Fiscal Court Defeats Motion Barring Regional Waste Plan

By Tim Sizemore

A proposed regional waste disposal site moved closer to realization Friday with the failure of a motion made by Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens, Dist. 2, to stop the accepting of other counties' trash in the future except Knott county which has already made a contract with the fiscal court.

Magistrate Owens, in making the motion against the future garbage plan, says that he fears contamination due to hazardous waste will ruin the drinking water for future generations. Owens told the court that he was speaking in behalf of his children in opposing the waste site plans. The motion, intended to stop the contracting for disposal of surrounding counties' waste, was defeated by a tie which was broken by County Judge Executive John M. Stumbo, who told fiscal court members that the county needed the revenue. He added that waste disposal would pose no threat to the water supply citing that it is regularly checked to ensure proper maintenance and that no run off of hazardous waste made its way into streams.

Judge Breaks Tied Vote On Regional Dump

Another problem faced by the court was a request by Sheriff Henry C. Hale for permission to use excess fees amounting to $6,156 toward his department's maintenance and to pay off debts he incurred into patrol cars upkeep. The sheriff said that the debts needed to be paid before the annual audit. He said that although one deputy had attended police training, he did not (have sufficient funds) to add him permanently to the force, adding that his department had worked hard for the excess fees by serving warrants and that his office deserved the money. County Attorney David Barber said it would be impossible to give the check to the sheriff without amending the budget and that the request would have to go through proper channels. Magistrate Owens defended the position of the sheriff by saying that the excess fees should not be included in the budget, because the sheriff needed the money to operate his office properly. Attorney Barber told Owens that the request must be approved by Frankfort. Owens replied with a motion that the necessary steps be taken to ensure that the check is returned to the sheriff's department.

The court did offer some monetary relief to the sheriff's department by voting for a 3% increase in salaries to become effective January 1. Sheriff Hale told the court that his office had not received a wage hike since 1985.

Other business before the fiscal court was the home incarceration program. County Attorney Barber asked the court to consider contracting a company presently operating in Pike county to supply wrist bands to monitor prisoners enrolled in the program. He said that the bands would be supplied for $8 a day with the county receiving $2 in fees. Magistrate Owens disagreed with Barber, saying $8 was too much to pay and added that he felt the program

Schools' Performance Record Improved but Short of Goals

By B.A. Heinze

The Floyd County School Board's annual performance report for the 1986-87 is a mixed bag containing both good and not-so-good news. The good news is that in many areas, the district has improved over last year. The bad news is that not all categories have shown improvement, and like most educational districts in Eastern Kentucky that of Floyd county remains low on the scale of district ratings.

Under a state law which took effect in 1985, school districts must now report annually to the Kentucky Department of Education on their performance in basic areas such as standardized testing, dropout rate, and average daily attendance. The local board is also required to come up with a 'master educational improvement' plan to correct any problems. It must also report on how effective it was in achieving goals set.

Six such goals were set by the local board in November 1985—academic objectives for grades three, five, seven, and 10 (these are this year grades five, seven, nine, and 12), an improved attendance rate, and a reduced dropout rate.

A special meeting of the Floyd County School Board will be held tonight (Wednesday) to declare an emergency in the roofing situation at Allen Central High School and to authorize Superintendent Ray Brackett to apply for an emergency loan from the Department of Education.

In a notice to all board members, Dr. James D. Adams notified them of the meeting to immediately follow the public tax hearing scheduled at Prestonsburg High School cafeteria.

Those third graders who did not do so well last year did exceed the 50th Normal Curve Equivalency (NCE) in math, 55.0, and writing, 53.5, but failed to reach this level in either reading or spelling.

Again, those previously rated as fifth graders are now in seventh grade. Last year they exceeded the 50th NCE in reading with 51.0, but failed to reach it in language, spelling, or reference skills. This year as seventh graders, they made it in math, writing, and reference skills.

For all practical purposes, they achieved it with 49.9 in reading, but still fell behind in spelling, although greatly improved from 37.4 to 48.1 this year.

Those in seventh grade in 1985 are now ninth graders. Last year, they came up to par excepting spelling. This year, the record is the same with spelling percentage rising from 40.1 to 47.3.

1985's tenth graders, or sophomores did not last year achieve the goals set in any area, but this year as 12th graders they did attain a 50.6 in reference skills, and just missed in spelling with 49.9. Their math score was 48.3 and that of reading, 45.0.

The attendance record is still short of its goal of 2% improvement with a 0.73% increase in attendance for 1986-87 shown.

Those dropping out of school last year were greatest in number in the ninth grade with a total of 878, but the highest percentage was in the tenth grade with 7%. Both the 11th and 12 grade dropout percentage decreased from 10.3 to 5.20 for the 11th grade and from 7.0 to 5.50 for grade 12. The overall rate was down from 4.26% to 3.88%, a distinct improvement.

Regional Solid Waste Site Is Discussed, Pro and Con

By Tim Sizemore

Divergent views held by Floyd counties concerning the creation of a regional waste disposal site have come to the forefront of discussion, recently.

Robert McAninch, director of the waste disposal program, says that people's fears are unfounded. McAninch points out that the disposal site is one of the best in the state and is maintained strictly along state and federal guidelines. He says the site has been properly ditched with a layer of clay preventing leaching of contaminants into the water supply. He claims that the site which consists of 518 acres is far from filling up and even with the garbage of surrounding counties, the site would last a hundred years. The reason for this, he explained, is the proposed recycling center to be located on the property, which, he maintains would alleviate the problem of overflow. McAninch said without a contract for the surrounding counties' waste, the project would not be feasible since Floyd county does not produce enough waste to make the program pay for itself. Emphasizing the high regard of the state for the site, he said that a state-sponsored school for waste management is to be held on the property. He also said that state and federal money used to develop the site in 1980 had been earmarked under the assumption that the dump would be regional.

Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens, an opponent of the regional disposal plan, fears contamination of the water supply by hazardous chemicals. Owens says that he cannot see how the dump could keep from filling up if it accepted waste material from other counties and expressed concern as to who would be in charge of the site. Owens says that some method would be needed to determine if hazardous materials were being brought in. He also feels that the proposed cost to surrounding counties would be too low, pointing out that the $35,000 charged Knott county would not even buy a small bulldozer. He also expressed concern that the public had not been properly informed about the solid waste proposal and that they should have a chance to express their views. Owens said that he was invited to a meeting of the Floyd County Solid Waste by Robert McAninch, but no one else was present. Thus, when many other counties are seeking ways to insure that waste from outside their boundaries be kept out, Floyd county seems to be moving in the opposite direction.

Rough and Tough Residents Facing Loss of Gas Supply

By Tim Sizemore

It may be a cold winter for five families living on Rough and Tough near David if Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company carries out its decision to discontinue the line supplying their homes.

George and Nora Slone, residents to be effected by the shut down, cannot understand why after years as a gas customer, they and others are to be cut off. Mrs. Slone said that she received a notice from Equitable Gas, a subsidiary of Kentucky West Virginia Gas informing her that service would be cut off in 10 days and advising her to seek an alternative fuel supply. The Slones say that won't be easy since they are on a fixed income.

"They should have given us notice in the spring instead of waiting until now," Mrs. Slone said. "We tried to get gas back in 1973 but we had to wait until 1980 when the gas company contacted us and

Caudill Released Pending Appeal

Magistrate Eddie Caudill, District 3, who began serving a one-year sentence in the county jail here, September 8, has been released by order of Federal District Judge William O. Bertelsman pending disposition of an appeal, according to his attorney Ned Pillersdorf.

The appeal, if successful, could result in a reversal which would send the case back to Pike county, or, as Pillersdorf contends it should, the case could be retried in the district where the alleged crime occurred.

The indictment of Caudill and 15 others by a grand jury, here, in December 1984, followed an investigation by state police into the county's finances.

Left Beaver School Site Remains Divisive Issue

By B.A. Heinze

While the war of words has abated in recent weeks, apparently the division over the location of the Left Beaver Consolidated School remains as deep as ever among those who live in that section and whose children will attend the proposed school.

Two weeks ago, Representative Greg Stumbo came out against consolidation and called for an on-site inspection by Superintendent of Instruction Alice McDonald.

Last Tuesday, McDonald was placed squarely in the crossfire generated by the controversy, and the possibility of litigation has been raised.

In a letter to McDonald dated September 15, Ned Pillersdorf, attorney for the Left Beaver Concerned Citizens, pointed out the following:

—The proposed Left Beaver High School will have approximately 700 students.

—Minimum high school sites are supposed to be 10 acres plus one acre for each 100 students of anticipated enrollment. This would mean the minimum site should have 17 acres.

—According to the architect, the proposed Left Beaver School site will have only seven acres.

Under 702 KAR 4:050. Building sites; inspection; approval, relating to KRS 162.010, etc., Section 2. The minimum size of school sites shall be as follows:

Middle school, junior high school, and high school: Ten (10) acres plus an additional acre for each 100 or fraction of 100 students of anticipated enrollment.

Supt. McDonald, pursuant to the Kentucky Open Records law, was further requested by Pillersdorf to advise as to whether she had investigated the site and if so, if she had approved the site and under what circumstances.

The group pushing for an answer from McDonald says it is no longer interested in the Minnie site which was the other location given serious consideration by the school board, architects, and interested citizens. There are said to be several other sites they consider more suitable, some of which are closer to Wheelwright.

The bottom line of the letter was, "Please advise, so as to avoid litigation."

As of yesterday (Tuesday) no answer had been forthcoming. The question is, "What next?"

Youth Injured In Cliff Fall

By Tim Sizemore

A fall from a cliff, Friday, could have proved tragic for a 14-year-old Floyd county youth, but luck was on his side and he's back home from the University of Kentucky Medical Center and recovering.

Darrel Hall, who was camping last Friday night near Dickey Town, fell down a cliff at approximately 11 p.m. while attempting to jump between rocks near the cliff's edge.

At 1:15 a.m., the Floyd county rescue squad was informed of the boy's plight and eight members rushed to the scene accompanied by two Respond Ambulance attendants.

Chuck Akers, captain of the rescue squad, said that the youth had fallen about 30 feet.

Akers said that he located the Hall youth because a camping companion, Michael Conley, had built a fire to show the location of the victim.

Akers said that the terrain was extremely difficult and because of the thorny undergrowth the youth was not brought to the bottom of the mountain until around 6 a.m.

Akers said that Hall was conscious when he arrived but complained of chest pains.

American Electric Gets New Identity

The American Electric Power family of companies, including Kentucky Power Company, recently introduced a new corporate identity.

Objective of the effort is to present a single, positive image to their customers, security owners and employees. It is the first time in AEP's 80-year history that all of its eight operating companies will bear similar corporate names and present them in a uniform way.

American Electric Power Company, with headquarters in Columbus, is a holding company with eight operating company subsidiaries. Three of those subsidiaries changed their names as part of the corporate identify program for the sake of uniformity. All eight companies now contain the word Power. The three are Columbus Southern Power Company (changed from Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Company), Columbus, Ohio; Indiana Michigan Power Company (changed from Indiana & Michigan Electric Company), Fort Wayne, Indiana; and Wheeling Power Company (changed from Wheeling Electric Company), Wheeling, West Virginia. The other companies, in addition to Kentucky Power, are Appalachian Power Company, Roanoke, Virginia; Kingsport Power Company, Kingsport, Tennessee; Michigan Power Company, Three Rivers, Michigan; and Ohio Power Company, Canton, Ohio.

Together, they provide electric service to 7-million people in or near 3,300 communities over a 46,000-square-mile area in seven East-Central states. Kentucky Power Company serves 360,000 people in 332 communities over a 3,765-square-mile area.

The heart of the new corporate identity is its new symbol or "mark," a red parallelogram enclosing the letters "AEP" in white. Robert E. Matthews, Ky. Power President explained: "This will help provide to the public instant recognition of the fact that each company is part of the larger whole. Until now, each company, including the parent AEP itself, had its own individual logotype, and each was different from the others."

Sorghum Festival Will Begin Friday

Another long-running event, the Morgan County Sorghum Festival will begin its 17th year, Friday, in West Liberty and continue through Sunday.

Theme of this year's festival is "Pure Kentucky," and in addition to a mule-powered cane mill where visitors can taste molasses hot off the boil, there will be soup beans, onions, and corn bread, dried apples, and dried apple stack cakes, for pure Kentucky eating.

And the same will be found in the 88 arts and crafts booths on Main Street and in the entertainment with clogging, square dancing, country, Bluegrass and Gospel music in continuous performance.

What so many cars are trying to be, these already are.

A great many carmakers aspire to create automobiles that approach the quality of the Mercedes-Benz S-Class. And some of their efforts have been laudable indeed.

But for those who are committed to the utmost in quality and engineering excellence, the cars of the Mercedes-Benz S-Class still have no peer. For over one hundred years Mercedes-Benz has been setting the standards—and then exceeding them. It is no wonder that the "big Mercedes" has built a reputation that the world strives to emulate.

Naturally, those who sell a car of this quality must be dealers of equal quality. We must have the trained, dedicated, professional personnel who can live up to the standards of customers who have chosen Mercedes-Benz as their standard. And we must do everything possible to extend the special feeling of S-Class ownership beyond the car itself.

So, if you are one of those people who cannot abide second best—either in the car you drive or in the way it is maintained—come in to see us soon. We're your local authorized Mercedes-Benz dealer. And we already are what the others are trying so hard to become.

Like no other dealers in the world.

Gun Laws No Answer

The recent tragedy in a London suburb in which a man shot and killed 14 people is sad proof that strict gun laws do not and cannot stop determined criminals and crazed persons in any country from committing murderous acts.

It is internationally acknowledged that England's gun laws are among the most restrictive in the world. Automatic firearms only may be possessed with authority from the Home Secretary, while rifles, pistols—for competition only—and shotguns with barrels of less than 24 inches require that a certificate be issued by a police chief only to persons who can show "good reason" for possession. Even long-barrelled shotguns require a certificate.

While horrible incidents such as the one that occurred in Hungerford are rare in England, it is widely acknowledged that gun-related crime has been increasing over the past several years despite the country's tough gun laws.

According to former Chief Inspector Colin Greenwood of the Halifax, England, Constabulary, "The use of firearms in crime was very much less when there were no controls." In fact, from 1969 to 1979 Great Britain's gun-related crimes rose from 1,308 to 6,547, according to a report by the U.S. Library of Congress titled "Gun Control Laws in Foreign Countries." A 1971 Cambridge University study of England's gun laws suggested "abolishing or substantially reducing controls."

Most scholars agree that English customs and culture are the determining factors in crime rates, not gun control. Another major factor in the low violent crime in the country is its system of jurisprudence. Criminals are swiftly and severely punished for their crimes. (Use of a gun in a burglary calls for imprisonment for life.)

The answer to reducing violent crime and gun-related crime in the United States is tougher penalties for criminals. But our criminal justice system doesn't seem to be doing the job.

In many places in the United States—Texas, Oklahoma and the District of Columbia are among the leaders—hundreds of prisoners are being released from jail before serving their full terms because of overcrowding. Others are turning more and more to probation.

Two recent cases of violence show the real problem in America: William Cruse, who in April shot and killed six people in Palm Bay, Fla., still is awaiting trial. Cruse probably will plead not guilty by reason of insanity, and may never serve time in prison; and a Virginia man who murdered a Virginia State Trooper and another man just last year could be eligible for parole in only seven years.

There are approximately 20,000 gun laws in this country, yet violent crime continues to climb. And it is no coincidence that crime rates, which fell from 1980 to 1984 when the prison population was reaching an all-time high, now are on the rise as crowded prisons turn prisoners loose by the hundreds or refuse to accept new criminals.

It's a shame we have to be reminded of the truth by such a painful incident occurring so far away. It's time we learned the lesson. To reduce the abuse of firearms, we must certainly and severely punish the abusers. No law can ever eliminate access to firearms to those intent on inflicting evil on good and decent people no matter where they live.

REBEKAH LODGE MEETS

Mariam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 met in regular session, Tuesday evening, September 15, with the noble grand, Mrs. Mabel Jean LeMaster, presiding. The regular routine of business was taken care of, and those on the sick list were noted, with cards being signed to mail to them. Two petitions for membership were presented. The Noble Grand reminded members of the seating of the officers at the Rebekah State Assembly to be held in Paintsville in October and asked for volunteers to help. Members were advised that Mrs. Mollie Hyden had declined to serve as vice grand, and Mrs. Wallen was elected in this capacity. The upcoming noble grand, Mrs. Teresa Maynard, read a list of her appointive officers for the forthcoming year as follows: Right Supporter to the Noble Grand, Mrs. Paulena Owens; Left Supporter to the Noble Grand, Mrs. Emma Lou Horn; Color-Beaver, Mrs. Sue Wells; Warden, Mrs. Sue Moore; Conductor, Mrs. Nancy Duff; Chaplain, Mrs. Jewell Bayes; Assistant Chaplain, Mrs. Virginia S. Goble; Musician, Mrs. Venelia Rinehart; Inside Guardian, Mrs. Mollie Hyden; and Outside Guardian, Mrs. Dottie Lafferty.

Present for this meeting were Mabel Jean LeMaster, Teresa Maynard, Beverly Hackworth, Dorothy Osborne, Lorena Wallen, Paulena Owens, Venelia Rinehart, Hope Whitten, Emma Lou Horn, Myrtle Allen, Cindy Hackworth, Maman Leslie, Dottie Lafferty, Norma S. Stepp, and Margaret Baldrige. The next meeting will be at the I.O.O.F. Building, Tuesday evening, October 6, at 7 o'clock.

Yoakam To Return

I am writing this letter with much enthusiasm. I have kept in close touch with Dwight Yoakam and his manager since last March, when he did his concert at Betsy Layne Field House. Dwight said when leaving last spring, "I would like to return in the fall for another show." Recently on the front page of the U.S.A. Today paper, Dwight said, "the response he most cherishes came at a crowded gymnasium recently in Betsy Layne, Kentucky. 'Those people came out of those hollers and hills to see me, including great aunts and uncles of mine in their 80's and 90's, some in wheel chairs. It was something I won't forget for a long time. I told them that I take from them my spirit.'"

Dwight's manager would not agree for him to come back to the Betsy Layne Field House because of the lack of seating capacity. But he has agreed to let him do a performance at the Prestonsburg Field House on Tuesday night, October 13th. He will be helping pay off the debt for the Betsy Layne Band uniforms, and at the same time a fee for the use of the Prestonsburg Gym. This money will be used for whatever the principal sees fit.

I am asking you to encourage your employee's, family and friends to come out and help us give him a second "WELCOME HOME." He claims deep roots in Eastern Kentucky, and we hope it will always remain that way.

Get your tickets early and don't worry about parking. We will be running shuttle vehicles, (Dwight Yoakam Fans), to get you to the show on time with a minimum amount of walking. "Don't worry about your evening meal, because we will have loads of pop-corn, hot dogs and drinks on hand."

Don't miss this big event! Be there on time to literally roll out the red carpet for Eastern Kentucky's own Dwight Yoakam.

Supreme Court Judges

I am writing about a decision you made the last session.

As landowners we don't have any rights over our land, other than paying taxes on it.

You should come to eastern Ky. and look around before you vote on the broad form deed.

You hear a lot about criminals' rights. Don't landowners have any rights other than to vote and pay taxes?

I wonder what you would do if it was your land. Think about this. Remember the golden rule.

Please think about the landowner, our homes, our water, our mountains that are being damaged by the big coal operators. If you take all this into consideration, I think you will vote for the landowner.

Writers Share Knowledge At Workshop for Students

They came without pay, some of them from as far as Virginia and Lexington, to share their talents and their knowledge with the students of Floyd county, and their generosity did not go unnoticed. These were the writers, storytellers and the film makers that gathered at Jenny Wiley State Park, September 14, to conduct a Writers' Workshop. Their message was almost unanimous: the place to begin as a writer is with the world around you.

"They were all so interesting, because they were talking about me, in a way, where I live," sophomore Denessa Dailey from Wheelwright High School said about the 10 professionals who conducted the sessions.

"I'm sure all their schedules were busy, but they still took the time to talk to us. Their presence indicated that they really care about us and are interested in helping us learn. It makes me feel very special," Marsha Johnson, a junior from Wheelwright High School added.

Approximately 200 students attended the one-day workshop sponsored by the Floyd County School system and the School-Community Partnership Committee which is an arm of the Floyd County Education Forum. September has been declared School-Community Partnership Month by Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo.

"You ought to think about making this a regional event," Homer Marcum, editor of the Martin Countian told the organizers. "We don't have anything like this for the young people in our county. Students learn to write by having the chance to talk to writers."

Marcum took part in a panel discussion about the way Eastern Kentucky is presented by the news media and some of the issues that confront the region. He was joined by newspaper publisher, Al Smith, who does the weekly "Comment on Kentucky" for KET, Barbara Justice of the Appalachian News Express, Debbie Bays, who works with the radio station WMMT out of Whitesburg, and Ron Marstin, a member of Prestonsburg Community College's faculty.

Poor weather conditions prevented Eliot Wigginton, founder and editor of the Foxfire books, from coming to give the keynote speech of the workshop, but organizers say he is scheduled to appear at a similar workshop, November 23. That workshop will also be sponsored by the School-Community Partnership Committee as part of the Pilot Writing Project funded by the state Department of Education. Twenty-one junior high and high school teachers from 15 of the county's schools will be participating in the year-long project Writing Across the Curriculum.

Gurney Norman, writer-in-residence at the University of Kentucky, spoke to the students on what it was like being a writer from Eastern Kentucky. He talked about what it was like growing up near Hazard and the opportunities that gave him for writing.

If this workshop is any indication of the type of opportunities available to the students of Floyd county, writing may become a very real possibility for some of them. As one student expressed it, "To me this workshop is the opportunity needed for Floyd county high school students. It gives me the incentive to write."

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Roosevelt Stanley
Born Sept. 25, 1900
Died Aug. 3, 1985

"OUR DAD"

A heart of gold stopped beating,
Two shining eyes at rest,
God broke our hearts to prove to us,
He takes the very best.

Little did we know that morning, the Sorrow the day would bring,
The end was sudden, the shock severe,
We never knew death was so near.

When days are sad and lonely, and Evening shadows fall,
We hear your voice, we see your face,
Your memory is with us all.

God knew you had to leave us, but You didn't go alone,
For part of all of us went with you,
The day God called you home.

Sadly missed by wife, Carmia Stanley, and children; grandchildren, great-grandchildren, and great-great-grandchildren.

Western Lakes Region Nice Place To Retire

The Western Lakes Region is a nice place to visit, and you would want to live there.

The Lakes Region received national publicity recently when it was listed as the top retirement spot in the country by the publication "Rand McNally's Retirement Places Rated." State officials say the distinction calls attention to the importance of tourism in the region.

"The Lakes Region is a prime recreation area," said Mimi Lewis, commissioner of the Department of Travel Development. "It attracts visitors from throughout the Midwest to enjoy boating, fishing, hiking and other outdoor activities."

Department statistics show travelers spent $170.2 million in the 15-county region last year. This was a 4.2 percent increase over 1985, after inflation is taken into account.

Communities around Kentucky Lake and Lake Barkley are devoting more effort to capturing a share of the tourist dollar, Lewis said. Murray recently attracted the National Boy Scout Museum, and Paducah has seen an increase in tourism because of a successful downtown renovation project. The region also boasts a number of active tourism marketing organizations, a key to local growth, Lewis noted.

Tourism Secretary Wendell Combs said he hopes the publicity will translate into more activity for the region, and for the rest of Kentucky.

Referring to criteria used in rating the retirement spots, he said, "It stands to reason that an area that has a low crime rate, abundant recreational facilities, and a favorable climate would also be a good place to spend a vacation."

Literacy Conference Meeting in Lexington

In Kentucky, 400,000 adults lack basic reading skills. A comprehensive national movement, involving both the private and public sectors, is building momentum to address the enormous problem of illiteracy. Project Literacy U.S. (PLUS), in its second year, is creating more ways to combat illiteracy.

KET will present a workshop on PLUS and other literacy efforts at the second annual Conference on Literacy sponsored by the Kentucky Literacy Commission today (Wednesday) through Friday in Lexington.

The goals of the conference are to create awareness of Kentucky's statewide literacy network, enrich local programs through workshops and speakers and provide sharing time for networking with others involved in teaching adult Kentuckians to read.

Keynote speaker for the conference will be Jonathan Kozol, a nationally known educator, author, social critic and political activist. Kozol's best-selling book released in 1968, "Death at an Early Age," helped awaken the national concern that led to the transformation and desegregation of the Boston Public Schools. Kozol continues to address social issues in his latest book, "Illiterate America. The KET Special Events Crew will tape Kozol's address for a future program.

In addition to the PLUS presentation by KET, other workshops at the two and a half day conference will include grant writing, community development, computers, testing and student evaluation, public relations, learning disabilities and dyslexia, and panel discussions and questions and answers by business representatives and literacy students.

For more information about the conference, contact the Kentucky Literacy Commission, 924 Capital Plaza Tower, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, or call (502) 564-4062, or 1-800-654-READ.

Foster Care Survey Places State High

Kentucky is often maligned for its poor ranking among states in public funding for children's services, but a national survey finds one area where Kentucky compares favorably: foster care support.

A report by the American Public Welfare Association of basic payments to foster parents in the immediate past fiscal year places Kentucky's foster care support rates either first or second in the nine-state southeastern region.

In fact, Kentucky's support rates for foster children from infancy through the teenage years ranks 10th in the nation in one category, 14th in another and 16th in the third level of payments to foster parents in the 50 states.

Anna Grace Day, commissioner of Kentucky's Department for Social Services, said she was especially pleased with the results of the APWA report comparing Kentucky to its seven neighboring states.

"Not one of the state adjoining Kentucky makes monthly assistance payments to its foster parents on a level with this state," Day said. "This shows the commitment that state government and the legislature have made to supporting the Kentuckians who have opened their homes to abused and neglected children."

Day also hopes the national report will help Kentucky in its ongoing campaign to recruit hundreds of needed additional foster homes.

"We know that many of our foster parents spend far more on these children than the state provides in support," she said. "I hope our 1,700 families will know from this report that Kentucky is doing its best in financial support of and care for its troubled children."

Alaska topped the APWA report in all three age bracket categories surveyed: two years, nine years and 16 years of age.

During the 1986-87 fiscal year, Kentucky paid $248 a month in support of foster children in the two-year-old age bracket. That ranked 10th in the nation (2nd among southeastern states), compared to a high in Alaska of $428 and a low in neighboring West Virginia of $127.

For foster children age nine, Kentucky foster parents received $263 a month to assist in child care costs. That ranked 14th in the nation (2nd among the nine southeastern states) and compared to Alaska's rate of $474 and Mississippi's support rate of $150 a month.

In the report category of foster children age 16, Kentucky's assistance payment of $300 a month ranked 16th nationally but tied with Georgia for first in the southeastern section of the nation. Alaska again topped the rankings with a rate of $565 a month with Mississippi paying $160 monthly to parents of its older foster children.

Last year Kentucky foster parents received nearly $12 million in support for the year-round care of the approximately 2,700 abused or neglected children in need of foster home protection.

Miss Taylor-Mr. Harlan Wed

A summer wedding at the Lutheran Church of the Resurrection in Roseville, Calif., marked the nuptials of Ron Harlan and Jean Taylor.

The bride wore a traditional gown of white silk organza with the bodice of the gown cut with a scooped neckline and tapered to a v-shaped dropped waistline. An overlay of flowered lace covered the bodice and also composed the gown's long tapered sleeves. The lace overlay and sleeves were complemented with sequins and pearls. The two-tiered skirt draped from satin bows at the front and back and ended in rows of Italian lace. The ensemble was completed by a seven-layer illusion veil cascading from a pearl and sequin-studded chapel cap. The bride carried a bouquet of red and white roses accented by strands of pearls.

Rene Steele, of Roseville, Calif., cousin of the bride, and Beverly Taylor, of Sacramento, Calif., the bride's sister, served as bridesmaids. The groom's nieces, Valerie Rudholm and Laurie Rudholm, served respectively as junior bridesmaid and ring bearer. The bride's niece, Ann Taylor, served as flower girl.

Steven James, of Auburn, Calif., served as the best man, and the bride's brothers, John Taylor, of Mt. Vernon, Ohio, and Mark Taylor, of San Francisco, Calif., served as ushers.

The bride was given in marriage by her uncle, Roger Steele, of Roseville, Calif.

The chapel's altar area was adorned with lilies and with bouquets of red and pink roses, and wedding music was provided by Mrs. Mary Dozier, harpist, and Suzanne Rudholm, of Union City, Calif., the groom's sister and a flautist, accompanied the harp. Dorothy Harlan, the groom's mother, provided the organ music for the processional. Vocal selections were provided by Owen Harlan, father of the groom, and Holly Taylor, the bride's sister-in-law.

The ceremony was followed by a buffet dinner held at the Fallcreek Landing Restaurant in Roseville, California.

Miss Taylor is the daughter of Lillian Steele Taylor, of Marysville, California, and John Taylor, of Cincinnati, Ohio. Mr. and Mrs. Taylor are former residents of Betsy Layne.

Mr. Harlan is the son of Dr. and Mrs. Owen Harlan, of Sun City, Ariz.

Miss Taylor holds a B.A. degree from Morehead State University and an M.P.A. degree from California State University, Sacramento. She is a business instructor at Glendale College in Glendale, Calif. Mr. Harlan holds a B.S. degree from California State University, Hayward, and completed master's and doctoral work in marine biology at the University of California, Santa Barbara. He is an associate professor of biology at Glendale College, director of a marine biology field station in Baja De Los Angeles, Mexico, and owner of a water purification distribution business. The couple will make their home in the Los Angeles area.

No Need To Wait For Better Rate

Escalating mortgage interest rates are starting to cool the home buying plans of many Kentuckians. Conventional fixed rate loans have moved to the 10-1/2% to 11-1/2% range. The Kentucky Housing Corporation (KHC) has what it believes is the best deal around for families most sensitive to rising rates. KHC is offering 9-3/8% interest rate financing to qualified buyers. Interest rate isn't the only advantage of a KHC loan. A KHC borrower knows at the time of application what the rate will be when the loan closes. This lock-in provides peace of mind to borrowers who otherwise might be hurt by upward movement in interest rate prior to closing. Another key advantage of KHC financing is the fact that the KHC home loans are fixed rate loans for the 25 year term. The fixed rate feature offers protection from rising housing costs that would occur with upward movement of adjustable rate mortgages.

According to KHC Executive Director F. Lynn Luallen, KHC is the buyer's best friend. "We design our home loan programs to help Kentucky homebuyers purchase modest homes. We have developed a loan program that is affordable, and provides long-term financial assistance to Kentucky families and individuals. We are big believers in homeownership. We think it strengthens families and communities. And, KHC serves homebuyers not likely to be served in the conventional market place."

KHC loans are available statewide through a network of local banks and savings and loans and mortgage companies. To find the lender nearest you and learn more about a KHC home loan, call the toll free HOME LINE 1-800-633-8896.

Public Hearing Set For Tuition Changes

The Finance Committee of the Council on Higher Education, the agency which sets the tuition rates for Kentucky's public universities and community colleges, will hold public hearings in Lexington, Bowling Green and Ashland, on a potential midyear tuition increase and possible changes in its tuition setting policy.

The meetings will be held September 24, at 2 p.m. (CT) at Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green, in the theater of the Downing University Center; September 28, at 10 a.m. (ET) at the Ashland Community College, Ashland, in the auditorium.

As a reason for the hearings, the Council pointed to the reductions in the higher education operating budgets of $8.9 million in 1986/87 and of $9.4 million in 1987/88 made necessary by shortfalls in the state's General Fund revenues. Preliminary revenue estimates for the upcoming two academic years indicate that only limited state funding may be available for government operations, including higher education.

In such a situation, where the state appropriations may not be sufficient to support the current programs without damaging the quality at the institutions, the council has decided to investigate other possible sources of additional funds, including an increase in tuition beginning in the spring semester of 1988 and revising the Council's current tuition-setting policy.

The Finance Committee will make its recommendations on tuition to the full Council in November. The Council will set tuition rates for each year of the 1988/90 biennium when it makes its biennial state appropriations recommendations, tentatively scheduled for November 5, 1987.

The Council staff has developed a briefing paper on tuition alternatives as background information for the council. A copy is available from the office. Contact Norman L. Snider, Council on Higher Education, 1050 U.S. 127, South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, or call (502) 564-3553.

Everybody's Science Country Garden Comes To Town

By Stephen Berberich

The sight of 12 nuns dancing and singing in a living gazebo of flowers at the National Country Garden gave Marc Cathey great satisfaction.

"One of the sisters told me that they often visited the Arboretum," said Cathey. "But this new garden," she said, "built on federal land out of care for people, just made us break out in joyous song and dance."

As director of the U.S. National Arboretum, Cathey had gone out on a limb to establish the Garden in 1984. He had wanted the new garden, one of 88 at the Arboretum, to express the spirit of independence and self-reliance of America. But it would be a departure from the country estate ambience of the 60-year-old Arboretum. The 444-acre green oasis in bustling northeast Washington is a living laboratory for scientists of the USDA's Agricultural Research Service, and it contains one of the world's best collections of landscape plants.

In contrast, the National Country Garden began as a collection of found lumber and discarded concrete forms. But that was precisely the point!

The Garden is a model for teaching city dwellers how to build and use gardens in confined spaces with discarded materials. On display are small urban gardens for townhouses and apartment balconies, raised beds for narrow side lots, and container and kitchen window gardens. The project is designed to show people how to deal with problems such as too much sun or shade or too little water.

"The Garden is for all people—the poor, the affluent, the city dweller, the suburbanite," said Cathey. "It is a tribute to the importance of gardens in life and particularly the importance of family gardens in the urban environment. I think that good gardens mean good neighborhoods."

The National Country Garden also displays gardens that can be tended by people who use wheelchairs or walkers, and vegetable gardens that can produce $50-400 worth of produce. Harvested vegetables and cut flowers are donated to local soup kitchens.

One of the most striking features of the Garden is an area of vertical plantings. Containers of plant potting mix are built upon each other. Plants, fed by liquid fertilizers, grow out of the sides and top of each container. The planters are used to build flower-covered walls, arbors, a maze, a teepee, a wishing well and, of course, a gazebo for singing nuns. (Agricultural Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture)

'Sense of Place in Appalachia' Theme of 2-Day MSU Symposium

John Stephenson

David Hawpe

Thomas Clark

"A Sense of Place in Appalachia" will be the theme for a two-day Appalachian Symposium at Morehead State University next month, featuring more than 30 speakers from eight states and Canada.

Scheduled for Oct. 8-9, the symposium will explore the importance of a sense of place, that feeling of belonging, which has fallen victim to today's mobile society, according to Dr. S. Mont Whitson, MSU professor of sociology and symposium coordinator.

"Appalachians have a strong sense of their 'place' which has provided them with a sense of security and serenity in a world that appears to have lost much of its sense of purpose and direction," Dr. Whitson said.

"Appalachians may have the balm that modern man needs for healing," he added. "Exploring their way of life might indeed help modern man to re-examine his sense of homelessness, and replace that emptiness with a sense of place."

Sponsored by MSU's Department of Sociology, Social Work and Corrections and the Office of Regional Development Services, the symposium will focus on a wide variety of topics, including geography, religion, the arts, values and the region as depicted by the media.

"It is one of the most ambitious scholarly undertakings this campus has been involved in for several years," said Dr. Whitson. "The list of speakers and panelists reads like a 'Who's Who' of Appalachian scholars," he added.

The speakers represent a diversity of disciplines and have been drawn from Indiana, Tennessee, South and North Carolina, West Virginia, New Jersey, Virginia and Kentucky as well as Canada.

Among the speakers are Ruel Foster, West Virginia University; Berea College President John Stephenson; Thomas D. Clark, University of Kentucky professor emeritus; Clifford Swensen, Purdue University; William Talley, McGill University; John Opie, director of the Center for Technology Studies, New Jersey Institute of Technology; Ron Eller, director of UK's Appalachian Center; David Hawpe, editor, The Courier Journal, native of Pikeville.

The symposium, which has been funded in part by a Kentucky Humanities Council grant, is open to the public. Additional information is available by calling Dr. Whitson at (606) 783-2656 or by writing him at UPO 722, Morehead State University, Morehead, Ky. 40351.

State Grant Boosts Handicapped Persons

A new advocacy group of professionals, parents and individuals concerned for people with handicaps will start off on a firm financial foundation thanks to the Kentucky Developmental Disabilities Planning Council.

The Kentucky Coalition for People with Handicaps has been awarded a $23,924 grant by the council. The funds will cover the first-year expenses of the organization, whose goal is to improve the quality of life for all Kentuckians with handicaps or disabilities through improved services and opportunities.

The formation of a single agency should prevent potential confusion caused by random, conflicting or competitive actions by several support groups or individuals, according to Rich Eversman, the DD Council's executive director. The 24-member council is an advisory board to the Cabinet for Human Resources.

"The coalition will act as a vehicle to mobilize the tremendous potential of the many advocacy and service groups, as well as concerned parents and others throughout Kentucky," said Eversman.

"A statewide unified voice could have a major impact on regulations and the availability of services. This group could support an information network and review, monitor and comment on state plans on an interagency basis."

The coalition is expected to conduct an organizational meeting next month in Lexington. Eversman said the meeting is to approve the by-laws, appoint a director and confirm the objectives and plans for the group.

"We're urging advocacy and service groups for handicapped people throughout Kentucky to send a representative to the meeting so the coalition will be able to gather input from as many diverse sources as possible," said Eversman.

"By involving as many people as possible, we can create a greater public awareness and education regarding issues, needs and attitudes of people with handicaps and disabilities."

For more information on the Kentucky Coalition for People with Handicaps, interested persons may contact Eversman in Frankfort at (502) 564-7841.

Farm Safety, Good Sense Farm Safety Week Theme

Farm Safety Makes Good Sense is the theme for this year's Farm Safety Week in Kentucky.

In proclaiming the week, Sept. 20-26, Gov. Martha Layne Collins pointed out the need for farm families and farm workers to be more aware of the hazards on the farm.

"Many accidents and illnesses on the farm can be prevented by using protective equipment and by having family and employees follow health and safety guidelines and exercise appropriate care in all farm activities," the proclamation stated.

Agriculture has one of the highest accidental death rates among the nation's major industries. In 1986, nationwide there were 170,000 disabling injuries on the farm and about 1,700 farm-related deaths.

"An average of 70 Kentuckians lose their lives each year in farming accidents. Many more are seriously injured or disabled.

"Following good safety practices at home and on the farm is an investment in accident and illness prevention," said Agriculture Commissioner David Boswell.

"Farmers should be aware that taking safety precautions in their work isn't expensive. It doesn't cost any more to read instructions, take time to check out equipment or give instructions to workers before beginning their tasks. The costs of safeguards that must be purchased for equipment are almost negligible compared to what they could save. Who can put a dollar value on life?"

During Farm Safety Week, it makes good sense to make accident and illness prevention a management goal for your operation during the coming year.

Remember, it doesn't cost any more to:

Curbing America's Appetite For Trash:

An Exercise In Waste Control

In the 1980's we've come to embrace convenience. We thrive on it and seek it out, in every form and shape from diapers to soft drinks, and the containers in which they are packaged. If something can't be fixed, filled, eaten or disposed of in a few minutes, it isn't worth the effort. And in these fast-paced times, why not? America's prosperity has paved the way for product disposability, but have we stopped to think about the consequences?

After you pitch your garbage you forget about it. You're satisfied, but unfortunately you and the city in which you live have just begun to eat the costs. City officials across the country are atesting to the fact that this laissez-faire attitude can't continue. It's not just the rising tide of trash in the landfills, a monumental problem in itself, but a variety of other costs are rising too. Environmental and health hazards abound, and stricter environmental regulations have only touched the surface. Not only is space running out, but the cost of trash disposal has reached a staggering $4 billion annually.

As cities across the country feel the weight of the crisis, they are turning to recycling with positive results. The old adage that an ounce of prevention is worth a pound of cure fits the trash bill in the case of our city landfills. It doesn't make sense to put so much effort, time and money into buying and burning our waste when often recycled materials can re-enter the manufacturing process and end up as new products. For glass manufacturers, recycling reduces air emissions, extends furnace life and reduces energy costs because recycled

92nd Annual Leedy Reunion

Over 200 descendants of John (Lidi) Leedy, immigrant (1715-1760), attended a covered dish dinner, August 8, at Leedy Park in Ankenytown, Ohio. Descendants came from Ohio, Texas, Kansas, Kentucky, Florida, Pennsylvania, North Carolina, Maryland, Indiana, Virginia, Arizona, Georgia, California, New Jersey and West Virginia. The National Reunion is held each year on the second Saturday in August at 12:30.

The business meeting was called to order by President Eugene Leedy. The Leedy Family Historian, James Leedy, Jr., gave his report on the long awaited family history that should be completed in early 1988. Copies should be available for examination and purchase at the 1988 reunion. Pictures and articles were displayed.

Officers for the year are president, Eugene Leedy; vice president, James Leedy, Sr.; secretary, Wanda Robertson; treasurer, Steve Leedy; historian, James Leedy, Jr.; park manager, Gene Leedy; trustees, Harold Bechtel, Steve, Gene, John and Chester Leedy.

Myrna Smith gave a reading on Simon Slicks Mule and Mary Jo Kaiser was soloist. Mr. Tom Whatman, descendant and an Ashbrook scholar from Ashland College, was speaker for the afternoon. He spoke of the many accomplishments of Congressman John Ashbrook also a Leedy descendant and told of the flag being flown in his honor over the Nation's Capitol that day by request of the Leedy Reunion Association Inc.

Gifts were presented by Eugene Leedy to the oldest lady present, Florence Leedy, 84, of Fredricktown, oldest man, Eugene Leedy, 91, of Neasha Falls, Kansas; youngest child, Loren Shamsk, Florence Leedy's great-granddaughter; traveled the farthest, Al Leedy, from California who traveled 2900 miles.

Rita Ridenour and Erma Roberts were presented with gifts for their many years of service as treasurer and secretary.

Marion Bowman told of her and her husbands work in Haiti as missionaries. Eugene Leedy, Neasha Falls, Kansas, led in the singing and the closing songs and prayer was given by David Dutler, of Brookville, Ohio.

In Finland it was once considered a sign of piety to shoot arrows at trees.

Sunlight has weight. That is, it exerts a pressure on anything that obstructs it.

glass melts at lower temperatures than other materials. And unlike materials like plastic, glass is reused for its original purpose.

To consider recycling as a matter of aesthetics doesn't address other benefits. It not only reduces the tonnage of refuse at dump sites by as much as 25%, but will build stronger local economies, lower disposal costs and create a cleaner environment. Jokingly referred to as our gross national product, trash and its disposal also become an issue of economics.

Cities already engulfed in garbage are beginning to recycle as an exercise in waste management; for other cities around the U.S., recycling can mean the difference between managing an existing crisis or preventing one. It's a natural solution to a man-made problem and the need for us, as consumers, to take responsibility is clear.

Much of the recent state legislation passed on litter reduction or recycling laws is the result of strong citizen lobbying efforts. Earlier this year, New Jersey Governor Thomas Kean signed legislation making recycling the law in New Jersey with a goal of recycling 25% of all municipal solid waste within two years.

A Solid Waste Management Act was recently passed in Connecticut, mandating a strategy to recycle not less than 25% of the solid waste generated in the state after Jan. 1, 1991. The comprehensive state-wide recycling program prohibits all littering and violators are subject to penalties.

In addition, a mandatory recycling bill passed in Philadelphia that could require all city residents and businesses to begin separating their trash into four categories was the first such legislation adopted by a major American city. The bill sets goals of recycling 25% of the city's trash by 1989 and 50% by 1991. Residents who do not participate face a cutoff in their city trash collection service.

The state of Illinois is now subsidizing recycling by businesses, local governments and non-profit groups. In Chicago, for example, some 85% of the 2.5 million tons the city generates is landfilled and many of the landfills will close within four years. The city's goal is to reverse the percentage by 1997.

In the nation's capital, a 15-month city-wide glass recycling program called "Operation Igloo-Glass Recycling" provides igloo-shaped receptacles in various locations for consumers to contribute glass containers. Participants in the program include the Council of Churches, the D.C. Litter and Solid Waste Commission and the Dept. of Public Works.

On the West Coast, Marin county in California has set a goal to push the county's recycling rate from 12 to 47 percent by 1990. And in Anaheim, the California Glass Recycling Corporation is coordinating several projects, one of which helps hotels, restaurants and bars establish in-house recycling programs.

Studies have shown that it takes approximately 2½ minutes a month for residents of a household to separate recyclable materials from their garbage. According to Kelly McDaniel Whitney, executive director of the Clean Valley Council in Roanoke, Virginia, another state considering recycling, "it's just a matter of getting people into the habit."

The results of a successful program can have a significant impact: For every 100,000 people who recycle half of the glass bottles and jars, 10 million bottles and jars a year can be recovered saving more than 1,600 cubic yards of landfill space.

The glass industry is actively supporting recycling by sponsoring programs and public education campaigns. Special employee glass awareness committees to promote recycling programs have been set up at several glass companies. Also, each company has developed its own in-house programs, ranging from shift competitions that include special employee awards to community outreach programs.

Responsibility for the waste disposal crisis should be shared by industry, government and consumers alike. Our amber waves of grain are being overwhelmed by not-so-majestic mountains of solid waste. With recycling, we may be able to manage the crisis before it buries us.

Sheriff Gaines Named Sheriff Of The Year

Warren county sheriff, Jerry (Peanuts) Gaines, was named Sheriff of the Year by the Kentucky Sheriffs' Association and Boys and Girls Ranch at the recent State Convention.

The selection, made by a committee of active sheriffs, was based upon Sheriff Gaines' involvement in his community, the Kentucky Sheriffs' Association, The Ky. Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch, and other civic organizations.

Among Sheriff Gaines' contributions to his county are the "Operation Childwatch" which has fingerprinted over 2,000 children in Warren County during 1987; he established and supports the Kentucky Sheriffs' Academy at Western Ky. University where he personally constructed the firing range; he established a Neighborhood Watch program in 32 different neighborhoods across Warren County as well as assisting other county sheriffs in organizing their's; he broke up the largest theft ring in the history of Warren county; and has participated in many fund raising endeavors there. He supports the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch by making it possible for 30-40 children to attend the ranch each year, plus having the largest fund raising celebrity golf tournament in the state.

He served as 1st Vice President of the Kentucky Sheriffs' Association, 1986-87 and attended district meetings in all sheriff's districts across the state. He has worked tirelessly in Frankfort for the Kentucky Sheriffs' Association and will continue to support their efforts for better legislation for sheriffs.

Second place winner was Sheriff Ben Taylor, Letcher county, and third, Sheriff Loren Carl, of Woodford county.

Sheriff Henry Hale, of Floyd county was also recognized for contributions to the Association and to the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch.

Leads AIDS Seminar

John G. Boswell, M.D.

Dr. John G. Boswell, pathologist at Highlands Regional Medical Center, recently presented an educational seminar on AIDS, to the fire and police officials of Prestonsburg.

AIDS, stands for Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome and effects an increasing number of people every year. To date, there have been over 40,000 cases reported in the U.S. At high risk are homosexual males, bisexual males, promiscuous heterosexuals, IV drug abusers, and hemophiliacs. During Dr. Boswell's presentation, he explained the methods of transmission of the AIDS virus (HIV). In addition, he covered the current thoughts on the risks of AIDS exposure as they relate to these professions. Approximately 20 fire and police employees attended the seminar.

The speakers bureau at Highlands Regional Medical Center offers many health related programs. Knowledgeable health care professionals are available to present quality seminars on requested topics. Local organizations interested in learning more about AIDS or any health related topic, may contact the Public Information office at Highlands Regional Medical Center, 886-8511 or 789-6548, ext. 286.

Chicago Dist. Court Rules Against AMA

The American Medical Association, the American College of Surgeons and the American College of Radiology were found guilty in U.S. District Court of having conspired to destroy the profession of chiropractic in the United States.

The American Academy of Orthopedic Surgeons was found to have "knowingly joined the conspiracy but to have ceased its participation in 1986 with no likelihood that AAOS would renew any boycott or conspiracy against chiropractors."

In a 101-page opinion released Thursday in Chicago, United States District Court Judge Susan Getzendanner ruled that the American Medical Association and its co-conspirators had violated the Sherman Antitrust laws of the United States. Judge Getzendanner ruled that they had done this by organizing a national boycott of doctors of chiropractic by medical physicians and hospitals using an ethics ban on interprofessional cooperation.

The lengthy decision dealt a heavy blow to the credibility of the American Medical Association—the nation's largest medical trade association which represents the economic interests of some 250,000 of the nation's 500,000 medical physicians.

Judge Getzendanner ruled: I conclude that an injunction is necessary in this case. There are lingering effects of the conspiracy; the AMA has never acknowledged the lawlessness of its past conduct and in fact to this day maintains that it has always been in compliance with the antitrust laws; there has never been an affirmative statement by the AMA that it is ethical to associate with chiropractors; there has never been a public statement to AMA members of the admissions made in this court about the improved nature of chiropractic despite the fact that the AMA today claims that it made changes in its policy in recognition of the change and improvement in chiropractic; there has never been public retraction of the articles such as "The Right and Duty of Hospitals to Deny Chiropractor Access to Hospitals"; a medical physician has to very carefully read the current AMA Judicial Council Opinions to realize that there has been a change in the treatment of chiropractors and the court cannot assume that members of the AMA pore over these opinions; and finally, the systematic long-term wrongdoing and the long-term intent to destroy a licensed profession suggests that an injunction is appropriate in the case. When all of these factors are considered in the context of this "private attorney general" antitrust suit, a proper exercise of the court's decision permits, and in my judgment requires, an injunction. (Opinion pp. 48-49).

In 1943 the AMA was convicted of a criminal violation of the antitrust laws for its attempt to destroy an innovative and cost cutting health care insurance and delivery system in Washington, D.C. The conviction was upheld by the Supreme Court of the United States. Again, in 1982, the AMA was found guilty, by the Federal Trade Commission of a decades long, systematic violation of the antitrust laws for restricting informative advertising by medical physicians and for banning innovative group practice and medical physician hiring practices. Acting as attorneys for the Federal Trade Commission in this latter case, the United States Department of Justice told the Supreme Court that the AMA's "long history of illegal behavior strongly supports the need for a remedy to reverse the effects of the restraints of trade they have imposed."

There was also evidence that the AMA knew that chiropractic care of pregnant women greatly reduced the pain and suffering experienced by women during the months leading up to and at the time of delivery, without the need for chemical pain killers that could be harmful to both mother and child. Evidence also demonstrated the efficacy of chiropractic care both in and out of a hospital setting. Testimony indicated that few medical physicians were educated in or had the expertise of doctors of chiropractic in problems involving the musculo skeletal system which comprises 60% of the body. The Court concluded:

There also was some evidence before the Committee that chiropractic was effective—more effective than the medical profession in treating certain kinds of problems such as workmen's back injuries. The Committee on Quackery was also aware that some medical physicians believed chiropractic to be effective and that chiropractors were better trained to deal with musculoskeletal problems than most medical physicians. (Opinion p. 31).

Recognizing in the early 1960's that more and more people were taking their musculo-skeletal problems to doctors of chiropractic the AMA moved forcefully to undercut the rapid growth of the profession of chiropractic, now the nation's second largest primary health care provider group.

Judge Getzendanner, who heard evidence in the case from May 5 through July 2, 1987, ruled that the actions of the AMA and its co-conspirators over the last 25 years had resulted in serious damage to the competitive process in health care, the profession of chiropractic.

The first botanic garden established in what is now the United States was in Philadelphia in 1728.

WKU Faculty Achieve High Level of Funding Of Research Grants

For the third year in a row Western Kentucky University set a new record of achievement in securing external grants and contracts for faculty research, training and public service activities.

The Office of Sponsored Programs has announced grants awarded to Western during Fiscal Year 1987 totaled nearly $3.5 million, an increase of $200,000 over 1986's record $3.3 million.

Dr. Charles Eison, director of sponsored programs at WKU, says six out of 10 proposals submitted by the university to external agencies were funded.

The number of awards received was 97, and funds from federal agencies comprised 46 percent of the sponsored effort (approximately $1.6 million), while funds from state agencies make up 31 percent (approximately $1 million).

Other public agencies provided 15 percent (about $600,000) while private agencies comprised 7 percent of the total, or $259,000 funded through the sponsored programs office at WKU.

CANCER WILL STRIKE about three out of four families living in Floyd county. This makes the disease a major concern for us. Fortunately, it's a problem we can do something about. As individuals, we can take the American Cancer Society's simple protective measures like regular health checkups, knowing cancer's warning signals, and acting on them.

Pizza... More Nutritious Than You Thought

From the American Institute for Cancer Research

Does pizza rank right at the top of your "junk food" list? It probably should if all pizza means to you is a doughy crust, dripping with oil, loaded with extra cheese and topped with fatty sausage—something to be eaten on a regular basis only at peril of your nutritional well-being.

Every pizza needs a good foundation, so a nutritious pizza starts with a whole wheat crust. Whole wheat provides a host of vitamins and minerals not available in refined flour, as well as extra fiber that's so important in your diet.

When it comes to topping a nutritious pizza, a good start is a lowfat cheese choice, such as part skim mozzarella. For delicious alternatives to the usual high fat sausage and pepperoni, try topping ideas such as chicken or turkey. Or experiment with seafood toppings like tuna or shrimp.

Vegetables add to the nutrients and fiber in a healthful pizza. To the traditional green pepper and mushrooms, add broccoli, carrot slices, eggplant, spinach, cauliflower and even alfalfa sprouts!

VEGETABLE PIZZA

Try this wholesome recipe and you'll never have to feel guilty about eating pizza again. Watch the amount you eat, however, and be sure to include some lowfat foods—such as salad, raw vegetables or bread sticks—to fill out the meal.

Topping: 8 oz. part skim mozzarella cheese, grated 2 1/2 cups fresh or frozen (unthawed) vegetables, chopped (for example 1/2 cup each broccoli pieces, sliced mushrooms, green pepper chunks, thin carrot slices and tomato slices)

- Sauce: 1 1/2 cups tomato puree 2 tsp. basil 1 tsp. garlic powder 4 tsp. oregano 1/4 tsp. pepper Pizza Dough: 1 package active dry yeast 1 tsp. sugar 1 1/4 cups warm water (110 to 115 degrees) 3 1/4 cups whole wheat flour 1/2 tsp. salt 1 1/2 tsp. olive oil 2-3 tsp. corn meal

In a small bowl combine the yeast and sugar, add the water and stir. Yeast should become active and bubbly appearing within five minutes.

Place 3 cups of the flour in a large bowl and stir in the salt. Form a well in the center of the flour, pour in the yeast mixture and add 1 tablespoon of the oil. Stir in the flour/yeast mixture until it begins to mass together, but is still soft.

Turn the dough onto a floured surface and begin to knead it. Slowly add the remaining 1/4 cup of flour until the dough is no longer sticky. Continue to knead until the dough is smooth, shiny and elastic, about 10 minutes or so.

Shape the dough into a ball and place in a large, oiled bowl; turn to coat the surface with oil. Cover the bowl with plastic wrap and set it in a warm, draft-free spot (such as a turned off oven) and let it rise until double in size (about 1 to 1 1/2 hours).

Preheat the oven to 500 degrees. Sprinkle a large pizza pan (13 inch diameter) or a large baking pan (10 inches by 15 inches) with the cornmeal. Place the risen dough onto a floured surface, roll it to the pan size and about 1/4 inch to 3/8 inch thick. Place it in the pan.

Blend the sauce ingredients together. Brush the top of the pizza dough with the remaining 1/2 tablespoon of olive oil, then spread the sauce on top. Arrange the vegetables on top of the sauce and sprinkle with the cheese.

Bake in the preheated oven until the crust is golden and the cheese is melted and bubbly (about 7 to 10 minutes). This will provide about 8 large pieces of pizza, each with about 310 calories and about 8 grams of fat.

Farm Safety Week Named Sept. 20-26

It is no secret that these are difficult times for farmers, and it is no secret that farm accidents and work-related illnesses create a great financial burden and immeasurable suffering. Governor Martha Layne Collins has proclaimed September 20 to 26 as Farm Safety Week in the Commonwealth.

An average of 70 Kentuckians lose their lives each year to farming accidents and many more are seriously injured or disabled. The following safety tips are offered by the Council in conjunction with National Farm Safety Week:

- Read operator manuals and manufacturers' labels on agricultural chemicals. Make it a habit and make sure employees do so also. Install rollover protection systems (ROPS) and safety belts on tractors that do not have them. Inspect all equipment and facilities to remove hazards and make repairs. Do this particularly throughout the year. Take precautions before starting any job. Make sure machinery shields are in good shape and in place. Use personal protective equipment—goggles, respirators, hard hats etc., when conditions call for them.

Weekend Events Conclude Hospital's Anniversary

Two weekend events will conclude Our Lady of the Way Hospital's 40th anniversary celebration. Both are open to the general public.

A "community commemorative celebration" is planned for Saturday, September 26, from 1 p.m. to 4 p.m. at the hospital's former site in downtown Martin. However, if it rains, the event will be moved to the auditorium of Martin Elementary School.

Saturday's celebration will begin with a prayer service led by Sister Marie Gangwish, who was chaplain of Our Lady of the Way Hospital from 1975 to 1986. Tiffany Slone, of McDowell, will sing a solo and lead the service's hymns. Wapeta Newsome, R.N., who has witnessed the hospital's entire history as a staff nurse; Sister of Divine Providence Jeanette O'Neill, who administered Our Lady of the Way during the transition from its former site to its present one; and Sister of Charity Ann Seton Gallagher, chairperson of Our Lady of the Way's Board of Trustees will speak briefly about the hospital's history and mission from their individual perspectives. Sister of Mercy Mary Fanning, the hospital's new administrator and chief executive officer, will also address the gathering.

Following the speeches, Sister of Charity Pat Saul, associate administrator, and Margaret Hoover, personnel director, will present gifts to individuals who have served the hospital for more than 20 years. Waneta Newsome, Helen Bradley, Annette Vanucci, Pearl Waddles, Polly Crum, Wanda Allen and Dr. Lowell Martin will be honored.

A reception will conclude Saturday's celebration.

Sunday, September 26, The Most Reverend Bishop J. Kendrick Williams, auxiliary bishop of the Diocese of Covington, will preside at a Mass of Thanksgiving at 11 a.m. at St. Martha Church.

Former employees, associates, friends and neighbors from various parts of the county, state and nation are expected to return for the celebrations.

Prospects Reduced By Dry, Hot August

As a result of above-normal temperatures and below-normal precipitation in August, the Sept. 1 forecast for crop yields is reduced from the August predictions.

"Soybeans and pastures show the sharpest decline in condition," said Agriculture Commissioner David Boswell. "Rain right now will help the pastures and late planted corn and soybeans boost their potential. Burley seems to be in good shape with more than 80 percent of the crop cut and in barns."

Soybean yields, especially late planted beans, are heavily dependent on favorable August and September weather for growth. Because of the August weather conditions, the forecast for soybean production is down 12 percent from last month to 30.6 million bushels. This is 18 percent below the 1986 yield.

As of Sept. 4, the condition of the crop was rated 4 percent very poor, 26 percent poor, 52 percent fair and only 18 percent good by reporters for the Kentucky Agricultural Statistics Service.

Rain would still help late beans, but nearly one-fourth of the soybeans have reached the shedding leaves stage of maturity or beyond. Right now, farmers can expect 30 bushels per acre from their crop.

Soybean production for the nation is expected to total 1.96 billion bushels, down 2 percent from last month. In 1986, 2.01 billion bushels were produced.

Corn for grain production is forecast at 117.3 million bushels, 3 percent below the Aug. 1 forecast and 16 percent less than 1986.

Corn harvest is underway in many areas, and early yields are good to excellent. The average yield is forecast at 102 bushels per acre. Acres planted to corn are down 25 percent from a year ago.

Corn production for the nation is forecast at 7.14 billion bushels. This is slightly down from last month's forecast of 7.23 billion bushels and considerably lower than the 8.25 billion bushels produced in 1986. Per-acre yield is forecast at 119.9 bushels.

Burley production is still expected to reach 315 million pounds, 10 percent more than 1986. With cutting more than 80 percent complete, the 1987 harvest season will be one of the earliest on record. Yields are reported as variable.

Dark tobacco is expected to be down nearly 40 percent from 1986 because of sharply reduced acreage allotments and slightly lower yields.

Burley production in the eight-state Burley Belt is expected to total 472 million pounds. This compares with 407.9 million pounds produced in 1986.

Food Index Is Down As Beef Cost Drops

Beef provided most of the sizzle in August food prices during an otherwise stable month at the supermarket counter. Falling beef prices dropped the Kentucky Farm Bureau marketbasket average 1.2 percent below the July level, leaving the index 80 cents lower at $63.48.

It was the second monthly price drop for the retail marketbasket of foods since prices peaked in June. However, the August index remained nearly 6 percent above the year-ago level of $59.98.

The five beef items on the survey dropped better than 6 percent in average cost. Rib eye steaks dropped 44 cents a pound to $5.11 and T-bone steaks were 41 cents lower, averaging $4.76 a pound. Sirloin roast and pot roast were also lower, while ground beef edged up a nickel. The composite cost of the five cuts was better than a dollar below the July figure.

Beef's main competitors at the meat counter, pork and poultry, showed little price movement during the month. Also relatively stable were dairy and grain-based foods. Aside from beef, only fruits and vegetables registered a significant price change, rising 2.3 percent.

The stable pricing among the groups didn't preclude changes in the tabs on individual items. Among the price gainers were such staples as bacon, 15 cents a pound higher at $2.30; vanilla ice cream jumped 17 cents to an average $1.80 for a half-gallon; Idaho potatoes gained 14 cents to $2.78 for a 10-pound bag; and iceberg lettuce, at 93 cents a head, registered a 13-cent boost.

Included with the August price decliners were pork spare ribs, 25 cents less, at $1.82 a pound; cut-up fryers, down 12 cents selling at 71 cents per pound; red delicious apples down a dime to 79 cents a pound; and tomatoes off 11 cents a pound to 69 cents on average.

ANALYSIS

The drop in retail beef prices follows a slight decline in the prices of live market animals, says Kentucky Farm Bureau market analyst Jeff Hall. But don't expect much more of a reduction, Hall tells consumers. In fact, he wouldn't be surprised to see even higher cattle prices—and thus higher retail tabs on beef cuts—into 1988.

Producers are selling slightly more animals now as pastures dry up, he notes, but those marketing patterns will likely shrink in the winter through next spring. Lower numbers on the market will mean reduced meat supplies and higher prices, he predicts, though that price trend could be moderated if shoppers switch to other products.

One such competitor, pork, could well be on its way to lower prices if current production increases continue as projected. Hall says hog prices could fall $10 a head or more by November, signalling lower supermarket prices.

Grain prices will continue to encourage the production of meat animals, he predicted, rising only slightly from current harvest-season lows into 1988.

LOCAL NUMBERS

Dry Ridge had the lowest local marketbasket average in August while Louisville showed up at the high end of the range. Overall, volunteers working through Kentucky Farm Bureau Women canvassed retail food prices in 18 Kentucky communities.

Those local figures were Dry Ridge, 55.64; Greenup, 59.21; Scottsville, 59.33; Glasgow, 60.09; Salyersburg, 61.73; Greensburg, 61.84; Morehead, 61.93; Hopkinsville, 62.20; Elizabethtown, 63.21.

FOOD FACTS—BEEF

The average cost of choice beef, according to the most recent USDA figures, is $2.32 per pound. Of that, farmers who grow the cattle receive about $1.26, or not quite 54 percent of the money that consumers pay for beef.

Farmers don't actually get $1.26 a pound for their live cattle, but that's the equivalent of what they receive from the usable portion of the animal. Only about 432 pounds of sellable beef cuts are carved from a 1,000-pound steer.

Of that 432 pounds, relatively small portions comprise the highest quality beef cuts which are favorites with backyard barbecuers and restaurant patrons.

Some examples: (Pounds of item from 1,000-pound animal)
Arm pot roast—22 pounds
Rib steak—12 pounds
Rib roast—24 pounds
Porterhouse steak—18 pounds
T-bone steak—9.5 pounds
Sirloin steak—41 pounds

Seniors Targeted For Winter Help

There are new SWAT Teams being established in Kentucky. They will be armed with energy education and low-cost weatherization materials and their target is senior citizens.

Seniors Weatherization And Training, to be known as SWAT, is a pilot effort being conducted by the Kentucky Energy Cabinet. It is composed of nine community-based partnerships of businesses, government agencies, non-profit groups, civic and religious organizations, and individuals who care about the energy needs of their senior citizens. Its goals are to provide in-home energy education counseling and low-cost weatherization measures to benefit seniors—all services will be provided by senior volunteers.

Seniors 55 years of age or older, regardless of income, who own and occupy their homes are eligible and there is no charge for SWAT services.

Senior volunteers counsel their peers on how to maintain a comfortable home climate during every season of the year without risk to their health or safety and also install simple, easy-to-do weatherization materials.

Funds or materials for the low-cost weatherization are raised at the local level.

Training sessions on every education counseling and weatherization techniques are being conducted for SWAT Team volunteers in nine pilot areas during the last two weeks of September.

If you are a senior in need of SWAT services, a senior who would like to become a SWAT Team volunteer, or an organization or individual who would like to donate funds or weatherization materials to SWAT, call the SWAT coordinator in your area or contact the Kentucky Energy Cabinet, Iron Works Pike, Lexington, Ky. 40578-1916, telephone (606) 252-5535.

The nine pilot areas are: LKLP Community Action Council, HC 32, Box 2150, Red Fox, KY 41847 (606) 642-3332.

Senior Citizens of Northern Kentucky, 34 West Fifth Street, Covington, KY 41011, (606) 491-0522 or 1-800-255-7265.

NFL News And Notes

One sure way to be a fan favorite is to play in front of your home fans. One sure way to earn fan respect is to win, especially when you play in front of your home fans.

Already in the two weeks of NFL action, a definite home field advantage has been established. And all across professional football fan favorites, and fan respect has been expanded through impressive home team efforts.

In the season's first two weeks, several surprises have become fact, and upsets were common place, but in the uncertain start, homefield advantage has proven reliable.

Only eight visiting teams were victorious in the first 28 NFL games, four of those coming this past weekend.

Dallas, Miami, Minnesota, and San Francisco, all enjoyed successful road trips, but teams such as Denver and Washington failed to succeed on the road against lesser competition.

Dallas, rumored to be in jeopardy of having their second consecutive losing season, got well in a hurry while dishing out some punishment to the New York Giants.

The Cowboys, playing in East Rutherford, intercepted three Phil Simms first half passes, converted two into 10 points, and beat the Giants 16-14.

New York, punchless last week against Chicago, failed to move the football against the Cowboys, and dropped to 0-2 on the season, a record which puts the defending Super Bowl champs in the basement of the NFC East.

The Miami Dolphins, losing last week on the road, traveled to Indianapolis this past Sunday, and received three touchdown passes from Dan Marino to hand the Colts a 23-10 loss.

Miami, unlike other road victories, didn't shock anyone with their win, but Minnesota continued the upset trend started during week one of the season.

Wade Wilson, Vikings' backup quarterback, tossed three touchdown passes as Minnesota upset the Los Angeles Rams, Minnesota, 2-0, is expected to challenge for a playoff spot, and currently share the NFC lead with Chicago.

One of Minnesota's biggest challenges for a possible wild card spot could come from the Rams, but with the victory Sunday, the Vikings dropped Los Angeles to 0-2.

San Francisco's 27-26 victory in Cincinnati wasn't exactly termed an upset, but the fashion of the victory upset many people in Cincinnati.

Leading by six points with only six seconds remaining in the football game, the Bengals, in possession of the pigskin, didn't punt on fourth down.

They didn't run the football backward in an attempt to run the clock out. Instead, Cincinnati ran James Brooks into the line, giving the football back to San Francisco when Brooks was stopped short of a first down.

With the clock stopped by the change of possession, the 49ers had the opportunity to get a final play off. With two seconds left in the game, Joe Montana, 49er quarterback, connected with Jerry Rice on a 25 yard game tying touchdown pass. San Francisco, with no time on the clock, won the game with a successful extra point kick.

Playing at home didn't help Cincinnati win a football game, or fan support. They walked off the field staring at the astro-turf, and stepping to the tune of several thousand boo birds.

With the loss the Bengals allowed the rest of the AFC Central to keep pace. All four teams are currently 1-1.

The Bengals would probably have rather been anywhere but in Cincinnati Sunday afternoon, but the Atlanta Falcons were glad hometown fans were able to enjoy their successful moment on a first hand bases.

The Falcons, dominated by Tampa Bay last week, sent Scott Campbell out as their starting quarterback, and he promptly threw two touchdown passes to lead Atlanta to a 21-30 victory over Washington.

The Redskins, also under the direction of a second string passer, enjoyed a solid QB showing, but Doug Williams' three scoring tosses were overshadowed by Campbell's efforts because the Redskins failed to convert a point after touchdown, the difference in the final score.

The Green Bay Packers, a team having trouble with their fans, treated the people of Milwaukee to a strong showing. The Pac didn't score a victory, but their 17-17 tie with Denver was a moral victory for Packer fans.

Denver, defending AFC champion, missed a short field goal opportunity in overtime when Rich Karlis slipped on the muddy field.

Barring some kind of miracle which has to be created by two sides who apparently don't want a miracle, week three will be spent watching re-runs of week two.

The players are still talking workout, and as a result this weekend will be football off the field. If both sides could get together, some exciting action could take place on the field.

Like the action produced in East Rutherford Monday night. After a lackluster offensive effort in the first half, nine points total, both teams opened up, but the New York Jets opened up more successful than did New England.

The Jets, leading 6-3 after two quarters, scored 21 points in the third quarter, 12 of those coming on two touchdown runs from Johnny Hector.

New England, going with Tony Eason rather than first week starter Steve Grogan, failed to generate any offense against an injury stricken Jets' defense.

In the first quarter the Patriots were held to a field goal, and Andre Tippett, a linebacker, scored their only points of the third quarter on a fumble return for touchdown.

Until they mounted a scoring drive in the fourth quarter, New England had compiled only 54 offensive yards, and although they made a run late, the Patriots fell 43-24.

With the win the Jets improved to 2-0 on the year, the first time they opened a season with two wins since 1978.

During halftime of Monday Night Football, Gene Upshaw, Players' Union representative, said a strike was unavoidable. Neither side, however, has made any mention of how long a strike will last. The owners have said that they may come back for week four, with regular players or whatever they can find.

Gingerbread Festival Race Results Listed

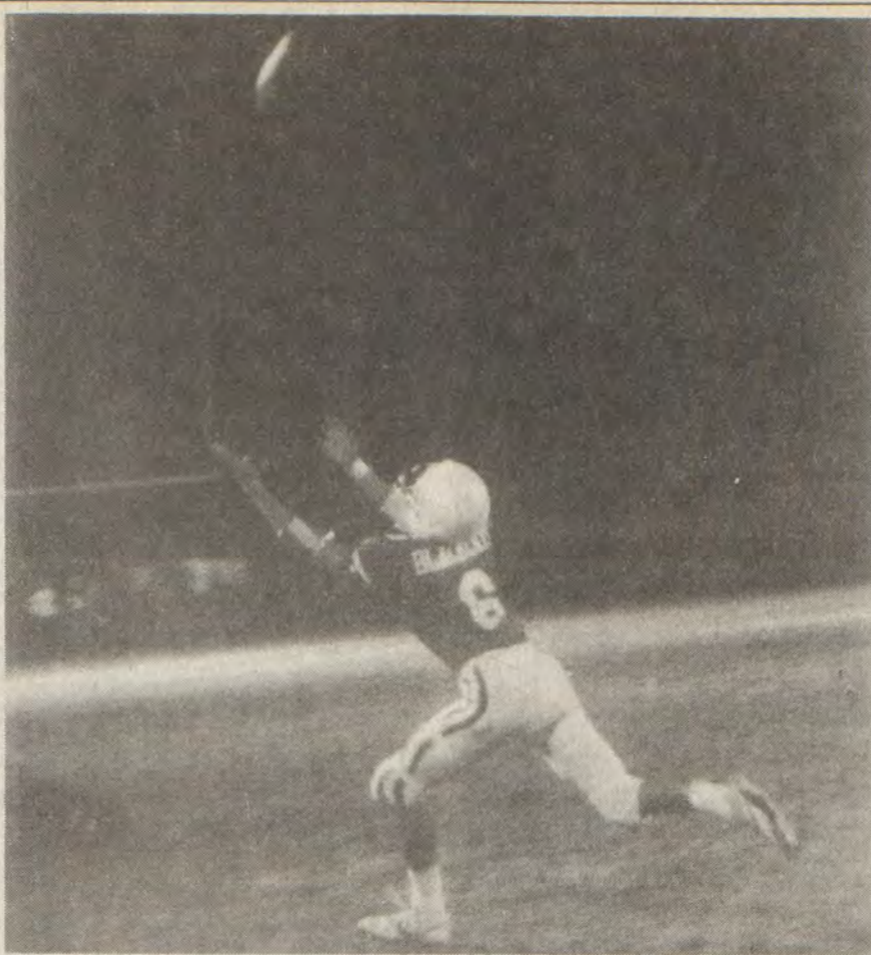

The Gingerbread Festival 10K Run Two Mile race were held at Hind-recently. Jeff Wright, of Flat Gap, won the race by over a mile from his closest competitor in 36.

(Smoky) Robinson finished overall in 43, to win a third place while Gary McKenzie, of Paints-as eighth in 43:50.

Wright also won the Two Mile 10:02.

Not all conservation efforts are in the wild. The peregrine falcon, an endangered species, was introduced successfully into several cities in the U.S., where it could nest on building ledges and prey on the large pigeon population.

REACHING OUT: Prestonsburg receiver Jamie Howell reaches out for this pass, but comes up empty as the pass proves to be over thrown.

THE SPORTING TIMES

(Continued from Previous Page) read something about learning all you need to know in the first grade. The author spoke of being honest, sharing, and not starting trouble.

I have also talked to retired teachers about education in the early years, and listened to them tell of the old one room schools. "When you graduated from the eighth grade then, you had a good education. An eighth grade education was as good as a high school one today," a former superintendent of Magoffin County schools once told me.

"Teachers today would jump in the ocean to try to keep from getting wet from the rain," another former educator told me.

People talk of poor education in eastern Kentucky, and I guess it's true, but maybe if we would teach what is needed and will be used, then school life would be more beneficial.

Oh, criticizing is easy, and for some reason I find myself doing it. Maybe it's just me, or maybe it's just because so few a people try to force unwanted material on so many people.

I remember in the first grade, when the teacher would form a smart row and a dumb row, I would go sit in the dumb row.

Hey, back then school was a big deal to me, and I pulled some tremendous grades, but I wasn't about to try and make myself look big when I know it would make another child look and feel small.

Or maybe I just knew that they weren't as dumb as the teacher wanted to make them feel. I could count higher, and read faster, but I bet today that they knew a lot more about being self-sufficient. I'll just bet that those same people know a lot more about a garden than I do. I'll just bet that they can fix their own cars. I'll just bet that they now know more about being a human being than that first grade teacher knew some 19 years ago.

SHORT SPORTS

(Continued from Previous Page) baseball have now proved to be important moves for playoff teams who are challenging for an October post-season position.

The Detroit Tigers, divisional leaders in the AL West, obtained Doyle Alexander in an August 12 trade with Atlanta, and the veteran lefthander has won seven consecutive games for Detroit, helping the Tigers held off Toronto.

The Blue Jays also went after help late in the season, acquiring Mike Flannagan, but the former Baltimore hurler hasn't enjoyed quite the success with his new team as has Alexander.

PART IV. MASTER EDUCATIONAL IMPROVEMENT PLAN INTERIM REPORT

FLOYD COUNTY SCHOOL DISTRICT

SEPTEMBER 14, 1987

EXECUTIVE SUMMARY:

The Floyd County School District's Master Educational Improvement Plan was developed by students, parents, teachers and school administrators during the 1985-86 school year and was adopted by the Floyd County Board of Education on November 6, 1985 and approved by the Kentucky Department of Education.

The goals, objectives and activities developed by the committee were determined by the results of the district's 1985 KEST-CTBS testing program, student average daily attendance, and the student drop-out rate.

Based upon these needs assessment documents, the MEIP Committee established the following goals:

GRADE 3 GOAL:

All Floyd County students in grade three (3) will improve to a mean score of the 50th NCE in reading, spelling, and mathematics as demonstrated by their KEST test results in 1986.

RESULTS:

453/4

Based upon the 1986 KEST testing program results, the students as fourth grade students did not attain the 50th NCE in reading (49.8), spelling (40.9), or mathematics (49.3). However, those same students, who were 5th grade students in 1987, did attain the goal in mathematics with a 55.3 NCE score. Also, spelling scores improved to a NCE score of 46.8. However, those students have not attained the 50th NCE in spelling (46.8) or reading (48.0).

GRADE 5 GOAL:

Students in grade five (5) in April 1985, will improve to a mean score of the 50th NCE in reading, spelling, language and reference skills.

RESULTS:

Based upon the results of the April 1986 KEST testing program, the students as sixth (6) grade students did attain a mean score of 51.0 NCE in reading. However, as sixth grade students, they did not attain a mean score of the 50th NCE in language (46.9), spelling (37.4) or reference skills (47.1). As seventh grade students in 1986-87, they did attain the goal of 50th NCE in language and reference skills with scores of 54.5 NCE in language skills with scores of 54.5 NCE in language and 50.9 in reference skills. However, they have not attained the 50th NCE score in spelling, but showed significant gain from 37.4 in 1986, to 48.1 NCE in 1987.

GRADE 7 GOAL:

Students in grade seven (7) in April 1985 will improve to the 50th NCE in reading, spelling, language and reference skills in 1986.

RESULTS:

Based upon the results of the April 1986 KEST testing program, as eighth grade students in 1986, they attained or exceeded the 50th NCE in reading (53.3), language (52.1), reference skills (54.8). They did not attain the 50th NCE in spelling (40.1). As ninth (9th) grade students in 1987, they still did not attain the stated goal in spelling but did improve to a NCE score of 47.3.

GRADE 10 GOAL:

Students in grade ten (10) in April 1985, will improve to a mean score of the 50th NCE in reading, spelling, reference skills and mathematics in 1986.

RESULTS:

Based upon the 1986 KEST testing program, as eleventh (11th) grade students they did not attain this goal in any subject area tested. However, as twelfth (12th) grade students in 1986-87, they attained the goal in reference skills with a NCE score of 50.6 and showed significant improvement in spelling with a NCE score of 49.9, mathematics with a score of 48.3 and reading with a score of 45.0.

ATTENDANCE GOAL:

The Floyd County School District's student attendance will improve by 2.0% for the 1985-86 school year.

RESULTS:

The 1984-85 district wide attendance rate was 91.46%. The 1985-86 district wide attendance rate was 91.69% and the goal was not attained. The 1986-87 district wide attendance rate was 92.42% thus indicating a 0.73% increase of attendance for the 1986-87 school year.

DROP-OUT RATE GOAL:

The Floyd County School District will reduce the drop-out rate by 0.5% for the 1985-86 school year.

RESULTS:

The 1984-85 drop-out rate was 4.4%. The 1985-86 drop-out rate was 4.3% and therefore, this goal was not attained. The drop-out rate for the 1986-87 school year was 3.88%. This is an improvement of 0.42% in the drop-out rate and is close to the state average of 3.75%.

In-service activities planned for the 1987-88 school term are delineated in the approved Master Education Improvement Plan and the approved Master In-service Education Plan for the Floyd County School District. The activities are designed to improve all students achievement in all basic skill areas, student attendance, and the drop-out rate of the students. In-service programs and activities have been centered around the proper utilization of student test results by the Floyd County certified staff as well as instructional planning, teaching by objective, time on task, and classroom management. Activities for certified staff, during in-service education, also includes programs to improve student attendance and to decrease the drop-out rate during the 1987-88 school year.

The Master Education Improvement Plan was developed and designed to be implemented over a three year period. The final results of the plan will be evaluated on or before September 15, 1988.

CATTLE WARTS

COPYRIGHT 1987 KVMA
Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association

Remember the tales you heard as a child about not picking up frogs because you'll get warts?

Guess what? It may have been true! Warts, researchers have discovered, are caused by a virus. And the frog exudes a virus which causes warts in humans.

Which likely has nothing to do with the warts which sometimes appear on cattle except that they, too, are caused by a virus and they frequently cause cosmetic problems during the season for showing cattle.

The proper name for warts is papillomatosis, and while warts may become large and unsightly they do not seriously impair the health of the animal nor are they permanent.

They commonly occur on the head, neck and shoulders of cattle and occasionally on the back and abdomen. They may occur singly and reach the size of a grapefruit, or they may be smaller and quite numerous.

Technically, wart tissue is an overgrowth of basal epithelial cells that enlarges and grows through the epidermis. The overgrowth is stimulated by the papillomatosis virus—a double stranded RNA virus—and is present in the wart tissue itself. It is thought to be spread in nature by direct animal contact or indirectly by a non-infected animal rubbing against a wall or a post where an infected animal has recently rubbed itself. It may also be spread by hypodermic needles, tattoo instruments and tagging pliers.

Wart tissues bleed easily and profusely if torn near the base. Other than this, the common wart poses little threat to the animal's well being. Warts are most common in young animals and they may disappear spontaneously as the animal gets older. Some researchers have noted that surgical removal of one or two warts may trigger spontaneous dissolving of others.

Commercial wart vaccine is available for preventive measures, and a specific vaccine can be prepared from tissue taken from your herd.

There is another type of wart which affects the genital areas of cattle—a fibropapilloma—which can cause problems in breeding.

Several methods of wart removal are effective, and your veterinarian is your best source on which method to use, or whether removal is actually necessary. You might be surprised to note how seriously your veterinarian regards your welfare and that of your animal, and the lengths to which he will go to save you money.

DEAR BETTY CROCKER

Q. My muffins are often soggy. What's the solution?

A. Remove from muffin cups right away so they don't steam. Muffins are best served warm, anyway. Wrap leftovers tightly and store in refrigerator.

Q. Can I use my mixer for kneading bread dough?

A. When you use a dough hook on a standard countertop mixer, the dough will be kneaded enough for satisfactory bread but volume may be lower than those kneaded by hand. Loaves mixed with a heavy-duty mixer will have higher volumes than with a standard model. Follow manufacturer's directions for best results.

Q. How I can I clean my wooden cutting board?

A. Clean wooden board surface regularly with a solution of one teaspoon chlorine bleach and 1/2 teaspoon vinegar to two quarts of water. Keep a plastic cutting board on hand to use with raw meat or poultry because the plastic is more easily cleaned.

Q. I'd like to know how to make flaky biscuits.

A. Use a pastry blender to cut in the shortening until the mixture resembles fine crumbs. The shortening surrounds particles of flour, creating layers. Then, knead the mixture lightly, ten times, to mix thoroughly.

Do you have a question? Write Dear Betty Crocker, Box 1113, Dept. Betty, Minneapolis, MN 55440.

Nurse Is Part of Hospital's History

Last year, Waneta and Estill Newsome, above, observed their 40th anniversary. This year, Mrs. Newsome and Our Lady of the Way Hospital observe their 40th anniversary of being together.

Newsome, a registered nurse and Our Lady of the Way Hospital's Health Care Coordinator, claims she was married twice—to Estill Newsome in 1946 and to Our Lady of the Way Hospital in 1947.

She was there when Sisters of Divine Providence Mary Edgar Timon, Mary Angelo Dusini and Mary Helen Frederick arrived during a dark and dismal downpour September 15, 1947 to assume ownership of Gearhart General Hospital in Martin. Exactly one month before, she'd left a teaching position at the request of Dr. Gearhart to utilize her needed nursing skills in his hospital.

Newsome was one of five employees (10 quit and two more left shortly thereafter) who stayed to work with the sisters in the hospital which was renamed Our Lady of the Way. At first she was the hospital's only registered nurse and she says she kept that distinction "on and off" for nearly 20 years.

Times were tough at first for the newly Catholic health care facility. "The hospital's census dropped from full occupancy to one or two patients when the sisters took over," remembers Newsome. "People were afraid of the sisters and their habits—veils and long dresses—and would cross the street to avoid meeting and speaking with them. Sister Mary Edgar, the hospital's first administrator, would pull her hair out of her habit to prove she had hair."

Newsome says Sister Mary Angelo would stand at the back door and befriend children by feeding them cookies and wiping their noses.

"The children are grown now, and they remember the love this sister gave them," says Newsome. "Some of them are employees of Our Lady of the Way."

According to Newsome, the hospital started filling back up after people got used to the sisters. But difficulties of another sort began. "In those days the mines paid the hospital a dollar a day to take care of a miner," explained Newsome. "Many days Sister Angelo, the cook, prayed to St. Joseph to send food to feed the patients. The sisters saved money by sending their teaching nuns to help out in the summer," recalls Newsome. "We taught them how to sterilize equipment, to give injections and baths."

Newsome says all the staff shared duties, including the cleaning. "If everybody hadn't pulled together and worked together there wouldn't be any Our Lady of the Way Hospital today," she declares.

Newsome has seen some dramatic changes in 40 years. Our Lady of the Way is "modern" now and has much more equipment. But some things are the same. Rooming-in was common in the obstetrical department at Our Lady of the Way from its inception. Today the hospital's reason is to encourage patient-child bonding. In the hospital's earliest days, however, there wasn't a nursery. Babies slept in wicker baskets near their moms, because there was no other place to put them.

Pastoral care was a priority then as it is now. "Father George Nerbonne visited patients just like Pastoral Care does today," Newsome says. "I think the love that the sisters had for the people at that time is still here at this time. I think the hospital wants to serve the public to the best of its abilities and to do what is best for the employees and patients."

Newsome and several other hospital employees will receive service awards during an employee recognition dinner at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn, Thursday, September 17, and at the hospital's community celebration in downtown Martin, Saturday, September 26.

Childbirth Group Receives Grant

The Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education Association of Prestonsburg has received a $1,100 grant from the Appalachian Community Fund, according to board chairperson Elma Jessen.

The Knoxville-based Appalachian Community Fund serves as a clearinghouse for donations to citizens groups in the region, Jessen said.

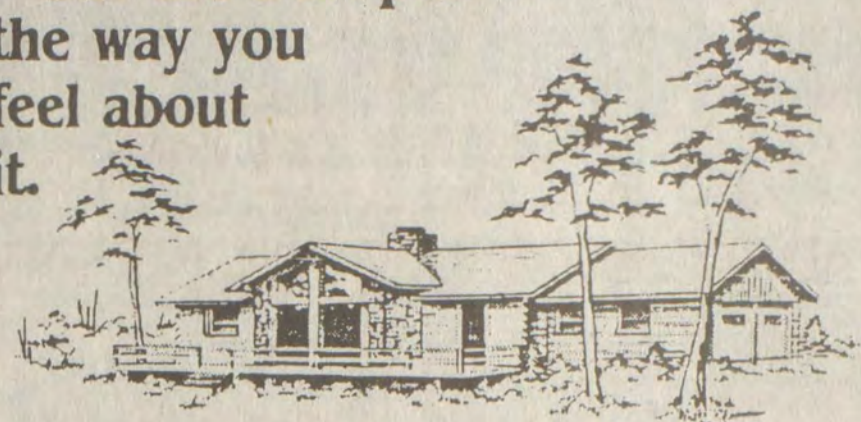

The Big Sandy Family serves the five-county area of Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin and Magoffin counties with pregnancy information classes and seven-week prepared childbirth classes for pregnant women and their coaches, co-sponsored by Prestonsburg Community College, as well as a breastfeeding support network, a library of books and materials on pregnancy, birth and parenting, and continuing education conferences for nurses working in area hospitals.

More than 1,000 women and their partners have prepared for the births of their children in the group's classes, Jessen added.

"We're very pleased at the confidence this grant shows in our work," she said.

Of welfare recipients whose education is known, 2.3 percent of the fathers and 10.2 percent of the mothers are high school graduates. (Kentucky Cabinet for Human Resources)

New Magazine Gives Info on Arthritis

People in Kentucky with arthritis now have a new source for the most accurate, up-to-date information about their disease. It's a magazine called "Arthritis Today," published six times a year by the Arthritis Foundation.

"There are almost 40 million Americans who have a form of arthritis, 7,300 in Floyd county alone," said Mark Ahearn who serves as president of the Arthritis Foundation's Kentucky Chapter. "One in every seven people has arthritis, one in every three families is touched by it. These people want to know the latest about arthritis research and treatment, and they want to know how to best overcome their disease in everyday living. The Arthritis Foundation's official new membership magazine gives that and much more."

"Arthritis Today" is the best source for the most current information about new research, products, medications and treatments. There are also practical tips for making the person with arthritis more comfortable, independent and productive. "Arthritis Today" replaces the newsletter-style publication titled "National Arthritis News," which has been the Arthritis Foundation's official membership publication since 1980.

The magazine deals with the financial and emotional concerns of people who have arthritis, as well as with the physical aspects of having arthritis. For example, upcoming issues will feature articles about communicating with family members, coping with chronic pain and getting financial help for medical bills. Each issue will also provide practical information such as self-help tips on exercise, medications and daily living.

"Most people who have arthritis must live with it for the rest of their lives," said Mr. Ahearn. "We at the Arthritis Foundation show them how to live in the most pain-free and most productive ways possible." "Arthritis" is the term for a group of about 100 related diseases that include rheumatoid arthritis, osteoarthritis, gout, lupus, bursitis and spinal arthritis. For information about "Arthritis Today" write to the Arthritis Foundation's Kentucky Chapter at 366 Waller Ave., Lexington, Kentucky, 40504. The telephone number is (606) 276-1496.

The U.S. Dollar?

By WILMAY

This writer thinks Pope John Paul II is right in many of his views, concerning abortion, the minorities, emphasis on the home and family, women priests, the sanctity of marriage, materialism in America. But with all respect to him, we feel inclined to differ about his insistence that the U.S. should share much more with underprivileged nations. Actually, if the U.S. paid her debts, we would be the poorest country on earth. We can't even pay the interest, for the budget has run in the red since the great depression, except for two administrations, according to the press. We think the debts will never be paid but will lead to world-wide economic collapse which the Bible says will usher in the tribulation.

Since the Catholic Church is said to be the wealthiest organization in the world that plea to the U.S. came as a shock to some for America has been keeping up much of the world economically and militarily, for years, and is rarely repaid when such support is in the form of loans. This generosity followed WWI. Reports claimed only little Finland ever repaid the U.S. for loans it received during World War I.

Many citizens recall that our founding fathers came here in search of God, wanting religious freedom, but early settlers in South America went there seeking gold. The vast distinction between those two philosophies helps explain why God has so richly blessed this land of the free and home of the brave, a country so peace-loving that not one sentinel has ever had to stand between the U.S. and our great neighbor of Canada on the North. It also helps reveal why more people all over the world want to live here than anywhere else!

Of course America should help, particularly in times of disaster, war, et cetera, but we are already assisting a gigantic portion of the globe's populace, often with futility the only expectation in return! Some feel that God no more expects the U.S. to maintain half the world than he thinks Jefferson county or Floyd should keep up the Commonwealth of Kentucky!

We, as private citizens, are partially to blame for the national indebtedness. We want our cake and want to eat it, too, though aware of the inevitable result which follows the habit of charging things to the future, burdening generations unborn. Despite this, it's hard to find a group that's not begging for more subsidies, higher pay, increase in—you name it. True, some need it—especially the really poor here at home, who are numerous. Some richly deserve it; teachers in the poorest states for example; but isn't it past time to pause and consider what can happen when more are living on the government than are contributing to it? It's the midnight hour. Better to have an income than none at all!

Like many individuals, government at all levels in most cases in the U.S. has been spending beyond its means. Isn't it wiser to have a few policemen than none, as one illustration? If higher taxes are approved, why not spend the extra to help pay the indebtedness in each place, including the national budget?

Think of families who spend until they come to bankruptcy, though cognizant of the outcome. Thrift was one great cornerstones of this grand land. John F. Kennedy said, "Ask not what your country can do for you but what YOU can do for your country!"

'How To' Video Gives Energy-Saving Tips

Kentucky Energy Secretary George E. Evans, Jr., announced today that homeowners and small business operators interested in energy savings can now check out "how to" video tapes from their local county libraries.

The series of video tapes were produced by the Kentucky Energy Cabinet and distributed by the Kentucky Department of Libraries and Archives. "These video tapes are designed to be of help to the average do-it-yourselfer, and show clearly how energy can be saved and properly managed in the average home or business," said Evans.

The video tapes cover a wide range of topics including weatherization, insulation, lighting and solar energy applications. These tapes vary in length from 20 to 60 minutes.

The tapes are in VHS format only and are available to the public and to businesses on a loan basis through the county libraries, county extension offices, and the Kentucky Energy Cabinet. For more information on "The Energy Series" or other energy education materials, contact your Library Extension Office or the Kentucky Energy Cabinet.

Veterans Administration Questions and Answers

EDITOR'S NOTE: Following are representative questions answered daily by Va Counselors. Full information is available at any VA Office.

Q.—My spouse is retired from the armed forces and rated 100 percent by the Veterans Administration for service-connected disabilities. Do I have the option of choosing Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Uniformed Services (CHAMPUS) or Civilian Health and Medical Program of the Veterans Administration (CHAMPVA) coverage?

A.—No. If your spouse retired from the armed forces, you must apply for CHAMPUS.

Q.—I am a veteran and would like to start a small business. How can I obtain a Veterans Administration small business loan?

A.—The VA does not have a small business loan program. The Small Business Administration (SBA) has programs to assist veterans in obtaining small business loans. In each SBA field office, there is a Veterans Affairs Officer to assist veterans. Check the U.S. Government section of the local phone book for the address of the nearest SBA office.

Q.—I received a Certificate of Eligibility for a VA home loan guaranty several years ago but never had the opportunity to use it. Have my benefits expired?

A.—Loan guaranty entitlement is not subject to an expiration date.

Q.—Can I get a release of liability if a non-veteran assumes my VA-guaranteed home loan?

A.—Anyone may assume your loan. If the buyer meets with Veterans Administration approval, you may be released from liability.

Q.—May I use my VA home loan benefit to purchase a house for my son?

A.—No. The home must be the principal residence of the veteran.

Transylvania Offers Needy Scholarships

A special scholarship program at Transylvania University for students from Appalachia is now accepting applications, university officials have announced.

The John R. Bryden Scholarship Fund is directed toward promising high school seniors from the Appalachian region. The scholarships help cover the expenses of attending Transylvania University and are awarded on the basis of need. The criteria for selection includes academic performance, leadership abilities, and personal achievement.

Dr. Charles L. Shearer, president of Transylvania University, described recipients of the Bryden Scholarships as tomorrow's leaders in Appalachia. "It is the hope of this scholarship program that the recipients will return to their hometowns after graduation and apply their acquired knowledge and experience to the betterment of life in Appalachia," he said.

Information on the scholarships program can be obtained from the Transylvania University Admissions Office, Lexington, Kentucky 40508, (606) 233-8242.

Transylvania University was established in 1780 and offers degrees in 23 majors. It was named a "Best Buy in a College Education" by the education editor of The New York Times and was named one of the top colleges in the South and border states by US News & World Report.

The scholarship program is named for John R. Bryden, a graduate of Transylvania who served as the academic dean from 1964-76 and is sponsored by a grant from a charitable foundation.

BRIEF TOPICS

James Oliver Curwood, author and noted conservationist died at his home in Owosso, Mich., Saturday night after an illness resulting from streptococcus infection which had confined him to his bed since last Saturday. Mrs. Curwood and one daughter, Mrs. Antonio Jirus, of Detroit, and the son, a school boy, were with him when he died. Another daughter, Miss Viola Curwood, is convalescing from an illness in Albany, N. Y. Death came to the noted writer of stories of the north woods at his home "Curwood Castle" in Owosso, after a desperate battle against the infection that steadily sapped his strength. In an effort to stay the ravages of the infection two physicians from the Henry Ford hospital at Detroit were rushed by airplane to the Curwood home and a daughter, Mrs. Antonio P. Jirus, of Detroit, gave of her blood in a transfusion operation. Curwood was born in Owosso June 12, 1878, and with his death friends recalled that he often had declared he had made up his mind to live to be 100 years old.

er summer home at Little Point Sable, near Grand Rapids. A large drum of gasoline, near which Mrs. Wheeler was working, exploded, igniting her clothing. Mrs. Wheeler ran screaming into a living room where her father, who recently suffered a severe heart attack, was reclining on a couch. At sight of his daughter, her clothing aflame, Candy arose, clutched at his heart, and toppled, dead. "King Ben" Purnell went into court on a stretcher Friday at St. Joseph, Mich., to make a sweeping denial of charges of immortality made against him by his 15 girl accusers. But the "Modern Jehovah" was compelled on cross-examination to strike damaging blows at his own defense when he admitted he had married "Queen Mary" Purnell bigamously and that he once was a pillar in the notorious Detroit cult of "Prince" Michael Mills, convicted assailant of young cult girls, who served a term in Jackson, Mich., prison. The flying term of "We"—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh and his "Spirit of St. Louis"—made additional history last Thursday. They persuaded Henry Ford and his son Edsel to make their first flight. Visibly pleased by their experience, both the automobile manufacturer and his son then took a second ride in one of their own planes, while Lindbergh alternated at the controls with Harry Brooks, chief Ford pilot. STATE FARMS HAVE MORE COWS, MULES The number of dairy cows and mules on Kentucky farms has increased in the last 75 years while hogs, sheep, horses and beef cattle have decreased, the Kentucky Agricultural Experiment Station reports. In 1850 there were 247,000 dairy cows on Kentucky farms while the 1925 figures show 432,000 cows. Mules have increased from 55,000 to 295,000 in the 75 year period. Hogs have dropped almost 200 percent as there were 2,891,163 head in 1950 and only 919,394 in 1925. Sheep have dropped from 1,162,091 to 665,962 during the 75 year period while horses and beef cattle have shown slight decreases. SILENCE OPPRESSIVE "Well," said the friend to the man who finally had ditched his flivver for a high-priced bus, "how do you like your new car?" "It gets on my nerves," he sighed. "I miss the rattle and the knocking."

TRAM

Quite a surprise came to people of this community when Miss Daisy Layne and Mr. George Rickman were quietly wedded. The bride is a young maid of a very pleasing personality, possessing many endearing qualities. She is the third child and the second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. D. Layne.

Mr. Rickman is one of Floyd's most noted ministers and at the present holds a responsible position with the St Paul Coal Company at Justell, Ky., where they will make their home.

SCHOOL NEWS

The Dark Hollow school is progressing nicely with Troy Baisden as teacher. Mr. Baisden is numbered as one of the county's most popular and intelligent teachers. Cedar Point No. 2 school has regular attendance and has several new improvements, with W. K. Steele and Edith Stanley as teachers.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Glen Stanley, the little son of Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Layne was recently taken to the Pikeville Hospital, where he will remain a few days until danger is over. He has been ill for some time with whooping cough and his system has been affected to a great extent.

PERSONAL NOTES

Mr. and Mrs. Newt Neeley, of Prestonsburg, were the week-end guests of Mr. and Mrs. Lonnie May recently. Hans Rasmussen, who is employed at Drift, visited homefolks during week-ends. Baptist Church was conducted at Thomas Creek Thursday and Friday and is still in session with twelve Baptist ministers present. The result is several converts.

Misses Zeola and Nelle Elizabeth Layne made a trip to Pikeville Sunday, visiting at the Methodist Hospital. Mrs. Hans Rasmussen and little son Junior were Monday visitors of friends at Justell. Mrs. Pearl May has returned after an extended visit with friends from down the river points. Mrs. Fred Spradlin and daughter, Eva have returned from Glomaur, Ky. Mr. and Mrs. George Rickman are moving into their new home commonly known as "St. Paul," this week at Justell.

Mr. and Mrs. John Smith left for Nolan, W. Va., Sunday where they will make their home. Frank Caldwell has a position at Pond Creek and is now employed there. Mrs. Frank Caldwell has resigned her part of school at this place, and May Belle Spurlock, of Middle Creek, is teaching the remainder of the term. Mrs. Dora May has been visiting relatives at Cliff recently.

THE KILLER'S WAY

BY WILL BOGGS
I am a killer; I've earned the title of "bad-man," Which means that I am master and ruler of the land. Wherever I go, among the great or among the small, People bow to my hand, for they know I rule them all

The heavy guns which carry me so smoothly through the world Dare even the flag which I sometimes see unfurled, What do I care for being threatened with the law?— I'll kill all those who come to arrest me, for I'm quick on the draw.

But why recount my great powers in such a childish way? I have a man to kill and must get him today; In my travel about I have heard that he said,— But no matter, for he'll soon be cold and dead.

But what is the matter now? Why am I in this bed. With a weight upon my breast so heavy and dead! Why these worried faces around me, tear-stained and dim, And why that curt voice saying, "There is no chance for him?"

Oh, that horrible thought! Can it be true That the man I last killed has killed me too! Yes, it is a fact—Oh, God what shall I do!— My life has been so sinful, and now I must answer you!

My friends, the pain is so that I must soon be dead, But this, I beseech you all, to tell the world I said "Young men of the nation, to you I earnestly pray, Who ever you do, don't follow the killer's way."

Mrs. E. R. Burke and children, of Huntington, W. Va., returned home Wednesday after a visit of two weeks with Mrs. Burke's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Will H. Layne.

HUEYSVILLE

F. P. (Chick) Allen, of this place, was married to Mrs. Costa Hunter, of Jones' Fork, Knott county, a few days ago. Mr. and Mrs. Allen will probably make their home here. Some of the Bosco boys were planning a treat for Two of the houses on Low Gap Hill, ed, for no treat is reported.

HOUSES NOW TENANTED

Two of the houses on Low Gap Hill, recently placed in the care of J. W. Huff, this place, were untenanted at the time of Mr. Huff's taking charge, but they are now both rented. John and "Shep" Lucas, brothers, have moved to these camps. The Lucas brothers were formerly employees of Beaver Mining Company, but they changed to Wells-Elkhorn Coal Company, West Garrett, former owners of the camps given to Mr. Huff's charge. Mr. Huff promised the company to try to secure renters who would work for them when he took charge of the camps.

WORK ON PIPE LINE

Two huge tractors have been plying around Bosco. They will be used to haul several carloads of 12-inch casing which now is on the siding here. This casing will be used to run a pipe line up Salt Lick. The Louisville Gas & Electric Company is having the work done.

RETURNS FROM ARMY

Frank Bailey, son of George W. Bailey, merchant of this place, is back from the army where he spent a year and a half. This is the third time that Frank has served in the army, and he has this time been a sergeant. Mr. Bailey's "buddy" came with him. Mr. Bailey will not return for a while, at least. He has been at Fort Benning, Georgia.

HURT IN FALL

Ida Martin, small daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Banner Martin, suffered a sprained leg a few days ago when she fell out of a barn loft where she was playing. The little girl is visiting relatives here she stays with her mother at Ashland.

LOCAL ITEMS

Alex Damron, principal of the public school here this year, went to Prestonsburg Saturday. Mr. Damron wished to see county superintendent Stephens concerning the salary schedule, a full account of which was published in the Times two weeks ago. Mr. Damron also wished to purchase some text books for his students.

Many autos were out here Saturday night and Sunday. The roads were in the best condition this season. However, heavy rains Sunday afternoon damaged the driving surface of the roads again.

Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Huff visited Sunday in Garrett, where they attended church.

Troy Reed, this place is studying very hard on a course which he is taking from the National Radio Institute. His lowest grade so far is 99 percent. Newt May, of Maytown, was visiting Bosco Wednesday night.

FARM TOPICS

A favorable outlook for producers of winter lambs and a rising tendency of wool prices is indicated by present conditions, according to the July sheep and wool outlook report by the Bureau of Agricultural Economics of the U. S. Department of Agriculture. Kentucky's total lambs raised in 1927 are estimated at 832,000, but it is not yet known how many of these will be kept on the farms and how many sent to slaughter. The total number raised in Kentucky in 1926 is estimated to have been 672,000 and in 1925, 656,000. In view of the large increase in the crop of "native" lambs in the "native lamb" producing states and the probability of less lamb feeding in the Corn Belt and increased feeding in the West, prices of slaughter lambs this summer and fall and next spring are expected to be lower, while winter prices are likely to be higher than during the corresponding periods of the last twelve months. Average prices for the coming year, however, are expected to be about the same as past year. The 1927 lamb crop is indicated as a little smaller than that of 1926, a large increase in "native" lambs not being sufficient to offset the decrease in Western lambs. The indicated total United States lamb crops for the last three years were: 24,764,000 in 1927; 22,873,000 in 1926; 21,985,000 in 1925.

Since the decrease in Western lambs is largest in states that furnish a large part of the feeding lamb supply, a considerable decrease in the number of feeding lambs from last fall seems certain. With fewer feeding lambs available and with the indicated poor feeding demand in the Corn Belt, slaughter during the winter would be considerably smaller than last winter. The increased feeder demand in the West is likely to result in a slaughter from March to May larger than last spring. Based on indicated market supplies and probable actions of feeders, the most favorable price period during the marketing season of the 1927 lamb crop would appear to be during the winter months. This would be generally favorable for the lamb feeder in the Corn Belt and also for the Western feeder who has lambs ready for market at that time. Consumer demand for lambs during the next twelve months is expected to continue at the same high level that prevailed during the past two years. The long-time outlook suggests the need of caution in regard to further increase of flock numbers, because the ultimate reduction in the demand for ewe lambs for flock expansion will result in larger supplies of slaughter lambs than the market will absorb except at low prices.

WOOL

Domestic wool prices have shown some strength and are expected to show a rising tendency during the next six months, although no considerable increase is expected. Domestic mills this year have followed a hand-to-mouth policy. Imports have shown a considerable decline and stocks have been depleted, while mill consumption has been maintained at a good level. A continuation of consumer demand as good as the past six months would result in more active buying of raw wool, as stocks would have to be replenished. Domestic production of fleece wool was 4.4 percent greater than for 1926.

PONCE De LEON'S FOUNT

The elixir of life somewhere bubbles forth for those worthy to receive it. It begins to look as though Walter Johnson, the grand old man of baseball, had found it, had quaffed copiously of the crystal drink.

On August 2 Walter started his twenty-first year as a big-league pitcher. And he still is "going strong." It was in the world series of 1924 that Walter tasted the ashes of defeat. The press of the nation mourned over his "passing." He was the recipient of a vast and tolerant condolece. The "aged" athlete became a pathetic figure in the vision of adolescent sports writers. We were all very sorry.

Then something happened. It happened on the next day succeeding Walter's "senile" defeat. In the box for Washington, he emulated David's victory over Goliath. He laid his adversaries low and dumbfounded his pitying cocksure critics. He won the world series.

Today he still is a mighty man in the realm of baseball. Nobody is writing obituaries about him. He stands straight and lean and tall, with force and magic in his arms and fingers. He didn't have to "come back;" he never left. The nation admires him, acclaims him, is willing to believe that he can go right on playing as long as he desires to play, keeping his antagonists not only on the anxious seat, but quite competent occasionally to push them off.

And there is a reason far Walter Johnson's continued eminent efficiency, and the reason is this: Walter Johnson has lived a clean, rational, worthwhile physical and moral life. Let the lounge lizards and cake-eaters and Charlestoners take notice.—Cincinnati Enquirer.

...about your
Social Security

By JIM KELLY
Social Security District Director
For the Big Sandy Area

Some wives receiving Social Security benefits on the earnings record of their husbands fear that they will lose their benefits if their marriage ends. Social Security has not forgotten divorced women who have been married at least 10 years.
Divorced husbands are also covered by Social Security and have the same rights to benefits on their former wife's earnings record as a divorced wife has.
Women, however, are often financially more affected when the marriage ends.
Maybe, this is because some years ago, the number of working wives and mothers were fewer, or because generally women stop working when they marry to raise a family and that prevents them from earning enough
Social Security credits.

If you are a wife 62 or older and in the process of getting a divorce, you should know that your benefits will continue if you were married to your husband at least 10 years.

But, if you are younger than 62, your benefits will end even if you are caring for an entitled child of the worker.

However, a divorced spouse of a worker who has not applied for retirement benefits, but who is fully insured and 62, can become independently entitled to benefits on the worker's earnings record. You do not have to wait until your former spouse retires to apply for Social Security benefits.

To do so, under this provision you have:

To be at least 62; to file an application for a divorced spouse's benefits; to have been married to the worker for 10 years or more before the date the divorce became final; to have been divorced from the worker for at least two years, and not be married.

There are some differences for a surviving divorced spouse who is claiming benefits on the earnings record of the deceased worker.

For instance the claimant must be 60 or over, or under 60 if the worker's entitled child under 16 or disabled is in her or his care; age 50-59 if disabled; or any age if caring for an entitled child (under 16 or disabled) of the deceased worker.
In this case, she or he could have been married less than 10 years.

Remarriage of a surviving divorced mother or father will prevent her or him from becoming entitled to mother's or father's benefits on the deceased spouse's Social Security record. When the subsequent marriage ends, whether by death, divorce, or annulment, the individual can again become entitled beginning with the month the subsequent marriage ends.

To be considered a "surviving divorced spouse," the claimant has to prove that she or he was married to the worker for at least 10 years before the date the divorce became final.

Benefits to disabled surviving divorced spouses are payable to any spouse age 50-59 if the individual meets the special definition of disability; becomes disabled no later than seven years after the month the worker died; meets the nondisability requirements for a surviving divorced spouse.

If you want some specific answers about your particular situation, you can arrange for an appointment with a Social Security Advisor. The Big Sandy
Social Security office is located on U.S.
23 between Prestonsburg and Paints-ville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government.

State Investments
Earn $137,000,000

Dr. James R. Ramsey, state investment director for the Finance and Administration Cabinet, recently announced that Kentucky's investment income was more than $137 million for the past fiscal year.

Ramsey said the state's portfolio for the 1986-87 fiscal year averaged almost $1.4 billion. Its rate of return averaged 6.9 percent as compared with the average 91-day treasury bill rate of 5.6
percent for the same period.

Although the amount earned last year is about $5 million less than the $142 million earned the year before, Ramsey said he was pleased with the $137 million. "We had to contend with lower interest rates during the past year," Ramsey said, citing an approximate 1.5 percent drop in the 91-day treasury rate last year.

IN THIS WEEK
Margaret Colin tries to forget all the pressure

By Paul Elie

It's a rainy afternoon in Manhattan, and in a kitchen in the basement of the Gramercy Park Hotel, cast and crew are taping a scene from "Leg Work," a CBS series that premieres Saturday, Oct. 3. Director Ray Danton, once a character actor ("The Rise and Fall of Legs Diamond"), bustles back and forth between takes. Producer Frank Abatemarco sips coffee. In a far corner, alone, star Margaret Colin is disguising a pimple that has sprouted on her chin.

Margaret Colin

Ninety percent of "Leg Work" is being filmed on location, at settings from Central Park to SoHo. But one wonders why the show's staff is taking the trouble to capture a New York ambience. For starters, the premise of the series is unremarkable: Private eye looks spiffy, works in the city, drives a Porsche, but finds that at bottom risking her life every week isn't all that exciting. What's more, Colin doesn't seem to have the name recognition to carry a series on her own. Her

Loose, free Shannon is just a producer's fantasy

By Marie Michaels

"I think Shannon O'Hara is a fantasy of my producer, Robert Calhoun," says Margaret Reed, who since May 1985 has portrayed the character on "As the World Turns." "He sees her as a woman who can jump on a motorcycle at any moment and just take off and be loose and free."

Margaret Reed

Shannon, whose real name is Erin Casey, hasn't taken off that much lately. After spending her childhood traveling around the world with her uncle, Earl Mitchell (played by Farley Granger), she seems to have found bliss in Oakdale, USA. Her ex-husband Duncan McKechnie (played by Michael Swan), once thought dead, has returned, and they're rekindling their romance.

"I like the character because the plot twists and turns that they give her make her able to do anything," says Reed. "I love it that I get to dress up in wigs and fancy clothes and affect different accents while I'm portraying her. I've also been to some interesting cities, like Las Vegas - all within the confines of the studio walls," she laughs.

Although Reed is satisfied with the way her character is written, she would like to have a story line that would show Shannon's bad side.

"I'd like to play her double, or her look-alike cousin, or her twin sister," she says. "Anyone who would look a lot like Shannon, but would be her total opposite - a wicked person."

Reed earned a B.A. in theater from the University of California at Santa Cruz and an M.F.A. in acting at Cornell University, then began her professional acting career in regional theater companies. She has appeared in productions of "The Taming of the Shrew," "Twelfth Night" and "My Fair Lady."

She was appearing in "A Midsummer Night's Dream" at the Walnut Street Theater in Philadelphia when she auditioned for "ATWT."

"I'm convinced that I got the part because I was the only one who made the producer laugh," Reed chuckles. "The role came at a time when I was asking myself questions like, 'What am I doing in this business?' and 'God, wouldn't it be great to change my life around?' It's always nice to go from one job to another."

HARRY MCGRAW

Jerry Orbach stars as a seedy Boston private eye in "The Law and Harry McGraw," airing TUESDAY, SEPT. 29 on CBS. Barbara Babcock co-stars as a criminal lawyer who aids him from her office across the hall.

In HBO's 'Mandela,' restraint is a strength

By Frank Lovece

During the 25 years he has spent in prison, South African lawyer and civil-rights leader Nelson Mandela has become the most powerful symbol of injustice suffered at the hands of the racist government of South Africa. Yet because of Pretoria's clampdown on a free press, the growing battle against its policy of apartheid has recently been forced to retreat from the front pages. Thus the straightforward HBO docudrama "Mandela" (airing Monday, Sept. 28) may be more important as enlightenment than as entertainment.

Alfre Woodard

Shot in a swift, workmanlike TV-movie style, "Mandela" traces the adult lives of Nelson (played by Danny Glover) and his wife and eventual political ally, Winnie (Alfre Woodard, showing pride and pain of a kind rarely seen in movies, let alone on TV). The story begins with the 1948 edict of race separation and white supremacy - apartheid - and ends in 1985 as Mandela, after more than two decades in prison, still refuses to renounce his beliefs as a condition of pardon. He remains in prison today. "Mandela" rarely sparkles, but its restraint turns out to be its strength. There is enough drama in the history books. In 1960, South African police in the town of Sharpeville fired, unprovoked, at a crowd of peaceful demonstrators, killing 67 men, women and children. In 1976, an anti-apartheid demonstration in Soweto turned into an even bloodier massacre. And as the years passed and the imprisoned Mandela became an international symbol, his wife too became a target for government harassment, imprisonment and finally exile. By being historically accurate, the movie makes these almost unimaginable horrors all the more enraging. As obviously political as the life of Mandela has been, the film doesn't neglect the private, human side of the subject. "Mandela" is partly a love story, a demonstration of the conviction we can find when our family and friends trust and support us. The scenes of Winnie visiting her husband in prison are especially heart-wrenching. Here, as elsewhere, "Mandela" stays factual instead of melodramatic, and by doing so succeeds rather well.
