Speaking of and for Floyd County

WEDNESDAY, JULY 27, 1988

RAIN DAMPENED ROADS last Tuesday evening, July 19, may have contributed to this accident on South Lake Drive in Prestonsburg. The car driven by Patrick Wills, of Prestonsburg, hydroplaned, went over an embankment and landed in the yard of former Prestonsburg Police Chief, Hack Thornsby. Both Wills and his passenger, John Osborne were unharmed.

Higher Government Costs Confront City Councilors

By Joe Porter

An annexation ordinance and a new city retirement system ordinance topped the agenda at Monday night's City Council meeting. While both issues were discussed, the council decided to study them further before voting. The proposal is to annex an area along U.S. 23 that takes in part of Water Gap. The City's Planning Commission approved of the plan, and Harold Baldrige, of Baldrige Engineering, drew up a map of the area to be incorporated; yet the map included residential homes that weren't intended to be included, so it's back to the drafting board. Two residents of the area questioned the expansion and said they prefer to be left outside of the city. Councilor William O. Goebel called the annexation a good way to provide city services to people outside its boundaries and a way to meet the growing needs of the city. "We're busting at the seams, but we don't have anywhere to expand to," Goebel said. He cited Pikeville as a city annexing large tracts of land to accommodate growth and business development.

"It might have only been a Chevrolet, but we could at least afford it," said Mayor Ann R. Latta. "The state is making us buy a Cadillac that we can't afford." The Mayor was referring to a new Kentucky law that requires all fourth class cities like Prestonsburg to come under the state-wide County Employees Retirement System. If adopted, it would replace the city's present plan and add $52,000 to annual expenditures. Once it comes under CERS, all newly hired employees will automatically be brought in, and employees hired before Aug. 1 will have the option of joining. At that time the city will have to contribute approximately 7 percent, and the employee 4 percent of his gross salary. Presently, the city pays 3.9 percent and there is no employee contribution. The Mayor agreed that it is a better retirement system, but asked how the city could afford it. She said after the meeting that they will keep investigating their options, including negotiating a new plan with their present retirement system company, but the council will have to make a decision before the Aug. 1 deadline. A special council meeting has been called for that night. The city expects approval from the Job Corps for a proposed fire training building that will be constructed on an acre of Job Corps land in the near (See Story No. 1, Page 4)

Hager: 'No Indication' Of Problem

By Tim Sizemore

With the threat looming of a state takeover of the Floyd County School District, Board of Education members prepare to face the state school board in September with no indication from them of the problem. "When the state identifies the problems, we can take steps to correct them," said Floyd Superintendent Ronald Hager, who says he is as perplexed as the general public as to why the state threatened the takeover. Hager says that he was not aware that the Floyd School system would be discussed in the state board meeting, and if he had known he would have been present to answer any questions. Hager said that one of his problems is that he has not received any financial reports from former Superintendent Ray Brackett, whose contract expired June 30th. Hager pointed out that under state law, Brackett was required to furnish the reports on the status of the system before leaving office. The David native, who has served as Floyd County Schools head for less than a month, said without the reports from the former superintendent he has no idea of the school system's status. According to Hager, local officials have carried out most of the management team's recommendations, except in the area of abolishing certain positions. Hager stressed that the Floyd County School Board had requested the Kentucky State Department of Education management team's assistance in 1983, and that the team had not been imposed on the board. The educator went on to say that most of the progress made in the last five years is due to the accreditation program, which is a three-year plan of school board goals. In the May Floyd County School Board meeting, Tom Vinson of the state management team used such terms as "remarkable" and "outstanding" to describe board efforts to improve the system. Dr. Clay Parks, chairman of the state school board, used the term "fed up," saying that in the September meeting of the state school board, the Floyd County board will have to show proof of sustained progress in eliminating problems, or the state board may declare the Floyd system academically bankrupt. The 1984 Kentucky Academic Bankruptcy law would allow the state board to remove local officials and take control of the school district. The statute has never been used, but recently the state did take control of the Pike County School System's finances. In the absence of reports from the former superintendent, the new superintendent says that he, like the general public, will have to take a "wait and see attitude." "They are obviously not happy with some areas," Hager said, but he could offer nothing to allay public fears.

Prestonsburg Police Collar Car Thieves

By Joe Porter

Prestonsburg police recovered two stolen cars this past week. The first car was found abandoned; the second auto was ditched after a high-speed chase on Central Avenue, but police captured the two suspected thieves after they fled on foot. A 1979 maroon Dodge owned by Charles B. Burke was stolen from Price's Supermarket on North Lake

Drive sometime after 5 a.m. July 20, and was located by Patrolman Roy Roberts at 7:42 the same morning. The car was found on Porter Lane; it had been ransacked and a fishing rod and reel were missing. Police believe it was abandoned, because of mechanical problems. The next morning at 3:45, a 1983 Chevrolet was stolen from the First Avenue driveway of Gorman Collins

Sr. Twenty minutes later, Sgt. Gerald Clark spotted a speeding car with two occupants on Central Avenue going an estimated 50 m.p.h. Clark pursued until the car came to a stop near Dingus Street. "It slid to a stop," Clark said. "One ran one way, one ran the other. I ran after the driver." The driver eluded Clark but was caught 10 minutes later by Roberts hiding near a shed on Josephine Street. Timothy Marsillett, 21, of West Prestonsburg was arrested and charged with speeding, attempting to elude, resisting arrest, reckless driving, and auto theft. His bond was set at $5,000. The 16 year old male in the car with Marsillett was taken to the Juvenile Detention Center.

Campbell announced that his officers will be stopping all people on the back streets of Prestonsburg after midnight. Campbell said the action will be taken in an effort to stop the rash of reported thefts that include: lawn mowers, weed eaters, and bicycles. The police will ask for ID from the person stopped. "We'll see who they are and where they're going," Campbell said. "People have no business being on the back streets that late at night if they don't live there." Campbell said the new policy was not harassment, but an effort to protect the neighborhoods with so many people out moving around at night during the summer.

PCC: Going To The Dogs

By Tim Sizemore

Prestonsburg Community College went to the dogs this week end, literally, playing host to the first East Kentucky Kennel Club dog show. Seventy-three entries from a four-state area competed in events that pitted their pooches' prowess and looks in several different categories that included sub-novice with a leash, novice without a leash and conformation (or the appearance of the animal). Karen Ousley, manager of the East Kentucky Animal Shelter in Prestonsburg said that a wide variety of breeds competed for ribbons, plaques and cash awards. German Shepherds, Dobermans, Australian Shepherds, Chows, Pekinese and sheepdogs all made a good showing at the event. One dog belonging to Bonnie Faulkner took second place awards in obedience, which would not be strange but for the fact that she found the canine abandoned at the Western Sizzlin Steakhouse, and it is of mixed heritage. Ousley said that the Animal Shelter benefitted from the concessions and, with donations, there would be enough to set up another show this year.

Sheriff's Department Continues Searches for Marijuana Crops

The search for illegal marijuana crops continues to plague growers, who last week alone lost 139 plants to the Floyd County Sheriff's Department. The areas searched this week include Bucks Branch, Bull Creek, Little Paint, Branham's Creek, Tolers Creek and Stevens Branch, with only one arrest made: Grady Nelson of Town Branch, for trafficking in marijuana. Officers of the Sheriff's Department taking part in the search operation included deputies George Hale, Anthony Castle, Randy Johnson, Harold Johnson, Arnold Adams, Ricky Thornsby and James Hall. Chief Deputy John K. Blackburn says that the search will continue despite the hot weather and that the department will step up its efforts near harvesting time in the late summer. "They better keep their eyes open, for we may be in their backyard and they know what we'll be there for," Blackburn said. The legislature enacted a law this session that took effect July 15th that says that the cultivation of more than five marijuana plants constitutes a felony; the state can also confiscate property or money of the offender. Last week's harvest brings the total amount of marijuana plants confiscated in Floyd County to 1,084 since June 4th.

HOME GROWN, used to mean beans, corn and tomatoes in Floyd County, but Deputies George Hale and Randy Johnson display its new meaning with their latest cache of marijuana.

Holiday Inn Annexation Talks Continue

Annexation discussions are continuing between representatives of the Holiday Inn on US Route 23 near Prestonsburg and city officials, according to Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta. If annexed into the city, the Holiday Inn would qualify to serve liquor by the drink, provided the city council approves an ordinance allowing the sales at its Aug. 22 meeting. The ordinance was introduced for its first reading during Monday night's council meeting. Latta said the second reading and subsequent vote would take place in August, and not at the specially-called meeting next Monday night. The proposed ordinance will allow restaurants with dining facilities for at least 100 persons, and with at least 50 percent of gross revenues created by sale of food for consumption, to sell liquor by the drink. Currently, no restaurants in the city serve liquor by the drink. Latta added that the purpose of the bill is to foster economic development in the area.

Floyd, Other Area Groups To Participate In 'Showcase '88'

The Floyd County Chamber of Commerce will join other area economic development and government agencies at Showcase '88, a two-day event Sept. 22-23 in Louisville, to promote economic development throughout the state. According to Roger Recktenwald, executive director of the Big Sandy Area Development District (which is coordinating participation), other agencies include Magoffin and Martin county governments, the Paintsville-Johnson County Industrial Development Authority, and the Pike County Industrial Development and Economic Authority. Together, the five groups will set up booths at the industrial development exhibition. Recktenwald said local groups will have four booths on each side of the aisle, facing each other.

Some of the participating organizations will use two booth spaces. This is the third year for the event, which will be held at the Kentucky Fair and Exposition Center's West Wing. It will feature three segments: the Community Development Expo, the Industrial Marketing Expo, and the Governor's Industry Appreciation Luncheon. At the Industrial Marketing Expo, buyers from many of the nation's largest businesses will attend; last year, attendees included buyers from Ashland Oil, General Electric, Toyota,

Philip Morris, B.F. Goodrich and South Central Bell. The Community Development Expo will provide an opportunity for local agencies to meet corporations that may want to move into the area. Last year, more than 80 corporate executives attended. At the Governor's Industry Appreciation Luncheon, business leaders, community leaders and corporate guests will have an opportunity to discuss the benefits of doing business in Kentucky. Business and community development seminars will also be available for all participants.

UK Creates Special Ground Transport Unit for Newborns

The University of Kentucky Hospital has the first special-purpose ground transport unit in Central and Eastern Kentucky, designed to carry its neonatal transport team and equipment to stabilize premature or critically-ill newborns to referring hospitals in this part of the state.

In addition, said Mary Margaret Collier, UK Hospital spokeswoman, the ambulance will provide a link to transport adults and children from the UK Aeromedical Service's emergency helicopter to the hospital.

In the past, said Collier, two infants from Floyd County and one from Johnson County have been transported to the UK neonatal unit. In addition, two high-risk mothers from Floyd County have been transported.

"Plans for this special transport unit were made during initiation of the UK Aeromedical Service," said Frank A. Butler, UK Hospital director. "We have seen an increasing need for a ground unit due to the large number of newborns transported to the Hospital as well as the growing number of helicopter transports."

Established in 1974, the UK Hospital's Neonatal Intensive Care unit (NICU) cares for approximately 750 newborns each year in its 38-bed facility. As a Level III neonatal center, a category reserved for the most complex level of care, the UK Neonatal Intensive Care Unit specializes in the diagnosis and treatment of the smallest and sickest newborns. Sixty-two Kentucky counties refer their sick and premature babies to UK.

Since 1977, the UK Hospital has had a neonatal transport team. The UK team is the only one in the state utilizing a nurse transport team exclusively. All transports are led by an advanced transport nurse trained to perform procedures necessary to stabilize an infant.

The specialists travel to referring hospitals, stabilize the infants and then accompany the patients to the Neonatal Intensive Care Unit in Lexington. Prior to 1977, referring hospitals transported infants to UK by community ambulance. For the past 11 years, the team has used a private ambulance service or the Military Assistance to Safety and Transport (MAST) helicopter and the Kentucky National Guard helicopter. Since the program was established, more than 2,000 babies have been transported to UK, with an average of 20 to 30 transports each month.

The neonatal transport team utilizes UK's emergency helicopter service only for infants with specific medical problems or for those who cannot be stabilized.

"Ground transport is the preferred method if the infant can be stabilized at the referring hospital," said Dr. Jacqueline A. Noonan, professor and chairman, UK Department of Pediatrics. "The neonatal transport team will have access to the new ambulance 24 hours a day."

Every neonatal transport by ground will consist of two nurses trained in advanced transport and an emergency medical technician (EMT).

Diskey Given Plaque Noting Contributions

By Joe Porter

Mountain Comprehensive Care Center honored Charles Diskey, vice president of Dick's Sign Co., Inc., Thursday night for his contribution in the fight against drunk driving.

Diskey was given a plaque, and Michael Ferguson, MCCC's Substance Abuse Director, said before the presentation that the billboard campaign was part of an effort to discourage drinking and driving by 11th and 12th graders. The campaign is necessary, he said, because of the widely-publicized alcohol related accidents involving high school students in the area and the concern the problem was causing.

"Drunk driving is the No. 2 killer for the 17- and 18-year-olds," Ferguson said, "and the purpose was to get the kids involved with the problem and raise people's consciousness." The director recognized Diskey's work and told the board of directors that it "made a significant impact on the community."

Members of the group Students Against Drunk Driving (S.A.D.D.) at McDowell, Wheelwright, and Mountain Christian Academy wrote and painted the billboard signs. Lola Brashear, a prevention specialist at MCCC, was instrumental in coordinating the students' participation in the program.

Getting behind good causes is nothing new to Diskey, who is a member of the Prestonsburg Rotary Club. He has also provided free billboard space for Alternatives, an organization that helps pregnant women; and the Big Sandy Family Abuse Center, the Heart Association, and the United States Armed Services.

Allen, Crisp Reunion Held

The Allen and the Crisp families, descendants of some of the original settlers of Floyd County, gathered on Saturday afternoon, July 16, to celebrate their third family reunion.

About 50 family members attended, some from as far away as Nevada and Michigan. Approximately half of the group currently lives in Floyd County.

The organizers of this year's reunion were Mrs. Ira (Edna Allen) Frazier of Martin, Mrs. Neilus (Gypsy Allen) Goodman, of Wilmington, Ohio, and Mrs. Buell (Virginia Allen) Spears, of Maytown. The festivities were held in the Maytown School cafeteria.

The Allen and the Crisp families are descendants of Joel Allen, of Dinwood, (1843-1922) and of William Riley (Bogue) Crisp, of Buck's Branch (1858-1951).

Despite the heat, the family enjoyed a luncheon prepared by the participants. During the afternoon, the family members renewed friendships and reminisced about the lengthy history of the Allen and Crisp clans.

The get-together featured a couple of musical performances: singing by Betty Lou Frasure, her daughter, Jeanne, and Bill Patton; and a sing-along led by Paul Kelly and Van Ramey.

Several family members displayed old photographs of their ancestors, and Donna Gray provided each branch of the Crisp family with a genealogy.

The oldest family member attending was Mrs. Jim (Berthie Allen) Click, of Maytown; she is 80 years old. The youngest was 6-month-old Chelsea Shay, daughter of Susan Allen and Van Ramey.

Plans are underway for next year's reunion.

future. The tower will be built by Job Corp workers, and its members will receive certified training under the guidance of the Prestonsburg Fire Department.

A first reading was given to a proposed law that creates a regulatory ordinance for the control, licensing, and sale of alcoholic beverages by the drink.

A Water Rationing ordinance and a Water Shortage Response ordinance have been drafted to meet any water crisis in the future. Prestonsburg Public Utilities Superintendent Bill H. Howard told the councilors that the ordinances were a result of the Frankfort Drought Management Meeting held July 11. "We want them on the books in case we need to adopt them," he said.

The city's retirement system isn't the only thing that's going to cost more. The city can expect to pay more for its employee Health Insurance. City Administrator Fred A. James informed the group that its carrier, Blue Cross/Blue Shield of Kentucky, was raising its premiums by 22 percent. The annual cost will go from $100,000 to $129,000. Health insurance makes up 7 percent of the city's budget.

"I can see the day where we're going to have to ask the employees to start kicking in to cover their insurance," Goebel said. The council made a motion asking James to investigate the rates of other companies and negotiate a similar plan, but one they can live with.

The members voted to implement a general policy of handling city complaints, and adopted a citizens complaint form. They also passed a resolution to undertake a study of the city's commercial garbage collection rates.

The city is applying for a $25,000 grant from Area Development Funds. The money will be used to pay for the new fire truck that is expected next month. It will also apply for a $5,000 grant to hire a Mainstreet Manager.

"I recommend that we not buy any of them," said Councilor Adrian Blackburn, and the other members agreed to decline anymore solicitations to buy advertising space for local civic and business groups for the next fiscal year.

A dance for teenagers will be held Saturday, Aug. 20 from 8-12 p.m. at the Municipal Parking Lot. The proceeds will go to the proposed Youth Center.

Two Complete Jail Training

Two employees of the juvenile holding facility of the Floyd County Jail have successfully completed the first orientation class for the staffs of certified juvenile holding facilities.

The two are Lettie H. Elliott and Margie N. Osborne.
The class, the first of its kind was held on the campus of Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond, Kentucky. It and other training classes to come like it were required by the last session of the legislature which passed a massive revised juvenile code requiring many changes in the way the Commonwealth of Kentucky handles juvenile offenders.

Justice Cabinet Deputy Secretary Charlie Sutton said: "This training is absolutely essential to the staffs of juvenile holding facilities. If a county contemplates opening a juvenile facility, their employees must be trained... a facility will not open unless the staff has received the required training."

Wade Continues Quest For Justice After Gas Line Explosion, Injury

By Joe Porter

Where is the justice? That's what telephone lineman Paul Wade of Buck's Branch in Martin would like to know.

Two years ago, Wade was severely burned in a gas explosion while working as a lineman for South Central Bell in Allen. As a result, he suffered second and third degree burns over two-thirds of his body, spent three months in an intensive care unit at the University of Kentucky Medical Center, has had eight surgical procedures — skin grafts — and, for a year after the accident, had to be fed, clothed and bathed by his wife.

Today, Wade is still unable to return to work, the Kentucky court system had denied him, the right to sue the Floyd Fiscal Court—the owner of East Kentucky Utilities—who Wades believes caused the accident; and if that isn't enough, his employer, South Central Bell, fired him in March because he "abandoned his job" and cut off all his benefits: workman's compensation, life insurance, and hospitalization.

But Wade, now 33, with a wife and three children, said he had once been a respected employee of the company with 11 years of service, had won two job safety awards, and was making a decent living for himself and family before the accident. "I'm trying to press on," Wade said, "for I had a good job before and I now have nothing. I feel a total abandonment."

The lineman said he is sure it was a leaking gas pipeline operated by East Kentucky Utilities that caused the explosion. "O.S.H.A., the Public Service Commission, and the telephone company, all did an investigation and all revealed that propane tank on my service truck was not leaking," Wade said. Speaking about East Kentucky Utilities, Wade continued, "they actually identified their leak, dug it up two days after my accident and repaired it. It was right there. My mother got pictures of them doing the work," Wade said the explosion occurred when, unaware of the gas leak, he lit a cigarette.

Following the accident, Wade's attorney, Raymond D. Kirk, sued the Floyd Fiscal Court, but the suit was thrown out by Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley, based on the right of Sovereign Immunity. The legal principle means that a governmental body can not be sued by a citizen it is elected to serve. In September 1987 the Kentucky Court of Appeals unanimously reversed Conley's decision, but then the Kentucky Supreme Court in May of this year upheld it, and now, Kirk has asked the Kentucky Supreme Court for a rehearing. That decision should come in August.

While the legal process was going on, Wade was undergoing surgical operations and physical therapy to recover the use of his hands and arms. In the fall of 1987, the telephone company began to inquire about Wade's medical status to learn when he would be able to return to work. The problem came in December 1987 when Wade's doctor, Edward Luce, chief of plastic surgery at the University of Kentucky Medical Center, approved of Wade's returning to work on a limited basis.

Wade talked about that: "Given your condition, I don't see why you can't go back on temporary light duty status" is how the doctor put it to me." At the same time, the doctor made a list of restrictions: for example, Wade couldn't drive a car, work outside, or stand for more than 15 minutes; he also couldn't do anything that required dexterity.

The phone company called Wade Dec. 31, 1987 and asked him to report to work Jan. 4. At the time, his arm was still in a cast from the Nov. 28 surgery. When he refused to return, the company terminated him March 11. On March 28, Wade underwent two more surgeries.

Kirk is working to get Wade's workman's compensation restored, and there is a prehearing scheduled Oct. 18 in Prestonsburg before the Workman's Compensation Board.

Kirk advised Wade not to go back to work, because if he returned for even one day, it would have changed his status and limited his ability to collect compensation in the future. Yet Wade had his own reasons, for not going back then, aside from the fact that the surgeries had not been completed.

"Light duty is essentially a do-nothing job," Wade said. "If I went back and didn't like what they had me doing, I couldn't do anything about it. In other words, I would be at their mercy."

Prestonsburg Attorney Paul C. Combs, who is representing South Central Bell, says Wade had been examined by two doctors prior to his termination, and both doctors "said he could go back to work on light duty, but he refused to go." Dorothy Chambers, a telephone company attorney at their Louisville office, preferred not to comment at this time since Wade has a Workman's Compensation claim pending.

Kirk is working to get Wade's workman's compensation restored, and there is a prehearing scheduled Oct. 18 in Prestonsburg before the Workman's Compensation Board. "He's not sitting home because he wants to. In fact, it's just the opposite; he'd much rather be working," Kirk said of his client.

Wade will never be able to climb telephone poles again, but he hopes to find a permanent meaningful job that provides him with security. "I'm not totaled out," Wade said. "There are a lot of jobs I can still do, but I've got to look out and see what's the best thing for me and my family."

Electrical Use Record Broken

Floyd County residents and those in 19 other Eastern Kentucky counties set an all-time summer peak demand of 959,000 kilowatts of electricity for Kentucky Power Co. between 2 and 3 p.m. Friday, July 15.

According to Tom Owen, public affairs information manager for Kentucky Power, the 148,000 customers' record demand was the result of continuing temperatures in the upper 90's, combined with high humidity.

Peak demand is defined as the total amount of energy required by all customers at a given point in time.

Owen explained. The previous summer peak of 925,000 kilowatts was set between 2 and 3 p.m. on Aug. 3, 1987.

"Kentucky Power met the peak demand of its customers with no problem," said Owen, adding "both generating units at our Big Sandy Plant are operating. Also, by being part of American Electric Power, we are able to draw additional electric energy, if needed, from our sister companies throughout the system. AEP comprises eight operating companies in seven states, serving 3,317 communities."

Commodity Recipients' Allotment Won't Increase Locally, Says Official

Although Kentucky will receive more federal food commodities in August and September, Floyd County recipients won't see an increase in household allotments.

According to Glenda Smith, a coordinator for the Community Action Agency in Paintsville which administers the Floyd County program, each household may receive up to 5 pounds of cornmeal, 4 pounds of dry milk and 15 pounds of flour. Distribution has been tentatively scheduled during early August; a second distribution may be held in September. There are approximately 3,500 program recipients in Floyd County, said Smith.

Because of limits on some commodities shipped to Kentucky, butter will not be in Floyd County. However, cheese—which hasn't been available in many areas since May—will be distributed locally in limited amounts.

Commodity totals (in pounds) Kentucky will receive in the August-September shipping period are: Butter, 230,472; cornmeal, 378,000; flour, 924,000; and dry milk, 369,600.

In a related matter, Congress is expected to take up legislation in August to determine whether the nationwide program will be continued past Oct. 1. A bill in the House of Representatives would extend the program for one year, while legislation set to come before the Senate would fund the program through 1990.

Endicott Man In Stable Condition Following Shooting Incident Sunday

An Endicott man is in stable condition at Highlands Regional Hospital, following a shooting Sunday evening at Endicott; his alleged assailant is in the Floyd County Jail, charged with first degree assault.

Zandall Sherman, 26, of Endicott is charged with the wounding of Otis Burchett, 36, after an apparent argument. State Police Detective James Stevens said that the victim was wounded once in the stomach with a small caliber handgun about 7:30 p.m. Sunday evening.

The shooting incident is still under investigation by Stevens.

FRIENDSHIPS ARE RENEWABLE

The test of true friendship is time and one that has weathered distance and time is the friendship formed during the 60's of two Kentucky and Indiana girls. The youths were neighbors in Wabash, Indiana for four years and then were separated when the Kentucky girl moved back home. For several years letters clogged the mail system but as the years rolled by the contact slowly diminished. That friendship was revived last week after a separation of 18 years.

Friendships may be put on the back burner for a time but they're always there ready to be renewed at the slightest spark.

THERE'S BEAUTY IN THESE HILLS

The beauty of Eastern Kentucky becomes apparent when viewed through the eyes of a northerner. The lush green hillsides are awe inspiring when compared to the shortage of forests and dry, cracked land found northward. Jenny Wiley State Park is a haven, offering breathtaking views with sparkling ripples of water reflecting the sun's gleam. Unexpected dropoffs around a sharp curve can instill a bit of timidity into the most fearless driver, and if the watcher looks close enough he may even spot a deer or two grazing between the trees. Eastern Kentucky is truly a most beautiful sight.

Veterans Administration Questions And Answers

Editor's Note: Following are representative questions answered daily by VA Counselors. Full information is available at any VA Office.

Question: My father, a veteran of the armed forces, was buried in a private cemetery and his headstone was furnished, at no cost, by the Veterans Administration. I visited his grave recently and noticed that the stone was cracked. Will the VA fix the headstone?

Answer: The VA will replace a previously furnished government headstone at government expense if it is cracked, broken, destroyed or otherwise made illegible. Requests for replacement of a headstone should be made in writing by a family member or other responsible person. The request should state the condition of the headstone and be sent to: Director, Monument Service (42), Veterans Administration, Washington, D.C. 20420.

Question: Is it true that husbands of female veterans are eligible for the same Veterans Administration benefits as wives and widows of male veterans?

Answer: Yes. A husband or widower has the same status as a wife or widow of a male veteran and is eligible to receive the same benefits if otherwise entitled.

Question: Do the eligibility assessment procedures for VA medical care apply to veterans age 65 and older?

Answer: VA's eligibility assessment procedures apply to all nonservice-connected veterans regardless of age. Public Law 99-272 repealed a provision in The Veterans Omnibus Health Care Act of 1970 that allowed veterans 65 years of age or older to receive care in VA facilities regardless of income.

Question: I have questions about my recent Agent Orange examination. Whom should I talk to about my concerns?

Answer: If you have any questions about your Agent Orange examination, contact the environmental physician at the VA medical center where you had the examination.

Question: Can a veteran get a VA-guaranteed loan to purchase a condominium unit?

Answer: Yes, provided the unit is located in a condominium complex approved by the Veterans Administration.

Abused Women's Support Meetings Set

Present and former clients of the Big Sandy Family Abuse Center are invited to attend a women's support group meeting held each Thursday from 10 a.m. until noon.

Floyd County To Share Labor Department Grant

The Kentucky Department of Employment Services will receive a $250,000 Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) grant to assist up to 300 coal mining industry workers dislocated as a result of mine closings and mass layoffs, Secretary of Labor Ann McLaughlin has announced.

Authorized under Title III of the JTPA, the funds will provide retraining and other supportive services for affected dislocated workers in Floyd, Magoffin, Martin, Johnson, Knott and Pike counties.

Workers will receive assistance relating to outreach, assessment and testing, remedial education, preparation for general education development (GED), job search, on-the-job training, classroom vocational training, job development and job placement.

The primary services will be provided by Coal Miners Reemployment Centers established in three areas of the state. Supportive services available to participants will include transportation assistance, child care, needs-based payments and relocation assistance.

The dislocated worker program aids workers who have been, or are about to be, laid off due to technological change, foreign competition or the permanent closing of a plant or facility. Training is also provided for workers who are unlikely to return to their previous industry or occupation, with little prospect for local employment or reemployment.

Appalshop To Perform 'Mountain Tales' in Hindman

Roadside Theatre from Whitesburg will be coming to the Hindman Settlement School on Thursday, July 28 with Mountain Tales. The performance, which is free, will be in the May Stone Building beginning at 7:30 p.m., and is sponsored by Hindman Settlement School, East Kentucky Teachers Network and Alternate Roots.

Roadside Theatre's Mountain Tales is based on the oral folk tales and songs which have been passed down from generation to generation in the southern Appalachian mountains. The tales are about eternal human themes such as lost love, tests of will and strength, and bouts with the devil. Roadside Theatre learned the tales and the songs they sing directly from older people around their mountain home, and the ensemble company attempts to present them with all their vital quality. For everyone who enjoys stories and storytelling, Mountain Tales provides an accessible source to part of America's cultural heritage.

Roadside Theatre is a "road" company and tours year around. There are presently three original productions in its touring repertory. Since 1974 they have toured their unique style of storytelling theatre throughout the south and to other parts of the nation, have performed at Lincoln Center and at the Festival of American Folklife in Washington, D.C., in Europe and Canada, and have had several successful runs off-Broadway in New York City.

Roadside Theater is a part of Appalshop, Inc., the nonprofit arts and educational cooperative in Whitesburg. Appalshop also includes June Appal Records, Appalshop Films, "Headwaters" television, and WMMT Radio. # DES Job Placement Rises 12% in Four-County Region

Job placements through the area Department for Employment Services jumped nearly 12 percent during the past program year for the office, last year, culminating in employment for 1,512 residents in Floyd, Magoffin, Martin and Johnson counties.

According to Thomas Hereford III, fieldoffice manager, 65 percent of the 1,512 jobs were for retail sales or fast food businesses.

Hereford said expansion this year may exceed that of last year. The program year for DES runs from July 1 through June 30.

"We have made some real strides in the last year or two in the retail sales and fast food areas of all four counties," noted Hereford.

Job placements for 1987-88 were: Floyd County, 834; Johnson County, 360; Magoffin County, 196; and Martin County, 122.

State-wide, the job services agency helped more than 82,000 people find jobs. It marked the first time in DES' 55-year history that annual job placements have passed the 80,000 mark. According to Human Resources Secretary Harry J. Cowherd, M.D., the new record eclipsed the previous high by nearly 6,000 jobs.

"Employment Services can only find jobs for Kentuckians when there are Kentucky employers looking for new workers," Cowherd said. "These figures show that Kentucky's economy is continuing to expand."

"This also should be a good sign for business and industry looking to locate in Kentucky because it says that we're able to find the workers they need."

Cowherd said that more employers are taking advantage of the services the state offers, such as interviewing applicants, giving them aptitude tests and referring them to potential jobs for which they are qualified.

"We're committed to work with employers and job applicants so that we can match Kentuckians with positions where they can best use their skills," he said. "That's our contribution to Kentucky's economic development process."

Employment Services Commissioner James Daniels said, "The placements made during the past year reflect the areas of growth in Kentucky's labor force."

Nearly one-third (29 percent) of the job placements were in manufacturing, up from 21 percent a year ago. Trade and services accounted for another 22 percent each. Services accounted for 23 percent of the jobs located through the department last year, while wholesale and retail trade made up 22 percent.

The remaining placements were in transportation and utilities; construction; finance, insurance and real estate; agriculture; mining; and public and private non-profit agencies (including workers in a federally-funded summer youth program).

"Although manufacturing ranks behind trade and services in total jobs in the state, employment in goods-producing industries is increasing at a faster rate than in other categories," Daniels said.

While Kentucky has seen significant industrial development following the announced location of the Toyota Motor Corporation plant in Scott County, Daniels attributed most of the 1987-88 manufacturing increases to expansion at existing Kentucky plants.

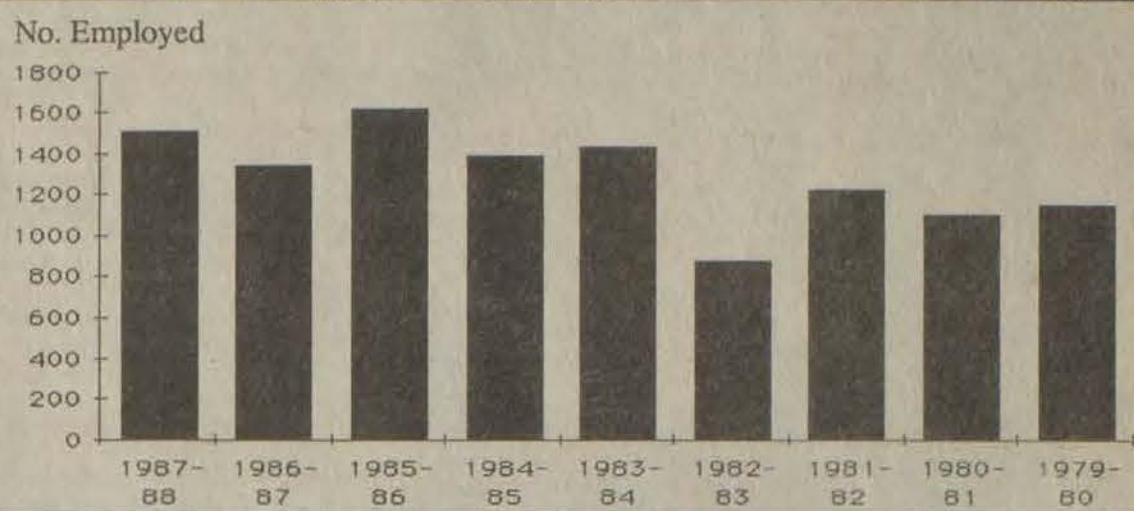

"Most of the workers hired at the Toyota facility in Scott County and at its spin-off industries are not included in the totals because they are still in training," he explained.

The matching of 82,528 applicants to jobs exceeded the department's goal by 12 percent. "Our employment specialists have had heavier workloads as our existing businesses and industries have expanded and new companies have moved into Kentucky. Despite additional interviews and tests for new and expanding employers, our staff made an average 309 placements each last year, also a record," Daniels said.

"Our good working relationship with Kentucky's employers is a major factor in this report. More than 1,400 employers in the state use our agency exclusively to recruit, screen and test job applicants. Many others rely on us for part of their employment needs," he said.

BOOKS AND THINGS

By: TRISHA MORRIS, Librarian
Prestonsburg Community College

Harriette Simpson Arnow, first lady of Appalachian literature, brought her home state of Kentucky to world renown through her memorial trilogy. It shaped such strong characters that Jane Fonda playing Gertie Nevels, in the film version of The Dollmaker convincingly takes on the persona of a backwoods woman. Ms. Arnow also authored two historical novels which have been called, "two of the best Appalachian histories." And, her tireless participation at writers workshops have inspired multitudes. On May 22, 1986 Ms. Arnow died at the age of 77 on her farm near Ann Arbor, Michigan. She left many friends and fans but mostly she left a legacy to Appalachians for it is their story she tells.

Mountain Path

Ms. Arnow tells her story in terms of roads—at first only a path, then a community at the end of a gravel road and finally, the highway that takes them North. "Mountain Path" catches the Southern mountaineer in the last phases of his old society. This first novel picks up the story during the 20's when the mountaineer was little different from his grandfather, who had returned from the Civil War to the insulation of the abandoned hills. Now progress rides into those hills in the person of 20 year old Louisa Sheridan. She has reluctantly come from Lexington to teach for one term so that she can afford to continue her education. Through Louisa's eyes we learn the mountain character—how they lived, what they ate, how they worshipped. She falls in love with a handsome moonshiner—saves his life with a lie but finally decides she can not enter his world of feuds, superstitions and deaths. An unusually satisfying book, it has all the right ingredients—adventure, romance and a cast of colorful characters. But, it's real worth is that wrapped in a fictitious, entertaining story it is an authentic picture of the way it was.

Hunters Horn

In her second novel Ms. Arnow brings her mountain family near the end of the gravel road and into the time of the Nation's Great Depression. It's a time of transition—the Ballew's have moved to the family farm to raise the food for their survival but in town the government is offering free fertilizer for farmers who will farm their way and the general store is offering credit against the land for seed and material goods. It is all tempting and Nunn Ballew takes the fertilizer and the credit and his wife dies a little when she learns that he has mortgaged the farm for a mystical crop. Their life is lived in the cycles of his hunting and her struggles to cultivate enough crop to cover the credit at the store.

A well told tale of dreams and obsessions and life as rough as it really was. It is the story Ms. Arnow calls her best.

The Dollmaker

This last novel centers on the hill family who follow the gravel road to the highway which leads North. A story of the Great Migration when industry and the war called the mountaineer from his homeland into the anonymity of the Northern industrial centers. Clovis Nevels, without consulting his wife, Gertie, goes to Detroit for work and writes for her to bring their children and join him. Join him in a land of cramped housing, mortgaged furniture and strangers. How Gertie and her children adjust or don't adjust is the story of this novel. A hard story of almost unrelenting suffering—a child leaves, a child dies, Clovis is nearly killed in a union fight and Gertie is constantly torn between the old ways and the new as she slowly loses everything she ever valued. A brutally beautiful novel which will have a permanent effect on anyone who reads it.

Seedtime on the Cumberland Flowering of the Cumberland

Companion pieces covering the Cumberland River basin from approximately 1780-1803. It is the story of the first, white settlers who came to the Bluegrass and limestone valleys.

"Seedtime" is devoted chiefly to the adventures in exploration, hunting, traveling and the actual settling of the community behind stockaded walls where they had to live for 15 years to survive the Indian warfare. In "Flowering" we look more closely at the individual lives and see the pioneers as social beings who build a culture behind their stockade and a society that would in time influence much of the Southwest.

Ms. Arnow's years of research, her personal roots and her easy storytelling techniques bring these histories to life.

Old Burnside

Asked to write this edition of the Kentucky Bicentennial Bookshelf because she grew up in Burnside, Ky., Harriette Arnow takes the reader on a trip to the sights and sounds of the Burnside of her memories. She sets these memories against the history of the region from the days of the early settlers until Wolf Creek Dam buried the lower end of the town and created the hundred mile long Lake Cumberland.

Though much of Old Burnside has disappeared, Ms. Arnow's description of its early life is an important part of Kentucky history.

Local Memory Disorders Clinic To Begin Aug. 19

DR. WILLIAM MARKESBERY

Highlands Regional Medical Center will begin a Memory Disorders Clinic Friday, Aug. 19, as an outreach program associated with the Sanders-Brown Center on Aging at the University of Kentucky.

Under the direction of William Markesbery, M.D., the clinic is designed to diagnose and treat older persons with progressive memory loss. Dr. Markesbery currently serves as director of the Sanders-Brown Center in Lexington, and is a nationally-recognized authority on Alzheimer's disease and aging.

The HRMC Memory Disorders Clinic will focus on diagnoses, treatment, social and family support for those with a dementing type illness. The primary focus will be Alzheimer's disease.

Alzheimer's, a progressive, age-related brain disease that impairs thinking and behavior, is the fourth leading cause of death for persons over 65 years old. Alzheimer's affects approximately 2 million individuals in the US, and about 60,000 Kentuckians. It is not, as many believe, an independently fatal disease. As Markesbery puts it, "You don't really die from Alzheimer's. You die because you become so incapacitated that you can't walk, you can't feed yourself, you can't carry out the daily activities of living and eventually you go to bed. When you go to bed you end up with pneumonia, urinary tract infection, sepsis... you die of those things and not the disease. Yes, it kills you, but it does it indirectly." Currently there is no treatment available to stop or reverse the mental deterioration characteristics of Alzheimer's disease.

The Memory Loss Clinic at Highlands will provide a means for diagnosing Alzheimer's, as well as other diseases related to today's aging society.

The aging population is dramatically increasing. Today, 25 million Americans are 65 or older. By the year 2030, that number will expand to 50 million individuals. Accompanying this increase will be a dramatic growth in age-related diseases and services needed for older citizens. Major innovations are needed in the health care system to meet and treat the diseases, as well as the social and economic consequences that will accompany these diseases.

On September 18, 1793, President George Washington climbed what used to be called Jenkins' Hill to lay the cornerstone of the U.S. Capitol.

Highlands currently hosts an Alzheimer's support group sponsored by the Big Sandy Area Development, meeting monthly at Highlands.

The HRMC Memory Disorders Clinic will be located in Suite #3 of Highland's Medical Offices. Anyone needing additional information may call 886-8511 or 789-6548 ext. 580.

Calhoun Goble: Remembering A Heritage

(The following story is provided by the Van Lear Historical Society which is preparing for the fourth Van Lear Town Celebration Aug. 5-7.)

By Jeanette Knowles

Calhoun Goble was born June 2, 1900 on his father's farm at the forks of Miller's Creek (Van Lear) in the hollow now known as Shade Ward Hollow. In 1900, the hollow was known as Goble Branch, but before the Goble's bought the land, it was known as High Rock Branch. The hollow below Goble Branch was Porter Branch, previously Mill Rock Branch, and now Slate Hollow. The hollow above was then the left fork of Miller's Creek and now Butcher Hollow.

Calhoun was named after Calhoun (John C.C.) Mayo, who had risen to prominence in the previous 10 years. Although Calhoun does not recall ever meeting Calhoun Mayo, he knows that when he was too young to remember, Mayo came to his house, put him on his horse, and the two rode around and around the yard!

Goble has a clear memory of his early years on Miller's Creek. Although his father's farm was located four one-half miles up the creek and away from the main source of transportation—the Big Sandy River—there were families living in every hollow, and plenty of children to play with. One of Calhoun's friends was Lloyd Porter, son of Budgy Porter. Budgy ran a water mill in Miller's Creek, downstream from Porter Branch, where the track came to an end at the #5 mine when it was built later. The creek was dammed up at this point; the water backed up into Goble Branch and made quite a nice fishing pond, especially for children.

Lloyd's grandfather—Canada Porter—was a well-known man in the community also. He had a long black beard, and had his coffin made in advance by Calhoun's uncle, George Powers. The coffin stood in a room in the house and Calhoun remembers that Canada would get in the coffin and ask the children, "How do I look?" They were scared to death! Canada died in 1905, and is buried with many members of his family in the Porter Cemetery. The Goble Cemetery is adjacent to the Porter Cemetery.

The years between 1900 and 1910 were busy ones on Miller's Creek. Not only had John C.C. Mayo bought rights to all the unseen mineral and mineral substances, but had convinced Consolidation Company to buy these mineral rights and develop coal mines on Miller's Creek. Calhoun Goble remembers that when he was eight years old, a steam drill was brought up to where the #5 mine was later opened, and a core hole was drilled. He believes they burned coal to generate steam.

Cutting the virgin timber on the mountains had been going on for years, and a logging company continued cutting until the end when Consol gained control in 1909 of all the tracts of land for its own purposes. The saw mill was located close to the Goble farm at the head of Miller's Creek. Calhoun's father also had an old saw mill which he used occasionally, and had a blacksmith shop for all the other land owners on the Creek. Sherd Spradlin had a house and small store on the farm, too, at the mouth of the branch.

GIN CREW—Pictured above is an early gin crew which may have put slate under railroad ties, or could have been placing sand in the mines as a breaking agent to stop cars. They worked at the #4 Tipple in Van Lear. Only tentative identification of the men can be made. The group may include Eli Trusty, John McDowell, Bradley Young, Felty O'Bryan, Calhoun Goble and Gus Dickerson.

The Warnie Blair Family

By Joyce McAllister Meade

Thanks to the Floyd County Times, this picture was developed from a glass negative loaned to the Van Lear Historical Society by Sybil Blair Powers.

The lady in the picture is Sybil's mother, Nora Rivers Blair. The children are Sybil, Sylvia and Velva. Their brother, Otis Kenneth ("Buster"), was not born when the photograph was taken. The scene is lower Slate Row, near Music Hollow.

Warnie was born in 1892, at Oil Springs. He married Nora Rivers, Asa Cruik, in 1911. They moved to Van Lear from Middle Fork of Jenny's Creek in 1917. They lived in Wolf Pen Hollow, and on Slate Row.

Warnie worked for Consolidation Coal Co. as a blacksmith at #4 mine, and later worked at the #5 tipple.

A granddaughter, Barbara Sue Powers, lived with the Blairs. She graduated from Van Lear High School in 1954. She died during childbirth in 1961. Velva died in 1935, and Buster in the late '50s.

Warnie Blair died in March 1962, and Mrs. Blair died in November 1974. Sybil lives in Urbana, Ind., and Sylvia resides in Hobe Sound, Fla.

At age 6, Calhoun began school in the county schoolhouse at the mouth of the left hand fork of Miller's Creek, just up from his house. Two teachers he remembers are May Leslie, who boarded with the Goble's throughout the week, and Willie Webb, whose family lived in the hollow. About one-half mile down the creek from his house, where the Consol #5 store was eventually built, there was a large log church. When Consol started building a town, this old church was torn down.

In 1909, Calhoun's family moved to the bend in the Big Sandy River (location of American Standard plant now). Calhoun's father, Christopher Goble, traded his farm of 22 acres for a farm of 88 acres, and $400 to Consolidation Coal Company. Hard at work already, Consol was building a town on Miller's Creek which would soon number 1,000 buildings, and by 1910 was ready to haul by rail the first coal out of the first Van Lear mine.

The farm to which the Christopher Goble family moved was owned and occupied by Northeast Coal Company. Northeast must have exchanged this property with Consol, however, for when the Gobles moved onto the land, Northeast withdrew its mining operation to the other side of the ridge towards Auxier. The operation had included a house and office, a 600' sidetrack for mine cars going up the hollow towards Cannel Coal Gap where the mine was, and a tipple. The tipple, track, mine cars and equipment were all removed then, and if any more coal was mined, it was taken through a tunnel to the big tipple at Auxier.

After Calhoun's family moved, he went to school across the hill at Hager Hill. He walked down the railroad track to Limestone Gap and crossed over to get to the schoolhouse. Today, the bridge crosses the Big Sandy River at that location on Rt. 23, and the road goes right through Limestone Gap towards Paintsville. Winfield Preston's family lived there also, but the children in this family had to row a boat across the river to get to the path that lead through the gap and to school. Three teachers Goble remembers are Worth Conley, Zip Wells, and Ruth Fairchild, who still lives in West Van Lear.

Calhoun went back to Miller's Creek (now Van Lear) and got a job with the company which had bought his family farm and the farms of all his friends and relatives. His first job was in 1922 at the #4 tipple, where he worked for the next 11 years. One of his duties was working on top of the tipple, using levers to mechanically dump mine cars into chutes, then returning the empties to the mine for more loads of coal. Men who did this or similar tasks, were called "empty" catchers! He continued working for Consol underground and above ground, except for a few years on Beaver Creek, until it shut down in 1948. From then until 1952, he worked for Farwest Coal, which had leased the tipple and #5 mine. After that, he worked for two years for Pat McCoart who had a small crew of men pulling pillars in the old #1 mine. He retired from coal mining in 1954, but continued to be active as a carpenter for a few more years.

Today, Calhoun Goble lives in West Van Lear in the same house he has lived in for the past 50 years. His memories are numerous and detailed, and can educate us all.

QUESTION: I've heard that tanning booths are safer than the sun because they have UV-A rays rather than the more dangerous UV-B rays which come from the sun.

ANSWER: Usually tanning salons are made up of small booths lined with sunlamps which give off UV rays. There are two types of ultraviolet radiation: ultraviolet-A (UV-A) and ultraviolet-B (UV-B). UV-B rays come mostly from the sun and cause skin cancer directly. However, because UV-A rays penetrate deeper into the skin and attacks the fiber which keeps the skin supple, UV-A rays may cause early aging of the skin. It is not certain whether early aging of the skin will be a factor in the development of skin cancer in the future.

Most tanning salons claim to use lamps that contain 95 percent UV-A rays and five percent UV-B. Although the amount of UV-B exposure is low, some exposure does occur and may increase an individual's risk of skin cancer.

Being exposed to the rays given off by tanning booths can cause other health hazards. Ultraviolet rays can burn or injure the eyes and may increase the risk of cataracts. Cold sore may be aggravated by exposure to UV rays. Also, certain prescription drugs can increase a person's sensitivity to UV rays.

For more information on tanning beds including guidelines to use them safely, call the Cancer Information Service (CIS) at 1-800-4-CANCER. Or write to the CIS at the Markey Cancer Center, 800 Rose Street, Lexington, Ky. The CIS is a service of the Kentucky Community Cancer Program.

A LITTLE BOY is administered a vaccination shot by a Floyd County Health worker. This week has been proclaimed "Local Health Department Recognition Week" in Kentucky by Governor Wallace G. Wilkinson.

State Marking Health Unit Week

For the past 110 years, a team of public health officials across the Commonwealth has been making Kentucky a healthier, safer place to live—and state officials have set aside a week in July to recognize their efforts. July 25-30 has been proclaimed "Local Health Department Recognition Week" in Kentucky by Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson.

"From the health department's first challenge in fighting yellow fever in 1878 to today's emphasis on preventing diseases, the state's public health workers have consistently worked to protect and promote a healthier Kentucky," said Health Commissioner Carlos Hernandez, M.D.

After the establishment of the state's first full-time county health department in Jefferson County in 1903, Kentucky's network of health departments has grown to 32 single county health departments and 18 district health departments with local health centers in each of the other 88 counties.

Although the services offered by individual health departments vary depending on the needs of the area, funding levels and desires of the county and district boards of health, all programs in the state strongly emphasize "preventive medicine."

"It makes much more sense for us to invest our resources in preventing disease with programs such as immunizations, high blood pressure screening and prenatal care," said

Hernandez, "than for us to spend money treating measles, heart disease or sick, premature babies. 'What's more is that we can keep people from a lot of needless pain and disability by preventing rather than treating.'"

Among other health department programs geared to preventing illness are tuberculosis and cancer screening, dental health services, nutrition counseling, well child care and safety seat loaner programs.

Another aspect of health department services involve protecting the public health through "environmental programs" by insuring safe and sanitary conditions. Such programs include inspecting restaurants, grocery stores and food manufacturing plants; milk producers, processors and haulers; and schools, youth camps, hotels, motels and mobile home parks. In addition, consumer product safety inspectors monitor retail stores for unsafe toys and other products.

Health departments across the state are also involved in many of society's most pressing public health issues, such as teenage pregnancy prevention, lowering the infant mortality rate, and AIDS education. "Everyone in Kentucky owes these dedicated public health workers a big round of applause for what they have already accomplished and for the new challenges they have taken on," said Hernandez. "From the state Department for Health Services, we say 'Thanks for a job well done.'"

Bolin, Veteran Local Educator, Named To Head Mt. Christian

By Tim Sizemore

A veteran local educator of 44 years has been chosen by Mountain Christian Academy's Board of Directors to fill the dean's post recently vacated by Paul Hughes.

Mouseie native Dr. James Bolin was given the responsibility of the leadership role at the academy.

To many Floyd Countians, the name of James Bolin will have a familiar ring. Among other things, he has served as principal at Prestonsburg High School, Wayland Elementary, Betsy Layne High School and Harold Elementary, serving a total of 26 years in the Floyd County school system.

Bolin lives at Mouseie, where he has been a resident since 1941. He has lived in different parts of the country but he finds he has the greatest commitment to Eastern Kentucky. He has many years of teaching experience, administrative and general school work, which will serve him well in his new duties as principal, payroll, activities director and as general supervisor.

Bolin holds degrees from the University of Kentucky, A.B. in elementary education; an M.A. in secondary education; and a doctor's degree in Ed. D. in supervision and administration.

Bolin has taught all the way from a one-room school to graduate school. He has gained experience in several systems and universities, including the Knott County Board of Education, the Floyd County Board of Education, Eastern Kentucky University and the University of Kentucky. Many residents of a five-county area recall their experiences as a student or working under his administrative guidance.

Some of Bolin's tenets of life—though they may seem old fashioned by today's standards—are, in his belief, still vital. The virtues of honesty, integrity, consistency and hard work are still his advice to up-and-coming generations. Bolin feels that if a person is talented and fails to develop that talent, it will be useless in the long run. He believes that it is the job of the educator to guide a person to the development of his or her talent.

As goals and objectives for the Mountain Christian Academy, Bolin wishes to take available resources and use them to the fullest for the benefit of all. He says that the academy provides a Christian atmosphere of goodwill that will help guide the student toward social development, allowing them to view the world as a compassionate and caring society.

State Law Requires Dogs To Be Licensed Each July

Since 1954, it has been mandatory to license dogs in Kentucky each July 1.

While it is a state law, it's one that is not observed by most Kentuckians, whether they have a house dog or five or six other dogs.

Figures provided by the Animal Health Division of the Department of Agriculture, where the licensing program is administered, back up that statement. At the end of March, only 64,012 dogs of the state's estimated 1 million dog population had been licensed for the 1987 licensing year.

According to state law, all dogs six months and older must be licensed.

Dogs must wear their license tag at all times because any dog without a tag can be picked up and impounded by the local dog warden.

Dog licenses are sold in each county, usually through the local dog warden or another county official. The cost of the license is $1.50 for the year.

Money from the sale of the licenses is divided equally between the county and a state fund which reimburses farmers for livestock and poultry which are killed by stray dogs.

To qualify for reimbursement, the farmer must have all his dogs properly licensed.

"We are looking forward to having a large number of these children with us for this reunion," VanHoose said. "We are planning a carnival atmosphere that the whole family can enjoy."

The infant reunion on Aug. 27 is just the beginning of a month-long celebration of the hospital's 5th Anniversary. Other events scheduled include an Employee Recognition Ceremony and an Open House at the hospital on Saturday, September 24.

Parents and grandparents of children born at Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center are invited to attend the Aug. 27 reunion. Questions about the event may be directed to VanHoose by calling 789-3511.

Prestonsburg Police Officers Conn, Roberts Finish Course

Two Prestonsburg police officers have graduated from the Bureau of Training Police Academy at Richmond, Mayor Ann Latta announced this week.

Ricky Joe Conn and Roy D. Roberts completed 10 weeks of intensive training in such law enforcement courses as criminal investigations, vehicle operations, accident investigations, firearms, first aid, law procedures and traffic control.

"It is extremely difficult course," said Police Chief Dickie Campbell, "and we are particularly proud that Officer Conn finished second out of the class of 48."

Conn joined the Prestonsburg force in February, after serving four years as a member of the Prestonsburg Auxiliary Police. He is the son of Betty Jean Conn, of Ivel, and the late George E. Conn.

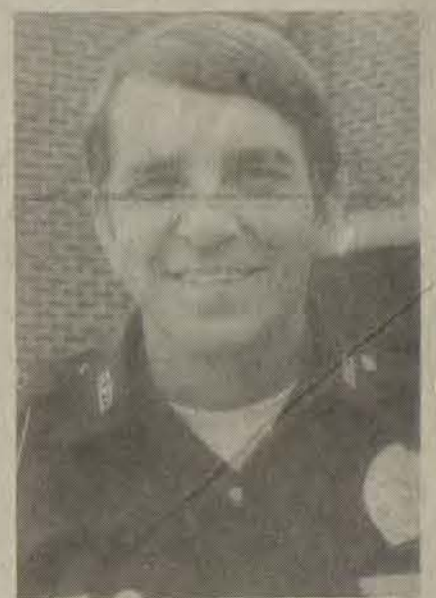

Roberts has served with the department since February 1987, first as a dispatcher, and then as a police officer since October, 1987. He was previously captain of the auxiliary force, having served 12 years with that volunteer organization. Roberts and his wife, Ruth, live in Goble-Roberts, and have one son, Kyle.

In addition to law enforcement class work, the officers underwent a strenuous physical program at the academy, which is conducted at Eastern Kentucky University under the auspices of the Kentucky Justice Cabinet.

The training program is a requirement of membership in the Kentucky Law Enforcement Foundation Program, Latta said, of which Prestonsburg has been a member since 1968.

RICKY CONN

"We are proud to participate in this program," Latta said. "Every single officer on the Prestonsburg force has had the best training available because of our membership, and that provides better service to the people and the city."

In addition to the 10-week course required of all new officers, membership in the program calls for all officers to receive at least 40 hours per year in-service training.

In the past, Campbell said, the 40-hour courses have generally been held at Richmond, Ashland or Hazard. This year the city invited the Academy to conduct one of the courses in Prestonsburg, August 22-26, at Jenny Wiley State Park.

The course will be on patrol skills, and include some 15 to 20 participants from Floyd, Johnson, Pike and Perry counties. Eight Prestonsburg officers are enrolled, Campbell said.

Floyd Area Labor Committee Calls Citizens 'Great' Workers

The Big Sandy Area Labor-Management Committee held its regular monthly meeting at the U.M.W.A. District 30 headquarters on July 12.

Sue Charles, representing the Cabinet for Human Resources, Employment Services, was the featured speaker. Charles commended the speaker for its efforts to change misconceptions of the area's labor relations.

"The fact that our citizens are getting good educations and have outstanding work ethics is not being publicized enough," said Charles.

Some of the services now being provided for by the Cabinet for Human Resources include: helping existing employers find employees; providing financial assistance for on the job training; retraining for unemployed mine workers; relocation assistance for unemployed workers; literacy testing; financial and personal counseling; and assistance for new employees.

The Big Sandy Area Labor-Management Committee is a volunteer organization whose goal is to enhance the economic development efforts of the area by striving to improve the image of labor-management relations. Membership is open to any representative of labor or management with an interest in the Big Sandy Area.

Beware of Chigger Mites In Grass and Brambles

Those itchy, red welts that appear on legs or waist that demand immediate scratching after a trek through high grasses or blackberry brambles point out the obvious. "Chigger bite" season is in full swing.

Actually, the small, pesky mite known as the chigger doesn't really bite, said Chris Christensen, Extension entomologist with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

The tiny chigger larvae releases a digestive enzyme which dissolves cells. The body reacts to that digestive enzyme by forming the red welts about three to six hours after contact with the chigger. There is no chigger buried in the welt as many popularly believe.

Big deal. That might be interesting to the scientist who studies such things, but for the masses who experience the extreme discomfort it's still an "itch" that has to be scratched. It makes little difference to them whether the itch comes from a bite or a digestive enzyme.

"Yes it does," said Christensen. "Knowledge gained from studying the critter results in understanding how to relieve the itch and how to control it in the fields."

The need to scratch can be reduced by using special ointments available in drug stores over the counter. Two that have proven especially effective are called Chiggerex and Chiggertox.

Young campers going to summer camp are especially susceptible to chiggers as are the blackberry pickers.

Christensen said. Those who know they are going into chigger-infested places can reduce their risk by using repellents such as DEET to prevent the chigger from feeding on people. Mowing tall grass and brush removal can rid lawns of chiggers and several pesticides are effective for especially heavy infestations.

Primer On Rheumatic Diseases Is Published

A new, ninth edition of the Primer on the Rheumatic Diseases has been published by the Arthritis Foundation and is being distributed to medical students, physicians and arthritis health professionals nationwide.

The Primer is a concise review of the rheumatic diseases, with particular emphasis on clinical manifestations, pathogenesis, diagnosis and management. Although it is designed primarily for medical students and physicians in postgraduate residency programs, the Primer is also used extensively to augment education programs for hospital physicians and arthritis health professionals.

"Every chapter in the ninth edition has been extensively revised or completely rewritten to keep pace with the rapid changes in arthritis diagnosis and care during the past five years," said H. Ralph Schumacher Jr., M.D., editor of the Primer.

The 345-page illustrated text provides a basic science background, followed by chapters on diagnostic methods, the individual diseases and frequently used therapeutic measures.

Since 1983, more than 80,000 copies of the eighth edition were distributed to medical schools and hospitals nationwide by the Arthritis Foundation. It has become a widely used teaching resource in this country and others. It has been translated into Japanese and Spanish, with French and Chinese translations in process.

Merck, Sharp & Dohme, has paid for the cost of printing enough copies of the ninth edition to distribute a free copy to every third-year medical student in the U.S. The company's representatives are also distributing a free copy of the resource to physicians nationwide. Extra copies of the new Primer on the Rheumatic Diseases, ninth edition, are available for a fee from the Arthritis Foundation. Contact the local Arthritis Foundation chapter or write to: Arthritis Foundation, 1314 Spring St., N.W., Atlanta, Ga. 30309. The Arthritis Foundation is the only national voluntary health agency seeking the causes, cures, preventions and treatments for the more than 100 arthritis-related diseases.

Lively Light Summer Meals with Tuna

From the American Institute for Cancer Research

If summer brings a more casual lifestyle to your household—with less-hassle means to give more time for out-of-the-kitchen pursuits—then you should remember the versatility of tuna. America's favorite seafood is a staple in many homes—providing an excellent source of protein and other important nutrients at a very reasonable price.

July is the start of the Albacore tuna season, so you may find fresh tuna steaks at the fish market that are delicious broiled or poached. Year-round, however, you'll find tuna in cans. The American Institute for Cancer Research recommends using the water-packed variety to avoid the unnecessary added fat that comes with oil-packed tuna.

There's virtually no end to the delicious recipes that have been developed by creative cooks to make tuna a tempting palate-pleaser. Its mild flavor complements so many different ingredients that you'll see it in appetizers, soups, casseroles and other entrees as well as salads and sandwiches.

For the most healthful tuna meals, look for recipes (or create your own) that feature nutritious, lowfat ingredients such as fruits, vegetables, legumes and whole grain pastas. Keep fat content low with yogurt, or lite mayonnaise based dressing.

The following recipe features a combination of fresh fruits that complement the tuna beautifully. This colorful dish makes a delicious lunch or light supper.

- TUNA HARVEST FRUIT SALAD
- 1 1/2 ounces Neufchatel cheese, softened
  - 1/4 cup crushed pineapple, drained
  - 2 tbsp. red or green pepper, chopped
  - 1 tbsp. green onion, chopped
  - 1 6.5 ounce can water-packed tuna, drained
  - 2 tsp. sunflower seeds
  - 1/4 tsp. dried dill (optional)
  - Leaf lettuce
  - 4 small bunches red grapes
  - 1/4 cantaloupe, cut up
  - 1 apple, sliced
- Combine the cheese, pineapple, red or green pepper and green onion. Gently stir in the tuna and sunflower seeds (and dill, if desired). Arrange the leaves of lettuce on two plates and top them with the tuna mixture. Surround each tuna salad portion with half of the grapes, the cantaloupe pieces and apple slices.

This recipe makes two servings, with 280 calories and 7 grams of fat in each.

For more healthful recipes, send for "Menus and Recipes to Lower Cancer Risk" by writing to American Institute for Cancer Research, Dept. C29, Washington, D.C. 20069.

All material in "Good Food/Good Health" is reviewed by Karen Collins, M.S., R.D., of the American Institute for Cancer Research, Washington, D.C. 20069.

MANDATORY NOTICE
BY
ENVIRONMENTAL PROTECTION AGENCY
FOR ALL WATER SYSTEMS
PERTAINING TO LEAD IN DRINKING WATER

"The United States Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) sets drinking water standards and has determined that lead is a health concern at certain levels of exposure. There is currently a standard of 0.050 parts per million (ppm). Based on new health information, EPA is likely to lower this standard significantly.

"Part of the purpose of this notice is to inform you of the potential adverse health effects of lead. This is being done even though your water may not be in violation of the current standard.

"EPA and others are concerned about lead in drinking water. Too much lead in the human body can cause serious damage to the brain, kidneys, nervous system, and red blood cells. The greatest risk, even with short-term exposure, is to your young children and pregnant women. "Lead levels in your drinking water are likely to be highest:

- if your home or water system has lead pipes, or
- if your home has copper pipes with lead solder, and
- if the home is less than five years old, or
- if you have soft or acidic water, or
- if water sits in the pipes for several hours."

The following steps can reduce the possible consumption of water with high lead concentrations.

1. Flush cold water pipes before drinking—5-30 seconds.
2. Use only water from cold water pipes for drinking, cooking or preparing baby formula.
3. Lead pipes and service connections can be replaced.
4. Insist that only lead free materials be used in repairs or new plumbing.

To find out which type of plumbing you have, look at it and perform the following simple tests:

- Lead pipe is gray, relatively soft, and can be easily scratched to shine with a screwdriver, coin, or key.
- Iron pipe is very hard and usually black.
- Copper pipe is usually copper color. Until recently, most copper pipe was installed using lead-based solder. Copper pipe that has been soldered with lead usually contributes less lead to the water as time passes due to a coating from minerals in the water.
- Iron, steel, and "plastic" pipe have not been associated with any health effects from lead.

The Auxier Water Company purchases water for distribution from Prestonsburg City Utilities. The Managements of both water systems are working together to provide water that is non-corrosive and less likely to dissolve lead in plumbing.

The lead content in Prestonsburg City Utilities, which supplies the Auxier Water Co. Inc. is less than 0.001.

The Auxier Water Company does not have lead service lines or other lead-containing materials in our distribution system.

The Auxier Water Company provides non-corrosive water that is less likely to dissolve lead from plumbing.

The only way to be sure of the amount of lead in your water is to have the water tested by a state certified testing laboratory. For additional information contact the Drinking Water Branch of the Kentucky Division of Water at (502) 564-3410 or Auxier Water Co. Inc. at (606) 886-6240. 1t.

Handwashing Techniques Taught To Shawnee Kids

Eighty-six campers absorbed lessons on handwashing given by Our Lady of the Way Hospital's Director of Nursing Charlotte Lawson at the Christian Appalachian Project's Camp Shawnee Monday, June 20. Lawson used a video featuring Scrubby Bear, a flip chart, the Scrubby Bear Glo-germ Indicator, actual handwashing and a crossword puzzle to make her point.

The glo-germ indicator was by far the most popular learning tool.

Lawson and Public Relations Consultant Gwen Hall infected the campers with fake germs at the beginning of the program by shaking their hands. The pretend germs, transferred by the handshake, were fluorescent dust particles which glow in the dark.

The glo-germ indicator contains a black light and, as one camper opined, looks somewhat like a commercial video game. By looking through the indicator's eyepiece and inserting their hands at the bottom, campers could see the fake germs they contracted glow in the dark. They were then sent to the restroom and returned to the indicator to see how well they had washed. A few of the campers had to wash again, but all eventually earned a Scrubby Bear puppet, pamphlets and a pencil by properly washing their hands.

The hospital's handwashing program was formalized as a teaching module for the community during last summer's camp sessions. Since then, most Floyd County first graders have been offered the program. Teachers who would like the program to be given to their students, should contact Naewana Nickles at 285-3909 or Judy Hamm at 285-5181 to make arrangements.

The United States has more than 58,900 community public water supply systems.

If you have a few ferrets you may officially refer to them as a fesnyng.

Clark Named Neonatal Resuscitation Trainer

Barb Clark, RN, OB Head Nurse of Highlands Regional Medical Center was recently certified in Neonatal Resuscitation and has been named a Regional Trainer for the Neonatal Resuscitation Certification Program. The certification program is co-sponsored by the Division of Neonatology and the Improved Pregnancy Outcome Project (IPO) through the University of Kentucky.

As a regional trainer, Ms. Clark's responsibilities include coordinating programs to train hospital-based instructors throughout Highland's district. Highland's district includes hospitals located in Floyd, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Pike counties. She will instruct teams (consisting of a physician and a nurse) from the other institutions on the procedures of neonatal resuscitation. Each team must then pass a certification exam consisting of six written lessons and practical demonstrations administered by IPO. Once certified, the teams will train others, at their respective hospitals. The ultimate goal of this program is to develop highly skilled and certified neonatal resuscitation professionals who will be present during every delivery by 1990.

Clark is committed to reaching the goal and knows it will be a challenge. She maintains that, "adherence to specific guidelines can help to eliminate some of the unclear and inconsistent techniques used in newborn resuscitation. Babies are not small adults and require different treatments, medication dosages and individualized attention. Hopefully, through this program, improved and consistent neonatal resuscitation procedures will result in our area, upgrading infant healthcare."

For additional information, call 886-8511 or 789-6548.

PCC Enrollment Growth

Enrollment at Prestonsburg Community College is continuing its upward trend. During the 1988 Summer Session, 568 students registered for classes. This represents a 9% increase over the 1987 Summer Session enrollment of 523 students. The average enrollment for Summer Sessions from 1964 to 1986 was 102 students.
Due to constant growth in enrollment during the past few years, Dr. Henry A. Campbell, PCC President, anticipates a record enrollment for the coming fall semester. "With the expanded class offerings on campus plus additional classes at Inez, Belfry, and Pikeville, enrollment may reach 2300 students," stated Campbell. The College opened in the fall of 1964 with 324 students.
College officials are encouraging students who plan to enroll this fall to complete and submit applications now. By submitting applications now, the registration process will be less time consuming for the student. Information concerning PCC may be obtained by calling 886-3863.

Arthritis Foundation Offers Training Course

The Arthritis Foundation is the only national voluntary health organization working to find the causes, treatments, and cures for the more than 100 rheumatic diseases known as "arthritis". In addition to the research that the Arthritis Foundation sponsors, it also provides public education, professional education, and patient services.

One of the newer patient services in Kentucky is the arthritis self-help course. The course was developed and tested at the Stanford University Multipurpose Arthritis Center by Kate Lorig, Ph.D. and her collaborators, Halsted Holman, M.D., and James Fries, M.D. The Arthritis Self-Help Course consists of a 2 to 2½ hour class once a week for six consecutive weeks. Each course is usually taught by two trained lay or professional leaders, at least one of whom is usually a person with arthritis. This latter person provides a credible role model that is particularly effective in motivating desired changes in behavior; such as the use of pain-control techniques, the increased use of exercise, the use of relaxation and stress-management techniques, and the skills to use the correct information about the effects of medications, diet, and non-traditional treatments on arthritis.

The course is designed to improve patients self-care skills, so important in any chronic disease. While the course is not a form of medical therapy in itself, it is a valuable supplement to services of physicians and other members of the health care delivery system. Because the course is effective as it was developed, the Arthritis Foundation has established strict policies outlined in the Arthritis Foundation Arthritis Self-Help Course program guidelines and procedures manual. Persons who become trained and certified to teach the course to patients must agree to teach the course according to those guidelines. In addition, all patients who take the course must obtain a consent form signed by their physician so as to verify the diagnosis of arthritis and to make sure that the physician knows that the patient is taking the course.

The Arthritis Foundation is planning two trainings of leaders (for the persons who wish to volunteer to teach the course to patients) this year. The training workshops last two full days. The cost to leaders who take this training is a $38 materials fee. This includes the cost of the leaders' manual, program guidelines, and two textbooks. A training will be held in Lexington August 11 and 12 (Thursday and Friday), and one will be held in Hopkinsville September 13 and 14 (Tuesday and Wednesday.)

Anyone who is interested in receiving more information can do so by calling the Arthritis Foundation's Director of Programs and Information, Hilary Adele, in the Louisville office at 502-459-6460 or at 1-800-633-5335. Patients who would like free information about arthritis can call the Foundation at the same number and ask for the "Basic Facts" pamphlet, or the pamphlet on the specific kind of arthritis that they have.

Children can glue macaroni to cardboard. Makes great bumpy designs.

The Public Service Commission granted Elzie Neeley Gas Company a purchased gas adjustment to reflect a $104 decrease in wholesale costs from its supplier, Columbia Gas of Kentucky; the average annual decrease per residential customer is $1.18, effective 3/1/88. Elzie Neeley shall refund the excess revenues collected from 3/1/88 to the date the proposed rates are implemented. Ordered 6/30.

Farm Bureau President Warns of Safeguards

Greater emphasis on education is needed, but supporters of increased spending for schools should stay away from two important property tax safeguards, or risk an all-out fight in the legislature.

That warning comes from Kentucky Farm Bureau President Ray Mackey.

Mackey said a controversial court-ordered series of hearings on school funding has caused concern among farmers and other property owners who support educational improvements but fear that the drive for an improved public school system will result in steep increases in property taxes.

The two Farm Bureau-supported safeguards are the Rollback Law, enacted in 1965, and House Bill 44, the product of a special legislative session in 1979.

The Rollback Law reduced tax rates to match higher court ordered assessments, and House Bill 44 gave voters the option of requesting a referendum on local property tax rates which bring in revenues, excluding new growth, that are more than 4 percent above the previous year's total.

These two statutes are the cornerstone of Farm Bureau's long-standing efforts to hold down property taxes.

"Education reform is important, and we will support reasonable efforts in that direction," Mackey said. "However, we don't plan to stand idly by and allow these two important laws to be abolished. Reformers shouldn't expect to develop grandiose spending plans, and pay for them with higher property taxes."

Funding government programs through property taxes is "archaic and inappropriate in a modern economy," Mackey added. "Property taxes should be gradually phased downward in favor of broad-based sources of revenue."

Farm Bureau has strong pro-education policies, including support for improved teacher-student ratios, adequate funding for teachers' salaries and more career-oriented instruction.

Increased attention to dropout prevention and programs to reward outstanding teachers are also found in Farm Bureau's education platform. In addition, the group encourages a more efficient use of school funds and urges the General Assembly to continue its efforts to achieve that goal.

At the same time, the farm organization says alternate sources of financing, especially at the local level need to be considered. In the 1988 session of the General Assembly, Farm Bureau supported efforts to provide local taxing districts with new revenue-raising options.

"State-level financing of schools in Kentucky is not deficient, by comparison with nearby states," Mackey noted. "New sources of local funding should be considered first to pay for new or improved programs."

Mackey said Farm Bureau is concerned that the court ruling which led to the hearings might be an attempt to usurp legislative prerogatives. In that ruling, Franklin Circuit Judge Ray Corns said funding inequities among the state's school districts violate the constitution's mandate that the legislature provide "an efficient system of common schools."

Corns later appointed a 5-member commission headed by former Western Kentucky University President Dr. Kern Alexander, and ordered the group to develop appropriate remedies to correct the school system's deficiencies.

Mackey noted that Farm Bureau did not send a representative to testify before the commission appointed by Judge Corns but said Farm Bureau officials will likely take part in legislative hearings on education planned later in the summer.

Amy Needs Adopting

Pretty, petite Amy, born April 10, 1979, is a real charmer when you first meet her. She knows all the right things to say and do to win people over. This seems to be a front to cover Amy's doubts and insecurities.

Amy is on a normal level developmentally, intellectually, and physically. She does, at times, seem mature for her age. She loves attention and will do almost anything to receive it. Amy's attention span is limited. She tends to be compulsive, rather than creative in her expression, and tends to follow the straight and narrow or "safe" way of doing things.

Presently, Amy is in a group treatment facility to help her deal with past abuse and insecurities. These past experiences have caused Amy to have many emotional problems but she is making progress in dealing with them. She will need a family who can provide a structured environment, be willing to continue her counseling, and be realistic in her expectations. They will need to give her attention, time, and patience. Amy has two siblings, who have been placed for adoption. Amy has some anger at being separated from them and her new family must be willing for her to maintain contact.

For further information on the Special Needs Adoption Program and Amy please contact your local Dept. of Social Services at 886-8192 or call the Special Needs Adoption Program toll free at 1-800-432-9346.

Hot Weather Problems

Kentucky Veterinary Medical Association, Copyright 1988

Climatologists are predicting that the hot weather will continue throughout July in Kentucky, and also insufficient rainfall, which has caused severe drought conditions.

It might be well to keep in mind what this means to the animal population, both domestic and wild.

The lack of rainfall has already created a serious danger of forest fires, which destroy the living space of animals which inhabit them. Division of Forestry personnel indicate that there have been more than ten times the acreage burned at this time this year than in a normal year.

This means that animals not killed by the fire must migrate to other areas for living space, and in turn some areas will become overpopulated. The competition for a food supply, which is itself diminished by adverse growing conditions, and for a water supply which is already inadequate, creates even more problems.

One result might be that wildlife will become more bold and forage areas usually populated only by domestic animals. If you catch the fox in the henhouse, this year it might be a situation in which the fox is simply starved and looking for food wherever it can be found, not deliberately hunting livestock or threatening humans. Farmers with cattle in fields should keep a steady watch on water supplies. Some ponds will reach a dangerously low level, and some streams may dry up leaving only occasional pools here and there. As they become stagnant, they may also become poisoned as decaying aquatic life releases materials which might not be dangerous in normal volumes of water but which reach dangerous concentrations in low volumes and still water pools.

Some animals need water to cool their bodies. Swine, for example, have an inefficient cooling system and wallow in water to cool off.

Horse farmers are beginning to report incidents of cracked hooves brought about by the dry weather. Apparently the moisture is evaporating from the hooves, and the parched ground is also much harder than it normally is.

jogger called "the five Ws" in which they learn the order of priorities in emergency situations. The first "W" is wind. The second is water.

Drought conditions and hot weather can be quick teachers about the importance of water. Generally speaking, all animals need clean water to drink and some need water for purposes of cooling their bodies.

Your veterinarian can advise you on the minimum requirements for your animals, and perhaps suggest ways to care for the animals in emergency situations. The need for water simply does not diminish as the supply sometimes does.

KFTC Opposes Broad Form Deed

Dear Editor,
The members of the Kentuckians For The Commonwealth have been working hard to overcome a major economic barrier that has robbed the people of the coalfields of their fair share of the prosperity the rest of this nation has enjoyed. It's the broad form deed, a legal document that has locked up over 80 percent of the surface land from any development.

The effects on our economy by the broad form deed are devastating. When you own the surface but the mineral is owned by someone else with a broad form deed, you have no control over your own land. This renders the surface property next to valueless and stifles any development of surface property. Farmers won't invest in hillside pastures as they once did or bother to manage their timber resources. Business won't locate here without full control of the land.

Come Nov. 8, we will all have the opportunity to remove this last economic barrier and insure prosperity for our children but Kentuckians For The Commonwealth needs your help NOW! It takes many dollars to run ads on television and radio in other parts of Kentucky so voters will be informed. It costs money for ads in newspapers, it costs money for bumperstickers and yard signs. KFTC is a citizens organization depending on donations by the people to run this campaign. This is the last chance to abolish the broad form deed and free our people from the economic yoke of tyranny placed upon us. If you have land but not the mineral, it is to your advantage to give generously—with the abolition of the broad form deed your surface property value will increase dramatically. If you're not directly involved with this issue, it is still in your interest to help out since we can never attract businesses and jobs into this area until we can provide attractive public services that only a strong tax base can afford.

Please send checks or money orders to Kentuckians For The Commonwealth, Broad Form Deed Campaign, Box 864, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653. Thanks and please vote "yes" on Nov. 8 to amend the constitution to stop the abuses of the broad form deed.

ENTERTAIN INDIANA GUESTS

Visting Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Cleve Shepherd of Lancer Bottom last week were Mr. and Mrs. Roger Cook and daughters, Carrie and Kallie, of Wabash, Ind. Mrs. Cook last visited eastern Kentucky 18 years ago. While here, Mr. and Mrs. Cook and family were entertained to dinner at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gardis Ousley, of Risner and also with a cookout at the Spillway, Jenny Wiley State Park.

Information On Baldrige Family Is Sought

I am researching my grandmother's family tree. In going through an old trunk, I found a postcard of Garrett dated December 1914. My great-grandfather's name was George Baldrige; he was born in Offutt, Ky. (no longer on the map), and had family in Lackey.

In the trunk, too, was a letter from a Laura B. Baldrige of Lackey, dated 1917.

If you could help me any, I would appreciate it.

Sincerely,
Mrs. Elsie Green

Reader Seeking Floyd Electricians

Dear Editor,
Floyd County is the county and land of opportunity. They probably desperately need about 50 men who can do electrical, heating and plumbing work.

Did you ever try, as a homeowner, to get someone to make home calls for appliance repairs? Young men, become qualified and get a tremendous job in the electrical, heating and plumbing fields.

Still looking for an electrician,

Reader Compliments Floyd County Times

Dear Editor,
Enclosed (is a) check for another year of the best newspaper in Floyd County—or should I say, in the whole state of Kentucky. I suppose I say this because I lived in Floyd County for 25 years. Your wonderful paper is like getting a big letter from home.

Thank you,

Local Resident Responds To Wade Case

Dear Editor,
This concerns the article in your paper July 6 by Paul Wade about his denial of a jury trial.

I would like to welcome Mr. Wade to the reality of a system of protective politics, as his case certainly appears to be.

The United States Constitution states, in the 7th Amendment, "In suits at common law, where the value in controversy shall exceed $20, the right of trial by jury shall be preserved, and no fact tried by jury shall be otherwise re-examined in any court of the United States than according to the rules of the common law."

Ky. Constitution Section 7: "The ancient mode of trial by jury shall be held sacred, and the right thereof remains inviolate, subject to such modifications as may be authorized by this Constitution."

Section 14, Ky. Const.: "All courts shall be open, and every person for an injury done him in his lands, goods person or reputation, shall have remedy by due course of law, and right and justice administered without sale, denial or delay."

Section 26, Ky. Const.: "All laws contrary to the bill of rights or the Const. shall be void."

The court ruled in Louisville V. Kuhn, that a county government could not take any action that would abridge the individual liberties secured by the Kentucky and federal Constitutions. This could apply to any court of law.

The United States District Court, in civil action no. 85-1 (1987), ruled that a county and a fiscal court are persons within the meaning of 42 U.S.C. #1983.

The United States Supreme Court announced in Monell V. New York City Department of Social Services (1978), "Our analysis of the Legislative history of the Civil Rights Act of 1871 compels the conclusion that Congress did intend municipalities and other local governments units to be included among those persons to whom #1983 applies. Local Governing bodies, therefore can be sued directly under #1983 for monetary, declaratory, or injunctive relief.

Although, the number of court actions that have been taken against local governing bodies could take up dozens of pages, it is not surprising to me to hear of citizens being denied their constitutional rights by government bodies or hear politicians cry sovereign immunity.

In spite of our constitutions, our laws, and what our courts have ruled, as I open my files, the story that can be read from the documents and court ruling is not a very pretty story to read, especially in a country that preaches truth, justice, and freedom to the rest of the world.

The story from this file tells of corruption in government or it agencies from the lowest level to the top.

A story of elected officials using tax payers' money to establish a private business, of taking private property without due process of law; of paying themselves approximately $900 per hour for the duty they are required by law to perform; of hiring and paying close family members (and paying them a large salary in some cases so they will have more of the tax payers money in their bank account when they leave office).

Citizens of an entire county being relieved of their Constitutional right to vote for the county government to spend more money than their yearly budget would pay, with a state agency stamp of approval.

As space will not permit me to state all that is in these documents, I wish to say that these documents contain a story of a disease in our government today that is worse than cancer, and it is eating at the very heart of our freedom in this country; it is protective politics. The Attorney General's Office (the chief law enforcement agency) can take no action against a certain political group without permission from another politician.

Documentation of hundreds of thousands of dollars in illegal expenditures reported to a state agency; no action has been taken. A Circuit Judge rule that a private corporation formed by a fiscal court can search private property with a warrant.

Citizens are threatened by a fiscal court and an agency thereof with a fine of $500 or one year in jail or both if they do not patronize a certain private business.

Employees of a government agent lie and destroy personal and private records to protect the government; all these and more and nobody has gone to jail. Why?

East Point, Ky. 41216

Americans Fired Up Over Cookout

Outdoor cooking has become our new national pastime. According to the July 1988 Reader's Digest, Americans own almost 100 million backyard grills and light their fires more than one billion times yearly.

The modern bonanza began in 1951, when George Stephen decided he was tired of burning steaks over inefficient open braziers with fires that were often too hot. Employed by Weber Brothers Metal Works, Stephen joined two drum-size metal shapes to form a covered grill. This stopped flare-ups and reflected heat to aid in the cooking. The device was so successful that he bought Weber and began manufacturing "The Weber Kettle."

Kettle and covered cookers are the most popular, but water smokers, which approximate Southern barbecue smoked flavor, are gaining in use. Gas grills are catching on as well. Their grates are lined with reusable ceramic briquettes, or lava rocks—natural volcanic stones. These radiate heat from the gas jets and cook the food.

Some seasoned Southern barbecuers rely on wood. One manufacturer offers a stainless-steel smoker pit with a solid-gold emblem in the shape of Texas on the smoking pot. List price: $6,000, wood not included.

The favorite of most Americans, however, remains the charcoal briquette—the brainchild of Henry Ford. Unhappy with the huge piles of wood scraps outside a sawmill he operated for automobile production, Ford utilized a method for converting the wood chips to charcoal. His charcoal factory was unveiled in 1922, and with some modifications, this method of changing scrap wood into charcoal is still in use.

Every Fourth of July weekend Americans light 1.5 billion charcoal briquettes.

OPERATION READ

When you can't read, one written language is as meaningless as another.

There are now more than 400,000 functionally illiterate adults in Kentucky, adults who can't read a traffic sign, fill out a job application or read stories to their children. Their situation is desperate, but not hopeless.

Every day in Kentucky 400,000 adults are defeated by an enemy they don't understand: the written word.

They are "functionally illiterate," unable to read well enough to function in a world of words.

They cannot fill out job applications or understand labels on prescription bottles. They cannot read a letter or the Bible. They get by with help from friends and family.

"The limits illiteracy puts on a person's enjoyment of life can't be measured," said Connie Schwein of Lexington, the literacy coordinator for Operation Read Inc. and the Fayette County schools.

"They can't pick up the funny pappers and read 'The Far Size' or understand it. They can't read a book or an article in the newspaper about their neighbor. None of those things are even an option."

Illiteracy is considered one of America's gravest problems because it threatens economic competitiveness and undercuts democracy.

"We're now operating in a global market for brains," said Harry Caudill, a Whitesburg author and historian.

Although figures vary, experts estimate that one in five adults in the United States is illiterate. That amounts to about 27 million people.

Jonathan Kozol, the author of Illiterate America, says that 60 million Americans are illiterate or marginally literate.

However, the U.S. Census Bureau contends that 99.5 percent of Americans are literate.

"Literate," in that sense, can mean merely having the ability to write one's name, said Paul Siegel, the chief of the education branch of the Census Bureau. He added that the bureau had no idea how many millions were functionally illiterate.

A national literacy movement has emerged since Kozol's book was published in 1985. And Kentucky, with one of the highest illiteracy rates in the nation, is mobilizing literacy workers in every county.

The problem

Those workers face a long, uphill fight. Here's why.

- More than 1 million Kentuckians over the age of 25, or 46.9 percent, lack a high school diploma, according to the 1980 census. The national figure is 33.5 percent.

- Many of these adults need literacy instruction.

- 650,000 adult Kentuckians, or 31.3 percent, have not completed the eighth grade, according to the census. The national figure is 18.3 percent.

- 400,000 adult Kentuckians are functionally illiterate, meaning they read below a fourth or fifth grade level. Ten percent of the adults in the state did not go beyond the fifth grade.

These numbers do not reveal the personal tragedies or wasted potential of illiterate adults.

Although illiterates come from every class and race, the majority are poor.

Most often, illiterates are found in low-paying jobs, unemployment lines, soup kitchens and prisons. Low self-esteem and dependency are common traits.

"Their life choices are very limited. The best way I think you can define illiteracy is an absolute limitation of choices," said Patricia Gleich, executive director of the Kentucky Literacy Commission.

Many of them are too ashamed to admit that they cannot read. They do not seek out literacy programs.

Illiterates also have problems participating in a democracy.

An illiterate person cannot write to a congressman or analyze a candidate's platform.

Moreover, political corruption can easily flourish in communities with high illiteracy levels.

"Vote-buying and use of patronage thrive where there's limited employment opportunities and limited education. They feed on one another," said Robert Sexton of Lexington, the executive director of the Prichard Committee for Academic Excellence.

"You will see across the nation a correlation between the quality of government and the educational attainment of the citizen," Sexton said.

"In Kentucky we have low voter participation and a lot of acceptance of unacceptable political behavior, which grows partly from tradition... People often just don't demand very much from their elected officials."

Causes

There are many reasons why Kentuckians are undereducated.

A look at Kentucky history holds some clues.

Beginning in the 1760s, pioneers headed westward from Virginia and the Carolinas. It took four generations to cross "that almost impassible mountain" between Virginia and Kentucky, Caudill said.

And many of those who settled the Kentucky wilderness were illiterate.

In Kentucky's early years of statehood, schools were practically non-existent, mainly because of the state's rugged geography and sparse population.

Schools were not the first item on life's list for them. The first item was survival," Caudill said.

In addition, Kentucky was largely agricultural. Education was not seen as necessary.

"It didn't take a lot of education to drive a mule behind a plow or do logging work," said historian Thomas D. Clark of Lexington.

"If the child could come home from school and recite stories and read, they (the parents) felt resentful and inferior," Caudill said.

And when parents do not support education, their children are unlikely to cherish it, he said. That is why illiteracy is perpetuated from one generation to the next.

These same parents resist paying taxes for schools. And because Kentucky is such a poor state, anti-tax sentiment has been strong.

Over and over again, a governor would urge the legislature to strengthen the school revenue laws, but the legislature wouldn't act because they didn't feel most people could afford to pay higher taxes," said Caudill, a former state representative.

Only in the last few decades has Kentucky had decent roads in the mountains and a way for children to get to school more easily.

Even so, many never finished high school.

In 1940, only 16 percent of Kentucky adults had graduated from high school, compared with 24 percent nationwide.

"Now we're trying to go back and retrieve those generations that were lost to illiteracy," Sexton said. "We're starting with an incredible deficit."

High dropout rates also add thousands of undereducated people to the pool of functional illiterates. More than a third of Kentucky students who start ninth grade drop out before they finish high school.

Unless dramatic measures are taken to reduce dropout rates and educate adults, Kentucky is likely to rank last again in high school diplomas in the 1990 census, Sexton said.

In an age of fierce competition for jobs, no state wants to be last. "The modern economy requires adaptability and change," Sexton said, "and to adapt and change, you have to be literate."

Who's to blame?

Like many of society's problems, there is more than enough blame to go around when it comes to illiteracy.

Kentucky education leaders and historians say schools, parents, politicians and the public must share responsibility.

"I blame business for accepting it, newspapers for not bearing more responsibility, the public for accepting it, politicians for not being willing to stand up and be counted, administrators for not forcing the issues, and parents for not raising hell with the local school," said Kenneth Johnstone, the executive director of the Kentucky Association of School Administrators.

"Just about every part of our society has some blame. And it's going to take all of us to correct it."

Schools must stop promoting unqualified students, overemphasizing athletics and assigning teachers to classes outside their fields, Johnstone and others said.

Kentucky also has been hampered by unskilled governors, destructive regionalism, isolation, lack of a two-party system, low voter participation and weak legislatures, Sexton said.

"We're talking about cycles and traditions. Unemployment, poverty and illiteracy all go hand in hand," Sexton said.

Solutions

In the last two years, literacy councils have formed in almost every county in Kentucky. They exist on shoestring budgets, receiving $4,000 to $9,000 annually from the Kentucky Literacy Commission. Private fund raising supplements their budgets.

Interestingly, every county in Kentucky had a literacy council in 1917, said Harold Rose, a professor of education at Morehead State University.

"I guess the priorities of the state changed," he said.

Former Governor Martha Layne Collins had some success in improving education during her four years as governor, but those efforts must continue to be funded, even if it means raising taxes, he said.

"Somebody has to be willing to sacrifice their political career. I believe that's what it comes down to," he said.

In Kentucky during 1986-87, more than 5,000 volunteers donated $1 million worth of free-time as tutors and literacy helpers, Ms. Gleich said. That same year there were 4,874 adult reading students.

In addition, preschool programs to give disadvantaged students a fighting chance to succeed in school are imperative, education leaders said.

We're in a situation right now, if we don't do it (tackle illiteracy) in the next four to six years, we're going to leave this state high and dry," Clark, the historian said. "Other states are going to forge ahead in training people to take the jobs in this technological society."

"To me, personally, it's frightening... These folks who are functionally illiterate will be washed away. If we're last in 1990, we're going to be sweeping a lot of floors as janitors and washing a lot of dishes."

Pikeville Uses Big Bats, FC Errors To Win Pair at Allen

It didn't take long for Pikeville to get its offense in gear Wednesday, and it, along with Floyd County errors, led them to a double header sweep at Allen Park.

Pikeville, a much-improved team from earlier in the summer, banged out eight hits off three different Floyd County pitchers in the first, scoring 10 runs in the top half of the opening frame.

They added runs in the third, fifth, and seventh, and held off Floyd County to claim a 15-10 first game win.

SHORT SPORTS

Floyd County's 14-year-old Babe Ruth All-Star team will continue its quest for a state championship this weekend when they play in the state tournament at Louisville.

The team, consisting of players throughout the county, earned the right to participate in the state tourney by beating Hazard twice last week in Paintsville.

Hazard and Floyd County were the only two teams in the district tournament. Both games were decided by one run, and were in doubt until the final out was recorded in the last inning.

Floyd County plays its first game Saturday, taking on the winner of the Owensboro-Lexington Dixie contest. Lexington Dixie reached the finals last year in the 13-year-old category.

During his brilliant career, Tom Seaver set several records, and approached many more while taking the art of pitching a level higher.

Seaver, that perfectionist of mechanics, struck out over 200 hitters in 10 different seasons (a record), and won 311 games. He fanned more hitters than any righthanded pitcher, and appeared in 12 All-Star games.

Sunday afternoon, in the place it all started, Seaver's number, 41, was retired in Shea Stadium. He played 10 seasons for the New York Mets, winning two league championships with them.

Seaver, a three-time Cy Young award winner, pitched five years for Cincinnati, where he threw the only no-hit game of his career. He finished out his career with the Chicago White Sox.

Seaver was called "Tom Terrific" and "The Franchise," but he will be remembered as a team guy, a person who in the Miracle Mets year of 1969, started counting off a magic number for his Mets even though they were down big with little time left.

He will also be thought about for exploding fireworks in the Reds' dugout, saying he thought the needed waking up. Oh yea, and his fastball might bring back some memories too.

April showers bring May flowers, July heat brings professional football, and it all gets underway this week as the pre-season campaign kicks off.

For those gridiron fans who have waited since the Super Bowl for more football viewing, ABC will televise the Cincinnati Bengals-Los Angeles Rams matchup, Saturday beginning at 2:30.

Although viewers will see mostly rookies and free agents, LA and Cincinnati could provide enough offense to keep fans happy. The Bengals have been one of the NFL's highest scoring teams, and LA, with young quarterback Jim Everett, is no longer known as a boring team.

His record win in the Belmont Stakes may have paved the way, probably more so than the injury he suffered while training for the race.

Risen Star, winner of the Preakness and Belmont, has been retired by his owners, it was announced this past week, and now his donation to the business will be through stud purposes only.

While training for the Belmont, Risen Star injured a leg, and when its healing process was slow the horse was retired from running.

But his 14 and one-half length win may have played a part as well. Risen Star will long be remembered for that impressive race, and many will pay much in the hopes of having a colt which could possess the same abilities.

Many in the horse racing business are already saying Risen Star will be the most expensive and most sought after of all stud horses.

Is it really the manager's fault when a team loses, or does the change simply shake life back into the players? The Boston Red Sox management recently fired manager John McNamara, and all of a sudden the team went on an 11-game win streak under new manager Joe Morgan.

Morgan, was hired as interim manager, but Boston defeated Chicago 11-5 Saturday, making Morgan the first manager to ever win his first 10 games.

Red Sox management then took off the interim part, and Morgan is their manager for at least the remainder of the season.

In the second game Pikeville, despite getting only three hits, overcame a four-run deficit to record 9-7 win while also completing the double header sweep.

Floyd County committed four errors and starting pitcher Mark Tipton walked nine batters to give Pikeville's offensive effort a big boost.

FC, which had nine hits in the first game, jumped all over Pikeville starter Robbie Wright, scoring four times in the second inning to open up an early advantage, but defensive mistakes and Tipton's control problems led to a Pikeville comeback.

Tipton, who was riding a personal three-game winning streak, suffered the loss although he gave up only three hits in five and two-thirds innings.

He had been impressive in his last three outings, but control—something that plagued him earlier—caused problems again Wednesday. Four of the batters he walked eventually scored.

Floyd County, trying to avoid the sweep, scored four runs in the second, getting four hits in the inning off Wright.

Jeff Lovely led the successful frame off with a single, and after Kevin Webb walked, catcher Tony Kidd ripped a double that scored Lovely, giving FC its first run.

Ray Collins, moved from second to seventh in the lineup, followed with a two-run single and eventually scored Floyd County's fourth run when Mason Slone smacked a two-out single.

With a 4-0 lead and Tipton on the mound FC appeared to be in fine shape, but Pikeville said no, and quickly went about its way of making a comeback.

They scored three runs in the third and two in the fourth, tying the game at five. Pikeville scored an unearned run in the fifth and added three of the same kind in the sixth to take a 9-5 lead.

Floyd County, which had eight hits off Wright, mounted a last-inning rally, but it died two runs too early.

Mike McQuate, with two out, singled and scored on a double, and Webb added a run-scoring single, but Tony Kidd popped out to first, ending the threat and the game.

Tipton, 4-5, suffered the loss, giving up all nine runs, three earned, on three hits. He struck out three and walked nine while also hitting two batters. Webb threw the final inning and one-third, retiring all four he faced.

Robbie Wright worked all seven innings for Pikeville to get the win. The hard-throwing righthander gave up six earned runs on eight hits.

In the first game, Pikeville erupted against starting pitcher Mason Slone, scoring four runs on three hits off the little righthander.

Slone, 5-3, never recorded an out in losing his first game in his last five starts. But Nathan Shelton, who relieved the starter, didn't enjoy any more success. Shelton gave up five hits and six runs in his pitching stint that consisted of two-thirds of an inning. All total, Pikeville sent 14 men to the plate in the first inning, scoring 10 runs on eight hits.

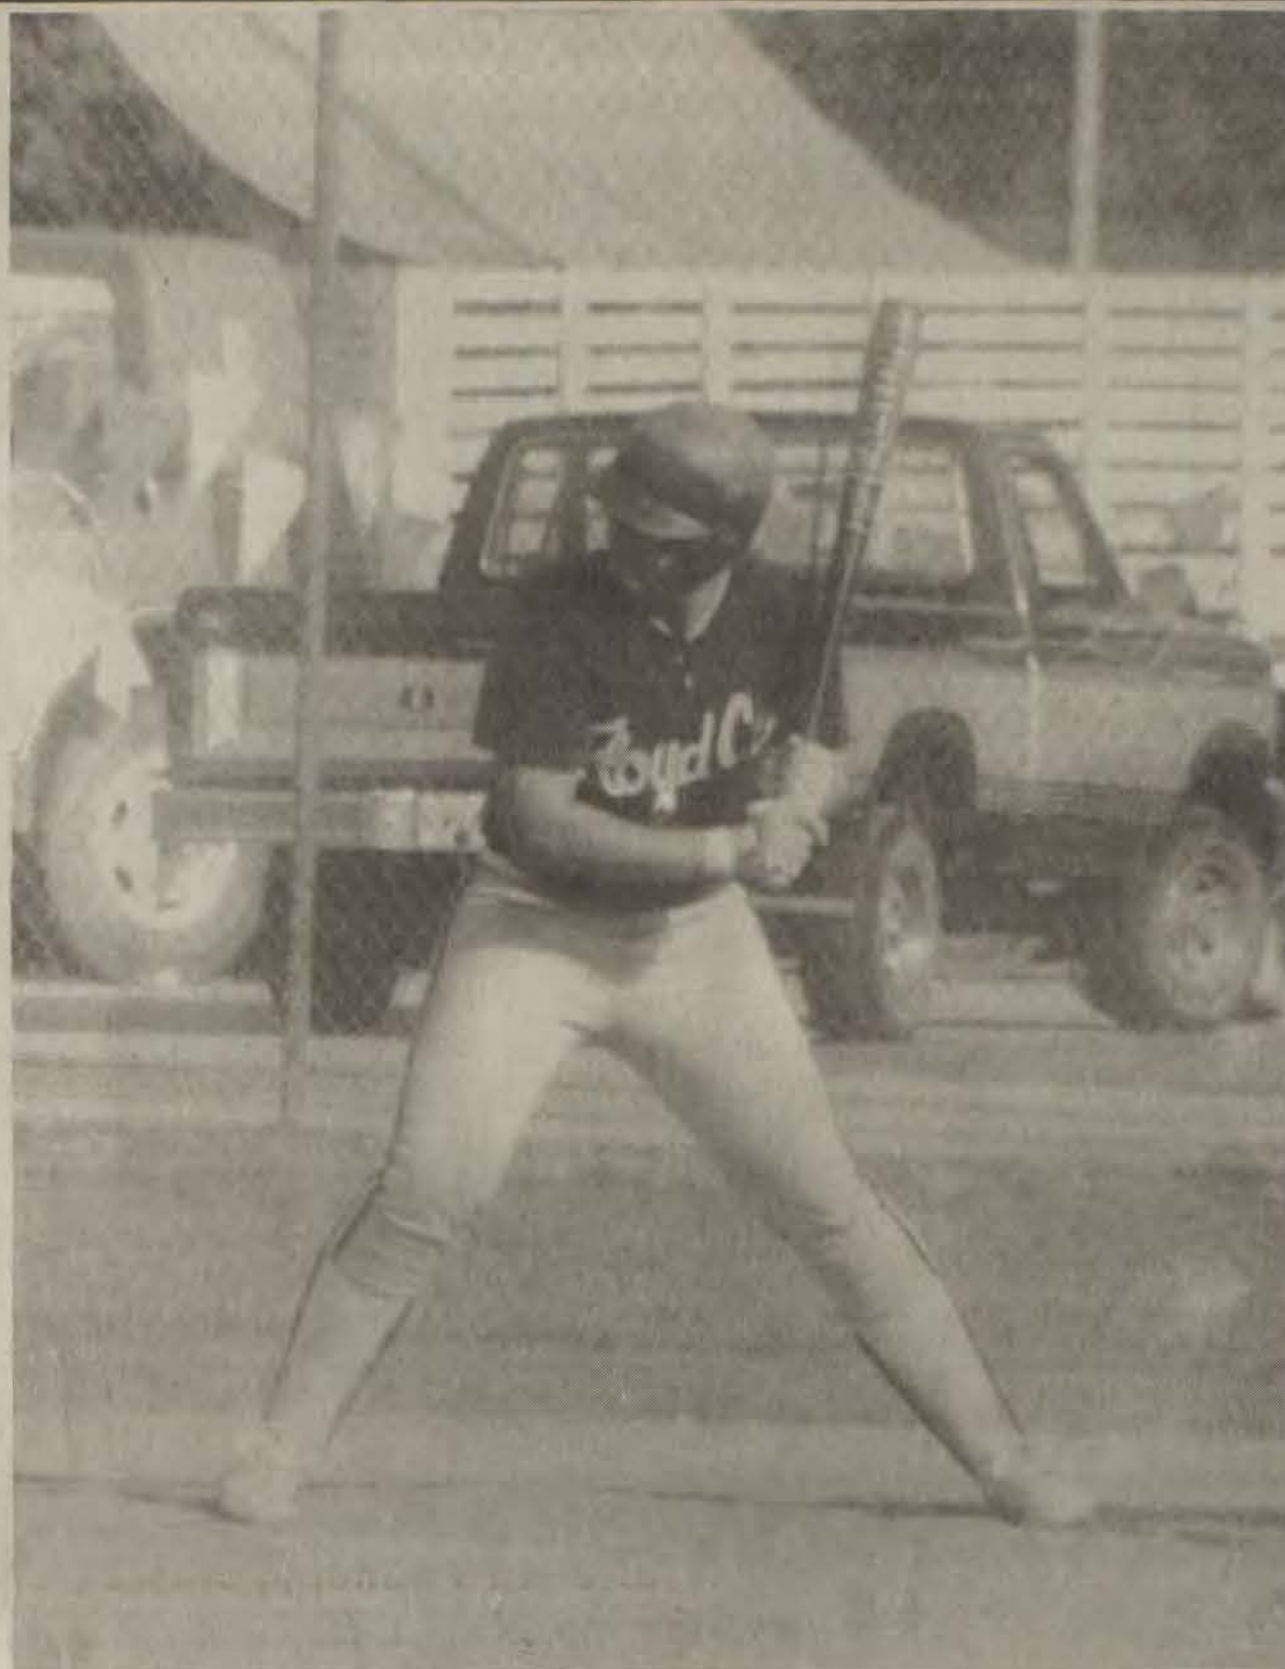

Floyd County came back with five runs of their own, two coming on Thomas Hall's first homerun of the season, but they could never catch Pikeville.

Brad Hall relieved Shelton in the first, and gave up only two earned runs on four hits the rest of the way. Hall also had two hits for Floyd County, a first inning single, and a double in the sixth. Shelton and Steve Miller also had two hits for FC.

Floyd County scored in the fifth, sixth, and seventh, but the big lead proved to be too much to overcome, especially after Pikeville added insurance runs in the fifth and seventh.

FC, which was rained out Thursday, and had its games canceled Saturday, will begin the American Legion baseball tournament this weekend against Pikeville.

The two teams make up the district field, and they will determine who advances to the sectional tourney by playing the best two out of three at Pikeville this weekend.

LOOKING OVER THE OFFERING: Floyd County catcher Kevin Webb looks over a pitch from Robbie Simpson during Wednesday's double header. Webb had three hits in the two games, including two doubles. Floyd County lost two games, though.

Local Athletes Part Of Growing Bluegrass Games

From its humble beginning in 1984 to an impressive number of athletes and events this year, the Bluegrass State Games is rapidly becoming one of the state's biggest attraction for amateur athletes.

The competition started by former Governor Martha Layne Collins, has more than tripled in events over the past three years, and participation has increased by more than 500 percent.

Only six events were offered in 1985, but this year athletes have a total of 21 different sports to choose from, and more than 10,000 athletes have already registered.

A total of 12 people have signed up to participate from Floyd County, five of whom won medals last year.

Brian Wallen, a sophomore to be at Allen Central High School, is scheduled to participate in track and field events when the games begin Friday and continue through Sunday. Wallen, who won a medal last summer in the discus throw, was a district champion in the same event this past school year.

Wallen's coach at Allen Central, Forrest Hughes, will also be competing in the Bluegrass State Games' track and field events. That is one example of the spirit and opportunity produced by the Olympic style games. Not only can player and coach go head-to-head, but the young and the young at heart can all enjoy the challenge, and maybe even with the agony, of competition.

"The philosophy behind the Bluegrass State Games is to provide Kentuckians of all ages and skill levels a wholesome avenue for positive development through sports and physical activity," said Marianne Blodgett, media coordinator for the games.

Blodgett also said that the games promote and develop local amateur athletes, and provide the amateur athletes an opportunity to showcase their talents and receive statewide recognition.

The games attract athletes from all across Kentucky, and this year people from 111 different counties have entered. Among those are three four-year-old members of the archery, swimming, and gymnastics worlds. Last year the athletes ranged in age from 3 to 94. This year the youngest to register was 4. The oldest is an 88-year-old lady who will participate in croquet.

Youth, though, comprises most of the field, and a total of 1,352 people under the age of 19 have signed up for this year's final competition which will be held in Lexington.

One of those young athletes who has taken advantage of the competition and exposure opportunity mentioned by Blodgett is Matt Crum, a 12-year-old from Prestonsburg. Crum, who will take part in the tennis events, won a medal last season in the 12 and under competition.

Timothy Howard, also from Prestonsburg, is another Floyd County resident who captured a medal in last year's games. Howard won his medal in B doubles tennis competition.

In some various individual competition, players are permitted to class themselves on their ability.

Bill Cox and Mark McGuire, both of Prestonsburg, are medal winners of a year ago who again will compete in archery this weekend.

Track and field has proven to be the most attractive sport in individual competition, having over 700 signing up for the various running, jumping, and throwing events.

Beth Laine and Sri Sundaram, both from Prestonsburg, are scheduled to compete in track and field, joining fellow Floyd Countians Wallen and Hughes in the popular category.

James Polk, archery, and Delois Howard, tennis, are also scheduled to participate in the fourth annual games. Both athletes are from Prestonsburg.

In its inaugural year the Bluegrass State Games offered six sports, including track and field, equestrian, tennis, bowling, soccer, and softball. Additional sports have been included each year, but the early ones continue to be the most popular.

Track and field attracted the most individual entrants this summer, and softball, having 153 teams join in, has produced the biggest team field.

The games are one of 26 such statewide events held throughout the nation. The idea of the state games began in New York. They now attract over 75,000 athletes each year.

BLUEGRASS STATE GAMES FACTS: Former Governor Martha Layne Collins started the Games in 1985. The idea was presented to her by 1984 Olympic kayaker Leslie Klein. In 1986 competitions for persons with disabilities were offered in five sports. This summer competitions will be offered to them in all sports. In 1988 a Seniors Games competition was added for persons 55 and older. 2,766 individuals and 356 teams are registered to participate in this year's event.

Second Season Begins As FC Prepares For District Play

After a season of preparation and play, Floyd County's American Legion baseball team is ready for its second season—officially known as tournament play.

Floyd County, which lost its last three games of the regular season, will play Pikeville this weekend to determine who serves as district representative in next week's sectional tournament, which can be hosted by the winner of the FC-Pikeville matchup.

This summer represented the first-ever season for county players on the American Legion level. They finished with a 14-19 record while playing against some of the best teams in Kentucky.

The tournament, though, gives Floyd County an opportunity to make up for a sub-par regular season, and it all gets underway Thursday at Pikeville.

The district tournament, which will consist of a best two out of three between Floyd County and Pikeville, will begin at 6 p.m. Thursday and continue at the same time Friday. If a third game is needed it will be played Saturday evening.

The two teams have met five times this year with Pikeville winning three of those, including a double header sweep of Floyd County Wednesday night at Allen Park. In the five games between the two teams Pikeville has scored 36 runs, and had 11 hits in a 15-10 win this past week.

"We're hitting about .320 as a team. We hit the ball real well, but our pitching is a little soft," Pikeville coach Dave Thomas said recently. "It should be a pretty good couple of games. We've both got pretty good teams."

Pikeville's strong offensive attack may have suffered a blow recently when Sammy Hamilton, the leading hitter, failed to attend games this past weekend. Hamilton, who hit .455 this year, was not certain for the tournament.

Thomas said he would start Robbie Simpson, a righthander who beat Floyd County in the first game of Wednesday's double header.

Simpson, 5-4, gave up eight hits and 10 runs, but Pikeville scored 15 runs to give him the victory. That was Simpson's only appearance against Floyd County during the season.

FC is expected to counter with lefthander Nathan Shelton, a talented southpaw that has suffered from a lack of support during the summer. Shelton finished with a 1-4 record, but owns below a 3.00 earned run average.

Shelton's lone victory came against Pikeville earlier in the summer. He also lost a game to Pikeville, giving up four runs in a 4-3 final decision. The slender southpaw is tough against lefthanded hitters, and Pikeville normally has at least five lefties in their starting lineup. But it takes two to capture the district title, and if Shelton is successful Floyd County will look to Mark Tipton to do the job on the mound Friday evening. Tipton, probably the most improved player of those who played on last year's Senior Babe Ruth team, has won three of his last four starts.

Tipton, a righthander, lost last Wednesday to Pikeville, but he failed to get any defensive support and hurt himself by walking nine batters and hitting two others. Pikeville had only three hits off him.

Tipton, 4-5, and Shelton have had a week's rest which should greatly help both pitchers. Pikeville, which played Sunday, is uncertain about who they will pitch Friday.

"We'll start Robbie Simpson the first game, but after that I'm really not sure," Thomas said of his pitching situation. "We'll probably go with Robbie Wright. He's got the best record of anybody. He's about 8-2."

Wright, a hard thrower, has won one of his two decisions against Floyd County this summer. They hit him hard in a 9-5 Floyd County win at Morehead, but Wright got revenge by beating FC 9-7 in the second game Wednesday.

If the tournament goes to a third game, it will be played Saturday. An exact time has not yet been determined.

Floyd County will be forced to play the tournament without second baseman Mason Slone, who leaves today and will not return until Saturday afternoon. Slone, FC's leadoff hitter, has been a valuable part of the team's offensive attack, and is also their winningest pitcher. Slone, 5-3, defeated Pikeville earlier in the year, but lost to them last week.

Thomas says his team's hitting ability is the strong point of Pikeville's attack, and mentioned pitching as their weak spot.

Although not dominate in either category, Floyd County has four reliable pitchers, and has shown signs lately of becoming a strong offensive club. Defense, though, has been their sore spot. When Floyd County has played strong defense they have won, but their record reflects the fact that they have struggled in the field.

Even though the games will be held at the W.H. Hambley Athletic Complex, a coin toss will be used to determine the home team. Each game will be nine innings long, and rules which govern the National League will be in effect.

Hunter Education Course Offered

A free hunter education course will be held July 28-30, from 6 a.m. to 9 p.m. at the McDowell High School gym.

The course, sponsored by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and Zadis D. Tackett, will include classroom instruction in firearm safety, sportsmanship, hunter ethics, first aid and outdoor survival.

The last session will feature actual range firing and practice with both firearms and archery equipment. Those successfully completing the course will receive safe hunter certificates valid in any of the 36 states where such certification is required.

1. A youth deer hunt at West Ky. Management Area.
2. All hunters between ages of 12-18 hunting at Ft. Campbell.
3. All deer hunters under age 21 who hunt at Ft. Knox.
4. Deer hunters born after January 1, 1970 who hunt at Bluegrass Army Ordnance.
5. All hunters born after January 1, 1969 who hunt at Land-Between-The-Lakes.

Attendance at all three sessions is required for certification. Any person ten (10) years of age or older who is interested in the shooting sports or wants to become a safe hunter is welcome to attend. For additional information, contact Zadis Tackett at 587-1249 or Terry Mullins at 377-6064.

Time Runs On As Cincinnati Struggles with Offense, LA

The clock keeps ticking on, passing time rapidly as the season speeds toward its conclusion. Los Angeles won't roll over and play dead. They keep winning despite injuries, opponents' challenges, and rumors of them folding.

It seems that if the Cincinnati Reds are to fulfill pre-season expectations and win the war in the NL West, they had better mount their strongest offensive...and right now!

But offense seems to be Cincinnati's biggest problem. Their inability to hit is what got them into their nearly-impossible position. The Reds trail division-leading LA by 10 and one-half games.

Cincinnati has, at times, shown flashes of brilliance. They put their total game together, the game that was supposed to lead them to the top of the West, move a game or two closer to LA, but then slide back down.

Saturday Cincy had an opportunity to reach the .500 mark. They trailed by eight and one-half. But by the time the Reds got back to the United States they were three games worse than even, and were 10 and one-half out of first.

One big reason was Cincinnati's inability to score runs. Unlike last season, this year the Reds have enjoyed strong starting pitching, but the offense is suffering.

The Reds, one of the league's top-hitting teams last year, have a higher team batting average than only the Philadelphia Phillies. Their pitching staff, with the addition of Jose Rijo and Danny Jackson, is one of the NL's most effective. Both these factors came together Saturday, and as a result Rijo may soon bring forth a non-support suit against Reds' hitters.

Rijo, a former member of the bullpen, gave up three hits and one run in eight innings and struck out 12 batters, but the Reds still lost the game, 1-0 to Montreal.

Bryan Smith silenced Cincinnati bats, but it's been a long time since they've said anything anyway. Smith held the Reds to two hits, both singles, during his seven innings of work. At one point, he retired 16 batters in a row. Cincinnati had only three hits in the game, and had a grand total of five base runners.

In the seventh Rijo, 11-5, gave up an opposite-field double to Hubie Brooks, who stole third and scored on a Tim Wallach single. Wallach had fouled off several pitches with two strikes, staying alive for the RBI opportunity.

Smith, 8-7, got the win while Tim Burke pitched a perfect ninth to record only his second save in the past two months.

Sunday Cincinnati did more of the same—or maybe they didn't. The Reds managed only six hits in a 5-3 loss to Montreal, and fell another game off the pace as LA defeated Pittsburgh 2-1.

The Expos helped Cincinnati score three runs in the second inning to take a 3-0 lead, but the Reds' bullpen again failed to hold the opposition.

A Tim Wallach throwing error figured in two Cincinnati runs, and rookie pitcher Jack Armstrong held the Expos to only one run before leaving the game in the seventh.

Armstrong, who struck out eight in six innings, left after issuing a walk to Craig Nettles to begin the seventh. Rob Dibble came in, and Hubie Brooks greeted him by blasting a game-tying homerun.

Montreal added another run off Dibble, and bought some insurance in the ninth with a homerun to assure Pasquel Perez of his seventh win.

The Reds, 47-50 heading into last night's double header in Atlanta, ended their season series with Montreal at 5-7.

Sunday's loss also made the end of the season seem much closer. Cincinnati now has only 63 games left to make up 10 and a half on the Dodgers.

But starting Monday they will have the opportunity to determine their own fate, and LA's as well. The Reds open a three-game series with the division leading Dodgers then.

Now, though, they have to take care of business in Atlanta where they will play tonight and tomorrow. Tonight's game is set to begin at 7:40 with Thursday's contest scheduled to get underway at 5:40.

After finishing up with the Braves, Cincinnati travels on to the West Coast for a three-game weekend series with San Diego.

Notes: Going into Sunday's game Cincinnati had a .244 team batting average. Philadelphia, the NL's worst, was hitting .237...The Reds' team ERA is 3.52, fourth best in the league...The team placed pitcher Ron Robinson on the 15-day disabled list when he complained with a sore elbow. Robinson had been on the DL since June 25, and was just activated last week. He has experienced arm problems all season.

JAY WILLS, the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Chester Patton of Cow Creek and Belvie Wills of Auxier Road, received top honors at the Wake Forest University Basketball Camp this summer. He received the Freethrow Award, the Hotshot Award and was the leading scorer during the camp. Wills, left, is shown with Anthony Jenkins of the Clemson University Tigers.

SPORTS SHORTS

The sparkling blue water of Puget Sound and the landmark Seattle Space Needle will provide a dramatic backdrop for the upcoming 1990 Goodwill Games.

The Games will bring together 2,500 of the world's best athletes from more than 50 countries for 17 days of competition. This multi-sport invitational will take place July 20 through August 5 and challenge athletes in track & field, gymnastics, swimming, boxing, basketball and 17 other major amateur sports.

Invitations to compete in the 1990 Goodwill Games will be extended to the top eight athletes and teams in each sport by the U.S. Governing Bodies based on performances at the 1988 Olympic Games, World Championships and ongoing international competitions.

Among the world-class facilities in the Seattle-Tacoma area to be used for the 1990 Games are the Kingdome, Seattle Center Coliseum and Arena, Husky Stadium and the Tacoma Dome. According to Bob Walsh, president of the Seattle Organizing Committee (SOC), "The 1962 World's Fair put Seattle and the Puget Sound area on the map. The 1990 Goodwill Games will showcase them to the world."

Earns Belt

Jonathan Russell Smith, son of Russell and Sue Smith, of Banner, earned his yellow belt in shao-lin karate recently. The test was given by Master Sin The'. Smith's karate instructor is Francis Hunter.

13s Eliminated From Sectional

After winning the district tournament last week at Allen Park, the 13-year-old Floyd County Babe Ruth All-Stars were eliminated from tournament play Monday.

The local All-Stars captured the district title last Tuesday night, but lost to Northern Lexington 10-5 in their first sectional tournament game, Thursday night, at Nicholas County.

Floyd County defeated Belfry, earning their first tournament win, but in a game that was suspended from Sunday, lost 10-9 to Montgomery County Monday.

The 13-year old All-Stars lead 6-4 Sunday, but the game was suspended due to darkness. Monday Montgomery County rallied to win the contest while eliminating Floyd County from the double elimination event.

Butterfly Migrants

For much of the better part of two years, the monarch butterflies for which we have planted so carefully have not shown up in healthy numbers. But beginning in mid-August, many female monarchs placed eggs on our milkweeds. Judging by the numbers of fresh adults now gliding, nancing and feeding throughout our meadow, we could not have been the only ones to note a turn-around in this beautiful butterfly's fortunes.

Small white native asters are the preferred food for these southward bound butterflies at this late date. Perhaps one in every thousand that I view will exit the United States alive. Fewer still will arrive safely at their overwintering ground in the Sierra Madre de Mexico. Late in the Mexican mountain winter, those healthy monarchs that remain begin their return flight to our country. With luck, good weather conditions, and a healthy continuous milkweed supply, the monarchs will return again and repopulate much of the United States.

truth of this matter.

Many kinds of butterflies move north with the spring and summer and never return to their place of birth. They mate farther and farther north with each brief generation and are limited in their conquest of northern lands only by the lack of specific foods for their caterpillars and by the return of killing, cold weather. Some of our best known and most attractive butterflies are only seasonal visitors. Their lives parallel those of the many birds that race north out of Central and South America each spring. Buckeyes, red admirals, painted ladies, and variegated fritillaries are among the many species that follow this route. Despite their death in the north, they return from the south each summer.

Other southern emigrants may be truly rare in your locale and are termed, somewhat negatively, vagrants. In the western suburbs of Washington, D.C., where we make our home, over ten beautiful southern butterflies could possibly show up in my yard. As with very uncommon native species, I try to plant their favorite foods.

Your chances of seeing unusual butterflies are greatly enhanced by planting lures of their favorite nectar foods and the often very localized native plants their caterpillars need as food. In this way, I'm providing a safe harbor from development for uncommon native plant species while maximizing my chances of adding more species of butterflies to the list of those that have visited my Backyard Wildlife Habitat.

Six From Floyd Earn Degrees

Six Floyd County residents were among the more than 1,800 students receiving degrees from Eastern Kentucky University at the annual spring commencement exercises.

Eastern's 81st spring commencement, held May 8, honored 1,151 May degree candidates and 651 students who completed their degree programs in December. (The university does not hold formal December graduation ceremonies.)

Local graduates include: James William Adams, a bachelor's degree in English; John B. Derossett, a bachelor's degree in health education; Melissa C. Johnson, a bachelor's degree in elementary education; Brian Doyle Jones, a bachelor's degree in history; Melissa A. Reynolds, a master's degree in community nutrition; and Sammie Wade Wells, bachelor's degree in political science.

Of the candidates for degrees in May and December, 185 were associate degrees, 1,421 were bachelor's degrees, and 196 were master's degrees.

Receptions sponsored by ECU's nine colleges honored graduates at various locations across the campus. The graduates join nearly 62,000 ECU alumni in Kentucky, the region, and across the United States.

Kentucky Gov. Wallace Wilkinson gave the commencement address and received an honorary doctor of laws degree from ECU.

Eastern Kentucky University at Richmond is a comprehensive regional university serving more than 13,000 students with a diversity of programs in its nine colleges and the graduate school.

During the Middle Ages, the year began at various dates in different times and places. In England it was not until 1751 that January was restored to its place as first month, as it had been during the Roman era.

The Sporting Times

It has been said before, but this one is certainly worth repeating. The talk of the college basketball town this past week proved to be the inability of Shawn Kemp and Sean Woods to qualify for their initial year of basketball.

A couple years ago the NCAA passed what is recognized as Proposition 48, which sets certain academic guidelines for incoming college freshmen athletes.

One of those guidelines included a set score on entrance exams. This proved to be the final straw that broke the eligibility backs of Kemp and Woods.

Now comes the part worth repeating. It seems that the University of Kentucky had landed the top recruiting crop of any school in the nation. That's what most of the experts were saying. And when the Wildcats got greedy, they held out for even more nationally known talent.

The one person the 'Cats made a habit of ignoring was Kentucky's Mr. Basketball himself, Ritchie Farmer.

Eddie Sutton, after saving his final scholarship for a possible West Coast signee, finally made the trip to Clay County to sign Farmer. But little did he know at the time that the Manchester hero would be his most valuable catch.

With the Kemp-Woods situation, and the controversy surrounding Chris Mills, a recruit from Southern California, Farmer may be the only freshman Kentucky will have for the 1988-89 season.

Odd, isn't it, that the one they didn't want to sign will be the only one they will have available?

Kemp, regarded by some as the best prospect of all incoming freshmen, and Woods both failed to reach the required level on the entrance tests on their last chance. The sad news came this past week.

The 6'10" Kemp was supposed to fit right in to the UK scheme of things. His shot-blocking ability was supposed to fill a defensive hole in the middle, and his scoring ability was supposed to fill the offensive hole on the inside that has plagued the Wildcats since the graduation of Kenny Walker. Although he is considered a forward, Kemp has the ability to play anywhere on the court, something the 'K program needed.

The blow of losing Kemp for his freshman season was tough for UK basketball fans to swallow, but recent reports of him going across the waters to play professional ball makes for even a bigger lump.

Woods, another Indiana prep star, was expected to step in and take over where Ed Davender left off, maybe even a level above the former 'Cat point guard's performance.

Mills is still undecided. Apparently he is in the clear, but the UK program could suffer. This situation needs no further explanation than it has already received, but the 6'7" swingman from Los Angeles could certainly help the program if he isn't denied a chance to play at UK.

Oh, wasn't this some kind of class? It could even rival the other great one. You remember, Jack Givins, Rick Robey, James Lee, and Mike Phillips. Well, maybe not, but this could have been a good one.

Instead of adding the key ingredients for a winning 1988-89 chemistry, Kentucky will go with what they had instead of what they could have had.

But don't forget who they are adding. Yeah, that teenage legend from the mountains. The Mr. Basketball that was almost allowed to get away.

Ritchie Farmer could very well be the only freshman UK will have in its stable next season, and he was the last player they signed.

It has all been said before about the incredible talents and success of Farmer. And a whole big bunch of it has been said right here. But for all the Shawn Kemp fans in the world, remember that it isn't always the best who produce the most.

For example, and it's kind of a neat one, Kemp, with all his awesome talent and physical size, will not score a point this season. Farmer will probably be starting before the SEC campaign begins.

And when you mention starting, a whole new conversation crops up. The 'Cats have no true center. Of course, they wouldn't have even with Kemp playing. But how about Mike Scott? He's soft, inexperienced and slow, but he is the logical choice.

The forward spot appears to be the strongest point of the UK pre-season attack. LeRon Ellis will be as good as they come, as long as he's permitted to play the power forward spot.

Then there is Eric Manuel, a winner in every sense of the word. He shoots well, he handles the basketball effectively, and he rarely makes mistakes. Look for this talented sophomore to lead Kentucky in more ways than just statistics.

Farmer, although only a freshman, could also evolve as a leader for what will be a young UK squad. He is intelligent, physically strong, and talented. Farmer is likely to fill the void created by the departure of Rex Chapman. Maybe he can't in talent (yet) but he can in spirit, maybe not in stats, but certainly in the fans' hearts.

Derrick Miller and Sean Sutton will probably battle for the other guard spot, depending on which way Eddie Sutton decides to go. Guys like John Pelphey, Deron Feldhous, and Johathan Davis will fill reserve roles, along with Reggie Hanson.

It won't be an NCAA championship contender, but it will be the type team capable of stealing hearts, and earning praise. It will be the type team capable of bringing respect back to an injured program.

Rupp's Runts? Nah. The Fabulous Five? Probably not. The Guys Who Did? Maybe, just maybe.

Psychology

If you're a very active person, it might be a good idea to learn the art of loafing. Psychologists say that even a few minutes a day of doing nothing may help you tackle your work with renewed enthusiasm. A refreshing cup of hot tea may be just the right accompaniment for this type of break. By slowing down just a bit, you'll be surprised how you'll suddenly find the time to more fully enjoy your family relationships.

Harold Braves Undefeated

In Memory of My Mother, Mertice Reed

It has been almost two years now, Mom, since you passed away, yet it seems as if it was only yesterday. The old home place just isn't the same now that you're gone. When I go home now I feel so all alone. Mom, I've known all my life through I could always rely on you. No reason I loved you more, than anyone will ever know. No mother anywhere could be as precious as you were to me. There sits your chair, so empty, by the door. I can't hear your footsteps coming to greet me anymore. Mom, I always knew you would listen and always understand. If I needed your help you would lend a helping hand.

Written by her daughter, Mae (Reed) Bailey. Sadly missed by her daughters, Mae, Ina and Freda.

In Memory Of Douglas Hamilton

It's been a year since we've seen your smiling face or heard your laugh, but there isn't a day that goes by that we don't think of you and mention your name to remember the things that you said or did. Even though we see you in our dreams and hear you in our hearts, it's not the same. Our lives have changed so much that we can only live from day to day. We know that you are living in a better place and can only hope and pray that some day the Lord will take our hand, and we all can be a family once again in that Holy Land. We miss you more each passing day. We love you, Doug.

Sadly missed by your Family & Friends

SOAP BEAN

Helfer and Newman make over their house

By Marie Michaels

We caught up with Britt Helfer, who plays Lily Slater on "Loving," in New York City recently, and she excitedly told us that she and her husband, Robert Newman (who plays Josh Lewis on "Guiding Light"), have been redecorating their new home in Yonkers, N.Y., an hour from New York City. "The previous owners painted some of the rooms the most hideous colors imaginable," Helfer said. "So Bob and I are redoing the place."

Britt Helfer

Now that the moving crates are unpacked, Helfer, who lived in New York until they purchased the house in Yonkers, has planted a garden and is anxious to harvest her first fruits and vegetables. "I'm really getting into being a suburban homeowner!" she giggled.

• Former "Loving" cast member John O'Hurley, who played the dual role of Jonathan Matalaine and Keith Lane in 1985 and 1986, recently returned to New York from his home in California to perform in a production of "A Little Night Music." The project fell through, though, and O'Hurley soon headed back West - but not before catching up with some of his former "Loving" castmates at the soap's fifth-anniversary party. O'Hurley is still linked with Louan Gideon, the last actress to play Liza Sentell on "Search for Tomorrow."

• Former "Days of Our Lives" star Gloria Loring (she played Liz Curtis) married screenwriter Chris Beaumont last month in the garden of her Sherman Oaks, Calif., home. In attendance were Robin and Brennan, Loring's two sons from her marriage to "Growing Pains" star Alan Thicke.

• Ilene Kristen, who plays Delia Crane on "Ryan's Hope," recently received a Rudin Community Service Award for establishing a program that enables homeless children to learn about music, dance, art and gymnastics.

• Daytime newcomer Leo V. Finnie is settling into "All My Children," playing Det. Saunders. Finnie appeared in the films "Easy Money" (1983) and "Batteries Not Included" (1987) and played a minor role on "One Life to Live." Although Finnie's isn't a contract role, we're told that he'll appear on the soap for several months as Saunders investigates Jesse Hubbard's death.

ASK TONI

Mary Tyler Moore is back in new CBS series

By Toni Reinhold

Mary Tyler Moore has been my favorite actress ever since she played Laura Petrie on "The Dick Van Dyke Show" in the '60s. How does she spell her last name - as one word or two? - N.E., Canon City, Colo.

Mary Tyler Moore

Moore spells her name without a hyphen, since Tyler is her middle name. You'll be happy to know that she will return to prime time this fall in a new CBS series. She will play a divorced woman who starts up a relationship with a widowed man (played by Edward J. Moore, no relation) whom she meets in a Chinese restaurant.

Whatever happened to Olivia Newton-John? Is she ever going to make another album? Where can I write to her? - M.A.J., Hephzibah, Ga.

Newton-John is starring in the HBO special "Olivia Newton-John in Australia," which airs this Monday, Aug. 1, and Thursday, Aug. 4. And on Aug. 15, MCA will release "The Rumour," her first new album since "Soul Kiss," which came out in 1985. Write to her in care of MCA, 1755 Broadway, New York, NY 10019.

Where and when was Sean Lennon born? - D.R.P., Williamsport, Pa.

Sean Ono Lennon, the only son of the late John Lennon and Yoko Ono (Yoko had had several miscarriages), was born in New York on Oct. 9, 1975. Sean's stepbrother, John Charles Julian Lennon, was born in 1963 to Lennon and his first wife, Cynthia Powell.

What was the title of the Golden Age TV series that starred Dick Van Patten? Was it "I Remember Mama"? - T.A.E., Colorado Springs, Colo.

The series was called "Mama," and aired from July 1949 to 1956 on CBS. Peggy Wood starred as "Mama" Marta Hansen, head of a family of Norwegian immigrants living in San Francisco, circa 1900. Van Patten played Nels, one of the three Hansen children (Katrin and Dagmar were the others). The series was based on the book "Mama's Bank Account," which was also adapted for a play in 1944 and a film in 1948. Both of those productions were called "I Remember Mama."

HABITVIEW

Old and new share the stage on 'New Tradition'

By Denise Gorga

These days, country music is no longer best exemplified by fringed outfits, onstage foot-stomping and singles like "Drop Kick Me Jesus Through the Goal Post of Life." A new generation of musicians has revitalized the genre, as is evident on "Cinemax Sessions: Country Music - A New Tradition" which airs Thursday, Aug. 4.

For Nashville neophytes, here's a partial list of stars who appear on the one-hour special:

The Judds have made their spunky delivery and traditional values a Grammy-winning combination. Look for mother Naomi, 42, in a skin-tight electric blue number. Daughter Wynonna sports an unappealing Boy George-ish hairdo and outfit, but her vocals are flawless.

Lang and Cash

Rosanne Cash, Johnny Cash's daughter, is especially intense and energetic, performing "My Baby Thinks He's a Train" and "No Memories Hangin' Round" (with her husband, songwriter Rodney Crowell).

K.D. Lang, a native of Saskatchewan, is sometimes disconcerting to watch. Once you ascertain the gender of this singer with the unisex clothes and closely cropped hair, her performance is mesmerizing. Check out her "You Ain't Woman Enough to Take My Man" duet with Cash.

Carl Perkins' songwriting and style influenced the Beatles, Dave Edmunds, the Stray Cats, among others. He joins the Judds for a soulful "Blues Stay Away from Me" and performs his classic "Honey Don't," which he wrote.

Bill Monroe, known as "the father of bluegrass," is a 50-year Nashville veteran. He leads the ensemble in a rendition of his "Blue Moon of Kentucky," a hit for Elvis Presley.

The New Grass Revival is a young and energetic outfit, like a country-music Wham! It's interesting to see them alongside old-timers like Monroe.

Elvis? The King's presence is felt in this special, from Monroe's "Blue Moon" to Perkins' "Blue Suede Shoes" to the Judds' "Don't Be Cruel." One guitarist even wears an Elvis T-shirt.

While Elvis has an excuse for missing this special, one Nashville denizen doesn't: Randy Travis, whose soulful ballads have made him the best representative of country's new tradition.

SLAP MAXWELL

Slap (Dabney Coleman) recognizes a prospective buyer of the Ledger as a con artist who needs to be punched out, on ABC's "The Slap" Maxwell Story," airing WEDNESDAY, AUG. 3. (Rebroadcast)

IN THIS WEEK

'People on TV,' 'Killing Fields' top the week

By Wendy Wallace

Want to learn the latest about Princess Diana and Duchess of York Sarah Ferguson? About the battle facing Ryan White, a 16-year-old hemophiliac afflicted with AIDS? Or about Belinda Carlisle's concert tour?

On Thursday, Aug. 4, CBS airs People Magazine on TV, a one-hour special based on People magazine. The special, hosted by Sandy Hill, features such familiar People departments as "Picks & Pans," "Chatter," "Couples" and "Star Tracks."

Also airing this week: NBC presents the first network TV airing of The Killing Fields (1984) on Sunday, July 31.

Sam Waterston

Sam Waterston stars as Sydney Schanberg, an idealistic New York Times reporter stationed in Cambodia - after the U.S. pullout - who seeks to protect his translator, Dith Pran (Haing S. Ngor), from invading North Vietnamese troops. Ngor won an Oscar as Best Supporting Actor for his performance.

Johnnie Mae Gibson: FBI,

a CBS movie airing Tuesday, Aug. 2, dramatizes the true story of one of the first black woman FBI agents. Lynn Whitfield stars as Gibson, who overcame the poverty of her childhood and the opposition of her family to enter the world of crime-fighting.

The true test of Gibson's ability and determination comes during an undercover operation that aims to expose a multimillion-dollar gun-smuggling scheme. In a dramatic final encounter, she is forced to learn painful lessons about herself.

His Mistress, a 1984 TV movie airing Monday, Aug. 1 on NBC, stars Robert Urich as a company president who has an affair with an ambitious young junior executive (Julianne Phillips), creating a love triangle with his wife (Cynthia Sikes).

On Sunday, July 31, the lives and careers of father-and-son surgeons (Edward Asner and Gary Cole) are nearly destroyed by alcoholism and drug dependence in the CBS movie Vital Signs. Barbara Barrie and Kate McNeil also star.

And there's a double dose of Tim Matheson on ABC this week. On Monday, Aug. 1, Matheson and Jane Seymour play lovers whose affair is marred by only one problem - she won't leave her husband - in the 1985 TV movie Obsessed with a Married Woman. And on Thursday, Aug. 4, he and Meg Tilly star in Impulse (1984), playing a young couple trapped in a town whose residents turn criminal.

KGS Releases Reports On Gas Production In Eastern Kentucky

The Kentucky Geological Survey at the University of Kentucky has released two new reports on natural gas production from the Devonian shale in eastern Kentucky.

The first report covers Whitley, Knox, Bell and Harlan counties, while the second includes Breathitt, Clay, Johnson, Leslie, Magoffin, Perry and Wolfe counties. Both reports are part of a regional study funded by the Gas Research Institute, according to Steve Baron, UK spokesman.

The primary objective of the study is to determine the geologic factors that control gas production from the Devonian shale of eastern Kentucky. These rocks, which were deposited about 350 to 410 million years ago, have been a major source of gas since the early 1900s. They are sometimes referred to as "oil shales."

The project also seeks to create a comprehensive public data base of well information. Information on 9,158 eastern Kentucky gas wells has been entered into the KGS computer.

The new reports contain information on gas exploration, comparisons of different well-stimulation techniques, and a series of detailed maps showing geology and well locations.

The reports may be ordered from: Kentucky Geological Survey, Publication Sales, 228 Mining and Mineral Resources Building, University of Kentucky, Lexington, Ky. 40506.
