

Insurance Task Force Plan Would Lower Rural Premiums

By B.A. Heinze

If Blaine Hall and the other members of the Kentucky Insurance and Liability Task Force have anything to say about it, lower insurance rates should be ahead for this section as well as other rural areas of the state.

A plan to achieve the goal of lowering insurance rates to the affordable range has been devised by the Task Force—and it entails no added tax burden. Its originators believe this to be a prime reason for its favorable chance of passage at the January legislative session.

Former state representative W. Stephen Wilborn, chairman of the Task Force will present the plan to members of the legislature. Wilborn, an attorney in Shelbyville, is the son-in-law of Mr. and Mrs. Chalmers Frazier, of Prestonsburg.

The plan would, basically, use the insurance surcharge, which has been assessed on all insurance premiums for several years, to fund improvements to local and rural fire departments and for upgrading water supplies, lines, fire hydrants to areas where these services are lacking or deficient.

There are presently a Professional Firefighters Foundation Program Fund and a Law Enforcement Foundation Program Fund which share in monies accruing from the insurance premium surcharge. Under the proposed plan, these two funds would continue to receive their proportionate share with the provision that no new participants be admitted to either fund after the enactment of the proposed Act. Eventually the fund trust and agency account of both would sunset, or come to an end, with funds remaining in either transferred to the Fire Protection Improvement Fund's trust and agency account.

This would be no loss to the fire-fighters program, because monies would be used to upgrade fire departments, beginning with those with the poorest ranking. Grant applications would be received on an annual basis by the Department for Local Government, which after review based on estimated costs, local contribution, and other criteria would be sent to the state fire marshal for his review with the protection category the primary criteria for assigning priorities.

Examples of top priority might be where a community or rural area is seeking to establish a fire department; is in need of new equipment, including fire trucks or to replace antiquated equipment; is in need of a building or repairs to an existing building housing firefighting equipment. Also given priority would be construction of water systems, lines, and fire hydrants.

After priority ranking had been established, the applications would be sent to the administrator of the fire protection improvement program for final ranking. Additional points would be given for local contribution to the proposed project or purchase, and awards would then be made beginning with the first in priority or need to be funded in full and proceeding on down the scale as money was available.

That is, the highest ranking (worst) systems not in need would be the first to be helped to achieve a lower rating which in turn would mean a lower insurance premium resulting in money saved by those living within its service area.

Various safeguards have been incorporated in the plan to insure funds being spent for the purpose intended. For instance, an annual audit would be made with certification of compliance. In addition, all contracts for materials, construction, equipment, etc., would be awarded to the lowest and best bidder (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

IT WAS A RUDE AWAKENING for the Gordon Moore family when a car drove through the wall and into their living room shortly before 5 a.m., Friday morning. "I thought maybe we'd been hit by a bomber," Mr. Moore said, surveying the damage. Jeffrey Patrick, 19, driver of the 1987 Buick involved, said that he had fallen asleep. State Police are investigating the early morning episode which is estimated to have caused $35,000 damage.

Hailey Jailed After Attempt To Flee Arrest

By Tim Sizemore

A case of indecent exposure at Heck's Department Store has led to the jailing of a Salyersville man, here.

Robert Hailey, 19, student of the Prestonsburg Job Corps, has pleaded guilty to the charge that he exposed himself in the shoe department at Heck's and has been sentenced to 15 days in jail, with 10 days probated.

A customer at the department store first reported the incident to a store clerk who arrived in time to witness the indecent act. The employee then alerted management, and the suspect was questioned. During the interrogation, Hailey broke away from store officials and made a bid for freedom, according to store manager Paul Davis. An officer of the store, Danny Miller, took off on foot in pursuit of the suspect and after a long and tiring chase, apprehended Hailey, who was turned over to Prestonsburg police officers.

A Job Corps spokesman, Lenny Grant, says that Hailey's case will be reviewed and that no decision about his future with the Corps will be made until that time.

US 23 Funds Possible

Whether senate approval will be given to reinstating US 23 to a list of projects to receive federal funding will probably be known by late this week, Congressman Chris Perkins office said yesterday (Tuesday). The situation remains uncertain, but cautious optimism has been expressed.

In any case, $6,000,000 seems assured for water lines, and plans for a new US 23 route go forward.

Council Ending Year Upbeat On Finances, A Cleaner City

By Kurt Pickering

Prestonsburg property owners who fail to keep their premises up are facing a crackdown by city police, after several complaints were made to City Council, Monday night.

Council also received more good financial news, turned down the second property tax moratorium request in three months, and ran into some opposition on its plan to tighten regulations on alarm systems.

Councilman Gary Brown served as acting mayor in the absence of Ann Latta, who's in Las Vegas for a League of Cities Convention.

Edna McGurney, of Goble-Roberts, started the ball rolling on the property clean-up issue, appearing before council to ask that two property owners in the subdivision be required to clean up their land. This snowballed into several other complaints, including one from Councilman-elect Charles Hale, of West Prestonsburg, who cited an area behind an apartment building next to his home, another from council member Margie Osborne, who said a piece of property on Highland Avenue houses eight or 10 junk cars, and a third from Councilman-elect Michael Vance, who pointed out that a load of rusty pipe dumped near his home on South Highland had been there over a month.

Councilman William Callihan originally proposed sending offending parties written notification that they had 10 days to clean up, or the City would do it for them and then send them the bill.

City Manager Fred James pointed out that an ordinance exists requiring property owners to keep their premises clean, that it calls for a 30-day grace period upon written notification, and that it allows for city cleanup and billing of the property owner. Callihan changed his motion to simply put council on record as ordering that the ordinance be enforced, and it passed unanimously.

The good financial news came from the CPA firm of Allen, England and Hensley. Steve Allen told council members that this year's audit indicates the city will close this year with a deficit of $46,757, a far cry from the $219,000 red ink entry of two years ago. Allen commended the council for its bulldogish attack on the deficit. The report came on the heels of May or Latta's upbeat account of finances in her state of the city report last month.

Council could have formally accepted the audit but, on a motion by Councilman Thomas J. Tackett, voted instead to table it. Tackett included in the wording of his motion that the next Council should be the accepting party to allow them to study it with "deep thought" for "several weeks" and thus get their feet wet early. Councilman William O. Goebel, III, asked Allen too set up a meeting with the incoming council to show them "how to read one of these." Goebel recalled his early days on the Council, when he first looked at a City Audit he found himself saying "What's this?" and "Where are we?" only to be told by the then-city administrator that everything was fine. "Next thing I knew...we were $400,000 in debt."

Tackett also commended the outgoing Council, saying "This Council took office and found itself head over heels in debt, and we're leaving a very tiny debt behind."

Also tabled was the alarm ordinance, which was up for second reading and passage. The bill was tabled after comments by David Allen of the Alarm Service Company. Allen said he and several merchants were concerned about the measure, because they weren't sure what it would do. He added that many local merchants had wanted to be at Monday night's meeting but did not feel they could leave their stores in this, their busiest season of the year.

Although he is in the alarm business, Allen clarified at the outset that he was more concerned as a user of an alarm system himself than as a provider, since only a small percentage of his nine-county business falls within Prestonsburg.

The new ordinance would establish a fee for hook-up into the Police Department, exempting only churches and schools, charge a fee for repeated false alarms, prohibit systems that auto-

W'wright Teacher, Civic Leaders Recognized for Work in Education

By Tim Sizemore

A ceremony and luncheon at the Carriage House in Paintsville, Monday, was hosted by State School Superintendent Alice McDonald, to salute efforts of educators civic leaders and activists, who have furthered the cause of education in the Seventh District.

The purpose of the luncheon was to call attention to innovative programs in schools and adult education.

The salute to the Seventh was planned for three reasons, McDonald said. These were to recognize the progress made, to thank all the people involved in the improvements for their hard work, and to ask for continued support.

"We must break the cycle of poverty and under-education once and for all," Supt. McDonald said, and added that we must set an example for our children.

Enrollment in adult education classes increased by 22% in the 7th district last year, McDonald said, and the number of G.E.D.'s has increased 70%. "We're going to do better, but we still have thousands of people to reach," she said, adding that the dropout rate had been cut in 22 of the 33 school districts in the Seventh District.

Among the innovative programs mentioned, Floyd county was honored for establishing successful partnerships with businesses and the Kentucky

Education Foundation. The county was also awarded grants over the past two years for innovative projects in community-based education and journalism.

Floyd county individuals were also among those honored by Superintendent McDonald.

Carol Stumbo, a teacher at Wheelwright High School, received an award for beginning the student writing project, "A Ride on the Mantrip," a magazine written by students about miners and their families.

Dr. Morris Norfleet, former president of Morehead State University and now president of the Kentucky Education Foundation, says "Mantrip" is a unique contribution to Kentucky literature, adding that now students are working on an oral history of the black community in Floyd county.

The work of several Floyd county leaders was also highlighted at the luncheon. Jean Rosenberg, Deloris Smith, Burl Wells Spurlock and Fred Goble received awards for their contributions to the betterment of education in Floyd county. David Baker, manager of Brandeis of Stanville, was commended for his work as a member of the High Technology Board.

Old Christmas Party Will Be Celebrated Jan. 3 at May Lodge

Even though January is not the usual time for a Christmas party, it is the traditional time for celebrating "Old Christmas." January 6 is marked as Epiphany on the calendar, and is the last of "the twelve days of Christmas." According to the ancient Julian calendar, this was the date of Christ's birth. Tales of "Old Christmas" are still being told in the mountains, where the custom lives on.

Mrs. Edith Fitzpatrick James, founder of The Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival revived "Old Christmas" many years ago by hosting a party on the Sunday closest to the date. The event has grown throughout the years and is now sponsored by the festival. Traditional mountain singing, dancing, and storytelling in an informal party setting recall "Old Christmas" as it was celebrated in earlier times.

Admission to the "Old Christmas" party is free, and the public is invited to attend. Celebrate "Old Christmas" at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park near Prestonsburg, Sunday, January 3, at 2 p.m.

Present Special Program

The Students Against Driving Drunk committee at McDowell High School presented a program November 20 in the gym. Janet Bowling, school sponsor, assisted. Grades six through twelve were present.

The guest speakers were Harry Joseph, an attendant of P & B Ambulance Services and Lola Brashear, Prevention Specialist of Mountain Comprehensive Care Center.

Brashear explained the SADD program and introduced a film, dealing with the facts of drinking and driving. Mr. Joseph spoke of the experiences he had witnessed. Committee members stated statistics and explained the Contracts for Life which were distributed.

McDowell's SADD will host a dance along with Champions Against Drugs and WKKZ Radio Station. The chapter extends an invitation to high school students in Martin, Magoffin, Floyd, Pike, and Johnson counties. The music will be supplied by WKKZ Radio Station. A lip sync contest and a dance marathon will also be held. Cash prizes will be awarded.

December 14-20 is National Drunk Driving Awareness Week.

Enough Is Enough ... By Wilmay

The Times of 12-02 had an article by James Kanney, CPA of Pikeville, in answer to another in the Lexington Herald by H.B. Milward of U.K. faculty, wherein the latter classified Eastern Kentucky as a Third World country, it appears. In reply, Mr. Kanney hit the nail squarely on the head, in defense of our section, which in the opinion of this amateur writer is the most maligned of any portion of the U.S. So much of the criticism is unjust. Through the decades I have decried such many times. Often our late Times editor, Norman Allen, was about the only other person who did likewise. Mr. Kanney did a splendid job defending this area.

No intelligent person in Eastern Kentucky would deny that there remains abundant room for further improvement of some conditions. The same will be true years from now regardless of progress in the interim. Aren't urban centers in the same boat with the slums that are as bad off as some mountain hollows and communities? Is either typical? No one judges the cities and their residents by those in the lowest economic and educational brackets. No one, but when it comes to describing residents of the hills almost invariably they classify all alike, downgrading us every time. Frequently writers guilty of this have never set foot in the hills and know nothing about us first-hand. Granted, there is abundant illiteracy. Isn't that found the world over? There are mansions the same as shanties, Ph.D.s as well as unlearned persons.

Few outsiders recognize the obstacles here, terrain difference, roads far costlier; geographical isolation that takes a heavy toll; smaller population than other parts of the state, which in itself has cost us much in the state legislature, we regret to say. Outsiders never dream what heights some of our citizens have attained over the years because every generation has had individuals of the highest caliber, despite the biased situation in Frankfort. To cite several Green Hackworth, first head of the World Court, in The Hague, was born and reared in Floyd County; Fred Vinson, Chief Justice of the Supreme Court, was a product of Louisa; Congressman Carl Perkins, of Knott County, left an indelible stamp on the sands of time; Dr. Henry Martin, of Eastern, was on the staff of E.K.U. in Richmond; Dr. Palmer Hall, one of the vice presidents of Morehead University, was reared on Left Beaver; Dr. Russell Anderson, who owns five businesses and is a multi-millionaire, and an international Christian layman, grew up at McDowell. Bee Mayo, of Allen, established and headed a normal college in Texas long years ago. Many more could be named.

Though not from the mountains, honest Abe was as poor and humble as many Third Worlders. God did not send his own son to a home of culture, the Sanhedrin, etc, but to a peasant couple. Moses, the best educated and most used man of the Old Testament, was a shepherd. Paul, the best educated and most used man of the New Testament, was a tent maker. Nine of the twelve disciples were plain fishermen, but they turned the world upside down, including prestigious individuals like Nicodemus.

One finds all kinds of people here as elsewhere. Poverty, even knowledge or education, to one is the opposite to some, since values are relative. Attitudes of the outside world, toward this region have caused many persons to have an inferiority complex that can be tough on young people especially. After all, God looks at the heart, and only he can see it. Where, except in Eastern Kentucky, can one find thousands of parents who welcome their offspring back home with open arms when a recession occurs? On the whole where are there more hospitable, loving and kind people than in Floyd County, for example? Imperfect? Of course, but so is all mankind. Why, oh why, do so many writers delight to pick on us, to lump us all into one melting pot and say we are practically no good, as some imply? Does it make them feel superior? Will the time ever come when the censoring ceases?

Sober Drivers Have Happier Holidays

Host the perfect holiday party this year for you and your friends. Toast a truly happy, healthy and safe new year. "Don't be a 'pour' host," says Kathy Gross of AAA.

"Parties planned this time of year can be fun for all," stated Gross. "All it takes is a little thought and preplanning."

AAA offers the following suggestions for party hosts:

Make non-alcoholic beverages available and be certain that everyone knows where they are.

Help guests pace their drinks. The liver can only metabolize one drink per hour. Don't rush to fill glasses. Let guests mix their own drinks.

Focus attention on food. It slows the absorption of alcohol. High-protein foods such as cheese and meats are especially good because they stay in the stomach longer. Avoid salty or highly-seasoned items as they increase thirst.

Remember that beer, wine and hard liquor all "pack the same punch." A 12 oz. can of beer, a 5 oz. glass of wine and a 1 1/2 oz. shot of hard liquor in a mixed drink all have the same intoxicating potential. Beer and wine simply have more water added to the alcohol in each serving.

Mix "spiked" punches with a non-carbonated base. Alcohol is absorbed much faster when combined with a carbonated mixer.

Divert attention away from the bar. Keep guests circulating with games, conversation or dancing. Set an example yourself—don't overindulge.

Stop serving alcoholic beverages an hour before the party ends. Bring out a tempting non-alcoholic drink in addition to the coffee or tea.

Encourage one person in each group to be a designated driver. Award a small gift to the person who decides not to drink and thereby assure a safe ride home for other guests.

Convince guests who have had too much to drink to stay over. If this is not convenient, arrange transportation with a sober friend or call a taxi. Think of what you will do beforehand so you won't have any surprises and will be able to handle a situation with authority.

Wins Poetry Awards

For the past three years, Betsy Layne High School has participated in the annual Mountain Magic art and writing magazine, and this year fared extremely well in the writing division. The judging for the poetry and essay divisions of the magazine have recently been completed on both the school and county levels, and the winners of the poetry category were announced last week. Betsy Layne, in the county-wide competition, won four out of the top five rankings in the poetry division.

Julia M. Pullium, 17, daughter of Janice Pullium, of Dana, succeeded in winning first, fourth, and fifth places in last week's competition. She also won first place on the school level in both the poetry and essay divisions. A yearbook editor, she is also a member of the journalism class, Quill and Scroll club, Beta Club, and an active member of the Betsy Layne literary committee. She has served as an in-house editor for Mountain Magic the past two years, and has participated in the lay-out design and publication of the magazine. She has had her works published in Mountain Magic for three consecutive years, including winning second place in poetry in last year's edition. She is a senior at Betsy Layne High School this year, and plans to attend Eastern Kentucky University next fall.

Michelle Wallen, 17, daughter of Wendell and Linda Wallen, of Dwaile, also a student of Betsy Layne High School, won second place this year on both the school and county levels of the Mountain Magic poetry competition. She is a senior this year and is an active member of the journalism class, Quill and Scroll club, and the Beta Club. She will graduate in May, and plans to attend college in the fall.

In the essay division, the county-wide winners will be announced Dec. 15 at a meeting at Allen Central High School.

... about your Social Security

By JIM KELLY,
 Social Security District Director for the Big Sandy Area

Special Work Incentives Noted for Disabled People

The old concept that a disabled person required special treatment because of pity for her or his suffering is being replaced by a more realistic approach.

The definition of "pity" sometimes connotes a slight contempt because the person is regarded as weak or inferior. And nobody wants that.

Disabled people want to be regarded as normal persons capable of being productive and useful to their families and to society. Most would like to go back to work, but two main concerns hold some of them back. These are fear of failure and losing their disability checks, and fear of losing their Medicaid coverage.

Social Security has tried to meet these two concerns by creating incentives for disabled people who work.

One of the incentives that has proved to be very effective for people getting Social Security disability checks is the trial work period, which assures disabled persons that they can continue receiving disability checks for up to 9 months while testing their ability to work. Those 9 months need not be in a row, but can be separated by months or even years when the person doesn't work at all.

Generally, only months in which an employee earns over $75 gross wages count as trial work months. For self-employed people, net earnings over $75 a month or more than 15 hours with the business count.

After the trial work period, a decision is made as to whether the disabled person can perform substantial gainful work. If the person can, benefits will end after a 3 month adjustment period.

"Substantial" means doing significant and productive physical or mental work. "Gainful" means work that is done for pay or profit.

If you are self-employed, not only your business income counts as substantial and gainful but also the kind and value of your work, including management of the business.

Bennett-Hale Vows Spoken

Judith Lynn Hale and Timothy Gene Bennett were united in marriage during a double ring ceremony, August 1, at the First Baptist Church (Irene Cole Memorial). Rev. Mike Womack and Dr. Lee O. Scott officiated at the 2 p.m. exchange of vows before an altar graced by candelabra decorated with foliage, fresh-flowers and baby breath flanked by greenery.

A program of nuptial selections were provided by Mrs. Alice Grace Buchanan, organist; Mrs. Gus Kalos, pianist; Mrs. Jeff Hale, violinist, and Mr. Gus Kalos, Mr. Gary Amos and Mrs. Jay Callis, solists.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles G. Hale, of 337 Harris Street, West Prestonsburg, Kentucky. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. T. J. Bennett, 635 Spring Street, Ewin, Tennessee.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her parents, chose a gown of white taffeta with heart puff and lace sleeves. The front of the gown was adorned with pearls and a pearl heart, and the train was full-length adorned with lace and pearls. The gown featured a high neckline with lace, and the veil of white lace and rose trim around the edge enhanced the gown. The bride carried a cascade of white roses and gardenias.

Mrs. Kim Geer, of Louisville, Kentucky, attended as maid of honor. She wore a blue floor-length dress and carried one white rose with baby's breath.

Bridesmaids were Phyllis Bennett, the groom's sister-in-law, Pam Clardy and Kristian Andreason. Their gowns and flowers were identical to that of the maid of honor.

Kellie Campbell, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur Campbell, Jr., of Hippo, Kentucky, and Katie Womack, daughter of Rev. and Mrs. Mike Womack, of Erwin, Tennessee, served as flower girls.

Jerry Bennett, brother of the groom, was best man. Groomsmen were Tommy Bennett, also brother of the groom, Roland Banks and Joe Hester. Mike Campbell was usher.

Nathan Hale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Jeff Hale, of Louisville, Kentucky, and Andy Bennett, son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Bennett, of Erwin, Tennessee, served as junior groomsmen. Aaron Bennett, also son of Mr. and Mrs. Tommy Bennett, served as ring bearer.

May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, was the setting for the wedding reception following the ceremony.

Upon their return from their wedding trip, Mr. and Mrs. Bennett reside at 128 Harris Street, Erwin, Tennessee.

KET Goes On Stage With The Louisville Orchestra

Take an intimate look at a performance of Beethoven's Symphony No. 9 in D minor, Op. 125 in an upcoming KET special presentation.

"Kentucky Center Presents: The Louisville Orchestra in Concert" airs Tuesday, December 29 at 8 p.m. on KET. The program offers a close look at the orchestra's performance and a discussion with the orchestra's musical director.

"We placed cameras within the orchestra itself," says KET Producer/Director George Rasmussen. "As you watch, you will feel like a member of the Louisville Orchestra. It's a unique television experience, a very intimate perspective of the orchestra performing these masterworks."

Lawrence Leighton Smith, now in his fifth season as musical director of the Louisville Orchestra, conducts both the orchestra and chorus. Soloists include Louise Russell, soprano, Margaret Ann Oates, contralto, Seth McCoy, tenor, and Herbert Eckhoff, bass/baritone. The Kentucky State University Concert Choir, the University of Kentucky Choristers and Chorale, and the University of Louisville Chorus make up a combined chorus of 180 members.

Beethoven's inspiration in his famous

Symphony No. 9 in D minor comes from the poem "An die Freude" ("Ode to Joy") by Friedrich Schiller. After undergoing more than 200 revisions before the composer was satisfied, Beethoven's Ninth Symphony premiered in Vienna in 1824.

In his program notes, Richard E. Rodda writes that "explanations (of Beethoven's Ninth Symphony) are both too much and too little at the same time: too much, because the music does not need any feeble verbal explanations to convince listeners of its gargantuan emotional power; too little, because the work is inexhaustible in its musical and artistic ramifications."

Rasmussen says, "The first movement of the Ninth Symphony is devoted to sectional coverage so that the audience will see what instruments produce what music. The second movement focuses primarily on the maestro so that viewers gain insight into his dynamic personality. The third movement is devoted to extreme close-ups of orchestra members and their instruments, and the final movement parallels what Beethoven did with his music by using all of the above to communicate the climactic end of the piece."

"All the camera techniques are designed to communicate with the music and not detract from it," adds Rasmussen.

"Kentucky Center Presents: The Louisville Orchestra in Concert" is a KET production and represents a joint effort between KET and the Center in Louisville. Other programs in the series include "The Lonesome Pine Specials," "The Louisville Ballet," and the Louisville Children's Theatre presentation of "The Snow Queen."

KET Digs Into Indians Past

Enjoy the lifestyles and culture of the Indians who populated the western area of the state on the next segment of "West Kentucky," airing Tuesday, December 22 at 7 p.m. on KET. Archeologist Kit Wessler comments on the historical significance of Wickliffe Mounds, a burial site for area tribes.

Today Wickliffe Mounds is a tourist attraction with five structure-covered excavation sites. Archeologists have uncovered a tremendous cache of artifacts. Indian burial included such items as arrow heads, pottery, and daily implements thought necessary to the departed soul's journey into the afterlife.

Although initial excavation began in the 1930s, professional archeologists and college classes continue sifting through the sites which date back to the period of 1300-1400 A.D. Since the burial mounds are considered sacred, it is hoped that future generations of archeologists will develop less intrusive techniques for uncovering the secrets of the first Kentuckians.

Pageant Winner

First Presbyterian Lists Christmas Celebrations

The annual Christmas play and dinner of the First Presbyterian Church will be held Sunday evening December 20 at the church. The dinner, sponsored and planned by the Board of Deacons, will begin at 6 p.m., followed by the program at 7:30.

This year an original play will be presented by the children and youth groups. Entitled "The Children of Bethlehem," and written by Leatha Kendrick, the play examines how the birth of Jesus may have affected the children of Bethlehem.

Participating in the play and program will be members of the Children's Choir, under the direction of Anne Howard and Ella Faye Music, the PRES-Kids (intermediate youth), sponsored by Elma Jessen, and the Senior Youth Group, sponsored by Becky Campbell and Kurt Pickering.

During Christmas Sunday services at 11 a.m., the Children's Choir and the Adult Choir will present special music, and the Advent wreath ritual for the fourth Sunday in Advent will be led by the Charles Slone family. The Adult Choir, under the direction of James Ratcliff, will present a selection from Handel's Messiah, as well as Gustav Holst's "Christmas Eve," a rendering of several carols. Caroline Owens, organist, and Libby Ratcliff, pianist, will accompany the choir and present several organ and piano duets of Christmas music.

The Rev. Timothy Jessen is pastor of the church, and the public is invited to all of these special Christmas events.

Commission To Review Health Care Projects

The Commission for Health Economics Control in Kentucky at its Dec. 16 meeting will consider 13 certificate of need applications, representing approximately $14 million in capital expenditures.

Among the applications to be reviewed are requests to construct a 120-bed long-term care facility in Fort Thomas and to convert 68 personal care beds to intermediate care status in Shelbyville and Beattyville.

Also on the agenda are applications to establish swing bed programs in McDowell hospital and two-home health agencies to serve 15 counties.

The commission will consider applications to establish two mobile X-ray units to serve northern Kentucky and two mobile ultrasound services based in Lexington. Also to be reviewed is an application to establish an air ambulance service for counties in southeastern Kentucky.

The commission will meet at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 15 to consider requests for determinations. The three-member panel will meet at 9:30 a.m. Dec. 16 to take up certificate of need applications, reconsiderations and other business. Both meetings will take place in the first floor auditorium, Department for Health Services building, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort.

Wins Top Honors

An aspiring rock singer from Knott county and a country soloist from Hart county were top winners at a December 11 Variety Show held during the 68th Kentucky Farm Bureau convention in Louisville.

David Tolliver delivered a rousing rendition of "That Old Time Rock and Roll" on his way to first place in the junior division of the show, open to performers under age 17, while the vocal performance of "Daddy's Hands" by Jenny Lu McCubbins, R. 1, Horse Cave, was chosen the best among the over-17 entrants.

Second-place winner in the junior division was an instrumental twosome, Felecia and Sonya Stith, of Battletown, on violin and piano. A 10-member tap dance troupe from Ballard county placed third.

Runner-up in the senior division was a buck dancing duet from Mason county, Crystal Lynn Muse and Stephen Clem. Third place went to soloist David Lamarr Johnson, from Lynn in Greenup county.

Represent Job Corps 'Firsts'

THREE YOUNG WOMEN above are the first to be enrolled at the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center. They are Linda Clark, Penny Neeley, and Laura Sammons, who with her husband, Ronnie are also the first husband and wife to be enrolled.

By Kurt Pickering

Last week three area women helped the Carl D. Perkins Job Corps Center, here, take another step toward helping local residents.

Linda Clark, 18, of Allen, Penny Neeley, 17, of Salyersville, and Laura Sammons, 16, of Prestonsburg, became the first women students to enter the Job Corps in the NON-RES (non-residential) program, December 9. The NON-RES program allows area residents to receive all the benefits of Job Corps by attending classes daily between 8 a.m. and 3:40 p.m. The students are brought to the Center each weekday morning and returned to their homes after the school day ends at 3:40 p.m.

Linda Clark, originally from New Albany, Indiana, dropped out of school as a freshman, but now says she made a wrong choice. She is attending Job Corps both to get a GED and to complete a vocational course in electricity. "I'm hoping to learn skills that will lead to a job," Clark said. Clark learned about the acceptance of women from a recent newspaper article and became the first woman to apply and be accepted last month.

Penny Neeley dropped out of Prestonsburg High School a matter of days into her junior year. She, too, is pursuing a career in electricity as well as obtaining a GED. "I have to get a GED to survive, just to get a job," Neeley said, of her decision to enroll in Job Corps. She would like to find employment in this area after graduation.

Laura Sammons is involved in another Job Corps first. Not only is she one of the first three women enrolled in the NON-RES program, she is also one-half of the first husband-wife team enrolled; Laura and husband, Ronnie, 20, both dropped out of school in the eighth grade. They have been married a year and have found they need a high school diploma or equivalency if they hope to find work. Besides working toward their GED's, both wish to study building and grounds maintenance.

Nationally, most Job Corps Centers admit young people of both sexes, but only recently has that been initiated at Perkins, the nation's smallest Center. Plans have been approved by Washington to build a women's dormitory. However, residential female corpsmembers will not become a reality for about a year when it is estimated the dormitory will be completed.

"When the NON-RES program started, we were pleasantly surprised to receive many inquiries from females," stated Rod Chambers, center director. "Based on this we took our request for females to the Department of Labor headquarters in Atlanta and Washington and were finally given authorization to recruit NON-RES females, starting December 7. We hope that the ladies will benefit as much from the program as the NON-RES males have," concluded Chambers.

Meanwhile, the Center continued to expand its services to the local community by accepting 12 males for training in cooperation with the Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program. Approximately 30 Eastern Kentucky youth from Floyd and surrounding counties are now attending the Center.

Those interested in the program should call 886-1037.

KSU Professors Recommend Books As Christmas Gifts

Looking for a good "next-to-the-last-minute" Christmas gift? Stuck on what to buy for someone who seems to have everything? Like to give a gift that brings a lot of pleasure?

A book may very well be the answer. To help make the selection easier, nine Kentucky State University English faculty members have recommended books not now on the best-seller lists that they think make good reading and that they themselves have read.

Nedra Lundberg considers Gaudy Night by Dorothy Sayers, thought by many to have been the most literary of all mystery writers, to be Sayers' best work. For reading that will provoke laughter, she recommends Birds of Passage.

For reading with a "strong sense of place," Lundberg included Sometimes a Great Notion, Staying On, Blue Highways: A Journey into America, and This House of Sky.

Of Wolves and Men "is very, very readable, very balanced, and scientific without being ponderous," she said.

Betty Nave recommends A Vindication of the Rights of Women, which condemns some of the "great names in classical literature for their pernicious portrayals of women." It was written in the late 18th century.

The Immense Journey "makes natural science easy," she said; The Screwtape Letters "is an entertaining look at evil;" The Bluest Eye "is the best novel written about being black in America;" and The End of the Affair "has romance that should appeal to all women."

Nave calls Huckleberry Finn her favorite. "It is the best book in the world," she said.

Dr. Jerry Trammell recommends classic books or classic authors. Among Trammell's recommendations are the classic Death in Venice, The Immoralist, Nausea, and The Myth of Sisyphus. The first, Trammell said, is "always worth reading, even if you have read it ten times."

Trammell said the American classic, Tender is the Night, is still a great book. He calls The Royal Way a "thinking-person's Indiana Jones story, an adventure with substance."

Dr. Donald Ver Hey listed choices that include religion, American values and ideals and symbols, and writing.

Writing Down the Bones, Ver Hey said, is a brief "how to" book on freeing the writer within each of us. The Good War includes interviews with people who were personally involved in the winning of World War II, and Old Glory: An American Voyage recounts a modern trip down the Mississippi and "the writer's reaffirmation and criticism of the American way of life."

Novels with interesting religious themes recommended by Ver Hey are The Second Coming and The Name of the Rose. He considers The Doors to His Face: The Lamps of His Mouth as outstanding science fiction.

Dr. Estella Conwill Alexander included a number of books by black women because "this is a period during which more and more books of substance by black women are being published."

Song of Solomon won a National Book Award for Toni Morrison, Alexander pointed out. "And any work by Gwendolyn Brooks (Maud Martha) is exciting," Alexander said. "She is poet laureate of Illinois and has won a Pulitzer Prize."

Alexander recommends Invisible Man, Native Son, The Autobiography of Malcolm X, and There is a River for the reader who wants to gain a strong understanding of and appreciation for the experiences of blacks in the U.S.

Dr. Dorothy Miller recommends as "comforting and inspirational" The Prophet and I Heard the Owl Call My Name, both with religious themes.

Books that explore differing cultures, such as Ishi: Last of His Tribe (American Indian), The Big Sea (American black), and The Thread that Runs so True (Appalachian white), provide good-reading glimpses of the United States' pluralistic society, she said.

The near-cult favorites of the 1970s, The Hobbit and Lord of the Rings: the Trilogy provide "sheer enjoyment," Miller said.

Dr. Richard Taylor recommends books by Kentucky writers and about Kentucky.

"The Dollmaker is arguably the best novel written by a Kentuckian," Taylor said, "and The Memory of Old Jack is the best novel by the best fiction writer in the state."

Taylor recommends the narrative poem, Civil Blood, for its investigation of the moral issues related to the Civil War and Jefferson's Nephews for its account of life on the 18th century American frontier.

Other books with Kentucky settings or by Kentucky writers he recommends are Weeds and Night Comes to the Cumberland.

Sandy Trammell listed the only play recommended by the faculty members—Rhinoceros, which she calls "bitterly funny." Her nonfiction list includes some self-help or personal interest books—Hiker's Guide to the Smokies, "a constant companion during breaks;" America's Garden Book, "a good book!"

Bury My Heart at Wounded Knee and The Autobiography of Brook Farm provide well-written slices of terrible and idealistic, respectively, eras of the American experience, she said.

Dr. Joyce Watford listed books she thinks are worth reading and books that list books worth reading. Watford recommends Best Books for Children and Good Reading: A Guide for Serious Readers as good references.

For reading that provides "varied historical and sociological-psychological studies of blacks in the United States," Watford recommends the fictional Mama and the nonfictional Souls of Black Folk, which covers the period from Civil War Reconstruction to pre-World War I.

For variety's sake, she lists the satirical A Confederacy of Dunces; the biography of a great Texas blues singer, Stormy Monday: The T-Bone Walker Story and Empire, "which recounts America's gilded age when the U.S. had far-flung colonial designs."

Some Tax Returns Still Not Claimed

William E. Palzkill, District Director of the Internal Revenue Service, has just released the names of Kentucky taxpayers to whom federal tax refund checks were issued in 1987 and the checks were returned to the IRS as "Undeliverable."

The list includes 398 individual tax refund checks totalling $110,664.77. The tax refund checks range from $1.00 to $2,899, with an average check of $278.

According to Palzkill, the taxpayers may have moved or changed their last names during the year and failed to notify the IRS. Sometimes the handwriting on the tax return may simply be illegible.

When a refund is returned by the Postal Service, the IRS attempts to find the taxpayer and deliver the checks, but there are always some who cannot be found, according to Palzkill.

Taxpayers who are expecting a refund and have moved or changed their name during the year are encouraged to contact the IRS. Kentucky taxpayers can write to the Internal Revenue Service, P.O. Box 1735, Louisville, Kentucky 40201, or telephone IRS toll free at 1-800-424-1040.

A Dream Worth Working For—

During the past week, I have had occasion to attend several wonderful Christmas programs in our county and environs. At each, the singing was wonderful, the participation marvelous, and the Christmas spirit contagious. Sadly, at each of them in Floyd county, though, something was lacking! At the top of my Christmas wish list for Floyd county this year is an auditorium fitting of the name to serve the needs of our students who are talented in music and dramatic arts, as well as providing a venue for outside talent.

The Prestonsburg Grade School Auditorium may have served previous generations well, but now it is run-down, old, and decrepit, from too much use. It can't even hold the parents of the students in the school at one time!

Gymnasiums are fine for basketball games and functions in which the audience can freely move around, but for a concert they are uncomfortable and add nothing to the acoustics of a chorus or band.

The college auditorium was filled for the Community Chorus concert with almost no local publicity. Nice as it is, it is too small for many needed functions.

The churches in our community are more than generous in opening their doors for civic as well as church functions, but no church is large enough or has enough platform space for the needs of the community as a whole.

The bright spot in my travels was a visit to Knott county for the dedication of the Fine Arts Center at Alice Lloyd College. Two men from Prestonsburg had outstanding roles in its completion: Randy Burchett was the architect and Tom O. McGuire the contractor. What a pleasure it was to hear the Lexington Symphony and the "Hallelujah Chorus" in a building constructed to enhance the experience, not detract from it.

We recognize in athletics that the character of the building enhances the performance of the team, hence our monuments to Rupp in Lexington and to local citizens throughout the mountains as places to play basketball.

But what about our future singers, musicians, and dramatic artists? Isn't it important to us to see they have a place in which they can display and hone their talents? The Alice Lloyd complex was given by a benefactor from outside this region, but we have many people who could give substantially to make such a dream come true.

I am told by Mr. Burchett that it is impossible to build such an auditorium into the new middle school, but that a cooperative venture could be possible in the future in connection with the Prestonsburg High School. But it would take us working together, throughout our county (and beyond) to realize such a dream.

But isn't it worth it? An arts center could serve our schools, the community, and our region. A decent auditorium could be a "rain site" for performances of Jenny Wiley Theatre, something that has worked well in Bardstown. Fine choirs, plays, and other cultural events could be displayed in an atmosphere that would make us proud...and would also make us better stewards of the gifts and talents our children have in such abundance. If we don't make the most of those gifts, they may never be developed, or worse still, be lost.

I would close with a favorite quotation of George Bernard Shaw, "Some men see things as they are, and ask, 'Why?'; I dream of things that never were, and ask, 'Why not?'" So, fellow citizens: why not a new auditorium and center for the arts in Floyd county? It's up to you.

Christmas Play Set At Eastern

Thursday evening, December 17 at 6:30 p.m. a Christmas Shadow Play and special Christmas music will be performed by the Joy Bible Clubs of Eastern.

Plenty of parking space is available near Allen Central High School. The house is marked by a huge Christmas Tree. All are welcome.

It's a bird, it's a plane... A tiny shorebird has set a new record for the fastest long-distance bird flight. According to National Wildlife magazine, the semipalmated sandpiper flew 2,800 miles—from Massachusetts to Guyana, South America—in only four days!

Donor Center Plans Holiday Donorama

The Seventh Annual Donorama, sponsored by Central Kentucky Blood Center in Prestonsburg, will be held December 27 through December 30 at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn. Seventy-five donors are needed each day to meet the Big Sandy area goal.

During the holidays, the blood supply drops to critically low levels. Area blood drives are fewer while patient needs are greater due to traffic accidents, emergency hospitalization, fires. To meet this critical need, donors from Floyd and surrounding counties are invited to the Seventh Annual Donorama at the Holiday Inn.

Area merchants are contributing hundreds of dollars worth of gifts, food, prizes, and coupons. Each donor will receive a free coffee mug and care package. Area merchants are teaming up to provide special holiday treats.

Donorama hours are Sunday, December 27, 12 noon to 5 p.m.; Monday through Wednesday, 11 a.m. to 8 p.m.

For more information, call the Prestonsburg Donor Center at 886-1557 or Larlynn Leffler at 1-800-432-9528.

For convenience when cooking and baking, glue a cork to the top of a recipe file box, cut a slit in it and set the recipe card in the slit when in use.

Everybody's Science...

New Lima Beans Tolerate Drought Like A Camel

You wouldn't expect a lima bean to make a camel look like a water guzzler by comparison, but a scientist's new lima bean flourishes on just dribbles of rainwater.

So new it has no name, the lima thrived in Maryland's hot dry summer in 1987, says Charles A. Thomas of USDA's Agricultural Research Service. What's more, it has superior flavor.

Only three-quarters of an inch of rain fell in the three months after he planted the bean in June at the Beltsville, Md., Agricultural Research Center. Normally, the area gets 12.3 inches of rain between June 1 and August 31.

"I found it hard to believe that these plants did so well with so little," he says.

Not 10 feet away from the green lima beans, loaded with large pods, was a patch of corn also planted June 1. The corn rows, barely waist high, were brown instead of green, burnt in a summer that had 21 days over 90 degrees.

Thomas is hoping that genetic engineering researchers will work to isolate the genes that give the new lima bean such a high degree of drought tolerance.

"Genetic engineering might make it possible to transfer the lima bean's drought tolerance to a crop like corn," he says. "In the past, we could never even attempt such a transfer. With conventional breeding techniques, you couldn't cross a lima bean with a tomato or a carrot."

If such a drought resistance can be switched to other vegetables, it would offer the potential for growing crops in dry regions of this country and the world.

Thomas says lima beans originated in Guatemala; Indians first brought them here through Arizona and New Mexico. "Varieties that survived the arid conditions in those areas were naturally going to have some drought tolerance, which has been passed on."

While Thomas is pleased with his lima bean's camel-like water requirements, he is even happier that it combines two very marketable characteristics—a large curved pod and a bean that retains its green color after maturity.

"Best of all, though, is the flavor," Thomas says. "Most people I've fed these beans like them better than any other lima."

Dress Up Your Holiday Gifts

Here is an inexpensive way to dress up your holiday gifts and crafts. Make your own decorative ribbon.

Select fabric that flatters the color and design of the giftwrap or craft item. Patty Rai Smith of the Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service said firmly woven, lightweight cottons are the best choices, such as calicos, gingham and other printed cloth. "Whatever you do, don't use polyester material. The glue will run right off," she said.

Mix two cups of lukewarm water with 1/2 cup of white glue. This will stiffen about 2 yards of fabric. An extra-heavy solution of laundry starch, prepared according to package directions, will work as well, although Smith said ribbon made with white glue is probably more durable. Immerse the fabric in the glue or starch solution until it is thoroughly moistened. Drip dry.

Next, iron the fabric. If you choose to stiffen it with glue, place pieces of a brown paper bag between the ironing board, the fabric and your iron.

Finally, cut your ribbon with scissors. If you cut on the bias, the fabric will ravel less. For a fancy touch, use pinking shears.

Turkey Leftovers— Try Something Different

From the American Institute for Cancer Research

For most of us, one of the joys of the holiday season is leftover turkey, although too much of a good thing is still too much. But turkey is a versatile, lowfat meat that can serve as the basis for not only tempting turkey sandwiches, but a wide variety of dishes ranging from the simple to the elegant.

It's important, however, to make sure the turkey meat is properly stored to maintain its flavor. Remove any stuffing from the roast bird, and remove meat from the bone as soon as possible.

Wrap meat loosely or place in a covered dish and refrigerate promptly. Or, wrap it tightly in moisture-proof wrapping paper or foil to freeze.

There are few meat recipes that can't be converted to include your leftover turkey. Turkey cubes are great in place of beef in stew or in place of fish in chowder. Substitute slices of turkey breast for veal in French cuisine or in place of pork in a Chinese stir-fry. Turkey's mild flavor makes it a natural in "hot" dishes like chili or curry. And give turkey a try in spaghetti sauce, quiche, enchiladas, lasagna, or any of your favorite casseroles. You may find that you don't want to save this economical, lowfat meat just for the holidays!

TURKEY ALMOND CASSEROLE

There's a bit of tang in the sweet flavor of this casserole. Serve it over brown rice, accompanied by a vegetable salad and/or steamed broccoli or carrots.

- 3/4 cup pineapple chunks packed in juice (about 6 ounces)
- 2 cups turkey, cooked and diced
- 2 stalks celery, diagonally sliced
- 1 green pepper, cut into 1-inch squares
- 1/4 cup toasted whole almonds
- 1 1/2 cups chicken bouillon, preferably low sodium
- 1/2 cup sherry
- 3 tbsp. cornstarch
- 2 tbsp. soy sauce
- 3/4 tsp. ground ginger
- 1/4-1/2 tsp. garlic powder
- 1 small tomato, cut into wedges
- 2 tbsp. green onion slices, including tops

Drain the pineapple, reserving juice for the sauce. Combine the pineapple with the turkey, celery, green pepper and almonds in a 2-quart casserole. Combine reserved pineapple juice with enough chicken bouillon to measure 2 cups. Blend sherry and cornstarch together well. Add to juice mixture along with soy sauce, ginger and garlic powder; stir well. Pour over turkey mixture and mix well.

Bake in a 375 degree oven, uncovered, for 40 minutes or until sauce has thickened, stirring occasionally. Add tomato wedges and sprinkle with green onion. Bake 5 minutes longer or until heated through. Serve over brown rice.

This recipe makes four servings, each with 272 calories and 8 grams of fat.

Cooking Country Ham

Country ham is a holiday tradition in Kentucky. As the season to be jolly fast-approaches, keep these tips in mind when preparing a Kentucky country ham.

*Whole hams can be either boiled or baked. Whether boiling or baking a ham, plan on about 20 minutes cooking time per pound of meat. Use an oven temperature of 300 to 350 degrees.

*Long-aged hams tend to be drier and may be better if boiled or baked in a roaster with water added.

*Don't forget about those convenient, vacuum-wrapped country ham slices. To cook sliced country ham, place the meat in a frying pan using moderate heat. Brown slices on both sides, turning frequently. Avoid overcooking thin slices as they will become dry and tough. Slices also may be broiled. Again, avoid overcooking.

Sue Burrier, Extension foods specialist, suggests soaking a whole ham in water for 12 hours to remove some of the salt. You might also do this with a single slice of country ham.

Always refrigerate country ham as soon as it is cut and also after cooking.

BOOKS AND THINGS

By: Trisha Morris, Librarian, Prestonsburg Community College

The trappings of Christmas are automatic with the season. The tree is enthroned in the house and decorated with jewels and lights, cards are posted, presents are wrapped, good things are baked, and we feel very comfortable with our traditions. But, where did it all originate and why do we do it? The following books from the P.C.C. library will answer these questions and make delightful holiday reading.

The Glass Christmas Ornament:
Old and New
By: Maggie Rogers

When their combined collection of glass Christmas tree ornaments grew to over 3,000 and it took three days to hang them all—Rodgers and her daughter were persuaded to write a book on their avocation. Thinking it would be a "lark," they embarked on what they soon discovered was a subject so obscure they were forced to learn German and travel to Bavaria for reliable information. The result is an unique tool for collectors featuring color photographs of 250 ornaments and numerous appendices on their history, price range, production techniques and repairs.

The Christmas Tree Book
By: Phillip Synder

The children string popcorn and make paper chains as their parents unpack ornaments, which have become family mementoes, lovingly saved from year to year—all to decorate the Christmas tree. Why? Where did the tradition start to bring a fir tree into the living room and adorn it with glittering tidbits and winking lights? Illustrated with engravings and many full-color pages, The Christmas Tree Book, celebrates the lovely tradition of the decorated tree. Here are the many stories, fables, legends and family remembrances of the magic emblem of the season—the Christmas tree.

Happy Christmas

By: William Seymour

An anthology of Christmas stories, verses, plays and songs collected from authors new and old and from lands far and near. A treasury of holiday lore that will delight every member of the family. It includes such diverse selections as Dicken's A Christmas Tree, Beatrix Potter's Simpkin's Christmas and Edwin Morgan's The Computer's First Christmas Card.

The Complete Christmas Book
By: Franklin Watts

It is rare that a book has the perfect title—this title says exactly what this book is—complete. A sampling of everything for the season is included between its covers. There is Christmas lore, Christmas presents and how to wrap them, Christmas decorations and how to hang them, Christmas recipes, Christmas music, Christmas stories and poems and Christmas yet to come. This is the "complete" book of Christmas traditions.

Christmas Traditions

By: William Muir Auld

The emotional response to the Christmas garland, the tree, the colored lights, the special food and the necessary presents are all a part of the customs of this mid-winter feast which descends to us from the pagan childhood of our race. This book deals largely with old-time beliefs and customs concerning elements of pagan and Christian, gay and grave, mystical and ordinary, historical and legendary. Here is the story of the Christmas carol, the yule log, carols and the rise of our Christian feast from a pagan festival.

Celebrates 25th Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Bobby Owsley, of Gas City, Indiana, celebrated their 25th wedding anniversary, Saturday, Oct. 31, with a reception at the home of their eldest daughter, Mrs. Sherry Furnish, also of Gas City.

The event was hosted by their children with the help of Mrs. Owsley's mother, Mrs. Dixie Lawson, her sister, Mrs. Anna Ray Ward, and niece, Mrs. Debbie Hardee.

Bobby and Barbara Owsley were married November 3, 1962, in Clintwood, Virginia. They have three children, Mrs. Sherry Furnish, Angela Owsley, and Susan Owsley, and one grandchild, LeeAnna Furnish.

The couple sincerely appreciated the many friends and family who helped celebrate this special anniversary as well as the gifts they received.

Premature Parenthood— Who Pays When Teens Have Babies?

Experts agree that children of teen mothers are at a disadvantage compared to those of older mothers. But because almost all of the studies on this issue have involved low-income families, no one knows for sure whether the disadvantage is due to maternal age, environment or to a combination of these and other factors.

Jane Hollowell, who works with Kentucky teen parents and their children in the Children and Youth Project in Louisville, believes that while many factors figure in, maternal age does affect a child's overall development.

"All other things being equal, I think that children of very young mothers are at more risk in terms of health, bad behavior and personal and social development," said Hollowell, a pediatric nurse practitioner.

"I definitely think that their situation is compounded by their living conditions, but if a girl is under 16, she probably hasn't come far enough along to understand what having a baby means, what accepting responsibility means," said Hollowell. "And we see the results of that immaturity here."

In Kentucky in 1986, there were 175 live births to girls under 15. These births occurred in all of Kentucky's 15 area development districts and in 65 counties. There were 9,028 live births to teens in 1986.

"We see babies who at six months old are very overweight because it's easy for that young mother to simply feed the baby every time it cries," she said. "On the other hand, if a baby tends to sleep a lot, it might be underweight because the mother won't wake the baby for regular feedings."

"We find that many teen mothers aren't aware that baby has other than physical needs—a bottle and a dry diaper," said Hollowell. "The babies don't get the holding and hugging that they need."

"As a result, we see a lot of generally fussy babies and toddlers that exhibit a lot of attention-getting behavior," she said. "In other words, they don't mind, which can cause big problems later on."

Young mothers in general don't have realistic expectations of their child's development, she said. For example, if a toddler pulls a hot curling iron off the counter and is burned, the mother tends to believe that the accident was the child's fault because "she shouldn't have pulled the cord."

"They don't seem to understand that the child, even though she might be able to walk and talk, can't be responsible for her actions," said Hollowell, a 10-year veteran of the project. "If the child tries to walk down stairs and falls, we hear 'he should have been more careful.'"

All of their clients are low-income, she said, but the older mothers accept more responsibility and in general are better equipped to raise a child.

"These young mothers aren't intentionally harming their children, but they just don't have the maturity or training to take care of a baby," she said. "And it's hard for us to provide that here in 30-minute visits."

The Children and Youth Project at the University of Louisville is funded largely by the Department for Health Services and provides health care for children deemed to be "high risk." A staff of physicians, nurses, nutritionists, dentists and social workers see children for regular check-ups and for illnesses.

"We need more instruction for teen parents—they do want to be good parents," she said. "And we need accessible day care programs for these girls so that they can continue their education. If grandma works and the family can't afford a baby sitter or day care, she doesn't have any other choice than to drop out."

Children of teens are at risk in other ways, says Pat Pennington of the Kentucky Department for Health Services maternal and family planning services branch. Teen mothers are more likely to give birth to low birth-weight babies, increasing their likelihood of dying as infants, said Pennington.

In 1985, 7.1 percent of all babies were low birth-weight (under five and a half pounds). Of births to girls under age 15, 8 percent were low birth-weight; age 15-19, 8.5 percent were low birth-weight.

In 1985, the state infant mortality rate was 11.2, which means that of every 1,000 live births, 11 babies died before age 1. Among babies born to girls under 15, the infant mortality rate was 1.6; among the 15-19 set, the rate was 13.5.

In addition to being the leading cause of infant death, low birth-weight can bring many other medical problems. Some low birth-weight babies have low blood sugar (hypoglycemia), which can cause brain damage. They may not be able to maintain a proper body temperature, which can cause slow growth. Low birth-weight can manifest itself in nervous system and behavior problems later in childhood.

"We know that the risk to the babies could be greatly alleviated if these girls had early prenatal care," she said. "Poor nutrition and smoking, drugs and alcohol also contribute to the possibility of low birth-weight."

"Besides the humanitarian concerns, we know for a fact that we can save taxpayers and the medical system in general a lot of money by preventing low birth-weight babies."

Part Three of this series will examine the costs of teen pregnancy to society as a whole.

Gingerbread House Featured At Gratz Park Inn In Lex.

Visitors to the Gratz Park Inn in Lexington at Christmas will enjoy seeing the handmade gingerbread house on display in the lobby. The three-foot house took over 50 hours to construct, according to Executive Chef Leland Atkinson. The house will be on display throughout the holidays.

The recipe for the Gratz Park Inn Gingerbread House follows:

- 1,900 "NECO" Wafers
- 75 Pounds Powdered Sugar
- 120 Egg Whites
- 20 Pounds Flour
- 1 Gallon Heavy Cream
- 2 Pounds Chocolate
- 12 Pounds Hard Candy
- 6 Pounds Peppermint Candy
- 1 Pound Licorice
- 4 Pounds Brown Sugar
- 50 Hours of Labor

NO SAFE TOBACCO

All forms of tobacco use, even dipping and chewing, are risk factors for the development of cancer of the mouth, according to the American Cancer Society.

Mr. and Mrs. Hall To Celebrate 50th

Myrtle E. Spencer, 72, and Oliver Hall, 69, were married December 27, 1937 at Honaker by the Rev. Tom Meade. The couple will celebrate their 50th wedding anniversary at their home.

They are the parents of a daughter, Shirley Parsons, and grandparents of Sherry, Melinda and Kristina Parsons, of Printer.

Mr. Hall is a retired coal miner and both are members of the Mouth of Mud Church of Christ.

Parents Should Take Steps To Help Teenagers Through Pain of Divorce

When Mark's mother and father recently separated, the 16-year-old high school sophomore maturely accepted it as the best solution to their long-term unhappiness.

On the other hand, 14-year-old Cynthia saw her parent's splitting up as a chance to escape her mother's strict discipline. She chose to live with her father who promised her a closetful of clothes as well as permission to date her 19-year-old boyfriend.

While Mark and Cynthia's reactions to divorce were very different, they reflect the wide range of responses teenagers have when a family splinters.

Based on a long-term study of 60 families undergoing divorce, child development specialists Judith Wallerstein and Joan Berlin Kelly found that some teenagers responded to their parent's breakup with surprising maturity. They were adolescents who accepted the need for the separation and drew thoughtful conclusions about how they would make better choices in marriage than their mothers and fathers.

However, other adolescents in the study experienced intense negative reactions. They were hostile toward a mother or father's new love interest, angry at a parent who they felt was sexually immoral and feared whether they would falter as badly in marriage as their parents. The family's turmoil had also left them feeling extremely insecure, because they had been forced to grow up before they were ready. Wallerstein and Berlin concluded that how teenagers respond to divorce often depends on their parents.

"Some adolescents who appeared to do well were those who from the outset had been able to maintain some distance from the parental crisis and whose parents had permitted them to do so without intruding on them," they asserted.

In her book "Growing Up Divorced," Linda Bird Franacke asserts that unless parents are attentive to their adolescent's feelings during and after a divorce, the repercussions can be life-long.

"If their reactions are severe, they can get into very adult kinds of trouble," Franacke concludes. "Alcohol, drugs, promiscuity and overaggressive behavior are all too available avenues of 'escape' for the emotional teenager."

To help a teenager through divorce parents should consider the following guidelines:

—Immediately after the divorce adolescents need a chance to adjust to the enormous changes that have occurred. Change as few things as you can, including where they live and go to school if at all possible. Don't even move the furniture around if you can help it.

—Despite what you think of your ex-spouse, remember that your adolescent is probably still intensely loyal to him or her. Resist the temptation to unload to a teenager about such things as a former husband or wife's irresponsibility with money or his or her extramarital affairs.

—You also owe it to your son or daughter to maintain as amiable a relationship as possible with your ex-spouse so that you can make rational decisions about such things as schooling and visitations.

If possible, meet regularly with your ex-spouse on neutral ground (such as a restaurant) so you can come to consistent, mutually agreeable standards by which you will raise your children. Also use this time to rationally air your grievances so that you avoid ugly living-room brawls that often occur when parents pick up the children for visitations.

—Don't let your cynicism about love and marriage jeopardize your adolescent's chances for happiness in the future. Try to take time to reminisce over family snapshots about the happy times you and your ex-spouse spent together as a couple.

—While teenagers are not as prone to blame themselves for a divorce as their younger brothers and sisters, they may still need to be reassured that the divorce had nothing to do with them.

—While after a divorce it's common for teenage boys to become "the man of the house," or the girl to assume the role of her newly single mother's friend and confidant, don't allow your teen to assume responsibility beyond his or her years.

—If after the divorce your teenager becomes depressed, acts out, becomes verbally or physically abusive or develops unexplainable physical illnesses, he or she may be asking for help. In such cases consider seeking professional assistance.

Ky. Banks Support Special Olympians

In conjunction with their premier sponsorship of the 1988 Kentucky Special Olympics Summer Games, the Kentucky Bankers Association and its member banks will be distributing brochures to their customers during December.

The brochures, entitled "It's No Wonder They Call It Special Olympics," will be available in the lobbies of banks in every community across the state. In the brochure, the goals of all Special Olympics athletes are described as being simply to work hard, to make friends and to give their best.

To reach these goals, they must participate in a year-round training program and prove to everyone and themselves that they can compete. According to Dave Kerchner, executive director of Kentucky Special Olympics, "Our athletes compete to win. They compete for fun. They love the effort. And they love each other."

The 12,000 children and adults with mental retardation served by Kentucky Special Olympics deserve the right to compete just as the thousands of individuals in Kentucky not participating deserve the right to compete. Through the brochure, the Kentucky Bankers Association and its member banks are asking their customers to join with them in supporting Kentucky's Special Olympians and giving these gifted athletes the opportunity to excel in sports and in life.

Deer Season, Bag Limits and License Requirements Are Set for 1988 Season

Deer seasons for archery and firearms will open on their traditional dates, and hunters will need to buy only one deer tag to harvest two deer...

The two-deer permit should be exciting news for the hunter," says deer biologist John Phillips. "For $17.50, he will have the opportunity to take two deer without the inconvenience and extra expense of purchasing a second tag."

The two-deer tag is seen as an incentive for hunters to take a second deer in zones where it is legal to do so.

The new deer permit will have two tags, one for antlered deer only and one which will allow the hunter to take either antlered or antlerless deer depending on zone limits.

The bag limit for deer will remain two per hunter per season.

Kentucky Afield... Deer Harvest Reflects Increase

By NORM MINCH
Ky. Dept. of Fish and Wildlife Resources
Approximately 20,000 more deer were harvested during the 1987 gun season than in 1986...

A total harvest of 57,381 deer was recorded by check station operators, state conservation officers and other departmental personnel during the November 14-23 season.

The increased harvest was a result of higher deer populations and more liberal hunting regulations in some areas of the state.

Eastern Kentucky districts showed an encouraging harvest increase this season. The Seventh Wildlife District harvest more than doubled...

In order of harvest, the second, first and fifth districts, which included the new "two deer by gun" counties, were again the top three districts.

According to John Phillips, deer program coordinator, the gun season harvest achieved the management goals for the state's deer herd.

After examining the 1987 harvest results, Phillips revised his proposal to increase the season limit to three deer for the 1988 season...

"Generally speaking, enough deer were harvested this season to stabilize most of the more highly populated areas under a two-deer-per-hunter limit," said Phillips.

The Sporting Times

Dear Santa: I haven't been much of a believer in the past, and maybe for that reason you probably won't listen to what I say...

And Santa, I would like a regional champion from the 58th district. It doesn't matter who. I've been working here for almost three years...

Being a world traveler like yourself I just guessed that you know about those places. Or maybe living near the North Pole has frozen your brain or something.

Now for the important stuff. Santa, we want a great big trophy brought back to eastern Kentucky in March.

First of all, I would like to have a bunch of new bridges for the Mountain Parkway. You see, it is annoying to stop for red lights on the parkway...

Now for the important stuff. Santa, we want a great big trophy brought back to eastern Kentucky in March.

Make that two trophies. We want a boys' title too. Now Santa, it seems the boys in Beantown might need your help again this year.

You are Irish, aren't you Santa? No, no, Santa, not Notre Dame. The Boston Celtics. You know, Larry Bird, Kevin McHale and that bunch.

While you're at it, go ahead and give all the nation a gift and let the University of Kentucky make the final four.

Better yet, maybe you should help Louisville. UK might not need luck this year. Santa, you need to pay special attention to New York City and Los Angeles.

It appears that you passed them up last year in favor of San Francisco. Hey Santa, that doesn't tell of underlying personal preferences, does it?

The Big Apple is used to winners. You didn't give them any help in your last trip through. You left the Knicks for dead and they died.

You gave San Francisco Joe Montana and Jerry Rice years ago. You gave the Giants Jeffery Leonard and Will Clark, so how about making Cincinnati a winner this time around. Actually, I don't care about New York and LA, I just needed to make a point.

I know about all that naughty and nice stuff, but haven't we been good fans? It's time we got a winner. By the way, thanks for Danny Jackson. He might help.

And Santa, I would like a regional champion from the 58th district. It doesn't matter who. I've been working here for almost three years...

Oh, but the presents you've brought them during this decade. Its our turn now. We've waited long enough.

Oh yea, and a World Series appearance for the Reds and a Super Bowl ring to go with a new quarterback for the Bengals.

And Santa, speaking of that Mustang...yeh, all right, I understand.

The Sun's power in watts is 380,000 billion billion kilowatts.

German Holiday Customs To Air On KET Special

A German Christmas is a family celebration, and one of the children's favorite holiday customs in Germany is the Christmas calendar. This special calendar begins December 1 and has 25 little doors, one for each day of the Advent season.

"A Christmas Calendar" airs Sunday, December 20 at 8 p.m. It repeats at 3 p.m., Tuesday, December 22. In this hourlong, family-oriented special host Loretta Swit (M*A*S*H) opens the doors of this calendar just for viewers.

Swit presents many of the Christmas customs and traditions found in various regions of Germany. She looks at the history of the Christmas tree and the origins of the Advent wreath, Christmas delicacies, including gingerbread and marzipan, whet the appetite.

Open-air Christmas markets from Nuremberg to Munich are also on her itinerary. The program takes her from Berlin in the north to the Alps in the south, from Aachen to Stuttgart, and even to the birthplace of "Silent Night," one of the world's most beloved carols.

To Appear on KET Scholastic Challenge

McDowell

KET Offers Holiday Cooking Specials

As you deck your halls with boughs of holly and search for gifts among crowds of holiday shoppers, don't forget an important element of the holiday season—food. In December KET tantalizes your tastebuds with programs designed to help you prepare food for your family and guests.

Novel combinations of imported and American cuisine from Polish mushroom soup to roasted chestnuts are among the highlights of "Holiday Entertaining With Martha Stewart" Saturday, December 19 at 2:30 p.m.

Stewart, one of America's foremost chefs and author of five books on cooking and entertaining, shares some of her favorite holiday recipes. She also offers creative and practical approaches to every aspect of family entertaining including menu planning, food preparation, table setting, and seating arrangements.

From her restored 19th-century Connecticut farmhouse, Stewart demonstrates how to transform a conventional turkey with some show-stopping variations such as smoked pheasant and pastry-wrapped turkey breast. Her home-grown produce provides the inspiration for a variety of relishes, preserves, vegetable dishes, and salads. Tips on preparing hors d'oeuvres and choosing the right wine are included. A traditional pumpkin pie dessert shares the spotlight with Concord grape pie and cranberry sorbet.

If a kernel of popcorn was dropped on a neutron star, it would produce as much energy as a World War II atomic bomb.

The Snow Queen Returns To KET

A seasonal classic returns to KET in a special holiday encore presentation. "Kentucky Center Presents: The Snow Queen" airs Monday, December 21 at 2 p.m. and repeats Tuesday, December 22 at 8.

KET first aired "The Snow Queen" live last year when one of the country's premiere children's theatres, Stage One: Louisville Children's Theatre, gave a performance at the Kentucky Center. This presentation was the first in a series of productions performed in the Louisville area as part of a partnership between KET and the Kentucky Center.

"KET is delighted to bring back this seasonal classic," says Executive Director O. Leonard Press. "Our partnership with the Center has made it possible for a statewide audience—who might not have any other opportunity—to see not only productions such as Stage One's performance of 'The Snow Queen' but also a variety of musical performances from the Lonesome Pine summer festival and our presentation earlier this year of the Louisville Ballet.

"Future productions from the Center also call for a performance by the Owensboro Symphony Orchestra and a new season of 'Kentucky Center Presents: The Lonesome Pine Specials,'" adds Press.

"Kentucky Center Presents: The Snow Queen" is based on a timeless fairy tale by Hans Christian Andersen. It is the story of a happy family whose lives are disrupted when the evil Snow Queen abducts Kay, the foster grandson, and turns his heart into ice. Gerda, grief stricken by his absence, leaves her grandmother's home on a long and perilous search to bring him back.

"Kentucky Center Presents: The Snow Queen" stars Jill Susan Meyers as Gerda, Geoffrey Hobin as Kay, Breton Frazier as Granny, Rick Munger as the Chancellor, and Tess Krebs as the Snow Queen.

KET viewers will recognize Frazier from her performance as Sister Francine Boatwright in the KET production of "East of Nineveh." The Jim Peyton play encored earlier this fall and has received several national broadcasting awards.

Also appearing in "Kentucky Center Presents: The Snow Queen" is William Groth. He too is familiar to KET audiences; Groth played nephew B. W. Bumpus in "East of Nineveh."

Senior Citizens Back In School

Bernice Meade likes to tell the story of her great-grandchild who asks her in the morning, "Are you going to school today, too, grandma?"

The 63-year-old great-grandmother gets a charge out of telling the first grader that "yes, grandma's going to school, too."

Meade, from Pikeville, is part of a cooperative senior citizens' training program conducted by Prestonsburg Community College and funded by the National Council on Aging (NCOA) through the Big Sandy Community Action Program (CAP).

PCC is offering the program in Paintsville and Pikeville, with the aim that the seniors will be able to find jobs in the private sector upon completion. During the 10-week classroom stint, Meade and her classmates, all 55 or over, are brushing up their math, reading and writing skills.

In January, the 16 students will go into practical training as learning center aides, clerical aides, day care center aides or home companions.

"The program's great. I can't express it really," says Meade, who left school in the eighth grade. "I never dreamed this would happen to me." She pauses and shakes her head. "We never know what's in store."

Most of the program participants have worked for years at CAP or NCOA funded job sites. Meade, for instance, was a dispatcher for the Johns Creek Fire Department. Others were associated with schools, libraries, community centers, county and municipal governments and other organizations.

Striving to interest and challenge these non-traditional students, instructor Barbara Burke takes them bowling and explains mathematical concepts in scoring. She brings cardboard pies, and sometimes real ones, to class to demonstrate fractions.

PCC's Pikeville offices in addition to Meade, are: Vada Burke, Pat Chaffins, Betty Osborne, Charlotte Rawson, and Marie Parson, all of Pike county; and Rose Floyd, Virgie Spriggs, Delmer Keathley, and Kathleen Willis of Floyd county.

The Paintsville group, which meets 20 hours a week at First Christian Church, includes Opal France, Marjorie Keene and Arthur Griffith, of Lawrence county, and Martha Conley, Lorene Young and Jim Garnett, of Johnson county.

Receives White Rose

Prestonsburg attorney Arnold Turner, Jr., received the Kentucky Right to Life Association's first annual White Rose Award at Executive Inn, West, Saturday, November 14.

The honor was given during the group's annual state convention in which some 170 activists from around the Commonwealth attended.

Turner was honored for his efforts in founding the first crisis pregnancy center in Eastern Kentucky in 1984. In three short years, Alternatives, Inc., has served more than 300 women and girls faced with unplanned pregnancies. The non-profit agency offers support services, legal advice, and medical care to women and girls as an alternative to abortion.

The Weiss Rose (White Rose) symbolizes a resistance group of students formed at the University of Munich in 1942 to oppose Nazi euthanasia programs. The second White Rose movement is intended to resist euthanasia, suicide, and assisted-suicide in contemporary America, to promote and defend the right of all persons to be treated with respect, dignity and compassion, and to receive necessary medical care.

GRADUATES FROM EKU

Miss Beverly Adair Osborne, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Hershell Osborne, of Eastern, graduated from Eastern Kentucky University, Richmond Kentucky, Saturday.

Miss Osborne had a 4.0 average and graduated with a B.A. Degree in Paralegal Services.

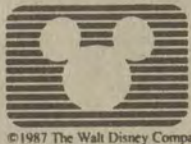

Those attending were the parents, Miss Katie Osborne, Mr. Rhomer Osborne, all of Eastern; Mr. and Mrs. Edgar Osborne, of Prestonsburg; Mrs. Billie Barnett, of Martin; and Mr. and Mrs. Donald Halbert, of Lexington.

The Christmas Story as presented by the members of the Maytown First Baptist Church will be performed next Sunday, December 20th at 6 p.m. at the church in Maytown. Everyone is encouraged to attend and share in this wonderful celebration of Christmas.

The long journey to find God's love still goes on but it is within our hearts and minds, rather than across the dry, dusty desert, that the search takes place. Let us waiver not for He is near.

Down On the Farm It's Politics, Too

Kentuckians may face a very clearly drawn choice on important state tax and budget issues during the 1988 legislative session, according to Sen. John "Eck" Rose, president pro tem of the Kentucky Senate.

Rose told a Dec. 12 Kentucky Farm Bureau Legislative Breakfast in Louisville that legislators will likely take their cues from public reaction to Gov. Wallace Wilkinson's proposed budget, due out in mid-January, before deciding whether to treat state financial problems with program cuts or tax increases.

"The public response to the governor's executive budget will determine our course," Rose told the farm group. "When the people of the state get that budget and find out who's ox is being gored, either they will say they don't want those cutbacks or they want to go the other way."

Wilkinson has said he will oppose any immediate increase in taxes despite reports that the state faces an estimated $400 million shortfall over the next biennium. Legislative leaders, including Rose, have indicated they would be reluctant to go along with deep spending cuts in certain key programs, primarily education.

Rose acknowledged the political difficulty of legislators supporting tax increases in the face of adamant opposition from the new governor. But he noted that the lawmakers could make that choice if a public outcry develops from affected groups over spending cutbacks.

Kentucky Farm Bureau President Ray Mackey has said farmers may be at risk if state taxes are increased next year. In earlier remarks to the Farm Bureau convention delegates, he said he hopes Wilkinson keeps his campaign promise of "no increased taxes" because a lot of the "targets of the Frankfort tax raisers can be found down on the farm."

Among them—property taxes, House Bill 44, which makes certain property tax hikes subject to referendum, agricultural exemptions from the state sales tax, and cigarette excise taxes.

Noting Wilkinson's landslide victory in rural areas of the state, Mackey said he hopes the new governor "remembers his rural friends" when farm property or income get targeted for higher taxes.

Rose pledged his personal opposition to higher property taxes. But he said if the legislature "holds the line" in that area, it will have to look at other sectors. And the search is made more difficult, he noted, by tax exemptions that have eroded the state's tax base in recent years.

He also warned that agriculture could be one of the sectors hard-hit by spending reductions. He said deep farm program cuts have been implemented at the federal level, and he could foresee similar action taken by state officials if the fiscal noose tightens.

Whatever choice the legislature makes won't be dictated by the new governor, Rose noted. In promising continued legislative independence, he said, "We will cooperate with the Administration when warranted, we will criticize when appropriate, and we will take the lead when it's in our realm to treat the issue."

"If I have to depend on a governor to be re-elected to my Senate seat or to the Senate leadership," Rose said, "I'm ready to go back home and farm and conduct auctions."

The outspoken state senator also gave the Farm Bureau leaders some advice on how to maintain its traditional clout in Frankfort. The key, he noted is money.

Although Farm Bureau has had strong and correct positions on issues important to farm people, Rose said that the "things you have done in the past may not be sufficient to maintain political clout."

Sometime in the future, he told Farm Bureau leaders they would have to confront the possibility of making financial contributions and political endorsements, two practices prohibited under current organization policy.

"There are no legislators in the state that just represent farm people," he explained.

"It's human nature for public officials to dance with those that brought them to the ball," he said. "Maybe it's not supposed to be like that, but it's a fact of life."

In a related area, Rose said he will support placing the lottery proposal on the ballot to allow Kentuckians a vote on the issue. But even if it's approved, the anticipated revenue, from $40 to $70 million a year, will be "insignificant in treating the budget deficit," he said.

KET Chronicles Youth Ages 7-28 Development

In 1964 a group of 7-year-old British school children from widely different backgrounds were interviewed. The children discussed their lives, their ambitions, and their views of the world. The children were interviewed again at seven year intervals.

The hopes, dreams, and ambitions of 14 British children are detailed in these interviews when "From 7 to 28 Up" airs Wednesday, December 30 at 8 p.m. on KET. The program repeats Saturday, January 2 at 1 p.m.

At age 7, Paul Kligerman wanted to become a doctor. Seven-year-old Jackie Bassett wanted to buy a house and live "nice and comfy," and Simon Basterfield yearned to become a film star or an electrical engineer.

Years later, Paul is a self-employed bricklayer. Simon works in a meat factory, and Jackie says of her "nice and comfy" life, "If you think getting married... is a case of going to work, coming home, cooking tea for hubby, going to bed, getting up—you're totally mistaken."

"From 7 to 28 Up" presents portions of interviews with Paul, Jackie, and Simon at each seven-year interval. The special gives a picture of how the youngsters' lives and attitudes changed, and in some instances remained the same over the years.

EXERCISE AND DIETING
Want to lose weight faster? Don't just diet, exercise, too. Dance, walk, skate, swim, take an aerobics class—do whatever gets your muscles moving and heart pumping. Exercise helps burn fat at a quicker, steadier rate, says Good Housekeeping in its January issue. A workout just three times a week for at least 40 minutes is all it takes to speed your metabolism significantly, use up the calories and stored fat, and build lean body tissue. Schedule specific times to work out and stick to them. Bike around the neighborhood with the children or even crawl around the floor—it can work up a sweat.

★ Cancer Hopeline

Sometimes it seems as though everything causes cancer, but actually some foods and vitamins may help prevent the disease. By eating a well balanced diet, choosing a variety of foods and following the guidelines listed below you can reduce your risk of developing cancer, according to the National Cancer Institute.

Limit your intake of fat to decrease the risk of developing colon cancer and possibly cancers of the breast and prostate.

To help you measure fats, here are some examples:

- one cup of whole milk has eight grams of fat, but skim milk only has a trace;
- 10 potato chips have eight grams of fat;
- one tablespoon of peanut butter has seven grams of fat;
- one slice of pizza has 20 grams;
- one cup of ice cream has 10 grams;
- one hot dog has 15 grams of fat;
- one teaspoon of butter or margarine has five grams of fat.

Ways of preparing food can also help reduce dietary fat levels. Baking, broiling and boiling foods is better than frying; trimming excess fat off of meat helps; using low fat milk and cheeses; and limiting the amount of meat, poultry and fish to six ounces or less each day is also beneficial.

The National Cancer Institute also recommends eating more fruits, vegetables (especially those high in vitamins A and C) and whole grain breads and cereals. Foods such as peas, carrots, spinach, sweet potatoes, kale and pumpkin are high in beta carotene, a substance which the body changes to vitamin A. Diets high in this substance have been associated with lower rates of most cancers. Diets low in Vitamin A have been linked to prostate, cervix, skin, bladder and colon cancers. Vitamin C may also play an important role in preventing cancers of the stomach and esophagus. Brussels sprouts, green peppers, strawberries, oranges and other citrus fruits are good sources of this vitamin.

Fiber helps move waste products, including potential cancer causing agents, through the body. Another benefit or fiber is that it is low in fat. For these reasons, a fiber rich diet is recommended. Such a diet includes bran, fresh fruits, vegetables, whole grain breads, rice, pasta and dried beans.

Consume salt cured, smoked and grilled foods only in moderation. Cancer causing agents may come from the barbecue flame and smoke; this may be a concern when grilling fish or meat or frying hamburger.

Drink alcoholic beverages only in moderation. Too much alcohol,

Schneider: 'Willow Creek' is not a 'Dukes' reunion

By Wendy Wallace

"This movie was important for both Tom Wopat and me," says John Schneider of "Christmas Comes to Willow Creek," a CBS movie airing Sunday, Dec. 20. "It was an opportunity for us to show what we were capable of doing besides the Duke boys. People will now be able to look at us more seriously than they did before."

John Schneider

As Bo and Luke Duke of the CBS series "The Dukes of Hazzard," Schneider and Wopat became TV's best-known duo before taking their last ride in the supercharged General Lee in 1985. Now, the holiday drama reunites the two actors as new characters.

They portray Ray and Pete, feuding brothers who are asked by their old friend Al (Hoyt Axton) to bring a truckload of gifts to the remote and economically hard-hit town of Willow Creek, Alaska. Only their compassion for the wheelchair-bound friend, who usually makes the trip himself, can persuade the two to endure four days together in the cab of an 18-wheeler.

Adding to their difficulties are Pete's teenage son Mike (Zachary Ansley), who detests his father, and Jessie (Kim Delaney), a woman the two brothers are still arguing over.

"It's hard to take all those elements and make it realistic," Schneider admits. "But it comes off very well. Every time you think it's over, something comes in to brighten it up again. And it keeps getting better, so the story ends on an uplifting note."

Schneider is aware that many viewers will expect the movie to be a thinly disguised "Dukes" reunion. But he says that just the opposite is true.

"I'm proud to say that we've avoided the Duke characters," he says. "On the set, we started the 'Duke patrol' - whenever we slipped into old habits, we would cut, or one or the other would be instructed to keep them out at all costs. When people see us in this, they'll know the relationship is real and different."

Schneider has devoted much of his time to his career as a country music singer, and recently completed a tour with the group Alabama. ("Sold out everywhere we went," he says.) He also has acting projects in the works with his Trail's End production company.

"I don't want Tom and myself to appear as book-ends," he says of his reunion with Wopat. "We're good friends, but we're as different as two people can be. But there's something about us. It's probably the best working relationship I've ever had."

WILLOW CREEK

A feud between two brothers (John Schneider, l., and Tom Wopat, c.) may mean a disastrous Christmas for a small Alaskan town in "Christmas Comes to Willow Creek," a CBS movie airing SUNDAY, DEC. 20. Hoyt Axton co-stars.

ASK TONI

Robertson's 'Starbuck' role is a familiar one

By Toni Reinhold

Has Dale Robertson, who stars in "J.J. Starbuck," starred in any other series? My husband says he played in some Westerns. - I.L., Augusta, Ga.

Dale Robertson

Robertson, 64, starred in the Western series "Tales of Wells Fargo" (1957-62) and "The Iron Horse" (1966-68) and hosted the Western anthology series "Death Valley Days" from 1968 to 1972 (one earlier host of the show was Ronald Reagan). And in the 1981-82 season, he played Walter Lankershim on "Dynasty." He is also a film actor, with screen credits including "Fighting Man of the Plains" (1949), "Lydia Bailey" (1952), "A Day of Fury" (1956), "Law of the Lawless" (1963) and "Blood on the Arrow" (1965). When not filming "J.J. Starbuck" in Vancouver, B.C., he raises horses on his ranch in Oklahoma City, Okla.

Did Margaret Hamilton play the Wicked Witch in "The Wizard of Oz"? Did she also appear in Maxwell House coffee commercials? Is she still living? - J.D., Newport News, Va.

Hamilton did portray the Wicked Witch of the West in "The Wizard of Oz" (1939). And she later appeared in a series of Maxwell House commercials. She died on May 16, 1985, at the age of 82.

My husband and I would like to know: Is Wil Shriner, the talk-show host, related to Herb Shriner, the wonderful comedian? - A.S., Peoria, Ill.

Wil Shriner, the host of the syndicated "Wil Shriner Show," is one of the twin sons of the late "Hoosier Humorist" Herb Shriner. His brother's name is Kin. Herb and his wife, Pixie, were killed in an auto accident in 1970.

Where should I address mail to the Nickelodeon channel? - J.H., Cincinnati, Ohio

MARQUEE

THREE MEN AND A BABY (PG - Buena Vista) Starring Steve Guttenberg, Tom Selleck and Ted Danson. ★★

By J.T. YURKO

The title of "Three Men and a Baby" tells you everything you need to know about the film. Take three amiable bachelor roommates, place them in the Taj Mahal of New York penthouses, then add the active ingredient: a baby girl cute enough to melt the heart of an Eskimo Scrooge. Tom Selleck, Steve Guttenberg and Ted Danson play the three amigos, Peter, Michael and Jack, all of them swinging American males. These guys would never turn a single woman away from their door, and little Mary is no exception. They find her on their stoop, with a note attached indicating that one bachelor's night of pleasure has paid its dividend. Soon the three men are godfathers, with their careers and social lives giving way to nightly feedings and dirty diapers.

The plot demands that the three bachelors consider the baby a nuisance at first, but are eventually overcome by her charm and their own paternal drives. But these guys are wealthy enough for the child to be no burden economically. And gags such as the scene in which the baby wets the silk sheets are lightweight farce at best. So when Mary's mother (Nancy Travis) comes to reclaim her, it is no surprise that all three men want to make a long-term commitment. And the domestic tale takes a largely unnecessary twist when the package from heaven gets mixed up with a package of heroin intended for some drug dealers.

Selleck, Danson and Guttenberg convey enough charm to overcome the film's lack of a believable plot. Director Leonard Nimoy directs with restraint that is, depending on your point of view, a light touch or a lack of style: There are no glaring errors, but no inspired bits either. His biggest mistake may have been agreeing to direct in the first place. The French film "Three Men and a Cradle," on which this film is based, was a very funny movie. This one doesn't come close.

SOAP BEAT

Arrants has conjured up a past for Dr. Lassiter

By Marie Michaels

The introduction of Dr. Steven Lassiter on "The Young and the Restless" last January reacquainted fans of the soap with Rod Arrants.

Rod Arrants

Arrants had appeared on "Y&R" for six months in 1973, playing a stable boy named Jeff. So it was no surprise when fans celebrated his return as Lassiter.

In truth, though, he is best known to soap viewers for the roles he has played in between his two "Y&R" stints. He attracted attention for his portrayal of Austin Cushing on "Lovers and Friends" and the spinoff "For Richer, for Poorer," then enjoyed a six-year run as Travis Sentell on "Search for Tomorrow."

The roles of Andre Shuman on "Dallas" and corrupt police chief Richard Cates on "Days of Our Lives" further broadened his audience.

Creating Dr. Lassiter, he says, was like starting from scratch.

"It was a right-into-the-frying-pan experience," Arrants recalls. "I had all the dialogue, because Eileen Davidson (who plays psychiatric patient Ashley Abbott) was mute for a couple of months."

Arrants didn't know anything about Lassiter's background, so he conjured up a history for the character. "I've given Steven a past," he says. "He comes from New England, from a fairly well-off background. He's a Vietnam veteran and has a real decent set of values. Whether there's a flaw in Steven's character in relation to Leanna (a former patient, played by Barbara Crampton), I don't know."

While he has created Lassiter's past, the future is up to the "Y&R" writers. "I don't know how the Steven-Leanna story line is going to go," he says. "I'm about as well informed as the fans in Des Moines about what's going to happen."

Arrants is married to actress Patricia Estrin, who he met on "Lovers and Friends" (she played Megan Cushing). They share their home with Arrants' son, Dylan, and Estrin's son, Zachary, both from previous marriages.

Dylan, now in his first year at UCLA, is following in his father's footsteps. "He studied acting this past summer, got a manager and was signed by my own agent," Arrants says proudly. "He's already going out on auditions."

Christmas '87

Greetings in the name of our Lord whose birthday we celebrate and who made Christmas possible!

This wonderful season is filled with mixed emotions for me. I am so thankful God saw fit to send us a savior and for all the blessings He provides me each day by giving me such wonderful neighbors and friends. I really appreciate all the phone calls and letters I get from my precious former students—also their treasured visits throughout the year! But in spite of all the wonderful greetings, a tinge of sadness overshadows it all because the saddest day of my life happened Dec. 18, 1976. That was the day my only son, Stephen Lee went to be with the Lord. My only consolation is that he is celebrating Christmas with the one who made it possible and nothing can ever hurt him any more.

Stephen always said he'd never live to be forty years old, but I would scold him for such thoughts. As I look back over the eleven years since he went away, I realize he knew what he believed to be true. The following poem he composed a few years before his death reveals his thoughts and admonitions.

FOR CHOICE OF THE SOUL

"Nirvana or Valhalla. Eh? I, for one, prefer Valhalla."

*If, in time of the outgoing,
The freeing of the human soul
From the veils of mortal matters,
From life's reefs, and sands, and shoals,
There were a brace of heavens offered,
What would be your choice, your goal?*

*From the upward spiralling spirits
Would you follow those of the east
Toward all enchantments, endless mornings,
Where great things are base,
The best are the least,
And all things intended to be, not to do
And man is held equal to beast?*

*Or, would you perhaps fly on with others,
Ice-eyed ones who come from the north;
Ones who were but a little less than gods,
Yet they were men, there on earth?
These wraiths are bound to both be and do,
Create, tear down, know their own worth.*

*These are two pathways,
Parallel and divergent,
Together, asunder.
Both are rewards
For lives judged well lived,
Inspiring mercy,
Terrible plunder.
Both are heaven for some,
Or one,
Or the other.
Choose the sun.
Choose thunder.*

Donal Graeme in Gordon Dickson's Dorsai

Several of my former students called me Thanksgiving Eve. I was feeling a little low and sorry for myself, because I had no family to come home, nor any home of immediate family I could visit. One of the boys (middle-aged man, now) told me to not to feel that way because I have the biggest family of anyone he knows! Made me ashamed of myself!

So, to everyone in that family of former students whom I love and know they love me too, to all my dear friends and neighbors—to all those who still make life worth living, may this be the happiest, most prosperous Christmas you have ever known. The best Christmas wish I could possibly give you is that you will open your heart and let Jesus in and you too can spend eternity with Him! Christmas without end!!

Love and prayers,
FRANKIE SUE BEST

NFIB Launches Drive For Balanced Budget

The National Federation of Independent Business has launched a 23-state grassroots lobbying campaign to pressure the U.S. House Judiciary Committee into allowing the full House to vote on a constitutional amendment to balance the budget.

The lobbying push by the 500,000-member NFIB is targeted at 66 members of the House of Representatives, including Rep. Carroll Hubbard Jr. (D) of Kentucky's first congressional district and Rep. Larry J. Hopkins (R) of Kentucky's sixth congressional district, who have not publicly committed to a full House vote on the amendment bill.

The balanced-budget amendment (H. J. Res. 321), sponsored by Reps. Charles Stenholm (D-TX), Larry Craig (R-ID), Bob Smith (R-OR) and Tom Carper (D-DE), was introduced in the House on June 17, 1987, and has so far attracted 236 co-sponsors.

The bill was assigned to the House Judiciary Committee where, according to John Motley, director of federal governmental relations for NFIB, the leadership has vowed to hold the bill hostage, denying a full House vote on the issue.

For the legislation to reach the House floor for a vote, at least 218 representatives must sign what is known as a Discharge Petition—a parliamentary procedure that would force the committee to send the bill to the full House.

However, Motley noted that because of the nature of the discharge petition process, many members of the House—including those who signed as co-sponsors of the legislation—are reluctant to sign the petition.

"We have alerted our members in these districts of the need to urge Congressmen Hubbard and Hopkins to sign the discharge petition," said Motley.

"The Congressmen have signed on as co-sponsors of the legislation, but it's imperative that we get them to sign the petition. We're hopeful that the voices of Kentucky's small-business owners will convince them to help bring the legislation to a full vote," he added.

Women Meet, Dec. 8

The Community United Methodist women met December 8 at 7 p.m. at the parsonage for their business meeting and Christmas party.

New officers were elected as follows: President, Marion Masters; vice president, Jean Burke; secretary, Marcella Slone; treasurer, Esther Ward.

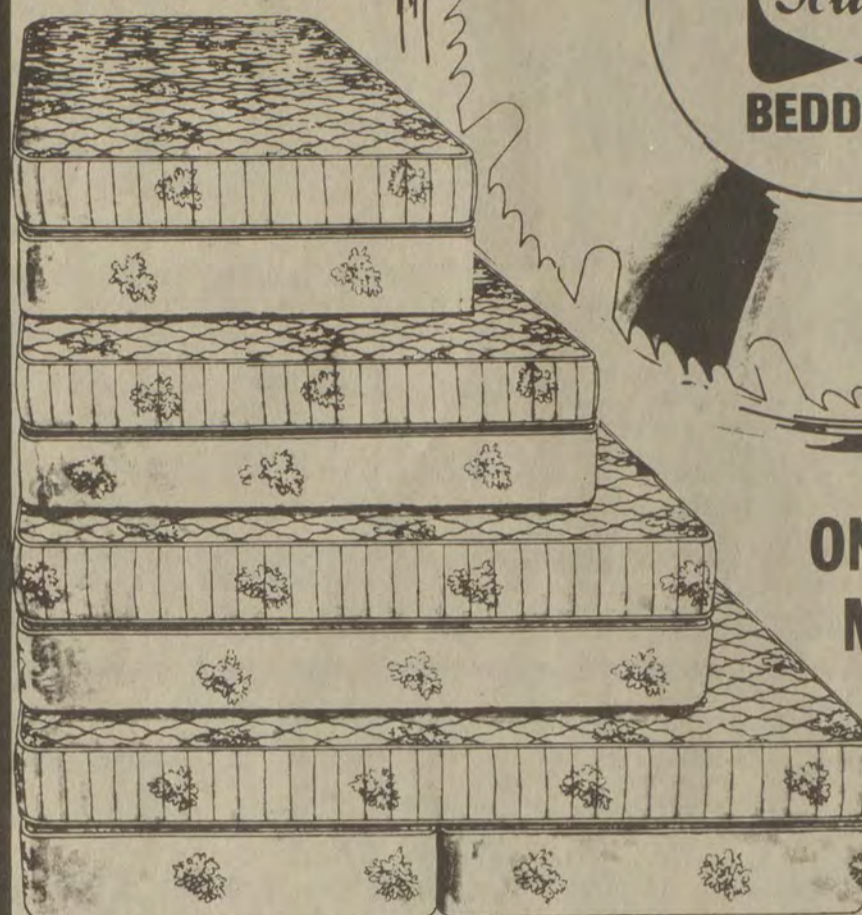

Following the business meeting Vicki Brown dramatized a reading of Jesus' birth, and carols were sung around the piano where Linda Smith accompanied them.

Festive refreshments were served to Esther Ward, Vicki Brown, Nancy Tackett, Leota Derossett, Marcella Slone, Linda Smith, Leslie Burke, Marion Masters, Clara Gorrell, Cheryl Sexton, Anna Jean Howell, Gail June Cooley, Ernestine Collins, Jean Burke, Kaye Willis, Sue Spradlin, Ron Masters, Becky Derossett, Marilyn Bach, Rita Mounts, Debra Burke, Pam Leslie, Gail Cooley, Beth Johnson.

NOTICE OF BOND RELEASE

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350, notice is hereby given that Cow Creek Mining, Inc., P.O. Box 3428, Pikeville, Kentucky 41501, intends to apply for bond release on permit number 836-0054 which was last issued on February 5, 1984. The application covers an area of approximately 12.34 acres located 1 mile north of Woods in Floyd county.

The permit area is approximately 0.5 miles west from KY 194's junction with Right Fork Road and located 0.5 miles south of Right Fork of Home Branch. The latitude is 37° 38' 41". The longitude is 82° 39' 01".

The total bond now in effect is forty thousand one hundred dollars ($40,100.00) of which twenty four thousand dollars ($24,020.00) is to be included in this application for release.

Reclamation work thusfar performed includes: backfilling, final grading, seeding, and mulching completed in April 1985. Results thusfar achieved include initial growth of vegetation as per the revegetation plan.

Written comments, objections, requests for a conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Field Services, #2 Hudson Hollow, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, by date 30 days from the last advertisement.

SNACK ATTACK?

You can give in to the urge to have a snack, but only if you choose snacks that fit in with the Good Housekeeping Institute Nutrition, Diet and Fitness Center's high-carbohydrate, low-fat eating plan. The magazine's January issue lists several satisfying nibbles with their calorie counts. For example:

1 oz. pretzels, 110 calories; 2 graham crackers, 110 calories; 4 cups air-popped popcorn, 100 calories; 3 rice cakes, 105 calories.

INF Treaty To Begin Ratification Jan. 19

The Senate Foreign Relations Committee will begin hearings January 19 on the treaty which President Reagan and Secretary General Gorbachev expect to sign next week to eliminate short- and intermediate-range nuclear-armed missiles in Europe. The ratification process is expected to take at least two months with the possibility of a vote by the full Senate in early March.

"I look forward to a full, fair, and challenging examination and debate on the terms of the treaty," McConnell, a member of the Foreign Relations Committee, said. "The critical test this treaty faces is the question of its verifiability. I want to make sure that we have the means to monitor Soviet compliance to ensure that they live up to the terms of any agreement," he stated.

Secretary of State George Schultz and Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci are scheduled to testify before the Foreign Relations Committee at the first hearing on the 19th.

Nearly 1,900 Take Free G.E.D. Tests

Nearly 1,900 adults without high school credentials took advantage of the free GED testing offered in November through Project Second Chance, Superintendent of Public Instruction Alice McDonald announced recently.

The free tests for the GED, or General Educational Development certificate, were offered by the Kentucky Department of Education and the GED Foundation for Adult Education.

The total number tested at 38 participating centers throughout the state represents a 9 percent increase over the 1,747 who were tested on Saturdays last spring.

"This increase is exciting news because it means more Kentuckians are taking advantage of our GED program to improve their job prospects and raise their self-esteem," McDonald said. "Saturday testing has been a wonderful success, and we plan to expand the program."

Six centers extended the free testing into December because of the overwhelming demand. During the December test dates an estimated 150 people will attempt to earn GED certificates, bringing the total taking the free tests this fall to more than 2,000.

The GED Foundation pays the $10 test fee for people who qualify to be tested when the Saturday sessions are offered.

A few testing centers regularly offer Saturday testing, but most do not. The Division of Adult and Community Education recently asked all centers to consider offering routine Saturday testing.

Brenda Rollins, director of the Division of Adult and Community Education, said, "I am confident that offering the GED test free is an incentive to many individuals, and I also believe that Saturdays are generally more convenient for these individuals."

The participating centers selected from one to three Saturdays in November to administer the GED test.

Project Second Chance is a statewide recruitment effort co-sponsored by the Department of Education and the GED Foundation. Its aim is to improve the educational level of Kentucky adults and to increase public awareness of the need for adult education.

Cattle Prices Steady; Pork And Sheep To Drop In 1988

Cattlemen will enjoy greater profits in 1988, but pork and sheep producers may have to settle for smaller profits, according to a University of Kentucky College of Agriculture livestock marketing specialist.

"Moderate increases in consumer incomes coupled with a steady increase in population will keep cattle prices steady and at profitable levels throughout 1988," said Lee Meyer, University of Kentucky Extension livestock marketing specialist.

Although Meyer predicts 1988 hog and sheep prices to be lower in the coming year, he said both should still remain profitable enterprises.

The past year has been profitable for all segments of the beef industry and should become more profitable in the coming year, he said.

"Higher prices for cattle to go into feedlots, coupled with cheaper feed for them while they were reared, made backgrounding the most profitable segment of the industry last year," Meyer said.

Cow calf operations, which are generally regarded as the least profitable segment of the industry even in good times, are expected to show more profit next year, as the higher prices for cattle prompt expansion in breeding cow herds and a greater demand for calves," Meyer said.

Meyer cautions cattlemen who are considering expanding in the wake of greater industry profits to take a long look at history.

"When times are good, many cow calf operators expand their herds. When so many expand at the same time, a glut of beef develops in about three years, when these heifers start producing marketable calves," he said.

While beef producers may be cheery over the prospect of better times in 1988, Meyer said that hog producers do have reason to be upspirited.

"Hog prices held steady and higher through mid-September when they started downward due to increased slaughter. However, because of expected higher prices for beef at the supermarket in the coming months, demand for pork may temper the downward trend in hog prices early in 1988," he said.

In fact, Meyer said, hog prices may have bottomed out already and may hold reasonably steady throughout 1988. If so, hog operations should continue to be profitable.

Sheep numbers are rising, three percent nationally and a whopping 19 percent in Kentucky. The increased number of sheep was partly responsible, Meyer said, for the sharp drop in lamb prices from their high of $90 in May to their current $60s range. Seasonal differences also accounted for some of the decline.

Still, Meyer said, sheep production will remain profitable throughout 1988, with prices during the spring averaging in the $75 to $85 per hundredweight range. Late summer prices are expected to be in the $60 range, Meyer said.

Federal Law Mandates Reporting Of Hazardous Materials on Farm

Farmers who have quantities of any chemicals that have been deemed extremely hazardous by the federal government must make a report to local and state officials or face a possible $25,000 per day fine if they are found to have such materials.

"The Superfund Amendment Reauthorization Act (SARA), a federal law, affects most farmers who use insecticides, fungicides or herbicides in their operations," said Doug Johnson, University of Kentucky Extension entomologist.

Congress passed this law after chemical spills in India and West Virginia. It applies to manufacturers, dealers, farmers and others who work with hazardous materials, Johnson said.

The list of hazardous chemicals that must be reported includes more than 400 chemicals, many of which are commonly used on the farm. Each chemical on the list has a threshold amount; any amount over that figure used on the farm must be reported, Johnson said.

Some common agricultural materials that appear on the list include: paraquat, ammonia, terbufos (in such products as Counter), phorate (in such products as Astar and Thimet), zinc phosphide, and carbofuran (in such products as Furadan, he said.

"Currently, under the federal law farmers must report having these materials on their farms if they have them in amounts exceeding the threshold. They are not required, however, to specify exactly what those materials are or how much of them they have," Johnson said.

The reporting involves reports to both the County Emergency Planning Committee and the State Emergency Response Commission, Johnson said.

The local planning committee may ask for more information to help them plan for emergencies, such as fire, he said.

In addition, he said, if any of the materials listed on the federal list are spilled, the farmer must notify the County Emergency Planning Committee and the State Emergency Response Commission as soon after the accident as possible.

"The spills provision of the federal law specifies how much of the material may be spilled before notification is necessary. Generally, however, the threshold amount for reporting is very small," he said.

Applications which are part of normal agricultural processes are not considered to be reportable spills, he said.

Farmers who have employees who work with such chemicals must provide a copy of the material safety data sheet that will be provided by the seller of the materials. In addition, a copy of the material safety data sheets must accompany the county and state reports, the entomologist said.

"This federal law is new and many farmers may wonder where they can find out more about it—to see what is on the list and how to report any materials. I suggest they call the State Emergency Response Commission at (502) 564-8660 for more particular information," Johnson said.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Clark Nelson, who died December 23, 1985.

Sadly did I know the evening you stopped by to see me, that would be the last time I would see you again. This Christmas will be so sad without you. I miss and love you so much.

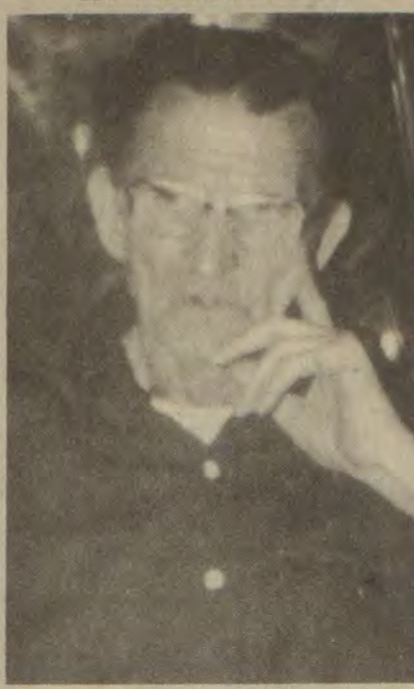

Sadly missed by

PALLBEARERS LISTED

Active pallbearers for the funeral of Ruby Conn were Arthur Kilburn, Jr., Kenny Asher, Russell Sammons, Jonathan Conn, Greg Conn, Ronnie Pack, Delmer Mann and Paul Conn.

IN MEMORIAM

In memory of Gus Yates, who died one year ago, Dec. 11, 1986.

One cold night late in December—It hurts so bad still I remember—God called you away to that bright shore. He said come home, Gus, you will suffer no more.

It is so lonely with you not here. We think of you often, shed many a tear. Dad, you felt so safe when Sue would hold your hand. As if she could lead you to the promised land.

When we get there we don't have to wait. You will be there to meet us at the pearly gate.

We know you are at peace, Dad. Now you can rest.

When God took you, he took the best.

Your daughter,
BRENDA SLONE

Siefas Collins

Siefas Collins, 89, of Plymouth, Ohio, formerly of Floyd county, died last Wednesday, December 9, at his home following a short illness.

He was born February 7, 1898 in Floyd county and was a son of the late Jim and Martha Collins. A retired miner, he was a member of the Little Rebecca Old Regular Baptist Church in Plymouth.

Survivors include his wife, Artie Collins; two sons, Eurmllee and Roy Collins, both of Plymouth, O.; two daughters, Verda Shepherd, of Greenwich, O., and Hazel Pullum, of Plymouth, O.; 29 grandchildren and 30 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services were conducted Saturday at 10 a.m. at the Little Rebecca Old Regular Baptist Church. Burial was made in the Greenlawn cemetery there under direction of the Secor Funeral Home.

CARD OF THANKS

We would like to express our deepest gratitude for the kindnesses shown to us at the death of Elizabeth M. Baker. For the many relatives and friends who attended the memorial service, to those who provided the music, and all others who showed their concern, we are thankful. Your thoughtfulness will always be remembered.

BEN BANKER AND FAMILY It.

CARD OF THANKS

The family of Belle Turner wish to thank the many friends and neighbors who helped in any way during our time of sorrow—The Regular Baptist ministers words and songs were very comforting, the cards and flowers were beautiful, the food was delicious, and the services of Hall Funeral Home were very kind, courteous, and efficient. It's during these times we need our friends. Again—thank you!

A Letter To Doug

When you were here with us, things were so fine. We watched you play, we watched you grow, we saw you become a man until the day had come for Jesus to take you by the hand.

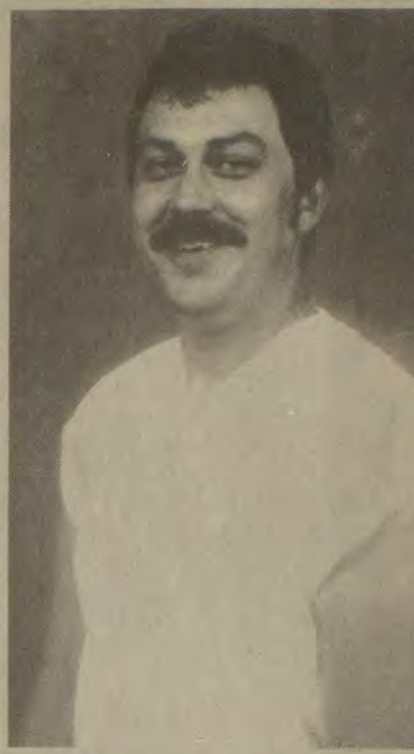

It was a sad day when the Death Angel came, and we all knew things could never be the same. But we've still got our memories of you and we can see you in our minds and we want the world to know that we'll be thinking of you on your birthday and at Christmas Time. And yes there will be some crying because the pain of missing you is so strong. But we've got to keep on living until Jesus calls us home.

Then there will be a reunion and we will all hold hands. And we'll rejoice with Jesus in that Heavenly Land.

We love and miss you very much
YOUR FAMILY & FRIENDS

It.

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Pearl "Scrap" Salisbury, Jr., on his birthday, Dec. 17, 1960:

WE MISS YOU

It has been two years since his departure, And he is still very much missed; The feelings and the memories we have of him,

We'll never be able to dismiss; He was filled with laughter and joy, So we always enjoyed his company; He had lots of friends who loved him so And ones who cherished him, who were his family;

That fatal day of the crash his life was taken away, His lifeless body was left, but his spirit fled;

Why this happened to him, I don't know, "There was a special reason," someone said.

Do you agree? For I know all of this for I am his niece,

And my love for him will never cease.

TAMMY LYNN MEADE

KSP Investigates Meta Man's Death

Brian Keith Mullins, 22, was found dead Saturday at his Meta residence. A spokesman for the Kentucky State Police said their office had received a call around 1:30 p.m. from Pike county coroner Charles Morris and that the body was later taken to the Methodist Hospital at Pikeville.

According to Morris, Mullins was found by Bruce Thorpe. He further stated that the death is under investigation and that no details could be released. The incident is being investigated by Kentucky State Police Detective Phipps.

Mullins was born March 22, 1965 at Pikeville and was the son of Betty Gibson, of Meta. He was a sawmill employee of R.C. Maynard.

In addition to his mother, he is survived by five brothers, Glenn Gibson and Stephen Wayne Mullins, both of Johns Creek, Joe Gibson, Jr., of Brushy, William Gibson, of Harold, Dale Gibson, of Pikeville; nine sisters, Althea Dawn Gibson Hunt, of Stanville, Kate Gibson, Sue Burchett and Bernetta Lewis, all of Johns Creek, Becky Smith, of Brushy, Judy Riley, of Millard, Rose Slone, of Shelbiana, Ruth Coleman, of Pikeville, and Justine Taylor, of Millard.

Funeral services will be conducted today (Wednesday) at 11 a.m. at the Cowpen Free Will Baptist Church at Pikeville with James Brenda and Brunk Conley officiating. Burial will be made in the Mullins cemetery at Cowpen under direction of the Hall Funeral Home.

Prestonsburg National Guard Supports Local Blood Program

Sunday, December 6, 55 national guardsmen donated blood in Prestonsburg. This is over a 50 percent participation ratio. The drive was sponsored by Co. "B" 206th Engr Bn. (Prestonsburg National Guard). This makes the second National Guard blood drive of the year, bringing the total number of donors 87. Contributing to the successful drive was Captain Fred Fugate who helped coordinate the drive in conjunction with Central Kentucky Blood Center. The Floyd County Blood Program is greatly aided by the community support of the Prestonsburg National Guard.

For more information about the Floyd County Blood Program, contact Larlynn Leffler at 1-800-432-9528.

The following people took time to try and share their good health by donating at the drive:

W'right High Majorettes Win First Place RWB Honors

The Wheelwright High School majorettes received first place honors during competition at the Red, White, and Blue Day Parade held in Martin, Saturday, October 17. A trophy was presented to the squad whose members are Misty Harris, Tyra Newman, Tonya Burke, Penny Triplett. Sponsors, Terri Heinisch, Monica Hall, Toni Newman, Gina Johnson, and Trina Johnson.

The venom of a spitting cobra is so powerful that it can blind or even kill a person. But, according to Ranger Rick magazine, Egyptian scientists injected spitting cobra venom into some mice that had cancer. The venom destroyed the cancer cells without killing the mice. The hope is that one day the venom may help cure some kinds of human cancer.

Health Care Program For Low Income Patient

The Magoffin County Health Department has a program set up for the low income person, the Ambulatory Acute Care Program.

Three doctors are on staff—Rondall Leslie, M.D., Gopal Majmudar, M.D. and Carmencita Gallosa, M.D. Clinic hours are as follows:

Monday, 9 to 11 a.m.; Tuesday, 9 to 11 and 3 to 5 p.m.; Wednesday, 9-12 noon; Thursday, 9 to 11 and 1 to 3 p.m.; every other Friday, 9 to 11 a.m.

The Magoffin County Health Department Acute Care Program offers the same services our physicians do in their offices. We can do physicals, chest x-rays, lab work, EKG's and emergency treatment. Call 349-6212 for an appointment or additional information.

TOXIC SHOCK UPDATE

We don't hear as much about toxic shock syndrome anymore because reported cases have dropped from 1,000 in 1980 to 150 last year. In 1980, the syndrome caused near-panic among women. The condition was eventually linked to super-absorbent tampons left in place for extended periods of time. There is still an association with tampon use, and also with the contraceptive sponge. The risk of toxic shock, however, is considered very low. To help prevent toxic shock syndrome, menstruating women should change tampons frequently and watch for the symptoms. They are high fever, rash with peeling skin, vomiting and diarrhea, severe muscle aches, delirium, and low blood pressure with shock.
