

Stevens Is Charged in Murder Of Robinette at Betsy Layne

By Tim Sizemore

A Betsy Layne man, Michael Robinette, 36, is dead, victim of gunshot wounds, and a former neighbor, Greg Stevens, is now lodged in the county jail, here, charged with his murder.

The search for Robinette ended at 8:20 Thursday morning when his wife, and State Trooper Tod Henson found his body in the backyard of Debra Stevens home at Red Town in Pike-Floyd Hollow.

Greg Stevens, 36, estranged husband of Mrs. Stevens, is being held under $100,000 bond.

Robinette died as a result of three gunshot wounds from a 12-gauge shotgun, according to Coroner Roger Nelson, who said he was shot once in the back of the head and also suffered facial and chest wounds. Robinette is believed to have died around midnight.

He was last seen Wednesday night when he left the home of a friend, where he had been working on a car.

Police are as yet unsure of a motive

$100,000 Bond Set as Suspect Held in Jail

in the slaying, but attention focused almost immediately on Stevens, a resident of Betsy Layne.

Concluding the investigation at Red Town, state police and sheriff's deputies conducted an extensive search for the suspect. A pickup truck belonging to Stevens was later found at Gulnare on Johns Creek, and speculation mounted that he had either changed cars or had hidden in the hills. Special dogs were brought in to aid in tracking Stevens, but no sign of the fugitive was found until around noon Saturday when state police received a call that a strange man was prowling around a home on Ivy Creek near Ivel. When Trooper Fred Davidson, of the Hazard post, came to the scene with a German Shepherd, the dog immediately led officers to a crawl space beneath the house where Stevens was hiding. He surrendered quietly to authorities.

Michael Curtis Robinette was born September 13, 1950 at Portsmouth, Va., a son of the late Glen and Paulena Robinette. He was employed by Akers & Akers Construction Company, of Dana, and was a member of Zebulon Masonic Lodge, F&AM.

He is survived by his wife, Judy Stevens Robinette; one son, Jamie Robinette, and two daughters, Tricha and Jessica, all of Betsy Layne; one brother, Jerry Robinette, Virginia Beach, Va., and one sister, Tina Goble, of Lexington.

Funeral services were conducted at 4 p.m., Sunday, at the Hall Funeral Home chapel with the Revs. James Wilson and Cohen Campbell officiating. Burial was made in Davidson Memorial Gardens at Ivel.

FORMER GOVERNOR BERT T. COMBS, (right) who for years called Prestonsburg home, was in town last Friday on business. He stopped in front of the courthouse to chat with county Treasurer David Allen.

Bridge Repair Promised Before School Begins

By Jeff Weddle

Children at Rough and Tough near Middle Creek will no longer have to walk a half-mile to catch a school bus when classes resume this fall, according to county officials.

Floyd Transportation director Ed Patton admits that, in the past, children have had to walk from their homes over a rough, unpaved road to be picked up by the school bus. A short, wooden bridge midway through the hollow, and covering a creek just prior to a bend in the road, was not wide enough for a bus to negotiate the turn.

Patton and two mechanics took a bus to the bridge yesterday (Tuesday) morning to see if improvements made recently have made the span safe for bus travel. He said the county had filled in an area with rock affording more room for the bus to maneuver. Patton said the bus passed safely over the bridge going into the hollow, but on leaving, a left rear tire was forced to drive over side supports and perilously near the edge. Patton recommended the bridge be widened by between one and one-and-one-half feet.

Floyd Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said yesterday that he had received Patton's report. He said the county will do "whatever it takes" to make the bridge a safe crossing before school begins.

Mrs. Linda Johnson, resident of the hollow, said she and her neighbors have been trying to get the bridge repaired for two years and that last winter concerned parents attended a fiscal court meeting asking for help. Children who will be effected by the improvements range from first graders to high school seniors, she said.

Deposit Bag Theft Lands Three in Jail

Theft of $3,000 belonging to a Floyd county liquor store from a Paintsville bank's depository has resulted in the arrest of a Wittenville man.

Terry L. Melvin, 22, an employee of County Line Liquors near the Floyd-Johnson line, was charged with theft by unlawful taking after he allegedly took a deposit bag left by Top Cat Liquors, East Point, at the Citizens branch bank. He was arrested, July 30, and lodged in the Johnson county jail, but has since been released on $5,000 bond. A preliminary hearing has been set for this morning (Wednesday) at 10:30.

Two other men have also been arrested in the case. Michael Denney, 18, Hager Hill, and Roger Neal Belcher, Jr., 23, Paintsville, allegedly split the loot with Melvin, though neither was implicated in the actual theft.

Police suspect that a party thrown by Melvin, July 18, at the Paintsville country club was in part financed by the stolen money. During the revelry, between $2,000 and $5,000 in damages was reportedly done to the greens after party-goers drove golf carts recklessly over the grounds. No vandalism charges have been filed.

Paintsville Police Chief Frank Patton reportedly notified the district Federal Bureau of Investigation office in Pikeville of the bank theft. The FBI is said to be considering federal charges.

CHILDREN AT ROUGH AND TOUGH won't have to walk their usual half-mile to catch the school bus this fall, said Transportation Director Ed Patton (above) this week, if improvements are made on this narrow bridge there. Patton made inspections of the bridge Monday and Tuesday, and Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said the county will do "whatever it takes" to have the bridge ready when school starts.

Stumbo Renounces Politics, Says Loss 'Disappointing'

Dr. Grady Stumbo has announced that he will never again seek public office.

The Hindman physician told the Louisville Courier-Journal last week that after his second loss in a bid for the Governor's office he has decided he "never, never, never wants to be a political candidate again." He admitted that his loss in the recent primary was very disappointing.

Stumbo was interviewed at Hazard's Appalachian Regional Medical Center, which he and state Senator Benny Ray Bailey established after Stumbo graduated from medical school at the University of Kentucky. He said he has been busy at his medical practice since the election and "didn't have time to feel too sad." During the month of June, Stumbo was the only doctor at the clinic.

As a political candidate, Stumbo said his chances were hurt by his willingness to speak his mind. "That makes you feel good," he said, "but I've got to tell you, you can't win doing that. If you want to win, you're going to have to bite your tongue, you're going to have to compromise some of what you believe." Stumbo admitted that he was even more outspoken in this race—in which he placed a distant fourth—than in the 1983 campaign which he lost by only 25,000 votes.

In that campaign, he was to be the hand-picked successor of former Governor John Y. Brown, Jr. This time, with Brown also a candidate, he said the former governor informally raised the subject of Stumbo dropping out of the race. (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

Many Apply Here for Jobs Openings at Toyota Plant

By Jeff Weddle

If you're interested in working at the new Toyota plant in Scott county but afraid the large number of applicants has ruined your chances, take heart. Officials at the Prestonsburg Department of Employment Services say applications are still being taken and new applicants still have a chance.

Field Manager Tom Hereford, Jr., said Monday that 77 applicants from the four-county area of Floyd, Martin, Magoffin and Johnson counties have been called to the Kentucky State University Assessment Center field office at Prestonsburg High School for further testing.

Hereford said he was pleased by the number of local applicants that made it to the KSU tests. He pointed out that only "the cream of the crop" are tested at the assessment center. There were 2,100 original applicants, with 1,100 making it to the second testing-phase, before being whittled to 77.

Local applicants are first asked to fill out a card explaining why they want to work for the car maker. When enough forms are accumulated, a group of applicants are called to the employment office and given an introduction to the Toyota plant, including the viewing of a short film. They are then given two series of tests: the General Aptitude Test Battery, given to anyone who applies for a job at the employment office, and the Job Fit Inventory, designed by Toyota to screen prospective employees. A third phase of testing is held for skilled applicants.

Hereford said his office has had to rely on other agencies because of the number of applicants here. "If it hadn't been for the National Guard armory, Prestonsburg Community College, Prestonsburg High School and Mayo Vocational School letting us use their facilities, we would certainly be behind," he said. All Toyota applications made here are being processed according to schedule.

The large number of applicants here represent a "brain drain" for the area, said Hereford, because the most qualified people will be forced to leave the area if they are hired. "People can't commute that far," he noted.

Hereford said of those processed here so far, 85 percent have been male, with an overwhelming majority under 45 years old. Most have been non-veterans. Thirty-nine men have applied for skilled supervisory positions, 28 skilled, eight for production supervisor, and 790 for production positions. One-hundred-fifty-two women applied for production positions, four for skilled, and one for production supervisor.

Hereford stressed that not only are jobs available, but also there are no jobs at Toyota which are closed to women. Applications are scheduled to be taken here through September 1988, when the first cars roll off the Scott county assembly line.

State Files Suit Fixing Rt. 80 Blame

Tragedy was narrowly averted last October 26, when two cars plunged into a crevasse created when four lanes of new Ky. 80 at Martin collapsed. Last Friday the state Transportation Cabinet filed suit against two Ohio companies, alleging they are responsible for the incident.

The suit, filed in Floyd Circuit Court, claims that Contech Construction Products Inc., and Armco Corp. Inc. provided the state with a defective steel tunnel which accommodates a railroad whose tracks pass under the road. The suit further contends that the metal underpass was designed, manufactured and certified by the defendants and was constructed under their supervision. It was installed in June 1980.

The state is asking for $1.8 million for bridge replacement, $237,052.40 to pay for Board of Claims actions filed against the transportation cabinet by the drivers whose cars were destroyed after falling into the hole, and $126,320 for costs in rerouting traffic.

When the tunnel, known as a Super-span, buckled last year, Patricia Stepp, of Prestonsburg, was the first driver to

THOUGH THE BUILDING STILL STANDS, another Floyd county institution has vanished with the recent closing of Kentucky's last remaining one-room school, at Daniels Creek.

Daniels Creek School Closing Marks End of Educational Era

By Tim Sizemore

A reminder of Floyd county's heritage passed from this summer with the closing of the one-room school at Daniels Creek, the last school of its kind in Kentucky.

In oppressive summer heat, Eulis Ray Osborne, former student at the school reminisced about the old frame building and its history. "That building is solid. They built it to last," he said as he carefully examined the structure. "They used to cook inside the building, but the fire codes put a stop to that. Now they cook over there," he added, pointing out a small block building behind the school.

When you first enter the Daniels Creek school, all the senses testify to its authenticity. The acrid smell of coal and the sweet aroma of oiled floors beckon thoughts of the past. The potbellied stove located in the middle of the room stands alone with its gaunt stove pipe, a friend that has brought warmth to generations of scholars.

The school has been a part of the life of Daniels Creek as long as its people can remember, and Mr. Osborne explained that several of its former students are now in their eighties and their grandchildren had also attended the school.

With the completion of modern consolidated schools, the one-room structures have slowly disappeared. Better transportation and surfaced roads have also contributed to the demise of rural schools.

Tim Salisbury, who taught at Daniels Creek for four years, feels that one-room schools offer many advantages, but they have serious drawbacks. Among the advantages he commented about, repetition and parental involvement ranked high on the list. Repetition is important because it allows a slow student to catch up, and by its use, a student can become thoroughly familiar with a subject. What a student does not get one year, he can the next, he said. Some of the disadvantages Salisbury spoke of included students becoming too familiar with the teacher's quirks, lack of facilities, and the need for teachers aids.

The Daniels Creek school has generated interest all over the county. Several major newspapers have picked up on the school's unique status, and featured it. The school has also been officially honored by the Kentucky General Assembly, and at the instigation of representative Greg Stumbo, the school was recognized on the house floor for outstanding achievements.

Last year the school's attendance was down to only nine pupils, and it was becoming more expensive each semester to operate the facility. The Floyd County Board of Education, in an effort to save money, decided that it was best to send the children of Daniels Creek to Betsy Layne or Allen and to use the $37,000 it took to operate the school for other purposes.

Its disappearance is a sign of our growth and prosperity. As we become a more mobile society, consolidation of schools is byword for progress, but some also look back with a touch of sadness for a small part of our innocence as a nation that has been relegated to the past.

Mosquitoes And Aids: Questions Unanswered

The question of whether mosquitoes can spread AIDS is far from resolved, according to the president of the world's largest organization of entomologists.

Bobby C. Pass, president of the 9,000-member Entomological Society of America, and chairman of the University of Kentucky Department of Entomology, said the controversy over a claimed association between AIDS and mosquitoes in south Florida falls far short of settling the question.

"There are some 3,000 species of mosquitoes in the world. Proving that none of the 60 or 70 species found in south Florida is spreading AIDS does not rule out involvement of other species," Pass said.

Not all species of mosquitoes are known to spread diseases that affect humans. And among those that do, a particular species may be associated with a particular disease. For example: Some species of Anopheles mosquito spread malaria, but not encephalitis, and some in the Culex genus carry encephalitis, but not malaria.

Fred W. Knapp, a medical entomologist at UK and president of the American Registry of Professional Entomologists, said the ability of mosquitoes to spread AIDS may, in some instances, not require the insects to become infected with the disease themselves, as is the case with malaria and encephalitis.

Knapp said scientists do not know how much blood is required for the transmission of AIDS from one individual to another. A mosquito interrupted while taking a blood meal could conceivably carry enough blood to transmit the disease from an infected individual to an uninfected individual where it might be crushed as it resumed feeding. Crushing that mosquito would spread the infected blood right on top of the hole in the skin the mosquito had just made.

"And of course, in this scenario, the species of the mosquito would be irrelevant.

"I am not saying I firmly believe that this is happening. I am saying that as a scientist and an expert in the relationship of insects and humans, prudence requires that these questions be raised and methodically addressed," Knapp said.

"The bottom line," Pass said, "is simply that we know mosquitoes and several other insects spread viruses among humans. AIDS is a virus. There has not been sufficient research to determine what role, if any, insects do or may play in the spread of this disease."

MSU To Offer Nursing Course at PCC in Fall

Morehead State University's Bachelor of Science in Nursing degree program will offer a nursing theory course this fall at Prestonsburg Community College.

The class, NUR 150: Basic Theories and Concepts, will be taught on Tuesdays, from 4 to 6:30 p.m., beginning Aug. 25.

Enrollment is open only to registered nurses with either an associate degree or diploma, according to Dr. Betty M. Porter, chair of MSU's Department of Nursing and Allied Health Sciences.

"This course is designed to familiarize students with the nursing program's philosophy and the concepts found in the curriculum," Dr. Porter explained. In addition to this basic required course offered by MSU, several general education course requirements for the degree will be available through PCC, she added.

A special "Registration Information Night" for this course and others offered by Morehead State will be conducted at PCC from 5 to 7 p.m. on Monday, Aug. 17.

Additional information on the B.S.N. degree program may be obtained by calling the department at (606) 783-2632.

Patton Named Chairman For Wilkinson Campaign

Democrat gubernatorial nominee Wallace Wilkinson has announced the appointment of Pike County Judge-Executive Paul Patton as statewide organization chairman for the Fall campaign.

Patton was elected Pike county Judge-Executive in 1981 and re-elected in 1985. A lifelong Democrat, Patton was chairman of the Kentucky Democrat Party in 1981 and 1982.

A native of Lawrence county and a graduate of the University of Kentucky (engineering), Patton started his business career from scratch and rose to the top of the coal industry as one of Kentucky's leading coal industry executives.

Patton has worked at all levels of Democrat Party politics. He was a member of the Pike county Democrat Committee for 12 years and has been a delegate to every state Democrat Party Convention since 1972.

He was a delegate to the Democrat National Convention in 1972 and a member of the Rules Committee of the 1984 Democrat National Convention.

"I will be working to elect the entire Democrat ticket," says Patton. "I am pleased that Wallace Wilkinson asked me to take part in his campaign for governor."

A Call For Equal Treatment

In this world of changing attitudes and morality it's becoming harder to teach children to respect their elders. Sometimes their elders complicate the job by not respecting the children as people with feelings.

In a recent Little League Dist. Tourney, my son was humiliated by one of his coaches. He made an error. The game was stopped, he was called from the field in front of about 200 people. Substitutes are made at the end of the inning. Game play isn't even stopped in the majors to substitute a player. My son couldn't understand being so humiliated when the coach's son had just made an error allowing several runs to score, but play wasn't stopped and his son removed. My husband and I took our son home.

These coaches have a responsibility to set the proper example for these children. Each child must be treated equally regardless of who's child it is. Above all they must be treated with respect.

950 Attend Sheriff's Ranch

We would like to take this opportunity to thank the Sheriffs in Kentucky, the Deputies and other interested friends who have helped us attain our goal of over 950 youngsters, ages nine through 13, who have received a free week of camp this summer.

Each sheriff's office transported these needy children to the ranch on Sunday and picked them back up a week later on Saturday. For this we are grateful.

Our professionally trained, 12 counselors are to be commended also, as well as the entire staff at the Ky. Sheriffs' Ranch in Gilbertsville, located by the Ky. Dam State Park.

I would also like to thank each person that is a member of the Kentucky Sheriffs' Association and Ranch, the sheriffs who help us raise money thru fund raisers, and donated gifts. We would like to thank the General Electric Company for the wide screen television, video camera, and VCR; The Kentucky Colonels; Winn Dixie Food Stores; Allied Sporting Goods; Stewarts Flea Market; Mr. Maury Buchart for his gift of four lots on Lake Barkley; ex-football player, Paul Hornung for golf equipment; Bill Cooper's many contributions and all the others who have donated to the ranch this summer. Without these fine generous people, we could not remain solvent, or operational.

Our program for the poor youth in Kentucky is second to none since we have an on-going Drug Prevention Program, Child Abuse Clinics, visiting ministers, free movies, free roller skating, all day trips to the Land Between the Lakes, and all the recreation a child can want.

We also give each child a tee shirt, shoes, hats and other items when they go home, along with many good memories of summer camp that will last a life-time.

This has been a great season and we are very thankful to all the sheriffs, deputies, members, and others that have helped us attain our goal.

Many thanks to your fine newspaper for helping us with our letters to your editor. This is our way to say "thank you" to everyone in Kentucky.

Why No Walkway?

As I noticed the picture of the new Cliff bridge in the Floyd County Times last week I thought how beautiful but ugly and dangerous. With no walkway for those walking to college, also the Cliffside Housing Project, and residents of Cliff to use. When the bridge started construction, we talked to one of the state men about putting a walkway on it; they informed us there would be one, but the walkway got lost, what a shame.

Dr. Tucker Elected To Health Network Board

Dr. Ronald Tucker, Morehead State University professor of industrial education, has been elected to serve on the board of directors of the Kentucky Safety and Health Network.

Former Secretary of Labor John Calhoun Wells appointed Dr. Tucker to the board when the network was formed in 1986. This year, Dr. Tucker was elected to the 33-member board by the 362-member network.

The network, composed of personnel directors, safety directors, medical insurance personnel and others interested in industrial fields, works directly with state officials to promote occupational safety and health in Kentucky.

A native of Morehead, Dr. Tucker earned both his B.S. and M.S. degrees from MSU. He received a doctorate of education degree from Oklahoma State University.

Before joining the faculty of MSU in 1968, Dr. Tucker taught high school industrial arts in Ohio. He was also a safety engineer for Gates McDonald and Company of Columbus, Ohio.

When it comes to parental equality, penguins are way ahead. According to International Wildlife magazine, one day after the female lays an egg, her mate nudges the egg onto his feet. The male then covers the egg with his feathered abdominal skin to protect it from the South Pole's temperatures of 150 degrees below zero. The male incubates the egg until it hatches two months later, when the female takes over caring for their chicks.

Land Dispute Ends With One Wounded

By Tim Sizemore
A land dispute at Maytown ended in near tragedy Saturday night, with one man severely wounded and another lodged in the county jail.
Randy Manuel, 27, of Maytown, was jailed and charged with first degree assault in the shooting of Thomas Hall, 51, also of Maytown.
The trouble arose over land claimed by both parties. State police had previously been called to investigate shooting in the neighborhood, but had found only spent shotgun shells.
Tempers flared when Hall, who owns a joining property to that of Manuel's, hired a bulldozer to do some work on the disputed land.
Hall was shot once in the hip and is listed in satisfactory condition at Our Lady of the Way Hospital. Manuel, who was incarcerated in the Floyd county jail, is now free on $25,000 bond.

Shades of the Old West—Rustling Attempt Foiled

By Gordon Moore
An apparent cattle rustling attempt on the Moore farm at the mouth of Abbott Creek, near here, was foiled early last Friday morning.
Gordon Moore was awakened about 2:30 a.m. by cows mooring and hushed voices near his bedroom window.
Moore slipped out the back door of his home and shined a light in the direction of the commotion. After firing two shots, the would-be rustlers ran rather hastily to a vehicle parked on Highway #1427 between Moore's and Judge Harris Howard's house and sped up Abbott Creek.

race to support Brown's candidacy. Stumbo said, however, that once he was in the race there was never a chance that he would quit.
Stumbo said he is neutral about Democratic nominee Wallace Wilkinson. Unlike Gov. Martha Layne Collins, who sought to bring the various Democratic factions together after she won the 1983 nomination, Stumbo said the Wilkinson camp has not reached out to the other camps. He said he has not decided if he will actively support Wilkinson, citing great differences of opinion on state issues.
Stumbo only half-jokingly said that a candidate from Eastern Kentucky should move to Lexington before embarking on a campaign. He added that he doubts anyone from the region will be elected governor unless there are changes here. "People who sell their vote for 25 bucks...They're right here, right in the mountains. We got some counties where they admire a crook." Stumbo added that Eastern Kentucky must end its factionalism and pettiness.
This part of the state has not produced a governor since Prestonsburg's Bert T. Combs was elected in 1959.

encounter the hole. Shortly before 2 a.m. that Sunday morning, her car fell about 20 feet onto asphalt and other debris resting on two loaded railroad gondolas. She was able to escape her car and climb back onto the roadway in time for an unsuccessful attempt to wave an oncoming car away from the hole. Terry Boyd's vehicle fell atop Stepp's sports car. Both escaped major injuries.
Both drivers were wearing seat belts, a fact that sheriff's Deputy Anthony Castle, the first law enforcement officer at the scene, credited with saving them from greater harm.
Suits filed in circuit court only list the plaintiff's side of the case.

DUI Trips Man Wanted in Ohio

By Tim Sizemore
A D.U.I. conviction here could be the end of the line for a man accused of abduction in Ohio.
Mark Milburn, 25, of Delaware county, Ohio, was arrested July 8 by Prestonsburg patrolman Mike Ormerod. Milburn was charged with D.U.I. and given a 30-day sentence in the Floyd county jail, but a routine records check revealed he was wanted in Ohio in connection with the abduction of a man at knife point.
Ohio authorities are now attempting to extradite the fugitive before his 30-day sentence is served. Under Kentucky law a prisoner must be released after serving sentence. Milburn has been taken before the judge three times and has refused to sign the extradition order, officials say.
Milburn is accused of abducting a Delaware, Ohio man who was unloading skiing equipment and forcing him at knife point to drive him around the county. After a few hours the man was released unharmed.

Bits and Pieces

SALES!
Is it not amazing how much better things look at half price than they looked before?
I should always be barred from book stores and nurseries, the plant kind, but twice a year I wish someone, anyone, would declare me incompetent and refuse to let me go into any store of any kind having a sale.
I have some of the wildest creations yet devised by the fevered imagination of the fashion world. For instance, there's a thing that looks like a black slip with a wild cabbage rose jacket. Oh, well, I'm young at heart. And I do sort of like the black slip. And anyway, it was a steal, and on reflection, I can see why.
Then, there's the floppy fuchsia hat that matches absolutely nothing—and never will. But it, too, was a real deal. I do believe it now reposes on top of a tall chest, gathering dust. Again, I once bought a pair of shoes from one of those bins. I tried one on, and it fit perfectly. Trouble is, when I got home, the other shoe was a size 10.
I can't even have a yard sale, and besides, other than the mis-matched shoes, I sort of like all those crazy things—even the floppy hat. Besides, this may all serve as some needed psychological release for my deep-seated anxieties and frustrations.
On the other hand, if you have a modicum of good sense, sales are great. You can stock up for next year or for this year's vacation. In addition, it's fun!
Oh, well. Mother always said I didn't have good taste, but at least at a sale, I only pay half as much for my mistakes.

ANOTHER DAY OFF—WAY OFF

The other day, another day when you couldn't breathe outside, I found myself with at least a peck of really nice half-runners. So, I decided to hoist out the pressure canner and have at it.
I washed jars. I had to go to the store for lids and rings. I strung beans. I broke beans. I even cut every little speck out of them.
This all takes time, you know. And it was hot in my kitchen.
Finally, I had the beans packed in the jars; the jars in the canner, and ready for the countdown.
Pressure cookers make me extremely nervous. If, after one is under way, I take my eyes off it for a second, I expect a minor Hiroshima with major consequences to take place. Thus, I set myself to watch the gauge like the proverbial hawk.
I had just turned the heat on, and already it read '20' with a wide black band over which the word was 'Caution.' After tapping it gently—perhaps with tender caution is more accurate—looking heavenward and muttering a few frustrated but impeccably respectful phrases, I gave up.
I froze about a gallon of beans; cooked a huge pot; then began drying the rest.
I love shuck beans, don't you? And the next time a day off rolls around, I may just stay at the office. It's safer, quieter, less frustrating, even more productive. And I don't touch any machine other than a typewriter.

Family Visit Ends in Murder In Letcher Co.

A family visit to their daughter ended Saturday morning with Sie and Judy Shepherd and their 38-year-old retarded son dead and their three-year-old adopted daughter missing.
The Shepherds went, Friday night, to visit their daughter, Carolyn Smith, and her husband, Anthony Smith, at the Breeding Trailer Park on Little Collie Road near Isom where the Smiths lived in a trailer owned by her parents.
Saturday morning three bodies—those of the Shepherds and their son—were found burned to death in the rubble that remained of the trailer. The child, who was the daughter of the Smiths, was not found. A dispute centering around the child, Pamela, is thought to have triggered events leading to the deaths.
Although Mrs. Shepherd, 65, and her husband, 74, had been beaten, authorities said all three died as a result of the fire.
State police, who are seeking the whereabouts of the Smiths and another couple, Steve and Rebecca Pennington Adams, say the four when found, will be charged with capital murder, first degree robbery, first degree burglary, arson and kidnapping.

Needs of Employers Is Seminars Focus

Reducing employee recruitment costs. Working with a person who has a disability. Keeping unemployment insurance taxes down.
These are among the topics requested by Kentucky's business leaders, large and small, for a series of 15 day-long seminars to be hosted during September and October by the state Department for Employment Services.
"We want to do whatever we can to help employers keep their business costs down, allowing more Kentuckians to be gainfully employed," said Employment Services Commissioner James Daniels. "We've asked them to tell us what information they need. After reviewing comments made at last year's seminars, we developed an agenda for this year's program."
"This year we have set aside a segment of each day's program to give employers an opportunity to offer their views on unemployment insurance issues that may surface during the 1988 legislative session," he said.
The seminars, which will be held at 12 locations across Kentucky, are offered at the request of employers. They will be similar to those held during the last five years.
They are open to all interested employers and are free of charge. Advance registration is recommended to insure that adequate space is available. Participants who wish to attend a buffet luncheon provided at each seminar are asked to pay for the cost of the meal at the time of registration. Meal costs vary with location.
Registration for the seminars may be made through the Department for Employment Services by calling (800) JOB NEWS or by contacting the Division of Unemployment Insurance, Office of the Director, 275 E. Main St., 2 East, Frankfort, Ky. 40621. The phone number for that office is (502) 564-2900.

Summer Bridge Work Minor for Most Part

By Tim Sizemore
If you have traveled on U.S. 23 to Paintsville recently, you may have noticed work has resumed on the bridge above the Van Lear exit, but have no fear. The structure is only getting a new coat of paint.
Kirby Isom, of the State Department of Transportation, says that the Apollo Industrial Painting Company, of Campbell, Ohio, has been given a contract to paint the bridge's superstructure in order to preserve the new beams installed last summer.
The bridge was closed several months last year, and motorists were obliged to take alternate routes to Paintsville while the bridge was completely redone to correct structural flaws.
Isom stated that several bridges on U.S. 23 have been slated for cosmetic surgery, among them one located on the Johnson-Floyd line at Johns Creek where a process known as laytex overlay will help seal the concrete and repair pockmarks caused by winter freezing.

Lonesome Pine Council Seeks More Leaders for More Scouts

By Jeff Weddle

Be prepared. The Lonesome Pine District of the Boy Scouts of America is trying to comply with that time-honored motto by recruiting scouts and scout leaders to bolster existing troops and to begin new ones. District executive Richard Muse says recruiting 700 new scouts and 65 leaders this year is the Lonesome Pine goal.

Scouting is already a fairly strong presence here, with five troops in Floyd county, two of which are in Prestonsburg. But Muse said things need to improve in quantity, if not quality. "We do tremendous things because of the quality of the volunteers we now have," he said. "If we had the quantity, the sky's the limit."

Muse said the total available youth ratio in this district, which covers the five-county area of Floyd, Johnson, Pike, Magoffin and Martin, stands at about 19,000. While less than 10 percent of that number participate in scouting here, the national average is 26 percent.

The problem is leadership, he said. "We're having trouble finding willing, capable, adult male leadership. Most people around this district don't want to commit themselves."

He said the personal rewards far outweigh the small time commitment required of a volunteer. "Most of the guys in Eastern Kentucky are outdoorsmen; they like to hunt and fish and camp. To see a boy develop in these skills under his leadership is a tremendous reward for a man," said Muse.

Muse pointed out that 17 of the original 26 astronauts, including first-man-on-the-moon Neal Armstrong were Eagle scouts. A number of former U.S. Presidents had that honor, Muse said, citing Gerald Ford, who was involved in a national ad campaign for the scouts a few years ago. "To look back and say 'He was in my troop would be a tremendous reward,'" said Muse.

Johnny Ross, scoutmaster of Troop 877 on Abbott Creek, echoes Muse's sentiments. He tells of a boy who joined his troop for purely mercenary reasons and stayed to gain the highest leadership position a scout can achieve.

"We had a rally at the grade school, and I met with every boy in the fifth through eighth grade. I offered that if they joined, I would pay their $4 registration fee, and give them a free gift of a flint and steel kit. I also told them that if they stayed one month I would give them another $4.

"This young man told me later that he just joined to earn the money and get the free gift. That was four years ago, and now he's 14 and a senior patrol leader." Ross said he had similar experiences when he was a scout, which helped him mature.

"As a boy, scouting gave me a sense of responsibility, because I was a patrol leader. I knew what it was like to make decisions on my own that would affect other 12-and 14-year-old boys."

Unfortunately, Ross believes scouting is weaker now in this area than in past years. He said the decline has come "mainly because it takes money to run a troop." Ross pointed out that often there just isn't enough money in an area to effectively run the program. His troop is fortunate, however. He has the support of some local businessmen who, though remaining anonymous, support the troop financially.

"One man said he knows what it's like to not have a troop on Abbott Creek because of money," said Ross. "And he says as long as he's around, he'll make sure we have one."

One way scouting officials are attempting to make the program stronger here is through "School Nights for Scouting," beginning in September. Rallies will be held in Floyd county, Sept. 17, with "school night" activities the following evening. The goal is to organize 13-15 new troops, Cub Scout packs or Explorer posts. The Explorers are open to both boys and girls aged 14 and older.

The rallies, for 5th and 6th grade boys, will be in area elementary schools. Scout leaders will give a pep talk on scouting, invite the boys back the following night to meet with troop and pack members, and hopefully, join up.

If the projected number of new signups occur, an additional 65 adult volunteers will be needed. This includes one scoutmaster, an assistant and three community members for each group. "The point is," said Muse, "we need a lot of adults."

Muse stressed the importance of cooperation from the school system in promoting scouting, saying "From Supt. (Ray) Brackett down to the teachers, we have very strong support. It would be hard to do it without them." But he credited another group with supporting scouting as well—churches.

He mentioned a number of local ministers who are involved as scout leaders, or who make their churches open for troop and pack meetings. "Bill Evans at the First Christian Church in Pikeville is a cub master," said Muse, "and Quentin Schultz at the First Methodist Church in Prestonsburg is a strong supporter, opening the church for our roundtable meetings."

Such support obviously doesn't surprise Ross, who points out that the Scout Oath begins with pledging service to God and country. "I don't think the age of patriotism and reverence for God is over," said Ross. "I just think that people have been practicing it at home." He said scouting offers a way for boys to develop and share these beliefs.

Muse believes that such sharing is what the Boy Scouts are all about. "I have a hanging on my wall in needlepoint that reads: 'A handful of years from now it will not matter what kind of car I drove, how much money I made or the kind of house in which I lived. But the world may well be different, because I was important in the life of a boy.' That encapsulates the whole thing."

Flea Inspection May Pose Problem

Many pet owners are dismayed when they find fleas on their pets, discovering the bloodsucking insects on their furniture, or even worse, themselves, can be downright upsetting.

The highly mobile cat fleas are the major flea problem in most situations, said University of Kentucky Extension entomologist Chris Christensen. "Female cat fleas will lay their eggs almost everywhere." In the home, this can mean that flea larvae will develop in overstuffed furniture and rugs, as well as in the pet's bedding.

Homeowners may not notice the flea problem until the pet has been removed from the home. Adult fleas and those that develop from remaining larvae need a source of blood after the animal leaves.

Usually this means that they begin to feed on humans.

Christensen says that a coordinated effort is required for the homeowner to control fleas.

"First, inspect the premises to determine where the fleas are concentrated. A thorough vacuuming will help to remove small larvae and pupae.

"Give special attention to areas under furniture, areas where pets rest or sleep, upholstered furniture and cracks and crevices along walls. The pet's bedding should be cleaned thoroughly. All vacuum bag contents should be placed in an air-tight plastic bag and discarded."

He said that pets should be treated with an approved insecticide. Having a veterinarian provide flea control ensures effective and safe control for the animal.

"Keep a flea collar on the pet after fleas are brought under control and change the collar at recommended intervals."

Outdoor control may also be necessary at this time of year, Christensen said. This can be done by either the homeowner or a professional pest control operator.

Veterans Administration Questions and Answers

Q.—I am presently receiving D.I.C. payments as a dependent child. I will be 18 years of age on June 2, 1987. I plan on continuing with my academic pursuit after graduation from high school. I will graduate from high school on June 5, 1987. I am enrolling at the Ohio State University on August 28, 1987. I will be applying for the dependent's educational assistance, Chapter 35 benefits for my school attendance beginning on August 28, 1987. To avoid an overpayment, should I return any D.I.C. payments I receive after reaching age 18?

A.—If you continue in school after age 18 and elect to receive the Chapter 35 benefits in lieu of D.I.C., you will be entitled to continued D.I.C. benefits through August 27, 1987. Your Chapter 35 benefits will become effective August 28, 1987.

Q.—I receive a Veterans Administration pension and each year, I complete a questionnaire about my income. I just started drawing Social Security. Should I wait until I receive the next questionnaire to report this additional income?

A.—No. You should report any new income immediately, to prevent an overpayment of your VA pension.

Q.—My husband was killed in World War II while on active duty and was buried at sea. I never remarried and would like to be buried in a national cemetery. Is this possible?

A.—Yes, the widow or widower of a member of the Armed Forces lost or buried at sea, or officially determined to be in a status of missing or missing in action, or whose remains have been donated to science or cremated is eligible for burial in a national cemetery.

Q.—Am I required to occupy as a home the house I purchased with my VA home loan eligibility?

Foundation To Give Trees For Membership

The National Arbor Day Foundation is giving ten free trees to each person who becomes a Foundation member during August, 1987.

The free trees are part of the foundation's effort to promote tree planting throughout America.

A Colorado blue spruce, white flowering dogwood, pin oak, white pine, red maple, birch, American redbud, silver maple, red oak, and sugar maple tree will be given to members joining during August. The six-to-twelve inch trees will be shipped this fall at the right time for planting between October 15 and December 10. They will be sent postage paid with enclosed planting instructions.

These trees were selected to provide benefits every season of the year: lovely spring flowers, cool summer shade, spectacular autumn colors, and winter berries and nesting sites for songbirds, according to the Foundation.

The National Arbor Day Foundation, a nonprofit organization, is working to improve the quality of life throughout the country by encouraging tree planting.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, a $10 membership contribution should be sent to TEN TREES, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by August 31, 1987.

$29,236 Grant Will Finance Study of Hay as Money Crop

The Kentucky Department of Agriculture has provided the University of Kentucky Research Foundation with $29,236 of a federal grant designed to study the feasibility of hay as an alternate crop in Kentucky.

The total worth of the grant, which the department administers for USDA, is $58,472.

"The study will take in the marketing potential for hay in the southeastern portion of the United States, Kentucky's ability to meet the forage needs of these states and profitability factors such as transportation costs," said Kentucky Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell.

"We already send a lot of hay into the southeast, and we don't want to promote an expansion which might glut the market," Boswell said.

The study will also investigate Kentucky's ability to produce hay of the type being demanded. Now, there is little or no attempt to produce standardized quality. Each farmer determines when and how he will cut, cure and store his hay.

At the same time, Gov. Martha Layne Collins has provided a $79,000 grant to assess the marketing potential for Kentucky-grown alfalfa hay for the horse and dairy industries. Commissioner Boswell is a member of the task force.

In addition, the Governor has created a 17-member task force which has been charged with developing an alfalfa hay program for the Commonwealth.

Boswell said there is increased interest in alfalfa because it is the highest quality hay there is and brings the best prices. Also, research has eliminated or significantly reduced the problems associated with growing alfalfa.

Task force members will review and analyze various marketing methods currently in existence for alfalfa producers and recommend methods of grading alfalfa for quality assurance.

"If we are going to tap a certain market, we need to provide uniform recommendations and have some kind of production standards," Boswell said. "For example, thousands of tons of hay are shipped into Kentucky for the horse industry. We need to learn how to supply that market," Boswell said.

If developing the hay market proves feasible, plans tentatively include a grading system for hay and the possible use of tobacco warehouses as hay marketing centers during the approximately 10 months of the year they aren't used for tobacco.

The grading system is an important part of the concept because it will identify variations in value and provide buyers with known feeding values.

"We expect to ship hay by truck and rail. The warehouses would lend themselves to that," Boswell said.

The study is targeted to last two years.

ASCS Will Accept Late-Field Reports

Sharon Conley, CED of the Floyd-Knott County Agricultural Stabilization and Conservation Service, said late-field acreage reports will be accepted as long as the farmer pays the cost of verifying the acreage, and there is physical evidence of production.

July 15 was the last day for farmers to report their 1987 planted acres, but producers in the county have not filed a crop report this year. Late reports are subject to mandatory spot check.

Crop reports are used by ASCS to determine program compliance and to document crop acreage bases. Before farm program participants receive price support loans, deficiency payments and other benefits, they are required to report crops and acreages planted, the uses to be made of these crops, and cropland acres to be devoted to the acreage conservation reserve.

Crop reporting is important to farm program participants, because without the report, they are not eligible for benefits on 1987 program crops. The acreage report determines the level at which farmers are eligible for program payments and other benefits.

...about your Social Security

TEST YOUR SOCIAL SECURITY I.Q.
By JIM KELLY
Social Security District Director
For the Big Sandy Area

There's been much in the news lately about Social Security and its future. How much do you know about this important program that you have a stake in? Test yourself with these questions (answers are at the end):

1. Social Security is only for older people. True _____ False _____
2. Social Security provides for only partial replacement of lost earnings. True _____ False _____
3. Money you pay into Social Security is specifically set aside for you like a bank account. True _____ False _____
4. A person who retires at 65 in 1987 after paying maximum Social Security taxes each year 1951 through 1987 would have paid about: True _____ False _____
(a) $11,000 (b) $17,000
(c) $30,000 (d) $68,000 (e) $106,000
5. To get disability checks, you must have a severe permanent impairment not expected to improve. True _____ False _____
6. If you die, how long must you have worked under Social Security for your children to receive survivor checks? (a) 1-1/2 years (b) 5 years (c) 7-1/2 years (d) 10 years
7. You can get Social Security even though you have other income from savings, pensions, and a part-time job. True _____ False _____
8. There's no advantage to keep working full time past 65, and you can't get Medicare unless you are retired. True _____ False _____
9. If you change jobs, how long must you have worked under the old job to avoid losing the Social Security credits you earned there? (a) 3 years (b) 5 years (c) 10 years (d) None of these
10. How much of each Social Security tax dollar is used for program administration? (a) less than 2¢ (b) 12¢ (c) 25¢ (d) 43¢

ANSWERS How did you do? If you got 9 or 10 right, you did "excellent." A score of 7 or 8 would be "good" and 5 or 6 "average." Here are the answers:

1. False. Social Security pays disability, survivors, and retirement benefits to over 7 million people of all ages.
2. True. People are encouraged to supplement Social Security with savings, investments, and other income.
3. False. Under Social Security's pay-as-you-go system, taxes paid by today's workers pay benefits for current beneficiaries. Social Security taxes are not earmarked for individual use.
4. (c) is correct. The person 65 this year would have paid in a maximum of $30,352.49 in Social Security taxes in those 36 years. And with a maximum monthly benefit of $789, he or she would get back in benefits—just over 3 years—an amount equal to taxes paid in.
5. False. You can get monthly disability checks if you have a severe impairment that prevents or is expected to prevent all substantial gainful work for at least 1 year; it need not be permanent.
6. (a) is correct. Your children could receive survivors checks if you worked under Social Security as little as 1-1/2 years in the 3-year period before death.
7. True. Savings, pensions, and other non-work income will not affect your Social Security. In addition, you are allowed some income from work: In 1987, if you are 65 through 69, you can earn up to $8,160 and receive all your benefits (the limit is $6,000 if you are under 65, and there is no limit if you are 70 or older). Even if you exceed the limit, only $1 in benefits is withheld for each $2 earned over the limit. (If you are disabled, there are special rules, which include medical considerations, in determining if your Social Security benefit is affected.)
8. False. For each year from 65 to 70 that you do not receive a benefit because of work, the amount you eventually receive will be increased 3 percent. Also, you still can get Medicare coverage at 65 even though you continue working full time and do not receive monthly benefits.
9. (d) is correct. Any and all Social Security credits you earn from covered employment and self-employment remain a part of your permanent earnings record and can count toward future benefits. You do not have to work a minimum time to be "vested" as is the case with most pension plans.
10. (a) is correct. Only 1.2¢ from each Social Security tax dollar is needed to administer the program. This means that 98.8¢ from each dollar is used to pay benefits.

DRUGS AND THE LIVER

One of the more important body sites where two drugs could influence each other is the liver. This organ is responsible for the detoxification and elimination of a great many of the foreign chemicals that we put into our bodies. Since it is so crucial in decreasing the amount of circulating drug, its size and ability to detoxify often determine whether or not we will experience a negative reaction. On the other hand, if the liver works too well, one might find that the beneficial response of a drug is prevented because the drug is eliminated far too quickly from the bloodstream. Many drugs actually do have the power to increase the size of the liver and, as a result, intensify its metabolic efficiency.

Prescription and non prescription medications to meet your health care needs await you at COOLEY APOTHECARY. Your medical requirements are our major concern. We do everything to meet the challenge of providing the finest products to keep you in the peak of health. If you are new to this community we are located at No. 2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5-30, Sat. 9-4. MasterCard and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

HANDY HINT:

Homeless In Shelters May Use Food Stamps for Meals

Homeless food stamp recipients in Kentucky may now use their coupons to voluntarily purchase meals at approved shelters and soup kitchens, according to officials of the Cabinet for Human Resources.

The change could affect an estimated 10,000 homeless people in Kentucky, 40 percent of whom are in the metropolitan areas of Louisville, Lexington and Northern Kentucky, said Mike Robinson, commissioner of the cabinet's Department for Social Insurance, which manages the federal food stamp program in Kentucky.

"Congress and the U.S. Department of Agriculture recently approved the policy to enable homeless persons receiving food stamps to take maximum advantage of the available benefits," Robinson said.

"Only recipients considered to be homeless may use the coupons in this manner," he added. "They meet the federal definition of being homeless if they don't have definite mailing address or don't reside in a permanent dwelling."

Shelters and soup kitchens that accept the coupons must first be approved by the state and the U.S. Food and Nutrition Service (FNS), Robinson explained.

"The department must certify that the facility is run by a public or private non-profit organization that serves meals to the homeless," he said. "That certification is then submitted to FNS for final approval."

"If food stamps are to be accepted, the approved shelters or soup kitchens must determine that the person receiving the meal is in fact homeless," said Robinson. The individual's name, social security number and account paid for each meal must be recorded for a quarterly report submitted to the department.

"Only unmarked one dollar food coupons may be given as change," he added. "Cash and/or credit slips may not be used."

The commissioner emphasized that the option of buying meals with food stamps is voluntary and persons who use food stamps must be given the same options as others such as eating free or donating time or money for meals.

Persons choosing to use food stamps can't be charged more than the average direct cost of foods used to prepare the meal, he added.

"Direct cost is the actual cost of foods used in the meal and doesn't include the value of donated foods or cost incurred in the preparation of the meals," said Robinson. "A provider serving meals made entirely with donated food may not accept food stamps as payment."

Making it easier for those without a home to be fed is a starting point in combatting the overall problem, the commissioner said.

"Allowing the homeless to use food stamps to buy prepared meals is one way of meeting an immediate need," he said. "Once we take care of the immediate needs, then we can concentrate on solving the long-term problems of the homeless."

New Football Districts Take Effect This Season

Following the 1985 football season, the Kentucky High School Athletic Association decided to reconstruct the makeup of districts throughout the state, and that reconstruction takes effect this season.

Several area teams will find themselves battling new opponents for a playoff position in 1987, and for the four county schools, it may mean battling stronger opponents.

"I don't think it's fair to me or Wheelwright when you put us in a district where three of the teams have been perennial powers in their divisions," Allen Central coach Donnie Daniels said.

Allen Central is entering only its third year of football existence, and the first year of being eligible for post-season play.

Allen Central, playing at the Single A level, will be in a district with fellow Floyd county school, Wheelwright, along with Paintsville, Hazard, Raceland, and Fairview.

"You take Paintsville, Hazard, and Raceland and you have three established programs," Daniels added. Playing much tougher opponents isn't the only problem of the new district alignment.

"Really it isn't fair to Hazard," Coach Daniels said. "If they play Raceland and Fairview down there that will mean about 16 hours on a school bus, because it's every bit of a four hour drive from Hazard to Ashland."

Both Donnie Daniels and Roger Johnson, Wheelwright head football coach, have mentioned the difficult travel schedule awaiting their teams.

Last season while Allen Central awaited their turn at becoming playoff eligible, Wheelwright was busy playing a tough district schedule, but 1987 may be even tougher.

Wheelwright traded opposition such as Pikeville and Betsy Layne to powerhouses like Raceland and Hazard.

The Bulldogs of Hazard High School, moving down from 2A to Single A, were consistently a force in Double A, and is expected to continue their successful play on the lower level.

Paintsville in the same district last year as Wheelwright, and Raceland have often battled each other for Single A prominence on a state level, and are now in the same district where only one can advance beyond regular season play.

several major college players, and Whitesburg is where Kansas City Chief signee Randy Frazier calls home.

Betsy Layne is also in this district, possibly the toughest of any in the mountains.

The Bobcats enjoyed their first winning season ever in 1986. The Betsy Layne football program appears to be on the rise, but to compete against teams like Whitesburg and Leslie County, the Bobcats will have to play their best football ever.

Prestonsburg, 1-8 last season, is expected to be much improved, and Betsy Layne has gained respectability, two more reasons why the district is noted as being one of the top east of Lexington.

Floyd county hasn't had a playoff representative since Prestonsburg in 1985, and this upcoming season may not change that much.

Betsy Layne, a pre-season contender last year, moved from Single A to Double A, and from a district they could

With these past top contenders all in the same district, Pikeville, usually strong, shouldn't receive much of a playoff denying challenge in the immediate seasons to come.

Seeing post-season action for Allen Central and Wheelwright may merely be a blind dream, the other two Floyd county schools could find themselves in similar positions.

Chuke Williams, Prestonsburg head football coach, says his team's number one goal is to return to the playoffs, but that might be a tough task.

The Blackcats have been to post-season play five of the six years in this decade. Most of Prestonsburg's playoff appearances come by beating out Morgan County and Lawrence County.

Morgan County is still in the district with Prestonsburg, but so is Whitesburg, Leslie County, and M.C. Napier, all recognized as high school football powerhouses.

All three schools have produced have challenged to a district they may struggle in.

It wasn't their decision, though, and neither was it the decision of Allen Central and Wheelwright to become a member of the toughest Single A district in this area.

Some coaches have disputed the KHSAA's realignment of the districts because of expanded travel time, and higher transportation costs. Others do not like it, because some teams will have a definite advantage of advancing to playoff action, citing weaker competition as the reason.

These complaints may someday carry weight toward another realignment, but as of now, county teams will have to go to war fighting the odds, as well as heavily armed opposition.

Making the playoffs isn't impossible, and no one has written their possibilities off, but the road to the playoffs may be somewhat tough.

PAYING ATTENTION: The Prestonsburg offensive unit listens as head coach Chuke Williams explains what should be done. Coach Williams describes this year's team as a football intelligent one.

Allen Central No Easy Game In Second Season

Their first season of varsity football, 1986, provided eight wins for opponents, but Allen Central may not be a definite win for their opposition this fall.

During an 0-8 1986 campaign, the Rebels failed to provide many challenges. Last season is over. Allen Central is no longer a first year squad, and teams lining up against them may rapidly realize the difference.

"I've talked to coaches who said it would take 10 to 15 years to build a football program, but I look at the kids we've got here and think that we could have a winning season this year, and it's only our third year," Donnie Daniels, Allen Central coach, said.

"We've got a lot of good kids here," Daniels continued. "They work hard, and they are really football knowledgeable. I think our time will come sooner than than anyone expects it to."

Daniels could be called an optimist in the truest form, an over-achiever who hopes his team will over-achieve this season. Not many expect Allen Central to win many football games in 1987, but the fact of the matter is that the Rebels have talent and experience on their side.

"We look like a better polished team," Daniels said about the first two weeks of practice. "We're not as sluggish as we were at this point last year, and I think that's due to having 16 seniors out."

Headed by Darrin Conn offensively and Anthony Redrick defensively, Allen Central has two experienced seniors who give both leadership and ability to the Rebel squad.

Conn, a three-year starter at quarterback, enjoyed passing success at times last season, but suffered from a constant pass rush. The 6'1", 180-pound senior southpaw has proven he can move the offense if given time to throw.

One of Conn's favorite returning targets is halfback Robbie Click, another senior. Click, along with Jeff Hughes, and Mickey Parsons, a sophomore who made solid progress last year, should form a solid offensive backfield.

With Conn, Click and Hughes, Allen Central has three seniors who have played both years Rebel football has been in existence and proved they can be big assets.

Defensively, Anthony Redrick, as a linebacker, was Allen Central's key performer last season, and Coach Daniels is expecting a strong season from his intense senior.

"Anthony is the type of kid you want to have at linebacker," Daniels said. "He's tough, and he's a competitor. He's my defensive coach on the field."

Although Allen Central has no strong, or dominating players, the Rebels are solid at several positions, and according to Daniels, the team should be considerably stronger physically.

"We started our progression toward being a better team during the winter. Our kids worked hard with the weights and kept in shape," Daniels noted.

"Last year a lot of them were benching out at around 120 pounds, but now they are up to about 225 to 250 pounds. That's the big part of football," Daniels continued. "You can draw Xs and Os all you want, but until your kids get strong enough to compete with the bigger players, you're just running around in circles."

Allen Central apparently went around in circles last season, losing all eight of their games, but most of last year's players are back, bringing both experience and quality with them.

Of the Rebels' 16 seniors, 12 are third year players. Daniels also has three underclassmen who, too, have two years of high school football behind them.

"I expect all these guys to mature, and help me with the younger kids," Daniels said of senior leadership. "All these guys are the foundation of this program."

Allen Central, under the direction of principal Don Daniels, started their football program in 1985. After only one year at the JV level, the Rebels moved up to varsity competition in 1986.

Even though they didn't enjoy much success, the Rebels may have benefited more than anyone realizes from their winless campaign of last season.

"The kids didn't play at the JV level again. That was the big thing," Coach Daniels, who assumed the head coaching position from his father in 1986, explained. "They were exposed to varsity competition which showed them what it was like and how hard they had to work in order to compete at this level."

Daniels says his team should be better because of improved physical strength, experience, and added intensity, but neither of the three settle Allen Central's most pressing problem of one year ago.

"If I had to pick one aspect of our game that I would want to improve the most it would be our kicking game," Daniels said.

A pair of senior offensive tackles, Robert Halbert and Charlie Martin, are expected to handle the Allen Central kicking chores. Halbert will be the punter while Martin will perform the kickoff duties.

"We have improved in that area, but we still aren't where I would like us to be."

If the kicking game continues to improve, and Allen Central's offensive line rises to meet the challenge, the Rebels could satisfy their coach's expectations.

"At this time of year any coach will tell you that he is going to win all his games, because the emotion is there, the intensity is there, and it's a new start to a new season," Daniels said; then added, "but I expect to have a winning season. Not just win the first football game ever at Allen Central, but have a winning season."

Allen Central may not have a winning season. In fact, they may again struggle, but win or lose, football has obviously taken roots in Rebel country.

Last season, the team consisted of a 30-man roster. This summer has brought about not only a bigger Allen Central team where biceps and thighs are concerned, the Rebels are bigger in numbers.

Players numbering between 35-40 have turned out each practice, signifying the increased enthusiasm toward the gridiron sport.

"Our grade school program helped us a lot," Daniels revealed. "Just about every eighth grader we had last year came out this year. If we can continue this kind of enthusiasm, Allen Central High School will have football for a long time to come, and be competitive because I'm not in this business to get beat."

Daniels and his upstart Rebels will get their first organized test, August 15, when they meet Whitesburg in a grid-rama scheduled at Jenkins.

Allen Central opens its regular season on the road, playing Jenkins High School.

Note: Due to ACHS not having lights on their field, they will not be allowed any home games. Some games may be played on either Prestonsburg's or Wheelwright's field. Games scheduled may be subject to change so, therefore, a completed schedule couldn't be presented. Rebel fans will be notified about upcoming games however.

Blackcats Hope To Find Former Playoff Success

Lining the bleachers and press box of Prestonsburg High School's football field are signs reflecting the success of years gone by.

More than wood and painted words, these signs tell the total tale of Prestonsburg's football domination in the 1980's. Each sends out its own message of Blackcat playoff success while holding within it the team's personality and individual memories.

The sign from 1985 salutes what is considered by many as the best Prestonsburg football team of all. That Blackcat squad finished with a 12-2 record, and advanced to the state's semi-finals at the 2A level.

From that peak in 1985, Prestonsburg fell...fell into a valley that rapidly turned into a rut, and Blackcat football has been struggling to recover ever since.

After enjoying one of its most successful seasons ever, Prestonsburg dropped to 1-8, one of its worst seasons ever.

Like a boxing champion who has just been knocked down, the Blackcats have batted their eyes, shook their heads, and struggled to get back on their feet.

Chuke Williams, Prestonsburg head coach, says that 1987 may be the year when his Blackcats return to playoff form. Prestonsburg has advanced beyond regular season play each year in this decade except last season.

Both players and coaches have listed their number one goal for this season as making the playoffs, but one question remains; does Prestonsburg have the strength up front to find their former playoff success?

"I think we do," Coach Williams said. "We've got some size up front, but our problem is that we'll be a little slow. We do have some experience though. Last year we were inexperienced, and that hurt us. Really, I'd rather have experience than speed."

Offensive and defensive line play may be the key element in Prestonsburg's winning chemistry, providing up front support to talented skill position players. Led by halfback Johnny Ray Harris, and fullback Jimmy Joe Crace, the Blackcats return their offensive backfield intact.

"There's no speed demons in the group, but we have some mentally tough runners, and they block real well for each other," Coach Williams said of his running backs.

Both Harris, 5'7", 145 pounds, and Crace, 5'10", 185 pounds, are seniors who enjoyed success in 1986 out of the Prestonsburg backfield.

Kevin Dotson, the person Coach Williams says is the best blocker of the crew, is expected to see considerable action as a running back, along with Steve Hyden, moved from his quarterback position of a year ago.

A pair of talented sophomore runners, Johnny Goble and Aaron Flannery, have been described as impressing future prospects, but the Blackcat coaching staff has plans to use this talented duo during the upcoming season.

Senior Brent Hackworth has earned the responsibility of running Prestonsburg's offensive attack. The 5'10", 180-pound Hackworth is an experienced player, but inexperienced as a quarterback.

Coach Williams says the Blackcat offense, with Hackworth under center, will run a balanced attack of run and pass.

Probably one of the main targets in Prestonsburg's aerial game will be senior Derrick Johnson. Last season the Blackcat wide out teamed with Darrin Flannery to form a credible receiving tandem, but Flannery is gone, leaving Johnson as the top target coming back.

Offensively, Prestonsburg appears set and capable, especially at the skill positions, but assessing the defense may take some more time.

"We've not put the pads on and seen them hit yet," Coach Williams said. I can't really assess our defense until I've seen them hit, because that's where you separate the men from the boys."

"We've got two players that we're really excited about, Paul Thompson, a defensive tackle, and Bill Tom Compton. Both of them are strong and they've got real good quickness."

Compton, 5'8", 150-pounds, is a sophomore linebacker, and Thompson is a 5'11", 230-pound junior. Williams says both players should be impact players on the defensive side of the football.

The Blackcat offensive backfield is also expected to play a major role across the scrimmage line. Last season, Harris played a defensive back position while Crace excelled at linebacker.

Several members of last year's squad played both offense and defense, and some will again in 1987, but the situation shouldn't be as tiresome this season, thanks to talented underclassmen.

"We've only got seven seniors on the team, so we'll have to play a lot of juniors and sophomores, but I'm not a bit worried about playing them," Williams said.

"Last year, we played somewhere around 13 players, but this year, we'll use about 19. That means that we'll have six fresh players on defense which should be a big help."

Several questions remain about how good Prestonsburg will be, and how much better their record will be as compared to last year, but Chuke Williams makes no mistake about what their goal is.

"We want to try and get back into the playoffs. That's our number one goal, and if we continue to work hard, and keep our intensity, I think we can make it."

Coach Williams lists several items as being critical to this team's success, but a strong start is near the top of the coach's list.

"We have to go to Lawrence County and play four quarters of football, and come home with a win," Williams stated. "Last year we lost our first game to Woodford County, a team that was as good as any team we played last year besides Paintsville and Belfry, in overtime, and that took a lot out of a very young team."

Although Prestonsburg lost several seniors, Coach Williams says he has the players to replace those 1986 graduates. Of Prestonsburg's 49 original roster players, 12 were seniors.

This season, Williams takes his troops into battle with only seven seniors, but says even his younger players are mentally football mature.

"This is an intelligent bunch," Williams commented. "I can tell them something once, and come back tomorrow, and they execute it. That's important to this team."

"We'll have to make up for our overall lack of team speed with intelligence, and execution. We won't be able to make very many mistakes, and we'll have to play solid, fundamental football."

Last season Prestonsburg finished with a 1-8 record, losing three games in overtime, and two more by a combined seven points.

Improvement may simply be learning how to win the close games, or just minor adjustment at critical positions.

The Blackcats play a tough schedule in a tough district, and several questions may be answered August 28 when it all kicks off at Lawrence County.

The Sporting Times

(Views expressed in this column are those of the writer, and in no way reflect those of The Times.)

The beginning of another school year not only means nine months of hitting the books, but also brings with it another circle in the constant cycle of school sports.

Preparation for high school football has already begun throughout the county with two-a-day practices in the near 100-degree heat and humidity.

Players have tremendous desire and anticipation at this time of year. It is a must if they are to survive the hectic and tiresome pre-season workouts.

Their fans expect it. No one wants to watch a loser, and unfortunately this pressure of winning is placed squarely on the shoulders of teenagers who have elected to represent their schools through athletics.

From the latter days of July into the cold of November, these youngsters give it their best effort at producing a winner.

The players, although young, do carry with them the deciding factor of the school's athletic success. Although its wrapped in a youthful package, their athletic ability is the critical factor.

They are why fans attend games, but when struggling, the players don't always carry the total blame.

Coaches, those people who have the most thankless jobs in the county, also serve as main targets of critical and complaining supporters.

Especially on the high school level, coaches have to deal with winning, political pressure, and satisfying hundreds of people with each decision.

All coaches have felt the pressure. Some have withstood it, but others have traveled on, willingly or after being forced to.

This football season will mark the debut of one new coach, Vince Tucker, of Betsy Layne. Tucker, a former linebacker at Murray State, may be scrutinized more closely than most first-year coaches are.

The rookie head coach is taking over a Bobcat team that is obviously on the rise, enjoying their first winning season ever in 1986.

Even if Vince Tucker continues to successfully develop the Betsy Layne program, he will be criticized. Tucker is replacing Jack Hall, whose firing produced some controversy, and by no doings of his own, Coach Tucker, an assistant last season, finds himself as the main actor in this stormy show.

The new Bobcat mentor won't be the only one criticized, though. Chuke Williams, Donnie Daniels, and Roger Johnson will once again be brought under the microscope as fans look for reasons to complain.

Often overlooked unless they win, and sometimes when they do, coaches are placed in an impossible situation simply because they care enough to give it a try.

Money doesn't keep them coming back. The money, as small as it may be, is little consolation for the pain and pressure.

Winning isn't a promise of job security, either.

Betsy Layne, as football gives way to basketball, will go through the process of breaking in another new coach, Karen Henry. Henry will be taking over the chores of girl's head basketball coach.

The rookie Lady Bobcat boss is faced with the challenge of replacing Diane Robinson, the most successful of all Floyd county coaches the past two

Local Players Find Success In Paintsville Tennis Tournament

The Men's A Singles title went to Don Compton of Prestonsburg as he used his powerful serve to overcome his score of 4-6, 6-3, 7-5, in the finals. All four of Compton's singles matches went the three set limit en route to the title. Earlier Compton had defeated Tim Howard, of Prestonsburg, by the score of 6-4, 5-7, 6-2 in one semifinal, while Music was defeating Paintsville's Larry Crum, 6-0, 6-1.

Linda Jackson, of Paintsville, continued her regional dominance of Women's A singles, with a come from behind victory over Pikeville's Frances Smith Coleman. Jackson clinched victory with a 6-7, 6-2, and 7-6 score. Jackson had defeated Lois Howard, of Prestonsburg, 7-5, 6-2 in one semifinal, while Coleman defeated Kaye Willis 6-3 and 6-2 in the other semifinal.

The Men's B single title went to Paintsville's Kenny Salyer with his 6-4, 6-2 victory over Prestonsburg's Benji Caudill. Salyer had defeated McDowell's Willie Elliott 6-2, 6-0 and Caudill defeated Paintsville's Randall Stephens by 6-0, 6-1 in semifinal action on Saturday.

The Women's B singles final turned out to be an all Paintsville match between Ruth Gray and Lenada Fuller. Gray had the better of the score at 6-1, 6-3 to capture the title in an otherwise even match. In the semis, Gray defeated Pikeville's Dawn Maynard 6-7, 7-6, and 6-2, while Fuller defeated Paintsville's Lynn Andrews 6-0, 6-2.

Probably, the match of the tournament in terms of fast action and hard hitting, turned out to the Men's A Doubles final between the team of Compton and Music of Prestonsburg, and Ken Fuller, of Paintsville, and Tim Howard, of Prestonsburg. Fuller and Howard prevailed 6-2, 1-6, and 6-2 to gain a measure of revenge over Compton who had defeated both in the single play. Fuller and Howard blitzed Paintsville's John B. Robinson and Kenny Salyer 6-1, 6-2 in one semifinal, while Compton and Music won by default due to injury over Prestonsburg's Don Willis and Bobby Hamilton.

Paintsville's Larry Crum and Randall Stephens won a close, two-set match over Prestonsburg's Tom Smith and Pikeville's Jim Vanover to take the Men's B doubles title by the score of 6-4, 7-6. In the semifinals, Crum and Stephens defeated Greg Ratliff, Prestonsburg, and Ivel's Todd Tackett by 4-6, 6-3, and 6-0, while Smith and Vanover defeated McDowell's Willie Elliott and Frank Salyers by the score of 6-3, and 6-4.

Fifty-three players entered this year's tournament which was hosted by the Paintsville City Park and the Prestonsburg Community College's Tennis and Table Tennis Club. Trophies were donated by the Citizens National Bank and tournament souvenir towels donated by John Gray, Inc.

Earlier rounds action:
Men's A Singles—Darrell Clark defeated John B. Robinson 6-4 and 6-4; Larry Crum defeated Gus Andrews by 6-0 and 6-4; Don Compton defeated Ken Fuller by 7-6, 2-6 and 7-5; Russell Music, Jr. defeated D. Clark by 6-3, 4-6 and 6-2; L. Crum defeated Brent Music by 6-4 and 6-3; Tim Howard over Bobby Hamilton by default; D. Compton defeated Aaron Crum by 4-6, 6-3 and 6-4.

Women's A Singles—Linda Jackson defeated Ruth Gray by 6-2 and 7-5; Lois Howard defeated Dawn Maynard by 6-4 and 7-5; Kaye Willis defeated Lenada Fuller by 6-1 and 6-3; Frances Coleman defeated Lynn Andrews by 6-0 and 6-0.

At Pikeville Camp...

Conn Named Best Ball Handler

Somewhere between the end of summer baseball, and the start of football practice Darren Conn, Allen Central senior, found the time for the round ball sport, taking part in Pikeville College's basketball camp.

Conn, a three sport performer at Allen Central High School, was named as that camp's best ball handler which should fit nicely beside his one-on-one trophy won last summer.

The 6'1", 175-pound Allen Central senior saw action as a starting point guard for the Rebels for most of last season, and established a single game ACHS all-time high in assists against Whitesburg.

Conn is expected to once again provide a talented point guard for the basketball Rebels, and leadership for what will be a young Allen Central team.

A multi-talented athlete, Conn has enjoyed success as a three sport starter, quarterbacking the football team as well as finishing high on Allen Central's final batting average list.

Conn lead the Floyd County Senior Babe Ruth squad in hitting this past summer, finishing the season with a .385 average.

Not flashy. Nor flamboyant, Conn has been described as a hard working athlete that provides an extra coach on the floor, or field, getting the most from his abilities through hard work and intelligence.

In 1986 Conn, as a junior, let himself be known to Rebel fans and their opponents with solid performances in the various athletic events, but also found time to excel in the classroom.

During the 1986-87 school year the well rounded teenager received such academic honors as Who's Who Among American High School Students in math, and the United States Achievement Academy for English.

Currently Conn is readying himself for the upcoming football season, tackling the August heat with two-a-day practices. While he prepares for another year of participating in all three high school sports, Conn must also sharpen his leadership roles, for athletics and other purposes.

Conn has been elected to serve as Student Council President of Allen Central High School during the 1986-87 school year.

Softball Tournament Slated at Allen

A softball tournament, established to help support a Floyd County American Legion baseball team, will be held the last weekend of August at Allen Park.

The tournament, limited to 16 teams, will begin Friday evening, August 28, with the first game starting at 6. The double elimination event will run through Sunday evening, or until a champion is decided.

Entry fee for this tournament has been set at $80 dollars plus each team will supply their own Blue Dot softballs. Trophies will be given to the top four finishers, and a most hits, plus RBI award will be given.

All proceeds from the entry fees, as well as concessions, will go directly toward funding an American Legion baseball team for the summer of 1988.

A 16-18 program was established this summer in Floyd county, and next year the team is planning to go the American Legion route. With an expanded schedule, and more travel, the team will need extra funds to operate on the higher level.

Any sponsors or coaches wishing to enter this softball tournament should call 349-3939 or see Alton Huff by August 21.

The Floyd County American Legion team will feature players from Floyd, Johnson, and Magoffin counties. Its main objective is giving area youths an extra baseball opportunity.

Correction

In last week's Floyd County Senior Babe Ruth stats, Brian Hall was credited with only 15 hits. Actually Hall collected a total of 16 hits this past summer season.

With the extra hit, Hall's average climbs from .313 to .333. The outfielder-pitcher finished the year with 16 hits in 48 official plate appearances.

A TOUGH CHALLENGE: Nathan Shelton, left, has enjoyed success at getting hitters out for Allen Central's baseball team, but now the slender senior is trying his hand at catching footballs. Shelton has been listed as an end prospect in his first year of high school football.

COOG Award Winner

At the International Cheerleading Foundation's summer camp held July 12-15 at Eastern Kentucky University, Traci Hayes won the COOG Award July 13th. Five nominees were selected daily from the 25 participating cheerleading squads.

Miss Hayes was also awarded the Most Outstanding Cheerleader Award for Excellence. She is a member of the Prestonsburg High School Varsity cheerleading squad, and is the daughter of Teresa Hayes, of Prestonsburg.

Lee's Softball Tournament Set

Lee's Famous Recipe of Prestonsburg has scheduled a softball tournament for the weekend of August 7-9.

The double elimination tournament will be played at Allen Park with individual trophies being given to the first, second, and third place finishers.

Entry fee is 75 dollars in this three day event with the deadline for entering set at August 5th. For more information contact Ricky Joseph, 886-1845, Jim Sparks, 886-1901, or call Lee's Famous Recipe of Prestonsburg.

Robinson, who won coach-of-the-year award and another co-honor in the past two years, coached Betsy Layne to the regional tournament both years, and won two pre-season tournament titles, but wasn't re-hired for the 1987-88 season.

Success may, in fact, have spoiled Betsy Layne sports fans, but the loss of two Floyd county coaches in their respective sports may just change things.

Bobcat athletes still have Craynor Slone, men's basketball coach, to rely on. Slone's accomplishments were overshadowed by no other coach last season, but the veteran boss still received bad comments, mostly because he got the most from his material by playing controlled basketball.

This thing called coaching isn't much to rely on. It's here today and gone tomorrow. Taken away by a school board vote or personnel change.

Gordon Parido, new coach of Prestonsburg, likes his change from Mullins. At the Pike county school, Parido said his chances of winning a regional title were slim, but better at Prestonsburg.

This is probably true, but what else is true is the added pressure. Moving up means just that, but it also means moving up in all categories.

Another coach who left on his own was Ricky Hall, formerly at McDowell High School. Hall's replacement, Johnny Ray Turner, isn't stepping into a pressurized situation, but Daredevil fans are starved for a winner.

McDowell basketball has just suffered two of their worst years ever in '85 and '86. Turner can't experience much worse, but he could bring a smile to some deserving fans.

Turner will probably feel the pressure because coaches have a way of putting it on themselves.

Chuke Williams, Prestonsburg football coach, says he does that himself. Coaches expect themselves to always win, and experience the pain when they don't.

Players also feel the pressure, but they can't be fired, only replaced by the coach, who may be fired for making the player change.

Coaches are unique people. Willing to accept the complaints, but rarely the congratulations. They never satisfy their critics, but they are always willing to try.

Do you think maybe those people deserve a raise, or maybe some job security?

Local Winners In Bluegrass Games

Floyd County: Bill Cox, silver medal, Mark McGuire, bronze third flight, archery.

Track & Field: Mary Hudkins, of Allen, won a gold in the 1,500 meter race walk. Hudkins just missed winning the overall woman's title by 3 seconds. Penny Frazier, of Lexington, a top road racer edged Hudkins who was in pain from side double side cramps. Hudkins won the 30-39 age group in 10:04.

In the 800 meters, Rick Roberts, of Allen, finished third in 2:10 to win a bronze medal. Fellow teammate Ed Merkler, of Victory Athletic Club, of Louisville, won the race in 2:04. Roberts finished 5th in the 1,500 in 4:27, but came back in the steeple chase to take a second place silver medal by finishing in 10:46. Teammate Mark Reed, a former Massachusetts runner now with victory won in 10:08. The heat indeed was 105 on Sunday.

Johnnie Lemaster, longtime major league shortstop, was released by the Oakland Athletics this past week.

Lemaster, an 11-year veteran from Paintsville, was invited to spring training by Oakland as a non-roster player, but earned a spot as a backup shortstop.

Before his release last Wednesday, Lemaster had come to the plate only 23 times.

Among Lemaster's major league teams were the San Francisco Giants, Pittsburgh Pirates, and Montreal Expos, although he never saw big league action with the Expos.

Having only one champion is an unfamiliar fact for professional boxing, but Mike Tyson may change that in years to come.

Tyson, 31-0-0, unified the title last Saturday night, defeating former title holder Tony Tucker in a 12-round unanimous decision victory.

Tyson now holds all three, IBF, WBC, and WBA, titles, and if past performances are any indication, may own all three for some time to come.

The Dallas Cowboys recently released veteran wide receiver Tony Hill, and this past weekend they tried to replace the void by acquiring Rod Barksdale from the Los Angeles Raiders.

Barksdale, 6'1", 180-pound wide receiver, averaged 24 yards per catch last season, hauling in a total of 18 passes.

The Cowboys gave up seven-year defensive back Ron Fellows for Barksdale a second year performer.

Pitching, especially starters, seems to be a hot commodity that every team is trying to obtain, but those who have nothing want to keep it.

The San Francisco Giants, however, found a way to help their struggling pitching staff, acquiring veteran righthander Don Robinson this past week from the Pittsburgh Pirates.

The Giants are currently trying to keep pace with Cincinnati in the National League's Western Division, and Robinson, a Kenova, West Virginia native, is expected to help.

San Francisco, like the Reds, have suffered from a lack of starting pitching, but Roger Craig, Giants manager, says Robinson will go into the starting rotation.

James Brooks, Cincinnati tail back, was recently signed by the Bengals, but all-pro tackle Anthony Munoz hasn't come to terms with the team yet.

Brooks, 5'10", 182 pounds, led Cincinnati in all-purpose yardage last season, rushing for 1,087 yards while rolling up another 686 on pass receptions.

Munoz, noted as one of the best tackles in the NFL, is one of the reasons why Brooks finished second in the conference in combined yardage, but the 6'6", 278-pound offensive lineman, as of Tuesday, hadn't been offered the money he wanted from the Bengals.

Cincinnati opens their regular season schedule, Sunday, September 13, at Indianapolis.

Reds Watch '87...

Pitching Continues To Hamper Cincinnati's Pennant Efforts

Writers have written about it. Announcers have talked about it. Cincinnati has approached other teams in an effort to satisfy its needs, but nothing seems to hold the solution for the Reds' pitching problems.

All season long Cincinnati has had opportunities to break away from the Western Division pack, but a lack of pitching, particularly from the starting rotation, has prevented that.

The Reds, going into last night's game, held a three-game lead over second placed San Francisco, mainly because the Big Red Machine can score runs in bunches.

Second only to St. Louis in runs scored, Cincinnati's offense has time and again bailed out their weak pitching staff, and the past six games were perfect examples.

Cincinnati, in their last six games, scored a total of 42 runs during that stretch, but finished 3-3 as the Reds' pitching staff surrendered 37 runs in the same amount of games.

Ted Power, Cincinnati's starter, Wednesday night, was the first of several Reds' pitchers to prove themselves ineffective this past week.

Power, after being posted to an early 6-0 lead, was forced from the game when the San Diego Padres scored four times in the fourth inning.

With two out in the fourth, Rob Murphy, Reds lefty reliever, came on to shutdown San Diego. Murphy, 5-3, was credited with the win, holding the Padres scoreless while striking out five in three and one-third innings.

Dave Parker, six RBIs, led a Cincinnati offensive attack that established a single game season high for runs scored by the Reds as they downed San Diego, 15-5.

Thursday night brought about Guy Hoffman's turn in the Reds revolving door of inconsistent turns. The Cincinnati lefthander surrendered one run in the first and three more in the second inning on their way to a 12-8 victory.

The loss dropped Hoffman's record to 7-6 on the season, and allowed San Francisco, the West's second placed team, on opportunity to creep back to within two games of the Reds.

The Giants had cut Cincinnati's lead to one game, but lost two games in Los Angeles, giving the Reds room to work with in their three-game weekend series.

Ron Robinson, finally producing a solid start, gave the Reds just a bit more room, picking up his fourth victory of the season as Cincinnati defeated San Francisco, 9-2, in Friday night's series opener.

Robinson, 4-3, worked six innings, giving up six hits and two runs before giving way to Frank Williams in the seventh inning.

Robinson, Williams, and Rob Murphy combined to limit the Giants to only two hits over the first six innings. Williams pitched two perfect innings, seventh and eighth, and Murphy, the league's leader in appearances, worked the final frame.

Now up by three games, Cincinnati had an opportunity to put valuable distance between themselves and San Francisco, but starting pitching, namely Bill Gullickson, once again failed to hold the opposition.

Gullickson came into Saturday's game with a reputation as a homerun pitcher. The Cincinnati righthander had given up 28 longballs, and Will Clark soon made it 29 with a two-run shot in the first inning.

Kevin Mitchell, obtained earlier from San Diego, increased Gullickson's league-leading total to 30 with a solo homerun in the third inning as San Francisco coasted to a 7-3 victory.

Cincinnati hasn't had a consistent starting pitcher this season. Bill Gullickson was expected to be a stopper, as was Mario Soto, but Gullickson is 10-8, and Soto is on the disabled list.

The Reds could use Soto's ability, and may have them by the end of August. The righthander was recently clocked at least 90 miles per hour while throwing on the sidelines.

Tom Browning, a former 20-game winner, was also expected to be effective, but he has taken the same route as Gullickson and Soto, the ineffective one.

Browning did sparkle Sunday afternoon, but thanks to John Franco's second straight bad outing, the Reds lefthander failed to get a victory.

Coming into the game, Browning had a 5-8 record with above a 6.00 earned run average, but after surrendering two runs in the first, he held San Francisco scoreless through the next six innings.

Franco, near perfect early in the season, gave up two runs in relief of Browning, and Cincinnati had to wait until the 11th inning and Eric Davis' 30th homerun, to win the final contest.

Cincinnati, after the Giants took a one-run lead in the top of the inning, tied the score in the bottom of the eighth when rookie catcher Terry McGriff singled in Tracy Jones.

Davis, three innings later, drilled his 30th homerun of the year, a solo shot to leftfield. Davis' longball gave rookie pitcher Jeff Montgomery his first win of the season.

Montgomery was called up to the parent club, Friday, after Bill Landrum was optioned out to Nashville-Montgomery, 1-0, pitched a scoreless 11th inning, enabling the Reds a chance to send San Francisco away trailing by three games.

From one West Coast team to another to another, the Reds continued their home battle against the West, welcoming in Los Angeles, Monday night.

The Dodgers, behind Mike Marshall, proceeded to hand their hosts a 7-2 defeat. Marshall, LA rightfielder, drove in five runs, four on a third inning grand slam, to power the Los Angeles attack.

Ted Power, in his second bad start of the week, gave up five of the Dodgers seven runs in accepting the loss.

Los Angeles, winners of seven of their last nine, moved one game closer to the top of the West, trailing Cincinnati by seven and one half games.

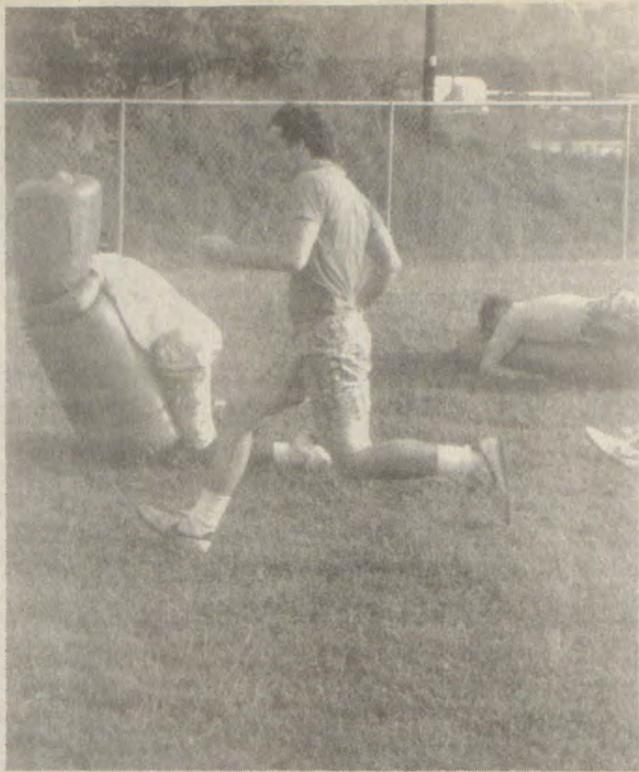

The Reds will have another, shot at LA tonight, and again when the Reds and Dodgers will begin a three-game series next Monday.

Tuesday's game will start two hours earlier than normal for West Coast contests, and can be seen on NBC television.

Before Cincinnati finds their way to LA, they will make a quick stop in San Francisco for three games this weekend.

The Reds will wrap up their nine-game homestead tonight when Bill Gullickson takes to the mound in search of his 11th victory, Thursday is scheduled as a travel day.

Cincinnati was expected to activate Kal Daniels before last night's game. Daniels, the Reds' leadoff hitter, has been out with a knee injury but is expected to be 100 percent when he is activated.

LOOKING FOR A HIT: Robbie Click, Allen Central running back-defensive back, looks for a tackling dummy to hit during recent practice drills.

Chris Henry Named As New Fishery Research Biologist

Chris Henry, of Livonia, Michigan, has been named as the new research fisheries biologist for predator fish evaluation for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Henry will be working with several predator fish species including crappie, muskie, walleye and striped bass in an effort to help develop and maintain these fisheries statewide. He will be based at the fisheries' lab located at the central office of the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in Frankfort.

The biologist comes to the department from the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Services where he worked at the National Fisheries Contaminant Research Center in Columbia, Missouri. He was involved in ascertaining the effects of toxicants on various fisheries throughout the United States and in designing equipment to spawn fish in the laboratory.

Henry received his B.S. degree in fisheries from Michigan State and masters degree from Oklahoma State University. He has worked with several species of fish, including crappie, in the area of habitat use patterns and the relation of non-living factors to fish abundance.

One of Henry's primary responsibilities will be to develop solutions to the problems Kentucky is experiencing with crappie fisheries at some lakes. An intensive effort to collect baseline data on crappie at each of the major reservoirs has been ongoing for several months through district fisheries biologists' research.

Henry will be working with this data to find out what steps, if any, can be taken to improve crappie size and populations. More specifically, he will be studying the feasibility of threadfin shad stocking as forage and whether or not revising harvest regulations on crappie is needed to improve fishing.

"At this point, we have several ideas of what problems we have with crappie fisheries at different lakes, but this species has been somewhat of a question mark across our state and many other states. Chris will spearhead the effort we're making to decide whether or not crappie management strategies can be developed to improve fishing and what those strategies involve," said Benjamin Kinman, technical fisheries program coordinator.

Crappie is one of the most popular game species in the commonwealth. Thousands of anglers, both resident and non-resident, pursue crappie in the spring and fall at lakes across the state. The predator fish species evaluation program is funded through the Wallop-Breaux Act that provides federal money to states to improve sport fishing opportunities.

Wallop-Breaux funds have been used in a variety of areas to develop trophy fisheries like the striped bass (rockfish) fishery at Lake Cumberland and the muskie fishery at Cave Run Lake. However, this money has also helped make possible the study of crappie, a species not particularly termed as a "trophy" species, but nevertheless very important to the fishing public.

While district biologists collect data from the lakes in their area, Henry will select two lakes for a more in-depth look at the crappie and its environment. This information will form the basis of a statewide program to improve crappie fishing, but may be modified by district biologists to apply to the differences found at each lake.

SOAP BEA

These days, anyone can become a daytime hero

By Marie Michaels

In the past, most soap-opera heroes were doctors, lawyers or businessmen. But that's no longer the case. During the past few years, the soaps have featured so many kinds of heroes that now virtually every character is a candidate for hero - or anti-hero - of the week.

Stephen Nichols

Four years ago, for instance, the prevailing soap star was "General Hospital" rebel Luke Spencer (played by Anthony Geary), perhaps the best-known of all soap anti-heroes. Luke could do almost anything, good or bad, and still stay in the limelight. Devout Luke fans even forgave the fact that he had once been a lawbreaker and rapist.

More recently, another rebel hero has been in vogue - Steve "Patch" Johnson (Stephen Nichols) of "Days of Our Lives." When Patch first appeared in Salem, he was an undisguised anti-hero, a textbook rebel

IN THIS WEEK

Summer films: Gangsters, call girls, heavenly dogs

By Wendy Wallace

With most series airing reruns, your best bet this week is movies. Here's a look at the good, the bad and the ugly:

James Woods

The surprise hit "The Untouchables" may have whetted appetites for Once Upon a Time in America, a crime epic airing on NBC in two parts Aug. 9 and 10. Director Sergio Leone's 1984 film stars Robert DeNiro and James Woods as boyhood friends who encounter evil and twisted loyalties in pursuit of their "American dream." Treat Williams co-stars as a corrupt union leader, and Elizabeth McGovern and Tuesday Weld add spice.

The true story Courage (CBS, Aug. 9) stars Sophia Loren as Marianna Miraldo, who sacrifices her career as an undercover operative in order to confront her son's drug addiction and her husband's (Hector Elizondo) inability to help him. Working for the Drug Enforcement Administration, Miraldo helps to bust a $3.5 billion cocaine ring - the largest since the French Connection. Billy Dee Williams co-stars as Bobby Jay, a DEA co-worker inspired by Miraldo's concern for her family.

Five Days One Summer (CBS, Aug. 13) stars Sean Connery as a middle-aged doctor who returns to his Scottish home after an absence of many years. His return sparks a long-dormant mutual infatuation with his niece (Betsy Brantley), and the pair eventually take a Swiss vacation as husband and wife, setting the stage for tragedy on a mountain glacier.

Glynnis O'Connor asks the question Why Me? (ABC, Aug. 10) in this sensitively handled true story of a nurse whose life and marriage collapse after her face is shattered in a head-on auto collision. Armand Assante co-stars as a reconstructive surgeon who helps the woman regain her courage.

A teenage girl (Amanda Wyss) sets out to find the mother she has never known in My Mother's Secret Life (ABC, Aug. 9). The mother (Loni Anderson) is a call girl, and the unexpected reunion presents her with a disturbing dilemma: Should she continue in her glamorous but emotionally isolated profession, or reach out to her daughter?

And on the lighter side, the comic romp Oh Heavenly Dog (ABC, Aug. 15) stars Chevy Chase as a private detective who meets an early death while investigating a mystery in London. He returns to earth in the form of a dog (body by Benji) to solve his own murder.

SPENSER: FOR HIRE

Hawk (Avery Brooks, I.) and Spenser (Robert Urich) need each other's assistance on ABC's "Spenser: For Hire," airing TUESDAY, AUG. 11.

'Legendary Ladies' is a tuneful way to regress

By Frank Lovece

In pop music, the word "legendary" can be understood in a couple of different ways. Bob Dylan, for instance, is legendary because of his seemingly endless string of classic songs. At the same time, one-hit groups like the Seeds and Paul Revere and the Raiders are legendary too, if only for the fact that people remember them fondly.

Martha Reeves

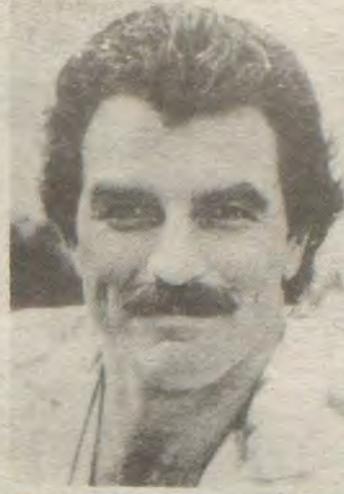

This noted, "The Legendary Ladies," which airs as a "Cinemax Session" on Tuesday, Aug. 11, is aptly named in both senses of the word. Hosted by Belinda Carlisle and Grace Slick, the one-hour special was taped last February at the New York nightclub The Latin Quarter, itself a revived legend. It has been filmed through a gauzy lens filter, presumably to soften the years behind its 1960s stars: Lesley Gore, Brenda Lee, Freda Payne, Mary Wells, Martha Reeves (of Martha and the Vandellas), Shirley Alston (of the Shirelles) and Ronnie Spector (of the Ronettes).

The set list includes enough hits to stock a jukebox, and the songs themselves hold up surprisingly well. There's no little pleasure in hearing Reeves belting out her rambunctious 1963 hit "Heat Wave," or Wells singing "My Guy" again. We also get Gore's teen anthem "It's My Party" and an amazingly heartfelt rendition of her pre-feminist chant "You Don't Own Me." And the whole bunch sings "Da Doo Ron Ron," though without any of the original Crystals.

Not all of the performers still have their pipes. And some things just don't work, such as Freda Payne struggling through "Band of Gold" with the ditzy Carlisle, or Slick delivering the line "somebody told me that his name was Bill" with Shakespearean seriousness. But seeing '60s stars onstage again is great fun, even if their singing is at times less than sterling.

The audience enjoys itself to the point of singing along, even saluting at the end of Alston's "Soldier Boy." The kitsch factor plays a part, of course, but the audience doesn't seem to know it and the performers don't want to admit it. If you can overlook the occasional lapses into Vegas shtick, "Legendary Ladies" is a nostalgic and tuneful way to regress to pre-Woodstock, pre-Vietnam innocence.

MARQUEE

JAWS THE REVENGE (PG-13 - Universal) Starring Michael Caine and Lorraine Gary. ★½

By J.T. YURKO

The tag line for the latest "Jaws" film, "Jaws the Revenge," is enthusiastic, anthropomorphic: This time, it's personal. Indeed, this time it is personal - preposterous, but personal.

Revenge is the motive in this third sequel to Steven Spielberg's 1975 thriller. A great white shark, no doubt kin to the sharks of the previous films, seeks vengeance for the loss of its loved ones. It begins by tracking down the Brody family, setting a trap for youngest son Sean (Mitchell Anderson), who has inherited the local sheriff's duties once performed by his father (Roy Scheider in the original movie). It's Christmastime, and the shark blocks one of the channels into the harbor. As Sean heads out into the murky night, the music makes it clear that he's about to become seafood.

Convinced that the shark is after her family, Mrs. Brody (Lorraine Gary) moves to the Bahamas, where great whites have never been spotted. She joins her marine biologist son (Lance Guest) and his family and enters into a romance with a mysterious pilot, Hoagie (Michael Caine). In defiance of both science and screenwriting, the shark swims on down, and begins munching on the locals.

The film's real star is Gary, who provides some dramatic progression in what is anything but a thriller. As for Michael Caine, he seems to be available for anything, be it Academy-Award-winning roles in "Hannah and Her Sisters" or cheap, exploitative movies like this one. He has enough charm to provide a few bright spots in this very murky tale.

Worst of all, the oncedramatic shark attacks have been reduced to mere special effects, the only suspense resulting from how much gore each scene will present. The climactic duel is the most inept piece of big-screen editing in a long time. On the whole, this film sinks.

Future Lawns Stay Green Save Mowing Time

By STEPHEN BERBERICH
Hate mowing and watering the lawn? Hang in there.

Grass is coming that will need less watering and only a third as much mowing as conventional lawns, according to Dr. Jack Murray.

And Murray should know. As a turf specialist for the U.S. Department of Agriculture's Agricultural Research Service, Murray tends more than 3,000 "lawns" each year.

"These are the experimental precursors of what America's lawns will be," said Murray about his checkerboard of 3- to 6-foot-square test plots at the Beltsville, Md., Agricultural Research Center.

"Americans spend countless hours and over $24 billion a year on their lawns," he said.

A new zoysia grass that will be sold as seed rather than as expensive zoysia plugs that homeowners now buy and plant is in the final stages of testing right now. But more important to some lawnkeepers, "this zoysia only needs to be mowed one third as often," he said. "Some zoysias like this grow sideways, spreading out to cover the ground, and tolerate drought."

Murray is also working on ways to keep lawns green year-round.

Today's zoysia varieties are mostly suited for southern states; zoysia lawns in the north turn brown over winter.

An experimental mix of zoysia to keep grass green all summer and fescue to keep it green all winter is undergoing final test, he said.

On other Beltsville plots, the research is testing hundreds of tall fescues, fine fescue, perennial ryegrasses, Bermudagrasses and Kentucky bluegrasses.

Murray evaluates new types of lawn grasses for disease resistance, vigor, smooth and even growth, and cold or heat tolerance, as well as for their rooting power or blade width that give the lawn a carpeted appearance.

Seed companies use his evaluations to name and market new varieties of turf-grasses for homeowners and landscapers.

One of Murray's specialties is turf grass for sports fields. "Athletic directors will find that the newer sports turf varieties stay locked into the earth and can't be uprooted as easily by a football or baseball player," he said. "We have stronger, more disease-resistant turfs that keep fields smoother and safer and are less costly to maintain."

He said that knee and ankle injuries from uneven turf no longer have to be an accepted part of the game in high school and college sports.

Allstate Investing In Floyd Projects

The Allstate Insurance Group has invested more than $1,000,000 in bonds in Floyd county, according to Charles M. Tomlinson, Jr., the companies' regional vice president for Kentucky.

Floyd county investments are part of more than $138,888,635 in bonds held by Allstate in 40 counties in Kentucky. The companies' investments in Floyd county include Floyd County KY Residential Mortgage Series 1979, $1,000,000 and KY Pollution Authority Floyd County Project, $355,000.

"It continues to be Allstate policy to support the development of areas in which we do business by investing in local communities," Tomlinson said. "We are a corporate citizen in each of the communities in which our offices are located. Like all citizens, we will share in the progress of these communities and surrounding areas."

Looking for Success?

So is everybody else. And most of us don't know what it is, let alone where to find it. Maybe that's because we're not looking in the right places. As United Methodists we've discovered that we learn what success really means when we look for it together, with God's help.

Tips On Selecting Best Fresh Produce

August is the peak time for picking and selling fruits and vegetables in Kentucky, according to Fudge Maruyama, University of Kentucky Extension home economics specialist.

For consumers buying products directly from the growers, Maruyama has some recommendations for choosing produce with the best quality.

When buying apples, look for firm, crisp, well-colored fruit. Avoid those with defects. Apples should be handled gently to avoid causing bruises or blemishes.

Corn is best when the husks are fresh and succulent with a good green color. The silk ends should be free from decay and worm injury, and stem ends should not be too dry or discolored. Kernels should be plump but not too mature.

Cucumbers with a good green color are the most desirable, and they should be firm over the entire length. They should be well-developed but not too large in diameter. Avoid ones that are withered or yellowish, other than the yellow cucumber called for in some pickle recipes.

Fresh green beans should be crisp and tender without blemishes. The best have well-shaped pods with small seeds. They should be a bright color and snap when bent.

In okra, look for tender pods that bend with very slight pressure. The pods should be bright green without blemishes.

The best peaches are in the fairly firm to slightly soft range with yellow or cream colored skin. Some may need to be stored for a few days at room temperature to ripen. Avoid green peaches.

Peppers should be fresh, firm and bright with thick walls free from defects. The best are bright green and may have some red coloring. Although they are still edible, peppers with a yellowish sunburn are less desirable.

Potatoes are best when firm, fairly smooth, clean, well-shaped and not cut or bruised. They should not show any green, be wilted or show sprouts. Red or new potatoes may be moister than others.

Squash should be picked or purchased when it is small and tender. Look for tender skins, but only if the fruit has a well-developed, firm, fresh appearance.

Tomatoes should be well-formed, smooth, ripe and reasonably free from blemishes. Red varieties should have a rich red color; yellow varieties should have an even yellow color. Avoid soft and watery tomatoes or those with sunburn or cracks around the stem scar.

Zucchini should have tender rinds and appear glossy without blemishes. The best fruits are small with a narrow diameter, about six to seven inches long and one to one and one-half inches thick. The fruits should be fairly heavy for their size.

For more information about selecting produce, contact your county Extension agent for home economics.

RABIES

COPYRIGHT 1987 KVMA

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association Summer has barely begun and already reports of suspected rabies exposure are coming in. A checklist of do's and don't's might be handy.

Rabies is defined as an acute, viral encephalomyelitis—an infection of the brain and spinal cord caused by a virus. It occurs naturally in dogs, cats, bats and wild carnivores and all warm-blooded animals are susceptible, including man.

It is usually spread through animal bites. The virus is present in the saliva of the infected animal, and when it bites another animal the virus is introduced into the uninfected body where it travels through nerve channels until it reaches the brain. Once symptoms appear, the disease is normally fatal. Rarely infection may occur by exposure of mucous membrane or open abrasions to infected saliva. Medical literature also records four instances in which rabies was contracted through the lungs, two in laboratory conditions and two from the atmosphere of a cave infested by infected guano bats.

Main protection for humans is inoculation of pets, especially dogs and cats. Infected dogs may show either of two syndromes—"furious rabies" in which the animal salivates copiously and may be agitated and vicious, and "dumb rabies" in which paralytic symptoms predominate.

Wild animals which are infected may show various symptoms, but most predominant is the loss of the fear of man. Among wild animals, skunks, foxes, raccoons, coyotes and bats are the principal reservoir for the disease. They may bite other animals or, on occasion, humans.

Common sense is the best preventive for rabies. Inoculate your dog or cat annually (or as often as your veterinarian recommends). This protects you both physically and legally. The vaccines are that effective when administered by trained personnel. Do not attempt to administer this vaccine yourself. You may harm your animal with improper dosages or types, and it will give you no legal protection.

If you are bitten, capture the animal if possible and hold for observation. If you cannot capture it, observe it as closely as possible and enlist the aid of police and animal control officers in finding it. If it is a cat or dog try to determine if its vaccination status is current. There is no approved vaccine for use in wild animals and quarantine procedures do not apply to wild animals. Euthanasia and examination of brain tissue by state authorities is the only sure method to determine rabies infection or the lack of it in wild animals.

All animal bites should be reported to police as well as health officials.

Get medical assistance immediately. Prompt medical treatment will greatly minimize the chances of rabies developing.

Ask your veterinarian how to best protect your animals and yourself. Your veterinarian is expert in the various vaccines and their uses, and can give you tips or how to avoid being bitten in areas in which rabies is a threat.

Woman's Health

SKIN AND PREGNANCY

By George W. Morley, M.D., President, The American College of Obstetricians and Gynecologists

During pregnancy, most women anticipate and can deal with certain changes in their bodies, such as weight gain and mild swelling. But the most visible part of your body where the changes may not be expected and may be annoying is the skin.

Like many of the changes of pregnancy, increased amounts of the hormone estrogen can cause differences in skin chemistry. For some women acne tends to improve during pregnancy; in others, pregnancy may aggravate the acne and cause other skin blemishes. Over-the-counter acne preparations that are applied to the skin are generally safe during pregnancy, but check with your doctor before buying them. If you've been treated for problem acne in the past with prescription medication such as antibiotics, don't treat flareups without checking with your doctor, because they could be very dangerous to the fetus.

Stretch marks are probably familiar to most pregnant women. These are pink or purplish streaks that commonly appear later in pregnancy on the abdomen, thighs, and breasts. They are caused by small tears that happen in the lower layer of the skin as you gain weight. Stretch marks seem to be hereditary—if your mother had them, chances are you will too. They are also common in women who are blond, overweight, or pregnant for the first time. There's no way to avoid them, regardless of the claims of skin cream manufacturers; but they will fade after delivery.

While skin creams won't get rid of stretch marks, they can be helpful in relieving the itching related to the pregnancy. Again, this appears to be caused by a combination of overstretching of the skin and increased levels of estrogen. The itching will disappear with delivery, but if it is very annoying, ask your doctor about possible medication.

The hormonal changes cause an increase in skin pigment for many women, especially brunettes. Dark patches called the "mask of pregnancy" may appear on the face, and a dark line may be seen on your lower abdomen. These will fade after delivery, but in the meantime you can use a sunscreen when you go outside to prevent further darkening.

"Spider veins," tiny red patches with veins radiating out from them, also are common in pregnancy. They are not a medical problem and usually disappear after delivery.

Like most changes in pregnancy, those of the skin usually disappear after delivery, whether it is the "mask of pregnancy" or a pregnancy "glow." But if any of your skin changes worry you, talk to your doctor.

Elderly Should Take Special Precautions In Hot Weather

With one death already attributed to the heat and plenty of 90-degree days still possible in August, Kentucky health and aging officials are warning the state's senior citizens to take action to protect themselves against dangerous and potentially fatal heat-related stress.

Prudence Moore, director of the Cabinet for Human Resources Division of Aging Services, and Michael Moser, M.D., Kentucky's chief epidemiologist, agree that the most serious hot weather health threat is faced by the elderly on fixed incomes who attempt to cut corners on their home cooling expenses.

"Older people on limited budgets are very frugal and that can be downright dangerous during a heat wave," Moser said. "If they've got the money at all, this is the time to spend it on cooling their homes."

Moore said some people visiting the state's 250 senior citizens centers are there in order to avoid turning on their air conditioners or fans during the heat of the day.

"It's not unusual to have our participants come in early in the morning and stay until late in the afternoon simply to avoid the expense of cooling the house," she said. "Our centers are authorized to extend hours of operation in hot weather, and we encourage older people, especially those with respiratory or other health problems, to use the centers as shelters from the heat."

Moser said it's especially important for the elderly to do things that will help cool their bodies. "Air circulation—especially circulation of cold or cool air—is critical to assist the body in keeping its internal temperature down," he said.

Mills Renews Drive To Pass Funds Bill

"Good government demands that at least a portion of revenue produced by Kentuckians be earmarked to work for the advantage of our citizens," State Treasurer Frances Jones Mills said recently. Mills has mounted a campaign to renew her quest for passage of a bill in the 1988 General Assembly to provide surplus state funds to Kentucky lending institutions for low interest loans to small business and agri business.

Mills said the legislation enables the State Investment Commission to set aside $70 million of the state's surplus funds for low interest, fully secured loans to small business and agri business. The funds will be offered at 4% less than the state's repurchase agreement rate, currently the state's method of investing surplus state funds.

Mills said, "Several states have stimulated their economies with this investment vehicle, and Kentucky could profit greatly by the use of it. All states bordering Kentucky have this type legislation with the exception of Tennessee," she said.

The Securities and Exchange Commission has adopted a resolution encouraging the use of the plan.

Treasurer Mills said, "Affordable capital is in short supply in this state, and high interest rates have caused the state's small business and agri business to suffer in profitability and competition, contributing to the Commonwealth's unemployment rate."

said. "Loose clothing helps, as does keeping out of unventilated, upstairs rooms during the hottest part of the day."

Another problem facing some elderly people in extremely hot weather is related to medication they may be taking. "Some blood pressure and heart medicines cause increased loss of body fluids," Moser said. "That treatment can be complicated when summer heat brings on increased body temperatures and, thus, loss of additional fluids through perspiration."

"Other medications have also been associated with an increased risk of heat stroke. So people being medically treated for a chronic illness would be well advised to consult with their private physicians to see if any modifications of their prescription is necessary."

According to Moore, Kentucky's growing network of senior citizens' volunteers and professionals are on the alert in times of extreme weather for signs of heat stress among the elderly.

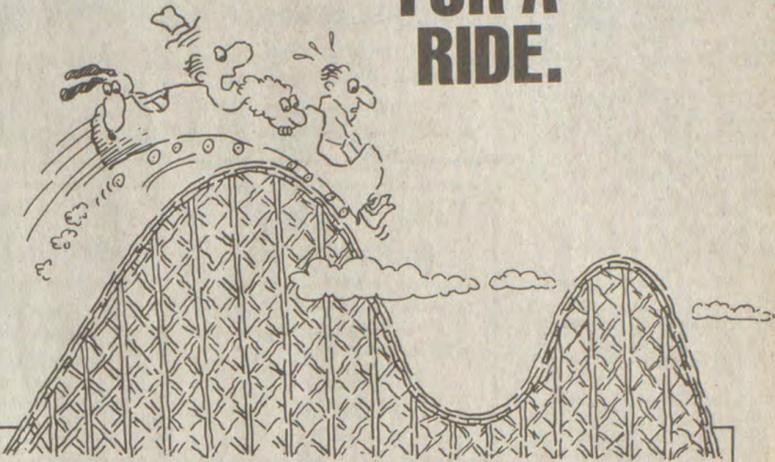

"In 77 counties we're already working with utility companies on the 'Gatekeeper Program,' using specially trained meter readers to, among other things, be on the lookout for older customers who show signs of being unable to cope or protect themselves from the heat," she said.

Postal workers also perform similar "Gatekeeper" functions for their elderly clients in other parts of Kentucky. Although age, limited mobility, respiratory ailments and other factors make senior citizens more susceptible to heat stress, Moser warns that the heat of the mid-day sun can be just as dangerous to the very young.

"Most precautions for children are common sense," the doctor said. "Don't leave them alone in a close automobile—even for a short time. Outside play or sports activities should be curtailed and broken up with rest periods."

"Everyone should take precautions when sustained high temperatures occur, such as increasing their intake of fluids, making realistic use of air conditioning, cooling tub baths or, if possible, limiting activities to shaded areas."

DON'T LET WINTER TAKE YOUR HEATING BILLS FOR A RIDE.

When temperatures take the plunge this winter, your heating bills needn't climb. Not if you're on Columbia's Budget Payment Plan.

The plan averages your bills into 12 equal payments, so there are no peaks and valleys because of the weather. Instead, the monthly amount stays the same...higher than you now pay in the summer, but a lot lower in the winter.

Rather than ups and downs, your gas bills stay on a smooth, even track all year 'round.

It's easy to be a Budget Payment customer, too. All you do is pay the "Budget Amount" on your August bill, and you'll be billed that amount every month. Your meter will continue to be read as usual, and each month's bill will continue to show the amount of gas you used. A review in March determines if your budget amount needs to be adjusted because of weather.

Another good idea: sign on for Checkfree® too. It automatically makes your gas payment from your checking account each month, so you save time, postage and check charges.

Join the Columbia Budget Payment Plan. You'll take the ups and downs out of your heating bills...and leave the high cost of winter behind.

Food Stamp Program Is Now Computerized

Floyd countians who receive federal food stamps are now benefiting from Kentucky's new computerized food stamp system, recently made operational in the Floyd county office of the Kentucky Department for Social Insurance.

The Kentucky Automated Management and Eligibility System (KAMES) was developed to enable the department's caseworkers to handle the entire food stamp eligibility process, from application to issuance of coupons, with greater speed and efficiency.

Charles E. Hackworth, supervisor at Social Insurance Office in Prestonsburg, said the KAMES computers store information when the client first applies, then make that information readily available later on. "The beauty of the system is that many time-consuming jobs that previously had to be done case by case—jobs such as updating cases when eligibility guidelines or client income changes—are now done automatically when the new information is fed into the terminal at the worker's desk," said Hackworth.

"The system also makes almost immediate client eligibility and benefit determinations," Hackworth said, "allowing the caseworker to tell applicants on the spot if they can receive food stamps and how many they will get monthly."

In addition to a quicker issuance time of days instead of weeks, the KAMES system is also designed to reduce much repetitive paperwork and cut into the costly problems of over-issuance due to error and criminal fraud.

Hackworth said KAMES is expected to be in use statewide by the end of the year. By that time, all of Floyd county's newly approved food stamp cases should be completely transferred onto the $20 million system, which was funded jointly by the State of Kentucky and the U.S. Department of Agriculture.

LOCAL CHURCHWOMEN TO MEET

The next meeting of the Local Church Women will be Friday morning, August 28, at 10:30 at the First United Methodist Church. Officers for the forthcoming year will be installed during this meeting. Mrs. Eileen Burchett, president, extends an invitation to all church women of the area to attend.

Summer Heat Could Make 1987 Early Harvest Year

The high temperatures this summer are pushing Kentucky crops to maturity earlier in the season than in recent years. Most crops are 20 percentage points ahead of the crop development at this time last year, according to the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service.

"The heat is stressing the crops, and lack of consistent rain is making growth variable from row to row, field to field," said Agriculture Commissioner David Boswell. "But it may be that 1987 will be one of the earliest harvest years on record."

Last week's 90-plus temperatures took a lot of moisture from the soil. Soil moisture as of July 24 was rated 14 percent very short, 60 percent short and 26 percent adequate, according to reporters for the statistics service.

By July 26, 64 percent of the Commonwealth's burley was blooming or beyond. Twenty-four percent had been topped. Some farmers have begun cutting their burley; however, cutting in most areas should not begin until around Aug. 8.

About two-thirds of the dark tobacco is in the blooming stage or is already topped.

Tobacco is being bothered not only by the heat and lack of moisture, but by black shank, angular leaf spot and several viruses. Bud worms and aphids are in some fields.

Tobacco condition for last week was rated 1 percent poor, 39 percent fair, 57 percent good and 3 percent excellent.

Thirty percent of the corn crop is in the dough stage of development, well ahead of the five-year average of 10 percent. About 82 percent of the corn crop is rated in from good to excellent.

Double crop soybeans in the Purchase area are being affected by the extreme heat and lack of soil moisture. Overall, the soybean crop is rated 41 percent fair, 52 percent good and 7 percent excellent by the statistics service reporters.

As of July 26, 62 percent of the beans were at the blooming or beyond stage. This compares to 44 percent at this stage last year and 22 percent for the five-year average.

Pasture and hay conditions are rated fair to mostly good. The quality of both is being affected by lack of rain.

Sorghum condition is rated as 22 percent poor, 60 percent fair, 14 percent good and 4 percent excellent.

Opinion Survey Polls State Farm Families

The quality of education in Kentucky, Social Security and reasonable electric rates received a higher confidence rating among a large group of Kentuckians recently than the future of tobacco, the family farm and reasonable medical costs.

The ratings are based on 1,000 tabulated responses to an opinion survey that appeared in the Rural Kentuckian magazine last May. The responses were chosen at random from more than 5,000 completed surveys.

Asked to rate their degree of confidence in several subjects, more than three-fourths expressed "high" or "moderate" confidence in the first three topics, but only half expressed the same level of confidence in the future of tobacco as a significant cash crop. Only 41% expressed high or moderate confidence in the future of the family farm and only 31% in the likelihood of reasonable medical costs.

The exact percentages in each category were as follows:

—Future of tobacco: high confidence, 8%; moderate confidence, 42%; low confidence, 50%.

—Social Security: high, 29%, moderate, 46%, low, 25%.

—Reasonable electric rates: high, 22%, moderate, 55%; low, 23%.

—Quality of education: high, 17%, moderate, 58%, low, 25%.

Future of the family farm: high, 7%, moderate, 34%, low, 59%.

—Reasonable medical costs: high, 15%, moderate, 16%; low, 69%.

In response to other survey questions:

—Sixty percent said they believed the concept of paying the best teachers a premium salary could be established and administered fairly in Kentucky. Forty percent did not.

—Sixty-three percent opposed legislation that is before Congress to ban all advertising of cigarettes and other tobacco products. Thirty-seven percent said they favored it.

—Twenty-six percent said they supported proposed federal legislation to control acid rain by placing tighter controls on air emissions from electric generation plants, even though the legislation would also mean at least a 10% increase in residential electric rates in Kentucky. Forty percent opposed it, while 34% were undecided.

Rural Kentuckian, with a monthly circulation of more than 300,000, goes primarily to people who get their electricity from one of Kentucky's 29 rural electric cooperatives.

Eastern Ky. Arts Receives Grant

The Eastern Kentucky Arts Consortium sponsored by Morehead State University, has received a $3,500 grant from the Kentucky Arts Council for fiscal year 1987-88.

The grant, to be matched by MSU, will establish a consortium composed of regional community arts groups.

According to Adrian Swain, project director, the purpose of the consortium is to provide low cost arts programming to five area communities, which have not been chosen yet.

Swain said he hopes that the consortium "will be a seed from which the communities may grow their own arts programming."

GED Info Offered By Dollar General

Some 850,000 high school dropouts will enter the nation's job market this year, and discount retailer Dollar General Corporation wants to help reduce the number.

Beginning next month, the more than 1,300 Dollar General Stores will offer information on local programs designed to help adults study for and take the General Educational Development

(GED) test, and on programs designed to teach adults how to read. The information will be available at all of the Dollar General Stores in 23 states in the East, South and Midwest.

According to Doug Whitney, director of the GED testing service of the American Council on Education, getting local information about testing centers and classes to the people who need it is the most critical issue facing the GED program.

"What I admire about Dollar General's program is the company's effort to reach people at the grassroots level to attack the literacy problem in this country," Whitney said.

Dollar General executives presented the plan July 23 to state GED administrators and directors of adult education at a joint conference in Seattle. Information available in stores will include pamphlets about GED preparation classes offered in each community and information for those interested in volunteering as tutors. Dollar General will provide mail-in cards for persons to indicate whether they are interested in GED classes and test centers, reading classes in the area or tutoring programs.

To reinforce its effort, an ongoing series of Dollar General radio advertisements will remind listeners that GED and basic reading information are available at local stores.

Cal Turner, Jr., president of Dollar General Corporation, said the company is excited about encouraging its customers to continue their educations. Following a successful program in which Dollar General picked up the cost of GED study materials and test fees for its employees, company officials discussed the idea of offering to help customers with Whitney and various state education officials.

"We believe the need is great in our service area," Turner noted. "Eleven of the 23 Dollar General states had graduation rates well below the 1985 national average. We recognize that many of our customers are part of these statistics, and we felt that we could lessen the fear of taking that first step toward getting an equivalency diploma by offering local information in each of our stores."

While many companies provide incentives and financial assistance to employees who take basic reading or GED preparatory classes, Whitney said few have taken similar steps to help customers. "This is one area where we can help—actually getting testing and study information into the hands of the people who need it most," Whitney said.

6.1 COLLECTIONS FROM RESIDENCES AND SCHOOLS:

The City of Prestonsburg, or its designated agent, shall collect from households and schools at least twice each week and at such other and additional times as designated by the City Administrator or his designee, as the necessity of each particular case shall require, garbage, offal and refuse, as defined in Section 3 of this Ordinance, and as provided in other sections of this Ordinance relating to containers and preparation, except when collection days fall on legal holidays or where collection is delayed due to adverse or inclement weather conditions.

The City, or its agent, shall provide a pick-up service for the removal of trash and rubbish, as defined in this Ordinance, from households and schools,

Such items to be collected must be placed in boxes or containers sturdy enough to be handled by the collector, the total loaded weight of each container not to exceed 50 pounds per carton, or be self-contained items such as furniture or appliances.

Tree limbs not exceeding three feet in length and one inch in diameter must be tied in bundles which can be readily handled and loaded by one person. Additional charges, as set out in Section 7 of this Ordinance, will be made for collection and disposal of loose or unbagged trash, including tree limbs exceeding three feet in length.

The City of Prestonsburg reserves the right to handle only those items that conform to this Ordinance. Any material that does not conform to these regulations shall become the responsibility of the resident to properly dispose of as authorized herein.

6.4 GARBAGE REMOVAL FROM HOUSEHOLDS FOR HIRE OR COMPENSATION PROHIBITED.

No person, firm or corporation, other than the City of Prestonsburg or its agents, shall engage in the collection, transportation and disposal of garbage and other waste materials from any premises or business, either for hire or compensation.

SECTION 7. FEES FOR COLLECTION OF GARBAGE FROM RESIDENCES

There is hereby levied a garbage collection service charge of Eight Dollars ($8.00) per month for each householder within the City of Prestonsburg serviced by garbage collection service provided by the City of Prestonsburg or its authorized agent, upon the terms stipulated in this Ordinance for twice weekly garbage removal and monthly trash removal. Exceptions to such monthly service charges are set forth in Section 8 of this Ordinance.

Such monthly service charge shall not include the removal of loose or unbagged trash or tree limbs exceeding the measurements set out in Section 6.3 of this Ordinance. A fee of Twenty-Five Dollars ($25.00) is hereby levied to collect any such loose or unbagged trash or unbagged tree limbs provided that such removal does not require more than one trip by a sanitation truck to load. An additional charge of Twenty-Five Dollars ($25.00) per trip will be charged for such jobs which will require more than one trip.

Commercial and industrial collection fees shall be set by the City Administrator based on the size and type business and the services required or to be rendered.

SECTION 8. FEE EXCEPTIONS FOR ELDERLY OR HANDICAPPED PERSONS

The monthly garbage collection service fee stated in Section 7.0 of this Ordinance shall not apply to family residential units which are occupied by the homeowner, or occupant of individually metered rental units, provided that said homeowner or occupant is sixty-two (62) years of age and provided that proof of age is established to the satisfaction of the appropriate officers or agents of the City of Prestonsburg, by sworn Affidavit or other properly authenticated records. If such provisions apply, the monthly garbage collection fee shall be Five Dollars ($5.00) per month.

SECTION 9. MANNER OF BILLING FOR SERVICE

The applicable fee for garbage collection service shall be billed as a separate item on the regular billing for water-sewer service by the Department of Utilities of the City of Prestonsburg and said charge shall be payable at the Collections Office of the Department of Utilities in the same manner and within the same penalty-free period as required for payment of charges for water and sewer service.

The utilities customer in whose name the water meter account is carried shall be held responsible for payment of the full amount of the garbage collection service charges billed, which total amount shall be based on the number of households served by said water meter.

In instances where it is not feasible or possible to utilize such utility bills for notifying garbage service customers of service charges payable, separate bills may be issued and shall be payable within ten (10) days from the date of rendering.

SECTION 10. PENALTY FOR VIOLATION

Employment Higher But Jobless On Rise

Thousands of new jobs, together with thousands of Kentuckians pursuing those new jobs, brought June employment in the state to the highest level so far in 1987 and caused the state's preliminary unemployment rate to take a seasonal upward turn as well.

An estimated 13,100 more Kentuckians had jobs in June than in May, according to figures released recently by the Cabinet for Human Resources.

With even more people actively seeking those positions, Kentucky's civilian labor force grew by 16,600. Combined, the two factors pushed the state's jobless rate up from a revised 9.0 percent in May to 9.1 percent in June.

Nationally, unemployment rose from 6.1 percent in May to 6.3 percent in June. The comparable state and national rates are not seasonally adjusted.

State labor analyst Ed Blackwell said the summer break in Kentucky schools was the major factor impacting employment in June.

"Students seeking summer jobs and recent graduates looking for full-time work accounted for most of the increases in employment and in the overall labor force as well," Blackwell said.

The gains were offset by the seasonal loss of 13,600 jobs in education and 300 service jobs. "Hourly employees at schools and colleges, such as cafeteria workers, custodians and bus drivers, are not counted as employed during the months they are not working and not being paid," Blackwell explained. "When these positions are filled each August and September, education jobs show a dramatic increase." Blackwell said closing schools for the summer also had an impact on service jobs as a decline was recorded in educational services.

"This is something we see at this time every year," he said.

The federal estimate of Kentuckians working was 1,547,700 in June, up from 1,534,600 in May and 4,500 more than the June 1986 figure of 1,543,200.

An estimated 155,400 Kentuckians were unemployed in June, up from 151,900 in May and more than in June 1986, when 153,300 of the state's civilian labor force were out of work and the revised unemployment rate was 9.0 percent.

The biggest jump in jobs was in agriculture, where 13,100 more people were working. "This is the largest month-to-month employment growth in agriculture since June 1986, when farm jobs grew 13,400 over May," Blackwell said.

Trade employment was up by 3,400 as gains were recorded in department stores, restaurants and supermarkets.

Manufacturing jobs grew by 2,500, with the largest increase in textiles and apparel, where 600 more people were working. "Through the first half of 1987 employment in garment-making industries has averaged 34,000 each month," Blackwell said. "If this trend continues, jobs in these industries could reach the highest annual average of the 1980s." Kentucky's highest annual average employment figure for textiles and garment manufacturing is 37,400 recorded in 1973.

Employers in construction and finance, insurance and real estate each reported 1,700 more workers, followed by state and local government with 1,600 more employees. A category that includes domestic workers, self-employed people and unpaid workers in family businesses grew by 1,000 jobs. Transportation, communications and utilities reported 700 additional jobs.

The state's civilian labor force estimate of 1,703,100 for June is the highest recorded in 1987. The May estimate was 1,686,500 and the June 1986 report was 1,696,500. The civilian labor force includes non-military people who are working and unemployed people who actively are seeking jobs. It does not include anyone who is unemployed but has not looked for a job for four weeks.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure employment trends rather than to actually count people working.

My doctor assures me that while they are a nuisance, they are the type of cancer that never spreads and they are no threat to life at all. Is it true that no one ever dies of basal cell skin cancer. What causes it?

ANSWER: Basal cell skin cancer is the most common, most easily treated and the most curable form of cancer. Since it almost never metastasizes (spreads to other organs of the body), it rarely, if ever causes death. Yet if left untreated for years, basal cell skin cancer can invade the deeper tissues under the skin, such as the muscle and bone. Only then might it become a threat to life.

There are a number of treatment options for this type of skin cancer. These may include surgical removal of the tissue, cryosurgery (freezing), electrosurgery (burning), radiation (x-rays), or the use of a topical chemotherapy drug. The treatment of choice will depend on the size, location, degree of extension to other tissue, the rate of growth and whether or not the lesion is a recurrence. The main purpose of treatment is to destroy the cancer completely with as little scarring as possible.

Basal cells are the cells found in the lowest layer of the epidermis (the outer layer of skin tissue). Most of them will occur in the head and neck region, often in areas that have had the most exposure of the sun. It is thought that exposure of the skin to the ultraviolet rays of the sun over many years plays a major role in the development of basal cell skin cancer.

The cure rate for basal cell skin cancer that has been properly treated is above 95%.

Since skin cancers may recur or can appear in other areas of the skin, any person who has had a skin cancer should have regular and careful skin examinations to detect any new lesions.

Tho' Corn Uses Varied, Production Is Smaller

By Agriculture Commissioner David E. Boswell
 An Associated Press article about the unlimited potential of corn as the source for an enormous amount of consumer material in the near future caught my eye the other day. And then I recalled that Kentucky corn producers have planted a substantially smaller crop this year than in any year since drought-ridden 1983.

We're told that only 1.3 million acres of corn will be harvested this year. What will that mean in terms of total bushels? Well, who knows? These hotter, more humid days we've been having are maturing the crop more quickly than normal.

In 1985, Kentucky farmers harvested 1.56 million acres of corn and realized a crop of better than 159 million bushels. That was a record year. In '84, Kentucky cornfields brought in 146 million bushels of corn from 1.46 million acres. Hopefully, this year's harvest will be in the 135 to 140 million-bushel range.

The AP story displayed the remarkable range of properties and possibilities of our renewable corn supply, citing expected advances in technology now underway that will allow a bushel of corn to produce anything a barrel of oil can come up with and in ways much less harmful to our environment.

We're told that while corn is now used in the production of sweeteners for soft drinks, starch for paper products, oil for cooking and ethanol for fuel...before long it might be replacing petroleum in the manufacture of synthetic fabrics, auto body parts, containers for fast foods, industrial chemicals and even as a road de-icer not harmful to cars, concrete and blacktop.

Can you imagine a drink cup or sandwich wrapper or garbage bag that will gradually dissolve after it's been discarded? That's what the researchers tell us we will someday be getting from corn-refining technology—biodegradable plastics.

Here in Kentucky, at the Agricultural Energy Corporation in Franklin, some 8 million bushels of Kentucky and Tennessee corn is being transformed each year into 22 million gallons of clean-burning ethanol. At today's corn prices, that means an additional $24 million for farmers supplying the grain. And that's just a small part of what may be possible in added earnings for corn farmers.

Those who seem to know indicate that non-traditional uses of corn could increase this nation's corn demand by about 7 billion bushels, just about a year's current supply. The notion of such a reawakening of the marketplace for our farmers is heartening. Something to hink about when the family car or the old pickup truck is ready for its next fill-up.

BITS OF WISDOM FROM THE FARMERS' ALMANAC
 I've been checking the Farmers' Almanac now and then, and thought I'd pass along some of its "things-to-do" tips for the month of August. Here goes:
 "Check cabbage heads for cracking—bend stem to break roots on one side. Dig potatoes as needed as soon as the tops die. Pick lima beans while still green. Thin out late beets. Plant brussel sprouts for late harvest. Tie up cauliflower heads. Place boards under the watermelons. Cut and dry herbs just before flowers open. Put salt out for cattle.
 "Check your house, barn and barn lot to see that they are properly lighted. Fix fences. Help mother can and freeze peaches. Plant lillies. Take it easy during the heat of the day. Dig a new farm pond. Sow forget-me-nots for bloom early next year—they make an attractive carpet planting for tulips. Divide and move Virginia bluebells. And sow pyrethrum in a shaded bed to get flowering-size plants for next fall (the flowers are a good bug killer)."

KENTUCKY FARMERS CO-OPS DATA

We have a lot to say on a fairly regular basis about the value of farmers cooperatives in Kentucky as a way in which producers can get started in and prosper with whatever new crops that appeal to them. And through the cooperatives, they have an edge in marketing what they grow.

There are three very active cooperatives with which we're in continuing contact this year, partially involved in the production of peppers, squash and cucumbers. Acreage in tomatoes and cabbage is still small. About 1,200 Kentucky farmers comprise their membership.

Last year, those co-ops—based in Winchester, Monticello and Beattyville—produced on just more than 1,500 acres. This year, their acreage is up to 2,747.

It's significant to note that while in 1986, the co-ops generated about $1.5 million in sales, their business will total about $4 million this year.

Zucchini With A Capital Z

From the American Institute For Cancer Research

It's a perennial problem: what to do with all those zucchini. Even if you don't have your own home garden, you probably receive an ample supply from neighbors and friends anxious to share their bounty. The zucchini harvest starts early and doesn't end until the first frost, so there is plenty of time to try the scores of ingenious uses for this nutritious vegetable: pie, pizza, souffle, fritters, omelets, casseroles, lasagna, sticks, soup, pancakes, tempura, relishes, cookies, puddings and, of course, bread.

Zucchini is a variety of summer squash. It should be harvested while young and tender—no prizes for the largest zucchini! Best when dark green and shiny, a zucchini should be 4 to 10 inches long and feel heavy for its size.

Collecting zucchini recipes is both a necessary and rewarding endeavor as your kitchen counters, window sills and refrigerator top start to overflow. So boil it, bake it, broil it, grate it, stuff it, can it or serve it raw—and enjoy!

LEMON FLORENTINE ZUCCHINI BOATS

This attractive and unusual way to serve vegetables is mild in flavor. It's a good side dish for a strongly flavored entree or can be served with fish or other dishes that would be overwhelmed by more pungent or spicy accompaniments.

- 3 medium zucchini (about 1 pound)
- 1 small onion, finely chopped
- 2 garlic cloves, minced
- 1 tbsp. margarine
- 1/4 tsp. nutmeg
- 1 10-ounce package frozen chopped spinach, thawed and drained well
- 1/2 cup part-skim ricotta cheese
- 1 tsp. lemon juice
- Grated peel of 1/2 lemon
- 1-2 dashes hot pepper sauce (optional)
- 1 tbsp. grated Parmesan cheese

Bring water in a large saucepan or Dutch oven to a boil. Cut the zucchini in half lengthwise and add to the boiling water; cook 5 minutes and drain. Meanwhile, saute onion, garlic and nutmeg in margarine until tender. Remove from heat. Add spinach, ricotta cheese, lemon peel and juice, and hot pepper sauce (if desired). Scoop out center of zucchini pieces, leaving 1/4" rim to make "boats." Mix scooped out center pieces into spinach-cheese mixture.

Arrange zucchini boats cut-side-up in shallow baking dish. Stuff with spinach mixture. Sprinkle with Parmesan cheese. Bake at 375 degrees for 20 minutes.

This will yield 6 servings, each containing only 76 calories and only 4 grams of fat.

Completes Three Year Retail Bank Instruction

Jennings Ramey, Senior Vice President, Pikeville National Bank and Trust Company, is one of 129 officers who have successfully completed the three-year course of specialized instruction at the Graduate School of Retail Bank Management, and received a diploma of graduation on July 23.

Sponsored by the Consumer Bankers Association, which is located in Arlington, Virginia, in cooperation with the McIntire School of Commerce at the University of Virginia, the school has just completed its 37th resident session. Four hundred bank officers and representatives of bank regulatory agencies from thirty-four states, the District of Columbia and Puerto Rico, are enrolled.

ZUCCHINI-TOMATO STEW

Let the flavor of summer vegetables take center stage with this simple stew. A bit of basil and pepper provide a subtle flavor accent. Serve it with fish or other mild-flavored entrees.

- 3/4 cup onion, sliced
- 2 cloves garlic, chopped
- 1/4 cup water
- 3/4 cup green pepper, chopped
- 2 cups zucchini (about 1/2 pound), in 1/2" slices
- 2 1/2 cups tomatoes (about 4-5 medium), seeded and coarsely chopped
- 2 tsp. dried basil
- Pepper to taste

In a large heavy saucepan heat the onion, garlic and water; cook until tender. Add in green pepper, then zucchini, and top with tomatoes and seasonings. Cook over low heat, covered, 10-15 minutes or until squash is tender. If you prefer a less liquid stew remove the pan lid for the last few minutes of cooking.

This will give you about 4 servings, each 3/4 cup in size, and each containing only 75 calories and 1 gram of fat.

Treatment Leads To New Hope For Breast Cancer

One in every 11 women will be afflicted with breast cancer at some point in her life. However, thanks to improved methods of diagnosis and treatment, it is an increasingly manageable disease, with a complete cure rate among the highest of all types of cancer, says the National Foundation for Cancer Research.

Treatment often involves a combination of surgery, radiation therapy and anti-cancer drugs. The last method, known as chemotherapy, is toxic and usually causes side effects such as nausea and hair loss.

A scientific breakthrough—hormone therapy—pioneered by NCFR project director Kathryn Horwitz at the University of Colorado offers a less traumatic treatment alternative.

Hormonal treatment involves high doses of progesterone, a female hormone believed to inhibit the growth of cancer cells. Side effects are rare and are generally not serious.

Dr. Horwitz has developed a new test which checks for the presence of progesterone receptors in a breast tumor. The test determines whether a woman is a good candidate for hormone therapy. If she is not, the test enables her doctor to prescribe conventional treatment right away, without waiting to see if hormone therapy works and giving the cancer time to spread.

The National Foundation for Cancer Research is a private, non-profit organization based in Bethesda, Md. With the help of donors nationwide, it has allocated more than $50 million to basic cancer research over the last decade.

A NICE, INTELLIGENT DOG who needs a home, this female collie mix is eight months old and has had all shots. She may be adopted now at the animal shelter on Sally Stephens Branch road, or call 886-3189 for information.

Lawsuit Alleges GM Ignores 'Lemon Law'

Members of the Consumer Protection Division have filed suit against General Motors for failing to abide by the terms of the "New Car Lemon Law," according to Attorney General David L. Armstrong.

In the suit, Armstrong alleges that, despite repeated requests, General Motors has refused to comply with the refund portion of the new law which was passed by the 1986 Kentucky General Assembly and became effective on July 15, 1986. "When an arbitration panel has determined that a vehicle is a 'lemon,' this new law requires a refund by the manufacturer to the car buyer of finance charges, all sales tax, license fees, registration fees, similar governmental charges plus all collateral charges as well as the purchase price less a reasonable allowance for the buyer's use of the vehicle," Armstrong said. "General Motors only agrees to refund the purchase price and omits the other items as outlined in the law."

Following the filing of the lawsuit in Franklin Circuit Court, Armstrong said that he believes the new law to be an effective tool in providing consumers with protection. "I am committed to the effective implementation and enforcement of Kentucky's new car lemon law," he said. "General Motors has stated that it believes there are constitutional problems with the statute and refuses to abide by its terms when a full refund of the purchase price is required. It is therefore necessary for us to seek enforcement through the courts and thereby test the constitutionality of this very important consumer law."

Armstrong said that the lawsuit is important to protect the integrity of the new legislation. "The purchase of a new car is usually the second largest family expenditure," he said. "When people are finally able to afford a new car, they have a right to expect it to operate properly."

He added that he hopes for an early resolution of this dispute. "At this time, we only have a few 'victims' as a result of GM's failure to comply, but as the Lemon Law picks up steam, this will become a major problem," he said. "It is critical that we overcome this barrier for consumers now to assure an effective law in the long-term."

The lawsuit asks for an injunction prohibiting the defendant from failing to abide by the "New Car Lemon Law" as well as an injunction requiring the defendant to give refunds to consumers whose vehicles have been returned as "lemons" pursuant to the terms of the statute.

USDA Holds Public Conservation Review

On July 13, the USDA began a 60-day public review and comment period for the second appraisal report it has prepared under terms of the Soil and Water Resources Conservation Act (RCA)," said Clark Allison, District Conservationist for the Soil Conservation Service (SCS) at Prestonsburg. Copies of a four-page summary of the document will be available at the local SCS office at 105 Court St. Public comments will be considered in preparing the final appraisal document. USDA will use this information to update its National Conservation Program, which provides direction for all conservation programs conducted by 7 USDA agencies.

For this appraisal, USDA analyzed the best information available about land use, soil erosion, water supply and management, water quality, and related resource issues such as atmospheric deposition and wildlife habitat. It began new research to define more precisely the extent of the threat soil erosion poses to agricultural productivity and environmental quality. It used that data to project future conditions as well as to identify current problem areas.

Congress enacted the RCA legislation in 1977 in response to widespread concern about mounting pressure on the Nation's soil and water resources. Rapidly increasing export demands were encouraging cultivation of highly erodible land. Erosion was again becoming a severe problem as farmers abandoned traditional conservation practices, finding them incompatible with new farming methods and large equipment. There were other concerns as well—ground water mining, shortages of surface water, increasing loss of farmland to urban development, loss of wildlife habitat, and others. Congress therefore directed the Secretary of Agriculture to appraise the soil, water, and related resources of the Nation's nonfederal lands to provide an accurate picture of what and where the problems were. It also directed the Secretary to use the appraisal information to ensure that USDA programs for conserving those resources are responsive to the long-term needs of the nation.

"USDA completed the first RCA appraisal in 1980 and used it to design the National Conservation Program, implemented in 1982" Clark Allison said, "Information in the first appraisal was also used extensively in developing the conservation provisions of the Food Security Act."
