reflectors have been used in some areas to mark the center line, and are more easily seen than painted lines, especially at night and during rainy or foggy weather."

The markers will be installed on US 23 and new KY 80 in Floyd, Johnson, Knott, Lawrence and Pike counties of District 12, as well as counties in every other highway district in the state.

Marching Bands Festival

Prestonsburg High School Marching Blackcat Band will perform but will not be competing as the host school band.

Everyone in the Big Sandy area is invited and urged to attend.

Board Meetings Set

In line with a recent decision to schedule at least one Board of Education meeting annually in each of the rural educational districts, the November 6 meeting will be held at Allen Central High School and the December 4 meeting will be held at Betsy Layne High School, Acting Supt. ## All You Wanted To Know About Additives In Food

Understanding food labels today requires more than literacy.

The Federal Food, Drug and Cosmetic Act was passed in 1938 to ensure that foods be honestly and informatively labeled and packaged.

However, due to continual advances in food technology, and increasing consumer demand for more information about food products and the complexity of current food regulations, labels have become increasingly inscrutable to most of us.

An 80-page book published by the national non-profit Consumer Education Research Center offers a complete alphabetical list of additives, their sources, other names for the same additive, why they are put in foods, whether they are toxic and any known interactions with other foods or chemicals.

Titled A Consumers Guide to Food Additives, the book also tells us what information is required to be on food labels and how to interpret it. There is also a glossary of label terminology.

The book demystifies additives by explaining, in every day terms, everything we ever wanted to know about those additives with long and short, familiar and strange-sounding names.

While many additives get a clean slate, such as Alpha Tocopherol, the most potent form of vitamin E, found in cottonseed oil and wheat germ oil, another early entry, Butylated Hydroxyanisole (BHA), receives a different rating.

BHA, the book tells us, has been on the market since 1947 and is a preservative and antioxidant used in almost every processed food containing fat or oil. It is known to be capable of causing allergic reactions and affecting liver and kidney functions.

At the same time, BHA is a good example of an unnecessary use of a synthetic food additive, as demonstrated by the fact that some companies have found that it provides no improvement in the stability of their product.

Consumers are advised that they can reduce their intake of BHA by buying oil, shortening, yeast and potato chips which are free of this ingredient—easily determined by reading the label, since its use is required to be listed.

From Acacia (also called Gum Arabic) to Zingerone (artificial flavoring...is not toxic), this book is an eye-opener that can help the concerned consumer reach a new level of label literacy and ultimately protect health and well-being.

To order A Consumers Guide to Food Additives, send $5 (including postage) to CERC, Additive Project, P.O. Box 336, South Orange, N.J. 07079.

Ritchie To Perform

Nationally known folk entertainer Jean Ritchie will again headline a concert for Hospice of Big Sandy this week in Prestonsburg. Ritchie, who has entertained audiences for years with her gentle songs of the Kentucky Highlands, will perform at 7:30 p.m. in the Pike Auditorium at Prestonsburg Community College.

"This will be Jean's second concert for Hospice," said Hospice Executive Director Chris Conley. "She performed in June of 1984, when we were just getting started, and she was a great success with her audience."

Hospice is using the Ritchie concert to spearhead its major fund-raising drive this year. A silent auction will be held before the concert, with proceeds going to Hospice of Big Sandy.

Hospice works to help the terminally ill and their families. For more information about the Ritchie concert or the silent auction, or for information about donating time or money to Hospice, call 886-2721 or 886-8091.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Warning Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

The following nine symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations are often the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these may spell back trouble.

- (1) Paresthesias (see above) (2) Headaches (3) Painful joints (4) Numbness in the arms or hands (5) Loss of sleep (6) Stiffness in the neck (7) Pain between the shoulders (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals may indicate your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will likely become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these warning signals... call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

Offers Suggestions For Safe Halloween

Halloween is a special holiday for children. However, parents have recently become concerned about the safety of children who trick-or-treat.

According to Ann Kahn, National PTA president, "The PTA has always been concerned about children's Halloween safety. That's why we're asking parents and local PTAs to use precautions to avoid any potential problems or to offer alternatives to trick-or-treating by organizing neighborhood activities."

Here are suggestions from the National PTA to make Halloween a safe, happy holiday for children and the community.

Accompany children on their treat-gathering route. Avoid unfamiliar neighborhoods or homes of strangers. Tell children not to sample anything until they return home so that the treats can be inspected for possible tampering. Tell children to politely decline any invitation to enter a home or apartment. Similarly, don't encourage children you don't know to enter your home. Give manufacturer-wrapped treats rather than home-made goodies.

Make sure masks do not obstruct peripheral vision, or use make-up instead. See that costumes are short enough so youngsters don't trip. Bright colors and reflectorized costumes are more visible. If costumes are purchased at a store, make sure they are "Flame-Proof." This includes masks, wigs, and beards. For older kids without adult chaperones, the first rule is always to travel in groups and never alone.

For those who prefer an alternative to trick-or-treating, the following activities could be coordinated by a local PTA.

Host an all-school Halloween party and invite children to come in costumes and masks. Present awards for the best and most original costume from each classroom.

Host a house party for children and their friends. Encourage children to dress as their favorite characters, and have each child tell his or her character's life story. Have treats for them, and let them bob for apples. Arrange a treasure hunt in and around the house.

Weather permitting, stage a Halloween block party for families in the area one day during the weekend before or after Halloween (if the holiday falls during the week). Encourage everyone to come in costume. Bring homebaked goodies to share.

Encourage the local library to host a ghost story hour, where children may come in costume to listen to the children's librarian tell ghost stories.

The Employment Act of 1946 committed the government to take all practicable measures to promote maximum employment, production and purchasing power, according to "Important Events in American Labor History."

MENSTRUAL PAIN-RELIEVERS

Research into the cause of menstrual cramps suggests that the number one culprit of menstrual pain is an excess of hormone-like substances called prostaglandins. The latest medications dealing with menstrual pain work by inhibiting prostaglandin production. Although these medications previously were only available by prescription, the Food and Drug Administration has cleared the way for one type of prostaglandin inhibitor to be sold over the counter in low dosages. Known as NSAIDS (non-steroidal anti-inflammatory drugs), these medications were originally developed to alleviate arthritis. Doctors, however, have found them so useful in treating cramps that they now routinely prescribe NSAIDS for this use.

Our pharmacists at COOLEY APOTHECARY are always available to answer your questions about prescription medications or over the counter remedies and in private, if you prefer. Complete patient profiles are maintained so we can check for drug interactions and allergic reactions and for your convenience at income tax time and for insurance purposes. We are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4.

Admitted Slayer Is Free on Bond

An argument that ended in the fatal shooting of a Knott county woman near Langley 11 days ago began when the woman absconded with his wife and child, the confessed killer is said to have told police.

Haddon Hall, of Raven, was freed on a $5000 cash bond last Thursday after his arraignment on a charge of murdering Brenda Thornsberry, of Pippa Passes, the previous Saturday afternoon.

In a preliminary hearing in Floyd district court yesterday (Tuesday), State Detective J.A. Riederick said Hall confessed to shooting Mrs. Thornsberry in the side of the head with a .22 caliber revolver but claimed the weapon discharged accidentally.

According to the accused man's own account, as recounted by Riederick in court, Hall, who is married and the father of a young child, had dated Mrs. Thornsberry for about a year and had recently been trying to break off the relationship.

According to this account, Mrs. Thornsberry, in an effort to maintain the relationship, told Hall's wife of his infidelity and, several days before the fatal shooting, absconded with the woman and her child, possibly to Dayton, Ohio.

For two or three days after what the defense attorney called "the kidnapping incident," Hall sought in vain for his child, twice inquiring at the home of Mrs. Thornsberry's mother and sister, it was said. The sister "pulled a gun and ran him off," Hall's attorney said.

Around 3 p.m. on the day of her death, Mrs. Thornsberry reportedly got off work at Druther's restaurant in Martin and was followed by Hall, who flagged her over on new KY 80, near Langley. Hall told police that, as he spoke to her, he folded his hands on the roof of Mrs. Thornsberry's car, concealing his pistol from her and from passersby.

"Where's my child?" he said he asked her. To which Mrs. Thornsberry reportedly responded with a laugh.

"I'm serious," Hall said he said. At which point, Thornsberry is reported to have grabbed the gun, which went off, the bullet striking her above her left ear. Hall later helped police locate the weapon, which was found over an embankment off KY 7 at Lackey.

Hall will remain free on the $5000 bond put up by his father, Daniel Hall, pending consideration of his case next month by a Circuit Court grand jury. The relatively low bond drew expressions of disgust from members of the victim's family, one of whom remarked on leaving court that "it seems like you can get drunk and have to put up more than that."

Defense Attorney Gary Johnson said the bond was "about average" for cases of this sort.

Spouse Abuse: The Hidden Crime

By BRENDA KAYE WHITE
Director,
Big Sandy Family Abuse Center

According to FBI reports, one out of every two women in the United States will be beaten by her husband sometime in her life. Nationally, a wife-beating occurs every 30 seconds, totalling nearly 3,000 beatings per day. According to the 1979 FBI Uniform Crime Report, 40 percent of all female homicide victims were killed by husbands or boyfriends. In Kentucky, recent reports estimate that more than 80,000 women were abused by their spouses in 1979 alone. Of these, one-third received injuries serious enough to require emergency medical attention.

Spouse abuse is the most prevalent, yet least reported of all violent crimes in the U.S. Until a few years ago, it was largely a well-harbored family secret. Today, its magnitude lends it recognition as a major social problem.

Spouse abuse may be physical, emotional, sexual, or any combination of these. Physical abuse, the easiest to identify, results in injury and/or death to the spouse. Emotional abuse can include making threats, bringing up the past, getting one's way at the other's expense, ignoring one's spouse, breaking things, hiding things, complaining constantly, saying negative things about one's spouse, hurting pets, and name calling. Sexual abuse occurs when sexual relations are forced and includes making deals with one's spouse about sex, denying the other sex, making a spouse feel guilty about wanting sex, threatening to have sex or having sex with someone other than one's spouse. Emotional and sexual abuse exists when the behaviors identified above occur persistently and consistently over a prolonged period of time.

Many myths abound with respect to abused women. For example, many believe that abused women represent only a small percentage of the population, and that this percentage is concentrated within poor and minority classes. Many believe that abused women enjoy the abuse they suffer and rationalize that this is the reason they stay with their abuser. Some believe that a wife is the property of her husband, and as such he can punish her as he sees fit. Many believe that drinking causes men to abuse their spouses, and that religious affiliation will ensure that abuse will not occur within the family unit. Finally, and possibly the most damaging, many believe that abused women can always leave the home.

Recent studies of spouse abuse reveal that abused women are found at all socio-economic levels, and in all educational, racial, and age categories. Spouse abuse victims often remain in long-standing abusive relationships because they are unable to financially provide for themselves and their children. Fear of retribution if they leave the home is also a major reason they stay in such a relationship. Additionally, abused women, like women who are not abused, have a strong sense of family unity and believe, frequently unrealistically, that their spouse will eventually change his abusive behavior. This belief is often reinforced by the abuser's persistent promises that he will never abuse her again. Despite such dramatic promises, the abuse is almost always repeated. A cyclic pattern characterized by an occurrence of abuse followed by separation followed by promises by the abuser never to do it again, and then reunification is repeated over and over. It can continue for several years before the wife is finally able, financially and emotionally, to leave the situation. Drinking, a habit characteristic of abusers, has been blamed as a major contributor. Recent research, however, indicates that, while much abuse occurs while the man is intoxicated, drinking is not the cause of the abuse. Rather it is an excuse the abuser uses to engage in violent behavior with his spouse, i.e., behavior occurring during intoxication is more excusable by others who will say, "He didn't mean to hit you, it's just that he had been drinking and didn't know what he was doing."

The abusing male often blames his spouse for his mistakes and failures in life. He often has an explosive, uncontrollable temper and frequently loses it even over minor incidents. He is often, immature and, like the woman he abuses, he has low self-esteem. He is usually extremely jealous and feels he must always be in complete control of the lives of his spouse and children. He has a dual personality, often behaving in a completely different manner with friends and others. In fact, friends are often shocked to learn of the abuse and frequently refuse to believe it actually happened. In approximately 50 percent of all spouse abuse cases, the abuser is also abusing his children.

Abused women tend to have low self-esteem. They tend to be passive, depressed individuals. They are often isolated, both physically and emotionally, from others and sometimes even other family members. Many abused women, in frustration, become abusive to their children.

Children living in abusive environments often develop serious emotional problems. The longer their exposure to the abuse, the more damaging the consequences. They initially develop characteristics similar to their abused mothers, especially with respect to dependence, low self-esteem, low self-confidence and depression. As adolescents, they become a high risk for drug and alcohol abuse, promiscuity, running away and frequent absences from school. In school, they are often withdrawn, lack the ability to concentrate, and have few friends or social contacts outside the home. Many abused children, and children exposed to abusive situations, but who are not themselves abused, risk growing up to become abusers themselves or to become involved in a situation where they are recipients of abusive behavior.

Men who abuse their spouses have a distorted view of their abusive behavior. They deny vigorously that they are abusive. Denial is a major obstacle in the successful treatment of the abuser.

Big Sandy Family Abuse Center, a subsidiary of the Christian Appalachian Project Inc., is one of 15 centers in Kentucky that houses women and their children from the men who abuse them. In addition to providing a safe shelter, the center provides services such as individual and group counseling, comprehensive case-management and referral services, child care services, a 24-hour crisis line, a community education and awareness program, and follow-up services. Case-management and referral services assist victims of spouse abuse in legal, financial, educational, vocational, social and recreational matters.

The center serves primarily the Big Sandy ADD district which includes Floyd, Martin, Magoffin, Pike, and Johnson counties. However, referrals may be accepted from anywhere in the state. For security purposes, the exact location of the center is being withheld. However, victims of spouse abuse in need of assistance may contact the center by calling the center's crisis line. The crisis-line number is 606-285-9193. Others wanting to make referrals or wanting information about spouse abuse or the services provided by the center may also call this number.

Multiplying Landscape Plants

Many people head to garden centers and nurseries during the fall to purchase trees and shrubs to add to their landscapes. But many come home empty-handed or with fewer plants than anticipated due to the cost of landscape plants. If you like to work with plants, if you have patience, if you are willing to start with small plants and if you'll do a bit of homework, you may want to try propagating some of your own.

There are two basic ways to start plants: from seed and from a vegetative plant part (a root, stem or leaf cutting; grafting and budding; layering; tissue culture). In nature, a majority of new plants are propagated by seed that falls to the ground or is scattered by wind, rain, an animal or bird. For many of our landscape plants, however, this method may be impractical due to difficulty in getting certain seed to germinate. It may also be undesirable because genetic variation that occurs with seed propagation may produce plants very different in form, growth rate or color from the parent plant. A good example of a tree whose color varies greatly if propagated by seed is the Colorado blue spruce (most are grafted).

For trees and shrubs that can be seed propagated, fall is the usual seed collection time. Most of the seeds of temperate zone plants need a type of conditioning after harvest before they will germinate. The conditioning is referred to as stratification, and involves subjecting the seed to moist chilling by either planting the seed in the ground in a seed bed for the winter or mixing it with moist peat moss and refrigerating it for two to four months prior to planting.

Some seed will not germinate when harvested due to very hard seed coats (seed coverings) that block uptake of water or prevent roots from emerging. These seed will need to be scarified, a process that involves breaking through the hard seed coat with a hot water or an acid soak, or by mechanically abrading the seed coat.

How do you find out whether a tree or shrub can be propagated by seed, and if so, if any conditioning is necessary? There are several popular books on plant propagation, but the bible of plant propagation is Hartmann and Kester's Plant Propagation, Principles and Practices. Some common Kentucky landscape and native plants that can be seed propagated include oaks, maples, walnuts, redbud, elms, sweet gum, magnolias, pines, sumac and yellow poplar.

Most of our landscape shrubs are started from cuttings. This means that a portion of a root, leaf or stem is cut from the stock or mother plant and rooted. There are a number of factors to consider including type of cutting to use and the time of year to take it, the type of rooting medium to use, and whether the cutting needs treatments such as wounding or an application of growth hormones to improve root formation. At this time of year, cuttings can be taken from many plants and rooted in the ground in a cold frame over winter. Kentucky landscape shrubs to root from cuttings include junipers, yews, roses, redbud, dogwood, forsythia, lilacs, azaleas, boxwood, hollies, honeysuckles and pyracantha.

With many of our shrubs, the tip of a branch can be buried while still attached and then cut off to form a new plant once roots are formed. For plants that do not come true from seed and that do not root readily from cuttings, grafting or budding may be necessary. In grafting and budding, a small piece of the desired plant is attached to the top of a seedling or a rooted cutting. Most of our roses and fruit and many of our evergreen trees are produced by budding and grafting.

Timely Tip: Garden centers and nurseries will be featuring spring flowering bulbs now. Shop early to guarantee good selection. Keep in mind that a mass of one color or type of bulb (at least 10 or 12) will be more effective than a mixture.

Floyd County Public Schools UNIFORM CODE OF STUDENT CONDUCT

(Ninth in a Series)

I. SUSPENSION/EXPULSION PROCEDURES FOR EXCEPTIONAL STUDENTS:

In cases where disciplinary action involves exceptional (special education) students and students who have been referred for evaluation for possible special education placement and/or related services, the following procedures shall be followed:

1. If suspension is essential to protect persons or property or to avoid disruption of the ongoing educational process, then:
  - a. The student must first be granted an informal hearing and then may be suspended.
  - b. As soon as practicable, a SBARC must be convened to determine whether the discipline problem is related to the student's handicapping condition.
  - c. If the discipline problem is determined to be related to the handicapping condition:
    - (1) The suspension is immediately lifted, and
    - (2) The SBARC must consider the appropriateness of the placement and/or the IEP.
  - d. If the problem is determined to be unrelated to the handicapping condition, then the student will be disciplined according to the code.
2. If a discipline problem does not require immediate suspension, the student remains in his/her current school placement and the principal must convene a SBARC within (10) school days. The SBARC determines whether the discipline problem is related to the handicapping condition. If the behavior is related to the handicapping condition, then the SBARC considers the appropriateness of the placement and/or the IEP. If it is unrelated to the handicapping condition, then the student will be disciplined according to the code. If the proposed disciplinary action will result in the student's being suspended for more than five (5) consecutive school days or ten (10) days in one semester, prior written review and approval by the Director of Exceptional Childrens Programs in the Floyd County Schools must be obtained.

J. EXPULSION

The Floyd County Board of Education may expel any pupil for misconduct as defined according to KRS. 150. If behavior problems are serious enough to warrant the initiation of the expulsion process, the following procedures will be initiated:

1. The principal/head teacher convenes an informal hearing to determine the validity of the charge(s) against the pupil. If the charges are denied, an explanation of the evidence against said pupil must be made and the pupil given the opportunity to present his/her version of the facts relating to the charges.
2. Generally, the notice and hearing should precede the pupil's removal from school, since the hearing may immediately follow the misconduct. But if prior notice and hearing are not feasible, as where the pupil's presence endangers persons or property or threatens disruption of the academic process, thus justifying immediate removal from school, the necessary notice and informal hearing should follow as soon as practicable.
3. If the principal/head teacher determines after the hearing that the pupil has committed an expulsion offense, the pupil, pupil's parents/guardians will be notified by registered mail prior to the formal hearing, the charges against the pupil, the time, date, and location of the formal expulsion hearing. A copy of the notification letter must also be mailed to the Superintendent.
4. The pupil, parent/guardian may request a closed or open hearing and must be advised that they have the right of legal counsel present at such hearing.
5. Pupil's have the right of due process in all cases and all formal hearings regarding expulsion cases will be conducted at the Board of Education during a special or regular board meeting.
6. The decision of the Board of Education shall be final and a written notice of board action will be mailed to the pupil, parent/guardian, and the school administrator.

Huntin' and Fishin'...

Update on Squirrel, Deer Seasons, Campers, Dogs, Ducks, Dispatchers and Wild Turkeys

By DOUG HENSLEY
7th District Commissioner,
Dept. of Fish & Wildlife

Sportsmen, the 1985 hunting season has started, and I guess many eastern Kentucky hunters are anticipating a successful season. However, our early squirrel hunters are not finding many squirrels. Many of the squirrels being taken in eastern Kentucky have wolves in them; and also many of the female squirrels taken are lactating. I'm convinced that eastern Kentucky needs a later squirrel season. Maybe we can get that done by the 1986 season. On a positive note, there seems to be an excellent mast crop this year, and that's good news for our wildlife.

This year, every county in the seventh district will be open to deer hunting. This includes Knott county, where we have just completed a mass deer stocking project. There are several reasons why we're opening the season in Knott county. One reason is that we have deer with tracking collars that are still active. We must know what happens to the deer when the shooting starts. If we waited another year the collars would not be active. Also, the best way to tell if the deer are progressing is to check the bucks taken during hunting season. The sooner we find out how the deer are doing, the better off we are for future deer stockings.

Sportsmen, any time I think of deer in eastern Kentucky, I think of the increasing wild and stray dog problem. Unless something is done about these dogs, not only deer but all wildlife populations will never reach the needed numbers that it will take to have prosperous wildlife populations. Does your county have an animal shelter and a dog warden? If you own a dog, do you license that animal? If not, your deer herd, your wildlife populations, and your way of life will be less than desirable.

Most of you already know that Clay county will be the next county to receive a mass deer stocking. We're also going to be putting some more deer in the Paintsville Lake Wildlife Management Area and the Fishtrap Wildlife Management Area. The Ballard county Wildlife Management Area has been the source for the stocked deer. Because we have a few other areas in the state that have an over-population of deer, your Fish and Wildlife Commission voted to trap from these other areas to provide a greater number of deer for eastern Kentucky. These areas could also be used to trap other critters for stocking. It really makes me proud to serve with a group of individuals that have the same vision as myself—that eastern Kentucky can be a happy hunting ground in the future.

Your Fish and Wildlife Commission, at our last meeting, voted to purchase 3400 acres of land in Ballard county for approximately 3 million dollars. This will automatically turn a private area into a hunting and fishing area that all our sportsmen can enjoy. I believe the Dept. of Fish and Wildlife should purchase or lease land for management areas any time it is feasible, to insure that our children will always have a place to hunt and fish.

While we're on the subject of future generations, our Conservation Education Department entertained 5,877 kids at camp this past summer. Hopefully, these kids will retain the knowledge from camp to make them become responsible and dedicated sportsmen.

At our last commission meeting, steel shot regulations were adopted in the Western Zone of Kentucky for waterfowl and doves. This was done to protect the species from lead poisoning and also protect our hunters from future federal restrictions on our waterfowl and dove hunting.

Also, the conventional bag limit of four ducks was adopted instead of the traditional point system. The great majority of duck hunters in the state requested this change and I believe it will make duck hunting more enjoyable, especially for the younger hunters.

The wild turkey restoration continues to be a success in Kentucky, and in the Seventh district we'll be stocking turkeys in Martin county and possibly Magoffin county this year. We also plan on stocking Pike, Perry, and Knott county in the near future. By the way, turkey season will begin on April 16th.

Probably the biggest thing that has ever happened to the Law Enforcement Division of the Dept. of Fish and Wildlife is the new radio system that will be in statewide operation by October 1 this year. This radio system will make our conservation officers much more productive, and will enable them to better protect our fish and wildlife resources. This will also enhance the usage of the toll free number to report fish and game violations, 1-800-25ALERT. After October 1, dispatchers will be on duty 24 hours, 7 days a week to take your calls. When calls are received, officers can be contacted immediately, and will be able to respond promptly. Needless to say, this is bad news for poachers. We encourage all our citizens to use this toll free number in order to help in the protection of our fish and wildlife resources.

In the next few months small game hunter surveys will be processed and studied for possible changes in small game seasons. This includes quail, grouse, rabbits, raccoons, etc. I believe some changes are needed and your input on these matters are requested. Any suggestions you have can be sent to Doug Hensley, Box 775, Hazard, Ky. 41701. It is the objective of the Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Commission to enhance our small game populations in Kentucky. I believe this project is way overdue, and I think something positive needs to be done for the small game hunters.

The South East Chapter of Ducks Unlimited will be holding their annual banquet and auction on October 10, at the Woodland Motel in Hazard. Everyone is welcome and limited tickets are going fast. If you would like to attend, be sure to get in touch with Bill Brazwell or any committee member to obtain a ticket as soon as possible.

Sportsmen, every hunter and fisherman has his or her own particular hunting and fishing sport. We must try to remember to respect each sportsman's pleasures and try not to criticize one another's sport. Any time our hunters and fishermen are divided, the anti-hunting and fishing public gains ground. Sometimes we must learn to give a little, so we can all benefit in the future.

Remember, take the time to let the Dept. of Fish and Wildlife and your commissioner know how you feel, because you pay the bills and are entitled to an opinion.

The week of September 17th through 23rd will be celebrated as Constitution Week by proclamation of the President. The purpose of this observance is to renew appreciation for our Constitution and our Country. The Daughters of the American Revolution urge that you study our Constitution so that you may understand its meaning and why this document has endured. Read your Constitution.

WHAT KIND OF A LAWYER CAN HELP ME WRITE MY WILL?

A general-service lawyer can usually take care of your will unless the estate is quite large, extensive or complicated.

If your estate includes a variety of assets such as business holdings, real estate, bonds, stocks and especially if you operate your own business—you should probably contact a lawyer who specializes in estate planning. The services of a specialist may be more costly at the outset, but he can minimize the effects of federal and state taxes.

No matter the size of your estate, you should consult an attorney. He knows so many of the pitfalls of improperly drawn wills. He keeps up with the latest tax and legal implications. He also knows of the problems of inter-family squabbling when the will is not precisely worded to cover all future situations. Our local lawyers can help to assure your survivors of receiving the most benefits possible which you will to them.

If you're not acquainted with a lawyer who can help you with your will, contact the county bar association. Or call us and we'll give you the names of several who could help you.

One last thing: be sure you have wills prepared for both adult members of the family and not just the breadwinner.

NAME IT

By WILMAY

September 4th issue of THE TIMES broke hearts, as the precious mother from Garrett insisted, "Our children aren't dumb."

We need more people who defend Eastern Kentucky, geographically isolated for centuries, sometimes behind other sections because most funds went to heavier populated sections with more representatives, favoring the urbanities. Improved education follows good roads.

The Garrett lady could tell critics about Green Hackworth, first head of the World Court in The Hague, born and reared on Middle Creek; Fred Vinson, of Louisa, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court; Judge Will Leslie, from Emma, head of Texas Court of Appeals, and a distinguished Christian layman who married Rose Allen, of Eastern; Bee Mayo, of Allen, founder of a normal college in Texas; or Dr. Russell Anderson, of McDowell, eminent layman, co-founder of Hyles-Anderson College in Indiana, multi-millionaire owner of five businesses in Ypsilanti. Other dignitaries proudly claimed the beloved hills as home. And, after all, the Great Emancipator was born in a log cabin in Kentucky, and the most renowned man of history was born to humble peasants in a stable in Palestine, where terrain resembles ours here.

Writers galore enjoy maligning our stalwart people and beautiful Appalachia. Some psychologists say persons who continuously downgrade others do it to feel superior. Chances are, those writers are just haughty. No one denies the prevalence of poverty, illiteracy, shiftlessness, etc., but cities have identical problems, with much more to alleviate them. Outsiders may be partially responsible for the low percentage of educated people, since for decades scores came to teach us. Countless old families sent their offspring down Big Sandy on rafts to Catlettsburg where they boarded vessels to go elsewhere to school. Among older Maytown citizens are those who went to Lebanon, Ohio, Valparaiso, Indiana, many to Louisa. Residents recall a 1925 spelling match when Maytownites who completed only the eighth grade outspelled the late Hattie Stowe, of Connecticut, then principal of Maytown High School, and a graduate of Syracuse University. Are we dumb?

Family size, incomes, etc. help determine the standing of school children. Homes devoid of magazines, daily papers, et cetera, seldom produce pupils with IQs equal to those of higher academic heritage. We have been so defamed it's no wonder some students develop an inferiority complex that stigmatizes, often for life. Accounts of such bring to mind this story, first reported to have taken place in the mountains of North Carolina. Fact or fiction, no one knows where or if it occurred, but it's right on target!

Decades past, a huge outdoor celebration, featuring John L. Lewis or some other notable, drew reporters from everywhere. One prominent writer who had served many years abroad left early to beat competitors to the wires with his scoop. He got lost, finally came to a dead-end trail, where a little barefoot boy stood before a crude cabin, gazing at the foreign-made car. The driver called out, "Sonny, call you tell me the way to Ashland?" "Naw, sir," responded the lad, digging his toes into the hard ground. "Can you tell me how to get to Betsy Layne?" inquired the stranger. "Naw, sir," the youngster replied. "See here, I'm lost," cried the man, "don't you know how I can find the highway?" "You now, sir," was the laconic answer. Flinging himself back into his car, the correspondent declared in frustration, "You don't know much, do you, Buddy?"

Our little mountain boy who had never been farther than ten miles from home, looked into the face of that world-famous traveler and newspaperman, and for the fourth time said, "Naw, sir, but I hain't lawst!"

Generally speaking, one finds all kinds of people wherever he goes. The good and the best on any scorecard are the least publicized. Fortunately, more in Eastern Kentucky are coming to the defense of this area; however, like any other, regardless of progress achieved, greater still will always be possible, for that is a part of life.

Floyd Jobless Rate Highest in District

Ninety-four Kentucky counties reported a decline in unemployment rates between July and August, while 26 had higher rates, according to figures released today by the Cabinet for Human Resources.

Counties reporting rates above 10.0 percent numbered 58 in August, compared to 67 in July and 45 in August 1984.

Compared to August 1984, 80 counties had higher rates, 38 reported lower rates and in two counties the rates were identical to the figures a year ago.

The local jobless rates reflect a decline in the statewide rate from a revised 9.2 percent in July to a preliminary 8.6 percent in August. Nationally the rate dropped from 7.4 percent in July to 6.9 percent in August. The comparable state and national rates are not seasonally adjusted.

Increases in agricultural, trade and education jobs played a big role in reaching the state's unemployment between July and August, according to state labor market analyst Ed Blackwell.

Five counties reported rates below 5.0 percent. Trimble county's 3.0 percent rate was the lowest, followed by Woodford with 3.2 percent, Scott with 3.7 percent, and Fayette and Clark with 4.7 percent each.

Menifee county's 25.2 percent rate was the highest in the state. Two other counties reported rates above 20.0 percent. They were Carter, with 21.7 percent and Wolfe, with 20.4 percent.

Floyd county's rate was 13.4 percent, the highest in the Big Sandy Area Development District.

Statewide agricultural employment accounted for the most job growth. "Agricultural jobs increased by 9,300, largely because of the tobacco harvest season," Blackwell said.

"Trade jobs grew by 3,300, with most of the increase in clothing stores, restaurants, and miscellaneous retail outlets, such as drug stores and liquor stores." He attributed the 2,900 more education jobs to the early opening of some schools. "We expect to see more growth in this area in the September figures because more secondary schools and colleges will reopen," he said.

Other job increases were reported in manufacturing (2,000), services (1,400), and construction (1,200).

The number of Kentuckians working in August was 1,572,900, up from 1,553,400 in July and 1,569,900 in August 1984.

An estimated 148,800 people in the state were out of work in August, 8,100 fewer than in July, when the figures were 156,900, but 7,900 more than in August 1984, when 140,900 were unemployed and the jobless rate was 8.2 percent.

The state's civilian labor force estimate for August was 1,721,700, up 11,400 from the July report of 1,710,300, and 10,900 above the August 1984 figure of 1,710,800. The civilian labor force includes non-military persons who are working and unemployed people who actively are seeking work. It does not include those out of work who are not looking for a job.

YES, YOU CAN!

You may have seen many new satellite earth stations, or "dishes", installed in our area recently and asked yourself, "Are those dishes legal?" or, "Can I have one of those?" Well, happily the answer to both questions is YES. In 1984, the U.S. Congress approved home earth stations designed for the reception of satellite broadcasts. Not only are dishes legal to use, they are affordable, too. You can enjoy the freedom and wide variety of satellite television today.

Williams-Rakotz Wed

Lois Mae Williams, of Dana, announce the marriage of her daughter, Susan Elaine, to Michael A. Rakotz, the son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin B. Rakotz, of Belleville.

The couple exchanged vows on May 1 in Las Vegas, Nevada, followed by a honeymoon in Los Angeles, California. A reception for the newlyweds was held at the groom's parents home in Belleville, June 29, with 200 guests in attendance.

Mrs. Rakotz is a 1980 graduate of Prestonsburg High School and is currently employed by Canvas Concepts Inc. of Livonia. She also is attending Schoolcraft Community College, where she is enrolled in the medical record technology program.

Her husband is a 1980 graduate of Romulus Senior High School and currently is employed at CanCarb Tool and Die Inc. in Romulus. He also is enrolled in tool and die apprenticeship classes at Henry Ford Community College.

The newlyweds are making their home in Ypsilanti, Michigan.

ON ADVISORY PANEL

Members of the 1985-86 President's Student Advisory Council at Morehead State University have been chosen.

Composed of 10 students, including Residence Hall Association president Donna Reynolds, of Printer, the Council meets twice a month with MSU President Herb. F. Reinhard and members of the executive committee of the President's Cabinet to discuss issues, problems and questions which are important to both groups.

Wins Tree Farm Certification

Woodrow Burchett, wellknown attorney, here, was recently presented a Tree Farm sign by Tim Sheehan, service forester with the Kentucky Division of Forestry, in recognition of Burchett's forest management of his farm on Cow Creek.

Mr. Burchett had 475 acres of timberland approved for certification in the American Tree Farm System at a meeting of the District Tree Farm Committee in Frankfort, August 22. Burchett, has completed 35 acres of timber stand improvement, fenced in 140 acres, planted 121,250 trees on 121 acres, and completed 80 acres of site preparation. He has, in fact, been a tree farmer without recognition for nearly 30 years.

A tree farm is a privately owned forest land protected and managed for the production of repeated crops of forest products. It also provides watershed protection, better food and habitat for wildlife, and opportunities for outdoor recreation. There are 1.6 million individual landowners in the South, and Mr. Burchett is one of the very few making a contribution for a better economy and environment through tree farming.

Landowners interested in having their woodlands inspected for certification, at no charge, may contact Tim Sheehan at the Division of Forestry office in Prestonsburg, telephone 886-8562.

The Story of Fire Prevention Week

On a warm Sunday evening in October 1871, a thoughtless, careless act sparked a fire at a modest city home. It seemed small and easy to control.

But it wasn't. Thirty hours later 2,100 acres of Chicago were a blackened, smoldering waste. More than 200 of its citizens had perished, 100,000 were homeless, almost 17,500 buildings were in ruin.

Direct losses were $168,000,000, the indirect losses incalculable.

To mark the Chicago conflagration, Fire Prevention Week is observed annually during the week containing October 9, its anniversary date. Fire Prevention Week was first officially proclaimed in the United States and Canada in 1922.

It strongly reminds us that the fires are not unavoidable accidents. They are always the result of some thoughtless act or neglect, and they can expect heavy penalties.

Don't gamble that you can escape the financial headaches or family heart-breaks that fire always brings. Make fire prevention your concern, at home, on the job-EVERY WEEK!

'Nature' Begins Fourth Season

The fourth season of the natural history series "Nature" airs Sundays at 7:00 p.m. on KET beginning October 27. Each program will be repeated the following Saturday at 8:00 p.m.

The premiere episode "And Then The Rains Came" examines the hardships faced by animals on Kenya's Tsavo plains during one of the worst droughts in memory. It is the lack of food and not the lack of water which threatens and poses hardships for the animals. With great force the rains suddenly pour from the heavens and the animals can leave the river and return to distant watering holes. However, just as quickly as the rains came the watering holes again dry up and the cycle repeats.

FOUR REASONS WHY GAS HEAT IS STILL THE ONE BEST CHOICE FOR YOUR HOME.

1. As much as 50% warmer. Gas heat is warm heat; air from a heat pump feels cool.
2. Over 100% longer life. A gas furnace can outlast two, even three heat pumps.
3. Up to 33% savings with new high-efficiency gas furnaces.
4. Almost 0 service costs. A gas furnace has fewer moving parts than a heat pump, so there's little to go wrong.

At 9 a.m., Monday, Oct. 14, 1985,
Prestonsburg Piggly Wiggly Supermarket becomes FOOD CITY.

We will close at the end of business hours Saturday, Oct. 12, 1985. Store will remain closed Sunday and re-open at 9:00 a.m., Monday, Oct. 14, 1985, as a new Food City store.

In late December of 1984, K-VA-T Food Stores, Inc., successfully negotiated plans for the acquisition of the Food City supermarket chain.

There have been many "invisible" functions occurring within the company since the formal announcement was made. Within a relatively short transitional period, the merger is now in evidence with the Prestonsburg Piggly Wiggly Supermarket being converted to Food City Supermarket. Piggly Wiggly Supermarket and the people of Floyd County have enjoyed a solid and productive relationship over a span of many years. We have grown up together...and, as we've grown, we have watched this community mature and develop a healthy economic climate.

We intend to perpetuate this long-standing association, with all the vigor of the past.

Today, the introduction of Food City brings forth a new optimism in the grocery business. Food City's unprecedented achievements and growth is due to an aggressive merchandising format.

In 1973 Food City instituted a "Warehouse Pricing Program". Basically, it required much greater volume buying. It also meant cutting out all the frills and costly promotions. Food City passed on these savings, plus all manufacturers' allowances, to the customers.

"Warehouse Prices" began receiving customers' applause from the very beginning. Food City was knocking down the onslaught of rising food prices. Everywhere, Food City customers began praising this "new idea" of saving them money.

These efforts have been most rewarding to customers, and also to Food City through dramatic sales increases. Therefore, low prices on an everyday basis at Food City have met with great success.

We are confident that the people of Floyd County will enjoy this new world of shopping experience.

On behalf of the staff and management of our company we wish this entire community a happy and prosperous future.

Welcome to Food City. We look forward to serving you.

Sincerely,

Jack C. Smith

Dr. Travis Lockhart, coordinator of Morehead State University Theatre, has announced the cast for the first production of the 1985-86 season.

Tracee Lynn Buchanan, daughter of Ellis and Terry Buchanan, and granddaughter of Virgil and Nancy Webb, of Prestonsburg, and Mary Buchanan, of Corbin, has been cast in the role of Charlene Bumiller in the comedy, "Greater Tuna." The play, set in a fictitious Texas town, focuses on the humorous side of small town politics.

Miss Buchanan, a 1983 graduate of Prestonsburg High School, is a junior theatre and radio-television communications major at MSU. She made her MSU stage debut last season in "Our Town" and was the sound engineer for the thriller, "Deathtrap." She is also active in MSU-TV. # Cats Win Squeaker Over Clark County

Prestonsburg High School's Blackcats came within an inch of seeing their unblemished record go by the wayside last Friday night against the bigger, stronger 4-A George Rogers Clark Cardinals of Winchester.

With the Cats leading 20-13 late in the fourth quarter, the Cardinals' relentless running attack paid off for a touchdown. At 20:19, the Cards opted for the two-point conversion and probable win, but the Prestonsburg defense held tight, stopping the drive, one Blackcat said, less than an inch from the goal line.

The Cats opened the game kicking to the Cardinals. Keith Blanton received and returned the ball to the Cardinal 28. The Cards marched the ball downfield, making it to the Prestonsburg 30 in 12 plays before turning over possession on downs, going for the yards on a fourth down and five but coming up empty.

Prestonsburg took possession on their own 30, setting up their first scoring drive and extending to six straight their streak of scoring on initial possession.

It took Cat quarterback John Goble six plays, including two passes to Pete Green, to lead his team to the touchdown.

The score came after B.D. Nunberry had made a short gain, setting up second down and nine on the 19. On the next play, Green broke free and zipped into the end zone. Goble, throwing well under pressure, found Green, and the Cats led.

Goble tried the extra point kick, but missed. At 3:31 of the opening stanza, Prestonsburg was on top, 6-0.

Greg Shepherd kicked off, sailing the ball into the end zone. The Cardinals played a masterful running game that Prestonsburg had a hard time containing, but after 11 plays Prestonsburg again took possession on downs, again after the Cardinals went for the yards in a fourth down situation.

Prestonsburg's second possession also proved to be its second scoring drive. Taking over at the 18, Goble got the first down, running the ball to the 29. On the ensuing play, Nunberry gained six, bringing up second down and four, but Goble found Green on the next try for a first down on the 42.

The Cats appeared unstoppable, as Nunberry broke away for the 58 yard TD on the next play. With Goble's kick, the score stood at 13-0 at 10:12 of the second quarter.

The Cardinals proved they weren't superstitious, however, as, faced both with Blackcats in their path and a supposedly unlucky 13, they mounted their first scoring drive. Shepherd kicked off for Prestonsburg, sending a line drive out of bounds at around the 10-yard line, and making another kick necessary. He kicked again, this time from the Prestonsburg 35. The Cardinal's Blanton returned to the 35 before being stopped by Green. The Cards picked up only a yard on the next play as Chris Snodgrass made the stop on the 34.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats survived a close one Friday night, as the visiting George Rogers Clark Cardinals took them to the wire, 20-19. The Cats will be on the road next week against division rival Lawrence County.

But the Cardinals would not be denied. At 9:14, Blanton broke away for a 64-yard scoring run. Donny Thomas's extra point try was off the mark, leaving the score at 13-6.

Blanton made the kick-off for the Cardinals, with Green receiving for Prestonsburg. The Cats began their drive on the 34, continuing their aerial assault, as Goble hit Shag Branham for a gain of 15 on the 49-yard line. An illegal procedure penalty cancelled a short gain by Nunberry, putting the ball on the 50-yard line at second down and 11.

The Cats took a time out to re-group. Resuming the contest, Nunberry had a four-yard gain for third down and six on the 48. Goble tried running for the first down, but made it only to the 43 for fourth down and one.

The Cats decided to go for the yard and, as it turned out, they made the right decision.

At 6:21, Goble handed off to Nunberry, who shot 43 yards downfield for the touchdown. The extra point kick was good, upping the tally to 20-6.

That was the last score of the half and Prestonsburg's last score for the game. It wasn't until the fourth quarter, however, that the Cardinals almost pulled out the victory.

With 10:10 remaining in the contest, the Cardinals capped a six-yard drive with a touchdown from fourth down and one. Thomas kicked the extra point, making the score 20-13.

The ball change hands four more times before the Cardinals scored again, this time with only 1:03 remaining in the game. The score came on a Gibson pass to Blanton for the Cardinal QB's first pass completion of the evening.

"HOME SWEET HOME" IN FLOYD COUNTY

By H. G. NOBLE

Back up in the hills of old Floyd county,

When in childhood I did roam,
When my thoughts are sad and lonely,
My heart goes back to "Home Sweet Home."

When the golden sun is sinking
And I am all alone,
My thoughts go out a-wandering,
My heart goes back to "Home Sweet Home."

While sitting in my study
My thoughts are wont to roam,
Those hills loom up before me,
My heart goes back to "Home Sweet Home."

DIES IN NORFOLK

IMPROVING FARM

James Hatcher, of Big Shoal, is digging a well and making other needed improvements on his property at this place. It is reported that Mr. Hatcher, a big coal operator in Pike county, is putting needed improvements on his large farm here before his nephew, Andrew Trimble, who is his mine superintendent at Big Shoal, moves down to take charge of the affairs of this farm. Mr. Hatcher is reported to already have a model poultry farm on this property. It is said that he has now about 1,500 head of friers and near-friers.

Seven Others Receive Teachers' Certificates

The following applicants at the June teachers' examination held here filed proof of high school credits upon being notified that their grades would be withheld until this was done, and have received certificates from the state department of public instruction:

Claude P. Allen, of Pyramid; Julia Lee Spradlin, Bonanza; Malcom Johnson, Brainard; Juanita Conley, Bonanza; Lizzie Smith, Martin; May Dings, Alphoretta; Flossie Hopson, Prestonsburg.

Grades of applicants were not furnished Superintendent John Stephens, but were mailed direct to applicants. While it is probable that others have received satisfactory reports from their papers, their names are unavailable.

FORD ORCHARD MAY LEAD TO MORE FRUIT GROWING

Henry Ford's venture in horticulture in Pike county may lead to the development of this region into a flourishing fruit-growing section, and its success will mean much to this industry in the mountains. Of the undertaking W. S. Kaltenbacher writes the following in Sunday's Courier-Journal:

FORD'S FRUIT VENTURE

The fruit growers of Kentucky are evincing much interest in the venture of Henry Ford, the auto magnate, in operating a fruit farm in Pike county, where the Ford interests own thousands of acres of coal lands. The Ford orchard is looked on as an experiment that may have a most important bearing on the fruit-growing industry in this state.

In its operation the Ford fruit farm is conducted along the same lines of a unit of the Ford organization. The minimum wage paid to the Ford orchard workers is $6 a day, the same as that paid to every other Ford employe in whatever capacity. The Ford fruit farm is equipped with very modern device used in expert orcharding and the tract is pronounced a model of its kind.

Mr. Ford has never made any fuss about his fruit-growing venture in Kentucky, but it is said that he has kept in close touch with the development of his Pike county orchard since it was set out to fruit trees of the most approved varieties. Some see in the Ford fruitgrowing experiment the purpose eventually to plant the extensive coal-bearing area in fruit trees. If such a plan should even approximately materialize the Ford orchard would rank with the largest and most extensive anywhere.

It is generally conceded that whatever may be the result of the Ford fruit-growing experiment in Pike county, it will have an important bearing on the horticultural industry in Kentucky that has made such advancing strides within a few years. It seems to be well understood that Mr. Ford is not operating his experimental orchard for profit and because of that his fruit-growing venture has aroused the keener interest among fruit growers and those concerned with the horticultural development of the state along the most approved lines.

ANOTHER WHO CAN'T COME BACK

Billy Mitchell, well-known civilian authority on aviation, now realizes that the country has little time for anything else when a good sportsman like Col. Charles A. Lindbergh is in the air.—Indianapolis News.

HUEYSVILLE

KICKED BY MULE

Mrs. Ena Gearheart, wife of Sam Gearheart, this place, suffered a severely bruised leg a few days ago when a mule kicked her. Mrs. Gearheart was returning to her home from the postoffice, and was forced to go close to the mules in order to get by, the wagoner having parked his wagon and four-mule team squarely in the middle of the road. When she was opposite one large mule, he kicked, striking her on the leg. Mrs. Gearheart was helped to her home, and is now recovering nicely.

SCHOOL PRINCIPAL ILL

Mr. Damron, principal of the school here, was unable to teach last Friday on account of a severe cold, which made him so hoarse he could hardly speak. His classes were handled by his wife, Mrs. Lura Damron, whose classes in turn were taught by Miss Gola Huff. Mr. Damron was much improved Saturday, however, after using a short treatment given him by Dr. R. W. Duke. Mr. and Mrs. Damron left for Prestonsburg Saturday where they attended to some business affairs, returning home Sunday.

PIPE LINE WORK

The largest amount of pipe ever seen on the plot of ground used as an unloading yard here at the railroad siding, is now here. Several men have been unloading pipe here for two weeks, mostly men who live here. The pipe is being hauled away to Brush Creek and Salt Lick, where it will be used to lay a large pipe line. The camps for this section of the work will be located on Salt Lick and will be set up within a short time.

A good crowd attended Bosco Theater last Wednesday night to see the famous picture made from Peter B. Kyne's "The Enchanted Hill." The picture was a high class western, starring some of the best players of today.

PERSONAL MENTION

Mr. and Mrs. Morgan Patton, of this place, went to Lackey Sunday to attend church.

Claude Huff, son of J. W. Huff, this place, was out motoring Saturday and Sunday.

Miss Opal Coburn, who has been staying on Stephens Branch, is back in Bosco.

JOLLY HAY RIDE

What was probably one of the jolliest times ever known around Bosco was enacted and enjoyed by the following participants, in a hay-ride Sunday night: Claude, Bert and Miss Gola Huff, Leroy and Opal Coburn, Johnny Allen, Hobart Hayes, Earl Allen, Mr. and Mrs. Bud Turner, Mr. and Mrs. Alex Damron, Misses Cara Hayes and Clarice Webb.

A wagon belonging to Johnny Hayes was secured; a team belonging to Will Hayes, and some hay from the feed house of F. P. Hayes. With these the procession got under way, lumbering up the road as far as Garrett and returning. Considerable gear trouble had to be attended to, along with Hobart Hayes and Mr. Turner who landed in a soft-surfaced mudhole when the back end of the wagon broke off short.

Claude Huff, Cara Hayes, Opal Coburn and Hobart Hayes claim credit for first suggesting the recreation. Mrs. Damron, wife of our school principal, was chaperon.

MSU Says Sheep Suited To Region

Prior to World War II, Eastern Kentucky was a major producer of sheep and if Morehead State University has its way, sheep production again will be a vital part of the region's economy.

The Appalachian Regional Commission has awarded MSU a $136,404 grant to develop a sheep industry program, according to Dr. Charles M. Derrickson, dean, College of Applied Sciences and Technology.

The program will be operated by MSU's Department of Agriculture and Natural Resources in cooperation with the Appalachian Development Center.

"As the amount of farm land utilized for tobacco production declines in the state, we need to find viable alternatives and sheep production is one," the dean said.

"It's an industry well suited to the region's steep and hilly land," he noted. "There are a number of small land owners, who are now working at something else, but who want to be fully supportive on land. This is an industry that will provide them that option," Derrickson said.

"The program is most appropriate as part of Morehead State's service mission," said President Herb. F. Reinhard. "The University is committed to improving the economy of the region, especially with long range programs like this rather than short-term ones," Dr. Reinhard said.

The first step already is under way, according to Wilson Grier, ADC assistant director for business development, who is coordinator for the program. "We are in the process of hiring a sheep specialist to assist interested farmers in preparing their facilities and to develop educational programs on sheep production, ranging from lambing to parasites," Grier said.

"We will be holding meetings with prospective sheep farmers in the near future, here on campus and then out in the region on a county by county basis," Grier said. "Our initial target area will be Rowan, Bath, Montgomery, Fleming, and Morgan counties as well as some adjacent counties," he added.

According to Derrickson, the program calls for 18 farms of 30 ewes each to be established initially. The sheep will be provided participants by MSU on a lend-lease agreement at $55 per ewe and $200 for purebred ram. "We'll be crossing white-faced ewes with black-faced rams, the dean added. Participants will be allowed to pay back from their lamb crops over a three-year period.

"The project is in the organizational stage and we are still looking for more farmers interested in participating," Derrickson said.

Additional information on MSU's sheep production program may be obtained by calling Grier or Phil Kenkel at ADC, (606) 783-2077.

Social Security Reporting Reminders

JIM KELLY
Social Security District Director
For The Big Sandy Area
Prestonsburg, Kentucky

If you receive Social Security checks, here's an important reminder: Promptly report any changes that may affect your benefits. In this way, you can avoid an overpayment and a possible penalty.

The most common cause of overpayments is too much earnings from working. Let Social Security know if earnings will exceed the annual exempt amount—in 1985, it is $5,400 if you are under 65, or $7,320 if you are 65 or 70—or if your earnings will be higher than previously estimated.

You should report any work activity, regardless of earnings, if you get disability checks. However, there are special rules that may help you continue getting some benefits temporarily if you work while still disabled. Ask at any Social Security office for a free copy of Disability Benefits and Work. Following are some additional events you may need to report:

—Change of address: Report even if you have direct deposit, as important written notices are sent to you from time to time.

—If you receive Black Lung.
—Medical improvement: Report this if you get disability checks.

—Marriage: Report this if you receive benefits as a dependent or survivor.

—Other benefits: Report if you receive or have applied for another benefit (such as workers' compensation, etc.)

If you are a representative payee, you must report any of the above

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of mother and grandmother, Orlabe Mullins Johnson, who passed away one year ago, Oct. 8, 1984.

It's hard to find the right words, or know where to begin. Each day throughout the year, with warm thoughts and memories of the happy times, she always showed thoughtfulness, and concern for her family and friends. She did so much for others, and never asked anything in return. All the years she kept her pain tucked inside, never wanting to concern anyone.

We always knew we would have to say goodbye, but our memory and love in our hearts will always be with us and will never say good-bye. She will always be thought about very much with love and missed by her children and grandchildren.

Appalachian Folk Music:

From Foothills to Footlights

Renowned English folklorist Cecil Sharp and his assistant, Maude Karples, collected British ballads throughout Appalachia over a three-year period. They are shown at work on the front porch of a Mrs. Prat, resident of Hindman, Ky., circa 1916.

By Peggy Langrall
Smithsonian News Service

In turn-of-the-century England, a renowned folklorist named Cecil Sharp was regarded as a kindly eccentric. He was a music master, plagued by ailments, and unappreciated as a composer. But a sudden passion to preserve traditional country songs and dances, then dying out in England, turned his life around. With relentless patience, he tracked down and preserved in written scores 3,300 of the ephemeral tunes. In 1916, Sharp came to America looking for more.

Sharp found the ancient songs and ballads flourishing where early British settlers had transplanted them—in southern Appalachia. Despite recurring ill health and the rigors of mountain terrain, he began to collect the music with great excitement.

The Appalachian songs had a force and ethereal intensity that the mellow, sweeter British versions often lacked, and the mountain people improvised with a skill that Sharp found amazing. Despite his careful notation of their songs, the folklorist found it impossible to catch the slides, slurs and twangy gutturals of their free expression, although he was one of the first to try.

Traditional Appalachian singers usually sang unaccompanied in a "high, lonesome" voice, not unlike the fiddle's sound. Their style was unobtrusive; they certainly were not showmen. One early folk-song collector used to tell of the elderly lady, who after complaining that the Civil War had caused her to forget most of her songs, placed her hands in her lap, fixed her eyes steadily on the ground and, only then, began to sing.

Such ballads singers typically sang at home alone or for a friend or two with a private kind of directness, totally absorbed in their songs. They liked long traditional tales of love, adventure, history and the supernatural. Or they sang songs expressing how they felt about whatever was on their minds. The great change in performing styles came only in the 1920s as country musicians left home to entertain in public. It was then that personalities became as important to audiences as the songs.

The gentle old-time mountain styles remained little-known—hidden away in the hamlets as country music branched into a giant industry that flooded the airwaves with popular sound. "Nashville's success is deserved, but what preceded it is not outmoded because of it," says Ralph Rinzler, for years director of the Smithsonian's Festival of American Folklife.

The journey from the foothills of Appalachia to the footlights of Nashville is a saga of country music itself, reflecting everything from hard living and hard times to high-energy, high-spirited, foot-stomping fun.

In contrast to the traditional singers' quiet approach, early string-band performers—while still reserved—were on display and out to entertain. They were the first professionals, and it was their musical descendants who would one day arrive in Nashville. By the 1800s, as country-music historian Bill C. Malone writes, "fiddlers lived up county court days, political rallies, militia musters, race days, county fairs, holidays, house-raising and similar work/social functions."

With the coming of the railroads to the southern highlands, native Appalachians met black section workers who laid track and brought with them the guitar—light and portable, like the fiddle and banjo. "It was perfect for the accompaniment of singing," Douglas B. Green of the Country Music Foundation says, "far better than the high-pitched, scratchy, lonesome fiddle."

The solid, steady rhythm of the black guitarists, as taught to white children or heard at camp meetings, brought new life to old-time styles and moved country music from the ballad tradition. "Guitar chords shaped melodies and evened out many irregularities, melodically and rhythmically, in old-time music," New Lost City Ramblers musician Mike Seeger says. "The Negro influence on old-time guitar players was profound."

In the 1920s, a different breed of ballad hunter made forays into the South: the talent scout for the newborn record industry. The indefatigable Ralph Peer ran recording sessions and matched entertainers with tunes to be recorded, and he was the first to call them "artists." Peer encouraged the performers to write their own songs and collect old ballads. "He always treated his artists as creators," Seeger says.

Peer rigged makeshift studios, and country musicians flocked to them in hopes of becoming recording stars. Many came shyly, in family groups, and they were rarely "show-business" oriented. But brasher performers like Fiddlin' John Carson, Charlie Poole and Al Hopkins and his Buckle Busters, having played at medicine shows, political rallies, picnics and fiddle conventions, were audience oriented.

These sessions established two major styles. On the one hand, notes historian Malone, "the Carter Family never moved very far stylistically from their origins," sounding "like a group singing for a small circle of friends gathered in a family parlor or at a church social." They preserved many old-time songs that might have died out.

Rogers, though, was more responsive to the popular currents of his day. He incorporated such novelties as the yodel and Dixieland and Hawaiian sounds into country music. His songs had a devil-may-care spirit, and his death from tuberculosis at the age of 36 helped develop the enduring popular-country-music theme of the free, rambling but star-crossed young man.

The microphone not only made it easier for country performers to sing over noisy audiences, it also encouraged the development of innovative styles. The introduction of electrically amplified instrumentation changed rural musical forms even more. The old elemental themes of love and pain, honor and death, however, survived.

By the 1930s, country music could be heard over radio from coast to coast. The size and scope of the listening audience could be estimated by the stations' fan mail, a phenomenon that prompted the now familiar "keep them cards and letters comin' in." About a week after it went on the air in 1924, Chicago's radio station WLS ("World's Largest Store"—it was originally sponsored by Sears-Roebuck) inaugurated a "hillbilly" show. The program developed into the wildly popular National Barn Dance. "Sparkplug" performer Arkie the Woodchopper—guitarist, folksinger, square-dance caller and straight man—brought his brand of charm to the Barn Dance. Bradley Kincaid's "genuine" Kentucky mountain songs and the Cumberland Ridge Runners—singers and musicians from around Berea, Ky.—fitted right in with the show's old-time flavor. But the Grand Ole Opry, started up by radio station WSM in Nashville in 1926, soon topped the Barn Dance in popularity.

In the early days, Grand Ole Opry performers were mostly amateur musicians—farmers and laborers during the week, performers on Saturday night. They entertained as much for their own enjoyment as for their listeners. But there were pros, too, among them versatile, energetic Uncle Dave Macon. "No one figure will ever again dominate the field single-handedly for 15 years as did the extraordinary singer, banjo picker, raconteur and humanitarian known fondly as The Dixie Dewdrop... Uncle Dave Macon," says the Smithsonian's Rinzler. Perceptive and witty, Macon's commentaries on the social scene were comic gems, and Rinzler notes that Macon preserved on records "more valuable American folklore than any other performer with the exception of the Carter Family."

Another longtime Grand Ole Opry star, the laconic but charismatic Bill Monroe, created sounds rooted in tradition, yet innovative. With a legendary mandolin style, a high-tenor voice and a string band he called The Blue Grass Boys, Monroe preserved the acoustic style of instrumentation and the "high, lonesome" style of singing—now featuring two-and three-part harmony and "Up-tempoed" speeds. His "chop-style" mandolin chording set the distinctive rhythm of today's bluegrass sound.

One of the early Blue Grass Boys, Earl Scruggs, perfected a highly syncopated three-finger style making the banjo a solo instrument of dazzling speed and versatility. To folklorist Alan Lomax, it was "folk music with overdrive." The style landed Scruggs in Carnegie Hall and bluegrass music in the popular mind.

Today, bluegrass festivals are held all over the United States. You can stay up all night jamming with fiddlers, guitarists and banjo and mandolin players from around the nation. You can even trade instrumental licks and harmonize on songs like "Black Jack Davey" and "Cripple Creek"—two of the 1,612 tunes Cecil Sharp collected in the Appalachians.

A MESSAGE TO THE FLOYD COUNTY TAXPAYERS

The present clerk, Carla Boyd, claims in her ads that you, the voter, should vote for her on the basis of her honesty and experience in the County Court Clerk's Office for over 12 years.

An audit of these years of experience, published two years ago, demonstrates a shortage of approximately HALF A MILLION DOLLARS ($500,000.00) of public funds. A separate investigation by the Kentucky State Police, for the period your present Clerk claims her experience, was published June 18, 1985, in the Lexington Herald Leader newspaper, which revealed at least 174 documents that had been falsified and resulted in a further shortage of public funds.

If this campaign is to be run on the questions of honesty and experience:

- (1) The public should be told what happened to the missing public funds; and
- (2) Why wasn't the public made aware of the State Police report until after the May elections were over?

Floyd County clerk subject of 174 forgery allegations

By Lee Mueller
Eastern Kentucky bureau

PRESTONSBURG — Seven months ago, the state attorney general's office presented evidence to a Floyd County grand jury that resulted in indictments against 16 people, including three magistrates, a former county clerk and a trial commissioner.

But Attorney General David Armstrong's office did not show the grand jury 174 allegations of forgery prepared by Kentucky State Police investigators against Floyd County Clerk Carla Robinson Boyd.

Case records obtained under the state Open Records Law and reviewed by the Herald-Leader last week said that between 1980 and 1982, Boyd, as a deputy clerk, allegedly conspired with her uncle, County Clerk C. Ollie Robinson, to defraud the state and county of funds by typing fictitious receipts for heavy-truck registration payments.

The files mentioned no total amount of money missing, but Robinson, who died in office in February 1983, left a deficit of about $500,000. During a hearing for creditors conducted last month by Floyd County Master Commissioner Marshall Davidson, the state Transportation Cabinet filed a claim for $319,000 for motor vehicle registration fees it failed to receive from Robinson's office.

The state police documents said Boyd admitted typing the false registration receipts for her uncle, sometimes at a rate of seven or eight a day, for a period of two years.

"She would not admit to any monetary gain by the effort," the investigation report said. "Her only excuse for this action was that it was her duty to do as she was instructed."

Boyd told a reporter: "I'd say the reason they didn't prosecute me was that I was just following the boss's orders."

"That's what you do, don't you?" she asked a reporter. "Because if you don't, you won't be there very long."

Boyd said she never asked if what she was doing was illegal. "I didn't ask any questions," she said.

Dave Lewis, manager of the special prosecutions branch of the attorney general's office, presented the results of an 18-month state police investigation into financial practices by Floyd County officials to the grand jury. But he bluntly said, "No comment" when asked recently why he withheld two file boxes full of evidence against Boyd.

Assistant Attorney General Barbara Whaley, who helped Lewis prosecute the case, also declined to comment.

Numerous attempts in recent weeks to obtain comment from Armstrong, both in Frankfort and by telephone, were not successful.

Phillip Damron, a Prestonsburg lawyer who represents several of the defendants indicted last December, said he was not surprised that the material was not submitted to the grand jury.

"I have maintained since the date of original indictments that the special prosecutors had targeted specific individuals for prosecution while willfully omitting others," he said, "and the primary purpose of the original indictments was to influence the May elections."

In an interview last week, Boyd said she spoke with Armstrong by telephone last week about another matter, but said she did not know him personally and had no political ties to his office.

In a typical case file, James and Gary Mitchell of Beaver registered their truck in Robinson's office on April 1, 1980, and paid a fee of $190.60. Nine months later, Boyd typed and signed a fictitious license receipt indicating that the Mitchells had registered their vehicle for $48.40, the report said.

In another case, National Mines Corp. of Wayland paid a $475 registration fee on March 20, 1980, and Boyd typed and signed a fictitious license receipt for the state on July 1, 1980, showing the company had registered the vehicle for $356.50, records showed.

The difference between the amount of money reported in the actual and fictitious licenses appeared to range between $100 and $150 in many of the 174 cases.

Boyd, about 30, said she did not know why Robinson ordered her to prepare the false registration receipts, but she said, "I'd say lots of it had to do with truck drivers' not paying for their license plates."

She said Robinson sometimes allowed truckers to buy their plates on credit and wound up having to pay the fee himself when the truckers failed to pay.

But Alva Mitchell of Beaver, who keeps books for James and Gary Mitchell, said Robinson never let them buy licenses on credit. "We always took a company check and paid for it right there," she said.

Likewise, a National Mines bookkeeper chuckled at the prospect of registering trucks on credit. "I wouldn't think so," said the bookkeeper, who asked not to be identified. "We paid by check."

The first-degree forgery allegations against Boyd had been discussed with the attorney general's office as of Feb. 2 this year, according to a document filed by state police detective John Bauerle, "but no decision has been made as to when presentation will be made" to the grand jury.

The case was listed as closed, however, on March 18, "due to a lack of prosecution," according to a document filed by special investigator James Henderson.

Boyd pointed out that on March 15 this year she turned over $74,000 in excess fees to the county.

"If I was going to steal that money two years ago, I wouldn't have turned over $74,000 for doing my job this year, would I?" she asked.

In a synopsis of the investigation, Bauerle wrote that Boyd typed the fictitious truck registration receipts, knowing that they were illegal and that they would result in the state government's receiving much smaller fees.

According to the investigation report, police interviewed deputy clerks Peggy Kidd, Devon Rose, Cheryl Hughes, Tommie Layne, Evelyn Goble and Janet Halbert on Sept. 21, 1983.

"Based upon their interviews, we concluded that Carla Boyd could make us aware of how deceased county court clerk, Ollie Robinson, had managed to manipulate these records," the report said.

Later that day, Boyd signed a document, acknowledging her role. "I don't see any sense in denying anything," she said. "You know I'm not a liar."

VIDEO SCENE

Tina Turner is red hot

By Barton Weiss

Tina Turner burns up the small screen with her second clip from "Mad Max III: Beyond Thunderdome."

Tina Turner

"One of the Living" uses that classy black-and-white trick to separate the footage film (black and white) from the video, and moves with a cyclical kinetic energy, with either Tina or the camera moving around in circles.

Pyromaniac's delight

Roger Daltrey starts his new clip with a series of extreme close-ups, then lights a match, sets a field ablaze, and sings about life "After the Fire." The bulk of the video has him blasting out the song in front of the fire in a studio.

But most of his attention is devoted to the mike stand. He almost acts as if it's 1969 again and lead singers are judged by how many tricks they can do with it.

CREATOR (R-Universal) Starring Peter O'Toole, Mariel Hemingway, Vincent Spano. ★ ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

Mad professors are delightful cinematic material. Their labs are usually brimming over with various bubbling fluids, the animals that they are using for lab experiments scamper about their cages as if they know their intended fate, and various bolts of electricity shoot though the room in uncontrolled frenzy.

Most mad professors dabble in "things mortal man should leave alone." Dr. Harry Wolper, played by Peter O'Toole, is no exception. When his wife died 30 years ago, he saved some of her cells, and he has spent most of his time since trying to clone them in order to "bring back Lucy." Along the way, he has picked up a Nobel prize, but a lot of folks think he's just plain crazy.

These include a graduate assistant (Vincent Spano), a wandering nymphomaniac (Mariel Hemingway) and a frowning fellow college professor (David Ogden Stiers).

After films like "My Science Project," "Real Genius" and "Weird Science," one might think that the glut of teen science films has run its course. Or that Jennifer Beals as "The Bride" would bring it to a dead end.

But "Creator" is vastly superior to all the above films. Jeremy Leven has adapted his own prodigious (581 pages) novel to the screen, and although much of the book's complexity and richness is gone, the humanity remains.

Spano and Virginia Madsen play a younger couple whose lives seem to be paralleling those of the professor and his Lucy. Spano shows a depth heretofore unseen, and newcomer Madsen is more than his match. Their scenes range from the hilarious to the melodramatic, with a deathbed scene of an intensity not witnessed since Ali MacGraw coughed one last time in "Love Story."

"Words are wonderful things," Peter O'Toole says in the film, and that is never so true as when O'Toole says them. He is one of the most formidable powers on the screen today, and although his role is on the light side, he alone is worth the price of admission.

Country music's big night

By Lynn Hoogenboom

Country music award shows have abounded in recent years, but the one that continues to mean the most to the artists is put on by the Country Music Association. "The 19th Annual Country Music Awards Special" will be broadcast this year on Monday, Oct. 14, on CBS.

Ray Charles

The festivities will be hosted by Kris Kristofferson and Anne Murray. Both have been nominated as well: Miss Murray for Female Vocalist of the Year and Kristofferson for Single of the Year and Music Video of the Year for his work with Willie Nelson, Waylon Jennings and Johnny Cash in "Highwayman."

But the big story is supergroup Alabama. Last year, Alabama won an unprecedented third straight Entertainer of the Year Award (the top honor of the evening), and this year the boys go for their fourth straight. Lee Greenwood, Reba McEntire, Ricky Skaggs and George Strait have also been nominated.

Hank Williams Jr. will be appearing on the show for the first time, which can be read as a genuine sign that a truce has been declared between Williams and the Country Music Association. For many years, Williams was ignored by the association, even though his records consistently outsold those of virtually every nominee, and he became — rather understandably — quite bitter. This year, however, he has been nominated for Male Vocalist of the Year.

The most curious nomination, however, is one of those for the Horizon Award, which is awarded to an emerging country artist each year. This year, Ray Charles (yes, the Ray Charles) is one of the nominees. Charles certainly deserves an award, but a man who recorded his first country album, "Modern Sounds in Country and Western Music" (a massive best-seller), back in 1962 is hardly an emerging artist.

In fact, Loretta Lynn gives Charles primary credit for bringing country music to a wider audience in the 1960s. "After hearing him, people were more prepared for Johnny Cash and Merle Haggard — and Loretta Lynn," she said in her autobiography. "I don't think he's ever gotten the credit he deserves from Nashville."

This year he's getting credit. But forget the Horizon award. The man deserves a nomination for the Country Music Hall of Fame.

Farmers Should Beware Con Artist Loan Scam

As if farmers weren't busy enough worrying about finances these days, there appears to be a new problem with which they must contend—con artists.

According to a recent article in the South Dakota Department of Agriculture's publication, The Gleanings, several farmers in that state have been bilked for thousands of dollars by people offering loans while requesting "up-front money."

In some cases, people answered ads and were told they could have a loan if they would provide the necessary up-front money, often $5,000 or more. Needless to say, the loans never materialized and the farmers lost their money.

"While no such scam has been reported in Kentucky, that doesn't mean it can't or hasn't happened here," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. "People who are tricked into money scams like this are often too embarrassed to report it to the authorities."

"We should all be wary of anyone promising loans under such questionable conditions," the Commissioner continued. "No reliable lender ever asks for up-front money from a client who wants a loan."

OWENS FOR MAGISTRATE

JACKIE EDFORD OWENS
Democrat For MAGISTRATE DISTRICT 2

I urge all the voters in District 2 to get out and vote in this next November election. Don't take the May primary for granted. Although we won the May primary, we are not running unopposed. There are 3 candidates in the magistrate's race. There is one Republican, one Democrat, and one Independent, which is the same as a no party in my book. I believe this Independent would be a YES MAN—a yes to whatever they said.

I think it's time that District 2 got their FAIR SHARE and got it put on the roads.

I know that I will have to fight at least one school board member in this election—Birchell Duff's brother, James Orville Duff. But that's just politics. That's why I urge everyone to get out and vote so we can MAKE A CHANGE.

P.S. Be sure to vote AGAINST THE COMMISSIONERS. If you can't do it with 4 magistrates—there's no way you can do it with 3 commissioners. Let's not give up 4 votes for 3 votes and pay the cost of costly rezoning into thirds. Which third would you be in? The third getting the goods or the third back in the woods?

(Pol. adv. pd. for by the candidate, 11-pd.)
