Two Hurt as C&O Cars Derail

KENTUCKY 41653

Two C&O Railroad trains collided Saturday night near the American Standard plant in Johnson county, derailing 15-20 cars and spilling a small amount of explosive ammonia

Two brakemen were hospitalized as a result of the accident. James Ward, 43, of Martin, and John Lemaster, 35, of Paintsville, were listed in stable condition Monday at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Three other C&O employees were treated at HRMC and released.

The Prestonsburg Fire Department responded to the scene after receiving a call from the Paintsville Fire Department requesting mutual aid. Also mobilized were the West Van Lear Fire Department and Disaster and Emergency Services Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said that two of six cars carrying ammonia nitrate, a substance which, when mixed with diesel fuel, is used to blast out right-of-ways for road construction, had been punctured. He added that, while the chemical is dangerous, "the conditions were not there to create a hazard.

Some oil and diesel fuel also leaked from the train into the Big Sandy river. A DES spokesman said the leak could potentially cause environmental damage.

A failure in the switching system reportedly led to the

City May Join Bonding Pool

Prestonsburg will likely join the Kentucky Municipal League's (KML) bonding pool and have an additional five auxiliary police officers, and the city is still searching for a location to erect a new city garage

At Monday's city council meeting, Mayor Ann Latta presented information on KML's bonding pool, an organization from which the city could borrow money to re-finance debts at six or seven percent interest rates, as opposed to the current 14 percent.

If the city were to join the pool, the council would have to estimate its borrowing needs for the next five years and deliver that information to the KML by June 30. The city would have to commit to the deal by September. As well as enjoying a lower interest rate, pool members are not obliged to borrow the full amount estimated.

"If we borrow fifty cents, we pay interest on fifty cents," said Councilman Bill Callihan, who accompanied Latta on a recent fact-finding visit with KML officials in Frankfort

If the city does join the pool, it will be helpful in purchasing equipment necessary to provide city services to the Auxier Road section which is awating annexation. Among the items discussed

Stumbo, Dingus End Many Years In School System

At the Board of Education's last regular meeting for the school year. administrators and teachers were hired, and the school calendar set, for the coming year.

Although at least one high school principal was on hand in hopes of getting a central office job, the school district's top administrative staff remains unchanged at this time except for the loss through resignation of one of the five instructional supervisors.

Former Superintendent E. P Grigsby, Jr. stays on as administrative assistant to the superintendent. Ron Hager remains the sole assistant superintendent. Sharon Newsome, Ogie Slone, and Eddie Patton, Jr.-all named within the past year or two to take charge of troubled food service, special education, and transportation departments, respectively-have been reappointed for another year. After 48 years with the school district, most of them in the central office. Anna Sue Stumbo has retired as instructional supervisor. She was one of the most senior school personnel in

School principals remain unchanged, although it appeared for a time that Betsy Layne Principal Russell Frazier might move to the central administration and one knowledgeable observer said some change might yet be made in Frazier's position. Monroe Jones was named to replace Danny Johnson as boys' basketball coach at Wheelwright and Craynor Slone takes over at Betsy Layne following the resignation as coach of William 'Junior' Newsome. Slone, a Wayland native, returns to this county after several coaching jobs elsewhere, most recently at Ashland Paul Blazer High School. Three years ago he coached Carlisle County High School to the final round of the state tournament. Former Allen Central principal J. O. Dingus, who put in this year as guidance counselor at Betsy Layne, is retiring. Named to replace him as counselor is Arlen Isaac. The loss of Freda Campbell has left unfilled openings for a librarian at Allen and Betsy Layne grade schools. Mrs. Campbell replaces Alice Williams, who retired as librarian at Betsy Layne High School. Two slots for remediation teachers at

Harold are also unfilled. Outgoing Prestonsburg City Manager David Evans, who recently received training as a special education teacher and had accepted a position in the Johnson county school system, has been hired as special education teacher at Betsy Layne High

MCC Survives As Independent ·Social Agency

Earns Reprieve With Improved Area Services

Surviving a close call-consolidation with another mental health center, even bankruptcy, loomed last year-Mountain Comprehensive Care Center will continue to operate here as an independent agency

The agency's reprieve resulted from its offering more services and making more money, said Dennis Boyd, state mental health-mental retardation commissioner, at a May Lodge press conference Thursday.

The state had considered three options for MCC-allowing it to declare bankrupty, merging it with another center, or keeping it independent.

The center could have been allowed to go bankrupt last year when, laboring under a $400,000 debt and with not enough revenue to pay its bills, a $427,000 state grant was given to bail it out.

The possibility of a merger with either the Pathways Comprehensive Care Center in Ashland or the Kentucky River Comprehensive Care Center in Jackson was considered. Another option, dividing MCC's programs between Pathways and Kentucky River, was also looked

Potter Cries Foul, Case Waived To Jury

An Allen man claimed in district court Monday that he had already served a jail term for the crime on which he was again being arraigned.

Tony Ray Potter, 20, said he pleaded guilty in Floyd Circuit Court last June to a charge of receiving stolen property-he was accused of having stereo speakers taken from a car belonging to Sam Hicks, Jr .- and had already served a 60-day sentence imposed by Circuit Judge Hollie Conley.

Hicks and sheriff's deputies contended that the new warrant was for equipment-a tape deck, two boosters, and an equalizer-not listed in the original charge. But Potter, who was not represented by an attorney, insisted that he had already paid his due's. "I pleaded guilty to every bit of it." he said.

District Judge Harold Stumbo at first agreed, warning prosecutor Dan Rowland that Potter would be facing double jeopardy if he were again to face charges stemming from a crime for which he had earlier been con-

Day boat parade. Everyone is welcome.

However, because they favored "home rule," and because they didn't feel the people here should be penalized by the poor management of the previous administration, the state decided to keep MCC independent, Boyd said. Since late August, 1985, Pathways' Executive Director Dick Stai has been overseeing both Pathways and MCC, replacing David Bell, Jr. at MCC. Bell resigned under fire last year, amid charges of poor management, improper salary advances and questionable travel expenses. Other allegations included improper purchasing procedures, low staff morale and improper extension of insurance coverage to some board

Stai, who received high praise from Boyd, was MCC's first administrator. He ran the center from 1966 until the mid-1970s. Boyd credited Stai's recent expansion of programs for mentally handicapped clients with dramatically increasing the Medicaid funds coming into MCC. The additional funding went a long way toward making the center financially solvent, said Boyd.

Plans call for a new executive director and board to be named by September 1. The board will consist of 15-25 members, including at least one from each of the five counties the agency serves. It will replace the previous board, whose members were asked to resign in January after a state program review found that their "unwillingness or inability to provide oversight functions" contributed to MCC's problems.

Advertisements for a new executive director will be placed in area newspapers and mental health trade journals. A successful candidate should have an advanced degree, five years of leadership experience in a mental health center and skills in fiscal and clinical management, said Boyd.

Both the board and the executive director will be chosen by a fourmember search team, made up of Boyd. Stai, Burnice Ransdell, deputy commis-See Story No. 4. Page 4) construction will be coming to the Floyd district this year is not yet certain, but enough is already known to dle school to be built at Lancer, Chairman Dr. J. D. Adams told his Board of Education colleagues last Wednesday.

Board member James A. Duff required assurances that the Garrett school project would not be left out in the cold and, given them, joined the board in voting to hire architect George Lee Shannon for the middle school design.

The 700-student middle school, which is first on the school district's approved construction list and which is expected to take pressure off both Prestonsburg and Clark grade schools, could be opening its doors to students by the fall of 1988, Superintendent Ray Brackett said later

In defense of his proposal to get a start on the Lancer design even before the funding limit is known, Adams said $2.5 million in bonding potential is already assured. Assuming a normal 10 percent increase, Floyd should have taxable property worth $395 million next fiscal year, he said. With the school tax rate rising by law from its present 17.9 cents to a minimum of 25

Paintsville Man Arraigned In Branch Bank Robbery

A 24-year-old Paintsville man was scheduled for arraignment yesterday in Lexington federal court on charges of robbing the Bank Josephine's North Lake Drive branch last Tuesday.

Darrell Lee Money was apprehended at his apartment in the Herald building shortly after midnight last Wednesday by Johnson county Sheriff Gene Cyrus, Kentucky State Police Detective Scott ard and Troopers Dave Wallen and Paul Esten

About $3,600 of the $5,357 stolen from the bank was recovered at Money's apartment. Sheriff Cyrus said the suspect had spent about $90 of the booty on old court fines, roughly the same amount on groceries, and $350 in back rent. He bought his child some toys and paid the Johnson county jailer a $4 filing fee. He also reportedly gave his father-in-law $600 to buy a car. Cyrus said the $600 was returned.

Money didn't offer any resistance when apprehended, said Cyrus. "First he denied everything, but then he made a good confession," said the sheriff.

State charges against Money were dropped after he was indicted by a federal grand jury last Wednesday. He faced arraignment yesterday on charges of bank robbery and use of a firearm in the commission of a felony. According to Prestonsburg Police Detective Sgt. Mike Ormerod, bank robbery carries a penalty of up to 20 years, while a firearm conviction automatical ly adds five years to the sentence.

Police said that Money, wearing dark glasses, a woman's wig and white bandana, entered the Bank Josephine's North Lake Drive branch last Tuesday shortly before 9 a.m. and handed teller Cathy Baldridge a note demanding money. After Baldridge gave him the cash from her drawer, Money was said to have escaped on foot to the SuperAmerica gas station near the bank, where he shed his disguise in favor of the uniform of a fast food chain. He then hitchhiked back to Paintsville.

Expect Grant To Fund Attack On Illiteracy

The war chest for the battle against illiteracy in Floyd county will be $9,000 richer soon, if a grant from the Kentucky Literacy Commission is approved.

Application was made to the commission, a body which coordinates literacy programs in Kentucky, several weeks ago by the Floyd County Adult Literacy Council and, while formal approval has not yet been granted, council member Mike Vance says it almost certainly will

The David School and the Christian Appalachian Project are each budgeted to receive $2,000 for literacy training materials, while the Floyd county public library stands to get $3,000 for a New Reader Program. The remaining $2,000 is slated for administrative costs, such as installing a separate telephone line at the David School for council business.

The council is comprised of the above organizations, as well as the county Board of Education, Mountain Comprehensive Care and Prestonsburg Community College, The BOE, MCC and PCC each indicated they did not need a portion of the funding.

The council was organized May 12 to help coordinate the efforts of county literacy programs and as a tool to aid member institutions in applying for day at the lodge. A former teacher, Mrs. Beshear said problems caused by lack of reading skills were among the most severe facing the state. She said that solving such problems will depend on community initiativė.

"I just want to say help," she told the Community Action group. "You have the ability, the tools and the network. Do a service to your commonwealth, your people and yourself. Become involved with the fight against illiteracy.

centers, and libraries.

Mental illness affects at least one sionals out of fear of being blamed, guilt member of most American families. Statistics tell us that 15 of every 100 Americans have a disturbance of the mind which interferes with normal behavior and daily life. These disturbances fall into three general categories:

Schizophrenia—characterized by disturbed thinking, disturbed behavior, withdrawal and/or hallucinations;

Depression—indicated by listlessness, loss of appetite, sleep disorders, suicidal thoughts, and loss of interest in one's appearance, health and family; and

Organic brain syndrome—induced by physical problems such as brain tumors or hardening of the arteries.

Despite its commonness, mental illness is perhaps the most difficult health problem for families to handle. Most families go through stages of denial, fear, guilt and hostility when trying to deal with the mental illness of a family member. But families need not get stuck in these stages. Family members can aid the recovery of a mentally ill person. Here are four suggestions:

Accept the fact that your family member is mentally ill. Mental illness manifests itself through symptoms like: listless or restless behavior; suspicion of everyone and everything; poor performance at work or school as a result of behavioral changes or loss of interest; visual and auditory hallucinations; exaggerated anxiety which lasts for long periods without cause; sudden and frequent mood swings; and physical complaints which have no organic cause.

Recognizing and accepting the continual display of these behavior patterns as mental illness is the first step in helping your family member recover.

Get early treatment. Community agencies offer many treatment options. But first, take your loved one to a physician for a physical exam.

The physician can assist by determining whether the problem is mental or physical, and by making referrals to trained professionals or helping organizations. The physician's findings will also aid in determining an appropriate treatment program.

Treatment can take many forms, including any or a combination of the following: family therapy, drug therapy, counseling, long or short-term hospitalization, psychotherapy, and group therapy. These treatments are given in local hospitals, mental health care centers, state hospitals and Veterans Administration Hospitals by individual or teams of professional such as psychiatrists, psychologists, social workers or clergy.

The mentally ill person is usually voluntarily admitted to a treatment program. But when the person is a danger to his/herself or others, he/she can be admitted involuntarily by a court order.

Learn what mental illness is and how to deal with it. Many family members who are not mentally ill shy away from sessions with mental health profes-for purchase were a new fire truck, police car and street sweeper.

Second reading was given to an ordinance raising the number of auxiliary police offers allowed the city from 15 to 20. Councilmen Thomas Tackett and Gary Brown questioned Police Chief Stan Fletcher on the past record of auxiliary police here, and asked how they might be expected to behave in the Tackett's concern was that, being trained less than regular officers, the auxiliary officers might lose control when dealing with rowdy teenagers and resort to violence. Police Chief Fletcher said only three complaints had been lodged against auxiliary police officers during his term as chief. When Councilman William O. Goebel, III asked how many complaints had been lodged against regular officers, Fletcher quipped, "You mean by the day or the

The motion to allow more officers passed unanimously.

Though Councilmen Bobby Ranier and Tackett voted against it and Callihan gave only guarded approval, a motion was carried to engage an engineer to determine if the head of Saly Stephens Branch on the old Middle Creek Road would be a stable site for a new city garage.

The spot, near the animal shelter, was once used as a dump, and council members said that, though it has been filled in, garbage bags still protrude from the ground in places.

Council voted to advertise for bids for drilling a natural gas well in that vicinity. Under the terms of the drilling authorization, the animal shelter and, if it is built there, the city garage, would receive free natural gas.

Latta said it is imperative that the garage be moved as soon as possible from its present location behind Archer Park's swimming pool. Previous plans called for building the garage near the Cliff Bridge, but the area to be used turned out not to be feasible.

Councilman Frank Adams punctuated discussion on where to build the garage. If, when and where, let's build it where it's gonna stay," he said.

Semi-heated discussion between City Attorney Larry Brown and Callihan accompanied the passage of the city's amended budget proposal.

The amended budget provides $3,600 yearly as a retainer fee for Brown, the same amount he has received each year he has served as city attorney. He is also paid $50 per hour-considered an inexpensive rate for legal services-for research and courtroom work.

An additional $21,400 is budgeted for legal services which could be provided by Brown or by another attorney. Callihan objected to setting aside the additional funds, explaining, "If the money's there, it can be spent.'

'I'd like to think I'd handle that a little more reputably, Mr. Callihan," responded Brown, adding, "I'm not going to pad my bill.

Councilman Tackett, who in the past has expressed concerns similar to Callihan's regarding Brown's compensation, said, "I'd say if he wins that case (with CCG Two, the city's television cable supplier), we'd get a tremendous bargain at two or three times the price.' The amended budget was adopted with only Callihan voting against it.

In other action, Latta said she had agreed to meet with city utilities superintendent Bill Harvey Howard to discuss installing fire hydrants at a number of locations around the city, notably on Willow Lane in Lancer and in a section of Mays Branch.

Tackett championed the idea of the utilities commission absorbing the cost of the hydrants, though Latta reminded him the council had no authority to direct them to do so.

Marty Hicks, of Lancer, suggested the city extend its clean-up project for another month. Councilwoman Margie Osborne suggested forming a committee to decide what areas need most work. Latta agreed, appointing Street Dept. head Leonard Joseph and Police Chief Fletcher as members.

Bits and Pieces

STILL TO BE SUNG

Do you ever find yourself with your mind apparently in neutral but the motor still running. The other day I realized, to my consternation, that I was humming, "All I Want for Christmas Are My Two Front Teeth." Each time I would put on the brakes, and speak sternly, albeit, very quietly (in case the men in white jackets were just around the corner), to the effect, "Stop that!" 'You've lost it this time," and finally, "Could this be some subconscious message? Are my teeth falling out?' And finally, "Don't panic. It's just one of those dumb songs we used to sing.'

The first one I remember is "Down in a Meadow in a Itty, Bitty Poo," then "Mairzy Doats and Doezy Doats, and Little Lambzy Divy," and "A Tisket, a Tasket." Not too long ago there was "A Teeny, Weeny Polka-Dot Bikini," and 'Yellow Submarine." Or, how about "Bongo, Bongo, Bongo, I Don't Want To Leave the Congo?

Seems to me we don't have as many silly songs as we once did. Stupid songs we have, but just-for-fun-silly, I don't hear nowadays. Now why is that?

Those old songs certainly will never go down in musical history as the best it can achieve. They are no aid to digestion nor would they ever enhance a romantic moment. But they're fun, and surely our sense of the ridiculous has not deserted us.

Personally, I'll go on hoping there are some silly songs still to be sung.

Elementary classroom teachers are published this year without reference to the grade to which they will be assigned. Brackett said this was to respect the prerogatives of local principals in designating how staff members will be used.

The Spradlin Branch class for handicapped students will be closed and those students moved to Auxier Elementary, according to a board decision. The move follows a recommendation by the state Department for the Education of Exceptional Children and is in line with a national policy of "mainstreaming," according to which handicapped children are to be schooled as much as possible in the company of their non-handicapped peers.

Floyd children will return to the classroom on August 14, according to the calendar adopted by the board. The schools will no longer take any days off for the state basketball tournament-reflecting the board's wish to stress the importance of the academic schedule, Brackett said-although absences for the tournament will be considered excused, with students able to make up missed exams.

If no days were missed on account of snow or other factors, classes would be out next May 10. Assuming that 19 days have to be made up-the average for the past five years-school will finish next year on June 5.

Should the school year not be over by next Memorial Day, that day will be a holiday. Board member Dr. Mary Hall renewed her request that, in future years, school be in session on election days and that the county clerk be asked to move the polls elsewhere. Jean Rosenberg, chairperson of the Floyd County Education Forum, urged that a day be set aside in the calendar for parent-teacher conferences.

Because he had voiced concerns about the calendar. Tim Jessen. Prestonsburg pastor and father of two children in Floyd schools, participated in the setting of the new calendar at his invitation, Brackett said.

Lafferty, Pastor Work Out Bargain

While members of the Allen United Methodist Church crowded the district courtroom Tuesday, a bargain was struck in the case of a former church member charged with striking the pastor, Kenneth R. Lemaster.

Under the agreement, charges of assault and carrying a concealed weapon, filed in March against Alonzo Lafferty, 67, of Allen, will be continued on the docket for four years and then dismissed if Lafferty receives counseling, stays away from the church, and does not bother any members of the congregation.

Lafferty, said to have had a history of problems with the congregation, allegedly disturbed a church choir practice and punched the minister.

In other district court dispositions this week:

Randy Leckrone, of Middle Creek accused of trying to run down the sheriff and two deputies, was sentenced to 30 days' jail and ordered to pay $257 following his conviction of speeding, attempting to elude police, and wanton endangerment. He will serve his sentence on weekends.

Bill Howell, of Prestonsburg, was fined $100 after pleading guilty to a charge of hindering apprehension. A $100 bond put up by Vivian Branham Miller, of Robinson Creek, was ordered forfeited when she failed to appear to answer a charge of disorderly conduct. Ella Branham, of Virgie, was given five days' probation and ordered to pay $82 after pleading guilty to a charge of shoplifting at Heck's. Take Mock Disaster Victim From Scene

Though they appear chipper enough, these youngsters, members of Pikeville Club Scout Den 12, were all treated as "victims" of a plane crash near Glyn View Plaza. Rescue workers in the background remove a volunteer "corpse." The scene was part of Monday's Disaster and Emergency Services mock disaster.

A plane crash left victims scattered across a field adjacent to Glyn-View Plaza and a derailed train caused the city of Martin to be covered with a radioactive cloud. But all in all, Disaster and Emergency Services (DES) Area 9 Coordinator William R. Callihan, III said it was a pretty good day.

In such a melee, it would seem the potential for loss of life would be great, but this time there were only four casualties because, according to coroner Roger Nelson, the "victims" didn't want to sit around all day in the blazing sun.

Both the downed plane and derailed train were staged as part of a DES mock disaster to test the readiness of county emergency agencies, such as fire and police departments and the coroner's Callihan said that while there were a few mistakes, the various agencies handled the situations pretty well. Dr. David Jones, of the state medical examiner's office, was on hand at Callihan's request to evaluate the performance of Coroner Roger Nelson. Jones gave the coroner and his deputies high marks for their performance, but said improper procedures by police and ambulance personnel at Martin could have cost a number of lives.

'Radioactivity is one of the hardest things to deal with," said Jones. He said a police officer, who was the first to respond to the scene, became contaminated by the radioactive waste spilled there and then left, contaminating everything he came in contact with.

Ambulance and fire personnel likewise stumbled, treating victims without regard to radioactivity. According to Jones, had the situation in Martin been real, everyone on the scene would likely have been killed by radiation poisoning.

Except for the radiation exposure, Martin workers handled the exercise well, said Jones, who pointed out that the purpose of the drill was to teach rescue workers how to deal with emergencies and that the Martin workers had benefited from the experience.

He gave the Prestonsburg response higher marks. "But Prestonsburg had an easier exercise," he said.

Firefighters, the coroner and his deputies worked together at Glyn View Plaza to find volunteer victims-most of them members of Pikeville's Cub Scout Den 12-who were scattered on the ground and lying in high grass. Once found, both "dead" and living victims tried to keep cool. Stationed on blue tarpaulins, they were served ice water periodically by rescue workers. Victims pronounced dead were later taken to an emergency morgue set up at the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad building.

According to Nelson, one of the most important things in dealing with a plane crash is making sure victims are tagged to show where they were found, in order to match any personal effects later found on the scene. If this isn't done, identification can be impossible. He said rescue workers did a good job of following procedures.

Callihan said he wouldn't know just how well the rescue workers did until he'd had a chance to study the notes of observers such as Dr. Jones, the state fire marshal's office representatives, and a group of environmental inspectors. He did volunteer, however, that he was pleased with the overall showing.

But not everyone was as pleased as Callihan. Bill Baldridge, assistant manager of Baldridge's Restaurant, was angry that the merchants at Glyn View weren't told of the drill in advance. "We should have been notified ahead of time," he said. "We cooked up a lot of food for the luncheon buffet, and we had to throw it all away." As part of the drill, police kept civilian vehicles from entering the shopping center's parking lot.

District Court Docket Filled

DUI Cases Keep

To be convicted of drunk driving, a person has to be shown to be in control of a vehicle. Whether a person found intoxicated behind the wheel of a stationary car can reasonably be assumed to have driven the vehicle is a question on which prosecutors and defense attorneys tend to differ. And, in a district court case here last week, a jury sided with the defendant.

Acquitted was Bobby Little, 35, of Price, whom state Trooper Stacy Trees said she found "passed out" behind the wheel of his pickup in McDowell. Evidence was presented that he failed several sobriety tests and recorded a blood alcohol content of .16 percent.

Little admitted to being drunk and owned up to a lengthy conviction record-he has been convicted three times of drunk driving and twice of driving on a suspended license within the past two years-but said that, on the occasion in question, he had been driven by a friend to the place off KY 860 where he was discovered by police.

His attorney, Danny Caudill, argued that Little could not be shown to have driven the vehicle, an argument the jury apparently found persuasive.

Convicted of a second DUI under the new state law was Henry B. Burchett. 22, of Banner, arrested by Trooper Trees in the course of a May 3 road check on Rice Branch. He was sentenced to seven days in jail-to be served on weekends-and ordered to pay $557.

Three DUI charges were dismissed. two because of relatively low bloodalcohol readings and one because a sheriff's deputy failed to prosecute the case. Although Earl Ray Johnson, 25. of Topmost, was said by police to have been weaving on old KY 80 at Martin, he recorded a BA of .05; and, while Wendell Lemaster, 34, of Paintsville. was said to have staggered and failed three sobriety tests on US 23 at Water Gap, he recorded a .02 only.

Anna H. Slone, 28, of Bypro, was charged with drunk driving, driving on a suspended license, and having no registration or insurance after being stopped by Deputy Sheriff John Blackburn on the Mud Creek road in the early hours of April 13. The case against her was dropped when Blackburn failed to testify, however.

Among nearly three dozen convicted of drunk driving during the week were: Ronald F. Tackett, 34, of Harold: Jeffery Meade, 23, of Printer; Jerry B. Compton, 27, of Ashcamp; Jerry E. Bentley, 34, of Langley; Roger T. Hicks; Billy R. Frasure, 34, of Langley; Burl R. Conn. 38, of Martin; Danny L. Smith, 37, of Martin; Marvin Marsillett, 26, of Prestonsburg; Dennis Hall, 39, of Galveston.

Kent E. Stewart, 25, of Paintsville: Allen Mitchell Lewis, 34, of Prestonsburg; Curtis Waycaster, Jr., of Memphis, Tenn.; Letty Hatfield, 28, of McDowell; Carlos Little, 32, of Bevinsville; William K. Moore, 21, of Prestonsburg; Diana Blackburn, 32, of Prestonsburg: Jimmy R. Jackson, of Salyersville: Gregory Shannon Ratliff, of Elkhorn City; Hubert Franklin Hobson, 19, of Pikeville: Mike Newsome. 22, of Bypro; Homer Hall, 33, of Harold; Lou A. Nichols, 31, of Pikeville; Charles L. Kincer, 64, of Salversville; Allen R. Zemo, 36, of Allen; Bruce D. Moore, 29, of Hi Hat: Bobby D. Shepherd.

John M. Lester: Jimmy R., Jackson. 27, of Salyersville; Timothy Click, 24, of Manton; Teresa Adkins, 21, of Meally: Estill Jarvis, 31, of Prestonsburg: and William W. Hiser, 21, of Prestons-

People needing cancer treatment in south eastern Kentucky are used to traveling long distances, sometimes staying overnight, for a specialist to evaluate and determine individual therapy. Now, thanks to the addition of Tenney Kentro, MD, and Bruce Stapleton, MD, to the medical staff at Highlands Regional Medical Center, the majority of cancer patients won't have to leave the area for evaluation and treatment.

Clarence Traum, HRMC Administrator, remarked, "We feel the addition of Dr. Kentro and Dr. Stapleton complements our cancer treatment abilities, which were already well supported by our excellent surgeons."

These two fields are compatible because blood clotting problems are sometimes experienced by patients with cancer. The hematology side of the practice is not limited to cancer patients, however; Drs. Kentro and Stapleton will see people with other blood disorders like hemophilia.

Dr. Kentro and Dr. Stapleton will have Highlands Regional Medical Center. Physician referrals only, please.

Merchants Donate Almost $6,000 To the Highlands Breast Center

James O. VanHoose, President of the Prestonsburg Downtown Merchants Association, poses with the fund raising thermometer for the Breast Center. Downtown Prestonsburg merchants raised the largest amount of money during Merchants Day on April 26. The thermometer indictes the total raised so far.

"Merchant support of the Breast Center at Highlands Regional Medical Center has been great," said Carol Blevins, Public Information Officer at HRMC, "As of Friday, June 6, $5,743.78 was given to the Breast Center by local merchants

Merchants in downtown Paintsville and Prestonsburg participated in Merchants Day on April 26 and merchants in the shopping plazas of both cities held a Merchants Day on May 10. On these days Merchants donated up to 10 percent of their sales to the center. During the week of April 19-26 five local car dealers gave up to $50 for every car sold.

"The Breast Center is going to be a comprehensive center for women in the community," said Blevins. "Not only are we going to have a dedicated mammography unit with the lowest radiation dose possible and an educational program, but we will also have a pathologist and a reconstructive surgeon on staff. Having a pathologist 'in-house' will allow women to get test results back more quickly. A reconstructive surgeon will be able to do breast reconstruction for mastectomy patients as well as many other types of cosmetic surgeries.

The breakdown of the donations for Merchants Days in downtown Paintsville-$2,025.91. downtown Prestonsburg-$2,438.61, Mayo Plaza-$565.52. Glynview Plaza-$165.75, Highlands Plaza-$150.00 and Wal-Mart-$397.99. The money donated by Wal-Mart was raised through employee efforts and the Wal-Mart Corporation has agreed to match the money raised.

With the matching funds from Wal-Mart and the donations still out from Baldridge's Restaurant, Stepahead, Pets and Reflections, Owens Music Center, Herrin-Johnson Pharmacy, Ritchie's Hallmark, Paintsville Sundry Store, Arby's and Bonanza we hope to get close to $7,000," added Blevins.

Mountain Magic

Literary Magazine Promising Start For High School Writers

Like a long-cold cauldron over a newly-lit fire, Floyd schools appear to have been bubbling this year with hopeful projects. And surely one of the best ideas to surface so far has been the just-finished production of a high school literary magazine.

The brainchild of McDowell Principal Gary Frazier, with Freddie Goble's School-Community Partnership Committee the ever-attentive midwife. Mountain Magic: Coal Dust and Silver Words is a showcase for the best of the county's high-school artists, essayists, poets and short-story writers.

Funded by local businesses and a small state grant and attractively laid out and printed by Pippa Valley Printing, the 68-page, 1986 edition of Mountain Magic is a student production. right down to its title and cover design. About 80 students from the five county high schools contributed works for publication, of whom about 60 are represented in the present volume.

It would be hard to overestimate the importance for young writers of a forum for their work. The skills they are developing are communications skills and, to get a sense of where they are and where they're going, there is no substitute for feedback.

Moreover, while classical and proven writers will always be the authoritative guides for students of the craft. the chance to compare themselves to their own peers is often a less daunting. gentler stimulus to student creativity. If the literary magazine becomes a tradition, and if realistic but challenging standards are set for it, it could easily become a key factor in fostering among Floyd students a respect and love for writing and confidence in their writing skills.

The potential benefits, as Goble points out in his introduction to the present volume, are not just for "literary types." Everyone-including those without the literary skills needed to read a contract or leave a written message for their children-stands to benefit if words are cherished and fluency with words encouraged.

The Spring, 1986 issue of Mountain Magic is a promising beginning. It should not detract from the excitement and pride its creators feel to note that it is a modest beginning. Nor should it take anything from their real achievement in enabling 60 students to see their works in print to acknowledge frankly that the quality of the work is not generally high.

That is something the student authors and artists will recognize soon enough as they are exposed to one another's work, as competition among them sharpens, and as they get a little critical feedback on the way. They need and deserve an encouraging but honest readership. They might also be helped if, in future issues, the sixteacher panel which selects entries for publication and awards prizes for those judged best, spelled out the criteria for inclusion and the particular strengths they saw in the prizewinners

For readers interested in assessing the state of high school literary skills. it would be helpful if the contributors ages or grade levels were included. A year can make a striking difference in the evolution of a young writer.

Besides 23 illustrations of indifferent quality. Mountain Magic contains 34 poems, nine essays, and 17 short stories. Too much of the poetry, alas, illustrates the old adage that nothing is easier to write than bad verse. In no form of writing does a word count for more than in a poem; no genre requires a greater concentration of creative energies. The undisciplined sentiment, fuzzy images, and pedestrian language that characterizes this year's entries suggest that the art is not yet much developed in Floyd

The essayists are earnest and a couple of them manage to strike sparks of originality but-especially when they tackle large issues like racism. hunger, and the meaning of life-they fall back on conventional, unexamined pieties and platitudes. Readers will have to wait on another issue for evidence of the shrewd reflection that distinguishes good essays.

Probably it has something to do with differences in the way we raise boys and girls, conditioning boys to be less comfortable with their feelings, but male students appear to adopt more readily a detached, ironical stance in their writing while female students are readier to tackle personal and interpersonal themes. Although boys are almost certainly the losers in this needless division of labor. Geoff Belcher's offbeat tale about a medieval Sam Spade-type character makes clever use of what is an inherently limited

In a suggestive but underdeveloped piece. Pat Allen, another Prestonsburg student, manages to evoke at least momentary horror with his account of a condemned woman's last 10 minutes

McDowell student Eric Lawson's 'Don't Get Above Your Raisin'" is a rarity in this collection in that it stops too soon. Just as the argument between an aunt and her niece about the virtues and perils of education gets interesting, the aunt caves in. Pity.

Two stories that would have been much improved by ending them sooner are Wheelwright student Lisa Anderson's "The Best of Friends." which suggests quite effectively the emotional impact of a friend's suicide but goes on just a paragraph too long, and fellow student Tonya Johnson's boygirl story, which is pleasingly perceptive about human relationships but is Gina Johnson, also of Wheelwright contributes a conventional but competent story about a boy-girl relationship that earned a "distinction" from the judges. "Mom's Chicken Soup." by Prestonsburg student Connie Branham, ends awkwardly but begins nicely and is imaginative and wellpaced in-between.

Unless the state of high school grammar, syntax and spelling is better than it is reputed to be, this anthology has benefited from some careful editing. A few typos and grammatical bloopers have slipped through but, whatever else is to be said for the writing here, it is generally in correct English sentences. No mean feat, that.

Time was no doubt a limiting factor. but one gets the distinct impression that some if not all of the authors would have produced better work if they had been sent back to the drawing-board a time or two. In any event, if they come later to feel a bit uncomfortable with their first published works, they will be in good company. For so has anybody who has ever struggled seriously to convey on paper or canvas precisely what is on their minds or in their

My bet is that the quality of their work will quickly improve, and that Mountain Magic will be one of the

(The magazine may be purchased, at $2 a copy, from any of the county high schools, from May Lodge, from the Russell May gallery, the First Commonwealth Bank's Prestonsburg or Betsy Layne offices, the Herrin-Johnson Pharmacy, and from Ritchie's Hallmark and the Francis Store downtown.)

The lake-by-lake rundown, as reported by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources:

WEST: At Barkley, white bass are being taken in the jumps and by trolling. Largemouth bass are caught by flippin' around shoreline cover, and bluegill are showing up around willow fly hatches.

BARKLEY: Clear to murky, stable at one foot above summer pool, 79 degrees. Hybrid stripers are hitting lures trolled near the dam at Herrington, where channel cats are taking cut bait around brush piles. Plastic worms fished off points and around structures are the best bet at all lakes in this region.

What Your Doctor May Not Be Telling You

Accepting, without question, decisions your doctor makes about your medical care may be unhealthy, the June Reader's Digest reports.

If you do not ask about drugs being prescribed for you or the reason for certain medical tests—or worse yet, if you blindly go ahead with surgery—you could come down with a case of 'iatrogenesis," otherwise known as a doctor-induced illness.

The fact that physicians can make people sick is rarely discussed publicly. though articles about tragic doctor errors routinely appear in medical journals. Most people have the false sense of confidence that, no matter what, the doctor knows best.

In truth, says Dr. David T. Nash, a cardiologist and clinical professor of medicine at Upstate Medical Center, University Hospital, Syracuse, N.Y., "Although American medicine today is the most technically sophisticated, it can also be hazardous to your health.'

The primary risks are from overprescription of drugs, questionable use of medical tests and x rays, incorrect diagnoses, hospital-incubated infections and surgery.

According to Dr. Nash, the surest way to avoid becoming a victim of iatrogenesis is for individuals to "become more knowledgeable, active partners in their own health care.'

Specifically, he recommends the •Staying well through common-sense practices, rather than relying on medicine to cure bad habits, is your best guarantee to a longer, healthier life.

·Become a vocal, informed selfadvocate in your medical care. It is your right to refuse any X ray, test or treatment that you are not convinced is needed. If your doctor does not like to be questioned, find another one who will accept you as a partner in your treatment.

·Ask about any medication prescribed. Find out its name, what it is expected to do, what side effects it may cause and whether any other substances you are taking will interfere with it. Make sure you tell the doctor any drug sensitivities you have. Take only those drugs that are absolutely necessary.

•Ask what the doctor hopes to learn from proposed laboratory tests or X rays, what the benefits and risks are, and the costs. What will happen if you do not have it done? Are there alternatives?

·When surgery is recommended, ask why. Find out if nonsurgical options are available and how often the particular opertion is performed. Other questions to ask: Will the surgery be done by a senior staff surgeon? How often has the surgeon performed the operation? Also, it is advisable to get a second opinion from a board-certified specialist who does not practice in the same office or hospital as the first doctor.

Acting isn't the only thing in Kevin Bernhardt's life

By Nancy M. Reichardt

"If you see me disap-pear from 'General Hospital,' it'll probably be by my own choice," states Kevin Bernhardt, who portrays Kevin O'Connor on that show

Kevin Bernhardt

By the time you read this, in fact, Bernhardt may well be off the soap, since O'Connor has turned out to be a multiple murderer and Bernhardt has a short-term contract.

If and when Bernhardt leaves "General Hospital, he'll certainly have other careers to fall back on. Before deciding to become an actor, he owned a usedcar lot, sold real estate and worked as a stockbroker. Since he has become employed as an actor, he has enrolled in classes in scuba diving and fencing - and plans to enroll in a race-car-driving course as

"I feel you have to have some other things going for you," says Bernhardt. "If you just want to be an actor and sit back and wait for your phone to ring, you're going to hang your-self. You can get very

"I studied until I felt confidant. Then I got an agent and a manager and started working. I feel kind of guilty, because most people starve for a long time before they get any work. I starved for about three weeks.

"I'm enjoying 'General Hospital,' "Bernhardt says. "I'm there to learn. But if I couldn't have my own story line, which 'General Hospital' has given me, I wouldn't want to be there. I don't want to be an extra.

'General Hospital' is the best daytime show for exposure," he adds. "With the other soaps, the audience knows who you are, but nobody in Hollywood knows - or cares. 'General Hospital' provides a training ground and exposure that can't matched."

On the personal side, Bernhardt is engaged to Apollonia (who portrayed herself on the nighttime soap "Falcon Crest" after shooting to prominence in Prince's film "Purple

COBRA (R-Warner Bros.) Starring Sylvester Stallone, Brigitte Nielsen, Reni Santoni. *

By J.T. YURKO

Sometimes it's a real tribute to say that a film would play just as well if the sound suddenly went dead. These are films where visuals are important and the cutting tells the story

But when this statement is made about Sylvester Stallone's "Cobra," it is hardly a compliment. The plot and the music in "Cobra" are mere special effects buttressing a string of chase sequences and the dialogue is so ridiculous that viewers would automatically assume that it had to be better than it is if it could not be heard. For those who don't already know, Cobra is a cop in Los Angeles whose violent tactics make Dirty Harry look like Sleeping Beauty. The film opens with a hostage situation in which Stallone strolls into the store and casually wastes the junkie (as if he stops by every afternoon to pick up some groceries and kill a punk). For the censor's sake he does shout "drop it a split second before emptying his .45 into him, but it's clear that Cobra is a vigilante with a badge.

When a group of homicidal maniacs suddenly decide to diminish the population of Los Angeles, Stallone is called in to fight fire with fire. Along for the ride its Brigitte Nielsen (Mrs. Sylvester Stallone). She has little to do but look pretty and scared. Like I said, the dialogue is hardly essential

Like Stallone's huge hit "Rambo," it's a foregone conclusion that the good guys will win and the bad guys will get blown away.

But if you thought that "Rambo" was far-fetched, wait till you see this one-man army. Stallone packs more armor than the Marines and runs up a body count approaching three figures.

It's all fantasy violence, ri-diculous shoot-'em-ups in which the guy with a scar or the guy who rides a motorcycle or the guy who kicks small animals is forced to eat lead.

The makers of "Cobra" are appealing to the basest in-stincts of the audience. The sad part is that they'll probably make a fortune doing it.

Host Families Needed For Exchange Students

Educational Foundation For Foreign Study, a non-profit organization has received several applications from European teenagers who will be spending the 1986-87 high school year in the Pam Gilkerson, area representative, will be interviewing and selecting local families to host a student for next year.

Through EFFS, European students from 13 countries can spend a 10-month academic year in local Kentucky schools, live with host families and become familiar with the Kentucky way of life first hand. They are curious and eager to learn about our culture beyond what they have seen on American television programs. In exchange, area students and the community get an idea of how life differs in other countries.

Host family selection now allows the student and family to begin their experience through communications prior to the student's arrival in mid-August.

For more information, contact Pam Gilkerson at 789-7183.

One-Man KET Show Portrays Churchill

The distinguished career and life of Winston Churchill, whose leadership both in and out of office affected the course of history, will be the subject of a one-man show on public television. The 90-minute special "Winston Churchill," airs Wednesday, June 18, at 8:30 p.m. on

In March 1946, shortly after Churchill was defeated in a bid to remain Great Britain's Prime Minsiter, he came to the U.S. to deliver an address at Westminster College in Fulton, Missouri. That celebrated "Iron Curtain" speech warned Americans about the dangers of Soviet expansion and eventually defined the Cold War.

Following that address, which many historians consider his finest post-war oration, Churchill delivered a series of informal talks around the country in a full schedule of personal appearances. "Winston Churchill" is a dramatization of one of those talks, spiced with wit and humor, as Churchill (portrayed by Robert Hardy) looks back on his career, its successes and failures, and the leading political figures he knew.

Hardy, a noted stage and television actor, also starred in "Young Winston" and on "Masterpiece Theatre's' 'Winston Churchill: The Wilderness Years." James C. Humes, the awardwinning author of Churchill: Speaker of the Century, wrote the script.

"Winston Churchill" is a production of The Susskind Company.

NUMBING HEADACHES

Cluster headaches are dreadfully painful. This type of headache can occur several times a day over a period of weeks. They have gained the reputation of being one of the most painful conditions known. Researchers now may have finally come up with a way to combat them. This promising new treatment is the local anesthetic drug lidocaine. It is given in the form of nose drops. Patients carry them and administer them on the side of the face that is painful. It is taken when the patient feels a headache coming on. Relief may come in just three or four minutes. In some cases, relief comes even quicker. Consult a physician if you are bothered by cluster headaches and would like to try lidocaine.

In this astonishing world of medical research the development of new drugs is a constant process. Here at COOLEY APOTHECARY your health concerns are also ours. We keep up to date on all the latest developments in our field so make us your local full service pharmacy. You'll find us located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

Workers Begin Survey of Homes To Ready for 1990 U.S. Census

president.

Census Bureau workers will fan out driven. across America this summer to complete the 1986 National Content Survey, an essential part of planning by the Commerce Department's Census Bureau to determine what questions to ask in the 1990 nationwide census.

Eight different questionnaires were used in a March mailing to about 48,000 households-including some in this area-scientifically selected to represent the U.S. population. Responses to various ways of asking questions and in what order, will play a major role in determing what subjects will be recommended to Congress in April 1987 for use in the 1990 census

Many completed questionnaires have been mailed back to the Census Bureau's processing center in Jeffersonville, Ind. A second questionnaire was mailed in April to those not responding.

Census Bureau workers will visit a sample of the households that did not respond to the mail questionnaire. They also will visit some households that did respond, to measure the quality of the responses. Title 13 of the U.S. Code (the federal census law) requires those receiving the content survey questionnaire to answer the questions. The same law guarantees the confidentiality of individuals' answers to census questions. Only statistical totals, combined from answers of all respondents, are

Most questions on the 1986 survey are similar to the ones asked in previous censuses: age, race, sex, marital status, income, education, type of housing unit, and so on. These basic questions also will be asked in 1990.

However, if survey results warrant, some new questions-including the following-could be submitted to Congress for inclusion on the 1990 questionnaire.

 More detailed questions for people who are disabled or have health problems that limit their ability to work and perform other activities.

•The addition of "solar" to the possible answers to a question about types of fuel used to heat a home. •A question on the number of smoke detectors in a home. ·More detailed questions about education, such as highest degree received and in what field.

•The number and type of motor vehicles used by members of a household and the total annual mileage

Lexington, Kentucky, 40501

The Kentucky Mining Institute has just published an updated version of the Kentucky Underground Coal Mine Guidebook. This is the first revision of the handbook since 1973; it was originally printed in 1940. Pikeville College has been an intergral part of this version through the individual contributions of several people; David Zegeer, Raymond Bradbury, Forrest Cameron, and John Stephens.

David Zegeer and Raymond Bradbury are both past presidents of the Kentucky Mining Institute. Both men have also given generously of their time and resources to help further the goals of Pikeville College. David Zegeer established a special scholarship fund at the College, and both men have served on the Board of Trustees.

The 1986 version of the handbook was edited by Forrest Cameron. He is an early graduate of the Pikeville College Mining Technology Program, the first program of its kind in the United States. Cameron continued his education at various institutions after completing the associate of applied science degree in minbing technology at Pikeville College.

The most direct Pikeville College contribution has come from faculty member John Stephens. Chapter 12, 'Explosions, Fires, Mine Rescue, and Mine Apparatus & Instruments," is the product of years of experience in both the classroom and the mines. Stephens, an instructor at Pikeville College, worked in the mining industry for many years as a safety inspector and a section foreman. In 1984, he joined the staff of Pikeville College to teach mining technology courses. He is particularly knowledgeable in the area of mine rescue, spending five years on an excellent mine rescue team while working at National Mines Corporation.

This handbook has been thoroughly revised and updated. The style has been changed from a question-and-answer format to a 'testbook' style, where infor-

State Launches Litter Campaign

The state Transportation Cabinet has launched a month-long Pick Up Kentucky campaign in a statewide effort to clean up Kentucky highways, Transportation-Secretary C. Leslie Dawson announced recently.

"We would like to encourage civic, church and local community organizations to help clean up our state highways for the summer tourist season," said Dawson. "Each of us can play an important role in seeing that Kentucky's natural beauty isn't diminished by litter."

The campaign will be in effect from May 19 through June 20. To encourage local participation, the Transportation Cabinet will provide free plastic litter bags to recognized organizations. As long as the supply lasts, the bags can be picked up at any of the Highway Department's 12 district offices throughout the Information concerning sites where the litter-filled bags can be left for pick up by state trucks can be obtained by contacting the Highway Department maintenance garage in each of Kentucky's counties.

SHOULD THE ELDERLY DISCUSS DEATH?

Elderly people often are reluctant to talk about death with each other or with their families. Though studies have found that most older people think about dying and talk about it, sometimes they may shy away from honest, open discussion.

Older people may think talking about death is embarrassing, especially when an inheritance is involved. Family members may avoid the topic for fear of upsetting an older loved one.

But death is as natural as birth. Truthful discussion about death and funeral arrangements helps make everyone feel more comfortable and brings to an end any misunderstandings about it. It is only through talking about death that one can tru-

-EVERYONE WELCOME-

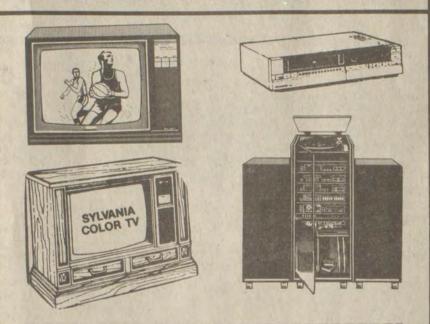

The Bank Josephine would like to make a statement concerning the recent robbery at our North Lake Drive location:

A robbery did occur on June 3, 1986. No one was injured, the robber was apprehended, and almost all the money was recovered. The police were able to account for the unrecovered amount.

The bank employees are to be commended on their alertness, and efficient manner in giving information to authorities, so imperative in their investigation.

Detective Woodard with the Kentucky State Police commented, "he had never worked with such well-trained employees. The security procedures were among the strictest and most efficient he had observed". As a result, the investigation progressed swiftly, leading to an arrest and recovery for the bank.

"Statue of Liberty" Will Encore In July

The Statue of Liberty has stood for nearly 100 years welcoming the tired, the poor, the huddled masses yearning to breathe free. They came to the United States for many reasons. Some were looking for religious or political freedom, others sought a better way of life. The Statue of Liberty became a symbol of these dreams.

'The Statue of Liberty," a one-hour documentary commemorating this national monument, will air Wednesday, July 2, at 8:00 p.m. on KET.

Through a combination of rare historical material, current film footage, and interviews with people from all walks of life, "The Statue of Liberty" documents the history of the statue from its initial conception in the minds of a group of French scholars to its contemporary significance in the hearts of Americans. Noted author/historian David McCullough narrates.

The creation of French sculptor Frederic Auguste Bartholdi, the statue was a gift from the French people to the American people in celebration of the United States' centennial anniversary. The statue was the tallest structure in the New World when completed, her torch stretching 305 feet above New York's harbor.

Twenty-one years after she was initially conceived and 10 years after the centennial celebration for which she was intended, the statue was finally unveiled October 28, 1886.

'The Statue of Liberty" tells the unique story of how the statue came into being, from her complicated construction in France to her arrival at New York's Bedloe's Island, later renamed Liberty

Beetles' Southern Tour Has Reached Kentucky

They're not the famous British rock group, but the beetles whose southern trek has brought them from New England to Kentucky are just as likely to bring the house down.

Specifically, they are old house borers, a type of beetle the larvae of which eat away at the sap wood of pine and spruce, and occasionally hemlock, fir and Douglas fir. These beetles, first introduced into the United States from Europe about 100 years ago, spend several years in the damaging larval stage. And like most visitors, these unwelcome wanderers are likely to find plenty of good eating in Kentucky.

Chris Christensen, Extension entomologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said a large number of Kentucky farmers have used rough-hewn, untreated pine in the construction of their barns and other farm buildings.

'And these old house borers really like that stuff," Christensen said.

The adult old house borer is a 1/2- to 34-inch-long, slightly flattened, brownish black critter shaped more like a cricket than the more rotund, washtub shape associated with many beetles.

'They come slightly flattened. If you find any you need to go ahead and flatten them all the way," Christensen said.

In June and July is when they'll be mating. The female will lay about 75 eggs in two or five batches in cracks, crevices or between two surfaces of wood. It is important for owners of buildings made of untreated wood to watch for these insects so they will be able to take preventive measures before the eggs hatch and infestation occurs, Christensen said.

Effective treatment of an infested building often requires fumigation, an expensive undertaking. Christensen said lindane and chloripyrifos can be used to kill adult old house borers.

Signs to watch for as indicators that infestation has occurred include oval holes in wood 3/8 inch by 1/4 inch; a wavy appearance on the surface of the

WARM WEATHER TAX TIPS

Summertime can be a great time for cutting taxes if you make the right moves. Consider these possibilities:

 If you and your spouse work, the cost of sending your children to a summer camp may qualify for the child care credit. Specialized camps or educational camps don't qualify.

 That summer clean-up around the house will probably produce outgrown clothing and household items you no longer want. Donate them to a charitable organization for a tax deductible contribution.

 If you mix business with summer vacation travel, the business portion will be deductible. That includes your lodging, meals, transportation, and incidental expenses (such as tips) to the extent they are business-related. Taking your spouse along on a business trip isn't deductible unless his/her services or presence is business-related. However, the portion that is nondeductible is only the excess over what you would have paid

 If you have a business, consider hiring your minor children for the summer. The wages you pay them are deductible to your business and will be taxed in the children's lower or zero tax bracket. There's also no social security tax to pay on the children's wages unless your business is incorporated.

· Summer is a good time to do business entertaining. Be sure you keep complete records of the cost, the date, who was enter tained, and what the business purpose was.

· If you're in business, consider having a non-working spouse fill in for vacationing employees. The salary you pay your spouse is not subject to social security tax (unless your business is incorporated) and will create eligibility for an IRA contribution on your spouse's part. Also, unless tax legislation changes this, you'll be eligible for the working couple's deduction. If you have children who require child care, you'll also be eligible for the child care credit.
