190 LANDOR DRIVE
ATHENS GA. 30606

THE DEMISE of a once-stately Prestonsburg home became apparent, last weekend, when the building collapsed. Now owned by Hershel Owens and located across from the Mountain Parkway Flea Market, it was once the Lake Drive home of Dr. Marvin L. Ransdell, former director of the health department, here. Its problems began about a month ago when a storm washed out the foundation, and the building now is a total loss, according to Owens.

Board Has Come Long Way Toward Balanced Budget

Although the Floyd County Board of Education wound up the year with a $90,467.60 deficit, it has come a long way along the road to recovery from a $403,278 deficit at the end of the year.

As late as February, a deficit of $120,000 was projected, and although Assistant Superintendent Russell Frazier, the board's financial officer, has hoped to see finances back in the black, Carey T. Vinson, Jr., sent here by the State Management Assistance Program, was not as optimistic in his final report. The board should have no difficulty however, in resolving its budgetary problems by the end of this fiscal year.

Tighter management of funds and a .73 percent increase in attendance which added $89,759 to the school system's coffers reduced the deficit substantially. Though a goal of 1% increase was not realized this year, Supt. Brackett expressed confidence in doing so during the coming year.

In another economy-motivated action, the board voted to close the Daniels Creek school, a move recommended by the Management Assistance Program. This leaves only three small schools in the county, those at Drift, Spruce Pine and Bonanza, whose closing has also been recommended by the state. Brackett said no decision will be made on closing these schools until space for students becomes available at other schools.

Last Wednesday's meeting, originally scheduled to be held at the high school cafeteria, here, was held at the Board of Education building because of a downed power pole near the school.

Despite the change in location, approximately 50 non-certified employees of the board were present, most of whom were concerned about possible loss of jobs. These fears were largely allayed although 10 custodial, two clerical, two maintenance jobs and an assistant bookkeeper's job were abolished. This number fell far short of the 27.5 cut in custodial jobs and six maintenance positions suggested by the state.

In other action, William G. Francis was hired as attorney for the board, and the Allen and Home Branch properties were ordered advertised for sale.

The following teachers and teachers' aides were hired:

Danette Hazelett, LD teacher at Spruce Pine and Prater School; Transfer Ernie Croot, LD teacher to Bonanza and Auxier School; Toni Sword, LBD teacher at Betsy Layne Elementary School; Tammy Farmer, LBD teacher at Harold School; Sandy O. Daniels, classroom teacher at Osborne Elementary School; Robert Kiser, math teacher at Betsy Layne High School; James Cooley, band teacher at Allen Central High School; Ashland Gearheart, teacher at Prestonsburg Elementary; James G. Bevens, teacher at Bonanza Elementary School; Lonnie Slone, athletic director at Wheelwright High School; Gary Frazier, athletic director at McDowell High School; Sherry Pennington, teacher at Betsy Layne High School; Mary K. Bailey, remediation teacher at Betsy Layne

TV Cable Company Files Illegal Hookup Charges

By Louise Houghton

Cable thieves, be warned: Officials with two cable-television companies that serve thousands of Floyd countians say they are tired of being ripped off and they aren't going to take it anymore. Criminal charges were filed this spring against three county residents by Tel-Com, Inc., of Harold, and one of the three was sentenced last month.

James Howard, of Toler Creek near Harold, who pleaded guilty, received a 30-day probation sentence, which he must serve if found to be illegally connected again within the next two years. The other two cases, involving neighbors on Branham's Creek near Galveston, are set for trial August 3.

It's Harvest Time For Marijuana Crop

By Joe Porter

"They're cutting now. If you've got a tip you've got to go on it," Sheriff Henry Hale told one of his deputies.

Sheriff Hale was referring to marijuana growers in the county who he suspects are now harvesting their crops.

Saturday, deputies John Blackburn, Anthony Castle, and James Johnson combed the Bucks Branch area and recovered 14 marijuana plants. Then acting on another tip, Monday, deputies Beaver Johnson, Randy Johnson, and Arnold Adams found 15 plants growing on a hillside on Tinker Fork of Mud Creek.

Sheriff Hale said these small patches of illegal plants may just be decoys, and growers have larger size crops tucked away. "They're just hoping we'll find these small amounts and quit," said deputy George Hale, "but we won't."

The searching deputies are reported to be finding the plants fertilized, well-tended, and in some cases, with chicken wire around them to keep the rabbits out.

Magoffin Government Comes To Standstill

By Jeff Weddle

For the second year in a row, Magoffin county government has come to a standstill because of a failure of the fiscal court to pass a budget.

According to Magoffin Judge-Executive Paul Salyer, a Democrat, the problem is that fellow Democratic Magistrates Joey Isaac and Ell Howard will not vote to accept his proposed budget. He charges that they are trying to prevent him from running successful programs while garnering more power for themselves, adding that a major point of contention is county road work.

Salyer said he had presented the court with a road plan which the two voted down. (Magoffin county has three magistrates.) They offered a plan of their own which would give power to authorize road work to the magistrates themselves. Salyer said this plan was unacceptable.

All county services have been halted or impaired as a result of the conflict. Garbage collection is stopped until the budget is passed, as well as community center programs. The jobs of about 20 county employees are in limbo. As of last Wednesday the jail remained open and was housing prisoners, and though

The cases are somewhat unusual, according to company officials, in that they came to court at all. Cable theft is common—Tel-Com, which serves about 5,000 homes in this county, estimates that 10 to 12 percent of its hookups are illegal. Consolidated Communication Group, Inc., which serves about 2,900 homes in the Prestonsburg area, believes that less than two percent of its connections are unauthorized, but "it's a definite problem," admitted manager Homer Wells.

In spite of widespread abuse, however, the companies have tried not to prosecute. James Campbell, office manager for Tel-Com, said his firm instead has tried to convince illegal cable-tappers to become paying customers. Consolidated Communications has followed a similar policy, according to Wells, and also has offered amnesty to cable thieves.

Tel-Com has filed charges for theft of services only about six times in the last four or five years, according to Campbell. Wells said that his firm has not prosecuted a single case since he joined the company about 15 months ago.

That is no longer the policy, both men said last week. "We're going to prosecute every case," Campbell declared.

"We have not chosen to prosecute in the past," said Wells, "but there will be a turnaround in the future."

A major factor cited by both is the growing recognition, by paying customers, that their payments are subsidizing the service to cable thieves. "A lot of people are saying, 'If we have to pay for it, why shouldn't everybody?'" Campbell explained. Those people are becoming more willing to turn in their neighbors, he said.

Paying customers also are learning that theft hurts the quality of the signal they receive. An illegal hookup usually damages the cable, Campbell said,

P'burg Man Charged In Bank Heist

By Jeff Weddle

A Prestonsburg man was arrested Sunday, July 5, in Greenup for the burglary of the Citizens Bank of Pikeville.

Gary D. Warrix, alias Gary D. Warick, 20, of Indian Hills, has been charged by the Pikeville city police with third degree burglary and theft by unlawful taking in the June 25 burglary, according to Det. Ray Akers. He is also charged with the theft of a car in Prestonsburg.

Akers said Warrix allegedly broke into the bank sometime between 12:50 and 5:30 a.m. and took $1,200 in change. He said the suspect, who was intoxicated, took change which tellers had left at their windows overnight. A Pikeville newspaper account said the money was stored in a garbage can. Akers alleged that Warrix worked alone and committed the burglary as a "spontaneous challenge" to himself.

He was arrested after trying to convert $135 in change to paper currency at a Super Quick convenience store in Greenup. A clerk there refused to make the transaction. Warrix was said to then have become abusive and refused to leave the store.

The clerk called the police, and by coincidence, Greenup Police Chief Larry Yeager was across the street. Yeager arrested Warrix for public intoxication. Upon checking the 1982 Cadillac Warrix had been driving, he found it to contain a large amount of change in the back seat. A vehicle check revealed that

East Point Man's Bail Set At $100,000 in Kidnapping

By Joe Porter

Two teenage girls—ages 13 and 14—thought they were getting a ride to the lake to go swimming, but the man took them to his house instead and held them overnight.

Charles Hamilton, 30, of East Point, has been charged with kidnapping following the incident, and District Court Judge Harold Stumbo set his bail at $100,000.

The sheriff's department was first notified at 7:50 p.m. Tuesday, July 7, by the mother of one of the two girls that they were missing. Deputy Arnold Adams searched the Abner-Wheelwright area that night where the girls were thought to be. The following morning deputies John Blackburn and George Hale searched the Prater Creek area. At about noon Wednesday a woman called the Sheriff's office and reported the girls found at the Drift Grade School.

Hale and Blackburn then drove there and picked up the two girls. While in Drift, they arrested Hamilton, who was spotted driving a pickup truck on Route 122 in front of the old movie theatre. "I immediately read him his rights, handcuffed him, and we took him in," Blackburn said. The deputy also

Traffic Slowed Wednesday As Utility Pole Snapped

By Louise Houghton

Traffic through Prestonsburg was slowed to a crawl for several hours, Wednesday afternoon, when strong winds pushed over a broken utility pole and created a potentially lethal situation, according to officials. The power line carrying 12,400 volts did not short out, but if it had, said Prestonsburg Fire Chief Thomas A. Blackburn, it could have exploded "like the Fourth of July."

"That stuff's uncontrollable," he added. Although the line's voltage was low compared with other distribution lines, it would definitely kill a person who touched it and could have started fires if had fallen, said Emil Mayor, line supervisor for Kentucky Power Company.

Fire, police and utility company personnel responded to a 3 p.m. call from a neighbor to find the pole leaning toward a home on Lake Drive just south of the high school, held partly upright by the telephone and cable-television lines that it also carried. The pole was rotted,

Though School's Out, Bomb Threats Go On

Yet another bomb threat was received Monday at Prestonsburg High School.

City Fire Inspector Larry Adams said the call was made to the school shortly before 3 p.m. Adams and 10 firefighters searched the building for about 45 minutes before deciding the threat was a hoax. He said checking out bomb scares is much more time consuming when school is in session.

The only students on the premises, Monday, were band members who had just completed a practice session when the threat was received. Adams said at last count more than 25 bomb threats have been made in the city this year.

Blackburn said, and he also found evidence that it had been hit by a vehicle. The impact apparently broke the pole but did not topple it, Blackburn said. "Then, evidently, when the wind started, it fell over."

To keep passers-by from the danger zone and give utility crews room to maneuver, police blocked off both southbound lanes of Lake Drive and re-routed the heavy afternoon traffic into the single northbound lane and onto the road shoulder.

A few homes near the fallen pole lost their power when it was pushed over, Blackburn said, and homes and businesses from the high school to Court Street were without electricity for about 20 minutes while the pole was replaced. A meeting of the Floyd Board of Education, scheduled to be held at 7 p.m. at the high school, was moved to the board's downtown offices.

But inconvenience was the only problem that arose, and the area was cleared of official vehicles by about 8 p.m.

'87 Acreage Reports Deadline Is July 15

Acreage reports for 1987 planted, diverted, idled and other farm program acres are currently being accepted at the County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service. The final reporting date is July 15, according to county ASCS official Sharon Conley.

Farmers who meet this deadline will avoid paying a late reporting fee. The entire farm must be certified before program participants can receive price support loans, deficiency payments and other benefits. Program participants are required to report crops and acreage planted and the uses to be made of these crops, acreage conservation reserve, or idled cropland, and acres diverted for payment. Nonparticipants are encouraged to report their crops to insure future benefits and to protect acreage bases.

After farmers report their acres, the ASCS county office will select farms at random to verify that acreage reports are accurate.

The ASCS official encourages producers to certify as soon as possible after planting and not wait until the July 15 deadline to report their acres.

Pikeville Native Named Courier-Journal Editor

Pikeville native, David V. Hawpe has been named editor of The Courier-Journal effective September 4. Hawpe replaces Michael G. Gartner, 48, who has been editor since July, 1986, when Gannett Co., Inc. purchased the paper from the Bingham family.

Hawpe has served as managing editor since 1979.

Irene C. Nolan, 40, will replace Hawpe as managing editor and Stephen J. Ford, 40, will replace Nolan as a deputy managing editor.

Hawpe, 44, has spent nearly all of his journalistic career at The Courier-Journal. A native of Pikeville, Hawpe grew up in Louisville and graduated from Male High School and the University of Kentucky.

He worked for the Associated Press in Lexington and Louisville and was an editorial writer at the St. Petersburg Times before joining The Courier-Journal as a reporter in the Hazard bureau in 1969.

He later covered the entire state as a roving reporter, served two years as editorial writer and was a copy editor and assistant state editor before being named city editor of The Louisville Times in 1977.

Two years later he became managing editor of The Courier-Journal and was managing editor/news for both The Courier-Journal and the Times prior to the sale to Gannett.

BIRTH ANNOUNCED

Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Gordon Gunnell and Zachary, of Grove City, Ohio, have announced the birth of the family's first daughter, Courtney Anne Gunnell, June 13 at 3:32 a.m. at Mount Carmel Medical Center, Columbus, O. Her paternal grandparents are Herbert and Anne G. Gunnell, of Columbus, and her maternal grandparents are Patsy Krywick, of Columbus, and Donald Brown, of Albuquerque, N.M. Her paternal great-grandparents are the late James and Joda Stratton Gunnell and the late Den and Ella Travis Burke, all of Prestonsburg.

The tide is turning for the Mediterranean Sea. After serving as a dumpsite for decades, it's now coming clean. In International Wildlife magazine reports that, under a multi nation agreement, treatment plants have been built, and governments have cracked down on dumping of toxics by ships, planes and industries. The latest agreement calls for national governments to create protected areas for some 500 threatened wildlife species.

Boswell Says Reagan Has Cart Before Horse

Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell says President Reagan has the right idea but his timing is a bit off as the White House plans to reduce price and crop supports for U.S. farmers as a means of eventually lowering international trade barriers.

Reacting to Monday's announcement by Washington that U.S. farm export subsidies would be phased out to ease world trade restrictions, Boswell said that the president has "gotten his cart before his horse."

"It's all well and good that the Reagan Administration is finally taking some of the steps necessary to encourage other countries to play fair in the world farm marketplace," Commissioner Boswell said, "but why does the American farmer have to catch the major brunt of these actions up front?"

"It's my opinion that the proper order would be to take steps that will allow the farmer to more readily absorb the shock of the cutback of programs he's had to depend upon for so long...and then go ahead with the business of knocking down trade barriers."

Since taking office in 1984, Boswell has been a critic of Federal policies that have had the appearance of allowing nations whose farmers are in direct market competition with American producers to use U.S. aid dollars to unfairly subsidize those farmers. He has voiced the same reservations about the exporting of American agricultural know-how to foreign countries at the expense of U.S. farmers.

The Reagan Administration is saying that by the end of 1988, the removal of farm export subsidies will be complete, as part of a plan that would see similar actions by competing nations...that such actions must be taken in concert.

"That's altogether too quick," Boswell says. "It has certainly taken U.S. farmers—Kentucky farmers—a lot longer than that to learn to survive in this domestic agricultural crisis."

"The crisis needs to be fixed here at home and then, it appears to me, it would be appropriate to take these large, rather drastic steps."

The Watchtower Bible and Tract Society of New York will hold a three-day district convention of Jehovah's Witnesses at the Civic Center Coliseum in Charleston, July 17-19. Lois E. McClung, Convention Manager, said 6,500 persons are expected to attend the annual convention. One hundred twenty-three conventions are planned in the United States this summer with more than one and a quarter million delegates visiting 65 different U.S. cities. The principal address of the convention, "In Our Fearful Times, Whom Can You Really Trust?" will be delivered Sunday, July 19, at 2 p.m.

About 16,000 icebergs form annually in the Arctic.

Bits and Pieces

A RENOVATED RUIN

Does every woman in the whole world except me know everything about makeup that I ever wanted to know but was afraid to ask?

Not long ago, I went to what is euphemistically called a Color Clinic, or Color Make-Over. Actually, it's a makeup party, and fun.

Of course, it was slightly embarrassing not to be able to see my eyes without my bifocals, but it was positively humiliating not to know which way the stripes went in the striped eyeshadow effect. Yikes!

In addition to which, all the other gals were about 35 years younger than I—a fact not calculated to make one feel that anything short of a miracle could be of any real help. They also were all pretty, and, in my estimation, young is enough. I mean, you can have too much.

The trouble is, as Shaw said, "Youth is wasted on the young." They can't possible appreciate it.

The young woman who conducted the clinic was extremely nice, too. She said I was, in the color scheme of things, "Summer." Tactfully, she didn't say whether this meant late summer or possibly Indian Summer, which is next door to fall. And you know what comes next. Ignore it. It won't go away, but why worry?

Of course, there's nothing wrong in fighting back. I spent my life savings, and believe me if I ever have time to use all that stuff and can remember what to do with it and can find my face without my glasses—Boy, am I ever going to look like a new woman! Or at least a renovated ruin.

But don't hold your breath.

RAIN, RAIN, GO AWAY!

Our monsoon season is helping with the utility bill, because for sure there's no need to water the flowers, or what have you, but on the other hand, the grass and weeds are out of control. It's tough to mow what is rapidly becoming a hay field, especially in a downpour. Neither can you get a leaking roof fixed under these conditions. Jeez!

Stephens Enters Guilty Plea To Reduced Charge

By Louise Houghton

Indicted for murder and two counts of assault following a one-car accident in which he allegedly abandoned three injured companions, Frank E. Stephens pleaded guilty last week to a reduced charge of reckless homicide. The other charges were dismissed, pursuant to an agreement between Stephens, his attorney Cassie J. Allen, and the Commonwealth's attorney.

Sentencing was set for August 14, and the Commonwealth's attorney recommended that Stephens serve five years in the state penitentiary. He had faced sentences of 20 years to life on the murder charge, 10 to 20 years for each assault charge, and five years for being a persistent felony offender, a fourth charge lodged against Stephens. He was convicted of burglary in 1982 and sentenced to a year in prison.

According to police reports, Stephens, 35, of West Prestonsburg, was driving north on U.S. 23 near Auxier at about 2 a.m., Feb. 4, when his car left the road and went over an embankment. He and his wife Lavonda, 15, and their two children left the scene of the accident and called a relative to get a ride home. Police said Stephens was intoxicated at the time.

Left behind with serious injuries were Virginia Fairchild, of Staffordsville, her son, Jimmy Fairchild, 11, and Clate Winston Fairchild, 34, of Paintsville. Winston Fairchild, who was thrown from the car, died several hours later. The victims were found by a passing motorist at 7:45 a.m.

Beulah Fairchild, of Paintsville, filed suit against Stephens in March, charging that her son's death was caused by Stephens' reckless driving and failure to render medical aid. The suit, which requested both punitive damages and compensation for the loss to Fairchild's estate, was not contested by Stephens. A court order signed last month found that punitive damages were not warranted, but awarded Beulah Fairchild a total of $15,000 for expenses and lost earnings.

Animal Shelter Is Improved But Much Work Still Needed

By Jeff Weddle

It's been a year since the Dewey Dam Dog and Cat Protection Society took over the Floyd county animal shelter from the East Kentucky Wildlife Federation and, though many improvements have been made, DDD&CPS members insist there is still much to be done.

Among improvements already in place are a hot-water heater, sink, commode, separate cages for pups and cats, screens replacing chicken wire on doors, doorknobs and locks for the building, and linoleum flooring.

The DDD&CPS engaged in a major clean-up there last July, before being awarded the county and city contracts giving them control of the shelter. That operation included the flushing of the septic tank and cleaning the drains of dirty, maggot-infested water.

But maybe the biggest change is the shelter ridding itself of the gas chamber that the previous administration had used to put to sleep dozens of animals. That unpleasant act is now effected with the humane T-61 euthanasia compound, which kills instantly. The gas chamber took as much as 30 minutes to destroy the animals.

The DDD&CPS has a policy of keeping animals as long as possible before putting them to sleep, and as yet, no healthy, adoptable animals have been destroyed. That will have to change soon, say officials, citing over-crowding and scarce funds.

Two-hundred dollars per month comes from the City of Prestonsburg, while the fiscal court supplies $833.33. It costs $3 to leave a cat at the shelter or $1 to leave a kitten; $3 to leave a dog, $1 for pups. Dogs are routinely given distemper and parvo shots, as well as wormed. To adopt an adult dog the cost is $20. This includes all of the animal's booster shots. An adult cat costs $5 to adopt.

Until recently, adult dogs could be adopted for $5. That was raised when it was discovered that many dogs were being adopted and sold at a higher price to laboratories for use in medical experiments.

Other funds come from donations received from drop-boxes at local businesses, and some which are sent in the mail. Many people send store coupons, which shelter treasurer Theresa Ousley said are most welcome, and always used.

Prestonsburg City Administrator Fred James said Friday that he is satisfied with the way the shelter is being run. He added, however, that the current location of Sally Stephens Branch is not adequate for the volume of animals that need to be placed there. "My problem is the animal shelter, in its current capabilities, physical plant wise, can't handle the current need. There are probably some animals that they should have that they can't get," he said.

Since January, a total of 50 cats, 105 dogs, 72 kittens and 183 pups have been left at the shelter. Twenty-four kittens have been born there, as well as six puppies. Of these 440 animals, 40 cats, 74 dogs, 51 kittens and 120 puppies have been adopted.

Ninety-four animals were euthanized during that period. Seventy-one of these were pups, 21 were adult dogs, and two were kittens. All were put to sleep because they were diseased.

Shelter officials stressed that people leaving sick animals there brought undue hardship on the facility. "We're not a hospital, we're a dog pound," said Lisa Barber, DDD&CPS president.

Anyone wishing to make a financial donation to the shelter may send it care of the Dewey Dam Dog and Cat Protection Society, 3219 W. Mt. Parkway, Prestonsburg, Ky., 41653.

Going For the Big Prize

A student at the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps center was still smiling, recently, after donating a pint at the Prestonsburg Blood Center in hopes of winning the competition now under way. Billed as the "Super Summer Group Competition," the contest will award a Packard Bell personal computer and a trip to King's Island for each group member to the group that recruits the most donors between now and Sept. 7. The Job Corps center currently is in the lead, but employees at the Holiday Inn, Wal-Mart and Winn Dixie also are vying for the prize.

Enough Is Enough

Recently there has been talk of bringing to the coalfields of Kentucky a present from our richer more affluent states on the east coast. For all the cheap energy we have provided, they wish to bestow upon us their garbage. It seems that it is not enough for our mountains to be ravaged, our streams polluted and our ground water destroyed—now they wish for Kentucky to become their garbage dump.

I fully expect for our state government and court system, in Kentucky, to do as they have always done and sell the people of the coalfields out. Why should we expect any better? They sold us out in a stripmine enforcement, groundwater contamination, illegal oil drilling, and they are now considering a plan to allow Lawrence County to become the hazardous waste disposal site for the Chemical Valley. Hey! Why not? If we can accept the hazardous waste from Ohio and West Virginia, why not finish the job on Eastern Kentucky with New York garbage?

It's no accident that Kentucky is being negotiated with to take on the refuse needs of the Northeast. We have one of the poorest track records in environmental protection and enforcement. If I were in the waste disposal business Kentucky would be my number one choice. Here in Kentucky, a company like Nuclear Engineering (the company that ran the nuclear waste dump Maxey Flats, now on the Superfund clean up list) could not only make a bundle on a nuclear waste dump but after it began leaking got the state to buy it out and got off scott free from any clean-up responsibilities. Its former president, James Neel, is the one who has the gall to ask for a permit to operate the proposed Pyro-Chem hazardous waste incineration plant in Lawrence County. Just think, we may become nationally known as the Dump On State. Now won't that make us all proud?

People Create Litter

I read with interest your article in yesterday's edition concerning the litter problem at Dewey Lake and Jenny Wiley State Park. The front page photo and story all made good reading—"What are you doing about your litter problem, Mr. Park Superintendent? Why is there so much litter all over your park?" Why, indeed!

Nowhere in your story was there any mention or reference as to just how the litter got to Arrowhead Point. It didn't bloom and grow in the spring; it wasn't dropped from the sky; it certainly wasn't created by natural phenomena. It wasn't any of these faceless culprits. It was people—people who simply do not give a damn—that caused the litter.

The core problem is not that the park has litter. The problem is that people create litter and do so without a second thought. All of the garbage in your photo was there because some person left it there. Who? Maybe it was the gentleman in the Cadillac who decided to empty his ashtray in the parking lot at Glyn View Plaza. Maybe it was one of the young people who hang out in the parking lots downtown who leave their burger wrappers strewn all over someone else's property. Maybe it was the woman who had just made a withdrawal from her 24-hour teller machine and, having stuffed her cash in her purse, threw her receipt into the bushes. Maybe it was...

Yes, there is a litter at Jenny Wiley, but until there is a change in the way most Floyd countians think—a new awareness and a new recognition of one's responsibility to one's community—we are fighting a losing battle against this problem. We may not be the person that tosses the beer bottle out the car window while driving around the lake, but, as long as we tolerate those who do, we are just as guilty.

A Living Legend

Recently, the First Commonwealth Bank has been running an ad in the Floyd County Times which shows sports announcer Cawood Ledford in a photograph identified as the bank in 1904 and below it, one of him standing in front of the bank building.

Let me be the first to publicly congratulate Mr. Ledford for having not aged noticeably in the past eighty years. He must have swallowed the time capsule meant for the cornerstone of the old bank.

HUD-Census Bureau To Begin Survey Here

The 1987 survey of housing in the United States will begin in this area the week of July 20.

The Census Bureau and the Department of Housing and Urban Development planned the survey to obtain current information on housing, one of the nation's key economic indicators.

Across the country the bureau has selected a sample of 53,000 housing units from the national stock of 100 million. It updates the sample every other year to reflect new construction, other additions, and losses from the inventory. A related housing survey covering 11 specific metropolitan areas started in April.

The national survey makes possible periodic comparisons of the number and types of housing as well as changes in the total housing stock and the cost of housing, services, and utilities. It also provides data on characteristics of structures and their occupants.

Census Bureau representatives will interview households for about five months and will send each household an announcement beforehand. Owners, rental agents, or neighbors will be asked to provide information on unoccupied units.

The agencies will issue results late in 1988, including data for the nation, regions, urban and rural areas, combined metropolitan areas (both inside and outside central cities), and nonmetropolitan areas.

RR Commission Pressing For Glo Trestle Removal

By Joe Porter

Railroad Commissioner Jimmy Gabe Turner keeps turning the screw on the CSX Corporation to get them to clean up and remove the Glo railroad trestle. In a hearing Thursday in Frankfort, CSX legal counsel James Cleveland was questioned on when the work would be completed.

"I wanted to get something on the record, something official," Turner said for his reason for docketing the hearing. "The telephone calls don't work."

Residents of Glo, Estill, and Wayland organized in April, after having put up with the abandoned trestle for years which dams Right Beaver Creek when the water runs high, causing the water to back up and flood bridges and property in those communities. Residents there first contacted Turner, then Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens, and County Attorney David Barber who followed with a letter to the railroad informing them of the health and safety hazard presented by the trestle.

In the last year, brush and trees and refuse have collected on the trestle's piers, and Turner wants it all removed. The Railroad Commission's attorney, Raymond D. Kirk, questioned Cleveland at the hearing, and he was told that the cleanup work is going to be bid out to a private contractor and would be done by the end of September.

According to Turner, the CSX attorney termed the debris situation at the trestle part of the "Clorox Bottle Syndrome," meaning people are dumping refuse into Right Beaver Creek, including Clorox bottles, and have contributed to the problem.

Nevertheless, Turner said the damming is caused by the trestle obstructing the creek—not Clorox bottles—and that the trestle has to be removed before the problem can be solved. Cleveland told the Commission that the trestle should be removed by the end of the year, but it will take longer to do because a giant crane is needed to lift the trestle.

Turner is also pressing the railroad on other safety problems that have been brought to his attention. He says that a culvert that runs under CSX track at the Drift crossing is plugged up and causing a pond to form. The pond water is murky, weeds are growing up around it, and it is not barricaded. "A little kid could fall in it and drown," Turner said, "or the rail bed could erode and be the cause of a wreck."

He has also received complaints about the Stevens Branch crossing and its present state of disrepair. "There are potholes on both sides of the track. They need to be filled so vehicles can cross it safely and without damage," Turner said.

Sex, Violence, Religion Poverty: All Parts of KET Series On South America

Join Jack Pizzev, host, writer and creator of "South American Journeys" as he explores social issues such as illiteracy, inequality and foreign exploitation, and examines the diverse culture of the South American people.

"South American Journeys," an eight part series, airs Sundays at 8 p.m. through August on KET.

August 2, Pizzev begins his travels in Columbia, trying to discover what inspires the South American in "Bravo, Bread, Circuses." Pizzev examines the roles bullfighting and boxing play in the lives of South Americans and asks why they are so enthralled by "telenovelas" (soap operas).

The following week, Pizzev traces the influence of Catholicism on the area in "A Continent Crucified." Nine out of 10 South Americans are born and baptized as Catholics, yet their church has always been in turmoil.

"Kings for a Day," August 17, focuses on carnival time in Rio de Janeiro. In what Pizzev calls "an explosion of sexy extravagance," families pay for their costumes and local gangs pay for the floats and bands.

The final episode, "A Better Manana" looks to the future in a rich land filled with poor people.

"South American Journeys" is produced by the Australian Broadcasting Corporation and is presented by WHY/Philadelphia.

Local Woman Plans Goosedown Industry

By Tim Sizemore
They march in perfect unison, heads held high in the summer sun. No, it's not a fourth of July parade, it's just Ruth Meade's flock of geese, struttin' their stuff, near the Goble-Roberts Addition at Prestonsburg.

For as long as Mrs. Meade remembers geese have been a part of her life. She recalls watching her mother in Rumania pluck them clean of luxurious down. "She never wasted a feather," she exclaims with a chuckle. "She taught me all about geese as a child, but I had to relearn about them two years ago."

Ruth Meade is a delightful lady, full of European charm and openness. Her life has been full of rich experiences. From her birth in Rumania, overshadowed by the war clouds of the 30's, until she moved to Prestonsburg, life has never been dull.

A human encyclopedia of gooseology is the best way to describe Mrs. Meade's knowledge of the fluffy fowls. She is an expert on the down business, knowing all current market prices and leading exporters. "It takes one goose seven weeks to produce four ounces of down" she says and claims that one day she will be able to produce 1,000 pounds a week.

Now the owner of 280 geese, she plans to expand her flock to well over 150,000, and become, as she states proudly, the only down producer in the United States. Most goose down comes from Holland, Rumania, Hungary, with a majority imported from China. With quotas and restrictions placed on foreign imports, she feels that she can produce down much cheaper, because of a machine, designed by an engineer and herself to pluck the birds. "It would make down padded items less expensive and make these items more available to the average consumer." The machine would operate on the assembly line principal and could be operated by two people, she explained.

Mrs. Meade is presently in the process of buying a farm near Paris. "You need lots of water and grass to take care of a large flock," she says, and adds with these prerequisites geese will virtually take care of themselves.

There are two good breeds of geese, Hungarian and Chinese. The Chinese goose produces grey down and supplies an ounce and a half more down per bird. Ruth Meade plans to raise both breeds and through selection produce larger and more padded fowls.

She demonstrated the hand method of plucking down. First she selects a bird ready to harvest, then sitting on her back steps, she places the goose upside down between her knees, and began effortlessly to extract the down. It doesn't hurt, she explained, if you pluck them before the third layer of feathers appear. It is very important, she explains, to harvest the feathers on time as a day or two could make the difference between hurting the goose or easily harvesting the down with no pain.

"Geese need to have the down removed. If you don't it just falls on the ground and is wasted", and as she points out, she could never be cruel to her feathered friends.

She told of a Rumanian process whereby the goose's feet are nailed to the floor and it is force-fed through a funnel, with high protein feed such as soybeans. This will cause the liver to enlarge to fifteen pounds or more, because the goose is denied exercise. Mrs. Meade heartily disapproves of this practice, and says it is cruel.

Even though she has yet to make her first dollar from down, she is confident of ultimate success. With her drive and determination, the sky's the limit, and Prestonsburg may well become the birthplace of the American goosedown industry.

Bankers Association Hosts Directors Meet

Hundreds of bank directors and executives from across Kentucky will converge at the Galt House East Hotel in Louisville July 19-20 for the Kentucky Bankers Association's Fifteenth Annual Bank Directors Conference.

The conference brings together national and regional experts to provide Kentucky bankers with information on today's banking environment. The program will address many of the changes the banking industry has gone through in the past few years and the roll of the banking director in this new era.

Featured speakers at the conference include: Dr. Douglas Austin, a nationally known speaker and consultant to financial institutions, Dr. Lyle Sussman, an Associate Professor at the University of Louisville School of Business, who consults with Fortune 500 companies and financial institutions and writes a weekly column on management for the Louisville Courier-Journal, and Byron Crawford, the popular Kentucky humorist and newspaper columnist who will be the dinner speaker at the annual Banquet on Sunday night.

In addition, participants will have the opportunity to attend workshops on asset/liability management, the regulatory process, auditing procedures and recognizing and resolving directors' conflicts of interest.

For more information contact Dr. Susan Newkirk-Moore at the KBA offices, (502) 582-2453.

Weyerhaeuser Awards WKU $16,000 Grant

Western Kentucky University has been awarded a $16,000 grant by the Weyerhaeuser Company Foundation to assist in funding the University's summer program for Verbally and Mathematically Precocious Youths.

On behalf of Weyerhaeuser, Richard Rossiter, general manager of the Franklin packaging division, made the award to Western President Kern Alexander and Dr. Julia Roberts, who coordinates the annual summer program for young scholars.

"The Foundation's mission is to improve the quality of life, particularly where employees live," Rossiter said, and the grant to Western, he added, will enhance both the youth and the communities as well as Western and the Weyerhaeuser Company.

Western's program for verbally and mathematically precocious youths is a cooperate effort with Duke University's Talent Identification Program, and the camp is for students currently enrolled in grades seven through ten.

Youngsters study biology, computer science, expository writing, humanities, Latin, physics, pre-calculus and psychology.

This is Western's fourth year for the program which includes 90 students from 11 states.

WILDLIFE RECREATION UP

A record 141 million Americans now participate in wildlife-related recreation activities, according to a recent study by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service. In 1985 more than half of all adult Americans engaged in such activities as feeding, observing or photographing wildlife. More than one in four fished, and about one in 10 hunted. Altogether they spent more than $55 billion on equipment and transportation to pursue these pastimes, National Wildlife magazine reports.

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT 87-CI-227

The Bank Josephine — Plaintiff VS: NOTICE OF SALE Randall Stanley and Jane Ann Stanley Defendants

By virtue of a judgement and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the June 30 term, 1987, in the above styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 30 day of July, 1987, at 10:00 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or upon a credit of three (3) months, the following described property, to-wit:

That certain tract or parcel of land, lying and being on the waters of Bull Creek, Floyd County, Kentucky, and being the same property conveyed Randall Stanley and Jane Ann Stanley, from Otis Hansel Cooley and Sarah Francis Cooley, his wife, by deed dated January 31, 1984, recorded in Deed Book 281, page 594 in the Floyd County Clerk's Office and being more particularly described as follows:

BEGINNING at an iron pin edge of county road; thence with the county road N 61° 43' W 70.14 feet to an iron pin edge of county road; thence with the county road N 74° 10' W 81.78 feet to an iron pin edge of Bull Creek; thence running with Bull Creek S 32° 32' E 72.61 feet to an iron pin edge of Bull Creek; thence running with Bull Creek S 18° 01' W 86.35 feet to the point of BEGINNING. Said lot containing .28 acres, more or less.

The amount of money to be raised by this sale shall be in the principal sum of $73,691.17 with interest thereon at 11.55% annually from the 10 day of February, 1987 until satisfied and the costs of this action, including costs of advertising of this sale and the fees and commissions for conducting this sale.

For the purchase price the purchaser must execute bond with approved surety or sureties, bearing legal interest from the day of sale until paid and having the force and effect of a judgement with a lien retained upon said property as a further security. Bidders will be prepared to comply with these terms. Given under my hand, this 13 day of July, 1987.

MARSHALL DAVIDSON, Master Commissioner 7-15-87.

PIT BULLS

COPYRIGHT 1987 KVMA

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association Newspaper accounts of attacks on humans by pit bulldogs have been plentiful lately, with other animals as victims as well as adults and children.

Just what kind of a dog is this monster? And, is the dog really a monster or is there more than meets the eye?

The dog usually referred to as the pit bull is descended from the English bulldog of the 19th century (bred to bait bulls) and game terriers such as the Fox terrier. This cross was called the Staffordshire Bull Terrier in England.

The dog came to the United States about 1870, where it became known as the Pit Dog, Pit Bull Terrier and later the Staffordshire Terrier. In 1972, the American Kennel Club revised the name of the breed to American Staffordshire Terrier to allow for variations introduced by American breeders which made the animal distinct from the British strain.

The AKC lists the chief requisites for the dog as "strength unusual for its size, soundness, balance, a strong and powerful head, a well-muscled body and courage that is proverbial." It is the strength and courage that make the dog controversial.

Illegal as it may be now and may have been for years, pit bulls have been used as fighting dogs by gamblers and likely are still used in that manner today. Obviously, dogs trained to fight are more likely to be dangerous than dogs trained to be house pets. The AKC's Complete Dog Book observes that "it is not the intention to tag him as a fighting machine or to praise this characteristic...the good qualities of the dog are many and it would be difficult to overstress them."

"They exceed being dead game; nevertheless they should not be held in ill repute merely because man has been taking advantage of this rare courage to use them in the pit as gambling tools. These dogs are docile, and with a little training are even tractable around other dogs. They are intelligent, excellent guardians and they protect their master's property with an air of authority that counts; they easily discriminate between strangers who mean well and those who do not. They have another characteristic that is unusual: when they are sold or change hands, they accept their new master in a comparatively short time."

How do you protect yourself from an angry pit bull? The secret is in prevention.

You respect the dog's territory, understanding that it is no more likely to bite than any other breed of dog as a general rule. The difference is that when it does decide to bite, it will not change its mind.

If the dog's master is around, or if the dog makes no unusual moves, treat it as you would any other dog you do not know. If it seems nervous, however, don't panic and don't make sudden moves. Experts recommend you do not make direct eye contact with the animal and that you move slowly to the nearest shelter (including climbing a tree if one is handy) and/or out of its territory. If it attacks, you'll likely have to kill it to halt the attack, and that can be a formidable undertaking.

Your veterinarian can give you more detailed information on which dogs are likely to attack and which ones aren't, as well as on how to protect yourself. Remember, if you keep a pit bull as a pet you may be running a risk of extra liability if someone is injured by your dog. Your veterinarian can teach you how to train the dog, as well as advise you about what kind of liabilities you may incur.

The popular game of Mah Jongg was played in China as early as 500 B.C.

Grote, New MSU President, Outlines Future Priorities

Twenty-seven years after starting his career in higher education administration, Dr. C. Nelson Grote returned last week to the place where it began—Morehead State University.

Meeting with the news media at the close of his first day as MSU's 11th president, the 59-year-old educator said, "This is a special day in my life and I hope it proves to be a special day for this University."

The new president, with his wife of 38 years, Wilma, at his side, reiterated his joy at returning to Kentucky. "I think it is very true, we have come home," he said. Dr. Grote first came to MSU in 1960 as an associate professor and chairman of the Division of Applied Arts. He later became dean of the new College of Applied Sciences and Technology, leaving MSU in 1971 to become president of Schoolcraft College in Livonia, Mich. Dr. Grote returned to MSU after six years as chief executive officer of the Community Colleges of Spokane.

Dr. Grote launched his first news conference with the naming of Steve Hamilton, MSU head baseball coach, as acting director of athletics and noted that a national search would be launched for a successor to G.E. (Sonny) Moran, who earlier was named special assistant to the president for athletics.

Noting that he would be extremely busy over the next few months while settling into his new job, Dr. Grote said he was "impressed by the caliber" of the University personnel he had met. "There are real fine quality programs and services at Morehead State," he said.

Dr. Grote, whose background includes teaching at the college level in addition to his administrative experience, said that MSU students consistently had received a quality education.

Pausing to pay tribute to his predecessor in the post, Dr. A.D. Albright, Dr. Grote called him "an extraordinary administrator and statesman."

Outlining some of his priorities for the future, Dr. Grote said one area which would receive a great deal of his attention was fund raising. "If we want to get into that margin of excellence, we will have to go out beyond ourselves," he said.

Dr. Grote said he planned to meet with his executive staff in the next few days and that setting specific goals for 1987-88 and beyond would be high on the agenda.

Dr. Grote also noted that he would be making some key appointments in the coming year, including a new vice president for academic affairs, an associate dean for the newly-created School of Education, a director of development, and the director of the Office of Regional Development Services.

Other areas targeted by Dr. Grote included exploring ways for the University to play a vital role in the region's economic development, working closely with eastern Kentucky's public school officials, civic leaders and legislators, as well as student recruitment and programs for retention of students.

"You can enroll students and insure their failure or you can enroll students and prepare them for success," he said.

In his previous posts, Dr. Grote has taken an active leadership role in education consortia. Named Outstanding CEO of the Pacific Region by the Association of Community College Trustees in 1986, Dr. Grote chaired the Board of Directors of the Spokane Higher Education Consortium, composed of the presidents of five colleges and universities. He also was a voting member of the Spokane Joint Center Board for Higher Education.

Dr. Grote holds a doctor of education degree from the University of Illinois, a master's degree in education from the University of Missouri and a bachelor's degree in education from Eastern Illinois University.

Audubon Series Examines Threats To Animals, Land

What fowl message are ducks sending that we are not receiving? Will panthers and cheetahs survive the threat of extinction? Can farming be profitable for farmers, and good for the environment?

Discover answers to these questions and more on the "National Audubon Society Specials," airing consecutive Saturdays in August at 7 p.m. on KET. The series repeats Sundays at 7 p.m.

"Ducks Under Siege" (August 8) tells viewers that the North American duck population in 1985 was at its lowest level in more than 30 years. This decline of wetland habitat in the United States and Canada corresponds to increased commercial development. According to waterfowl biologists, birds are essential to measuring the health of the land mass, and their decline poses a significant danger.

"Common Ground" (August 15) focuses on innovators who have discarded outdated farming techniques in favor of scientific discoveries. This new generation of agribusinessmen has reduced or eliminated the use of chemicals while maintaining the productivity of soils.

"On the Edge of Extinction: Panthers and Cheetahs" (August 22) features Loretta Swit as narrator. Two species of endangered big cats face the same problem in both Florida and Africa: How to maintain a viable feline population in diminishing habitats?

"National Audubon Society Specials" is produced by WETA/Washington, D.C.

Military Science Post Goes To MSU Graduate

Kenneth E. Musser, a Morehead State University graduate, has been named assistant professor of military science at MSU.

Musser comes to the University from the Kentucky Military Academy in Ft. Knox, where he was an instructor. He also served as commander for Company A of the 3rd Forward Support Battalion in Danville and stock control supervisor at the U.S. Purchasing Finance Office for Kentucky in Frankfort.

A native of South Shore, Musser received his B.A. and M.B.A. degrees from MSU. He has received the Army Achievement Medal for exceptional service and achievement as company commander. He is active in the MSU Alumni Association and the National Guard Association of Kentucky.

He and his wife Anita have two daughters, Tiffany and Rachel.

KET Specials Will Look At Appalachian Music, Politics

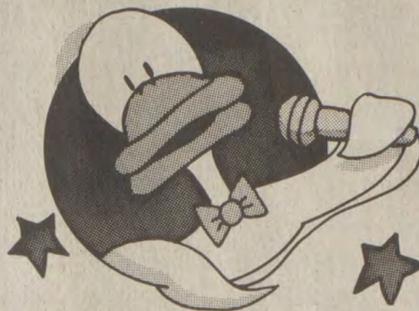

Mountain politics and music are the focus of two July specials on KET.

"The Big Lever," slated to air Tuesday, July 21 at 8 p.m., will examine the history and tradition of mountain politics. Richard Nixon chose Leslie County, Ky. for his first public appearance after resigning from the presidency. "The Big Lever" includes footage from his visit and presents a lively look at grassroots politics practiced in a staunchly Republican county.

Join KET at the same time Tuesday, July 28 for a film tribute to the musical legacy of the Carter Family of southwestern Virginia. A.P. and Sara Carter, together with Sara's cousin Maybelle, influenced the development of old-time country music. "The Sunny Side of Life" travels to the old Carter Store in Maces Spring, Va., now a music hall and gathering place, where the legacy lives on.

Both "The Big Lever" and "The Sunny Side of Life" are produced by Appalachian, a non-profit media arts center located in Whitesburg, Ky.

Celebrate 60th Anniversary

Millard F. and Gilla Blanton, who were married July 1, 1927, celebrated their 60th wedding anniversary, June 27. They were surprised with a covered-dish family get-together at their home attended by their three daughters, Delores Flinders and family, of Morrow, Ohio; Flotine Caudill and family; and Loretta Middleton and family, of Sidney, O.; as well as their son, Clifford Blanton, and his family, of Langley. The family of Clyde Blanton, now deceased, was unable to attend. Ten of their 13 grandchildren and nine of their 16 great-grandchildren also were present. The couple was presented with matching recliner chairs by their family.

LPN's Alive and Well And Doing A Good Job

A new statewide organization is gearing up to promote and enhance licensed practical nursing across Kentucky.

The Kentucky Council of Practical Nursing, which is made up of about 20 nursing coordinators from Kentucky state vocational-technical schools and representatives from the State Board of Education, the Kentucky Board of Nursing and the Governors Council on Vocational Education, is dedicated to giving practical nursing a new image.

According to Jane Kelly, unit director of Health and Personal Services in the state education department's Office of Vocational Education, "We're actually filling a void that we had at this level of nursing." Both associate degree and baccalaureate nursing programs in Kentucky already have strong organizations.

A survey has shown that people in Kentucky still want and need the LPN level of nursing, Kelly said. "We want people to know that practical nursing is alive and well and that LPNs are still a viable force in the health field."

"Providing the specialized training needed is just another way that the state vocational education system serves industry—in this case the rapidly-expanding healthcare industry that is so important to Kentucky," said Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald.

All practical nursing programs in the state are located in Kentucky state vocational-technical schools except for those at Spencerian College in Louisville and Booth Hospital School of Education in Florence.

It was determined during the first meetings of the council (KCPN) that the nursing coordinators would return to their home communities and work with local LPN organizations to support and strengthen practical nursing in their areas. The council will also work to raise public awareness of the profession.

Kentucky state vocational-technical schools graduate approximately 650 licensed practical nursing students each year. Graduates go on to work in a variety of jobs in the health care field including doctors' offices and hospitals.

CARD OF THANKS

We, the family of John Branham, of Water Gap, wish to express our deepest thanks to everyone who sent flowers and food, and for the kind words of sympathy. His passing was sad, but your kindness helped so much and will always be remembered. To the ministers and the staff at Floyd Funeral Home, we thank you from the bottom of our hearts.

Maggie Branham and Family

The first president of the U.S. to be born outside the boundaries of the original 13 Colonies was Abraham Lincoln, born in Hodgenville, Ky., in 1809.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of James Patton would like to extend their appreciation to all those friends, neighbors and loved ones who helped comfort them during their time of sorrow. Thanks to all who sent food, flowers, prayers, or spoke words of comfort. A special thanks to the minister, Doug Lewis, for his help during this difficult time and to the Hall Funeral Home for their kind and courteous services.

THE FAMILY

CARD OF THANKS

The family of William ('Bill') Slone wishes to thank all those friends, neighbors, and family who helped them in any way upon the passing of their loved one. Thanks for the food, flowers, prayers and words of comfort spoken by all. A special thanks to the ministers, Green Boyd and Buddy Jones, and to the Hall Funeral Home for its kind and efficient services.

PET TRAVEL

COPYRIGHT 1987 KVMA

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association
For many folks, summer is vacation time. And vacation time may mean traveling, often with the family pet in addition to the family.

Some advance planning will make the experience more pleasant.

Remember that some animals just don't travel well, and if yours is one of these, find a friend or a kennel in which to board it.

If you take your pet, check ahead with facilities in which you will be staying to be sure pets are welcome. Don't permit the animal to sleep on furniture or bedsprings. If you must leave the animal alone in a motel room, place a "Do Not Disturb" sign on the door and inform the desk clerk.

Be sure your pet wears a collar complete with identification tag and license, in case it is lost. Carry a rabies vaccination certificate as you cross state lines or international borders. Be prepared to present a health certificate if you cross into Canada or Mexico.

And take along your pet's favorite toys and dishes, as well as some of his favorite food.

If you travel by air, be aware of guidelines which govern shipping pets. Federal regulations specify that dogs and cats must be at least eight weeks old and have been weaned for five days before flying. Current health and rabies vaccination certificates will be required.

Try to book direct flights, and during warm weather choose early morning or late evening flights to avoid risk of overheating. Ask about other cargo on the flight and be aware of possible dangers from other cargo—fumes from dry ice, for example, can be lethal. Be at the airport early, exercise your pet, put it in the cage yourself.

Most airlines can furnish a cage, and it should have these features: large enough to allow the animal to stand, turn or lie down; strong and free of interior protrusions; have a leakproof bottom covered with absorbent material; have ventilation panels on opposite sides, with rims or knobs on the outside to prevent blocked air flow; a "Live Animal" label with arrows indicating upright position, and your name, address and phone number.

Your veterinarian is an ideal source of information on pet travel. He is knowledgeable regarding interstate and international travel and shipping regulations, and can give practical advice on feeding while traveling.

Equal Access Coming To Area Telephone Customers

South Central Bell customers in the Prestonsburg area whose phone numbers begin with 886 soon will have the opportunity to choose which long-distance company will carry many of their long-distance calls.

The change—called equal access—will be available October 19, 1987.

"Customers should be getting a packet from South Central Bell that includes information about the long-distance companies offering service in the area, plus a ballot they can use to choose a company," said Art Willett, manager for South Central Bell.

"Customers will want to return the ballot as soon as possible to make sure they've signed up with the long-distance company they want to use," he said. "In effect, customers will be able to shop for long-distance service the same way they shop for anything else—by comparing the price and services offered."

Customers who do not select a long-distance company will have one tentatively assigned to them on a random basis, but they will have a chance to change that assignment.

Three long-distance companies have indicated they plan to offer long-distance service to the area. They are AT&T, MCI and U.S. Sprint.

South Central Bell will continue to carry customers' long-distance calls within local Calling Zones in the state. A map outlining Calling Zones is included in the Customer Guide in the front of the South Central Bell directory.

Chiggers Are Small Bugs
But Can Be Big Pests

Unlike warm weather and lemonade, chigger bites are signs of summer that a few people look forward to. The red, itching spots left by these little insects can be very annoying to people who enjoy spending their time outdoors.

Chiggers are around from spring to late fall, but are particularly active now in the early summer months, said Lee Townsend, UK Extension entomologist.

Chiggers are only about a fiftieth of an inch long, but being hard to see does not make them hard to find.

Wooded and grassy areas, especially where grass is tall or unmowed, are prime chigger locations, said Townsend.

The insects tend to bite people in places where clothing fits tightly, such as waistbands.

Unlike ticks and mosquitoes, which burrow into the skin to feed on blood, chiggers remain on the skin surface, using their digestive juices to feed on skin cells. The digestive juices cause the bites to itch.

The chigger only feeds for a short time, then drops off. "By the time you feel the bites, the chigger is already gone," Townsend said.

Chiggers do not transmit diseases when they feed, but scratching the bites can cause them to become infected.

Townsend recommended that people apply insect repellents before going into areas likely to have chiggers. If you think you have been bitten, take a hot, soapy shower when you get home. There also are several skin ointments that can relieve the itching.

NAV SERVICE OFFICER

Disabled American Veterans Chapter 128, Garrett service officer will be at the Nelson-Frazier Funeral Home, Martin, Friday, July 17, 9-2 p.m.

Crowned "Miss Kentucky"

Anita Nieland, of Richmond, was named "Miss Kentucky" following a pageant held May 23 in Louisville. The event was a preliminary to the national pageant which will be held July 26 through August 3 in Las Vegas.

The 37-year-old business owner is married to Doug Nieland and has one daughter, Alisia. She is the daughter of Josephine Webb Martin, of Wayland, and the late Blaine Cox Martin, and is the niece of Beatrice Houndshell, of Wayland.

The Louisville pageant included interviews and the modeling of swim suits and evening gowns. In addition to receiving the state title and crown, Nieland was named as having the best evening gown.

Erosion Study Set For Army at U of K

Most farmers try to prevent the erosion which comes from gullies and ditches, but the engineering department with the University of Kentucky's College of Agriculture is going to build a gully to cause that erosion.

The engineering department has received a $250,000 grant from the U.S. Army to study channel erosion over the next three years.

Bill Barfield, a UK engineer who will be heading the project, said the army has just funded $110,000 of the total amount to fund the first year of the program.

"What we will be trying to do is to predict how much sediment will be generated in erosion of the channel," Barfield said. "The biggest source of erosion comes from channel bank failure. We want to pinpoint all the factors causing erosion and develop a mathematical formula to determine when the channel will fail."

To do this, Barfield's team will conduct model experiments in a laboratory setting the first year.

"We'll build an artificial channel out of soil and then run water down it," he said. "We'll be measuring the rate of growth of the channel. We want to see how wide it gets and how fast it gets there."

The second year, Barfield said the team will run tests in existing small streams in different Kentucky locations.

The possible payoff will be the control of gullies, and for a large part of Kentucky that's an important payoff. Barfield said parts of western Kentucky, especially in areas with loess soil, farmers face considerable problems with channel erosion.

Why is the U.S. Army interested in research which will help Kentucky farmers?

"It will help them too," Barfield said. "The army is one of the largest landholders in the country."

Popular Radio Show Comes To Life On TV

One of America's favorite storytellers, Garrison Keillor, returns to television when KET encores "A Prairie Home Companion Television Special" Monday, August 3 at 8 p.m.

The two-hour special is a televised presentation of Keillor's popular public radio show, taped before an audience at the World Theater in downtown St. Paul, Minn. on April 26, 1986.

Celebrating the grand opening of the newly restored World Theater (home of the show since 1978), the television special features all of the favorite elements of "A Prairie Home Companion," including Keillor's humorous stories about the fictitious town of Lake Wobegon, Minn., "where all the women are strong, all the men are good looking and all the children are above average." It includes appearances by regular guests Butch Thompson, Peter Ostroushko and Howard Mohr, as well as special guests Chet Atkins, Johnny Gimble, Jean Redpath and Philip Brunelle.

Keillor recently left "A Prairie Home Companion" to pursue other interests, but while he was host the show won numerous accolades, including a Peabody Award, one of the industry's highest honors. At its peak the show was distributed to more than 260 public radio stations and was broadcast over the Australian Broadcasting Corporation. (Keillor's final live radio show was June 13; however, it presently airs with repeats of past performances).

The television special is a production of Minnesota Public Radio in association with Schlamme Productions and Tall Pony Productions.

Theodore Roosevelt was America's first president to fly in an airplane. The event took place in 1910, more than a year after he had left the presidency.

Morehead Off Censure List

Morehead State University President A.D. Albright Tuesday described as "very good news" the announcement that MSU had been removed from the censure list of the American Association of University Professors (AAUP).

Dr. Albright said he had been notified by letter that the action was taken earlier this month at the AAUP national convention.

"The University is very pleased to have its name removed from the AAUP censure list. Faculty members and administrators worked in harmony to achieve this positive disposition of the matter for the benefit of all parties. We appreciate the cooperative and helpful attitude of the AAUP staff."

MSU was placed on the organization's national blacklist in 1983 following the non-reappointment a year earlier of two probationary faculty members in the Department of Art. The AAUP alleged at the time that the action denied the faculty members "the safeguards of academic due process" under its standards.

In voting to remove the censure this year, the AAUP noted that MSU had changed its policies regarding non-reappointment of probationary faculty and other procedures involving faculty to bring them "into full compliance with Association-recommended standards."

Byte Editor To Speak at Meeting

The Central Kentucky Computer Society, Inc. (CKCS), will present Phil Lemmons, editor of Byte Magazine, at its general meeting to be held Monday, July 20, at 7:00 P.M., in Room 102 of the White Hall Classroom Building on the University of Kentucky Campus.

The meeting is open to the public and media without charge.

Animal Shelter Closed Due To Clogged Drains

The animal shelter will be closed until its drainage system is put in order.

"It is unfortunately beyond our resources to repair the poor drainage system without help," a spokesman for the DDD & CPS said yesterday.

Wastewater Treatment Is Commended by State

Russell Music, Jr., a Class III Wastewater Treatment Plant Operator, stands in the plant's laboratory doing water analysis. A distiller is in operation on the wall to his right. Music handles the lab work at the facility, doing five separate tests weekly to stay in compliance with their permit. Often a treatment plant will contract out their lab work but Prestonsburg maintains its own system to insure onsite control.

By Joe Porter

Prestonsburg's wastewater treatment plant last month was commended by the state's Division of Water for the excellent operation of their facility.

"I hate to beat on anyone's drum too loudly, but they're doing a real good job. They sure are," said Gene Blair, supervisor for the Hazard Division of Water. "Prestonsburg is one of the top two in this district."

Blair cited three reasons for the plant's successful operation. First, he said, they've got the commitment from the city to provide the financial backing. Next, they use qualified people—certified operators—to run it. And lastly, they've got a quality plant. "It's well operated and maintained, and they've got some good folks working there," he said.

The wastewater treatment plant was built in 1963. Then an addition was added in 1974 when it upgraded its operation to become a secondary treatment plant, whereby a higher percentage of solids are removed from the wastewater. Presently, it takes about 500,000 gallons of wastewater daily, or about one-half of its capacity. But the figure may vary based on the amount of rainwater.

According to Superintendent Bill Harvey Howard of the City Utility's Commission, the men at the treatment plant work as a team to keep the plant running smoothly and meet all state and federal guidelines. "We've never been fined," Howard said for negligence or low performance. In fact, the plant maintains a higher standard than what is required.

By law the plant is required to remove 85 percent of the solids and impurities from the sewage water before it can be discharged into the river. Yet the Prestonsburg plant removal percentage is about 92 percent, according to Russell Music, Jr., who works as the lab technician and is a certified plant operator.

On July 2 his test showed the removal rate was 95 percent. Working with Music at the plant are Danny McKenzie and Bobby Lewis. Both men are Class II operators with well over 10 years of experience.

The Hazard Division of Water is governed by regulations from the Environmental Protection Agency, and they are required to make quarterly inspections to insure that the plant's discharge elimination system is meeting its standard. "Our main concern is what they're putting in the river," Blair said.

Yet while the city of Prestonsburg has to maintain a high standard of wastewater treatment, it is common knowledge that smaller communities like Auxier and Allen are pouring untreated sewage into the river. Blair said that there are health laws that prohibit pouring raw sewage into the river, but that his agency doesn't have the manpower or funds needed to enforce the law in the communities where it is being broken.

The Prestonsburg plant is well-maintained. The grounds are kept trim during the summer months; the machinery—12 pumps and 6 motors—are monitored daily and serviced on a regular basis to keep them running cool; the lab and control rooms are clean and brightly painted. The men have the responsibility for 14 pump stations off the site, and if a pump goes down there is always a backup pump to take its place. The employees also try hard to keep odors down to a tolerable level.

Howard is proud of the plant and the work being done there and welcomes people to visit it. "We encourage tours of the facility," Howard said. "In the past teachers have brought their students out to show them how the plant works."

"We all work together and help one another," he said. "This is the way we want it. We take pride in it."

Lisa Is Seven

Lisa Nicole Osborne, daughter of Carson and Brenda Osborne, of Teaberry, celebrated her seventh birthday June 10 at her home. She is the granddaughter of Buster and Mildred Osborne, and Rebecca and Tiffany Osborne. A "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" birthday cake was served.

Guests attending the party were Leslie Newsome, Brent Newsome, Amanda Osborne, Kristi Stratton, and Rebecca and Tiffany Osborne. A "Snow White and the Seven Dwarfs" birthday cake was served.

Corn Crop Fairing Better Than Others This Season

Last week's rain provided some relief to Kentucky crops. But, as has been the case throughout this dry, hot summer, the rainfall was so variable—from .26 inches in Grayson to 4.27 inches in Bowling Green—that many farming areas received little precipitation.

As of July 2, soil moisture was rated 11 percent very short, 38 percent short, 49 percent adequate and 2 percent surplus.

"Most of the Commonwealth's crops are showing the effects of the dry conditions with spotty growth," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. "Corn appears to be the crop in the best condition because so much was planted early. Tobacco is generally in fair condition, and soybeans are beginning to show some growth."

The condition of the corn crop is rated 2 percent poor, 31 percent fair, 53 percent good and 14 percent excellent by reporters for the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service.

About 55 percent of the acreage is silked or silking. This is ahead of the 43 percent which was silked or silking at this time last year and far ahead of the 20 percent for the five-year average. About 12 percent of the corn is in the milk stage.

Corn borer populations are beginning to increase in most areas, but not yet at a dangerous level. Japanese beetles are causing serious damage to fields in the central and south central counties.

Tobacco condition was rated 1 percent poor, 49 percent fair, 48 percent good and 2 percent excellent. Reporters for the statistics service say black shank is causing the most severe disease problems for the crop. Managanese toxicity is a close second cause for crop damage.

About 95 percent of the soybean crop was planted by July 5. About 20 percent of the acreage is blooming; some fields are beginning to set pods.

Condition of the soybean crop is rated 1 percent poor, 50 percent fair, 48 percent good and 1 percent excellent by the statistics service.

The wheat harvest is 95 percent complete. This compares with 91 percent harvested at this time last year and only 77 percent for the five-year average. Yields have been good.

The hay harvest has been active, but some delays have been caused by the rain. Pastures are in fairly good condition. Japanese beetles are causing damage to fruit trees, and bag worms are a problem for ornamentals and Christmas tree acreage.

'Evening at Pops' Scheduled on KET

The best of jazz, opera and the Broadway stage take place during July on KET when "Evening at Pops" presents a diverse and entertaining lineup. The series airs Saturdays at 8 p.m. on KET.

Tony Bennett, George Benson, Nell Carter, Wynton Marsalis, Toots Thielemus and Sarah Vaughn combine talents for an evening of entertainment July 11. Trumpet virtuoso Marsalis teams up with Vaughn for a collaboration. Bennett delivers his famed "I Left My Heart in San Francisco."

The renowned whistler Thielemus stems his guitar, plays his harmonica and, of course, whistles his way through "Bluesette" and "Midnight Cowboy." Carter belts out "Take It Home" with the assistance of the New Abyssinian Choir.

Guitarist and jazz vocalist George Benson brings down the house with "On Broadway."

Also in July on "Evening at Pops," is a special encore presentation of "Natalie Cole & Johnny Mathis: A Musical Tribute to Nat 'King' Cole." The program encores July 18.

The Canadian Brass, Marilyn Horne, Rich Little, Benjamin Laxon and the Mills Brothers team up for an evening's entertainment July 25.

Pikeville College Graduate Physics Course

"Physics isn't just for Physicists, it's part of the world in which we live," said Dr. Fred Boerker, a noted professor of Physics and retired physicist at Oakridge National Laboratory.

Dr. Boerker is visiting Pikeville College this summer and teaching a graduate class for Appalachian Graduate Consortium. His laboratory assistant, Jack Wells, a native of Prestonsburg, is presently doing graduate work at Vanderbilt University.

Twenty-three area secondary and elementary teachers are participating in his four-week class, "Selected Topics in Classical Physics for Science Teachers." George Diamond, Math instructor at Mullins High School said, "This seminar will provide me with hands-on exercises in which my students can participate."

Other participants are Fred Martin, Mullins H.S.; Larry Compton, Elkhorn City H.S.; Ann Gillman, Belfry H.S.; Jackie Kein, Pikeville H.S.; Diana Spence, Millard H.S.; Dottie Strawser, Pikeville H.S.; Linda Justus, Johns Creek Elem.; Angie Banks, Cathy Bartley, Sycamore Elem.; Mary Compton; Derenda Duty, Millard Elem.; Mary Epling, Rolinson Creek Elem.; Sheila Fields, Jackson Rowe Elem.; Pamela Jean Gunter, Millard Elem.; Katherine Hackney, Shalbiana Elem.; Betty Ilic, Millard Elem.; Barbara Maness, Kimper Elem.; Phyllis Maynard, Mullins Elem.; Denise Newsome, Millard Elem.; Melissa Ratliff, Johns Creek Elem.; and Jennifer Rudder, Kimper Elem.

Summer Barbecuing Slight Health Risk

Outdoor cooking has become a summer tradition for many Americans. The charcoal or gas grill is now a common fixture in most backyards. But recent stories about health risks associated with barbecuing have made many people wonder just how safe this popular form of food preparation is.

According to the American Institute for Cancer Research, there is very little health risk in our traditional outdoor barbecue, as long as it is done in moderation. While the Institute does note that there have been increased cancer risks associated with consumption of grilled foods, this increase occurs mainly in countries where cooking over charcoal or open fires is the principal means of preparing food and where daily consumption of such foods is considered normal.

For most Americans, the summer barbecue should be a time of enjoyment. To help make it so, and to do it in a way which minimizes cancer risk, the Institute has prepared a booklet called, "Facts You Should Know About Outdoor Cooking." To receive a free copy send a stamped, self-addressed, business sized envelope to American Institute for Cancer Risk, Dept. 0C2, Washington, D.C. 20069.

Under the Job Training Partnership Act, Title II-A provides for a system of block grants to the states to support local training and employment programs for youth and adults, according to the U.S. Department of Labor's annual report for 1986.

In the average 162-pound man, 43 percent of his weight is muscle; 14 percent fat; 14 percent bone and marrow.

Area Leaders Joining Illiteracy Teleconference

Prestonsburg Community College joined 1,000 community, technical, and junior colleges and school districts across the country as community hosts for the first national video teleconference on adult illiteracy and its impact on the workforce, June 23. Joining college hosts here were community leaders from local literacy programs and from business, labor, government and community groups who are concerned with reducing the number of youth and adult illiterates in eastern Kentucky and across the county.

The program included a roster of distinguished panelists and speakers from education, government, business and industry. Models of exemplary state, regional and local literacy plans were showcased. Substantial time blocks during the teleconference are reserved for questions and comments from community participants around the country.

"Prestonsburg Community College has long been a leader in addressing community issues," said Dr. Henry A. Campbell, Jr., director of PCC. "Once again the college is providing leadership to bring together community leaders here who are already fighting the problem of illiteracy with other equally concerned leaders to develop a literacy education action plan for our community."

Cosponsors for this nationwide initiative were AACJC, Project Literacy U.S. (PLUS), National Association of School Administrators, Council of Chief State School Officers, Association of Community College Trustees, and IBM Educational Systems.

Cosponsoring the teleconference locally were the Floyd County Literacy Council and St. Martha's Catholic Church where the conference was held.

Clark Students Show Artwork

Students in the Clark Elementary School fifth grade class taught by Connie Parsons are posed above with the artwork they produced this spring under the direction of Catherine Rubin, artist in residence. Rubin spent five weeks at the school, supported by a teacher incentive grant from the Kentucky Arts Council. She also worked with the fifth grade class taught by Pat Barnett.

...about your Social Security

NEW LAW ENCOURAGES WORK ATTEMPTS

Many blind and disabled Supplemental Security Income (SSI) recipients may not be aware that they can work without losing all their SSI checks or Medicaid coverage. Also, recipients whose SSI checks were stopped because their earnings made their income too high to get checks may be able to receive checks again if they find they no longer can work.

Special temporary provisions of the Social Security Act—Section 1619—were designed to encourage blind and disabled SSI recipients to try to work. These provisions are now permanent parts of the law.

Recognizing that a disabled recipient's return to work may not follow a steady progression, the law allows the recipient to use SSI as a steppingstone to employment. While testing his or her ability to work, the recipient may continue to receive some money from SSI. The amount received depends on the amount of earnings—as earnings increase, the SSI payment decreases or stops. A recipient who finds his or her work attempt is unsuccessful, however, may have payments started again—often without filing a new SSI application.

Because making these "work incentive" provisions available to recipients is of little value unless they are aware of them, Social Security will notify recipients about the incentives. Information will be included with all notices to new recipients. Disabled and blind recipients will be given a reminder notice when they earn at least $200 a month.

The SSI work incentive provisions mean that many disabled and blind recipients can try to work without fear of losing all their benefits before they have proved they can succeed. And by making it easier for disabled recipients to work when it is possible for them to work, they can realize their full potential in our society.

More information about these SSI work incentives can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security office located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government.

PHOTOSENSITIVITY

For some people, a day in the sun produces a rash or blisters instead of a tan. These people may well suffer from sun poisoning, the common term for photosensitivity to the sun. Photosensitive reactions can occur if the skin is exposed to the sun when one or more additional factors are present. These may include the taking of certain medications such as drugs for high blood pressure and diabetes, some antibiotics and tranquilizers, and water pills. Certain topical agents such as after-shaves may also trigger photosensitivity. While photosensitivity itself is not life-threatening, it could signal a serious underlying problem. For this reason, it is a good idea to visit a dermatologist if "sun poisoning" is experienced.

Always follow label directions. Many people think that over the counter medications are "safe" to use and do not stop to realize that these medicines, if not taken carefully and properly can have repercussions. The literature enclosed in most medications warn the user of any side effects the medication may produce. If in doubt about a medication, ask your pharmacist. COOLEY APOTHECARY takes great pride in the role we play in promoting the health of members of our family. We are located at # Town Center Bldg. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open Mon.-Fri., 9-5:30 Sat. 9-4.

HANDY HINT: Even sunscreen SPF 15 does not screen out the sun totally.

After costly treatment failed this skin disease was believed incurable. At this point, HAPPY JACK MANGE MEDICINE was used with dramatic success. Also the HAPPY JACK 3 X TLEA COLLAR works! Kills ticks, mange mites and fleas up to 12 months! At farm, feed and drug stores.

Miners Must Be Trained To Use Oxygen Devices

All underground coal miners must be given "hands on" training in the use of self-contained self-rescue (SCSR) breathing devices before entering underground coal mines, according to an emergency temporary standard that has been published by the Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA).

Self-contained self-rescuers are breathing devices that provide oxygen and increase the wearer's chance of surviving a mine fire or explosion. In such an emergency in confined underground atmospheres, proper donning of an SCSR device is essential to protecting miners from dangerously low levels of oxygen and high concentrations of carbon monoxide, as well as other toxic products of combustion. Under these circumstances, those without adequate skill in the use of SCSR devices are in danger of losing their lives.

Existing safety standards require that SCSR breathing devices be available for all miners, supervisors, and visitors entering underground coal mines and that such persons be instructed in all aspects of the devices and trained in their use.

The emergency temporary ("hands on") standard requires that, in addition to attending classroom or on-site demonstrations or audiovisual presentations, those who go underground must go through the training steps of opening the SCSR breathing device, activating it, inserting or simulating the insertion of the mouthpiece and wearing the nose clip.

The decision to issue the emergency temporary standard reflects MSHA's evaluation of SCSR breathing device training programs at U.S. underground coal mines, as well as investigative findings following the 1984 Wilberg Mine fire in Utah that killed 27 persons.

There have been several instances in which miners are known to have successfully escaped by properly using SCSR devices. However, MSHA's investigation into the Wilberg fire raised serious questions about the effectiveness of self-contained self-rescue device training. Evidence gathered there showed that some of the 27 victims did not appear to know how to activate and wear the SCSR device available to them or to know how critical it was to protect their lungs from smoke and carbon monoxide produced by the fire.

Also, MSHA in 1986 completed a nationwide evaluation of the effectiveness of SCSR training covering 1,174 underground coal mines. In the survey, about 20 percent of nearly 9,000 underground coal miners and supervisors failed when asked to properly activate and wear an SCSR device and to correctly answer questions about its use and storage. Insufficient training was indicated at 243 of the mines being surveyed. MSHA has estimated that up to one-half of the total miners affected by the emergency temporary standard may not have had the "hands on" training.

Among other findings that support the need for an MSHA emergency temporary standard are those in a U.S. Bureau of Mines and University of Kentucky study at two coal companies indicating that industry relies heavily on SCSR device training such as audiovisual presentations or instructor's demonstrations, rather than "hands on" training.

The emergency temporary standard became effective on Tuesday, June 30, upon being published in the Federal Register. The specified "hands on" SCSR training will be required after Sept. 28 for all persons entering underground coal mines. Under this special rulemaking procedure, the emergency temporary standard also will serve as the basis for the proposed permanent MSHA rule to revise Title 30, Code of Federal Regulations, to include "hands on" training with self-contained self-rescue devices as part of regular training for supervisors and miners. The proposed permanent rule appeared as a separate notice in the Federal Register on June 30.

The agency is seeking comments on the "hands on" SCSR training proposal. Written comments must be sent by Aug. 14, 1987, to Patricia Silvey, Acting Associate Assistant Secretary of Labor, 4015 Wilson Blvd., Room 627, Arlington, Va., 22203.

"You can't go home again"... or so proclaimed Thomas Wolfe, but James Webb Vicars, formerly of Allen, would disagree.

Many changes have taken place in the life of Vicars since he left to attend Millersburg Military Institute, at Paris, 50 years ago. Mr. Vicars has served in various capacities since leaving the school, among them as a captain in the army during the Korean conflict, and serving in multiple sales and banking positions. Now James Webb Vicars has returned "home" to serve as Executive Director of the Millersburg Military Institute.

Mr. Vicars attended the University of Kentucky, where he received a B.S. degree in commerce. He is a member of several prestigious societies, including, the Society for Advanced Management, Homebuilders Association, and the American Bankers Association.

The Millersburg Military Institute is the only military school in Kentucky, and was proclaimed the official Kentucky academy by Gov. Martha Layne Collins. The school is a private non-sectarian co-educational establishment, which prepares young people for college.

Mrs. Weddington Named Nat'l Teacher of Year

Rosemary Weddington, who was named Kentucky Teacher of the Year, last November, has now been named National Teacher of the Year by the American Association of Teachers of Spanish and Portuguese.

Chosen from candidates all over the nation, she was the unanimous choice of a committee composed of association members.

She was nominated for the award by the Kentucky branch of the AATSP of which she has been a member for 30 of her 33 years of teaching.

She thought it was a joke when a member of the association called to tell her she had won. "I'm just a classroom teacher," she said. "I teach and enjoy it, and I do the best I can to help my students. It seems almost not right to be awarded for it."

Mrs. Weddington teaches Spanish at Franklin County High School in Frankfort. She is a native of Harlan and is married to Herbert Weddington, native of Emma.

Burns Not Limited To Winter Danger

Summer is a time when parents need to watch for burn dangers to their children. A warning to children and their parents may help prevent injuries.
The following is a list of potential hazards. They are causes of burns seen in the Burn Unit at Kosair Children's Hospital during past summers according to Diane Denton, Burn Prevention Educator.
Fireworks—particularly unsupervised use of fireworks.
Gasoline—children cutting grass or playing with gasoline.
Grills and charcoal—children standing too close as parents use grills and charcoal or walking on charcoal dumped out of a grill as well as other contact burns.
Trash fires—(allowed in some counties outside Jefferson).
Sunburn—infants and toddlers who need shade protection as well as sunscreen.
Muffler burns—contact with lawn mowers, mini-bikes, motorcycles, etc.
Some burns happen year-round, but parents need year-round reminders.
Scalds—pots and pans on a stove, fryers and slow cookers, coffee pots.
Scalds—water too hot in tub or sink.
Cooking burns—fires from grease.
Play with matches or lighters.
Irons—(Take three minutes to heat and 20 to cool, temperatures vary from 170° to 370° F).
In 1986, Louisville area hospitals treated 27 people with burns during the July 4 holiday.

Seaman Sellards Completes Training

Navy Seaman Recruit Kenneth L. Sellards, son of James W. Sellards, of Allen, has completed recruit training at Recruit Training Command, Orlando, FL.
During Sellard's eight-week training cycle, he studied general military subjects designed to prepare him for further academic and on-the-job training in one of the Navy's 85 basic fields.
Sellard's studies included seamanship, close order drill, Naval history and first aid. Personnel who complete this course of instruction are eligible for three hours of college credit in Physical Education and Hygiene.

Multiple Licenses No Longer Allowed

According to a new federal law, effective July 1, 1987 it will be illegal for an operator of a commercial motor vehicle to have multiple drivers licenses issued by different states. This is the first phase of the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act of 1986 which reflects public concern for truck safety.
By securing operator licenses from more than one state, commercial drivers can avoid license suspension and penalties for driving violations. Therefore it is now required that operators only be licensed by the state in which they reside. Failure to comply with the new law can result in a fine of up to $2,500 and/or revocation of the operator's license.
In addition to the license from the state where the commercial operator legally resides, drivers operating in the following states will be required by those states to have a separate license: Virginia, Florida, Connecticut, Illinois, New Hampshire, Vermont, West Virginia and Wisconsin. These exceptions will be allowed until the states pass laws to change these requirements, or until December 31, 1989, whichever comes first.
Operators who possess licenses from other states should return them to those states. Destroying a license or simply waiting for it to expire will not be accepted because the issuing state's records will still show an active license.
This single license requirement is only the first phase of the Commercial Motor Vehicle Safety Act, which also addressed methods to improve driver quality and remove problem drivers from the road.

Cleanliness Is The Best Weapon Against Germs

By Judy Hamm, RN

Our Lady of the Way Hospital

Disease-causing bacteria are everywhere—in the air, in our hair, on our clothing, on our bodies and on all surfaces.

We can not rid our environment of all bacteria, but we can prevent the growth and spread of infection-producing organisms.

The causative agent is the first link in the chain. Causative agents are simply disease-causing bacteria. Examples of causative agents are the viruses which produce colds or the bacteria which cause throat infections.

Our second link, the reservoir, is anywhere bacteria can survive. For example, milk and eggs could be reservoirs for salmonella, raw clams could be reservoirs for hepatitis.

The bacteria or virus must have a portal of exit through which it will move from the reservoir into another person or the environment. A sneeze might be the portal of exit for a cold-producing virus; use of milk or eggs could be the portal of exit for salmonella.

The mode of transmission is how bacteria move and spread. Breathing the air can be a mode of transmission for cold-producing viruses and throat-infecting bacteria. But human hands are most often the mode of transmission for bacteria.

The portal of entry is where bacteria and viruses enter the body. They can enter through the nose, but the most common portal of entry is the mouth.

The susceptible host can be you or anyone who can provide a suitable environment where bacteria can grow and produce more causative agents. The chain of infection can now begin again and continue the spread of disease.

The good news is that you can break the chain of infection at any point with simply hygienic practices.

The most important way to stop the spread of infection is to frequently wash your hands with lots of soap and water. This is especially important after toileting and before eating.

Also be conscious of covering your sneezes and coughs. Try to use a disposable tissue whenever possible. When your hands or cloth handkerchiefs are used to cover sneezes and coughs, they can act as reservoirs and end up aiding the transmission of bacteria. Dispose of your used tissues properly and remember to wash your hands before continuing your chores.

Keeping your body, clothes and hair as clean as possible is also important. Our skin and hair oils provide reservoirs for bacterial growth. Daily bathing removes most bacteria and their reservoirs, thereby reducing the risk of infection. Dirty clothing can act as a reservoir and a mode of transmission; therefore, frequent changes and washing help break the chain of infection.

Dust particles carry bacteria, so keep your living area as free of dust and clutter as possible.

Food products can harbor and grow bacteria, too. So be aware of how you keep, prepare, and serve your food. Keep food preparation and storage areas clean and free of insects and rodents. Always wash fresh vegetables and fruits thoroughly under running water. Cook foods completely. Be sure to serve hot foods hot and cold foods cold. Store leftovers as soon as possible in covered containers in your refrigerator. Do not allow leftover food to remain on the table, countertops or stove for hours. Foods are rich in nutrients and therefore provide an excellent environment for bacterial growth.

Dishes and utensils should be washed immediately after use. Use lots of warm, soapy water. Rinse them and allow them to air dry. Always store clean dishes dry, and, if possible, in a covered cabinet.

You can also prevent disease by taking care of yourself. Get lots of sleep and rest, reduce daily stress, eat a balanced diet and exercise at least three times each week.

These simple, inexpensive measures can help all of us break the chain of infection. The priceless benefits are healthier lives and lowered risks of disease.

Haerberlin Named Eddyville Warden

Corrections Cabinet Secretary George W. Wilson has announced the appointment of Glenn E. Haerberlin as Interim Warden at Kentucky State Penitentiary in Eddyville. The appointment is effective July 1, 1987.

Haerberlin has been with corrections since 1975. He is currently serving as Deputy Warden for Security and Program Services. He will serve as interim warden while a search for a new warden is being conducted. The vacancy in the warden's position was created by the resignation of Gene Scroggy who will assume the position of commissioner of the Mississippi Department of Corrections.

Wilson said he could not predict how long it would take to fill the vacancy, but that, "the cabinet will move as quickly as prudence will allow."

Wilson said, "During the interim, Mr. Haerberlin and Deputy Commissioner Michael Samberg will work in tandem to assure the orderly administration of the penitentiary and the continuity of operations. They will be working to make the transition for the new warden as smooth as possible."

★ Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: Every summer my daughter spends five to six hours a day in the sun while she works at a day camp. I noticed her nose is constantly red and blistering. Is she at risk for skin cancer?

ANSWER: Many people feel that soaking up the sun's rays is one of life's greatest pleasures. Bronzed bodies symbolize attractiveness, fitness and the "good life".

Unfortunately, spending too much time in the sun without protection is harmful. Excessive exposure over the years will result in sagging, aging skin, and increased frequency of skin cancer.

Skin cancer is a disease caused by excessive and long-term exposure to the sun. It rarely occurs in the occasional sunbather. More than 90% of all skin cancers occur on parts of the body exposed to the sun's radiation. The face, neck, forearms and hands are the most common locations. The three best ways to prevent sunburns are to avoid the sun during the peak hours of solar radiation (11 a.m.-3 p.m.), to use sunscreens, and to wear loose clothing.

Your daughter can still enjoy the sun, but a little common sense on protection will keep her skin healthier and looking younger.

For more information on Sun and Skin Cancer, call the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER or write McDowell Cancer Network, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. 40536.

FLOYD CIRCUIT COURT 87-CI-242

United Federal Savings and Loan Association Plaintiff VS: NOTICE OF SALE

Jack Mitchell; The Commonwealth of Kentucky, by and through The Revenue Cabinet; Floyd County, Ky; and The City of Prestonsburg, Ky. Defendants

By virtue of a judgment and order of sale of the Floyd Circuit Court rendered at the May 27 term, 1987, in the above styled cause I shall proceed to offer for sale at the Courthouse door in Prestonsburg, Kentucky, to the highest and best bidder, at public auction, on the 23 day of July, 1987, at 11:00 o'clock a.m., same being a day of the regular term of the Floyd Circuit Court, for cash or by the payment of $500.00 of the bid price down in cash or certified check at the time of sale and the balance on a credit of thirty (30) days at the rate of 12% per annum, the following described property, to-wit:

A certain tract or parcel of land, lying and being in Floyd County, Kentucky, in the City of Prestonsburg, on the east side of University Drive, College Heights Estates, and being the same land conveyed to Jack Mitchell herein by David Bruce Spradlin and Nancy Spradlin, his wife by deed dated April 29, 1982, recorded in Deed Book 266, page 52, Floyd County Clerk's Office, and described as follows:

The BACKYARD NATURALIST

By Craig Tufts, National Wildlife Federation

Nailing Butterflies With Natives

In a small suburban patch of landscape, big surprises arrive in small packages. I plant mystery in my garden and more times than not, am pleasantly surprised.

This year along our front curb, I interplanted scarlet annual phlox with Tribute strawberries. I figured that I'd get more color per square foot, and the phlox would encourage butterflies. The mixture worked well. I haven't figured out yet whether neighborhood kids see the combined red tones and dismiss both as flowers or see the flowers and then discover the joys of picking their own strawberries. Come to think of it, I have been offering an increasing number of strawberry picking lessons lately.

Zinnias, marigolds, impatiens and Buddleias can form the nucleus of a sure-fire butterfly-attracting garden. If you want to add more zing to your butterfly plantings, visit a nearby meadow, marsh or scrub patch and learn which plants butterflies visit in the real world.

My own wanderings have introduced me to six species of native wildflowers and shrubs which attract a wonderful variety of butterflies. Added to your garden, you may find them outshining butterfly garden mainstays.

If skippers are the sparrows of the butterfly world, then hairstreaks are the warbler equivalent. These intricately patterned small butterflies dart from perch to flower and back again. To identify them, you need to make them sit still long enough for you to examine them. As with children, the best way to keep them in one place is to feed them something they love to eat. And for these butterflies, small white flowers in large clusters have the appeal of ice cream and cake. The native plants that do the job for me are three shrubs, sweet pepperbush, buttonbush and New Jersey tea, and a perennial wildflower, narrow-leaved mountain mint. All four are highly attractive to other butterflies as well.

One other white wildflower that works wonders is a weedy roadside plant of the southeastern U.S., shepherd's needle. If you aren't sure about its butterfly attractiveness, just count the number of butterflies shown sipping at this flower in Butterflies East of the Great Plains by Paul Opler and George Krizek. Out of its normal range, use this plant as an annual.

A couple of yellow butterfly magnets, both found wild over a broad area, are lance-leaved coreopsis, which blooms from April through August, and tickseed sunflower, flowering July through September. Skippers find the coreopsis a favorite. The tickseed, Bidens aristosa, is a favorite of monarchs.

A number of small native plant nurseries offer the shrubs I've mentioned. For the flowers, seek out the plants and collect their seeds. For shepherd's needle, plan a late February trip to scour Florida's roadsides for its seed. After all, what other reason could there be for a winter trip to Florida?

Mining Classes Set At Lexington Hilton

Two short courses of benefit to the engineering and coal industries will be sponsored by the University of Kentucky Institute for Mining and Minerals Research. Coal preparation, will be August 5-7, at the Hilton Inn, Lexington.

This short course will provide a comprehensive review of coal preparation incorporating new innovative methods. The course has been designed to benefit a diversified audience. The registration fee includes the text "Coal Preparation", handout materials, coffee breaks, and instruction. Please contact Mary Lou Johnson, Coordinator, at 606/257-2846.

Subside: A Computerized Mining Subsidence Program will be held August 20-21, at the Hilton, Inn.

The purpose of this course is to train engineers and technicians to use a computer program that calculates subsidence profiles and provides an interpretive tool to estimate strain profiles for the surface overlying underground mine areas. Subside is designed for someone familiar with underground mining but not with subsidence. Anyone interested in practical tools for subsidence prediction should attend. Enrollment is limited, please call Geaunita Helfenberger at (606) 257-2820 for additional information.

Domestic Violence Has Cycles of Abuse

Domestic violence has often been compared to a roller coaster ride with its unpredictable drops and curves. This, however, is not usually the case. There is a definite cycle of abuse which entails three phases.

The first phase is known as the tension-building phase. In this phase there is great tension and stress in the home. This may include verbal or mental abuse between members of the family. The length of this phase is situational and depends on the family itself. The tension continues to build until it reaches a climax.

This climax is phase two, called the acute battering incident. This is the stage where the actual violence takes place. This phase is usually an outburst or violent episode and the degree of abuse varies.

The "Honeymoon phase" is the third phase. It is given this name because after the violent episode, the abuser promises to change his/her violent behavior and strives to improve the relationship with the victim. The relationship between victim and abuser does improve and is sometimes described as being "better than ever". This lasts until the tension begins building and phase one comes into play bringing the cycle full circle.

Victims of domestic violence who have never been educated on the cycle of abuse know it, because they live it. This is the reason many victims are able to leave the home before the violence takes place. They know what the tension-building phase feels like, and they know what comes next. The victim of domestic violence typically feels helpless, because they are unable to leave the relationship for financial or other reasons. What these victims need to know is that there is a place they and their children can go and there are programs to assist with child care and financial aid.

Domestic violence or abuse occurs at all levels of socio-economic status, to women and men, with no preference to race, religion, or age. The cycle of abuse can be broken by the victim's leaving the home and the family seeking counseling. If you or anyone you know is the victim of domestic violence, please call the 24-hour spouse abuse crisis line, 606-886-6025.

Two new lifeguards scheduled for a tryout at Laguna Beach, California, this summer can swim 25 miles an hour and plunge with ease through the roughest surf, reports International Wildlife magazine. The new recruits, sporting fur coats and flippers, are two female sea lions. One of their trainers, Karen Wyman, of the Friends of the Sea Lion Marine Mammal Center, says this is a way for the seals, often thought of as circus clowns or nuisances to fishermen, to improve their self-image.

Local Babe Ruth Squads Hit Road For Tourneys

Last Thursday evening Blake Meadows watched patiently as his players went through pre-game warm-ups prior to a scrimmage match-up with the Babe Ruth 13-year-old squad.

While Meadows, coach of the 15-year-old all-stars, kept an eye on his players, he continued a conversation with fellow Babe Ruth coaches gathered at Allen Park.

Meadows and the other coaches had been talking of the possibilities Floyd county had of luring an all-star tournament to Allen Park.

"If we do get one it will probably be the 14-year-old tournament," one member of the discussion group speculated. "Blake, you'll probably have to play your district at Hazard or Paintsville," the member added.

"Well, I hope it's Hazard then," Coach Meadows said, continuing to watch his players loosen up. "A Floyd county team just doesn't have much of a chance to win in Paintsville."

Meadows obviously wasn't enjoying the possibility that his team might have to play at Paintsville during the district tournament.

Later that evening the possibility was made a reality when Babe Ruth personnel announced the sights of this summer's all-star tournaments. Blake Meadows and his 15-year-old team will, in fact, play in Paintsville.

Although Meadows probably isn't any happier now after learning that his nightmare had come true, he does have confidence in his team, regardless of where they are playing.

"I think we've got a pretty good group here," Meadows said of his team. "There may be better athletes in the county that didn't play, but these boys are the ones who want to play, and they are willing to play together."

"That's what it takes to be a good team," Meadows continued. "That's why the Prestonsburg team did so well.

We had boys who wanted to play and were willing to play together."

Meadows brought a Prestonsburg team into the Babe Ruth league this year and enjoyed a successful 12-2 record. That was good enough for second place in the final standings, earning Meadows an opportunity to manage an all-star team.

The 15-year-old squad will not only play in Johnson county, but they open against their neighboring county in the tournament's second game, scheduled for 2:30 Saturday afternoon.

Hazard and Carr Fork will open the tournament Saturday, playing at 12:00. The two losing teams are set to play again Saturday, rounding out the tripleheader at 5:00.

A doubleheader, with games scheduled at 1:00 and 3:30, is scheduled for Sunday, with the championship round starting at 2:00 Monday afternoon.

While the 15-year-old squad will be playing in Paintsville, the 13-year-old team is scheduled to play their district tournament in Hazard.

Starting Thursday night one game will be played each day. The tournament will conclude on either Sunday or Monday.

Floyd county won't see action until Friday night, taking on the winner of Carr Fork and Hazard in the three team tournament.

Both Thursday's and Friday's games are scheduled to begin at 5:30, with weekend games starting at 4:00. If Monday's game is needed it will begin at 5:30.

The 13-year-old squad will be managed by Ellis Spurlock, who thinks a district championship is within his team's grasp.

"We're going to have a better team than I first thought we would," Spurlock said.

"We've got four or five players that can pitch, and we've got a lot that can hit. They can simply play baseball," Spurlock added. "I think we should be able to get out of our district."

Spurlock, coach of the successful 15-year-old squad, will be joined by Harold Case. Case has coached for 13 years in the Floyd county Babe Ruth League, but is in his final year of coaching.

Case was recently named as the league's new president which makes him ineligible to coach a team.

The 13-year-old tournament, as is the 15 tourney, is double elimination which gives all teams a second opportunity.

All three local Babe Ruth all-star teams will be in action this weekend. All winners of their district tournaments will advance to the regional, or semi-state tournaments.

READY FOR PLAY: Blake Meadows hoped for a trip to Hazard, but instead will take this group of 15-year-old all-stars to Paintsville for tournament play. This squad will play Johnson County Saturday.

SHORT SPORTS

Rain fell all across eastern Kentucky, Monday, but Salyersville managed to escape heavy amounts, allowing little league tournaments to continue as scheduled.

In Monday's tournament opener, Harold-Allen-Prater defeated Morgan county, 4-2, scoring all four runs in the first inning.

Prestonsburg, in the nightcap, defeated Left Beaver, 8-4, closing out the 11-12-year-old all-star tournament's first day.

Salyersville is also playing host to the Senior Little League tournaments. In the 13-year-old division, Fleming-Neon received a forfeit victory over Morgan county, and Magoffin county fell to Paintsville, 21-13.

Paintsville also beat Magoffin county in the 14-15 division, 7-2, while Morgan county defeated Fleming-Neon, 6-3.

Floyd county's senior Babe Ruth squad will close out its season today with a doubleheader scheduled against Knott county. The first game is set to begin at 5 at Allen Park.

Although play ends for several FC members, five players will see considerable action in an upcoming 16 and under tournament.

Floyd county players Tim Trusty, Mark Tipton, Brad Hall, Nathan Shelton, and Tony Kidd have been selected to play on the Knott county roster.

The combined squad will play in a tournament, July 23-25, in Williamsburg, with the winner being crowned state champion.

Several college coaches and professional scouts are expected to be on hand for this event.

The 16-year-old and under team has a doubleheader scheduled tomorrow (Thursday) night in Williamsburg, and will take part in a round-robin tournament, Saturday, also in Williamsburg.

The New York Knicks took their time, but finally named a new coach. He is Rick Pitino, formerly of Providence fame.

Pitino led his Providence Friars out of the tough Big East Conference, and into the NCAA's final four this year.

In just two years at Providence College, Pitino built the basketball powerless school into a national championship contender. Pitino was rewarded for his effort and ability, being hired as the Knicks new coach Monday.

When Pitino took over the Friars' program, Providence had just come off an 11-20 year, but bringing success to New York may be an even tougher task than he faced three years ago.

While Pitino was creating a program of success at Providence, the Knicks were busy destroying one. In the past three years, New York has suffered the worst record in the NBA.

But Pitino will have some talent to work with. Former college greats Patrick Ewing and Kenny Walker are on hand but have never proved themselves in the professional ranks, and Bernard King, former scoring champ, should be back to full strength in the upcoming 1987-88 basketball season.

Trades this past week should provide additional interest in major league baseball as teams prepare for a stretch run toward a divisional title.

The Chicago Cubs dealt away two players in separate deals, helping two American League teams, giving the Yankees and Seattle proven veteran

Floyd County Wins First Game Second Shortened Against KC

Led by third baseman Roger Horne, Floyd County opened up an eight-hit attack, Thursday, to down homestanding Knott County, 11-8, in the first game of a doubleheader.

Horne, breaking out of an 0-10 drought, enjoyed a three-for-three day, including a single, double, and triple while driving in three runs and scoring another.

Floyd County, after scoring a single run in the first inning, did most of their offensive damage in the second inning, scoring six runs on four hits and two walks.

Horne, whose double scored Johnny Ray Harris in the opening inning, once again came through with a timely hit, a two-RBI triple.

Floyd County loaded the bases with one out and was given a run when Knott County starting pitcher Kevin Webb walked Darrin Conn.

Brian Hall followed with a sacrifice fly that scored Tony Kidd, who had earlier singled. FC kept the winning alive as Brad Hall reached on a fielder's choice, bringing Horne to the plate.

With two out, the FC third baseman drilled a triple, scoring Conn and Hall. Horne later crossed the plate on Knott County's second error of the inning, giving his team a 7-3 lead.

Tim Trusty, despite struggling with his control and suffering from a lack of defensive support, protected that lead to earn his first victory of the season.

The 16-year-old righthander went the distance, pitching five innings, and giving up only two earned runs on four hits. Trusty, 1-1, struck out four, but walked 10 in his second start of the summer.

Kevin Webb, in his first mound appearance, suffered the loss for Knott County. The Allen Central righthander worked only three and one-third innings, giving up seven hits and all 11 runs, four of which were earned.

Webb, like Trusty, was victimized by poor defense. Knott County committed six errors behind Webb while FC made seven fielding mistakes.

Offensively, Johnny Ray Harris enjoyed a perfect two-for-two performance and scored three runs. Thomas Hall, Jeff Crisp, and Tony Kidd all collected singles for Floyd County. Nine different players crossed the plate, and FC received runs scored from each position except Trusty's number six offensive slot.

After improving their record to 4-6-1, Floyd County appeared to be headed for a doubleheader sweep, at least until the home half of the fourth inning.

Leading 2-0 going into the fourth frame, Floyd County and Mark Tipton saw their chances disappear with the aluminum magic of hard-hitting Knott County. FC scored one run in the first winning off Kevin Nickles when Johnny Ray Harris walked and scored on an error. Two innings later, they built their lead to 2-0, once again aided by a walk.

Kelly Nickles, team leader in walks and runs scored, walked and scored in the third inning. After Nickles received the free pass, Darrin Conn moved him around with a single up the middle, and Roger Horne, picking up his fourth RBI of the day, scored Nickles with a single.

Mark Tipton, another bright pitching prospect, breezed through the first three innings, holding Knott County scoreless.

Tipton, 1-2, limited KC, to only one hit through three innings and forced only 10 hitters, thanks to Tony Kidd's two assists from behind the plate. Kidd threw out two would-be base stealers in the second inning.

The hard throwing Tipton was unhit-table through three innings, but in the fourth, Knott County reached the FC righthander, giving up five hits and seven runs, four of which were earned.

With Waylon Estep at third base, and Chris Nickles on second, Kevin Webb tied the contest and eventually scored the go-ahead run when Scott Hylton singled. Knott County sent a total of 10 men to the plate, and with two out and the home team still batting, the game was called due to darkness.

Although Floyd County had one at bat left before the game, scheduled for five innings, would be completed, four innings were enough for an official game, and enough for Knott County to salvage a win.

Mark Tipton, needing relief help in the fourth, suffered the loss after pitching three near perfect innings. The FC righthander gave up all seven runs on six hits, striking out three and walking two.

Kevin Nickles went the distance to pick up the win for Knott County, giving up two runs on four hits, striking out three and walking four.

Thursday's two games brought the total to seven times that the two teams have met on the diamond this summer, and will try it one more time today with a doubleheader set to begin at 5.

Roger Horne, 1-1, is tentatively scheduled to pitch for Floyd County in Wednesday's first game with either Brian Hall or Mark Tipton going to the hill in the nightcap.

The Sporting Times

Good pitching stops good hitting, and vice versa.

Well, lately, major league baseball has proved to be more of vice versa than of good pitching stops good hitting, and therefore is not around to stop good hitting.

Regardless of the reasons, one fact remains; professional baseball has suddenly turned into an offensive paradise, filled with solid wood and capable choppers.

Some say it's because the baseball is juiced up, but those same people have said that every year for several years.

Maybe it's true this time. Baseballs have flown out of major league parks like fall geese heading south—often and in bunches.

Comebacks are an every day occurrence, not just a weapon of successful teams. A lead that once was considered sacred, untouchable, is now sacrificial, a luxury turned dangerous.

The New York Yankees have twice come back, once after trailing Toronto by nine runs, and again after being behind, 7-0, to record impossible victories.

The Yankees can score runs. They always have been capable of that, but

New York isn't the only team to make possible impossible come-from-behind victories.

Last week, Cincinnati led the Philadelphia Phillies, 8-1, but the Reds failed to hold the seven-run advantage, falling 10-8 in extra innings.

These are merely isolated incidents of a season filled with wasted leads, dramatic comebacks, and record-breaking offensive numbers.

Players who have never hit before are hitting this season. Rafael Santana of the New York Mets, .218 last year, is close to .300. Glen Hubbard, Atlanta's scrappy second baseman, is known as a defensive player, as is Bo Diaz of the Cincinnati Reds, but for some reason both are having their best-ever years at the plate.

Once again, these are only a few of the many examples available. Young players such as Mark McGwire, Rob Deere and Eric Davis have, because of their offensive numbers, made immediate names for themselves—names that sit right beside Dale Murphy, Dave Parker, and Mike Schmidt.

Baseball has always been an unpredictable sport. This has been its major attraction; the mystique of any given outcome on any given night, but after

Floyd County Set As Hosts Of 14-Year-Old Tournament

It took some effort. Local Babe Ruth officials spent many tiresome hours attempting to lure a tournament to Floyd county, and it paid off.

Last week those same officials were informed that Allen Park, if so desired, would be the scene of this year's 14-year-old Babe Ruth all-star tournament.

It was so desired, and this Thursday evening fans from throughout the area will converge on Allen Park's baseball field to cheer on their favorite teams and watch the stars of tomorrow perform today.

"I'm tickled to death about having it here," P.D. Gearheart, Floyd county coach said. "We had a chance to get it at Allen, and we jumped on it."

Getting the tournament was a long, uncertain process, but knowing where the event would be held wasn't as big a problem as was the question of the tourney's reality anywhere.

Last year, and several other years in the past, a 14-year-old tournament in this district hasn't happened due to a lack of teams.

Normally Johnson county and Floyd county are the only leagues represented in the age group, but this summer Carr Fork and Hazard fielded a team, producing the need for a district tournament.

Without the district tourney, teams have been advanced automatically to the regional tournament. Playing at home pleased Coach Gearheart, but just playing was important.

"We didn't know what we were going to do until our meeting last week," Gearheart revealed. "We had been told that we might have to go on to the regional tournament, but everybody in the district came through and had a team."

"I'm glad that we're going to have a district tournament," Gearheart continued. "We need to play in the district instead of just going into the regional tournament."

This year's 14-year-old squad is expected to be Floyd county's best chance at a state championship. A year younger last summer, this group captured a district title before being eliminated by Johnson county.

Gearheart was their coach a year ago and this summer decided to move up with the team, basically the same group that he coached in 1986.

"We've got a good group of boys this year," Gearheart said. "Talent-wise they are the best bunch I've seen since I've been in the league."

"Our pitching may not be as strong as I first thought it would be, but it should be decent, and we'll be able to hit the ball," the coach added.

Chad Hamilton, a burly lefthander, saw action in last year's 13-year-old tournament. Hamilton, after improving as a part-time pitcher for Betsy Layne High School last spring, is expected to be one of Floyd county's top pitchers.

Stu Robinson and Adam Gearheart are also expected to be effective mound performers for the local squad.

Floyd county and Johnson county have been rumored as the teams to beat, but Hazard personnel have also reported high expectations of themselves.

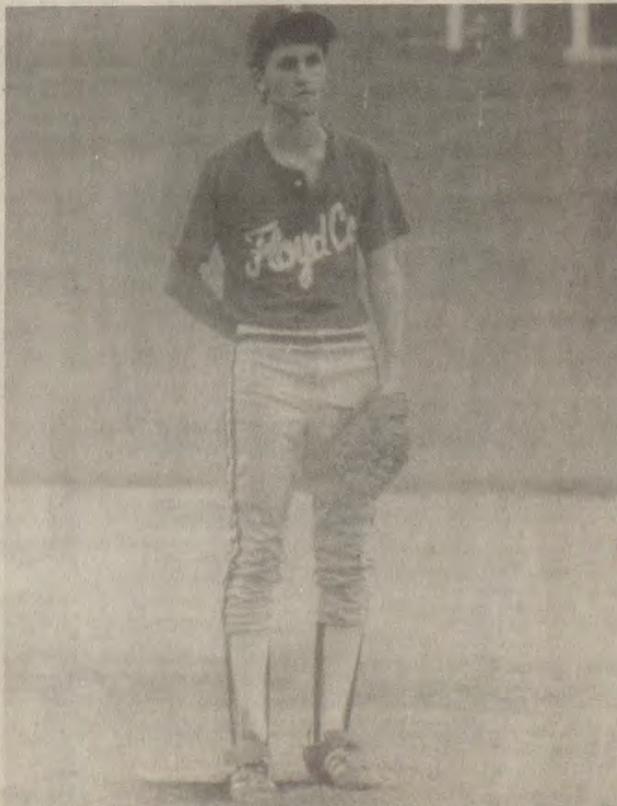

The four-team tournament will open Thursday evening and conclude with a doubleheader (if needed) Monday night. Floyd county will open the tournament, playing Carr Creek at 6:30, Thursday. Hazard and Johnson county will square off Friday at 6:30 in the double elimination tournament.

Thursday's and Friday's winners are scheduled to play Saturday afternoon at 4, following the two losers' meeting which has been set for 1 that afternoon.

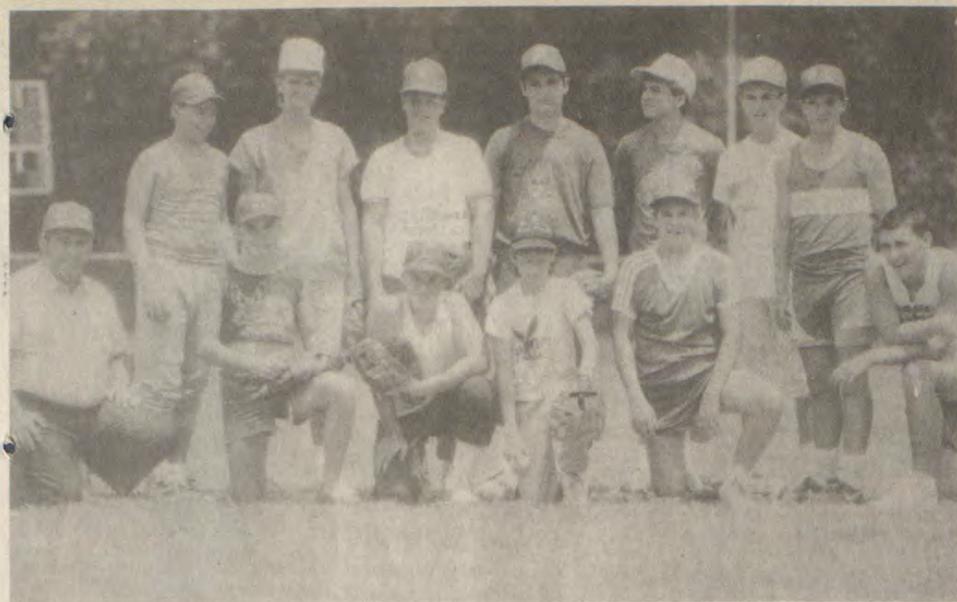

The tournament will decide its championship matchup, Sunday, when the field will be trimmed to only two teams. Game time is 4.

The championship game, Monday, is scheduled for 5, and if needed, another contest has been penciled in for 8, Monday night.

The tournament is double elimination, and unless the team from the loser's bracket wins the first game, Monday, the event will be over. If the loser's bracket team wins then the 8 o'clock matchup will be a necessity.

HARD THROWER: For three innings Mark Tipton gave up only one Knott County hit, but didn't enjoy as much success in the fourth frame. Tipton is one of five Floyd County players chosen to play with Knott County in an upcoming tournament.

13-YEAR-OLD SQUAD: The Floyd County 13-year-old all-star squad is set to play in Hazard this Friday evening. The local team will play the winner of the Hazard-Carr Fork game.

Western's Murray, Harrison Named To Sun Belt All-Academic Team

Western Kentucky University placed two athletes on the Sun Belt Conference's prestigious All-Academic team, and had more athletes named to the Academic Honor Roll than any other league school.

Lady Topper senior Lee Anne Murray, a four-year standout on the WKU tennis team, and Teresa Harrison, a senior on the women's volleyball squad, were honored on the All-Academic team, recognizing league athletes for achievement on the playing fields and in the classroom.

Murray, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Lee Murray, of Bowling Green, is one of only two conference athletes to be voted to the All-Academic team three straight years. She compiled a 3.89 GPA in Corporate and Organizational Communications, while also posting an 11-7 singles record. Murray will attend law school at the University of Kentucky in the fall.

Harrison made her second consecutive appearance on the SBC All-Academic team. The daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George Harrison, of French Lick, Ind., she recorded a 3.64 GPA in computer science, while ranking second in the conference in dig average.

In addition, Western Kentucky placed more athletes on the Academic Honor Roll than any other league school, with 32 Hilltoppers posting a 3.0 GPA or better. Virginia Commonwealth was second, placing 28 athletes on the SBC Academic Honor Roll.

From the WKU baseball team, senior pitcher Kevin Pearce was honored. The WKU basketball teams each placed an athlete on the honor roll, with James McNary and Laura Ogles making the elite list. The Topper cross-country teams led the way with ten athletes—Kevin Banks, Brett Fahnestrom, Mike Lutz, Steve Metzger, Victor Ngubeni and David Padgett from the men's team, and Kitty Davidson, Debbie Meece, Beth Millay and Andrea Webster from the Lady Topper team.

Three Hilltopper golfers earned a spot on the honor roll—Mike Bolding, David Pecher and James Welch. Coach David Holmes had five of his soccer players make the honor roll—Jody Carmack, Rusty Franklin, Lanny Hall, John Hanan and Ramin Ranjbar. The Western tennis teams produced five honor roll athletes with Mary Birch and Terri Stanfield from the women's team, and Billy Jeff Burton, Kurt Freyberger and Scott Vowels representing Coach Jeff True's men's team.

The Lady Topper volleyball team produced six honor roll athletes—Tammi Jo Driver, Donna Inghram, Jolie Lewis, Dedre Nelson, Tamlyn Nelson and Suzanne Wilson.

Bassin' With the Pros...

Summer Fishing Tips

The summer period can be the real test of a bass enthusiast's love of the sport. This two to four month time frame is highlighted by an overabundance of food and stable fishing patterns. Fishing is tough and bass tend to hold in locational patterns. During summer, weather plays an important role in determining the success of any outing.

As far as fishing a theoretical lake during this period, Ken Cook, Evinrude Pro Staff member, has quite a number of excellent tips to share with the anxious angler.

"Where and what type of habitat you're going to fish almost totally determines what type of lure you use. As far as the summer season, the grassbed is the most common denominator among lowland shallow water lakes. The bass will relate to that almost without exception. The key to catching these fish is controlled a great deal at this time of year by pH (the acidity or alkalinity of the water), which is very important at this time of year."

There are 14 steps in the pH measurement with 7 being neutral, those numbers below 7 show increasing acidity, those above 7 increasing alkalinity. The pH levels also measure the hydrogen-ion concentration: where there is little oxygen in the water, there is more acid; where there is more oxygen in the water, there is more alkalinity. Bass shy away from acid waters.

"So, generally, the daily pattern is that you can catch bass around the shallow parts of the grassbed early in the day because the pH is low and it's comfortable at that time," Cook continues. "It then goes up as the sunlight increases the photosynthesis, and that increases the pH. So the fish will retreat to the shady part of the grassbed, if there are suitable spaces in it. If the grassbed is very dense so there's not any space amongst it, then the bass will go away from it and suspend."

What lures does Cook favor under these conditions? "You can fish a top-water bait in the morning across the grassbed, a buzzbait or spinnerbait, and catch bass very successfully. But usually that quits about 9 or 10 o'clock. Then you have to get deep into that grassbed with a heavy worm or jig by flipping it through the vegetation, or you'll find yourself in a real tough catching situation with suspended bass away from cover."

Ken Cook keys in on habitat availability on large man-made impoundments and reservoirs.

"Bass in the summertime usually relate to the main body of the lake. If you have a big lake, my patterns revolve around main lake structure—and there are some exceptions to that especially if there's current.

"But for the average reservoir where there's no current, I can eliminate the upper ends of coves, back ends of the creeks, and most of the sides. That means I'll be fishing a smaller part of the reservoir: the main body of the lake, the main river points and drops."

Where do bass tend to congregate or "associate" on reservoirs during the summer period?

"The bass tend to be associated on convex structure: humps, ridges and structure that come up off the bottom. A lot of times they will be associated with the edge of a river or creek channel because there tends to be a little hump at the edge of a river channel. In summertime I'm looking for mid-water structure, main lake structure: humps, ridges, points, edges that border deep water, roadbeds, etc."

Most professional and amateur bass tournaments require all entrants to wear an approved personal flotation (PFD) whenever the outdoors is running. It's a good idea to wear a PFD whenever you're on the water, and now Johnson and Evinrude dealers have made that a little easier with a new PFD designed just for bass fishermen. The arm holes are generously cut for ease of movement, and the side laces are adjustable to help keep you cool in any weather. The vests are available in Johnson and Evinrude colors to match your favorite brand.

Sting Wins Tournament

Sting of Prestonsburg won the 18th Annual Archer Park Softball Tournament that was held at the park July 1-5. Taking home second and third place trophies were two other Floyd county teams: Marco and Prestonsburg Merchants.

The tournament well known for the talented teams it draws every year also featured last year's 1st place team, Miami Abrasive, the Class B state champ in Ohio, from Sidney, Ohio. "I didn't think they would win it, but I expected them to be in the finals with us," said Sting coach Ralph Little. As it turned out though Sting beat Marco in the final game 9-8, finishing the double elimination tournament with a 5-0 record.

Barry Hall from Greg's Sporting Goods in McDowell won the tournament's home run crown with five round-trippers. Five of the twelve teams in the tournament were from the Floyd County Softball League.

In more softball news, Sting continued its winning ways by finishing first in the Beefmaster Classic Tournament at Morehead this past weekend. Sting beat town Cinema of West Liberty 30-20 in the final game. Winning the MVP honors with seven homers was Sting player Bob King.

All-Star Break Needed As Cincinnati Hits Tailspin

Jack Clark said Sunday that his St. Louis Cardinals need the three days they will be off during the all-star break, even though the Cardinals are enjoying one of their most successful seasons in baseball.

With disabled lists growing, and the July heat beginning to take its toll, all major league teams will probably enjoy the days off, but none more than the Cincinnati Reds.

Injuries have devastated Cincinnati, taking from them two starters; second baseman Ron Oester and leftfielder Kal Daniels.

Starting pitching has, except on rare and less than frequent occasions, been a missing asset all this season.

Both injuries and a lack of effective mound performances made their effects known this past week as the Reds lost six of seven games at home against Philadelphia and Montreal.

After the Phillies closed out a three-game sweep, Wednesday, Montreal came to Riverfront Stadium for a four-game series, leaving Sunday with three wins.

Cincinnati earned their only victory of the series Thursday, defeating the Expos 7-2 behind Bill Gullickson, and Rob Murphy.

Gullickson, the Reds' winningest pitcher, pitched seven innings to record his ninth win against five losses. The righthander gave up two runs on five hits before giving way to Rob Murphy.

Murphy, leading the National League in relief appearances, worked the final two innings, shutting out Montreal on one hit.

First baseman Mick Esasky, a player Cincinnati had utilized as trade bait until Daniels went down with a knee injury last Sunday, provided all the Cincinnati Reds would need on this day.

In the second inning, Esasky blasted a three-run homerun, his 10th of the year. Tracy Jones, 10th, and Dave Parker, 19th, later added solo blasts forth victorious Reds.

The next three games weren't as favorable for Cincinnati fans.

Friday night, Montreal scored one run in the third, and three in the sixth inning off starter Tom Browning, 5-7, on their way to a 5-1 win.

The Reds could manage only six hits off Expo righthander Bryn Smith and their lone run came on an Eric Davis homerun.

Saturday came, bringing with it another Reds loss, this time 11-5. Montreal pounded starter Ted Power, drilled Bill Landrum, and touched up Bill Scherrer with a 17-hit attack.

Power, 6-5 with the loss, lasted only five and two-thirds innings. The Cincinnati righthander, after a successful early season showing, has given up 14 earned runs in his last two starts.

Terry Francona and Power each hit homeruns, and in the sixth inning Max Venable's two-run double brought the Reds to within one run, but Montreal broke the game open with four runs off Bill Landrum in the seventh inning. The Expos later added a ninth inning run, this one at the expense of Bill Scherrer.

With the two losses Cincinnati had given the Houston Astros an opportunity to move into first place, but Howard Johnson wouldn't allow it.

Johnson, New York Mets' third baseman, may be the Reds most valuable person thus far in 1987.

In three games last weekend, Johnson slammed four homeruns to lead his Mets to a three-game sweep over Houston.

Sunday, Johnson crushed his 20th homerun of the season as New York dumped the Astros, 5-2, but Cincinnati benefitted most from the Met win.

As New York was beating Houston for the third straight time, the Reds were losing to Montreal for the third straight time.

The Expos scored on run in the first,

SPORTING TIMES

the first half of this season Yogi Berra's "It ain't over 'til it's over" has to be given a new definition.

Minus Kansas City's Brett Saberhagen, Houston's reliever Dave Smith, and righthander Terry Leach of the New York Mets, pitching on a consistent basis has been caught off base.

Theories to explain this offensive avalanche are as plentiful as are the homeruns, but none explain the situation.

The baseball being souped up is the favorite among baseball constituents, while others say the umpires have shrunk their strike zones, giving the advantage to the hitter.

How about the mound being lowered? Some say this has also assisted the hitter since the alteration several years ago. The pitchers rarely use the best pitch in baseball, a high and tight fastball, anymore.

All coaches, players, writers, and fans have voiced their own opinions about offense being the "big deal" of this season.

No one has proved their theory yet, but since the days of Bob Gibson, and the late 1960's, baseball offensively has improved dramatically, from a near .220 average to around .260.

Constantly bats have caught up with fastballs, timed a few curves, and proved that good pitching rarely stops good hitting these days.

Last Friday night a nation of baseball fans tuned in to NBC in anticipation of a classic pitcher's duel.

Not this time. Mike Scott was sent to the showers early and Dwight Gooden didn't exactly dominate. Both starters are among the National League's best, but neither was around when New York finally beat Houston 7-3.

Hitters won the personal battle with the pitchers on this occasion as they have all summer.

It may be because hitting has become a bona fide school of science with hundreds earning their masters degrees.

Hitters study tapes. Most of them have bats tailor made to fit their grip, kind of like a businessman and a three-piece suit.

and two in the sixth off losing pitcher Guy Hoffman, and went on to post a 4-2 victory.

The Reds' only offense of the day came in the fifth inning when Nick Esasky again homered, this time a two-run shot. Hoffman, with the loss, fell to 7-4.

Montreal's 4-2 victory, Sunday, forced the Reds to settle with a losing homestand, finishing at 6-7 during their latest Riverfront stretch.

This Thursday night, as will all major league teams, Cincinnati will resume play, taking on the Mets in a four game New York series.

Playing on the road may be where the Reds want to be. Cincinnati is only one game over .500 at home, but boasts one of the league's best road records, 22-17.

Bill Gullickson, 9-5, will pitch for the Reds while New York is scheduled to send Dwight Gooden, 6-2, to the mound.

With the Mets' help, Cincinnati managed to keep their top standing in the NL West, two and one-half games in front of Houston. The Reds and Astros are the West's only two winning teams.

While they rest, the St. Louis Cardinals enjoy baseball's biggest divisional lead, dominating the National League East. The Cards lead last year's division winner New York by nine and one-half games.

In the American League East, New York enjoys a three-game lead over Toronto, and Minnesota, in the AL West, leads Kansas City and Oakland by two games.

Cages, pitching machines and instructors, who do nothing but teach hitting, are made available to hitters at all times. The only change for the pitcher over the past 20 years has been the split finger fastball.

It could also be that the quality of pitchers has dwindled to a precious few. The days of a great pitching staff are gone, and maybe forever.

Then again this new wave of young players may simply be better hitters than the mound men are pitchers. But why are people like Ozzie Smith suddenly having great offensive years, and why can't anyone hit veteran pitcher Terry Leach, never before effective.

Maybe there are no answers to these questions, but looking for correct responses is enjoyable. So is watching this new transition of baseball importance.

Pitching and defense no longer win baseball games. Out-scoring the opponent does, and that means scoring a bunch.

The days of 20-game winners haven't disappeared, but in achieving this some earned run averages are going to suffer.

Major league baseball is an explosive show filled with blazing wood and roughed up cowhide. The man on the hill is no longer king. He fears his counterpart—the man with the golden stick.

Tribute to Mrs. Ousley

Annie Ousley, of Martin, gave 17 years of dedicated service to Our Lady of the Way Hospital. We sensed our loss when illness prevented her from continuing her work in Central Sterilizing; we are deeply grieved by her death. Annie's kindnesses were many. She will be very much missed by all of us who worked with her at Our Lady of the Way Hospital.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of our darling son, Jimmy Penix, who passed away July 19, 1984. No one could count the falling tears, While I ponder on the priceless years, Your life was so precious to everyone, But most of all, my precious Son, I treasure memories so dear. For that is all that I have here. Your memories are my keepsake, With them I'll never part. God has you in his keeping, But I have you in my heart. God gave us strength to face it, The courage to meet the blow, But what it meant to lose you, No one will ever know. If the world was ours to give, We'd give it all and more, Just to see the face we love so dear, Come smiling through the door. We love and miss you. Mandy, Dad, Mom, Lonnie, Piscilla and all your aunts and uncles.

H. Bruce Allen

H. Bruce Allen, 49, of Lexington, died last Thursday, following an apparent heart attack. His wife, Barbara Ann Carter Allen, is a former resident of Prestonsburg. He was a son of Clyde C. and Evelyn Rose Allen, of Lexington, and was an access services manager with General Telephone of the South. An Army veteran, he was a member of the Centenary United Methodist Church and the Lexington Lions Club. In addition to his wife and parents, he is survived by two daughters, Michele Allen Suffridge, of Raleigh, N.C. and Marjorie Elaine Allen, of Lexington; one son, Michael Bruce Allen, also of Lexington; one sister, Annette Cobb, of Crestwood; three brothers, James D. Allen, of Lexington, John A. Allen, Jr., of Versailles, Indiana. Funeral services were conducted Monday at 11 a.m. at the Centenary United Methodist Church by the Rev. Al Gwinn. Burial was made in the Lexington cemetery under direction of the Kerr Brothers Funeral Home. Local information was provided by the Carter Funeral Home.

Who's watching? Some 50 plastic owls perched atop California power poles are scaring off squirrels that think power transformers are nifty places to store nuts. According to International Wildlife magazine, the owl guard has resulted in fewer squirrel-caused power outages—saving Pacific Gas and Electric Co. thousands of dollars a year in repair costs—and longer life spans for countless California squirrels.

Loyd Jeffery Conley

Loyd Jeffery Conley, 18, of Westland, Michigan, died June 22, in Taylor, Michigan. He was born July 28, 1968 in Ypsilanti, Mich., and was a son of Loyd and Nadene Cook Conley. In addition to his parents, he is survived by one brother, Sean Conley, of Westland, Mich., his grandparents, Mrs. Emily Conley, of Lackey, and Enon and Zola Cook, of Creston, O., and his aunt, Joyce Martin, of Wayland. Funeral services were conducted June 25 at 1 p.m. at the UHT Funeral Home in Westland, Mich. with the Rev. Stanley Jenkins officiating. Burial was made in the Cadillac Memorial Gardens West in the Garden of the Old Rugged Cross, Westland, Michigan. Pallbearers were Sean Conley, Michael Todd Slone, Jamie Bellinier, Chris Gleason, Gary Little and Rodney Holmes.

Jamie Pauline Conn

Jamie Pauline Conn, South Whitley, Ind., died at 12:05 p.m. Wednesday, July 8, at Parkview Hospital. She was taken to the Fort Wayne hospital following a bicycle-truck accident in South Whitley on Tuesday. Jamie was born at Whitley County, Ind. Memorial Hospital on March 9, 1977. She always lived in South Whitley and would have been a fifth grader at South Whitley Middle School this fall. Surviving are her parents, Roger and Joetta Conn Brumbaugh; a sister, Kelly Jo Brumbaugh; a brother, Gerin Dean Brumbaugh; her grandparents, Mrs. Nancy Sue Woods of South Whitley, Ind., Gillis Conn of Dana; and a great-grandmother, Mrs. Pauline Dingus of Piercetown, Ind. The service was at 2 p.m. last Saturday at the Smith and Sons funeral home, South Whitley, with the Rev. Dale H. Linhart, pastor of South Whitley United Methodist Church, officiating. Burial was at South Whitley Cemetery.

"World Series" Scheduled For Mine Rescue Teams

The U.S. Labor Department's Mine Safety and Health Administration (MSHA) will hold its biannual National Mine Rescue and First Aid Contest for the coal mining industry on Sept. 15, 16 and 17 at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center, Louisville. The 1987 contest will be the 31st in the history of the coal mining industry. The first was held in Pittsburgh in 1911, with President William H. Taft in attendance. Known as the "World Series of Safety," the contest will pit the top mine rescue and first aid teams of the mining industry against each other to select the finest teams in the nation. The purpose is both to sharpen the skills of all of the teams that may be called upon to locate and remove injured miners after a mine accident and to select the most effective mine-rescue team in the industry. An individual contest for "benchmen" also will be held to test skills in maintaining and repairing equipment used by mine-rescue teams. The mine-rescue contest will be limited to 100 teams, with each mining company permitted to enter one team from each of the MSHA subdistricts where coal is mined. The first aid contest will be limited to 30 teams. The coal mine-rescue contest, held in alternate years with the metal and nonmetal (non-coal) mine-rescue contest, will hold elimination events for the first two days. From these contests, 20 teams will be selected for the finals, and from these teams the champion team will be chosen. For both the first aid teams and the benchmark, one test will determine the winner. More than 1,000 contestants are expected to enter the various competitions. Winning teams in each category will receive trophies, to be presented at a banquet after the contest. Other awards donated by MSHA, the states and equipment manufacturer of fire-suppression equipment. MSHA and state mine safety agencies will provide the judges.

Farm Prices Rise Above '86 Average

Livestock, grain and oil seed prices were all up in mid-May from their April averages, according to the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service. Beef cattle, with mid-May price of $55.90, were $2.40 above the April average of $53.50 and $12.80 above May 1986. "If this price holds through the entire month of May, it will be the highest beef cattle price since late 1980," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. Steers and heifers, at $66.70, were $3.10 above the April average and $17.30 above a year ago. Calves, with a mid-May price of $78.50, were $6.40 above April and $23.90 above the May 1986 price of $54.60. Hog prices continue strong averaging $55.60 at mid-May, $4.80 above the April price of $50.80 and $9.40 above a year ago. While grain prices recovered some lost ground in May, they are still generally lower than they were a year ago. Corn, with a mid-May price of $1.91, was 19 cents above the April average of $1.72, but 66 cents below a year ago. Wheat, with a mid-May average of $2.88, was nine cents above the April average of $2.79, but 26 cents below May 1986. Soybeans, at $5.49, were above both the April average of $5.06 and the May 1986 price of $5.42. The May All Farm Products Index of Prices Received by Farmers increased four points from April to 129 percent of its January-December 1977 average. Higher prices for beef cattle, hogs, corn, soybeans and cotton were partially offset by lower prices for eggs, milk and tomatoes.

★ Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: I am a 65 year old man and I have prostate cancer, which was recently found to have spread to my bones. My doctor wants to give me a drug called DES, to control the cancer and stop the pain. I've heard before that DES causes cancer, and that it was recommended in the early 1970s that doctors no longer prescribe it. I'm confused. Is DES usually a treatment for prostate cancer which has spread to the bones? Isn't DES dangerous? ANSWER: DES (diethylstilbestrol) is a synthetic form of the female hormone estrogen. It is often used to treat advanced or recurrent prostate cancer. Prostate cancer cells rely upon male hormones for their growth. The use of a female hormone, such as DES, counteracts the effects of the male hormone, and in this way controls the growth of the cancer cells. As in your case, cancer cells present in the bone stop growing, and bone pain subsides. In the past, DES was also given to some pregnant women to prevent miscarriage. In the early 1970s, studies revealed that DES caused health problems including some cancers in daughters who were exposed to the drug taken by their mothers while pregnant with them. Later studies showed that the mothers themselves may be a higher risk for breast cancer. A drug can be approved for many different uses. Therefore, while DES should no longer be used during pregnancy, it is still useful for other medical conditions. For more information on any cancer-related question call 1-800-4-CANCER or write to the Cancer Information Service at McDowell Cancer Network, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. 40536. The Cancer Information Service is a program of the Kentucky Community Cancer Program.

Collegiate All-American

The United States Achievement Academy has announced that Tonya Russell has been named a Collegiate Academic All-American.

The USAA has established the Academic All-American Collegiate Award Program in order to offer deserved recognition to superior students who excel in the academic disciplines. The Academic All-American Collegiate Scholars must earn a 3.30 or better grade point average. Only scholars selected by a school official or other qualified sponsor are accepted. These scholars are also eligible for other awards given by the USAA.

Miss Russell has completed her freshman year at St. Mary's of the Woods College, Terre Haute, Indiana, with a 3.9 grade point average, and was also named to the National Deans List. Tonya is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph R. Russell, of Anchorage. She is a 1986 graduate of Shelby County High. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Gracie Robinson, of Prestonsburg.

Continues Tradition

Adam R. Price, grandson of Mrs. Lillia Mae Price, of Prestonsburg, will begin new employment with the U.S. Treasury Department, July 20, when he will be sworn in as a Special Agent with Treasury's Bureau of Alcohol, Tobacco and Firearms in Miami, Florida, continuing a career in law enforcement. He is currently a police officer with the Arlington county, Virginia, police department.

Price, who is 25, graduated from Michigan State University in 1984 and was employed by the Clawson, Michigan, police department, a Detroit suburb before going to Arlington.

As an ATF Special Agent, Adam will begin his federal career as his father's career draws to a close. His father, Phillip R. Price, formerly of this county and former Kentucky State trooper, is also a Special Agent with the BATF and will be eligible for retirement exactly 12 months from the date his son is sworn in.

Mr. Price and his wife, Deirdre, who reside in Clifton, Virginia, will attend the swearing in ceremony in Miami, and he will administer the oath of office to his son. At that time the badge Mr. Price carried during his career will be reissued to his son.

As a Special Agent, Adam will work in jurisdictional areas under the Internal Revenue Code as it related to firearms, distilled spirits and tobacco products. The South Florida offices of ATF are involved with other federal and state agencies in combatting the nation's drug problems by participation in the President's Organized Crime Drug Enforcement Task Forces.

Families Of Handicapped Children Meet In Martin

Parents and other family members of children with emotional, learning or physical handicaps met June 25 at Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in Martin. There were four new members this month, and the group decided to try to meet more often. The next meeting will be Thursday, July 16, at 6:30 p.m. at the center. This is at the Old Mormon Church across from Our Lady of the Way Hospital on U.S. Route 23.

If child care is needed during the meeting, call Rita Conley or Eileen Schepers at 886-8572 before 4:30 p.m., Wednesday, July 15. To talk about the group's purposes and activities, feel free to call Rita or Eileen. All parents and other family members are very welcome.

Western Chosen Host To KFIA Logging Show

The Kentucky Forest Industries Association (KFIA), sponsor of the annual Kentucky Logging Show, recently announced plans to hold the Fifth Annual Show Saturday and Sunday, Sept. 19 and 20, at Western Kentucky University's Agriculture Exposition Center.

Frank Lassiter, KFIA executive director, says the show will include exhibits and displays of wood processing and handling equipment, lumberjack contests, wood crafts, antique equipment displays, and skidder and loader contests. Food and refreshments will be provided on the grounds daily by various WKU student organizations and entertainment will be on the grounds throughout the show.

The 1986 show attracted approximately 12,000 persons and '87 Loggins Show officials believe that this year's show will exceed those numbers because of Bowling Green's close proximity to a large forest products industry in both Kentucky and Tennessee, say organizers.

For information on local accommodations, visitors are encouraged to contact the Bowling Green/Warren County Tourism Commission or address inquiries to: Kentucky Logging Show, 310 Kings Daughters Drive, No. 7, Frankfort, Ky. 40601, 502-875-3136.

State Property Tax Rate Is 21.4 For '87

Revenue Secretary Gary W. Gillis recently announced that the 1987 state real estate property tax rate has been set at 21.4 cents per $100 of assessed valuation. The state real estate rate must be reviewed each year and adjusted as needed to ensure that no more than a 4 percent cumulative increase in revenues is realized over the previous year. The 1986 rate was 21.6 cents.

With the establishment of the 1987 real estate tax rate in a timely manner, local taxing districts statewide can be assured of their ability to prepare and collect tax bills upon certification of local tax rolls by the Revenue Cabinet and the proper establishment of local tax rates.

Home Ownership Brings Tax Responsibilities

When you purchase your first home, you should begin recordkeeping by saving a copy of the settlement or closing statement. This will help you establish the basis in your home. The basis is usually the cost or purchase price of the home. Other items such as legal fees and transfer taxes may be added to your basis. You may deduct your share of the real estate taxes, mortgage interest, and "points" that are considered interest, in the year you buy the home if you itemize your deductions.

As you make improvements, you should keep copies of the receipts. Remodeling a bathroom or replacing a roof are examples of improvements. Improvements are added to the basis of your property and should not be confused with repairs.

If you use part of your home for business and deduct a portion of your household costs as a business expense, you will need to keep records of how much depreciation you claimed and what portion of the home you used for business.

Records of selling expenses such as commissions, advertising and legal fees should also be saved. Loan charges such as loan placement fees or "points" are also selling expenses.

Why is it important to keep records? Because each time you sell your home, you must file a Form 2119, "Sale or Exchange of Principal Residence," with that year's tax return to report the gain on the sale. You may be able to defer the gain on the sale under certain circumstances and you may be eligible to exclude all or part of the gain if you sell your home when you are age 55 or older.

Normally, you only need to keep copies of your returns for three years. But records concerning your home, including previously filed Forms 2119, should be kept for three years after the year in which you report the gain on sale of the old home.

For more tax information concerning your home, you can order Publication 523, "Tax Information on Selling Your Home," or Publication 587, "Business Use of Your Home," by calling the IRS toll free number 1-800-424-3676.

Some Kentucky Grain Stocks Highest Ever

Total stocks of corn and sorghum in Kentucky on June 1 reached record high levels, while soybeans stocks were below a year ago, according to the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service.

"Corn stocks in all positions totaled 64.7 million bushels compared to 50.5 million last year, a 28 percent increase," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell.

Grain sorghum stocks were up 4 percent to 1.1 million bushels. Wheat stocks in off-farm facilities were a record high 1.3 million bushels, up 26 percent from a year ago.

Meanwhile Kentucky soybean stocks fell 13 percent from last June to a total 6.7 million bushels.

Of the 64.7 million bushels of corn stored in Kentucky, 46 percent was stored in on-farm facilities. Corn stored in off-farm facilities totaled a record high 35.2 million bushels, up 89 percent from last year and 54 percent of total stocks. On-farm storage accounted for 34 percent of soybean stocks, while the remaining 66 percent stored off the farm.

Senate Adopts Trade Bill For Farmer Payments

By a vote of 80-15, the Senate recently adopted Senator Mitch McConnell's (R-KY) amendment to the Trade Bill correcting the manner in which farmers receive checks from the Commodity Credit Corporation (CCC).

"Under the provisions of my bill, farmers will never be put in a position of waiting for their federal farm program payments again," said McConnell.

Farmers across the nation have not received farm program payments due them since May 1. McConnell's amendment would prevent this situation from occurring in the future, by altering the appropriations procedure for CCC.

"Our nation's farmers have not been able to receive their federal farm program payments in over six weeks," McConnell said. "Farmers made plans months ago based on the terms established in the contract they signed with the federal government, and now they have found themselves waiting for the federal government to fulfill its end of the agreement," noted McConnell.

"Five times in the last two years, in fact, the federal government has stopped issuing federal farm program payment checks, failing to meet its contractual agreement. It is outrageous that this has become a regular occurrence, and the irony of the situation is that there is no valid reason that the CCC has been forced to stop issuing payments. No valid reason whatsoever," McConnell added.

Each time CCC reaches the limit of its borrowing authority at Treasury, Congress must pass an appropriations bill to reimburse CCC for losses incurred through the operation of farm programs. Under the McConnell amendment, CCC would be provided funds automatically each time an appropriation became necessary. This would prevent the need for Congress to go through the lengthy procedure of passing an appropriations bill each time the CCC needs to fulfill its contractual obligations.

The current cosponsors of this amendment are Sen. David Karnes (R-Neb.), Sen. Christopher "Kit" Bond (R-Mo.), Sen. Richard Lugar (R-Ind.), Sen. David Durenberger (R-Minn.), Sen. Don Nickles (R-Okla.), Sen. Bob Kasten (R-Wisc.), Sen. Kent Conrad (D-N.D.), and Sen. Steve Symms (R-Id.).

Farmers' Market Again State Fair Attraction

A multitude of Kentucky grown fruits, vegetables, herbs and flowers will be for sale at the Farmers' Market as part of the Department of Agriculture's activities at the 1987 Kentucky State Fair, Aug. 20-29.

"We've received very favorable comments from producers and fairgoers alike for providing the fresh produce area at the fair," said Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell. "This area gives fairgoers a chance to buy fresh products, and it gives producers an additional outlet for their products."

As in years past, producers will be selling slices of such produce as cantaloupe and watermelon to give fairgoers a refreshing treat. New additions to the market include flowers, herbs, nuts and pumpkins.

The Farmers' Market will be located at the outside left corner of the Agriculture Products Hall, next to the Found Child Center and across from the entrance to Kentucky Kingdom.

The market will be open at 10 a.m. Aug. 20-29. Closing time will be determined by the producers each day. Lighting will be provided for producers wishing to remain after dark.

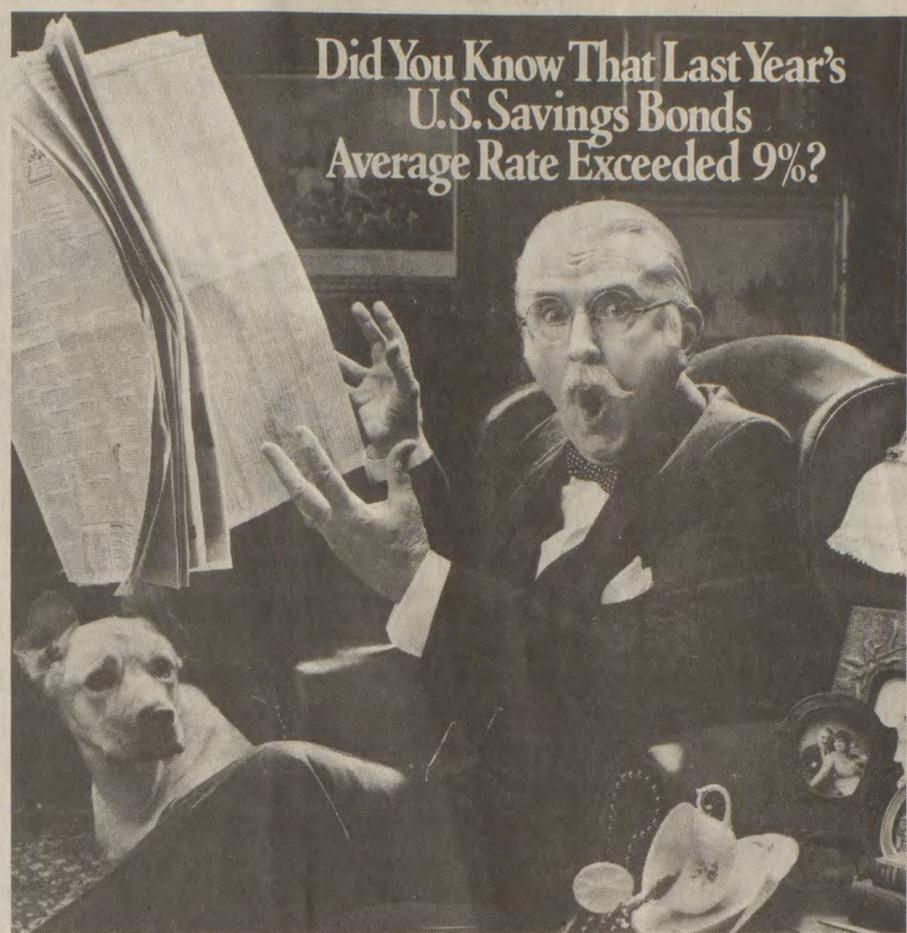

The Farmers' Market will be set up under tents provided by the department. A $5 fee will be charged each day for a 10x10 space.

Producers can obtain more information and register to participate in the market by writing Marketing Services Division, Kentucky Department of Agriculture, Capital Plaza Tower, 7th Floor, Frankfort, Ky. 40601 or by calling (502) 564-2297. Deadline for registration is July 14.

Tent spaces will be reserved on a first-come, first-served basis. Twenty-four-hour notification is requested to reserve additional space or to cancel reservations.

WHEELWRIGHT REVIVAL

There will be a revival at the Wheelwright Church of God at Lower Burton, July 26 through August 2. Local ministers and special singers will be on and nightly at 7 p.m. Everyone is welcome.

Did You Know That Last Year's U.S. Savings Bonds Average Rate Exceeded 9%?

Many people all over America are surprised when they hear what U.S. Savings Bonds have to offer.

For starters, Savings Bonds give you market-based interest rates—like the money markets—plus the security of a guaranteed return. This means you can earn a lot more than the guaranteed minimum rate of 7½%, but never less! To earn the higher rates, just hold your Bonds for five years or longer.

Here's more surprising news—the interest you earn from Savings Bonds is free from state and local income taxes. And you don't have to pay federal taxes on the interest earned until you cash in your Bonds.

Savings Bonds are easy to buy, too. They cost as little as $25 and can be purchased at most banks and savings and loans. Or through the Payroll Savings Plan where you work.

All of these advantages are making Savings Bonds an increasingly popular investment.

Last year, sales of U.S. Savings Bonds were up nearly 30%!

With all that Savings Bonds have to offer, it's no surprise they're one of the best investments in America. For the current rate, just call toll-free 1-800-US-BONDS.

U.S. SAVINGS BONDS Paying Better Than Ever

Market-based rates apply to Bonds purchased on and after 11/1/82 and held at least five years. Bonds purchased before 11/1/82 earn market-based rates when held beyond 10/31/87. Bonds held less than five years earn lower rates.

Eastern Kentucky Named Outstanding Chapter By CPA Group

The Kentucky Society of Certified Public Accountants has announced that the Eastern Kentucky chapter has won the William A. Hifner, Jr. Outstanding Chapter Award for 1987. The award, named for the group's first president in 1924, recognizes chapter leadership, professional development and programs during the previous year. It is the first time that the society has named the Eastern Kentucky Chapter the winner of the award.

The Eastern Kentucky Chapter of the Kentucky Society of Certified Public Accountants represents over 170 CPAs in the counties of Pike, Floyd, Martin, Knott, Breathitt, Magoffin, Johnson, Lawrence, Boyd, Elliott, Morgan, Wolfe, Menifee, Rowan, Carter, Greenup, Lewis, Fleming and Bath.

James M. Fluty, CPA, with Kelley, Galloway & Company, Morehead, accepted the award on behalf of the chapter. Fluty served as chapter president last year.

A 1986 graduate of Wheelwright High School, he joined the Marine Corps in December 1986.

25-Year Employee

Dan Blair observed 25 years of service with R.R. Donnelley and Sons Company, June 24. Blair began his career in the Warsaw Manufacturing Division, and held the positions of trucker, jogger, bundler, bindery apprentice and journeyman stitcher operator in that division prior to his transfer to the Glasgow Manufacturing Division in 1970. He was a member of the craft start-up team for the Glasgow division, and was promoted to the position of bindery foreman in 1974. He transferred to his present position of rate analyst/mail planner in the Distribution Services Department in 1985.

Blair and his wife, Margaret, reside on Route 8, Glasgow, and are the parents of three children. He is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Windle Blair, of Prestonsburg.

Shaker Festival

The Shakertown at South Union historic site in Logan County, Kentucky, invites you to attend the 26th annual Shaker Festival, July 9-18.

Come and enjoy area craftspeople demonstrating Shaker-inspired handwork including everything from broom-making to butter-making. Taste a Shaker picnic luncheon served in the Centre House kitchen from 11:00 to 2:00 each day. Experience the Shaker Museum housed in the 1824 Shaker Centre Dwelling House.

Also featured during this years festival is an area quilt show on July 18th, a special exhibit of Shaker village maps drawn by Rick Spence, Shaker tea tasting, and many other attractions. The South Union Antique Mall and the Shaker Museum Shop will be open with extended hours during the festival offering a variety of Shaker reproductions and regional antiques.

Each evening at 8:15, the outdoor musical drama, "Shakertown Revisited" will be performed, highlighting the one hundred years that the South Union colony thrived in Logan county. Preceding the play, have dinner at the Shaker Tavern. A buffet of Shaker dishes has been prepared especially for the ten-day event with dinner seatings at 4:30, 5:45 and 7:00. For dinner reservations call: 502-542-6801.

Shakertown at South Union is located on Highway 68, 15 miles west of Bowling Green, Kentucky. Festival opens daily at 9:00 (11:00 on Sundays) at the Shaker Museum site on Hwy. 68. Reservations are required for dinner at the Shaker Tavern only. Reservations are necessary for the out-door drama, Shaker Picnic Luncheon, and Shaker Museum, only if bringing a group of 20 or more.

IN NOSTALGIA

By Evan Levine

"My Three Sons," which aired for 12 seasons beginning in 1960, had one of the most complicated casts in sitcom history. See if you can follow this:

Aviation engineer Steve Douglas (Fred MacMurray), a widower, has three sons - Mike (Tim Considine), Robbie (Don Grady) and Chip (Stanley Livingston). His lovable father-in-law Bub (William Frawley) also hangs around the house, spouting old-codgerish sayings.

When Frawley dies in 1964, Bub is sent on an extended trip to Iceland and replaced by his not-so-lovable brother Charley (William Demarest). A year later, Considine wants out, so Mike is married off and sent East. But wait! Now it's only "My Two Sons." Luckily, Chip's friend Ernie (played by Livingston's real-life brother Barry) just happens to be an orphan, and Steve kindly adopts him. The family moves from the Midwest to California, where Robbie falls in love with Katie (Tina Cole, who has appeared in other roles - the producers are obviously banking on poor viewer recall). They marry, and she gives birth to, yes, three sons, named, yes, Steve, Robbie and Charley. Then Steve falls in love with Barbara (Beverly Garland), one of Ernie's teachers, and they marry, and subsequent episodes focus on her young daughter, Dodie (Dawn Lyn). By the time the series concludes in 1972, it's not "My Three Sons," but "My three sons, my adopted son, my two daughters-in-law, my father-in-law's brother, my three grandchildren with the same names as the other males in the family, my new wife, her daughter, their friends, and the various oddballs at the factory where I draw the same plane over and over." And don't forget Steve's lookalike Scottish cousin (also played by MacMurray), Chip's teenage bride Polly and the family dog, Tramp.

Question: What movie had Fred MacMurray and Tim Considine appeared in prior to the series?

Answer: Disney's "The Shaggy Dog" (1959)

SOAP BEAN

'Another World' reminds vet Forsyth of Vietnam

By Marie Michaels

When David Forsyth joined "Another World" in April, he was ideally qualified to play Vietnam veteran John Hudson. His performances on "Search for Tomorrow" (as Hogan McCleary), "Texas" (as T.J. Canfield) and "As the World Turns" (as Burke) had rapidly made him a soap-opera veteran. What's more, Forsyth is himself a veteran of the war in Vietnam.

David Forsyth

"Whenever there's dialogue relating to Vietnam, they check with me," he says. "They let me put in my two cents about how I feel. We have a very open dialogue, which really makes a lot of sense."

In Vietnam, Forsyth was a medical corpsman attached to the First Marine Division. He says that portraying a veteran brings back memories of his own tour of duty, but that they aren't disturbing ones.

"I've made the Vietnam story line good for myself to the extent that it's almost an exorcism," he confides. "But I'm not going to use this story as some kind of catharsis for my own benefit. It's always going to boil down to being a soap opera story line. I'm not deluded about that at all."

There are a few aspects of Hudson that Forsyth hopes the show's writers will pursue in the future.

"There are still a lot of interesting things that we can do with the character, especially since he hasn't been in the United States for 20 years," he says. "From the time that he left Vietnam he has never had a chance to sit down and talk to anyone about the experience, so he's still thinking the way he did back in 1967."

"I hope they'll be a little more specific about his past, other than the things that have come out about his relationship with Donna. John's an angry, bitter person who has totally turned off to society. He's totally irreverent."

"But there are times that you can see that he's very vulnerable," Forsyth adds. "He doesn't know where he stands as far as family relationships are concerned, and he hasn't come to grips with his problems."

"I hope that the character doesn't get washed out or become bland."

ASK TONI

Beau Bridges starred in luckless 'United States'

By Toni Reinhold

Has Beau Bridges ever starred in his own TV series? - S.C., Scranton, Pa.

Beau Bridges

In the spring of 1980, Bridges starred in "United States," a sitcom created by "M*A*S*H" creator Larry Gelbart. It aired for less than two months before being canceled. Bridges played Richard Chapin, and Helen Shaver played his wife, Libby. Bridges also portrayed Seaman Howard Spicer in "Ensign O'Toole," which aired from 1962 to 1964.

I vaguely remember an old TV series about crime in Chinatown. I'd love to know the name of it, where it was set and when it aired. - P.D., Providence, R.I.

"Mysteries of Chinatown," which starred Marvin Miller as Dr. Yat Fu, aired on ABC during the 1949-50 season. Set in San Francisco's Chinatown, the show depicted Fu's exploits as an amateur detective.

Range Rider"? How many episodes of the show were made? - K.S., Muncy, Pa.

Stunt man and cowboy star Jock Mahoney starred in "The Range Rider," a Western that appealed primarily to children. The Range Rider rode a horse named Rawhide and had a sidekick named Dick West (played by Dick Jones). Gene Autry's Flying A Productions filmed 78 episodes of the series, and they aired in 1952. ABC also aired reruns in 1965.

Is it true that Darren McGavin once played Mike Hammer? If so, did the series also feature the Pat Chambers character? - A.N., Burlington, N.C.

Before Stacy Keach starred in CBS's "The New Mike Hammer," Darren McGavin played the hard-nosed sleuth in "Mickey Spillane's Mike Hammer," a syndicated series that aired from 1957 to 1959. Capt. Pat Chambers was played by Bart Burns.

DRAGNET (PG-13 - Universal) Starring Dan Aykroyd and Tom Hanks. ★½

By J.T. YURKO

As a no-nonsense police series based on real incidents, "Dragnet" prospered in three decades on radio and television. But Dan Aykroyd's film parody of "Dragnet" stretches what might have been a funny "Saturday Night Live" skit into 90 minutes of big-screen boredom. The movie is a one-line joke told without cleverness or warmth.

Fans of the TV series will recall that Sgt. Joe Friday was played by Jack Webb, with Harry Morgan playing his sidekick, Officer Bill Gannon. Here, Gannon (again played by Morgan) has been promoted to captain. Aykroyd plays Joe Friday, a nephew of the original cop who coincidentally shares his uncle's trademark voice and mannerisms. His partner is Pep Streebek, an honest but rebellious officer of the law, played by Tom Hanks. With his freewheeling lifestyle, Pep is a perfect foil to the straight-laced Friday, whose only vices are cigarettes and chili dogs.

Big-budget police films need big-name villains, so Christopher Plummer is cast as Whirley, a Bible-preaching evangelist who is also working with pornographer Jerry Caesar (Dabney Coleman) to corner the market on sin in L.A. Coleman plays his role with a speech impediment, no doubt hoping that since his lines aren't funny, saying them with a lisp will make them so.

Unlike the original, this "Dragnet" also features a female lead, the chaste Connie Swail (Alexandra Paul). When she is abducted by the evil cult headed by Plummer, it's Gannon to the rescue. A few car crashes and machine-gun battles later, all are safe and sound.

While this homage is undoubtedly well-intentioned, Aykroyd and director Tom Mankiewicz don't have enough material for a feature film. It is Hanks who gets most of the laughs, and they don't come from the script - he's just a very funny guy. Catch his performance when this "Dragnet" returns to television, which should be soon.

PSEUDORABIES
COPYRIGHT 1987 KVMA

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association
Kentucky swine farmers should be aware that a few instances of Pseudorabies have been diagnosed in Kentucky recently.

Sometimes called Aujeszky's Disease or Mad Itch, Pseudorabies is caused by a herpes virus and is basically a highly infectious infection of swine that affects the central nervous system.

Swine are considered the natural carriers of the virus. The infection is easily transmitted from swine by oral and nasal secretions. It may also be contracted by cattle, sheep, dogs, cats, horse and wildlife—all of which will show severe itching, licking, biting and other self-mutilation, ending in coma and death.

Sows and gilts will lose their appetite, cough and have an elevated body temperature three days after exposure to the virus. Upper respiratory involvement is the first clinical sign, and vomiting and constipation may occur. Symptoms may be so mild they are missed, though about half infected sows will abort. Sows exposed to the disease in late pregnancy may retain the fetuses, which usually become mummified. Sows exposed shortly before farrowing may have weak or dead pigs at birth. Small litters of weak or incoordinated pigs may well indicate pseudorabies infection.

Mortality in newborn pigs approaches 100 percent, and usually dies within 36 hours after clinical signs become apparent.

Clinical signs of Pseudorabies in other species may be the best monitor for the presence of the disease in swine. Immunity resulting from infection will prevent reinfection and is good for about 18 months. However, passive immunity is not always effective in newborn pigs.

A vaccine is available to control the disease, however in Kentucky it can be used only in infected herds and requires special permission from the State Veterinarian.

Farms where Pseudorabies is diagnosed should be quarantined and certain precautions should be observed to prevent the spread of the disease to other farms.

Your veterinarian is your best source of information on Pseudorabies and how to prevent it from spreading to other animals and other farms. He is trained not only in treatment of diseases but disease prevention, in fact he'd rather help you prevent problems than treat them for you.

This AIDS special aims to reach kids — and adults

By Wendy Wallace

"This film presented the facts in such a way that I could really grasp the situation of AIDS," says Dee Wallace Stone of "An Enemy Among Us," a CBS special airing Tuesday, July 21. "It really hit home — to be shunned by your friends, scared, totally immobile and frustrated at not being able to do anything to help yourself or your child."

Stone, who last season played a mother of four in the CBS series "Nothing Is Easy," hopes the film's frank message will bring a greater awareness of the disease.

"This makes you deal with it, by covering both the emotional and the physical aspects of the AIDS problem," she says. "It doesn't cut corners. It doesn't step back from itself and be wary of anything. It's all put out there for you."

"It's a problem that should concern young people now," she says of AIDS. "There has been a lot of talk, but very little of it has been addressed to young kids in a way they can hear. So the movie is presented as their story."

"An Enemy Among Us" was originally scheduled to air as a "CBS School-Break Special," but the importance of the AIDS problem has prompted the network to air it in prime-time, where it will be seen by a much larger audience.

"I'm really pleased that the network put it in prime-time," Stone says. "It's a film that everyone should sit down and watch together. The problems may be happening to a young adult in this, but they're the same problems that can happen to anyone."

Dee Wallace Stone

Stone plays Jan Fischer, the mother of Scott (Danny Nucci), a high-school student who discovers that a blood transfusion given to him three years earlier apparently was infected with the AIDS virus. Once the community learns of his condition, he faces fear and prejudice, as well as doubts about the safety of sex later in life. Jan and her husband Jack (Stephen Macht) are stunned by the reaction against their son, but they are supportive of him and hopeful for his future.

"My job was to bring to life as truly as I could the frustration and torment

Peter Tomarken cashes in with 'Bargain Hunters'

By Lynn Hoogenboom

play the game too well.

But "Bargain Hunters" is not going to be breaking any new ground in another area — game-show sexism. When did we last see a female host?

"There have been a couple of attempts to use women hosts," says Tomarken. "Betty White is probably the best. Unfortunately, the show she did wasn't up to her ability. And I think the dilemma of a woman having to be a traffic cop and at the same time be demure, bubbly and charming can work at cross purposes."

Male models don't exactly abound either. "I don't have a problem with male models," says Tomarken. "But I think there's a built-in prejudice based on what the preconceived notion of male models is."

He claims the day of the brainless model is over, however. "For models today, the audience demands that they be more than pretty faces." Are you listening, Vanna White?

"Bargain Hunters," which revolves around contestants' abilities to spot which prices are bargains and which are not, seems to have more than a little in common with "The Price Is Right." But the real thrill of bargain hunting is looking at a price tag and seeing a hefty retail price reduced to a minuscule actual price. If ABC ever finds a way to transfer that to television, they'll have a guaranteed hit.

Peter Tomarken

"No one I know today pays retail, and if they do they don't admit it," says Peter Tomarken, 40, the host of the new show.

Tomarken claims that "Bargain Hunters" is the game show for the common people. "Our show doesn't require one to take a test to get on it," he says. "If you're fun and you shop, you're qualified. When I did 'Press Your Luck' for CBS, we had a number of potential contestants we couldn't use because they didn't score well enough on the test — or they tested too well." Pity the poor person who has to tell people they can't be on the show because they

At a Glance

During this decade the Assemblies of God has been one of the fastest-growing Protestant denominations in the country. From April 1981 to December 1986 the Fellowship added 1,113 churches or increased 11.4 percent. During the same period, the addition of 3,776 credentialed ministers registered a 14.3 percent increase. The Movement's latest figures for members and adherents, ending December 1985, showed a total of 2,082,878 persons. The Assemblies of God has continued to register increases annually in the 1980's, while many other denominations are experiencing declines. The worldwide constituency of the Assemblies of God is 16 million persons.
