Gas Service Cut, Toler Cr. Homes Without Heating

Some 25 homes on Toler Creek were left without gas as of Monday, the result of a decision by the Public Service Commission to allow the Cities Service Company (CITGO) to end services to that area.

The affected residents had been trying for months to force CITGO to continue supplying them with gas, though the utility's position had always been that the well which served the area was dry, and the gas they had been receiving for some time had been back fed from other wells, a dangerous and illegal procedure.

A formal hearing was held May 17 in Frankfort, and another informal meeting was held July 3 at the Harold Elementary School, to help decide the fate of the Toler residents. A number of them voiced opinions at the meetings that a motive for the gas shut-off was to rid CITGO of subscribers paying a reduced rate. Since 1948, Toler residents (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Bakay Convicted After 2 Women Hurt in Crash

In a case described by the prosecutor as a test of the community's tolerance of drunk drivers, a 23-year-old Weeksbury man was convicted by a Floyd Circuit Court jury Monday on two counts of first-degree assault in an auto wreck last winter that leaves a Hueysville woman in a coma to this day.

The jury recommended that Timothy A. Bakay be given two 10-year prison terms as a result of the accident in which his car crossed the centerline on old KY 80, in front of Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin, and smashed head-on into one driven by Cathy Allen, who was on her way home from work as a switchboard operator at a Prestonsburg bank.

The jury had no recommendation as to whether the sentences should be served concurrently or consecutively. Sentencing was scheduled by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley for December 23.

Mrs. Allen, 34, received severe head injuries and lost consciousness when she was thrown against the windshield of the Toyota Tercel she was driving. She remains in a deep coma in a Tennessee institution for head trauma victims. Kay Rodebaugh, 20, a co-worker whom Mrs. Allen was taking home, sustained a broken leg and back injuries in the accident.

State Trooper Troy Snardon testified in court Monday that Bakay, who was taken to Our Lady of the Way Hospital to have a leg wound sutured after the wreck, was "loud and obnoxious" to emergency room nurses, "very rude," and "about as drunk as anyone could be." On a Breathalyzer test administered (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

8 of 10 Bridges in County Said Deficient or Obsolete

Of Floyd county's 138 bridges, 110 are substandard, according to an evaluation submitted to the Federal Highway Administration by the Kentucky Transportation Cabinet. Eight out of 10 county bridges—only those 20 feet or longer are counted—are either structurally deficient or functionally obsolete, or both, the report said.

Every county in Kentucky has its share of "killer bridges," said Jack Fish, president of Kentuckians for Better Transportation, but in Floyd county the ratio of substandard bridges is somewhat higher than the state average. The state report shows that 7191 of Kentucky's 12,740 bridges—fewer than six out of 10—are below par.

Of this county's 37 locally-maintained bridges, six were cited by state Transportation Cabinet engineers in April as in need of "immediate attention." Three of them should be closed until they can be repaired or rebuilt, the engineers recommended.

Of the three marked for closing seven months ago, repair work has now been done on one, the Meade Branch bridge on Abbott Creek, said Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo last week. A county road crew has filled the bridge's north abutment, which had been undercut by the stream, he said.

Coal operator David May has undertaken to rebuild the bridge over Parsons Branch of Mud Creek, Stumbo said. State engineers said the bridge, off Ky 979 near Grethel, should be closed because its steel stringers are "warped, bent and very weak."

To replace the ancient bridge serving

26 families in the community of Glo, near Wayland—the third of those condemned by state inspectors—Stumbo was authorized by the fiscal court recently to negotiate with state officials for possible purchase of a Bailey bridge, a portable structure made of prefabricated steel sections.

The other three bridges marked by state officials for immediate attention are one spanning Hunter's Branch of Left Beaver Creek, at Hunter; Bryant Branch of Clear Creek, near Hi Hat, and a bridge over Salt Lick Creek at Hueysville.

Of the Hunter's Branch bridge, the engineers said its "deck is in very bad shape" and half the concrete handrails need repair. Some floor beams are missing from the Bryant Branch bridge and all of them need to be replaced, the state officials said. The five-ton weight limit on the Salt Lick bridge should be lowered to three tons, they said.

Plea Bargains Reduce Charges

Felony charges against seven persons were reduced to misdemeanors in plea bargains worked out recently in Floyd Circuit Court. Charges against four others were dismissed.

William Jay Cantrell, of Auxier, indicted with Carlin Harris on a burglary charge following a Feb. 15 break-in at the Sugarloaf office of Bush and Burchett, bridge contractors, pleaded guilty to a reduced charge of criminal trespass and was sentenced to one year in the county jail.

Under the agreement reached between Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Albert Burchett and Public Defender Gary Johnson, the court will consider probation for Cantrell in 30 days if he cooperates with the Commonwealth in the prosecution of his alleged confederate. His sentence is to run concurrently with one he is already serving in Johnson county.

BA Tests Low, Drivers Freed

Because Kentucky law fixes at .10 percent the blood alcohol level at which a driver is presumed drunk, no jury will convict a driver with a lower reading, regardless of the testimony of the arresting officer, District Judge Harold Stumbo said this week. The judge was explaining the dismissal of DUI charges this week against two Floyd drivers.

Charles E. Foley, 20, of Prestonsburg, registered .09 on the Breathalyzer when he was arrested by city police on Nov. 4. His vehicle had struck two cars parked outside the Job Corps Center in the Goble-Roberts Addition, and Foley left the scene but returned later, said Sgt. Gerald Clark.

Because of the relatively low BA reading, Asst. County Attorney Dan Rowland recommended dismissal of a DUI charge against Foley. Because he later returned, a charge of leaving the scene of an accident should also be dismissed, the prosecutor said in court Tuesday. Those charges were consolidated with four others—having prescription drugs not in a proper container, having no insurance, improper registration, and failure to register the transfer of a vehicle—and all were dismissed by the district judge, who noted that the defendant had recently joined the army.

THE FLOORING was recently repaired but the steel structure of this bridge at Glo, which residents say predates the advent of motorized traffic, has so deteriorated the bridge should be closed until it is replaced, according to state Transportation Cabinet officials. The bridge, which serves 26 families in this Right Beaver community, remains open, but Floyd Fiscal Court recently authorized Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo to negotiate with the state for help in replacing the structure.

Conservation Effort Wins National Award

A partnership formed eight years ago by the state's universities and community colleges with a view to promoting energy conservation has been selected to receive an award from the U.S. Department of Energy. James Ratcliff, director of continuing education, at PCC, and Robert McAninch, professor of government have been involved in the partnership from its inception.

Known as the Kentucky Continuing Education Energy Conservation Consortium, the project will receive a National Award for Energy Innovation in the category of education and outreach.

Mother, Daughter Die As Autos Collide Here

A head-on collision Friday on U.S. 23, just north of Prestonsburg, claimed the lives of a Melvin woman and her infant daughter, while injuring two other occupants of the same vehicle.

Tammy Marie Elkins, 22, of Melvin, was pronounced dead on arrival at Highlands Regional Medical Center after a car in which she was either a passenger or was driving—authorities are not sure which—collided with a car driven by Tressa Martin, 27, of Prestonsburg. The daughter, Maria Lynn Elkins, was taken first to HRMC, but transferred later to Cabell-Huntington Hospital, where she was pronounced brain dead upon arrival, according to Floyd Coroner Roger Nelson.

The accident occurred, according to Kentucky State Trooper B.J. Woods, at about 6 p.m. as the car driven by Mrs. Martin attempted to pass another vehicle by pulling into the southbound lane of U.S. 23, and into the path of Mrs. Elkins' car. Woods said it appeared both drivers had attempted evasive action, but were unsuccessful. He said neither car appeared to be travelling at excessive speed, and, though the investigation is incomplete, it does not appear charges will be filed in the incident.

Also injured in the wreck were Janice Elkins, 23, who is listed in stable condition at HRMC, and Christy Dailey, 12, who was taken to Cabell-Huntington, where she is said to be in fair condition.

Mrs. Martin was taken to HRMC, where she signed herself out against medical advice.

Survivors include Mrs. Elkins' parents, Johnny and Ruby Mae Hall Little, Melvin; her husband, Kenneth Ray Elkins, Melvin; four brothers, William R. Little, of Drift, James Stevie Little, Weeksbury, Ricky A. Little, Wheelwright, Larry Ray Jones, McDowell; two sisters, Sandra Jean Lidster, Buford, S.C., and Teresa Lynn Little, Melvin; also the child's paternal grandparents, Woodrow "Buck" Elkins, Wheelwright; and Blanch Clay Elkins, Prestonsburg.

Funeral services for mother and daughter were conducted yesterday (Tuesday) at 11 a.m. at the Weeksbury Church of Christ, Bennie Blankenship and Michael Hall officiating. Burial was made in the Matthew Tackett cemetery at Melvin, under the direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Small Business Seminar Slated Here Tomorrow

The fifth of a series of small business seminars will be held here tomorrow (Thursday) in the Pike building of Prestonsburg Community College, beginning at 8:30 a.m. and ending at 4 p.m.

The seminars, which are a public service and without charge, are designed to provide small businesses information on voluntary compliance with Kentucky labor laws, employee rights and responsibilities and Kentucky Labor Cabinet services to business and industry.

The seminar series is being sponsored by Associated General Contractors, Associated Industries of Kentucky, the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, the Kentucky Labor Cabinet and the Kentucky Retail Federation.

Of the 11 meetings scheduled, statewide, three already have been held. The response has been good, a spokesman for the sponsors said.

NEARLY 150 LOCAL residents, along with federal, state and local dignitaries, were on hand Monday for the official ribbon-cutting ceremony at the newly-completed Big Sandy Regional Airport. The occasion marked the completion of the major phase of the four-county project which was begun nine years ago.

Included in this phase is the 5000-foot runway, a parallel taxiway, and an adjoining aircraft parking area. More development is expected to begin early next year. On the construction agenda are a base hangar, offices, parking, water and sewage systems, and taxiways leading to hangars.

The new facility is a joint effort of Johnson, Floyd, Martin and Magoffin counties and was 90-percent financed by the Federal Aviation Administration, five percent by the state and five percent with local funds. The airport is located just across the Johnson-Martin line and is now accessible via the road that leads to the Pevler Mine from KY 3. A new access road that will link up with the rebuilt KY 3 should be completed in the near future.

This Town...That World

After days of cloud and rain, with not a peek at the sky, or sun or star, comes a bright morning. That's a simple fact of the natural world as it is—the winds blew the clouds away. What is more remarkable is the fact that people such as I become so glum beneath lowering skies that we can't imagine that the sky is still blue.

FOOTBALL SWAN SONG

When Prestonsburg High School's football team lost in the playoffs to Newport Catholic, I pinned my hopes on Paintsville and Belfry, but they also lost. Haven't seen a football game (except by the tube) in 10 years, yet I go into a decline when my favorite team or teams lose. UK lost so often this season that my condition has almost become chronic.

But I was and am proud of these Mountain high school teams. There's a possibility that these boys have convinced some of our daily newspaper brethren that high school football doesn't end at Winchester or the line between Mountains and Blue Grass.

MACHINATIONS

The hottest day last summer, the air-conditioning in this office went on strike. Monday, the first day it was needed, the heat went to Florida or som'ers. More of this sort of performance and we'll be convinced the contraption is taking revenge on us... for neglect.

WHO'S NOT IN ON THE KILL?

Among the things I am thankful for at this time of year is the fact that by chance I did not get introduced to deer-hunting when I was younger. Now, the sport holds no temptation for me; in fact, I wouldn't shoot a deer under any circumstance short of starvation.

But this is not to criticize those who do. Those who insist that deer should not be hunted should, to be consistent, stop eating pork or beef or the meat of any fowl or fish, for these, too, must first be killed.

EVEN THE DOGHOUSE went as family members hurried to move furniture from the home of Andrew Duff, 78, of Glo, when Right Beaver Creek broke its banks, the morning of Thanksgiving. Duff's sons, James R. Duff, of Estill, and Billy Duff, who lives beside his father at Glo, spent Thursday hauling out eight pickup loads of furniture as the waters threatened. On Friday, they hauled it all back.

"People can laugh if they want to, but we didn't want to get caught again. We'd do it every week if we had to," said James Duff, who recalled that the water rose to a depth of seven feet in his father's house trailer during the May, 1984 flood.

Worker Burned In Park Mishap

A Johnson county man was seriously injured Tuesday afternoon, the victim of an electrical accident at May Lodge of Jenny Wiley State Park.

Whimpe Williamson, 55, of Sitka, a park employee, was changing a faulty breaker in the facility's main control box when the accident occurred. Apparently a tool that Williamson was using came into contact with the terminal of another breaker, exposing him to 440 volts of incoming current.

"I was working next to him at another location when I saw a bright flash," said Robert Deerfield, the park's maintenance foreman. "The light was so bright that I had to cover my eyes and fell back. When I was able to see again, I saw Whimpe lying five to six feet from the control box on the floor between two boilers." The control box is located in a boiler room at the lodge.

Williamson was rushed by a co-worker to Highlands Regional Medical Center, where he was treated for third-degree burns on his hands and arms and first-degree burns on his face. The jacket Williamson was wearing caught on fire, according to Deerfield. The victim was listed in satisfactory condition Tuesday evening.

The accident, which occurred at 1:45 p.m., left the lodge without power for the rest of the day. The accident is being investigated by the Prestonsburg Fire Department and affiliated state agencies.

High Utilities Rating Helped P'burg Win As Certified City

Prestonsburg fell short last year in its bid to become one of that select state group of municipalities which are listed as Kentucky Certified Cities.

This year, it made the select list. It made the grade after meeting standards such as the quality of life here and the city's preparedness for economic development.

Evaluation of the city was made after on-site inspection of facilities—and a report of the evaluation tour made by Wes Blondell, project development director for Vaughn & Melton, Middleboro engineers-architects, indicates that the Prestonsburg Utilities Commission's high rating was a leading factor in the Kentucky Certified City rating attained here.

The report made following the inspection tour showed, for example:

Of a possible 113 points, the Prestonsburg water system scored 112 points; the gas system had 19 of a possible 22 points; the sewage system, 144 of 146 points, and electric power, 115 of a possible 122 points.

"The Prestonsburg Utilities Commission is to be commended for an exceptional utilities program," wrote Blondell, summarizing his findings. "It should be used as a model for all Eastern Kentucky communities."

Blondell's report added: "One slight criticism might be in the area of having more coordination concerning energy audits. It seems that city government is not aware of the many energy conservation efforts being expended in the city's behalf by their utilities commission as well as Kentucky Power Company. The city should more clearly define responsibilities for energy conservation measures."

Bill H. Howard, superintendent, and C.J. McNally, chairman, of city utilities, hailed the report as professional approval of the utilities system's efforts to extend and improve its services.

The Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) provides for the formation of State Job Training Coordinating Councils (SJTCCs) by governors to advise and counsel them on state job training activities and to help plan employment services authorized by the Wagner-Peyser Act, according to a U.S. Labor Department fact sheet.

Double-Wide Trailer, Home Of Floyd's Only TV Station

FINDING COMIC RELIEF from the pressures of running Martin's KC-TV, Keith Caudill, left, and Tony Stephens supply viewers with offbeat entertainment, news and sports.

On a hill in a hollow less than a mile from where the old Almar Drive-In once entertained generations of movie-goers, a double-wide trailer stands, home to a new breed of entertainment—Floyd county's only television station, KC-TV. The station is owned and operated by Hi Hat native Keith Caudill. Caudill, who also owns a Pikeville music company, with the aid of chief technician and cameraman Tony Stephens, keeps the signal beaming to homes in various places around the county, showcasing such varied features as Floyd Fiscal Court meetings and road trips to luxury locales like French Lick, Indiana, in their entirety.

The first thing one notices about Caudill is the resemblance to Harpo Marx. There's no blonde wig, no bicycle horn, no harp; but look into his eyes and the comic madman cannot hide. And Caudill doesn't try to hide himself from public view—he's a fixture on much of the station's admittedly limited programming.

Most of Channel 5's programming is simply a computer-generated bulletin board of public service announcements, program listings, and a few—very few—paid advertisements.

"Pikeville Music is our biggest sponsor," Caudill admits, because his viewing area is so diverse. "We don't have a central core of viewers to tell advertisers we're reaching." Channel 5 is available in Martin, but not in Allen; in Mud Creek and Betsy Layne, but not Prestonsburg.

The limited, spread-thin viewing area results from the channel being strictly available on the Martin-based Tel-Com cable system. Their signal goes where the rest of Tel-Com's channels go. No more, no less.

But those viewers fortunate enough to receive Channel 5 are routinely treated to a brand of off-beat programming not available on the larger stations.

"We're not out there saying 'KC-TV is number 1' or anything like that," said Caudill. "That would be silly. We're not like WYMT or WSAZ. If we went around bragging about how good we were, we'd have to try and live up to that, and people would be disappointed. As it is, people see us and they're comfortable to come up and say 'Hey, man, I saw you acting crazy on TV the other night.' We're just a couple of local boys out there acting crazy."

One of the channel's most popular programs ever involved the excursion to French Lick. Caudill and Stephens had to make the trip to pick up a load of pianos for Pikeville Music, and decided to take a portable video cassette recorder and camera along to record the journey.

"We just told stupid jokes and talked. People loved it, and it was just a couple of local guys in a truck."

It's the idea of local people being able to do things and get on TV that Caudill seems truly to love.

"It seems like anything we show locally, people watch it. People don't get the chance to see local people on TV very often; that's the whole idea of KC-TV. It's a whole lot different than what people are used to seeing," he said.

And Caudill backs up his words with action, broadcasting whatever locally produced shows he can get his hands on. "We've never hardly turned anybody down," he said, "as long as the stuff was clean enough for us to run it."

An example of the station being an outlet for creative expression was the station's broadcast of "Malice," a parody of the night-time soap opera, "Dallas," produced by students at Pikeville High School.

"It was real creative, but they didn't have any place to show it," he said. "One of the kids was in the music store and we got to talking about it. We ran it and the kids were just thrilled."

KC-TV has a music video show, live telephone call-ins, high school sports and other informal programming, but there's a serious side to Channel 5 as well. In the more than two years since Caudill has operated the station, he says KC-TV has broadcast "all but a couple of Floyd county's Fiscal Court meetings."

"The times we've not shown the Fiscal Court were because of equipment failure," he said. "Most people never go to a fiscal court meeting, but if they watch us they can see the whole thing, unedited. People seem to like that."

Another "serious" show is the Paul Preston Burchett program. Burchett, a Prestonsburg attorney, interviews area people of note, such as U.S. Congressman Chris Perkins and Prestonsburg Community College Professor Robert McAninch.

"Bob McAninch is one of the best guests we've had on," said Caudill. "He's talked about the commission form of government and analyzed the elections. One time after he had done Paul's show we were going on live with our music videos, and we got him to introduce one. It was amazing. He knew all about the song, the band, the band members."

But those who haven't yet seen KC-TV had better look fast, for there's a good possibility the channel will be gone, or at least changed, after the first of the year. Caudill and Tel-Com owner Paul Gearheart are involved in negotiations for control of Channel 5.

"He reads the contract one way, I read it another," said Caudill. "We'll just have to wait and see what happens." Until then it'll be business as usual in the trailer on the hill in the hollow.

What will Smokey the Bear think when he learns the U.S. Forest Service purposely torched 1,000 acres of Colorado timber with napalm? Stay cool, Smokey. International Wildlife magazine reports it was a friendly fire, set to create grazing grounds for a herd of bighorn sheep. Fire will become an increasingly common tool for renewing aged and disease-ridden western forests. Man's success in controlling natural fires has led to the rise of tree parasites and dead timber that could fuel catastrophic wildfires.

Violence Prevention Basis of Study Unit

Materials on the prevention of family violence are being incorporated into the home economics curriculum in many Kentucky schools, Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald announced.

"We know that spouse abuse, child abuse and other forms of violence are serious problems in many families, both in Kentucky and throughout the nation," McDonald said. "This curriculum unit represents one means of helping young people understand the factors that contribute to these destructive acts and thus avoid the development of violence in their own lives."

The materials are being made available to home economics teachers by the Kentucky Department of Education's Office of Vocational Education but are not a mandatory part of the curriculum.

Topics in the unit include dating violence, spouse abuse, rape prevention, physical and verbal child abuse, child sexual abuse, missing and exploited children, effects of the media, abuse of the elderly and a profile of the abuser.

In some human cultures, women are required to bring a certain amount of wealth—called dowries—to their marriage. For many animal cultures, it's the other way around, reports International Wildlife magazine. These nuptial gifts, from the groom, are called "dowers," and, in the animal world, they are often food. Terns, for instance give fish; hangingflies present insects.

Not all bees feed on pollen and nectar, says National Wildlife's Ranger Rick magazine. In the forests of South America there are bees that gobble up dead snakes, anteaters and other forest creatures. They're named—appropriately enough—vulture bees.

Enhance your neckline with these superb diamond pendants crafted in precious fourteen karat gold. Graduated diamond sizes at graduated affordable prices.

Quality comes in all shapes.

There's more to a diamond than meets the eye. And whether the diamond is in good shape or not has little to do with the shape of the diamond. It has to do with quality. Quality as determined by the 4C's: Cut, Color, Clarity, and Carat-Weight.

Cut: Some diamonds make the cut. Every cut of a diamond is defined by a precise mathematical formula to allow the maximum amount of light in. Quality comes in all cuts, or shapes. But the quality of the cut, or make of the diamond directly affects its light handling capabilities.

Color: Lighten your world. The gradations from totally colorless (pure white) to yellowish. The less color the diamond itself has, the more colors it can reflect out.

Clarity: You're clearly there. The degree to which a diamond is free of exterior and interior inclusions. The clearer the diamond, the clearer your choice.

Carat-Weight: Size it up. The size of the diamond measured in carats. First decide on the size that's right for you. Then choose the highest quality diamond in that size range.

Adult Education Needed

We have no findings after extensive and costly studies to prove this is true, but it may just be that a concentration on adult education—particularly, of adult parents—might do more for education than many of the more elite or costlier programs that are being proposed for Kentucky.

Most of the school dropouts come from homes where parents are little interested in the education of their children and lend little or no encouragement to them to study and learn and thus to find school a rewarding, interesting experience.

Failures in the classroom (which also may supply a heavy share of the dropouts) frequently follow the failure of parents to make the home a pleasant place for study. They are the result, too, of the lack of interest of parents in acquiring knowledge, of planning time and effort to the exclusion, say, of other attractions, including television, which claim the student's time and interest.

Lack of pride in the child's mental development, the attitude toward the child and his teacher and school which stresses the child's time in school and forgets the days and nights wasted at home, with all the blame loaded on to school and teacher and none accepted at home—these are adult failures that help make of no effect the best-laid plans to improve education.

The education of parents which we suggest would not necessarily be a matter of academics. Rather, it would be a program to make the home a vital part of the educational effort and a working partner with the professional educators who have only a few hours of the child's day.

Parents so trained would be expected to have a deeper, livelier interest in the mental development of their children; would find time to approve, even applaud, the child's efforts; encourage him to give this business of learning his best shot; leave the child to set and maintain for himself or herself an achievement standard and acquire an intellectual curiosity without which little is ever learned except by rote.

More interest at home in education would mean more children in school and happy about it, greater respect for deserving teachers and fewer school properties vandalized. This ambition to learn, as well as respect for person and property, must begin at home.

have been paying 35 cents per thousand cubic feet of gas, in exchange for easements across their land. Other subscribers pay $3.05.

David Rubenstein, of the Appalachian Research and Defense Fund, represented several of the families in their fight to keep the gas on. Rubenstein said the PSC decision seemed to be valid, and he foresaw no appeal. "The Commission found that since the well was dry, and there were dangers involved in back feeding from other wells, Cities Services was justified in cutting them off," he said.

Though the Toler residents have been cut off, the gas company has offered each household up to $700 to convert to an alternate form of heating, such as propane. But many of the people were not able to find other energy sources right away and, perhaps more bitter than ironic, the day their gas was shut off was also the first day of truly cold weather in the area, with temperatures dropping into the mid-20s.

Toler resident Joan Meade said no one really believed the gas company would be able to halt their service. She said that while the problem was probably not life-threatening, "it's gonna be awful hard on the older people," and a number of sick children there.

Mrs. Meade said her family was one of the more fortunate, in that they had a coal stove in an outbuilding, and were already changing over to propane. She said several people had come there to keep warm. And other families should be with heat again shortly, as P and H Hardware in Harold is reportedly accepting letters of credit from CITGO in exchange for heaters.

But Mrs. Meade wondered why the cut-off had to be made now. "It's been going on for years," she said. "Why couldn't they let it go on for another month or so, or until spring?"

Bridge deficiencies are attributed to age, heavier traffic, the effects of weather and deferred maintenance, said Fish, of Kentuckians for Better Transportation. Over the years, maintenance and reconstruction projects have been postponed and weight limits repeatedly reduced for safety, he said. The state and most local governments just don't have adequate funds to begin to deal with the problem realistically, he added.

The state's current construction plan provides for replacing 340 substandard bridges by 1989. At the current rate of improvement, using available state and federal funds, it would take more than 70 years to solve the state's existing bridge problem, Fish said.

A DUI charge against Terry Lynn Gayheart, 22, of McDowell, was amended to disorderly conduct on account of a relatively low BA reading—.07 percent—and was consolidated with two other charges—driving on a suspended license and having faulty equipment. He was fined $10 and ordered to pay $47.50 in court costs.

Patrick Brian Ousley, 19, of Hueysville, registered .16 on the Breathalyzer when he was arrested on a DUI charge, Nov. 2. He was also charged with having no license, insurance or registration. Anthony Castle, a sheriff's deputy, said Ousley at first failed to pull over. When he did stop, he smelled strongly of alcohol and failed a sobriety test, Castle said.

All charges against Ousley were dismissed, however, when the officer changed his story, saying Ousley was not the driver of the car he stopped.

Bobby Little, 34, of Price, drew a seven-day jail term and was ordered to pay $557.50 in fine and court costs for drunk driving—his second conviction under the 1984 law—driving on a suspended license, and possession of marijuana.

Others sentenced for drunk driving, either as a result of guilty pleas or verdicts, were: Sean F. Smith (also convicted of driving on a suspended license and possession of marijuana), 30 days' probation, $507.50 in fine and costs; Archie Sturgill (also speeding, drinking on highway), two days' jail, $207.50; Christopher Stumbo, two days' public service, $157.50; Martin V. Boyd (also disorderly conduct, resisting arrest), 45 days' probation, $557.50; Willis E. Ousley, $357.50; James Click (also speeding), two days, $207.50; Lyndon B. Hall, two days' public service, $157.50; George R. Stricklin, (also driving on suspended license), $157.50; Michael Stephens, $407.50; Douglas Charles Walker, $147.50; Ronnie D. Conley, $407.50; Nicky J. Eager, two days public service, $157.50; and Harry G. Allen, $357.50.

Our Yesterdays

(Items taken from The Floyd County Times, 10, 20, 30, 40 and 50 years ago.)

Ten Years Ago

(December 3, 1975)

A two-car collision early Sunday morning on U.S. 23 in the vicinity of the Combs Airport, near the Johnson-Floyd county line, claimed the lives of two persons and injured two others. John Wallace "Butch" Branham, 44, of Auxier, passenger in a car driven by his wife, Greta, was almost instantly killed when their car, travelling south, was struck, head-on, by a car driven by Cleda Salyers, 23, of Gifford, Magoffin county. A passenger in the Salyers vehicle, 14-year-old Kimberly Bailey, of Salyersville, died en route to the Highlands Medical Center. Late Monday afternoon, Mrs. Annie Belle Spears Collins, 45, wife of Woodrow Collins, of Endicott, and her daughters, Shirley Dean, 22, and Velvet Lee, 12, were killed instantly in a collision at the intersection of the Lancer-Water Gap Road and US 23. Members of two local unions of the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers last week by secret ballot approved a new contract with the Columbia Gas Transmission Company which provides an across-the-board basic wage increase of 44 cents per hour. The Thanksgiving holiday here may have exerted a calming effect on would-be lawbreakers in the county, or at least kept them closer home, as this week's listing from the county jail shows a lighter than usual number booked. Sales of Series E and H Savings Bonds in Floyd county during September were $28,611 while sales for the first nine months totaled $263,122, or 82.9 pct. of the county's annual goal of $317,700. The Turkey Bowl East-West game of 1975 is now just a painful memory for most participants in Sunday's local gridiron lunacy. The West chalked up a 16-14 win, and the record now stands West 4, East 3, and one tie game. The Prestonsburg Community College chorus will present "The Messiah" Sunday, Dec. 7, at 3 p.m. in Pike Auditorium at the college. Langley resident, Jeffrey J. Martin, 18, is attending the National 4-H Club Congress in Chicago this week as one of the delegates from Kentucky. A surprise birthday celebration was given for Laura Conley on her 75th birthday, Saturday, Nov. 29 at her home at Lackey. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Paul Eugene Nelson, of Flat Fork, a son, Brett Freeman; to Mr. and Mrs. William Sessions, of Salyersville, a daughter, Crystal Lee; to Mr. and Mrs. William Thomas Rose, a son, Samuel Scott. There died: Eureka Celia Patrick Savage, 87, Wednesday, Nov. 26, at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Maxine Bierman, with whom she lived; Mrs. Judith Mathews Hall, 25, of Weing, Va., formerly of Hi Hat, last Friday at St. Mary's hospital in Knoxville, Tennessee; Thomas M. Watkins, Sr., 84, Saturday.

Twenty Years Ago

(December 2, 1965)

The Mountain Mental Health Association met Monday at the Floyd County Health Center here, to emphasize the need for a mental health association for Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties. Plans for the public information center long-planned for construction here by the Department of Public Information have been approved and advertisement for bids has been authorized. At mid-semester almost 49 per cent of the 518 fulltime students at Prestonsburg Community College were well on their way to failing to make passing grades. Rondal Lawson, bursar-recorder at the college, was quoted as saying recently. The 1965 Christmas season officially opened in Prestonsburg Saturday with the fourth annual Christmas parade and Snow Queen pageant. Married: Miss Susie Stephens, of Prestonsburg, and Mr. Larry Burke, of Catlettsburg, November 24 at Pikeville. There died: Mrs. Katy Porter, 81, November 25 at her home at Allen; Sherman Short, 47, November 26 at his home at Kite; Jimmy Crate Gibson, 14, of Tram, November 26 at the Pikeville Appalachian Regional hospital; Dr. Earl T. Arnett, 62, former Floyd dentist, Tuesday at Mr. Sterling; Mrs. Alice Scalf Nunery, 85, of Justell, November 29 at Our Lady of the Way hospital, Martin; Mrs. Cynthia Fannin, 82, of David, November 24 at Handshoe; Luther Mack Rector, 79, of Garrett, November 28 at the McDowell Appalachian Regional hospital.

Thirty Years Ago

(December 1, 1955)

Purchase of the interest of R. M. Sirkle in the Beaver Valley hospital at Martin has been made by Dr. Claude L. Allen, it was learned here last week. Formal signing of a contract to construct the Floyd County Health Center is expected this week, it was said Tuesday by County Judge Henry Stumbo. Figures produced by the American Automobile Association show that a car in the popular price range, driven less than 18,000 miles a year, costs $602 in fixed charges and 3.5 cents additional for every mile driven. Latest of the buildings to be occupied after erection in this year's record-breaking construction program here is the R. V. May Company structure on South Lake Drive. If not used by December 22, 23,000 units of Kentucky's present supply of polio vaccine will be wasted, the Kentucky State Department of Health announced today. The Prestonsburg Black Cats' sharpshooting Lowell Hughes found the goal for 42 points, but Wheelwright's ace guard, Homer Osborne, hit the jackpot in the last second looping a 20-foot jumper that gave the Wheelwright Maroons a 79-77 win in the first round of the Floyd pre-season tournament at Wayland Tuesday night. There died: John Blackburn, 69, native Floyd countian, Tuesday in Long Beach, Calif.; Esalona C. Ratliff, 84, Tuesday at her home at Martin; Jim Dock Hall, 90, of Price, recently at his home; Joseph Wallace, 60, of Garrett, last Thursday at Veterans' hospital, Louisville.

Forty Years Ago

(November 29, 1945)

Work expected to begin next spring on the Johns Creek dam at Dewey, this county, hit a snag this week as the House Appropriations committee refused to approve President Truman's request for $130,000,000 for flood control and navigation projects which had been stopped by the war. The alumni, with the support of one civilian, had too much might for the 1945-'46 edition of the Prestonsburg Black Cat basketball team to cope with in the charity game played here Friday night for benefit of Prestonsburg children of defective vision. The alumni won, 30 to 25. Completion of organization of the Floyd County Tuberculosis Association was effected at a meeting here Saturday. Attendance Officer Paris Conley this week announced that four more Floyd county fathers have been fined for failure to send their children to school. Married: Miss Sylvia Sellards and Mr. Fred Hall, both of Banner, Nov. 15 at the home of the officiating minister, the Rev. F. H. McGinnis. There died: Mrs. Polly Bradley, 65, Sunday at her home at Dock; Mrs. Artie Justice, 78, Thanksgiving Day at her home at Eastern; Mrs. Frances Roop Jarvis, 39, last Thursday at her home at Cow Creek.

Fifty Years Ago

(November 29, 1935)

Shotgun blasts, one fired as the result of a drunken row, the other writing another tragedy in the record of a family feud, resulted in the slaying Saturday of young miner Jeff Daniels, of Hunter, and Seland Cook, 45, veteran Floyd county teacher, on Left Beaver Creek. Somewhere between Louisville and Paintsville, The Times was told this week, the paving project for Friend street here has been lost. Relief in Kentucky is over at the time this is published today, November 30, as far as the Federal Government is concerned. Born: to Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lee Leslie at Martin, November 13, a daughter; to Mr. and Mrs. Ray Howard at their home here, Sunday, a son, Ray Ollie. There died: B. Morgan Spradlin, 42, Monday morning at King's Daughters' hospital, Ashland; William Brackett, 48, Saturday at his home at Wheelwright; Corbett Miller, 26, of Cliff, last Wednesday at the Beaver Valley hospital, Martin, of tuberculosis.

stered about two hours after the late-afternoon accident, the defendant registered a blood-alcohol level of .12 percent, Snardon said.

Bakay, who is married and the father of two young children, said he had just bought a bottle of liquor, had taken "two drinks at tops," and was sober as he set off toward Arkansas Creek to pick up his stranded brother. As he passed the Martin hospital, he swerved to avoid a car that was backing out of a driveway, braked, and skidded on the slick pavement to the other side of the road, he testified.

If he was loud and demanding in the hospital emergency room, it was because he was given no painkiller while 18 stitches were inserted in his leg, Bakay said. He did not learn that others had been injured in the wreck until a turnkey at the Floyd county jail told him the following day, he said.

The defendant also took issue with damaging testimony introduced by Robert Isaac, of Maytown, who said he was eating at Druther's Restaurant at the upper end of Martin shortly before the time of the accident when Bakay burst in "cussing and carrying on" and engaged in a raucous dispute with a waitress whom he accused of short-changing him. A supervisor with Kentucky Hydrocarbon Co., Isaac said Bakay left the restaurant parking lot spinning his tires and "driving very erratic" toward downtown Martin.

Bakay conceded that he had argued angrily with restaurant employees about his change but denied he was driving aggressively. His six-cylinder Ford Granada was not powerful enough to have enabled him to spin his wheels even if he had wanted to, he said.

The rear window was out of the car and he had purchased liquor to fortify himself against the cold night air, said Bakay, who admitted it was "a poor excuse."

Defense attorney Ned Pillersdorf sought to persuade the jury that, because Bakay had no intention of injuring the victims, he bore no criminal responsibility for the "terrible tragedy" and that the case should not have been the subject of a criminal trial. "This tragedy was an accident," said Pillersdorf, who suggested that criminal charges were being pressed only to bolster a pending civil suit for damages filed by the victims last November.

Commonwealth's Attorney James R. Allen made much of Bakay's alleged intoxication, however, and urged the jury to "pass the word through Floyd county that you're not going to tolerate drunk drivers."

"Cathy Allen is nothing but a vegetable. He might as well have taken her life," said the prosecutor, who asked jurors to "levy the stiffest penalty you can come up with and do the greatest service that's ever been done in Floyd county."

After deliberating about 1½ hours, the jury of eight women and four men convicted Bakay of the most serious of three degrees of assault but recommended the lowest permissible sentence. First-degree assault carries a penalty of from 10 to 20 years. "We feel good about the verdict. I'm not aware of any better verdict in eastern Kentucky for this kind of trial," said Allen, who was aided in the prosecution by his assistant, Albert A. Burchett.

Defense attorney Pillersdorf, who lodged repeated objections during the prosecutor's closing argument to the jury, said he would seek a new trial on grounds that Allen had improperly played on community antipathy toward alcohol consumption. "It's easier to win a case here if your client has shot someone than if he's had alcohol on the road," Pillersdorf said.

At the sentencing hearing, he will ask for probation for his client, who "works, is married and has no prior record," the defense attorney said. Bakay said he works for a Weeksbury auto repair shop. According to court records, he was convicted of drunk driving in 1981; at the time of his arrest on the present charge, he was cited for drunk driving, driving on a suspended license, and having no insurance.

Bill Jones, of Bypro, could have received five years if convicted of receiving stolen property, the offense for which he was indicted in February. Instead, he will be probated after serving 60 days in the county jail as a result of his pleading guilty to a misdemeanor. Jones was accused of having in the trunk of his car tools valued at $889, which had been stolen from Monroe Jones, of Bevinsville.

Leslie D. Samons, of Martin, was given a probated one-year sentence after pleading guilty to a charge of theft by deception and making restitution to the state Department for Social Insurance. Samons was indicted for welfare fraud, the grand jury charging he improperly received $903 in AFDC and $692 in food stamps between December, 1982 and August, 1983.

After he entered a guilty plea to a charge of second-degree criminal mischief, Mickey Lee Keller, of the Cliffside housing project, received a one-year sentence, with probation a possibility in 30 days if he makes restitution to David May for the metal tank he destroyed with a torch. Under the agreement, Keller may pay May $2000 in cash or work off the debt at a rate of $5 per hour. Police said Keller cut the metal chemical tank with a view to selling the scrap.

Curtis Rogers, accused of growing 236 marijuana plants in two fields near his Tolers Creek home, was sentenced to a year in the county jail, with probation anticipated after 30 days, following his guilty plea to a reduced misdemeanor charge. Some of the pot he was accused of cultivating for sale was said to be growing on property belonging to the father of State Trooper Greg Roberts.

Ron Lively was returned from Maryville, Tenn. to face charges that he fraudulently obtained Dilaudid from a Prestonsburg pharmacist last December. He pleaded guilty to a lesser charge of possession and was sentenced to 60 days in jail, with credit for the 20 days he has already served. Lively was instructed by the court to return Dec. 28 to begin serving the rest of his sentence.

John Buford Hall, 45, of Wheelwright, accused of firing three gunshots into the American Legion Hall in Martin on Sept. 21 last year, entered a guilty plea to a charge of second-degree wanton endangerment and was given a year's jail term, with probation anticipated after 30 days. A .38-caliber revolver seized by Martin city police was ordered returned this week to the defendant's father, Willard Hall.

Dismissed was a first-degree burglary charge against Jeffrey Wayne Shepherd, 23, of Hueysville, accused of breaking into the B and J Sports Shop and of having stolen a pistol and cash in his possession. Jarvis Moore, the prosecuting witness, said in an affidavit that Shepherd had made restitution and that he (Moore) did not wish to press the charge.

Also dismissed at the request of prosecuting witnesses were dud check charges brought by Dan Dee Supermarket against Lon R. Slone and Ronnie Lee Lawson and one brought by Clinnon Martin against Floneva Gayheart, of Pine Top.

Young Artists With Fiddle and Bow

Kentucky Country, perhaps the youngest group of performing musicians around, has a lot going for it.

Its three members had Buddy Ratcliff, of Morehead, formerly of Martin, for their granddaddy. And Buddy Ratcliff is not only an accomplished musician but also is an excellent teacher of music. So he taught these three grandchildren of his how to play the fiddle. And the precious grandchildren took to the fiddle like ducks take to water.

Kentucky Country is a group comprised of Nathan Ratcliff, 8, his cousin, Sara Horton, 6, and Elizabeth Ratcliff, Nathan's sister, 4. These children really play the fiddle; if you didn't see it, you think you were listening to adult champion fiddlers.

They have played at the Nashville Palace, Station Inn and Reel Country, all popular night clubs in Nashville; they have taped a guest spot on "You Can Be A Star" on the Nashville Network; they have played at Archie Campbell's Hee Haw Village in Pigeon Forge, Tennessee; and they have been the stars of the New Tennessee Barn Dance at Radio Station WNOX in Knoxville.

In addition, the children have performed many times at the Renfro Valley Barn Dance, where they received the first standing ovation since 1939. Crowds are amazed and excited to see these cousins play fiddle tunes and sing country songs. The children have been featured on television shows in Huntington and Lexington. Most recently, the family returned to Nashville for an audition to be on "Hee-Haw," which they passed with flying colors. Filming will begin in February. Next March, they are scheduled to travel to Canada to film a series of television shows for the Canadian Broadcasting Company. Many who have seen them perform have said, "You have to see it to believe it!"

Kentucky Country Band will be in concert Friday, Dec. 13, at 7 p.m. in the Ashland Community College auditorium. To reserve seats, tickets must be purchased in advance at Ashland Community College. Tickets will be sold at the door only if seats are available at 7 p.m.

ADVENT MUSIC

By ELMA JESSEN

And the Local Council of Church Women

Music is a traditional part of the Advent and Christmas season, from simple lullabies of the Christ-child to great oratories. Every church and community celebrates the season with musical programs, the singing of carols, hanging of the greens, and pageants with children and young people singing.

In this 300th anniversary year of his birth, Handel's Messiah is a special Christmas treat. Through words taken completely from the Scriptures, the great composer takes his listeners through the many prophecies of the Old Testament which look forward to the Messiah's coming. From Isaiah, Haggai, and Malachi, the wondrous promises of a redeemer to come are spelled out—one who will be Emmanuel, God with us! Then the lovely Christmas story of the shepherds from Luke is climaxed with the song of the angels: "Glory to God!" Other prophecies from Isaiah are tied together with Jesus' invitation "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy-laden, and I will give you rest."

So concludes the traditional Christmas section of the work, which goes on to tell of the passion and resurrection of Christ as well. While most everyone is familiar with the stirring Hallelujah Chorus, the entire work is worthy of reflection and thought during this Advent season. Each time it is heard new meanings can be gained of this old, old story. Just as our understanding of Christmas deepens with each succeeding year, so this masterpiece grows on listeners who makes it part of their Christmas traditions. Advent reminds us that "the glory of the Lord will be revealed, and all flesh shall see it together." Handel's Messiah provides a special way of showing forth that glory today in a world that needs to see and experience it.

Blood Drive Set At HRMC, Thursday

Share your good health and donate blood. Central Kentucky Blood Center and the Highlands Regional Medical Center has scheduled the last blood drive of 1985 in Prestonsburg on Thursday, December 5, at the hospital from 12:00 noon to 8:00 p.m. At least 80 donors are needed at this drive to maintain a safe and adequate blood supply for patients in area hospitals.

As temperatures drop, we often look for "short cuts" in our regular activities to increase the time at home.

Patients in Highlands Regional Medical Center need transfusions of blood and blood components. Although there are no short cuts to donating blood, it will take very little time compared to the good it will do.

John W. Hall Lodge No. 950 F.&A.M., Martin, Ky. will confer the Master Mason degree on Donnie Eugene Keaton and Jerry Dale Flannery on December 14 at 7:00 p.m.

Dinner will be served at 8:00 p.m.

Investigate Before You Invest

What would you say if someone called over the telephone and told you about no risk deals on oil wells in Kentucky? How about promises of profits from do-it-yourself farming or breeding animals such as beavers or chinchillas with guarantees of "buy back" or repurchase by the promoter?

While this may seem like wild schemes to some, other innocent people are often fooled by con artists who push fraudulent investments, according to Rhonda Paul, director of the state Division of Securities, part of the Kentucky Department of Financial Institutions.

Most people think they can spot con artists by their appearance. "The truth is that most successful con artists look like any other successful business people and are smooth, cultured and very disarming," said Paul.

"An investor is most vulnerable to being victimized when he or she is swept along by the representations of a promoter and is willing to live with confusion without demanding clarity," Paul continued.

The Securities Director pointed out 10 rules to protect oneself from unscrupulous persons.

*Be cautious when strangers call over the telephone, make unannounced visits to the home or contact by mailing lists.

Phone calls from strangers offering get-rich-quick schemes can be a sign that a "boiler room" scam is brewing. Operators rent offices with impressive addresses and hire unlicensed salespeople to work phone banks calling individuals from purchased lists. They promise fast profits and may not deliver.

*Ask questions. Question fantastic promises of extraordinary returns of 25 percent, 50 percent or even 100 percent on your money in short periods. "Toogood-to-be-true-offers" may be just that.

*Shy away from high pressure sales techniques requiring hurried money commitments. Some fraudulent schemes have used messengers to pick up investors' checks almost as soon as they were off the phone. This could be the last contact the victims have with the companies.

*Avoid investments where the seller has little or no written information about the company or written information about past performance. But remember, even printed material—no matter how slick—can be bogus. Read all materials carefully. Ask questions. And, check with experts.

*Be wary of investments sold on the basis of tips.

*Ask the seller to give you written information about the investment, including the prospectus or a financial statement. Read them or get help reading them before you sign a purchase order to pay for an investment. Such information is required for many types of investments, including stock offerings, limited partnerships, franchise opportunities and mutual funds.

*Get competent help. Consult a registered stock broker, banker, lawyer, accountant or real estate agent. Check the company with the Better Business Bureau, securities administrator or a knowledgeable friend or family member.

*Contact government agencies who regulate the investment area to see if a company or individual is properly licensed or has any history of violating the law. Trouble with authorities should be a "red flag" to prospective associates.

*Deal with established businesses who have sound reputations in the community.

*When in doubt, wait. If something seems vague, don't commit your money. Remember, even legitimate investments could involve risks. Why risk hard-earned dollars by participating in an unclear business deal?

If you believe that you have been defrauded, report it to the proper business authorities. Contact an attorney.

For more information, write the Kentucky Division of Securities, 911 Leewood Drive, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or call (502) 564-3390.

Study Outlines Plan For Mental Patients

The Kentucky Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services recently released a three-year study which will be the department's master plan for improving services to 28,500 Kentuckians with severe and chronic mental illness.

Commissioner Dennis Boyd called the "Report on Chronic Mental Illness in Kentucky" a two-year, multi-million dollar expansion of specific treatment programs currently serving some 12,000 Kentuckians, as well as development of new services.

"What we have is no stop-gap measure, but rather a long range plan to help a sometimes forgotten segment of our population," said Boyd. "The plan outlines the types of programs needed in support of persons with severe and chronic mental illness and the number of people requiring both inpatient and outpatient services."

Boyd said the study, begun in 1982, is based on information gathered from various community support programs for persons with mental illness, comments from mental health advocates around the state, model programs developed by other states and recommendations delivered by the Kentucky Mental Health Task Force.

"This report is a consensus report," he added. "Everyone involved agreed on the content. There were more than 400 people, including mental health professionals, public officials, consumers and their families from every region in the state, who contributed to this report."

Needs of the chronically mentally ill in seven areas were evaluated: crisis care, case management, psycho-social rehabilitation, residential services, clinical maintenance, community education and consultation, and identification of those in need of services.

By identifying the specific needs in each area, the department gained a clearer picture of what services remain to be implemented in the overall program. The Kentucky General Assembly mandated the services in 1982, but a lack of funds has kept them on hold.

"It's hard to give any of our services priority over another," said Boyd. "Case management is needed to ensure each person receives the services they are entitled to. Housing is important because we have many street people who leave our system, find they have no place to live once they're out and end up back in our system."

The report puts the total cost of the recommendations at almost $31.5 million over the next two years.

A total of $1.5 million in demonstration projects were funded for this fiscal year to illustrate the effectiveness of the program. Projects include expansion of the partial hospitalization program, teaching volunteer and community workers in case management, building urban and rural drop-in centers and varying levels in residential programs to provide options to current living arrangements.

Hearing Scheduled at Church Here...
State Christian Leaders To Issue Peace Statement

An interdenominational group of about 70 Christian leaders in Kentucky has issued the draft of a pastoral letter on peace, and has announced a schedule for a series of forums to be held in eight communities across the state during the first two weeks of December.

The forum for this section of the state will be held at 10 a.m. Dec. 14, at the First United Methodist Church of Prestonsburg.

Titled "Bearers of Peace and Justice: An Invitation to Kentucky People of Faith," the letter invites "all Christians in Kentucky to become partners of God's peace and justice in the crucial times." The letter is addressed "to our congregations and all people of faith within this Commonwealth." Participants in writing the letter have come from denominations including Southern Baptist, Roman Catholic, Nazarene, Presbyterian, Episcopal, Christian (Disciples of Christ), Lutheran, United Church of Christ, United Methodist, Free Methodist, and African Methodist Episcopal. Included are heads of the various denominations, and other religious leaders such as presidents of church-related colleges and seminaries and leaders of religious orders and organizations.

"Christian leaders who are working on this in Kentucky feel the best teaching comes through dialogue, so we are asking for broad discussion of the draft statement," said Walton. The letter is addressed to Christian congregations of all denominations in the state and is intended to serve as a teaching tool, as well as a united approach to concerns of all Kentuckians.

The draft cites concerns for the entire world and deals with such issues as terrorism, violence in the society, proliferation of nuclear weapons, and lack of "significant progress" in arm talks. It cites what the leaders call "a fatalistic drift toward nuclear accident, incident or war." "We say this," it continues, "by way of confession, for we have too often been silent and have allowed these things to come to pass unchallenged."

"As Christian leaders," it says, "we recognize a double obligation: to say a clear 'No!' to nuclear war and at the same time to protect the values of justice, freedom and independence. We call for transforming initiatives for peace with justice."

The first meeting will be held Dec. 3, 7 p.m., at Christ Church, Episcopal, Lexington. On Dec. 5, three forums will be held simultaneously in Louisville, Covington and London; at Madison Ave. Christian Church, Covington, 7:30 p.m.;

HOMEMAKERS IN MEETING
The North Prestonsburg Homemakers met Nov. 19 at the Kentucky Power Company meeting room. Due to the absence of Mrs. Mary K. Music, president, Mrs. Elizabeth Ramey, vice-president, was in charge of the meeting. The devotions were given by Mrs. Mabel Allen. Mrs. Frances Pitts displayed several gift-wrapped packages and explained wrapping procedures. Mrs. Pitts announced several forthcoming workshops. Mrs. Christine Spradlin, hostess, served refreshments to Frances Pitts, June Adams, Mabel Allen, Betty Ward, Agnes Bauers, and Elizabeth Ramey. The next meeting will be Dec. 17, with Mrs. Mary K. Music as hostess.

AUXIER NEWS
The Andy J. Blanton Chapter 18, Disabled American Veterans, will meet at 7 p.m., Friday, at the Auxier Fire Department. Members of the D.A.V. Auxillary will also meet at this time.

Christ Church Cathedral (Episcopal), Louisville, 7:30 p.m.; Sue Bennett College, London, 7 p.m.

Other hearings scheduled: Dec. 10, St. Joseph School cafeteria, Bardstow, 7:30 p.m.; Dec. 12, Christ the King Catholic Church, Madisonville, 8 p.m.; Dec. 13, Boyd County Library, Ashland, 7 p.m.

Following the hearings, the statement will be renewed by the religious leaders, revised and issued over their signatures early next year. At that point any individual in Kentucky who wishes to do so will be invited to become a signer, and local churches will be invited to use the letter as a discussion and teaching tool during Lent or other appropriate times.

VISITS FAMILY MEMBERS
Mrs. Otela Smiley went to Lexington with Mrs. Marina Lafferty, Nov. 17 for a visit with members of her family, Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Thompson and baby son, and Mr. and Mrs. Vyron A. Smiley. On Nov. 19, she was entertained to dinner at the Sayre Christian Village Housing Complex cafeteria, by Mr. and Mrs. Vyron Smiley, and on November 20, she attended services with them at the First Christian Church. On November 23, her daughter, Miss Dinah Douglas Smiley, of Louisville, accompanied Mrs. Smiley to her home there where she spent Thanksgiving with Dinah and 14 guests. Wild Turkeys Elude The Holiday Dinner

One breed of turkey will likely beat getting basted this holiday season: wild turkeys, the speedsters of the species. Wild gobblers have been clocked in flight at top speeds of 42 miles per hour; and, even on the ground, they can dash faster than all but the fastest human runners. They are among the most elusive game animals around, according to the current issue of International Wildlife magazine. The birds seem to prefer walking to flying, but when they do fly, they can zoom through the air with surprising agility. Their powerful legs and wings, specially adapted for rapid acceleration, help boost the bulky bird from the ground. The wild birds, indeed, are a breed apart from their domesticated kin—farm turkeys—which have lost their swiftness and ability to fly. The wild turkey's fast maneuvers, however, are short-lived. After a quick burst of speed, the bird becomes exhausted. The gobbler rarely attempts flights longer than a quarter-mile; and, even on the ground, it doesn't get very far. It lacks a red pigment that, in far-flying birds, combines with oxygen to burn energy over long distances. The absence of the red pigment also explains why most wild turkey meat is white. Despite the bird's flagging endurance, catching the animal is no easy matter. "I've chased a wild turkey down on foot myself, with the help of another fellow," says Lovett Williams, a Florida biologist. "Doing it, though, darn near killed us."

How many office visits are made each year? Approximately 29.3 million office visits are made to private physicians, primarily ophthalmologists, for eye disorders. The most frequent diagnoses are refractive errors, inflammatory diseases of the eye, cataracts, glaucoma, and injuries.

How many persons require hospitalization for an eye disorder each year? An estimated 651,000 persons. Conditions frequently requiring hospitalization are strabismus, injuries, glaucoma, and detached retina.

CARD OF THANKS
The family of William O. Patton wishes to thank all who helped in any way upon the passing of their loved one. We deeply appreciate the flowers, food and the words of kindness given by all. Thanks to the Regular Baptist ministers for their words of comfort, and the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and efficient service.

Multiple myeloma is a cancer that begins mainly in the bone marrow. It is the result of an abnormal increase in the production of plasma cells (a type of white blood cell). It occurs in three out of 100,000 people and most often between the ages of 50 and 70. Myeloma is one of the slowest growing cancers in its earliest stages, so it may not cause symptoms for many years. When it does, the first symptom is almost always bone pain. Other symptoms include bone fractures, weakness, weight loss, frequent infections and abnormal bleeding. It is diagnosed by x-rays, and bone marrow, blood and urine tests. Often myeloma does not need any treatment until symptoms appear. When treatment is needed, chemotherapy offers a chance of putting the disease into remission. If a remission is achieved, chemotherapy is usually continued. Radiation treatment can also be used to control the bone-related symptoms and keep the patient as active as he or she can be. Because of the uncertain nature of the disease, one cannot predict how long a person will live with multiple myeloma. Some people have long remissions. Others do not respond to treatment. But with improved chemotherapy being developed, the number of people who achieve remissions and the length of remissions are increasing.

For more information on any cancer-related subject call the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER or write to the CIS, McDowell Cancer Network, 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, KY 40536. The call, the information and all materials are free of charge.

All six Women's Clubs of Floyd county are participating in this project. The meeting ended with the annual Christmas bazaar, proceeds from which will go to the KFGW's Veterans' project, and Operation Santa Claus. The club decided to send a donation to the Care Fund. Several members will be attending a Miss Kentucky workshop in Louisville, December 7.

'The Works' Makeover at Haircuts by Holly

'Just a little.'
Rita loves long hair. She's been wearing hers long and natural for years. (See first photo.)

Rita brings her littl' girl to my shop regularly for a cut 'n style. Every time she comes in I say, "Rita, you need a trim." She always answered, "No way! I like it long!"

Finally, a few weeks ago, she agreed to let me trim "just a little." Her hair is basically healthy, but the ends were thin and scraggly from years of neglect. And since it was all the same length, the weight pulled it down flat around her face.

'You can look so much better . . .'
I trimmed six inches from the bottom and lightly layered the ends so it would look fuller and curl softly. Rita was happy with her trim (see second photo), but I wasn't. "You can look so much better if you'll let me do more," I pleaded. "You need a more stylish cut. A perm. You need 'The Works!'"

A week later, Rita agreed to a makeover. She wasn't as nervous as with her initial trim. "Do whatever I need," she said. "Just don't cut it short."

'Why did I wait so long?'
First we gave her a loose-curl perm. Then layered her hair all over to remove bulk and chipped wispy bangs for a softening effect. Now Rita's hair is stylish, youthful and easy to care for. But most importantly, it works for her to show how pretty she really is.

We completed Rita's makeover with a Makeup Color Analysis followed by the application of gentle, allergy-tested *REDKEN makeup. Then we introduced Rita to her new look.

"Is that me?" she squealed. "I love it!" Our whole staff breathed a collective sigh of relief to hear that she liked her new look as well as we did. And we were especially glad to hear that her only complaint was, "Why did I wait so long?"

What are you waiting for?
At Haircuts by Holly we want you to like the way you look. Call for an appointment or just come in. And bring the attached coupon to save 20% on "The Works" makeover. Hurry, offer ends December 18th!

McDowell Fields "Scholastic Challenge" Team

More than 117 Kentucky high schools will participate in the fourth season of "KET Scholastic Challenge," the academic game show which tests students' proficiency in English, history, math, and science. On Sunday, December 1, at 1:00 p.m. on KET, six Kentucky teams, including one from McDowell, will compete in this "varsity sport of the mind." KET developed this program four years ago to help promote interest in education in Kentucky. Sally Jackson, producer of "KET Scholastic Challenge," says, "It is long overdue that academic achievement in our high schools be recognized. Kentuckians should be proud of their youth, and KET is proud to bring their academic excellence to the attention of our viewers across the state."

Each hour-long program consists of two games, with three high school teams competing per game. Each game will have five rounds of questions, one of which is centered entirely on Kentucky. Questions about Kentucky were written by Dr. Richard Smith, and questions for the other rounds were provided by Altman Productions, who has developed questions for similar broadcasts in the Washington, D.C., area for 25 years.

This year's host is Bill Myers, a veteran broadcaster with 30 years of experience in the Cincinnati area, including positions as anchor man and weather forecaster. Additionally, Myers was a cast member of the syndicated "Bob Braun Show," hosted the Opening Day ceremonies of the Cincinnati Reds, and is currently co-anchor of the "Cincinnati Business Weekly" for public television station WCET.

The winning team in the championship will win $500, and the two runner-up teams will each receive $250. The money is donated by the Friends of KET and goes to the libraries of the winning schools.

The McDowell team (left to right) includes Lisa Scalf, daughter of Mrs. John A. Scalf, Beaver; Eric Lawson, son of Ted and Edna Lawson, Minnie; and Kevin Shelton, son of Clark and Alice Shelton, Drift. Standing are faculty advisor Willie Elliott; alternates Steve Jones, son of Jimmy and Sue Jones, of McDowell; Georgeann Parsons, daughter of George and Shirley Parsons, of Drift; and Fred Luxmore, son of John and Aileen Luxmore, of Hi Hat; and host Bill Myers.

2 Floyd Parks Receive Grants

Governor Martha Layne Collins has announced that Floyd county will receive two Land and Water Conservation Fund grants totalling $15,751 for the Left Beaver District Park and the Mud Creek Mini Park. Floyd did not receive grants in the original funding selection process because of the demand made upon the state's limited annual parks and recreation appropriation from the National Park Service.

Governor Collins said, "The competition for LWCF dollars was fierce during the initial preapplication process, and many projects, such as these, could not be funded. When the additional funds became available, it was difficult, once again, to choose from among the many exceptional park project proposals we received from all over the Commonwealth."

The additional LWCF funds were made available upon the withdrawal of several initially funded projects and through previous underruns in project developments.

The Land and Water Conservation Fund is a program of the National Park Service administered in Kentucky by the Department of Local Government.

Bacterial meningitis, the inflammation of the membranes covering the brain and spinal cord, affects up to 20,000 children under age five each year. It can cause hearing impairment, paralysis, seizures, mental retardation and death. The HIB bacteria is the leading cause of meningitis. The new vaccine is strongly recommended for those children 18 months or older who are at higher risk such as those attending day-care centers. Single-injection immunization doses of the vaccine will be distributed through pediatricians and family-practice physicians.

Exaggerated discount claims are always suspect. Deep discounts, when frequently offered by a store, may not be discounts at all. You should question the higher price which is often described as the "regular," "former," "compare at," or other comparative price. Is that discounted price one at which the item actually sold? Honor Charter Retired Teachers

Wednesday, Nov. 13 was Retired Teachers' Day, and members of the Floyd County Retired Teachers' Association celebrated the occasion by honoring the founders of the local organization: Mesdames May K. Roberts, Norma S. Stepp, Minnie Grace Sutherland, Grace Conley, Margaret Collins, Josephine Stanley Hill, Opal S. May, Lucy Regan, Misses Alice Harris and Josephine Spradlin, Mr. Carmel Akers, and the late Mrs. Martha Harris Allen, at May Lodge. The highlight of the celebration was when Miss Ruby Akers, vice-president of F.C.R.T., commissioned 11 of these charter members as Kentucky Colonels, and presented a white flower in memory of Mrs. Allen to be placed in the sanctuary of the First United Methodist Church. Mrs. Jennifer Martin, representing the Floyd County Board of Education, made pictures of the group, and Mrs. Janice Sword, news director of the Pikeville branch of the WYMT-TV, and her assistant, of Hazard, made films which were shown during this station's 6 o'clock program that day.

Pictured are 10 of the 12 charter members of the Floyd County Retired Teachers' Association, which was organized on April 9, 1971. Miss Ruby Akers, first vice-president of F.C.R.T., on behalf of Gov. Martha Layne Collins, commissioned each of them a Kentucky Colonel for their services and accomplishments in the education of the youth of Floyd county. They were commissioned during the celebration of Retired Teachers' Day at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, Nov. 13. From left, front row, are Miss Ruby Akers, Mesdames Josephine Stanley Hill, May K. Roberts, Minnie Grace Sutherland, and Miss Josephine Spradlin; second row, Carmel Akers, Mesdames Grace Conley and Margaret Collins, Miss Alice Harris and Mesdames Opal S. May, Norma S. Stepp and Danese Amburgey, who now serves as president of the F.C.R.T. Mrs. Lucy Regan, a charter member, was not present.

Presiding at the meeting was Mrs. Danese Amburgey, president. Miss Elizabeth Frazier and members of her Prestonsburg Elementary School chorus rendered a musical program. Mrs. Judy Caldwell, of the Bank Josephine, discussed "direct deposits." Mrs. Dolly Gillahan, of Ledbetter, Ky., spoke on "The Challenge of Retirement," and Mrs. Eloise Jagers, of Princeton, Ky., gave a comical discussion, contrasting "the old with the new." Following the dinner, a door-prize was awarded to Mrs. Norma S. Stepp. Attending were honored guests, Norma S. Stepp, May K. Roberts, Minnie Grace Sutherland, Alice Harris, Grace Conley, Margaret Collins, Josephine Stanley Hill, Opal S. May, Josephine Spradlin, and Carmel Akers, and officers, other members, and guests, Dolly Gillihan, of Ledbetter; Eloise Jagers, of Princeton, Lenore Gullett, of Paintsville, of Lexington; Oriole Maggard, of Lexington; Danese Amburgey, Ruby Akers, Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Haywood, Sarah Laven, Rhoda Prater, Beatrice Collins, Ann Tackett, Ethel Ratliff, Shirley Vanderpool, Mr. and Mrs. Woodrow Allen, Nora Lou Jones, Mr. and Mrs. Lonzo Lafferty, Ann Ford, Pearl Smith, Mr. and Mrs. Elmer Martin, Imogene Caldwell, Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Lowe, Bessie Conley, Mr. and Mrs. Harmison Hale, Goldia Williams, Mildred Salisbury, Verbal Meeks, Anna May Mellon, Minerva Cooley, Ruth Worland, Alice Martin, Linda Stephens, Elsie Mae Stephens, Roszella Lewis, Judy Curnutte, and Carolyn Warrick.

CANCER INFORMATION SERVICE
1-800-4-CANCER
CANCER HOPELINE

Q. I am caring for my mother who is a cancer patient at home. She has begun to have some pain which her doctor is treating with aspirin. He said if it got worse he would prescribe a narcotic for her. I'm afraid if she starts taking narcotics she will become addicted. Is this possible?

A. Addiction is a common fear for patients and their families when narcotics are prescribed for pain relief. But drug addiction in a patient with cancer rarely occurs as long as the drugs are taken under proper medical guidance.

Unfortunately the term "addiction" is often used in the wrong way. Narcotic addiction most often is defined as a dependence on the constant use of narcotics to meet physical, emotional, and psychological needs rather than for medical needs. If pain relief is the reason for taking narcotics, a patient is not an "addict" no matter how much or how often the drug is given.

Nonprescription pain relievers such as aspirin may be all that are needed to relieve your mother's pain. When these pain medicines do not bring relief, a mixture of non-narcotic drugs, such as aspirin plus a tranquilizer, is often helpful. Yet, narcotics may be the only way to relieve pain.

For more information on the relief of cancer pain call the Cancer Information Service, 1-800-4-CANCER, and ask for the Fact Sheet on the Control of Cancer Pain. Or write to the Cancer Information Service, McDowell Cancer Network, 915 South Limestone Street, Lexington, KY 40536. The call, the information and all materials are free of charge.

VIDEO SCENE

Video-wrestling connection could be falling apart

By Barton Weiss

Professional wrestlers recently got together and made "Land of a Thousand Dances?" A peaceful spirit rivaling that of USA for Africa's "We Are the World" pervades most of the clip, but there's no way that peace and brotherhood are going to triumph in the end of this clip. Someone throws a tom-tom drum on a wrestler's head, and the clip concludes in a free-for-all.

Hulk Hogan

The much-heralded mixture of wrestling's comic-book action with the hyperkinetic spirit of music videos doesn't work nearly as well as many observers had predicted. In fact, this could be the beginning of the end of the Cyndi Lauper-Hulk Hogan video-wrestling connection.

Movies to video

But the movie-video connection is still going strong.

There are three new movie-video entries, the least successful of which is "Sweet Dreams," which features Jessica Lange's lip-syncing to Patsy Cline's music. A mish-mash of shots from the movie are thrown together in no particular order, and the result is three minutes of confusion.

In "Remo's Theme" (from "Remo Williams," of course), Tommy Shaw took some real chances. The video centers around Shaw's performance, with a few clips from the film thrown in. The video is shot around the most famous construction site in the world — that surrounding the soon-to-be-refurbished Statue of Liberty — and Shaw and his band present the song as if it were part of a climactic scene from a Hitchcock film.

Wang Chung's video for "To Live and Die in L.A." goes the this-is-how-we-record-the-song-when-we-make-a-soundtrack route that Stan Ridgway explored in "Don't Box Me In" from "Rumble Fish." It's well done, though.

Real big money

Rush must have been thinking about the cost of the video when it named its recent single "Big Money." The three-dimensional animation and Monopoly-board set (complete with those little houses) cost a pretty penny. But spending more doesn't necessarily mean that more shows up on screen.

Members of Rush play their instruments well, but the overall tone is cold, perhaps because the animated shots of the city are all of buildings, not of people.

Britain's Treasure Houses To Premiere On KET

"Treasure House of Britain" offers an unprecedented view of some of Great Britain's most magnificent country homes from the 15th through 19th centuries. The three-part documentary series, hosted by historian/writer/broadcaster John Julius Norwich, premieres on KET Sunday, December 22, at 8:00 p.m. (ET), 7:00 p.m. (CT).

The age of the great treasure houses began in the early 16th century. King Henry VIII's dissolution of the monasteries created a new world of opportunity for the rich and powerful by providing an extensive land market for new as well as old families to build not merely castles, but palaces.

The programs explore the extraordinary collections of tapestries, china, furniture, paintings, and statuary accumulated over the past 500 years in these great houses. "Treasure Houses of Britain" also examines the lifestyles of the owners and shows how the houses still form a focal point for many English country pursuits. Lord Norwich talks with some of the present owners, who share stories of their ancestors and discuss some of the monumental problems of maintaining the houses in the 20th century.

Among the houses to be explored from the 16th and 17th centuries are Hardwick Hall, Burghley House, Wilton House, and Chatsworth. The 18th century treasure houses include Houghton Hall, Bouthton House, Drumlanrig Castle, Bowhill, West Wycombe, and Syon House. The third program travels to the great 19th century houses, such as Belvoir Castle, Wightwick Manor, Lindisfarne Castle, and Haddon Hall.

All America is catching 'Refrigerator' fever

By Marty Linehan

The best thing to happen to the National Football League — in a season that has been plagued with too many field goals and too many disputed officials' calls — is a 308-pound Refrigerator.

The Chicago Bears' William Perry, nicknamed "The Refrigerator" in his days at Clemson because of his size, might even make fans forget that Sundays filled with nothing but pro football used to get a bit monotonous.

The Bears' defensive right tackle has stolen the fans' hearts by going on offense, blocking for hard-running Walter Payton, taking the ball himself to score in a short-yardage situation, and scoring again as a not-so-sveltd pass receiver.

He's the toast of that toddlin' town — and the rest of the country, too.

Now the world outside football has discovered Perry, and the rookie who signed a four-year $1.35 million contract, which stipulates that he maintain weight limits, stands to make even more doing commercials.

Perry is more than receptive. "I'll endorse anything that's going to make money," he says. "But it will have to be something sensible."

Naturally the kitchen appliance boys are at the front of the line. They want to put a Whirlpool or General Electric brand on this Refrigerator. And Coca-Cola and McDonalds are vying to fill it. There's even a firm making thermal underwear (Watch out, Jim Palmer!) and a company that makes a seat-food-tray combination for football games going after his endorsement.

Naturally, there's a poster (for large-size walls, no doubt), a toy company with a Perry robot, and a recording about the 22-year-old linesman that has been blasting out of radios in Chicago.

It's called "Perry Across His Jersey" and is based on the old Gerry and the Pacemakers hit "Ferry 'Cross the Mersey."

"Refrigeratormania" is catching. A few weeks after Perry's pass reception, the New York Jets tried to use two of their defensive linemen blocking for runner Freeman McNeil. They were called a "refrigerator-freezer combination" — but the play failed.

Not every team can have a real refrigerator.

Mobile Clinic Ends Work

Use of this van for a mobile health clinic has been discontinued.

Our Lady of the Way Hospital's mobile health clinic was discontinued December 1.

The decision was first announced by Sister Pat Saul, associate administrator, in a memo to employees dated November 22. According to the memo, the Mobile Health Program was reviewed by both Our Lady of the Way Hospital's board of directors and the Kentucky Department of Human Resources.

"It was determined by both our board and state of Kentucky," wrote Sister Pat, "that this program, while good in concept, has not proven to be effective." Both in the memo and in person, she was quick to qualify the word, "effective."

"The staff has been effective, given the parameters they had to work in," she said. "But quality of care was limited by the regulatory agencies of the state of Kentucky and the unavailability of physician coverage."

The regulatory agencies have conflicting policies on keeping medications aboard the clinic. In addition, the van itself is 20 years old and mechanical difficulties frequently disrupted services. Geography interfered with telephone service. Weather (such as ice and snow) cancelled service on various days and during the entire month of February.

Finances proved to be the clincher. From the start, grants had covered expenses that patients' income-based payments for service could not. An expected grant did not come through.

"The loss of that one grant created an additional financial burden to the hospital," explained Sister Pat, "and complicated the whole question of the mobile health program's validity."

"We gave it our best shot," she continued. "We attempted to provide an opportunity for holistic and preventive health care. We identified health care needs in some geographical areas. Our experience underscores the limitations placed on a nurse practitioner and the importance of cooperation among regulatory agencies."

The clinic's cases will be reviewed and patients with on-going needs will be referred to other health facilities.

The clinic's van was loaned to Our Lady of the Way Hospital by the state. It came to Martin in July, 1984. Extensive repairs were needed and health services were not offered until October, 1984. Patients were seen in David, Tram, Wayland, and Hueysville.

The van will remain at the hospital until Our Lady of the Way's equipment and supplies are dismantled. Then it will be returned to the state.

School Districts Sue State, Ask 'Efficient' Education

A lawsuit filed Nov. 20 in Franklin Circuit Court complains that Kentucky has not provided the "efficient" system of public education that the state constitution requires.

The suit, filed by a group of 66 local school districts banded together as the Council for Better Education, seeks a court order requiring state officials and the General Assembly to provide more money to local school districts.

Former Gov. Bert T. Combs, who represents the plaintiffs, said the suit, filed on behalf of all students in Kentucky, is not intended to punish richer school districts, but to help all districts.

"It is not the purpose of this suit to take money from one district and give to another," Combs said during an afternoon news conference in the Capitol. Section 183 of the Kentucky Constitution requires that the General Assembly, "by appropriate legislation, provide for an efficient system of common schools throughout the state."

The suit is intended to correct a longstanding imbalance in Kentucky between richer districts and poorer ones and also to force adequate funding of all schools, Combs said.

"The legislature for a great many years... has not corrected the situation and has not provided a system that complies with the constitution as we read it," Combs said. "In filing this lawsuit, we are not faulting anybody in particular, we are faulting everybody in general."

Defendants named in the suit are Gov. Martha Layne Collins, Superintendent Alice McDonald, Treasurer Frances Jones Mills, House Speaker Don Blandford, D-Philpot, and Senate President Pro Tem Joe Prather, D-Vine Grove.

Although the suit asks the court to order certain action and to continue monitoring the school system, Combs said it is not a request for the judicial branch to take over operation of the schools.

"I don't think the courts would go along with that," Combs said. "We are asking the courts to lay down some guidelines which will enable Kentucky to have a school system that the state shall have."

Financing for the lawsuit is coming from an assessment of 50 cents for each pupil in the 66 districts, which make up about one-third of the total in Kentucky. Many local school boards have elected to use state funds to pay for the lawsuit, and the attorney general's office said that was legal.

But State Supt. McDonald has threatened to sue local boards if they use state money to sue the state for more money.

Quality. It's as important in diamonds as in anything else you own.

spotlight on nutrition

What causes us to grow old? What makes our human machinery break down? More importantly, what can we do to delay that process? Can such things as vitamin E supplements really help?

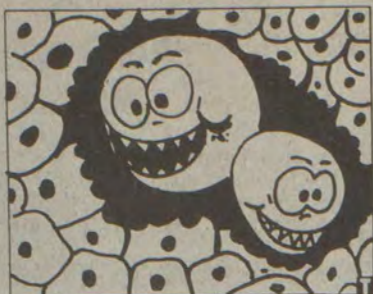

We're learning that a "normal" life span actually may be greater than 100 years, even though life expectancy in the U.S. now falls some 30 years short of that.

Research has shown that some aging processes are hereditary and others involve special aging mechanisms within certain body organs. We can't change those factors. But, there are other things happening to the cells in our bodies that can and need to be controlled.

Our bodies consist of trillions of cells. New ones are created and old ones die every second. When we are young, more cells are created than die, and we grow. Somewhere during our twenties, we reach a balance in the cellular life and death cycle. Then, during our thirties, the scale begins to tip, and more cells die than are created; we begin the aging process.

While some cells just grow old, many others are damaged by very powerful chemical substances called free radicals which naturally occur in our bodies or are the result of pollutants we consume from air, water or food.

Some free radicals, when under control, are part of essential life processes. But, frequently they go out of control. They crash around inside cells, attacking other vital cell components. This can weaken or even kill cells, contributing to the aging process.

Free radicals must be controlled or neutralized. Taking vitamin supplements of natural-source vitamin E, in conjunction with vitamin C and the enzymes in our bodies, works to neutralize free radicals basically by trapping them in the cell and minimizing cell damage.

Scientific studies have shown that controlling free radicals not only slows the aging process but leads to a healthier, more productive life.

In addition to daily natural-source vitamin E supplementation, to have the greatest impact on delaying aging we should moderate calorie intake; take daily supplements of vitamin C; exercise regularly and maintain a positive emotional outlook.

Bereaved Need Support During Holiday Season

(From the Hospice of Big Sandy, Inc. Newsletter)

The holiday season is upon us. For some of us it is a time of unbounded joy. But for those families who have experienced a loss within the year, these days can be a time of great sorrow and increased feelings of loss and grief. It becomes especially important during the holidays for caring family and friends to offer support and help to get through these days. For many families, the sense of loss does not abate even with the passage of many years. For these people, the support of friends is just as important as for those who have experienced a recent death in the family.

Friends can help most during these times by being sensitive to the reality that, for these families, the holidays bring many memories and feelings of unrelieved loss. Allow those persons to express their feelings and even encourage them to express themselves if they are reluctant. The greatest eases of stress and grief is to talk about your feelings.

If you know someone who has experienced a death in the recent past, try to include him or her in some of your more gentle plans: attending church services, a quiet meal, visiting sick friends. Often activities that take the grieving person outside of his or her own problems can be a great healer.

The most important thing to remember is to offer your friendship and love in the same manner you would have done before the death. People need the love and support of friends at this time, perhaps more than at any other.

Wright-DeRossett

Age Should Be Talled By Abilities, Not Years

By MARY JULIA PACE

"George Bernard Shaw was 94 when one of his plays was first produced. Mozart was just 7 when his first composition was published. Benjamin Franklin was a newspaper columnist at 16, and a framer of the U.S. Constitution when he was 81. You're never too young or too old if you've got the talent." So reads a newspaper ad for United Technologies.

It's typical of a public relations trend aimed at gaining the respect of older Americans.

Corporations and government agencies are beginning to recognize the rights and power wielded by the 27 million Americans over age 65. The elderly are becoming an influential special interest group with supporters ranging from social workers to scientists who believe age and ability have little in common.

One of those supporters is Dr. Calvin Lang, a University of Louisville biochemist and gerontologist who has studied the aging process for 35 years. As director of the Louisville Longitudinal Longevity Program—a multidisciplinary project identifying and quantifying the unique factors of a healthy, long life—Lang believes a person's health, not age, determines abilities.

"People ask, 'How old are you?' We answer them the wrong way by giving the years since we were born. Shouldn't we answer according to our functional age?" he said.

Finding out why some older people are healthier than others is a question repeatedly asked by Lang's associates in the Aging Research Laboratory. About six years ago, they found a clue to the puzzle through studies of old mosquitos, mice and men. All were deficient in glutathione, a chemical present in all living things. It was the first time old age was linked to the decline of a specific chemical.

Lang describes glutathione as a "master chemical regulator" essential for tissue growth and repair and enzyme and protein functions. It also plays a vital role in the body's defenses against toxic substances, he said.

But what causes the level of glutathione to decrease with aging puzzled Lang and his associates, who found a partial answer in experiments with mosquitos. When one of glutathione's building blocks—an amino acid called cysteine—was fed to an aging mosquito, its life span grew by 40 percent. This indicated that the insect still had the biological capability to produce the chemical regardless of age, and also proved the importance of glutathione to aging.

Another study found that, while all old mosquitos and mice tested had low glutathione levels, the amount of the chemical varied in a group of men and women 60 years old and older. About half of them had the same glutathione levels as 20-year-old adults, while the other half had low levels.

Puzzled by this difference, researchers wondered whether a person's genetic and environmental background might influence his glutathione level.

"Those high-level subjects who have the same glutathione level as a 20-year-old are healthy, but eventually will also have a drop in level and an increased risk of illness, like the low-level subjects," Lang noted.

The longitudinal longevity program Lang directs may prove this hypothesis by studying a group of 58 healthy women between the ages of 60 and 102, all of whom have high glutathione levels. For three years, these participants have been examined for a wide variety of physical and psychosocial health characteristics.

The researchers hope to identify the physical, mental and social factors that result in longevity. Their eventual goal is to develop a numerical longevity index that would measure changes in those factors as someone ages. Monitoring the changes should allow those who care for the elderly to develop individualized programs for healthy, long lives.

The bottom line, Lang said, is that health—not age—is the most important consideration. "If you are healthy, it doesn't matter how old you are; and if you are not healthy, it doesn't matter either."

Security lighting makes everyone sleep better.

When you were a child, you may have gone to sleep with a night light in your room. The same feeling of security and peace of mind can come from a security light in your backyard or driveway.

A security light makes things brighter and safer for everyone. Its light can illuminate nearly a quarter acre. No doubt about it, that's a lot of light. But since a security light uses a special lamp that's energy efficient, it doesn't use much electricity.

And a security light is completely automatic. The light comes on when it gets dark. In the morning, the light automatically turns off. We will install and maintain your security light. All you pay is a small monthly fee added to your electric bill.

Keep the dark away from your door. Find out more about security lighting by calling us today.

Astrological Forecast..

ARIES (Mar. 21-Apr. 21)—Venus in your sector of religion is very appropriate for this time of year. This is an excellent time to increase your understanding of life. You might find knowledge at a spiritual or occult function this weekend. Decide which is the more important, your job or your marriage, and do a good job with at least one.

TAURUS (Apr. 22-May 22)—Saturn has entered your sector of knowledge and you can learn what life is about. Venus has moved into your sector of passion but things are going to get off to a slow start. Get together with a Libra and organize a charity or Christmas benefit of some sort. Approach the boss with your ideas, you'll find out quickly if they are any good.

GEMINI (May 23-June 21)—An impromptu party may turn your home upside down. Saturn will be in your partnership sector for the next two years and you will have to come to grips with all problems. This is a good time to consider the meaning of your life. Be careful when someone asks for a favor over the weekend, it may be just a ruse to get you to do their work.

CANCER (June 22-July 20)—Good period for your health and if you'll watch your diet, it can even get better. You will either be collecting for or giving to some worthy cause. Watch for a visit from a neighbor who wants to be more than just neighborly. Stock up on party supplies, you may need them on short notice.

LEO (July 21-Aug. 20)—You will be socializing with neighbors, relatives, anyone willing to listen to you. Plan something special and restore the romance to your relationship. Go all out on Christmas decorating and do the things you've always wanted to do. Plan a trip for the children this weekend, you're nothing but a big-kid yourself and will enjoy it.

VIRGO (Aug. 21-Sept. 22)—Expect unusual activities surrounding the home and take them with a grain-of-salt. It's time for a new wardrobe, take the time to select carefully and find the best buys. Think of your career as a partnership between you and the boss and you'll get along better. The opportunity to do something for your community will come up this weekend.

LIBRA (Sept. 23-Oct. 25)—Be extra careful while driving or you could "collect" a "nice" fine. A clandestine love affair is enticing but will be over before it begins. You are so expansive and optimistic you will go over-board on everything—it should be fun if you can afford it. Visit sisters or cousins over the weekend, it could give you a new lease on life.

SCORPIO (Oct. 26-Nov. 23)—Things won't go your way with Mercury retrograde; plan, but don't act until it turns direct. If you are asked to get involved with a charity project, accept. The raise or promotion you didn't get before is possible now so "toot your horn"! Unusual and exciting guests will be dropping in on you and you won't mind the inconvenience.

SAGITTARIUS (Nov. 24-Dec. 21)—Career dreams are being emphasized and your goals may be evolving toward unselfish areas. A difficult social obligation will get you great exposure. Be prepared to act quickly when an exciting romance sprouts or someone else will "harvest it". An unexpected event could catch you in the wrong place at the wrong time.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 17)—You are very unrealistic, except in money matters, and will have to fight to keep your feet on the ground. Take a look at what you expect to get out of life, are you headed in the right direction? Volunteer to work on plans for a civic function, it will mean "money in the bank". Make a generous donation to your church this weekend, you can afford it.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 18-Feb. 16) — Personal aspirations are not very realistic, especially when it comes to friends and associates. Plan a wild weekend with the loved one—one to remember. If you're looking to begin a new life, you can do it now in the twinkling of an eye. Enlist the help of a Libra for a weekend project and it will turn out much more creative.

PISCES (Feb. 17-Mar. 20)—You are very idealistic now and willing to work instead of just talking—very unusual! A long and difficult assignment can result in the break you've been looking for. Saturn will be in your career sector for the next two years, turn over a new leaf and become more diplomatic. A love affair can be born today, but you probably won't be able to decide if it's for real.

Correction

In the announcement in last week's Times that Jenny Morrison was the winner of the Prestonsburg Elementary School's Fall Festival princess contest, the name of Miss Morrison's paternal grandmother, Mrs. Beverly Carter, of Prestonsburg, was inadvertently omitted.

Moore, Hicks To Wed, Dec. 14

Mr. and Mrs. Curtis Moore, of Garrett, announce the engagement and forthcoming wedding of their daughter, Teresa Renee, to Stephen Jeffery Hicks, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clark Shelton, of Drift, Kentucky.

The bride-elect is a 1978 graduate of J.H. Allen Central High School and 1983 graduate of Morehead State University School of Medical Technology. She is presently employed by Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Martin, Ky.

It's Safe To Give Blood

This past year, we have all heard or read about AIDS (Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome) and related issues frequently. Central Kentucky Blood Center wants to clear up some apparent confusion about one related issue.

The related issue is the safety of donating blood. You can't get AIDS or any other infectious disease from donating blood. All materials used are sterile, used one time for one donor, then discarded and destroyed.

Last year one of ten patients hospitalized in Kentucky received a blood transfusion. The only source is the volunteer donor. At least 170 donors are needed daily to keep the lifeline flowing. For more information about donating, call Central Kentucky Blood Center, toll-free at 1-800-432-9528.

GUESTS AT STANVILLE

Mrs. Edith James and Mrs. Norah Scalf had Thanksgiving dinner with Mr. and Mrs. Julian Scalf and family at their home at Stanville.

CHRISTMAS PARTY SET

John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution will have its annual Christmas party next Tuesday, at 3:30 p.m., at the Highland Terrace. The program leader will be Mrs. Edith F. James. The regent, Mrs. Frances Brackett, urges all members to attend, and asks that they bring their favorite Christmas refreshments.

PCC Chorus Presents "Messiah," Sunday

The Prestonsburg Community chorus will present "Messiah" Sunday, December 8, 3:00 p.m., in the Pike Auditorium at Prestonsburg Community College.

Soloists for the performance will be Chip Dorton, tenor; Rev. Tim Jessen, bass; Dee Dee Callis, soprano; Elma Jessen, soprano; Vicki Paek, contralto. Mary Grace Garland will accompany the chorus and soloists. The performance will be under the direction of Gus Kalos, head of the music department at Prestonsburg Community College.

"Messiah" was completed by Handel during the twenty-four days between August 22 and September 14, 1741. After a rehearsal on April 8, 1742, it was performed for the first time at a charity concert held at Dublin on April 13. Approximately a year later, it was heard in London on March 23, 1743 but since that time has probably had more performances than any masterwork in the history of music.

The public is invited to attend the program.

How many are visually impaired due to an eye injury? Nearly one million Americans.

If we stop to analyze what kills many trees, young and old, in our landscapes, more often than not it isn't a disease or an insect directly, but rather something that changed in the tree's environment. While summer droughts have been a major cause or contributor for the past few years, there is a perennial killer that can be controlled or changed. What is it? Constructionitis!

When new houses are built on wooded lots, new sidewalks or driveways added to existing properties, or underground utilities installed or repaired, too little attention is paid to the impact of construction activities on trees, or more specifically, on tree roots. Attention is often an afterthought that occurs when tree limbs begin to drop or leaves to wilt. By that time common rescue efforts such as corrective pruning, fertilization and supplemental watering are generally a waste of time and money.

Everyone involved with construction projects needs to work together and to realize that root protection is the key to preserving trees. Soil compaction, trenching, adding or removing topsoil, stripping vegetative covers and leaf litter, shifting drainage patterns, spilling chemicals, burying debris—any of these construction activities can have a lethal effect. The fine feeder roots in the top foot of soil that absorb the tree's water and nutrient supply and keep the tree alive must have their environment altered as little as possible.

If a building is going to be constructed in a wooded area, realize that not all of the trees can or should be saved. A survey of the existing trees should be made, saving valuable species (oaks, red and sugar maples) and removing weak (box elders, swamp maples, Siberian elms) and messy trees (mulberries, black cherries). Young trees should be saved as opposed to old trees, especially those already showing decline. In the long run it is often easier and cheaper to remove all of the trees on and in the immediate vicinity of a building site, replanting new, vigorous, desirable species after construction.

Two relevant factors are often overlooked. First, there is often considerable root grafting between trees of the same species. In some cases a younger, more vigorous tree may help support an older tree, and if the graft is broken, the old tree may quickly die.

Second, trees in a wooded environment have far more limited or restricted root systems due to competition from other trees than trees in large open areas. Altering their roots' environment can kill them faster because they have less sustaining them.

Whenever possible, when above or below ground construction must occur around trees, the trees should be individually or collectively fenced around. Fencing will keep equipment from compacting the soil, supplies from being piled against the trunk and soil from being stockpiled under them. If fencing is impossible, the trunks should be wrapped or protected to prevent wounds to the bark and wood.

When underground utilities are installed or repaired, digging a tunnel as opposed to digging a trench will greatly reduce root damage. And when new sidewalks and driveways are designed, if a tree is in the way, it is generally better to realign the entire walk or drive, or to cut the tree down, than to bend the walk or drive around the tree. Too often the tree will not survive the construction and in future years the walk or drive will only bend around an unsightly stump.

When valuable trees may be damaged or killed by construction, protect yourself. Take photographs of the trees and have them professionally appraised. Get a written agreement from the contractor with regard to measures to take to protect your trees. Trees are too environmentally and aesthetically important to be treated with disregard.

"Sweet 16" Will Showcase Scholastic Prowess, Also

When Kentucky's top high school scholars come to Lexington the week of March 19-22 to compete for scholarships and recognition as state champions, it will mark the first time in the nation that championship scholastics and athletics have been showcased together.

Championship competitions in mathematics, journalism/advertising, art, computer science, English, music and speech are scheduled in various locations in Lexington at the same time the nation's foremost high school basketball tournament, "The Sweet Sixteen", is being played in Rupp Arena.

The scholastic competition, termed "The Sweet 16 Academic Showcase", was developed by a task force appointed and headed by Lexington Mayor Scotty Baesler. Its purpose is to attract the same level of national recognition for Kentucky's high school scholars as has been directed to the State's high school athletes by the Sweet Sixteen.

"We believe it is the first time in the nation that scholastic and athletic competitions have been held at the same time, in the same community, under the same name and general rules, at least on this large a scale," Baesler observed.

Packets explaining the competition and containing entry information were sent to all high school principals and superintendents in October. Entry deadline was December 2.

A two hour, prime-time Academic/Athletic Auction is scheduled to be telecast January 7, by WKYT, WTVQ, WLEX and WYMT, to allow further participation in the sponsorship of the event and to publicize it. The program should be received in considerably more than half the state, counting cable systems that carry the Lexington channels.

Regional playoffs are scheduled January 18 and February 15 at Western Kentucky University in Bowling Green; January 25 and February 22 at Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond; February 1 and March 1 at Morehead State University; and February 8 and March 8 at Bellarmine College in Louisville.

An Awards Luncheon is scheduled March 22 for all state finalists.

Major sponsors include Ashland Oil Co., the Marriott Corporation, the Bank of Lexington, Jerrico and Wright Enterprises.

"A Christmas Carol" Presented by MCA

"Bah! Humbug!" These famous words of Ebenezer Scrooge come to life in A Christmas Carol, a junior class production at Mountain Christian Academy in Martin. The forthcoming production, directed by Dorothy Howard, the speech and drama instructor, will have two showings on Saturday, December 7. One show will begin at 2 p.m. and the evening show will begin at 7 p.m.

AMERICA

When Jesus looked over Jerusalem,
He wept over the city that day.
I wonder if He is looking at America,
And weeping the very same way.

America was founded on the principle
God was to be her salvation.
Her freedom was bought by martyrs,
And she became a mighty nation.

But, America has changed through the countless ages,
Like a precious book that's lost most of her
pages.

By changing her laws we've torn her apart,
We need to go back to the very start.

Give the unborn babies a chance to survive,
Instead of keeping the harden criminals alive.
Quit fooling ourselves that everything is fine,
When millions are on drugs, that's destroying their minds.

Sex perversion is growing in this country
today,
A sin that brings on a moral decay.
They blaspheme Jesus, God's only Son,
When they destroy our youth, they think they have won.

If we wash our eyes with tear drops,
Then maybe we could see,
How America is being drenched in sin,
From sea to shining sea.

We need better standards and more strict rules,
Put God back in the churches, and prayer
in the schools.
Raise Old Glory so high the whole world can see,
What America means to you and me.

AL-ANON IS IT FOR YOU?

Millions of people are affected by the excessive drinking of someone close. The following twenty questions are designed to help you decide whether or not you need Al-Anon:

1. Do you worry about how much someone else drinks?
2. Do you have money problems because of someone else's drinking?
3. Do you tell lies to cover up for someone else's drinking?
4. Do you feel that if the drinker loved you, he or she would stop drinking to please you?
5. Do you think that the drinker's behavior is caused by his or her companions?
6. Are routines frequently upset or meals delayed because of the drinker?
7. Do you make threats, such as, "If you don't stop drinking, I'll leave you"?
8. When you kiss the drinker hello, do you secretly try to smell his or her breath?
9. Are you afraid to upset someone for fear it will set off a drinking bout?
10. Have you been hurt or embarrassed by a drinker's behavior?
11. Does it seem as if every holiday is spoiled because of drinking?
12. Have you considered calling the police for help in fear of abuse?
13. Do you find yourself searching for hidden liquor?
14. Do you often ride in a car with a driver who has been drinking?
15. Have you refused social invitations out of fear or anxiety?
16. Do you sometimes feel like a failure when you think of the lengths you have gone to control the drinker?
17. Do you think that if the drinker stopped drinking, your other problems would be solved?
18. Do you ever threaten to hurt yourself to scare the drinker?
19. Do you feel angry, confused and depressed most of the time?
20. Do you feel there is no one who understands your problems?

If you have answered yes to three or more of these questions, Al-Anon or Alateen may help. You can contact Al-Anon or Alateen by calling 886-2893.

About Your... Social Security

By JIM KELLY
Social Security District Director
For the Big Sandy Area

Social Security checks will have a new look on December 3, Jim Kelly, District Director for the Big Sandy Area Social Security office in Prestonsburg, said today.

The familiar green punched-card checks that Social Security beneficiaries have been receiving since 1940 will be replaced with a new, more counterfeit-resistant cost-effective paper check.

The U.S. Department of Treasury's Financial Management Service, the government's financial manager, began planning the paper check conversion project in the late 1970's because of new technology and the need to conform to generally accepted banking practices. Taxpayers will save $6 million per year in costs of paper stock and storage space.

The new check is also more difficult to alter or counterfeit. More than a dozen security features—three times more than the old check—are contained in the design, the ink and the paper.

The design features a full-length reproduction of the Statue of Liberty on the left and a muted close-up of the Statue's head and torch on the right over a multicolored background ranging from light blue to pale peach. The letters "USA" create a background pattern on the front and back of the check.

Supplemental Security Income beneficiaries will continue to receive the gold-colored punched-card checks, Kelly said. The conversion process to the new checks will not affect them until April 1.

WHAT QUALITIES DO I LOOK FOR IN A FUNERAL DIRECTOR?

If you have been thinking about consulting a funeral director for the purpose of pre-planning a funeral or perhaps just getting answers to some questions, you may be baffled as to how to decide whom to consult.

Because of the nature of our business, funeral homes don't usually advertise in the same fashion as say an automobile dealership might. Therefore, it's a little harder for the inexperienced consumer to know whom to approach. We hope these little guidelines will be helpful to you in choosing a funeral director.

1. A funeral director should be a vibrant member of the community as well as a trustworthy businessman.
2. He should be sensitive to all of his clients' needs as individuals, recognizing the many intricate needs of those seeking his services.
3. He should stand ready to provide quality services on reasonable terms.
4. A funeral director should be willing to do everything in his power to make sure that your wishes are carried out implicitly.
5. His most important responsibility should be to see to the mental, physical and emotional well-being of you, your family and friends in the time of need.

At Hall Funeral Home, we try hard to live up to these standards. We welcome you to visit our facilities and we welcome your questions through this column.

Assistance Offered Paralyzed Veterans

Many of America's 28 million veterans may not be aware of all the benefits, services and entitlements available to them as a result of their military service to the United States, says Hershel Joseph, national service officer for the Paralyzed Veterans of America (PVA) in Louisville.

"We work with individual veterans—PVA members and non-members—and their dependents or survivors to process claims for medical care, VA outpatient care, home health care, educational benefits, compensation, home loans, and prosthetic devices," adds Mr. Joseph.

The Paralyzed Veterans of America's National Service Office is located at the Veterans Administration Regional Office building, 600 Federal Place Room 554D, Louisville, Ky. 40202.

PVA's Louisville Service Office is ready to serve all veterans, Joseph added. For more information, call (502) 582-5085.

Rare Plant, Mammal Habitat Protected

A 10-acre virgin forest in Franklin county that is home for rare plants and mammals is among 30 privately-owned areas in the state protected by Kentucky's Natural Areas Registry.

A wooded section of the Franklin farm of Hal and Joyce Bryan contains rock cress, a plant endemic to three Central Kentucky counties and found nowhere else in the world. Another rare spring wildflower called synandra hispidula and two rare mammals, the southeastern and smokey shrews, mole-like creatures, also inhabit the woods.

The Bryans volunteered to have the forest placed on the registry in hopes of allowing it to remain as the pioneers found it in the early 1800s.

The 30 natural areas placed on the Kentucky registry since the program began in 1976 contain 3,500 acres. Registration agreements have been completed in 24 of the state's 120 counties, according to Hugh Archer, director of the Kentucky Chapter of the Nature Conservancy.

Additional rare plant and animal species and areas in Kentucky protected by the registry include a prairie remnant in McCracken county, one of the few patches of the prairies that once covered most of Western Kentucky; the white lady's slipper orchid, most common in the bogs of Michigan but recently located in a dry cedar glade area in Kentucky; and a cave complex in Lee county which protects two endangered species of bats.

The registry is a cooperative effort between the Kentucky Nature Preserves Commission, attached to the Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet, and The Nature Conservancy, a private, non-profit, international conservation group.

Prestonsburg Shares In Downtown Funds

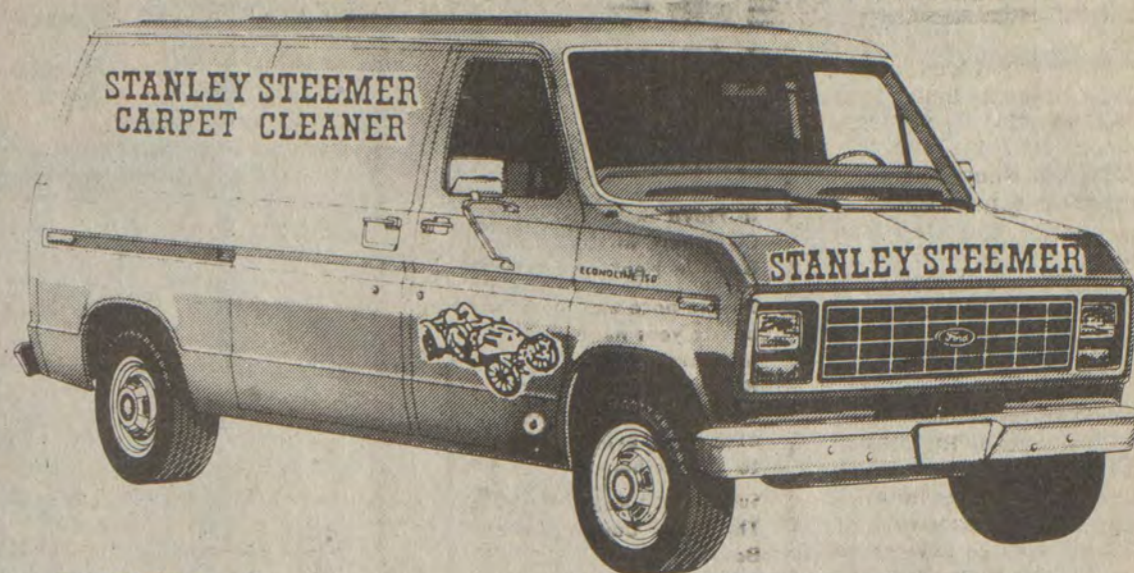

Nineteen Kentucky cities, including Prestonsburg, will receive grants totaling $167,500 from the Appalachian Regional Commission's Downtown Revitalization Program, Governor Martha Layne Collins announced recently. The grants are being awarded in response to applications from the cities for planning and technical assistance in downtown revitalization efforts.

In letters to the mayors of the recipient cities, the governor said their participation will involve the communities in a program designed to assist Kentucky's Appalachian cities to develop healthy central business districts, create jobs and enhance the quality of life.

Cities selected to receive these grants and the grant amounts are:

Prestonsburg and Paintsville, $5,000 each; Berea, $8,000; Irvine, Somerset, Flemingsburg and Vanceburg, $7,500 each; Wurtland, $9,500; Lancaster, Cumberland, Middlesboro, Ashland, Grayson, Greenup, Louisa, Morehead, Albany, Jamestown and Beattyville, $10,000 each.

KET FAMILY VIEWING for December

by Debbie Ward Baker

The holiday season brings with it magic, mystery, and a special aura. It is a time of family togetherness and unity. As we grow older, adults relive the spirit and magic of the season through the eyes of children.

With the approaching holiday season, many television presentations convey that magical element. In December, your local KET stations will offer a variety of holiday presentations, both traditional and new. Whatever the status of the programs offered, all promise enjoyment and pleasure for a variety of tastes.

The fantasy of the holiday season will be presented in "A Box of Delights." This two-hour "Wonderworks" special will air Saturday, Dec. 28, at 6 p.m. (ET), 5 p.m. (CT). It is repeated Sunday, Dec. 29, at 10:30 a.m. (ET), 9:30 a.m. (CT).

Coming home from boarding school for what he thinks will be an ordinary holiday vacation, schoolboy Kay Harker meets Old Cole Hawkins who gives him a Box of Delights for safekeeping while he confronts a villain.

With the magic box, Kay is taken on a series of mystical adventures.

"Wonderworks" presentations should be reserved family viewing each week. Many of the shows are based upon books and provide a catalyst for communication within families.

Communication with your child will be of the essence if you watch the "Wonderworks" presentation, "Bridge to Terabithia," which airs Saturday, Dec. 14, at 7 p.m. (ET), 6 p.m. (CT). It is repeated Sunday, Dec. 15, at 11 a.m. (ET), 10 a.m. (CT).

In an imaginary land called "Terabithia," two fifth-graders experience and share in an unending friendship and love which lasts longer than life itself. The friendship of Jesse Aarons and Leslie Burke changes Jesse forever and enables him to face an unexpected tragedy.

Your children will want, and need, to talk about "Bridge to Terabithia."

Several musical presentations will have appeal to both youth and adult family members. One such program is "The Glory of Christmas: A Louisville Bach Society Concert for Young People." The program airs Monday, Dec. 23, at 9 p.m. (ET), 8 p.m. (CT).

The story of the Nativity will be presented through classic choral music of Bach, Handel and Schütz, as well as familiar Christmas carols. Additionally, a popular account of the origins of some of our best-loved carols is given.

If you would like more information on any of these programs, please contact the Promotion Division at KET Network Center, 600 Cooper Drive, Lexington, KY 40502, or call (606) 233-3000.

Berea Top-Ranked In Magazine Poll

Berea College has been ranked first in its class of 168 Southern and border state colleges and universities by educators responding to a U.S. News & World Report poll.

According to the magazine's Nov. 25 edition, Berea was selected for the number one position among smaller comprehensive schools by college presidents asked to choose the top five undergraduate schools similar to their own in academic offerings and enrollment.

Presidents considered such factors as strength of curriculum, quality of teaching, faculty-student relationship, and atmosphere for learning.

The news magazine reported "Few schools have the clarity of mission that Berea College does," referring to Berea's no-tuition policy. The private Kentucky school accepts only students who cannot afford to attend other colleges. In lieu of paying tuition, each student works at least ten hours a week in a college department.

"America's undergraduate schools with the best reputations among college presidents are those that insist their students be educated broadly," U.S. News reported.

Nearly 60 percent of 1,318 presidents of four-year colleges and universities responded to the survey.

In the same category as Berea were William Jewell College in Liberty, Mo., which placed second and Berry College in Georgia, which ranked third.

A four-year college with an enrollment of 1,500 Berea offers the B.A. degree in some 24 areas of study. The B.S. degree is offered in agriculture, business, home economics, industrial arts and nursing.

It took Leonardo Da Vinci ten years to complete the Mona Lisa.

The BACKYARD NATURALIST

By Craig Tufts

Hummingbirds: Spoon-fed and Bedded

Suppose you want hummingbirds in your backyard but, for one reason or another, you can't provide the bright-colored flowers that best attract them. Must you go hummingbirdless the rest of your life? Not necessarily. In fact, many people confine their attempts to attract "hummers" by placing feeders around the yard.

Nutritionally, feeders are not ideal for hummingbirds, but, properly stocked and maintained, they can serve as good food supplements and the birds will visit them. If you opt for feeders, here are some tips:

part table sugar, heated only long enough to completely dissolve the sugar. You don't need to add red food coloring but be sure your feeder is, in part, red. Fill the feeder and store the remainder in the refrigerator in a clean glass or plastic container. A higher sugar concentration than four parts water to one part sugar can, in the long run, cause kidney or liver damage.

Feeder care: Feeders need cleaning every two or three days to prevent the solution from fermenting, thus possibly harming the hummingbirds. When you are on vacation and can't keep up with the cleaning service, take the feeder down.

Nesting Habitats

Hummingbirds nest in a variety of habitats throughout the U.S., many in the mountainous west or in deserts; others in deciduous or evergreen forests across southern Canada, and throughout the United States. To be a hummingbird host you might also consider their nesting needs.

A nesting box will not entice hummingbirds, but several moderate-sized evergreen or deciduous trees and shrubs in your yard may encourage the birds to nest there. They'll build in dense foliage, usually in the fork of a very small limb. They make their tiny, camouflaged nests of spider webs, hair, bits of lichen and other materials.

If you're lucky enough to get nesters, you can be sure to hold their attention with flowers and feeders—and perhaps a sprinkler or shallow pool for baths.

Feeders: Choose a red plastic feeder, since hummingbirds are strongly attracted to the color red. If you can't find a completely red feeder, look for one with lots of red on it. Failing that, dress the feeder in red—a bow or a sock; or hang a red hat or place a red bow nearby. Anything red will catch a hummingbird's eye. Make sure the feeder comes apart easily so that regular cleaning will be a simple process.

Placement of feeders: Hang a feeder where you can see it easily from a window or a deck, but don't place it so close to a window that the hummingbirds will fly at their own images reflected in the glass—a major cause of hummingbirds' deaths around homes.

Food: Start off with the standard solution of four parts of water to one

For more information about wildlife around your home, contact the National Wildlife Federation, Dept. BN, 1412 16th Street, N.W., Washington, D.C. 20036-2266.

Postal Service Advice For Holiday Mailing

Prestonsburg Postmaster Don Osborne has half a dozen "dos" and "don'ts" for customers who want to be sure their holiday parcels get delivered.

Don't box yourself in—use the right container. Boxes must be adequate in size for the items being mailed and provide enough space for cushioning material. They must also be strong enough to hold the weight of their contents. If the box has adequate space for an address (cross out confusing information), it is not necessary to wrap it in paper. If you use paper, however, be sure it is equivalent to the kind used in grocery bags (60-pound weight). Fiberboard tubes and similar long packages are acceptable if their length does not exceed 10 times their girth.

Give yourself some cushion. Cushioning absorbs and distributes shock and vibration. Examples of good cushioning materials are foamed plastics, corrugated cardboard and loose fill material such as polystyrene, popcorn or shredded newspaper. Loose fill material should completely cover the items being mailed.

Close parcels up right. Use tape, not string or rope, to close packages. Cellophane and masking tape should not be used. Pressure sensitive, filament-reinforced tape is recommended and should be wrapped around the parcel at least twice.

Addresses are important. You can spend a fortune on wrapping, but your package will never reach its destination if it is not addressed right. Print or type the address clearly on one side of the parcel only. It is also a good idea to put the name and address inside the package in case the address label comes off.

Don't mail your pet elephant. Packages must not exceed 70 pounds. They must also be at least 3 1/2 inches wide and 5 inches long, and total length and girth cannot exceed 108 inches.

Don't overinsure. If your parcel is valuable, you might want to insure it, but insure it only for its actual value. The Postal Service pays claims based on the actual value of lost or damaged items and not a higher insured amount.

NUMB ARMS, LEGS Warning Signals

There may be misalignment of vertebrae in the spine causing pressure on nerves, yet the patient experiences no pain in the back. Instead, a variety of sensations may be felt in other parts of the body. These include tingling, tightness, hot spots, cold spots, crawling sensations, electric shock sensations, stinging, burning, and others.

The following nine symptoms involving back pain or strange sensations are often the forerunners of more serious conditions. Any one of these may spell back trouble

- (1) Paresthesias (see above)
- (2) Headaches
- (3) Painful joints
- (4) Numbness in the arms or hands
- (5) Loss of sleep
- (6) Stiffness in the neck
- (7) Pain between the shoulders
- (8) Stiffness or pain in lower back
- (9) Numbness or pain in the legs.

These signals may indicate your body is being robbed of normal nerve function. Until this function is restored, you will, in some degree, be incapacitated. The longer you wait to seek help, the worse the condition will likely become. Don't wait! Should you experience any of these warning signals...call for in depth consultation in Layman's terms.

First of a Series... Child Abuse

A Parent's Fears

By ALICE ADAMS

Child abuse is a hidden menace that ruins thousands of lives and leaves invisible scars on the human spirit. It is not just physical, although physical abuse is often the most severe.

Abuse is also emotional—it can be as subtle as a parent's lack of interest. A father chooses to stay in bed Saturday instead of watching Danny play football. A mother is "too busy" to watch Debbie's school play. Emotional abuse can also be more direct: name calling, constant fault-finding, hinting that a child just doesn't measure up—all these lower self-confidence and hinder growth into maturity.

Statistics show that about ten percent of all parents abuse or neglect their children physically or sexually. Here in Eastern Kentucky figures are no higher, but only recently have we begun to combat the problem. We have set up "family abuse centers" in different areas, where wives and children can shelter, but these do not help the child who is abused by the mother or by both parents.

The best solution is to help the parent by improving parenting skills. A group is being formed in Prestonsburg for this purpose, Parents Anonymous. It is a self-help group in which parents support each other in learning to be more effective with their children.

Some day-to-day difficulties of parenting arise from natural fears. Parents often feel that children must be under their control at all times.

"Joey hates football; he wants to play volleyball instead. What a wimp game! Next it'll be ballet dancing!" says Ed. Ed has a choice here: he can either force Joey to play football or allow Joey to go his own way. But more is involved than a game.

If Ed looks at his deepest fears, he will see that values are involved. He is afraid Joey will not be a real man and that this will reflect on his own masculinity. Mothers have deep-seated fears too. If Jenny wears all that make-up, won't people wonder what kind of mother she has?

Women especially tend to have fears rooted in a basic lack of self-confidence. "To me, being a mother is scary," admits Donna Sue. "It's like a dream I had where I was driving this car in total darkness. I couldn't see where I was going at all, but the car wouldn't stop! It kept going, and I was in the driver's seat, but I never felt like I was in control."

Parents may see their own way of life as the only possible way. Sometimes it would help if we could view our children as visitors, as boarders with us for a while, soon off to their own lives. We would be polite if a guest broke something; although if we were firm we might ask him to replace it.

We might ask a visitor to observe our house rules, but we wouldn't insult him if he forgot. We wouldn't shout, "Just look at those dirty hands!" or "You didn't make your bed because you're just too lazy!" Instead we might politely ask him to wipe his feet or remind him that his being late for dinner has inconvenienced everyone.

The difference is that we can easily admit that strangers have a life of their own, but not that our children do.

How to handle these fears and develop good parenting skills will be discussed at meetings of Parents Anonymous, now forming. Free transportation and childcare will be provided, and anonymity will be preserved. For more information, call Hugh or Alice Adams, 874-9874.

MSU Prof Editing Jesse Stuart Tapes

Preserving an oral literary heritage is the task currently confronting a Morehead State University faculty member. Joyce LeMaster, MSU associate professor of English, is involved in editing 35 audio tapes by the late Jesse Stuart, noted Kentucky novelist, poet and essayist.

Assisting her is Dr. Morris L. Norfleet, special consultant to the president at MSU. Norfleet, former chairman of the Jesse Stuart Foundation, serves on the Foundation's board of directors.

The tapes, on loan from the author's widow, Mrs. Naomi Deane Stuart, include interviews, lectures and readings by Stuart, which must be analyzed, annotated, edited, and described for cataloging.

The tapes provide MSU with a "significant and important opportunity," said LeMaster. "This University is in the enviable position of having acquired a major editing project." LeMaster expects to complete the work within the next few months.

The cassette tapes will be duplicated and sold by the Jesse Stuart Foundation. MSU will receive one set of the tapes to be housed in the Jesse Stuart Room of Camden-Carroll Library. The original tapes will remain the property of Mrs. Stuart.

LeMaster has worked with various programs related to the Appalachian author and his work. In 1982, she assisted the Stuart Foundation in the promotion of "Land of the Honey-Colored Wind," an anthology of prose and poetry. A keynote speaker at the 1984 Jesse Stuart Literary Festival, LeMaster also coordinates a MSU's Jesse Stuart Symposium.

LeMaster presented a paper on Stuart at the Mid-South Sociological Conference in Little Rock, Ark., last October and has reviewed recent books on his life and writings.

MSU began an Appalachian Literature course in 1981 which features Stuart's work along with other writers such as James Still, Harriette Arnow, Wilma Dykeman and Jim Wayne Miller, according to LeMaster. The tapes will be used in the course taught by LeMaster as well as in other literature classes.

"I commend the Stuart Foundation for its dedication to promoting a recognition of Jesse Stuart's contribution to Kentucky's literary heritage," LeMaster said. "The tapes will help to encourage the continued study of one of Kentucky's finest writers."

Infant Safety-Seat Rule Saves Lives, Study Shows

Statistics compiled by the Department for Health Services show that Kentucky's infant safety-belt law saves lives. At the same time, the state has committed $100,000 to expand its safety-seat loaner program.

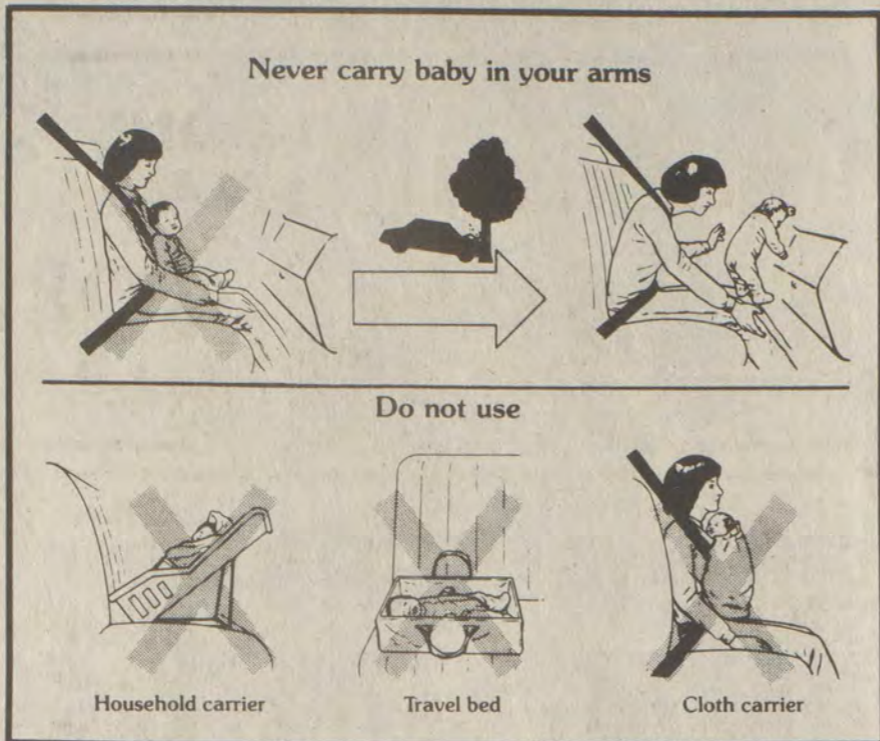

In Kentucky from 1970-1981, an average of 16.9 motor-vehicle accident deaths per year occurred among children under age five. In 1982, 15 such deaths occurred, followed by 13 deaths in 1983. Only five such deaths occurred in 1984. The number of expected deaths for 1982-1984, based on the 1970-1981 average rate and the number of children under age five, was 17.7 per year.

Although the 1982 law has reduced the number of motor vehicle accident deaths among young children, too few children ride safely in motor vehicles, according to state health officials. The law requires that young children be secured in a restraint system while riding in motor vehicles, but no penalty is attached to violating the law.

"Casual observation shows that many children still ride unrestrained," said Dr. Ward Hinds, state epidemiologist. "Parents should realize that they are risking their children's lives. Universal and consistent use of child restraints can virtually eliminate motor-vehicle passenger deaths for infants and young children."

"Large studies in other states have demonstrated that children not traveling in child-restraint devices are about 11 times more likely to be killed in an accident than children in safety devices," said Hinds. "We also know that safety devices reduce the number of serious injuries incurred in accidents."

Parents may take the law more seriously if the legislature next year acts favorably upon proposed legislation that would attach a penalty for violating the law, Hinds said.

"We need to make parents realize that they are literally risking the lives of their children when they let them ride unrestrained in automobiles and when they carry children in their laps," Hinds said.

According to John Webb, program coordinator for the department's safety-seat loaner program, one of the most prevalent myths about child safety is that a child is protected if held in an adult's lap.

"Studies have shown that children are at an increased risk of being injured or killed if they are held in an adult's arms while riding in an automobile," said Webb. "No human can hold onto a child in a collision, even at speeds as slow as 30 miles per hour. In a head-on collision, a child in an adult's lap is crushed between the dashboard and the adult."

Since 1984, the Department for Health Services has spent nearly $300,000 on safety seats for loan to parents and on safety education materials. The department recently received $100,000 from state police to expand the safety-seat loaner program, which is administered through local health departments. Currently, 8,000 seats are available for loan in 105 counties.

Webb warns parents to know the difference between approved safety seats and common plastic infant carriers. Approved safety seats are marked with a sticker that says the product meets federally-approved highway safety standards, he said.

More information about the safety-seat loaner program is available from local health departments, Webb said.

Q. I am concerned about the amount of sugar my children consume. How much sugar is there in baby foods?

A. As a concerned parent, you will be interested to learn that most varieties of commercially-prepared baby foods are made without added sugar.

A small, carefully-controlled amount of sugar is added to selected foods to make them more palatable or less tart. If sugar has been added to a baby food, it is listed on the product label. So, if you are concerned about sugar in your baby's diet, simply read the labels and select those products with no added sugar.

Moderate amounts of sugar also are added to some baby food desserts. These foods should be considered "extras" for older, active infants who need more calories in their diets. Desserts should never replace basic foods such as milk, meat, vegetables, cereals and fruits.

Jenny Wiley Bowl Champs

Allen Central Feels Season's First Loss

It was the Magoffin County Hornets that spoiled the unblemished record of the Allen Central Rebels last Tuesday night as they fell to the Salyersville squad, 66-57. The superb outside shooting of Hornet point-guard John Blanton and the strong inside play of the Hornets pivot man Robert Albright was able to hold off the numerous offensive charges of the Rebels. The high point man for coach Johnny Martin's team on Tuesday was Stanton Bentley, who dropped in 25 points during the contest to keep the game close. It has been an impressive pre-season for the Rebels this year, as they have logged a 4-1 record going into tonight's (Wednesday) conference pre-season tournament. On the other hand, it has been a disappointing pre-season for the McDowell Daredevils, who picked up their first win last week, defeating June Buchanan, 76-62. The Daredevils were led in scoring by Jeff Vance with 23 points and Brad Hall with 19. Brian Hall added 17 points to the winning effort. The Daredevils next foe will be the Allen Central Rebels when they square off in Thursday night's action of the Floyd county conference pre-season tournament.

Future Homemakers Celebrate "Family Appreciation Night"

In observance of National Family Week (Nov. 24-31) the Betsy Layne High School chapter of the Future Homemakers of America honored members of their families with a "Family Appreciation Night." A Candlelight installation of FHA officers was part of the program. The officers installed were: president, Teresa Hamilton; 1st vice president, Yolanda Tackett; 2nd vice president, Donna Adkins; secretary, Tricha Robinette; treasurer, Lela R. Conn; reporter, Renee Lee; historian, Angela Newman; song leader, Mary Etta Ray; recreation leader, Elizabeth McKinney; honor roll chairman, Joyce Collins; scholarship chairman, Lena Kidd. Parliamentarian Randi Parsons did not attend the installation. Each FHA member present expressed her appreciation to her honored guest by presenting them with a long-stemmed carnation. Miss Teresa Hamilton, Chapter President, introduced Mrs. Billie Jean Osborne, former Betsy Layne band director and Betsy Layne Future Homemakers Alumna who related experiences from her FHA membership days. Mrs. Osborne based her talk on the quotation "All I am or hope to be, I owe to my mother," attributed to Abraham Lincoln. The members and their guests enjoyed Mrs. Osborne's comments and felt very privileged that this was Mrs. Osborne's first visit to a school function since her recent retirement. Following the program, approximately fifty members and guests enjoyed refreshments in the Foods laboratory. The guests were greeted by FHA advisors Elizabeth Jones and Patricia Huffman and FHA members. Can eye injuries be prevented? Yes, 90% of all accidental eye damage can be avoided with eye safety practices and appropriate protective eyewear.

Questions Sentence

I cannot understand how justice is served when a man who shoots his wife to death with 14 bullets in front of witnesses in broad daylight and confesses to the murder, receives only a manslaughter conviction with a 15-year sentence (eligible for parole in three years). Are we thereby telling the Lewis children that when Daddy gets mad at Mommy it's OK to shoot her dead, machine-gun style? Are we to hope that Randall Lewis will be released in three years to again drive Floyd county children to school? Are we saying that "reputed infidelities" justify murder? It is interesting to me that the prosecution, defense, defendant and judge in this case have been political allies for years. Perhaps the Boyds could not get legal help or did not want the defense to slaughter further their slaughtered daughter trying to prove it's OK to kill people if they are sinners. I do not believe in killing adulterers or murderers. But I do believe in protecting ourselves from them. In my opinion, the recommended sentence won't protect us from the latter. And it's a wee punishment for a mighty crime. GWEN HALL 15 School House Hollow David, Ky.

On Educational Equality

It is no secret that Kentucky's educational system is in mortal peril. We lead the nation in dropouts. Almost 10 percent of our people cannot read or write. It is proposed that there be an equalization of educational opportunity so that by accident of birth one child in Kentucky will have, in education, an equal chance with any other. An educated person, anywhere in Kentucky, is an asset to the commonwealth as a whole. An uneducated person, anywhere in Kentucky, is a cancer that eats at the body politic. This applies not only to the commonwealth, but to the nation as a whole. Certainly the best defense this nation can ever know is an educated electorate. ARBOR JONES Prestonsburg

Pre-Nuptial Tribute For Miss Ligon

Mrs. J. C. B. Auxier and Mrs. Robert Auxier, of Prestonsburg, and Miss Mary Luck, of Grayson, Ky., granddaughter of Mrs. J. C. B. Auxier, presided as very attractive hostesses on Thursday evening of the past week, when they gave an elegant dinner as a pre-nuptial tribute, honoring Miss Sallye Gatewood Ligon who was married Saturday, September 10, to Mr. John Randolph Clark, of Charleston, W. Va.

The sumptuous dinner was given at the Hotel Elizabeth and was especially lovely in every detail. Soon after the guests had assembled, they were escorted into the spacious dining room, which had been beautifully decorated for the occasion. Pink and white created a dainty color scheme. The table in the dining room was very artistically arranged with an Italian cut work cloth on the table, with pink and white flowers forming a beautiful center-piece being placed in small silver vases. Each guest found her place card, which, being read with their answers, was very amusing. The cards were suggestive of the prospective bride.

An elegant three-course dinner was served the large number of guests, who enjoyed participation in this lovely party.

The guest list follows:

Miss Ligon, Mrs. C. Y. Ligon, Mrs. H. D. Fitzpatrick, Mrs. M. O. Hankins and daughter, Louise, of Richmond, Va.; Mrs. B. P. Friend, Charleston, W. Va.; Mrs. Iley B. Browning and Mrs. C. L. IN CELL NUMBER FOUR

BY RAY STEPHENS

"I have murdered men and stole from them, Have lived with crime and vice; But with a smile that will be grim, I, with my life will pay the price."

These words from the mouth of Benny Gardner, Came slowly, and with increasing dreariness; He told of the life he loved so dear, And a sinning past crowded with weariness.

While in his youth he strayed from home, And left his mother dear to him; To see the world and in it roam, To grieve his mother and her glory bedim.

"I was a fool to leave my home, and go To enter this wild, carefree life. But I was young and little did know Of the unhappiness caused by strife"

Tears flowed freely from his dark blue eyes, And fell languidly upon the floor; For he thought of his mother's sad cries, And he behind the walls of Cell Number Four.

"Don't ever tell her how you found me, Let her forget her wayward boy; Tell her that I still am free, And let her gloom change to joy.

"Tomorrow from this world I depart, And leave the dominion of crime, But in my throbbing, burning heart, I long for mother, so good and so kind.

"I never could realize until now, The usefulness of her loving cares, But now I know why and how I was the object of her prayers.

"Young men, a mother is kind and true, They always know what is best to do; And in their hearts they pray for you, And have a love unequalled by few.

"I haven't long to live this life, But I can offer advice to others; To never enter into murderous strife, But heed the advice of your loving mothers."

Fred Bailey was a business visitor here from Garrett Wednesday morning. Mr. Bailey, his father, G. W. Bailey, and Kendall Moore have taken charge of the W. J. Sutton store at Garrett, and are re-stocking it with merchandise after repairing the building. Messrs. Bailey and Moore also have a store at Northern. The store at Bosco, owned by G. W. and Fred Bailey, will be continued under its present management.

In Memory

Ballard F. Lewis July 9, 1906-Dec. 9, 1984
Georgia V. Lewis Sept. 18, 1907-Oct. 29, 1985

The sun and stars are shining on two silent lonely graves. Beneath them lies a mom and dad we loved but could not save.

We loved you both so very much and our lives and homes will never be the same. Tears will quickly fill our eyes when we often speak your names.

Noone else could have had a better mom and dad that God had given to us girls. But he has called you home now to a much better world.

He has promised you both a better home where pain and sorrow will be no more. Now you can walk hand-in-hand together on that beautiful shore.

Written by daughter (Betty) and sadly missed by all the family.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the family of Mr. E.L. Bierman, would like to sincerely thank our friends who gave their spiritual consolation in our time of need. They will never know what an uplifting contribution they made during our difficult period. Edward Lynch Bierman lived a proud life with no regrets, and we can truthfully say his head was held high by the beauty of the services conducted by the choir, soloist, pianist, organist, and the ministers, Walt Staude and Dave Flannery. A special thanks to East Point Lodge No. 657, F. & A.M., with the assistance of Brother Everett Bradley, O.E.S. Adah Ch. 24, of Prestonsburg, and Order of the White Shrine of Jerusalem, Paintsville Shrine No. 21, for Fraternal Services. Also, thanks to those helpful friends who gave of their time, prepared food, sent flowers or made contributions in memory of our departed loved one. We also thank the Carter Funeral Home for its thoughtful services.

Sadly missed by his wife, children, and grandchildren.

P'burg Receives ARC Grant For Downtown Traffic Study

Prestonsburg may soon have a solution to her downtown traffic flow problems, or some other obstacle to city development, thanks to a grant from the Appalachian Regional Commission.

City Manager David Evans, who applied for the grant in August, said the original intention was to use the money to study downtown traffic problems. However, after meeting with members of the Prestonsburg Business Association yesterday (Tuesday), Evans said the funds could possibly be used for some other type of study to benefit downtown, as well.

"The money can only be used for planning and studying a project," said Evans, "and it must deal with downtown." Beyond that, he said, the type of project was at the discretion of the city. The one catch is that the funds must be used by July 15, or whatever is left over will revert back to the ARC.

Of 28 cities which applied for such grants, Prestonsburg was one of only 19 funded. And, Evans said, other grants were pending.

"We applied about three months ago for two community development block grants," he said. "One is for West Prestonsburg, and the other is for storm drains in town."

Evans said this was the city's most concentrated effort to acquire grant money since 1984, and that grants were becoming more accessible than they were in the past. "One of the main reasons grants are becoming more available is that the state is administering them more, whereas before, the federal government was doing most of them. The state does more to help local governments get these grants, to find out what's available."

Evans said most of the state grants are administered by the Department of Local Government, and that department is engaged in an aggressive campaign to get more grants to more cities.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Robert Holt would like to express their thanks to all who helped during the passing of our loved one. Thanks to all who sent food, flowers, prayers and words of comfort during this time of sorrow. A special thanks to the Samaria Regular Baptist Church, members and ministers, and the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and courteous service.

VIDEO SCENE

Prince sometimes goes on ... and on ... and on

By Barton Weiss

There are two versions of the new Prince video "America." Both, ironically, were made outside the United States, and both are imitation-live videos.

Prince

The shorter and more bearable version clocks in at around three minutes, while the longer version, which shows Prince playing the drums, among other things, drags on for 10 minutes.

Video viewers can be grateful that Prince hasn't yet videotaped the 21-minute recorded version (cut down from an original 30 minutes).

The little Princes

Another group in the Prince family — this one simply called the Family — has released its first clip, "Screams of Passion," which is anything but passionate.

It overuses the simple but elegant effect of having the band superimposed on the ocean (which serves as a calming force, rather than a passionate one), but the biggest problem is that the music

THAT WAS THEN ... THIS IS NOW (R-Paramount) Starring Emilio Estevez, Craig Sheffer, Kim Delaney. ★ ★

By J.T. YURKO

The entire plot and theme of "That Was Then ... This Is Now" boils down to two words: "things change." Two boys grow up in a tough section of town and drift apart as their interests diverge. They separate and they fight, but through it all, you know they love each other.

Shallow statements and shallow characters like these are almost enough to make movie goers choose to stay home and watch reruns of "Dobie Gillis." The film lacks any meaningful comments on (or displays of) adolescent growing pains and could single-handedly put an end to this sub-genre of films.

Emilio Estevez is fast becoming typecast as a teenager filled with adolescent angst. This marks his third appearance in a film based on an S.E. Hinton novel, the first two being "Tex" (1982) and "The Outsiders" (1983). This time, Estevez has penned the screenplay himself and has updated the time period from the 1960s to present-day Minneapolis-St. Paul.

The character he plays is a troubled youngster trying to cope with growing up from a prankish tough kid to a near-pathological young adult. It's no wonder he has developed a few problems along the way. He lives with his friend Bryon because his father shot his mother several years back. Bryon is also without a father, but Bryon's childish immaturity is giving way to a job at the supermarket and a relationship with a pretty young girl.

But along with the usual teen problems of sex, drugs and rock 'n' roll, these boys have to deal with gang wars and bar fights. When they hustle a few good ol' boys in a bar owned by their friend, the owner ends up getting killed in a gunfight.

Inconsistencies hamper the plot. Bryon's girlfriend is from a well-to-do family, and her parents insist that Bryon bring her home by midnight. But when her younger brother disappears for a few days, no one seems terribly upset.

"That Was Then ... This Is Now" is well-intentioned and well-acted, but it's just another mediocre tale of adolescent ennui.

'Washington' boon

By Amanda Bruce

Cable viewers who have never witnessed the cutting political satire of Showtime's "Washington" will get a chance to pick up essential background information on all the major characters this week when the "Where Do We Go from Here?" episode airs Dec. 8.

Tom Callaway

Even if you've missed every one of the half-hour comedy programs, which are based on the political comic strip by Mark Alan Stamaty, this episode will catch you up on everyone.

In it, congressman Bob Forehead (Tom Callaway) and his family are investigated when he is secretly considered as a presidential candidate. Forehead, a member of the House of Representatives, is a former television announcer beleaguered by rude children and a vacuous wife.

He has moved smoothly from selling Day-Glo hangers on late-night television to setting national and international policy in Washington. The message? Look who's running the country! Forehead tries hard, though, and so does "Washington," which hits a lot more often than it misses.

Lee Grant and Malcolm Forbes are guests this week (Dec. 9 and 11) on "The Dick Cavett Show" on the USA Network. Forbes adds a little levity to the show when he takes Cavett on a motorcycle ride and presents footage of his hot air balloons. Actress Grant is a little more restrained, and simply brings clips of her documentaries.

Cavett, back with his own talk show after a respite of several years, is his usual witty, earnest self. He's an interesting, slightly unconventional interviewer, and he always delivers good guests.

On Dec. 9, Lifetime presents another "informathon," a live broadcast program in which callers get to speak privately with medical experts.

The topic is "Aging and Health: A New Look," and the show will include discussions of arthritis, heart disease, diabetes, hearing problems, vision problems, osteoporosis and disorders of the mind.

Information on the prevention, symptoms and appropriate treatment of all these problems will be presented. Viewers with questions can call toll-free 1-800 828-LIFE. Repeat broadcasts on Dec. 17 and 27 will not include viewer call-ins.

FAME

No one would mistake Tom Mason for an MTV cop

By Lynn Hoogenboom

"I'll tell you one thing," says Tom Mason. "My cop is the antithesis of Don Johnson's cop. My cop wouldn't know an Italian-cut suit if he tripped over it. We're not MTV cops. We're tough New York City policemen. And our show's not pastel. It's gray, gritty."

His show is "Our Family Honor," and it may be in the toughest time slot in all of television — Friday nights on ABC, opposite the smash hit "Miami Vice" and the still-powerful "Falcon Crest."

But Mason is convinced that "Our Family Honor" has something that viewers will latch onto — if they're given half a chance.

"When the pilot season rolls around, you have to read through mountains of scripts, and some of them..." Mason pauses. "Well, the words wouldn't pass my lips. But two pages into this particular script, it jumped out at me. I called the producer and said, 'Don't even think of anyone else.' I haven't felt as strongly about a part in years."

He got the part (of Frank McKay), but a fair number of problems have come along with it — not the least of which has been unimpressive ratings. But Mason, who's been around the track a few times before (he has had major roles in three series, "Grandpa Goes to Washington," "Freebie and the Bean" and "Two Marriages," that lasted less than a year), takes heart from some of the positive feedback he's gotten this time around. "I've heard good things walking on the street. I went into a furniture store, and all the secretaries came out. They loved the show."

And, he adds, half seriously, "Word has it on the streets that people are getting sick of 'Miami Vice.' You can only look at those fancy suits and listen to those songs for so long. They'll eventually start looking for stories, and that's what we can give them."

Since "Our Family Honor" is filmed on two coasts — exteriors in New York, interiors in Los Angeles — the actors are often working on several different episodes simultaneously. "It's a logistical nightmare," says Mason. "Out of eight shooting days, we do five days in Los Angeles and three days in New York. People ask me how I keep track. I always tell them it's just one big story."

And yes, there are people who have to keep track of what everyone was doing when a scene shifts. "They have giant books they write things into," says Mason. "They really have to stay on their toes." About the only thing they don't have to worry about is what suit Mason was wearing when he stepped out of the door in Los Angeles.

"No one would notice the difference," he says. "My suits are uniformly bad."

Ask Toni

Lisa Hartman was Tabitha, but not on 'Bewitched'

By Toni Reinhold

Did Lisa Hartman play Tabitha on "Bewitched"? — S.L., Guyaville, Ohio.

Lisa Hartman

Tabitha was portrayed by twins Erin and Diane Murphy in the long-running series. In 1977, however, the character was given her own series, "Tabitha," and Lisa Hartman ("Knots Landing") was cast in the title role.

How old is Mel Gibson? Which of his films immediately followed "The Road Warrior"? — T.H., North Adams, Mass.

Gibson is 29 years old. He followed up "The Road Warrior" (1982) with "The Year of Living Dangerously" (1983).

Where can fans write to Matt Lauer, host of "P.M. Magazine"? — A.D., Poultney, Vt.

Send mail to him c/o Metromedia TV, 205 E. 67 St., New York, NY 10021.

Robert Preston is one of my favorite actors. What is he doing these days? — P.D., Rochester, N.Y.

Preston has begun work on a two-hour TV movie for Columbia Pictures Television called "Outrage." This role will be a bit of a digression for Preston.

He will play a father agonizing over the murder of his daughter.

Why did you take "Baretta," starring Robert Blake, off the air and put "Kojak" back on. Every one of the "Kojak" episodes has been repeated over and over, and I used to look forward to seeing "Baretta." — O.S., Staunton, Va.

It would be nice to have such sway over the entertainment industry, but I don't. If you are unhappy when a program is dropped, write to the network or station that aired it and encourage your friends to do the same thing.

Remember the "Cagney and Lacey" story? That show was canceled but because viewer reaction was so great it was revived, and the rest is history.
