Police Training To Be Held Here

Prestonsburg's police officers are heading back to school this week, but still have the comforts of home. About 20 police officers from

Floyd, Pike, Perry and Johnson counties are attending the Bureau of Police Training Academy this week at Jenny Wiley State Park, according to Prestonsburg Police Chief Dickie Campbell. About eight from the Prestonsburg force are attending

The training school is located at various places around the state each year. The last time it was in Prestonsburg was in 1984, Campbell

After a police officer graduates from the academy in Richmond, he or she must have 40 hours of continuing education a year to qualify for incentive pay, said Campbell. The officers will spend eight hours a day doing classwork, which includes practicing patrol skills, procedures and legal update lectures on liabilities, post trauma accidents and building searches, he said.

"If the program doesn't come here, we go to Richmond," he said. 'But it is better to be able to go to the house to study than to study in Richmond.

Susanne Smith:

16-Month-Old Child Suffers Heart Defects

Sixteen-month-old Susanne Smith is a happy, sweet and beautiful baby girl. She happily tasted her grandmother's fried apple pies, and she shyly grinned as her picture was taken.

She has a lot of heart-only hers does not work all that well.

Susanne was born with multiple heart defects and is getting ready for her fourth operation to correct them. According to Kosair Children's Hospital in Louisville, Susanne is "the only baby alive with as many heart defects," Susanne's mother, Janie Smith, said.

Her heart defects detected so far are a pinched aorta, which was surgically one missing heart value, which the heart itself compensated for by forming two holes; and her aortic and plumonary arteries are switched.

Ron and Janie Smith are courageous parents who have been through more than their share of troubles. They discussed Susanne's problems openly and very optimistically.

"I was scared to have a baby, but it is a joy to have her and to still have Susanne's father, Ron Smith

Janie and Pikeville pediatric cardiologist J.P. Fairchild are locally forming "Wee Hearts," a support group for parents who have children with heart defects. She said she is still going to form the group even if Susanne dees not survive her operation.

The surgery will be done Sept. 6 at Kosair. It is called a Fontaine procedure.

An artery which supplies blood from the heart to the rest of the body is shutting off, Smith said. During the surgery two shunts will be placed in the vessel to bypass the defect.

Susanne's doctor, Dr. Costantine Mayroudis, one of only four pediatric cardiologists in Kentucky, will complete the procedure in one or two

P'burg High Majorettes Earn 1st Place In State

It is not every group that can say it accomplished its main goal early in the year, but after Thursday afternoon last week, the Prestonsburg High School Majorettes can say just that.

The squad won the Kentucky State Fair twirling competition, held at Cardinal Stadium in Louisville. Millard High School took second prize honors and McDowell High School placed

"I was excited I cried - I was so happy," exclaimed squad member Leslie Roberts.

'Nobody thought we could do it," Roberts said about winning the competition. Last year the group placed second in the twirling competition.

Preparation for the competition began in May and continued through the summer, with the squad practicing a total of six hours three times a week squad member Angie McKenzie said.

We knew more about (the competition)," said squad co-captain Katie Harmon. "We were more experienced and practiced longer.

The squad is also part of the Prestonsburg High School Marching Band, and it has been harder for them to perfect their field show because they have concentrated more on the state fair this year, Harmon said.

'It's great to accomplish this because we have been twirling a long time," McKenzie said.

Power Outage Covers Large Area; P'burg Electricity Restored In Hour

A power outage extending from Prestonsburg to Falcon in Johnson County occurred late Tuesday afternoon, Aug. 23, around 4:20 p.m., during a heavy rain storm

Charles Perry, a dispatcher with the Kentucky Power Company in Pikeville, said the blackout was caused by transmission line trouble; exactly where the trouble originated won't be known until after transmission lines are patrolled Wednesday.

Perry said RECC customers, possibly around the Bull Creek area, were also without electricity because that power is supplied by Kentucky Power.

Members of the Prestonsburg Police Department were kept busy during the outage, unsnarling traffic jams created by traffic lights that refused to

The lights were back on in Prestonsburg by 5:05 p.m., but as of presstime late Tuesday, several communities in the David and Middle Creek areas were still in the dark

Although no businesses currently plan to do so, liquor can now be sold by the drink in Prestonsburg, following Monday night's City Council meeting that drew more than 50 spectators into the crowded meeting room.

The hotly-debated ordinance will allow restaurants that seat at least 100 persons and derive at least 50 percent of their income from food sales to serve liquor by the drink. However, only one firm in the city currently qualifies -Jerry's Restaurant, which has a company-wide policy of not serving

The standing-room-only crowd filled the council chambers more than 15 minutes before the meeting began, and apparently all were opposed to passage of the ordinance. The measure was barely approved, with Mayor Ann Latta casting the deciding vote after the councilmen created a 4-4 deadlock. Casting votes to approve the ordinance were William Goebel III, Adrian Blackburn, William R. Calla Callihan and Danny Hamilton Voting against were Jim Yates, Paul Joseph, Mike Vance and Charles Hale.

Yates and Joseph left immediately following passage of the measure, with Joseph saying, "I'm sick to my stomach." Hale left shortly thereafter.

A number of area pastors and citizens addressed the council before the vote, asking for the ordinance's defeat.

Steve Hopkins, pastor, cited a number of statistics concerning alcohol-related fatalities, and said the measure was a county concern. "It won't just affect the city; it will affect the county all around us," he said. "I find it hard to believe that 95 percent of the people...having liquor by the drink will be staying at the hotel."

Hopkins was referring to the Holiday Inn, which would qualify to serve liquor by the drink if it is annexed into the city limits.

Hopkins also said the ordinance would cost more in city expenditures than it would create in revenue. "It takes four times the tax increase from the sale to take care of increased protection, legal fees and jail facilities." said Hopkins. "It will cost the taxpayers of Prestonsburg if we allow this to happen.

ALL FOR SIMPLE SINDERY

Hopkins said he felt citizens could support the city in other ways besides the sale of alcohol, which he called the number one killer of teenagers.

"I believe we need to very seriously consider this as an issue that can do us great harm, not only to us, but to the county around us," Hopkins concluded.

Ron Masters, another pastor, echoed Hopkins' comments, and likewise urged the council to vote against the matter. Also speaking against the ordinance were Kevin Collins of the First Church of God in Prestonsburg: pastor Quentin Scholtz; Ron Ball, a new resident of the area; Phillip Robinson, pastor of the Prestonsburg Assembly of God; Hene Baldridge, Otela Smiley,

Joe Tussey, Anna Hopson and others. Speaking in defense of the measure was councilman Blackburn, who said that he had received several letters from members of the religious community opposing the ordinance. "I don't think it's a religious or moral issue at all," Blackburn told the crowd. "The state has given the cities the right to pass this ordinance... It's something people in the United States have a right

You're objecting to an ordinance that allows whiskey to be sold by the ounce," he continued. "You can go out here now and buy it by the gallon!"

Blackburn said belief that there are no drunk drivers on the street without the ordinance was "naive," and added, "I think you're making a mountain out of a molehill."

Councilman Callihan, who said he had also received letters threatening (See Story No. 1, Page 9)

Some Floyd Schools Aren't In Compliance

By Tim Sizemore

The humidity was high at Prestonsburg Elementary Thursday evening at the state-sponsored accreditation hearing, with the state noting several non-compliances in the Floyd school system.

The meeting, sparsely attended by the general public, focused on deficiencies in the school system, as well as suggestions by the management team to eliminate problems within the threeyear district educational plan to be drawn up by the county school board.

The Floyd County Board of Education will have 45 days to come up with a plan to alleviate the school system's deficiencies.

Charles Calloway with the state Department of Education started the meeting off on a positive note, commending the system on two areas: the transportation system (which Calloway said could serve as a model, for Eastern Kentucky), and the seventh and eighth grade oral history program at Martin Elementary.

The hearing was the result of a March visit by the state accreditation team to all school facilities in the county. Calloway explained the team spoke to teachers, principals, maintenance staff and the general public. Not only was classroom operation examined, but facilities and supplies were also checked to see if they were adequate to meet the state's criteria.

Many of the non-compliances dealt with the lack of facilities for such things as libraries, physical education, science, chemistry, physics and it was sufficient, but after stricter laws were passed in 1982 the jail was deficient in regards to the new requirements. "In the future perhaps in two or three years, without these needed changes, the facility will only be a holdover jail," Blair said. He added that if the state went by the square footage guidelines, the jail could only accomodate 27 prisoners.

Blair said that when the jail was built

The jail now has 79 beds with no holding cell or conference room, and has poor lighting. Blair went on to say that the jail also needs stainless steel plumbing fixtures instead of the porcelain.

'It will cost some bucks to repair these things," Blair said, adding that he understood that the county and state are strapped for money

District 2 Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens said that the jail situation in Kentucky had been a major topic at a magistrate's convention he attended.

Ground Broken For Toler Creek VFD

Ground was officially broken Saturday for a fire station for the Toler's Creek Volunteer Fire Department, helped by County Judge John M. Stumbo's presentation of $2,000.

Harold, criminal tresspass, third Doyle Meade, pastor of the Toler's Creek Church of Christ and president of the volunteer fire department, introduced Stumbo.

The judge said the county would help in whatever manner it could, adding that there are now 16 fire departments in the county. He added that a large number of fire hydrants have been installed by the county, lowering homeowners' insurance rates in most areas.

According to Meade, the department will decide at its Aug. 31 meeting which type of structure will be built.

The founder is Wilburn Akers.

Council Addresses Items

The Prestonsburg City Council a success, with more than 200 persons deliberated on several issues Monday attending. night, in addition to passing an ordinance to allow sale of liquor by the drink (see separate story)

Councilman Mike Vance reported that his committee is continuing to study a new garbage pick-up rate system for the city. Vance said studies will be done this month to time the number of minutes used for pick-up at various businesses, and a rate schedule drawn up based on that information.

The council is continuing to study health insurance packages for the city's employees, following a proposed rate increase by Blue Cross/Blue Shield, the current carrier. Council members voted to have a committee study the issue and determine the least expensive option for the city.

The council also passed an emergency water use ordinance that would regulate water use by the city's residents and businesses in the event of a water shortage. The ordinance is a result of this summer's drought

Pastor Ron Masters provided the one bright spot for the council during the evening, saying he supported the 72 percent restaurant sales tax for recreation and tourism development,

"It doesn't cost us that many pennies more, and we enjoy the benefits and appreciate it." said Masters.

In a separate matter, Vance reported that Saturday's youth street dance in the municipal parking lot was

'Floyd Programs Provide GED Opportunity

The buzzing sound of electric fans filled the store-turned-school as five students studied. These are not average students - first, they study through the summer; second, they are between the ages of 18 and 55.

Funds For Services To Homeless Awarded

Agency in Paintsville recently received a $2,000 grant to provide community-based services for the homeless, according to officials with the state Cabinet for Human Resources

State-wide, $331,082 in grants was issued. Twenty regional community action agencies sought funding appropriated by Congress to the year-old federal Emergency Homeless Program, according to Larry Michalczyk, commissioner of the cabinet's Department for Social Services, which administers the program in Kentucky.

"These grants will support ongoing services to the homeless, such as mental health treatment, drug and alcohol abuse counseling, job search training and personal finances planning, Michalczyk said. "With this support, existing community assistance programs that would otherwise be strapped in extending their services to the homeless can better meet the needs that can be iden-

Michalczyk said the allocations were determined on the basis of the amount of the grant request, projected carryover funds from last year's grant to an agency and the state's assessment of the progress achieved in providing services to the local homeless population during the past year.

Movin' Right Along

By Anne Chaney

I had the privilege of covering my first Prestonsburg City Council meeting Monday night, and it was a wonderful introduction to our local government - a highly controversial issue (the sale of liquor by the drink) prompted more than 50 folks to attend

It is this kind of community participation in local affairs that makes for good, clean government. It's always healthy to have opposing viewpoints. To paraphrase one of my favorite sayings (although I don't know who said it), "The clash of ideas is the sound of freedom.

It was a bit disturbed, however, that three council members left before the meeting was over - in fact, two left immediately after the vote on the ordinance. It seems to me that any mileage they may have gained by their symbolic departures was offset - to the worse - by depriving their constituents of their input on the other 10 or so measures the council addressed later in the meeting.

Speaking of input, we've received several responses to the "If I could change one thing about the Floyd County Times, I'd change..." coupon. All answers were positive, and many included compliments about the changes we've made so far. The next step, of course, is to take your suggestions and put them to work.

Beginning in the near future, we would like to begin some new features: weekly columns by area ministers on the church page, a genealogical column or re-print of old local photographs provided to us by our readers, a monthly recipe column, and a monthly poetry column.

That sounded easy enough! Actually, it will take a little more work than that. Right now, we'd like to ask ministers in the area who would like to contribute to the weekly church page column to call me (886-8506) and we'll set up a revolving list and get started.

As for the recipe feature, we'd like to ask those who are interested to send us your favorite recipes. We'll go through them and divide them into categories - dinners, desserts, salads, etc. - and publish them periodically. We do ask that all recipes be the creations of our readers, and not reprints

Reader Appreciates Floyd County Friends

Dear Editor,

Looking at my snow white hair this morning reminded me anew that in September we will have been in Floyd County 46 years.

We started our Christian service on Spurlock Fork of Middle Creek, which to me is the best memory of all - then Bucks Branch, where our handicapped daughter was born. So many of the ones we loved have gone home.

What a joy to know that heaven is ahead for His own! Are you one of them? If not, please turn your heart over to Him who died for you Let's plan on spending eternity with Him, and one another.

Pastor Questions Area Film Choices

Dear Editor.

The headline read in the Floyd County Times: "Temptation of Christ" Won't Be Shown Locally." We Christians stand up for victory. We have accomplished something. I even sent my letter, on the church's letterhead, asking the management of the Strand not to show it. I feel proud. But then I read on in the article a quote by the manager of the chain of theatres of Absher Enterprises. It states: "We feel it is offensive to Christ and should not be

My first response is "Amen", but then I'm disturbed about the two "R" rated films showing at the time of this writing: "Coctail" and "Nightmare on Elm Street #4." Isn't that offensive to Christ? I think so, possibly even more so. You see, the Biblical record is straight, our Lord needs no defense, for how He has changed persons' lives over the centuries is evidenced enough. But the evil way in which we get at the human condition by lewd and very crude humanistic approaches that demean people and create fear, hurts Christ even more.

I'm sorry that our movie and video places don't see that. The manager goes on to say "We want to get first run movies that will be the best for our community and suit our patrons." 1 wanted to applaud until I think of what is now being shown and what has been shown in the past. The violence, the raw sex, the hurt and pain, the mockery of God and Jesus, the irreverent laughter about religion hurts God more than the 'Temptation of Christ' film. You see, our Lord faced temptation, but He never yielded to it, but instead defeated it and that is fact. But He weeps over Prestonsburg because what He sees is our yielding to temptation which indeed might be fatally our last one, and could do us harm both now and forever.

Reader Opposes Broad Form Deed

I am writing this letter in regard to my brother. He is in his 70s, and lives

He has burned natural gas from a well on the property for free for the past 12 years. Now, all of a sudden, the gas company wants him to pay for gas he has used. The gas and coal companies contend they own mineral rights. Our deed says they don't. Our deed says one dwelling on the property can burn gas free. There is only one dwelling on the property. It is very difficult on his brothers and sisters and other relatives to see him done this way. He doesn't have the money to pay the gas company. Twelve years ago, this situation started with these people. The coal company tried to strip mine our coal. They faced up the coal to mine, but we stopped them from doing anything. It's not only my brother involved in this; there are several watching what becomes of this. I think it would be better for all parties to forget this gas bill-both sides had their attorneys meet to settle out of court. In an oral agreement, the gas company wanted to put a meter on just to monitor the amount of gas going out. The dwelling still got free gas. Guess what? Next month, a gas bill came. They do not want to go before a grand jury. Having both parties agree to an oral agreement with both attorneys present and three witnesses was a mistake. It should have been in writing. I was not there at the time, or it would have been a written agreement.

This kind of action can be stopped.

We will have our say in November. Vote yes on the broad form deed. Sincerely, FOREST BEVERLY Dayton, Ohio

COMPETITIVE URANIUM INDUSTRY IS VITAL TO KENTUCKY

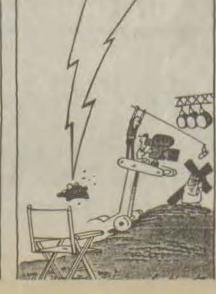

When Kentuckians talk about mineral concerns, we are usually referring to our abundant coal resources. But we also have strong ties to another mineral industry-uranium enrichment

This little known venture has strong national security implications. And with major uranium plants located in Paducah and in Portsmouth, Ohio, near Ashland, it is of great importance to all of us. Nearly 3,000 Kentuckians work at these two plants, which are at a critical juncture as the viability of this industry remains uncertain today.

The Department of Energy once monopolized the world market, but by 1984 it controlled only about 40 percent of the market share. The enrichment enterprise continues to face stiff competition fnrom government-backed, foreign consortia. And it needs a business-like approach to survive in this increasingly competitive environ-

Rogers Names 7th District Chairman. Steering Committee

U.S. Representative Harold Rogers, who heads the "Kentuckians for Bush" campaign statewide, has announced that Alpha Hutchinson has been selected as 7th District chairman of the fall campaign. In addition, Bill Strong, Paul Purvis and Velma Childers have been named as members of the 7th District Steering Committee.

"Hutchinson will help us direct our winning campaign this fall in the 7th District," said Rogers. "He has an outstanding record of accomplishment in our party.

Rogers said the steering committee will help coordinate the various campaign activities in the district, including turnout on election day.

'These individuals bring us the experience and broad-based support, which we need to carry us to victory in November," Rogers added.

Local RC & D To Help Local Government, Groups

There are 194 Resource Conservation and Development Areas (RC&D) across the United States helping local people take better care of their natural resources and at the same time, improve their community's economy.

In Eastern Kentucky, the Big Sandy RC&D Area, Inc., is being revitalized to help local units of government and non-profit groups improve their community's quality of life and standard of living, according to Clark L. Allison, local coordinator

The Big Sandy RC&D, Inc. is a nonprofit, tax-exempt, public foundation administered by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. Its projects are locally initiated, sponsored and directed.

"The organization also functions as a base for people to come together to determine needs, goals, and objectives. Moreover, it brings community leaders and officials together to carry out all the necessary actions to make their locality the best place to live, work, and play," explains Allison.

Presently, the Big Sandy RC&D, Inc. is made up of Pike, Floyd, Johnson, Martin, and Magoffin counties. It is directed by a 15-member council made up from the city and county governments and the local conservation districts.

Generally speaking, the council tries to accomplish community orien-

"Local people are the key, however, to the success of any RC&D area. All interests-urban, suburban, and rural-work together to carry out badly needed local improvements. Furthermore, these are usually self-help projects. Local people get them going and run them. Civic minded people working together, plus teamwork between the public agencies assisting these people, often brings to completion a successful RC&D project." he

At the last RC&D meeting in August, there were 13 project proposals submitted for the Big Sandy area. The City of Prestonsburg submitted three of the proposals Included in Prestonsburg's proposals was a handicap access trail at Archer Park, approximately onehalf mile in length and including exercise stations. Another proposal project was a new mini-park on the east side of town. This project would be tenative until land is acquired. 'How much time do we have for these improvements? We've already done some work on the jail," Owens said. Blair would not give Owens a definite answer, but said that it could be as soon

Judge Executive John M. Stumbo asked Blair if the kitchen and living quarters were removed whether it allow enough space for the improvements. While Blair said it would help, he advised against closing the kitchen, citing troubles in other counties because of catered meals

The judge also asked Blair about state prisoners lodged in the jail, and

Middle Creek Fire Department Won't Serve Abbott

The Middle Creek Volunteer Fire Department gave official notice this week that it will no longer serve the Abbott Creek area, due to lack of support and interest from Abbott residents.

'We'll not respond unless it's life threatening," said Tom Green, president of the Middle Creek department. Green said that there were no volunteers or donations from the Abbott area. He said that his department had offered to train volunteers from Abbott but there had been no response.

"They won't volunteer to help, so we have no choice," Green said. The firefighter said that it had been his department's intention to train volunteers to form a separate department in Abbott.

Wanda York, an Abbott Creek resident, says as far as she knows there are no plans in the works for a department, and since the Middle Creek and Prestonsburg fire departments won't respond, "I guess we're just left out."

asked if it would help if they were not housed by the county. Blair said that the new prison facilities currently under construction would help the problem slightly, but he did not see that the loss of the prisoners would help the overcrowding situation or address the jail's deficiencies.

Blair did have good things to say about the jail, complimenting jailer Lawrence Hale on cleanliness and proper documentation. Blair said the problem was not how the jail was operated. adding "the physical plant is the best," Mrs. Smith said. "We will follow him everywhere.

The operation has a 30 percent mortality rate.

"It is like 10 children walking into a room and only 7 of them coming out,"

It has been rough going for the Smiths in the past 16 months. When Susanne's congestive heart failure was detected days after she was born, the family was sent to Kosair in Louisville, Mrs. Smith said.

Having never been to Louisville, they didn't know where to go, so they called friends who got them to the hospital and then the hospital staff sent Janie and Ron to the Ronald McDonald House, where they lived for two months while Susanne was in the hospital. They now basically live in two places.

"It is very expensive to live in two places, and Louisville is not like living in the mountains," Mrs. Smith said.

Many people have been helping the Smith family-the people they work with have been very supportive, many area churches have given Susanne prayer cloths, and people can give blood specifically for her operation at the Red Cross in Pikeville, Mrs. Smith

"It is wonderful that everyone cares so much for my baby," Mr. Smith said. Susanne has insurance, but there is less than $100,000 left on the $250,000 policy, Mrs. Smith said. She recently had a nine-day hospital stay that cost $18,000.

'Beyond that, we don't know what we are going to do," she said. "We don't know what the future holds."

Anyone wishing to give money to help the family can contact First Guaranty National Bank in Martin; to donate blood for Susanne's operation, contact the Red Cross in Pikeville.

Joseph, who opposed the ordinance, responded, saying "I can't see where selling liquor by the drink would give us any economic growth," a factor Blackburn had cited earlier in the

"If I had the power," Joseph continued, "I would destroy every distillery they are. They are no way I could put a price on any person's life."

The 4-4 deadlock vote ensued, forcing Latta to vote to break the tie. Before casting her vote, Latta told those present, "I was told two months ago that this vote would be tied, and I knew it would come down to that."

Latta said she was opposed to unregulated sale of liquor by the drink, and said the proposal would give the city a means of determining who could and could not sell drinks. She that it would promote economic development, pointing to the Holiday Inn, adding that the company had "threatened to go to Martin. Martin is a fourth class city, and they could get liquor by the drink anyway. Then, we couldn't enforce liquor by the drink, and we would have to rely on Martin. We couldn't send our police there; it would be up to Martin."

Latta also said Holiday Inn officials had indicated that if the measure pass-

Following the mayor's yea vote, Joseph stood and said, "I'm sick to my stomach, and I'm leaving," and a major motel chain here. That could departed the council room. Fellow council member Yates followed him. Neither returned to the meeting.

After the meeting resumed, Goebel read an ordinance to employ two more police officers in Prestonsburg, and purchase necessary cars and equipment, funding the salaries and related items from license fees and alcoholic beverage sales tax. The measure passed 4-2, with Hale and Vance voting against it on the premise that no emergency existed. The language of the ordinance provided for emergency status, which would allow the ordinance to be approved in the first reading, and be effective immediately.

Right after the vote, Hale also left the meeting, and did not return.

biology. Much of the report dealt with inadequate equipment, primarily in physical education. As an example of the state's findings, Prestonsburg and Wheelwright high schools' science labs lack running water, eye showers, fire blankets and vented hoods.

Art and music programs in the county were found to be totally inadequate or, in the words of the Rev. Tim Jessen, who spoke at the meeting, "The arts programs are bankrupt in Floyd

It was discovered by the state during its visit in March that many of the county's schools lack library facilities, or they were unaccessible before and after school. Some schools, such as Spruce Pine, Auxier Elementary and Prater Elementary, have no library to support their instructional programs. McDowell Elementary and Harold Elementary have limited library

The report stated that barriers to the handicapped existed in nearly all the schools in the county, and that facilities and equipment were needed to meet the needs of those pupils and staff.

Bus safety in loading and unloading zones was a problem dealt with by the team's report, with Harold Elementary, Martin Elementary, McDowell Elementary and Prestonsburg High and elementary school all experiencing safety problems, mainly from lack of organization and supervision.

The lack of guidance counselors and gifted student programs on the elementary level were noted by the team, with Spruce Pine, Drift and Auxier Elementary having no programs for gifted students.

One controversy that went unanswered at the meeting concerned the renovation of the principal's office at McDowell by then-principal Gary Frazier. The renovation took in part of a typing room and was allegedly done without board approval and in violation of school policy. Gorden Cook of the accreditation team said that he understood that the step was taken for better hallway observation, and it had been a safety factor. After the hearing, the team went directly into the facilities report. The report dealt primarily with some overcrowding, which the team felt would be addressed by the new school facilities which will soon be under construction. The team did offer some alternatives, suggesting rearranging students to help alleviate the overcrowding situation. The problem with most of the buildings, according to Floyd Superintendent Ronald Hager, was they were built in the 1920s and 1930s and could no longer serve the student population.

Both Superintendent Hager and former school head Ray Brackett pointed out there has been a 300 percent improvement in the school system in the last three years; Hager noted the many problems in the facilities report had been corrected since the team's

During the time set aside for public comment, John Rosenburg, of the Floyd County Education Forum, chided the team and board for their lack of effort in informing the public, saying he hadn't learned about the meeting until the day before. He said that the board's choosing to advertise in the legal section had not been the best way morm the p that an article about the meeting should have been published.

Freddie Goble, also a forum member, told the assembly the business community needed to be involved in the education process, and he hoped to enlist their support to acquire lab equipment and microscopes.

Linda Spradlin, president of the Prestonsburg Elementary P. T. A., spoke eloquently for a new elementary school for Prestonsburg, telling the team, "This facility was constructed by the WPA during the Depression, and if you'll look around this school, you will see it." She went on to say, "We can't have growth without a 20th Century school facility."

Chalmer Frazier, speaking for the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, urged a new Prestonsburg High School be constructed because the old one is in the flood plain. "It would be like throwing good money after bad," Frazier said, and added that there was no room for growth at the site. Phyliss Herrick with the Prestonsburg Women's Club agreed, citing five reasons: the present facility is overcrowded, the acreage does not have sufficient room for loading busses, the school is in the flood plain, the noise from U.S. 23, and the new school had been recommended in 1987.

Patty Hunter, representing Harold Elementary, told the group the facilities at the school were inadequate, and that there are not enough classrooms.

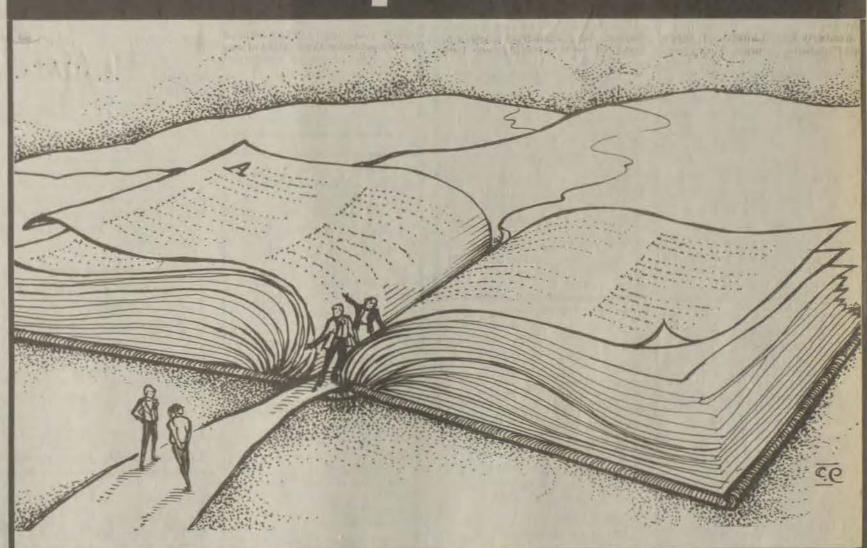

Rosenburg also said better programs are needed in the district before the new buildings are built.

Dolores Smith, also of the Forum, explained, "It is important that we are aware of the problems, and what we and the board need to do to correct these problems." She added that the meeting should have been better advertised.

George Spiggle, who represented the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club, was in strong support of the middle school concept and thought that all county schools should be under the same instructional plan because "the middle school concept is the wave of the

In response to the accreditation team meeting, the Floyd County Education Forum met in regular session Monday evening to look over a draft letter to Hager and State Superintendent John Brock. Fleming-Neon Controls Ball Bobcats In 31-0 Win Friday wanting to give the football to Betsy Layne. The Bobcats, when they finally did get it, showed no signs of wanting to keep it. Add the two up and it equals trouble for the Bobcats, and that's exactly what they had, and plenty of it, at home Friday against the Fleming-Neon

The Pirates kept the pigskin for almost 10 minutes on their first drive of the game, and scored three points. After Betsy Layne took over they retained possession for only one play from scrimmage before fumbling the football back to Fleming-Neon.

The Pirates kept it for the remainder of the first quarter, took advantage of some Betsy Layne mistakes in the second, and went on to down the Bobcats 31-0 in the season opener for both schools

"They really came after us in that first quarter," Pirate coach Jack Hall, who coached two seasons ago at Betsy Layne, said of the Bobcats. "They played well, and with a lot of emotion in that first quarter, but like their coach said, we beat them in the trenches and that's where games are won or lost.

Hall, a former coach at Elkhorn City who also enjoyed an earlier stint in Fleming-Neon, led the Bobcats to their first-ever winning season in 1986, but was removed by the Floyd County School Board that summer.

'Any time you win it's sweet, I don't care what the reasons are," Hall said after Friday night's contest. "It's emotional. Anytime you leave a place and come back it's going to be emotional. It was emotional the first time I went back to Fleming-Neon and Elkhorn City for the first time after I left there.

You want to win, yes, but I've got a lot respect for those kids. Betsy Layne's got a lot of great kids, and their coaching staff has done a good

But on this night great, at least great

Fleming-Neon showed no signs of football play, was on the side of the Pirates. They led 17-0 at halftime, and scored on their first possession of the second half to blow the game open.

'We tried to arm tackle them a lot out there," Vince Tucker, Betsy Layne's head coach, said. "And a lot of that is from a lack of experience.

"Chalk this one up to a lack of experience. It really showed through tonight," assistant coach Chuke Williams said. "But we had a lot of bright spots too. We're going to have to go back to individual instruction,' Tucker added. "Our line really got whipped out there, and our backs need to work a lot harder. We knew what he would be running, but it was just a lack of execution, and a lack of experience."

Tucker, starting his second year at the Bobcat helm, said earlier in the week that he felt the emotional factor, and the familiarity with Hall's game plan, would greatly help Betsy Layne's

"I don't know a lot about them, but Coach Hall is doing the same things he was doing here. We know what he'll try to do, and I think that will be a plus for us. I think the kids will be up, playing against a former coach. We'll be ready for them," Tucker said last week.

Hall did just what Tucker figured he would, running the football between the tackles, and throwing only when he had to. But the only problem was that Betsy Layne couldn't stop what they knew was coming.

The Pirates, coming off a 4-7 record a year ago, took the opening kickoff 45 yards and got three points out of it, but the most impressive part of it was the fact that it took them nine minutes and 32 seconds to do it

Fleming-Neon, helped out by a Bobcat offsides on a fourth and three play, ran 13 plays in the drive, but Betsy

Layne yielded only three points. Betsy Layne, though, didn't help its defense out when it got the football back. After a 24-yard kickoff return, the Bobcats set up offensive shop on their own 41, but lost the football on the first play from scrimmage, giving it back to Fleming-Neon on a fumble.

The two teams exchanged turnovers, two more by each squad, until the Pirates took advantage of a punt attempt gone bad which led to their first touchdown.

From their own 43, Betsy Layne dropped back in punt formation, but a bad snap led to a loose football, and when all the scrambling ended the pigskin rested on the Bobcat five yard line with Fleming-Neon's Trey Quillen resting atop it.

Two plays later, with 5:15 left in the first half, tailback Kevin Greene plunged into the end zone, enabling the Pirates to take a 10-0 lead. Again in the first half the Pirates struck for a score, probably the one that broke Betsy Layne's back, if not their spirit.

Fleming-Neon held the Bobcats on a fourth and one try from their own 47. and aided by a 28-yard Jimmy Taylor run, punched it into the end zone with just 26 seconds remaining in the half. Taylor scored the touchdown on a three-yard run.

Greene led the Pirates in rushing with 57 yards on 12 carries while Taylor ran for 54 yards. Fleming-Neon had 175 total yards, not necessarily impressive, but they had scoring drives of 29, 20, and five yards thanks to Bobcat

"I was real pleased with our defense," Hall said. "We didn't give them many yards." That was an under statement, coach, at best.

Betsy Layne ran 11 plays in the first half, one in the first quarter, for a total of 23 yards. They did not have a first down, and committed three turnovers.

"I wasn't real pleased with our offense," Hall mentioned. "Our offense can play a lot better. We ran to the wrong hole several times, and we missed a lot of blocks, but we've come a long way since our first scrimmage against M.C. Napier.

TOUGH RUN: Bear Halbert, Allen Central's fullback, finds little running room on this attempt Saturday against Jenkins. The Rebels lost 12-0.

Costly Mistakes Ruin Defensive Effort As AC Loses To Jenkins

It had all the makings of one of those games where one big play could bring a victory, or one mistake could mean

The field conditions played a major part in this appearance as heavy rains turned the playing surface into a slippery, sloppy mess. Both teams, neither known for their ability to move the football, added to the expectations of a lowscoring affair.

Through the first 18 minutes of the game those expectations were solidified as Jenkins and Allen Central butted heads to a scoreless tie. But with about six minutes remaining in the first half, the Cavaliers came through with a big play. Or was it that Allen Central simply made a mistake? Either way, Jenkins got six points out of it, and that was enough for them to earn a win, defeating the Rebels 12-0 Saturday night at Betsy Layne.

"I said at the first of the season that specialty teams played a big part in it, and tonight it cost us a ball game,' Allen Central head coach Donnie Daniels said after the game. "I can't fault the defense," Daniels continjued. "The defense played a good game. It was just a couple mental mistakes on the part of the specialty teams.'

The Rebels committed a crucial mistake, or at least gave Jenkins the opportunity to make a big play, with just under six minutes remaining in the second quarter

Allen Central had held the Cavaliers to 14 yards offensively, and twice stopped them from scoring after Jenkins took possession deep in Rebel territory. Once they took over on the 17 and again on the 24, but both times Allen Central turned them back scoreless. But on a

AFC West: Denver found a runner, and looked hard for some bulk to add along each line. Seattle is still looking for consistency, and Los Angeles hasn't found a qualified passer.

These are some of the reasons most football experts are choosing the Broncos as their team most likely to capture a crown in the AFC West, but none of them are forgetting the awesome talent possessed in the Pacific Northwest, and Southern California. Both Seattle and the Raiders are being touted as division contenders by all, and Super Bowl possibilities by some.

Denver, dominated the past two seasons after reaching the Super Bowl. tried to heal its physical wounds acquired from Washington last January by drafting linemen in the first two

Ted Gregory, taken on the first round, is a powerful nose tackle from Syracuse, and is expected to lend help to the Broncos' quick but small defensive line. The offensive line, likewise quick but small, received help in round two with the selection of Southern Cal tackle Gerald Perry. He has been penciled in as a possible starter right out of training camp.

Denver was shoved around in its embarassing Super Bowl loss last year. They have gotten there the past two seasons due to talented skill position players, but now Bronco supporters hope additional line strength such as Perry and Gregory will help them win just one more game this time around.

It all begins with John Elway, continues through the Three Amigos, and ends up in the backfield where Tony Dorsett has been added to a crew full of situation players.

Elway, although he finished only seventh among AFC quarterbacks, threw 19 touchdown passes and scored four more on the ground. His 83.4 overall rating placed him behind such names as Bill Kenney, Mark Wilson, and Dave Kreig, but Elway does one thing the others don't ... win football

The Broncos have three receivers, Vance Johnson, Mark Jackson, and Ricky Nattiel, who are all game breakers with soft hands. The three combined for 99 catches last year, and averaged over 17 yards per reception.

Denver was sixth in the AFC in rushing yards per game, and with Tony Dorsett on hand to go with a healthy Gerald Willhite, the Broncon running game could take the heat off Elway and his Three Amigos.

The Seattle Seahawks are regarded by many as the most talented team in the AFC, but they are seldom found living up to that expected potential. Last year the Seahawks finished with a 10-5 record, and made the playoffs, but incosistency proved to be a consistent problem for them. Seattle blew the Raiders away twice, and defeated Chicago by 13 points, but lost to Kansas City, Pittsburgh, and Houston in the playoffs. All three were opponents the Seahawks should have handled successfully.

Heading into the 1988 season, Seattle is once again considered to be one of the conference's best teams, but problems have already cropped up. Brian Bosworth, a high-paid linebacker, has created a major controversy throughout pro and college football with his recently-published book. Allpro linebacker Ricky Young, during his current hold out, said he didn't like Bosworth at all, and doesn't plan to rejoin the team any time soon.

Seattle was third in points scored last season, doing it with a balance of run and pass, and finished eighth in points allowed. The Seahawks could challenge Denver, but their personal conflicts might allow LA to move up to the second slot.

The Raiders have probably the league's fastest receiving duo in James Lofton and Willie Gault. Lofton, acquired a couple years ago from Green Bay, averaged a conference high 21.5 yards per catch.

Gault, brought over from the Windy City this summer, averaged over 20 yards per reception, and is another of the NFL's best deep threats. Bo Jackson, the two-sport star who earned criticism by saying football was just a hobby, ran for 554 yards last year while averaging almost seven yards per carry

Jackson, an outfielder for the baseball Kansas City Royals, won't be available until the October 9 contest against Cincinnati, By then LA will have played two division foes, a playoff team from last season, and the LA

If the Raiders' stingy defense can keep them in the race early then Jackson could possibly lead them into the playoffs come late December.

LA gave up the third fewest points in the AFC last season, and surrendered the second fewest first downs passing. San Diego lost Dan Fouts, and they are figured to drop behind Kansas City in the chase not to be last.

Orleans had a reason to unmask themselves, Rueben Mayes pulls the wool back over their eyes. Mayes, an all-pro performer in both of his NFL years, announced Friday that he wish-

NFC West: Just when fans in New ed to be traded. The announcement comes on the heels, of the Saints' firstever winning season.

After Charles Lindburgh made history with the first solo flight across the Atlantic, he came home by ship.

Entering his third season out of Washington State, Mayes had been a valuable commodity which enabled New Orleans to piece together their successful season. Mayes, who says he is the fourth highest paid running back on the Saints' team, ran for 917 yards in 1987, but walked out of camp last week due to the contract disagreement.

New Orleans also has Dalton Hilliard, who was drafted before Mayes in 1986, in the backfield. He ran for over 500 yards and might make way for the Saints to deal Mayes away. They took Craig Heyward this year. and might begin the season with him as one of their starting backs.

But the Saints got to the playoffs with their defense, which was sparked by a pair of hard hitting, sack-minded linebackers. Pat Swilling and Rickey Jackson combined for 20 sacks last

New Orleans had a plus 20 in the give away-take away ratio, helped along by 30 interceptions. Bobby Hebert, not flashy but mistake free, threw only nine interceptions in comparison.

The Saints appear to have turned the corner, but without all their assets, San Francisco will deny them a trip on down the winning street.

The 49ers gave up the fewest points in the NFC while becoming the conference's highest scoring squad.

Joe Montana is growing old, but if he falters Steve Young has already proven himself as a competent heir to Montana's thrown, and with San Francisco's supporting cast it isn't too difficult to be king quarterback for this

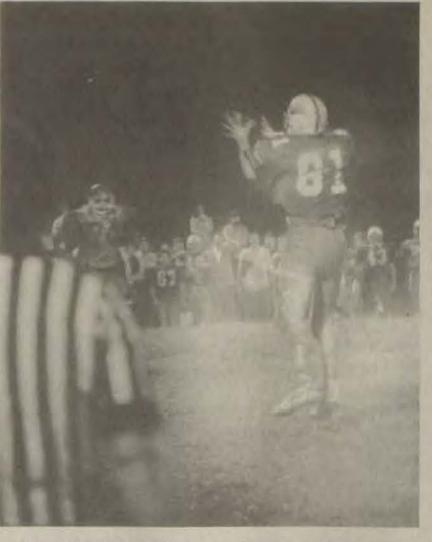

Not only is San Francisco one of the NFL's best teams, 13-2 last year, it is also young, having only five nonkicking players 30 years old or over.

That doesn't make the LA Rams happy. They gave up all-pro running back Eric Dickerson last season, and are using draft choices received for him to build for the future. Although Charles White led the NFL in rushing, the Rams are bound to miss Dickerson, but they took Gaston Green from UCLA this summer and he should ease the pain some. They also had four more picks in the draft's first two rounds, and took two wide receivers, a defensive back, and linebacker with them.

Jim Everett threw more interceptions than touchdown passes last season, but the Rams say he is their quarterback of the future. This will be his third season in the NFL

The Rams gave up 31 touchdowns through the air, and a total of 361 points. They were near the bottom of the conference in team defense, but not many observers are expecting a repeat poor performance.

The Rams may challenge the division's top two, but their best is yet to come, especially when they really start to reap the benefits of the Dickerson deal. Atlanta is there merely to fill in the fourth slot.

(continued from previous page) fourth and 17 play from their own 13. the Rebels were forced to punt. The play didn't develop in the fashion Daniels would have liked, and as a result Jenkins' Robbie Sexton was able to block the kick. He followed the loose pigskin into the end zone where he fell on it for six points, giving the Cavaliers the lead with 5:56 left.

Jenkins had another scoring opportunity in the first half, thanks to recurring troubles with the Rebel kicking team, but Allen Central turned them away yet again.

When the snap short hopped punter Marty Gibson, Jenkins swarmed him on the 11, setting up offensive shop there with about two minutes remaining before halftime. After a running play was thrown for a yard loss, and a pass attempt fell harmlessly to the ground, Allen Central intercepted a pass to squeich the threat. That, along with some adjustments at halftime, had Daniels looking forward to the second half. But some of the same hurt Allen Central, and the Rebels didn't exactly help themselves by playing sound mental football.

'We came out in the second half and made a few adjustments. I shortened the splits in our offensive line to try and offset their quickness," Daniels explained. "We gave the ball to Bear (fullback Halbert) up the middle and we were moving the ball, but what do we do? We get an offsides penalty.'

On their second drive of the third quarter, Allen Central faced a third and three situation from their 43, but the penalty pushed them back to the 38. and into a third and eight position.

"We changed the signals around a little bit to try and draw them offsides to get the five yards back, and we did-but we were moving too, so it was offsetting penalties," Daniels said. The penalty proved to be a pivotal part in the contest, because Allen Central failed to get the first down, and after that they never managed to move the football again against a stingy Jenkins defense.

'We knew coming out that we had to play good defense, with the field conditions being what they were, but I didn't get a thing out of my offense, Daniels said. "I wasn't pleased with the way our offense played tonight."

Allen Central had only two first downs in the game, both coming on Jenkins' penalties. The closest they got to Cavalier territory was their own 43.

But even then, as it had earlier, a penalty pushed them back, and the Rebels never threatened to score, at least not in the fashion of a sustained "I didn't think they had a lot of strength. They didn't really beat us strengh-wise, but their quickness played a big part in it. They got off the ball real quick, and we didn't get to our blocks quick enough," Daniels said, referring to reasons why the Rebels struggled offensively.

It certainly wasn't because Allen Central refused to pull out all the stops. The Rebels ran reverses. They ran halfback options, and even tossed in a hook and trailer.

"We ran every play we had tonight," Daniels said, "but that doesn't mean we executed them all."

Marty Gibson, used primarily in passing situations, failed to complete a pass in his four attempts, while regular quarterback B.J. Aldrich was two for five with one interception. Senior tight end Jamie Hall caught both passes for nine yards.

Bear Halbert led the Rebels in rushing, gaining 22 yards on nine carries. His longest run of seven yards was also Allen Central's biggest offensive play of the night.

Jenkins scored its other touchdown in the fourth quarter when tailback Shane Toth dashed 26 yards for the score. The run came after the Cavaliers recovered a fumble on the Rebel 26 yard line. Toth rushed for 68 yards on 16 carries to pace Jenkins' ground game. His 26-yard run for touchdown was the biggest offensive play by either team.

"We have to put this one behind us," Daniels said of the loss." We've got Paintsville coming up, and that begins our district play, so we can't worry about this game. We have to prepare for Paintsville now.

'Quick Whistle Stops Trojans In Crucial Offensive Drive

Roger Johnson was pleased with the way his Wheelwright Trojans played Friday night, but he would have been happier had a quick whistle not done damage to an impressive late drive.

In the third quarter, trailing 16-8, Wheelwright was, in Johnson's words, driving the football down Elkhorn City's throat, but a play that took them to the two was called down near the line of scrimmage, helping to bring the important drive to a quick halt.

An inadvertant whistle really broke our backs," Johnson explained. "We were driving the ball down their throats. We had our option working real well, probably too good, because it faked the officials out.

Wheelwright had the football in Cougar territory, and had apparently taken it all the way to the two yard line, but it was all called back when the official became confused as to which Trojan runner was toting the football.

We ran the option. Bobby (quarterback Hood) faked it up the middle to Chad (fullback Hall) and when he went down the official blew the whistle, Johnson said, reviewing the play "Bobby was still running, and he got all the way to the two. But they brought the ball back and we fumbled on the next play. That really broke our backs

The Trojans, despite playing what Johnson called a gutsy and classy game, never mounted another scoring threat, and lost the game 16-8 at Elkhorn City

'We saw some bright spots," the coach mentioned. "Our defense played exceptionally well. The kids played great. We got down early and could give their quarterback time, he's going have quit, but we didn't. We kept battling back. We played with a lot of class and a lot of guts

Elkhorn City, recognized as a good passing team, connected on touchdown tosses of 43 and 58 yards in the first half for all of their offensive point production.

Wheelwright scored their lone touchdown with two minutes remaining in the second quarter when Hood hooked up with halfback Handy Jackson for a 67-yard touchdown pass.

The Trojans, concerned with their offense after a poor grid-o-roma performance against Fleming-Neon, rolled up a total of 258 yards, but failed to get the football into the end zone more than

Hood completed seven of his 11 pass attempts for 101 yards. He also threw for a touchdown and was picked off once. Senior tight end Chris Thornsberry hauled in three passes for 17 yards while Shawn McKenzie caught two for 22. Chad Hall had one reception

'We got good pass protection from our offensive line," Johnson said, "except for that one time we suffered a breakdown and they caught Bobby in the end zone for the safety.

Elkhorn City, with about five minutes remaining in the first quarter, got on the scoreboard first with a 43-yard pass play. They scored their other touchdown with eight minutes left in the first half, and the two-point safety brought their total output to 16.

'We knew that if they were going to move the football against us that it would have to be through the air. If you to find somebody," Johnson said "They just completed about four passes," he added, "but two of them were the ones they scored with.

Wheelwright also found success on the ground, as most people felt they would this season. Led by Vic Cotton, the Trojans rushed for 138 yards while averaging 4.3 yards per carry

Cotton, a senior runner, carried the football 11 times for 46 yards. Junior fullback Chad Hall picked up 35 yards on seven carries, and Handy Jackson rushed for 34 yards. Hood carried six times for 23 yards

The Trojans, playing at home for the first time, will open their district schedule Friday night when Fairview comes to Brackett Field.

'They're small, but they're a quick ball club. They do have a pretty good offensive ball club, but I think things look good for us," Johnson said of the upcoming affair.

'I believe we can stop them, but we've got to score. Last year we depended on our defense, but we couldn't win any because we couldn't score. If we can put some points on the board then I think we can beat some people," Johnson said.

Game time is set for 8 p.m. as the Trojans open their 1988 bid for post season play. Two other district teams will be playing each other Friday as Allen Central and Paintsville hook up at Betsy Layne.

The Trojans were winless in district play a year ago, but they lost four of the five games by a touchdown or less. Hazard and Raceland complete the district field.

The Cincinnati Bengals ran their preseason record to 3-1 Saturday evening by defeating Detroit 24-7. Rookie fullback Elbert 'Ickey' Woods scored two touchdowns and Boomer Esiason threw for another to lead the Bengals.

Cincinnati, which struggled with its pass defense last season, picked off four Chuck Long passes to hold the Lions' offense in check.

Esiason threw to running back James Brooks for a 34-yard touchdown, and later hit speedy wide receiver Tim McGee with a 42-yard pass to set up one of Wood's two touchdowns. The Bengals opened up a 14-0 lead in the second quarter, and even though Detroit scored just before halftime to cut it to seven, Cincinnati was never challenged after that.

Cornerback Louis Billips picked off two Detroit passes, and Barney Bussey and Daryl Smith had one interception each to help out in the impressive defensive effort. Smith is a second year corner from North Alabama, and may have a chance of seeing considerable playing time since top draft choice Rickey Dixon remains unsigned.

Cincinnati, coming off a 4-11 season. opens regular season play Sept. 4 at home against the Phoenix (formerly of St. Louis) Cardinals.

Repeating as champions may be an infrequent happening in professional sports, but the Pikeville Panthers proved Saturday night that they are more than capable of defending their LA state championship. The Panthers, 14-0 last year, kicked off the 1988 campaign by defeating Newport Central Catholic 37-0. Pikeville, behind its talented running tandem of Greg Hackney and Bobby Deramus, rushed for 300 yards while holding NCC to only 66.

Hackney scored two touchdowns on the ground and Deramus added another to lead the Panthers past the state's number five ranked team in 2A.

Pikeville went virtually unchallenged last season in sweeping its way to the state title, and with the performance Saturday in the Pike County Bowl, all indications point toward another mountain championship.

The Sporting Times

It is things such as this which make life challenging, if not enjoyable.

Driving along enjoying the comfort of my car, it's sound system and the air conditioner. I felt that finally I had made a solid decision. Two years ago when I purchased the car, a 1986 Tempo, the dealership offered an extended warranty, but to obtain one an extended payment plan would be required.

Being the gullible person I am, I made the mistake of thinking that luck would finally come my way. The decision had been made, and I drove off the lot feeling as if it was the correct one.

Oh, but obviously others feared for Roby Tempo (that's his name) and his ability to survive in the real world. These friendly folks continued sending me important messages of how I could purchase an extended protection plan for just pennies a day. But those pennies a day added up to dollars a year. and I looked into the future and forsaw a few hundred dollars.

Just a week or so ago it flashed through my mind how they tempted me with that extended warranty stuff, and how I bowed my back, jutted out my chin, listened to the First Lady and just Yeah boy, my decision has saved me a cool couple hundred because in about eight thousand miles the extra 36,000 miles would be used up anyway.

Well, I should have known better. I haven't made a correct decision since I quit Alice Lloyd seven years ago, and this summer had compounded my string of wrong moves.

It started not too long ago, but at first I just thought it was one of those bad connection things. Little did I know that a bad connection would turn out costing me the couple hundred I thought I had saved.

Leaving the office the other day my car kind of grunted and grinded before it took off. Kind of like me early in the morning. But it started, and no other indications of major problems came about. It was business as usual with Toby and me.

Then trouble with a capital T struck last Monday afternoon when the ole boy balked completely, refusing to do anything but click his starter switch.

Not being mechanically minded, I figured it to be the battery or something of the sort. But after attracting a crowd of huge supporters, all about as good mechanically as myself, and after blocking the entrance of the restaurant, the car finally started.

A couple times after that, at Station Alpha where I do my best work, and here at work where I complain most about work, Toby simply refused to perform his sworn duty. But both times he took right off when assisted by a little wiggling of the battery cable.

I decided to take him to a professional, let them clean the necessary dirty parts, plug a tire, and cure all the ills. Ha! Not my luck

I ended up paying five bucks, and they ended up pushing me so I could

By now I've had enough, so I take Toby to a mechanic, leave him overnight, and go to sleep saying tommorrow will be a better day. For some odd reason I forgot who I was, thinking anything but bad luck would come this good ole boy's way

The following morning the mechanic tells me the starter has gone bad, the new one he ordered didn't come in, and why it will cost some $125 bucks when it finally does.

Foolish me, I thought a rebuilt starter would be somewhere in the neighborhood of $35 or so. "It would have." the mechanic says, "but on a model car this new, they just don't have rebuilt parts.

They, like me, feel that a car not two years experienced yet should still be youthful and productive instead of spending his prime years lounging around the garage.

"You don't have a warranty?" the mechanic asked.

'No." I answer. It just had a one year, 12,000 mile warranty on it.

"You could've got an extended warranty. I got one on my Ford truck and By now I'm really happy with this

If things weren't bad enough already ... here he is telling me I could've been covered for this if I hadn't been decisionally incompetent

I take a deep, soothing breath and say, "yeah, but if I had've bought an extended warranty then the so and so car wouldn't have torn up until the warranty ran out anyway.

He agrees, and says something about fixing the car as soon as he can. But all of this doesn't bother me in the slightest. You see, this is merely a typical week for me, and as they say, what goes around comes around."

If this is true, then someday I shall surely be the luckiest person on this planet. But just think, I could be George Bush or Michael Dukakis. Yes, maybe I am the luckiest person on the planet, along with everyone who isn't those two guys.

God bless America, we certainly will need it the next four years.

Western Kentucky, for basketball, and Oklahoma, for football, have also came under strong criticism lately for alleged athletic wrong doings

The Pittsburgh Pirates, trying to stay in the hunt for an NL East title, sent Mike Diaz to the Chicago White Sox for former Cincinnati Reds outfielder Gary Redus.

Redus, who was hitting .263 for Chicago, will add some much needed speed to the Pirate offensive attack, He was used in right field in his first starting appearance for Pittsburgh, Diaz, an outfielder-first baseman with power, rarely saw action this season for the Pirates, and was hitting .230 without a homerun and only five RBIs. Redus began his career with the Reds in 1982, and has also played for Philadelphia. He had 26 stolen bases for the White Sox.

Tough Tates Creek Downs * Blackcats 35-13 At Home

The Prestonsburg Blackcats face one of their toughest football schedules ever this season, and Friday night their fans received a first-hand peek at just how tough it might be.

The Blackcats, playing their season opener under first year coach Bill Letton, turned the football over with repeated frequency, and suffered defensive breakdowns often in losing to powerful Tates Creek, 35-13 at home.

"They were really good," Letton said of the state's seventh ranked 4A team. "They had a lot of quickness and they did a good job of utilizing it. But we didn't play that well, especially in the first half. We played better in the second half, though.

Prestonsburg, hampered by five interceptions, did not score until the fourth quarter, falling behind early and never catching up. Tates Creek took advantage of its quickness advantage, and benefited from several big offensive plays that ended up in the end

"We had talked about it last week, and we felt like we knew what they would try to do," Letton said. "We thought they wouldn't be as good a team if we made them work for their yards, make them grind it out."

"Well, they got five big plays, the ones they scored on, and that really was the difference in the game," he

Prestonsburg scored both its touchdowns in the final frame, one on a Dennis Smith 17-yard run, and another when Tim Trusty hit Danny Hamilton with a seven-yard touchdown pass. Trusty, a senior quarterback, completed 11 of his 27 passing attempts with the one touchdown, but threw five

'We feel that he'll be a good quarterback. He's got the size. He can see the whole field, and he's got a real quick release, but right now when the pressure's on, he tries to throw it into coverage instead of throwing it away or holding it," Letton said of his quarterback. "When he learns to do that, he'll be a much better quarterback

The Blackcats moved the football deep into Tates Creek territory several times, but each time was turned away without any points

'We got inside their 30 three times without scoring. We threw two interceptions, and once we got stopped on downs. We had our chances, but we couldn't get the job done," Letton said.

Trusty, Letton, and the Blackcat squad will have their opportunity to impress the home fans Friday night when they take on Lawrence County in Prestonsburg. Although the Bulldogs aren't considered to be in the same talent league as Tates Creek, Letton says his team might be in for another tough

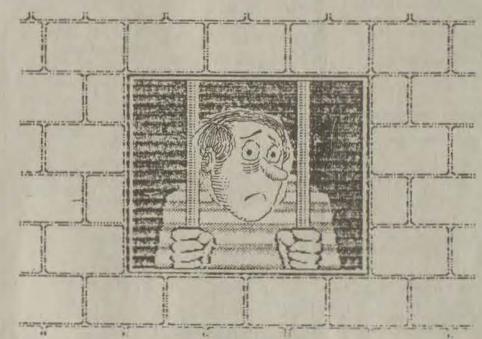

"I have heard that their defense is really good, and that their offense is adequate," he said Monday, "But they must be doing something right to put 22 points on the board.

Lawrence County defeated East Carter 22-6, last Friday to open its season on a successful note.

Prestonsburg, which hasn't been to the playoffs since the Kentucky High School Athletic Association re-aligned the districts following the 1985 season, will open its district play next Friday travelling to Whitesburg to take on a powerful Yellow Jacket squad.

Jackson A Guiding Light But Cincinnati Refuses To Follow

Despite the problems the Cincinnati Reds have faced this season, one thing the team has taken as assurance is a strong pitching performance every time Danny Jackson's turn comes to take the mound.

The Reds had just lost two of the three games in their weekend series against St. Louis, and had fallen short in three of their last five games. Monday night, although it may have been too little, too late, Jackson put a quick end to the Cincinnati skid

Cincinnati, trailing by nine and one half games and only a few losses from elimination for any pennant hopes, needed a lift. Who better to call upon than the guy they call their ace?

Jackson took to the hill, and when the final out was recorded he had again thrown the Reds to another win, a shutout victory over the Pittsburgh

Acquired from Kansas City in an offseason deal which sent shortstop Kurt Stillwell and pitcher Ted Power to the American League, Jackson has enjoyed tremendous success in setting down National League hitters this

The young lefthander, described as the hardest working player on the Cincinnati team by pitching coach Hal Breeden, limited the Pirates to only five hits as Cincinnati won 2-0.

Jackson, in going the distance, recorded his fifth shutout of the year, second best in the NL, and his 12th complete game. That leads the league in that category.

Jackson, 18-5, won his eighth game scoreless he lowered his earned run league's winningest pitcher.

Cincinnati, 63-60 heading into last night's game with the Pirates, scored its first run when Chris Sabo reached on an error and scored as Eric Davis collected a double. That run proved to be enough, but Jackson helped the Reds add some insurance in the seventh. The star pitcher singled with two out, and scored all the way from first on a Kal Daniels' infield hit, and a Barry Bonilla throwing error.

Daniels, with Jackson running on the pitch, tapped a bouncer to third with Jackson going on to third. When Bonilla's throw bounced into right field, Jackson came on around to score.

Doug Drabek, who had won his last seven decisions, suffered the loss for Pittsburgh. Drabek, 12-6, gave up seven hits and one earned run in eight innings of work.

Jackson improved to 8-4 on the road. His next start will come this weekend at Riverfront against St. Louis. Jackson has lost only once in 11 decisions at home.

Unfortunately for Reds' fans, the rest of the team hasn't exactly enjoyed the same type success, especially on the road, and the most recent road trip may have been the straw that broke their backs where winning a division championship is concerned.

Former Cincinnati pitcher Scott Terry, traded last season to St. Louis for lefthanded reliever Pat Perry, came back to haunt his former team by beating the Reds Sunday afternoon.

Terry, a right hander who was inserted into the Cardinals' starting rotain a row, and in holding Pittsburgh tion due to a rash of injuries to their staff, limited Cincinnati to five hits as average to 2.43. That's fourth best in the Reds fell 7-1. At 4-3, he has given the NL. His 18 wins makes him the up only one run in his last 20 and two-thirds innings of work, and got plenty of support in earning his first complete game of the season

The Cardinals, trailing East-leading New York by 16 games after winning a National League championship last year, scored four runs in the second and added three in the fourth to give Terry a big lead early.

Terry gave Cincinnati its lone run in the fourth when catcher Jeff Reed doubled home Nick Esasky, who had walked. The St. Louis pitcher drove in his team's first run of the game with a two-out infield single. Vince Coleman followed with a double to clear the bases, and give the Cardinals three more runs.

While Cincinnati was losing, Los Angeles was blanking Montreal 4-0 to go nine and one-half up on the Reds. and five and a half in front of Houston and San Francisco.

The Dodgers, who traded heavy hitting Pedro Guerrero to St. Louis in exchange for lefthanded starter John Tudor, had won nine of their last 10 games going into Monday's contest with New York.

Cincinnati, on the other hand, are six and four in their last 10 games. They lost once to Atlanta, which owns the worst record in Major League baseball, and again to Chicago before dropping two of the three in St. Louis.

The Reds recorded their only win of the series Saturday by beating St. Louis 6-2 as Tom Browning earned his 14th victory of the season. Cincinnati wraps up their three-game series tonight in Pittsburgh with a 7:35 contest, then returns home to open a weekend series with the Cardinals.

The two teams will hook up Friday night at 7:35, again Saturday night at 7:05, and conclude the series Sunday with a 2:15 game.

Cincinnati remains home Monday to welcome Pittsburgh into Riverfront Stadium for a three-game set before traveling to Chicago for three games, the final matchup the Reds will have this season against Eastern Division competition.

The Reds play their final 26 games against teams of the West, and included in that are six games with Los altered by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources commission.

Dove Season

The new dates for the fall season will be September 1-30, October 8-31 and December 1-6. The daily bag limit will be 15 doves and the possession limit is 30 after two or more days of hunting.

Shooting hours for doves are 11 a.m. until sunset for during the September and October portions of the season. Shooting hours during the December portion of the season are from sunrise to sunset.

Alterations were made in the season dates due to an error in the initial season proposal in June. The initial season recommendation was misleading to the commissioners who voted to remove 10 days from the October segment to accomodate the change from a 12 bird daily limit to a 15 bird daily limit. The new season dates also take advantage of the option to split the 60-day season into three segments, placing the season during the periods when the most doves are available.

Good News For Soccer Fans

One of the world's most popular sports, soccer is played in over 140 countries. In the United States alone, more than eight million boys and girls play the sport and participation grows daily.

Of particular good news for American soccer fans is that the United States soccer team has qualified for the 1988 Olympic Games and the U.S. was recently named as the host country for the 1994 World Cup.

In a move designed to increase interest and participation in youth soccer, Chiquita Brands, together with the U.S. Soccer Federation, officially announced its sponsorship of the sport. Activities will include sponsoring the Chiquita Soccer Challenge in autumn of 1988.

Developed in conjunction with the United States Soccer Federation, the competition incorporates the basic soccer skills of dribbling, passing, shooting, heading, ball control and running with the ball at speed. Competitions in these skills will be conducted among the children of several communities.

The company is also co-producing the first Federation-approved soccer skills instructional video. The 35-minute tape: Soccer Skills From Head To Toe: A Guide For Young Players And Their Parents, features U.S. World Cup and Olympic Team Captain Rick Davis. Davis instructs young soccer players in the skills necessary to succeed in the game and the importance of eating fresh fruit to stay on the ball.

In addition, the company will sponsor the under-12 championships conducted annually by the U.S. Soccer Federation. Ten to 12-yearold boys who've registered with the Federation, and belong to an organized league are eligible to enter the competition at this level.

DON'T LET WINTER TAKE YOUR HEATING BILLS

When temperatures take the plunge this winter, your heating bills needn't climb. Not if you're on Columbia's Budget Payment Plan.

The plan averages your bills into 12 equal payments, so there are no peaks and valleys because of the weather. Instead, the monthly amount stays the same...higher than you now pay in the summer, but a lot lower in the winter.

Rather than ups and downs, your gas bills stay on a smooth, even track all year 'round.

It's easy to be a Budget Payment customer, too. All you do is pay the "Budget Amount" on your August bill, and you'll be billed that amount every month. Your meter will continue to be read as usual, and each month's bill will continue to show the amount of gas you used. A review in March determines if your budget amount needs to be adjusted because of weather.

Another good idea: sign on for Checkfree too. It automatically makes your gas payment from your checking account each month, so you save time, postage and check charges.

Join the Columbia Budget Payment Plan. You'll take the ups and downs out of your heating bills...and leave the high cost of winter behind.

DRUGS' SUNNY SIDE

The medical community has done a very good job in making the public aware of the danger associated with exposing the skin to the sun. The cumulative effects of sun exposure upon the skin are accelerated aging of the skin, and an increased risk for skin cancer. The public has been quick to seize upon this information to prompt the use of sunscreen products. There is one circumstance. however, under which a sunscreen may not give adequate protection. Certain prescription medications carry a photosensitivity reaction which leaves the skin especially vulnerable to the sun's light. Certain oral antibiotics, for example, may cause the skin to burn, blister, and peel with just moderate exposure to sunlight. When taking any prescriptive drug, be sure to ask the physician about possible side effects.

COOLEY APOTHECARY is your local pharmacy that truly cares about you and your family. You will always find a registered pharmacist on duty to answer your questions as well as to fill your prescription needs quickly and accurately. Adams Returns To Pastor 1st Christian Church

In 1952, members of the First Christian Church located on Arnold Avenue near the high school called Hondel Adams to be their minister.

The church had its beginning in the old court house, with approximately 14 members. At that time, they had just purchased the property at 429 North Arnold Avenue, where the congregation presently meets. Now, 36 years later with a 100 percent favorable vote, the members have asked Adams to once again be their preacher.

A native of Johnson County, Adams was born at Van Lear in the days when it was a little boom town. He is the son of Lester and Marsha Adams, both deceased. His father worked for 26 years as an electrician and repairman in the Van Lear mines before he was elected sheriff of Johnson County. After his four years of service as sheriff he became a game warden in the Division of Fish and Wildlife

There were five children in the Adams family: Evelyn McClure, Beulah Selvage, Andy, John who is deceased, and Hondel. Andy, Beulah, and Andy now live in Johnson County.

Adams is married to Evelyn Doris May of Prestonsburg, a graduate of Mayo State Vocational School. For five and one-half years she served as secretary to the vice president in charge of operations of Kentucky-West Virginia Gas Company. She is resigning her present position as secretary in the Child Abuse and Neglect Coordinating Council in Roanoke, Va., where they now live. She is the daughter of Hager and Golda May. There are four children in the May family; Willie, Wayne, Wilkie (who lives in Irvine) and Evelyn.

The Adamses have two sons. Les Michael, 25, was selected two years in a row for Who's Who Among High School Students. He is now a senior at a business partnership with his father Johnson Bible College in Knoxville, Tenn., studying to be a youth minister Presently he is serving a summer internship as youth minister of the Morristown, Tenn. Christian Church.

Lance Mitchell, 21, is a graduate of Milligan College in Johnson City, Tenn He majored in accounting and minored in computer science. While at Taylor High School in Kokomo, Ind., he was inducted into the National Honor Society. He is now employed by Alban and Schultz Accounting Firm in Roanoke, Va. He will be making his home in the Roanoke Valley

During World War II, Adams spent three years in Marine Corps Aviation, serving as a ground crewman in The Fighting Wolfpack Squadron, VMF 112. The squadron trained six groups of pilots before he went overseas

After military service he entered into and older brother, John. They operated a combination grocery store and service station at Junction 23 and 460 near Paintsville. The partnership was dissolved when John was killed in an auto accident. Ashland Oil and Refining Company then hired him as a river terminal operator which was located in the heart of Nashville, Tennessee.

He is a graduate of Kentucky Christian College with additional work at Johnson Bible College.

His work has primarily been in new church evangelism. He has served churches in Kentucky, Ohio, Indiana. Virginia, Tennessee, and Michigan. In approximately 25 years, he went through six major building programs. This has given him considerable amount of experience in church growth and administration

For his own personal evaluation and interest he once took a survey of his congregation. The members (youth and adults) were asked to evaluate his sermons over a period of three months on the level of 1 through 10. The average for that period was 8.3

Adams has also written weekly religious articles for local newspapers besides putting out a weekly churchpaper, and has appeared regularly on radio, broadcast live Sunday night services over WHKK-FM Covington, and appeared on WLW-TV, "The Church Beside the Road.

He has been a member of the Lions Club and Kiwanis Club Adams is a member of the Powell County Drug Education Committee, and produced and edited an eight-page publication for box holders on drug use and abuse. In addition, he has developed a puppet ministry among youth. For the past three years they traveled approximately 2,000 miles each summer presenting musical and puppet programs. Occasionally he is asked to sing, using background tapes.

As an active camper, he organized and helped construct Scenic Hills Christian Service Camp near Mitchell,

Adams has served as the first vice president of a Christian benevolent organization. This group put together and developed the plans for Sayer Christian Village, an approximate $15 million nursing home and retirement village in Lexington. Along with four other preachers, he organized Southern Indiana Christian Missions (S.I.C.M.) an organization which has started several new churches. He has served as an officer in the Kentucky Christian Convention, Kentucky Christian Minister's Retreat, President of the Indiana Chapter of Kentucky Christian College Alumni, served on the Kentucky Christian College Council of 50, etc.

He will be moving to Prestonsburg the week of Aug. 29 and will begin his ministry the first week of September.

BIBLE ANSWERS TO YOUR QUESTIONS

WILL THE WORLD END IN 1988?

Only God, the Father, knows the answer to this question. The Bible is very plain concerning this. Matthew 24:36 says, "But of that day and hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels of heaven, but my Father only." Mark 13:32 states, "But of that day and that hour knoweth no man, no, not the angels which are in heaven, neither the Son, but the Father.

Therefore, only a fool would attempt to set a date for the end of the world. This has been born out time and time again throughout history as dates were set, came, and went without the event occurring.

The next event in God's calendar is the calling out of His church, the Body of Christ. Theologians call this the Rapture. (1 Thessalonians 4:13-18) The Rapture is also referred to as the Day of Christ, and does not appear in Old Testament prophecy. Hence, there are no prophesied events to be fulfilled before the Rapture. Therefore, the Rapture could occur at any time.

Because the Rapture could occur at any time, the wise person will prepare for it. Preparation consists of accepting Christ as one's Personal Savior by believing Jesus died, was buried, and rose again to pay the penalty for your sin.

Dear Reader, if you do not understand how to be saved, contact a Bible-preaching minister, a Christian friend, or write to the address below. Today is the day of salvation. We have no promise of tomorrow.

If you have a question to which you would like a Bible answer write: Ind. Christian Fellowship, General Delivery, Hunter, KY 41641

School-Community Partnerships Holds Promise for Floyd County Schools

The Floyd County School-Community Partnership Program began in July of 1985 as a sub-committee of the Floyd County Education Forum.

Even though it is now 3 years old, it is still new, because each new partnership project creates a new beginning for students, new interest in various academic directions for many elementary and high schools, new challenges for our teachers and new hope with a more promising future for our community

"There is really no limit to how much school-community partnerships can improve our educational system in Floyd County," said program officials. "During these projects, our schools enter into a cooperative agreement with a business or governmental agency to reach a predetermined motivational goal. This will, no doubt, develop more self-esteem, better morale, academic enthusiasm and recognition for our pupils and teachers. Now, that has to mean a big plus for Floyd County's future.

The group with the assistance of the business community and many teachers, sponsored writer's and author's workshops, a county-wide literary magazine program (high schools), a young author's program (elementary schools), a model bridge project, a teacher's mini-grant program and project STAY, a drop-out prevention program that involves students, teachers and the public. Several other projects are designed to recognize students and teachers. 'As more people become aware that our school-community partnership program has the integrity, sincerity and stamina to help bring students, teachers, administrators and parents together toward a common goal, Floyd County will surely be a better place in which to live," said officials.

If you have a innovative idea or time you can give, please call the projects coordinator, Dani Smith, at the Board of Education office (886-2354)

There will be several up-coming projects for which sponsors are needed.

BLHS Welcomes New Staff

'88-89', Betsy Layne High School's staff and teachers entered with a spirit of enthusiasm and determination to make the school year a success for its more than 800 enrolled students. One of the reasons for this enthusiasm was the positive spirit that was encouraged by BLHS's new principal, Adrian Bentley.

Bentley may be new to Betsy Layne, but he is a veteran in the Floyd County School system. In the past he has served as a teacher, a guidance counselor, an assistant principal and the assistant transportation director of our school system

As usual, in any first days of school, there were a few snags to overcome. Both an English teacher and a math teacher resigned shortly before the school year began. However, both positions were filled within the week. Bonnie Hall, a learning disability behavior, disorder and English teacher who formerly taught in the Pike County school system, filled the position of English teacher. The math position was taken by Russell Gilreath, who is not only a qualified mathematics teacher, but is also certified to teach

The physics class, which was dropped from the '87-88' school schedule, will now be added to this year's schedule. This gives a boost to Betsy Layne's college preparation program.

Other additions to the BLHS staff are Charles "Chuke" Williams, former football coach of Prestonsburg High School, and Ruth Patterson, former special education instructor also from Prestonsburg High School.

Betsy Layne welcomes back an old friend and respected teacher. Billie Jean Osborne. She has returned after a short three-year retirement. Although still in retirement status, Osborne will be lending her organizational and teaching expertise for approximately one semester. She is filling in the vacancy left by former music instructor Darrell Clark

Osborne, who has always and still does work hard for the Betsy Layne community, says that she can't believe that she is back in the classroom, but is enthusiastic about Betsy Layne and is looking forward to whatever she can do in making year '88-'89 a great

Floyd County Education Attacks Drop-out Problem

System, in cooperation with the community, has decided to take a stand against the dropout problem in Floyd County, according to Gary Frazier. assistant superintendent.

To lower the Dropout Rate, four programs have been established in Floyd County: The TOUCHDOWN program at Prestonsburg High School, The STAY program (which is countywide), Dropout Prevention program at Betsy Layne High School and PALs program at Allen Central High School.

The TOUCHDOWN program at Prestonsburg High School was developed around a theme called ADOPT (Appalachian Dropout Prevention Outreach Program Team The purpose of the program is to build a community support system for the student. The coordinator of the program has two jobs. The first to provide direct services for the students; the second is to be responsible for building school and community support for encouraging school completion.

Several program objectives have been established including improving attendance, raising grades, improving the self-image, and improving classroom behavior, said Frazier.

A second program, STAY, was established by the Floyd County Education Forum in cooperation with the Floyd County Board of Education. STAY (Students Teachers And You) calls for a three-objective strategy to confront the dropout problem. The first objective is to develop public awareness campaigns using the different types of media and developing programs tailored to each school. The second objective is to develop programs geared toward 9th and 10th grade to provide counseling and other

The Floyd County Education support mechanisms for students, as well as career planning. The last objective develops a referral and support system in the schools to identify at-risk students, so that group and peer counseling may be provided.

The third program, Dropout Prevention at Betsy Layne High School, focuses mainly on tutoring and counseling. The teachers, principal and guidance counselor give referrals to the tutor/counselor at the school. The tutor/counselor then meets with the teachers to develop a strategy to help the student. He or she tutors, advises and counsels each student in his or her weak area

The PALs program at Allen Central is a program focusing on tutoring. A student is given one-on-one tutoring by another student during supervised study hall hours.

'It is the hope of the Floyd County Education System and the Community that these four programs, working in cooperation with each other will change the dropout problem we have in Floyd County. Thus helping improve the quality of education our children receive, "said Frazier.

If you would like to become involved in one of these programs please contact Judy Burchell, 886-0088; or Dani Smith, 886-2354.

Wheelwright Students Exhibit Work At Berea College

"I felt like a celebrity. People were asking me for my autograph," Amy Payne, a senior at Wheelwright High School, said in describing a trip that she and two other students (Lisa Mitchell and Shawn McKenzie) made to Berea College on June 21 to display their magazine Mantrip.

The event was sponsored by the Eastern Kentucky Teachers Network, which was formed by Eliot Wigginton. the founder and editor of the Foxfire series in Georgia, to encourage innovative approaches in education. The students from Wheelwright were among 50 network teachers and students who displayed their work in the Alumni Building on the Berea College campus. Two hundred people, including representatives from the State Department of Education, a writing program at the University of Louisville

"It really pleased me to see other people admiring the work that our students have done. You couldn't help but feel important," Doris Osborne. one of the teachers from Wheelwright, said. She and her husband, Denver Osborne, accompanied Delores Woody and her husband to Berea along with the students. Delores Woody is one of the sponsors of the magazine Mantrip. which the school has been producing since 1985. The magazine is based on interviews that the students do with the older residents of the community about the history of Eastern Kentucky. Occasionally, the magazine features interviews with artists, writers, and vounger members of the area. Both Denver and Doris Osborne have been interviewed for the magazine by the students at Wheelwright. Currently, and various state officials, gathered to the magazine is being sold to residents

In addition to their own work, the teachers and students from Wheelwright displayed that of other Floyd County students. The winning books from last year's Young Authors competition in the county were displayed and created a greal deal of interest. Other projects from the county's writing program were also featured such as the video produced by Bud Reynolds' eighth grade class at Martin, Thelma Spears' magazine at Betsy Layne called Along the Big Sandy, the county literary magazine Mountain Magic, and Hills and Hollows, a magazine put together by the students of Dennye Layne at of about 18 states outside of Kentucky.

Harold Elementary. 'There were people lined up to see our display," Delores Woody said.

Harold Elementary, Lois Tackett at

Betsy Layne, and Janice Newman at

"People were impressed with the quality of the work done by the students.

The display from Wheelwright included a photography exhibit dealing with the history of the town. The students along with Denver Osborne and Lloyd Woody found themselves answering questions about mining.

'Some of the men told us that they didn't have any idea what coal mining was like until they saw some of the photographs that we took with us,' Doris Osborne added.

Two teachers from Floyd County. Willie Elliott of McDowell High School and Bud Reynolds of Martin Elementary, took part in the two-week Foxfire workshop at Berea this summer. They and their students will be eligible to apply for grants from Foxfire to begin projects this year at their schools.

Mountain Folk Contribute To Country Music

By Trisha Morris, PCC Librarian

In the past two decades, observers of the country music scene have witnessed the rise of the Nashville sound rockabilly, country pop and the explosive popularity of such performers as Willie Nelson and Dolly Parton, but only some remember that to the early mountaineer, shut off by high mountains and bridgeless steams, music was what he and his family could sing or play to fill their simple lives.

Mountain folk sang their ballads at the plow, the spinning wheel and beside the baby's crib. The following books from the PCC library celebrate the history of country music.

Country Music, U.S.A., by Bill Malone. A well-known name in music literature, the author claims his book is "the result of 23 years of research, much travel and lots of picking and singing." It's not hard to believe this claim when you see the size of the volume and examine the depth of its coverage.

Autry, Jimmie Rodgers, Hank

Williams and Ernest Tubbs to Conway Twitty, Hank Williams, Jr. and Ricky Skaggs, this work spans country music from the advent of the little battery radio that invaded the peace and isolation of the mountain cabin to the concert halls of Nashville, Tenn.

Concentrating on country music as it was performed on commercial airways, Malone attempts to prove his theory that "country music is not merely a fact of Southern culture, but is also Southern culture's chief

Sang Branch Settlers, by Leonard Roberts. From 1951 through 1955, Dr. Roberts gathered a collection of folksongs and stories from a single Kentucky family. The Couch family had grown and made its many homes in Harlan and Leslie counties for over a century. Leonard Roberts, a native of Floyd county, was director of the Appalachian Studies Center at Pikeville College when he put this book together. It is an outstanding legacy from someone who devoted much of his life to the survival of our regional music and

Radio's Kentucky Mountain Boy, by Loyal Jones. This is the story of Bradley Kincaid, one of radio's all-time great country singers, with 50 of the songs that endeared him to millions of Kineaid came into many a mountaineer's home from the Grand Old Opry by way of a battery powered radio. During his career he issued a baker's dozen of songbooks, made hundreds of appearances, brightened many a radio listener's lonely hours and, in 1950, retired to manage a music store in Ohio. Brought back to Kentucky by the author to serve on a Traditional Music Committee at Berea College, Kincaid not only agreed to the seat but broke his career's silence by singing at the first festival.

This book is an affectionate tribute to an appealing musician. Jones is the director of the Appalachian Studies Center at Berea College.

Lily May: A Legend in Our Time, by Kenneth Hull. In the early years of this century, Saturday night was reserved for the National Barn Dance coming from Chicago's NBC radio station. Lily May Ledford won a contest from her banjo playing and ballad singing and made her first appearance on the show on Sept. 15, 1936. She joined such raising stars as Gene Autry, George Gobel and Red Foley to become the lead singer of the Coon Creek All Girl String

A wonderful little spiral bound book, Lily May is full of black and white photos of the personalities who were the first stars of a raising genrecountry music. Complete with the words to many obscure songs, the biography takes the Coon Creek Girls from the National Barn Dance to the famed Renfro Valley Barn Dance where they performed with Homer and Jethro, the Kentucky Brier Hoppers, Merle Travis and the Blue Mountain

Watermelon Wine, by Forye Gaillard. Most country writers write what they feel or what they see or hear. Tom T. Hall wrote "Watermellon Wine" from a real happening, and Rusty Kershaw wrote "That Don't Leave Much Time to Fool Around" from the central reality of his own life. It is this potency of real life in country music that likely accounts for its popularity.

Because of this growing popularity. country music found itself in a tug-ofwar between commercialism and creativity. Nowhere has this been more bitterly fought than within Nashville's Grand Ole Opry. That's where this book begins-with the people and the stories that made that venerated institution, From Sam MGee, Hank Snow, Johnny Cash, Loretta Lynn, Dolly Parton, Merle Haggard and many, many more—they are all in this book-their stories and often candid shots that go beyond the usual publicity-posed prints. With the lyrics of 55 of the most representative songs of the genre, this book is a treasure trove to the fan.

Kentucky Country, by Charles Wolfe.

Kentucky can be proud of its contribution to country music. It has produced more stars than any other state except Texas, has seen four Kentuckians-Bill Monroe, Grandpa Jones, Red Foley and Merle Travis—elected to the Country Music Hall of Fame; it has produced master fiddlers like Ed Haley, Doc Roberts and Kenny Baker. There are many theories for this great contribution to the field. One is that the mountains and highlands acted as a "giant cultural deep freeze" preserving the old songs of their Celtic-Scotch heritage. Another theory is that Kentucky is where the ballad hunters concentrated their searches. What ever the reason, the national attention that was lavished on its folk music encouraged later commercial country music in the state.

With lot of pictures and history concentrating on Kentucky, this book is a good addition to a collection of music literature. Bill Monroe once said, "There's a lot of good music up there," in referring to his native state. This books tells why, gives homage to its makers and preserves its history.

Records and Tapes: Besides reading about country music, you can also listen to it. The library has a collection of records and tapes which inclue "The Best of the Carter Family," "The Earl Scruggs Revue," "The World of Flatt and Scruggs" and many, many more.

A Father's Prayer

By Gen. Douglas McArthur

Build me a Son, O Lord, who will be strong enough to know when he is weak and brave enough to face himself when he is afraid; one who will be proud and unbending in honest defeat/ and humble and gentle in victory/ Build me a son whose wishbone will not be where his backbone should be - a son who will know thee - and that to know himself is the foundation stone of knowledge/Lead him, I pray, not in the path of ease and comfort, but under the stress and spur of difficulties and challenge/ Let him learn to stand up in the storm, here let him have compassion on those who fail/ Build me a son whose heart will be clear, whose goal will be high; a son who will master himself before he masters other men; one who will lear n to laugh yet never forget how to weep.

A builder built a temple/ He wrought it with grace and skill/ Pillars and stones and arches/ All fashioned to work his will/ Men said as they saw its beauty/ it shall never know decay/ Great is thy skill, O Builder/ Thy fame shall endure for aye/ A mother built a temple/ With loving and infinite care/ Planning each arch with patience/ Laying each stone with prayer/ None praised her unceasing efforts/ None knew of her wondrous plan/ For the temple the mother builded/ Was unseen by the eyes of man. Gone is the builder's temple/ Crumbled into dust/ Low lies each stately pillar/ Food for consuming rust/ But the temple the mother built/ Will last while the ages roll/ For the beautiful unseen temple/

TUCKER: THE MAN AND HIS DREAM (PG - Paramount) Starring Martin Landau, Joan Allen and Jeff Bridges.

By J.T. YURKO

Preston Tucker, the hero of Francis Ford Coppola's new film, "Tucker: The Man and His Dream, was a dreamer who had the imagination, perseverance and charm to turn his dream into a reality.

His imagination fer-mented the idea of the Tucker, a streamlined car that would incorporate features formerly seen only on racing cars - disc brakes, a pop-out wind-shield and seat belts. His perseverance was inexhaustible. Designing a new car on paper is one thing; turning the design into sheet metal and wheels is quite another. Tucker simply went out and got what he needed with the flair of a carni-val barker and the audacity of a high-wire walker without a net. But the most effective tool in his kit was his charm. With a grin broad-er than the front of a Buick he would pat his colleagues on the back and convince them that they could do the impossible. They nearly did.

Coppola renders his portrait of Preston Tucker with similar innovation and charm. Rather than presenting a heavy handed history of Tuck-er's rise and fall at the hands of the Big Three automakers, Coppola keeps the tone light and jocular. Even the film's premise is an elaborate pun: "Tucker" is presented as an industrial film made by the Tucker publicity department. And Coppola's depiction of that film's director (played by Don Novello, a.k.a. Father Guido Sarducci), is delightfully tongue-in-cheek.

Such a light hand works enormously well in presenting what is actually a tragic tale of bigbusiness collusion and industrial homicide.

Coppola's camera has never been better, swirling through lavish sets, shooting most scenes in a lush, sepia glow. The effect created is 1940s nostalgia - the half-light of what Tucker thought was the dawn of a era.
"Tucker" is compelling, well-crafted and, with a very engaging Jeff Bridges in the title role, potent and pleasurable.

'Peck — His Own Man' is a self-serving program

By Denise Gorga

Jane Fonda calls him a "strong survivor." Lauren Bacall remembers "strong him as a "beautiful creature - enough to sweep any girl off her feet.

The subject of these leading ladies' largesse is Gregory Peck, subject of the latest installment of Cinemax's "Crazy About the Movies" series.

Gregory Peck

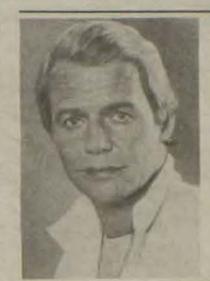

"Gregory Peck - His Own Man," which airs Sunday, Aug. 28, is an aptly titled program. The one-hour documentary consists of interviews and film clips and voice-overs by the 72-year-old actor. Because Peck pre-sumably hand-picked the interviewees and supervised the program's content, its profuse praise of his craft and career ring more than a little hollow.

This veneer of self-promotion notwithstanding, Peck does admit at times to being human, fallible. He describes his decision to abandon the stage and become a "picture actor," and criticizes his stilted portrayal of a missionary in his second film, "Keys of the Kingdom" (1944): 'When I look back at it, I see a very skinny, very severe young man," he says. "But I'm here to tell you that sincerity is not enough." Peck concludes that his performance lacked the "salt and pepof more, er, seasoned actors.

"Gregory Peck - His Own Man" does have its moments, such as when Peck recalls producer Darryl Zanuck's dictum that "Women hate moustaches on men," which did little to dissuade female moviegoers from swooning over a mustachioed Peck in "Twelve O'Clock High" (1949). And it includes one anecdote that has been told before, but is worth repeating: Audrey Hepburn's recollections of the famous Bocca della Verita ("mouth of Verita ("mouth of truth") scene in "Roman Holiday" (1953). Peck inserts his hand into the mouth of the famous fountain (which legend says will sever the limb of anyone who tells a lie), fibs outright, and draws his handless arm out of the mouth, only to reveal that he had pulled his hand up his sleeve before withdrawing it. The gag was not in the script: Peck ad-libbed it. "The scream I let out was good and proper," Hepburn recalls.

You might want to scream after watching Peck's predictable litany of accomplishments. But unlike Hepburn, you've been warned.
