Lower Insurance Rates Seen As Court Orders 400 Hydrants

By Joe Porter

Termed "The biggest story that's happened in this county in a long time," by Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, members of the fiscal court, Monday, accepted a bid for 400 fire hydrants, a move that will insure better fire protection and lower insurance rates for thousands more people in Floyd County.

In a special meeting, Monday, the court voted unanimously to accept the bid of $262,354 of Cardinal Supply, Inc., of Barbourville, W. Va., on recommendation of Bill Harvey Howard, superintendent of Prestonsburg City Utilities Commission. Howard estimates that homeowners of the county who are in a Class 10 fire classification will realize a savings on their fire insurance premiums of up to 50%. Because of his expertise, Howard was called on to advise the court, and after studying all bids submitted, he disqualified the lowest bid because the tapping valves failed to meet necessary standards of quality, and in addition, the company is now on strike. He concluded, "I recommend that you accept the total low bid of Cardinal Supply."

"Have you ever done any business

Judge Expects Work Completed By This Fall

with this outfit?" asked Magistrate Gerald DeRossett.

"No, I haven't."

"Is there any way they can raise their bid after we've awarded it?"

"No, sir," Howard said, "It's firm." Members of the court then moved to accept the bid. Hydrants, priced at $370 each, will be installed every 1,000 feet countywide where they can be hooked up to four-inch pipelines. This includes parts of Prestonsburg.

The next step will be to take bids on actual construction work. This will be done July 17, and Judge Stumbo said he expects the project, which has been in the planning for over a year, to be completed by fall.

Judge Stumbo said that not only is the project ambitious in terms of dollars spent—$500,000—but its effect will be far-reaching with better fire protection and safer homes for thousands, as well as lower insurance rates.

Even though some homeowners may have to replace existing two-inch water lines with four-inch lines for the hydrant hook-up, it is viewed as an investment that will pay off in the long run in terms of fire protection and savings on fire insurance.

The number of hydrants ordered is so much larger than any ever placed by a county government previously that the company called the judge-executive's office here to be sure there was not a mistake. "We've never received an order for more than 40 at one time before," their representative said, explaining the call.

"They couldn't believe this," an official said, "because no county has ever placed an order for so many hydrants to be installed at one time."

Another county government accomplishment was marked, Monday, when Judge Stumbo delivered a new white van to the Archer Park Senior Citizens Center. The purchase was made possible by a federal grant with the county contributing $1,551, or 10 percent of the total cost.

By Louise Houghton

Months of studying pros and cons, hearing divergent and sometimes heated views on where the new Wheelwright-McDowell High School should be located came to a fairly quiet end last Wednesday night when Floyd Board of Education members approved the Mitchell property site at Hi Hat for construction of the school. Superintendent Ray Brackett now is authorized to proceed with purchase of the site, which was endorsed in April by state Department of Education officials.

Board member Ray "Shag" Campbell cast the lone dissenting vote.

The board also authorized the superintendent to proceed with purchase of the Astor Collins property at Lackey after the site is appraised by the state School Facility Construction Commission. If the appraised value is less than the price acceptable to the owners, however, Brackett was instructed to proceed with purchase of a T & K Mining Co. property at Goose Creek instead.

The Lackey property won state approval in April as a possible site for a consolidated Wayland-Garrett elementary school.

Between 75 and 100 citizens attended Wednesday's meeting in spite of a last-minute change in location from Prestonsburg to Allen Central High School, made necessary by the large number of people attending a separate meeting at Prestonsburg High School, according to Brackett. No one registered to speak to the board, however, he said.

Among other business, the question of contracts for non-certified school personnel was postponed until next month and the board accepted the resignation of longtime board attorney W.W. Burchett as well as numerous bids for supplies and services in the coming year.

Burchett's resignation, which became effective when his contract expired yesterday, was not entirely a surprise, according to the superintendent. School board business has become increasingly complicated and demanding in recent years, he said, and the Prestonsburg attorney, who has served the board for more than 25 years, expressed a desire to "taper down" his workload. Burchett has been a very effective attorney for the board, Brackett said.

Love of Books, Learning Motivate Library Director

By Jeff Weddle

Though he left Prestonsburg High School still shy of a diploma, the love of books and learning is responsible for a Prestonsburg man being on the verge of completing a master's degree and aiding others in enriching their lives through reading.

Terry Manuel is now director of the Floyd County Library in Prestonsburg, but in 1979 he quit school still lacking a half credit in history. He soon acquired a GED, however, which led to four years at Alice Lloyd College, degrees in history and sociology from Pikeville College, and finally graduate school at the University of Kentucky. He has completed about half of the coursework for the Masters of Science in Library Science, and expects to have that degree by the end of the summer.

Though Manuel's background includes several years of library work during his college days, he never intended to become a library director. His first love was history, he said, and reasoned that working at the library is about as close as he could get, here, to working in a museum.

He began working at the library as a bookmobile driver. After about three years on the road, delivering books to patrons across the county, Manuel was asked by the library's board of directors if he would consider taking over the director's job when the former director resigned.

"I've always been interested in libraries, museums and archives, but I never thought about it as a career. I took the bookmobile job thinking that I would go onto some nebulous career later on," said Manuel, adding that "I never thought I'd like it as well as I do, either."

The library board offered Manuel the directorship on the condition that he would agree to earn an MSLS at UK. They are paying his tuition and allowing him to take time away from work to commute to Lexington for classes. He also had to agree to remain as director here for three years after finishing the degree. Manuel says he is happy here and finds that the agreement presented no hardship.

Prestonsburg Library Director Terry Manuel says he enjoys the challenges of administration, but admits that occasionally he likes to man the circulation desk and visit with patrons.

It's obvious that Manuel likes his work. He misses dealing with the public on a regular basis, but he is now in a position to guide the library according to his own vision. One change he has made since assuming command is allowing children access to the entire facility. In the past they had been discouraged from browsing in the adult sections.

Being bookmobile driver offered some memorable occasions, such as the time he was driving to a stop at Mud Creek when a duck hitched a ride by flying into the moving vehicle, waddling around for a while, then just as quickly exiting. Another memory is of the time Manuel took the bookmobile to one of his regular stops at a county housing project.

"A little boy, about three-and-a-half or four years old came in with his parents and they filled out his library card. The next time I came back, he came alone and wanted to check out some books, but forgot his card. I probably shouldn't have done this, but I decided to go ahead and give him the books." Manuel asked the boy his name so he could mark down the books in his records. "His face clouded up something awful and he started crying, saying 'You don't remember my name.' After that I always had his name written on the top of my clipboard."

When Manuel began as bookmobile driver, he said an average week would see maybe 30 books circulated. Within three months he had raised that number to over 1,000. Though he credits much of his success to luck, Manuel admits that a lot of planning went into raising bookmobile circulation. He spent several weeks deciding on where the bookmobile should make its stops and was always sure to make his visits on a regular schedule. The only time that schedule was interrupted was when his daughter was born. He took four days off then.

Since he has become library director, Manuel's duties are mainly administrative. He says he misses the direct contact.

Auto Accident Complicated By Drugs, Assault, Theft

By Louise Houghton

What began as a simple car accident at Allen, last Tuesday, quickly mushroomed into something else as the Ohio man who allegedly caused the wreck tried to drive away in one of the two ambulances called to the scene. He was foiled in that attempt, but later assaulted the Kentucky State Police trooper who took him to the hospital for blood testing, and ended up in jail charged with 12 assorted counts of assault, theft, drug possession and traffic offenses.

Jerry Lee Harrison, 28, of Massillon, Ohio, remained in jail here this week, with bond set at $33,000 and arraignment scheduled for August 4.

According to Trooper Tina Wermuth, Harrison was driving his 1979 Oldsmobile Cutlass on U.S. 23 at about 7:20 p.m., June 23, when he ran the red light at Allen and collided with a vehicle occupied by William D. Setser, 39, and William Chadwick Setser, 11, both of Prestonsburg, and Melissa Castle, 16, of Minnie. Riding with Harrison was Robin Fiehn, 26, of Canton, Ohio.

All of those involved, except for Harrison, received minor injuries and required medical assistance. While Wermuth was investigating the accident and ambulance personnel were helping the injured, Harrison reportedly climbed into one of the ambulances and tried to drive it away. He was stopped, Wermuth said, by the intervention of a U.S. marshal who had seen the accident and stopped to offer help. The marshal, whose name was not recorded, jumped into the ambulance with Harrison and took the vehicle out of gear.

Meanwhile, on the back seat of Harrison's car, Wermuth found a green Tupperware bowl containing marijuana. She began to suspect that the car might contain additional contraband when Harrison asked, "You didn't find the cocaine?"

The injured were taken to Our Lady of the Way Hospital in Martin, where all but Fiehn were treated and released the same evening. Fiehn was hospitalized until Thursday. Harrison was taken to jail, but for him the evening wasn't over yet.

At the jail, Wermuth asked Harrison if he would consent to having his blood tested for chemicals. He consented and was taken to the emergency room at Highlands Regional Medical Center. When Wermuth removed his handcuffs to allow him to sign hospital forms, however, Harrison began fighting with the trooper, kicking her in the legs and arms.

With help from a security guard, Wermuth managed to get the handcuffs back on Harrison and the blood test was performed. The results are not yet available. He was charged that evening with fourth-degree assault, possession of marijuana, disorderly conduct, operating a vehicle under the influence of drugs, and not having an operator's license.

Supreme Court Overturns McNally-Gray Convictions

The U.S. Supreme Court last week overturned the 1984 convictions of Prestonsburg auto parts dealer Charles "C.J." McNally and James E. Gray, a former state Cabinet secretary, saying that prosecutors had failed to show that anyone had lost money or property because of the men's actions. The two had been found guilty by a Lexington jury of conspiracy and mail fraud for funneling $200,000 in commissions to themselves and others through an allegedly phony corporation from the state workers' compensation insurance policy.

Both men were elated, they told reporters, and McNally added that he believed he had been caught up in a "vendetta" against Julian Carroll, who was governor at the time. The prosecution was "a witch hunt; this was KGB tactics, Gestapo tactics," he said.

The two were the last to stand trial on charges that stemmed from a five-year investigation by the U.S. Justice Department of alleged corruption in Kentucky state government under the administrations of Carroll and former Gov. Wendell Ford. Neither Ford nor Carroll was indicted following the investigation, and only one man went to prison. Howard P. "Sonny" Hunt, Jr., former state chairman of the Democratic Party and a friend of both McNally and Carroll, pleaded guilty to tax fraud and mail fraud and served 22 months in a federal penitentiary.

A spokesperson for the Justice Department called last week's reversal by the Supreme Court "devastating." The decision could make similar prosecutions more difficult in the future by forcing prosecutors to show that a defen-

Two Outdoor Concerts Mark July 4th On KET

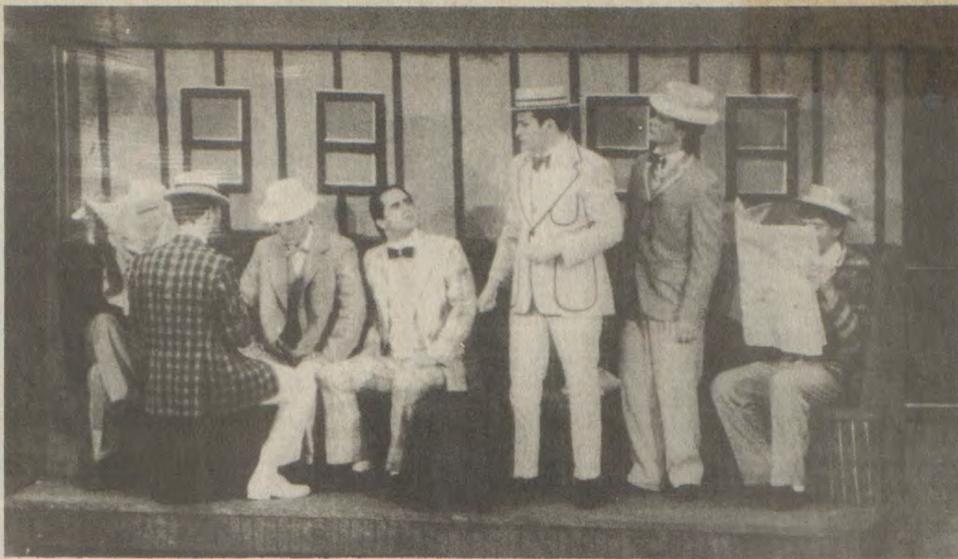

Two outdoor concerts highlight Fourth of July programming on KET. The "Evening at Pops" presentation, "A Boston Pops Fourth With John Williams and the Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra," airs Saturday, July 4, at 8:00 p.m., followed by "A Capitol Fourth—1987" at 9:30 p.m.

"Evening at Pops" continues a summertime tradition with its 90-minute holiday concert, attended by one-half million people. John Williams and the Boston Pops Esplanade Orchestra host the festivities from the banks of Boston's Charles River. Special guest Johnny Cash performs the world premiere of his own composition, "The Spirit of '76."

Fireworks, cannons, and stirring performances of Tchaikovsky's "1812 Overture" and John Phillip Sousa's "Stars and Stripes Forever" round out the concert performance.

Next, E. G. Marshall hosts "A Capitol Fourth—1987." Marvin Hamlisch conducts the National Symphony Orchestra in this Independence Day concert and fireworks display held on the west lawn of the United States Capitol.

Begun in 1979 by Congress and the National Symphony, each year the outdoor concert draws thousands of Washingtonians and tourists who lounge, picnic, and enjoy the music in true American concert-in-the-park style.

Lost Boy, 10, Found, Here, Safe but Sleepy

By Joe Porter

The boy was found asleep on a rock, but not until Prestonsburg's Police and Fire departments, along with the Floyd County Rescue Squad, undertook an extensive two-hour search through the hills.

Ten-year-old Michael Sivey, of Houston, Texas, and his family were here last Tuesday, June 23, visiting the Austin Casebolt family in the Indian Hills apartment complex, when Michael decided to explore the hills nearby. According to Fire Chief Thomas Blackburn, the boy had been left alone while the parents went to the grocery store. When they returned, he was missing. Rescue workers were notified at 8 p.m.

Blackburn sent a Squad 6 truck to the apartment complex, and using the dispatcher's office in the Municipal Building as their headquarters, Chief Blackburn and Captain Chuck Akers of the Rescue Squad, set up a search pattern to work from. Nine firemen, nine Rescue Squad members, and five policemen took part in the search of Mays Branch, Trimble Branch, and Mayo Hollow.

The fire chief described the terrain as brushy with a tall tree canopy but easy to walk through. "What happened was that he walked up there, got disoriented, and couldn't find his way out," Blackburn said.

"Momma, I'm going to go out and help find that boy," Christopher Judd, 15, of Indian Hills Apartments, told his mother. At 9 p.m. Judd and two friends, Terry Copeland, 11, and Adam Fairchild, 9, joined a search party on Mays Branch, and it was the three boys who went ahead and found the lost boy at 9:50 p.m.

Blackburn reported that the searchers combed systematically, carrying flashlights, walkie-talkies, and canteens of water. Every ridge was covered, and the Fire Chief said, "we were hitting different points and hoping we would come across him."

Blackburn attributed the operation's success to the lost boy's common sense. "He had been told by his parents that if he ever got lost to stay put, and he would be found. And that's what he did. It was good that he sat down. It would have made it harder on us if he had kept wandering around," Blackburn said.

HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

Grady Spradlin celebrated his birthday Saturday, June 13, with an outdoor barbeque at his home on Abbott. Many friends and relatives joined with him in the celebration. Those attending were Jeannette Craycraft, of Louisville; James Earl, Billie Jo, and Michael Spradlin, Helen, Dick, Lana, and Teresa Fairchild, all of Huntington, W. Va.; Larry and Jason Spradlin, of El Paso, Texas; Larry, Zachary, and Kelly Spradlin, of Ada, Ohio; Mike, Linda and Lea Spradlin, Herb and Elvia Spradlin, Christine Spradlin, L.B. and Garnet Fairchild, Tom and Mary Jo Hereford, Bill Tom, Kathy and Matthew Goble, Bill, Mary and Susan Elkins, Tommy and Rebecca Hereford, and Jackie Childers, all of Prestonsburg.

HER HOMETOWN of Prestonsburg was the site for novelist Denise Giardina's first autographing session of her new book, "Storming Heaven," published this spring by W.W. Norton and Company. From here she plans to hit New York for further promotion of the book, a story of the unionization struggles of mine workers in West Virginia during the 1920's.

Knott Countians Sentenced In Eastern Postal Robbery

Six Knott countians who pled guilty to the October 2 burglary of the Eastern postoffice and subsequent cashing of stolen U.S. Treasury checks were sentenced to prison terms in U.S. District Court, June 17, in London.

The six were arrested October 3 in Hazard after passing a stolen Social Security check at a bank there. A teller, who became suspicious when the person cashing the check could produce no identification, notified the Hazard police, who apprehended the suspects in their automobile.

Inside the car, police found a large number of uncashed Social Security checks bearing the Eastern postoffice address, money orders, and a money order machine, state police reported at the time. These items and $2,700 in cash had been taken from the post office.

Although 100 Social Security checks were stolen, a number of them had been cashed at various Hazard businesses, and several others were unaccounted for.

U.S. district Judge Eugene E. Siler, Jr., sentenced Aileen Campbell, 31, of Larkslane, to four years in prison followed by five years probation. Co-defendant Joel Wicker, 30, of Soft Shell, was sentenced to five years imprisonment followed by five years probation. The two had pled guilty to theft and conspiracy to pass the stolen Treasury checks.

Ermadine Campbell, 27, of Larkslane, was sentenced to four years in prison after pleading guilty to receiving two of the stolen checks. Noel Wicker, 30, of Soft Shell, was sentenced to four years in prison after pleading guilty to a charge of conspiracy to pass the stolen checks. Eddie Dwayne Chaffin, 25, of Mousie, and Larry K. Slone, 30, of Garner, were each sentenced to one year and one day in prison after pleas of guilty to conspiracy. One other defen-

Deputies Continue Marijuana Search

By Joe Porter

Sheriff Henry Hale is continuing his crackdown on the growing of marijuana plants. Friday, 41 more plants were seized by his deputies.

Acting on a citizen's tip, the Sheriff's department searched a wooded hillside and fields on Stratton Branch. Deputies John Blackburn, James Hall, and James Johnson combed the area for over two hours before they discovered the illegal crop.

Deputy George Hale said investigators have suspects in the case and charges may be brought, pending further investigation. Hale said that the size of the crop indicated that it probably would have gone for personal use rather than being sold on the street. The deputy said that after every bust, the confiscated plants are destroyed.

Mahogany formerly referred to 67 different kinds of wood that shared similar characteristics and so could be sold in the U.S. under the name mahogany.

Hurray for the Red, White, and Blue!

The Fourth is just days away, and it's time to enjoy a peculiarly American holiday—our country's birthday.

Things are a little quieter now than they used to be. We'll have no greasy pig or greasy pole contests, no speeches, not even a parade. Somehow, it seems too bad with all the festivals that will crowd the calendar later in the fall that we do not organize better to celebrate our national birthday.

This should be everyone's Red, White, and Blue Day. It seems that all and sundry can find some fault with the system, and usually do so with as much accompanying publicity as possible. We think it should, at least for one day, be noted that there's a lot that's right with this country.

Not everywhere would you be free to badmouth the President, the governor, the judicial system, your county officials, and on and on ad infinitum.

That's one of the greatest privileges we enjoy, the freedom to criticize, to complain—the freedom of speech. And let's not forget the written word, the freedom of the press.

Just two of the reasons we say, "Hurray for the Red, White, and Blue!"

The delay in setting contracts for non-certified personnel was due to the board's uncertainty about whether Floyd schools will end this year with red or black ink, Brackett explained. The amount of certain June tax receipts will not be known until early July, he said, and the board wants to be "teetotally positive" that last year's $403,278 deficit has been wiped out before deciding how many non-certified personnel to employ.

Parent-teacher conferences will be given a new emphasis next year as the board approved a plan for teacher inservice activities that includes a day free for the conferences. The day probably will be split into two afternoons, the dates of which have not yet been set, according to inservice education director Roberta Davidson.

Contracts awarded by board vote, based on bids received at its last meeting, went to Abacus Computer Store, of Prestonsburg, and HTI, Inc., of Hyden, for computer service; Hager's Typewriters and HTI, Inc., for typewriter service; Prater Creek Mining Co. for stoker coal and Martin-Elkhorn Coal Sales for mine run coal; Ashland Office Supply for office and copier supplies; AB Dick and Van Dyke for other copier supplies; B & W Fire Extinguishers, of Washington, Ky., for fire extinguisher service; and Booker and Associates for geotechnical services at the future sites of an elementary school in Allen and a middle school in Prestonsburg.

The board also accepted and opened bids, with contract awards to be announced at its next meeting, for gas and diesel fuel, paper, plumbing supplies, student insurance, library books and building materials and supplies.

In routine business, the board voted to renew its lease with CSX Transportation for a small piece of land on the Maytown Elementary School campus; accepted annual reports on the use of textbooks and the use of school facilities by non-school groups; approved the submission of a Chapter 1 application requesting nearly $1 million for special reading programs; approved a summer youth employment training program involving 224 students at 17 worksites; and reiterated its standing policies on parent involvement and non-discrimination.

Board member Fred Newsome did not attend Wednesday's meeting, due to a death in the family, Brackett said. The next meeting was set for 7 p.m., July 8, at the Prestonsburg High School cafeteria.

The next day Wermuth obtained a warrant to search Harrison's car, parked at Stratton's Ashland station at Ivel, whose trunk had been sprung partly open during the Tuesday evening accident. In the trunk was a footlocker in which she found cocaine.

The marijuana found Tuesday proved to be more than eight ounces, and on Wednesday Harrison was charged with trafficking in marijuana. He also was charged with possession of cocaine, violation of the drug paraphernalia law, theft for attempting to steal the ambulance, and three more counts of fourth-degree assault, one for each of the three people whose car he struck on Tuesday.

Prestonsburg, with 2,500 population, is not the largest town in the county. This distinction goes to Wayland-Garrett, incorporated as one. Resignations of Prestonsburg's Chief of Police, Bill Spradlin, Fire Chief Mitch Thomas, and City Attorney E. P. Hill, will become effective July 1, it was announced by Mayor Arthur C. Carter, following the decision by the city council Saturday night that all city officials who are candidates in the campaign for county offices should resign. The cry, "Shine, Mister?" will no longer be heard on Prestonsburg's city streets due to an ordinance enacted by the city council Saturday which rules that henceforth all shoeshine boys must not seek business on the city streets or in public buildings, such as the courthouse. An advertisement for a reportedly miraculous medicine appeared in this week's issue with the heading: HOT WEATHER IS HERE—BEWARE OF BILIOUSNESS! Married: Miss Beulah Mae Bentley, of Garrett and Mr. Wash Shepherd, also of Garrett, June 19 in the office of the Floyd County Times; Miss Mary E. Spears and Ike Mulkey, June 22 at the home of the Rev. and Mrs. Isaac Stratton. Bits and Pieces

THE GLORIOUS FOURTH

The Fourth of July always brings back memories of the very first wrestling match I ever saw back in 1939. It was held in the vicinity of where the present library and health department buildings now stand. This was then open ground beside the old Prestonsburg High School building and was the location of all Fourth of July events in those days.

Everyone, me too, got all dressed up and went to town. It was hot, humid, miserable, and we had a great time. Usually, we sat on the porch of the late Congressman A.J. May's home where there were swings, chairs, and yes, shade. It also afforded a grandstand view of the goings-on. When something of special interest came up, we would all go over to join our friends and elders to yell, cheer, or just watch.

The wrestling match, an uncommon experience for most in those pre-TV days, pitted a brawny, burly, black-browed "wrassler" called Ivan Rasputin, a Russian, against a fine specimen of manhood, blonde, upright, the embodiment of manly virtue known as Knute Swenson, a Swede. Want to bet on who the villain was?

One woman, carried away by it all, put a hammerlock on Fire Chief Arthur Blackburn, who implored, "Lady, don't blame me. I don't even know those fellas."

Oh, yes. It was the Glorious Fourth.

THE GUILLOTINE

OR THE DRILL

Have you ever had to go to the dentist? Of course you have.

Are you scared out of your skull? Well, I am.

Once, I chilled all the way from Lexington to Louisville with the heat on—and this was in August. I mean teeth chattering, goose bumps, the whole bit. And I survived that ordeal, but it didn't convince me. I'm still a devout coward.

A few days ago, I faced horrors fortunately undreamed of by most—losing my teeth, at the very least, root canals, and who knew how many; pyorrhea pockets and oral surgery. Sleep has been a word foreign to my vocabulary for at least a week.

I keep wondering, what did the Indians do? Or Marie Antoinette? I guess Monsieur Guillotine took care of that. Wouldn't it be comforting to know that she had a horrible toothache at the time of her execution and went with a smile of impending relief?

AND AWAY WE GO!

Each week we lose familiar faces, at home and among those we have become accustomed to as almost a part of our culture. Jackie Gleason was one of those. He was a real person with all the weaknesses and strengths that make us the poor creatures we are; the wonderful creatures we are; the funny, pathetic, honorable, foolish, dignified, courageous creatures we are.

Gleason somehow embodied all these qualities with candor and an exuberant honesty.

We hope he went with the ability to feel that it is to better things that "Away we go!"

EK Beverage Company Settles Pollution Suit

East Kentucky Beverage Company, Inc., of Pikeville, has agreed to pay a penalty of $100,000 for violating the Clean Water Act and to begin complying with wastewater regulations at the company's plant at Coal Run Village, according to Louis DeFalaize, U.S. Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky. The agreement, entered in a June 15 consent decree, marked an end to civil action No. 84-56, Pikeville, the United States of America vs. East Kentucky Beverage Company, Inc.

Water Improvements Bill Passes House Vote, Friday

By Jeff Weddle

Plans for upgrading Floyd county water facilities came one step closer to reality last Friday when the U.S. House of Representatives passed a bill designed to provide $6,000,000 for extending water lines and improving treatment facilities here. The bill also provides funding for projects in other states.

The Appropriations Bill for the Dept. of the Interior still has to pass the U.S. Senate and be signed by the president before it becomes law, but Congressman Chris Perkins (D. Hindman) who championed it in the House of Representatives is optimistic that this will occur. With other bills under discussion there, however, it is uncertain when the senate will vote on the measure. A spokesman for Senator Wendell Ford said it will be sometime after July 4 before a vote can be taken.

If approved, Perkins said the money will be used to "increase water plant capacity so that next year and the following year we will be able to extend water lines to even more people in Floyd county."

The $6,000,000 will be used to fund the first phase of a proposed multi-year upgrading program. These improvements include the running of a water line from Price to the vicinity of

Two Are Slain In Pike Shooting Friday Morning

The subdued hum of weekday business on Pikeville's Main Street was ripped apart, Friday, at about 8:30 a.m. when a Pike county man shot and critically wounded his former wife, killed her mother, and then committed suicide, according to police.

Billy Ray Haley, 44, of Robinson Creek, and Nova Racine Bentley, 47, of Collins, were dead at the scene of the attack, which took place in front of a parking lot on Main Street across from the Citizens Bank. Diane Bentley, 26, who lived with her mother, was taken to Methodist Hospital, Pikeville, and later transferred to Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington, where she was reported to be in critical but stable condition this week.

Police found two .38 caliber revolvers lying on the ground near Haley, but were not certain whether both belonged to him. At least nine shots had been fired.

The two women apparently were on their way to the Pike county courthouse, where Nova Bentley was involved with a small-claims case, when they were accosted by Haley. It is also believed possible that Diane Bentley intended to swear out an arrest warrant for Haley, who had threatened her the night before.

Haley and Diane Bentley were married in November, 1985. The union was annulled three months later, but they remarried and were divorced by November, 1986. During that year, Diane Bentley charged her former husband with violent crimes three separate times: in March for unlawful imprisonment; in April for assault, theft, terroristic threatening and wanton endangerment; and in July for assault. State police were called to the Bentley home the night before the killings, but Haley had left by the time they arrived.

Home, Auto Blazes Keep Firemen Busy

By Joe Porter

The call came in at 4:38 a.m. last Thursday, and the Prestonsburg Fire Department responded immediately to a house blaze on Main Street, West Prestonsburg.

The Shepherd residence was burning out of control when the two engines and Squad 6 rescue truck pulled up in front of the house. "The fire had ventilated itself through the roof," said Fire Inspector Larry Adams, "and flames were coming out the windows and shooting 15 feet above the house."

Adams said that what gave the firefighters a problem was a false ceiling that had to be ripped down to get at the flames above it. While one man worked with a pike pole pulling down the sheetrock, another man sprayed the flames with water. It took 19 men two hours to put the blaze out, and two firefighters suffered lacerations.

The Shepherd family was away from home when the fire broke out in a rear bedroom. Its cause is still under investigation, according to Adams.

In another fire last week, Brenda Crum, of West Prestonsburg, was in the drive-thru line at the Dairy Queen, Wednesday, when her car engine caught fire. The fire department sent Squad 6 rescue truck at 1:55 p.m., but by the time they arrived, an unidentified man had put it out with a fire extinguisher.

The engine was smoldering and Fire Chief Thomas Blackburn, recognizing it as an electrical fire, reached in barehanded, and pulled out the distributor cap and smoking wires. His men then doused it in a controlled way to minimize damage. "We cooled and smothered it," Blackburn said.

The Fire Chief appreciated the quick work of the man who assisted with the fire extinguisher and attributed the cause to faulty wiring that shorted out.

Men first settled in North America, scientists hypothesize, by walking over the Bering Straits when they formed a broad land-bridge during the last Ice Age.

Ligon along Clear Creek, at a cost of $1,000,000; a water line from Wayland to Minnie, $507,000; a line on Arkansas Creek, $529,850; and a raw water intake from Dewey Lake to the Prestonsburg Water Plant to double its capacity to about 6,000,000 gallons a day, $2,600,000.

The funds will be made available from money earmarked for the reclamation of mine land abandoned prior to the 1977 federal reclamation law. A stated purpose of these funds is to facilitate water plant expansion.

A spokesman for Perkins said the congressman has worked closely with Floyd county Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo in designing the funding request and planning the project. "Judge Stumbo and Chris have sat down and discussed this on numerous occasions," said Dave Whalin, Perkins' administrative assistant. "The judge said 'This is what we need to do,' and they worked out how to do it," Whalin added.

About $19,000,000 will be needed to complete later phases of the project. Whalin said there is a good chance that at least some of that money will be appropriated next year. He cautioned, though, that there is no way to predict how much money Floyd county can expect to receive under next year's budget.

A Little Strange

"...The word is out that it is not safe to drink in Prestonsburg."

This statement made by the owner of a drinking establishment seems to be a little strange when you consider the source. A statement that is more nearly correct would be that it is not safe to drink anywhere.

It is even stranger that the speaker was thinking of the drinker and how it might affect his business rather than the possible victims of their abuse.

Dicamba, Tobacco Don't Mix

In recent weeks the press has carried a number of articles about an international shipment of cigarette tobacco containing residues of dicamba herbicide.

Although dicamba has been widely used by American farmers for two decades and poses a little risk to man or the environment, it is not a tobacco herbicide.

Dicamba is not registered for use on tobacco in the U.S. or anywhere else in the world. Dicamba herbicide was developed to kill broadleaf weeds. Tobacco is a broadleaf plant. For that reason, the company has never evaluated the use of dicamba on tobacco; dicamba used in normal levels would probably kill the tobacco before it killed any weeds.

Apparently, a few farmers in some parts of the world have been applying small amounts of dicamba on tobacco plants to make leaves appear more ripe than they are. This is an illegal use of a valuable product and serves no benefit to the tobacco industry nor, ultimately, to the farmers themselves.

Pesticides are developed and sold according to regulations established by the Federal Insecticide, Fungicide and Rodenticide Act. This law was passed to protect the health and safety of growers as well as the American public. Misuse of pesticides is a violation of federal law and people who misuse pesticides are subject to fines and other penalties.

More than that, however, misuse of one pesticide has the potential to jeopardize the future of all pesticides, especially in a society that is increasingly concerned about the risks associated with the use of these valuable agricultural tools.

We do not know the extent of the misuse of our product on tobacco. We do know, however, that we always encourage the proper use of all our products and only on the crops for which they are registered. Sandoz Crop Protection is a company which is proud of the safety of our products and the important role they play in the American farm economy. We are distressed about the alleged misuse of one of those products and have offered our support to the U.S. Department of Agriculture, as well as to state officials in any program they develop on this subject.

Tobacco is an important American crop. Dicamba is a widely used herbicide with value in controlling broadleaf weeds. This letter is to remind you and your readers that they do not belong together.

Jurors Cite Misuse Of Handicapped Space

Halting the misuse of handicapped parking space at the Floyd county courthouse was at the top of the list of recommendations made to Circuit Judge Hollie Conley by jurors, recently, Conley said Tuesday. The jurors were concerned that vehicles apparently driven by able-bodied people are parked there much of the time, he indicated.

"Everybody uses it except the handicapped," Conley observed.

The judge routinely questions jurors about any problems or suggestions they have concerning their service at the courthouse. The recent group of jurors, who finished their term of service this week, also described the condition of courthouse restrooms as "deplorable," according to Conley. In addition, they recommended that a coatrack be installed in the Circuit courtroom, where they can leave their hats, jackets or umbrellas while sitting in the jury box.

Flower Seed the Clown Entertains Home Folks

FLOWER SEED THE CLOWN and the gospel group, The Singing Americans, of South Carolina, provided entertainment to over 1,500 members of the Big Sandy RECC at their annual meeting, held last Wednesday at the Prestonsburg High School. Flower Seed is the alter ego of Floyd county native, Linda Kay Sliski.

By Jeff Weddle

She has performed for Vice-President George Bush at the White House, and for Governor Martha Layne Collins in Frankfort, but last Wednesday she gave perhaps her most special performance to date—before her parents at her old high school.

Floyd county native Linda Kay Sliski, aka Flower Seed the clown, was part of the entertainment at the Big Sandy RECC's annual meeting, held this year at Prestonsburg High School. She was a student there from 1957-'59, though she transferred to Martin High School before graduation.

What was it like to return to PHS for her first Floyd county performance since hitting the road in 1972? "I'm excited," she said, "but there's probably no one here I went to school with." Sliski said when she arrived at the high school Wednesday afternoon she lay down on the stage in the gymnasium for about an hour, just taking it all in. "The cheerleaders came in and practiced their routines all afternoon," she said. "I didn't have that much energy even when I was a student here."

But if Sliski is lacking stamina, Flower Seed sure didn't let on. She bubbled with energy and enthusiasm throughout her performance. Before the show she put smiles on the faces of all the children who came over to talk to the red-nosed clown with inch-long eyelashes and size-20 shoes.

Sliski has been a professional clown for the past 15 years. Last year she toured the lower 48 with a group of entertainers in the "National Down With Frowns and Up With Grins" campaign. Along the way she performed before 11 governors and 22 lieutenant governors. The last stop on the tour was Frankfort, where she met and played for Gov. Martha Layne Collins and the state general assembly.

The theme of the tour was "We're Americans and we ought to be proud," she said, adding "We should back our politicians and buy American products." Sliski clowned in Washington last Easter as part of the White House Easter egg hunt. She didn't get to meet the president, but did perform for George Bush. Her encounter with the vice-president was "quick," she said, but long enough for her to decide that "he's a very nice man."

In her travels, Sliski has opened for such stars as Louise Mandrell and Boxcar Willie. Once she played golf with Perry Como. A photo of that event was picked up by a national wire service under the headline "Como Clowns With a Clown." Sliski described Como as "a wonderful man, a very wholesome family man."

Sliski became involved with clowning as a natural outgrowth of her love of theatre. She was a liberal arts major in college, and always had an inclination toward the stage. "This is just another way to perform," she said.

Though a life on the road produces many memorable experiences—she is away from her Dayton, Ohio home 11 months out of the year—Sliski said her biggest joy recurs once each month when she donates a day to the pediatrics unit of a hospital wherever she happens to be. Though all such stops are special, Sliski said dealing with blind children is always a moving experience. "I let them feel of my costume; my nose and hair. Everything's all right until they get to my shoes. Then their faces spring to life."

Sliski's parents, Irene and Lewis Campell, of Allen, attended the RECC performance. Both agreed it was good to have her home. "It's nice to have her back," said Mrs. Campbell. "She hasn't been with us very much."

Job Corps Grads Hear Dr. Owen, Mel Pender

By Joe Porter

Do-Q before IQ, positive peer pressure, and victor not victim were the three messages Pikeville College President Dr. William Owen delivered last Wednesday's Job Corps commencement.

Dr. Owen told the seven students receiving their diplomas that their performance—what they do in life—was more important than their IQs or their abilities. He also stressed the need for them to carefully select their friends, "because a good friend won't give you bad advice. "Lastly, the college president encouraged them to go out and be victors over adversity.

Speaking before Owen was Olympic Gold Medalist Mel Pender. Pender gave a motivational talk on how it's never too late to start. Using his own experience as an example, the great sprinter said he was in his twenties when he went back to school and 36 when he tried the world record for the 60-yard dash with a 5.8 seconds performance. Pender won his Gold Medal for the 400-meter relay in the 1968 Summer Olympics in Mexico City.

The ceremony was held in the recreation room of the Carl D. Perkins Center. Dr. Edwin N. Grigsby, pastor of the First Presbyterian Church in Pikeville, offered the invocation as well as the benediction at the conclusion. And the Job Corps Chorus, directed by Susan Ronning, sang, "Please, Lord." Don Fields, Gordy Johnson, and Bob Music were presented Gold Certificates of Appreciation by Bill Young, recreation and avocation supervisor.

"They are people in the community who have put forth an extra effort to help in some way in a recreational capacity," said Ronning, who also served as the coordinator for the ceremony.

Ronning called the commencement exercise a moving experience for all those present, especially members of the Job Corps student body.

Every month the Job Corps graduates young men who have completed their training in one of six vocational skills. Often the graduates will also receive their GED certificates. This month the graduates are Barry Frith, culinary arts (cooking); Bradford Grant, carpentry; William Josey, electricity; Aldrich Wilson, plumbing; Andrade Key, plumbing; Sylvester Thomas, plumbing; and Theodis Williams, building and grounds maintenance. Grant and Tomas were also GED graduates.

The Job Corps center also paid special thanks to placement officer Troy Grim, secretary Alva Hall, and instructor Jim Hughes for their dedication and hard work, as well as to the Mountain Comprehensive Care Greenhouse.

EXPRESS THANKS

Mrs. Morton Adkins expresses her thanks to Our Lady of the Way Hospital, the doctors and nurses, Jeff and Pam Patton, Mr. and Mrs. Buster Richmond, Bill Patton, the ministers and brothers and sisters of the Bethel Church, Ronald Reid and all those precious neighbors who have helped while her husband has been ill.

Attend UK Medical Prep Course

Three Floyd county students, Lee Boyd, of Allen, Leenata Maddiwar, of Martin, and Christopher Croot, of Bevinville, are attending a six-week preparatory course at the University of Kentucky Chandler Medical Center. High school graduates from across the state interested in medical careers are participating in the course. This is the seventh year UK has been able to offer this special program known as the Professional Education Preparation Program (PEPP).

Funded by the Council on Higher Education, PEPP addresses the problem of inadequate health manpower distribution in Kentucky by selecting students from counties which the federal government has determined to have those shortages. During the program, students will have the opportunity to work with medical and dental school faculty and students in clinical situations. Program activities also include training in study skills and problem solving and courses in chemistry and calculus.

John Wiggs, director of the Health Careers Program at UK, is the program director for PEPP.

Craftspeople Are Urged To Register

Craftspeople, not already registered in the Kentucky Department of the Arts Resource Directory, are being urged to sign up now in order to be able to apply for various 1987-88 crafts activities. This includes eligibility for the business development and loan program started by Gov. Martha Layne Collins, as well as other segments of her plan to strengthen and expand the crafts industry.

"There are many craftspeople around the state who are not familiar with the services we offer to those trying to expand their crafts business," said Arts Commissioner Crit Lualien. "We want to locate those people in time for them to jury and be eligible for the special events we sponsor throughout the year."

She explained that in order for craftspeople to participate in the business development and loan program, and to take part in events such as the department's annual wholesale market, department-coordinated booths at national gift shows, the Derby Breakfast craft fair and displays in the state park system and at state welcome centers, the craftspeople must be registered with the crafts section of the department and apply to have his or her work juried. A jury of three, nationally prominent crafts professionals will review the products for artistic merit. Craftspeople whose products do not pass the jury review may still be part of the department's Resource Directory, attend workshops and receive other technical assistance from the department.

The application deadline for jurying is July 6, 1987. Applicants will be required to submit quality slides of their work; no samples will be accepted for this jury session. Another jurying session will be held prior to the Department of the Arts Annual Wholesale Crafts Market slated for March 1988 in Louisville.

To register with the department, contact Crafts Marketing Program, Kentucky Department of the Arts, Berry Hill, Louisville Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, telephone (502) 564-8076.

West Liberty Hosts Sizemore Art Show

Well-known folk artist Tim Sizemore, of Sally Stephens Branch, will show some of his oil paintings beginning today (Wednesday) at the Pioneer restaurant in West Liberty. His works depict traditional Appalachian themes. The show will continue through the month of July.

If you stare for a long time at a bright yellow light and then look at a white ground, you'll "see" violet. This is known as an "accidental color." Staring at red produces an accidental turquoise; at orange, navy, and conversely.

"...the staff...to my knowledge, they got the best in Eastern Kentucky."

— Paul Castle

Well, well, well... look who's getting better.

"...We have good doctors and we have good facilities here...and we always get good treatment."

— Darcas Music

"I don't think you'd beat Highlands anywhere."

— Joe Adams

Getting better. To our patients, it means recovery or major progress. To us, it is that and something more: Our own improvement and growth.

We keep getting better at what we do. And that affects your recovery. We study, we train, we practice and we push ourselves to get better.

We never stop making strides in medical and surgical care, while advanced technologies help us get better at everything from monitoring your vital signs to processing your paperwork.

And, we keep getting better at being people—considerate and neighborly. Because that's as important to your recovery as good medicine.

We keep getting better to keep you closer to home, closer to friends and family. That's why more folks are choosing us instead of long trips to distant cities. We're working for you, to be the better choice for a growing list of services in diagnosis, treatment, recovery and rehabilitation. You'd have to go a long way to get better care.

Trusty, Good Defense Takes Morehead Legion To Limits

Some coaches like offense. Others prefer mound strength, but most say defense is the key to baseball success. Teams have different physical characteristics. What works for one may not be good for another, but where Floyd County's senior Babe Ruth squad is concerned, steady defense is a main criteria for success.

Scoring runs isn't a problem. The team averages over six runs per game. However, Floyd County has given up more runs, 62, than they have scored, 55.

Not because of a weak pitching staff, but because of constant defensive inconsistencies.

Going into Friday's game with Morehead, Floyd County had committed 28 errors in 61 defensive innings. Lack of solid defense has led to many unearned runs, and the sole difference between three losses that could have been in the victory column.

In games which FC has held their team errors to under three, they were 2-1, with the deciding run in the loss being unearned.

rightcenter field.

Crisp's big hit tied the score at 4-4, and it stayed that way until the bottom of the eighth inning.

Trusty, after walking Scott Collins in the seventh, sent the game into extra innings by inducing Kip Crager, on a hit and run with one out, to pop out.

Floyd County shortstop Brian Hall hauled down the infield fly, threw across the diamond, and connected with Brad Hall to double up Collins.

Floyd County failed to help their righthander, going down in order in the eighth, and giving Morehead an opportunity to win in the home half of the inning.

Trusty, possibly tired, walked Trent Demoss to start the final at bat. Demoss stole second, and Chopper Gambill was then walked intentionally.

Trusty did his job, striking out Shawn Nickell and Vic Adams, bringing to the plate Jason Blair.

With first base open, and Blair already owning two hits in the game, he was also intentionally walked to get to David Gray, zero for three with two strike outs.

The decision had been made. The stage was set, but Floyd County was sent home a one run loser when Trusty's full count fastball was a ball, forcing Demoss in with the winning run.

Trusty, 0-1, was tagged with the loss, going all the way for Floyd County. The regular Blackcat performer struck out six, and gave up only four hits.

Floyd County, 3-6-1, lost their third game in as many tries to established Morehead but played possibly their best game of the season.

With the season half over, the local squad showed promise of finally coming together to form a solid baseball team.

The Sporting Times

By ALTON HUFF
(Editor's note—The opinions expressed herein are those of the writer and are not necessarily shared by The Times.)

Good vs. Evil, criminals vs. crime fighters. Everyone seems to have a battle to wage, but why does it have always to be man against man, husband against wife, sister against brother?

The world is going crazy outside, and now the door can't shut it out anymore. Home is where the heart is, but neither home nor heart is safe from self-inflicted destruction.

It's in our television sets. It's on our radios.

Some man went crazy. He killed three old women and two dogs. Two dogs went crazy. They attacked three children and a police person.

Not long ago it wasn't safe to leave the country. Now it isn't safe to walk the downtown streets.

Iran has threatened the United States. The United State is terrified.

Why?

Whatever happened to consideration for human life? Is power and position more important than drawing a few more breaths?

Live and let live. 55 saves lives, but they increased it to 65.

A working man has no chance to live. He works to make rich people richer. The fruits of his labor fill someone else's basket.

Insurance was made mandatory. We have to mandatorily exhaust our bank accounts just to drive on the highways we built.

You can't get a job if you don't have experience. Employers won't give you a job so you can get experience.

America. Land of the free, and home of the brave. We let third world countries rule our every move. Richard Nixon was pardoned. A man spent several years in prison. Later he was proved innocent.

Police get away with abusing citizens. We are expected to say yes sir, and no sir.

Allen Park has a ton of gravel on it's baseball field. Hundreds of miles of roads do not have any.

The farmer is laughed at; ridiculed. Americans enjoy being overweight. Oh, just some food for thought.

Henry Aaron and Jesse Jackson want baseball to hire black managers. Every man was created equal, but hire the best man for the job.

Basketball is the big religion in Kentucky. Churches are seldom filled, but look at Jim Bakker.

Who do we trust?

God? Where is he? Different religions have different beliefs. All of them say their's is right, but if they are different, they can't be.

Boycott Shell. Boycott Coors. Salute the Union, and kiss the flag.

Martha Layne sold out Kentucky to the Japanese. Did we have a say in that move? I didn't.

They sell products here. We can't sell ours there. Just like apple pie and mom's love.

We fall down and worship Larry Bird, Eric Davis, and Phil Simms. We forget the man who died for us.

Would the first three do that?

Cocaine is destroying the country. That's a lie. We're destroying the country. Our President, and his administration are helping, too.

Little Moscow is in New York. Chinatown is in San Francisco. Tokyo took over Georgetown. Native Americans live on reservations.

The Red man owned the land. The Black man worked the land. The White man destroyed the land.

We all want something else until we get it. Mel McDaniel can sing, but nobody beats Hank, Jr. What is good, and why do we always want more?

Make love not war. Most of those people who get married spend most of their pre-divorce years fighting. How do we separate the difference between the two?

What's forever for? Just a continuation of our past pain and suffering?

Is caring really worth it? Not many people will care back. They see a caring person as one they can take advantage of.

Reach out a helping hand, and draw back a stub. You've been robbed blind of all your supportive efforts.

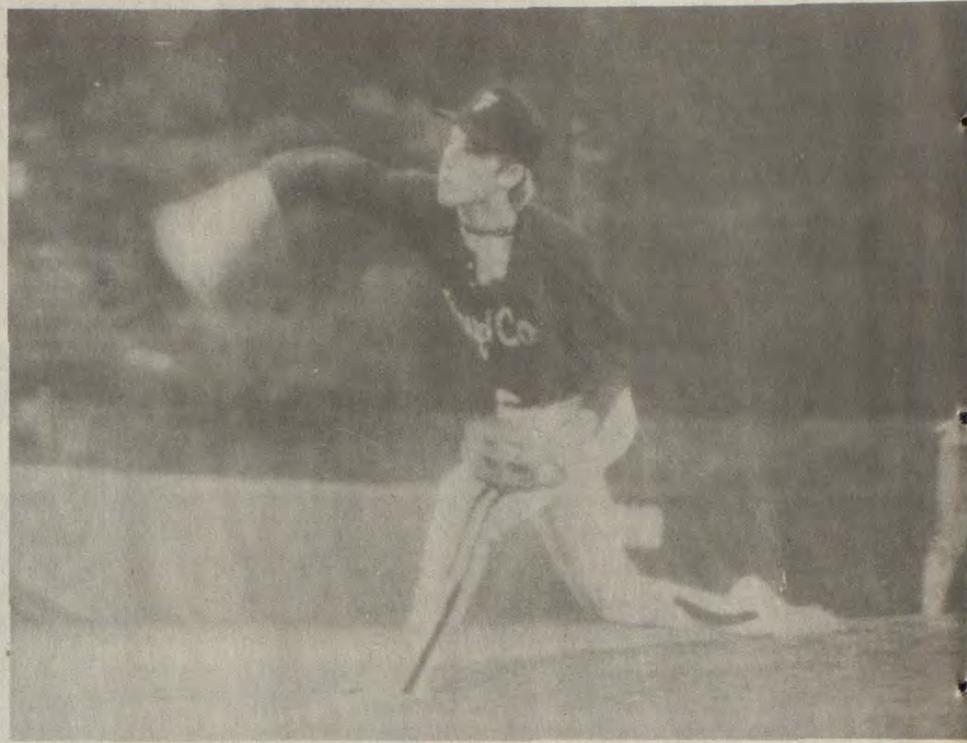

Work hard and good things will come. When? Probably under the third-world rule. We'll get our slice of bread and glass of water.

If you don't know someone you will never get anywhere. Where is where, and who is someone?

Whatever happened to the guys in the white hats? Did those heroes ever exist? Can good overcome bad, or do good guys really finish last.

STRONG OUTING: In his first start of the summer Tim Trusty enjoyed success against heavy hitting Morehead. The 16-year-old righthander gave up only four hits and three earned runs in seven and two-thirds innings, striking out a total of six.

Big Third Key As Locals Break Knott County Jinx

In four previous senior Babe Ruth baseball meetings, Floyd County has come in closer to beating Knott County than an 8-8 dark-shortened tie.

The first game of Wednesday's doubleheader had just ended in bitter disappointment, at least in Floyd County's baseball viewpoint.

What started out as a promising local outlook, turned into a defensive nightmare, Floyd County committed six errors on the Allen Park gravel pit enroute to a 10-3 thrashing.

Brian Hall, FC shortstop, drilled a two-run homer in the first inning, and Tony Kidd doubled and scored in the third as the locals took an early 3-0 lead.

Roger Horne, starter and loser for Floyd County, owned a no-hitter through three innings, but pitching, defense, and hitting suddenly suffered a total collapse.

collected two hits each, and scored a combined four runs.

In scoring 11 runs, Floyd County banged out a total of nine hits in support of righthander Mark Tipton.

Tipton, 1-1, worked the full seven games to earn his first victory of the summer. In the route going performance, Tipton gave up seven runs, two earned, on seven hits.

The 16-year-old Prestonsburg High regular struck out six while walking four, a major improvement over his eight free passes the first time out against Knott County.

Floyd County, 3-5-1, continued to get heavy hitting. Led by Thomas Hall's four RBI performance, FC banged out 15 hits in the Wednesday doubleheader.

Brian Hall also enjoyed a good offensive day, collecting four hits in six plate appearances, driving in three runs and scoring three.

Darrin Conn, a senior-to-be at Allen Central, lifted his summer average to well over .400 with a three for five showing. Conn also slapped his first extra-base hit, an opposite field double in the second game.

Defense continued to haunt Floyd County, committing 12 errors in the two games.

SHORT SPORTS

For the first time ever Floyd County may have American Legion baseball.

This summer a baseball program was established, giving county youngsters between the ages of 16-18 a chance to play the diamond sport beyond the regular high school season.

Although the team has played under the heading of senior Babe Ruth, no support from this division has been made available.

This, along with a lack of neighboring senior Babe Ruth teams, has led to an attempt to establish an American Legion team.

The Martin Post of the American Legion is expected to discuss this matter in their July meeting, and if support makes it possible, summer baseball for the 16-18 age group will be bigger and better in 1988.

Changing from senior Babe Ruth to American Legion makes the team eligible for major tournaments, and greatly increases the player's exposure.

If they so desire, 12 players will be back from this year's squad, leaving a total of eight roster positions open.

Next year's squad will consist mainly of Floyd County talent, with key additions from surrounding counties. A team bus, along with other needed additions will become reality if support continues.

in the world.

With Becker's loss, the field is there for the taking for Ivan Lendl. Lendl, the world's number one ranked player, has Wimbledon's second seed.

In women's action, Martina Navratilova remains in contention for her eighth singles title.

The women's championship are set for Saturday morning while the men's first match will be held the following day.

Both championship matches will begin at 9 a.m. on their respective dates.

The Kentucky High School all-star basketball team will have to wait until next year to gain a victory over their Indiana counterparts.

In a counter meeting, Indiana swept both the boys and girls contests, and last Saturday night, the Indiana squad did a repeat number.

Playing in Freedom Hall, Kentucky's all-star squad took Indiana into overtime, but fell 119-114.

Is there a silver lining with every cloud? There has to be. Something has to be ahead. Something has to keep us going, keep us pushing through the storms of life.

The pain is great at times. Sorrow and depression always show their disappointing heads.

Confused? Good, because so am I. But when that little child smiles, or when laughter drowns out sobs, it all seems worth it.

Everyone demands something from us. Sometimes they demand too much, but up ahead it will all become clear.

We will all, one day or another, realize true peace. Oh, but don't let that cold wind blow until I'm too old to leave young. Life is rough but face facts. It's about all we have.

Reds Watch '87

Despite Loss Cincinnati Returns Home With Half Game Lead In West

Just over two weeks ago the Cincinnati Reds said goodbye to Riverfront Stadium, departing for a 13-game Western Division swing.

Starting in the Astrodome and concluding in Dodger Stadium, the trip began and ended with Reds' losses.

Including stops in Atlanta and Houston, Cincinnati visited four of the five Western Division towns, winning six of 13 baseball games during their combined stops.

Mike Scott and Houston gave Cincinnati an unwelcomed welcome in Houston. Atlanta shared equally in a four-game series, although the Braves proved to be hostile hosts.

The Reds rolled into San Francisco Tuesday night with a slim lead over Houston and the Giants, but when Cincinnati vacated the bay area they had gained a game on San Francisco, winning two of three games against the West's third placed team.

Starting pitching has been ridiculed this year. Not just Cincinnati's, but by all fans. Offense has created a major league stir with the souped up baseball, controversy, and a larger than normal number of homeruns.

Only three national league teams have under a 4.00 earned run average against Los Angeles this last weekend, Cincinnati pitching made a concentrated effort to reach the credibility measuring level.

Pitching was not, as it has been in the past, a problem. The Reds' staff, in three games, surrendered only five earned runs.

Righthander Ted Power, doing it to his former team again, started Cincinnati on the right track by throwing a shutout in Los Angeles, Friday night, 6-0.

Power, 6-3, recorded his first career major league shutout and second complete game of the season—both against the Dodgers.

In the complete game shutout, Power, a former Dodger product, gave up seven hits, struck out three, and walked one. Tracy Jones was credited with the game winning RBI when the Reds right-fielder slammed his ninth homerun of the year, a solo shot in the opening inning.

Bo Diaz latter drilled a three-run homerun after Dave Parker crunched his 18th longball of the year in the sixth. The three Cincinnati homeruns, Friday, marked the 12th time this year the Reds have hit at least that many in a single game.

The three longballs brought Cincinnati's season total to 100. The Reds had hit 52 at this point last season.

Pitching was the key Friday night, though. It was Saturday night, too, but defense failed to field routine chances.

Ron Robinson, Cincinnati right-hander, pitched six innings of one-run baseball before being lifted in the seventh in favor of a pinch hitter.

When Robinson departed, the Reds owned a 3-1 lead, but Kurt Stillwell's errors led to two Dodger runs in the eighth, and one in the 10th inning as LA defeated Cincinnati, 4-3.

John Franco, 4-2, was tagged with the loss after surrendering the unearned run in the bottom of the 10th inning.

Guy Hoffman continued Cincinnati's impressive stretch of pitching, Sunday, working five solid innings. Buddy Bell's early solo homerun, and Dave Concepcion's run-scoring double in the sixth inning gave the Reds' a 2-0 lead.

Through five innings Los Angeles failed to get a base runner past second, but in the sixth, Guy Hoffman was shelled by the Dodgers.

Three consecutive extra-base hits led to two LA runs, tying the score. With no outs and John Shelby standing on second base, Pete Guerrero cranked his 16th homerun of the year, putting the Dodgers up, 4-2.

Guerrero's shot proved to be the game winner, because Fernando Valenzuela toughened on the mound.

After Concepcion's sixth inning double, Valenzuela allowed only one hit, a Barry Larkin single in the eighth inning, as Los Angeles claimed a 4-2 win.

Valenzuela, 7-5, went the distance for the sixth time this year, striking out seven, walking one, and giving up only five hits.

Hoffman, 6-2, suffered the Reds' loss, ending the lefthander's winning streak at six games.

Although Cincinnati lost the rubber game of the series, and the rubber game of the road trip, they returned home in first place.

San Francisco turned back Houston, 8-4, allowing the Reds to retain their half-game advantage over the Astros—at least until Houston and Mike Scott invaded Riverfront last night.

Cincinnati will conclude their short two-game series with the Astros tonight before leaving Western Division opponents.

The Reds have bounced around the West this past month, without great success, but going East doesn't bring brighter prospects.

Starting Thursday night, Cincinnati will open a four-game series with the New York Mets.

Although they have been experiencing problems, the Mets are healthy now and as potent as ever. Dwight Gooden is back, and so is tough reliever Roger McDowell.

Johnson County Man
12th Mine Fatality

A Johnson county man last week became the 12th mining fatality in Kentucky this year, and the fifth to die in accidents involving roof falls.

Michael D. Conley, 26, of Tutor Key, died Thursday at Mayo Resources, Inc., mine No. 1 near Stambaugh, north of Paintsville. A miner for eight years, he was married and had one child.

State officials said that Conley, operator of a continuous mining machine, was in a section of the mine where the roof was not supported, attempting to splice a cut cable, when the fall occurred at 9:50 p.m. Several other workers were in the mine at the time, but none was trapped or injured by the fall, according to Joey Lucas, spokesperson for the state Department of Mines and Minerals. "It was just a big rock" that fell on Conley alone, he said.

Entering an unsupported area violates safety regulations, Lucas emphasized.

Repr. Stumbo To Address
Prosecutors Conference

Crime victims and children will be the emphasis of the 1987 Kentucky Prosecutors Conference, according to Attorney General David L. Armstrong.

Norman S. Early, District Attorney from Denver, Colorado will be the keynote speaker and will discuss how commonwealth's attorneys can provide more effective services to victims of crime. Other speakers will include John D. Douglass, Dean of the National District Attorneys College; Arch Lustber, Communications Consultant, Washington, D.C.; J. William Howerton, Chief Judge of the Kentucky Court of Appeals, and Greg Stumbo, Majority Leader of the Kentucky House of Representatives.

Other topics on the agenda include prosecutorial ethics, recent Kentucky court decisions effecting criminal law, the state's new juvenile justice code, and effective communication through the media.

According to Armstrong, three candidates for state office will also be guest speakers at the conference. The major party candidates were invited to present their views on issues relating to criminal justice in Kentucky. Fred Cowan and Chris Combs, candidates for Attorney General, as well as state representative John Harper, Republican nominee for Governor, will speak at a luncheon at 11:30 a.m., Friday, July 17.

The 1987 Kentucky Prosecutors Conference will be held July 16-18, 1987 at the Executive Inn Riverfront, Paducah, and will include an awards luncheon to recognize outstanding prosecutors for their service to Kentucky.

Hospitals To Give Nursing Home Care

As of July 1, the Cabinet for Human Resources will begin paying for Medicaid-allowable costs related to recently-licensed hospital/long-term care beds in six Kentucky medical facilities.

Highlands Regional Medical Center is one of another seven Kentucky hospitals applying for authorization of dual licensure care units, by which approved hospitals use designated beds for nursing-home-level care of patients no longer in need of round-the-clock acute, hospital care. Additional applications are expected now that the state has cleared the way for Medicaid reimbursements for dual licensure charges.

Human Resources Secretary Al Austin said hospitals which have been approved for dual licensure units are: Berea Hospital; Casey County War Memorial Hospital, Liberty; Garrard County Hospital, Lancaster; The Medical Center at Bowling Green; Pineville Community Hospital; and Russell County Hospital, Russell Springs.

Hospitals which have applied to the cabinet's Office of Inspector General awaiting dual licensure approval are: Breckinridge Memorial Hospital, Har-dinsburg; Ephraim McDowell Hospital, Danville; Flaget Memorial Hospital, Bardstown; Harrison Memorial Hospital, Cynthiana; Highland Regional Medical Center, Prestonsburg; Murray-Calloway County Hospital; and Saints Mary and Elizabeth Hospital, Louisville.

Austin said, "Dual licensure is one solution that touches three areas: high demand for more long-term care options, reduced need for in-hospital care and our necessity to stretch the funds available for health care financing."

"Dual licensure allows empty hospital beds to be filled with patients in need of nursing home care, avoids some of the brick-and-mortar costs of new construction and creates new opportunities for facilities and patients alike."

The concept allows hospitals to designate up to 25 beds or 10 percent of its capacity, whichever is greater, for the care of people in need of skilled nursing or intermediate (nursing home) care.

Use of these beds is limited, however, to admissions only when no skilled nursing or intermediate care beds are available for an eligible patient in nursing homes within that community.

"Increasing utilization of Kentucky's empty hospital beds through the dual licensure approach was recommended by Gov. Martha Layne Collins' Special Medicaid Program Review Advisory Committee in December 1985 and was acted upon by the General Assembly in April of the following year," Austin said.

Discussions with federal officials earlier this year cleared the way for the state to certify dual licensure beds for Medicaid reimbursement.

Estimates produced by the cabinet's Department for Medicaid Services place dual licensure costs at an estimated $5 million in additional Medicaid billings in the 1987-88 fiscal year. "That estimate is based on an anticipated slow start up in the shift of Kentucky hospitals to the dual licensure capability," Austin said. "We believe that in the following year Medicaid-related dual licensure costs will exceed $1 million."

CHR Inspector General William Gardner said hospitals obtaining dual licensure approval must meet some, but not all of the different requirements mandated for Kentucky's nursing homes. "These hospitals must have a licensed long-term care administrator, staffing necessary to meet the needs of nursing home residents and abide by all provisions of Kentucky's nursing home reform laws, including the patient's Bill of Rights," Gardner said.

"We have not imposed some of the design and square footage requirements for nursing homes on these hospitals, choosing instead to concentrate on the quality of care standards. We've tried to avoid creating a financial hardship that might stand in the way of some hospitals otherwise being able to provide this type of service."

Family Has Joyful Reunion After 43-Year Separation

Marie Slone (right) and her daughter, Kimberly Slone, stop for a snapshot in a San Francisco airport corridor. The two then flew on to Southern California for a reunion with Marie's sisters, Nettie Russell and Hannah Hobbs. Also accompanying Marie on the trip was her sister-in-law, Willadean Henegar, and Willadean's son, Bill Henegar, Jr.

By Joe Porter

Marie Slone, of Punkin Center, near Estill, had no family—no brothers or sisters—for 43 years, but this past spring she learned of their whereabouts and they were joyfully reunited.

She was the youngest child in her family and 11 years old when her mother died in 1940. Her family lived in Hazard, and when her father died in an accident four years later, both of Marie's older sisters were married and living in Michigan. Her brother Sylvan Vires, Jr., was serving in the Navy at the time, and her other brother, Earnest, was away at college.

Orphaned, Marie moved to Glo and worked as a babysitter for the Wayne Deskins family. Five months later she married William "Buddy" Slone and lived with his family while he was away in the Navy. "I had Buddy's family," Marie said. "I took care of his family when they were sick, and I thought I was complete, but there was always something missing and that was my own family."

She tried to locate her brothers and sisters, but the situation was made difficult by the fact that she had moved away and changed her name. In time Buddy came back from the service, went to work as a miner, and they started their own family.

Years passed and still no word about her brothers or sisters. Marie Slone never stopped thinking about them, but she came to accept the fact that she might not ever see them again. "I had given up trying to find them," Marie said. "Most definitely." Yet she has always believed in God's powers, and believes, too, that He works in mysterious ways. "God said he would never close one door without opening another, and I believe that with all my heart." And eventually a door did open.

In February, her son's mother-in-law, Edith Richie, from Hindman, came to visit, and in conversation, Mrs. Slone learned that Mrs. Richie used to live in Hazard and had been neighbors with Melinda Vires, the wife of Marie's uncle. She then called Melinda Vires in Hazard and got her oldest sister's address. Things happened quickly after that. She wrote to her sister, Nettie Russell, in Anderson, California, and a few nights later Nettie called. In that same night all her brothers and sisters called. Marie said she was joyous that night. "We were just scattered to the winds and now we're together again, and it's nothing less than a miracle," she said.

Three weeks later, her brother, Sylvan Vires, Jr., who is now 62 and lives in Cincinnati, drove to Floyd county and spent a weekend with his sister and her family. Then, May 12, Marie flew to California to visit her sisters, who both live in Anderson. She stayed with each sister a few days and returned after a week. "The love and all was still there," Marie said. "Just like when we were children." Now she is planning a trip to see Earnest Vires who is 72 and lives in Inkster, Michigan.

The reunion after so many years made Marie think about her mother. "I had this feeling that my mother had gathered us all up again and brought us together. It's just as if everything had come together, and I was in complete harmony with the world."

Bible Schools Conclude At Methodist Churches

Vacation Bible School conducted at the Community United Methodist Church last week, was well attended. Those in charge of the school included: the Rev. Croot Wins Scholarship Given by Centre College

Chris Croot, of Bevinsville, has won a Centre Honor Scholarship at Centre College.

The scholarship is worth $2,000 per year, or $8,000 for four years and was made on the basis of academic and leadership achievement without regard to financial need.

Croot, a recent graduate of Prestonsburg High School, who will enroll in Centre as a freshman in September, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest S. Croot of Route 122, Bevinsville.

Centre has awarded 102 competitive scholarships, worth between $2,000 and $20,000 for four years, to outstanding members of this fall's entering freshman class.

Founded in 1819, Centre is the nation's 13th-oldest independent liberal arts college. It is the nation's smallest coeducational college to have been selected to have a chapter of Phi Beta Kappa, the academic honorary society and has produced more Rhodes Scholars and finalists in the last two decades than any other Kentucky college or university.

SOAP BEAT

No need for violence on the daytime soaps

By Marie Michaels

The networks often use terms such as "entertaining," "glamorous," "romantic" and "socially relevant" to describe the stories featured on their soaps. But "irresponsible," "sensationalistic," "sick" and "dangerous" more accurately describe the Sin Stalker story line, which recently concluded after running for several months on "Another World."

Ed Fry

In a story reminiscent of the Alfred Hitchcock thriller "Psycho," the Sin Stalker (later identified as psychiatrist Dr. Alan Glazer, played by David O'Brien) set out to rid Bay City of its "wicked women" - by murdering them. He committed the murders on the orders of his dead mother, whose voice he heard in his mind. Yet he pursued mostly female victims: Over the duration of the story, the Sin Stalker killed four women and attempted to kill five more before murdering even one male character.

The "AW" producers thought enough of the story to pay for location shootings at Lighthouse Point in Montauk, N.Y., during the May ratings sweeps, when the Stalker's identity was revealed. It took another month for Bay City cops Adam Cory (Ed Fry) and M.J. McKinnon (Sally Spencer) to finally help capture the killer. But for most "AW" viewers, a week was too long for this sadistic character to be on the loose!

Serial murderer story lines are nothing new for "AW" 's co-head writer, Margaret De Priest. When she was writing "Days of Our Lives," she gave the show not one, but two serial killer story lines - the Salem Slasher and the Salem Strangler. There, too, several female characters (and a couple of token males) were killed before the story lines concluded.

Is this type of story necessary on a daytime soap? The answer is an emphatic "No!" Too many violent crimes are committed in the real world. There's no place for this type of story on a soap. The writers and producers of "Another World" - and of all the daytime soaps - owe their loyal viewers something better.

ASK TONI

Dickinson has starred in movies of the week

By Toni Reinhold

Whatever happened to Angie Dickinson? How old is she? Is she still acting? - A.O., Owatonna, Minn.

Angie Dickinson

At age 55, Dickinson is still one of the most striking women in Hollywood. She recently starred in the NBC movie "Police Story: The Freeway Killings," which also starred Richard Crenna and Ben Gazzara. She also appeared in the miniseries "Hollywood Wives" (1985) and the TV movie "Stillwatch" (1986). Dickinson first gained fame as Sgt. Suzanne "Pepper" Anderson in "Police Woman," which aired from 1974 to 1978 on NBC. She has a 20-year-old daughter, Nikki.

What happened to the "Tales of the Gold Monkey"? Who starred in it? - R.M.D., Halifax, Nova Scotia

This ABC show aired for just one season, 1982-83. An adventure series set in the South Pacific, it starred Stephen Collins as Jake Cutter and Jeff MacKay as his sidekick, Corky.

Didn't Richard Egan star in a TV Western series? - F.R., Sacramento, Calif.

Egan starred in two TV Westerns, both of which were short-lived. In "Empire," he portrayed ranch foreman Jim Redigo. Original episodes of the series aired during the 1962-63 season on NBC, and ABC aired reruns during 1964. A year later, Egan starred in "Redigo," a spinoff from "Empire." It aired for just 13 weeks, from September to December 1963.

A few years ago, when Debby Boone was making records, we heard a lot about her. Lately we haven't heard anything. Did she give up her career? - P.M., Richmond, Va.

The daughter of singer Pat Boone, Debby has been concentrating on musical theater. She just wrapped up a performance in "The Sound of Music" at the Westbury Music Fair in New York. She played Maria, the role played by Julie Andrews in the 1965 film version of the Rodgers and Hammerstein classic.

HABE A VIEW

Thicke, Howard the Duck highlight cable week

By Marianne Meyer

A Disney delight, a premiere and a preview highlight this week on cable.

Alan Thicke

On Saturday, July 11, you can catch "Not Quite Human," a Disney Channel original film that's frothy fun. Alan Thicke, whose good-guy image from ABC's "Growing Pains" is making him the Michael J. Fox of the older generation, stars as a widowed science teacher and computer genius who builds an android son (Jay Underwood). Underwood's on a roll when it comes to unusual teenage roles. First he was "The Boy Who Could Fly," and now he's an android (named Chip, naturally) with a Pinocchio-like need to become human. "Not Quite Human" is another "fish out of water" movie, riddled with misunderstandings as our alien buddy gets used to life on earth, but it's done with the typically deft Disney touch and offers a few moving moments among the chuckles. All-around recommended family viewing. Older kids and adults with a taste for the bizarre may enjoy "Howard the Duck" (1986), which premieres Sunday, July 5, on Showtime. Talk about a fish out of water! The first half of the film is loads of fun, showing how our curmudgeonly feathered hero adapts to a planet without "Rolling Egg" magazine, Blooming-duck's sales and "Splashdance" movies. The second half fizzles, as the plot moves into high-budget, low-interest chase scenes and special effects. Still, "Howard the Duck" didn't quite deserve the bashing it got from the critics. Finally, for a preview of the next film from Madonna and director Susan Seidelman, tune into the Arts & Entertainment Network on Sunday, July 5, and Saturday, July 11, for the second and third installments of the "The Life and Loves of a She Devil." This four-part program, a co-production of A&E and the BBC, turns a lumbering housewife into a powerful avenger when her marriage is undone by a sexy writer. Lady Madonna is set to star in Seidelman's film version of "Life and Loves" - but will she play the home wrecker or the She Devil? Julie T. Wallace was nominated for the Bafta Award, the British equivalent of the Emmy, for her devilishly good work here.

IN THIS WEEK

Santiago's character is tougher, more mature

By Wendy Wallace

"It's a very fine line on TV to present a character every week," says Sandra Santiago, who plays no-nonsense Det. Gina Calabrese on NBC's Friday-night series "Miami Vice." "You tend to be one way. I want it so that every time people see me as Gina, something new is happening."

Sandra Santiago

Santiago, 30, was featured in two episodes of the series this season. In "When Irish Eyes are Smiling," Gina met with opposition from her co-workers when she became smitten with an Irish revolutionary. And in the season-ending episode, Santiago played a dual role as Gina and her Cuban mother. "I don't work as much as the guys," she says. "But when I'm called, I do my best. I've worked to make her more mature and tougher."
 Santiago, the second of two children, grew up in Miami and New York. "I lived a very sheltered childhood, because my mother was very protective," she recalls. "When I saw 'West Side Story' on Broadway, I thought it was the most incredible thing I had ever seen. To see Latin people on the stage, working and being as professional as it all was, really opened up my eyes."

During her sophomore year at the University of Miami, she auditioned on a whim for a college production of "West Side Story." Though she didn't win the part, the experience sparked a flame.

"There's nothing like performing on a live stage," she says. "Ultimately, as an artist it gives you everything you want. It supplies all the artistic desires. But you have to sacrifice your life to the theater. You're never secure because the jobs come and go."

"In film and TV, you get a wider audience. More producers, more TV people see you. And you work more consistently. My ultimate goal is to be a film actress."

For now, Santiago enjoys working in series television — especially on a hit like "Miami Vice."

"The best part about being on a successful series? That's a hard question," she says. "There's the exposure, the money, the security, long-range security and the connections. You meet so many people involved in the business."

"I guess it's all positive. I feel very secure and that feels good to be a secure, working actor. I'm working at my craft, and I know I get a lot of respect for it. I guess the security, that feels very good."

Beiting, Others Join To Spread 'Good News'

By Jeff Weddle

A local priest is taking his message on the road, sort of.

Father Ralph Beiting, founder of the Christian Appalachian Project, is spreading the good news along the Ohio River via a 64-ft. houseboat named for Kentucky pioneer Daniel Boone. The route he is following is similar to one taken by the rugged Kentucky explorer and pioneer.

According to Beiting's secretary, Marilyn Stefanski, the theme of the trek is "hope." She said "Father wants to show that Christ was victorious over sin and evil, and we can be victorious, too." Beiting is well-known in many mountain communities for his street preaching. Stefanski said this trip is a natural outgrowth of that activity.

The Daniel Boone was launched into the Ohio River, June 26, at Ashland.

After services at Ashland, the boat was scheduled to stop, June 28, at Huntington, W. Va.; Portsmouth, Ohio, Monday; and yesterday (Tuesday) in Maysville. A stop is scheduled today in Cincinnati, with Warsaw; Carrollton; Madison, Ind.; Louisville; New Albany, and Tell City, Ind. following. The voyage ends July 12 in Evansville, Indiana.

"Today the houseboat Daniel Boone goes down the Ohio River not for the adventure of new lands, not to blaze new frontiers," explained Beiting, "But we come to investigate the old. We come to look at that which we have had for so long: our faith, our Christian heritage."

Joining Beiting on the trip is a crew made up of other Catholic priests and protestant ministers, as well as Christian musical group. Local musical groups are scheduled to perform at each stop along the way.

Committee on Cities Visits Prestonsburg

By Joe Porter

A legislative Interim Joint Committee on Cities visited Prestonsburg last Wednesday, met with local officials, and toured the community's state-funded projects.

The committee had held a public hearing the night before in Paintsville on local government issues. It was the committee's first trip to the area since 1973, according to the co-chairman, Senator Danny Meyer, D-Louisville, and Representative Joe Meyer, D-Covington. The purpose of the trip was to find out what the needs of communities are and determine ways that the legislature can help local governments.

The tour of Prestonsburg began at 9:00 a.m. with a breakfast at May Lodge, where Mayors Ann R. Latta, of Prestonsburg, and Robert Wiley, of Paintsville, addressed the committee on the economic problems facing their cities and the severe negative impact caused by the loss of federal revenue sharing dollars.

The group then toured the Prestonsburg central business district, the First Commonwealth Bank, Prestonsburg Community College, and Archer Park.

"It was real enlightening for them," said City Administrator Fred A. James, who accompanied the committee. "It made an impact. It showed them that there are mayors in this area of the state who are doing more than cutting ribbons."

City Seeks Solution To Teenage Loitering

By Jeff Weddle

With little late-night entertainment catering to local teenagers, parking lots along Lake Drive has become the standard hang-out spots for dozens of otherwise bored young people.

City Administrator Fred James says the problem is not that the kids are hanging out. It's just that he wishes there were other things for them to do.

"When I was a teenager here 16 years ago, we had a dance every weekend during the summer. There was always something going on for us to do," said James. "Now, since there's nothing going on, these kids hang around parking lots."

Last year the city tried to stop the congregating by imposing an early curfew for those under 21. James said that was a bad idea from the beginning. "I think that's unconstitutional," he said. "As long as people abide by the law, you can't judge them by the clock."

James said the only problems he has with the situation are the trash left behind and too much noise too late at night. "People who work at night or live near these locations don't need to be subjected to loud music and vulgar language," he said.

Solutions, he feels, include adding trash cans to the parking lots, which the city may do after a Court Street beautification program adds new trash cans there and frees the existing ones; explaining to the "cruisers" that what they're doing is fine, as long as they observe the laws regarding drinking, littering and disturbing the peace; and, most importantly, giving them optional forms of entertainment.

"I like the idea of working with youth. I've never been in favor of running them off the lots, but one bad apple ruins the whole bunch. We want them to respect the residents who are trying to sleep," said James, adding that the city will not tolerate people drinking in public, especially those who are underage.

James has discussed the idea of holding car shows in the Prestonsburg Community College parking lot with John Herald, assistant director for student affairs. Herald said Friday that he likes the idea but will have to hash out the details of the city's proposal with James and PCC Director Henry Campbell before making a commitment. The college, which for a time was a popular cruising spot, began locking its gates at night about 10 years ago, because people were littering and thru-traffic was using the parking lot as short-cut between U.S. 23 and University Drive.

If it goes, James idea is to get the word out that anyone with an old automobile that's in good shape is welcome to bring it to the car show to have it judged against similar cars. "I see a lot of kids driving pre-1960's vehicles," he said. "Maybe they could bring these cars in and judge them on their condition or what have you. Maybe there could be a funny-car division." The shows would be held late evenings, possibly from 10 p.m. till midnight.

Another possibility is using the municipal parking lot for events such as street dances, or simply as a meeting place rather than the private lots near people's homes. "I wouldn't have any problem with them congregating there until maybe midnight, as long as the noise stays down," James said.

James said he and police chief Elmo Allen will visit the parking lots soon to discuss his ideas with the kids. "We want to introduce them to our concerns. We'd like them to provide their own control of the situation," he said, adding that he would welcome any input from the teenagers on entertainment the city could assist in providing.

The situation will be given closer scrutiny by the city after the July 4 holiday, said James.

Abused Children Need Not Face Accused Person

The U.S. Supreme Court June 19 reversed the Kentucky Supreme Court in the child sexual abuse case of Kentucky V. Stincer. Attorney General Dave Armstrong said that he is very pleased with the decision by the nation's highest court. "This is an exciting day for child victims and witnesses," he said. "Crime victims have been ignored far too long by the criminal justice system and we hope this decision will encourage others to speak out for fair treatment for victims."

The case stems from the conviction of Sergio Stincer in 1984 by a Christian county jury on charges of sexually abusing two girls, then ages 7 and 8. Last June, the Kentucky Supreme Court overturned the conviction and remanded it for retrial because the defendant was not allowed to attend a preliminary hearing to decide whether the children were competent to testify in court. Stincer's attorney was allowed to be present.

Penny Warren, director of the Criminal Appellate Division, argued the commonwealth's case in Washington in April of this year. While Armstrong acted as co-counsel along with Assistant Attorney General John Gillig.

"Testifying in open court is difficult enough for child victims," Armstrong said. "Common sense tells us that they are terrified. Obviously the court also felt that there is no reason to allow child-molesters an additional chance to intimidate a child into silence through personal confrontation at a limited competency hearing."

Asks Bill To Free Farm Program Checks

Senator Mitch McConnell introduced legislation last week to help farmers receive their farm program checks by correcting the law to work around the arbitrarily low ceiling on Commodity Credit Corporation's (CCC) borrowing authority at the Treasury Department.

"Our nations farmers have not been able to receive their federal farm program payments in over six weeks," McConnell said. "Farmers have made plans months ago based on the terms established in the contract they signed with the federal government, and now they have found themselves waiting for the federal government to fulfill its end of the agreement," added McConnell. "Farmers call me up daily wanting to know why the federal government has stopped paying them. I don't have a good answer, because there is no valid reason."

The Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service can not write checks because the Supplemental Appropriations bill is stalled in conference while debating other controversial items (Salt II treaty and mandatory AIDS testing for immigrants). The Supplemental Appropriations bill, contains the necessary appropriations to allow the CCC to fund farm payment checks. CCC has hit the ceiling of their borrowing authority with their account with the Treasury. The money for these payments has already been committed. In the process the farmers have been forced to wait for their farm program payments for weeks because of a simple arbitrary bookkeeping convention.

"This is a classic example of how Washington red-tape gets in the way of the end we are trying to accomplish, and this particular example has become a common occurrence in recent years. This is ludicrous and unfair to those men and women on the farms trying to make a living from day to day," McConnell noted.

This legislation would do two things. First, it would raise the ceiling on CCC's borrowing authority at the Treasury Department to $40 billion dollars, and second, in the future it would give CCC current, indefinite spending authority from year to year. These changes in accounting and appropriation procedure have absolutely no effect on the deficit. The federal government has already entered into contracts with the farmers and committed the money for these payments. Under the McConnell legislation farmers would never be put in the position of waiting for their federal program payments again.

Senator David Karnes (R-Neb.) and Senator Kit Bond (R-MO) are co-sponsors of this legislation.

Bears in the aggregate are called a sleuth.

Storm Damage May Result After Faulty Tree Care

Much of the damage done by summer storms to residential trees is a result of the trees having been topped in the past. John Hartman, Extension plant pathologist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said topping, an unfortunately popular practice in much of Kentucky, frequently does severe damage to the tree, and results in weak regrowth and weakened original growth. The practice produces tree branches increasingly likely to be blown down during a storm.

"A topped tree looks like somebody took a giant hedge clipper to it. Everything above a certain height is indiscriminately chopped off," Hartman said.

People often have trees topped in an effort to avoid having branches in a position to fall on a roof. Hartman said topping actually increases the likelihood of such a calamity.

"Topping stimulates the regrowth of dense, upright branches just below the pruning cut. These new shoots are not as structurally sound as naturally occurring branches, and they are more susceptible to insect and disease attack. Thus, they are weaker to begin with, and more likely to be made even weaker by insects or disease," Hartman said.

Also, the pruned stub from which the shoots emerge may rot away, leaving whole portions of the new canopy likely to collapse during a heavy rain or high wind.

"If you are considering having trees trimmed this fall, look around at the trees in your neighborhood that suffer the greatest storm damage. You should be convinced that proper trimming by trained professionals is infinitely preferable to having a tree topped," Hartman said.

'Coalmining Women' To Be Aired on KET

"It's basically the last locker room in the world," says one coal mining woman. "It's hard for these guys to accept the fact that women can do the same work."

The contributions made by women to coalfield struggles and the importance of their new positions as working miners are examined in "Coalmining Women," an Appalshop production airing Tuesday, July 14, at 8 p.m. on KET.

Interviewed at home and on the job, women coal miners tell of the social conditions and economic pressures that led them to seek employment in a traditionally male-dominated industry—and the social problems they encounter once hired.

Women are shown bolting mine roofs, shoveling beltlines, hauling rock dust, and building ventilation barriers with 75-pound blocks as well as participating in union affairs, organizing among themselves, and leading the fight for mine safety.

"Maybe it's because women have for the most part been responsible for the upbringing of children," comments Betty Jean Hall, director of the Coal Employment Project, "(that) they tend to look out for the safety conditions of others."

In its broader sense, the documentary examines women in non-traditional roles, women's history, labor studies, and women as forces for social change.

Appalshop is a non-profit media arts center located in Whitesburg.

Seven From County On MSU Dean's List

Seven students from Floyd county were named to the Morehead State University Dean's List for the 1987 Spring semester.

To be named to the list, a student must be enrolled on a full-time basis and achieve at least a 3.4 grade point average on a 4.0 scale.

The Dean's List includes Jill A. Coburn, and Jodi S. Coburn, both of Martin; Donnie Darvin Kidd, of Grethel; Cathy Layne and Sheridan Martin, both of Drift; Johnene Newsome, of Martin; and Sharon Slone, of Lackey.

Iris Caudill Work On Exhibit at MSU

"Just Like Daddy," a colored pencil work by artist Iris Caudill, of Martin, was chosen for the "Portrait of Appalachia" exhibit at Morehead State University in June, part of the university's 11th annual Appalachian Celebration. Also included was Caudill's "Miss Lula," an example of pen-and-ink pointillism. Caudill also has had two watercolor paintings accepted by the Kentucky Art Search '87, sponsored by the Kentucky Department of the Arts and the Commonwealth Hilton Hotel in Florence, Ky.

Enrollment Increase At Community College

Prestonsburg Community College has again experienced a significant gain in enrollment with 540 students registered for the 1987 summer session. This compares to 404 students that were enrolled in the 1987 summer school. A large number of class offerings for the summer session and continued enrollment of students who were registered during the 1986 spring semester are thought to be responsible for the increase. "With the record enrollments experienced by this institution during the last three semesters, an enrollment of at least 1800 students for the coming fall semester is not unrealistic," commented Dr. Henry A. Campbell, PCC Director.

Chosen for Science Workshop

Gerri Robertson, 16, daughter of Stan and Bueal Robertson, of Waverly, Ohio, was one of 30 students selected nationwide to participate in a week-long "Women in Science Program" held June 14-18 at the College of Mount St. Joseph in Ohio. She is the granddaughter of Moses Frasure, of East McDowell, and May Robertson, of Waverly, and the late Branch Robertson, of Lackey.

She was recognized by Don Roar, a biology teacher at Waverly High School where she will be a junior in the fall. Her extra-curricular activities include cheerleading, softball, volleyball, basketball and track.

The science program was open to outstanding high school women entering their junior or senior year, and participants are awarded grants to cover the cost of tuition, housing and meals in the campus dormitory, and materials. Speakers at the workshop included women scientists from the areas of industry, medicine, education and small business, as well as women who are veterinarians, doctors, archaeologists, biologists and computer analysts. Each student received a certificate of participation at an awards presentation held at the close of the week.

Appalachian Literature Workshop For Teachers

The Hindman Settlement School still has some openings for its first Appalachian Literature Workshop that will be held July 26-31. If you teach in the 5th and 7th Congressional Districts of Kentucky you are eligible to apply. The purpose of the workshop is to prepare teachers to integrate Appalachian literature into their regular literature classes or to help them set up a separate class unit.

Some of the most knowledgeable and stimulating writers/teachers from the Appalachian region will be conducting this workshop. Special grants to make this workshop available to teachers free of cost have been provided by the Kentucky Humanities Council, Louisville Courier-Journal, Inc., the Kentucky Department of Education, and the Hindman Settlement School. Outside of receiving free tuition, room and board, all participants will receive a cash stipend of $100 and approximately $200 in resource materials to take back to the classroom.

Staff for the workshop will include: Dr. Jim Wayne Miller, noted Appalachian scholar, lecturer and poet; Dr. Jeff Daniel Marion, poet and professor of literature at Carson-Newman College; Dr. George Ella Lyon, poet, playwright and children's author; Gurney Norman, novelist and writer-in-residence at the University of Kentucky; James Still, poet, novelist and short story writer; Eliot Wigginton, editor of the nationally known Foxfire books and Herb E. Smith, film maker from Appalshop in Whitesburg, Kentucky.

For further information please write to Appalachian Literature Workshop, Box 844, Hindman Settlement School, Hindman, Kentucky 41822 or call 606-785-5475.

Mid-Mountain Employees Reject UFCW Union Bid

In a secret-ballot election conducted by the National Labor Relations Board Wednesday, June 10, a majority of employees voted against union representation by UFCW Local Union 278 of Roanoke, Virginia. The final secret-ballot vote tabulated was 141 "NO" union and 71 voted for union representation. A total of 220 employees were eligible to vote. The NLRB secret-ballot representation election was conducted by Mrs. Katherine Crapes and Jasper Brown of the NLRB's Winston-Salem regional office.

This was the fourth unionization attempt of the union-free employees at the Abingdon, Virginia and Greenville, Tennessee facilities. A majority of employees rejected the Teamsters Union in 1978. A majority of employees also voted against union representation by the UFCW Local 28 in 1981 and 1983. Harold Harwood, President of Mid-Mountain Foods, stated following the secret-ballot vote:

"This is a tremendous victory for all our employees and the future of our company. Our department managers and supervisors join me in thanking all employees in Abingdon and Greenville for their tremendous support and vote of confidence reflected in this important secret-ballot election. We're very grateful to have had such an excellent turnout of all employees eligible to vote. The fact that this is the fourth time a strong majority of our employees have rejected union representation is a clear message to all of us that our people prefer to be treated as valued, important individuals rather than as a nameless member of a union.

"We will continue working together in making Mid-Mountain Foods the very best place to work in our area for all employees in terms of fair treatment, good wages, excellent benefits, and safe working conditions.

"We're mighty glad this union thing is behind us so we can concentrate 100 percent of our time serving our valued customers in four states. We have a bright future, and we look forward to working together with our valued employees in maintaining our past history of steady work and job opportunities for people in southwest Virginia and east Tennessee."

Miss Bryant Awarded Endowed Scholarship

Kim Bryant has been awarded an Endowed Scholarship at Bluffton College, Bluffton, Ohio. These scholarships have been established by alumni and friends of the college to broaden financial aid opportunities for deserving students. The award recognizes excellence in grade point average, class rank, and standardized test scores.

Bryant is a 1987 graduate of Open Door Christian School where she was a cheerleader and an academic achiever. She will begin classes at Bluffton College in September.

Miss Bryant is the daughter of Gary and Peggy Bryant, of Lorain, Ohio. Bluffton College, accredited by the NCA, is a four-year Christian liberal arts college affiliated with the General Conference Mennonite Church.

Kentucky recorded its first single digit jobless rate for 1987 with a preliminary April figure of 9.6 percent.

IRS Lists Changes To Itemized Deductions

The Tax Reform Act of 1986 has made significant changes for taxpayers who itemize, starting January 1, 1987.

Medical Expenses

Taxpayers may now deduct only that part of their unreimbursed medical and dental expenses that is more than 7.5 percent of their adjusted gross income.

Sales Taxes

Taxpayers may no longer itemize deductions for state and local sales taxes. Income, real estate, and personal property taxes remain fully deductible.

Mortgage Interest

Home mortgage interest is fully deductible on a taxpayer's principal residence and second residence for mortgages secured on or before August 16, 1986. On mortgage loans secured after that date, you will generally be limited to deducting interest only to the extent that the loans are not more than the purchase price plus the cost of home improvements. Interest in excess of this amount incurred on a mortgage that was secured after August 16, 1986, will be deductible only if the loan was incurred for qualified medical or qualified educational expenses. However, a portion of any excess may be deductible as a personal interest expense.

Personal Interest

The deduction for personal interest will be phased out. This deduction will be limited to: 65 percent in 1987, 40 percent in 1988, 20 percent in 1989, and 10 percent in 1990. Personal interest generally includes interest on car loans, credit cards, personal loans, and on most tax deficiencies of individual taxpayers.

It will also include any interest that you cannot deduct because of the home mortgage limitation.

Charitable Contributions

Deductions for charitable contributions are now allowable only for taxpayers who itemize.

Miscellaneous Deductions

Miscellaneous itemized deductions, including unreimbursed employee business expenses, will generally be deductible under the new law only to the extent that they exceed two percent of adjusted gross income. Moving expenses will be allowed only as an itemized deduction but are not subject to the new 2 percent floor.

Ministers and Military

Ministers and military personnel may deduct mortgage interest and property taxes on their residences even if the mortgage payments and property taxes are paid with tax-free housing allowances.

Losses on Deposits

Taxpayers may deduct losses on their deposits in insolvent financial institutions as casualty losses, subject to casualty loss limitations, in the year the amount of the loss can be estimated.

Where to Deduct

Itemized deductions are claimed on Schedule A, Form 1040.

Additional Information

Taxpayers who wish more information on itemized deductions, or other changes in tax laws for 1987 may call the IRS toll free at 1-800-424-1040.

New Answers Needed As More Miners Idle

Laid-off coal miners face an uncertain future, but some of their difficulties are not inevitable, according to a report released recently by the Mountain Association for Community, Economic Development (MACED). Methods for easing the transition away from coal employment for dislocated miners—those who are permanently laid off with little prospect of finding steady new jobs in coal mining—include pre-layoff planning by individual workers, company-union cooperation in assisting laid-off miners, and improvements in the state's Dislocated Worker Program, according to Making the Best of It: Kentucky's Dislocated Coal Miners Face the Future.

"We're in the forefront of figuring out how to assist dislocated miners here in Kentucky," commented Carol Lamm, author of the MACED report. "We can learn from programs in other industries, and Making the Best of It discusses what works elsewhere, but the coal industry is different enough that we have to be particularly bold experimenters and aware observers to find out what will really help here." The goal, she said, is to "help dislocated miners—and their communities—make the best possible transition after the loss of coal jobs."

Many miners have difficulty accepting the loss of their jobs as final, according to the report, which draws on interviews with working and dislocated miners and others in the coal fields for much of its information. Many people think of coal as a boom and bust industry, and many laid off miners are "hanging on—waiting for the next boom." However, Lamm argues that despite fluctuations in production, coal employment has declined steadily since 1950, with the employment increase of the 1970s an exception rather than the industry resurgence that many miners and mining communities perceived it to be. "Even when coal companies are turning a profit...the employment outlook for miners may still be dismal," according to the report.

ven to be unproductive, contracting instead with community colleges, community organizations, or other groups to provide services in those areas.

Employers are encouraged to learn about and use "Best Management Practices" in permanent layoff and shutdown situations. The report details benefits to employers, in reduced Unemployment Insurance rates, community goodwill, and productivity among remaining employees, of providing accurate information about company plans in a layoff and of implementing an on-site program to assist dislocated workers in finding new employment.

Union officials could play a positive role, too, in helping miners understand the forces at work in the coal industry so that they recognize the reality of declining coal employment; in achieving contract provisions that require company-union cooperation in the event of a permanent layoff; and in actively monitoring the state's program for dislocated coal miners.

Individual miners should prepare "game plans" covering personal finances, education, and career plans in the event of dislocation, according to the report. While acknowledging that "as long as miners can make a good living in their present circumstances they naturally prefer to do so," the report suggests that developing strategies to use if they are dislocated "could be both emotionally reassuring and substantively useful in the event that a particular miner does get caught in a layoff."

Because little information and experience are available about programs for dislocated coal miners, Kentuckians "need to be especially acute observers of what works and what does not, what is transferable and what is not," according to the MACED report, which concludes that dislocation in the coal industry is "a challenge that we are only beginning to meet."

Kentucky's Dislocated Worker Program receives a mixed review in the MACED report. Two attempts to retrain coal miners in skills relevant to the coal industry failed to achieve their job placement goals. Of the current program of Dislocated Worker Centers offering training and job search assistance, the report says, "While on paper the...program neatly covers the state, in practice the system is working in some locations and not in others." Where it is working, the program has placed as many as 58 percent of the coal-miner participants in jobs. The report recommends that the state reconsider its strategy of placing dislocated worker centers in Employment Services offices in places where such centers have pro-

MR. JACKIE EDFORD OWENS:

I would like to know why our ditches haven't been cleaned out and why it is that we cannot even find our culverts and why is it that all other ditches in Maytown are cleaned out and graveled? They have made us promises that this would be done over a year ago.

Mr. Owens, I would like to have an answer for this.

Fireworks Fun Calls For Care

The Fourth of July wouldn't be the same without some fireworks, but Kentuckians should remember that seemingly safe fireworks can be dangerous if not used properly.

"Adults need to watch children closely when they're using fireworks," said E.P. Conyers of the Department for Health Services product safety branch. "Even older kids and teens need supervision because they like to show off and play around. Very young children should not use fireworks at all.

"For example, sparklers are considered by many a safe firework for young children," Conyers said. "But sparklers burn at very high temperatures and can easily ignite clothing or burn a hand.

"Children don't appreciate the danger involved and might not be as careful as they should be," he said.

Certain Class C fireworks allowed in Kentucky are generally the non-explosive types such as sparklers, snakes and smoke devices. Fireworks not allowed under Kentucky law include bottle rockets, missile-type rockets, Roman candles, firecrackers or any fireworks that have a loud explosion or shoot into the air.

Other safety tips to remember about fireworks are:

—Before using fireworks, read and follow all warning instructions printed on the label.

—Don't hold fireworks in your hand and wait for the fuse to burn to the end.

—Light fireworks outdoors in a clear area away from buildings and flammable materials. If the grass is dry, be particularly careful.

—Never ignite fireworks in a container, especially glass or metal.

—Never try to relight or handle malfunctioning fireworks. Soak them with water and throw them away.

—Don't throw lit fireworks at another person.

—Light fireworks one at a time.

—Store fireworks in a cool, dry place inaccessible to small children.

For more information, contact Conyers at the Department for Health Services, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort, Ky. 40621. His telephone number is (502) 564-4537.

A national campaign to build awareness of alcohol and drug abuse hazards in the nation's mining industry was launched on March 1987. The campaign is the work of a committee, the Mining Industry Committee on Substance Abuse, composed of representatives of coal, metal and nonmetal mines labor unions and government agencies, according to the U.S. Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration.

NOVA Explores 'Jaws' Fact/Fiction on KET

The great white shark has been called the most ferocious predator in the sea, a fear-inspiring creature with a reputation as a man-eater.

"NOVA" takes a revealing look at the great white shark, examining the fears, the legends and the facts when "Jaws: The True Story," encores Sunday, July 19 at 9 p.m. on KET.

In the last decade, the public's awareness—and fear—of the great white shark has grown, owing in part to the popularity of "Jaws," the blockbuster movie based on Peter Benchley's novel. Human response to the idea of a shark attack, a statistically rare event, remains powerful. "NOVA" explores what is behind this mixed reaction of fascination, terror and awe.

The great white is still an enigma to marine biologists, because it is very difficult to study in its natural habitat. While "Jaws" was fiction, shark attacks do happen. These events have reached new levels in the waters off the northern California coast. Yet, scientists do not know exactly why sharks attack people or why they seem to be such successful predators.

In attempting to unravel the mysteries surrounding the shark, "NOVA" interviews Dr. John McCosker of the California Academy of Science's Steinhart Aquarium in San Francisco. He presents the latest information on the predator.

"Jaws: The True Story" is a BBC production and is presented on "NOVA" by WGBH/Boston.

Statewide Survey On School Boards

The Kentucky School Boards Association will be conducting a statewide telephone survey during the week of July 6 to find out the public's perceptions about the role of the local school board.

The survey is being conducted by the University of Kentucky Survey Research Center whose trained interviewers will be making the random telephone calls. Results of the survey will be used by the Association in identifying needs and for planning in its efforts to keep the public informed about school boards and educational issues.

"The telephone survey involves some 30 questions and will take about 15 minutes to complete, said KSBA Executive Director David Keller. "This information will be very useful to the Association as well as to the local school boards and school administrators," he added.

HORSE HAZARDS

COPYRIGHT 1987 KVMA

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association
The concentration of horses kept in Kentucky is unbelievably dense, many of them expensive as racing or breeding stock, many others valuable as pets or companions or recreational animals with which a bond has been developed.

But the keeping of horses on a farm is not without hazards, especially in a time when modern science is modifying the methods of farming without modifying the possible impact on animals.

A little common sense will prevent tragedy.
For example, inorganic fertilizers should be viewed as quite poisonous to horses, because of the concentrations of nitrates, ammonium salts, potash and phosphates. Raw fertilizer in even small quantities can cause severe colic.

Freshly fertilized fields should not be used for grazing until the fertilizer has worked into the ground, or until after the first rain. Small piles of fertilizer should not be left exposed in the pasture. Nor should bags of fertilizer be stored in the feed bin or on top of grain or hay. Leakage of fertilizer into the grain or hay has resulted in severe cases of poisoning.

Be careful of fence paints. Oils and thinners in oil-base paints can severely irritate the gastrointestinal tract and can become toxic.

Sawdust and wood shavings are frequently used as bedding in stalls at horse farms. Remember not to use black walnut shavings.

Black walnut wood contains a number of aromatic chemical agents, some of which are quite toxic to horses. Eating only a few of these shavings will cause severe gastric irritation and severe founder. The toxic substances can also be absorbed directly through the hoof and cause founder.

Insecticides, while they are necessary for control of parasites, can become serious problems if not handled properly. Most horsemen consult their veterinarian before using pesticides on the animals.

But remember that organophosphates and carbamates are also used as insecticides and for fungus control on a variety of crops, as well as occasionally for insect control in pastures. Horses should not be allowed in pastures or fields treated with these substances for at least ten days after the application, preferably not until the first rainfall.

Your veterinarian is trained to be and remain alert for such hazards. He or she wants to prevent problems, and educating the animal owner about possible hazards and how to prevent them is part of the job.

Your veterinarian is your good friend!

Saving Energy While Keeping Cool

By Rose F. Bates
Director of Consumer Affairs
U.S. Department of Energy

Do you want to save energy while keeping cool this summer? Below are some energy-saving tips to remember.

- * Schedule cooking and the use of heat-generating appliances like irons, washers and dryers for cooler periods — early morning and late evening.
* Schedule activities that produce moisture such as dishwashing, floor-washing, laundering, bathing and showering until cooler times of the day or night.
* Since a fan generally requires as little as one-tenth the energy needed to run an air-conditioner, use fans if you have a choice and the temperature allows.
* If you have an air-conditioning unit, clean it regularly, especially the filter.
* Awnings or louvers on the outside of your windows, and curtains or shades on the inside, help keep the sun out of your home.
* Be sure fireplace dampers are closed.

- * Wear loose fitting, lightweight, light colored clothing.
* Don't set your thermostat to a colder setting than normal when you turn your air-conditioning on. It will not cool faster.
* Remember to keep electric lights off or low whenever possible.
* When shopping for an air-conditioner, consider the energy efficiency as well as the purchase price of the unit, since a more efficient air-conditioner may cost more to buy but will use less energy and cost less to own and operate over the long run.
Please remember that by saving energy you make a personal investment in America's energy security.

Beware the Tick Carrier of Disease

A common summertime pest can lead to some uncommon diseases and popular ways of dealing with it are not necessarily the best.

Of those in the insect world, ticks are second only to mosquitoes in the transmission of diseases to man and animals, according to Rudy Scheibner, extension entomologist, University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

Last year in Kentucky, 24 cases of tick-transmitted diseases were reported, which was less than in previous years. Scheibner said the decrease is probably the result of fewer people calling the health department with reports rather than an actual drop in cases.

The most common of these diseases is Rocky Mountain spotted fever, which is transmitted by the American dog tick, Scheibner said. Female ticks attached for long periods of time can transmit another disease, tick paralysis. And recently cases of Lyme disease, an illness that resembles arthritis in its third stage and which is caused by bacteria, have been reported, particularly in the eastern part of the country.

Although Scheibner advises caution if an attached tick is discovered, there is no need for panic.

"Very few ticks are actually infected, so the chances of disease transmission are fairly remote," Scheibner said.

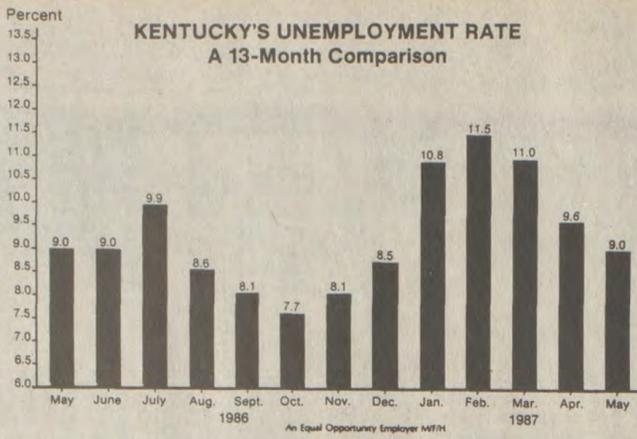

Because the symptoms of some of the diseases transmitted by ticks don't show up immediately, he suggests you may want to have your physician check you as a precaution.

Although ticks must be attached at least two hours before they transmit the causative agent of Rocky Mountain spotted fever, they should be removed as soon as possible, he said.

Although there are many popular "home remedies" for removing ticks, such as holding a match to it, pouring alcohol on it or smearing petroleum jelly over it, he said the only effective way is to pull it off with forceps or protected fingers.

He suggests a six-step procedure for tick removal:

Use blunt curved forceps or tweezers. If using your fingers, shield them with a tissue, paper towel or rubber glove; grasp the tick as close to the skin as possible and pull upward with steady, even pressure. Don't twist or jerk as this may break off the insect's mouthparts; don't squeeze, crush or puncture the tick's body because there may be infective agents in the fluids; don't handle the tick with bare hands after pulling it; disinfect the bite and wash hands with soap and water; dispose of the tick by flushing it down the toilet or putting it in rubbing alcohol and throwing it in the trash.

Study Shows 4-H'ers Do Well As Adults

Kentucky farmers who were 4-H members when they were young tend to have higher educations, higher gross sales from their farm activities and higher net incomes.

Those are the results of a just completed study by Cooperative Extension Service sociologists Richard C. Maurer and Janet L. Bokemeier.

Maurer said the study also showed that farmers with 4-H backgrounds were more likely to use innovative farm techniques than farmers who had not been 4-H'ers.

"The farmers were asked if they'd ever used reduced tillage or no-till techniques on their farms," he said. "Nearly half of the former 4-H'ers had used these techniques, compared to fewer than one-fourth of the non-4-H'ers."

The study compared four different age groups of farmers and found that in all groups former 4-H'ers had higher education by significant percentages. Overall, 83 percent of the former 4-H'ers were high school graduates compared to just 50 percent of those with no 4-H background. Twenty-three percent of the former 4-H'ers were college graduates compared to 11 percent of those without 4-H experience.

The former 4-H'er averaged gross farm sales of $58,800 compared to just $27,594 for the non-4-H'er. That same average former 4-H farmer netted $9,823 farm profit versus an average $6,990 for the farmer without 4-H experience.

Maurer said data was collected from a randomly selected statewide survey of Kentucky farmers to assess the relationship between farmers with a 4-H background and their later success. While the study cannot prove that 4-H was the cause for the farmers later success, it does demonstrate that those with 4-H backgrounds were more successful.

"The farmers themselves gave 4-H credit for contributing to their current farm operations," Maurer said. "This reinforces the conclusion that long-term benefits of 4-H do exist."

Maurer added, "Those involved in extension programs generally feel that 4-H has definite positive effects on youth that carry over into adulthood. Evidence that supports these claims will establish the continuing need for 4-H programs, but more evidence is needed to back up the assertion."

FLOYD COUNTY HEALTH NEWS

By JANE BOND, Health Educator

A nurse from the health department will be in Martin at the Beaver Valley Clinic on Monday, July 6 from 10 a.m. until 2 p.m. She will offer T.B. skin tests, urinalyses, blood pressures, anemia screening, immunizations, and pap tests. This clinic is a free service of the Health Department and is open to the public.

A nurse from the health department will be in Wayland at the Methodist Church on Friday, July 10. She will offer the above mentioned services with the exception of the pap tests.

There will be a pap clinic at the health department on Thursday, July 16 from 8:30 until 3:00. This clinic is a free service of the health department and is open to women of all ages, however those women age 45 and over are especially urged to take advantage of this free service since this is the high risk age for cervical cancer. Pharmacy Footnotes By HAROLD COOLEY WHERE THERE IS SMOKE... Women 25 to 44 years old who smoke and use oral contraceptives risk developing cardiovascular disease and stroke 10 times more than women who use the pill but do not smoke. Researchers have discovered one link in explaining why that might be so. The combination of long-term smoking of at least one pack per day for five years and the use of oral contraceptives cuts production of a critical hormone called prostacyclin. Its job is to improve blood flow and inhibit clumping of platelets in the blood that can cause clots and contribute to atherosclerotic plaque deposits inside blood vessels. The pill alone is not a major factor in cardiovascular disease, but the combined effect of smoking and the pill is. COOLEY APOTHECARY is your local pharmacy that truly cares about you and your family. Our pharmacy is well known throughout this area as the "Drug Store with a Difference". Take advantage of our everyday low prices here at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-4. HANDY HINT: More than 90 percent of all heart attacks are caused when a blood clot forms in one of three small arteries that supply blood to heart muscles.

CATTLE WORMING COPYRIGHT 1987 KVMA Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association Spring is an ideal time to take measures that will add from 20 to 40 pounds of meat to your calf, with less feed and at a surprisingly low cost. How? A simple solution—by controlling the parasites in your calf's digestive system. These worms are feasting on the food you purchased as an investment in your herd of cattle. Several different kinds of worm parasites infect the digestive tract of cattle. Some of these may cause severe problems resulting in easily recognizable symptoms in cattle. Others may not produce any readily apparent signs. All, however, usually result in weight loss or failure to gain as much weight as the animal should. Infected cattle also lack energy. Worm activity seems to become more apparent in the spring, possibly because the larvae of some species have been dormant in the animal during the cold winter months and resume development with the onset of warmer weather. In general, internal parasites will cause more severe damage in calves than in mature cattle, though mature cattle can be severely impaired if left untreated. Spring is an ideal time to check for parasites and to treat cattle, if necessary, before the parasitic activity gears up in warmer weather. Symptoms vary according to the parasite, but in general an otherwise unexplained diarrhea or constipation, lack of appetite and loss of weight is reason enough to suspect internal parasites. Sometimes blood or mucus will be present in the feces, and occasionally uneasiness or stamping will be noticed in confined cattle. Effective anthelmintics (wormers) are available for cattle, but a veterinarian's knowledge is needed for proper application and use. Some drugs are allowed for use in dairy cattle but not in beef cattle, some the other way. Other restrictions may apply. Your veterinarian is familiar with all regulations regarding medication of food and dairy animals. Your veterinarian can also explain management techniques which will reduce exposure to parasites, some of them as simple as pasture rotation and manure removal. Most veterinarians would rather be part of a prevention program than of an emergency treatment program, and are quite aware of the importance of economics to dairy and beef cattle farmers. Ask how you can make money by reducing losses, and then listen to the answer. You might be surprised.

AAA Reports Slight Rise In Gas Prices Motorists taking to the roads in Central and Eastern Kentucky over the July Fourth weekend can expect to pay an average of $1.06 a gallon, the Blue Grass Automobile Club-AAA reports. AAA's latest fuel gauge survey showed prices had increased about four cents a gallon from May. Full-serve prices for regular and unleaded averaged $1.04 and $1.10 respectively. Self-serve prices for regular and unleaded averaged 92 cents and 97 cents. An increase was also seen in full-serve premium no-lead which rose to $1.22, up from $1.18 last month. Reasons for the increase in retail gas prices include the recent spurt in crude oil prices and anticipated greater demand for gasoline during the summer travel season. Although retail gas prices are higher than last month and seven cents higher than a year ago, they are still about 25 cents lower than 1985 prices. AAA's survey includes 30 service facilities throughout 46 counties in Central and Eastern Kentucky. A day on Venus is equivalent to 255 earth days.

Elderhostel at MSU Chamber Music Fete

A one-of-a-kind Elderhostel program will occur in conjunction with the Summer Chamber Music Celebration at Morehead State University, July 12-18.

MSU's Chamber Music Celebration Elderhostel marks the first time that the National Elderhostel program has required participants to possess a certain skill, according to George Eyster, director of Extended Campus Programs.

The celebration, sponsored by MSU's Academy of Arts and College of Arts and Sciences, is a weeklong series of workshops and concerts. The program allows serious musicians to meet, rehearse and perform in informal, unstructured settings.

In previous years, active amateur chamber musicians as well as professional musicians from regional and metropolitan orchestras from across the United States have taken part in the celebration. This year, 66 musicians, including 19 from Elderhostel representing 10 states, will attend.

Highlights include a guest artist recital, Monday, July 13, featuring the Renaissance City Woodwind Quintet of Pittsburgh; a participants recital on Wednesday, July 15, featuring small chamber groups, and a chamber orchestra concert on Thursday, July 16, with Manfred Blum, of Earlham College, as conductor. All will be in Duncan Recital Hall at 8 p.m. In addition, there will be at least two noon concerts during the week.

MSU hosts various other Elderhostels throughout the year. During the annual Appalachian Celebration, there is an Appalachian Elderhostel, and in the fall and winter months, Elderhostels occur at area state parks.

Another unusual Elderhostel at MSU is the Mystery Elderhostel. In this program, mystery buffs gather to solve a "murder" that happens on the first night of the week. This year, 54 people from 28 states attended the Mystery Elderhostel.

Started in 1975 at five campuses in New Hampshire, Elderhostel programs are patterned after the youth hostels of Europe. Elderhostels are now held at over 1,000 universities and attract approximately 100,000 participants each year.

The programs are tailored to the unique aspects of the locations and provide inexpensive lodging, meals and academic opportunities for interested people over 60 years of age.

Additional information on the Summer Chamber Music Celebration may be obtained from Yvonne Baldwin, Academy of Arts, MSU, Morehead, Ky. 40351. Telephone: (606) 783-2659. Information on the Elderhostel programs may be obtained from Eyster, director of Extended Campus Programs, MSU, Morehead, Ky. 40351. Telephone: (606) 783-2038.

Outdoor Cooking May Be Costlier

Whether it's steaks, burgers, or ribs...almost anything that goes on the grill this Fourth of July is going to cost more than it did last year.

Food prices in general are rising faster than the overall Consumer Price Index. Red meat prices in particular are really taking off this summer. Things with feathers provide the only escape from high prices.

So far this year the CPI has increased 2.6 percent. Red meat prices have jumped 4.6 percent.

A. Lee Meyer, Extension marketing specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said jumps in beef prices are the result of an unexpectedly large drop in the number of cattle reaching market.

"Producers are getting signals similar to those which prompted a major build-up in the early '70s. As a result, they're holding back breeding animals. That sends fewer animals to market, which, in turn, drives the price up," Meyer said.

"Here in Kentucky we saw the price paid to producers jump by more than 20 percent earlier this year. Those prices take a while to work their way through the system to the grocery shelf, but we already are seeing the highest prices ever at the retail level," Meyer said.

The current average price for choice cuts of meat on the grocery shelf is $2.55 a pound. That compares to $2.27 a year ago.

The rib and chop situation isn't any better. Despite early indications of a slight rise in the number of hogs headed for market, the number of hogs that got there in April was 9 percent behind year earlier figures.

"Somewhere there are some piggies on paper," said Raymond Daniel, an economist with Wharton Econometrics Forecasting, Inc., in a report in the Wall Street Journal.

Average retail pork prices are 10 to 15 percent above year-ago levels.

Backyard broilers looking for bargains may find broilers to be the answer. Poultry prices are the one bright spot in the meat picture. Broilers averaged 60 cents a pound in June of 1986. This year they are down to 50 cents per pound.

Anthony Pescatore, UK Extension poultry specialist, said a decline in feed costs from a year ago and overproduction in the industry have pushed poultry prices down.

"The prices have dropped in the past two months. April '87 prices were ahead of April '86 prices, but here in the end of June the prices have dropped significantly," Pescatore said.

Turkey may be more of a bargain than chicken. Pescatore said turkeys were retailing for $1.09 a pound last June, and are averaging about 59 cents a pound this year.

In addition, Pescatore said turkey meat is one of the best meats available for cooking on the grill.

"About 80 percent of the weight of the bird is in the breast. De-bone the breast, remove the legs and grill those with or without barbecue sauce," Pescatore said.

District 4, Rebekah's Meet

The quarterly meeting of District 4, Rebekah's, was held Saturday, June 20, at 6 p.m. at Inez, with Allison Rebekah Lodge No. 134 the host lodge.

Mrs. Paulina Owens, of Miriam Lodge of Prestonsburg, the district president, presided over the meeting with the following persons receiving special recognition:

Mrs. Frances Fraley, of Inez, Assembly president; Mrs. Wilma Castle, of Paintsville, Dist. 4 deputy president; Mrs. Adeline Webb, of Inez, Assembly chaplain and Mrs. Mabel Jean LeMaster, of Prestonsburg, past president Rebekah Assembly of Ky.

Pleasant Valley Rebekah Lodge No. 116, of Paintsville, received the attendance banner.

Mrs. Wilma Castle, district deputy president, held a school of instruction with Mrs. Fraley assisting her. This was in the form of a quiz pertaining to the work of the order.

Prior to the meeting, the members enjoyed a covered dish dinner, after which door prizes were awarded.

Representing Miriam Rebekah Lodge were Mesdames Maman Leslie, Mabel Jean LeMaster, and Pauline Owens. The September meeting will be held at Pikeville on the 19.

Citizens Groups Push For Enforcement of Mining Law

As the Federal Surface Mining Act approaches its 10th anniversary, citizens groups from throughout the country have renewed their pledge to push for active citizen participation and proper government enforcement of mining laws.

More than 150 people from 18 states and three Native American tribes attended the three-day Citizens Coal Summit held recently in Lexington.

"The Summit provided the first opportunity for citizen leaders from the coalfield states to come together on this scale since the passage of the 1977 surface mining law," said Connie White, who chairs the Save Our Cumberland Mountains organization in Tennessee.

G.W. "Digger" Moravek of Wyoming's Powder River Basin Resource Council said, "Ten years ago we had high hopes that protection for our nation's coal lands would come about. Time has proven us to be mistaken. We are sacrificing our nation's future for short-term profit."

A representative of the Northern Cheyenne Indian Reservation in southeast Montana, Carrie Harding, said, "As citizen organizations, we need to get involved in the political process. We need public officials who are going to be accountable to our concerns—not those concerns as dictated by large corporations."

Moravek said that "legal acrobatics" used by coal operators to get around the law in his state "boggle the mind," adding that more than 80 percent of Utah's strip mines are operating without valid permits.

Gene Wirtz, of Underwood, North Dakota, chair of the Dakota Resource Council's Coal Committee, said, "We are here to reassert our role as citizens in the enforcement process under the federal strip mine act. We are here to let the coal industry, the federal Office of Surface Mining (OSM) and the state regulatory agencies know that we will no longer tolerate shoddy reclamation, regulators winking at illegal mining practices or rosy assessments that tell us all is well in the western coalfields."

Other representatives complained about law enforcement in their states, and some suggested that OSM is more interested in promoting strip mining that in regulating it.

Anna Johnson, a member of the Illinois South Project, said the federal agency and Illinois mining regulators neglect enforcement of the law's prime-farmland provision, which requires surface miners to restore farmland to its original condition.

"For those of us who depend on agriculture for our livelihood, this record means...lost crops, lost tax bases, lost farms and a continuing destruction of the precious resource of our nation's prime farmland," she said.

Sidney Cornett of the Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition said that many Kentucky coal operators include proper reclamation plans in their permits. But too often, he said, loopholes in the 1977 law allow reclamation to fall far short of the legislation's intended standards.

"Regulations may be great on paper, but they don't mean a thing unless someone is there to see that they are upheld," added Catherine Cameron of Goldston, North Carolina. "We (citizens) are responsible for what happens to our health and well-being, now and in the future."

Betty Wells, who represents Citizens Organized Against Longwalling, a group in southeast Ohio, pointed out another problem: "The strip mining act of 1977 does not adequately monitor underground mining."

Wells said longwall mining, a modern form of technology, is practiced in 12 states. This method uses machinery that allows the mine roof to collapse after the coal in an area has been removed.

When the roof collapses, Wells said, the ground above shifts and continues to move for years. In her area, she said, the shifting has produced cracks up to 18 inches wide and has resulted in the loss of homes and water supplies.

Organizations which sponsored the conference were the Dakota Resource Council, Illinois South Project, Kentucky Fair Tax Coalition, Northern Plains Resource Council, Powder River Basin Resource Council, Rural Coalition, Save Our Cumberland Mountains and Western Organization of Resource Councils.

Job Corps Program Proving Successful

After a slow start, the new live-at-home student program at the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center has the enrollment quota it needed.

Known as the non-residency program, it is a pilot project authorized for the Prestonsburg center by the U.S. Department of Labor. It offers the same benefits granted to resident students: specialized training in one of six vocational skills, GED classes, food, clothing, and medical benefits. Also, students can earn as much as $200 per month. The one main difference is that it features a live-at-home arrangement. Most Job Corps students also live at the Prestonsburg center.

Enrollment includes ten students at present. All students are from Floyd county. They are:

Stadus Hamilton, of Prestonsburg, pursuing training in Building and Grounds Maintenance. Danny Hicks, of Hager Hill, Building and Grounds Maintenance. John Jervis, of Prestonsburg, Building and Grounds Maintenance. Brian Kessler, of Prestonsburg, Carpentry. Robert Kinsley, of Prestonsburg, Electricity. Ronnie Martin, of Minnie, Building and Grounds Maintenance. John Miller, Jr., of Prestonsburg, Carpentry. Frank Mosley, of Prestonsburg, Building and Grounds Maintenance. Ballard E. Shell, of Prestonsburg, Building and Grounds Maintenance. Adrian L. Smith, of Weeksbury, Electricity.

Second Annual PCC Summer Dance Camp

The 'Second Annual Prestonsburg Community College Dance Camp, cosponsored by the Kentucky Arts Council, will be held at Prestonsburg Community College August 3-7. The camp, open to children and adults ages six and over, will include three levels of classes. The participants of the camp will be placed by the guest faculty. The faculty includes three nationally and internationally known dance instructors.

Jan Hurst, who is directing the dance activities, said the camp is for both dancers with previous dance training and those who wish to begin training. In addition to directing the camp activities, she will also be teaching ballet classes. She has been teaching and directing dancers in classical ballet and pointe technique for many years while acting as artistic director, choreographer, and teacher in many schools/companies throughout the USA, including the San Francisco Ballet, Springfield Ballet, and Lexington Ballet. She earned a MFA in ballet from the University of Utah and holds many performing credits. More recently she has been teaching ballet for Prestonsburg Community College and Pikeville and this summer she will be touring as guest faculty with the International Dance Workshop in Bonn, Germany.

Teaching the jazz classes will be Marcus Alford who specializes in jazz, modern jazz, contemporary ballet, and costume design. Since his graduation from the University of Alabama in 1974, he has performed with a wide variety of dance companies, including several years with Gus Giordano Jazz Dance Chicago, has done many industrials and television shows; and has taught/choreographed for major dance schools and companies. He now has a professional dance company based in Atlanta, Georgia which will be touring Europe next summer with Jan Hurst as guest artist with his company.

Lynette Grubb, teaching the tap classes, is the owner/director of Dance Stop in Atlanta and is artistic director for Dance Stop Company. She brings a wide background of knowledge to her teaching of tap, and she is the co-sponsor of the Atlanta Jazz and Tap Festival.

This year's Dance Camp was planned last summer by the dance instructors who teach in the cities of Paintsville, Prestonsburg, Pikeville and Salyersville. The first week of August was chosen after consulting parents and students who participated in last year's camp. Participating in the planning were Jan Hurst, Robin Carlson, Dorothy Howard, Vicki Brown, Tonya Bennett and Karen McAdams, all of whom are instructors for the dance program at PCC, and Snookie Meade, of Meade's School of Dance.

In order to register for this one-week dance program, those who wish to participate should call 886-3863, extension 215 and ask for Lamonya Anderson.

Behind the Stripes In Middle Of Roads

Finding the best way to mark roads is not the most glamorous research going on at the University of Kentucky, but chances are it affects the most people.

"Without good pavement markings we would be in bad shape as far as traffic safety is concerned," says Jerry Pigman, a chief research engineer with the Kentucky Transportation Research Program. The program is part of the UK College of Engineering.

Pigman and fellow researcher Kenneth Agent have recently been studying different types of materials to indicate crosswalks, centerlines, and other roadway markings.

In a recent project, they examined materials for marking crosswalks and stopbars (the white line at stop signs and traffic lights). They found that an alkyl resin thermoplastic material was not only cost-effective, but maintained its appearance better than most other materials.

"It's not a paint," Pigman explains. "It's a formulation of materials that comes out in more of a plastic form. Paint is usually about 10 mils thick, while this material is put down from 60 to 90 mils. Therefore it wears much longer."

The thermoplastic material can also have tiny glass beads embedded in it to increase reflectivity at night.

Although thermoplastic materials are not new to road maintenance, Pigman says recent developments have made them more cost-effective and durable. The new materials are already in use in Louisville, Lexington and northern Kentucky.

For marking lanes on roadways, the UK researchers have had success with a new type of polyester paint. Longer lasting than regular paint, it maintains its reflectivity well and costs about the same as the older materials.

Not every new product they try out works well, though. Pigman says experiments with an epoxy paint proved unsatisfactory because the paint tended to peel off the roadway. In one such case, a solid yellow center line started looking like a dotted line.

The transportation researchers have had much better success with reflective roadway markers, which are designed to "light up" the centerline of roads at night. Two types have been tried successfully.

One version uses a steel housing that projects about half an inch above the road surface, but is designed not to cause any problems for snowplows. More than 500,000 of these markers have already been installed on some 3,700 miles of Kentucky roads.

The second type is recessed into a groove in the road surface, and is somewhat cheaper than the non-recessed version. These have been installed on about 1,000 miles of roads, mostly Interstate highways.

Both types do the job they are intended to do. Says Pigman, "It looks like an airport runway driving down some of these two lane roads at night. These are probably one of the most appreciated and best safety devices that people have commented on."

The importance of these marking systems, whether they are simple painted stripes or sophisticated reflective markers, cannot be overestimated.

"In a poor visibility situation, such as a construction zone, or on rainy nights, this is a critical part of driver safety. The better the guidance is, the less chance of leaving the normal lane of traffic and having an accident," Pigman says.

He also pointed out that as drivers get older, their ability to see well at night decreases, making good lane markings doubly important.

And, he says, aside from the obvious safety issues, a well-marked road usually means more pleasurable driving for everyone.

CAP Award To Recognize Contribution To Region

A new annual award is being sponsored this year by the Christian Appalachian Project which will recognize outstanding contributions that individuals have made to the Appalachian region.

The Mountain Spirit Award, named after the organization's magazine, will highlight the achievements of individuals for the betterment of Appalachia in the areas of spirituality, the economy, education, health, and the promotion of understanding of Appalachia and its people.

"We felt that an award is needed to recognize a person who is characterized by kindness and concern for others, who has helped improve the lives of Appalachians, and who has furthered a positive image of Appalachians in spirituality, the economy, education, health, and the promotion of understanding of Appalachia and its people," said Michael McLaughlin, president of the Christian Appalachian Project.

An award, which is being designed and crafted by students at Berea College, will be given to a person in each category during ceremonies on October 30.

The deadline for nominations is August 1. Nomination forms can be obtained by writing Glen Taul, Christian Appalachian Project, 322 Crab Orchard Road, Lancaster, Kentucky, 40446, or by calling 606-792-3051.

Any person is eligible who has been active in any of the above fields—either as a professional or volunteer. For example, a person who has contributed significantly to the spirituality of the region can be someone other than a clergyman. Or the person who has made contributions to the region's economic betterment could be a business man, a politician, a teacher, or other community leader.

The Christian Appalachian Project, a non-profit, non-denominational, Christian service organization based in Lancaster, Kentucky, is involved in each field for which an award is being given. It has approximately 50 programs which touch the lives of Appalachians in half of the counties of eastern Kentucky.

Crop Conditions Remain Variable; Most Areas Still Need Rainfall

Recent rain showers brought much-needed moisture to farmland across the Commonwealth.

Soil moisture as of June 19 was rated 26 percent very short, 51 percent short and 23 percent adequate. This is an improvement over the previous week, but most reporting stations in Kentucky are two inches to four inches below normal precipitation.

"The hot, humid conditions are stressing young plants across Kentucky," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. "The crops receiving moisture are developing well, but tobacco, newly seeded soybeans and pastures are really suffering."

Last week, farmers spent their time harvesting small grains and hay, baling straw, planting soybeans, cultivating fields and spraying.

Approximately 10 percent of the corn acreage was tasseling as of June 21, slightly behind last year's pace. The average height of emerged corn is 38 inches, behind the 43-inch height of corn at this time last year.

The condition of the corn crop as of June 19 was rated as 5 percent poor, 37 percent fair, 48 percent good and 10 percent excellent by reports for the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service.

Soybean planting, at 86 percent, is farther along than any soybean crop since 1980. The double-crop beans are being planted as small grain harvest continues.

The newly school acreage needs moisture for germination. Overall, the crop condition of emerged soybeans was rated 9 percent poor, 35 percent fair, 55 percent good and 1 percent excellent.

The 1987 tobacco crop is extremely variable. In some areas, burley has been reset three times because of the stress to young plants from the hot, dry conditions.

One Pendleton County farmer told the statistics service this is the worst stand of burley he has had in 50 years of raising tobacco.

Condition of the tobacco crop is rated 2 percent very poor, 11 percent poor, 56 percent fair, 29 percent good and 2 percent excellent. Statewide, 70 percent of the set burley is less than 12 inches in height, 27 percent is 12 inches to 24 inches tall and 3 percent is more than two feet tall.

Wheat for grain harvest was 63 percent complete by June 21. This is ahead of last year's 42 percent harvested at this time and 23 percent for the five-year average. Yields have been good.

Sorghum planting is nearly complete. Hay tonnage is varying according to the moisture received in each area. Straw is being baled.
