Grigsby's Reinstatement Ends School Board Legal Battle

By Tim Sizemore

A legal battle which began last April between former superintendent E.P. "Pete" Grigsby and the Floyd County School Board, ended last Wednesday night with the reinstatement of Grigsby as assistant superintendent, at a salary of $50,000 per year and $10,000 in back

On the advice of the Kentucky School Board Insurance Trust, the school board agreed to an out-of-court settlement with Grigsby, who last year filed a federal civil rights suit against the system after his demotion.

Grigsby's former salary had been $47,200 a year but upon state recommendation last year, the board decreased his salary by $7,000. The state had requested that three administrative positions be abolished but only Grigsby's was eliminated. The demotion and decrease in salary were the basis of his civil rights

"I have given 30 years to the school system and I have more to give and contribute," Grigsby said, and added that the board's decision was, "a victory for all teachers and administrators across "Kentucky", Grigsby thanked the Floyd county board for rectifying their decision and said he felt the trouble had been caused by bad advice from the state superintendent's office.

Attorney Ned Pillersdorf, who represented Grigsby, said that his client had a 90% chance of winning had the case gone to court. "It's a fact of life in mountain communities, you are penalized for speaking out and that was the main point of the lawsuit," Pillersdorf

Also reinstated at the meeting was Adrian Bentley as assistant transportation director.

Other business transacted by the board included a request by Lloyd Hamilton, of the Betsy Layne Touchdown Club, that the board co-sign a note for new aluminum stadium seats at Betsy Layne High School. Hamilton told the board that his organization had raised well over $100,000 to improve the school facilities in the last four years and that they had installed, at no expense to the system, a sprinkler system, fencing and Board Chairman Dr. James D. Adams said that the board would consider the matter and examine the legality of the board's potential role as a co-signer. Hamilton said the present seating is falling apart and that the Betsy Layne Touchdown Club will pay all expenses for the improvements.

Geneva Scalf, a cook at Prestonsburg Elementary School, went before the board to ask that two janitors be assigned to help clean up the school's lunchroom. She said the present staff couldn't cook properly while doing janitorial work at the same time. The board agreed to look into the matter.

The board gave their approval to Lexington architect Paul Haupmann's idea for roof repairs at Allen Central High School. Haupmamn pointed out that a slanted roof on the school would cost approximately half a million dollars, while use of a new rubberlike roofing product may be a more desirable alternative. He said some of the advantages of the product include short installation time. cost, and a 17-year guarantee. Haupmamn said he will ask the company which makes the product to replace anything that may be damaged in the event of a leak for the full life of the

Mistrial Called In Murder Case

By Joe Porter

The jury deliberated as one circuit court clerk said, "teeth to teeth," for a day an a half before deadlocking six to six on whether to find the defendant, Orville Tackett, guilty or innocent of intentional murder. Judge Hollie Conley declared it a mistrial, and a new trial date was set.

Tackett, who is a 53-year-old disabled miner from Grethel, admitted under oath that he killed Mickey Hall, June 6, 1987 with a double-barrel 12-gauge shotgun. However, it is the defendant's contention that Hall was armed with a towing chain and the shot was fired in self-defense.

Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton, who prosecuted the case, said the jury was unable to reach a unanimous verdict because of conflicting testimony, during the trial. "We had a very good "I'm satisfied that they stuck with their consciences and voted with the evidence. But they didn't believe all the witnesses were telling the truth." Patton said that some jurors were persuaded by the self-defense argument and others could not come up with a clear motive for the shooting.

'I'm disappointed that they didn't acquit him," said the defendant's attorney (See Story No. 2, Page 4)

One Killed, Two Hurt In Weekend Shootings

By Tim Sizemore

Violence erupted in Floyd county this weekend as three were felled, one fatally, by gunshot wounds in unrelated

Janice Case, 39, of Drift, is being held at the Floyd county jail following a shooting, Friday, at her Simpson Branch home, which resulted in the death of her husband, 45-year-old Royce L. Case. The incident, which state police say stemmed from an argument between the victim and his son, occurred at about 7 p.m. It was reported that Mrs. Case fired a single warning shot in an effort to break up the altercation. When her husband reportedly turned and advanced in her direction, she fired two shots which struck Case, apparently killing him almost instantly

The victim was pronounced dead on the scene by Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson and Mrs. Case was arrested later by Deputy Sheriff Harold Johnson. The incident was still under investigation this week by State Police Detective James Stephens and the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

A second shooting occurred at around 2:45 a.m. Saturday at Bevinsville when Terry D. Hall, 36, of Price, a former state police trooper, was wounded by bullet fragments and flying glass, when allegedly fired upon by Timothy Hall, 19, of Hi Hat. Police report that ex-trooper was wounded as he pulled to a stop at the junction of KY 122 and KY 1428

According to state police, the suspect attempted to flee in a Toyota and a highspeed chase ensued involving state and local police agencies. A roadblock was set up at Martin by Martin Policemen Hershell Lester and Ralph Frazier and Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson, Hall was said to have crashed through the roadblock, striking both Nelson's and Frazier's car. Neither men, who were in their cars at the time, were injured.

The pursuit continued on KY 80 toward Prestonsburg when, near the intersection of U.S. 23 and KY 80, Deputy Sheriff Ricky Thornsbury fired a shotgun blast which punctured the right front tire of the getaway vehicle resulting in Hall's arrest by Deputy Sheriff Anthony Castle.

Hall, who is lodged in the Floyd county jail, is charged with first degree assault, reckless driving, attempt to elude police officers and two counts of first degree wanton endangerment, according to State Police Detective James

Recurrent Fires, Attitudes Retard Floyd County's Timber Potential

By Paul N. Allen

Timber could rival coal in economic importance in Eastern Kentucky as coal reserves dwindle during the next few decades, according to forestry management experts. But traditional attitudes and misconceptions regarding land use as well as a commonly lax attitude on the part of the courts may combine to effectively negate the potential value of the area's forest resources.

Indeed, a significant amount of the once-great hardwood forest which covers much of Floyd and other Eastern Kentucky counties has already been degraded for generations to come through the repeated woodland fires which annually plague the area.

Here of Child Sexual Abuse

In Floyd county, for example, 151 fires burned 17,369 acres of woodland during the fall, 1987 fire season alone. Thus far this spring, 48 fires in the county have burned 2,384 acres, and the "danger" period is far from over.

In the Eastern Forestry District as a whole, which, in addition to Floyd, includes Pike, Martin, Lawrence, Johnson and Magoffin counties, 585 fires were recorded with 37,649 acres involved during last fall's serious rash of blazes.

The figures appear particularly discouraging when dollar losses are computed. Steve Brackett, district forester for the Eastern District, which is based in Prestonsburg, explained that losses are figured at $80 per acre each year for the next 75 years. In other words. Floyd county's 17,369 acres damaged last fall by fire amounts to a loss of $1,389,520. Multiply that by 75 and you come up with the grand total of $104,214,000. Again, this figure applies just to losses last fall. When the county's year-in, year-out forest fires are considered even over a period of a few years, the losses in timber value are

'It's sad because we can grow fine hardwood in Kentucky that's in demand all over the world," said Gene Reynolds, a forest protection specialist with the state Division of Forestry. Referring to Eastern Kentucky's historic and predominant dependence on coal, Reynolds added: "My personal opinion is that coal will play out some day, and people will need something like this (timber) to sustain themselves.'

The international demand for hardwood lumber, which is used to make such items as fine furniture and expensive trim for interiors of homes and businesses, far exceeds the supply, according to Reynolds.

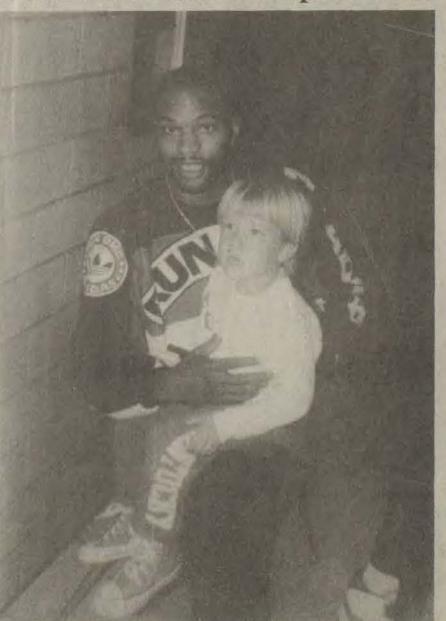

Joseph Chang, associate professor of forest economics and management at the University of Kentucky, pointed out that the price of red oak, for example, had jumped nearly 50 percent in the past few months. Strong markets for yellow poplar, another common species throughout Kentucky, could be developed as well, Chang believes.

'So it's not just a bunch of junk that people might say, 'Let's burn it,' Chang said. "But that's a message that hasn't gotten out much in Eastern

That, indeed, the message hasn't gotten out in Eastern Kentucky is evidenced by the fact that most of the state's fire problems occur in the coalfields section with the Eastern District "running neck in neck," according to Steve Brackett,

Month-long, Free Trash Pick-up Ok'd By City Council

By Monica J. Clark

The city will conduct a clean-up drive in May by offering free trash pick-up for the entire month. Prestonsburg City Council members unanimously passed the proposal Monday night, as part of a city-wide effort to spruce things up for the tourist season.

'Through the media, we want to impress upon property owners, whether they have a yard around their house or whether they have a business that has some items out of place or that may be dangerous or unsightly, to take the month of May to clean up their properties," expressed City Administrator Fred A. James.

In other business, the council approved a request by Bill Howard, of Prestonsburg Utilities, to allow the city to act as a lead agent to contract a consulting engineer and advertise bidding for a new

'We're helping therapists identify the problem because a child will often act out in school or have academic problems and a variety of other symptoms that we don't know initially are the result of child sexual abuse. What lets us know is not those initial behaviors, but just talking to the child, having he or she play with dolls or tell a story.

The conference was the first time specialized training on child sexual abuse has been brought to Eastern Kentucky by the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services. Therapists from community mental health and rape crisis centers in the eastern half of the state were invited. The Big Sandy region was represented by 31 professionals at the conference, according to Michael Vance, program director for Human Resources at Mountain Comprehensive Care, who cosponsored the conference with the Department of Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services. Jordan says the number of reported child sexual abuse cases is on the increase, but not because the problem is more common today. "We as professionals are getting better at identifying the problem and victims are coming forward more now," she explained.

LETTERS to the Editor

reflect the view of the Floyd County Times All such letters are subject to editing. Letters uld not exceed 350 words in length and all must bear the signature and complete mail address of the writer.

When there is a matter of service, two positions are necessary: one to give, one to receive. Unless each retain positions of equality, that is, respect for each other, service is dead.

Does a court serve people? Or do people serve a court?

Only a final decision can answer these questions. Pressures, be they human, personal, financial, emotional, or political, are often responsible for 'legal' but invalid decisions. Then "service" ceases to be service and instead becomes positions of slavery and dictatorship

These are two words that Americans often hesitate to pronounce. But if a strip miners are "legally" permitted to destroy a citizen's surface property while the surface owner is "legally" expected to endure without any rights or protection, isn't this enslaving our citizens to the actions of a dictatorship? Can those justices of the Supreme Court who overturned the Broad Form Deed

Law deny this guilt? Can the Supreme Court of Kentucky expect to continue in a role of "service" after such an unjust decision? Our Supreme Court, or any court, should be legally, validly, and conscientiously indebted to the people.

We now have an opportunity to right this injustice by voting on November 8 to amend the Kentucky constitution to limit the abuses of the broad form deed. SR. MARY JUDE LITZINGER

Thanks For Help

I would like to publicly thank the Floyd County Times and our local radio and TV stations for helping us spread the word about our free health information fair held on World Health Day, April 7. You helped bring 239 people to the event, most of whom were teachers and students from our county's schools-Allen Elementary, the David School, Martin Elementary, the Mountain Christian Academy and Allen Central High School. A full schedule prevented us from accomodating Prestonsburg High School, whose teachers and students had also hoped to attend.

I would also like to thank the seven community agencies who graciously and generously joined five departments of Our Lady of the Way Hospital in providing free health information, interesting exhibits and screening teststhe Floyd County Health Department, the Central Kentucky Blood Center, Dr. Edford Clark, Jr., D.M.D., the Kentucky State Police, Mountain Comprehensive Care, and the American Cancer Society.

The World Health Day theme was "Health for All: All for Health." This event was a fine example of this community's best efforts to make that theme a lived reality for Floyd countians. Many thanks

Summer Jobs Program For Low-Income Youth

Youth whose families' incomes are below the federal poverty level should plan now to apply for Kentucky's special summer work and education program.

All of the state's 11 service delivery areas (SDAs) will operate summer employment programs under the Job Training Partnership Act for young people 16 through 21 years old. Four of the SDAs also will serve youth aged 14-15.

'Summer youth initiatives enable us to reach as many as 15,000 young people who might not be able to find a summer job otherwise," said state Job Training Director Charles Furr of the Department for Employment Services. "These same youth will be looking for full-time work in the near future. This program gives them job exposure now and a work history for their resumes

Furr encouraged youth to apply even if they aren't certain the family income falls within federal guidelines. "In some cases, parental income isn't counted in determing who is eligible for this program," he said. "For example, a teen parent wouldn't have to count his or her spouse's or parents' income when applying for a summer youth slot.'

In addition to summer employment, about 15 percent of the participants will be enrolled in education programs, mostly to help them improve their math and reading skills. Selection for this component will be based on students' scores on the Kentucky Essential Skills Test, the Basic Occupational Literacy Test, the Wide Range Achievement Test and/or the Test of Adult Basic Education

Programs for youth aged 14-15 vary among the SDAs. The TENCO area offers only educational improvement programs. The Bluegrass area offers a combination education/work program. In EKCEP, youth in this age group may have a job, be in an education component, or both.

In this area applications are expected to be available in mid-April through school counselors, local Employment Services or EKCEP offices.

Druther's Announces Local Contest Winner

The local Druther's in Martin recently presented Bill Castle, of Langley, with a check in the amount of $100. The check represents one of the 175 possible $100 cash prizes that could have been won in the Druther's Peel-A-Deal contest.

Since February 22, customers visiting a participating Druther's could play Druther's Peel-A-Deal on medium and large french fry cartons and soft drink cups for a chance to win a number of cash or food prizes. Cash prizes included $5,000, $1,000, $100, $50 or $1. Food prizes included Druther's food items which were either free on the next visit or free with a purchase.

Over 150 Druther's restaurants participated in the Peel-A-Deal Contest, distributing over 2,270,000 game pieces. The odds of winning a $100 cash prize was one in 12,971.

sewer line that Jenny Wiley State Park will pay to have installed.

Grease deposits in the line have caused the system to back up and become septic resulting in an odor problem for some residents of the city

"This has been an ongoing problem for three to four years," Howard said, 'and the Department of Parks has agreed to solve the problem by installing new lines and pump stations.

The park's demands have expanded within recent years, and have outgrown the present system which was designed Property owners on Graham and Central Avenues and nearby areas have been plagued by odors from the obsolete system for several years now. But Howard said construction will not be completed until next year, making for another very pungent summer.

Howard also said that the city's role in the construction is not considered unusual in state contracts because it is more economical to supervise the work on a local level.

The subject of fire subscriptions was once again on the council's agenda. The panel reaffirmed a decision made by an earlier council to allow fire subscriptions to be contracted from residents 5-10 miles outside of the city of Prestonsburg. Residents outside the five-mile radius however, are granted subscriptions at the discretion of the fire chief. Tom Blackburn. "Some areas need to be restricted because of access,' Blackburn said. The fire department will immediately begin an inspection of properties under existing contracts to make sure trucks can reach the areas. For future requests, an inspection will be conducted prior to granting the subscription to verify accessibility.

Prestonsburg's parking problem was broached Monday night, by Councilman Michael Vance who proposes that the city provide free parking for the entire downtown area. "I think if we're ever going to do anything to help the downtown merchants, we're going to have to do some things differently, starting with parking," he said.

The proposal would, according to Vance, reduce the city's annual deficit on parking from $31,831.68 to $19,000 or

Other members of the council were not in favor of the idea because free parking had been tried, unsuccessfully, result in the loss of six municipal jobs. City Administrator James spoke on behalf of the city park commission, with a request that Archer Park's swimming pool situation be declared an emergency, "to keep them from having to advertise for two weeks in the paper for the Prestonsburg Park Commissioner Chairman Bill Ray Collins came before the council last month to request that the city secure a loan for the park that would be paid with funds collected from the newly-instituted restaurant tax. The council approved the request and the park was instructed to get bids on the pool work, which includes concrete and tile repair. Monday night's request to declare the pool situation an emergency was denied. The council agreed to invite Kirby Ison, chief district engineer of the Department of Highways to the council's May 9 meeting. City officials have, in the past, requested traffic lights and other possible solutions to traffic problems that ail Prestonsburg, but have consistently been denied.

Future of Transportation Is Topic of Public Forum

The Kentucky Transportation Cabinet is sponsoring a public forum on "The Future of Transportation in the 21st Century," Tuesday, April 19.

The forum will be held in the first floor auditorium of the State Office Building at Clinton & High Streets in Frankfort. The meeting runs from 9:30 a.m. to 11:30 p.m. and from 1:00 p.m. to 3:00 p.m. The forum will provide an opportunity for members of the private sector, local officials, corporations, groups and the general public, through either written testimony or oral statement, to present their opinions on transportation in the state. Information gathered will be analyzed and used to formulate transportation policy and plans through the 1990's and into the 21st century.

There is no pre-registration required, and there is no cost. However, persons wishing to pre-register or submit a written statement are encouraged to do so through registration and questionnaire forms, which can be obtained by writing to David Smith, Assistant State Highway Engineer for Planning, Kentucky Transportation Cabinet, Frankfort, Kentucky 40622, or by phoning at (502) 564-3730.

CENTRAL KENTUCKY BLOOD CENTER

Why the problem here? According to Reynolds, part of the situation stems from a Scottish-Irish tradition of burning ground cover which has been handed down for generations among many mountain families. Of the 3,283 forest fires reported during 1987, 933 were determined to have been caused by the careless burning of trash. In other cases, it was pointed out, some people wrongly think burning the woods would rid them of ticks, chiggers and snakes.

The terrain works against Eastern Kentucky woodlands as trash fires set in the narrow bottoms can relatively easily spread to hillsides almost always nearby and, unbelievably, arsonists cause many of the area's fires. In 1987, for instance, 1,445 of the 3,282 fires reported statewide, were caused by woods arsonists.

A major problem, and one which forestry officials combat through educational programs, is the feeling among many residents of Eastern Kentucky that fires don't really cause much damage as they burn over slopes and ridges. Mark Hooks, who specializes in forest management for the Eastern District, is quick to point out the fallacy of this notion.

Because fires in the area do not normally burn with the dramatic intensity and speed which is common among western conifer stands, many see forest fires in the area as more of a help in burning out briars, vines and other underbrush. "But what happens is that you're burning out the regeneration capabilities in the understory," explained Hooks, who pointed out that seeds and seedlings are killed outright in such fires while mature trees sustain severe damage as well although it may not be immediately apparent.

Even with larger trees, according to Hooks, "a really hot fire can kill 80-90 percent of the stand although they may not die right away." Fire will almost invariably scar the upper side of the tree particularly killing bark layers. "This allows the entry of insects and disease and although the scar will heal over, the disease and insect damage has already set up," Hooks said. What appears to be a perfectly sound tree may well turn out to be slowly dying and worthless for use

For this reason, beeches, a species which is particularly susceptible to fire damage, are of little value in Eastern Kentucky. Most area hardwoods, in fact, regularly bring only about a third of the price paid in Central and Western Kentucky since damage from fire is so common, according to Hooks.

Most fires in Floyd are either deliberately set by arsonists or are the result of irresponsible burning of trash and clearing activities. It is to the credit of the Division of Forestry here that 32 citations were issued in connection with the 48 fires experienced in the county this spring. But such citations, according to District Forester Brackett, are rather casually regarded, by the courts especially in Floyd county, where there is only about a 10 percent conviction rate, one of the lowest in the state.

"Lawrence county has about a 75 percent conviction rate," Brackett said, "and the number of fires in that county are way down as a result."

As long as illegal burning citations are routinely "filed away" in Floyd county, Brackett believes, the rate at which the county's forest reserves are being lost will never be slowed.

During the spring fire season, which lasts until May 15, burning of any kind of material located within 150 feet of any woodlands is prohibited and all burning must be carried out between 4:30 p.m. and 12 midnight, Brackett stressed. With trees and other plants not yet fully bloomed, he expects fires to plague the area for the next few weeks. Three fires, in fact, were being fought in this county, Monday, by Division of Forestry

D.E.S. Workshop Conducted Here

By Tim Sizemore

The third and last in a series of workshops around the state was held here Friday and Saturday at the Holiday Inn by Disaster and Emergency Services of Kentucky.

The purpose of the emergency management workshops is to acquaint local D.E.S. staff, fire departments and rescue squads with the operations of the agency and changes in state and federal regulations.

The meetings, held annually, are designed to help the participants deal with job-related stress and answer any questions they may have.

Of particular concern at this year's meeting was radiological material in the atmosphere known as radon gas which is the result of the breakdown of uranium.

Ex-Director of the D.E.S., Donald Armstrong, said that the emission of the gas is a state wide problem and that the effects of the gas are long-term and, in chronic cases can cause cancer.

Armstrong commented that the organizations involved in the workshop are doing an excellent job of informing the public about the purpose and function of the agency.

Sour Kentucky River With Gurney Norman

Enjoy a guided tour of the Kentucky River-from its headwaters in the eastern Kentucky mountains to its confluence with the Ohio River near Carrollton-with host Gurney Norman, on Time On the River, airing Sunday, April 24 at 4 p.m. on KET

Norman, the son of a Kentucky coal miner, later worked as reporter and editor for The Hazard Herald. During the turbulent 60s he published his novel, Divine Rights Trip, and while living in Berkeley, Calif., was one of several Sunders of The Whole Earth Catalogue.

Time On the River takes a historical look at the important role this waterway played in the settlement of Kentucky. Boonesboro was located on the river in 1775, and later steamboats and logs for the timber industry floated to their destination on it. In the 19th century, resort areas appeared in Henry County (Drennon Springs). The state's capital was established at Frankfort because the river provided easy access.

Norman, now a professor of creative writing at the University of Kentucky, explores the contemporary uses of the river, and controversial issues that swirl the flotsam around it. This half-hour special shows the river in its various stages throughout the year

Norman, as writer and narrator, says, "Spending time on the river causes you to realize not your insignificance in the world, but rather your complete significance as a part of the whole system of nature, and of time.

Floyd Freshmen Compete In Morehead S.U. Pageant

Elizabeth Ann Howard, Auxier, daughter of Chalmer Howard, and Kitty Moore, Hi Hat, daughter of Jackie Martin, are competing in the 21st annual pageant, April 18-19. Both students are freshmen.

Making appearances on both days will be Elizabeth Gray McDowell, Miss Kentucky 1987; Glenda Rene Haney, Miss MSU 1987, and Laurie Keller, Miss Kentucky 1985, Appearing Tuesday only will be Miss America 1988, Kaye Lani Ray

The Pageant, sponsored by MSU's Panhellenic and Interfraternity Councils, is an official preliminary of the Miss Kentucky Pageant. This year's theme will be "Broadway Tonight," and performances will begin at 7:30 each evening in Button Auditorium.

The Floyd contestants, among 17 others, will be judged in evening gown competition, swimsuit competition, talent competition, and a seven-minute private interview.

KET Continues Election Coverage

The MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour's original plans for the 1988 election year called for what may end up being the most exhaustive television coverage of a presidential campaign ever attempted by a single program, according to Lester M. Crystal, executive producer of the KET viewers can watch The MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour's continuing coverage leading to the national conventions and the November election, weeknights at 10:00 p.m.

As the election year begins to wind down, numerous interviews with the re-Miss Morehead University Scholarship maining candidates and extensive reporting on their platforms will be conducted by an all-star cast of reporters and analysts.

"The NewsHour offers a consumer's guide to the election," Crystal says. Rather than focusing solely on the horserace aspects of the campaign, our ultimate goal is to provide political coverage that gives our viewers a solid understanding of what the candidates have done in the past, where they stand on the issues of the day, where they are getting their support, and how they are adapting to the inevitable turbulence of the campaign, he adds.

Tame your taxes with an IRA account at First Commonwealth

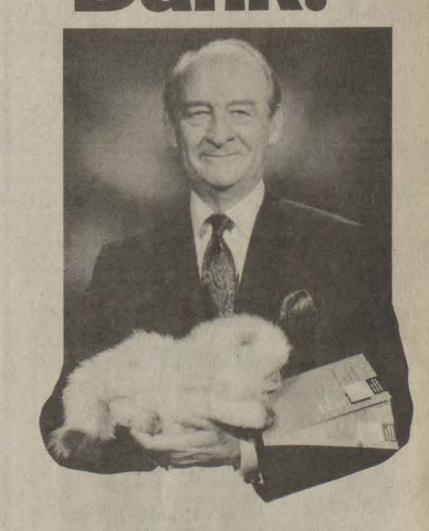

While helping yourself toward a more comfortable retirement, you may still qualify for a full tax deduction. Most people do. Full deductions are still available on new IRA's, or deposits to existing accounts.

Here is how it works under the new tax law: If you don't participate in any kind of retirement plan where you work, you can claim a full IRA deduction on deposits up to $2,000 regardless of your income. Or, if you do participate in a retirement plan and your adjusted gross income is less than $40,000 jointly if married, or $25,000 if single, you also qualify for a full deduction.

Even if your income is higher, partial deductions may still apply.

At First Commonwealth, you can open an IRA for any amount. You can add to it weekly, monthly, or with annual deposits. And right now, First Commonwealth is paying a very attractive rate on all IRA accounts, new or existing.

To learn more, stop in at any First Commonwealth branch or phone 886-2321 and talk with Sarah Howard. Ask for our free IRA brochures and plan now to open or add to a valuable First Commonwealth IRA.

Unmined Minerals Tax Collection

The unmined minerals tax will be collected on all coal property in Kentucky. but the state Revenue Cabinet will not have implementing legislation to carry out this task.

That is the outcome of a wild, final two weeks of the Kentucky General Assembly which saw intense lobbying by citizen and industry interests on various unmined minerals tax proposals.

Even though no legislation was passed, we've still got what we've worked long and hard for," said Estelle Walter, a member of Kentuckians For The Commonwealth from Jefferson County. "The Kentucky Supreme Court ordered on March 3 that the tax exemption on unmined coal property be removed and that it be taxed at the same rate as all other real property, and now the Revenue Cabinet must carry this out."

The Supreme Court ruling set off a legislative scramble as KFTC pushed legislation to implement the ruling and provide protections for small landowners and farmers while the coal industry looked for ways to get around the court's directive.

Legislation sponsored by Rep. Clayton Little, filed before the court ruling, called for the full taxation of unmined coal and directed the Revenue Cabinet to set up a program for doing so. After the court ruling, the legislation was still important because of the protections for small landowners it contained as well as its $1 million appropriation for implementing the program. HB 917 would also have ensured that county governments and schools could apply local tax rates to unmined minerals.

Here's what happened to the legisla-

* March 9: The House Appropriations and Revenue Committee approved HB 917 by a 13-5 vote. The legislation was sent to House floor on March 17.

· March 18: Numerous floor amendments to the bill were filed, including two by Little to provide small coal producers a severance tax offset for any unmined minerals tax paid and to impose a 10 percent tax on coal royalties, and two by Rep. Bobby Richardson to put a 10-cent cap on the local taxation of unmined coal and expand the benefits of this tax break to the oil and gas industry. Previous to Richardson's amendment, oil and gas properties were not included in discussions about unmined minerals since these reserves are already taxed under a separate

· March 21: A compromise was reached which included the original legislation with the severance tax offset to help coal producers but without a royalties

· March 22: Despite the previous day's compromise, Little learned that House leaders were still supporting amendments to delay in the implementation of the court's ruling, Based on this lack of good-faith bargaining and the air of uncertainty, Little determined that it was best not to push the bill and to let it die rather than be gutted.

'KFTC's position was that no legislation was better than Richardson's amendment," explained Walter. "KFTC could not sit back and watch county governments and schools lose hundreds of thousands of dollars just to give a special interest a tax break.

'It's amazing that House members would allow themselves to be pressured into taking legislation designed to raise millions of dollars for education and local services and turning it into a tax giveaway for the coal, oil and gas industries," said Denise Giardina, a KFTC member from Floyd county. "We twice reached a compromise to coal operators a severance tax credit, but both times they reneged on the agreement. The big money interests just got too greedy, and now they will have to pay both the unmined minerals tax and the severance tax.'

KFTC says it will work to get protections for small landowners and farmers adopted administratively by the Revenue Cabinet as part of its program for carrying out the court's ruling. There is precedent for the type of classification system KFTC proposes in the way that agricultural assessments are done. KFTC will also work for a ruling to classify unmined coal property as "new" property so that the unmined minerals tax revenue generated will not be subject to restrictions on property tax revenue growth.

If necessary, KFTC says it will go to court to win the protections and gain the

Awards Program Open For Energy Savers

Kentuckians who have a working project that conserves energy or uses renewable energy resources is eligible to participate in the 1988 National Awards Program for Energy Imposation

The Kentucky Energy Cabinet, in conjunction with the U.S. Department of Energy, is conducting the program which will recognize unique and outstanding conservation and renewable energy

The National Awards Program for Energy Innovation was launched in 1984 by the U.S. Department of Energy to encourage the sharing of energy saving accomplishments and technologies among state and local governments and private sector groups.

Four factors will determine the 1988 award winning projects. The factors are innovation, transferability, energy savings and economic impact. In the past, projects have been submitted by private industry, major corporations, homeowners, farmers, entrepreneurs, inventors, and small business owners.

Deadline for entry is May 15. Up to five of the most outstanding projects will be selected for consideration by the U.S. Department of Energy for national recognition. Kentucky will also give special recognition to the most outstanding submissions.

For a brochure outlining the application process for the 1988 National Awards Program for Energy Innovation, contact the Kentucky Energy Cabinet, P.O. Box 11888, Iron Works Pike, Lexington, Ky. 40578-1916, (606) 252-5535.

Berries Need Pruning Too But Technique Is Different

Just like fruit trees, the vines and bushes that most Kentucky berries and grapes grow on need to be pruned to provide maximum production.

Whether you're talking about raspberries, blackberries, grapes, or gooseberries, pruning those vines helps put more fruit on the table at harvest time. The techniques of pruning, however, differ.

For example, black and purple raspberries require both dormant and summer pruning, said Gerald Brown, Extension fruits specialist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

During the dormant spring season, four fo six of last year's canes should be left on each hill, and all lateral branches from the previous year's growth should be cut back to about 10 to 12 inches, he said. Then in the summer, growers should pinch off the growing tips of the new canes as they reach two feet for black and three feet for purple rasp-berries. This causes side branches to

Spring bearing red raspberries commonly grow in a hedgerow system, Brown said. The row should be 14 to 18 inches wide. Tips are not pinched back for these berries since they do not branch in response to the practice. Weak and dead canes should be removed in the spring, leaving four or five vigorous ones for each foot of hedgerow.

Bike-A-Thon Set At Grethel Sat.

A Bike-a-Thon to benefit the St. Judes Children's Research Hospital will be held Saturday, April 23, at the John M. Stumbo Elementary School, from 9 a.m. until 2 p.m. Bike-a-Thon coordinators, Jackie King and Deloris Knausz encourage Grethel residents to join the St. Jude Children's Research Hospital "Wheels For Life" Bike-a-Thon.

This ride honors Brian, a leukemia patient at St. Jude. With every turn of the wheel, riders become "spokes"—men for all the kids with cancer, like Brian. This ride is a vital part of the fight against childhood cancer at St. Jude. Riders are needed.

Riders sign up sponsors who promise to make a donation based on each mile completed. Each rider gets a lap card at registration. Every time a rider passes the checkpoint officials initial the card. At the end of the ride, officials check and sign it to show that the rider earned what the sponsor pledged. Riders return to sponsors to collect the pledge. All riders turning in money will receive a certificate. Those who raise $25 receive a certificate and a St. Jude Tshirt, and $75 earns a sports bag, a Tshirt and a certificate. Additional prizes of $50 U.S. Savings Bonds, donated by local banks, will be awarded to riders turning in the most money and riding the

"Thorny blackberries should be pruned similarly to black raspberries," Brown said. "Canes may be allowed to become slightly higher before summer

• pinching, however." Semi-erect thornless blackberries should be trained on a trellis. Vigorous ones can be pinched when they get above the top trellis wire to help them keep in bounds. Then in the early spring before buds begin to swell, reduce the total cane number by about one-third, leaving the thickest, most vigorous ones.

Grapes should be pruned in early spring after the severe cold weather is past, Brown said.

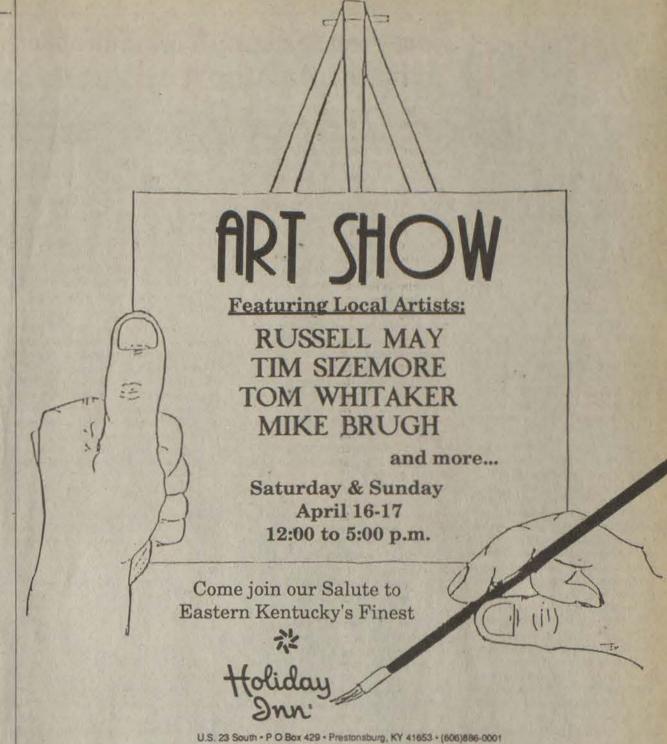

"Don't prune them while the wood is frozen, because frozen canes are brittle and the vines could be damaged," he said. "Pruning in late spring causes bleeding (sap flow) to occur, but there is no evidence such bleeding is harmful."

At planting, cut the vine back to two buds and train one trunk up to the top of the trellis by pinching off the lateral growth during the growing season.

The top one-third of the blueberry plant should be removed at the initial planting. For the next two years little pruning is needed except to remove broken or damaged branches. After the third growing season, prune the bush to open up the center early in spring.

Currants and gooseberries are pruned in late winter before growth begins. Both have similar growth patterns. After the first season, retain six to eight of the most vigorous shoots on a plant and cut the others off at ground level. After the second season leave four or five vigorous one-year-old shoots and three or four two-year-old canes. After the third year, retain three or four each from the one, two and three year canes. Since canes that are four-years-old or older produce very little fruit, those older canes should be removed.

Wild Hog Removed From Varmint List

Due to problems with deer and turkey poaching in some southeastern Kentucky counties, the wild hog has been removed from the unprotected species list by the state fish and wildlife commission

Previously, as a varmint, wild hogs could be hunted year around and thus provided poachers the opportunity to be in the woods at any time with a highpowered rifle. This caused law enforcement problems since poachers could easily shoot deer if the opportunity was available, while allegedly hunting wild

The wild hog is still considered a nuisance species and eradication continues to be the goal. However, biologists agree that reductions in the number of wild hogs can be accomplished without hampering the protection of deer and turkey, two game animals on which a considerable amount of time, money and effort has been spent.

The latter is particularly true in the southeast portion of the state, where wild hog populations are greatest and the deer and turkey populations are just starting to increase.

Therefore, hunters will only be able to take wild hogs during a deer season and if they have a valid deer tag in possession. Hunters must use whatever weapon is legal for deer at the time they are hunting. Wild hogs do not have to be tagged, but must be checked in at the nearest deer check station.

Allowing hunters to take wild hogs during the deer season should help reduce poaching problems outside the deer and turkey seasons, while continuing the effort to eliminate this destructive animal from Kentucky's fields and

Conference Completes School Improvement Act

Congressman Perkins announced recently the successful completion of the House and Senate Conference on the School Improvement Act of 1987.

'This legislation is one of the most far reaching education bill of this decade, and begins to make good on the Federal promise to join with state and school districts in enhancing the quality of our Nation's educational programs, elementary through high school," said Congressman Perkins. "This legislation reaffirms the Federal commitments to both access to quality education for disadvantaged students, and excellence in education for the Nation as a whole."

The heart of this bill is the Chapter 1 compensatory education for disadvantaged children program, which is funded at over $4 billion dollars and reaches approximately five and a half (512) million children across the country. This legislation is strengthened, and support is committed by the bill's request to see a $500 million increase in the federal funding each year for the next five until every eligible child is served.

The Congressman added, "An important part of the Chapter 1 legislation is the inclusion of a new formula to drive the next $400 million of new money for will be distributed by the grant the program into the areas that have the or the highest number of poverty children. This would share the money between the rural districts and the inner Congressman Perkins cited the Senate's acceptance of the House formula of the Concentration Grant program as a victory for the rural areas of this country and in particular the State of Kentucky. The Senate's version of this formula would have sent the majority of the money to the urban areas and cities and would have once again neglected the rural school districts-in particular the Southern states.

'It is absolutely necessary to have a Concentration Grant formula that helps the rural Southern children as well as those in urban areas," stated Perkins. 'Under the Perkins formula, Kentucky will get about $3 million more than we would have in the Senate proposed formula. This is just the beginning, because with this favorable formula in place, 10% of all new money that will come into Chapter 1 after the initial $400 million Congressman Perkins said, "This is highest percentage of poverty children the largest single pot of money for children in the federal budget, and we should make the very best use of it as possible. This legislation does this by providing money for Chapter 1, Drug Free Schools, Adult Education for adult literacy, Impact Aid, the Math and Science Program, and many other important programs.

Combs maintains as well that the trips waste taxpayers' money.

Supreme Court Press Officer Pam Vest said, "It's not any major expenditure, it's just considered routine work of the court. Justice Stephens thinks education is important enough to justify a small extra expense, but if it were an extremely large amount, we wouldn't do Justice Stephenson said the trip to the eastern half of the state was discussed shortly after the court's visit to Western Kentucky last year, and that Chief Justice Stephens suggested the location of this year's appearance. "He's in charge of administrative details and we abide by them," Stephenson said. The Supreme Court's visits across the state are part of an effort to educate and acquaint Kentuckians with the court's functions.

Oral arguments will be heard by the court in Pikeville, Thursday, April 21 in Pikeville College's Armington Science Learning Center auditorium.

Participants must pre-register by April 14. For additional information or pre-registration, please call Naewana Nickles at 285-3909.

Karl Forester Nominated To Fill Federal Judgeship

Kentucky Sens. Wendell Ford and Mitch McConnell recently announced that President Reagan has nominated Harlan attorney Karl Forester to fill the opening on the U.S. District Court bench in Pikeville left vacant by the illness of Judge G. Wix Unthank

"I think the President has made an excellent choice," McConnell said. "Karl Forester is a man of honesty and integrity, I have no doubts that he will distinguish himself as a federal judge serving the people of Kentucky," he

Ford said comments received by his office indicate that Forester "is held in highest regard by his colleagues in the legal profession. I am confident that the federal judicial branch will be enhanced by the addition of a Kentuckian with such an excellent reputation.

There is no pre-registration for the music contest, however participants may register at the band stand at 7 p.m.

UNWARY BATHERS SELDOM SEE Australia's box jelly before they bump into it-but they certainly feel it. According to International Wildlife magazine, many victims initially mistake the jellyfish's sting for a shark bite. But they barely have time to get to the shore. the venom stops the heart—ping! Death can occur in as little as 30 seconds. Oddly, for such a deadly animal, it is easily foiled. Lifeguards patrolling high-risk bathing areas wear pantyhose, which the jellyfish's stingers can't penetrate.

WKU Professor Wins Acclaim For Theories on Radiation

A Western Kentucky University proessor who is a nationally recognized expert on the influence of ultraviolet radiation on living things continues to make the national headlines

Dr. Thomas P. Coohill, head of WKU's physics and astronomy department, was quoted in some of the country's major metropolitan newspapers such as the New York Times, San Francisco Examiner, plus other major metropolitan media after he spoke to a gathering of the nation's top scientists last month.

Coohill is president-elect of the American Society for Photobiology, and at the organization's annual meeting in Colorado Springs discussed with scientists the 2.3 decrease in the protective ozone layer which has occurred since 1969 over the United States. "Ultraviolet light can have deleterious effects on the genetic material in plants," Coohill said, and the shrinkage in the ozone layer could cause widespread decreases in plant growth on a global scale.

Implications of the gradual erosion of the earth's protective ozone layer was one of the subjects of the meeting, and scientists shared their latest research findings.

For example, his studies of the Herpes Simplex I virus resulted in application for a patent for the use of butylated hydroxy toluene (BHT), a food preservative, as a treatment for the virus.

Coohill was the first to orally test BHT on rabbits inflicted with the virus. The objective was to inhibit and hopefully prevent herpes in the eyes, and to test the effects of BHT as a membrane perturber on herpes virus.

During the 1986-87 school year, on a $50,000 grant from the National Academy of Sciences, Coohill worked with scientists at the Jet Propulsion laboratory at Cal Tech University in Pasadena, and at the University of California at Berkeley studying the effects of radiation on living matter. The work was done for the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA)

This experiment involves sending 100 million nematodes (worms) into space on a future space shuttle mission to aid scientists studying safety factors paving the way for human space travel.

"The effects of radiation (possibly cancer) would show up in worms within a few days in humans it may take 20 eyears," he says, adding, "It is also very expensive to send humans into space whereas these animal models can give us statistically significant results for a small expenditure of money

"Until now the astronauts have not suffered from extreme amounts of radiation as they have orbited the earth near the equator where they are protected by the Van Allen Belts, magnetic fields around the earth," Coohill

Coohill is a former chairman of Western's faculty senate. He received the Outstanding Teacher Award from WKU's Ogden College in 1980, and

Gone with the wind: Over six billion tons of soil are wind-swept or rainwashed off U.S. farmland, forests, rangelands and streambanks each year. According to National Wildlife magazine, that's enough soil to fill a line of dump trucks stretching from the earth to the moon and three-quarters of the way back Biological treasures: Amber is fossilized plant resin that takes about five million years to form. Many pieces of amber contain the remains of insects, other animals or plants. The oldest known amber-preserved insects date back 130 million years. According to International Wildlife magazine, some researchers say that such insects may help explain the course of evolution. They may even help scientists better understand dinosaurs, what they looked like and how they acted.

Stylists Win Top Awards

For the second consecutive year hair styling teams from Fantastic Sams stores in Pikeville, Prestonsburg and Paintsville recently brought home top honors. Two styling teams composed of six stylists and six models traveled to Cincinnati, March 27, to compete in the area stylist's competition.

The Pikeville team won first place and also the three individual titles of Top Male Model, Top Female Model and Top Child Model. They are automatically entered in the Fantastic Sam's championship competition to be held at Opryland in Nashville Tennessee, Memorial Day weekend. The Prestonsburg team won second place honors as well as all three individual second place model awards.

Members of the Pikeville team were Sherry Elswick, Paul Coleman, and Linda Wallace, Prestonsburg members were Phyllis McNeil, Patty Hitchcock and Deloris Arnett.

Travel Budget Tips For Summer, 1988 From Bluegrass AAA

A family of two adults and two chidren will spend an average of $170 per day for meals and lodging, plus $22 for 300 miles of daily travel, the Blue Grass Automobile Club-AAA recommends. AAA's auto vacation budget rose nearly eight percent, or $14 per day when compared to 1987 cost estimates.

The suggested vacation budget includes $90 for meals; $80 for lodging and $7.40 per 100 miles (7.4 cents per mile) for gas and oil with a car averaging 23 miles a gallon.

Vacation expenditures will vary by area, with higher rates expected in large metropolitan areas and at resorts in

In addition, a family should budget for amusements, admission tickets, recreation and shopping. A reserve fund for emergencies also should be included, especially if the family does not carry

To help reduce family vacation costs,

AAA suggests that vacationers: Put the car in top mechanical condition.

 Avoid stop-and-go urban rush hours. —Make advance lodging reservations. -Reduce meal costs by scheduling a picnic along the way or eating at fast-food restaurants; -Have the main meal at mid-day to take advantage of lower lunch prices at restaurants. Many restaurants also offer children's menus and "early bird" dinner specials, both at reduced prices.

Governor's School for the Arts Includes Two Floyd Students

By Joe Porter

"Congratulations! You have been selected as a student in Vocal Music for the 1988 Governor's School for the Arts, said a letter written by Director David X Thurmond to two Floyd county high school students

Slade Stumbo is a 17-year-old junior at Mountain Christian Academy and the son of Vernon and Pamela Stumbo, of McDowell. Beth Hall, 16, is a junior at Prestonsburg High School and the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Dickie Hall, of Prestonsburg. Both students have been selected as vocalists for the prestigious award. The school is a threeweek program that begins July 3 and is being hosted by Bellarmine College in Louisville.

Stumbo, who also auditioned in dramatics, sang "Boi Soir," an early contemporary French song by Debussey. The audition consisted of an interview, a sight-reading of music, and the singing of scales along with the song. Stumbo has been singing since the age of five. He has also studied Jazz dance for four years and performed in four productions in the last two season at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre

The Governor's School for the Arts was founded in 1986 by Governor Martha Layne Collins and offers training in: dance, drama, visual art, creative writing, vocal music, and instrumental music; the faculty is composed of professional artists and art educators well known for their teaching ability. Along with intensive instruction in their field of specialization, each student will participate in a wide variety of classes, activities, lectures, and performances.

Hall sang an Italian Aria in her audition, but according to her Prestonsburg teacher Elizabeth Frazier, she sings popular songs as well blues and Jazz pieces. "She's quite outstanding," Frazier said of her pupil. "She plays the piano and received a superior rating as a vocal soloist at the Kentucky Music Educators Association Competition in Pikeville March 28." Hall is interested in the performing arts and plans to study Musical Theatre in college. Besides singing in the High School Honor Choir, Hall was selected for the Kentucky All-State Chorus that performed in Louisville in February. "She's very ambitious," said Frazier. "She's eager and wants to learn and it's a joy to work with Last year Hall was selected as an alternate. This year Lynon Frazier, a pianist, and Stacy Webb, a singer, were selected as alternates. Both are 15 and sophomores at Prestonsburg High Frazier is the daughter of William C

Frazier of Ashland and Mrs. Suzanne Totten of Prestonsburg. Webb is the son. of Mr. and Mrs. William Webb of Prestonsburg

Applicants for the school must be sophomores and juniors in Kentucky high schools and legal residents. Talent is the main criterion for entrance as well as artistic achievement and high motivation. Of the 1200 students trying out for it this year 150 were accepted.

'Slade is an outstanding young man with a very beautiful baritone voice, said Joe Hall, Stumbo's teacher at MCA. Hall also holds the governor's school in high regard. "This is a prestigious affair. It's a wonderful experience. They perform and are given private instrucion as well. It's highly academic, and it promotes the arts.

Two From Floyd Among Contestants For Miss MSU Title *

Two Floyd county students are among the 19 contestants in the 1988 Miss Morehead State University Scholarship Pageant, April 18-19, in Button Auditorium, beginning at 7:30 nightly.

Elizabeth Anne Howard, Auxier freshman and daughter of Chalmer Howard, will present a vocal performance in the competition. She is a member of the University Chorus and Delta Gamma sorority.

Kitty Moore, Hit Hat freshman and the daughter of Jackie Martin, will present a dance routine in the competition. She is a member of the Modern Dance Group at MSU.

Special guests for the Pageant will include Kaye Lani Ray Rafko, Miss America 1988; Elizabeth Gray McDowell, Miss Kentucky 1987; Glenda Rene Haney, Miss MSU 1987 and Laurie Keller, Miss Kentucky 1985.

Tickets for the event are $3 per night for MSU students with valid L.D. cards, and $6 per night for the general public. A special package is available at $5 for both nights for MSU students and $10 for both nights for the general public if purchased in advance. All seats are reserved.

Tickets will be available at the door on Pageant nights. Additional information is available by calling (606) 784-6974.

How did the White House gets its pure name? In 1814, a fire blackened the walls. The smoke-stained walls were painted white, giving rise to the title.

Family Fun Day Set At Archer Park

The first annual Family Fun Day has been scheduled for Saturday, April 30, at Archer Park. This project, which is being co-ordinated by the Prestonsburg Rotary Club with the assistance of the City of Prestonsburg and sponsored by local businessmen, is aimed at providing an entire day of family entertainment.

Some of the many events scheduled for Family Fun Day include a Shoot-the-Hoop contest, a Softball Longest-Hitters' contest, an Archery Shoot and a Dunking Booth. Also included are many members of the "a-thon" family specifically, a walk-a-thon, a bike-athon, a trike-a-thon and a skate-a-thon. Concessions will be available throughout the day, as well as various forms of entertainment for the family

One of the featured events of the day will be a duo of skydivers at 2 p.m. In conjunction with the sky jump will be an unusual contest in which the winners will be determined by the landing location of the divers. First prize will be a color TV and second prize will be a VCR.

All of the proceeds raised during Family Fun Day will be contributed to the Rotary International Polio Plus Campaign. This campaign is a project which has been undertaken by Rotary International to support the worldwide immunization efforts of UNICEF and the World Health Organization to irradicate polio and five other vaccinepreventable diseases by 1990. As the cost to vaccinate one child for polio is only 12 cents, your support of this local project will go far toward the worldwide elimination of this disease.

For further information about Family Fun Day!, look for posters to appear in and around town, or contact any member of the Prestonsburg Rotary Club, or phone 886-2277.

Q. I heard a lot of people on estate with no money down. I have tried it with no success.

Everywhere I go they want a downpayment. Why do people want the downpayment when the people on television say you can buy real estate with no money

A. We have learned a number of new things about real estate in the last few years. We learned that interest rates could go up to 20% (which nobody with any sense would have predicted) and then come down to 9% (which nobody with any sense would have predicted).

We have learned also that real estate works in different ways in different parts of the country. It seems to work on a regional basis rather than the same way across the entire United States,

There are parts of the country where the real estate market got so bad people were willing to give their property away in order to stop making the payments. For the most part, this did not happen in Kentucky.

Since people were not desperate, they did not have to take chances with no money down. And it is a big chance that you take when you sell your property without a down-

It is much easier for the buyer to walk away from a piece of property if he or she has not made a downpayment. The buyer with no money down really has not made an investment, and only investments create obligations like making monthly mortgage This is the general reason why banks, savings and loan associations and mortgage bankers do not make loans with no money down.

They have their own obligation to their shareholders, depositors and investors to make the best loans It is the same reason that a homeowner should not allow someone to buy his or her property without a downpayment. The seller is completely unprotected. If the property is damaged, the buyer can walk away. The seller's only option is to sue the buyer.

There is a good chance that the buyer who does not have a downpayment to make on the property has no other resources. If you sue someone with no resources, your chance of success hardly exists.

It is possible, if you do not receive a downpayment, to wind up in worse shape than when you started. You might have to take the property back, and it might need thousands of dollars worth of

Jail Term Set In Truck Theft

By Joe Porter

Twelve months in county jail, probation after 30 days served, and a $100 tine. That was the sentence a Floyd Circuit Court jury recommended for two codefendants found guilty of unauthorized use of a motor vehicle

Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley concurred with the jury's recommendation. immediately sentenced the two defendants to 12 months in county jail, and said he would consider probation after reviewing the case.

The co-defendants, James Patrick, 21, and James Griffith, 18, both of Martin. were charged with theft by unlawful taking, a felony. The two men were alledged to have stolen a 1980 Toyota pickup truck valued at $2,500. The truck was taken on the evening of February 7, 1987 from Jimmy Branham's in Allen, according to its owner Charles Prater, who reported it missing the next morning.

While on trial for the same crime, the two defendants told the jury different stories about what happened. According -to Patrick both of them stole and drove the car, but Griffith left the car after it broke down at 3 a.m. on U.S. 23 near the Holiday Inn. At that time State Trooper Lloyd Stapleton arrested Patrick for DUI and obtained a statement from the defendant who admitted stealing the truck. Soon after Stapleton located Griffith walking on U.S. 23 and questioned him, but did not arrest him.

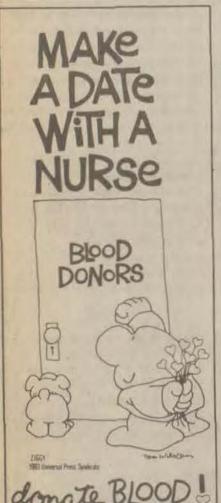

Griffith told the court that while he had been drinking with Patrick earlier in the night, he did not steal the truck. and was hitchhiking when Stapleton stopped him. Griffith, who was 17 and a juvenile at the time of the crime, was tried as an adult based on a hearing and Order of Transfer. A few days after February 7 he was charged with the

In his closing statement, Eddie Coleman, Patrick's defense attorney, asked the jury not to find his client guility of the felony, but rather the misdemeanor: unauthorized use of a motor vehicle 'This is the first time I've ever asked a jury to find a client of mine guilty," Coleman said. "The rationale behind it is that they'll find him guilty of a lesser charge, and I think that would be the appropriate verdict.

Jack Richendollar, the court appointed attorney for Griffith, said after the trial that he was disappointed that Judge Conley had overruled his motion for a directed verdict. The defense attorney asked for a dismissal based on a lack of evidence linking his client to the

Yet Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton remained firm in his pursuit of a felony conviction "Both were responsible. Both are guilty of theft by unlawful taking," he said in his summation. "I ask you to convict them. I ask you to do your duty and bring back a guilty

Patrick and Griffith could have received a maximum sentence of five guilty of the felony

Having Your Cheese And Less Fat, Too

From the American Institute for Cancer Research

Health and nutrition research has time and again shown the significant health hazard of high levels of fat in the typical American diet. High fat diets have been linked to not only increased amounts of heart disease, but also higher rates of breast cancer, colorectal cancer and prostate cancer.

Cheese is often targeted as a food to eliminate as one way of lowering fat. However, that isn't really necessary. Cheese is an excellent source of protein, calcium and other nutrients. By choosing lower-fat cheeses, limiting portions and using moderation as a guideline, cheese can still be enjoyed as part of a sensible nutritional plan.

-When shopping for cheese, look for cheese made with skim milk, for these have the butterfat removed. Skim-milk Mozzarella, Cheddar, Swiss and other varieties are now available

-Cottage, Pot, Farmer and Ricotta cheeses are all lowfat cheeses.

-Cheeses made with goats' milk tend to have a lower fat content.

-Pasteurized processed cheese 'food" has higher water content and lower fat content that natural or pasteurized process cheese.

There are also many imitation cheese products now available which may be 'cheese-like" in flavor and have lower fat content. Keep in mind, however, that these do not offer the same nutritional values as real cheese.

When cooking it is often possible to use a very small amount of a highly flavored cheese, such as Parmesan, and still get a good cheese flavor.

EGGPLANT RICOTTA

2 small eggplants 3 thsp. bran

1/2 tsp. oregano

1/2 tsp. basil

2 tsp. margarine

3/4 cup onion, finely chopped 1/2-1 tsp. garlic, minced

1 15-ounce container part-skim ricotta cheese

3 tbsp. (about 2 ounces) part-skim Mozzarella cheese, grated

2 large tomatoes

Slice the eggplants crosswise into circles. Salt lightly to draw out excess moisture if desired. Arrange the slices on oiled cookie sheets and bake at 375 degrees for about 15 minutes or until tender, Meanwhile, combine the bran with the oregano and basil. When the eggplant is done, remove it from the oven and sprinkle it with the bran mixture.

Saute the onions and garlic in margarine until soft, stirring to prevent

* Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: I am a 34 year old woman in good health. I had a chest xray a few months ago, just before I had my gallbladder removed. This x-ray showed a granuloma. What is a granuloma? My surgeon wants to do a follow-up chest x-ray in six months. Is this normal? I am afraid that too many x-rays will cause a cancer

ANSWER: Granulomas are noncancerous masses that can form when a foreign material, such as bacteria, enters the body. If the body cannot get rid of the invading agent in other ways, a number of cells will collect around it and wall it off. These cells appear as a halo around the object. Formation of a granuloma is often a reaction to persistent irritation. Granulomas seen on chest x-rays are usually small dense areas due to a remote infection, sometimes tuberculosis, which is no longer active.

Your concern about overexposure to radiation is understandable. Large doses of radiation are known to cause cancer. However, the exposure to radiation during a diagnostic x-ray is very low. According to the American Cancer Society, the best evidence indicates that there is not a particular accumulated dose of radiation above which cancer always appears. Radiation induced cancers most commonly appear in individuals who have been exposed to high levels of radiation, as a result of treatment with x-rays (not diagnostic x-rays) or atomic blasts.

Whenever an x-ray is recommended, it is important to weigh the risks of the procedure against the benefits. If you are a smoker close follow-up will be needed to be sure that the mass on the x-ray is a granuloma and not something more serious. Even if you are not a smoker the follow-up x-ray recommended by your doctor may provide valuable information on the status of the granuloma seen on the initial x-ray. Changes may indicate a condition that requires additional treatment or follow-

For more information on x-rays or any cancer related subject, call the Cancer Information Service (CIS) at 1-800-4-CANCER. Or write to the CIS at the Markey Cancer Center, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. The CIS is a service of the Kentucky Community Cancer Program.

Colorado Blue Spruces Available With Membership

Want to "spruce" up with Blue Spruce? For a mere $10, the National Arbor Day Foundation is giving ten Colorado Blue Spruce trees to everyone who becomes a Foundation member during April, 1988.

The trees are part of the nonprofit Foundation's effort to encourage tree colanting for conservation and beautification throughout America.

'Colorado Blue Spruces were selected for this campaign because of their many uses in the home landscape," John Rosenow, the Foundation's executive director said. "They lend beauty to their surroundings with their silver bluegreen color and compact conical shape. They can be used as individual ornamentals, an energy-saving windbreak, a privacy screen, or as living Christmas trees.

The ten Colorado Blue Spruces will be shipped postpaid in April or May with enclosed planting instructions. The six wo twelve inch trees are guaranteed to grow, or they will be replaced free of charge. The Foundation will give the ten free trees to each new member contributing $10 during April.

To become a member of the Foundation and to receive the free trees, write Ten Blue Spruces, National Arbor Day Foundation, 100 Arbor Avenue, Nebraska City, NE 68410, by April 30,

The Midwest Pioneer

By: Madge Pickard

With the subtitle "... his ills, cures and doctors," this book begins with a dedication to "The pioneer Doctor who boldly faced the wilderness; and to the Pioneer who bravely faced the Doctor." Giving away some of the story, the dedication

foretells the chapters on "Home

Remedies," "Bleed, Blister and Purge" and "Anima to Zootes." A dedicated person, the pioneer doctor faced his patients with self gathered herbs, crude instruments and an unceasing desire to help while the pioneer came to his doctor with notions that measles, whooping cough, diphtheria and the like were inevitable and that it was foolish to try and defy a predestined future sent by a vengeful God. This is the history of the meeting of these two attitudes. The stories of the insane asylums, the Civil War battlefield operations and the many epidemics are hard to believe in our age of "modern" medicine but it was a beginning—the beginning that our "modern" medicine is built upon. Fill-

dent of medical history

After Boone and his band of pioneers came the pioneer physician. He was as different from today's physicians as we are different from those settlers of 1774. The following books from the Prestonsburg Community College collection look at the medical profession and frontier physicians of Kentucky.

Medicine in Kentucky By: John Ellis

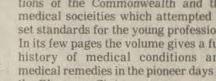

The first settlers came to Kentucky with the hopes that it would be an Eden of Health. Instead the fevers and dysenteries they had fled from soon followed, Fortunately, the travelers brought with them a tradition of medicine that mingled European doctrines with the lore of medicinal herbs and folk remedies. This compact volume from the Kentucky Bicentennial Bookshelf is an informed and entertaining essay describing the efforts of physicians and laymen to keep illness at bay during Kentucky's first 200 years. The annuals of those years are filled with names of giants in American medicine: Daniel Drake, Ephraim McDowell, Benjamin W. Dudley, Samuel D. Gross and many others. Besides famous physicians this book is about the medical schools of Lexington and Louisville, the medical publications that flourished in many sections of the Commonwealth and the medical socieities which attempted to set standards for the young profession. In its few pages the volume gives a full history of medical conditions and medical remedies in the pioneer days of the Bluegrass State.

Medicine and Its Development in Kentucky

This is an early work compiled and written by the Medical Historical Research Project of the Commonwealth of Kentucky. In 1940, the year of its publication, "Medicine and Its Development in Kentucky" represented the first concerted effort to prepare a medical history of the state. This work traces the roots of medicine from the days of magic and incantations to the bloody scenes from the Civil War "hospitals" through the establishment of medical societies, schools of medicine and Boards of Health. The book concentrates on Kentucky but is in reality a general history of medicine in the "New World" and spotlights such names as Walter Brashear, J.N. McCormack, Pinckney Thompson and William L. Sutton, the favorite sons of the health profession in the Bluegrass State and ends by charting the causes of death at the turn of the century in the state.

A slim pamphlet which gives highlighted references to a long list of famous Kentucky doctors and a short essay of a day "in the life of" a pioneer physician. "He traveled a long and unbeaten path by horseback from fort to cabin with gathered herbs as drugs and crude instruments for surgery." A sober picture but when matched names in this book: Dr. McDowell, the Father of Ovariotomy; Dr. Samuel Brown, Father of Small Pox vaccination in Kentucky; Dr. George Hart, the first practicing physician in Kentucky and Dr. Frederick Ridgely, the first to teach medicine by lecture in Western America, it is a story of the beginnings of the medical profession in this country.

MOTHER AND CHILD

A very important period for a pregnant woman and her fetus is the first two weeks after conception. During this period, there is no differentiation of cells in the embryo. If enough cells are harmed by a drug, then the embryo will die. No congenital malformations happen at this early stage. It is an all-or-nothing situation. During the next one to two months, the organ systems are developing, and this time period is the most critical for the development of abnormalities. After the end of the eighth week, differentiation of the organs is completed. The first trimester of pregnancy, therefore, is the most significant period for the occurrence of deformities and the survival of the fetus. During this time, no medicine of any kind should be taken unless advised by a doctor. This includes non-prescription drugs for colds.

JAMES E. VANHOOSE, M.D. "THE PILL"

QUESTION: I have heard so much exaggerated and contradictory talk about "the pill" that I don't know what to think anymore. Can you give me some straight information? Is it safe or not?

ANSWER: It's not possible to give a simple yes or no answer. There are studies which IN-DICATE that the use of the contraceptive pill increases the risk, to a slight degree, of certain diseases. How much greater is the risk? No one can yet say with certainty. Efforts have been made, with modern versions of the pill, to minimize these risks, yet it cannot be guaranteed that they are a hundred percent "safe". However, they are definitely NOT recommended for women whose families have a history of stroke, migraines, cancer or heart and lung disease.

Miss Donna Sha Newsome, daughter of Stony and Lois Newsome, of Hi Hat, was crowned Miss Easter Magic Queen, at the Wheelwright High School, April 2.

Learning Difficulties Screening Clinic Set April 27, Hindman

Reading represents a critical skill to an individual facing the challenge of forming the living and work skills to compete in the coming decades. Individuals having a reading skill are advised to call Dr. Paul Thompson of the Hindman Settlement School, 785-5475. The heartbreak of lost academic years can be avoided by early diagnosis.

The next learning difficulties screening clinic at the Hindman Settlement School is April 27.

Screenings for students and adults having learning difficulties are being accepted for April 21. The screenings are sponsored by the East Kentucky Tutorial Program. This is for children and adults who show characteristics of a learning problem. These are normal, and often bright, individuals who have trouble with reading, spelling, writing and language arts. These children often have low or unsatisfactory report card grades in reading. They may have trouble with phonics, sounds, and are in remedial reading, special reading and other reading programs. Some students reverse letters, have short attention spans, have trouble following directions and completing assignments. There are presently programs held in seven different counties including: Knott, Perry, Letcher, Floyd, Pike, Madison, and Pulaski counties. The East Kentucky Tutorial Program is a primarily nonprofit parent supported program. It is coordinated through the Hindman Settlement School. This semester approximately 250 parents and students are enrolled in our programs in the seven different counties. The classes involve parental involvement using highly researched reading and comprehension materials. The parents are trained to assist as tutors in the program and are given support in their child's learning programs. A summer program with boarding facilities is also available. Materials are available to take a poor reader from introducing him or her to basic reading patterns to highly advanced high school and college level concepts.

If every woman in the U.S. met her daily minimum requirement of 800 mgs. of calcium by consuming milk and milk products, the current eight billion pound surplus would become an 11.7 billion pound deficit.

Wheelwright High Forms SADD Chapter

Wheelwright High School has formed a S.A.D.D. (Students Against Drunk Driving) Chapter. Lola Brashear, prevention specialist for the Mountain Comprehensive Care Center helped the students form the chapter. Their purpose is to prevent an unnecessary death by teaching students to recognize symptoms of intoxication and to offer alternative transportation.

Officers elected March 31 were: Janice Wright, president; Missy Thornsbury, vice-president; Amy Payne, secretary; Becky Kohler, treasurer; Kim Dorton, historian, and Missie Hall, reporter. Mrs. Norma K. Fairchild is the

The club has planned fund raisers such as a skit, Putting On the Hits, to be performed in front of the grade schools in the Wheelwright area and a bake sale. The S.A.D.D. Club is also working on a slogan and a billboard for the Wheelwright Community.

We've taken a few lumps in our first year.

Breast lumps. Most are harmless, some are dangerous. Find them early and you reduce your risks of serious problems. At the Breast Center, we concentrate on early detection through state-of-the-art mammography and by teaching you breast self examination-BSE. Both approaches, along with regular professional exams, are necessary and effective in a comprehensive program of personal care for women.

On the left is the average size lump found by a woman untrained in BSE. In the center, is the average size lump found by women practicing regular BSE. On the right is the average size lump found by regular mammography.

The American Cancer Society recommends mammograms on a schedule that depends on your age, as follows:

Age 35-40 One baseline mammogram

Every one or two years Age 40-49

Age 50-UP Every year

education, without more tax money, They can do this, they promise, by "cutting out the fat," putting honest men into office and making government more efficient.

And for fifty years state services, especially the level of state education, have gone steadily downhill. Today Kentucky ranks 47th among the states in education. The list of its shortcomings is long and familiar.

For want of money, Kentucky cannot match available federal funds. and thousands of its disadvantaged children cannot get into Head Start programs. It has the highest high school dropout rate in the country, and one of the highest rates of adult illiteracy. Thousands of its poor are homeless, hungry and have no medical insurance. Almost 30 per cent of its school children are from belowpoverty level homes, and many lack proper nutrition, clothes and health care. A shortage of workers trained for technological jobs is one of the major economic threats facing the state.

This poses some obvious questions. How heavy are Kentucky taxes? What is its tax structure? How does Kentucky compare with other states in its tax burden?

HB 44 sets limit

Actually, Kentucky does not make as poor a tax effort as many people think. An index of the taxing ability of states (with 100 considered the national average) shows that Kentucky has a tax effort of 77.1. In 1984 it had an effort of 88.6, but other states still pulled ahead.

In personal income tax, Kentucky makes an above-average effort. On corporation and gasoline taxes, it is about average. The same holds for sales taxes. It falls down in property taxes, on which it lags badly. Unfortunately, state schools depends heavily on property taxes, and it is here that a big increase is going to have to be made if the schools are to improve.

John Ed Pearce Again, unfortunately, House Bill 44 prevents school districts from raising property tax income enough to help. The legislature could repeal House Bill 44 and require all districts to raise property tax revenues to an average state level. But Kentuckians are so opposed to more taxes - for any purpose - that the legislators are afraid to act. No one will even suggest that 44 be repealed. Business leaders have traditionally warned that higher taxes will scare away the new business and industry and the jobs that Kentucky needs. But every state around Kentucky has higher tax rates, and all are outstripping it in new industry. Ohio and Illinois, both among the industrial leaders, make a better tax effort. Recently, Massachussets made national news by increasing its taxes almost 25 per cent. Its industry increased by almost as much, and its unemployment fell to 3 per cent (Kentucky's rate is 8.8 per cent).

No easy way Because of its constitution, Kentucky cannot borrow (it can't have a debt of more than $500,000) to improve services. It must make a budget that does not call for more spending than its expected income. If its income falls below what was expected, it must cut programs, even those for schools. This year, income is expected to fall about $450 million below estimates, and already spending, including that for school programs approved in 1985, has

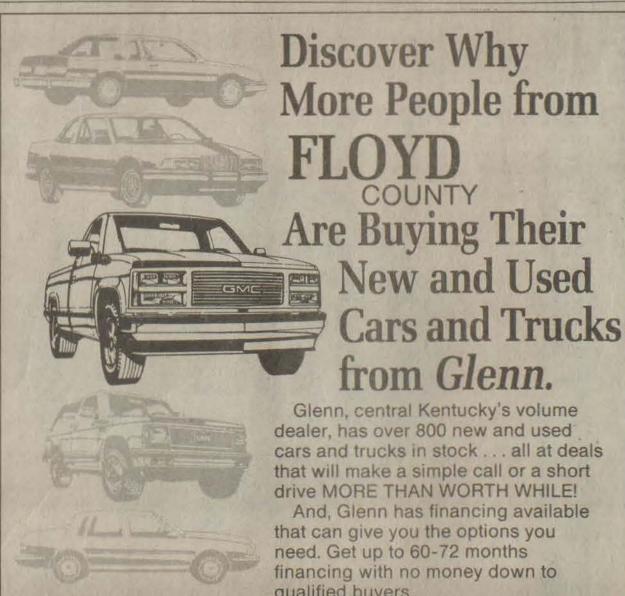

There is no easy way out. Even if Kentucky should make a tax effort as great as those of neighboring states, it would not be enough. It has fallen so far behind other states, particularly in education, that it is going to have to run faster (which means spend more and levy heavier taxes to permit such spending) than they do in order just to catch up.

Some business might be scared away by higher taxes. But that is a risk Kentucky will have to take, economists warned the recent conference on the status of Kentucky by the Shakertown Roundtable. Kentucky is not going to get the kind of industry it needs until it improves government services and the quality of life in the sections of the state that need new business most. And without better educated people it will attract few industries at all. And it will lose to other states the educated people that it needs most to keep.

Eleventh of a series on the "State of the state" conference sponsored by the Shakertown Roundtable at Pleasant Hill, Mercer County, Nov. 8-9, 1987, Wilson W. Wyatt, conference chairman. Earl D. Wallace, Lexington, is chairman of the Roundtable, a non-profit, non-partisan study group. Al Smith is vice chairman.

HEARTWORMS

COPYRIGHT 1988 KVMA

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association Despite availability of both treatment and methods to prevent infection, heartworm disease continues to be a major concern for dog owners throughout Scientically known as Dirofilaria immitis, heartworms are parasites that live within the heart of the dog, primarily the right ventricle, as well as in the major blood vessels, usually the pulmonary artery and the anterior vena cava. Adult worms are thin but may reach a length as long as 13 inches.

Mature adult females produce a form larva called microfilariae by the thousands, which circulate in the blood throughout the dog's body. When the dog is bitten by a mosquito, the microfilariae are ingested along with the dog's blood. They develop in the mosquito into an advanced larval stage which is infective to dogs, and is then passed back to the dog by mosquito bites.

Earliest signs of heartworm disease are coughing and tiring during exercise. As the disease progresses, the cough becomes chronic and the dog has difficulty breathing when exercised. In advanced cases, the legs and abdominal cavity may become swollen with fluid, nich indicates that the heart is not unctioning properly. Heartworms frequently completely block the flow of blood in the circulatory system, causing

In the United States the disease is found in all mosquito infested areas, though it previously was endemic only in the southeastern states. In an endemic area, as many as 50 percent of the mature dogs living outdoors may be infected.

Treatment is possible if the condition is caught in time. Adult worms are destroyed and removed first. This treatment and convalescence will require about a month. Then, treatment is given to destroy the microfilariae. Once this is completed, still another drug is available to prevent infestation during the mosquito season.

The most cost efficient method is to begin protecting the dog with preventive quitos before it is infected.

Nobel Laureate Esquivel To Speak At WKU Apr. 12

Adolfo Perez Esquivel, 1980 Nobel Prize Winner for Peace, will be the next speaker in the Nobel Laureate Lecture Series, at Western Kentucky University, Bowling Green.

The Argentine human rights activist will speak at 7:30 p.m. Tuesday, April 12 in the Downing University Center Theater and his topic is "Non-Violence and Social Change in Latin America.'

An article in Time magazine says the message Perez Esquivel preaches "is simple." A devout Roman Catholic, a sculptor and onetime professor of art and art history, he gave up his academic career in 1974 to found and head Argentina's Peace and Justice Service. The group is dedicated to human rights throughout Latin America and to what Perez Esquivel describes as "both spiritual and moral support, and practical aid for those who suffer.

Perez Esquivel won the Nobel Peace Prize for championing Latin America's poor and oppressed and, by proxy, of Argentina's 6,000 who disappeared, either kidnapped or liquidated in the Arentine military's four-year-long antiterrorism drive.

Hall Limits Rebels To Four Hits As Bobcats Enjoy Win

Brad Hall passed up a week in South he could spot pitch. Florida for some additional time on the baseball diamond and his performance may have made the move worth while.

Hall, a senior at Betsy Layne, said goodbye to his teammates and classmates last week as they departed on their senior trip. Instead of joining them for some fun in the sun, he stayed behind to enjoy Bobcat baseball. And Monday afternoon Hall made the most of his time spent at home by limiting the Allen Central Rebels, also without their seniors, to only one run on four hits as Betsy Layne defeated the Rebels 12-1

In the five-inning game, Hall struck out five and walked only two in the route going performance. The Rebels managed only two hits through the first four innings and one of those was a first inning Todd Duff infield hit.

Mixing a variety of off speed stuff with his fastball, Hall kept Allen Central hitters off balance until the fifth inning. That's when he lost his bid for a shutout.

"He's a decent pitcher," Junior Newsome, Betsy Layne's baseball coach, said about Hall "He's got some good junk pitches, enough to keep the hitters honest, and he's got a pretty good fastball.

"I think Brad is one of the better players in the region, and I think he could help some of these small colleges," Newsome added. "He swings a good bat, he's a solid first baseman, and

And with the offensive support he had Monday, most of those spots would come up victorious for Hall.

Betsy Layne enjoyed a nine-hit attack, and took advantage of Allen Central errors to post their second win of the season against county competition, while the Rebels, playing without three senior starters and their top pitcher. committed errors in each of the four innings they played defense, allowing Betsy Layne to score four unearned runs. But it was the awesome hitting, and stingy pitching that dealt Allen Central defeat on this occasion.

Defense, or a lack of it, did play an important part early. That's how the Bobcats got their first two runs.

Adam Gearheart, leading off the game, reached safely on an error, and wound up on second before the play ended. Gearheart, playing third base, scored when Barry Hamilton's line drive was mispplayed in left field. Duran Newsome followed with a single that scored Hamilton, and Betsy Layne had jumped out to an early advantage which eventually proved to be all the margin of difference they would need. Hall kept Rebel bats quiet through the first four innings, allowing only three hitters to reach base, and none any further than first. But in the fifth inning he lost his bid for a shutout as Allen Central reached the burley right hander for a run on

Jamie May, who had struck out in his earlier plate appearance against Hall, pulled a pitch to right field for an inningbeginning single. May went to second when Chris Kidd singled. Both runners moved up a base on a wild pitch which eventually led to the run.

With May at third and Kidd on second, Randy Watkins bounced back to the mound. Hall made the play to first, retiring Watkins, but a throw back to second trying to knock off Kidd, who had started toward third, allowed May to slide home with Allen Central's only run. But Hall toughened, and after a walk to Jamie Hall, he retired Todd Duff on a fly ball to right and ended the game by enducing Joey Gray to ground out to second baseman Barry Hamilton.

Betsy Layne, in support of Hall's mound efforts, had nine of their 10 players used to get a hit. But none collected more than one.

The Bobcats had at least one hit in every inning and Allen Central made at least one error in every inning. Betsy Layne enjoyed their biggest inning in the second, scoring four runs on three hits.

Chad Hamilton led the inning off by walking, and after Larry Hall laid down a sacrifice bunt, Cotton Parsons, Adam Gearheart, and Barry Hamilton banged out consecutive hits to power the big inning. The Bobcats scored three more runs in the third, and added another three spot in the fourth to blow the game open. Sophomore Mickey Parsons suffered the loss for Allen Central. Parsons worked three innings, giving up nine runs, six earned, on seven hits. He walked only one, but did not strike out a batter. Todd Duff pitched the fourth inning, allowing three runs on two hits and also issued two bags on balls.

Allen Central made a total of six errors in the game. Betsy Layne committed only one.

THE SECRET IS OUT: Bud Newsome, shown here during an all-star series last summer, has won his first five starts, and boasts an earned run average of just over 2.00. The Georgetown College freshman is 5-0 with a no-hitter and a one-hitter to his credit.

First Five Starts Produce Five Wins For Bud Newsome

He has been referred to as the best kept Kentucky sports secret of 1987, but less than four months into 1988, Bud Newsome has become a household name in the KIAC baseball ranks.

After being overlooked by all the major colleges, or as Marvin Stringfellow prefers to say, "maybe he just chose Newsome decided to take his baseball talents to Georgetown College. And neither Newsome or Stringfellow, Georgetown's baseball coach, could have expected more from the decision. Newsome, a graduate of Betsy Layne High School, won his fifth game of the season Saturday, defeating Campbellsville College 5-2. The freshman lefthander limited Campbellsville to three hits and struck out eight batters.

"He's doing real well," Stringfellow "He's id of Newsome beaten some good teams. "We're thrilled to death with the way he's throwing the ball. We hope he continues that, and right now I see no reason why he won't."

So far this season Newsome has maintained consistency on the mound, and although he has battled control problems at times, the little lefthander has flirted with perfection for most of this

In his five starts, all wins, Newsome has a no-hitter, a one-hitter, and another outing where he limited the opponent to only three hits, to his credit.

The most runs he has given up is four, surrendered to Pikeville College. He threw a no-hitter against Asbury College, and gave up one hit against Hilo of Hawaii, a team ranked in the NAIA's top

"He had a sore arm last year as a senior in high school which held him back, but he's healthy and doing an outstanding job," Stringfellow continued. 'He's really a poised pitcher. He's not overpowering, but he's smart, and he has a lot of movement on his

Newsome uses a variety of pitches, including different speeds on his carve, a knuckleball, and a sinker to keep hitters off balance. His fastball, according to Stringfellow, could use some additional

"If he could get a little stronger it would help him," the coach said

"As I said before, he's not overpowering so a little more speed on his fastball wouldn't hurt. He also needs to get ahead of the hitters more. He's been getting behind and it's hurt him early. Against Campbellsville he gave up two runs in the first inning, but shut them down the rest of the way.

If there is one stat that couldn't be termed impressive, it would have to be his number of walks issued. Newsome has handed out 20 bases on balls, a total of four more than his hits allowed number. He has struck out 43 batters and compiled a 2.26 earned run average which is based on nine inning games.

With the season only half over, and already owning a 5-0 record, Newsome could be headed toward a double figure winning season in his initial college campaign.

On the mound the 5'11", 160-pound Betsy Layne product has been dominating. He has sent would-be hitters back to the dugout in an air of disgust. But at the plate Newsome has been frustrated himself. In five plate appearances he has hit safely as many times as the opposition has beaten him on the mound, but hope and confidence is still available for Newsome, an above 400 high school

'I don't expect a lot from him this year, but I fully expect Bud to help us with the bat next year," Stringfellow said. "I'm not worried about his performance at the plate this year because he hasn't been called upon to help us in that area. But I do expect him to be a good hitter for us.'

Newsome, as a pitcher, rarely goes to the plate to hit for himself, but next season he is expected to be Georgetown's regular first baseman, and a regular with the bat.

'He's got a senior in front of him right now, but he will take over that position for us next year. He'll be over there when he's not pitching," Stringfellow said, mentioning his intentions of playing Newsome at first base next season.

During last summer's East-West all star series in Elizabethtown, Stringfellow called Newsome, "one of the best gloves I've ever seen at first base," and still has praise for his fresh

'He's a good defensive player at first. He moves real well to get in position, and he knows how to play the position.'

In that all-star series Newsome went five for seven at the plate. His five hits were the most by any player on the two squads, which featured the best senior baseball players in Kentucky. Newsome's speed makes him a threat to steal a base, his glove is golden at first, or the outfield where he played some in high school, and his bat should rise to the college occasion.

But for now it's the left arm that has everyone sending praise Newsome's way. At 18-years old he is already one of the KIAC's top hurlers, and the best kept secret is out.

He may have been overlooked, but for Pikeville, Centre, Hilo, Campbellsville, and Asbury, Bud Newsome is no secret. To them he is well known, maybe too

"I sure am," Stringfellow said, mentioning that he was happy other colleges didn't take Newsome as one of their own. But the Georgetown coach doesn't because bigger schools looked past him. #

'We like to think he chose us instead of them overlooking him," Stringfellow

Newsome was scheduled to start at first base yesterday afternoon, and his next mound appearance could come later this week.

The Sporting Times

One warm summer's evening in 1976 a young teen-aged boy walked with his new-found college chum across the Morehead State University campus. As the two walked toward their destination, which eventually proved to be Morehead's American Legion baseball field, they also talked, exchanging lively con-

ation about, what eise

The youngster, who was in the middle of a week-long visit with his sister and brother-in-law, both MSU students at the time, was enjoying the chat like he had never enjoyed one before. Baseball was his favorite love, just ahead of Pay Day candy bars, and a topic he could certainly compete verbally in. But even though he had taken a quick liking to the guy he had just met, the new-found friend was about to get on his bad side. Mainly because he was talking trash about the Philadelphia Phillies being a better team than the Cincinnati Reds, and how Dave Cash was better than Joe Morgan. They managed to survive their differences in a civilized manner, watched Don Harden beat Tim Bostic 22-1 in a baseball game, and enjoy each others opinions, comments, and enthusiasm for

Before the younger of the recently united couple took sick (they still say it was simply a case of home sickness) he had developed a respect that would last a lifetime. And even though he never saw Jim McAlister again that year, every time he listened to the Reds and Phillies he thought of his buddy, and even wondered if he would ever see Jim

Each trip home his sister would have to answer numerous Jim McAlister questions as the boy tried desperately to keep alive the memory of a guy he called his first hero.

In just a couple of meetings, a walk to a baseball park and some baseball talk, Jim had earned the youngster's respect and admiration. But more importantly he allowed the youngster to earn his

As fate often does, it played a dirty trick on the boy. It showed him what having a true friend could be like, but as the weeks turned into months, and 12 of those became a year, he never saw Jim again. Time eventually put the memory of him on the back burner but he never forgot what Joe Morgan and the Cincinnati Reds accomplished that year. As time went on the boy forgot all about his encounters with Jim McAlister, but fate has a way of repaying those it earlier

It's odd, sometimes a little eerie, how things of the past find a way to re-enter our lives. Some say history tends to repeat itself, matching that of the past to that of the present in an effort to shape that of the future. The two went their separate ways, never seeing each other again for 12 years, but soon they will be re-united. And where else but on a baseball field.

The irony doesn't end here, though As both grew older they continued their efforts to satisfy a familiar thirst for the sport. Maybe the fact that both became volunteer summer league coaches had something to do with that Maybe, though, the two shared a hidden bond that sparked the immediate friendship, and baseball was merely part of it. The boy is now a sportswriter. So is Jim McAlister. The later graduated from MSU in 1976. The younger one earned his MSU degree in 1985. The basegall game they took in that day was of the on variety. Today, both of them coach American Legion baseball teams in their respective Fate? Maybe. All for the love of baseball? Probably.

But regardless of what happened then, and all the times in between, the two, on June 25, will once again come together to decide which team is better, which boy of baseball carries the most knowledge.

And this time, like the time 12 summers ago, I plan to come out on top. Yeah, Jim provided me with one of my favorite childhood memories. But respect tends to have less of an impact when cowhide meets aluminum, feet meet third base coaching box.

It's kind of special to meet up with Jim again, or at least the thoughts of it have been. I remember vividly the time at Morehead when Jim, looking out over Don Hardin field, said, "boy I'm a good coach. Everybody picked my team to finish last and now we're in first place." Jim was talking about his Babe Ruth team he coached during his summers at Morehead State.

Recently as I went about the task of working up a schedule for the local American Legion team, I came across the name Jim McAlister. All the memories came rushing back as I ran the name through my head, hoping it was the same person.

But the phone number listed produced only an out-of-order recording. Fate wouldn't give up though. This past week the phone rang, and of all times, with two minutes left in the Kansas-Oklahoma game. It didn't surprise me though. Jim is a baseball man. He didn't remember me by name, but after a quick refresher course from me, he remembered the summer in question. But I didn't get a response after bringing up the subject of Reds vs. Phillies. A wounded man bleeds easily.

As I look back to 1976, I am still surprised that I took to a stranger the way I accepted Jim. A trusting or outgoing child I wasn't.

But I knew the Big Red Machine and I understood baseball. I knew then who had the best team, and in a Saturday afternoon double header in Berea, I will learn who has the best team, and get a first hand look at a good coach-Jim McAlister.

Maybe Jim's paper will cover the game. Maybe we'll have something on it. But remember above all that Berea's coach was always a man willing to either lower himself, or bring another up so both sides, regardless of age, could be on an equal basis

Confidence, yea he had that. But he was also honest, respectful, and respectable. I, though, also want to make him humble come June 25

Spurlock Hitting Star, Nairn Pitching Star in Sunday Split

Sophomore third baseman Kevin Spurlock drove in four of Betsy Layne's six runs with a pair of early inning doubles to power Betsy Layne past Prestonsburg 6-3 in the opening game of a double header Sunday at Allen Park.

In the second inning Spurlock, a right handed hitter, scored Keith Hall, who had earlier walked, with his first double of the game.

The next time Spurlock came to the plate it was in the fourth inning with the bases loaded. He promptly cleared them by banging out his second double of the game, driving in what proved to be all the runs Duran Newsome and the Bobcats would need. Newsome, in his first outing of the season, held Prestonsburg scoreless through the final four innings to record the victory, his first of the Todd Justice, a junior left hander, went the distance for Prestonsburg, limiting the Bobcats to only five hits, but was hurt by poor defense. Four of the six runs were of the unearned variety.

Newsome, a junior, gave up only one earned run while striking out five Blackcat batters.

"I was pleased with it, it being his first time out," Betsy Layne coach Junior Newsome said of starter Newsome. "He gave up eight hits, but he got the big out when he needed it. He just threw 103 pitches and that wasn't too bad for a seven inning game.

Betsy Layne, considered by many to be the best team in the 15th region, scored what proved to be the winning run in the fourth inning when Spurlock's double scored three runs. With two out in the inning, Newsome and first baseman Brad Hall both reached on errors. Keith Hall followed with a walk, and all three rode home on the double off the bat of Spurlock.

Prestonsburg, also one of the top teams in the region, scored their runs in the third and fourth innings. In the third frame Craig Tucker reached on an error, and later scored on a Thomas Nairn fly ball. The Blackcats added two more runs in the fourth when Darrell Sparks made it on base through the error route, and Ray Collins checked in with a double. Both eventually scored, but Betsy Layne added insurance runs in the fifth to give Newsome breathing room.

"It was a big win for us," Newsome added. "Of course both teams were kind of depleted with the seniors being gone, so it's hard to tell much about it. This was the reason why we scheduled these games with the seniors gone, to give our younger players a chance to see some action." The Bobcats were playing without starting center fielder Dwight Jarrell, right fielder Matt Conn, Todd Sturgill, their top returning hitter, catcher-pitcher Glen Hammond, and pitcher Mark Tipton.

Betsy Layne, like Prestonsburg, had only one senior on the field. Brad Hall, the Bobcats first baseman, was their only senior. He gave up his senior trip in favor of baseball, as did Prestonsburg center fielder Joey Griffith. The Blackcats were without two players, leadoff hitter, and starting outfielder Johnny Ray Harris, and third basemandesignated hitter Freddie McCoy. Although Betsy Layne had four starters missing from their regular lineup and Prestonsburg only one, the Bobcats still managed to pull out the victory.

Justice suffered the Prestonsburg loss, but the blame might land somewhere else other than on his performance. He gave up only five hits and two earned runs while striking out seven batters. But Justice and his teammates got their revenge in the day's second game as Thomas Nairn blanked the Bobcats

Nairn, a junior lefthander, shut Betsy Layne down in a game designated as a junior varsity contest. He also enjoyed a perfect game at the plate, banging out three hits. Tim Trusty, also a junior, secred three runs to aid in the victory.

Prestonsburg had a total of seven hits for the game. Nairn's two singles and a double represented almost half of those.

held early in August. All eyes will once again be on college basketball today to help welcome the second signing date for high school round ball prospects. Although many of the top recruits have already signed or committed, several nationally known talents remain available Don MacLean, regarded as one of the top 10 high school players in the nation, is one of those still undecided. MacLean, leaning toward the University of Kentucky until Shawn Kemp announced his intentions of coming to the Bluegrass state, is considering UCLA, Georgia Techn, Duke, as well as UK. MacLean, a 6'9" power forward, is not expected to announce his intentions until later this month. He is apparently waiting on a final coaching decision at UCLA.

The Wildcats still haven't given up on MacLean, but they are now going after a hot junior college prospect while at the same time taking a longer look at Ritchie Farmer. Farmer, a six-foot guard, is also unsigned, but is expected to go to a Southeastern Conference school. Louisville has also shown interest in the Kentucky State Tournament's all-time

Locally, Freddie McCoy, a sharp shooting guard, is the top college prospect. McCoy, a transfer to Prestonsburg from Mullins, averaged just over 20 points per game this season, and has been recruited by Pikeville College and Lee's Junior College.

Keith Adkins, a Paintsville guard, will sign with Notre Dame soon. Adkins has already committed to the Indiana school, but has to make it official.

Cincinnati Opens Road Trip With Win In San Francisco

Cincinnati entered the game with a team batting average of 244, not exactly impressive when compared to last year's hit squad that finished the year at 266, second best in the National League. But the Reds' offense, as meager as it may be, has been more potent than that of San Francisco's. The Giants checked in at 242 heading into Monday's contest at Candlestick Park.

The game had all the hints of a pitchers' dual, pitting Kelly Downs, 13-9 with a 3.63 ERA last season, against the healthy Mario Soto San Francisco agreed to the pre-game expectations, but Kelly Downs didn't, especially in the fourth inning.

Downs held Cincinnati scoreless through the first three innings, but the Reds opened the scoring gates in the top of the fourth, allowing four runs to pour out. But that was all Kelly Downs would give up, and that was all Cincinnati would score. Lucky for them, the Giants once again left their bats at home. At least Mario Soto made it seem as such.

The Reds' righthander, after starting only six games last year, kept San Francisco bats silent, shutting the Giants out 4-0 while surrendering only four hits, the shutout was Soto's first since April of 1986, and the second time this season San Francisco has been blanked.

Soto, going the distance, recorded his 12th career victory against the Giants, and chalked up the Reds' second complete game of the season. Danny Jackson, Thursday against St. Louis, went the distance to beat the Cardinals 8-1. Cincinnati had seven complete games all of last season.

Soto was in complete control of his complete game Monday, and was faced with a Giants' scoring threat only once.

In the sixth inning San Francisco put their first two hitters on base when Bret Butler doubled and Mike Aldrete walked. But Soto snuffed out that rally by coaxing Will Clark to hit into a double play and Kevin Mitchell to fly out. Cincinnati scored all the game's runs in the fourth inning when they banged out a total of four hits, half of their total game production. Tracy Jones picked up the game winning RBI when he singled home Eric Davis with one out in the top of the fourth. Just to be on the safe side, though, Buddy Bell drove Paul O'Neill home with a sacrifice fly, Bo Diaz doubled to score Jones, and Soto singled home

The rest of the game belonged to Soto. He recorded his first shutout since he blanked Houston April 24 of 1986, struck out five hitters, and walked only one.

Kelly Downs, 0-2, suffered the loss after surrendering all four runs on five hits in five innings of work. He struck out five batters. Craig Lefferts pitched three innings in back of Downs, with Don Robinson working a scoreless ninth.

Today, in a 4:05 scheduled start, Cincinnati will wrap up their three-game series in San Francisco. Tom Browning, impressive in his first outing against Houston, will take the mound for the Reds. Former Red Mike LaCoss, 13-10 with a 3.68 ERA last year, starts for San

Browning, a crafty lefthander, pitched nine innings in his initial start of the year, giving up only two runs and four hits, but had zero to show for it. Browning, no record, hurled eight and twothirds innings of scoreless baseball Friday night, but in the top of the ninth, with two out, Bill Doran singled and Glenn Davis followed with a homerun to left, tying the game and eventually sending it into extra innings.

Alan Ashby hit a homerun in the 11th off Frank Williams, but in the bottom of the inning Eric Davis singled home Lloyd McClendon to prolong the contest. In the top of the 16th, though, Houston put the game out of reach by scoring five runs, four earned, off Jose Rijo to pull out an 8-3 victory.

Saturday proved to be a better day for Cincinnati, and Rijo, as the righthanded reliever worked to only one batter, but still evened his record at 1-1.

Rijo, with the Reds trailing 4-3, came on in the top of the ninth to retire Glenn Davis on a ground ball, and in the bottom of the ninth Kal Daniels, Cincinnati's leading hitter through the first week, checked in with a bases loaded single to score Dave Collins and Barry Larkin, giving the Reds a 5-4 victory. Reds starting pitchers are averaging over seven innings per start, a vast improvement from a year ago, but their bullpen has failed to hold the opposition.

Last season Cincinnati had one of the most effective relief corps in baseball, but this year the bullpen has given up more runs than have the starters, and they have lost both Reds games. And Sunday their ineffectiveness showed bigger than it has all season. After Houston knocked starter Ron Robinson out of the game by scoring two runs in the seventh, Williams entered the game with two runners on.

He promptly served up a homerun pitch to Glenn Davis that cleared the bases and upped Houston's lead to 7-2. Two of the three runs that scored on Davis' homerun were charged to Robinson. The Cincinnati righthander worked six and two-thirds innings before giving way to Williams in the top of the seventh. He was tagged with the loss, his first decision of the year.

Pat Perry, who had worked 18 innings of scoreless baseball since coming to the Reds last season, shut down the Astros in the eighth, but surrendered five runs in the ninth, four coming on a Kevin Bass grand slam as Houston sealed the victory.

After finishing the season with a 2-9 record at Riverfront last year, Houston won two of the three on the road and improved their record to 4-1.

The two teams will see each other again this weekend when they hook up in Houston for a four-game series starting Thursday night. They will play again Friday night before winding the series up with day games Saturday and Sunday. Game time Saturday is set for 1:20. Sunday's first pitch will be thrown at 2:35.

Cincinnati returns home Monday for a four-game series with San Francisco, last year's West winners. In earning the crown, the Giants won the season's series with Cincinnati 11-7. By the end of the season's third week they will have met seven times and will not see each other again until June 10 when they play a three-game series at Candlestick Park.

"We got some hits," Turner added, "but when you walk 14 or 15 hitters, it's hard to come back from."

The hunt is on at Prestonsburg High School for a new football coach after current coach Charles 'Chuke' Williams resigned effective last Wednesday.

It took an incredible run to the National Championship, but just after Kansas upended Oklahoma in the championship game of the NCAA tournament, Larry Brown was given credit for a job

Organization after organization gave out their Coach of the Year award, but Brown's name never appeared on any of their lists. John Chaney, coach of Temple, received most of the awards, with Lute Olson and Billy Tubbs getting much mention.

But last week Larry Brown was named Associated Press's Coach of the Year. He, though, had to win a National Championship to earn it.

Spring practice began last week for two former Betsy Layne High School students who are now members of the Morehead State University squad.

Joey Cecil and Harold Wallace, a pair of freshman defensive linemen, are both graduates of Betsy Layne, and now members of the Eagle squad, which opened spring practice last Tuesday.

STRONG OFFENSIVE PERFORMANCE: Prestonsburg's Todd Justice makes contact against McDowell during their double header last Tuesday. Justice had a double and homerun in the first game.

'Another World' newcomer is a future heartthrob

By Marie Michaels

newcomer Matt Crane has joined the cast of "Another World" as Matthew Cory, son of Mac and Rachel Cory (played by Douglass Wat-son and Victoria Wyndham). We're told that Crane, who replaces teenage actor Daniel Dale in the role, was chosen because the show's writers have plans for a summer romance triangle that will involve Matthew, and they felt that Dale was a tad too young for the story line.

Victoria Wyndham

This isn't Crane's first television acting job he has guest-starred on the series "Tour of Duty" and "The New Gidget and the miniseries "War and Remembrance."

A sure bet for heartthrob status, Crane has blonde hair and blue eyes. According to an "AW" source in the know, he's "a gorgeous hunk."

. By now, Count Stovall, who plays Roy Franklin on "As the World Turns," has qualified for frequent flyer benefits many times over. Stovall commutes plane between the "ATWT" studio in New York City and his home in Virginia, which he shares with his wife, physician Dr. Denise Bruner, and their two teenage sons.

· Ilene Kristen, who portrays the sometimes wacky Delia Ryan on "Ryan's Hope," was a big hit at the Manhattan nightspot Encore, Encore recently when opened her new nightact. Among the songs in Kristen's repertoire is "Give a Little Love Back," which she dedicated to New York City's homeless children, to whom she devotes much of her spare time.

· Kale Browne, who plays Michael Hudson on 'Another World." and his fiancee, actress Karen Allen ("Raiders of the Lost Ark"), have set a May I wedding date.

· Former daytime favorite Kate Mulgrew, who created the role of Mary Ryan on "Ryan's Hope" and stayed with the soap from its inception in 1975 until 1977 (she returned briefly in 1981), plays Dr. Joanne Springsteen on the new ABC medical series "HeartBeat." In 1979, Mulgrew had her own series, the "Columbo" spinoff "Kate Loves a Mys-tery" (a.k.a. "Kate Columbo," "Kate the Detective" and "Mrs. Co-lumbo"). And she played Billy Crystal's ex-wife, Margaret, in the recent film "Throw Momma from the Train."

Perry is confident in 'Hooperman' ensemble

By Wendy Wallace

"A creator develops a character so that he can become a part of an ensemble," says Felton Perry, who plays homicide inspector Clarence McNeil on "Hooperman." 'He sees something in the actor that we don't think exists. And the most exciting part becomes the discovery of who the character really is."

Feiton Perry

Like most actors, when Perry sees a winning combination, he stays with it and makes it work. Especially working with Steven Bochco, the creator of the Wednesday-night ABC series.

"Steven Bochco is very talented individ-ual," says Perry, "So I'm glad that my working relationship with him has been one of artist and creator. I appreciate that he considers me an actor that he can count on to deliver what he wants. To me, that's the epitome of confidence."

Perry has shown his versatility in recurring roles on two series Bochco produced for NBC — "Hill Street "Hill Street Blues" and 'L.A. Law. And now, as a key member on "Hooperman," he is again one member of a likable ensemble

"The ensemble feel in acting is how I was trained," Perry says. "So I don't ever feel that I'm in competition with any other performer. My biggest competition is me. It has always been ensemble and we all shine together.

Born in Evanston, III. Perry enrolled at Wilson Junior College, where he first got hooked on acting. He also pursued his master's degree in Spanish literature at the University of Chicago, Later, at the Equity Library Theater in Chicago, Perry became part of the Second City Touring Company. His first screen appearance, in their production of "The Monitors," led to a succession of other films, among them "Medium Cool, "Walking Tall," "Mag-num Force," "Down and Out in Beverly Hills" and, most recently, "Weeds" and "Robocop. When he's not before the cameras, Perry is involved with a Los Ange-"Or." "Buy the Bi and Bye" and "Sleep No More,"

'Poison' is supposed to be avant-garde and hip

By Denise Gorga

In March, Showtime sent entertainment writers cassettes of its newest sitcom, "Poison," and .17-ounce vials of the Christian Dior perfume of the same name

James Van Patten

Poison the perfume is not a misnomer. To me, it smells not unlike the sickly fragrance the attendants spray in the ladies' room at Grand Central Station. I know I'm supposed to like the stuff because it's pricey, but I

"Poison" the sitcom. which airs Friday, April 22, follows suit. From the show's premiere episode, The Table canen know I'm supposed to think this show is avantgarde and hip. I don't.

"Poison" focuses on three characters, all played by dismal, wooden actors. Ray (Victor Slezak) is hounded by his live-in girlfriend's husband, Roger (James Van Patten), who refuses to admit that the marriage is over. Dannah (Mary Jo Keenen) is the "exciting and unpredictable woman" (in a future episode, she thoughtfully hires a prostitute for Rav's birthday) who can't choose between them.

"The Table" with Ray and Dannah about to get intimate on the dining-room table. The scene, a relatively mild one as far as cable sex goes, is still almost pornographic in its intensity, if not its execution. But what makes it - and the episode as a whole disturbing is that Ray and Dannah exist in a world of ambiguous motives, forged feelings and awkwardly absurd moments. Not once do you feel for them - or care to.

The best explanation for "Poison" 's curious lack of humanity is that creators Brian Grazer and Ron Howard were trying to formulate the first existentialist sitcom. That task is bound to fail, though, Isn't it impossible to have a situation comedy without a situation?

The only amusing moment is the opening montage, which, as you'd expect, has nothing to do with anything. Rolling anything. with the opening credits are close-ups of seagulls and assorted shoreline birds as they preen for one another and come in for landings on sandy beaches. This serves mainly to confuse those of us seeking a hint to the title. My two German shepherds, however, were engrossed. Which is probably more of a reaction than you'll have.

'The Attic' downplays Anne Frank's own story

By Paul Elie

Remakes have checkered the network schedules all season long from "Plaza Suite" to "Roman Holiday" to "The Dirty Dozen" "In the Heat of the to "Inherit the Night" Wind" to "Red River.

Lisa Jacobs

But "The Attic: The Hiding of Anne Frank," a CBS movie airing Sunday, April 17, is not a remake of "The Diary of Anne Frank," the 1959 drama based on the diary Frank kept while hiding out in Holland from the Nazis.

For one thing, the movie focuses not on Anne but on Miep Gies, who hid the Franks in her attic from 1942 to 1944.

For another, the waifish Anne - played by Melissa Gilbert in a 1980 remake is played here by a cheeky, chain-smoking 26year-old English actress.

"I'm a Londoner born and bred - I couldn't live anywhere else," says Lisa Jacobs, who feigned 21 in order to land the role. 'But as an English actress you're an internationalist. You play lots of different roles. I've played Americans, Dutch, all sorts."

Even so, playing Anne, who was 13 when she went into hiding, was a stretch for Jacobs.

I'm wearing three body stockings and a lot of padding to give me a more im-mature figure," she says. 'And they cut my hair off. My agents said, 'We've never had a client who looked as disgusting as you look in this movie.' I look truly ugly.

The real stars of "The Attic" are Mary Steenburgen, as Miep, and veteran actor Paul Scofield as Anne's father, Otto.

'The film doesn't have that much to do with Anne Frank as a character," Jacobs says. "It's really the story of Miep. The diary is mentioned once, I think.'

But for a recurring role as an 18-year-old in the British series "All at No. Twenty," "The Attic" was her only work in months.

"It's not out of chance that I haven't gotten film she complains. There are quite a lot of American actors over here, sort of an American mafia. They come out for the roles, and if none of them are any good, they start trying English ones.

"And I've had crappy agents," she adds. "If you've got a crappy agent you just go, 'Bugger them, I'll get my own roles."

She hopes that Anne is her last teenager.

"I say, 'I want to play 25! But they say, 'You don't look 25," she explains. "Then I go to the audition and see women who won't see 30 again, in stiletto heels and enormous gobs of makeup. They don't look 25 either, mind you!"

THE EXODUS OF BUSINESS

Though Floyd county citizens naturally are loyal to Floyd county and prefer to remain at home, whether at business or at, play, the fact remains that much of their trade is going to other counties.

This is no fault of these people who find it more convenient to go outside the county when transacting business. They cannot force circumstances to fit. It is the fault, largely, of the business men of the county, and, more particularly, of Prestonsburg.

While the business interests of Pikeville and Paintsville wage ever known in this immediate vicinity a constant fight, catering to the trade of this county, Prestons- occurred a few days ago near the home burg's business men are letting what they evidently think good of John Hannah, who resides some half now laying a large pipe line up Salt noon. enough alone. That is an instance of what has already been done. Floyd says a man called to him for help. He county is a county of towns; its population has leaped forward, rushed to the man and found it was the and its business has taken a big stride forward. But something conductor, who had been hurled against needs to be done to keep this business within its own bounds, some object in the caboose when the young men of this place, who are now Pikeville benefits from the payrolls of Wheelwright, Weeksbury, train stopped suddenly. We have no quarrel to pick with Pikeville for that; it is the privilege of the wide-awake business men of that place to work for their own town and for themselves. Yet, at the same time, it gives warning to Prestonsburg of what may come to pass.

This paper is devoted not only to Prestonsburg; it stands for Floyd county, behind its people and its industries. But, to remain silent while the tide of business drifts away to Pike county or

Johnson county, would be disloyalty.

Therefore, we would suggest-yes, urge-that the Rotary and Kiwanis Clubs and the business men of Prestonsburg awaken the wreck occurred, and from the later charge of the work. to the situation and bend every effort to procure for Prestonsburg condition of the wrecked cars, it is and Floyd county good roads, the great arteries of trade, and to judged that the train was traveling at protect themselves against the further loss of Floyd county's a speedy rate. Let us begin the fight and keep it up-for roads, for every improvement-to the end that Floyd county may be connected to the benefit of all.

THE CURFEW

It would appear that a curfew law, properly enforced, would have a good effect here.

The hearthstone yet remains in our homes-remains literally $1.50 so-and it will regain its symbolic significance if the children will least under parental care, aid should be offered. In that event, lads of ages ranging from six to sixteen will not rove the streets at night, to mingle with whatever company they may chance upon. Nor will they offer, as was only recently the case, that most shameful of insults—loud, profane language directed at those gathered in a church to do reverence to the invisible Head of every real home.

We were so sad when you left this world below,

How we were gonna make it without you we did not know

It was so hard on this special day, For Daddy it was your 68th birthday. To say farewell and kiss you goodbye, We thought our world had ended when our Daddy died. If we only had you back for just a little while. To hear your loving voice and to see your sweet smile. But we know Dad it was your happiest

When you got on that cloud with Jesus and rode away

You were singing your favorite song 'I'm going home with Jesus' why don't my children come and go along.

It never gets easy Dad, for Mom, Ed, Jason, Roe, Bub, Ann, and me. To know our Dad is gone and no longer your sweet face we'll see. But your memory and your love is with us all still. So Happy birthday Daddy we love you and always will. We'll see you again on that Homecom-

When we get on that cloud with you and Jesus and we'll all ride away.

MSU Hopefuls Spring Practice Opens For MSU Football Team

Morehead State University Football Coach Bill Baldridge welcomed more than ninety candidates for the 1988 Eagle football squad when spring practice opened on Tuesday (April 5).

The Eagles will work five days without full pads and 15 days with full pads and contact. Spring practice will conclude with the annual spring game at 7 p.m. EDT on April 30 at Jayne Stadium/Jacobs Field. Additional scrimmages are tentatively scheduled for April 9, April 16 and April 23. Most practices will be at 3:30 p.m. on weekdays and 9:30 a.m. on Saturdays. The public is invited to attend any and all practices. Fans may confirm a practice time by calling the football office at 783-2020 or the sports information office at 783-2500.

In 1988, the Eagles will again be a young team. Only 13 seniors dot the spring practice depth chart.

Three individuals will miss spring practice because of the participation with the Eagle baseball team. Defensive backs Trent DeMoss and Kenny Meadows and kicker Brady Duff are spending their spring on the baseball diamond.

Following are the Eagles prospects by

COACHING STAFF: Head Coach Baldridge has three holdovers and three newcomers on his 1988 staff. On offense, Vic Clark will serve as assistant head coach and will coach the offensive line in his first season on the MSU campus. Jeff Morrow will again coach the quarterbacks and receivers, and this season, has the added responsibility of being the offensive coordinator. Terry Chinn is in his second season at MSU and will coach the runningbacks and serve as recruiting coordinator.

On defense, returnee Phil Zacharias will coach the linebackers and serve as defensive coordinator. Former Eagle standout Dan Gooch returns to MSU as an assistant coach with responsibility for the defensive line and will serve as equipment coordinator. First-year Coach John Harbaugh will handle the defensive backs and special teams.

OFFENSIVE BACKS: It's always nice to have a good quarterback, and it's doubly nice for MSU, because it has two good quarterbacks. Chris Swartz (6-3, 197, So.) passed for 1,726 yards, the most ever by a freshman at MSU, last season. Lance Jansen (6-1, 209, Sr.) passed for 526 yards.

Runningbacks D.D. Harrison and Jonathan Cage are gone, and solidifying the tailback and fullback spots is one of the spring practice goals. Rodney Gordon (6-0, 223, Sr.) and Richard Cameron (6-0, 240, So.) divided time at the fullback position last season and are listed one-two on the depth chart this spring. Jerome Williams (5-9, 174, So.) showed flashes of speed as a freshman when he led MSU rushers with three rushing touchdowns

RECEIVERS: With 1987's top two receivers, Monty Webster and Harrison, gone, this is another position that must be solidified in the spring. Dave Pingue (5-9, 166, So.) caught 31 passes as a freshmawn and has good speed. John Irwin (6-1, 200, Jr.), Ty Howard (6-4, 183, Jr.) and Mark Schlinger (6-1, 201, Sr.) all saw extensive action last season.

Three experienced tight ends, Kenny White (6-2, 218, Jr.). John Hayden (6-3, 220, So.) and Brent Huffman (6-3, 217, Sr.) return to make this a solid position.

OFFENSIVE LINE: A great deal of depth is prevalent on the offensive line, and this should be an area of great competitiveness in the spring, Randy Mills (6-4, 258, Sr.), Lou Willinger (6-3, 270, So.) and John Mayo (6-3, 266, So.), all veterans, are listed as left tackle. Mayo is making the move from defensive line to offensive line. Todd Kagarise (6-3, 251, Sr.) and Dennis Palochak (6-2, 261, So.)

are one-two at right tackle. At left guard, Garry McPeek (6-0, 259, Sr.) and Mark Dewberry (5-11, 254, So.) saw extensive action last season. Joe Gagliano (6-2, 263, Sr.) and Kevin Ferlita (6-0, 252, Fr.) are the top candidates at right guard.

Jeff Jacobs (6-0, 221, Sr.) returns at center. He will be backed up by Dan Ambrosini (6-1, 267, Jr.) and John McCurdy (6-2, 234, So.)

DEFENSIVE BACKS: The 1988 Eagle secondary could be one of MSU's strongest in recent years. Greg Mitchell (5-11, 174, So.) and Monty McIntyre (5-10, 187, Sr.) are the top two cornerbacks on the spring depth chart. They have experienced back-ups in Scott Kasinger (5-10, 167, So.) and Bob Koss (5-11,

Size Limit Removed On Kentucky Spotted Bass

With April fast approaching, bass anglers will have their first good opportunity to catch Kentucky (spotted), largemouth and smallmouth bass across

The 12-inch size limit on Kentucky (spotted) bass was removed January 1 to allow anglers to harvest this species in better numbers. Kentucky bass have relatively slow growth rates compared to other bass species, and often die of natural causes before reaching 12 inches

Size limits apply to all Kentucky waters, including streams, farm ponds and private lakes. Anglers should be able to distinguish between Kentucky bass, largemouth bass and smallmouth bass in order not to creel an undersized

Darrell Beavers (6-3, 201, So.) and Mike Turner (5-10, 176, So.) are the firstteam safeties. Jerry Lucas (6-1, 208, Fr.) is making the transition from quarterback to safety. DeMoss (5-9, 180, Fr.) and Meadows (6-0, 185, Jr.) will contend for positions in the fall. LINEBACKERS: This is another position with exciting possibilities. The three individuals listed as starters in the spring, Doug Bowell (6-1, 227, Jr.), Jim Jackson (6-2, 229, Jr.) and Jeff Hester (5-11, 198, Sr.) could all be all-conference candidates. Depth will be provided by Ken Moore (6-1, 220, So.), Brian James (5-11, 299, Fr.) and Gary Yowan (6-2,

DEFENSIVE LINE: Size, strength, experience and depth are all adjectives that can be used to describe the line prospects. Scott Carlson (6-5, 275, Jr.), a transfer from Kansas, and David Gifford (6-3, 224, Jr.) are listed as the starters at end. Their back-ups include Ahmed Fowler (6-2, 245, Jr.), Tony Love (6-2, 217, Jr.) and James Goode (6-4, 222,

The first-team tackles listed are Dennis Guilluame (6-2, 245, So.) and Neil Wilson (5-10, 234, Sr.). They will be battling Jeff Burton (6-3, 262, So.) and Bobby Phillips (6-2, 245, So.) for the starting

KICKERS: Steve Tow (5-10, 165, So.) has the inside track on the placekicking spot. Duff (5-10, 170, Fr.) will contend in Meadows averaged 40.0 yards per punt in limited action last season. Paul Phelps (6-1, 177, Fr.) and Swartz will do most of the punting in the spring. "We're excited about spring practice and the upcoming season," Baldridge said. "This is, without a doubt, the most depth and experience we have ever had going into spring practice. This fall, we should have our most experienced team ever, along with a good crop of

Crappie Tagging Underway at Dewey

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources will tag 1,000 crappie at Dewey Lake this spring as part of an intensive statewide crappie study, according to Ed Carroll, eastern fishery district biologist.

The tagging study will provide data on the crappie population, growth and harvest rates. This information will be used to decide what management, if any, is needed to improve fishing in Dewey Lake.

Returned tags earn anglers $5 each, and a chance to be drawn for a $1,000 cash giveaway at the end of the year. Last year, Jack Vannerson of Paducah won $1,000 in the random drawing for returning a tag from a crappie he caught in Barkley Lake.

Envelopes to return the tags are available at most area docks and bait shops. State conservation officers in the surrounding counties of Dewey Lake will also be distributing tag return

The small, orange cylindrical tags bearing "Ky. Fish-Wild" and a number are attached to the fish near the top of the back just behind the dorsal fin and can be easily clipped and removed.

"I encourage crappie anglers to return tags from any marked fish they might catch this year," said Carroll.

Sports Clinic Set For July 8

The Citizens for Sports Equity and Pat McInally Enterprises are teaming up to sponsor a clinic on "Moms, Kids, &

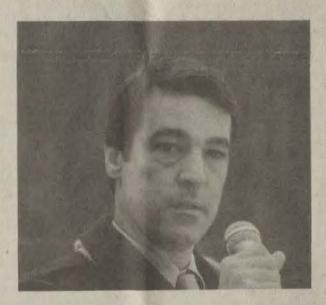

The clinic will be held on the campus of Eastern Kentucky University on Friday, July 8, 1988 from 9:30 until 3:00. McInally, a former Cincinnati Bengal, is the author of Moms & Dads, Kids & Sports. McInally's syndicated column on youth sports, "Pat Answers for Kids," has been running in over 100 newspapers 🧉 for 5 years.

The clinic will offer training to women in coaching and officiating youth sports. The target audience is women whose children play basketball, softball, soccer, and football in youth sports leagues

Child care will be provided at EKU and lunch will be served. For further information, contact Teresa Ann Isaac, P.O. Box 22163, Lexington, Ky. 40522.

PUBLIC NOTICE

County Road Aid Proposed Use Hearing

A public hearing will be held by Floyd County at the courthouse on May 13, 1988 at 10:00 a.m. for the purpose of obtaining written and oral comments of citizens regarding possible uses of the County Road Aid funds. The county currently has $100,000.00 in carry-over funds from fiscal year 87-88 and estimates it will receive $842,668.00 during fiscal year 88-89, for a total of $942,668.00.

All interested persons and organizations in Floyd county are invited to the public hearing to submit oral or written comments on possible uses of the County Road Aid funds. Any person(s), especially senior citizens, who cannot submit written comments or attend the public hearing but wish to submit comments, should call the office of the county judge/executive by May 12, 1988 so that the county may make arrangements to secure their comments. 4-13-2t.

Watch Out For Insect Damage To Cole Crops

Cabbage and other cole crops such as broccoli are popular garden crops that need some special care to prevent damage from insect pests.

"While cabbage worms are the most familiar unwanted diners, the first pests these plants face may be cutworms and root maggots," said Lee Townsend, University of Kentucky Extension entomologist.

Cutworms cut off the transplants shortly after they are set. Damage is most likely to occur in gradens that last year were in grass. The cutworms feeding on the grass are forced to turn elsewhere when their original food is removed, Townsend said.

Paper collars wrapped around the plants' stems may protect them from cutworms, although the method may be too time consuming for gardeners with a large number of plants. Cutworm bait, available at most garden and seed stores, broadcast over the area a day or two before transplanting also will control the insects, he said.

Root maggots, another pest of cabbage, are the larval stage of small flies. These white, legless worm-like creatures tunnel into the stem of the plant and may cause wilting or death. Symptoms do not appear until several days after transplant. By that time, damage may be too severe to let the plant recover.

Diazinon wettable powder may be used as a broadcast treatment on the soil prior to setting the plants, or in the transplant water. Avoid using the emulsifiable concentrate form in the setter water, Townsend said, since it may injure the plant.

Small, metallic blue flea beetles are often the next insect seen feeding on the foliage. Injury appears as tiny pits or holes on the surface of wrapper leaves. Don't rush to treat unless the damage appears to be severe. Sevin, diazinon or pyrethrins may be used if a treatment is necessary, Townsend said.

Cabbage worms are the most destructive pests of cabbage and broccoli and can cause signficant damage. Four distinct types of caterpillars can be found including the very green, velvetappearing imported cabbage worm; the distinctive cabbage looper that moves like an inchworm; the small, tapered diamond back moth larva and the yellow and black marked, cross-striped cabbage worm.

All of these caterpillars can be controlled using Bt (Bacillus thuringjensis) products, which are biological insec-

The human ear can hear sounds ranging in loudness from 10 decibles to 140 ticides that specifically kill caterpillars. They are harmless to humans and to beneficial insects. If insects are causing damage to your garden crops and your not sure how to control them, contact your county Extension agent for advice.

IF THAT MOCKINGBIRD WON'T

SING...chances are he'll be without a mate. According to National Wildlife magazine, unmated male mockingbirds sing to attract the attention of females.

And since there are more males than temales, competition is tough. One study at the University of Miami found that single males sang louder and more often than mated males. Despite all the singing going on, 20 to 30 percent of the males fail to mate in any given year.

Taught New Concept

Laura Salyers, educational coordinator for the Big Sandy C.A.P.-Head Start Program is pictured above presenting to the Floyd Co. Head Start teaching staff a new curriculum enrichment module built on aerospace concepts.: "Living in Space" is relevant for Head Start classrooms because it not only contains activities which focus on math and science, but also includes health, nutrition, art and language development activities as well. The Floyd County Head Start Program is the first program within the area to incorporate the module into daily lesson plans.

Obscene Phone Calls Are Now Unlawful, Rules Supreme Court

Outrageous telephone calls are now deemed unlawful, according to the Kentucky Court of Appeals.

Attorney General Fred Cowan this week praised a ruling upholding Kentucky's harassing communications statute which prohibits obscene or annoying phone calls and letters. Finding the law constitutional, the Kentucky Court of Appeals agreed with arguments by the Attorney General's office that the statute is not vague or overboard and does not regulate free speech. "This is the first time a court has set a precedent in upholding this law, and I think it's a big victory," said Cowan. "It's just terrible when people are subjected to to this kind of harassment in their own homes."

The Court ruled in the case of Keim Yates who pleaded guilty in Fulton District Court to four counts of making, obscene phone calls. Court records showed that the defendant made repeated calls to four women during 1985 and 1986. In January of 1987, Yates was sentenced to a 30 days probated sentence and fined $250.00 dollars. County Attorney Jim Paitsel agreed to allow Yates to challenge the constitutionality of the statute as a condition of the plea

The law is aimed at private written or telephone contacts intended to "harass, annoy or alarm" the recipient and which serve "no purpose of legitimate communication." "It is the conduct that is controlled; the manner used which intrudes on an individual's right to be left alone and not the thoughts or ideas conveved," said the Court of Appeals.

Higher Education Involvement Sponsored by Ashland Oil

An energy company is busy these days energizing the visions of scholastic success in the minds and hearts of Kentuckians. Ashland Oil is sponsoring more than 2,100 Kentucky studentsgrade four through nine-to early exposure to higher education.

For those in this program, the prospect of a future involvement with higher education is removed from fantasy to an achievable objective. Robert T. McCowan, VP for external affairs. explains that "A Day on Campers" is designed to keep our young people in school and encourage them to graduate from high school and attend college.

"It involves parents, teachers, administrators, education support organizations such as PTAs, colleges and businesses; and, most importantly, our state's young people," he added. "It s a part of a comprehensive effort shland Oil is undertaking to lower the dropout rate in the state's schools," McCowan said.

Ashland Oil has made $30,000 available for the program in Kentucky and will fund up to $100 per school for a campus visit after that school gets matching funds from at least two local businesses. "We feel this program can best benefit school children if a partnership is formed between business, education and the public, McCowan said. "That's why Ashland has stipulated that at least the two local businesses also help underwrite each visit."

The program, supported by every college and university in Kentucky, is being coordinated by the Council on Higher Aducation and the Council of Independent Kentucky Colleges and Universi-

Events, which vary from campus to campus, include activities students may not have previously experienced or seen. In addition to classroom visits, students have toured dormitories and seen special science experiments, art exhibits, a planetarium tour, a music recital, radio/tv productions, choral productions, and even a basketball game.

Each institution has been extremely supportive in setting the schedule. All of them want the students to experience a good cross section of what college life an hold," Horine said.

As a result, the program has been well received by students, teachers and

Six Floyd Honor Students Selected By Gov. Wilkinson

Outstanding Floyd County high school juniors selected among the 653 Kentucky high school juniors to attend the 1988 Governor's Scholars Program are William S. Terry, Martin, of J.H. Allen entral H.S.; Erich E. Blackburn, Allen, Robin L. Burchett, Prestonsburg, Kimberly S. Shank, Prestonsburg, Connie L. Spencer, Prestonsburg, all of Prestonsburg HS; Gina L. Johnson, Bypro, of Wheelwright HS.

The nationally recognized, residential academic program will be held at Murray State University from June 19 to July 23 and at Centre College from June 26 to July 30. Students, who are selected competively, attend the program free of charge through funds provided by a partnership of government and busi-

As part of the academic program, each Scholar chooses a major course of study from 11 disciplines, ranging from mathematics to philosophy, including courses in the fine arts and cultural anthropology. This year, foreign language instruction in French and Spanish will be offered. Students also elect a minor course and attend seminars. Subjects are taught in non-traditional ways.

To qualify as primary nominees from their schools, students are required to score in the 96th percentile or above in the KEST or other standardized achievement test, to rank in the top 20th percentiles of the verbal, mathematics or both sections of the PSAT/NMQSTthe same test required to compete for National Merit Scholarships. Students are nominated by teachers and must receive high rankings on such qualities as academic and intellectual achievement, originality, creativity, independence, breadth of interest and attitudes toward other students.

In addition to classes and the extracurricular activities offered, nationally known speakers and performers meet with Scholars on each campus during the summer sessions. There are numerous field trips, including a "Saturday with the Arts" in Louisville, to be held July 16, in which many of the major Louisville arts groups participate. Students, themselves, initiate many of the activities for the Governor's Scholars Program.

VFW Ladies Auxiliary

Represented At Conference Post Commander and Auxiliary President Eddie and Christa Akers and Woodrow and Sarah Chaffin attended the VFW Spring Conference at Fort Mitchell, Ky., March 11 to 13. The ladies auxiliary was one of four in the state to have 110% paid membership and received a $25 cash award. As of March 25, the auxiliary was leading in paidup membership in Kentucky with 121.66%. A benefit dance and dinner made it possible for the auxiliary to donate $500 to the HRMC Breast Center for a tile for our auxiliary. The next meeting will be Friday, April 15, election night. Everyone is urged to education administrators. One fifth grader said, "I'm glad I got to visit a college campus. I probably never would have gotten a chance to come." A seventh grader explained, "The people giving the tour said college can be for anyone if you want to go. And I really

In her evaluation of the program, an elementary school teacher said, "We had a very busy day with many things to see; but perhaps the most rewarding aspect was my students being able to interact with their student guides and get a more realistic perception of what being a college student is all about.'

And one school superintendent's comments summed it up: "The impact this program will make in promoting community support for education as well as introducing students to higher education will be tremendous."

Tax Deficit Not Helped By Gov't Blgd. Programs

If the top executive with the Institute of Real Estate Management (IREM), Douglas F. Collins' has his way, government at any level would no longer build office space but lease from private side contractors. According to Collins, government building is aggravating the commercial market, now in a slump.

Collin's statements were made to the Senate Committee on Environment and Public Works. He discussed the potential effects of three provisions of the Public Buildings Act of 1987: time financing public agencies leasing to the private sector, and the length of

An increase in vacancy rates, now at 29 percent, would further hurt commercial property owners if the government were to expand their building program.

A spinoff effect is the loss of tax dollars, Collins said. Any government building program would adversely effect the tax deficit problem, he said.
