Council Agrees on Park Work, Votes Securing $25,000 Loan

The Prestonsburg City Council voted unanimously, Monday night, to secure a $25,000 loan for the park commission to provide funds necessary to ready park facilities for the summer recreation

The loan is an advance on revenue the park commission expects to receive from a 2 percent restaurant tax approved by the council, Feb. 8.

Imposed to improve recreational facilities and to promote tourism within the city, the tax will be collected quarterly beginning April 1, Mayor Latta said. The park commission would be able to start payments on the loan with the tax money raised by August 1.

"We want to start work now." Prestonsburg Park Commission Chairman Bill Ray Collins told council members, "but we have no funds. We have to start sometime within the next two to three weeks in order to get this completed by summer.

Collins said the money is needed for concrete and tile repair on the city's three swimming pools, for fencing in Archer Park and the playground area within, called Peppermint Park, and for a maintenance vehicle.

In a related matter, the mayor announced the members of the newly formed Recreation, Tourist and Convention Commission. They are Thomas D. Lafferty, Jr., Perry Summers, Jim Sparks, Jack Absher, Jr., Dr. Blake Burchett, Martha Ann Damron, and William G. Francis. Members of the commission represent the hotel and motel industry, the restaurant industry, the Chamber of Commerce and the mayor's office.

Safe Street Week has been designated April 9-16. The week is intended "to make people more aware of the need to be careful, especially young people," Mayor Latta said.

Events scheduled for the week include a safe driving course for senior citizens conducted by the local chapter of the AARP; a bicycle course set up by auxillary police; a poster contest in the schools; a performance by a rock band composed of 13-year-olds that will be carried live by WPRT; and the distribution of pamphlets and coloring books provided by Ed Walters, Dr. and Mrs.

David White, and WPRT radio. In other business, the council agreed to review an initial draft of the city code of ordinances which was compiled and brought into compliance with Kentucky law with the assistance of a state grant, The final draft of the document, which is the first of its kind in Prestonsburg, will be adopted at the next meeting.

Finally, the feasibility of a city sanitation transfer station is under consideration

"We're always looking for ways to economize," said City Administrator Fred A. James, "but we will not take actions that will adversely affect our

Lynn Weddington-Tucker, a native of Prestonsburg who now lives in New York and is owner and designer of the Mountain Laurel line of designer children's clothing, describes the recent media attention over the lawsuit filed against her company as a "tempest in

The lawsuit, filed by the U.S. Department of Labor in U.S. District Court in Pikeville, charges Tucker's company with violating several provisions of the federal Fair Labor Standards Act, including those pertaining to minimum wage, while operating as a cottage industry in 1985-86. A cottage industry employs home labor

In November 1986, Mrs. Tucker's enterprise expanded from a cottage industry to a manufacturing operation after procuring factory space in a West Prestonsburg warehouse owned by the Christian Appalachian Project, an organization that fosters economic development in Eastern Kentucky, CAP has provided Mountain Laurel with warehouse space and free rent and utilities for a little over a year.

'It's a good contribution we can make to the community," says CAP Director Mike Sanders, "especially since space is hard to find and if you can find it, it's too expensive.

Mrs. Tucker said she could not talk about the lawsuit but that her company is organized differently now and that it should be judged on how it currently operates.

miles across Kentucky to raise funds for the Kentucky Diabetes Foundation. They will ride into Prestonsburg (Wednesday) at about noon.

They started their trek February 24 at the Kentucky Diabetes Center at Humana Hospital in Lexington. Sunday night they spent in Garrett, and Monday and Tuesday night, they stayed with the R.J. Ratliff family on Betsy Clark Branch near Martin. After leaving Prestonsburg, they'll ride to Salversville. The riders average about 25 miles a day, according to Billy Adams, leader of the group.

So far the riders have raised about $3,300 through donations and pledges. 'One man in Lexington has pledged one dollar for every mile we ride," Adams said. The riders have also been selling t-shirts for the cause. "People can pledge so much a mile, or they can donate a lump sum," he said. "They can contact the Lexington office to make them, or they can give it to us and receive a receipt." The money will buy insulin for Kentuckians with diabetes. One of the riders, Scott Kelley, has a grandmother with diabetes, and two members of Adams's family has the

All six riders have given up a lot to make the long trip. Besides the cold weather and many physical discomforts, the men have left jobs and famlies behind in the Lexington area. Before starting, Adams ran a three-month training course for the group to get them in shape and prepare them psychologically. They rode many days and camped out. Adams spent months planning and saving money to make the trip possible, spending hundreds of dollars to buy the best horses he could

"They're all holding up real good. They seem to be getting stronger,' Adams said of the horses. "It depends on the rider. If he takes care of the horse, the horse will go on longer and longer." Adams knows what he's talk-

Child Abuse Trials Begin in Magoffin

Five trials of Magoffin county residents on charges of abusing their children either sexually or physically, are scheduled to be heard in Magoffin Circuit Court through the middle of June. A total of 23 defendants were indicted last year on varying charges of sexual abuse, physical abuse, rape, incest, sodomy, and assault of more than 20 children, who have all since been placed in foster homes. The children range in age from 1 to 11 years.

Those indicted are from five Magoffin county families, and an attempt was made by state prosecutors last fall to have the trials moved to another county, citing the difficulty of seating an impartial jury because of the defendants' wide circle of friends and political ties.

The first in the series of trials, that of Margie Back, 33, of Seitz, was slated to begin yesterday (Tuesday) on three counts of first-degree criminal abuse. She is accused of burning her children with lighted cigarettes, and Lexington dermatologist said in a pre-trial report that her three sons had scars on their faces, arms, legs, and backs which two of the children said their mother was responsible for

The second trial, that of Omar Ingram and Caroline Jordan, is scheduled March 28 when Ingram will face charges of assault, sodomy, attempted sodomy, and criminal abuse of two children. Jordan is charged with abuse and in failing to prevent the abuses with which Ingram is charged.

Hager Fletcher and Della Adkins are defendants scheduled to stand trial, April 11, when Fletcher will face charges of 13 counts of incest, sodomy, rape, sexual abuse, and criminal abuse of three children. Adkins will face charges of complicity in the charges against Fletcher and with criminal Trials scheduled in June are for seven who are members of either the Gipson or Nickles families. Trials of five Gipson family members have been moved to Powell county where trial dates have not been set, and six other members of the Gipson family will be tried at dates not yet set in Magoffin county.

Stumbo, Barber Decry Heavy DUI Caseload

By Tim Sizemore

"They're killing me," were the words of District Judge Harold Stumbo concerning the inordinate number of D.U.I. cases that come before his court.

Stumbo believes it would be better if the offender were committed to an alcohol treatment center instead of the mandatory jail time. "Putting them in jail doesn't work, and that's proven by the many repeat offenders," he stated, adding that if the person did not attend the detoxification center then jail would be their only option.

County Attorney David Barber says that 85 to 90% of the cases heard are D.U.I. or A.I. related and that although Floyd county has one of the highest conviction rates in the state, the backlog of D.U.I. cases in Floyd county is surpassed only in Jefferson and Fayette counties

In order to handle all the cases, Floyd county needs to have two judges and two county attornies according to Barber. He says that a case should be heard within a month, but presently, it will take at least two months or more. Barber believes the old adage, "justice delayed is justice denied," explaining that it is difficult for a police officer to recall a situation that took place months before. The court is hearing six or seven D.U.I. cases a day, and Barber says he sees no lightening of the caseload at this

Presently a person convicted of D.U.I. may serve from seven to 30 days in jail, with extra time added after a third

Attire Was Said 'Smart' But Not in These Parts

By Tim Sizemore

The old saying that 'Clothes make the man,' is not necessarily so as was proved last Monday night at a Prestonsburg restaurant.

Robert Potzger, 42, of Tonawanda, New York, was just passing through, and all would have gone well had he not decided to stop and eat, for Potzger was dressed as a woman.

Although diners said he did not bother anyone in the restaurant and was wellbehaved, the fact that he was dressed in woman's apparel was offensive to some who left. Potzger might have escaped notice, except that he had neglected to shave off his moustache or disguise his receding hairline. His attire is said to have been stylish, even chic, and one official remarked that he wished he could afford to buy his wife as nice a dress.

After city police were notifed, Captain Darrell Conley arrested Potzger in the restaurant parking lot, so as not to create a scene and charged him with disorderly conduct, holding him on emergency detention before lodging him in the Floyd county jail where he was held overnight.

The defendant, who is an architectural artist, told Trial Commissioner Judge Jack Hyden that he was not gay but just liked to dress as a female. Hyden said that Potzger was well-behaved and cooperative.

After entering a guilty plea to the charges, Potzger was given a 10-day suspended sentence on condition that he not return to Floyd county for one year.

He had no comment when contacted at his home in Tonawanda, N.Y.

Jim Rose of Big Branch, wishes to announce his candidacy for State Representative of the 92nd district. Jim served as State Representative in the 1986 session of the Kentucky General Assembly, which was a landmark session that made great strides in Educational Reform, Election Reform, Prison Reform and Victim's Rights. Jim was known in Frankfort as a man that would not hesitate to speak out for his district.

Jim's friendly manner and persuasive way of making his point enabled him to make friends and gain the respect of his colleagues in the House of Representatives that led to his sponsoring of six House Bills, four of which became laws. This is the kind of man we need in Frankfort; one who has the speaking ability, the experience, and the willingness to work to move our district forward into the main stream of Kentucky State Government. We need someone like Jim Rose who has the educational experience to read and review legislation that could be detrimental or harmful to our area and the ability to speak out on the floor of the House of Representatives for or against such bills. During Jim's term as State Representative, he served on the State Government Committee, Labor & Industries Committee, and chairman of the Sub-Committee of the Environment and Natural Resource Committee. Jim is married to the former Patti Hall and they have two daughters, Robin and Autumn.

There are many issues that Jim feels are important to the people of this area. He will be discussing economic development, education, insurance rates and coal issues throughout his campaign. He welcomes to hear your views on these topics.

Jim has shown that he has the right kind of leadership and the right kind of experience and is the right kind of man to be your Representative. So voters of the 92nd District, be proud of the representative you elect. Let Jim Rose be "YOUR VOICE IN FRANKFORT."

A Man of Many Talents, Mike Mullins Serves Hindman Settlement School Well

Our mountain heritage is rich with tales of moonshine, coal mines and men with "Bad" before their names, and one Floyd countian has found a way to blend our heritage with modern, innovative ideas.

For the past 10 years, Hi Hat native Mike Mullins has served as director of the Hindman Settlement School. Mullins' tenure has seen great changes take place in the mountains and the school. The institute, founded in 1902 to make education accessible to isolated mountain youth, once served as a boarding school, but with dwindling enrollment in recent years, the school needed a new direction, and when Mullins became director in 1977, he was determined to make the school a more viable part of the community.

And he was well equipped to accept the challenge. "I came in at a run and Enjoy America's cultural heritage and find out about the Appalachian folk tradition when KET airs Red Fox/Second Hangin'. This Roadside Theater play airs Wednesday, March 23 at 9 p.m.

Set on the Kentucky-Virginia border in the Cumberlands Mountains, this onehour special tells the story of Doc Taylor, the "Red Fox of the Cumberlands." Doctor, preacher, United States marshal, in 1893, Doc Taylor became the second man hanged in Wise County, Va.

According to the tale, Doc Taylor was accused by the community of being a murderer and a bandit. After he was sent to jail, a trial was conducted and although there was no substantial proof of his guilt, he was sentenced to death

Narrated before a live audience at the Carcassonne Community Center in Carcassonne, Ky., the tale recounts the mountain conflicts, the coming of "robber baron" exploiters, and the corruption of justice during the coal boom of the late 19th century

The tale is a succession of short stories narrated by three Road Theater actors who move through a multitude of roles. The stories are interjected with authentic historial slides and film footage.

Using an improvisatory style and a conversational tone, the actors bring passion and humor to their performance and create great warmth in their

Both buildings and grounds were in needof renovation and his first years at the school were spent repairing plumbing. fixing leaky roofs and trying to meet the fire marshal's specifications. Mullins also found that low morale prevailed among the Settlement's employees, and one of his first moves was to upgrade salaries and benefits.

Two workshops held in the spring and summer have drawn national attention to the school, The Appalachian Family Folk Week and the Appalachian Writers' Workshop. Mullins says that people come from all over the United States to learn about our area or just to sit and rock in the peaceful rural environment.

Loyal Jones, who is chairman of the Hindman Settlement School Board, says that Mullins is "a person of extreme dedication to the region," and goes on to say, "He is from the region and is running an organization which was founded by outsiders." Jones went on to say that Mullins is sincere and devoted to the people of Eastern Kentucky. Ron Daley, editor of the Troublesome Creek Times at Hindman, declares that Mullins has been "one of the most effective leaders for a decade in community and educational affairs," and that of all Mullins' assetts the greatest is enthusiasm. # Trees And Powerlines Should Keep Distance

Trees in all their beauty and splendor can and do create havoc for area utility companies and their customers. In any given year approximately 25% of all electrical outages are caused by trees or tree limbs falling across powerlines, according to Kentucky Power records.

One falling tree or tree limb can interrupt electrical service to several hundred customers

'During the freak April 3 snowstorm last year, over 75% of all outages, affecting service to 39,000 customers in our 20-county service area, were caused by the weight of the snow breaking off tree limbs or toppling entire trees across our lines," said W. R. Miller, General Office transmission and distribution manager of Kentucky Power. He added, "Even though last year's storm was an unusual phenomenon, the trees and heavy vegetation that are typical in Eastern Kentucky cause a lot of problems and money year round. I can safely say that trees and powerlines don't mix. The National Weather Service announced March 1 as the beginning of "Tornado Season." This turbulent season signals the possibility of tornados, gusty winds, and thunder storms. Miller said: "Power outages will certainly occur throughout our area. Customers are encouraged to see that their trees aren't intermingled with powerlines and that if they choose to have their trees trimmed they contact a professional tree service to do the Miller added: "Even though we have a program of tree trimming and vegetation control, our customers can help by cooperating with us when we attempt to trim trees from around powerlines and also by not planting trees under our lines.

Miller also suggested that when planting trees, homeowners need to be aware of the tree size at maturity, "That beautiful 6-foot sapling you purchase today may, in 10 or 15 years, grow to become a 60-foot-tall tree at maturity," he concluded.

Bits And Pieces

Saturday night late, I thought I was going to see "The Creature from the Black Lagoon," one of my all-time favorite, dumb, late night movies. No such luck. They changed the programming.

I don't suppose there's any chance of a House Bill on this, do you?

THE VAGARIES OF MARCH

Isn't this capricious month wonderful when every day brings a surprise-like temperatures plummeting from 70 to 26 degrees?

HOSPITALITY ON HOLD

There's a man in New York state who probably has a lot to say about Southern hospitality-and none of it good. Although we really don't feel that men have a right to dress like women, still I think they do, and I feel sort of sorry for the poor fellow who stopped at a local restaurant the other night, sat down, and proceeded to order his dinner. He was quiet, even well-behaved, but he was arrested for disorderly conduct and kept in the pokey overnight. Well, the fact is, he was dressed as a woman.

You know, a lot of people still don't think or feel that it is comely for a woman to wear pants, but I haven't been arrested—yet. Believe me, if they ever start doing that, the crowded jail conditions we hear about will soon be seen as just the tip of the iceberg.

O.K. so you're offended, shocked, even aghast at a man in women's clothing. I'll admit it, so am I. Still, I cannot feel that there is anything criminal involved.

Bert Combs Bridge Scene Of Four-Vehicle Pileup

By Monica J. Clark

A pickup truck hauling a flatbed trailer failed to stop on the Bert T. Combs bridge, here, triggering a fourvehicle accident Saturday afternoon that left one person injured and one car totaled, police said.

According to Prestonsburg police Capt. Greg Hall, the rain slickened bridge caused a Harlan county Cable Systems U.S.A. Dodge pickup truck hauling a flatbed trailer to slide into the rear of a Chevrolet Citation which was traveling with the truck. The impact forced the Citation into a Ford Grand Torino which in turn collided with a Buick Skylark.

The driver of the Grand Torino, Sharon Kidd, of Banner, was taken to Highlands Regional Medical Center for X-rays and later released.

Robert M. Fuellhart, driver of the Citation, was unhurt but his vehicle was Hall said the accident halted traffic for 45 minutes.

Bill To Aid Poor Counties Passes Senate

By Joe Porter

Lieutenant Governor Brereton C. Jones is throwing his support behind Senate Bill 280 that just passed the Senate and now goes to the House. If passed, the bill would establish the Kentucky Depressed Counties Economic Development Authority and bring some relief to Floyd county.

The bill's purpose is to aid depressed counties that have had unemployment rates above the statewide average for the past five years. Currently 49 counties qualify for the program, including

Floyd. Jones said the authority would issue $50 million in bonds over the next two years, and with the money, purchase existing buildings, build new ones or make expansions and then lease these buildings to new businesses. The lease payment would be equal to the debt service on the bonds minus the state income tax paid by the employees and the companies as well as a two percent tax on employee wages. The Lieutenant Governor said this would make rent payments minimal and would serve as a large incentive for companies to relocate or expand in depressed counties such as those in eastern Kentucky.

"The time has come when we must make a special effort to help those counties which are depressed, to bring them up to par with the rest of the state and move forward," Jones said. "This is a good piece of legislation that is good for all of Kentucky. It is my hope that people will contact their representatives and urge them to support the bill."

Floyd county's representative and House Majority Leader, Greg Stumbo, said that while he supports this bill, he questions how much good the measure will do until leaders understand the more pressing needs of the area. "I'll support any bill that has the potential to create jobs in Eastern Kentucky, but we can't solve the economic ills of the region until we make the area more attractive to industry.'

Stumbo emphasizes the need to build up Floyd's infrastructure-its education system, its roads, its housing, and its recreational facilities-first. "We have to face the fact that there is no quick fix," he said. Stumbo believes that until the infrastructure is solidly in place there is no way Floyd and the other counties of Eastern Kentucky can compete for industry with other areas of the state that already have good roads, schools, and sewer systems. The Majority Leader said he thinks the area would be better served if the state would first provide funds to build up the infrastructure.

Senate Bill 280 was passed in the Senate March 1, 1988, 36-1. "Its fate now lies with the members of the House,'

Settlement Is Made in Case Against Floyd Jailer, Deputy

By Joe Porter

After two days of testimony, a settlement was reached in the civil rights case against Floyd County Jailer Lawrence Hale and his deputy Larry Campbell. The case, heard in Federal District Court in Pikeville, concerned the December 19, 1986 heart attack death of Thomas Spriggs while an inmate in the Floyd County Jail.

While Ned Pillersdorf, the plaintiff's attorney, wouldn't disclose the amount of the settlement, he called it "substantial," and said he hoped it served to prevent a repeat of this lack of attention to an inmate's medical needs

According to the complaint, Spriggs was arrested December 15, 1986 and charged with driving under the influence of alcohol; at the time of his arrest, he alerted the jailer and deputy jailer that he had had previous heart attacks. The following days, December 17 and 18, Spriggs' complained of chest pains and requested medical treatment.

At 3:45 a.m., on the morning of his death, Spriggs had been playing cards with five other prisoners when he complained of chest pains and slumped over. At 4:11 a.m. emergency medical personnel arrived, and he was later pronounced dead. Spriggs, a former mechanic, had been living prior to his death with his sister, Brenda Clay, in Martin. Clay, as administratrix of his estate, brought

During the two-day trial, Pillersdorf called six men to the stand who were prisoners in the jail at the time of Spriggs's death, State Pathologist John Hunsaker, M.D., and Ken Katsaris, a nationally known expert on jail procedures, who testified that Spriggs's civil rights had been violated. According to Pillersdorf, the prisoners testified that they heard Spriggs tell Campbell of his chest pains and Campbell answered, "I'll tell Lawrence." Hunsaker told the court Spriggs could have lived if he had gotten immediate medical attention, but would probably have had to undergo open-heart surgery.

Pillersdorf had a personal interest in the case. "Tommy Spriggs was a friend of mine," he said. "I went to his funeral. There's been a lot of times when I've wished I wasn't a lawyer, but when I took this case I was glad to be a lawyer, so I could avenge his death.'

William G. Francis and C.V. Reynolds, who represented the defendants, declined to comment on the case.

STATE AUDITOR BOB BABBAGE has called Kentucky's participation in the Super Tuesday presidential preference primary "a luxury we cannot afford" and has endorsed legislation to incorporate the presidential primary with Kentucky's regularly scheduled May primary. Babbage, center, is shown at a recent press conference with State Representative Mark Farrow, D-Stamping Ground, left and with Sue Carole Perry, Shelby County Clerk, right, Farrow has introduced House Bill 827 which would combine both primaries and save Kentucky an estimated $4.5 million.

March Is Named Red Cross Month

Proclaimed American Red Cross Month by President Ronald Reagan, March 1988 will feature a variety of Red Cross chapter activities and events. The humanitarian organization's president, Richard F. Schubert, said recently, "During March, Red Cross Chapters throughout the United States and overseas will conduct special programs and place increased emphasis on the local Red Cross and the support it provides to the community.

'People turn to the American Red Cross for help following disasters, for facts about AIDS, for classes in First Aid, CPR and water safety, for blood, and for the many services provided to members of the Armed Forces, veterans and their families," said Schubert.

One of the most devastating problems to challenge the Red Cross is the AIDS epidemic. In an attempt to battle the fear and prejudice against AIDS patients, and to help reduce further spread of this disease, the Red Cross has instituted a comprehensive's public education program. Last year, Red Cross Chapters distributed 67 million AIDS brochures; six million people viewed the Red Cross film "Beyond Fear," and nationally distributed television spots are now urging the public to get the facts" by calling their local Red Cross Chapter.

The Red Cross helps people avoid, prepare for and cope with emergencies. Last year, Red Cross clothed, fed, sheltered or assisted 450,000 disaster victims, helping them recover from single family fires, hurricanes, floods, earthquakes and other disasters.

Another major concern of the Red Cross is collecting and testing for disease more than half of this nation's blood supply. Last year, 4 million volunteers donated blood through the Red Cross, helping restore life and health to millions of blood recipients.

The Red Cross battles hazards to health and safety by training individuals in CPR, first aid, swimming, water and boating safety, preparation for parenthood and babysitting, to name a few. Last year, 7 million certificates were issued to people who successfully completed Red Cross coursework

The Red Cross helps combat the solitude and estrangement of service personnel. Last year, servicemen and women and their families turned to the Red Cross 2.5 million times for help. Daily, the Red Cross relays 4,000 messages of birth, death and illness to military posts worldwide.

The American Red Cross exists today because of the generosity of the American people," Schubert said. "The month of March provides us a special opportunity to talk about our local activities and to thank our communities for their continued support," he said. "After all, the American Red Cross belongs to the American people.

Request Dependents' Birth Certificates; As April 15 Tax Deadline Approaches

With the April 15 income tax filing deadline about five weeks away, Kentucky parents who need social security numbers for their children and do not have birth certificates should request the certificates right away.

Because of changes in federal tax laws, parents must have social security numbers for all dependents older than five years. A birth certificate is required to get a social security number.

Omar Greeman, vital statistics registrar in the Kentucky Department for Health Services, says it takes about two weeks to get a birth certificate by mail from Frankfort.

"It takes us about 10 days to process requests and with time for mailing, the turnarund is about two weeks," he said. "I think that's pretty good considering this office gets 800 or more requests for birth certificates every day.

Getting a social security number takes another seven to 10 days, he said. "Because of the activities that require a birth certificate, everyone really should have a certified copy on hand, Greeman said.

Among activities that require birth certificates are getting a passport, signing up for some athletic leagues and participating in Little League tournaments, preregistering for kindergarten and first grade and applying for a driver's permit. Other activities include retiring, obtaining certain kinds of employment and enrolling in some pension plans.

Birth certificates cost $5 each. To get a certified copy of a birth certificate registered in Kentucky, complete and mail an order form (available at health departments) or write to the Vital Statistics Office, Cabinet for Human Resources, 275 E. Main St., Frankfort. Ky. 40621-0001. Include a check or money order and supply the following information: full name as it would appear on the certificate, mother's maiden name, date of birth and county of birth.

Specify whether you want a certified photocopy or a wallet-sized plastic card. Both are valid proof of age, but the photocopy supplies more information.

Copies can be ordered by telephone and charged to the caller's Visa or MasterCard account. Telephone orders cost an extra $5. To order by telephone, call (502) 564-4212, Copies can be requested in person at the Vital Statistics Office. The wait is usually about one hour.

Back Real Tax On Unmined Minerals

The people of the coalfields have been ving under the yoke of economic oppression for the last quarter of a century. The wealth of the coalfields—land and minerals—Has been gobbled up by absentee owners (mostly energy corporations).

The result has been a road block to future development and diversification of our economy which has left us dependent on one industry that has increasingly employed fewer workers while steadily increasing production and profitability

This happened because our state legislature allowed the energy corporations to remain illegally exempt from paying property tax on unmined minerals; therefore, we have not had the strong tax base which is essential to the development of an economy.

With a strong tax base, we can provide jobs for our people. By improving our schools and county services, we can attract other enterprises to the coalfields.

The Kentucky Supreme Court was finally forced to deal with this illegal property tax exemption. The court ruled that mineral owners should pay property tax. Now the legislature must act to implement a program.

The energy corporations, through the Kentucky Coal Association, may try to pass another bogus tax bill to stonewall attempts to finally get them to pay their fair share to the people of the coalfields. If such an attempt is made, it will be the very representatives from the coal counties who will be involved in this effort.

It is vital at this time to contact your state representative and senator and ask them to represent the citizens of the state by supporting House Bill 917, sponsored by Rep. Clayton Little, which would develop a program to tax unmined minerals. The toll-free number for messages is 1-800-372-7181.

It's Up To Us

The citizens and landowners of Eastern Kentucky have suffered far too long under the bondage of the broad form deed. These deeds, many of which were obtained at the turn of the century under conditions of fraud and misrepresentation, have been used to destroy the land and basic rights of our citizens through the forced strip mining of their land. The 1988 General Assembly now has the opportunity to correct this long-standing injustice by passing the constitutional amendment against the broad form deed.

Kentuckians For The Commonwealth is leading the campaign to convince our legislators that the forced destruction of our citizens' land for the profit of a few must be ended. As a member of KFTC I urge all Kentuckians who care about the land and people of our state to stand together in support of the constitutional amendment to stop the abuses of the broad form deed. Now is the time for our voices to be heard. If the coal corporations with their big money and high powered lobbyists are able to defeat this amendment, the people of Eastern Kentucky will continue to exist under the threat that their land could at any time become someone else's strip mine.

If you care about the future of Kentucky, please contact your representatives and urge them to support Senate Bill 145/House Bill 228, the constitutional amendment against the broad form deed. You can leave a message toll-free at 1-800-372-7181. Letters should be addressed to your representative c/o State Capitol Building, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. The only people who can protect Kentucky from the broad form deed are Kentuckians. It's up to us.

Elated Over Tax Decision

I am elated over the Kentucky Supreme Court's decision to finally make mineral owners pay a property tax on coal in the ground.

If this tax is implemented properly, it will really improve schools, roads and all the general services for our coalfield counties in eastern and western Kentucky. In Floyd county, I understand that the school district would get an estimated $1.7 million from a tax on unmined coal and the Floyd Fiscal Court would get about $1.9 million.

I hope the legislature passes the unmined minerals tax bill that is proposed by Kentuckians For The Commonwealth and sponsored by Rep. Clayton Little, House Bill 917, to institute the tax properly, with protections for the small landowners who do not plan to ever use their minerals.

Support Tax On

Unmined Coal

We're really excited by the recent Kentucky Supreme Court decision that owners of coal will have to pay property taxes.

Everyone knows that we need the revenue: county governments, schools, health departments and libraries are all short of funds. And yet, one of the state's major industries has had a free ride when it comes to paying property taxes. But the court ruling brings that to a screeching halt.

The Kentuckians For The Commonwealth encourage your readers to contact their legislators today to support House Bill 917 which calls for a comprehensive program for a property tax on unmined coal. It will be crucial to adopt this bill to protect small farmers, too,

Tame your taxes with an IRA account at First Commonwealth While helping yourself toward a more

While helping yourself toward a more comfortable retirement, you may still qualify for a full tax deduction. Most people do. Full deductions are still available on new IRA's, or deposits to existing accounts.

Here is how it works under the new tax law: If you don't participate in any kind of retirement plan where you work, you can claim a full IRA deduction on deposits up to $2,000 regardless of your income. Or, if you do participate in a retirement plan and your adjusted gross income is less than $40,000 jointly if married, or $25,000 if single, you also qualify for a full deduction.

Even if your income is higher, partial deductions may still apply.

At First Commonwealth, you can open an IRA for any amount. You can add to it weekly, monthly, or with annual deposits. And right now, First Commonwealth is paying a very attractive rate on all IRA accounts, new or existing.

To learn more, stop in at any First Commonwealth branch or phone 886-2321 and talk with Sarah Howard. Ask for our free IRA brochures and plan now to open or add to a valuable First Commonwealth IRA.

Keep your money at home. After April 15th, it goes to Washington.

Tornado Alert Sounded

A tornado alert warning was held Wednesday morning, March 9 in Floyd county, and according to Major Paul Chaffins of the Prestonsburg Fire Department, all schools and fire departments in the county responded appropriately to the alarm.

The alert was initiated by (NOAA) the National Oceanic Atmospheric Administration at 10:32 a.m. and came through the NCIC computer that was picked up by the Kentucky State Police Post #9 in Pikeville. "My immediate reaction was to bring the Standard Operating Plan into effect," said Chaffin, who is the County's Coordinator for the Disaster Emergency Services.

Chaffins said the high schools and fire departments were immediately alerted and sirens were sounded from the fire stations: two minute blasts with 30 second pauses for 15 minutes. "The students were taken out of the classrooms and away from windows that would break during a tornado and sat facing corridor walls," Chaffins said.

By B.A. Heinze

Almost 3,000 parents attended the parent-teacher conference held in October, and the Floyd County School Board hopes the number attending the next one, Thursday, March 24, will be even greater.

The districtwide conference to be held at every local school in the county system from 5 to 8 p.m. will enable those working parents to attend who cannot be at meetings held during the day. All schools will be open to the public and parents of school children are urged to attend and discuss their child's progress with the school staff. At this time, parents will also have the opportunity to explore ways in which they can work with teachers to provide the best possible education for their children.

In making the announcement, Monday, Assistant Superintendent Ronald Hager said, "We want as many parents as possible to get involved in their children's education.

Randy Travis Will Perform In Lexington

Randy Travis, Country Music Association's 1987 Male Vocalist of the Year, will appear in concert, April 1 at 8 p.m. at the Rupp Arena in Lexington. His concerts offer a straight-forward delivery of ultracountry songs, described as a rich honkey-tonk bawl somewhere between Merl Haggard's soft phrasing and George Jones' howl.

Travis is best known for his songs, Diggin' Up Bones, 1982, and No Place Like Home. His debut solo album. Storms of Life, sold more than one million copies in less than one year and is still a Top 20 album.

Born in Marshville, North Carolina as Randy Traywick, Travis began singing and playing the guitar at the age of eight. By the age of ten, he and his brother, Ricky were drawing large crowds throughout the south.

Relocating to Charlotte when he was 16. Travis entered a talent show hosted by Country City USA as a soloist where he won hands down. There he met the club's owner, Lib Hatcher, who became his manager. In 1981 he moved to Nashville, and the rest as they say is showbiz history.

SYMPTOMS OF DIABETES

QUESTION: Is it true that diabetes is an inherited disease. I have a friend who thinks he may have it, but neither his father or mother did. Does that rule him out?

ANSWER: There is hardly any question that the great majority of people who have diabetes get it on an inherited basis. However, it has been known to skip a generation or to affect persons with no known familial link

The best thing your friend can do is to visit his doctor and have himself tested-at least to allay his fears. The same is true for anyone who is experiencing the symptoms of diabetes which include: unusual thirst and hunger, frequent urination, loss of weight, fatigue, itching-especially in the groin area, changes in vision, and slow healing.

Every 15 minutes, one American woman dies from the spread of breast cancer. It is the most threatening cancer to women in this country

Jane Pauley, of NBC News, hosts "Battles in the War on Cancer: Breast Cancer-Turning the Tide," the second of a two-part NOVA series. The documentary airs on KET Monday, March 21 at 8 p.m.

The NOVA cameras follow Dr. Susan Love, a breast cancer surgeon at the Dana-Farber Cancer Institute in Boston, as she and her colleagues discuss this disease with their patients. "Nobody dies of cancer in the breast. It is the spread of breast cancer to other parts of the body that will kill you," says Love.

Nova also travels to China and to San Francisco's Chinatown to understand why American women have the highest rate of breast cancer in the world and rural Asian women have the lowest. Although most scientists believe that dietary differences account for these statistics, there seem to be many other factors involved

The most common symptoms of heart disease are angina and heart-beat irregularities. Angina is chest pain that is brought about by the heart's inability to receive enough oxygen-carrying blood. Heart-beat irregularities range from skipped beats to an accelerated heart beat. One family of drugs that is able to relieve and regulate these heart problems is the beta blockers. These versatile drugs not only relieve the pain of angina and restore a normal rhythm to heart beats, they also lower blood pressure. Extreme care must be taken, however, to see that a beta blocker drug is not taken concurrently with a diuretic drug. The result may be a severe drop in blood pressure upon rising from a sitting position. Seizure or shock may ensue.

More than 80 percent of Kentucky's local school districts will participate in a precautionary program to detect the accumulation of radon gas in school buildings, the Department of Education has announced.

Among those in Eastern Kentucky taking part in the survey are the county districts of Floyd, Knott, Perry, and Pike, and the Paintsville and Pikeville independent districts. Johnson, Magoffin, and Martin counties are not listed as participating.

The testing will begin about March 1, and results will be available this fall. The testing program is a joint effort of local school districts and the Department of Education. The Cabinet for Human Resources is providing technical assistance

"Based on current information, we have no reason to believe that the health of any child or staff member is in jeopardy because of radon gas," said Arnold Guess, associate superintendent for local services.

'But we are pleased that so many school districts have taken the first step toward determining whether our schools have any problems relating to radon."

Radon gas, produced naturally through the decay of uranium and radium that underlie the soil in parts of Kentucky, can seep through cracks in floors or basement walls and accumulate in poorly ventilated buildings.

Studies indicate that exposure to high levels of radon over periods of 50 or more years may increase the risk of some kinds of cancer.

The two state agencies will begin distributing small, inexpensive detection devices to local school officials on Feb. 23 at the first of 12 meetings to be held in various parts of the state.

Officials will place the detectors in schools and leave them for six months. The detectors will then be sent to a private lab for analysis. Results will be furnished to the Department of Education for distribution to local school districts.

Radon gas concentrations can be reduced in buildings by improving air circulation systems or installing vents, state health officials said. The changes are not expensive. In an earlier study, the radiation control branch of the Cabinet for Human Resources found radon concentrations exceeding acceptable levels in about 17 percent of Kentucky homes tested.

The federal Environmental Protection Agency considers concentrations above 4 picocuries per liter of air as unacceptable. A picocurie is one-trillionth of a curie. Newer, more tightly constructed buildings generally had the greatest concentrations.

Radon concentrations are considered less serious and more easily corrected than asbestos problems in buildings. Relatively short-term exposure to asbestos can increase the health risks, and removal from buildings often requires extensive renovation

Kentucky Medicaid Program To Aid Anti-Arthritic Drugs To Formulary

Kentucky physicians who prescribe a specific class of drugs to treat arthritis in Medicaid-eligible patients will soon be relieved from having to obtain special state authorizations.

Gov. Wallace G. Wilkson has announced that the Cabinet for Human Resources will eliminate the requirement that prescriptions for these drugs--known as single source (one producer), non-steroidal, anti-arthritic drugs-be preauthorized by the state in order to be reimbursable under Medicaid.

'One of the main thrusts of this administration's health care plan is to emphasize preventive medical care wherever possible," Wilkinson said.

"Having studied the previous basis for preauthorization, I feel that changes have occurred in the past two years to justify this move as both financially and medically in the best interests of Kentucky's Medicaid system and its clients," the governor said.

Legislation proposed in 1986 and again this year would include this class of nonsteroidal, anti-arthritic drugs on Kentucky's Medicaid Drug Formulary-an official list of drug treatments automatically covered by Medicaid.

Due to the higher cost of single source drugs as compared to alternate treatment with aspirin or other multiplesource drugs, the Cabinet for Human Resources offered an alternative in 1986-establishment of a process by which physicians obtained preauthorization for these drug prescriptions in cases where the option of treatment with aspirin or other drugs was not advisable.

Human Resources Secretary Harry J. Cowherd, M.D., said the cabinet's new recommendation is based on several factors, including:

*Preauthorization denials since establishment of the process have been less than one-half of one percent;

*It is estimated that placing nonsteroidal, anti-arthritic drugs on the Medicaid formulary will increase the current annual payments under preauthorization of $676,000 by no more than $200,000;

*Personnel and administrative costs of the preauthorization process to physicians and the Medicaid program would

"There is increasing evidence that (a) early use of these drugs can reduce

As your local South Central Bell manager, I'd like to introduce "Your Telephone Connection," a column that will appear from time to time throughout the year. In this column we plan to discuss subjects of interest in Floyd County-not only topics relating to your telephone service, but those of general community interest as well. South Central Bell is firmly committed to serving the people of Floyd County—and through this column we want to demonstrate that commitment.

Telephone customers in the Wayland exchange (358) now have the most advanced electronic switching system available today. The conversion to the system took place on February 27, 1988. Telephone customers in the 358 exchange may have already noticed the resulting "softer" dial tone sound on your telephone.

This new switching system introduces several new features to telephone service in the Wayland exchange. Custom Calling Services now available in the Wayland (358) exchange include Call Waiting, Call Forwarding, Three-Way Calling and Speed Dialing. For information about ordering these new services for your home or business, customers in the Wayland exchange can call your service representative toll-free at 1+557-6500 (for your home) or 1+557-6000 (for your business), Monday through Friday from 9 am until 5 pm. Order Custom Calling Services for your home before May 31, 1988 and you won't be charged the regular $17.50 installation charge. Business customers ordering before May 31 can save $23.50.

Customers in the Wayland exchange also now have equal access to long distance services, which will allow you to choose the long distance company you want to carry most of your "1+" long distance calls. Be sure to watch your mail for your equal access ballot and vote for the long distance company of your choice.

If you wish to pay your telephone bill in person, you can do so at the Prestonsburg Bargain Store, located at Court and 3rd Streets in Prestonsburg. Store hours are 9 am to 5 pm, Monday through Saturday. Please present the entire bill when making your payment.

CAI Week in State Slated March 13-20

Kentucky will be the site of a massive statewide Central America Information Week campaign from March 13-20. This is the 10th in a series of statewide educational campaigns about Central American issues.

The campaign is a project of the Interreligious Foundation for Community Organization (IFCO), a church ecumenical agency for education on social policies and human rights. IFCO, which is supported by a network of churches and foundations, is based in New York. The project in Kentucky is being cosponsored by The Central Kentucky Council for Peace and Justice; The Peace and Justice Center of the Archdiocese of Louisville; The Reconciliation Fund of The Christian Church in Kentucky; The Episcopal Diocese of Lexington; The Sisters of Charity of Nazareth; The Board of Church and Society, Louisville Conference, The United Methodist Church; Presbyteries of Western Kentucky, Louisville, and Transylvania: Advisory Panels and Task Forces; and by local and regional secular and religious organizations.

The purpose of this Central America Information Week is to provide first-hand information to Kentucky citizens about Central America and U.S. involvement there and to combat misinformation about the region.

"Right now there are a lot of myths circulating about Central America. People are confused about who is fighting whom and for what they are fighting, as well as why people are leaving their countries," stated Donald McClain, one of the Kentucky coordinators. "After the Kentucky campaign, we are hoping that people of Kentucky will not only be more knowledgeable about the issues, but will also take action and work to effect change in U.S. policy for the region."

The resource people for the campaign, both those from Central America and those from the U.S., will meet with Kentucky residents throughout the state in civic and social clubs, church meetings, public assemblies, house meetings, and a variety of other gatherings. Extensive radio and television appearances and interviews with the printed media will make these expert resource people available to thousands of Kentucky residents.

Volunteer local coordinators have been recruited throughout the state from over fifty communities, including smaller towns, outlying areas, and all of the major urban centers.

A Central American speaker declared in a previous campaign, "Our experience is a different story from the one you've been hearing, and I don't want you to believe it just because I say so. All I ask is that you do your homework, check it out."

Among the resource people coming to Kentucky are Marilyn Anderson, author on Guatamalan crafts and culture; Frisco Gilchrist, Human Rights Observer for the Disciples; Margaret Harris, Guatemala Health Rights; Art Lloyd, Episcopalian priest; Sixto Ulloa, Baptist leader from Nicaragua; Sandra Avila, Honduras Information Center; Shelly Kellman, Oxfam America; and, Maria Teresa Tula, Co-Madres (Mothers of the Disappeared) of El Salvador.

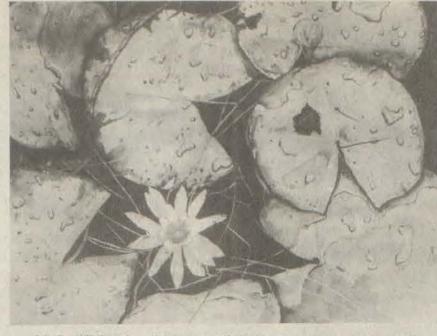

Others will include Efrain Guzman, Boris Canjura, Kathryn Flewellen, and Francisco Cali.

Groups interested in having speakers may contact the Central America Information Week office in Lexington, (606)

Social Security

By JIM KELLY Social Security District Director For the Big Sandy Area

Business By Appointment

A new way of taking care of Social Security business is now available to the public.

Interviews by appointment have been provided in many offices in recent years and have proven to be very popular. Now the service is being offered by every Social Security office.

To set up an appointment, you merely call the Social Security Office. You can either arrange to visit the office at an agreed upon time, or you may arrange to have the Social Security office call you at a certain time. If the office calls you, the interview may be made by phone and a copy of the application mailed to you for your signature. When it is received back in the office, it is handled just as any other application.

Taking care of Social Security matters by appointment is a natural development. Most Social Security matters can be handled by telephone; and in recent years, "teleservice" has become an important service option for the public. However, it is not intended to displace any other option, and we continue to encourage people to call, visit, or write the Social Security office—whichever is most convenient for them.

Offices that have used the appointment system note that people tend to be more prepared for the interview. During the initial contact, they have an opportunity to find out what documents they need to handle the matter and can have them on hand during the interview. This decreases interview time and claims processing time.

People who want to call the office to make an appointment may call the Big Sandy Area Social Security Office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in your local telephone directory under U.S. Government. The people there will be glad to answer any questions.

QUESTION: What are the symptoms of bladder cancer? How is the diagnosis made? I have heard that blood in the urine might be a symptom, but if it were cancer wouldn't there be blood all the time, not just once in a while? Does bladder cancer mean the bladder has to be

ANSWER: The most common symptom of bladder cancer is blood in the urine. The urine color can vary from a smoky or rusty shade to a deep red depending on the amount of blood present. But the amount of blood does not indicate the extent of cancer. The urine may clear for weeks or months but sooner or later the blood will reappear. Conditions, other than bladder cancerinfections, stones in the bladder, or benign tumors, are common causes of blood in the urine. But even if you have this symptom just once, you still need to be checked by a doctor.

When bladder cancer is suspected, urine samples are examined under a microscope to look for cancer cells. In order to diagnose cancer or to rule it out, a biopsy (exam or bladder tumor tissue under a microscope) is done. The biopsy tissue is obtained through a cystoscope (a slender tube fitted with a lens and a light) which is inserted through the urethra (the tube which empties the bladder to the outside) into the bladder.

Another test called an intravenous pyelogram (IVP) may be done. An IVP is done by injecting a special dye into a vein which is carried to the kidneys, the ureters (the tubes which carry urine from the kidneys to the bladder) and the bladder, so that the outline and function of these organs can be seen on x-rays.

The treatment of bladder cancer depends on the stage (extent) of the cancer. A single tumor which has not invaded may be treated by electrically destroying the tumor tissue (fulguration). Multiple early stage tumors are treated by surgical removal of the tumors with some of the healthy tissue around them. In some cases, anticancer substances are instilled into the bladder after the tumors have been removed to decrease the chance they will recur. In advanced cases of bladder cancer, partial or total removal of the bladder may be needed. Yet, when bladder cancer is found early, it is seldom necessary to remove the bladder.

For more information about bladder cancer, call the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER or write McDowell Cancer Network, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. 40536. The Cancer Information Service is a program of the Kentucky Cancer Information Service.

DEAR BETTY CROCKER

Q. How can I prevent cheesecake from cracking on top? F.S., East Rockaway,

A. Bake cheesecake at a low temperature (300 to 325 degrees) and be sure that oven maintains an accurate temperature to allow proteins in the eggs and cream cheese to coagulate slowly and evenly. Also, place cake on middle rack of oven for even heat distribution.

Q. Is it safe to microwave popcorn in a paper bag? A.P., St. Paul, Mn.

A. Probably not. Most microwave oven manufacturers do not recommend popping corn in a paper bag. Either use a popper or packaged corn designed for microwave use or pop the corn conventionally.

Q. If I bake chiffon cake in a 13x9x2-inch pan, do I have to invert it to cool the cake? Mrs. R.F., Garfield

A. Both angel food and chiffon cakes have to be inverted during cooling to allow cake structure to set. For a 13x9x2-inch pan, support pan with several wooden, snap-type clothespins or balance pan between other pans of similar height. Be sure that cake top doesn't touch counter or cooling rack during cooling time.

Western Kentucky University's Board of Regents recently voted to revise the University's operating budget to comply with the latest reduction in state appropriation.

Where education "most needed" we do the worst!

By John Ed Pearce (for the Shakertown Roundtable)

Governor Wallace Wilkinson and the Kentucky legislature face one overriding problem, one that has defied solution for the past 25 years: how to improve Kentucky schools, and where to find the money to do it.

As economist and educator Dr. Ray Marshall told the recent conference of the Shakertown Roundtable on the status of Kentucky, "All of our problems come second to our need to pay greater attention to the quality of our education. We have to recognize that we compete in a global economy. Our children are going to have to compete with those of Japan, Sweden, Russia.

All of these countries are doing a better job of educating their children

than America. And 46 American states are doing a better job than Kentucky. This puts Kentucky children at a terrible disadvantage when it comes to making a living in tomorrow's world.

Consider these facts:

• Kentucky is 47th among the states in overall quality of education. • One million Kentuckians over 25 don't have even a high school

· A half million Kentuckians are functionally illiterate; some can't read or write their names. Others can't read or write well enough to fill out welfare forms or hold minimum-

• Kentucky spends less per pupil than any neighboring state.

• Half of the children who enter school drop out before finishing high school. Almost 200,000 Kentucky children score below the 50th percentile on essential skills tests; only 102,000 of these will get remedial help. Only 20 per cent of students eligible for Head Start programs can attend because Kentucky will not put up one dollar for every four federal dollars for programs and

Kentucky has more counties (39.2 per cent) with low educational achievement levels (people with 10 years or less of school) than any other southern state. Tennessee is next lowest (22.3 per cent, Mississippi has 4.9 per cent, Florida, zero.) All of the low-attainment counties are in Eastern and Southeastern Kentucky.

By contrast, the state has more high-attainment counties than any southern state except Florida, showing the great disparity in school systems in Kentucky. Children in the richer districts get better schools; those in poor districts, where education is most needed, get the worst.

More poor people are entering Kentucky schools, which critics say are designed to teach middle-income children. This year almost a third (29.5 per cent) of Kentucky students come from families living below the poverty level. Almost 165,000 are classified as poor. Before the turn of the century, unless conditions improve, half will be from poor families.

Complicating this problem is the fact that working women make only 65 per cent as much as men, and 41.9 per cent of mothers of preschool children (and 55.8 per cent of those with children in school) work.

While Kentucky lags behind other southern states (and 45 of all states) in tax money spent per pupil, it pays heavily in other ways. Its jobless rate (8.8 per cent) is 50 per cent higher than the nation's (every county in Eastern Kentucky has more than 10 per cent unemployed). Two thirds of all inmates in Kentucky prisons dropped out of school before getting a diploma. (This is a direct burden on taxpayers. It costs about - the amount varies - $13,700 to keep a person in prison per year. Some districts spend only $2,000 a year to keep someone in school; you can send a child to the University of Kentucky for less than what it costs to keep a prisoner at Eddyville).

Kentuckians know that their schools are not doing the job. For the past 30 years better schools have been the main topic of every political campaign in the state. Every candidate for governor and lieutenant governor since 1955 has promised to improve education. Only during the sixties did Kentucky show actual progress.

Once again, a governor and members of the legislature are promising to give the state better schools, but little mention is made of the costs involved, and there is broad disagreement on how improvement should be made. House Bill 44, which limits the amount of money that can be gained from property taxes on which schools depend, is a defeating burden on local school districts, but there is no movement in the legislature to repeal it.

As the Chinese proverb says, "If you don't change direction, you will wind up where you are heading.' And Kentucky is heading for disaster.

Seventh of a series on the "State of the state" conference sponsored by the Shakertown Roundtable at Pleasant Hill, Mercer County, Nov. 8-9, 1987, Wilson W. Wyatt, conference chairman. Earl D. Wallace, Lexington, is chairman of the Roundtable, a non-profit, non-partisan study group. Al Smith is vice chairman.

Nat'l Contest To Honor Nine Outstanding Nurses

Anyone who has found himself or herself in a hospital bed knows that nurses can be as vulnerable to recovery as doctors. They spend the most time with patients and provide what opinion surveys show that patients look for most in health care professionals-compassion and understanding. Many nurses give service to patients and the community that goes beyond what is expected of them. Too often, these exceptional contributions go unnoticed.

The American Hospital Association (AHA) and the American Organization of Nurse Executives (AONE) are sponsoring a nationwide contest to honor nine registered nurses "who made a

Patients who have received exceptional nursing care during the past year and members of patients' families are eligible to enter the contest. They are asked to write a short description of the exceptional nursing care received, including specific examples of how the nurse's work demonstrated compassion, leadership, or creativity. A panel of AHA and AONE members drawn from a number of disciplines will judge the entries on the quality of the nurse's contribution, not on how well the entries are

Registered nurses eligible for nomination may work in hospitals, home health nursing, community nursing, nursing homes, physician's offices, or other settings. They must be nominated by patients or patient's families; no entries from co-workers, employers, or relatives will be considered.

One-page descriptions of the nurse's exceptional contribution including the nurse's name, the name and address of the nurse's employer, and the entrant's name, address, and phone number should be submitted to the Nurses Make a Difference Recognition Contest, AHA Division of Nursing, 840 N. Lake Shore Dr., Chicago, IL 60611. Entries postmarked after National Nurses Day, May 7, 1988 will not be considered. Authors of the winning essays will be notified in May and will receive two free airline tickets for travel anywhere in the continental United States. Certain restrictions will apply to travel arrangements.

Choose Insecticide With Special Care

The choice between crop rotation or spraying soil insecticides is one that may depend on the needs of the individual farmer.

When using soil insecticides for corn. cropping sequence and field history must be taken into consideration, said Lee Townsend, Extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

"An excellent example of crop rotation would be planting corn one year and soybeans the next," said Townsend. "Soil insecticides are not needed when rotating these two.'

Some growers, however, are not able to rotate crops. When this occurs, he should look at the field's history of insect

If the field has been in corn production for many seasons, problems with corn rootworms are likely. Townsend suggests if the grower does not have information on beetle activity and wants to reseed in corn he should use a soil insecticide before planting.

"If the grower does not wish to use either of these methods, he can also use seed treatments to combat insects," said Townsend. "This helps réduce the severity of seedcorn maggot infestation while the seed germinates.'

It is important to remember when using any insecticide to read the label carefully and any question should be directed to your county extension agent. He can also suggest appropriate insecticides for individual problems.

McDowell Constitutional Contestants

Five teams of approximately 20 high school students took part in the finals of the National Bicentennial Competition held Monday, April 7 at Eastern Kentucky University Teams represented five of Kentucky's seven congressional districts. Teams from Louisville's 3rd District and southeastern Kentucky's 5th District chose not to participate this year.

Team members from Lexington Satholic came in first. Elizabethtown High School came in second, and Caldwell County High School came in third. Honorable mentions went to team members from Covington Holmes High School and McDowell High School in Floyd county.

The competition tested high school students' knowledge on the fundamental principles and development of the Constitution and Bill of Rights.

Last semester students participated in a six-week instructional program and then held a round-robin interschool tournament with the winner advancing to district and then state competition.

The state winner, Lexington Catholic, advances to national competition in Washington, D.C.

Humanities Council

Competition coordinator, Dr. Paul Blanchard, a professor in the EKU Department of Government, said the finals were the first of a five-year effort to increase knowledge of the Constitution.

Students at EKU Monday discussed Constitutional topics with a panel of judges as though they were involved in a congressional hearing.

Topics included, political philosophy, history and experience, the Constitution, the establishment of government, rights and responsibilities, and the role of

Betsy Layne Defeats Belfry McDowell Slips By Pikeville

field was one of the most balanced ever. Betsy Layne coach Craynor Slone said the equality even reached the ridiculous You've heard the old saying, "Anyone can win it,' well, it's true this time. There aren't four points difference in any of the teams," Slone said.

The Bobcats, in an opening round victory over Belfry, proved their coach's assumptions correct.

Betsy Layne, playing a large portion of the game without starting center Sam Stewart, held off a late Belfry rally to record a 63-61 victory, Wednesday night at Pikeville High School.

Stewart, the Bobcats' second leading scorer, during the season twisted an ankle with 1:05 remaining in the first half, went to the locker room, and did not return to action until the fourth quarter.

But Betsy Layne, leading by five when Stewart got hurt, held on to their lead, managing to survive Belfry's pressure defense and strong rebounding.

The Pirates, who had earlier recorded a 10-point win over Betsy Layne, scored six points off steals and uncontested layups in the early part of the

They also got 10 points off offensive rebounds, but a 60 percent shooting night enabled the Bobcats to advance in the regional tournament

Betsy Layne hit 25 of 42 shots from the field, and 12 of 17 attempts from the charity stripe

Belfry shot only seven free throws, hitting five of those.

Ronnie Blankenship scored 19 points, and Brian Charles and Mike Fannin added 17 each as the Phelps Hornets defeated Sheldon Clark, 74-63, Saturday night to earn their first ever 15th region championship.

The Cardinals, who were involved in the only one sided games in the tournament, hit only seven of 15 free throws in losing their chance to advance to the state tournament

Sheldon Clark led Virgie in the opening round by as many as 13 points before defeating the Eagles easily. The Cardinals' 11-point loss to Phelps was the only other game that was decided by more than three points.

Phelps had defeated Johnson Central, 73-71, and McDowell, 70-68, to reach the finals. Both wins came in overtime.

The Hornets, 23-4, advanced to the Sweet 16 Tournament, and will play Lexington Henry Clay, Thursday at 7:30. The tournament will be held in Louisville's Freedom Hall.

The state tourney opens Wednesday at 1 p.m. with Buckhorn, winners of the 14th region, taking on Covington Holmes, 25-6. Buckhorn takes a 25-8 record into the state tourney. Rowan County, winning it's second consecutive 16th region title, plays Clay County at 1, Thursday, in the other game featuring Eastern Kentucky schools. The Vikings are 25-7, and Clay County, 32-1, is favored to win the event. They were state champions in 1987.

The clinic at Pikeville will feature professional instruction in all fundamentals. It will be held from 10 a.m. until 4 p.m., Saturday, and from 1 p.m. until 4 p.m., that Sunday.

But five consecutive trips down the court Betsy Layne scored, maintaining their slim distance.

Although Belfry answered each challenge, they could never catch the Bobcats. And when J.J. Hylton's baseline jumper rolled off the rim, Betsy Layne had survived the tournament's opening round.

Hylton, an eighth grader, was apparently Belfry's choice to shoot a last second shot that could have sent the game into overtime.

With nine seconds left, Glen Hammond hit the front end of a bonus free throw, but missed the second, giving the Pirates an opportunity to tie with a two-

MCDOWELL, 71; PIKEVILLE, 68. Pikeville had the reputation of being a physical team, and 13th region officials are infamous for letting both teams utilize their physical abilities.

A combination of both almost proved fatal Thursday night when the Panthers used an effective, if not brutal, full court press to avoid a blowout, and take McDowell down to the final few seconds.

The Daredevils, coming into the tournament with the second best record in the region, held a nine-point lead early in the fourth quarter, and appeared poised for one of their patented offensive runs. But they didn't run. Actually they rarely got the basketball past half court. Pikeville's press caused McDowell great pain, especially to guard Henry Webb. The Daredevil guard often found himself on the floor, watching as Pikeville raced to the other end.

The Panthers took Webb to the floor, took the basketball from him, and got enough points to climb back into contention.

With 5:28 left in the game, Lenny Hall, who scored 10 points for McDowell, hit a jumper to put the Daredevils up by Pikeville, though, with their defensive surge, went on an 8-2 run, cutting the lead to three points.

"They beat us to death," McDowell coach Johnny Ray Turner said of Pikeville's aggressiveness, but mentioned that it was to be expected.

"That's what you've got to expect if you're going to win the big ones. Down in the state tournament they let you play, and the 13th region is a lot like that. They were probably fouls according to what we're used to, but it's not a foul to them (the officials)

'The only thing that hurt us is that they (Pikeville) were so much more physical than we are.

But the officials did get whistle happy later in the contest, and as a result McDowell was able to hang on for a 71-68 opening round victory

The Sporting Times

Most baseball coaches will mention running, hitting, and throwing when they talk of abilities needed to be a solid baseball player.

Throw in mental toughness and concentration, and they think you have the makings of what should be a star on the But that just isn't all there is to baseball. They forgot the uniform, batting gloves, catching gloves, and yes,

They forgot the wrist bands, the arm bands, the high socks, and all the actions needed to be a real baseball player. You can't just walk up to the plate, hit a homerun, round the bases, and go back into the dugout Now first, you have to be in uniform.

Other than the team pants, shirt, and hat, you need batting gloves.

Normally these match the uniform, but some players prefer to stand out so they'll dare to be different. Either one or two gloves, it's a personal preference, are put on after the player gets one foot in the batter's box

He has to be half in and half out or he can't seem to find the right fit. After the glove is on, you have to adjust the wrist bands, which normally are pulled up further on the forearm so they are visually available to the fans.

Now it's time to enter the box. Here's when you can tell a true baseball player from someone who knows how to run, hit, and throw

The real player will throw his right hand p (left if he's a lefthanded batter) and ask the umpire for time. The experienced and intelligent player will use this time to twist his toe of his cleet into the ground. Rather violently too.

With his hand still up, he digs his other foot, called his back foot in baseball conversation, down to where only his ankle is above ground.

This is to get solid footing, and let the pitcher know that he isn't intimidated with the high and tight fastball

Now we're ready for the first pitch. Nope, wait a second. The hitter isn't ready. He throws up his hand for time. Something appears to be wrong with his batting glove. He adjusts it, arranges his uniform pants in a more comfortable position, and steps back in the batters

But wait a minute. The pitcher can't seem to get his foot fixed. He digs and digs. Oh no, the fingers are slippery now. He walks behind the mound, checks out the sky for possible rain, and bounces a dusty rag up and down on his hand.

The pitcher, wearing long sleeves on a 100 degree day, toys with his gold chain while standing spraddled on the mound. He's waiting on the hitter who found something wrong with his bat and had to go back and work on it in the on-deck

The hitter-pitcher confrontation can be one of the most exciting happenings of any sport. But it can also be the most boring. It just depends on whether the players meeting are real players or just those who can run, hit, and throw.

Now the third baseman calls time. He needs a pair of shades. It's a dreary, overcast day, but he still wants the glasses. They may be needed to cover up the black makeup he's wearing under

We're all set now. The third baseman's got his glasses to cover up the gook under his eyes. The batter has his gloves fixed, his bat is healed, his feet are comfortable, and the wrist bands are up about the elbows

But the pitcher wants some more dirt on the mound. And he decides that the necklace is bothering him.

The first baseman takes time during the halt in action to run his glasses in. He says he'd rather let the gook show. But actually he doesn't want to be like the third baseman.

If the pitcher gets the hitter, say on a grounder to short, all the infielders join in on the celebration. It's called throwing it around.

And the throw doesn't really matter. It's how your footwork is as you throw. Maybe give it a little hop just to look professional.

But if the hitter reaches base, say on a single, he gets to go throw his little show as well. He rounds first a few steps, glares at whoever takes the throw in from the outfield, and most times makes a couple fake motions as if to say he isn't afraid of the fielder's arm.

Before the game can go on, though, the runner has to change gloves. His hitting gloves go in his back pocket, with part hanging out so it will flop as he runs. On go the other gloves, and with the same care and consideration.

Another hitter comes to the plate, and unless he is strictly a run, hit, and throw man, the same routine is followed.

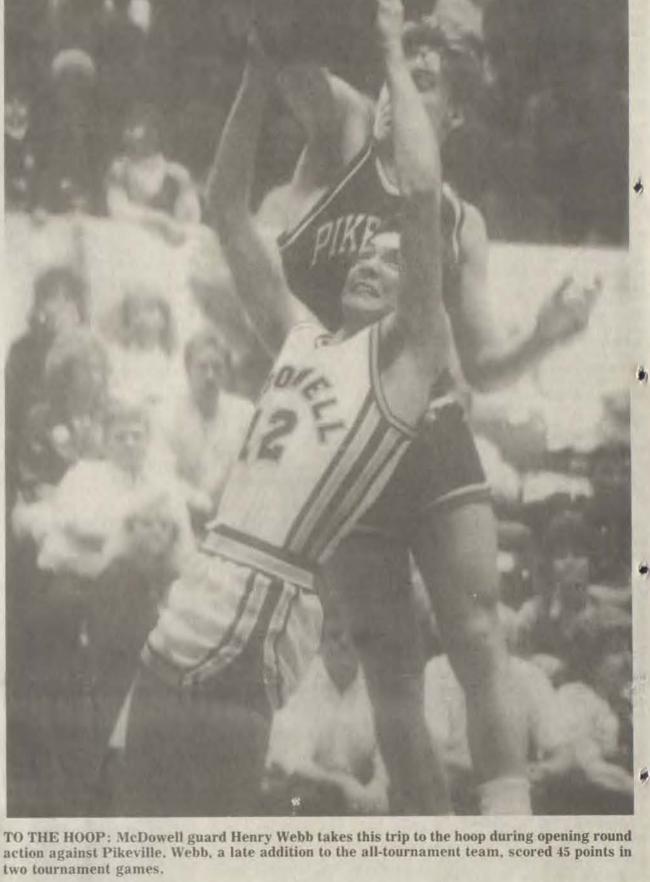

Some players dare to be different, and throw in a couple of their own creative actions, but basically they're all the

A player, if he's a complete player, has to do it. Running, hitting, and throwing, it seems, just aren't enough.

They start it in little league, pick up more as they go along from their favorite big leaguers, and by high school the act is complete.

It becomes a routine, as important to them as their ability to run, hit, and throw. It may not help their play, but it is as big a part of their game as their arms and legs

Is baseball a simple game? Not to the who led by only two at the end of the complete player.

TO THE HOOP: McDowell guard Henry Webb takes this trip to the hoop during opening round action against Pikeville. Webb, a late addition to the all-tournament team, scored 45 points in

Duran Newsome, who scored 13 points, hit a jumpshot to put Betsy Layne up by But at about that time, Hale decided to take charge, and his Cardinal teammates were certainly eager to assist At the 4:30 mark the junior center worked free for a layup. The shot sparked a personal offensive run that saw Hale score eight points in the final four one half minutes of the third period. Hale continued the offensive attack scoring eight more points in the first five minutes of the final frame as Sheldon Clark blew out to a huge advantage. With 3:03 left in the game, Hale canned two free throws, and the Cardinals, third, found themselves leading 52-42. But Betsy Layne, although they were hampered by injury, and although they found themselves facing a near impossi ble task, still made a game of it.

In fact, they had several chances to win the game outright With the help of three Sheldon Clark turnovers in the last minute, the Bobcats were given numerous opportunities to at least draw even. "They double teamed us, and they trapped us. They took us out of everything we tried to do in the last three minutes," Butcher said. But their defensive efforts were spoiled on the other end. Betsy Layne, in the final minutes missed five shots from the floor, wasting their chances for a win, and ruining their dream of a regional They didn't give up without a fight

7-0 Betsy Layne run that brought the Bobcats back into contention. Glen Hammond, the Bobcats' leading scorer with 17 points, hit a jumper and followed it with two free throws as Betsy Layne pulled to within 52-48. Sheldon Clark then missed two front ends of bonus free throw opportunities, and when the Bobcats got the ball back Duran Newsome was fouled in the act of shooting.

The Betsy Layne guard hit the back end of the trip, cutting the deficit to three points. But the Bobcats never scored again until Hammond hit a three-point shot at the buzzer At that time, though, the Cardinals led by five. Thanks to poor shooting late on

Betsy Layne's part, Sheldon Clark, 15-15, advanced to the regional tournament And what did David Butcher have to say about the semi-final win that put his

Additions Made To All-Tourney Team

The additional selections are Jesse Maynard, of Sheldon Clark, Ronnie Blankenship, of Phelps, and Henry Webb, of McDowell.

The tournament committee regrets the oversight, and any undue hardsh it may have caused.

Last Shot In Overtime Ends McDowell's Hopes

What McDowell failed to do in regulation, Phelps did in overtime, and as a result the Daredevils' illusions of Louisville faded into a nightmare of

With 10 seconds remaining in the game, Mike Fannin hit a jumper from close range to tie the game. But by the time McDowell got the officials to signal a timeout, only seven seconds remained.

McDowell did get the basketball down court, but missed the initial opportunity when Henry Webb's off balance shot bounced off the rim.

The Daredevils grabbed the offensive rebound, but missed that shot as well. They again hauled down the carom, but by the time the basketball was finally put through the hoop, time had run out, forcing an overtime period.

Webb, McDowell's leading scorer with 24 points, tied the contest at 68 with two free throws late in overtime, but luck as well as fate appeared to be on the side of Phelps.

With five seconds left, Mike Fannin, who scored 20 for the Hornets, put up a 10-foot jumper from the baseline. It didn't fall, but Phelps hit the follow shot.

Only two seconds remained when the Hornets' final shot rolled through, not allowing McDowell to call time before the final horn blew.

It was all over, brought to an immediate halt on a sudden death rebound shot. What the Daredevils had built over the course of an entire season had taken a tumble in less than a three-second

Their hopes of a trip to Louisville and the Sweet 16 Tournament disappeared in the 70-68 loss to Phelps, Friday night at Pikeville High School.

And the success of the season, the anbelievable turn from obscurity, all of that was forgotten in the pain of the moment

"You don't have a thing to be ashamed of," came the words in the locker room, attempting to ease the pain and silence the sobs. "You guys had a great year. You've got a lot to be proud of."

It did little in changing the numbness felt in the McDowell locker room, though. But Lenny Hall understood the words completely. "It's the greatest thing I've ever been a part of," the senior forward said. "A conference championship, a district championship.

And it all came on the heels of successive seasons of less than 10 wins each. One year ago, McDowell did not win a conference game. This season they finished at 7-1, good enough for first place in the Floyd County Conference.

Last year, McDowell lost in the opening round of the district tournament to Betsy Layne. This year, McDowell defeated Betsy Layne in the district tournament's championship game.

They went from winning seven games in 1986-87 to winning 22 this year. The Daredevils finished with the second best record in the 15th region, advancing to me regional tournament's semi-final round where they lost to Phelps, the team with the best record.

Johnny Ray Turner agreed that this year's team had been one of McDowell's better ones

"I remember several of our good teams, and this one ranks right up there with the best of them," the Daredevil coach said. "This was a good team. They had a lot of heart.

But heart, talent, and their hardest effort couldn't deny Phelps. And it couldn't overcome a poor shooting night from the floor and the free throw line.

"I felt helpless," Turner said. "When we took it inside, they killed us, and we couldn't hit from the outside. Nothing we tried seemed to work. It was like my hands were tied.

The Daredevils also missed seven free throws in the game. Five were front ends of bonus opportunities

"I think it was a matter of fatigue," Turner said of the missed free throws. "We had played two nights in a row and we came in a little beat down.

The Daredevils had hit close to 70 percent from the charity stripe during the season, but hit only eight of 15 attempts

And they also had trouble with a much stronger inside game. They were a lot like Pikeville," Turner said, referring to his opening round opponent. "They are a football type team. 'A physically called game certainly was in their favor," the coach added, mentioning the aggressiveness of Phelps and the officials letting the game take on a physical nature. "We average about 165 pounds. Their front line is closer to

The Hornets, 23-4, consistently pounded the basketball down inside to Fannin, who less than a month ago had knee

And their defense took advantage of a certain size advantage, shutting down McDowell's attempts to score inside.

'Phelps is a good team. We couldn't do anything against their inside game because, they are so physical," Turner

The Hornets aren't exactly bad in the back court either. Senior guard Brian Charles, who led the team in scoring during the season, scored a team high 24 points, Friday.

Phelps hit five three-pointers in the first three quarters, and seven of eight free throws in the overtime period to advance to the tournament finals.

McDowell, led by Webb's 24, placed four players in double figures. Lance Hall scored 14, Dickie Joe Shannon, who fouled out with 1:44 left in the fourth quarter, added 13, and Lenny Hall finished with 10.

The Hornets, who also got 14 points from forward Larry Stephens, advanced to Saturday's final game where they won their first ever regional title, defeating Sheldon Clark by 11 points. McDowell ended their season at 21-7.

The Tigers will play Bradley in their tournament opener, and Louisville is scheduled to take on Oregon State in their first game.

Kentucky, ranked sixth in the nation and fresh off an SEC tournament championship victory over Georgia, 62-57, Sunday, has Illinois as their toughest possible challenge in the Southeast's bottom bracket.

The NCAA tournament will begin Thursday night with opening round games. Thursday and Friday nights. The second round of the tourney takes place Saturday and Sunday before moving on to the sites of the regional finals.

The McDowell Daredevils and Betsy Layne Bobcats each placed one player on the 15th region all-tournament team announced after Saturday's championship game. Lance Hall, the Daredevils' senio center, made the honorary squad, as did Betsy Layne's center, sophomore Sam

Stewart. Hall scored 20 points in two games for McDowell, while Stewart scored 19 in as many games for the Bobcats. Pikeville, Belfry, and Johnson Central, despite losing their first game, placed two players each on the alltourney team.

Tim Bailey and Chris Slater made it from Pikeville while Mike Hatfield and Mike Scott were representatives of Belfry, Wendell Ratliff and Bart Williams, of Johnson Central, were also named to the squad.

Sheldon Clark, despite advancing all the way to the championship game, had only Larry James to make the team. Phelps, the tourney champion, placed Brian Charles and Mike Fannin. Ray Hall of Virgie was also a selection.

Glen Hammond, of Betsy Layne, tied with Phelps' Ronnie Blankenship for the free throw trophy. Hammond hit nine of 10 attempts from the charity stripe.

A Lot of Good Equipment
Is Going To Waster

We hate to see it. Especially when the people normally using the idle equipment have been forced out of commission by injury. Because we know proper sports health care can prevent injuries from happening - and minimize their effect on active lifestyles.

When injured sports-minded bodies come to the Kentucky Center for Sports Health, they get specialized medical attention from a large, highly-trained staff. They learn how to safely work their way back to the sport they love - and how to keep from getting hurt again.

If you need sports health care, ask your doctor about the Kentucky Center for Sports Health or call 1-800-621-CARE. We'll see to it that you - and your equipment - get back in action.

Bounty Hunting For Coyotes Not Necessary—Nor Advisable

At least one Kentucky county has resorted to an old, frontier technique to control predators like the coyote—the bounty hunter. Others are talking about it, and some are considering a legislative proposal for a statewide bounty program to rid the state of coyotes.

It's not a good idea.

"It's been tried time and again," said Fred Servello, Extension wildlife specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture. "And it's never worked anywhere that tried it."

From 1870 to 1950 almost every state had bounties on various kinds of predators, Servello said. States spent millions of dollars every year.

"They came to realize they were spending the same amount on bounties every year." Servello said. "It was a neverending process, and they never got rid of the coyotes either."

What happened, he said, was that the bounty system created a sustained harvest much like that which occurs under deer or game animal harvests.

"What you're doing is replacing natural mortality with harvest mortality." Servello said. "For every coyote killed, you raise the chances that remaining ones will survive. Those remaining don't have as much competition for existing food."

There's also a biological phenomenon which comes into play. When the coyote population is harvested heavily through a bounty system, females will begin to produce at a younger age. They produce larger litters, and pups from those litters will have a higher survival rate.

"A bounty system is like digging a hole in the ocean," Servello said. "As fast as you take a bucket out, another fills it up."

Where coyotes are not heavily harvested an average of three pups per litter survive, he said. Where they are heavily harvested, that average increases to almost six.

A better answer to Kentucky's coyote problem is to concentrate on good management techniques rather than a bounty system, Servello said.

"Corralling sheep at night and proper carrion disposal are the two most simple and effective things a farmer can do to control coyotes," he said. "Guard dogs are another popular method used frequently in Kentucky."

Failure to remove carrion or dead animal carcasses attracts coyotes quickly, he said.

Producers who clear the carrion have fewer problems than those who don't. Studies show that one of four farmers who do not remove or bury their dead carcasses have coyote problems, he said. One of 30 of those who do have problems.

"By not removing those carcasses, you're teaching the coyotes that livestock is food," Servello said.

Electric fencing has proven effective to keep most coyotes out of pastures, he said, and high-tensile electronic fencing is now no more expensive than traditional fencing materials.

A bounty system may tend to give people a false sense of security. Servello said. They quit thinking about the management techniques and depend on a method that's not going to work.

"We need to learn from those other states' mistakes, not repeat them," he said. "The coyote is one of the most adaptable animals there is. We can't get rid of him. If he leaves Kentucky it will be because he wants to, not because we eliminated him."

It's better to spend time on management to prevent the problem, he said. Then if a problem develops, spend time to eliminate the specific animal that got into the livestock field rather than try to eliminate all coyotes.

Music Hits Down Note As Lady Bobcats Lose*

During a timeout with just under one minute left in the game the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats danced to the music being played by the Johnson Central band.

Just a few minutes later the Johnson Central band fired up again. But this time nobody from Betsy Layne danced.

The Lady Bobcats sat on the bench with their heads held low. Some cried. Others just entertained a look of disbelief.

Betsy Layne, when Alvin Ratliff called timeout with 58 seconds remaining in the game, had something to celebrate.

Just seconds earlier Tammy Hall, off an offensive rebound, had given the Lady Bobcats a one-point lead in Monday's 15th region semi-finals at Belfry.

While the regulars huddled around coach Karen Henry, the reserves did their victory dance to a Johnson Central tune

And it probably fit. Betsy Layne had played to the Lady Eagles tune all night. They had stood and watched as Johnson Central came up with loose basketballs. They had stood and watched as what could have been easy rebounds hit the floor untouched.

All this and a lot more came back to haunt them too.

With 40 seconds left, six after Sandy Flannery had missed the front end of a one and one opportunity from the free throw line, Kathy Bolden hit an easy shot on the inside to give Johnson Central a lead.

Betsy Layne had a chance to win the game, but missed three shots at the basket, and eventually fouled LeeAnn O'Bryan.

She hit the front end of her bonus attempt, and when the second bounced off the front of the rim, O'Bryan, the only Lady Eagle on that end of the floor, claimed the rebound.

Only four seconds remained when the second shot was put up. O'Bryan missed that attempt as well, but again got her own rebound, this time putting it back through the hoop to secure a Johnson Central 56-52 win.

The Lady Eagles, 26-4, led by as many as six points in the third quarter, and looked as if they were ready to run away and hide from Betsy Layne, but a key three-pointer and strong offensive rebounding said no to that.

With 2-29 left in the third quarter Lies.

With 3:29 left in the third quarter Lisa Baldwin stole a pass and hit a layup in Johnson Central's full court press to give the Lady Eagles, who scored seven points off turnovers in the third, their six-point lead.

They maintained that advantage until the final second of the third period. From 25 feet Jennifer Hunt launched a three-point shot that drew nothing but net and Betsy Layne was back to within three points.

That seemed to light a fire under the Lady Bobcats. Sandy Flannery hit a jumper from the paint and Brenda Hamilton, who scored 10 points off the bench, checked in with a layup at the 6:30 mark and all of a sudden Betsy Layne had the lead.

Six points off offensive rebounds in the final three and one half minutes kept them in the lead, but the final bounces went Johnson Central's way, as did the four-point victory.

Betsy Layne, ending the season at 25-5, led by nine points in the first quarter, but were outscored 13-2 in the latter part of the first, and early in the second quarter.

The Lady Bobcats were led in scoring by Sandy Flannery. The senior center scored 16 points. Senior forward Yolanda Keathley scored 12 points, 10 of those in the first half, and Tammy Hall, another senior, added 11 points.

Hamilton, a reserve guard/forward, also scored in double figures, getting 10 points in the second half. Jennifer Hunt added three points in the losing effort.

Johnson Central, who advanced to the regional tournament finals, placed only two players in double figures.

Missie Ratliff scored 12 and Kathy Bolden finished with 10. LeeAnn O'Bryan and Missey Brown scored nine and eight respectively.

Betsy Layne, winners of the 58th district tournament, Floyd County Conference, and Floyd County Pre-season Tournament, had advanced to the semifinals by defeating Pikeville 68-49, last Tuesday.

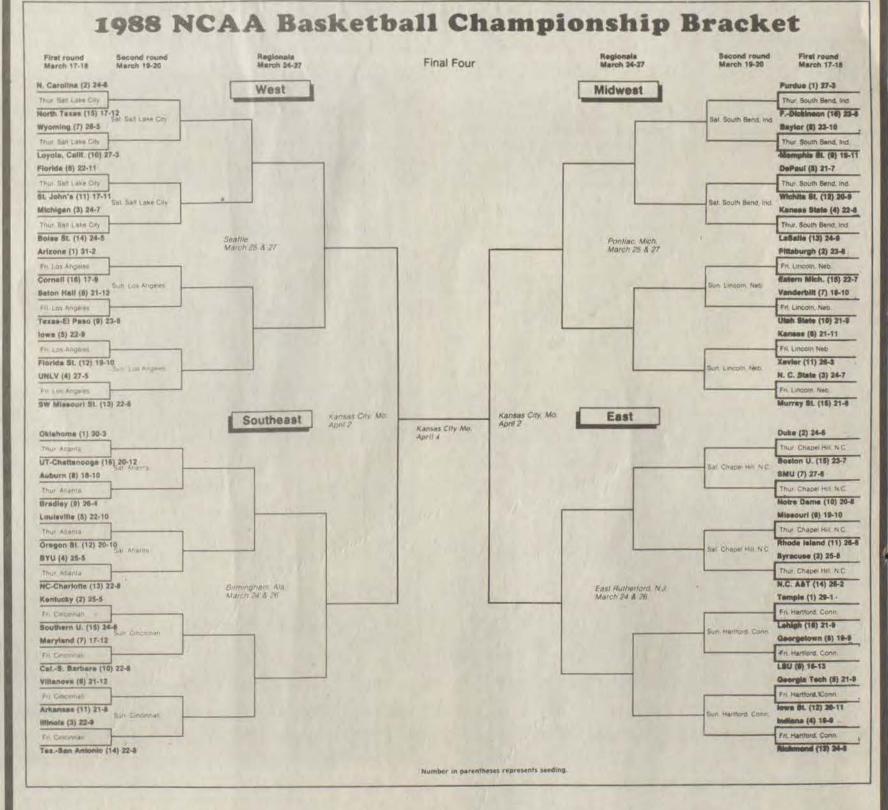

Leading by four points at the half, the Lady Bobcats outscored Pikeville 16-11 in the third and 21-11 in the fourth quarter to pull away for the victory.

Sandy Flannery and Tammy Hall led Betsy Layne to the opening round win. Both players scored 20 points, their season averages.

Jennifer Hunt added eight points to the winning effort and Brenda Hamilton finished the game with six points.

'Inherit the Wind' revives debate about evolution

"Both of those guys were crazy," says Darren McGavin of Henry Drummond and Matthew Harrison Brady, opposing law-yers in the courtroom drama "Inherit the Wind, which has been remade as an NBC movie airing Sunday, March 20

Darren McGavin

"Inherit the Wind' first a Broadway play, then a 1960 movie - dramatized the Scopes "montrial" of 1925, in which a Tennessee teacher was brought to court for teaching Darwin's theory of evolution. Drummond, based on lawyer Clarence Darrow, stood for Darwinism; Brady, based on politician William Jennings Bryan, stood for biblical "crea-tionism." The movie encouraged a crude debate about human origins, reducing mystery to an either-or proposition.

The new version, con-ceived by Kirk Douglas and produced by his son Peter, stars Douglas and Jason Robards as Brady and Drummond. McGavin plays E.K. Hornbeck, a character based on mean-spirited journalist H.L. Mencken, who gained a national readership through his coverage of the trial.

"I was more or less a spectator in the thing," McGavin says. "Hornbeck just sits in the courtroom, making points. I watched more than I acted."

Like Mencken, who coined the phrase "Bible Belt" and made sport of deriding fundamentalists, McGavin crusades for his own views.

'Do I subscribe to the Darwinist point of view? Oh yeah," he says. "So far, I haven't seen any miracles, and unless I can see it, smell it, touch it or taste it, as far as I'm concerned it doesn't exist.

"But in this day and age, people believe what they want to believe," he complains. "In the Bible Belt, this movie won't change anyone's mind one iota. These people won't accept the fact that we're animals, that we defecate. You show them the evidence but they just refuse to believe.

McGavin, best known for his roles in the film "Summertime" (1954) and the '70s series "The Night-stalker," now works in TV and in B-movies, most re-cently in "From the Hip," which was awful.

His pessimism "Inherit the Wind" 's in-fluence isn't just a jaded actor's complaint, though. his philosophy.

"People don't change," he says. "They just become more of what they are as they get older. This year, next year, it's all the same. And then The Fire."

Midler's Mondo Beyondo is the host of a cable-TV public-access show. La bella Mondo's attire is kitschy-trashy, and with Midler's usual combination of largesse and egoism, she gets away with quite a bit.

BOOKS AND THINGS By: TRISHA MORRIS, Librarian Prestonsburg Community College

In this age of large, rambling public school houses and numerous colleges across the Commonwealth, it's easy to forget that in the first decades of this century education was presented to Eastern Kentucky students in a less spectacular fashion. The following books from the P.C.C. library show what schooling was in a time that many people can still remember.

The Little White Schoolhouse By: Ellis R. Hartford

Mr. Hartford gives a vivid picture of Kentucky's first schoolhouses-typically painted white they were ill-equipped, usually dirty, run down, poorly heated and ventilated, set in tiny bare school yards where four-year-olds and twentyyear-olds sat in the same school room and were instructed by a teacher illprepared for the task

As the dedication indicates, "To all Kentuckians who lived and learned and loafed and loved in the little white schoolhouse," Professor Hartford, himself a product of the old time common school, romantically vests the scene with long walks to school being full of fun and excitement and the small school yard affording space for hundreds of rousing games not needing store bought equipment while still truthfully presenting the dearth of such a stark situation.

Professor Hartford's argument is that the Kentucky little white schoolhouses added strength and value to the community to which it belonged. Nearly everyone had some connection with it-"They built it or maintained it, they elected neighbors as trustees and they felt free to use it for meetings or other interests of the community"-the people truly felt that this was their school. He suggests that we might, "strive to obtain schools that fit and belong to their respective communities as did the little white schoolhouse.

Moonlight Schools By: Cora W. Stewart

Stewart as superintendent of the Rowan Co. schools in the early 1900's was often asked to read letters for adults. She soon realized that they needed to read those letters themselves, and they needed to be able to write letters in return. Thus was born the Moonlight Schools of Kentucky-evening schools to be offered when the night was bright, "to emancipate from illiteracy all those enslaved in its bondage." On Sept. 5, 1911, 150 schoolhouses in Rowan Co. were opened, teachers who had volunteered their time were waitingand the people came-"They came singly or hurrying in groups, they came walking for miles...with babies in arms...bent with age and leaning on canes, they came 1200 strong." A success story was begun that was to lead to Governor McCreary forming the Kentucky Illiteracy Commission in 1914, Moonlight Schools in other counties of Kentucky, in other states, taken to the illiterate boys drafted to fight in World War I, taken into the prisons, where incarcerated illiterates spent their time learning to read and write, and taken into the homes of those who could not come to the schools.

This book will touch your heart for the dedication of so very few for so very, very many. It is filled with pictures of proud students, examples of letters written in their own land, and statistics taken from census records and superintendent's files. One example reports, "number taught to read and write during a period four years prior to 1920. Magoffin Co., 1,400; Floyd Co.,

Mountain Path

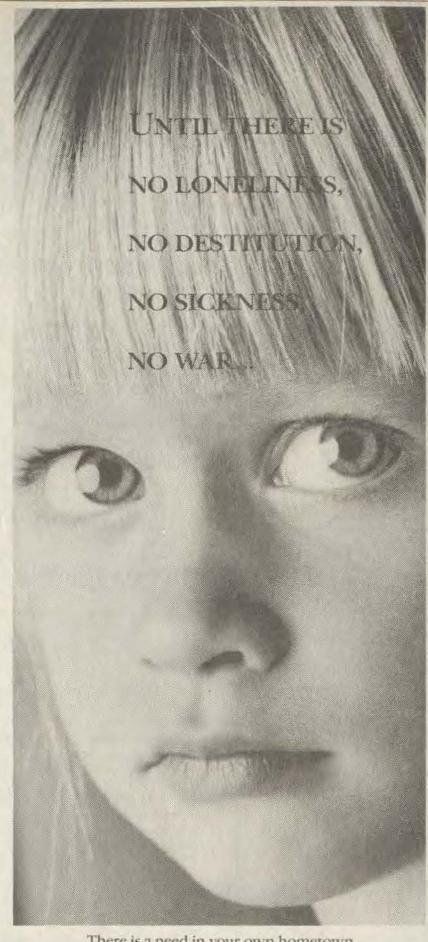

By: Harriette Arnow

A true story wrapped in a fictitious narrative about a young girl from Lexington who, because of family misfortune, is forced to leave her university classroom and take a teaching position in a small town in Eastern Kentucky. Besides being a good story depicting an isolated mountain community in the 20's with feuds, stills, church meetings, and impossible love, it is also a typical tale of what life was like for the teacher of the one-room schoolhouse. Paid $56 a month for a seven month term; given a zinc pail, a dipper, three erasers, a box of chalk and a broom for supplies; sent to a name on the map with the hope that someone would be there; forced to board with a community family, the teachers of the common schools were sent out into the hills of Eastern Kentucky with instruction to do the best that they could.

This first story of the author's trilogy will arouse emotion and add to an understanding of a way of life that is missing from readings of history books.

Two Treatments Help Unresolved Grief Patients

treatments have been found to be equally effective in dealing with a situation some consider to be a major national health problem, says the February American Journal of Psychiatry. An estimated 15 to 25 percent of those who lose a spouse may suffer poor psychological and physical health for 13 months or more after a loss, but little research has examined the use of psychosocial intervention. When 61 women who sought treatment for unresolved grief reactions four months to three years after the death of their husbands were randomly assigned brief dynamic psychotherapy or mutual selfhelp, women in both groups had less stress and improved socially and at work. Charles R. Marmar, M.D., and a team from the University of California, San Francisco, found that patients tended to report more improvement than clinicians.

The Pleasure of Cooking With Pearled Barley

Whether your tastes are extravagant or country, it is the simple and subtle ingredients which often bring the most enjoyment to your recipe. Barley is one such ingredient. Barley has had a long history of popularity around the world. It has been eaten for over 5,000 years by the Chinese, Scots, the Scandinavians and the Turks. It is also popular with eastern Europeans and is included in many kosher recipes.

Wholesome and nutritious, it's a delicious addition to soups and stews. Or, it can be an easy and quick alternative for potatoes or rice by seasoning cooked barley with herbs. Barley gives your recipes a unique flavor and texture in dishes like breads, cakes, casseroles

New addition to homestyle and healthconscious cooking is contributing to a resurgence in barley's popularity. Barley is a source of protein, thiamine, niacin, phosphorus and iron, and is readily available in regular and quickcooking varieties. Quick barley is rolled and steamed to reduce preparation time at home without lowering the nutritional value. Quaker® Scotch Brand® Pearled Barley is certified kosher and carries the rabbincial symbol on its packaging.

"Kentucky's Psychiatric Institutions: Hospitals, Not Asylums or Prisons" -

When the doors of Eastern Lunatic Asylum opened in 1824 in Lexington, the first patient to be admitted was a 21-year-old woman named Charity who had never walked, talked or eaten solid

Existing records don't reveal Charity's fate, but part of the original structure has survived time, fire and cholera epidemics to serve thousands of other Kentuckians as part of what is today known as Eastern State Hospital.

Established as only the nation's second such facility, Eastern has been in continuous operation longer than any psychiatric facility in the United States.

Verna Fairchild, Kentucky's director of Institutional Care, said, "Since its early years, Eastern has been a leader in the progressive treatment of persons suffering from mental illness

In 1844, with the arrival of Dr. John R. Allen as superintendent, a new era in the treatment of patients at Eastern began.

"Under Dr. Allen's leadership, sympathy, understanding and science replaced less humane methods of treatment," said Fairchild. "He was one of the first persons in his field to recognize that gentleness and kindness were far more effective in helping the mentally ill patient than confinement and Eastern State's current director, Dr. Donald Ralph, said that modern mental health treatment embodies those same concepts brought into play by Allen.

'We have a variety of treatment options for the average 300 patients in 10 wards," said Ralph. "Psychiatric nursing and individual, group, recreational, occupational and vocational therapy are all part of a patient's treatment.

'But we also offer other forms of therapy-music, pre-vocational training, community outings, recreational events and skills teaching-to assist the patients in learning or relearning the abilities for daily living which will

By the end of 1988, Eastern State should complete construction on a new recreation hall to house a cafeteria, kitchen, gymnasium and stag. The building will be used for sports activities, dances, plays and other events,

Eastern State, which now erves adults with severe mental illness in 75 central and eastern Kentucky counties, was the only such facility in Kentucky until 1848, when the legislature authorized a second facility in Hopkinsville.

Western State Hospital's 355 beds make it the largest of the Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services' four psychiatric facilities.

"We serve 38 eastern Kentucky counties and the five community mental health centers in this part of the state,' said Western State director Gary Latham. "Five of our 22 wards are devoted to placements on a geographic basis so that whenever possible people from nearby communities reside in the same ward.

Latham described Western's primary goal as helping patients recover enough to be able to return home and use outpatient services offered by the centers. "Today we know that getting the person back into the community greatly enhances the chances for recovery," he said. "The median patient stay last year at Western was 23 days, which I think is excellent.

Even while at Western State, residents are involved with the community.

"There are approximately 50 different groups that visit and work with the patients," Latham said. "We take them to ball games, on camping trips, bowling and numerous other activities. We have a recreation hall for movies and dances with live entertainment and access to an 18-hole golf course.'

Western State operates a sheltered workshop where residents can work on different crafts, as well as an occupational therapy room and a kitchen where home economics students teach patients how to use kitchen appliances.

Both hospitals have agreements with area colleges allowing nursing students to fulfill degree requirements by working in a psychiatric hospital. Eastern State also has a psychiatric residency program for students at the University

Bible Society Distributes 5 Billionth Copy of Bible

Few of the 240 million Americans who greeted the arrival of 1988 with their customary rituals spared a passing thought for yet another milestone as it came and went.

Quietly, the American Bible Society celebrated the distribution of its 5 billionth copy of Scripture.

No one can say for sure that it happened on the stroke of midnight. It might have been earlier. But assigning a precise moment gives the event a handy and reasonable point of reference. Nor can anyone be certain, either, just who received the 5 billionth Scripture or where it happened. Possibly it was a tea harvester in the Assam Valley of northern India. Or a Ga-speaking fisherman in Ghana who wanted to give his family a sound spiritual base. Or perhaps a pastor of one of the new churches springing up in impoverished areas of Suriname. Or a child in Warsaw, Poland, where the Bible shop distributes more Scriptures than any Bible shop in the world.

ABS was responsible for distributing more than 33,000 Scriptures every hour of every day of the year during the most recent twelve-month period.

That means over 289 million copies, Bibles, New Testaments, Scripture booklets and Selections, in one year

A long way from the modest 6,410 Bibles recorded for 1816, the year the fledgling Bible Society first set the course that would make it the country's major supplier of Scriptures. Some 90 or so small local Societies were then merged into a national body. The first shipment, 100 black-bound Bibles all in English, went to the auxiliary Long Island (N.Y.) Bible Society in November of that same year.

Nowadays, streams of Scriptures from more than 60 printing and storage locations around the world are crossing the oceans, flying the skies and traversing continents to reach churches and missions, hospitals, and prisons, schools" and outreach groups, as well as millions of individuals, in some 180 lands.

By no means all of them are in

They are as likely to be in Tepeuxila

Cuicateco, Pali, Car Nicobarese, Ponerihouen or in any one of more than 800 other languages in which the Bible

Society distributes globally, 80 of them in the United States alone. As an organization with a ministry no 🦓 longer confined to this country alone, the American Bible Society will meet in September in Budapest for the Council meeting of its partners in the United Bible Societies, a global team dedicated to bringing the Word to the entire world. Their one purpose is to assess where the needs for Scriptures lie and to devise strategies that will feed a world spiritual hunger. The decisions made at Budapest will help in time to lead ABS towards another billion Scriptures.

* Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: You had a recent column on the symptoms of cancer to watch for if you are over 50. I've always thought that by the time symptoms appear, cancer is already in the advanced stages. Is this true? Are there screening tests I should be having to detect cancer at a time before there are symptoms?

ANSWER: It is true that by the time that symptoms for some cancers appear, the cancer may already be in an advanced stage. But often a person will attribute the very early symptoms to ag ing and delay seeking a doctor's attention for a long period of time. Some cancers have early signals that if brought to a doctor's attention right away can be treated at a time when a cure is still possible.

Even when there are no symptoms, some tests are advised on a periodic basis. Your doctor will recommend a schedule based on your medical and family history, in accordance with the general guidelines for the frequency of these tests:

The following are tests suggested for people over 50.

-Guaiac test: This is a test for hidden blood in the stool, which can be a sign of colon or rectal cancer.

-Rectal exam: This test, an exam of the rectum with the doctor's gloved finger, can detect prostate tumors in men and rectal tumors in men or

-Sigmoidoscopy or "Procto": This is an exam of the rectum and part of the colon with a lighted instrument. It can detect tumors or other abnormalities in the colon and rectum.

-Pelvic exam and Pap test. The pelvic exam is a check of the female reproductive organs. The Pap test is a test which removes cells from the cervix for exam under a microscope to see . if they are abnormal or cancerous.

-Breast exam and mammography: Women should have their breasts examined to check for lumps or areas of thickening. A mammogram (x-ray of the breast) is advised yearly for all women over 50. Women should also perform breast self-exam (BSE) monthly.

Endometriosis May Cause Depression

Endometriosis, the growth within the pelvic region of tissues normally found only in the inner lining of the uterus, may be closely related to mood disorders, especially biopolar disorder, popularly known as manic depression, according to December's American Journal of Psychiatry.

When 16 women being treated for endometriosis were evaluated, 12 were found to have mood disorders, including seven suffering from biopolar disorder, said Dorothy Otnow Lewis, M.D., New York University School of Medicine, and Florence Comite, M.D., Yale University School of Medicine.

Endometriosis, whose estimates of prevalence have ranged upwards to 50 percent of women during their reproductive years, has been termed a career women's disease because it's associated with a delay in childbearing and a diminished number of pregnancies, say the authors.

Patients with endometriosis have been described as "overanxious, intelligent, and perfectionist," according to the article.

Since women's lifetime risk for bipolar disorder is no higher than 1.3 percent, the high occurrence of mood disorder found in the patients with endometriosis is noteworthy, say the researchers.

The authors, noting their study is preliminary, say that abnormal levels of hormones have been implicated in both disorders. Chemicals associated with the secretion of female hormones are thought to influence moods directly in the brain, they add.

"The recognition of the coexistence of these disorders may enhance the understanding of the physiological mechanism and genetic patterns underlying these puzzling syndromes," states the article.

Participating in the study were the Departments of Psychiatry, Physiology and Biophysics, and the Millhauser Laboratories, New York University of School of Medicine, and the Departments of Medicine and Obstetrics and Gynecology, Yale University School of Medicine.

Other researchers involved in the study were: Catherine Mallouh, B.A., Laura Zadunaisky, M.S.; Karen Hutchinson-Williams, M.D.; Bruce D. Cherksey, Ph.D.; and Catherine Yeager, M.A.

Mastering The Munchies

From the American Institute for Cancer Research

It's a rare breed of person that has the willpower to overcome an attack of "the munchies"-a craving for snacks that go snap, crunch and crackle when you eat them. Unfortunately, many of the most popular munchies-including chips, nuts and many varieties of snack crackers-are high in fat. And then there's the added temptation to eat them with high-fat dips or cheeses. Even popcorn can be a problem if it's drenched in melted butter!

What to do when the munchies hit? Make sure your pantry is stocked with lowfat snacks like breadsticks, melba toast, flatbreads, rye wafers and matzoh crackers. Whole grain varieties of any of these items are a particularly nutritious choice. For taco chips that are lower in fat and sodium than many commercially available, simply cut homemade or pre-packaged tortilla shells into wedges and bake on a cookie sheet at 400 degrees for 5 to 10 minutes. Serve with salsa for a satisfying, lowfat treat.

Popcorn can also be a great lowfat munchie, particularly when it's air popped. Just leave off the butter and serve it plain, or topped with a sprinkle of Nowfat Parmesan cheese or a favorite seasoning, such as a little chili powder, garlic powder or herbs. Pretzels also tend to be lower in fat than most chips. And don't forget that carrot sticks and other raw vegetables provide a hearty crunch that's high in healthful vitamins and fiber!

Looking for whole grain, lowfat, unsalted crackers, but having trouble finding them? Try making your own! It's really not hard, and the result: a thick, grainy cracker that can be eaten alone or with a lowfat dip, such as Cheese Dip with Zip.

OATMEAL CRACKERS

- 1 1/3 cups whole wheat flour 1 2/3 cups rolled oats
- 2 tbsp. sugar
- 1/2 tsp. baking soda 1/2 tsp. baking powder
- 2/3 cup skim milk 3/4 tsp. lemon juice
- 6 tbsp. margarine, softened

In medium bowl, mix the flour, 1 cup of the oats, sugar, baking soda and baking powder. Add milk, lemon juice and margarine; stir until smooth. Divide dough in half, cover and refrigerate 10 to 30 minutes

Place half the dough on a lightly oiled cookie sheet and flatten into a 4-inch square. Roll out to about 10 inches square, sprinkling with some of the remaining 1/3 cup oats to keep from sticking. Cut into 2-inch squares, then slice diagonally into triangles.

House Bill 589 Would Establish Wetlands Fund

More land is set aside to store nerve gas in Madison county than there are acres dedicated as State Nature Preserves. This imbalance is closer to being corrected as a result of action taken in the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee, Wednesday, March 2. House Bill 589, a measure introduced by Representatives Joe Clarke, Harry Moberly and Mark Brown, establishes a fund to purchase natural areas and wetlands for conservation.

Five conservation and sportsman's organizations testified before the House Budget Committee on behalf of the bill-Kentucky Conservation Committee, League of Kentucky Sportsmen, Ducks Unlimited, Nature Conservancy, and Sierra Club. In addition, Kentucky's Environmental Quality Commission chairman, Horace Brown, described the 14-month efforts of their Wetlands Task Force which recommended the legislation to purchase and preserve wetlands. Dr. Bill Martin, of Eastern Kentucky University, also discussed the need for protecting the rapidly disappearing natural areas in Kentucky as a sound investment for financial, scientific and educational purposes.

Brown stressed the value of natural areas and wetlands protection and the potential benefits for all Kentuckians. In terms of wetland protection and waterfowl areas, Kentucky is years behind states like Illinois and Missouri. In addition, state nature preserves though they range from Metropolis Lake in McCracken county to Pine Mountain in Bell county. However, Brown and Martin pointed out every Kentucky county has natural areas which should be protected.

Hugh Archer, of the Kentucky Conservation Committee, discussed the value of both wetlands and natural areas for protecting many species of fish, wildlife, and plants. Archer described wetlands role to provide natural moderation of floods, erosion control, water quality enhancement, groundwater recharge, fish and wildlife habitat, recreation, educational and scientific research, aesthetic and open spaces, and food and fiber production.

Robert Smith, League of Kentucky Sportsmen Director, testified concerning the value of wetlands and natural areas for tourism development throughout Kentucky. Smith discussed the tremendous revenue from recreation and tourism industries related to wetlands. Wetlands provide habitat for this industry, but in 1986 the number of waterfowl dropped to the lowest in Kentucky history, due to loss of habitat.

Only a small fraction of Kentucky's land is protected as natural areas, reported Dr. Martin, who added that Kentucky has not done a very good job of preserving our natural heritage. This failure comes at a time when Kentuckians are expressing concerns for natural areas, for use as outdoor recreation areas.

Kentucky's Commission on Outdoor Recreation reported in 1986 that Kentuckians would like to have more and better options for recreation. Kentuckians expressed one overriding concern to the Commission—a need for a more reliable funding source to purchase and develop outdoor recreation resources. The Governor's Commission on Outdoor Recreation recommended that increasing the real estate transfer fee was an option for providing more of Kentucky's outdoor recreation needs.

Much of the committee discussion focused on the revenue generating portion of the bill, the increase in the land transfer tax. House Bill 589 increases the fee for transferring property from $.50 per $500 of property value to $1. Thus a home selling for $50,000 would increase an additional $50, which would be paid into a fund established by the bill. The property seller usually pays the transfer tax, thus the committee members questioned the effect that this action would have on property sales. Fred Hines, of Ducks Unlimited and a realtor as well, indicated that this amount would have minimal impact on home sales. Jack Wilson, vice-chairman of Kentucky's Nature Conservancy, also a realtor ... concurred.

In addition, legislators expressed concern about who would actually benefit from the natural areas, parks and wetlands which would be purchased for protection. Proponents of the bill say that all Kentuckians would benefit. Not only would hunting and fishing revenues in Kentucky increase from additional wetland acquisition, but natural areas for wildlife related recreation would be more available throughout the state These increased revenues would benefit Kentucky's economy and help stabilize the economic base from the growing tourism industry, the state's second largest private employer.

Archer mentioned the Blue Licks Battlefield State Park Nature Preserve, a 15-acre tract located in Robertson county within Blue Licks State Park. This area was dedicated into the nature preserves system for the protection of Short's Goldenrod, a species of plant known to exist nowhere else in the world. Additional land for preservation in parks could be purchased throughout Kentucky, Archer argued in support of the bill.

The House Appropriations and Revenue Committee voted to support the legislation, amending the bill to clarify that parks would be purchased through the fund. The full House was expected to vote on the measure after their recess for the Super Tuesday election.

On Thursday, March 3, 1988, the Kentucky Supreme Court ruled that unmined coal property should be classified as real property and taxed in a manner similar to all other real property. The court ordered that owners of unmined coal must pay property tax on their holdings.

Floyd County schools and local government services will get millions of dollars as a result of this ruling. Nevertheless, the ruling was somewhat incomplete and there is a need to pass comprehensive legislation to ensure that the program is fully implemented.

House Bill 917, introduced by Rep. Clayton Little, would do the following:

- protect from an additional tax burden small landowners and farmers who are not profitting from the ownership of their minerals;
- ensure that local school systems and county governments, along with other taxing districts (libraries, health departments, etc.), in coal-rich counties could directly apply local property tax rates on unmined minerals; more than two-thirds of the taxes collected in Floyd County would stay in Floyd County.

House Bill 917 was approved by the House Appropriations and Revenue Committee on March 9. The fate of this legislation now rests in large part in the hands of Floyd County Representative Greg Stumbo, House majority floor leader.

Please contact Rep. Stumbo in support of House Bill 917. He can be reached in Frankfort at 1-800-248-2947, extension 7460. Please call soon. Your call can make a difference.

Local Bank Announces New Marketing Team

The appointment of Audrey Hudson as Marketing Director of The Bank Josephine was announced this week by bank President O. Sam Blankenship.

Donna R. Roope, who has served with The Bank Josephine for six years, has also joined the marketing staff.

Prior to joining the bank, Hudson worked as news director for WQHY/WDOC Radio. She also served as press aide to John Y. Brown, Jr., during the 1987 campaign.

A native of Wayland, Roope has been with the bank since 1983 and is the present secretary for the East Kentucky Chapter of the Bank Administration Institute.

In making the announcement, Blankenship said "Donna's banking experience combined with Audrey's knowledge of the area and its people will be an asset to The Bank Josephine's Community Investment Program."

Last week Hudson and Roope joined Blankenship in Louisville for the 7th Annual Marketing Conference. Bankers from across Kentucky attended the conference, held at the Seelback Hotel, that was co-sponsored by the Kentucky Bankers Association.

Legislators Busy As Session Ending

Members of the Kentucky General Assembly have introduced a total of 1,429 pieces of legislation for consideration during the 1988 session.

Two years ago, 1,388 bills were introduced, 990 in the House and 398 in the Senate. In the House of Representatives, 1,030 bills are currently under consideration while the Senate has 399 measures before it. The deadline for filing new legislation in both chambers passed last

In 1986, a total of 462 bills passed both houses and 461 became law. Former Gov. Martha Layne Collins vetoed two bills, one of which was overridden by the Legislature.

Only 16 working days-spread over four weeks-remain in the 1988 session, which ends March 30. March 29-30 are set aside for concurrence only. Following a 10-day recess, the General Assembly will return to Frankfort April 14-15 to consider any vetoed legislation.

Kentucky's Natural Oddities Include Both Plants, Animals

Name the animals that live in Kentucky. Let's see...white-tail deer, raccoons, oppossoms, cardinals. How about plants? Well, there's redbud, goldenrod, and maple trees. Unknown to most Kentuckians are the thousands of other species of animals and plants that live in our state.

Kentucky has a plant that eats insects-the dwarf sundew-found only in Pulaski county. It's tiny red leaves are covered with hair-like tentacles. Each tentacle has a drop of glistening liquid right on the tip, which the insect thinks is nectar. Actually, it's not necetar at all but a glue-like substance containing digestive enzymes. When the insect becomes stuck on a tentacle, other leaves bend over it, trapping it behind a cage of tentacles. The enzymes slowly start dissolving the insect's body, absorbing its fluid into the plant's system, until only the skeleton remains.

wierdo-the Here's another hellbender. This is a salamander as big as a dog, the fifth largest salamander in the world! It lives under rocks in deep, swift streams and in lakes mostly in the Cumberland, Kentucky, and Licking river systems. It leaves its hiding place anly at night, slithering across the river bottom in search of food. It has a large, flat head, small beady eyes and a wide mouth. Its greenish-brown skin hangs loosely along its sides in large folds. The most interesting thing about this primitive salamander is that its closest living relative is in southeast Asia, supporting the idea that the Asian and American continents were once joined.

Kentucky's caves hold all sorts of odd characters. Troglobites are any animals that have become adopted to living their entire lives in total darkness deep within a cave. Most have lost their color, appearing white or pinkish, and have no eyes at all. Some of the troglobites living in Kentucky caves include blind and colorless fish, crayfish, millipedes, and the rare Kentucky cave shrimp.

In western Kentucky, there is a frog known as the crawfish frog that puts the loud call of a bullfrog to shame! This smaller frog has two enormous pouches, one on each side of its throat, and can call from under 18 inches of water and be heard a half mile away! The crawfish

Among other positions, he served as area and regional Brotherhood director, vice president for the Brotherhood Convention, state coordinator for Disaster Relief and state coordinator of Kentucky Baptist Builders. As associational Brotherhood director for Lynn Baptist Association, Simpkins led the Southern Baptist Convention in new Brotherhood

Years ago this amateurish column us ed the title, IT'S A GOOD WORLD, but now it changes constantly. The use of Miscellany, Assortment, Soup Bowl, Mixture, Conglomeration, Salad, Miscellaneous is boring. At least it's a good world for some since unemployment is at 5.7, the lowest in nine years. Hooray! The government will not be amiss if it provides another WPA (Works Progress Administration), and something similar to the CCCs, (or Citizens Civilian Corps) that put many young men to work in the depression of the thirties. Most men want jobs.

The state is striving to reduce election fraud, Similar moves have started on the national level. Many wonder if either is possible, because politics has been in control for so long. The best cure may be more righteous living in home and family and character building in schools. For all her wonder, beauty, romance, progress, and fascination, our fantastic Commonwealth still has far to

It comes as no surprise that postal rates will again increase soon, but why or how can private concerns make profits delivering Uncle Sam's mail when the postal department remains in the red, generally speaking, and that is not limited to Kentucky.

Few things are more likely to backfire on the populace than the trend toward malpractice suits against physicians, who are subject to error the same as members of other professions. Often the sums sought are not only exorbitant but ridiculous. They have and will continue to compel some M.D.s and mid-wives, also, to retire early, and create such a scarcity that may boomerang on everyone, due to the excessive cost of insurance demanded. An occasional rare instance may be justifiable, whether due to carelessness, incompetence, or other personnel, but these seem few and far between. Unless reversed, the current tendency will find more people without medical services, which would be

In recent years several magazines of international circulation have exposed flaws in some phases of medical services, as has the A.M.A. Complaints of high costs are common, but we want the best, and new discoveries, high technology, increasing research never dreamed are largely responsible. The space program alone is opening up a whole new incomparable panorama for the benefit of all mankind.

By a vast majority the legislature just voted to make sex education for all ages in Kentucky Schools mandatory this fall, That responsibility belongs to the home and parents, and little folks are too immature to handle such. They have enough problems and disappointments already. When the ERA pushed so hard for sex education, films, et cetera for older students, several years ago, its leaders loudly insisted that their primary reason was to reduce teen-age pregnancies. As anticipated by opponents to the move, pregnancies of seventh and eighth graders on up rapidly increased tremendously, and Kentucky now has the largest number of any state. Abandoning life-long standards of decency is exacting a horrendous price from our nation. God is still in control. Disobedience to his Word and goals is

Kentucky's Job Training Allotment Exceeds $60 Million for 1988-89

Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson recently announced that Kentucky will receive more than $60 million in federal Job Training Partnership Act funds to support statewide and regional employment and training programs in the fiscal year which begins July 1.

"One of the primary goals of this administration is to prepare Kentucky's work force for the jobs in the next decade and beyond," Wilkinson said.

"These funds are vital to achieving that objective as well as to the development of initiatives to help Kentuckians who are out of work. They will enable us to help today's labor force develop skills and assist our displaced workers in their efforts to remain competitive in a job market that is becoming more technologically advanced every day," the governor said.

More than half of Kentucky's allocation—almost $30.8 million—will go to the state's 11 service delivery areas (SDAs) for programs for low-income youth and unemployed adults. Local private industry councils (PICs) will determine the type and number of programs that will be funded in each area.

'The allotment for each area is based on a federal formula which compares the number of low-income and unemployed residents in an SDA to the total number of low-income and unemployed Kentuckians," Wilkinson

The SDAs also will share almost $15.6 million for summer programs for youths 16 through 21 years of age who are members of low-income families.

"These programs provide jobs with public or private non-profit agencies, giving participants the job experiences they will need when they look for their first full-time jobs," the governor said. "In addition, young people with poor academic records will be offered remedial education."

Wilkinson said, "We hope that offering jobs and education as a package will give these young Kentuckians the incentive they need to complete high school."

Kentucky will also be able to make special job training grants in the following areas: $5,086,020 to help dislocated workers make the transition to new jobs: $3,154,885 for education coordination programs; $2,366,164 for incentive awards and technical assistance to SDAs; and $1,183,082 for programs for older workers. The state will receive $1,971,804 for administrative costs.

Floyd, Bell, Breathitt, Carter, Clay, Elliott, Harlan, Jackson, Johnson, Knott, Knox, Lawrence, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Magoffin, Martin, Menifee, Morgan, Owsley, Perry, Pike and Wolfe counties will receive $6,841,642, for job training and $3,470,790, for the summer youth program.

Federal grants totaling $300,000 will enable nine Kentucky agencies to advance early identification of and referral to services for Kentucky's very young handicapped children and their families. Mountain Mental Health/Mental Retardation Board Inc., Prestonsburg, will be awarded $25,053 to provide support and resources to integrate infants and toddlers with handicapping conditions into existing day care settings.

Cabinet for Human Resources Secretary Harry J. Cowherd, M.D., said the funding, which will be available effective April 1, will help expand existing programs in Lexington, London, Louisville, Newport and Paducah as well as support new efforts in Lexington, Louisville and Prestonsburg.

'Today we know that children with developmental delays can be better assisted if the proper services are provided early," Cowherd said. "When developmental delays are evaluated fully in the very early years of life, we greatly enhance the impact of treatment aimed at lessening the impairment."

The grants for the local, regional and statewide projects are part of the state's long-range plan to link Kentucky's estimated 3,400 children with developmental delays with a growing statewide system of services for children from birth through two years of age who have severe or multiple disabilities.

EACH SALON INDEPENDENTLY OWNED AND OPERATED

"Two extremely important criteria that each successful applicant had to pass were how the proposal used local resources to meet an identified need and how a local or area project dovetails with our developing statewide network of services to these children," the secretary said.

Commissioner Dennis Boyd of the cabinet's Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services said funding requests more than doubled the amount Kentucky had budgeted under the federal Education of the Handicapped Act.

These nine projects were selected from 23 proposals requesting nearly $700,000 in assistance," Boyd said.

A Legislative Perspective

With Rep. Gregory D. Stumbo, Majority Floor Leader

With the deadline for passing legislation in the 1988 session of the General Assembly set for less than four weeks away, two caucauses by majority party members and a straw poll apparently causes the torch for a tax increase to sputter.

It seems that even the threat of reduced state government programs, including critical education programs, has not made tax increase believers out of Kentuckians. Last weekend, following the first democratic caucus, we took the bleak facts home to constituents along with the specifics of a plan to conform Kentucky's income tax code to federal regulation. But, this week a straw poll showed votes needed to pass the proposal fell decisively short of those needed to succeed.

Without a tax increase, House members are looking in the face a final budget dramatically leaner than the one proposed by Governor Wilkinson. We anticipate taking only enough revenue from earmarked state agency funds necessary to balance a bare bones budget. We can only reach that objective by scrapping most education incentives suggested in the Governor's budget

Straw polls taken on House Bill 1 (the lottery constitutional amendment proposal) and the succession amendment showed a growing support for one and a sense of uncertainty in the other. To place a constitutional amendment on the ballot requires 60 yes votes from House members

While the lottery proposal rested in the House Committee on State Government, lottery opponents have worked extensively in the Capitol. According to the straw poll of House members, it seems that if the lottery measure were to come up today it would be short enough votes to pass from Committee. However, House leaders think the votes are there in the full membership to send it to the Senate. It appears most committee members will eventually vote for the controversial measure if they think the majority of House members are backing them.

On the other hand, a constitutional amendment to allow a Kentucky Governor to succeed himself looks as if it is sitting favorably for a supportive vote from House members.

There are several versions of the basic "Governor to succeed himself for two terms measure." This is the bill that I am sponsoring. One concept would allow the Governor to succeed himself excluding the current Governor. Another bill attached 6 year state Senate terms and 4 year state House terms to the succession bill. And, yet, another piece of legislation allows for a Kentucky Governor to serve one 5 year term.

House Bill 441, my worker's compensation funding plan creates two separate funds to take the place of the Special Fund. The Coal Worker's Fund will pay all past and future awards associated with coal miners.

The Non-Coal Fund will pay all past and future awards associated with noncoal employees.

The assessment on all non-coal employers remains 23.3%.

The assessement for those paying into the Coal Worker's Fund (coal operators) will have the option of paying either 63.3% of premium or paying based upon production, 50¢ per ton on underground coal and 30¢ per ton on

The base funding level of $110,000,000 under current law is reduced to $100,000,000 which is made possible by separating the funds.
