Floyd County Times Sold To Smith Newspapers, Inc.

The Floyd County Times, owned and operated by the late Norman Allen and his family for more than 60 years, is under new ownership.

Smith Newspapers, Inc., of Ft. Payne, Ala., acquired 100% of the state's largest weekly, Friday, June 17, and also acquired one-third ownership in Kentucky Highlands, Inc., which operates the Prestonsburg plant where the paper is printed. The new publishing company is incorporated under the title of Floyd County Newspapers, Inc.

Smith Newspapers, established in 1972 and headed by 51-year-old newspaperman Ben M. Smith, of Ft. Payne, now owns 42 newspapers, primarily weeklies, from Minnesota to Texas and throughout the Southeast. Purchase of The Floyd County Times represents Smith's second newspaper in Kentucky, the other being The Appalachian News-Express, in Pikeville.

Oklahoma native Jim McGinnis, president of Smith Newspapers, has had primary responsibility in negotiations with owners of The Times. McGinnis was publisher of the Appalachian News-

Express for some time following purchase of that paper in the early 1980's.

Commenting on the operation of Smith newspapers, McGinnis said, "Our newspapers are published for the benefit, first, of the community; second, the employees, and third, the stockholders. If you take care of the first two, number three automatically follows."

Named publisher and president of Floyd County Newspapers, Inc., is Marty Backus, native of Mullens, W. Va. Backus, 47, worked for six years as advertising manager at the Appalachian News-Express before assuming duties as publisher of a Smith Newspapers weekly in Boone county, W. Va. two years ago. Another article in today's edition provides further information on the new publisher.

The long and successful history of The Floyd County Times and the high quality of journalism for which the paper has been recognized throughout its six decades is inextricably bound to the name of Norman Allen, editor of the paper from 1927 until his death at age 83 in 1986. Allen set and maintained its standards of impartial reporting and editorially took a hard stand for what he thought was right and with integrity.

He took seriously the newspaper's slogan of "Speaking of and for Floyd County," and with clear, unbiased reporting left judgments to be made to his readers. His editorials were even-handed and thoughtful, with many reprinted in other publications.

But Allen's most indelible stamp on the Floyd County Times may have been his weekly column, "This Town, That World." Whether making light of his own ineptitude in mechanical skills, describing the beauty of wild flowers after a spring rain, or dealing with the death of a beloved pet, Allen's love and mastery of language was eloquently expressed in his column.

Family members, who had worked as part of The Floyd County Times staff for years, continued the paper following Mr. Allen's death with his daughter, Barbara Allen Heinze, editor, and his son, David Allen, advertising manager. For (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Boat Ramp Construction To Provide River Access

By Joe Porter

The river is running low now, but in the future, you may be seeing boaters and fishermen anchored on or cruising up and down the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy. June 15, ground was broken for a new boat ramp that is being constructed behind the Mountain Comprehensive Care building, here, providing access to the river for fishermen and boaters.

House Majority Leader Greg Stumbo and Prestonsburg's Mayor Ann R. Latta, along with other city and state officials, were present for the groundbreaking ceremony, last Wednesday. Completion of the ramp is expected in the next month.

The boat ramp project was spearheaded by Stumbo, but he said the idea originated with Norman Allen, an avid fisherman and late editor of the Times, after he learned game fish were once again being caught in the river. Last year ramps were constructed at Paintsville and Louisa to allow boaters access to the river.

The Prestonsburg ramp can be approached through the city's riverside parking lot off First Avenue. Mayor Latta is now planning recreational events to improve tourism and encourage use of the river, and City Administrator Fred A. James said the city is considering holding a regatta, possibly later in the summer or during the Jenny Wiley Festival in October. The race would run from downtown to Lancer, or maybe out to the college; it would include races for canoe, homemade boats, and rubber rafts. James said the mayor is just "thinking out loud" at this point, but they are excited about the possibilities. Another idea being considered is to hold a fishing tournament, whereby the Department of Fish & Wildlife would stock the river with 500 tagged bass or catfish, and contestants could win prizes for their catches.

Walter Redmon, the construction supervisor with the Department of Fish & Wildlife, said the ramp will be built of concrete, 14 feet wide and 120 feet long, with a 16% slope. The concrete will be six inches thick and have a raked finish to prevent slippage.

"From people talking, this is a great fishing hole. They say they really have good luck," Redmon said. "I was talking to one man upriver who catches his limit of bass in about four hours." Redmon also expects duck hunters to use the ramp during the winter.

Mayor Latta also pointed out that the ramp will be used in rescue operations on the river, and will be of help because of the present lack of launching facilities.

Conn Faces New Charges After Recapture, Monday

By Joe Porter

A Circuit Court jury returned a guilty verdict June 15 against three defendants charged with theft by unlawful taking. Then, while the court was in recess, one of the three defendants—Millard Ray Conn, 38, of Buck's Branch—escaped from the courthouse.

The sentencing phase of the trial went on without Conn, and the jury recommended that he be given three years. Philip Akers and David Hall, both 30 years old and from Martin, were given one year each, but all 12 jurors agreed that Hall's sentence be suspended and he be placed on 24 months probation.

The three men were charged with stealing belt structures and rollers, on or about August 21, 1987, which belonged to Morris Isaac of Rachael Coal Company in Martin. The rollers were valued at over $100. The maximum penalty is five years. Assistant Commonwealth's Attorney Dan Rowland prosecuted the case, and the State Police handled the investigation. Assistant Public Advocate Thomas E. Kimball defended the men.

Conn was captured Monday night at 11:20 p.m. after the sheriff's department received an anonymous tip that the fugitive was hiding out at the residence of Buford Conn on Arkansas Creek. "We surrounded the house so fast he didn't know what was going on," said Deputy Anthony Castle, who took part in the raid along with Deputy Rickey Thornsberry, and Kentucky State Police officers, Craig Roberts, Stacy Trees, and Dewey Murphy. Castle reported that the Buford Conn family was on vacation at the time. Conn now faces an escape in the first degree charge, a class C felony, according to Deputy George Hale.

Following the trial, Judge Hollie Conley ordered Akers and Hall taken to jail to begin serving their time. Conley will sentence the three men July 1.

Hall Is Victim In Weekend Fray; Ratliff Charged

By Tim Sizemore

A weekend shooting at a Tolers Creek nightspot has resulted in the death of a Harold man with a Pikeville man charged with his murder.

William Lloyd Hall, 30, of Tolers Creek, was pronounced dead at the scene, Saturday night, by Floyd county Coroner Roger Nelson, after an altercation at Dottie's Place with Gary Ratliff, 31, of Pikeville, resulted in Hall's fatal wounding with a small caliber handgun.

State Police say that the shooting was the result of an argument between the accused and victim around 10 p.m. Hall was shot once with a .22 caliber pistol, which severed an artery in his neck, and according to Sheriff's Deputy Harold Johnson, the victim, "staggered back into the building and collapsed."

Police say that several broken pool sticks were found around the premises, which had been broken after the shooting as an apparent act of retribution.

The slaying is currently under investigation by State Police Detective Claude Tackett.

William Lloyd Hall was born April 16, 1958 at Galveston, a son of Junior Hall, of Harold, and Bobbie Fern McKinney Hall, of Southgate, Michigan. He was a miner.

In addition to his parents, he is survived by two sons, Donnie and Bradley Hall, both of Harold; four brothers, (See Story No. 4, Page 4)

New Publisher

Marty Backus, president of Floyd County Newspapers, Inc., has assumed leadership of The Floyd County Times as its publisher. He and his wife, the former Judith Wiley, of Paintsville, have relocated, here, from Madison, West Virginia, where he was president and publisher of the Coal Valley News.

A native of Mullens, West Virginia, Backus commented that his "heart has been in Kentucky for almost a decade, since I came to Pike County as advertising manager at the Appalachian News-Express." He said that he and his wife are delighted to be back in Kentucky and excited about living in Floyd county and working with the people of the area to "contribute to growth and progress here through our community involvement and my work with this fine newspaper."

Backus brings 23 years of experience in media work to his post. An alumnus of West Virginia Wesleyan College and a graduate of Columbia Hall Junior College, Washington, D.C., with a degree in broadcasting, he served 13 years at WVOW AM/FM, Logan, West Virginia, where he was news director, advertising salesman, and station manager. A former news anchorman with WSAZ-TV, Huntington, Backus lived in Eastern Kentucky from 1980 until 1986, when he accepted the position as publisher of the Madison weekly. During his two years at the Coal Valley News, he implemented a complete overhaul of the paper's editorial/news department, placing emphasis on a strong local

Despite Recent Cleanup, Court Hears Litter Woes

By Tim Sizemore

Few complaints marred last Friday's fiscal court meeting, here, with garbage woes being the main concern of court matters.

District Two Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens aired two trash-related complaints before the court, one being an illegal dumping situation at Shortwood and the other, littering at the Minnie Park.

Owens told the court that residents of Shortwood near Banner were complaining of illegal dumping; adding that he had attempted to clean up the area but that despite warnings people are continuing to dump. He said that the problem is serious and the smell is an increasing irritant to the community. Floyd county Ecology officer Cleveland Tackett said when asked by Owens if anything could be done to alleviate the situation and if legal measures could be taken to stop the illegal dumping, that he has attempted to catch some of the perpetrators with some success. "I've been walking up there, hiding in the bushes, and I've caught two illegal dumpers," Tackett said, adding that the area would be closely watched in the future. The ecology officer also stated that he has taken pictures of the illegal dumping and has recovered trash with the lawbreakers names on it.

Another complaint brought before the court by Owens concerned the Minnie Park restrooms and litter left under the baseball bleachers. Replying to his question as to why the women's bathroom there was locked the majority of the time, District Three Magistrate Ed Caudill told him that vandalism had been the primary cause for locking the restroom, so that repairs could be made. He said that they had been made, but said he felt the problem would occur again. "We have a couple of men working up there, and it is disgusting to do that work and have it destroyed," Caudill commented. When told that trash such as soft drink containers being left under the bleachers was causing a yellow jacket problem, Caudill

Right Beaver School Bids Found Too High

By Tim Sizemore

At last Wednesday's special Board of Education meeting, all bids were rejected on the Right Beaver school project, and the architect of the project was authorized to rebid the construction.

The Board directed Lexington architect Paul Hoffman to except rebids on the Right Beaver school site after all bids excluding site preparation were rejected by the board as being too high.

The Board also voted to ask the state for a 5% increase in funding on all construction projects due to the escalating costs of construction since the proposal was presented to the state. Superintendent Brackett said that the money would come in the second round of funding.

Bids were also opened last Wednesday on the Prestonsburg Middle School, and Brackett said that the school board "will be able to bring the project into budget smoother, because the site was already purchased, and contracts have been awarded for state preparation."

Brackett also said that a computer system has been implemented at the administrative offices which will give the superintendent immediate access to every department's records.

Teachers were hired for the coming year, and a listing of these will be found elsewhere in this edition of The Times.

Hueysville Tipple Protest Heard Here

By Tim Sizemore

A meeting held here last Wednesday may decide if a coal processing plant located at Hueysville will be allowed to reopen despite protests of Hueysville residents.

The tipple owned by the C.C. Craft Estate, of Springfield, has remained idle since 1985, and many Hueysville residents claim that if the plant is allowed to reopen, it will ruin their homes by creating dust and noise pollution.

Prestonsburg Attorney Ned Pillersdorf, characterizes the state's position on the tipple as "absolutely outrageous" in that they support the Craft Estates claims against the residents of Hueysville. He maintains that the crafts (See Story No. 6, Page 4)

History Of Poland Unfolds On KET

Poland has been caught in the midst of central European conflicts throughout much of its history. Two world wars, revolution, and the expansion of communism have resulted in Poland finding itself a divided country. Poland has been fought over by larger powers and today is dominated by a superpower, the Soviet Union.

The Struggles For Poland, a new nine-part series airing Friday, July 15 at 8 p.m. on KET, examines the history of Poland from the turn of the century to present day. Roger Mudd, special correspondent and essayist for public television's The MacNeil/Lehrer NewsHour, will serve as on-air host and narrator of the series.

The Struggles For Poland is the first historical examination of Poland ever undertaken by Western television. The series draws on filmed interviews, rare stills, and previously unseen archival film to recount the story of a people whose conflicts and struggles have been central to the history of 20th-century Europe.

The series begins with a look at the 1905 revolts that followed the Russo-Japanese War. The series examines the impact of World War I on the Polish people, the rise of Polish leader Jozef Pilsudski, the establishment of a Polish state, and Poland's war against the Soviet Red Army.

Former Betsy Layne Teacher Publishes A Book Of Poetry

Vantage Press, Inc. of New York City recently announced the publication of a book of poetry by Chessie Cornette. The book is entitled He Brought Me A Rose.

Mrs. Cornette is a former high school teacher at the Betsy Layne High School where she taught most of her 30 years as an English and social studies teacher.

She was born at Myra in Pike county and is the daughter of Benjamin Franklin and Ida Wallen Wright. Her father was a farmer and carpenter who had to move to Pikeville during the depression. One of ten children, she attended Pikeville City School graduating from there in 1945 as class salutatorian. She worked her way through school at Berea College and graduated in 1949. At Berea, she met Wayne W. Cornette, whom she married in 1950. She taught one year at Pikeville City School and one year in the Greenup County School. After her two sons were born, she remained at home until the death of her husband in 1959. Several poems are in memory of her husband.

Mrs. Cornette earned her master's degree in secondary education from Morehead State University and taught school to rear her sons. She retired in 1986 after a serious automobile accident. Her son, Ben works at the Methodist Hospital and Surgery Center and her son Mark works at Kentucky Power Company. She has three grandchildren, Abby, Mark Wayne, and Elizabeth Cornette.

Regarding her poetry, Mrs. Cornette says, "I've always felt that a poem is the result of an emotion so strong that the poet simply has to tell about it. There's a story behind every poem I've written." Mrs. Cornette's readers experience her pain and loneliness as well as her love for family and appreciation for the beauty of nature. Her poetry offers a glimpse into the soul of a charming poet.

In addition Mrs. Cornette writes newspaper articles. Her book, He Brought Me A Rose and other poems is available at the Lighthouse Christian Bookstore, the Art and Gift Shop, Gibson's Discount Center, and R.H. Hobbs Store in Pikeville. In Prestonsburg, the book is available at the Bookworm, The Gift Shop at Jenny Wiley State Park and the Betsy Layne Floral and Gift Shop at Harold.

Thrilling performances, spellbinding beauty and top caliber competition awaits the visitor to the Region 14 Championship Arabian Horse Show, scheduled for July 1-4 at the Kentucky Horse Park in Lexington. The event showcases the versatility of top Arabian and Half Arabian/Anglo Arabian horse contenders.

All classes including jumping, driving, halter, English pleasure, Park or Western pleasure, will be included at this show. The ringside action is non-stop and constantly changing. Sometimes, two or three rings may be in action at the same time, as some events are scheduled for the main enclosed arena, dressage classes in the area inside the race track and jumping at the jumper arena.

To further heighten the excitement and enliven the spirit of competition among riders, the International Arabian Horse Association is offering $87,500 in prize money through its International Arabian Breeders Sweepstakes program, in addition to the $5,500 already offered by the show. This makes a grand total of $93,000 in prize money available to eligible winners at the Region 14 show.

In 1988, over $3.1 million in Sweepstakes money is available to properly enrolled horses in show ring classes, designated racing and endurance riding and competitive trail riding events.

Lung Assoc. Will Hold Family Asthma Weekend

The American Lung Association of Kentucky will sponsor Family Asthma Weekend, Saturday and Sunday, August 20-21, at Camp KYSOC in Carrollton. According to Joan Stafford, Health Educator for the Lung Association, "Kids with asthma and cystic fibrosis can have a fun, exciting summer camping experience despite the nature of their disease."

Family Asthma Weekend will provide this outdoor camping opportunity for Kentucky children with asthma and cystic fibrosis and their families. Stafford stated, "These children, who might otherwise be denied the fun of summer camp, will participate in activities with their families including swimming, canoeing and arts and crafts."

In addition to recreation, there will be informal group learning sessions for the children and their parents and siblings. "Many asthma and CF kids may not have attended camp in the past due to the lack of adequate medical care in most resident camp settings," Stafford said. "Therefore, we will provide around-the-clock medical and health care during the weekend to assure a safe, healthy and happy camping experience."

Mayo To Graduate 251 At Exercises Friday

Mayo State Vocational-Technical School will hold graduation exercises for 251 graduates at 1:30 p.m., Friday, June 24, in the Mayo Auditorium. Students from 20 departments will be receiving diplomas as well as special awards for high grade point average. There were 67 students who received diplomas throughout the school year as they completed program requirements and several other students left school to accept employment. Additionally, 129 students worked one-half time through the cooperative program, a joint work-study program with business and industry.

Addressing the 1988 graduating class will be the presidents of the student organizations: Adelle Gilliland, Salyersville, and Sonja Hunt, Feds Creek, HOSA (Health Occupations Students of America); Carla Townsend, Zachariah, PBL (Phi Beta Lambda); and Ottis Hamilton, Teaberry, VICA (Vocational Industrial Clubs of America). Bronelle Skaggs, Vocational Region Eleven administrator, will introduce the graduation speakers: Jesse Conley, Mayo Principal, will award diplomas.

Ottis Hamilton, Teaberry, is a diesel mechanics student. He is currently serving as president of the Mayo Chapter of Vocational Industrial Clubs of America and is the 1988-89 president of the VICA organization for the state of Kentucky. He is the son of Gina Hamilton and the late Jonas Hamilton.

Students from across the Commonwealth are among this year's graduates. Counties with the greatest number of students graduating include Elliott, Floyd, Johnson, Knott, Lawrence, Magoffin, Martin, Morgan, and Pike. This year's 50th Anniversary graduating class is one of the largest in the history of the school. Members of this graduating class will take their places along with the many former Mayo graduates who are employed in business and industry throughout the country.

Celebrate Anniversary

An anniversary party was given to Zeb and Eula Mae Ousley, June 5, at Martin. They have been married 46 years and have 10 children and 21 grandchildren.

With Some Regret

It is with some regret, and at the same time, with some sense of release that we come to the last issue of The Times which will be published by the Allen family.

Over the years, under the guidance of our father, Norman Allen, this paper has tried to deal fairly with the people of Floyd county; to record their tragedies and their triumphs without prejudice or undue sensation; to point to the good as well as the bad. Since our father's death, we have strived to maintain these standards.

We grew up and have spent most of our lives in this business. For most of those years, it has been frustrating fun; hard but rewarding work; sometimes very tough when it came to stories less than kind about people we personally knew and liked.

But this is the nature of a newspaper. Fortunately, the bad things are still news. Heaven help us if ever the good is so unusual that it makes banner headlines.

Then, we must say in all honesty that we could not have made it these last two years without the help and understanding of just about everybody in our county. And with justifiable prejudice, we firmly believe even with all the failings, weaknesses, ills that the human condition is heir to, that Floyd countians are still among the best people on this earth. We feel luckier than most in where we were born and glad we stayed. Yes, we will miss you.

Bits And Pieces

ONE MORE RECIPE

For years while most of my friends were aghast at my lack of appreciation of the finer things of life, I positively detested old ham and beaten biscuits. Never have been converted to beaten biscuits, but ah, old ham!

After years of trying various methods of preparing an old ham, all with less than gourmet results, I finally lucked out when I ordered one from the Lynchburg Hardware Store in Lynchburg, Tennessee. They sent along "the recipe." It's a lot of trouble but well worth it. Lynchburg calls this the "Tried and True Method." I concur.

I had heard of this before, and I'm sure a lot of you already know it, but for those who don't, here it is.

Put ham in a large round cooker large enough so you cover the ham with water. (I went to Arrowood's and got a 50-lb. lard can.) Bring to a boil. After it comes to a good rolling boil, turn heat down and let boil slowly about 30 minutes. Have ready a large square cardboard box on a stack of magazines or newspapers. Make sure the top is on the cooker securely. (I dip a lot of the water into another larger cooker so the ham can be lifted off the range into the box, then, of course, pour the water back.) Now place the cooker in square box and stuff empty space with newspapers. Then wrap the outside of the box in about three quilts. Blankets, comforters, or even sleeping bags will work, too. Leave for 24 hours. Remove ham from the water to let cool (ham will be hot for handling—some people cook it in a flour sack for ease in handling.) When cool, trim and serve. Or, you may trim, fix a glaze, and brown in oven, but this doesn't really improve anything but the looks.

ONE MORE STORY

A matter of semantics can sometimes result in a good story. This one was published under Tubby's Tales in The Mule Bank, official publication of the Van Lear Historical Society. As Tubby tells it—

There was a woman who lived in the Van Lear community long ago who died recently at the age of 111 years. I was discussing this with an elderly woman I know well who was herself nearing her 100 years of life. I asked her, "In all your years, how many times have you been bedridden?" She said, "Honey, a thousand times, and once in a buggy, but don't you ever tell this to anyone or mention my name!"

A LAST WORD

To those who have enjoyed this foolishness with me, it's been fun. For those who think it's pretty dumb, (and I'm not arguing the point) this is the last of it. I've enjoyed sharing a few things which some of you have probably not understood, because the subjects are of the past, or I have not explained them clearly. Others, though, have understood, because they, too, look back to a simpler time.

In any case, we have a peculiarly unusual and wonderful heritage, those of us who have grown up in Eastern Kentucky. It embodies some of the last of the pioneer spirit, and we should not forget it.

All in all, it's been a pleasure for me, and we still have things to say to each other.

have run the tippie illegally and without a permit and to decide in their favor would be tantamount to sanctioning their disregard of state regulations, adding that it amounts to their being "rewarded for flouting the law". Pillersdorf argues that the tippie was not legally in existence prior to 1977 and regulations safeguarding their right to operate the plant are invalid because no permit was issued.

Mae Allen, a Hueysville resident, said "The dust is the big trouble. We had to take off the old siding on our home after the tippie closed down and replace it because of the black dust." Talmadge Allen, who is one of six residents who filed a protest with the Cabinet for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, told those at the meeting, "It's my home, and what few days I have to live I want to enjoy to the fullest."

State hearing officer J. Gregg Clendenin said he is required to issue a decision on whether the permit should stand within 30 days of when testimony in the case concludes.

HOT NEWS ABOUT HOT PEPPERS

We're just beginning to understand the special role hot peppers play in our diets, say Good Housekeeping and American Health in their May issues. The magazines report: Hot peppers perk up the taste of food without adding fat. They're high in potassium and vitamins A and C, and low in sodium. And they contain an anticoagulant that helps prevent the blood clots that can cause heart attacks. An extra advantage: They help burn off extra pounds. Every time you eat, your body heats up; it's the thermic effect of food (TEF), which makes the metabolic rate kick up and burn calories a little faster. In a meal with hot peppers, the TEF jumps an extra 25%—burning off about an additional 45 calories. Not a lot, but every bit helps!

Pick a pepper, here are some varieties, their nutrients, and their heat quotient:

Hamilton Draws 15-Year Sentence In Howell Death

By Joe Porter

Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley sentenced Reo Hamilton, Friday, to 15 years in prison. Hamilton, 39, of Teaberry, was found guilty May 4 of first degree manslaughter for the shotgun slaying of Teddy Howell, Jr., at a 1987 Bluegrass festival on Ned's Fork.

In handing down the sentence, Judge Conley overruled the jury's recommendation of 20 years. Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton, who had sought a murder conviction, was disappointed by the judge's decision. "I vigorously opposed it," he said. Patton also stated that the jury's recommended 20-year sentence was consistent with the evidence presented at the trial and that the jurors took into consideration the mitigating circumstances during the sentencing phase.

Conley's decision was based on a motion filed by defense attorney Ned Pillersdorf to reduce the sentence. "I wasn't surprised by it," Pillersdorf said. "I was hoping for 10, but I expected 15." The defense attorney said he believed Conley reduced the sentence because Hamilton suffers from muscular dystrophy and had no prior criminal record.

However, Judge Conley said he believed the jury's sentence—the maximum—was too strong. "If the person has a clean record, he shouldn't receive the maximum," Conley said. "I discussed the sentence with the jurors after the trial, and they agreed with me that they had made a mistake."

Hamilton will wait in the Floyd County Jail until state officials can find room for him in prison. He must now serve seven and a half years before he is eligible for parole.

Water Line Project Gets Added Funding

The Office of Surface Mining has been directed to approve, during fiscal 1989, an application by Kentucky to use abandoned mine funds to continue the Floyd county water line extension project. This action by the Committee on Appropriation of the House of Representatives was taken at the request of Rep. Carl C. Perkins.

Six million dollars was approved for the work last year, and the additional funding request for this year is a proposed $4,942,656.

These funds will be used for a raw water intake from Dewey Lake to the City of Prestonsburg's water treatment plant at an estimated cost of one million dollars. Additionally, water lines will be run up Little Nancy, Jack's Creek, and Weeksbury at approximately 2.7 million dollars. These lines will serve about 885 customers. Around Salyers Branch and Salt Lick, lines costing $196,000 will serve 35 customers, and a line from Prestonsburg to Allen at a cost of $600,000 will benefit 1,000 customers. The balance of the funds will be used for engineering and design of these projects.

Perkins said, "These funds for water lines are very important to the health and wellbeing of many people in Floyd county."

Reward Program Targets Arson

By Joe Porter

Kentucky State Police announced last Wednesday a $1,000 reward for information leading to the arrest and indictment of an arsonist. The reward money is being put up by the state's insurance industry.

The reward program will be under the control of a new task force organized to combat arson throughout the state, according to Captain John Lyle of the KSP Frankfort office. The task force will be comprised of insurance representatives, members of the State Police, the State Fire Marshall, and local arson investigators.

Lyle said that after a tip has been received, the information will be relayed to the local investigator where it will be followed up and evaluated. As of Friday, one call has been taken, and Lyle described the information received as "promising."

Prestonsburg's arson investigator, Larry Adams, welcomes the reward program. "People are hesitant to get involved, but maybe if people knew they could take an arsonist off the street, and get paid for it, it might help," Adams said. "Often a neighbor doesn't want to make another neighbor mad, or a friend doesn't want to get another friend in trouble; so it makes it rough, trying to piece together information."

Adams also commends the idea of a task force. "There's got to be a genuine effort by insurance companies and law enforcement investigators to combine forces and share information," he said. "Something has got to be done. It's gotten so bad around here that now we've got a reputation as the arson capitol of the U.S."

In this year's General Assembly, the State Police sought additional funding to hire and train more arson investigators state-wide, but the money didn't come through, Lyle said. Pikeville Post No. 9 presently has one technically trained arson investigator, B. McKenzie.

The TARGET ARSON program will pay up to $1,000, and callers may remain anonymous. The number is 1-800-27-ARSON.

Today is the first day of the rest of your life.

Young Authors Program

Perception of Family Life Affects Pain of Arthritis

Third grade students at Prestonsburg Elementary named winners in the Young Authors program, sponsored by the Courier-Journal, are Jason Rice, pictured above, a countywide winner and son of Mr. and Mrs. Melvin Rice; Tommy Franklin, son of Roy and Mary Franklin; Russell Young, son of Wayne and Connie Young, and Heather Collins, a daughter of Charles and Paula Collins.

How husbands and wives with arthritis view different aspects of their family life may affect the amount of pain they feel, according to new research presented this week in Houston at the National Scientific Meeting of the Arthritis Health Professions Association (AHPA), the health professional section of the Arthritis Foundation.

The research studied 390 people to examine family dynamics and its influence on various aspects of arthritis. "We wanted to see why people with similar levels of arthritis severity often have different perceptions of pain and the effectiveness of their medications," said Bernhard Singen, M.D., a physician with the Alfred I. Dupont Institute in Delaware who conducted the research in collaboration with David Imig, Ph.D., a home economist.

The researchers studied 303 demographic and family-related items about each person to determine perceived stress, spousal and marital satisfaction, family togetherness and managerial efficiency. They then compared these results with information about each person's arthritis, medication, compliance and pain intensity.

Overall, the study shows that the husbands and wives without arthritis agree with their spouses who have arthritis about the levels of pain they experience. This is a critical factor to avoid strain on the relationship. However, the study suggests that the amount of pain the husband or wife with arthritis experiences increases depending on how they view aspects of their family life.

Wives with arthritis tend to experience more pain when they view their husbands as being under stress. But the wife's pain actually decreases when she herself is under increased stress. According to Singen, one explanation for this could be that when wives are under stress they redirect their thoughts from their pain to their stress level. They then feel as though the pain has decreased.

Wives also tend to experience more pain when they perceive that their family as a whole is not functioning as it should.

Husbands with arthritis have fewer external factors that influence their perceived pain. The pain the husband feels tends to increase when he perceives that his wife thinks he is having more pain. The husband's pain also changes based on his perception of family income.

"One of the most interesting findings is the role that compliance with medical care plays in association with pain levels," Singen said. "Although a person's compliance with taking medications is relatively important in that person's perception of pain, it is not perceived as a major determinant of how much pain is experienced," he said.

The Arthritis Health Professions Association, the health professional section of the Arthritis Foundation, is composed of nurses, physical and occupational therapists, physicians and other health professionals interested in issues of arthritis care. The Arthritis Foundation is the only national volunteer health agency seeking the causes, cures, preventions and treatments for the more than 100 forms of arthritis-related diseases.

Honored At Annual Banquet

Mrs. Orbie Vaughan received the "Mother of the Year" award, presented by Patricia Watson, president of the Independent Christian Women's Fellowship of Floyd County, at the 12th annual Mother-Daughter Spring Banquet held May 14 at May Lodge. The theme for the banquet was, "A Tender Touch."

Mrs. Vaughan was chosen for what was termed her special "tender touch" which it was said "displayed so consistently throughout the years in her Christian testimony and in her many kind, generous deeds both for her family and for her community."

As part of the evening, a biographical sketch was given by Patricia Watson highlighting memorable moments from Mrs. Vaughan's life and calling attention to her talents which range from the expert use of needle and thread, to cooking, to interior decorating, to upholstery to the non-traditional talents of carpentry. Her work bears a professional finish, and yet she is quite modest about her talents. She has shared her skills freely throughout the years in the Alum Lick community of Middle Creek where she grew up and in the Prestonsburg area where she now resides. One example of her workmanship and her willingness to help is the steeple which sits atop of the Caney Bible Chapel in the Alum Lick community.

As part of the tribute, Mrs. Vaughan received a commemorative plaque and a pastel pink silk corsage from the Christian Women's Fellowship. In behalf of her entire family, her granddaughter, Susan, and her daughter-in-laws, Marlise and Betty, presented a dozen red roses.

After receiving the award, Mrs. Vaughan commented that she was truly surprised but happy to have been chosen for this recognition.

Mrs. Vaughan was married to the late David J. (Dove) Vaughan. Their family includes four sons, the first son, Martin Luther, has recently retired as an industrial engineer for General Electric. He and his wife, Patricia, reside at Lynchburg, Virginia. The second son, John E., has retired from the military airforce and as an aeronautical engineer. He and his wife, Betty, reside at Xenia, Ohio. The third son, Ronald E., is presently retiring as superintendent of the Greenfield School District in Highland County, Ohio. He and his wife, Marlise, and children reside at Greenfield. The fourth son, Joe Larry, is a mechanical engineer for IBM. He and his wife and children reside at Lexington, Kentucky. Altogether, Mrs. Vaughan has ten grandchildren and one great-granddaughter.

Also, as part of the evening, other highlights included recognition of six other "special touch" women for their Christian testimony and for their kindness toward and consideration for others. These six were: Mrs. Joyce Ousley, of Risner, Mrs. Sheryl Shepherd, of Pyramid, Miss Alice Shepherd, of Flat Gap, Mrs. Katherine Hall, of Martin, Mrs. Leah Bowers, of Sassafras, and Mrs. Nadine Hicks, of Pyramid. The following girls acted as escorts as these ladies were recognized: Amy Arnett, Crystal Watson, Melissa Goble, Jennifer Johnson, Bethany Bowers, and Larissa Hicks.

Other events of the evening included the mother and daughter tributes given by Elfreda Sammons and Rita Daniels, of McDowell; musical glasses and special music by Leah and Dick Bowers and their daughters; a "mixed-up" quartet and many surprises; a speaker, Mrs. Connie Pearson, professor at Temple University in Tennessee. Also, the toastmistress for the entire program was Miss Barbara Wynsma of Eastern.

Approximately 130 women attended this banquet.

Decorations for this year's theme, "A Tender Touch", were white branches trimmed with pink crepe paper blossoms on white table covering accented with pink napkins and white candles. Also, pink and white flower arrangements were provided for the head table and dessert table by Libby Flannery, of Maytown.

Ponds, Streams Have Dangerous Alluring As Temperature Rises

Water is the second leading cause of fatalities on farms. School age youngsters are particularly likely to put themselves at risk around ponds and streams.

Among 10- to 14-year-olds, drowning is far and away the leading cause of death on farms, claiming twice as many lives as the next most common cause, firearms.

Larry Piercy, Extension safety specialist in the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture, said drownings can be avoided with a little planning and an awareness of one's limitations.

"Farm ponds are a hazard because they are generally deep and have steep sides. That makes it easy for someone who had intended just to go wading to wind up in over his head in a hurry.

Overhanging trees invite the installation of a rope swing or steps up to a limb from which to dive into the creek or stream. The water level in the stream may have dropped from where it was the previous year, and may be too shallow to allow safe diving.

"Always be certain the water you are diving into is deep enough that you will not hit your head on the bottom. Check it every time you return to the spot. Even if the water level appears to be the same, a sandbar or other obstruction may have developed underwater," Piercy said.

Also, be careful of currents and eddies in a river or stream. The current is generally swifter in the middle of a river, but eddies along the banks can be treacherous as well.

It's a good idea to check the depth of a farm pond before diving there also. The presence of a dock extending several feet into the pond does not mean the water below it is deep enough for safe diving.

Drownings are not limited to poor swimmers who slip into deep water, and those who dive into shallow water. Early season swimmers often find the water uncomfortably cold, and cold water can sap a swimmer's energy.

"You may have been able to swim across a pond or stream easily last August or September. But if you were to try it in early June you might not make it because of the differences in water temperature and a winter-long lack of conditioning," Piercy said.

Water safety on the farm is not difficult. Signs should be posted around farm ponds warning of steep sides and deep water. If a swimming area is created it should be marked off from deep water with a rope and buoys.

"If the ring buoy is too much of an attraction to people wanting to play with it, a suitable alternative is a plastic bleach bottle with some sand or rocks in it, just enough to give it some throwing weight. The point is to be able to throw the ring or bottle past a swimmer in trouble, carrying the rope within his grasp. The bottle is not intended to provide flotation for the swimmer, just for the rope," Piercy said.

Another way people get in trouble is when non-swimmers fall out of an inner tube or off a raft in deep water.

"These things are toys. You should not trust your life to them. If you can't swim, stay in the shallow area, regardless of whether you have an inner tube or inflatable raft," Piercy said.

And lastly, Piercy said, never go swimming alone. Ideally there should be someone in the group with lifesaving training. Short of that, someone should remain out of the water to keep an eye on those in the water.

Flying Cockroaches No Reason To Panic

There is a season for all things. And this is the season for flying cockroaches.

"Flying cockroaches are actually male wood roaches looking for a mate," said Chris Christensen, Extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The roaches are between 1 1/2 inches and 2 inches long and about 1/2 inch wide. Their color is camel brown, he said.

"Homeowners usually notice these flying roaches when they turn on the porch or yard light and the insects start to fly around the light source," Christensen said.

The roaches are native to Kentucky and usually live under loose bark on trees, hollow trees and firewood, or in piles of stones. Rarely, he said, they will set up residence in houses. Usually when they do, it is because the house provides an environment similar to a tree, he said.

"Although the flying roaches may startle you, they are benign and are of little consequence to your life. Control is not recommended, except by use of the fly swatter for the occasional one that may breeze in the open door," Christensen said.

Those who feel compelled to take some measures, however, need to use a short-action pyrethrin spray, the entomologist said.

Jenny Wiley Cast Gives Depth To Title Heroine, Other Roles

THE STORY OF JENNY WILEY, a true Kentucky heroine, is being presented at the Jenny Wiley State Park amphitheatre in what some believe to be the best production yet.

By Joe Porter

Jenny Wiley loved her husband and children. She also loved the other pioneer settlers with whom she shared. Most of all she loved God, who she believed—despite all the hardship and tragedy in her life—was going to help her through everything.

The Jenny Wiley Story, which opened June 14 at the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, presents the remarkable spirit of a Kentucky woman, a heroine whom we all can take strength from the same way the other settlers who knew her did.

Director/choreographer Homer Tracy describes the play as a drama with music. It also features folk dancing. Tracy, who lives in Richmond where he is an assistant professor of drama and dance at Eastern Kentucky University, began studying and revising the play in April. "I saw what would work for the show, and I made changes in the script," Tracy said, "but I'm by no means a playwright. I'm a doer. I get it on the stage."

Plays evolve. A playwright gives it birth, and a director brings it up. Asked if the kinks were out of the play after all the rehearsals and two nights showing, Tracy answered, "No. Are they ever out?" The director knows theatre; he knows it's not static, but a dynamic ongoing process with the actors perfecting their roles with each performance. "They're very good actors," he said of his cast. "They make the materials play nicely, but they'll be growing into their characters until August."

Joanna Robbins who plays Jenny Wiley is from Pensacola, Florida, where she just finished her second year of college. Although an experienced actress, she had to adapt to this serious part. "I've always done comedy. It's my forte," Robbins said. "I've always been able to pull it off. This is different. I've really had to work at this role."

After she was cast, Robbins went to the Pensacola library and tried to research her character. "I couldn't find anything out about her. I didn't know who she was," she said. When she came to Kentucky, members of the company told her about Jenny Wiley, and she gleaned more information from the script. With that, and her own heredity, Robbins built a character. "I kind of understood her because I've got a little Indian blood. My great-grandmother was a Cherokee," the actress said.

Slowly, through the rehearsal period, Robbins came to her own interpretation; she also had to deal with all the sorrow in the heroine's life. "I didn't want the audience to pity her, and I don't think she would want anyone to feel sorry for her." Instead, the actress found hope and strength in the role. "She lifted the people up," Robbins continued. "Everyone got strength from her. She wasn't afraid of death, but she was afraid of others dying."

Robbins had difficulty with the script's language, but she enjoyed working with the music. "I love the songs," she said. The songs add a lot to the play. If the script lacked anywhere, the songs made up for it.

Three songs were kept from last year's production, and Bruce S. Rous, the musical director, relied on his own interpretation of the story and musical background to piece together the rest of the score. In choosing the music, Rous said, "I help say what the play is trying to say. The music is geared to the people of the area." Rous also wrote an original song that serves as the prologue and epilogue. "I wanted a simple folk song, a ballad if you will, that fits the moment. It gives you something to relate to, a bearing," he said.

As Dull Knife, James Barbour brings an ominous quality to the play as he leads a band of renegade Indians. Barbour doesn't mind at all playing a menacing savage driven by vengeance; he's challenged by the prospect of making the one dimensional character something more. "As the actor I have to look at ways to make him not flat," he said.

Barbour's home is in Cherry Hill, New Jersey; he will attend the British American Drama Academy in London this fall to further his training in classical theatre. He sees versatility in roles as a key to success. Barbour credits Joe Sturgeon and Brian Marshall, two members of the American Society of Fight Directors, with choreographing the exciting and realistic knife scenes. Thomas Wiley is played by Mike Owen. Christie Tate is Ann Skaggs. Nancy Skaggs is performed by Melissa Roach; the Indian chief, Black Wolf, is played by Michael McCormack.

Coal Production Reaches Record High Level in '87

Despite continually rising unemployment in the Eastern Kentucky coal fields and a general acceptance in Floyd and surrounding counties that the coal business is "down," reports released last week indicate that coal production in Kentucky reached a record level in 1987.

During calendar year 1987, the state's mines produced 177,259,423 tons of coal. This figure is up from the 1986 production of 165,603,339 tons with increases recorded in both the eastern and western coal fields.

The Martin District, which includes Floyd county, was second among the state's six mining districts in coal production with a total of 32,594,843 tons mined. Most tons mined was in the Western Kentucky District which recorded a total of 50,877,065 tons.

Of the Martin District's total tonnage, 15,315,918 came from underground mining methods while 17,278,925 were produced through strip mining. In a total of 243 underground mines in the Martin District, a total of 3,555 persons were employed during the past year while 295 surface mines employed 4,800 area workers, according to the state figures.

The leading coal-production Western Kentucky District produced its tonnage from 108 surface mines and 26 "deep" mines.

The report also points out that the department issued 2,335 mine licenses during the course of the year. This figure includes 1,059 underground and 1,276 surface mines. This figure is down from the 1986 total of 2,465 licenses issued in 1986, but overall employment for the industry was up to 41,638. Commissioner Willard Stanley said that 1987's record production was still yet another indication of technology in the industry.

"Last year, the average Kentucky miner produced over 4,000 tons of coal," said Stanley, "this rate of production has more than doubled what our production per miner was 20 years ago."

While last year was a good year for production, Stanley pointed out that it was not such a good year for safety. "Last year, 27 miners lost their lives in Kentucky coal mines. I believe that one fatality is one too many, and by that token 27 is certainly 27 too many," said Stanley.

But despite last year's record, department officials feel that the industry is on the right track for a safer future. Research shows that while the yearly frequency of accidents tends to show a good deal of variation, the trend is for accidents to decrease overall. "In the 1950's the average number of fatalities per year was 69, but we have seen that average drop every decade with the average for the 1980's now standing at 25 fatalities per year," explained Stanley.

Dull Knife's nemesis is Tice Harmon, the ruthless settler played by Cliff Morts.

"I had to find out the impetus for his anger," Morts said of his character. Morts, who graduated as an English major from the University of Missouri and now lives in New York City, goes on a search to understand every character he plays. "First, I find the voice, then the walk. After those, I fill in the rest," he said. "I'm an external actor as opposed to an internal one."

This is Morts's second season in the role. Last year he spent hours discussing his character with the playwright Daniel A. Stein; then he read books about him to move him closer. Not resting this year, Morts has developed the Tice Harmon character further. Using an Irish lilt in his voice, Morts has made him a more likable figure, but still mercurial, and every bit as explosive. Tice's hatred for the Indians is motivated by the fact that they slaughtered his family, but as Morts points out, it was also greed. "Indian scalps went for $100 a piece then."

The play is tempered by the pleasing tone of the narrator's voice, played by Kristen Plumley. In preparing for her role, the Connecticut actress said, "I observed the local people, the way they acted; I listened to the way they talked." So, while she uses her own voice, she delivers her lines in a slower rhythm than her natural speech. Her part called for other adjustments as well. "It was hard for me, because I don't interact with the other characters," she said. Plumley called her role, "more of a stretch" for her exactly that reason.

Descendants of the Jenny Wiley family travel every year from Louisville to see the performance, and Robbins was glad to hear from friends that they enjoyed her performance and remarked that it was the best production yet of the story.

The Jenny Wiley Story will run in repertory—alternating in sequence with the other three productions—throughout the summer. This is the second season the HBK Coal Corporation has sponsored it. West Side Story opens June 23.

Coal Miners Festival Draws Estimated 3,000

By Tim Sizemore

It was "toe tapping" time last weekend at the first annual Coal Miners Bluegrass Festival at Grethel, as hundreds turned out to see a panorama of top Bluegrass entertainment.

Motor homes from as far away as San Diego, California lined the reclaimed stripmine site on Mud Creek, to hear the high lonesome sound of Dr. Ralph Stanley or the upbeat country Bluegrass sound of the Charlie Sizemore band. The impressive array of talent drew crowds estimated at 3,000 over a three-day period.

Among those who performed at the event were such well known musicians as Raymond Fairchild, The Goins Brothers, Jimmy Martin, The Osborne Brothers, Hook and Beans and Dave Evans.

The event was the dream of four cousins, Denzil and Forrest Hall and Bob and Shelby Jones. The men decided that Floyd county needed a Bluegrass festival and their main excuse according to Denzil Hall was, "We just love Bluegrass music."

Hall said the festival was a great success and plans are in the making for a repeat next year. The men have several improvements in mind which include more parking, showers, and electrical hookups for those who bring campers.

Denzil Hall said that due to excellent security provided by the sheriff's department trouble was avoided, and it was fun for the whole family. Besides having good security, an ambulance was on hand just in case it was needed.

Floyd county Property Valuation Administrator Lovell Hall summed it up best "I think it's a public service, because Floyd county loves Bluegrass.

Even Marijuana Crop Stunted by Drought

By Joe Porter

It's summer and it's hot; and it's also marijuana growing season, something Sheriff Henry C. Hale is working to stamp out in Floyd county.

Three more raids were made in the last two weeks. June 7, 217 plants were seized on Cider Creek by deputies John K. Blackburn and George Hale. June 17, 80 plants were confiscated on Johnson Fork of Caney Creek by Deputies Anthony Castle and George Hale. Then on June 19, 140 more plants were uprooted on Justine Creek outside of Betsy Layne. Again Castle and Hale made the hit.

All three leads came from anonymous tipsters. Deputy Hale said they are finding the patches fertilized, but the plants are small because of shortage or rain. "If they had a good rain, those plants would shoot up another three feet," Hale said.

Is the U.S. too waste-full? Within a decade, half the states will face serious problems in trying to dispose of their garbage. Although the problem is worse in urban areas, large, sparsely populated states also are running out of landfill space and cannot easily obtain new sites. According to National Wildlife magazine, long-term solutions, such as incineration and facilities to convert trash to energy, are needed.

David Craft's Annual Summerfest Set

David Crafts SummerFest originally began as a yearly gathering of the craftspeople who were members of the craft program. The center then decided to invite the public so they might enjoy and learn from demonstrations in traditional Appalachian Crafts. These include white oak baskets, pottery, cornshuckery, woodcarving, quilting and other crafts. These crafts were developed by past ancestors out of necessity and the skills were passed along and improved on by each succeeding generation. The hand-crafted items have changed only in the sense of being a luxury instead of a necessity. They are still crafted by hand, with skill and pride.

The celebration will begin Saturday, June 25, at 11 a.m. with a pot-luck dinner for the center's 100 plus members and their families. They will also be joined this year by alumni members from the staff of St. Vincent's Mission, which sponsors the craft program.

Craft demonstrations from 1-4 p.m. will be featured events, open to the public. Local artists, writers and musicians will also be featured.

One of Craft Center's goals is to encourage the production of authentic, high quality, traditional Appalachian hand-crafted goods. They also hope to encourage more local people to display and market their mountain crafts.

Mary Pineau the founder of David Appalachian Crafts will also be at the center for the day.

Although David Crafts Center is normally closed on Saturday, it will be open Saturday, June 25, at 1 p.m. Craftspeople and visitors are asked to park nearby at The David School.

UC Holds Conference Dinner

Pete Greene, Union College football player and former Prestonsburg Blackcat star, was one of two students, with the campus minister, who presented the program for 87 alumni, trustees, faculty, staff, and former faculty at the 35th meeting of Union College Friends, June 9, at the Kentucky Annual Conference of the United Methodist Church. Pictured with Greene, above, at a dinner at Morehead State University where the conference was held, are from left, Dr. Harold Dorsey, executive director of the Kentucky United Methodist Foundation, Matt Ballard, Union head football coach, Greene, and Kay Cooley, of Prestonsburg. Dr. Dorsey is a former pastor of the First United Methodist Church, here.

"I decided to go to Union College after having visited nearly all of Kentucky's colleges and universities that have a football program," said Pete Greene, a sophomore education major.

"Because my high school had not really encouraged me to take pre-college courses, I was not prepared academically, but because my teachers care, I have been very successful in my classes," he stated. Greene was named to the Dean's List at Union.

Greene, who was the only Bulldog placed on the first team in the Mid-South All-Conference football team, stated that "Union College is a Christian school. The faculty and staff reflect Christian values in their daily contact with students. There is always someone available to talk to you if you have a problem and need to talk," he said.

Next Week Critical for Grain and Cattle

The next week to 10 days will be crucial for the nation's grain and cattle producers. With temperatures above normal and precipitation levels below normal for the year, producers are reaching a critical point in the growing season.

"It's really becoming a serious situation for producers," said University of Kentucky meteorologist Tom Priddy. "They really need some moisture soon."

But Priddy said the chances of farmers receiving the needed precipitation soon look slim. Although some parts of Kentucky have a chance of receiving some light rainfall over the next few days, the National Weather Service's six- to 10-day outlook for the rest of country is not encouraging, as it calls for below normal rainfall levels.

Although UK agricultural economist Larry Jones said it is still premature to be predicting higher prices at the grocery store next year, he said meat prices could "really jump" next year if farmers do not receive any rain within the next 10 days.

If the dry weather continues and pastures become thin, Jones said some producers will be forced to rush their cattle to the market, causing meat prices to decline initially.

But that would set the stage for a tighter cattle situation next year, Jones said, which could cause a sharp increase in 1989 prices.

"This weather hits the cattle industry with a double whammy," he said.

In addition to having to sell their cattle early, Jones said producers may have to reduce the size of their herds because feed prices increase.

However, if the rains come, Jones said there will be less speculation about higher food prices next year.

"If we get the needed moisture, then the talk about higher food prices will be dampened quite a bit," he said.

Of happiness and smiles.
You've touched the hearts of everyone
Sown through the miles.

IN LOVING MEMORY OF OBRA McKINNEY

Who died June 24, 1987

Obra, I loved you more than this old world will ever know. Thank God for all the memories you left me in this old world below. You were my love, my life, my sunshine, my everything. I am so lost without you. You fought a long hard battle with cancer. Never once giving up but that you would get better. God knew you had suffered enough here on this earth. He took you home on June 24, 1987. Our home is not the same without you. It is so lonesome. We look at the things you loved and touched. The many memories you left behind and it breaks our hearts, but life must go on.

Time goes on here on earth, but since you have gone time seems to have stood still. You're not here to make things all right, to make us smile or to ease lives trouble, but I know you are only sleeping, without any pain or worries. God knew that you deserved more than what was here. So until we see you again with a beautiful smile on your face, I will go on loving and missing you.

Sadly missed by wife,
RUBY McKINNEY,
CHILDREN, and GRANDCHILDREN

IN MEMORIAM

In loving memory of Lark Newsome, who passed away on June 22, 1987.

Death is just another step along life's changing way

No more than just a gateway, to a new and brighter day

But, to part from you, dad, has been so hard to bear

Although, we know you're waiting, for us to join you there

For it is on the things of death, that the living take their flight

Into the promised land of God, where there shall be no night

So, death is just a natural thing, like the closing of the door

As we start upon our journey to a new and distant shore

For those of us left here behind, in grief and great despair

We, then, in our sorrow, grow more and more aware

That you have gone to a wonderful land to start your life anew

Just, wait for us, dad, we will join you, when our journey here is through.

So sadly missed by, wife, Draxie, children, and grandchildren.

IN MEMORY

In loving memory of my husband, Rickey Lee Burgey, who passed away four years ago, June 23, 1984. You may be gone but not forgotten. I miss you.

Imagine a lawn that repels weeds, resists disease, dislikes fertilizer, stays green late in the season and best of all barely grows! According to International Wildlife magazine, a Canadian geneticist says he has produced 35 lines of such a miracle grass from 17 alpine species. The Canadian government is already using the slow growing grasses along highways, but it will be another four years or so before they're available commercially.

Cattle In Danger Of Too Much Water

Farmers and their fields aren't the only ones suffering from the current stretch of hot, dry weather. But oddly enough, the lack of rain may put some cattle in danger of too much water.

Duane Miksch, University of Kentucky Extension veterinarian, said short term dehydration frequently occurs in mature cattle as a result of their being accidentally deprived of water. Calves may suffer long-term dehydration during weaning. The danger arises when dehydrated cattle are given unlimited access to water. Water intoxication, a potentially lethal condition, results when thirsty cattle drink more water in a short period of time than their bodies can handle. And thirsty cattle seem inclined to do just that.

"If somebody forgets to open a gate for a day and a half or so, and then lets the cattle loose in the pasture with the farm pond—some of those cattle could kill themselves by drinking too much," Miksch said.

Cats, dogs and people are susceptible to water intoxication, but cattle seem particularly susceptible because of the very large capacity of their upper digestive system, and the inability of their bodies to switch quickly enough from conserving fluids to getting rid of excess fluids.

"Extremely thirsty cattle may, in a very short time, drink far more water than they need to replace the water lost since their last drink. Ordinarily, the kidneys would eliminate the excess water, but it may take up to six hours for the kidneys to adjust from saving water to removing water," Miksch said.

When that happens water accumulates in the tissues and water intoxication develops.

One of the first signs of water intoxication, especially in calves, is the appearance of blood in the urine. In severe cases nervous signs become apparent. They include lethargy and muscle tremors, a wobbly gait and excessive rubbing or licking of the body.

"The animal often assumes a position with head and neck extended, as though staring at the sky," Miksch said.

Some cattle recover with no assistance, but extremely dehydrated cattle which consume large amounts of water usually die. There are treatments, if used early and carefully, that may save water intoxicated cattle. But Miksch said the best solution is prevention.

"On a cool, overcast day, a calf weighing 350 pounds or less would probably need no more than a gallon or so of water. On a hot, dry day, and with no shade, that same calf would probably need about five gallons of water," Miksch said.

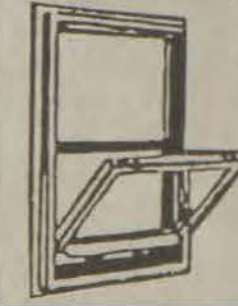

Cattle in the 500-pound range need two to six gallons of water a day, those in the 750-pound range need ten to fifteen gallons of water daily, and cattle weighing 1,000 pounds or more need upwards of 20 gallons of water a day.

"It's best not to let them get dehydrated this time of year. But if you suspect they are, you need to control their water intake."

A.A.R.P. MEETS

The Jenny Wiley Chapter A.A.R.P. held its monthly dinner meeting last Friday evening in the dining room of the Highlands Regional Medical Center, with Orville Cooley, president, in charge.

The boat ride, scheduled July 7 at Dewey Lake was discussed, and those wishing to attend were instructed to bring a sack lunch. Delmas Saunders said that dues were now payable. Mr. and Mrs. Harmison Hale gave reports on the "55 Alive" driving course, which they help to sponsor.

It was reported that Jack Freed, who was instrumental in the organization of the local A.A.R.P. program, was recently given a standing ovation for his endeavors during a meeting at Corbin.

The president reported that there are 70 paid members of the local chapter A.A.R.P. Mr. Cooley presented Fred James, Prestonsburg City Manager, who gave an in-depth report of local government, and listed some of the goals of the Prestonsburg City government, which included increasing awareness of recreation, tourism, and economic development, maintaining a senior citizens' outdoor recreation area, and emphasizing road improvement. Mr. James also stressed the importance of keeping Prestonsburg and Floyd county clean.

The following items are needed by this group—a telephone (with the hope that a prospective donor would be responsible for the use of same); a sweeper, a computer. Anyone wishing to donate to these causes may call Mrs. Marian Masters, at the parsonage of the Community United Methodist Church.

Dark Clouds Over Dixie: Rural South In Distress

Hard times are a pervasive reality throughout rural Southern communities. Closed banks, abandoned homes and boarded store fronts evidence the growing gap between wealth in the rural South, the urban South and the rest of the country.

Although the rural South has been noted for poverty since the Civil War, the prosperity foretold by the economic gurus of the 1970s who proclaimed the "Age of the Sunbelt" has not been achieved in rural communities. In fact, the region has lost ground in the 1980s and lags farther behind today than it has for a generation.

The gap in real per capita income between rural and urban sectors has widened substantially during the 1980s throughout the United States. In the 1970s, the rate of income increase was only two-tenths of a percent lower for rural areas than urban areas; during the 1980s, the gap was a half percent per year. Per capita income in the rural South is only 75 percent of that of the nation.

The ranks of unemployed and under-employed rural workers continue to increase, even though the rest of the nation seems to be showing opposite trends. Some counties have as many as a quarter of the work force employed in jobs below the workers' skills. And nearly half of all rural counties are losing population as workers look for jobs in urban areas.

The reasons for hard times in the rural South are many, according to two University of Kentucky researchers who are studying the situation.

"Two industries that brightened the rural Southern economy in the 1970s—mining and oil production—have slumped as a result of the dropping value of the dollar. The energy industry boomed during the 1970s, only to bust during the 1980s, with workers idled," said Jerry Skees, University of Kentucky agricultural economist.

And even if the energy industry resurges, laid off workers will not be employed to the same extent as before since new mining technologies have already replaced many jobs, he said.

The much-heralded industrialization of the rural South in the 1970s and '80s has come from marginal industries—those needing cheap, unskilled labor. Many were dependent on exports for survival and the high value of the dollar in the '80s forced them out of business. Many of those remaining pulled out to take advantage of even cheaper labor over seas said Louis Swanson, a rural sociologist at University of Kentucky.

Other industries locating in the South have chosen more urbanized areas, such as Atlanta, or have chosen to import the managerial staff and skilled workers needed to run the factories, said Skees.

creating little economic relief from the financially strapped rural economies.

The farm crisis, too, has contributed to the decline of the rural South. Although the correlation between a strong farm sector and the local economy has eroded since World War II, the farm crisis has affected rural banking.

Coupled with the farm crisis squeezing rural banks, deregulation of banking shifted advantage to urban banks, making smaller, rural banks strapped. The indirect result is that badly needed capital for the rest of the rural economy is scarce or nonexistent.

"The rural South continues to lag farther and farther behind the urban South and the rest of the nation. And the economic effects will continue for at least another generation even if its causes were checked tomorrow," Skees said.

Eastern Bank Group Hold May 9 Meeting

Helen Neeley, of First Commonwealth Bank, Prestonsburg, announced that Marilyn Smith, First American Bank, Ashland, was the recipient of the association's $500 group scholarship for 1988.

At the April state conference in Lexington, the Eastern Kentucky Group received awards for focus on achievement and group newsletter. Group president Anita Justice, Pikeville National Bank & Trust, received an award for NABW certified leader, one of only two in the state of Kentucky.

Law School Graduate

James Frederick Stephens, son of Fred and Brenda Stephens, of Kendallville, Indiana, became an attorney-at-law last month. He is the grandson of Martha Stephens, of Hueysville, and the late James Stephens, and also of the late O.K. and Ruby Wallace, of Garrett.

He attended Valparaiso University School of Law, an exclusive university in the Chicago metropolitan area and received the degree of Juris Doctor at graduation ceremonies on May 22.

He plans to marry Miss Tamara Scott, a teacher in the East Noble School District, in July.

Stephens will be an associate in a Kendallville law firm and practice in the Ft. Wayne area.

★ Cancer Hopeline

QUESTION: I'm interested in any information you have on hepatoma. My husband died last year of this cancer, after being sick for just a month. He was only 30. What can you tell me about this type of cancer? Why didn't they know about it sooner so they could have done more for him? Is there any research going on in this type of cancer?

ANSWER: Hepatoma is a cancer that begins in the liver (primary liver cancer). Primary liver cancer is rare in the United States; most cancers found in the liver have spread there from someplace else in the body. Hepatoma is found more often in men than in women and the average age at diagnosis is between 60 and 70 years of age. Although the cause is unknown, previous infection with the hepatitis-B virus may be related to the development of this type of cancer. In addition, cirrhosis of the liver is present in many patients with hepatoma.

Hepatomas are seldom found in an early localized stage because the early symptoms are vague and misleading. These symptoms can include: weakness, loss of appetite, nausea and vomiting, abdominal fullness or bloating, back pain and jaundice (yellowing of the skin). In many patients, the disease is already advanced by the time the first symptoms appear. This may be why your husband seemed to become ill so quickly and died so soon after he was diagnosed.

The only known curative treatment for hepatoma is surgical removal of the tumor. This is possible only when the tumor is confined to one area. Unfortunately, only a small number of patients have localized disease at diagnosis. For more advanced disease, there is no standard approach to treatment. Sometimes the patient will be referred to a study which evaluates newer methods of treatment. However, in many cases, the patient is too ill when diagnosed to be able to withstand any treatment. In this case, the goal is to provide comfort.

One newer treatment in study at the present time for hepatoma is the use of radioactive antibodies that can seek out hepatoma cells. Early results from this treatment look promising but more research is needed before it becomes a standard treatment.

Other new and hopeful research involves a group of substances called biological response modifiers. These substances stimulate the body's own defense system to attack the cancer cells. Again, the success of these new agents is still being studied.

For more information on any cancer related subject, call the Cancer Information Service (CIS) at 1-800-4-CANCER. Or write to the CIS at the Markey Cancer Center, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky.

Peak of Perfection: Summer Vegetables

From the American Institute for Cancer Research
 Here come the vegetables of summer: beans, beets, cabbage, corn, cucumber, leaf lettuce, okra, tomatoes, sweet peppers, spinach, summer squash and, of course, zucchini. That's only a partial list of the bounty of June, July and August—when many vegetables reach their peak of color, taste, texture and nutrition.

American's surge of interest in healthy eating—for fitness and overall good health—has resulted in a greater demand for fresh produce. Farmers' markets and produce stands to a land-office business during the summer, and supermarkets have more than doubled the number of produce items they carried just 10 years ago.

Fresh vegetables are a rich natural source of fiber, vitamins and minerals, and most are relatively low in fat and calories. The American Institute for Cancer Research stresses fresh vegetable through its dietary guidelines, since many serve as excellent sources of vitamins C and A, two nutrients linked through many studies to lower cancer risk.

As a general guide for selecting vegetables:

*Buy only those that look fresh, not wilted or wrinkled.

*Remember that the most recently picked and ripest vegetables retain the greatest stores of nutrients.

*The deepest colors often indicate best nutrition, but beware of over-mature or over-ripe produce.

*Avoid vegetables with any signs of bruising, insect damage, mold or other disease.

The following recipe is a classic French vegetable casserole which combines vegetables and herbs for a wonderful, fresh flavor. It is very low calorie, as well as low in fat. It is customarily served hot, but may also be served cold.

RATATOUILLE

- 1 large onion, thinly sliced into rings
- 1 small eggplant, peeled and cut into 3/4" cubes
- 2 zucchini, sliced
- 2 green bell peppers, cut into strips
- 1/2-1 tsp. garlic powder with parsley
- 1 tsp. dried basil
- 1 tsp. oregano
- 5 tomatoes, seeded and chopped

In a large saucepan, simmer the onion and eggplant in water or juice for about 10 minutes. Add the zucchini, green peppers and seasonings. Simmer for 5 more minutes. Add the chopped tomatoes and simmer for an additional 10 to 15 minutes, until the mixture is of the desired tenderness and thickness.

This recipe makes about 4 servings and has 92 calories and almost no fat per cup.

For more tips on selecting, preparing and storing the season's fresh fruits and vegetables, write to American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. C26, Washington, D.C. 20069.

Added Help Given To Young Children

New days are dawning for young children with handicapping conditions, those-at-risk of developing them, and their parents. The United States Congress passed a law, in October 1986, saying that all the states could choose to participate in a program to provide evaluations, education, needed therapies, training, equipment, and any other needed services to children birth to five years old who have special needs. Kentucky chose to participate.

The Department for Mental Health/Mental Retardation Services has responsibility for the children birth through two and, when specially contracted, three to five year old children, and the public schools will serve children three to five. This past year, in Pike and Floyd counties, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, Head Start, Christian Appalachian Project (C.A.P.), and the Floyd County Developmental Day Care, Inc., joined together in serving the 3 to 5 year olds. The children may be served at home, in special preschools and day care centers, or in clinics.

In Pike and Floyd counties, a Pre-school Interagency Planning Council (PIPC) has been formed and recently the Council met for the first time to continue these combined efforts. Agencies participating in the recent meeting were: Mountain Comprehensive Care Center; Floyd County Board of Education; Pike County Board of Education; Pikeville Independent Schools; Big Sandy Community Action Head Start Program.

Rita Conley, program director for Child and Adolescent Services at Mountain Comprehensive Care Center was elected chairperson. The next meeting of the Council is scheduled for Monday, June 13.

Anyone wanting to get more information about these new programs or to refer a child for services may contact the following persons: John Cornett, Ruth Bevens, or Darlene McCoy, at the Pike County Board of Education, 432-3111; Parker Tiller, Pikeville Independent Schools, 432-8161; Ogie Stone, Floyd County Board of Education, 886-2354; Clifford Austin/Verna Cole, Big Sandy Head Start Program, 789-1600; Rita Conley, Mountain Comprehensive Care Center, 886-8572.

 Art Willett
 Manager -
 South Central Bell

I was present at the May 16 meeting of the Big Sandy Development Board, when Judge Paul Patton spoke about and encouraged support for the Depressed Counties Program.

This is an excellent program that Judge Patton developed during his campaign for Lieutenant Governor. The program passed the 1988 General Assembly, and now Judge Patton discusses it whenever possible because he firmly believes it will be very helpful to Eastern Kentucky. I certainly agree, and urge you to support the Depressed Counties Program yourself.

Are you aware that you have the most modern electronic Custom Calling Services available for your telephone? Service enhancements such as Call Waiting, Call Forwarding, Speed Calling, and Three-Way Calling can help you get the most from your telephone service both at home and at work.

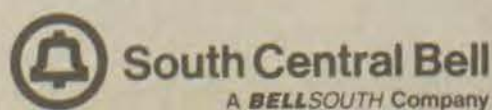

To order Custom Calling Services for your telephone, call your South Central Bell service representative during regular Monday-Friday business hours at 1+557-6500 (for home customers) or 1+557-6000 (for business customers). There's no charge for calling either number.

***

Is a tight budget keeping you or someone you know from having telephone service installed? If so, "Link Up Kentucky" could make the difference. "Link Up" is a telephone assistance program that helps make service available to people who can't afford all the costs of having a telephone installed.

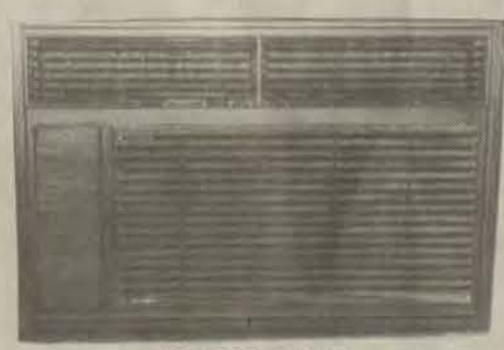

Persons qualifying for "Link Up" will receive a 50 percent reduction off total charges for service connection and installation up to $30.00. They are responsible, however, for any other charges that may be required to install service. While "Link Up" does not help pay monthly bills, it does help make installing telephone service affordable to many who otherwise might not have it.

If you are receiving Aid To Families with Dependent Children, Medicaid, foodstamps, or Supplemental Security Income, and have not had phone service for at least three months, you may qualify for assistance from this program. For more information on "Link Up Kentucky," call your South Central Bell service representative toll-free 1+557-6500.

BOOKS AND THINGS

By: TRISHA MORRIS, Librarian
Prestonsburg Community College

Poets and novelists rarely overlook women—historians often do. The following books from the P.C.C. library attempt to fill that gap in the history books.

Womenhood in America

By: Mary Ryan

The study of women's history has developed from eager feminist inquiries to a mature field of scholarship. In addition to raising many new questions of twentieth century values regarding women, Ms. Ryan provides a feminist synthesis of much of the material omitted from traditional history books. She has expanded women's history past a small circle of suffragists and politicians wives to include the everyday activities of the mass of womankind. From "Women in the agricultural settlements of the seventeenth century" to "Feminism and family change since 1960" this book is a concise and scholarly account of the history of women in America. Ms. Ryan is acutely aware of the possible impact of the future as women struggle towards a true equality in social, moral, economic and sexual affairs, and she has some suggestions.

A History of Women in America

By: Carol Hymowitz

The author's premise is that for the twentieth-century women's movement to survive, women need to understand the successes and the failures of the nineteenth-century women's movement—and so this book was written. It describes the lives of average women and the lives of extraordinary women, and it makes them all important in the shaping of the times and of the future. It tells of colonial women who were equal partners in the creation of the new world—revolutionary women who fought vigorously for the patriot cause—black women who refused to be oppressed—pioneer women who drove wagons loaded with children and household goods into an unknown future—factory women who took to the streets to demand fair wages—immigrant women, who struggled for a new life in a foreign country and modern women, who every decade gain a larger role in the world outside the home. This book is well-documented with index and references and complete with pictures.

The American Women, Who Was She?

Ed: Anne Scott

Here are collected over 50 letters, memoirs, essays and speeches by women about themselves on such far ranging subjects as education and infant mortality. Preserved are recollections of the garment workers strike of 1910 and how Kentucky's vital statistical laws, passed in 1913, was mostly due to the work of the state's women's clubs. As far back as writings can be found, women have been working for and questioning politics, education and social issues. Published in 1971 the findings of this study are themselves history but because of its unique technique it will serve as a mile marker in the historical writings on women's history.

Herstory

By: June Sochen

Presented in two volumes, "Herstory" is an ambitious effort to present the women's side of the American past. Unique to Dr. Sochen's book is the inclusion of the American Indian woman. The books discuss two broad areas: the ideology held concerning women and the actualities of their lives. Professor Sochen coins an acronym—WASM—white Anglo-Saxon males—they are her bad guys. She states, "There are more similarities than differences between the WASM's attitude toward women, Indians, black slaves, forests and wildlife than historians have realized" and then goes on to document her statement. She links women with "other less privileged humans" and the preyed-upon environment. Organized chronologically "Herstory" surveys each major historical period in the life stories, experiences and thoughts of its women.

If All We Did Was to Weep at Home

By: Susan Kennedy

Written as one of a series of books on minorities in America—"If All We Did..." is a history of the white working class women in America. With chapter headings of "She must be married, she don't work" for 1600-1900; "I can't live on hopes and virtue" for 1900-'40 and "You'd cry to for 1940-'77 Ms. Kennedy brings us a very readable and sensitive portrait of white working class women—who, she claims, are the largest group of anonymous heroines in American history.

Inventing the American Woman

The director of Women's Studies at the University of Northern Iowa, Glenda Riley is the author of two other books

The world's first newspaper was probably Tsing Pao, a court journal published in China. It is said to have begun as early as the 500's and continued until 1935.

and numerous articles on women's history. Writing these volumes as a way to incorporate women's history into the basic courses on U.S. history Ms. Riley presents her work as "intended to provoke discussion and further thought." The author tells us that all cultures invent roles to achieve objectives—the model American woman was invented to be, among other things, a devoted mother, unusually virtuous, domestically inclined, bubble headed, physically weak and needing guidance from—men. The stereotype was containing and tension producing but generations of American women clung tenaciously to it and broke their backs to conform rather than develop their own talents and desires. This is the story of the forming of the stereotype and the breaking of the mold. Read it—you won't believe it.

Mothers and Such

By: Maxine Margolis

Anthropologists tell us that every society allocates human labor by sex and that one essential social task is almost universally assigned to females—the care of infants and children. The author takes this premise and examines how society has dictated the female role. From religious pronouncements to popular magazine dictates the little women is told her place and how to handle it. To quote a phrase, "You've come a long way baby." This book chronicles the failures and the victories along the way.

Vietnam Vets Hold Picnic Near Paintsville

Sunday, June 12, Paintsville Chapter No. 204 of the Vietnam Veterans of America sponsored a veterans picnic to honor all the veterans in the Big Sandy area who served their country in the armed forces. Over 120 veterans and their families attended this year's event which was held at Paintsville Lake picnic area. A watermelon eating contest and horseshoe competition highlighted the afternoon's activities, and the participants are already looking forward to the next opportunity to socialize and honor Eastern Kentuckians who have so honorably served.

The Vietnam Veterans of America would like to thank the merchants of Johnson and Floyd counties for their generous donations of food and supplies for the outing.

Current Employment Situation Outlined

Nonagricultural payroll employment continued to increase in May, the Bureau of Labor Statistics of the U.S. Department of Labor has reported. Both the overall and the civilian worker jobless rates, which had dipped slightly in April, returned to their March levels of 5.5 and 5.6 percent, respectively.

Payroll employment, as measured by the monthly survey of business establishments, rose by 210,000 in May. In contrast, total civilian employment, as estimated through the monthly survey of households, showed a drop of 520,000 following a 600,000 increase in April. Recent over-the-month movements in the household employment series have been somewhat erratic.

Both the number of unemployed persons and the unemployment rate, which had been drifting downward since last fall, edged up in May, returning to their March levels. About 6.8 million persons were unemployed in May, and the civilian worker unemployment rate was 5.6 percent, seasonally adjusted. Since May 1987, the unemployment level has decreased by about 800,000, and the jobless rate has declined by 0.7 percentage point.

Most of the over-the-month change in joblessness occurred among adult men, whose unemployment rate rose 0.3 percentage point to 4.9 percent, following a drop of the same magnitude in April. The rates for adult women (4.9 percent), teenagers (15.6 percent), whites (4.7 percent), blacks (12.4 percent), and Hispanics (9.0 percent) all were little changed over the month.

At 5.9 weeks, the median duration of unemployment was about unchanged in May, remaining at one of its lowest levels during the 1980's.

The estimate of total civilian employment—114.2 million—showed a drop of about 520,000 on a seasonally adjusted basis in May, nearly offsetting April's large increase. Consequently, the employment-population ratio fell to 61.9 percent.

Awarded Community Scholarships

Cindy Leigh Gayheart

Rubi Maria Singayao

Two Floyd county students have been awarded Community Service Scholarships by the Christian Appalachian Project.

Cindy Leigh Gayheart and Rubi Maria Singayao, who have graduated from Allen Central High School and Mountain Christian Academy respectively this year, will each receive $500 in recognition of contributing their time and talent to service activities in the communities. The money will be sent in their names to the schools of their choice.

Both have participated extensively in service activities to the community during their high school careers. Both see college as important for the future.

"I hope that through this education and my Christian faith, I will be able to contribute some worthy service to our society," said Cindy.

"I believe college is important for the future because college helps you with your ambitions in life," said Rubi.

Cindy is the daughter of Goffrey and Paula Gayheart, and Rubi is the daughter of Dr. Ruben and Clarita Singayao.

The Community Service Scholarships rewards graduating high school seniors in Eastern Kentucky for contributing their time and talents to the betterment of their communities. The one-year scholarship is awarded on a basis of a person's service activities through their church or school and civic organizations. Academic performance and financial need are secondary factors.

Graduating seniors in Casey, Clay, Estill, Floyd, Garrard, Jackson, Jessamine, Johnson, Knott, Knox, Laurel, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Lincoln, McCreary, Madison, Magoffin, Martin, Owsley, Powell, Pulaski, Rockcastle, Whitley, and Wolfe counties will be receiving scholarships from the Christian Appalachian Project.

Dorothy Johnson, of Hi Hat, received a bachelor of arts degree in biology. She is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Johnson, HC 72, Box 311, Hi Hat, and a graduate of McDowell High School.

At the May 22 commencement program, education analyst and prize-winning author George Keller told the graduates that they are part of the first generation of Americans that will succeed or fail strictly on strength of character.

"You are graduating from one of the few colleges that has never lost interest in character. You should feel unusually prepared for the new era where careers are open to anyone who can show the proper spirit, the drive, the intelligence, the skills, the compassion toward people of every kind," Keller said.

"I was relieved to discover I was an alcoholic."
One man's story.

The word "alcoholism" is so loaded with shame, it's hard to imagine anyone ever being relieved to discover it applied to them.

This is a glimpse of what one man went through to come slowly to that realization.

"The very first time I drank, I got drunk, I got sick, I had a blackout. I didn't intend any of that to happen."

Often from their very first drink, alcoholics seem to respond differently to alcohol. If you sometimes drink so much that you don't recollect certain events, then by definition, you have an alcohol problem.

Normal drinkers rarely lose control to the extent that they have a blackout.

"Within six years, I was drinking round-the-clock, a quart of vodka a day. I didn't care what happened."

As the disease of alcoholism progresses, more and more you don't control alcohol, it controls you. Once you start drinking, you can't be sure whether you'll have two drinks, or twenty.

The consequences—family difficulties, health problems, arrest, loss of job—cease to matter. All you care about is the next drink.

"I thought I drank because I was crazy. I never realized I was crazy because I drank."

The more you drink, the more trapped you become. That's because drinking at your present rate has devastating consequences. But the thought of cutting down is equally awful.

So subconsciously you seek a way out by flatly denying you have a problem, and laying the blame for your misfortunes elsewhere. You're going insane, people have it in for you or you're simply unlucky.

"Towards the end, I lay in bed, a half gallon on the floor, soaking wet with sweat, a gun in my mouth"

The possibility of suicide is one reason CareUnit likes to treat people as early as possible.

Last year, our program helped over 55,000 people stop using alcohol and drugs.

Treatment is covered by most insurance plans, and includes medical supervision, education, group therapy and free lifetime aftercare.

Incidentally, there's no charge for the initial consultation, which may involve the drinker, or someone close to him.

"Once I admitted my real problem, the worst was over."

It may be hard to believe—and it may not happen until you've been in treatment for a while—but once you admit you have a problem with alcohol, you'll feel a strong sense of relief and release. Then—and only then—can you start to rebuild your life.

The man whose story you've read has been sober 15 years, he's a highly successful senior executive in a major corporation, and he owes his life to one phone call.

And that's the point. If you don't call, we can't help.

Pharmacy Footnotes

By HAROLD COOLEY

PRESCRIPTION FOR SAFETY

People who frequently need prescriptions filled are wise to bring them all to the same pharmacist. By carrying a complete listing on all of a patient's prescriptive needs, the pharmacist can spot poor drug interactions at a glance. Even a physician is not always aware of drug incompatibilities. This is especially true if the prescriptive medicines are given out by more than one doctor. In this case, only the pharmacist will have a complete up-to-date listing of the patient's drug history. A profile will also point out individual allergic responses. It is the pharmacist's job to be current on all drugs, their side effects and interactions with other drugs. All a patient needs to do is ask.

COOLEY APOTHECARY meets the highest level of professionalism in our business and would be honored to become your pharmacy. Our records are fully maintained for all drug warnings, drug interactions and personal drug allergies. Here at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106, we also honor MasterCard and Visa plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3.

HINT:
Ask the pharmacist if a less expensive generic drug may be substituted for a prescription.

NOTICE TO PERSONS SERVED BY THE MUD CREEK WATER DISTRICT "SAFE DRINKING WATER ACT LEAD NOTIFICATION"

"The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of .050 parts per million (ppm). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

"Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standards.

"EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women.

"Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest: If your water system has lead pipes, If your home has copper pipes with lead solder If the home is less than five years old If you have soft or acidic water, or If water sits in the pipes for several hours."

The only way to be sure of the amounts of lead in your water is to have the water tested by a state certified laboratory. Contact The Mud Creek Water District or the Drinking Water Branch of the Kentucky Division of Water for information about testing.

The Mud Creek Water District does not have lead service lines or other lead-containing materials in its distribution system.

The test results of water samples collected March 02, 1988 from the Mud Creek Water District indicates that a lead concentration was less than 0.001 parts per million (ppm), which is well below the safe drinking water standards.

If you have questions concerning this notice or would like more information concerning lead in drinking water, please contact Mr. Willie Brown at 587-2455 or the Drinking Water Branch of the Kentucky Division of Water at (502) 584-3410.

A copy of this notice has been forwarded to the Drinking Water Branch of the Kentucky Division of Water.

MANDATORY NOTICE BY ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY FOR ALL WATER SYSTEMS PERTAINING TO LEAD IN DRINKING WATER

The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (ppm). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to young children and pregnant women. "Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:

- if your home or water system has lead pipes, or
- if your home has copper pipes with lead solder, and
- if the home is less than five years old, or
- if you have soft or acidic water, or
- if water sits in the pipes for several hours."

Lead can occur at potentially harmful levels in tap water if the plumbing fixtures through which the water travels, including the solders and fluxes used to connect them, contain lead. The EPA has recently mandated that all newly installed plumbing materials be essentially lead-free.

To find out which type of plumbing you have, look at it and perform the following simple tests:

- Lead pipe is most often found in very old homes and buildings. Lead pipe is gray, relatively soft, and can be easily scratched to shine with a screwdriver, coin, or key. Some iron pipe may look like lead pipe; however, iron pipe is very hard and usually black.
- Copper pipe usually has a characteristic copper color. Until very recently, most copper pipe was installed using lead-based solder. Lead solder is also gray, soft, and can be scratched shiny. Copper pipe that has been soldered with lead usually contributes less lead to the water as time passes because the solder gets coated with minerals from the water. After being installed about five years, lead solder usually contributes very small amounts of lead to the water.
- Iron, steel, and "plastic" pipe have not been associated with any health effects from lead since they contain very small amounts of lead or none, and are assembled without lead solder.

The David Water District does not have lead service lines or other lead-containing materials in our distribution system. The water in David Water District water supply is not in violation of the current standards. The water in your own house piping may be. It is the responsibility of the customer to pay for testing for lead in their own house piping.

You can reduce the possibility of consuming water with high lead concentrations by the following:

1. Flush cold water pipes before drinking—10-30 seconds.
2. Use only water from cold water pipes for drinking, cooking or preparing baby formula.
3. Lead pipes and service connections can be replaced.
4. Insist that only lead free materials be used in repairs or new plumbing.

The only way to be sure of the amount of lead in your water is to have the water tested by a state certified testing laboratory. For additional information contact the Drinking Water Branch of the Kentucky Division of Water at (502) 564-3410 or David Water District at (606) 886-8508.

Lead content in Beaver Elkhorn Water, which supplies the David Water System, is less than 0.001.

Floyd County Wins One, Loses One In Twin Bill

One time they did it. Another time they didn't, and when Mike McQuate's blast fell just a few feet short, Floyd County was forced to settle with a split of their doubleheader, Wednesday at Allen Park.

Floyd County, after leading by three runs twice, had to rally in the bottom of the seventh, scoring two times to post a victory in the first of the twin bill against Williamson.

In the second game, FC once again owned a lead, this time by six after five innings. But Williamson kept hammering away, scoring four runs in the sixth and four more in the seventh to spoil Nathan Shelton's bid for a win.

Floyd County scored three times in the fifth to go up 6-1, but three errors, two by Shelton, himself, led to four Williamson runs as the 49ers cut the lead to one.

With a runner on first and nobody out in the sixth, Shelton threw a routine double play come backer into centerfield.

Mike Fannin followed with an RBI single to right. One out later, Shelton fielded a bunt off the bat of Jarred Fletcher, but missed the tag on him going to first, then hit Fletcher in the back in an attempt to throw the runner out at first.

Williamson went on to score four runs, all unearned, in the inning. They were also helped out in a run down when third baseman Tim Trusty had the baseball jarred loose on a tag play, allowing Scott Slater to score.

Floyd County built the lead back to three in the bottom of the sixth. Mason Slone led the inning off with a single, followed by a Mike McQuate single. Slone scored when Ray Collins got a single, and Tim Trusty brought McQuate home with a double.

But with the bases loaded and no outs, Williamson slammed the scoring door shut, bringing on Blake Bentley who struck out the next three batters.

Bentley, who retired the last six Floyd County hitters, was given the win. The 49ers earned it for him in the top of the seventh, scoring four times on three hits and two walks.

The big blow came with two out when Rocky Church doubled home two runs, hitting a 1-2 Mason Slone fast ball, to the gap in right centerfield, giving the 49ers the eventual 9-8 win.

Floyd County, unlike its performance in the first game, failed to rally in the bottom of the seventh, and earned only a split when Mike McQuate's bid for a game-tying homerun was hauled down at the fence in centerfield.

Slone, who relieved Shelton in the seventh, suffered the loss. He gave up the hit that proved to be the game winner, but he also walked Fletcher, and his run was the go-ahead one.

Shelton had held Williamson to only four hits until the sixth. He gave up five in the last two innings. Slone, who pitched a total of an inning and one-third, had two decisions on the day. Unfortunately for the little righthander, now 1-2, the second one went against him.

In the first game, Slone relieved Mark

Tipton in the seventh, worked to two batters, and got the win when Floyd County scored twice in the bottom of the last inning to pull out a 9-8 win.

Slone came in the game after Mike Charles had given Williamson an 8-7 lead with a three-run homerun off Tipton, putting the 49ers up by one.

But in the bottom of the seventh, Floyd County rallied, and with a bit of help from Williamson, won their fifth game of the season.

Trusty, who had three hits in the game, led off with a single, followed by a Tony Kidd single, his second hit of the game.

After Jeff Lovely struck out, Brad Hall bounced a grounder to short. Fannin booted the ball, Kevin Roberts missed second on the double play pivot, and during all this, Trusty rounded third and went on home with the tie run.

Roberts throw to first was wild, allowing Kidd and Hall to move up a base. With the infield pulled in, Thomas Hall dropped a single into center, scoring Kidd with the game winning run.

Slone got credit for the win, his first of the season, but Mark Tipton certainly threw well enough to deserve a better fate.

Tipton, who gave up seven hits and eight runs, four earned, held Williamson without a hit until the fourth when Roberts smacked a double.

In the fifth, he walked Robert Stepp leading off the inning, but came back to retire the next two batters. But Mike Fannin singled to keep the inning alive, and Mark Blackburg lifted a routine fly ball to right.

The routine play turned into tragedy when Kidd, playing right field, lost the ball in the sun, allowing it to drop.

Williamson took advantage of it, scoring four unearned runs in the inning. Tipton, though, came back to set them down in order in the sixth and by that time Floyd County had stretched their lead to 7-4.

But the near 100-degree weather took its toll on the slender righthander, and in the seventh Tipton showed the effects, and was allowed to go longer than he should have.

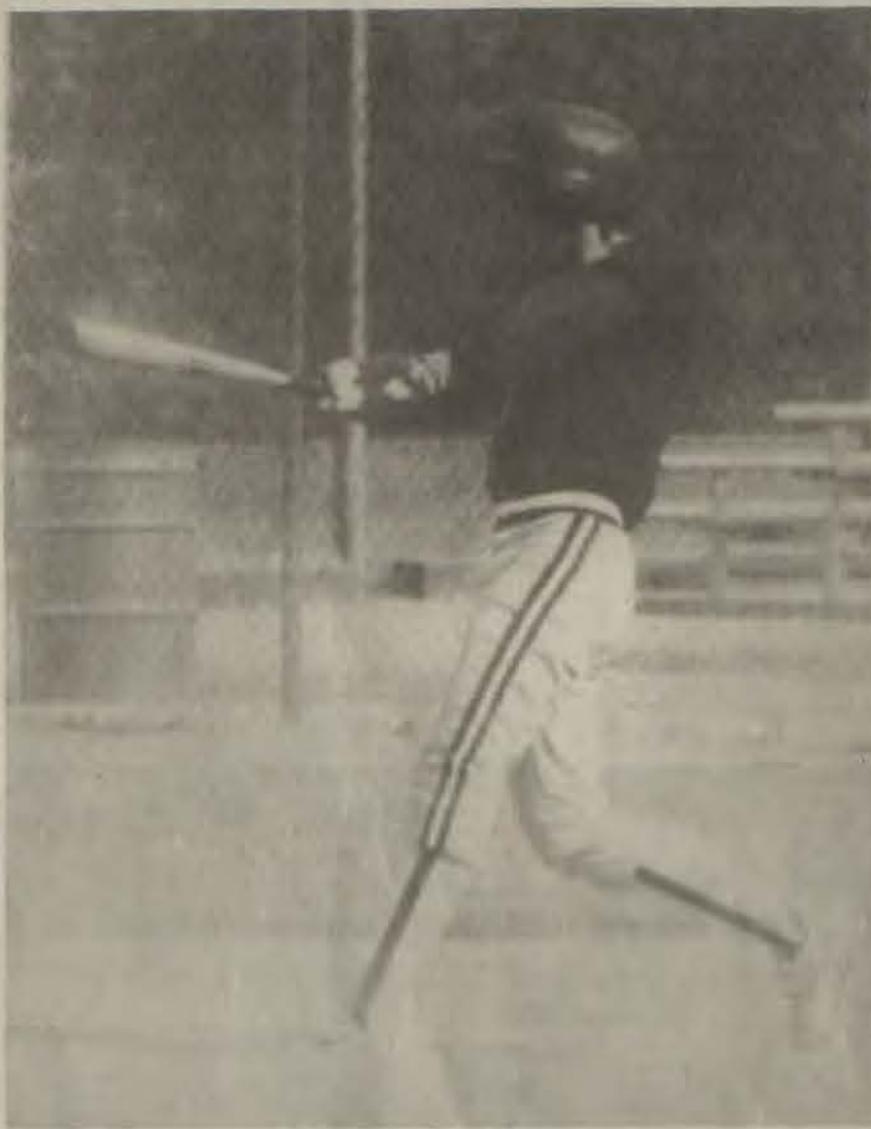

That, though, can't take away from the effort he gave, and has given all summer. Tipton has failed to throw at least five innings in only one of his starts this year, and in a single relief appearance he threw three and one-thirds innings of one-run baseball.

Floyd County, which banged out 11 hits, was led offensively by McQuate who went two for three with a homerun and a double. He also scored two runs. The centerfielder from McDowell High School was four for eight in the twin bill and scored four runs.

Tim Trusty, infielder from Prestonsburg, also had four hits in the two games. He scored twice and drove in two runs.

Catcher Thomas Hall and Kidd were also two for four in the first game. Both had a single and double and an RBI to their credit.

Ray Collins and Kevin Webb had two hits on the day, and Brad Hall, Floyd Compton, and Mason Slone all hit safely in the second game.

ONE OF THE TOP: Floyd County shortstop Ray Collins is currently the team's second leading hitter. The infielder from Prestonsburg is hitting over .350.

FC Plays Twin Bill At Leslie Co. Today

season Friday night, kicking off a three-day, six-game road trip. They open the active stretch at Morehead with a doubleheader Friday.

Tim Trusty, a righthander from Prestonsburg, will probably throw the first game there, and either Shelton or Slone, which ever doesn't throw the second game today, will work the second game.

Morehead is regarded as one of the top American Legion baseball programs in the state, and had probably the best hitting team in the state last year, but was put to the test last year when they beat Trusty in extra innings, 5-4.

Trusty, 1-2 this year, has come on strong after a rocky beginning in his first start this summer. He lost to Clark County early in the season, then fell to Boyd County despite giving up only two earned runs.

But in his last start Trusty put his total game together in winning his first game of the season, defeating Flatwoods on a five-hitter.

Floyd County, 5-8 on the season, plays Berea in a doubleheader scheduled for 2 p.m. Saturday before traveling on to Paris for another twin bill slated Sunday at 1.

Trusty, Tipton, and Shelton have proved to be FC's top mound performers this summer, while Mike McQuate has developed into their leading hitter.

McQuate, an outfielder from McDowell High School, leads the squad in batting average, runs scored, and on base average.

The speedy centerfielder has 15 hits in 33 plate appearances for a .455 average. He has scored 15 runs and gets on base once in every two times to the plate. McQuate's two homeruns also leads the team, and he is tied with Trusty for RBI leadership with seven.

Trusty, who moved from shortstop to third base this summer, is second on the team to McQuate in total hits with 10. He is third on the team with seven runs scored, and owns a .286 average.

Shortstop Ray Collins, the youngest player on the squad, is third in total hits, and second in batting average. Collins is currently hitting .346.

Newsome Back At Helm Of Bobcat Basketball

The Betsy Layne Bobcats are saying goodbye to one of Kentucky's top high school basketball coaches. But Bobcat fans aren't losing much sleep about it.

When Craynor Slone announced recently that he would be returning to Carlisle County, Betsy Layne High School lost a veteran coach who has enjoyed success at many different schools throughout the state, including a surprisingly productive pair of seasons at BLHS.

Slone, who spent five years at Carlisle County High School, replaced Junior Newsome at Betsy Layne in 1986.

Before his first season began, Slone said he only wanted to continue what Newsome had started—a tremendous basketball program. Little did he know then, though, that Junior Newsome would someday want to continue what Slone had done.

Not much was expected from Betsy Layne in Slone's first year at the school. The team returned only one starter from the season before, and only three players with varsity experience. The fact that a new coach was coming to town also influenced many prognosticators to predict a down year for the Bobcats.

But it didn't take long for Slone to display his coaching ability, and it didn't take long for Betsy Layne to answer all their critics, winning the Floyd County Pre-season Tournament.

That year the Bobcats went on to post an 18-13 record, a pre-season title, a championship in the Pikeville Invitational Tournament, and finished as runner-up in the 58th district. That was all from a team that had lost six of its first eight players.

With the success of his initial year, Slone and his Bobcats were considered by some to be the pre-season best team in the 15th region this past year. For a long time they were, but after losing the district championship to McDowell, the Bobcats were eliminated from the regional tournament by Sheldon Clark.

Still, though, Slone directed the team to a 19-12 record, and another Pikeville Invitational Tournament title. In both his years as Bobcat head coach, Slone took Betsy Layne to the 15th region tournament.

Betsy Layne won games they weren't expected to win, and they went farther than they were expected to go. Slone was a major reason for that. His absence, at any other school, would be a major cause for concern, but not at Betsy Layne.

This is the school where Junior Newsome still hangs around. Some would say that Newsome has forgotten more basketball than most people will ever know. But Bobcat fans hope that he hasn't forgotten too much.

Newsome, who coached 11 years at Betsy Layne before stepping down after the 1985-86 season, is taking over as the head basketball coach at Betsy Layne. "When I started here I just wanted to take over where he left off." Craynor Slone said, mentioning Newsome's success at Betsy Layne. "Now I'm sure he'll step back in and continue with what he did before."

But doing what he did before won't exactly be an easy task. Newsome, also considered to be one of the state's top coaches, can quote personal accomplishments impressive against any in the area.

In his 11 years, Newsome compiled a 270-70 record. That comes to about 25 wins and just over six losses per year. In 10 of those seasons, Betsy Layne went to the regional tournament, winning two.

Newsome has won six district titles at Betsy Layne, and with experienced talent coming back, number seven could easily come next March.

"We're expecting to have a pretty good team," Newsome said about the prospects of his first season back at the helm. "We'll be in there fighting. It'll be tough because the county will be well balanced again this year."

Returning to the coaching profession, though, came as a surprise to Newsome, who had limited his coaching duties to baseball during the past couple years.

"I hadn't planned on coming back this early, or at all really," Newsome, who resigned due to health and fatigue reasons, said. "Coach Slone did an excellent job for two years. I felt the program was in good hands, and didn't think there was any reason for me to come back."

"I missed the kids, and I missed the game too," he said. "That's really the reasons why I came back."

Slone hadn't exactly planned on leaving either. A couple months ago he said he would return to Betsy Layne for the 1988-89 season, but changed his mind when the Carlisle County coaching position opened recently.

"I enjoyed it here," Slone said about his brief stay at Betsy Layne. "It's one of those things though. I had a chance to go back, and I figured I should take it."

Slone, in the early 1980s, spent five years as Carlisle County head coach. In 1983 he took them to the state tournament finals before losing the championship game to Henry Clay in a classic Craynor Slone game, 35-33.

Slone came to Betsy Layne from Ashland where he coached after leaving Carlisle County.

Betsy Layne returns four starters from last year's team, three of those will be seniors. The Bobcats are experienced and talented, two reasons why Junior Newsome's return is expected to continue the winning tradition the school enjoyed during his previous stint.

Newsome says he is also planning to continue as baseball coach, but the school board won't announce its spring sports hirings until next year. Newsome said, though, that coaching baseball depended a lot on how well he survives the pressures of basketball.

SHORT SPORTS

They were out-talented, they were over-matched, and when the final horn sounded, the Kentucky Senior All-Stars were defeated, 102-82, by a similar squad from Indiana.

Kentucky recruit Shawn Kemp scored 17 points and Indiana's Mr. Basketball, Woody Austin, equaled that output as Indiana recorded the 20-point victory in Louisville's Freedom Hall, Saturday.

Sean Woods, another UK signee, and Louisville recruit, Derwin Webb, added 13 and 12 points respectively as Indiana successfully kicked off their bid for a second consecutive sweep of the Kentucky all-star team.

The team from the Bluegrass state, although out-manned and out-sized, remained in the contest until the final few minutes, trailing by only four points with seven minutes remaining, but Indiana scored six straight points to go up 83-73 with just over six minutes left.

James Brewer, a 6-foot-3 guard from Bardonia, led Kentucky's team offensively, scoring 16 points. Brewer, who apparently saves his best for showtime games, has signed to play his college basketball at the University of Louisville.

Brewer originally committed verbally to Western, but later signed with U of L. He was a member of the East-West game held in Louisville when he was added to the team after an injury to another player. Brewer also excelled in that game, finishing as one of the game's top scorers.

Jack Jennings, a 6'6" post player, scored 13 points for Kentucky while UK guard-to-be Ritchie Farmer tossed in 15.

The two teams will meet Saturday in Indianapolis as Kentucky tries to turn the tide of Indiana domination. The Hoosier squad holds a 50-30 advantage in the 47-year-old state rivalry. Included in that is a sweep of Kentucky last year.

But Saturday night, and the basketball series between the two states doesn't end, belong to Indiana.

The Kentucky girls' squad brought some bragging rights to the Commonwealth by defeating the Indiana girls team, 69-57, as Kim Pehlike led the way.

Penhlike, Kentucky's Miss Basketball, scored a game high 18 points to lead her team to the 12-point victory, and helped Kentucky improve their series record with Indiana to 16-9.

The anticipation of the number one pick isn't there. Gone with it is the fun of speculation and expectation. The Los Angeles Clippers haven't exactly kept any secrets about who the number one pick will be, but there are enough unanswered questions to keep the NBA draft interesting.

The Clippers, who have the first overall pick, have announced that Danny Manning of Kansas fame will be made the first selection in the draft, which will be held Tuesday.

But as obvious as the number one choice is, the second, third and so on are as much a secret. It is said to be a year of the big guard, and most experts say that at least 10 such players will be taken in the opening round.

Jerome Lane, Charles Smith, from Pittsburgh, Will Purdue of Vanderbilt, and Ric Smits, of Marist, will have something to say about the power forward and center positions.

The biggest question surrounding local interest is just how high, and to whom, Rex Chapman will go. The talented UK guard has been touted as high as the third pick, but poor showings in the Olympic Trials have apparently dropped his stock. Some have said he may not be selected until late in the first round.

The Clippers have two of the seven lottery selections and are expected to draft a guard with their second selection. Chapman is considered to be among the top five big guards available in this year's draft.

Mike Tyson is predicting a knockout. Michael Spinks says that he will only give it his best shot. The words not only describe the two boxers' personalities, they also tell a tale of their fighting style.

Tyson, confident and maybe even cocky, expresses that in his promise to knock Spinks out. His aggressiveness is shown in the ring every time the undisputed heavyweight boxing champion steps up against another opponent.

Thus far Tyson's straight on approach has produced an impressive record, a high knockout ratio, and high praise as a heavyweight champion.

Tyson, 34-0 with 30 knockouts, puts his straight forward, hard-punching method up against challenger Michael Spinks, Monday night, when the two meet in Atlantic City, New Jersey. On the line is the undisputed heavyweight title of the world.

Tyson, 21, says he will knock Spinks out. Spinks, who takes a more cautious approach, says he will simply do his best against the champion.

Spinks, 31, takes the same attitude with his fighting style. Unlike Tyson, he counter punches, moves, and waits for his punching moment.

Tyson, though, is expected to retain his title even though experience and maturity go against him.

License Expiration Changes To Become Effective In 1990

The Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission voted June 13 to change the beginning of the license year from January 1 to March 1, effective in 1990.

The change will mean that instead of hunting and fishing licenses expiring at the end of the calendar year (December 31), they will expire on the last day of February.

Although the transition will not affect the 1988 license year, it will mean that 1989 licenses will be valid for 14 months to accommodate the change. In other words, 1988 licenses will expire December 31, 1988, as usual, and new 1989 licenses will be needed January 1. But when 1989 licenses are purchased, they will be valid for two extra months, until the last day of February, 1990.

One of the major reasons for the change in the license year is that under the current system, hunting licenses expire in the middle of small game season. It is more desirable that licenses be valid throughout the entire hunting season.

Some hunters have said that the December 31 expiration date causes them to sacrifice a day or two of hunting opportunity to take time to purchase a new license. It is also sometimes difficult to find an open license retailer during the holiday period.

If licenses expire at the end of February, it would not interrupt small game hunting season, and would further coincide with the time of year most anglers buy licenses and begin the spring fishing season. Angling season is open year round in Kentucky, which means that changing the expiration date should not inconvenience anglers.

The Sporting Times

Do you ever feel like just sticking your arms out and trying to slow the world down just a bit? It seems as if time is no longer flying by, but now has taken on warp speed.

Counting the days can't even be used as a phrase any more. The days go by too fast to count, and now we're counting the months.

It's late June? That's hard to believe, but what's worse is that it's 1988 already. Where does the time go, or better yet where is it coming from at such a rapid pace?

I was chatting with Terry Spears, of Appalachian News Express fame, and in the middle of baseball season, during all the NBA playoff hoopla, he was talking high school basketball. At first I thought the conversation to be a bit premature, but at another glance it seems to be almost timely. Of course high school basketball has no season in this area, and its popularity thrives even in the heat of July. But, too, it isn't that long off until the boys of winter will be doing their thing on the hardwood again.

Doesn't seem quite right though. Basketball just ended. It seems like only yesterday when Louisville Ballard denied Clay County their second consecutive State Tournament title.

But, as we say, time flies when you're having fun, and Spears' basketball job has begun even though the season is still a few months away—and even though we've got football in between then and now.

Spears, though, gives some local coverage to the 15th region, writing an

Reds Watch '88

Cincinnati Wheeling, Dealing, And Moving On Up In Standings

The Cincinnati Reds' front office is wheeling and dealing, making moves right and left, while the team continues its move toward Los Angeles, and first place.

After making off-season deals to acquire starting pitchers Danny Jackson and Jose Rijo, the Reds continued to make moves this past week. Dennis Rasmussen, who likes his new home in San Diego, was traded to the Padres for a minor league prospect.

Cincinnati traded Rasmussen, 3-6 for them, to San Diego for Candy Sierra, who is now pitching in the Reds' minor league system. Rasmussen won his first start for the Padres, defeating Los Angeles, 4-3, Friday night.

Saturday afternoon the Reds traded veteran third baseman Buddy Bell to Houston for a player to be named later, and Monday placed pitcher Mario Soto on waivers. Soto is 3-7 with a 4.66 ERA.

But during all this employee turnover, veteran housecleaning, one thing remained the same, the Reds continued to win baseball games.

It all started June 11 when Cincinnati turned a potentially disasterous road trip into a positive conclusion, winning the final two games of the trip in San Francisco, and building momentum that has continued through a brief home-stand and on to Houston.

Cincinnati, with their win Monday over the Houston Astros, has won seven of their last nine games, constantly working their way up through the pack in the NL West.

Although San Francisco managed to stay one game up on the Reds when they earned a victory, Sunday, the Reds gained a game on the third placed Giants by taking two of the three games in a weekend series at Riverfront Stadium.

The Reds, two games behind San Francisco when the series opened, won the opener of the series Friday night when lefthander Danny Jackson shut the Giants out on five hits.

Cincinnati, winners of five of their last six, scored what proved to be all Jackson would need in the first when Barry Larkin scored on a Kal Daniels sacrifice fly.

Jackson shut San Francisco down, giving up only five hits in the complete game performance. Jackson, improving to 7-3, struck out eight and walked two.

Saturday afternoon Cincinnati pulled even with the Giants, recording a 3-2 victory over San Francisco. Chris Sabo enjoyed a four hit performance in leading the Reds to the victory.

Sabo, the reason why Buddy Bell was traded, had two doubles, a triple and a homerun to help Ron Robinson up his record to 3-5. The rookie third baseman led the third inning off with a homerun, his eighth of the season, and tripled and scored later in the game.

In the seventh inning Sabo, the early choice for Rookie of the Year, legged out a triple, and came on home when the relay throw into third baseman Kevin Mitchell got away.

Robinson pitched five innings to get the win, his first since early May. The Cincy righthander had lost his last three decisions.

Former Mr. Basketball Claims Freedom Race

The Ninth Annual Kiwanis/Dominion Bank 5K Road Race was held in Grundy, Virginia, Saturday. Tim Caudill and Rick Roberts of Nike/Athletic Attic tried to wear the competition down through the first mile but Jeff Collier of Morehead State and Brad Robinson of Richlands, Va.; dusted the Nike duo at mile two. Collier won in 16:11, missing the 15:45 record of George Brown of Richlands, while Robinson was second in 16:19. Caudill finished third in 16:29 and Roberts finished fourth in 16:57, holding off Dave Gibson of Flint, Michigan.

Missy Fields, a cross country runner from Eastern Ky. University won the women's division in 18:34, holding off Becky Meadows of Grundy, who finished in 22:40.

Over 60 runners turned out for the Second Annual Freedom Run 2.7 miles and Martin County native Ervin Stepp proved he could run as well as play basketball. Stepp in the early 80's was Mr. Basketball in Kentucky and led the nation in scoring while at Phelps High. Stepp defended his title for the second year in a row with a 15:20 victory.

In the women's race, Thelma Hensley held off Janie Cochran of Oil Springs as she won in 17:48. Cochran finished in 18:14 in her second race of the year and won her age group of 25-29.

After losing the last game of the series Sunday, Cincinnati successfully kicked off a brief three-game road trip by defeating Houston, 2-1 in the Astrodome.

Tom Browning, who limited the Astros to five hits through seven and two-thirds innings, got the win, improving his record to 6-3. John Franco came on with two out and two on in the eighth, struck out Billy Hatcher, and retired Houston in order in the ninth to earn his ninth save.

Jim Deshaies, 4-5, suffered the loss. It was only Houston's 11th loss this season in the Astrodome. Before Monday's game they were 20-10 at home, second best in the Major Leagues.

But thanks to a Barry Larkin homerun, and a Nick Esasky fly ball, Cincinnati crept closer to the .500 mark, improving to 33-35. They also moved to within three games of Houston, who currently owns second place.

Deshaies, who gave up two runs on eight hits in eight innings of work, had only one bad inning in the game—the sixth. After Kevin Bass had given Houston a 1-0 lead with his sixth homerun of the year, Larkin led off the sixth with a solo shot over the left field wall, tying the score.

Chris Sabo, who leads the league in doubles, followed with a two-bagger. After moving to third on Tracy Jones' fly ball, and scored when Nick Esasky hit a fly ball to left.

That proved to be the winning run as Browning and Franco combined to shut Houston down over the final four innings, allowing the Reds to win their seventh game in the last nine attempts.

The Reds, trailing West leading Los Angeles by five and one-half games, will wrap up the three-game series in Houston tonight before moving back home to open a weekend series with the Dodgers.

Cincinnati, after taking Thursday off, will play LA Friday in a 7:35 start. Saturday's game is scheduled to begin at 7:05 before the series wraps up with a 2:15 start, Sunday.

Monday, San Diego, the hottest team in the Western Division during the month of June, comes to town to open a four-game series. The first three are night games scheduled for 7:35 starts. Thursday's game will begin at 12:35.

Notes: Cincinnati called up pitcher Jack Armstrong to replace Mario Soto on the Reds roster. Armstrong, a righthander, was 3-4 with a 3:30 ERA for Nashville. He struck out 84 hitters in 87 innings. Jeff Gray, a reliever, was also brought up to the parent club. Gray was 5-2 with a 1.77 ERA for Nashville...Through the first 65 games of the season Andres Galarraga is making a serious bid for Triple Crown honors in the National League. The Montreal first baseman led the NL in homeruns, 16, was tied for RBI leadership with 39, and led in batting average, hitting at a .329 clip...In the American League, Dave Winfield is tops in RBIs with 55, and batting average at .357...Greg Maddux, of Chicago, leads the majors with 11 victories, while Greg Swindell and Frank Viola, of the American League, have 10 each. Viola, of the Minnesota Twins, has the best winning percentage of all starters. He's 10-2.

Large Catch

Jesse Compton, 7, of Prestonsburg, struggles to keep the 18 pound drum he caught from dragging as he carries it home. Compton's big catch was nabbed June 12 from the Big Sandy River.

The Sporting Times

(Continued from previous page) article or two for The Cats Pause which publishes a yearly magazine dedicated solely to high school and college basketball previews across the state.

And it is that time of the year already...time to prepare for the biggest show on Kentucky earth, high school basketball.

From now until then, fans, coaches, and any interested parties will spend their free time mulling over last year's stats, reviewing previews, and taking great pains in preparing their own personal opinions of the upcoming season. But it will all probably go down the tubes because, nothing ever goes as planned.

If you don't believe that just ask the guys and gals who have been working on the Mountain Parkway bridges between Prestonsburg and Salyersville.

They started last fall on the first one after Prestonsburg. Even as we speak they are now working on the second one. The problem is that no visual improvements can be detected. And does it ever make for bad driving, especially when it's combined with the paving company's flaggers, and the guard rail people occasionally causing a conflict with easy cruising.

Oh well, I guess it's all for a better Eastern Kentucky. It's impatient people like me who throw a brake into the smooth rolling machine called progress. But it wouldn't hurt if progress could roll on a little faster.

It seems as if the only thing that gets here in a hurry is next week. It takes three days to do what could have been completed in one, yesterday.

And speaking of yesterday, or last week to be exact, a strange happening occurred. This may not have the same effect on you that it did me, but at the time it tells a deep story.

A lot has been said about the inconsistent prices of gasoline, and we're all too familiar with the up and down method of weather temperatures in this part of the world. While the first took a plunge of sorts, and the latter soared, unleaded gasoline was lower per gallon than was the degrees in temperature.

That's right. At SuperAmerica in Salyersville gasoline was a cool 97.9 per gallon. Just around the corner the temperature on the Salyersville National Branch Bank read 99.

I couldn't help but wonder how long it had been since those numbers could rival each other. The bank mercury could have gone beserk, but it was hot.

This little story has two different sides though. The good part is that gasoline can't be too high if it's lower than the temperature, but also it can't be exactly cold when the temperature is higher than unleaded.

Heat and gasoline don't mix, especially when they're both above reasonable purchasing means. But Salyersville was unique on this day. Gas in Prestonsburg, and surrounding areas was six cents higher. The temperature was the same.

That may not be exactly important, but this is. We're coming up on our second year with this particular paper, and it's been nice.

But one change that's been interesting is what you the reader have grown to expect. At first everyone was pleased because of the fact that the paper had started some sports coverage. Now, though, just having it isn't good enough. You expect more, which is good. It makes us do more.

And it is also a good time to say thanks to those who made it possible. We only hope that our job has been acceptable.

Oh yea, wasn't it fitting that the Detroit Pistons established a new standard for the biggest crowd ever to see an NBA playoff game.

Spelling's 'Nightingales' might become a series

By Wendy Wallace

"I was very happy that Aaron Spelling wanted me to do this pilot for him," says Susan Walters of "Nightingales," which airs Monday, June 27 on NBC. "Because I didn't feel like I really gave him anything to judge me by in 'Hotel.'"

Susan Walters

Walters, who played Ryan Thomas in the last nine episodes of Spelling's recently canceled nighttime soap, is now playing Bridget Loring, one of eight student nurses who set up housekeeping together at Nightingale House, an off-campus residence in Los Angeles. As the nurses begin their training, relationships and problems develop. Loring, for instance, hopes to begin life anew with a different identity.

"Bridget was involved with someone in the mob and has witnessed a murder," Walters explains. "So the FBI had made her over and put her in nursing as her witness protection program. There she's cut off from family and can't tell anyone what she's really about."

"When Spelling showed me the character, we both had the same ideas about her," she adds. "I saw that there was a lot of vulnerability underneath her and a lot of loneliness. I thought of how much fun it would be to play someone who was scared and had something to hide. And basically, that's what Spelling wanted."

Born in Baltimore, Walters was raised in Chamblee, a suburb of Atlanta, Ga. She postponed studies at the University of Georgia to try her luck as a model in New York City. After signing with the Elite Agency, Walters turned to acting, and was cast as the wealthy Lorna Forbes on the ABC soap "Loving" (1983-85). Most recently she starred in ABC's "Elvis and Me," playing Priscilla Presley.

"There are very few movies about women," says Walters about why she took the Presley role. "It was the most challenging role that I've done, because I had to carry a four-hour miniseries. And since then the quality of the projects that I get is much greater."

"Nightingales," Spelling's first project for NBC, was slated to be a series, but it is not on the network's fall schedule - possibly because two other shows about women and medicine, "HeartBeat" and "China Beach," were picked up by ABC. But it still might become a series. "With 'Nightingales,' what is so nice is doing a series about women," she says. "You get the idea that it needs to be a series to show the story."

Marg Helgenberger still remembers the Ryans

By Marie Michaels

There was a reunion of sorts on the "Ryan's Hope" set a couple of weeks ago, when Marg Helgenberger, who played Siobhan Ryan from 1982 until 1986, returned to visit with Helen Gallagher (who plays Maeve Ryan). After leaving "RH," Helgenberger guest-starred on several series before landing the role of K.C. on the acclaimed spring drama series "China Beach," which ABC recently renewed for next season.

Two other former Ryans also made their mark in prime time this season. Kate Mulgrew (who played Mary Ryan Fenelli from 1975 to 1977, and again in 1983) starred in the medical series "HeartBeat," which also has been renewed by ABC. And Daniel Hugh-Kelly (who played Frank Ryan from 1977-81) starred in the failed ABC sitcom "I Married Dora."
Ami Dolenz, who plays Melissa on "General Hospital," recently finished ished filming the movie "Daddy's Little Girl," which stars "Who's the Boss?" star Tony Danza. The film will be released next February.

New to "GH" is actor Alan Feinstein, who is creating a mystery character named Gregory. During the next few months Gregory will become involved with Bobbie Meyer (Jackie Zeman). Feinstein played Prof. Engel in the hit film "Looking for Mr. Goodbar" (1977), was a regular on the series "The Runaways" (1979) and has starred in numerous Broadway productions, including "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf?"
Dennis Steinmetz, formerly a director on "The Young and the Restless," is now the producer of "The Bold and the Beautiful." Steinmetz replaces Gail Kobe, who was a producer of "Guiding Light" before she joined "B&B."

Ed Fry and his character, Adam Cory, have departed from "Another World." Fry has left the cast of the soap, and the producers aren't planning to recast the Cory role any time soon.
Fiona Hutchison, who plays Gabrielle Holden on "One Life to Live," plays a supporting role in the new film "American Gothic," which she describes as "a quality, intellectual, scary movie on a par with 'Rosemary's Baby.'" The film stars Rod Steiger, Michael J. Pollard and Yvonne DeCarlo.

After two years, Greene deserves a promotion

By Paul Elie

It's 1 p.m. New York time, and the person on this end of the phone is wondering what's wrong with Michele Greene. It's only 10 a.m. in California, but already Greene, who is calling from her home in the Hollywood Hills, is short of breath. Every few sentences she pauses, huffing and puffing.

Michele Greene

It's not the sort of thing you ask about, is it? Or is it? "I'm on the exercise bike," she explains. "I hate doing it, so I try to combine it with something else. Don't mind me riding while we talk, do you?" Nothing is wrong this summer for Greene, who plays Abby Perkins on "L.A. Law." While many other actors' plans for the hiatus were delayed by the writers' strike, she began work on two TV movies. And after two seasons, her character is coming out of the shadows. "Last hiatus was very slow," Greene says. "I had a bad agent, and nobody knew who I was - I was 'that young girl on "L.A. Law."'" She imitates a deep-voiced male publicist/chauvinist. "Now I'm so busy, when I get home it's like, 'Don't talk to me about work!'" Last season on the series, Perkins quarreled mightily with her husband and endured the kidnapping of their son, all in less screen time than was given to showing the boys shoot the bull in the washroom. This season, she romanced Rollins (Blair Underwood) and mediated a dispute between feuding brothers, earning a promotion. "The first year was hard because Abby was so put upon, so downtrodden," she says. "There was nothing but negative energy around her." Although only 26, Greene is already a five-year veteran of Steven Bochco series: She appeared on "Bay City Blues," a Bochco comedy-drama about minor-league baseball that aired briefly in 1983. Looking back, Greene admits that there were problems with the series. "They were writing about an element of society they didn't really know about - kids from the Dust Belt," she explains. "L.A. Law," though, is different. "On this show, two of our writers are lawyers," she says. "So it's much closer to home."

GROWING PAINS

While on vacation with his family in Hawaii, Mike (Kirk Cameron) falls in love with a young island girl (Kelly Ann Hu), on "Growing Pains." Part two of the "Aloha" episode airs WEDNESDAY, JUNE 29, (Rebroadcast)

MARQUEE

BIG BUSINESS (PG - Touchstone) Starring Lily Tomlin and Bette Midler ***

By J.T. YURKO

From "The Prince and the Pauper" to "The Patty Duke Show," storytellers have again and again wrapped plot lines around twins. The hope is that two lead characters who walk alike and talk alike will double the fun. The new comedy "Big Business," which stars Bette Midler and Lily Tomlin, takes this idea one step further by doubling the twins.

In dual roles, Midler and Tomlin play twins who were separated at birth when a traveling tycoon's wife, delivered in a decidedly rural hospital just as a local woman gave birth to twins next door, and babies and bassinets are mixed up by a nearsighted nurse. The worldly tycoon and his wife end up with one of their own children and one of the local yokel babies, and the country couple find themselves with a citified child along with their natural one. And by a convenient coincidence, the two sets of babies just happen to end up with the same names, Rose and Sadie.

This film thrives on mistaken identities. Husbands, boyfriends, lovers, hotel clerks and secretaries are plagued with double vision, as the women seem to shift attitudes instantly. Midler hams it up shamefully as a ruthless executive, but is controlled and endearing as a country girl who wishes she could "be just like Joan Collins on 'Dynasty.'" Tomlin plays a New York sophisticate who wishes she was a country gal. "I hate shopping," she admits to her blue-collar alter ego.

The film is set largely in the Plaza Hotel, where the two pairs of twins drive everyone from chauffeurs to bellhops to Italian executives crazy. There are dozens of shots of the twins just missing one another, such gags being the staple of twin films, necessary but predictable. When both pairs (two played by Midler, two by Tomlin) appear on the screen together the effect is virtually undetectable. And the two actresses are so delightful that you wish they were playing triplets.
