State Representatives Hear Floyd Citizens' Concerns

By Tim Sizemore
A meeting, held Saturday morning at the Floyd county courthouse, gave area taxpayers a chance to air their concerns and grievances before their representatives in the state legislature.

Senator Benny Ray Bailey and Representative Greg Stumbo were available in the district courtroom to solicit public input on issues currently before the legislature.

Education was high on the list of concerns expressed at the meeting and H. "Buddy" Fitzpatrick told the legislators that, dollarwise, eastern Kentucky is not faring well in education. He cited as an example the critical need for classrooms at Prestonsburg Community College. Robert Allen, academic dean at the college concurred with Fitzpatrick's appraisal of the urgent need for classroom space and added that he hopes the institution will not be neglected as in the past by the current legislative session. Senator Bailey agreed with the assessment of the situation and stressed his belief that the college is vital to the area. Bailey also agreed that a new classroom building is needed in addition to the new building presently under construction.

Both Senator Bailey and Representative Stumbo strongly disagreed with Governor Wallace Wilkinson's new budget proposals. Bailey said that he feels that the new budget will not pass as it is, but he believes that the legislature can work out a compromise with the Governor. House Majority leader Stumbo said he disagrees specifically with three cuts proposed in the budget, which include: taking money from the teachers retirement fund, cutting state employee benefits and taking funds from the Fish and Wildlife Department. Zella Wells, Floyd resident who teaches at Johnson Central, told the officials that if the overmatch is not kept in the teachers retirement fund, there will not be money to pay retirements down the line. The overmatch is not fat, but is necessary, she said.

Stumbo agreed with Wells and pointed out that he was not in agreement with transferring funds from any of the three programs. "It works right now, and I see no reason to change it," he said. Stumbo added that 75% of tax dollars is spent on education, and he feels that this expenditure is vital. He said that the first thing an industry asks before locating in an area is, do we have a trained work force?

Stumbo also said that the proposed budget has not been received well in either house of the legislature, adding that the budget calls for considerable belt-tightening except in the Governor's office. He emphasized that the legislature is going to put the proposal under such scrutiny that programs promised will not be done away with by the Governor.

Other concerns expressed at the meeting included water problems caused by mining, better senior citizen programs, and the construction of a new section of U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

Senator Bailey pointed out that under the current law no money is available for water table damage after 1977. To remedy this situation, he said he will propose before the legislature that all water-related troubles be accepted as mining related, and this will allow the state to qualify under federal guidelines.

FIREMEN WORKED through much of the morning to put out the blaze that swept through Martin's AmVets-American Legion building, Friday. Four area fire departments were needed to douse the flames.

Blaze Destroys Veterans' Clubs

By Paul N. Allen
Fire gutted the building at Martin, Friday morning, which housed the community's Am-Vets and American Legion organizations' clubs.

Alerted to the blaze at 8:35 a.m., Martin Fire Department called upon the Allen, Maytown and Left Beaver fire-fighting units due to the extent of the fire and the fact that a number of other businesses and residences are located nearby.

Flames were brought under control by about 10 a.m. although later, firemen standing by, doused a second fire in the structure. Little was saved in the blaze as the structure burned to its concrete block walls. The fire was apparently set off from a faulty furnace in the structure which dates from the 1950's.

Traffic in Martin was backed up and detoured for most of the day as workers began a massive cleanup of the ruined building.

Citation Dismissal Causes Unexpected Political Stir

By Tim Sizemore
County Attorney David Barber last week expressed criticism of press tactics after a Lexington Herald-Leader reporter obtained information relating to the reduction of a speeding ticket from messages on his receptionist's desk.

Barber claims that Herald-Leader reporter Lee Mueller asked him if he could use the telephone and, while making the call, took the opportunity to go through his private messages.

The message in question concerned the reduction of a speeding ticket issued Dana C. Batten, 21, of Pikeville, for traveling 69 m.p.h. in a 55 m.p.h. zone. Request for the amended citation was made by her father, Appellate Judge Dan Jack Combs, who is seeking election to the state supreme court.

Judge Combs, of Betsy Layne, said last week he left a message last Monday for Barber. Later that day, Barber recommended dismissal of the citation with a warning, but, he said, he had not received Combs' message.

Floyd District Judge Harold Stumbo followed Barber's recommendation and dismissed the citation.

Barber said dismissals of speeding tickets under 70 m.p.h. for first offenders is not unusual and that the practice has become a tradition that he does not necessarily agree with. "It's either go along with it or someone else will occupy this chair in the next election," he commented.

Mueller's article in the January 29 issue of the Herald-Leader issue emphasized that Floyd county, with 55 percent of all misdemeanor traffic citations issued in 1986 dismissed, had the third lowest conviction rate of all Kentucky counties. Statewide, the article pointed out, an average of 23 percent of traffic tickets were dismissed. Barber pointed out, however, that Mueller, in citing the county's high dismissal rate, apparently failed to notice that Floyd has one of the highest conviction rates for DUI's in the state.

Mueller's article pointed out that the citation issued Mrs. Batten was not a first offense as she had received another in Clark county seven months ago. Barber claimed, however, that there were mitigating circumstances in the case.

It was no political favor, Barber said, pointing out that he had opposed Combs in the past. "It's not unusual for me to help someone on a first offense, no matter who it is," he said.

Prestonsburg attorney Ned Pillersdorf, a Combs supporter, said the ticket dismissal was unusual only because the ticket wound up on public record.

"I have no problem with a father, who happens to be an appellate judge, putting in a good word for his daughter," Pillersdorf commented.

Barber said the telephone message which gave rise to the news story was written by a secretary who no longer works for him.

Bill Promises Workers' Comp Break To Small Operators

By Paul N. Allen
A bill which could give coal operators an option of paying into the workers' compensation fund on the basis of a fee assessed per ton of coal mined, was filed January 21 in the General Assembly by House Majority Leader Greg Stumbo and is seen by many as a significant step in giving the small operator a break.

As of this fall, legislators approved a plan to base assessments for the workers' compensation Special Fund on insurance premiums for all employers and another assessment just on the coal industry, itself. The Special Fund pays benefits to workers with occupational disease, primarily miners with black lung, as well as others whose health problems cannot be directly related to a specific company. The coal industry is responsible for 78 percent of the claims but has been paying only about 33 percent of the costs.

Stumbo's bill which only changes the method of funding and does not affect the benefits formula for black-lung victims, would give coal operators the option of paying the assessments on insurance premiums or a flat fee of 50 cents per ton of coal mined by underground methods and 30 cents a ton for surface mine operators. Referring to the small operator, Stumbo, D-

Prestonsburg, commented, "That option might keep him in business."

The mine operator would decide at the start of each year which plan to choose, Stumbo said. The operator would be locked into that plan for the entire year.

Non-coal businesses would continue to pay into the Special Fund on the basis of insurance premium assessments, Stumbo said.

CSX Vows Cleanup Of Problem Spots

By Tim Sizemore
Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo and County Attorney David Barber met with a Chessie-Seaboard-Railway (CSX) representative, Thursday, to try to iron out problems with the railroad connected with an abandoned railroad bridge and with crossings blocked by trains for unreasonable periods of time.

Lacy Goodman, with the CSX claims department, told the two officials that his corporation would voluntarily comply with the communities wishes since a number of local people are involved in the CSX railway operations.

One of the problems discussed dealt with an abandoned railroad bridge at Glo Hollow near Wayland. The bridge, which has been abandoned for more than 20 years, acts as a dam to trap garbage and other debris, including dead animals. During the flood season, the jam of debris against the bridge pilings hinders the flow of Beaver Creek and results in excess back water.

Goodman said that his company has studied the problem and plans to begin cleanup work Monday. He explained that it will be necessary to construct 200 feet of track so a crane can be brought (See Story No. 3, Page 4)

Flu Is Here, But Situation Could Be Worse

By Megan Corcoran
Absenteeism is up in Floyd county schools and area hospitals report an increase in patients suffering flu or flu-like symptoms. Still, it appears that Floyd residents may have escaped the almost epidemic situation which has affected nearly half the state.

The virus, which, in many cases, has manifested itself in temperatures of 104 degrees with nausea, chills, head and body aches, first swept through the central part of the state and Dr. Reginald Finger, of the state Human Resources Cabinet's communicable disease section, said reports of flu have tripled in the past two weeks in some areas of the state.

Arlie Potter, 42 Is Gunshot Victim

By Tim Sizemore
The body of Arlie Potter, 42, of McDowell, was discovered late Tuesday afternoon in his pickup truck near the new home of his brother, Dr. Ira Potter on KY 80, near Maytown.

The victim, whose body was found by construction workers, had been shot once in the head, it was reported. Investigating the death are Detective James Stephens and Trooper Greg Roberts of the Kentucky State Police as well as members of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson and Assistant Coroner Glenn Frazier were said to be in the preliminary stages of their investigation, Tuesday night.

A HUGE BOULDER which threatened to fall from a highwall at Prestonsburg Village Shopping Center was successfully repositioned, Friday, as it teetered on the edge of a coal seam. The work forced the evacuation of Winn-Dixie's, Wal-Mart and McDonald's.

Blasting Of Boulder Causes Evacuations

By Paul N. Allen
A sandstone boulder of some 220 tons which was "shifted" through the use of explosives Friday to a more secure perch along a cliff face at the Prestonsburg Village Shopping Center was said to be the last of several such megaliths which have posed the greatest threat to buildings, employees, and shoppers there.

Approximately 200 shoppers as well as employees were evacuated about midday as Wal-Mart, Winn Dixie and McDonald's closed during the blasting. The businesses reopened around 2:30 p.m.

James Arthur Hughes, president of Hughes & Associates, owners of Prestonsburg Village, said he ordered the evacuation after he and contractors hired to stabilize the dangerous highwall which has long posed a safety threat to the shopping complex noticed that rocks supporting the huge boulder had moved. "The rock could have fallen straight down and not hit anything," Hughes commented, "but it could have bounced and hit the stores."

As is common in rock strata throughout the coalfield section, the dense sandstone boulder rested on a weaker and far less stable layer of shale and coal. "We saw some evidence of some rock flaking off the highwall in front of it, and we didn't want to take any chances,"

Hughes said. (A similar situation continues to plague the U.S. 23 roadway between Prestonsburg and the Johnson county line where terraced roadcuts create rockslides regularly.)

The construction crew dug behind the boulder, blasted three times and employed a machine used for excavating rock to reposition it securely on a more stable ledge, Hughes reported. The work was said to have accomplished its objectives and no injuries or damage to businesses were reported.

The highwall which surrounds the shopping center at the junction of KY 114 and U.S. 23 here has created headaches almost from the outset of construction, and work was halted in November, 1986, when Prestonsburg building inspectors became alarmed by the potential for rockslides in the area of the cliffs. The most recent damage at Prestonsburg Village came less than a month ago when, on January 10, a 10-ton rock detached from the highwall and one section of the boulder crashed into a storage area of Wal-Mart. No injuries resulted from the incident and only about $300 in damage was sustained.

A $1.6 million job to stabilize the cliff was begun in September and is about six weeks from completion, according to Hughes. Fifteen additional stores are scheduled to open at the shopping center within three months following completion of the work, he said.

Attracting Physicians To Rural Areas May Become An Even Bigger Headache

Cooperation between Frankfort and local government has proven its worth in attracting industry to Kentucky. Now state and local leaders are learning that this same cooperation is becoming increasingly critical in another area—finding doctors for small communities.

Federal cutbacks in financial incentives and fierce competition nationwide have made the job of recruiting physicians tougher than ever before.

The Kentucky Department for Health Services has placed 185 primary care physicians since 1982. However, during the 1986-87 fiscal year, the department was successful in matching only 21 doctors with areas of the state that are medically needy—the lowest placement total in the five-year effort.

"Kentucky has plenty of physicians, but they're not always where they are most needed," said Human Resources Secretary Harry J. Cowherd, M.D. "More than 20 counties in Kentucky are in need of doctors while others have too many."

For example, Fayette County has one doctor for every 436 people in the county. By comparison Metcalfe County has one doctor for every 9,828 people. The more isolated counties, i.e. from hospitals/medical centers, of Owsley and Menifee have ratios of more than 5,000 people per doctor. A county with one physician to every 3,000 or more people is considered to be medically needy.

"Every year the problem becomes even more pressing—how to help small communities compete with large cities, large hospital chains and major medical centers and persuade doctors to set up practice in a rural area," Cowherd said.

The department's Kentucky Physician Placement Service (KPPS) registers physicians who want to practice in a rural area as well as communities needing more doctors and attempts to make matches.

In the past KPPS also placed physicians with federal scholarships, which required them to practice in a medically needy area for three to four years in return for education expenses. However, that program has virtually ended and the number of scholarship doctors available to rural Kentucky has plummeted.

"It's always been hard to overcome incentives and advantages that bigger cities can offer," said Bob Hurst, KPPS director, "but with the scholarship doctors, we had physicians who were obligated to practice in underserved areas."

"To make up for this loss, we're aggressively recruiting physicians to register with us," he said. "We're also talking with communities to make them realize that they have to sell themselves and make it worth a doctor's while to settle there."

Hurst said that physicians who practice in urban areas can expect their incomes to be far greater than those of rural practitioners. Other advantages are access to sophisticated medical equipment and group practices, which allow for rotating on-call duties.

"We show local people what large hospitals and urban practices offer, and they realize that they can't simply say 'our town has nice parks,'" said Hurst. "More and more communities are offering doctors guaranteed incomes for the first year. Many offer free office space or paid office staff for a year."

Other incentives can include relocation expenses, payment of insurance premiums, and low-interest loans to buy equipment, he said.

"Our staff encourages communities to be creative and flexible when preparing an incentive package," Hurst said. "Incentives don't always mean money. Communities can offer help in finding employment for the physician's spouse or in finding day care for the children or a home for the family."

"Recruiting a physician is like any other kind of recruitment—you just have to be creative and determined in selling what you have to offer."

A better life is out there, but at a price

John Ed Pearce

By John Ed Pearce
(for the Shakertown Roundtable)

Kentucky is in trouble. Bad trouble. Its economy is shaky, and it lags behind other states in economic development. Its unemployment ranks among the highest in the nation. Its local governments are in deep financial trouble. Its political and tax structures are out of date.

Worst of all, Kentuckians don't seem to care enough about the condition of their state to do anything about it.

These were among the main conclusions of a report released this week by the Shakertown Roundtable, a nonprofit group of business, industrial and educational leaders from across the state devoted to improving life in Kentucky. The report is based on a six months' study of the state, its people, government, economy and education, and of its prospects for the future.

Shakertown Roundtable

The worst problem Kentucky faces, says the report, is the fact that its educational system is failing badly to educate and train the children on whom the future welfare of the state must depend. Overall, Kentucky ranks 47th among the 50 states in the critical task of educating its young people. It leads the nation in the number of adults over 25 who are functionally illiterate, and in the proportion of children who drop out of school before finishing high school.

In 23 counties, more than 25 per cent of ninth-graders were reading below grade level. In three out of four counties the high school dropout rate in 1985 was 25 per cent or higher. Only about half of Kentucky children graduate from high school, the lowest rate in the nation. Only half of its high school graduates go on to college, and only about a third of those finish.

Some of this simply reflects the fact that Kentucky is a poor state. Only 17 of the state's 120 counties spent more than $2,000 per pupil in 1985. In 18 of its counties, more than half of the children live in poverty. In 63 counties, more than 30 per cent come from poverty homes. In one county 66 per cent of the children live in poverty, in another county more than half. Currently, 29 per cent of all Kentucky school children are from poor families.

Low wages no answer

Just as state schools are not educating children adequately to prepare them for jobs in the modern world, neither is Kentucky's economy prepared to employ them in sufficient numbers to reduce the unemployment that stifles state progress. Many of its economic mainstays - coal, tobacco, bourbon whiskey - face an uncertain future.

The state's traditional policy of competing on the basis of low wages will no longer work because the state, like the nation, is now involved in a global, rather than a national economy, and cannot compete on the basis of low wages with such countries as Korea.

To complicate matters, Kentucky's population is getting older. The number of people over 65, who earn less and thus pay less in taxes, is growing rapidly. The number of children is declining, which means that tomorrow's work force will be smaller, but will be called upon to support a growing number of non-working older people. Furthermore, 43 per cent of the work force are women, who make only 65 per cent as much on the average as men, while the proportion of men in the work force is dropping.

Kentucky counties, especially the smaller rural counties, are in the increasing financial trouble. As tax revenues declined with a declining economy, they have been forced to cut back on public services such as ambulance service, modern jail facilities, medical care for poor children, care for elderly citizens, sanitation, and parks and recreation programs.

The poverty and problems are not uniform. Like the South as a whole, many Kentucky cities enjoy relative prosperity while the state's rural areas struggle with poverty, an economic pattern common to Third World countries. In this pattern, rural residents are leaving the country for the cities, but this offers little opportunity for improvement, since in the cities they too often find that they do not have the education needed to hold available jobs.

Voters discouraged

But whether rural or urban, rich or poor, Kentucky cities and counties are handicapped by a constitution that hampers their efforts to move into the technical age, and a political system that invites incompetence and corruption, keeping good people from seeking office. It also produces among the voting public a feeling of suspicion and apathy, a feeling that nothing can and will be done to improve conditions.

This attitude, more than any single economic factor, says the Roundtable report, is the greatest roadblock to progress. Kentuckians have been told for a generation that they should modernize their Constitution, consolidate their counties and overhaul their tax system. They simply refuse to do it.

Every study of the past 20 years has warned that state public schools are poor and will get worse without drastic changes in their organization, and a massive infusion of money. Every candidate for office gives lip service to educational reform, and promises improvements. But they invariably promise to do it without more money. So little or nothing is done, and there is no prospect for early improvement.

Kentucky, says the Roundtable summary, has many advantages, including a location within a day's drive of most of the nation's population, a fine highway system, mineral, timber and water resources and rich land. Its parks and scenic areas help spark a potentially rich tourist industry, as does its horse industry. It has a university system that could easily be developed to rank with the country's best. It has high-tech plants, and is beginning to develop an automobile industry.

Over the past 25 years, the report concedes, Kentucky has made substantial progress in such areas as roads, colleges, hospitals, care for the handicapped and mentally ill, parks and general education. Other states, however, have progressed faster, leaving Kentucky even further behind. And the further Kentucky lags behind, the faster it is going to have to run just to catch up.

Clinging to the past

But Kentucky, the report declares, clings to the past, even though the past is a burden. Kentuckians insist that they are not content with being second-rate, but there is no evidence that they are willing to pay the price of being first-rate. The trouble is not only poverty of the pocketbook but poverty of the spirit.

But if they want better things for their children, if they want modern jobs and efficient government, they can have them. It will demand a price, and the longer they put off paying the price, the higher it will get. Kentuckians must get over their old habit of thinking of Kentucky as a place of separate regions and cities, each with no stake in the welfare of the whole. And they must abandon the belief that there is such a thing as a free lunch. Progress costs money.

First of a series on the "State of the state" conference sponsored by the Shakertown Roundtable at Pleasant Hill, Mercer County, Nov. 8-9, 1987. Wilson W. Wyatt, conference chairman. Earl D. Wallace, Lexington, is chairman of the Roundtable, a non-profit, non-partisan study group. Al Smith is vice chairman.

Western Produces 'Video' Yearbook

Members of Western Kentucky University's 1987 graduating class will remember their senior year like no graduating class before them—with the help of a video yearbook produced by WKU's Office of Alumni Affairs and a crew from WKU's Educational Television station.

Alumni Affairs director Jim Richards, who conceived the video idea along with assistant alumni affairs director Ron Beck after they attended an out-of-state meeting, said the video yearbook is a unique concept in Kentucky. "I think our graduates will grow to appreciate it more over the years."

Produced by Jerry Barnaby, a New Mexico graduate student at WKU, and hosted by 1987 graduates Paul Aponte and Julie Ezell, the 40-minute color video documents the 1986-87 school year, "an exciting year in Western's history," say its producers, one which included the inauguration of President Kern Alexander, a dramatic enrollment increase, the opening of the new campus hangout "NiteClass," and the beginning of evening football at Western.

The video yearbook includes footage of these hallmark events as well as more traditional scenes such as Greek Week, intramural sports, men's and women's basketball, Homecoming Week, and Graduation.

Producer Barnaby, in capturing the events and activities of Hilltoppers during 1986 and 1987, says he knew he was recording something much subtler: the tenor of the times. He says he wanted to capture on video "the trends, the colors, how people dressed and spoke in the late eighties."

For information on obtaining the (VHS only) 1986-87 Video Yearbook, call WKU's Office of Alumni Affairs at 745-4395.

Yogurt: Creamy Cooking With Far Less Fat

Yogurt's unique, tart taste and smooth, custardy texture are enjoyed by millions of Americans each day, but most of us don't take advantage of the full potential of this healthy food in cooking.

Plain, lowfat yogurt contains only a fraction of the fat found in sour cream or mayonnaise, as well as many fewer calories, yet can make an excellent replacement for these two foods in a variety of dishes.

Yogurt can help solve the dilemma of spoiling a nutritious salad by topping it with a high-fat, mayonnaise-based dressing. For a scrumptious substitute, try a cup of yogurt mixed with chives, capers and lemon juice; or blended with chili sauce; or combined with any of your favorite spices. For dressing fruit salads, mix yogurt with mint, lemon juice, or grated orange peel.

Yogurt is great for adding moisture to breads and muffins and is also a good base for lower fat sauces for meat and fish dishes. The following is a lowfat version of a traditional Polish favorite.

- BAKED FISH POLONAISE
- 1 pound haddock, sole or other fish (fresh or frozen, thawed)
 - 4 medium boiling potatoes, cut into 3/4" chunks
 - 2 cups onions, chopped
 - 2 medium carrots, thinly sliced
 - 1 stalk celery, chopped
 - 1 1/2 tsp. fresh parsley (or 1 tsp. dried)
 - 1/4 tsp. cinnamon
 - 1/4 tsp. nutmeg
 - 2 whole cloves
 - 2 bay leaves
 - 1/4 cup plus 2 tbsp. white vinegar
 - 3 cups water
 - 3 tbsp. margarine
 - 3 tbsp. flour
 - 1 cup plain lowfat yogurt
 - 1 tsp. sugar
 - 1/3 cup grated white horseradish

Place fish, vegetables, spices, water and 1/4 cup vinegar in a baking dish and bake at 350 degrees for about 20 minutes, or until the fish is opaque and flakes easily with a fork. Do not overcook.

When fish is near done, begin the sauce by melting the margarine in a heavy saucepan. Add the flour and mix well with a small whisk. Remove 1/2 cup of the liquid from the pan the fish has been baking in and whisk it into the flour mixture. Whisk the mixture over a moderate heat until the sauce boils, thickens and is smooth. Reduce the heat to low and add the yogurt, sugar, horseradish, and remaining two tablespoons of vinegar. Simmer for 3 minutes, whisking frequently.

Place the fish and vegetables on a warm serving dish and pour the sauce to cover the fish. Serve immediately.

This will yield four servings of 330 calories and 10 grams of fat.

The old railroad tracks that ran through Van Lear have recently been taken up. Pictured above is Tim Littleton, the leader of the railroad crew, handing the last spike of the track to the long-time citizen of Van Lear, Denver Akers, on November 25, 1987.

This event marked the end of an era for the little community, for the railroad had long since fulfilled its purpose.

We're Your Bank..... Getting Better With Every Tomorrow.

Our people have worked hard to make 1987 a successful year for The Bank Josephine and our community.

Thanks to them, we were able to earn approximately $1,262,000 in income the old fashioned way, with hard work and commitment.

Our bank invested a total of $25.9 million in loans back into our local economy.

These loans included: $3.1 million in new and existing housing; $14.9 million for local businesses, working capital, equipment, and various commercial uses; $7.9 million in personal loans for vehicles, vacations, home improvements, and hundreds of other uses.

Thanks again to our employees and the community for an exceptional year and we look forward to continued success in 1988.

Unlikely Detective Debuts On Mystery!

One of crime fiction's most unconventional detectives comes to KET when "Inspector Morse" debuts on "Mystery!" Saturday, February 6 at 9 p.m.

Morse is a gentle romantic, addicted to ale, crossword puzzles and classical music. With a brilliant mind, he relies on his intuition to solve the most fiendishly complex mysteries.

The inspector gives his flights of fancy free rein while relaxing over a pint of ale or while conducting an imaginary orchestra in the solitude of his bachelor flat. He often solves the crime but frequently must rely on the more down-to-earth approach of his assistant, Sergeant Lewis, to set him straight.

Each of the three two-episode "Inspector Morse" stories—set against the backdrop of Oxford University—is a self-contained whodunit, designed to keep viewers guessing along with the sleuth.

In "The Dead of Jericho" (February 6-13), Morse falls for a woman, Anne Stavely, when they sing together in a choir. "The Silent World of Nicholas Quinn" (February 20-27), tells how Morse is called to investigate the death of a hard-of-hearing member of the Foreign Examinations Syndicate.

The series concludes with "Service of All the Dead" (March 5-12).

U.S. Gov't To Eliminate Air Force ROTC At U of L

The University of Louisville's Air Force ROTC program is being phased out in a federal budget cutback, Air Force officials has announced.

U of L's program, established in 1953, is one of 30 in the nation that will be eliminated over the next 18 months. Another seven programs are being consolidated.

The cutbacks will reduce the number of programs at universities across the nation from 151 to 114, the Air Force said.

About 90 students currently are enrolled in Air Force ROTC at U of L Juniors and seniors will be allowed to finish their training, and the last group of officers will be commissioned in May 1989, said Lt. Col. Leonard Sumter, who heads the U of L program.

"The defense budget has been cut, and there's been a reduction in the demand for ROTC programs to produce officers," Sumter said.

U of L President Donald Swain said he regrets losing the program, but understands the decision.

"We, too, are facing budget cuts. I'm sorry our students will now have one less option to consider, and I'm disappointed that the Air Force will apparently have fewer links with universities across the country," Swain said.

U of L's Army ROTC program, which currently enrolls about 150 students, will not be affected.

For more information, call Sumter at (502) 588-6576.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 836-5039 (Am. #3)

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Coal Mac, Inc., P.O. Box 3428, Pikeville, Ky. 41501, has filed an application for an underground mining operation.

The proposed operation will affect a surface disturbance of 6.42 acres and will underlie an additional 814.61 acres located 1.02 miles north of Galveston in Floyd County.

The proposed operation is approximately 3.03 miles southeast from Branham Creek Road's junction with State Rt. 979 and located 1.02 miles north of Galveston. The latitude is 37° 26' 29". The longitude is 82° 37' 45".

The proposed operation is located on the McDowell/Pikeville U.S.G.S. 7 1/2 minute quadrangle map. The surface area to be disturbed is owned by the Clark Heirs, c/o Goldie Clark. The operation will underlie land owned by Howard Martin, Jerry Martin, Clark Heirs, Thurman Newman, Glenna Allen, David Collins, W.C. Hambley, Irvan, Eugene and Mary Carroll, Elvise and Pearlle Spears, Harold and Olga Conn, Osborne Heirs c/o Kenneth Osborne, Glen Roberts, Isaac, Maude Keathley, Melvina Gillis, Tammy Akers and Ruby Martin. The operation will affect an area within 100 feet of Branham Creek Road. The operation will not involve relocation of the public road.

The amendment will add additional underground acreage to the existing underground mine.

The application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, #2 Hudson Hollow, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. 12-16-3t.

This is the final advertisement of this application; all comments, objections and/or requests for a permit conference must be received within thirty (30) days of today's date.

Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: My doctor prescribed estrogen to help me with the severe hot flashes I've been having during menopause. He put me on three weeks of estrogen followed by a week of progestin. I'm feeling much better but I'm worried about the safety of estrogen. Can taking estrogen cause cancer?

ANSWER: Studies have shown that women who take estrogen replacement therapy have about a two to eight times higher risk of developing cancer of the endometrium (the lining of the uterus). This risk of higher with larger doses and increases after two to four years of use. Women who have had a hysterectomy (removal of the uterus) are not at risk for cancer of the uterus.

However, the relationship between hormone replacement therapy and breast cancer is not clear. Some studies have shown a relationship, others have not. There is concern that the use of estrogen may further increase the risk of developing breast cancer in women who are at higher risk due to other factors. A woman who has had cancer of the breast should not take replacement estrogens. For other women, however, all scientists do not agree about whether the benefits of replacement therapy outweigh these risks. Therefore, the decision about treatment must be made by the patient and her doctor after considering the risks and benefits of this treatment in her case.

Replacement estrogen is effective in relieving menopausal symptoms, such as hot flashes, vaginal dryness, and osteoporosis (thinning of bone tissue). When a woman is having severe symptoms, a doctor will often advise estrogen use, believing the benefit will outweigh any risk. If a woman and her doctor decide that replacement therapy is needed, estrogen should be prescribed at the smallest possible dose that will relieve the symptoms, and for as short a time as possible. On occasion, the doctor may advise that estrogen be stopped for as short a time as possible. On occasion, the doctor may advise that estrogen be stopped for a certain period to see if it is still needed. Many doctors now believe that using a combination of estrogen and progestin (another female hormone) more closely resembles the normal hormone cycle, and thereby will reduce the risk of cancer to the uterine lining. But the safety of the long-term use of this combination still has to be determined.

It is important that a woman on estrogen replacement therapy be checked annually by her doctor for signs of cancer. Symptoms such as vaginal bleeding should be reported to the doctor at once.

For more information on cancer related subjects, call the Cancer Information Service (CIS) at 1-800-4-CANCER. Or write to the CIS at the Markey Cancer Center, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. The CIS is a service of the Kentucky Community Cancer Program.

According to many experts, plastic trash thrown into oceans may be as big a problem, if not bigger, than oil spills. International Wildlife magazine reports that non-biodegradable plastic waste is killing up to one million seabirds, 100,000 sea mammals, and countless fish each year. Part of the problem is that seals, turtles, fish, and birds become entangled, and then die, in discarded fishing nets and strapping bands.

Spot Needs A Home, Quick!

Spot, a perky, female border collie type, has been a resident of the Floyd County Humane Society's animal shelter for quite a while. She needs a good home soon since the shelter cannot house such animals indefinitely. To meet Spot call the shelter at 886-2403.

Child Safety Week Is Set

National Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week is the week of February 7-13. This nationwide effort coincides with Valentine's Day—a time when many people express their love and appreciation to friends and family members.

The 1988 Awareness Week offers a timely opportunity to alert parents to the critical need to "Be a Valentine for Life: Buckle-Up Your Family."

Cooperative efforts among groups concerned about the problem, the health and medical field, the business community, and government at all levels, will make child passenger safety the priority issue it deserves to be in every community.

National Child Passenger Safety Awareness Week is a cooperative local, state and national campaign originated and organized in 1983 by the National Passenger Safety Association (NPSA) and supported by a wide variety of public and private organizations.

This Valentine's Day should serve as a reminder that there is no greater love than taking preventive action to protect the lives of our most precious resource—our children.

Did you know that the number one killer of children in the United States is the trauma they suffer as passengers in motor vehicle crashes? Did you also know that the correct use of child safety seats is over 70 percent effective in preventing these senseless deaths and 67 percent effective in reducing the need for hospitalization? Tragically, less than half of the nation's young children are properly protected in their car safety seats.

Parents and other drivers with children must be certain that the child safety seat is installed properly and used correctly every time the child travels in a motor vehicle. Carefully review the safety seat manufacturer's instructions on correct installation and use. There

Homemakers Donate $725 To Cancer Fund

A donation of $725 has been made to the University of Kentucky Ovarian Cancer Fund, by the Floyd County Homemakers, from the recent sale of pecans by the clubs of this county, according to Mrs. Frances Pitts, Floyd County Home Economist.

The highest percentage of unmarried males in the country live in the city of Columbia, South Carolina.

Mining Eng. Classes Offered At UK Campus

Three short courses of benefit to the engineering and coal industries will be sponsored by the University of Kentucky Institute for Mining and Minerals Research.

COAL GEOLOGY set for February 10-12, Mining and Mineral Resources Building, is an introduction to coal geology with an emphasis in basic geological concepts for a better understanding of sedimentary rocks and processes affecting rocks. Discussion and study of topographic and geological maps and concepts of ground water and aquifers concerning surface mine monitoring will be covered. For additional information contact Connie Willingham, coordinator, at 257-2841.

SURFACE SUBSIDENCE CAUSED BY UNDERGROUND MINING, February 25-26, Mining and Mineral Resources Building, will cover the principles and basic concepts of subsidence, method of subsidence, prediction, surface damage and protection, and subsidence surveys. The instructor is Dr. Kot Unrug, Professor in the Mining Engineering Department at the University of Kentucky. For additional information contact Geaunita Caylor, coordinator, at 257-2820.

GROUND WATER MONITORING PRINCIPLES AND SAMPLING TECHNIQUES, March 3-4, Mining and Mineral Resources Building, is an intensive short course designed to review important aspects of ground-water movement, water-quality monitoring, and data analysis and presentation. The major goals of the short course are to enable participants to understand hydrogeologic rationale for design and installation of groundwater monitoring networks, operation of a sampling program, and presentation of results. Commonly used procedures and equipment will be reviewed. For additional information contact Connie Willingham, Coordinator, at 257-2841.

PCC Schedules Computer Class

Introduction to dBase III, a course for computer users, particularly business users, begins Tuesday, Feb. 9 at Prestonsburg Community College.

The five-week class will meet Tuesdays from 6-8 p.m. in Room 151 of the Johnson Building.

dBase III, according to instructor Hamid Tabarasi, is a software designed to aid in creation, maintenance and reporting of information from a data base. It also makes it possible to edit data in a data base, sort data into various sequences and search for particular items in the data base.

The class is offered through the college's Continuing Education and Community Service office. To register, call 886-3863, ext. 215.

Early Returns Show Many Omit Standard Deduction

Many taxpayers who have filed their federal tax returns so far have either omitted the standard deduction or have computed it incorrectly. This applies to 1040EZ, 1040A and 1040 tax returns received from individual taxpayers and paid preparers. The Cincinnati Service Center has reported an overall error rate of 13% in computing the standard deduction.

The standard deduction is an amount that a taxpayer can subtract from adjusted gross income before computing the tax. It is taken if one does not itemize deductions, and the amount depends on one's filing status. Taxpayers must make this subtraction themselves.

Generally, a single filer is entitled to a standard deduction of $2,540, and a taxpayer who is married filing a joint return is entitled to $3,760. If a taxpayer is 65 or over, or blind, he or she may be entitled to an additional standard deduction. There are special instructions in the tax package for computing the standard deduction if the taxpayer is 65 or over, or blind.

Taxpayers are urged to follow the instructions in their tax packages. The standard deduction computation is made on line 4 of Form 1040EZ, line 14d of Form 1040A, and line 33b of Form 1040.

Anyone who has any questions about computing the standard deduction may call the IRS toll free number 1-800-424-1040.

More than two-thirds of the Kentuckians actively seeking new jobs in the state during October were successful, leading to rises in both Kentucky's total employment and the state's unemployment rate.

THE JOHN GRAHAM CHAPTER Daughters of the American Revolution encourages us all to learn the Preamble to the Constitution of the United States of America. "We the People of the United States, in Order to form a more perfect Union, establish Justice, insure domestic Tranquility, provide for the common defense, promote the general Welfare, secure the Blessings of Liberty to ourselves and our Posterity, do ordain and establish this Constitution for the United States of America."

Bills Offer Counties Say In Toxic Dump Site Permitting

The thought of a toxic waste incinerator locating in one's community brings unpleasant images of the possibilities of contaminated water, polluted air, mysterious health problems and community controversy for most Kentuckians.

But legislation proposed in the Kentucky General Assembly would give local citizens the right to say "No" to such possibilities when a hazardous waste incinerator proposes to locate in their community.

Senate Bill 169 and House Bill 506 would require local government approval before a permit could be issued for a hazardous waste incinerator. The legislation was developed by Kentuckians For The Commonwealth and introduced in the Senate by David Lemaster, Bill Quinlan, Larry Saunders and Ed Ford, and in the House by Harry Moberly and Walter Blevins.

"This will give the county government the right to decide whether or not they want a hazardous waste incinerator in their community," said KFTC Vice-Chairperson Patty Wallace, a resident of Lawrence County where PyroChem Inc. of Louisville wants to build a hazardous waste incinerator.

"The county knows more about local geography and siting considerations than anyone else, Wallace continued. "The technical review of permit applications would be left to state and federal environmental agencies which have the expertise to review the proposed design, construction and operation of the plant. But for other considerations, such as local preparedness to handle toxic spills, the capacity of local roads to handle increased truck traffic, the proximity of schools or highly-populated areas to the proposed plant and the location of water supplies and other natural resources, local citizens and governments have the expertise to make the best decision."

"I believe in the wisdom of the common citizen," said KFTC member Barbara Reich of Henderson. "I believe that the voter can look at the facts and make a good, educated decision."

Currently, the decision to grant a hazardous waste incinerator permit is in the hands of state and federal agencies, which often do not consider or are not aware of local siting considerations. Local citizens are not given a voice in such decisions, unless the county has zoning regulations, which most rural Kentucky counties do not.

Because of the lack of zoning and weak environmental standards, Kentucky has been targeted as a dumping ground for hazardous wastes from other states.

KFTC members say that waste reduction is the better way to deal with the nation's hazardous wastes. The statewide citizens organization is preparing legislation that would establish a Center for Hazardous Waste Reduction at a state-owned university.

SB 169 has been assigned to the Senate Agriculture and Natural Resources Committee, chaired by Senator Greg Higdon. HB 506 is before the House Natural Resources and the Environment Committee, chaired by Rep. Herbie Deskins.

Citizens may express their opinions on these and any bills to legislators by using the toll-free message line. By calling 1-800-372-7181, callers can leave messages for as many as three legislators with each call.

COYOTES FRUSTRATE TEXAS RANCHERS

Frustrated by coyote raids on their sheep and goats, some Texas ranchers are turning to an unlikely ally—the jackass. National Wildlife magazine reports that while donkeys won't kill coyotes, they do chase them away. So far, at least 100 ranchers have decided to give them a try. Still, only females need apply. Male donkeys are apparently too ornery to be trusted, and might even attack the animals they're supposed to guard.

"Proclaim Liberty!"

Remembering The Fundamentals

The First Amendment guarantees to American citizens the liberty of "freedom of speech" and "freedom of the press." Most peoples around the world have never even heard of either liberty, although their regimes have piously affirmed them in the United Nations Declaration of Human Rights. They have to live in a previous age of human history, when arbitrary regimes and despotic rules simply imprison or kill those who dissent. But Americans have the Bill of Rights.

The purpose of "freedom of speech" and "freedom of the press" is to enhance the pursuit of acceptable statements of the truth. In our kind of a republic, such statements are reached by the fullest possible participation by responsible citizens. We create the will to obey a law through the process of public discussion of its formulation. Our freedom is our participation.

The purpose is not, although clever lawyers and other sophists often twist it that way, to protect pornography, obscenity, sexual exhibitionism or other immoralities destructive of the public good. Neither, although the liberties mentioned are sometimes given that perverse twist, is its purpose to protect the violence of black-booted bullyboys marching to invade the privacy and threaten the security of loyal citizens.

Those who call such demonstrations by private armies "symbolic speech" are helping to destroy the real thing. The First Amendment liberties are there to build up full, free (unintimidated) and informed public opinion on issues of public policy.

Under the Hamlin Institute a seminar of citizens had been working on an Early Warning System to identify potentially genocidal movements. One purpose of the identification is to show the difference between honestly conservative movements and fascist groups—a distinction too often neglected these days—and honestly liberal or progressive movements and communist groups. How often must it be said: Hitler was not a conservative, and Stalin was not a liberal!

Another purpose of the Early Warning System is to make it possible to render impotent, with a minimum of violence, the efforts of fascist-type and communist-type groups to confuse the meaning of the First Amendment and undermine the confidence of loyal citizens in the Constitution which created the United States of America.

RESPONDING TO HIGH BLOOD PRESSURE

For a young adult, the average blood pressure reading is 120/80. Depending upon how much a patient's numbers exceed this average, the physician will alter his response to the problem of high blood pressure. The first steps usually do not involve drugs. The doctor will urge a patient to lose weight, stop smoking, and restrict his intake of salt. If these dietary and lifestyle changes do not bring results, the physician will often prescribe a diuretic. The resultant reduction in body fluid will often control a mild elevation in blood pressure. Failing this, a beta blocker may be prescribed. These drugs block nerve impulses which increase blood pressure. The next step may involve the prescription of a vasodilator which dilates blood vessels. A more potent nerve blocker could follow in extreme cases.

Whether dispensing the prescription your physician has ordered or advising you about over-the-counter products everyone at COOLEY APOTHECARY will serve your needs with the utmost professionalism and understanding. Learn firsthand about our reliable service and hometown friendliness. Complete patient profiles are maintained so we can further safeguard your health. RETURN FROM FLORIDA

Mrs. Danese Amburgey and William and Belinda Amburgey have returned from St. Petersburg, Florida, where they visited with Mrs. Danese Amburgey's sister, Mrs. Edith Cook. While there, they toured the Sunken Gardens, the Epcot Center, and other points of interest.

ANNOUNCE BIRTH

Lona and Larry Charles are announcing the birth of their daughter, Ashton Elizabeth Charles, January 25, at Central Baptist Hospital, Lexington. The baby's grandparents are Anna and Fred Goble, of Prestonsburg, Mrs. Laura Pool, of Houston, Texas, and Harry Charles, Jr., of Cullman, Alabama, and her great-grandparents are Mrs. Sally Goble, of Prestonsburg, Harry Charles, Sr., and Conrad Pinson, of Matewan, W. Va.

NURSING HOME PATIENT

Mrs. Goldia Wicker, formerly of this county, now of Morehead, has been a patient at a Morehead nursing home for the past few months. Her many relatives and friends here are concerned about her. Mrs. Wicker, a former teacher in this county, is the wife of Monroe Wicker, who served as principal of Martin High School, of Prestonsburg High School and later as Superintendent of the Prestonsburg City Schools, before going to Morehead to serve on the faculty at the college there.

HONORED ON BIRTHDAY

Mrs. Danese Amburgey was honored with a surprise birthday party at her home, Saturday, January 30. Enjoying this event with her were Ed Wright, Don and Freda Hicks, Miss Caroline Hicks, Mrs. Hayes, Miss Rachel Childers, Mr. and Mrs. Eugene Blackburn, William and Belinda Amburgey, Eric Blackburn, Edith Cline, and Eileen Baldrige. The honoree was presented a dozen red roses and other gifts. Hors d'oeuvres, decorated birthday cake, and other refreshments were served. Mrs. Amburgey is president of the Floyd County Retired Teachers' Association.

RETURN FROM COLORADO

Doug and Paula Adams, Tim Spencer and Marcia Jefferson have returned from a 10-day skiing trip in Colorado. While there, they were the guests of Mr. and Mrs. Fred May, formerly of Prestonsburg, cousins of Paula and Tim. Tom May flew there for a weekend of skiing with them before they returned to their homes.

HERE ON LEAVE

Richard Short, who is stationed with the U.S. Navy at Norfolk, Virginia, was here recently for a visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Harry W. Short, his grandmother, Mrs. Frank H. Layne, and other relatives and friends.

RETURNS FROM PIKEVILLE

Mrs. May K. Roberts has returned from Pikeville, where she visited for a few days with her daughter and son-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. William J. Baird, III, and family. The Baird family accompanied her home, and attended the Prestonsburg-Pikeville basketball game, here, in which Miss Elizabeth Ann Baird, a member of the Pikeville team, participated.

VISITS IN LEXINGTON

Mrs. Thelma S. Wallen spent a week recently visiting with her daughter, Miss Joyce Wallen, and her sisters, Misses Linda and Elsie Stephens, in Lexington. Overnight guests of Misses Elsie and Linda Stephens, recently, were Mesdames Clara Bradbury and Dorothy Wells.

IS SPEAKER, SUNDAY AT 1ST METHODIST

H. C. (Huck) Francis brought the message at the First United Methodist Church during services there, Sunday morning. Mr. Francis is a member of the First Baptist Church (Irene Cole Memorial), here.

IN LEXINGTON

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Hereford spent Wednesday and Thursday in Lexington.

RECUPERATING AFTER SURGERY

James Donahoe, who underwent surgery at the Paul B. Hall Medical Center this past week, is now showing improvement at his home, here. The Donahoes' sons, Patrick and John Donahoe, of Lexington, and Michael Donahoe, of Flatwoods, came here to be with their parents during his hospitalization.

HERE FOR WEEKEND

Mr. and Mrs. Doug Adams, of Lexington, were here during the weekend visiting with their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Spencer, and Dr. and Mrs. James D. Adams, and other relatives and friends.

WEEKEND GUESTS

Mr. and Mrs. John Thrasher, of Lexington, and Mr. and Mrs. Stephen R. Brackett and daughter, Angela Frances, of Ulysses, were weekend guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Ray Brackett. Mr. and Mrs. Thrasher, Ray Crisp, of Allen, and Tim Crisp, of Lexington, also visited Mrs. Thrasher's grandmother, Mrs. J. Frank Preston, in Ulysses, Sunday.

PAY RESPECTS

Calling at the Irvine Funeral Home to offer condolences to the family of Mrs. Nell W. Turpin, January 22, were Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Burchett, Mrs. Ruthie Goble, Mrs. Barbara Burke, Mr. and Mrs. Garland Godsey, Mrs. Boots Adams, and Mickey McGuire, all of Prestonsburg; Mrs. Alta Leslie, Mrs. Billie Lyon, Mr. and Mrs. C. Kilmer Combs, Dr. and Mrs. B. F. Combs, and the Rev. and Mrs. Harold Dorsey, all of Lexington. Among those attending funeral services for Mrs. Turpin, January 23, were Mr. and Mrs. H.D. (Buddy) Fitzpatrick, of Prestonsburg.

Celebrate 50th Wedding Anniversary

Mr. and Mrs. Alex Howard, of Prestonsburg, were honored with a reception for their 50th wedding anniversary at the Community United Methodist Church Fellowship Hall on Dec. 27.

Their children who sponsored the reception are: Mary Linkous, of Bossieu City, La., Margaret Taylor, of Auxier, Patricia Webb, of South Charleston, O., Joe Alex Howard, Union Lake, Mich., and Judy H. Crowe, of Allen.

Mr. and Mrs. Howard were married on Dec. 27, 1937 by Rev. Mahlon Burke, witnessed by Arthur Tackett and Virgil Little, now deceased.

They wish to thank all who attended and all who brought the many cards and gifts they received. A very special thanks goes to Mr. Jeff Hall, of Allen, who made a video tape of the reception.

REBEKAHS MEET

The regular semi-monthly meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge No. 31 was held Tuesday evening, January 19, at the I.O.O.F. Hall, with Noble Grand Mrs. Teresa Maynard presiding. Members who were sick or otherwise in need were recorded, and cards to be sent to them, were signed.

The Noble Grand expressed her appreciation to Mary Ann Prater for helping her to obtain new flowers for the Lodge Hall and expressed special thanks to the merchants who donated them.

Mrs. Maynard asked members to help with the needy family food program by bringing one or more cans of food and/or other non-perishable foods to each meeting.

The Noble Grand, assisted by Mesdames Margaret Baldrige and Mary Ann Prater, presented a birthday program and presented each member present a ribbon with the color depicting the month in which she was born, as follows: January: Paulena Owens, and Otela Smiley, white; February: Dorothy Osborne and Margaret Baldrige, red; March: Teresa Maynard, and Beverly Hackworth, green; April: Virginia Goble and Maman Leslie, violet; May: Mary Ann Prater, yellow; June: Dolly Lafferty, orange; July, blue; August, rose; September, pink, and October, black, no birthdays; November: Mabel Jean LeMaster, brown, and December: Emma Lou Horn, purple.

Mrs. Mabel Jean LeMaster, assisted by Mesdames Paulena Owens, and Virginia S. Goble, installed Mrs. Emma Lou Horn as Right Supporter to the Noble Grand, and Mrs. Virginia S. Goble, chairman of the program committee, presented a program on Thomas Wyler, founder of the Oddfellowship.

Mrs. Maynard reminded members of the Valentine party to be held during the February 2 meeting.

Present for this meeting were Teresa Maynard, Beverly Hackworth, Otela Smiley, Maman Leslie, Mary Ann Prater, Paulena Owens, Mable Jean LeMaster, Emma Lou Horn, Margaret Baldrige, Dorothy Osborne, Dotty Lafferty, and Virginia S. Goble.

D.A.R. CHAPTER TO MEET FEB. 16

Mrs. Carl R. Horn, regent of John Graham Chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, announces that there will be a meeting of the Chapter, Tuesday, February 16, at 3:30 p.m. at the Floyd County Library. Attend Your Place of Worship This Week!

About 7,100 individuals were enrolled in safety and health training offered by the Training Institute of the Occupational Safety and Health Administration during the 1986 fiscal year. According to the Labor Department's annual report, participants included compliance officers, state personnel, federal safety and health representatives for other agencies, and private sector representatives.

Soybean Bang or Whimper Weather Will Soon Decide

Whether soybean prices will continue to climb upward during 1988 will depend in large measure on the weather in the western hemisphere, according to a University of Kentucky Extension agricultural economist.

"Disappearance of soybeans stockpiles has outpaced practically everyone's expectations. We are looking at the possibility of carrying out the smallest amount of soybeans since 1983. As a consequence, soybean prices could be affected dramatically by weather," said Steve Riggins.

Reports of South American planting in November suggested an increase acreage planted to soybeans—with some estimates as high as 110 percent of last year's, Riggins said.

However, a reduction in yield caused by poor weather in South America during the growing or harvesting season could mean a smaller world supply of soybeans, which would increase prices, he said.

In addition, recent strengthening in soybean prices could entice more North American farmers to plant soybeans this spring, which may buffer substantial price improvements, especially if favorable weather increases yields, the economist said.

Further increasing the uncertainty for soybeans in the coming year is what Congress will do with a proposal to allow corn farmers to plant five percent of their set aside land into oil crops, including soybeans, he said.

"If Congress does allow corn farmers to plant five percent of set aside land into beans and we have favorable weather, prices would not likely increase any during the year," he said.

Soybean farmers need to watch carefully the development of the South American crop and be prepared to act should rumors of production problems develop, Riggins said.

"They may want to consider flexible pricing options, such as basis contracts for their 1987 beans, selling their beans and buying futures contracts or hedging their 1988 crop," Riggins said.

"They may want to consider flexible pricing options, such as basis contracts for their 1987 beans, selling their beans and buying futures contracts or hedging their 1988 crop," Riggins said.

"No matter what they plan to do, they should continue to monitor weather in both the U.S. and South America for the next several months," he said.

DEAR BETTY CROCKER

Q. Tops of cakes don't brown in my microwave oven. What can I do to make them attractive? S.A. Gladewater, Tx.

A. Use frostings, glazes of sauces. Powdered or granulated sugar dustings with or without stencils make attractive cakes. Other toppings include fresh fruit pieces, chocolate curls or morsels, flaked coconut, nuts, or candy pieces.

Q. What are the best fillings for sandwiches that I plan to freeze? G.B., Maynard, Ia.

A. Sandwiches made with sliced meat, poultry, cheese, cheese spread, peanut butter, salmon and tuna freeze well. Use applesauce, fruit juice and dairy sour cream to moisten ingredients. Don't use mayonnaise, salad dressing, jelly, fresh vegetables or boiled egg whites.

Q. What's wrong with a cake that rises in the middle and then cracks? P.B., Butte, Mt.

A. Several factors could cause cakes to crack. If the oven is too hot, the crust sets too fast and the remaining batter rises causing cracking. Secondly, imbalance of the flour-liquid ratio makes the batter too thick. Finally, a pan that is too small makes the batter deeper which may cause cracking.

TIP OF THE WEEK: Add a tablespoon of oil or shortening to the first cooking of dried beans to prevent water from foaming.

Do you have a question? Write Dear Betty Crocker, Box 1113, Dept. Betty, Minneapolis, Mn. 55440.

Dangers Of AIDS Subject Of KET Plumblin Forum

More than 20,000 new cases of AIDS were reported in the United States alone last year, amounting to a 58.5 percent increase over 1986. Can we stop the spread of this disease and what should be done for those who have already contracted it?

The next edition of "Kentucky Center Presents: Plumblin" explores these and other issues concerning the health crisis of the century with a distinguished panel of experts Monday, February 22 at 8:00/7:00 p.m. CT on KET.

The panel includes Rtd. Adm. J.D. Watkins, chairman of the Presidential Commission on the HIV Epidemic; Dr. Karen Hein, associate professor of pediatrics, Albert Einstein College of Medicine; Randy Shilts, journalist for the San Francisco Chronicle and author of the book "And The Band Played On"; and the Rt. Rev. Monsignor John Woolsey, co-chairman of the Coalition of Concerned Clergy of New York City.

John Merrow, education correspondent for the "MacNeil/Lehrer News-Hour" is moderator for the forum, taped live at the Kentucky Center.

"Plumblin" is a production of KET and the Kentucky Center for the Arts.

Don't Blame Farmer For High Food Cost

Of the total cost of a big, cooked-at-home breakfast, the farmers who produce the ingredients receive only about a third.

"We calculated the farmers' share of the cost of a big breakfast, made up of a slice of country ham, two slices of bacon, two sausage patties, two eggs, two buttered biscuits, large glass of milk, and small glass of orange juice, and found the cost to the consumer was $2.40. Of that, the farmers producing the raw inputs received only 72 cents," said Forrest Stegelin, University of Kentucky Extension agricultural economist.

The rest of the cost went to middlemen who processed, transported and sold the ingredients, he said.

If the same breakfast were purchased in a restaurant, the farmers' share would have been even less—at about 15 percent of the $4.50 the consumer would pay for it, Stegelin said.

"Overall, the farmer's share of the cost of food at the grocery stores is about 30 percent, but it varies widely based on how much processing has been done to the food once it leaves the farm gate," Stegelin said.

For example, he said, the farmer's share of the cost of a pound of canned tomatoes is about nine percent of the retail price, while the share for a pound of raw tomatoes is about 17 percent.

The farmer's share of the cost of foods also varies across items. The cost of a gallon of milk represents 49 percent being paid the farmer for the raw milk. The wheat in a loaf of bread represents only about 7 percent returned to the farmer, Stegelin said.

ASK TONI

Crystal is no stranger to the music business

By Toni Reinhold

Is it true that Billy Crystal made a record that was a takeoff on his "marvelous" skit? - B.T., Saugerties, N.Y.

Billy Crystal

It's true, B.T. Crystal's single "You Look Marvellous," based on a character he originated on "Saturday Night Live" in 1984, brought him a Grammy nomination in 1986. Although Crystal is known for his work in TV and films, he is no stranger to the music business. His family owned Commodore Records, a jazz label, and as a result he became familiar with such greats as Billie Holiday and Eddie Condon. So it's appropriate that for the second year in a row he'll host the Grammy Awards, which will air March 2 on CBS.

Did Fred Gwynne appear in the movie "The Cotton Club"? I say yes, but my husband says no. - C.B., Riverside, Calif.

Gwynne played a gangster named Frenchy Demance in the 1984 film. Fans of his Herman Munster character from the '60s sitcom "The Munsters" may not have recognized him.

Which soap opera does President Ford's son appear on? What character does he play? I'm eager to see what he looks like. - N.V., Fall River, Mass.

Stephen Ford, son of the former president and his wife, Betty, has played Andy Richards on "The Young and the Restless" for six seasons.

What is the real name of singer Jerry Vale? When and where was he born? - G.S., Ontario, Canada.

Vale's real name is Genaro Louis Vitaliano. He was born in the Bronx, N.Y., on July 8, 1932.

What can you tell me about Kirstie Alley, the co-star of "Cheers"? - A.G., Malone, N.Y.

Alley, 32, plays Rebecca Howe, the new manager of the Boston bar. It is her first regular series role. She is best known for her roles in the 1985 miniseries "North and South" and the films "Star Trek II: The Wrath of Khan" (1982) and "Summer School" (1987). She and her husband, actor Parker Stevenson ("The Hardy Boys Mysteries"), live in California with some 40 pets, including dogs, fish, birds, cats and chickens.

For Sheldon, writing a best seller is effortless

By Paul Elie

Sidney Sheldon

"I have a map of the world on the wall in my office," he says, "and when I was ready to start writing the novel I put my finger down right in the center of it. And there happened to be a town there — Junction City, Kansas. I called the editor of the newspaper there, the Chamber of Commerce, and learned everything I could about Junction City, Kansas. But I still couldn't smell Junction City, Kansas. So I went there, spent time there, to get an idea of where my character was coming from."
 "Windmills of the Gods," which airs Sunday, Feb. 7, and Tuesday, Feb. 9, stars Jaclyn Smith as Mary Ashley, a college professor. She is sitting at the breakfast table one morning when the president calls, asking her to serve as ambassador to Romania. Her husband objects; she declines; he dies; she goes. There she meets diplomat Mike Slade (Robert Wagner) and encounters an espionage ring that aims for nothing less than the demise of our capitalist society.

 But Sheldon insists that his books are grounded in truth. He points out that he actually visits the places he writes about — France, Greece, Eastern Europe and Tunisia, as well as Kansas — and spends months gathering hard reportage. "If I write about a restaurant in Indonesia, I have eaten in that restaurant," he says.
 Then, legwork completed, he retires to his Palm Springs home and writes a first draft, often dictating 50 pages a day to a secretary. His literary models; the great English playwrights, from George Bernard Shaw to Tom Stoppard. His technique, he says, has developed through years of writing scripts for movies and series such as "I Dream of Jeannie" and "Hart to Hart." "By now, it's effortless," he says.
 "Windmills" is the eighth Sheldon novel and the fourth to be made into a miniseries ("Rage of Angels," "Master of the Game" and "If Tomorrow Comes" are the others). Not surprisingly, his books and miniseries alike have met with a hostility from critics that nearly equals the adulation from his fans, who often wait months for their turn to check the latest Sheldon novel out of the library.
 But Sheldon is undaunted. "It doesn't bother me," he says.

SOAP BEAT

Larry Keith feels older people are dynamic too

By Marie Michaels

In the 1970s, Larry Keith of "All My Children" was one of the soaps' hottest heartthrobs. His character, social-climbing restaurant owner Nick Davis, made his mark as the only man able to tame temptress Erica Kane (Susan Lucci). Now the powers that be at "AMC" have resurrected Nick and plan to reinvolve him with his fiery former lover.

Larry Keith

"I'm interested to see if the character is still viable," says Keith, who created the role in 1970, played it for eight years, departed, then reprised it briefly in 1983. "(New 'AMC' producer) Steven Schenkel asked me if I wanted to come back, and I said, 'Why not?' So I'm back for 13 weeks - maybe longer, depending on the viewer response."

Is Keith anything like his wrong-side-of-the-tracks-rebel-turned-successful-businessman character?

"Well, we're both 5 feet 11 inches tall and have blue eyes," he quips. "Actually, I'm not really like this man - but there are aspects of him in me. All his life, Nick has been trying to gain credibility because he grew up poor. He not only wanted to make it, he needed to be accepted by the Pine Valley society. He finally got that credibility. But now that he's a success in business, he has decided he needs more than that. He's looking for love."

Keith has fared considerably better than Nick in matters of the heart. He has been involved for more than seven years with "AMC" co-star Kathleen Noone (who plays Ellen Chandler). During his absence from the soap, he did voice-overs for commercials and starred in the short-lived Norman Lear series "The Baxters" (1979).

If he could script his own "AMC" plot line, he'd have Nick stirring up trouble in Pine Valley, settling old scores.

"I'd like to see Nick challenge the wealthy families of Pine Valley - and win," he says. "And I'd like him to keep looking for love and not find it. Since he doesn't believe he's worthy, he could never trust a woman who loves him."

He hopes that his return to "AMC" will prove that more mature characters are interesting to the daytime audience. "The soaps seem to have forgotten that older people are dynamic too," he says.

Dangerfield's new special features young comics

By Denise Gorga

Lots of laughs this month on HBO. Last week, Jackie Mason bowed with a truncated version of his Broadway show. At the end of the month, Dennis Miller of "Saturday Night Live" will star in an "On Location" special of his own. And this week, sandwiched between Mason's cynicism and Miller's zaniness, is "On Location: Rodney Dangerfield - Nothin' Goes Right." The special premieres Saturday, Feb. 13.

Rodney Dangerfield

Dangerfield is on location all right: This show, like last year's "It's Not Easy Bein' Me," was taped at Dangerfield's, the comedian's own club in New York City. "Nothin' Goes Right" features seven of Dangerfield's favorite rising young comedians: Lenny Clarke, Andrew "Dice" Clay, Billy Hicks, Dom Irrera, Carol Leifer, Robert Schimmel and Barry Sobel. Not to worry, though - Dangerfield himself weaves in and out with

THE CHARMINGS

Judy Parfitt stars as Queen Lillian, the nasty stepmother who makes life tougher than it should be for Snow and Prince Charming, on ABC's "The Charmings," airing THURSDAY, FEB. 11.

1/4" Trim on all cut fresh meats!

Winn-Dixie's 1/4" Trim means leaner meat for your family! With up to 30% less fat you reduce your calories and get the same great quality meats you trust Winn-Dixie to have. When you shop for beef, pick the beef with the 1/4" trim—today's W-D Brand U.S. Choice Beef from The Beef People at Winn-Dixie!

NUTRITION INFORMATION PER COOKED, TRIMMED SERVING

CALORIES 184
CHOLESTEROL 59mg
SODIUM 429mg

FLAVORFUL BEEF ROAST

3 to 4-pound chuck roast
 1/4 cup each soy sauce, dry sherry and lime juice
 2 tablespoons cooking oil
 1 tablespoon each minced ginger root and honey
 2 cloves garlic, minced

MEAT NUTRI-FACTS

Combine soy sauce, sherry, lime juice, oil, ginger root, honey and garlic. Place roast in utility dish or plastic bag; add marinade, turning to coat. Cover dish or tie bag securely and marinate in refrigerator 6 to 8 hours (or overnight, if desired), turning occasionally. Remove roast from marinade. Place roast on rack in open roasting pan. Insert roast meat thermometer so bulb is centered in thickest part. Do not add water. Do not cover. Roast in a slow oven (325°F.) until thermometer registers 135°F. Allow 20 to 22 minutes per pound. Brush roast with reserved marinade during last 20 minutes of cooking. Carve into thin slices.

Donates Educational Materials

Dr. Chandra Varia recently donated educational materials valued at over $200.00 to the Big Sandy Family/Childbirth Education Association. The materials consisted of a slide set entitled "Caesarean—a Special Birth" and the VHS video tape "Postpartum—a Bitter Sweet Experience". These will be used as instructional aids in the childbirth education series that is sponsored by BSF/CEA and held at Prestonsburg Community College. For more information about the classes or other services call BSF/CEA at Prestonsburg Community College at 886-3863.

To Chair '88 Bike-A-Thons In David and Allen Areas

The Central Regional Office of St. Jude Children's Research Hospital has announced that the following individuals in Floyd county have agreed to chair the 1988 Bike-A-Thons in their community. Miss Bridget Clay for David and Mrs. Cindy Lou Parsons for Allen will each chair separate Bike-a-Thons this year. St. Jude Children's Research Hospital was founded by entertainer Danny Thomas. The institution opened its doors to the public in 1962 to combat catastrophic diseases which afflict our children. St. Jude Hospital is non-sectarian, non-discriminatory, and provide medical care to over 4,200 patients.

At St. Jude, scientists and physicians are working side by side seeking not only a better means of treatment, but also the causes, cures and prevention of these terrible killers.

All findings and information gained at the hospital are shared freely with doctors and hospitals all over the world. Thanks to St. Jude Hospital, children who have leukemia, Hodgkin's disease, sickle-cell anemia, and other child killing diseases now have a better chance to live.

The Bike-a-Thon program is dedicated to Brian McCollister. Brian, a native of Louisiana, was diagnosed with leukemia in October, 1984. Since that time, Brian has come to St. Jude every six weeks for treatment, and every 12 weeks for a bone marrow test and spinal tap to make sure his cancer stays in remission. While at home, Brian receives oral medication daily.

The concern which these chairmen have for the work begins done at St. Jude Hospital is greatly appreciated. We also feel assured that the citizens in their communities will support the upcoming events as generously as possible.

For more information, contact Bridget Clay (David chairman) phone #886-1378 or Mrs. Cindy Lou Parsons (Allen chairman) phone #874-9859.

USDA Grain Support Is Cut Considerably

Changes in federal support for grain programs this year may mean that some farmers who previously participated in the programs may want to rethink their decisions, according to a University of Kentucky Extension grain marketing expert.

"USDA support for grain programs has been cut considerably in the quest to meet federal budget guidelines. As a consequence, participation in federal feed grain and wheat programs may be less attractive than last year," said Steve Riggins, Cooperative Extension agricultural economist.

Target prices for feed grains and wheat were reduced more than the 1985 Farm Bill allows by the Budget Reconciliation Act of 1987. Loan rates were cut less than the maximum the Farm Bill allows. As a result, the maximum deficiency payment will be squeezed considerably, Riggins said.

For corn, the 1987 maximum deficiency payment was $1.21 per program bushel; for 1988, the rate will be $1.16. In addition, the amount of land that can be enrolled in the paid diversion program has been reduced from 15 percent of base to 10 percent and the payment rate was dropped from $2.00 per program bushel to $1.75, Riggins said.

For wheat, last year's maximum rate was $2.10 per program bushel; for this year, the rate will be $2.02.

In addition, Riggins said, market improvements during the last few months for corn, wheat and soybeans have made participation in government grain programs less beneficial for some farmers.

"The decision this year will be much closer than in the past. Farmers must look at their own situation carefully before they make their decision. For some farmers, full participation will be the preferred choice; for others partial or non-participation will be best," Riggins said.

Farmers contemplating the decision to participate need to take into consideration their expected yields relative to program yields, number of crop acres relative to base acres, prices received and cash production expenses, he said.

"In situations where returns for full, limited participation and non-participation are close, farmers probably will want to opt for at least some measure of participation because income is more assured," Riggins said.

Farmers who are unprepared for the risks of producing a crop without government participation may want to enroll in the programs even if their expected returns are somewhat less, the economist said.

★ Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: It has been recommended that I have a CT scan to check on whether my newly diagnosed cancer has spread. What is a CT scan? How is it different from a normal X-ray that I'm used to?

ANSWER: "CT" or "CAT" scan stands for computerized axial tomography. This diagnostic technique uses x-ray beams to obtain a three-dimensional image of a body part. This image is then displayed on a screen or is printed on film or paper.

Cat scans offer some advantages over standard x-rays. Standard x-rays send a broad x-ray beam over a large area. The result is a two-dimensional picture that shows organs on top of each other. But, the CAT scan rotates around the body and provides an image that clearly shows the shape and the placement of organs and tissues. It can also detect small differences in the physical characteristics of tissue.

At first, CAT scans were used only to detect brain abnormalities. Today it can help diagnose primary and metastatic tumors (cancers that have spread) in many organs including the lung, prostate, liver and pancreas. It is also used to detect other abnormal structures, organ disorders and blood clots that may not be found except by major tests or surgery.

For more information on cancer related subject, call the Cancer Information Service (CIS) at 1-800-4-CANCER. Or write to the CIS at the Markey Cancer Center, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. The CIS is a service of the Kentucky Community Cancer Program.

Veterans Administration Questions And Answers

Editor's note: Following are representative questions answered daily by VA Counselors. Full information is available at any VA office.

Q—My 17-year-old son has been awarded Dependents Education Assistance (DEA) from the VA. Will he be removed from my award of Dependency and Indemnity Compensation (DIC)?

A—He will remain on your award until his 18th birthday. DEA and DIC benefits cannot be paid concurrently after age 18.

Q—Can a non-veteran assume a GI loan?

A—Yes. VA approval is not required before a veteran or a non-veteran assumes a GI loan. However, before the veteran-seller can be released from liability in the case of a loan default, the buyer must be a credit-worthy obligor who is acceptable to the VA.

Q—When I purchase a home using a VA loan guaranty, will the income of my spouse be considered?

A—The veteran's and the spouse's income are considered in determining ability to repay the loan.

Q—My husband receives VA pension benefits. If I go to work will this affect his benefits?

A—If your husband established entitlement to pension benefits prior to January 1, 1979, and continues to receive benefits based on the law in effect at that time, your earned income would not be a factor. If he receives benefits under the current pension law (PL 96-588), your income would be a factor in determining the amount of his pension. If your joint income reaches a specified level, his pension would be discontinued.

Q—Will the VA release my new address to my estranged wife?

A—No. Your address is privileged information and may not be released without your permission.

Q—My son who died in the service was cremated and his ashes were scattered without interment of any portion of the ashes. May I still obtain a memorial marker for him?

A—Yes. The memorial may be erected in a private cemetery or the memorial section of a national cemetery.

OBESITY

COPYRIGHT 1988 KVMA

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association

Wondering how you will cope with the extra pounds you picked up during the holidays? You might have some concern for your pet as well. Chances are, if you picked up weight, so did your pet.

Pets tend to gain weight over the winter months anyway, especially pets confined to a house, because their owners spend less time exercising them outdoors in cold weather. During holidays, there is the added temptation to feed them "treats" from the table.

In all, about 30 percent of all pets are overweight—and this causes problems for almost every system in the animal's body, especially the skeletal and cardiovascular systems.

Both bones and joints have to carry extra loads in an obese animal. Knee joints in small breed dogs and hip problems in large breed dogs are quite common. Obesity is also a contributing factor in spinal disc disease. These problems are more easily managed when an animal is at its proper weight, or even a little under weight, than when an animal is overweight.

Cardiovascular disease is also common in overweight animals. As the animal's weight increases, so does the demand for blood flow and oxygen. This places an added demand on the heart to keep up with the body's needs. This, in turn, can result in heart failure, when fluids fill the lungs or abdomen because the heart can't keep up with the demand.

If your pet is overweight, all may not be lost. A few simple guidelines will usually assure that your pet will lose some of that weight, and if it is not overweight, that it will not gain too much weight.

1. Avoid table food, which is the leading cause of weight gain in animals. Prepared commercial pet foods contain all necessary nutrients and calories.
2. Provide adequate exercises. Usually walking or running or jogging with dogs is sufficient. Playing with toys is probably adequate for cats. But if your pet does nothing but eat, sleep and lay around, it will gain weight.
3. Make sure everyone with access to the pet cooperates. No reducing effort can be successful if the efforts are undermined.

Remember two things: your pet's weight is your responsibility, it will eat whatever you provide, even a diet loaded with excess calories. Also remember, an animal in good condition will live an average three to four years longer than one which is overweight.

Your veterinarian can assist you in a weight loss plan for your pet, as well as in devising a plan to prevent excessive weight gain. Today's veterinarians are trained in nutrition and diet management, as well as for medical emergencies.

USE THE STAIRS—They're the best and cheapest piece of equipment for staying in shape, says Good Housekeeping in its February issue. Climbing stairs for exercise is a great cardiovascular workout and a super toner for the hard-to-slim thighs and rear. Some tips:

Warm up before each climbing session. Start at a slow, even pace—especially important as you descend the steps, to prevent jarring the knees. Do a few flights of stairs at first; build slowly to a 20-minute climb three times a week for full aerobic benefits.

ORANGE JUICE—A six-ounce glass of any orange juice usually meets the dairy requirement for vitamin C. But here are a few buying and storing tips from Good Housekeeping's February issue:

+ To help preserve the vitamin C, always refrigerate, store in air-tight containers, and consume as far in advance of expiration date as possible.
 + Canned juice preserves C, but the juice loses flavor and C if stored at room temperature for long period.

+ C content of juice in glass bottles is good if you keep it chilled.

+ For highest C content, juice in paper cartons or plastic bottles should be consumed well before expiration date.

MEAT LABELS—"Select" are the best for your meat cuts—lean and low in fat, says Good Housekeeping in its February issue. "Prime" and "Choice" cuts may be more tender and juicy but they're higher in fat content and generally higher in price, too.

DIET MISTAKE—It's called a diet platter: hamburger patty, scoop of cottage cheese, and gelatin, and it adds up to about 435 calories, over 50% of which is fat. A solution from Good Housekeeping's February issue: order either a plain hamburger (eat half the bun) and a small salad with oil and vinegar; or low-fat cottage cheese with a fruit salad. You'll cut your fat intake in half.

...about your Social Security

By JIM KELLY
Social Security District Director
For the Big Sandy Area

Social Security Work Credit Needed

Before any Social Security benefits can be paid, a worker must have enough credit for work covered by Social Security to be insured. Jim Kelly, Social Security Director for the Big Sandy Area said recently.

Social Security credits are measured in units called "quarters of coverage." Both wage earners and self-employed people earn these credits based on their total annual earnings.

A wage earner's earnings are generally covered from the first dollar earned during the year up to the maximum that counts for Social Security, $43,800 for 1987. A self-employed person's earnings are covered, however, only if net earnings amount to $400 or more. If net earnings are at least $400, then total earnings are covered up to the Social Security maximum.

In 1987, a person earns 1 quarter of coverage for each $460 of covered annual earnings. If total 1987 annual earnings amount to $1,840 or more, the person earns 4 quarters. No more than 4 quarters of coverage can be earned in any year.

The amount of covered earnings needed for 4 quarters of coverage will increase automatically each year to keep pace with increases in average wage levels.

The general rule is that a person needs 1 quarter of coverage for each year after 1950, or after the year a person reaches 21, if later, up to the year he or she reaches 62, become disabled, or dies before reaching 62.

For example, a person reaching 62 in 1987 needs 36 quarters of coverage to be insured for retirement benefits. No one ever needs more than 40 quarters to be insured and a person cannot be insured for fewer than 6 quarters.

More information about Social Security credits can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government. The people there will be glad to answer any questions.

The National Survey of Professional, Administrative, Technical and Clerical Pay was expanded in 1986 to include firms with as few as 50 workers, according to the annual report of the U.S. Department of Labor.

Everybody's Science... Predicting Erosion More Accurately

By JIM BENSON

If you said that John Lafren was all WEPP, he'd agree with you.

WEPP is short for the Water Erosion Prediction Program, a new, more accurate method of estimating erosion. According to Lafren, an agronomist with USDA's Agricultural Research Service in Ames, Iowa, switching to WEPP will be like changing from a Model A to a modern sports car.

Lafren adds that farmers will have more confidence in the new system when it comes into use in about three years. "The objectives are to improve present erosion prediction technology, to provide a sounder base for choosing erosion-control practices, and to more fairly implement government programs," he says.

The need for improved methods of estimating erosion intensified recently because of new federal laws requiring farmers to maintain low erosion rates on their land or risk losing eligibility for the benefits of many USDA farm programs. The formula now used by government conservationists to estimate erosion was developed nearly 30 years ago and is generally considered inadequate in many areas.

Part of Lafren's contribution to development of the new formula is to cart an unwieldy looking rainfall simulator and a crew of 12 researchers around the country to collect data on water erosion. Lafren and colleagues are currently using the new simulator to evaluate the erodibility of some 35 major types of cropland and rangeland soils in 17 farming states.

The simulator drops 2-1/2 inches of water an hour on the soil through a system of overhead sprinklers. Researchers first measure erosion after the soil has been freshly tilled and again after the soil is dry and crusted over, when erosion rates normally are lower. The Forest Service is collecting similar data for forest soils. Associated testing and analyses of soil samples are done at Agricultural Research Service labs on the campus of Purdue University and at Soil Conservation Service labs in Lincoln, Neb.

Lafren said that this scientific study should show, among other things, whether erosion on certain types of soil is caused mainly by running water or by the impact of raindrops. This finding should lead to recommendations on more effective methods of prevention. (Agricultural Research Service, U.S. Department of Agriculture)

Jackson School Wins Math Competitions

Sebastian Middle School of Jackson was the winning team in the Morehead Regional for the 11th annual Junior High Math Bowl held at Morehead State University on Jan. 16.

To win the event, sponsored by the Kentucky Council of Teachers of Mathematics, Sebastian defeated teams from Mason County Middle School of Maysville, Verity Middle School of Ashland, and Paintsville Middle School.

The Sebastian team, which earned the title of regional winner from among 10 competing teams, and runner-up Paintsville Middle School will compete for the State title of 1988 Junior High Math Bowl Champion on Jan. 30. Regional winners from across the state will gather in Frankfort to vie for the crown on that date.

Also competing in the Morehead Regional, with team members from grades 6, 7 and 8, were Pikeville Junior High School, Rousseau Elementary School, Lawton Elementary and Menifee County of Frenchburg.

Dr. Ben Flora, MSU professor of mathematics, was the regional bowl director.

A Sound Bull Can Increase Profits

Beef cattle producers can increase their chances of making a profit by making sure their bulls are sound before they are turned in with the herd.

"Veterinary research has shown that cattle producers who use only bulls that have passed a breeding soundness evaluation enjoy an average $17 per cow increase in profit," said Duane Miksch, Extension veterinarian with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. Miksch is headquartered at West Kentucky Research and Education Center in Princeton.

Other research, Miksch said, found that 20 percent of the bulls examined fail to pass the breeding soundness examination.

Conscientious cattlemen will have their bulls tested by a veterinarian for soundness at least once each year. The veterinarian should examine the bulls for breeding soundness in March or April. The veterinarian should also test the cows for pregnancy again in the fall.

"During each of these visits, the veterinarian can observe the body condition of breeding animals, review feeding practices and make recommendations that would result in a higher calving percentage and a shorter calving season," Miksch said.

Examining bulls for breeding soundness is becoming more common, Miksch said.

"The cattle industry is focusing attention nationally on increasing productivity through having animals examined for breeding soundness," he said.

As a result of the increased emphasis on reproduction, 23 Kentucky veterinarians participated in an in-depth breeding soundness workshop in December. Another 50 attended an Extension-sponsored beef health conference at Cave City, he said.

And a group of veterinarians, The Society for Theriogenology, is devoted to improving techniques of measuring breeding soundness. The group assembles and evaluates various measurements of breeding soundness and distributes the information to their members, he said.

TAKING IT TO THE FLOOR: Friday's game between Wheelwright and McDowell was played up around the rim, but here the two teams take to the floor while battling for a loose ball.

McDowell Holds Off Trojans To Post Two Point Victory

In the first half McDowell looked unbeatable. They hit three-pointers, broke Wheelwright's press, and virtually scored at will. Their defense forced many turnovers that led to easy baskets, one of the reasons why they held a huge lead throughout the first two quarters. But somewhere during intermission the Daredevils lost their edge, and in the second half they looked more than beatable. In fact, without the huge early advantage tipping the victory scale in their favor, the final outcome would have been different than the 68-66 win they posted at Wheelwright, Friday night. During a stretch of three minutes and 39 seconds of the first quarter McDowell outscored the Trojans 18 to two, wiping out a four point Wheelwright lead. Tommy Jones nailed a three pointer and Bobby Hood hit a pair of jumpshots as the Trojans put early distance between themselves and McDowell, but with defense generating offense, the Daredevils quickly closed the gap. Marc Hall scored seven of his 11 points in the pivotal stretch, plus McDowell's final six of the quarter, as the Daredevils opened up a 25-13 lead heading into the second quarter. Dickie Joe Shannon, McDowell's leading scorer with 26 points, hit a pair of three-pointers in the second quarter and the Daredevils hit eight of nine free throws to push Wheelwright down by 18 at the end of the first half. The situation looked black for Wheelwright, especially when they fell even further behind in the third period. With 2:58 left in the third quarter Brent Rose, a reserve forward, hit a jumper to put McDowell up by 21 points. But that's not where it ends. McDowell didn't finish the blowout they had started. In fact, they almost lost the win that appeared to be second nature to the question of how many the Daredevils would win by. Wheelwright created their own questions, though. Could the Daredevils win at all? As the Trojans continued to inch increasingly closer the question took on a more legitimate look. "We thought we had the game won," McDowell coach Johnny Ray Turner said of the second half and his team's sub par performance. "We came out flat and Wheelwright came out in that second half to play." "They hit the boards hard and we weren't blocking out. They played good defense too." Whatever the Trojans were doing seemed to work and whatever McDowell tried to do didn't. The big lead was chewed up and spit back at them. At the end of the third quarter the Daredevils still led by 15 points, but they didn't score a single free goal in the final frame. And their free throw shooting wasn't exactly of lead protecting standards. After hitting nine of 10 attempts in the first half, McDowell missed six of their first nine in the fourth quarter, allowing Wheelwright to make a game of it. Craig Martin hit two shots inside, one on an offensive rebound, and Bobby Hood checked in with a layup after a steal and all of a sudden the Trojans were back in business. With 4:22 left in the game Martin scored his seventh and eighth points of the quarter to pull the Trojans back to within five points, the closest they had been since the first three minutes of the contest. But then McDowell found the range from the free throw line. At least Dickie Joe Shannon did. With Henry Webb fouling out early in the quarter, Shannon inherited the bulk of the ball handling chores. Wheelwright was forced to foul and a combination of both sent the junior guard to the free throw line. In less than a minute Shannon hit six free throws, opening McDowell's lead back 11 points. The Trojans had only three and a half minutes to work with, but they made the most of it. Tommy Jones hit a foul shot and Chad Hall, a sophomore reserve player, scored after an offensive rebound to trim the lead to eight. With 22 seconds left Tony Isaac drilled a three-pointer and with two seconds showing on the clock the senior guard hit another, but time ran out and McDowell survived. And Wheelwright lost their second game in three nights by two points. "We're playing them close, but we're not beating them," Monroe Jones, Wheelwright's coach, said of the close losses. "Hopefully we'll get them next month." "I would like to see the kids get a win, to keep their confidence up. They've been coming so close, but it seems like free throws or a turnover or two kills us every time." Wheelwright hit only 15 of 32 attempts Friday. Five of their misses came on front ends of bonus opportunities. "We practice, and practice and practice," Jones said. "It's not because we don't practice them that we don't hit them. I think now that it's just a matter of confidence and a psychological thing. You just have to go up there and drop 'em in." McDowell, after their hot start, hit 19 of 31 from the free throw line. Eight of their misses came in the fourth quarter, but they hit seven in the final five minutes to pull out their 14th win of the season. The Daredevils, 14-4 overall, improved to 5-1 in the conference and moved into a first place tie with Betsy Layne. Wheelwright, in last place, dropped to 0-6 in conference play. They are three games behind fourth placed Allen Central. INDIVIDUAL SCORING: MCDOWELL: Dickie Joe Shannon, 26; Henry Webb, 12; Marc Hall, 11; Lenny Hall, 7; Keith Shelton, 5; Lance Hall, 4; Brent Rose, 2; Jesse Osborne, 1. Blackcats Get Fourth Straight With Victory Over Betsy Layne.

It was a game neither team wanted to win. Or at least it appeared that way for the longest time last Tuesday night. Prestonsburg had numerous opportunities to put it on ice, but failed to capitalize on any of them. Betsy Layne had just as many chances to pull out a win, but like their opponents, failed to succeed in their efforts. The Blackcats missed seven front ends of bonus free throw opportunities in the final four and one half minutes, but somehow held on to earn a 63-61 upset win over conference foe Betsy Layne, last Tuesday at Prestonsburg. Prestonsburg took a seven point lead into the fourth quarter, and built it to 12 in the first two minutes, but with turnovers and free throw shooting haunting them, allowed the Bobcats to make a game of it late. With 6:03 remaining in the game Thomas Nairn hit a pair of free throws to give the Blackcats a 52-40 advantage. It looked as if, at that point, Prestonsburg would run away and hide, but what disappeared was their free throw shooting and an ability to shut down the Bobcats' inside game. Up until the fourth quarter the Bobcats had held Todd Sturgill and Sam Stewart to a combined 11 points. Of course Stewart picking up his third foul in the first quarter didn't hurt Prestonsburg's defensive effort any. But the two forces combined in the final frame to bring Betsy Layne back. In a span of three minutes and 32 seconds Stewart scored eight points and Sturgill hit for six as the Bobcats inched closer, trimming nine points off the deficit. For a long time Chris Slone, a reserve guard who scored seven points for Prestonsburg in the fourth quarter, answered every Betsy Layne challenge. With 4:42 remaining in the game Slone hit a pullup jumper in the paint after Betsy Layne had cut the lead to eight points. The Bobcats then got four consecutive free throws from Todd Sturgill to cut it to six points. But back came Slone. The sophomore guard, after hitting another jumper to put Prestonsburg up once again by eight, connected on a layup, drew the foul, and sank a free throw. Only 3:30 was showing on the clock and Slone's three-point play put the Blackcats in front 59-50. The Bobcats, relentless in their comeback effort, had Stewart to score on a reverse layup with 3:03 left, but Thomas Nairn, 40 seconds later, scored a field goal for Prestonsburg. That's when it happened, though—a total Blackcat collapse at the charity stripe. Nairn and Freddie McCoy, Prestonsburg's leading scorer with 15 points, missed one and ones. At the other end Stewart was having his own way offensively, scoring back to back buckets on the inside. Glen Hammond, who finished as the game high scorer with 19 points, canned an outside jumper and Betsy Layne needed only a three-point shot to tie the game. In the final minute they had five different possessions to score those three points but turnovers and missed free throws on their part proved the effort impossible. Four times the Blackcats went to the free throw line with a chance to ice the win, but four times they missed, giving Betsy Layne another opportunity to win. They did it again on a turnover.

It just wasn't the Bobcats' night, though. With each opportunity came a blown opportunity. A missed free throw in a bonus situation with 42 seconds left, a turnover when Sam Stewart was called for an offensive foul with 30 seconds left—it was mistakes like this that eventually gave Prestonsburg the win. And Freddie McCoy's two free throws with five seconds remaining proved important, too. The two free tosses put the Blackcats up by five and when Duran Newsome drilled a three-pointer at the buzzer, McCoy's effort looked bigger than ever. It also gave Prestonsburg, 7-7, their fourth consecutive win and a third place ranking in the conference. The Blackcats improved to 3-3 in the Floyd County Conference. Betsy Layne, previously undefeated in conference play, dropped to 5-1 and 13-5 overall. INDIVIDUAL SCORING: PRESTONSBURG: Freddie McCoy, 15; Danny Hamilton, 14; Chris Slone, 9; Todd Justice, 7; Tim Trusty, 6; Thomas Nairn, 6; Scott Hall, 6. BETSY LAYNE: Glen Hammond, 19; Sam Stewart, 15; Todd Sturgill, 13; Duran Newsome, 7; Keith Hall, 7.

The Sporting Times

Good things come to those who wait, and not many people have been as patient as Perry Jones. Last Friday Wheelwright High School showed their appreciation for Jones' patience and service by honoring him with a class ring and standing ovation. Jones has, for the past 30 years, served Wheelwright High School athletics in many different capacities, mostly with whatever they needed at any particular time. As the public address announcer ran through a long list of Jones' accomplishments, ranging from score keeper to ball boy, a huge crowd showed their appreciation also. Jones accepted the ring from Wheelwright principal Lonnie Slone, but more importantly got a standing ovation from the Wheelwright crowd. And speaking of that crowd, it may just have been the best this county has produced in the past three seasons. Of course, one person can't experience every single crowd every single night, but in knowing the other schools, it seems highly unlikely that any could produce such enthusiasm, school spirit, and control. The gym was full. But then again it doesn't take a great number of people to fill Wheelwright's gym. What made this crowd special, though, was the way they cheered for their respective players, but didn't harass the opposition. It should be expected. It didn't surprise many people because McDowell and Wheelwright owns rights to the most heated rivalry in all of eastern Kentucky. But the game didn't become heated, the crowd was loud but behaved, and the parents allowed the students to display their school spirit. So many times fans in this district sit on their hands during the game, and the most noise they make is when they complain after the game about the coach, the players, or both. Floyd County has more unpaid coaches than any other in the state. It seems they always know what's best for the team, but they rarely know to show true support. Wheelwright truly showed what true fans really are. They showed what high school athletics was created for. Parents paid their way into the game, and they got their money's worth by watching the communities' young people perform their basketball abilities and cheering tactics. That's the way it's supposed to be. And it was the Wheelwright-McDowell rivalry that gave us this true example of school and community pride—the same rivalry that will soon be destroyed by consolidation. Take a basketball trip to either of the three other schools and soon you will know what dead crowds really are. Listen to them and you will understand just how many unemployed coaches this county has. And speaking of coaching, how about C.M. Newton? The veteran college basketball coach has taken advantage of the three-point line morosa than any other coach. Adapting has been a

SHORT SPORTS

Through the first 25 minutes of the game Tammy Hall had scored over half of her team's points. The senior forward finished with 23 points to lead Betsy Layne past Prestonsburg, 61-42, last Tuesday night. Hall scored 21 of her game high points in the first 25 minutes and the Lady Bobcat team had posted 41. Betsy Layne held off a late Lady Blackcat rally and posted their sixth Floyd County Conference win against no losses. The Lady Bobcats held Prestonsburg to only one field goal in the first quarter and led by as many as 17 points in the first half. Prestonsburg, though, cut the lead to 10 in the fourth quarter, but could get no closer, losing their third consecutive game of the season. As the clock ran down in the third quarter Michelle Clemmons launched a desperation shot from near half court. The basketball zipped through the net as the horn sounded, leaving the Lady Blackcats 12 points behind. With 7:46 left in the game Amy Hicks, Prestonsburg's leading scorer with 15 points, hit a shot that cut the lead to 10, but Betsy Layne scored three baskets on turnovers to blow the game totally open. Yolanda Keathley scored eight of her 14 points in the final quarter to turn the Prestonsburg comeback away. Sandy Flannery scored nine points for Betsy Layne and Danita Johnson added seven. Michelle Clemons tossed in 14 for Prestonsburg. Notre Dame had cut Kentucky's lead to two points late in the game, but Rex Chapman scored a three-point play and Rob Lock dropped in two free throws with 41 seconds left to hold off a late rally and give UK a 78-69 victory, Sunday in Louisville. Kentucky, behind Ed Davender's game high 23 points, built an eight point lead in the final few minutes, but the Fighting Irish proved they had some fight in them. Notre Dame, led by David Rivers' 21 points, cut the lead to two points late in the game, but Chapman scored seven points in the final four minutes to help the Wildcats improve to 14-3 on the season. Kentucky will put their top 10 ranking on the line tonight when they take on the 'Ole Miss Rebels at Rupp Arena. The game represents the final in the first round of the round-robin SEC regular season schedule. The 'Cats, 6-3 in the conference, is tied for second in the SEC, one game behind Florida. Vanderbilt, also 6-3 in the SEC, beat SPARK OFF THE BENCH: Chris Slone takes this one to the basket against Betsy Layne. In two conference games Slone scored 17 points, all in a reserve role.

Congressman Rogers To Be Featured On KET

"Kentuckians in Congress" is a seven-part KET series designed to give Kentuckians a close, personal look at their representatives in Congress. An upcoming edition of the program focuses on fifth district Representative Harold Rogers (R-Somerset), and airs Sunday, February 7 at 7 p.m. on KET.

Kentucky's fifth district, composed of the southeastern and southcentral parts of the state, is one of the most consistently solid Republican areas anywhere in the nation. Its citizens are loyal to their forefathers' conservative philosophies which have been intact since the Civil War.

Harold (Hall) Rogers was elected to represent this congressional district in 1980. He soon gained a seat on the Energy and Commerce Committee and in 1983, a seat on the Appropriations Committee—both plum assignments for his district.

Although he is a loyal Republican, Rogers has a soft spot for federal programs that benefit his rural, impoverished district.

According to Rogers, the hardest battle he ever fought and won was the reorganization of the tobacco allotment program in 1985. The program put Kentucky tobacco farmers and tobacco farmers nationwide on a more solid footing.

Representative Rogers strives to help his people help themselves. One example is the Forward in the Fifth project—a community effort to improve education—which has his support.

But the congressman also says there is a delicate balance in doing what is right not only for his district, but also for the state and the nation.

"Kentuckians in Congress" is a KET production.

Civil Rights Struggle Chronicled On KET Series

During the turbulent 1950s and 1960s Americans fought a second revolution which tore at the heart of the country. It was a revolution to make "liberty and justice for all" a reality for black Americans as well as whites.

Their story and the resultant mass demonstrations and peaceful sit-ins are chronicled on the weekly series "Eyes On the Prize." The series returns to KET Saturday, February 6 at 6 p.m. (The weekly series will be preempted for the February 13 episode only.)

This six-part documentary affords viewers an opportunity to experience the largely forgotten social repressions which occurred not only in the deep south but also across the nation. "Eyes On the Prize" is a rare chance to see individuals, both black and white, courageously united to fight and sometimes die for convictions rooted in the United States Constitution.

Nationally prominent Georgia legislator Julian Bond serves as weekly host for this documentary series.

"We're telling personal stories in a historical context," says Judith Vecchione, who produced the first two episodes of the series. "It is the history of all of us...that could only have happened in America. The basic message is American—that democracy is an idea that works."

Girl Scouts Hold Investiture

Girl Scout Troop 1246 and Brownie Troop 1239 held an investiture ceremony and potluck dinner, December 9, at the Garrett School library.

A poem was recited by Katy Ann Bradley, and the promise candlelighting was performed by Susan Lin Johnson, Ann Marie Hicks, and Robin Owens. They were joined by Christina Howard, Melissa Howard, Lisa Marie Anderson, and leaders, Debbie Anderson and Linda Hicks Campbell, in the 10 laws candlelighting ceremony. Absent were Caroline Bradley and Katy Fultz.

Those present were Carl Johnson, Mollie Rice, Scott and Jackie Bradley and sons, B.J. and J.Y., Ella Bradley, and Dianna Howard.

The leaders would like to express their gratitude to the parents and principal Ralph O'Quinn for their support.

Hearing Impaired May Now Call KET

KET has installed a TDD unit for communicating with deaf and hearing impaired viewers. TDD is an acronym for Terminal Device for the Deaf. Several state agencies and emergency services have been using the TDD for quite sometime. KET's TDD normally will be unattended, but 24 hours a day viewers can call (606) 233-7750 and leave a message.

Viewers calling will be requested to leave their name, address, and comments, complaints, or questions. KET plans to respond by mail as soon as possible.

Mike Clark, KET Computer Research and Support Administrator, is coordinating the TDD service for the statewide public television network. According to Clark, "This is another effort by KET to meet the broadcast needs of the hearing impaired community. Over the years we have 'closed-captioned' a large percentage of KET on-air programming. We certainly hope hearing impaired viewers will take advantage of this service."

Since 1985 KET has been providing an open captioned news service. Six commercial broadcast stations located in Louisville and Lexington have provided evening news on a rotating basis for KET to re-broadcast Monday through Friday at 11:30 p.m.

According to William B. Rogers, executive director of the Kentucky Commission on the Deaf and Hearing Impaired, the TDD service "...represents another barrier broken, another impediment removed. Hearing impaired and deaf people view and enjoy many hours of television."

COMPETITION FOR SMOKY THE BEAR? Blue jays may be nature's best foresters. According to National Wildlife magazine, blue jays collect and cache a vast number of nuts, many of which are not recovered and germinate into trees. Some scientists have begun to wonder if jays could be put to work reclaiming strip-mined land or other barren areas. Researchers soon will be plowing on state forest land in Iowa, to test whether the birds can be roped into forestry.
