Speaking of and for Floyd County

The Floyd County Board of Education chose not to terminate Transportation Director Ed Patton Monday night, instead opting to reprimand him for alleged insubordination and violation of state bid

The action concluded a due process hearing that took 13 hours and three meetings to complete.

"Next to God and family, your reputation is the most important thing you can possess. I'll do everything I can to fight that (the reprimand) — I'll do anything I can legally to try and do away with it."

Patton said he felt the board's vote vindicated him, and added that the reprimands were uncalled for

Patton said he would look into having the letters removed from his personnel file in the next two weeks, and will ask the board and superintendent to reconsider.

Hager said state personnel had cited 18 areas of non-compliance with state codes for the facility, adding that all were "not significant." According to Cotton, the plans Firefighters responded to a call from night security officer Glenn Holbrook, who reported the building to be "full of some type of gas," according to fire department reports. The potential for explosion was great, said Fire Chief Tom Blackburn, because four tanker trucks loaded with ammonia nitrate were parked next to the building. Nitrate is highly explosive when mixed with water.

Many speakers told panel members that rural homelessness cannot be remedied in the same manner as urban homelessness. As noted by Jessen, Eastern Kentucky homeless do not want to leave their land and move into project housing.

Several of those who addressed the panel said public-subsidized housing is insufficient, and many told of waiting lists of six months or hundreds of families.

Editorial

Ed Patton, Floyd County transportation director, is still an employee of the local school district.

The Floyd County Board of Education voted unanimously Monday to retain Patton, despite 17 allegations of violations of bid laws and insubordination brought against him by Superintendent Ron Hager.

Patton will be reprimanded for the supposed violations, and the letters placed in his personnel file.

So, after nearly 13 hours of testimony. Ed Patton is still employed by the local district.

But why should he want to be? School officials have taken a man commended by the state for doing a fine job, a man who has saved the district thousands of dollars, and flailed away at his good name with a lengthy list of flimsy and capricious allegations of wrong-doing.

If, after inspecting purchasing records, the district could find only one $43 overcharge in the last year. we think Mr. Patton is to be commended: after all, he oversees a budget of more than $1 million.

to contact more than 100 bus drivers over a single weekend, Mr. Patton "only" contacted 80, we think he is to be commended. If ever he should have been guilty of insubordination. it should have been that weekend - but he wasn't, and he did his best to follow Hager's direc-

We would like to set forth the following ideas as food for thought for Floyd County residents:

As the hearing progressed, it became apparent that the local district has severe management problems; often, neither administrative personnel nor employees know who is responsible for what. The district's entire management system needs to be re-evaluated, restructured, and set

If, after being directed by Hager forth clearly so that all concerned understand and know their duties.

As best we can determine, Mr. Patton's department was the only one that was subjected to a microscopic review for wrong-doing. One shouldn't selectively enforce the law, so we recommend officials investigate all other departments in the same manner; let the chips fall where

- If the board is determined to correct wrongs, we suggest that they begin with some exemplary documentation provided to them by the state management team in 1985. Why, after nearly a dozen schools were cited — not for failing to utilize the lowest bid, but for not bidding items at all - did the board not terminate those administrators? After all, the board that reviewed Mr. Patton's case is the same board that was Then-superintendent Pete Grigsby sent a memo to all school purchasing personnel following the state's 1985 report, directing them to purchase the lowest-bid product. Interestingly enough, the board voted Monday night to do the same thing. Obviously, the system is not working. What was wrong three years ago is still wrong today.

- The district's policy manual is in the process of being updated. It was last updated in 1974, about 14 years ago. Unfortunately, educators in this district have never had any input into the policies that govern their work environment. After the current codification process is complete, we'd like to see the local board invite teachers to review policies. make suggestions and recommenda-

- Last but not least, we ask this question: Why does the district have a $1.6 million "other" category (primarily for salaries, we've been told), while parents and businesses sponsor fund raising activities to purchase computers and other instructional supplies for our children? With a $23 million annual budget, you'd think that our funds would be better spent

Letters to the Editor

Teachers Oppose Mann's Viewpoint

Dear Editor:

We would like the opportunity to respond to the lady "on the warpath" from Tomahawk.

Mrs. Mann, your prejudice is showing! Stereotypes are dangerous when used to legitimatize discriminations. You did this when you blamed teachers of this area for "consistently under-educating our children for years and years.

It is too bad you don't understand the many variables involved with leaching and learning. Just how many students are in your daughter's classes at her "private" school? Are you not, indeed lining those teachers' pockets?

As for testing, it has been estimated that there may be over 120 different kinds of intelligence. Do you know of any test that could accurately measure all of that? All educators are taught and told repeatedly never to judge anything on one test. Yet, this is exactly how we are judged, by our students' results on tests such as the KEST and CTBS, the latter of which is definitely culturally biased.

For those who insist on equating excellence with test scores. Prestonsburg High School does well. Our high school has had in the last three years four perfect ACT scores. Our seniors last year had the highest KEST scores in this area. Prestonsburg High's 1988 senior class had a composite score of 19.1 in comparison to Kentucky's overall score of 18.3, and the nation's composite score of 18.7 on the ACT

We wish you could meet the great number of competent teachers in our system. They spend untold hours at their homes, for no pay, grading papers, preparing lessons, and working against all odds, to reach "little Johnny". We are often stymied by board policies, laws, and narrow-minded people looking for a scape-goat. Shame on you!

Student Supports Teachers' Pay Request

Dear Editor.

This letter is in support of the letter written by Phyllis Craft which appeared in the Nov. 23 issue of the Floyd County Times.

Craft said in her letter that a Shiela Mann, who wrote a letter to the editor which appeared in the Nov. 16 issue of the Times, apparently feels that the salaries of the teachers are "well-deserved." disagree with that 100 percent. Teachers work hard to educate the children and they are in the bottom 15 percent in salaries, while the administrators hardly do any work and they are in the top 25 percent in salaries.

Now imagine that you are a Floyd County teacher right now and you are getting paid pocket change and the administrators are getting the big bucks. Teachers are asking for two things. They want a raise and a better insurance policy.

Sincerely Michael Maynard Eighth grade student, Allen Elementary

Teachers Take Issue With Reader's Comments

This letter is in response to Sheha Mann's letter to the editor in the Nov. 16 issue expressing the desire to have her child educated in a private school due to a shortage of professional teachers in public schools.

It is the consensus of the majority of Kentuckians that we have a competent group of educators. If all members of the general public were financially capable of contributing the funding to public schools that is required for private tuition, there would be no shortage of working materials and large class sizes.

The teachers in this Commonwealth have a reason to be upset with the funding levels of education, and the poor excuse for health insurance that was forced upon them. In most areas of the workplace-professional and non-professional-everyone should be rewarded for a year's experience. Teachers were given a 2 percent raise, the benefits package for health insurance took that and more, leaving a deficit toward for one year of dedicated work

Mann seems to blame teachers for the problem in public education, when in actuality, teachers have no voice in policy-making or curriculum planning. This is left to state and local politicians.

Parents tend to view teachers and the public schools as the answer to all problems confronting today's children, when common sense dictates this must be a concerted effort that also involves parents and the community at-large.

It would interest us to know if Shelia Mann was educated in private schools or public schools. By the word 'clients' we would assume she is a professional. Was she a private school graduate?

Report to Kentucky

SENATOR WENDELL FORD

I was in Owensboro recently for the opening of the 1988 burley tobacco sales, and I have hopes for a good crop. Burley production for Kentucky is forecasted to be up 11 percent over last year, due largely to significantly increased yields, projected near 2200 pounds per acre.

Reports indicate that despite early drought conditions, there were good moisture levels during the curing season in most parts of the State. Hopefully this will translate into high quality leaf on the auction floor and good returns for our farmers.

Now that the pool has been dramatically reduced, this year's inhealthy new trend. It seems that we the tobacco industry. are finally turning the corner

Without question, the continuing development of export markets will crease should be the beginning of a be the key to the long-term health of

H.B. Flack's eyes light up when he holds the metal Army spoon that helped save his life on a French battlefield in 1918.

The spoon, he said, was in his uniform pocket, in front of a copy of the New Testament. A German bullet chipped a piece out of each side of the spoon and lodged in the Bible, a fraction of an inch from Flack's chest

Flack and Crisp, both in their 90s.

Felix Crisp of Allen, was presented are among the oldest living military hospital in Toule, France, and then Later he worked in logging, coal veterans in Floyd County. Though they left the service 23 years before the Pearl Harbor incident, they exemplify American military valor, said Akers.

Flack, who will be 93 on Dec. 23, enlisted in the Army in his hometown of Lewisburg, W.Va. Soon sent to the front lines in France, he was wounded in his right arm and left leg, even though the potentially fatal bullet was stopped. He recuperated for a few weeks in a

After the "war to end all wars," Flack came to Eastern Kentucky 'to work in the mines, but I never worked in them." These days, he's pretty much confined to his house. Severe arthritis forces him to walk with crutches. He and his second wife, Maudie, have been married for 19 years.

After basic training, Crisp sailed

Blood Transfusions Must Be Available

When a patient at Highlands Regional Medical Center needs a blood transfusion, there is no substitute. Blood must be available. This is only possible if enough volunteers have donated recently with Central Kentucky Blood Center, according to an HRMC official.

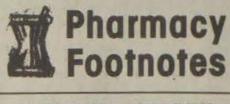

Hospital officials ask residents to donate at the blood drive on Wednesday, Dec. 7, from noon to 5 p.m., at the hospital in the Floyd Room.

Central Kentucky Blood Center will give a free U.K. t-shirt to all donors. For more information, contact Don Hicks, 886-8511.

DAV Service Officer To Visit Floyd County

Eugene Akers, Disabled American Veterans State Service officer, will be at the Betsy Layne Grade School Saturday, Dec. 10, and at the Prestonsburg Library Friday, Dec. 16, from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m.

Akers will be doing service work for widows and dependants of veterans.

ASKING THE RIGHT QUESTIONS

Recent surveys indicate that physicians and patients sometimes have difficulty in communicating with one another. As a result, a great many patients come away from the doctor's office without a clear idea about the medicines prescribed for them. Thankfully, the pharmacist stands ready to answer a patient's questions about medications at the time the prescription is filled. However, it cannot be stressed too strongly that patients should ask more questions at the time of their visits with doctors. Patients should ask the name of prescribed drugs. They should inquire about what it is supposed to do, and how it should be administered. Patients should also know about dietary or activity restrictions. They should take an active role in the doctor-patient relationship.

COOLEY APOTHECARY can provide you and your family with your total prescription needs as well as any over the counter remedies you require. Our entire staff keeps up to date on the latest developments in our industry. Complete patient profiles are maintained here at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-5.

HINT: It is not a sign of disrespect for a patient to ask questions of the doctor.

One of the main areas covered by the audit will have to do with fund raising activities, and uses of those monies at individual campuses. In addition, course offerings will be covered, and recommendations made on the basis of the team's fin-

The entire audit is not negative, according to Gordon Nickles, press spokesman for Brock. "There will be recommendations that will list steps taken recently by the board to clean up past questionable areas," said Nickles.

Results of the audit will be presented to the State Board of Education at its meeting in January.

The audit was the first in Kentucky. Curriculum audits have been done in several other states, said

"I think it is one of Dr. Brock's hopes that these types of curriculum audits will become a major factor in improving the instructional programs of schools in the state," Nickles said. "It will go well handin-hand with the management assistance program."

The management assistance program, which is also being done in Floyd County, is a review of the district's financial condition.

The state has been offering some technical assistance to Floyd County officials through the management assistance program, accreditation activities and from the School Improvement Act.

Members of the audit team, other than Betty Steffey, included Raymond Melton, director of the National Academy of School Executives of the American Association of School Administrators: Fenwick English and John Hill, professors of education at the University of Cincinnati: Steven Henderson, associate superintendent for instruction for the state department; and Kay Freeland, director of curriculum in the state department.

Nickles said he felt the national team provides more credibility to the report, noting, "It's not just the state doing it. No one is favoring one side or the other. The audit team has looked at some of the best school systems in the nation, and it has looked at some of the worst. They have no vested interest anywhere (in this area)."

ny Wiley State Park, Prestonsburg, to elect interim officers and to recruit members for a newly-formed chapter of the Kentucky Association of State Employees (KASE)

Interim officers elected were Chairperson Ron Hayes of Paintsville; vice-chairperson Norma Jean Boyd of Harold; treasurer Bonnie Campbell of Prestonsburg; and secretary Karen Lochner of Salyersville. Two members were chosen to represent the chapter on the state board of directors; they are Russell Chandler and Ron Hayes, both of Paintsville.

Approximately 65 state employees attended the meeting to hear Charles B Wells, KASE Eastern Kentucky field representative, discuss such state employee issues as the new health insurance plan and the loss of the annual 55 percent cost of living increment to state employees.

According to Wells, "Finally, state employees in Eastern Kentucky will be given the same representation in the legislature and in the workplace as state employees in the rest of the state." Wells also stated, "State employees must work together through an organization like the Kentucky Association of State Employees to solve such serious problems as the recent reduction in health care

Elderhostel Held

Senior citizens enjoy round of dancing during recent Elderhostel at May Lodge.

· Senior Citizens From Nation Join In Elderhostel Activities

dose of Eastern Kentucky hospitality last week as they participated in an Elderhostel, co-sponsored by Jenny Wiley State Resort Park and Prestonsburg Community College.

The Elderhostel participants came from as far away as Los Angeles, Calif., and Maryland's Eastern Shore to attend classes, meet new people and get acquainted with the area.

The local program was part of the national Elderhostel program which focuses on college level instruction and activities for persons over 60. This was the third Elderhostel presented by PCC and the park.

Unlike most Elderhostels, where seniors stay in college dormitories and eat in campus cafeterias, the local program featured accomodations at May Lodge and meals in the park dining hall. "Luxurious" was the word most often used by the Elderhostelers to describe their living arrangements.

which lasted from Sunday until Friday, included "Art and Literature in Appalachia" and "The Changing Nature of Presidential Elections.' Daily instruction in square dancing was also on the agenda.

PCC faculty presenting the courses were assistant librarian Trisha Morris, art professor Tom Whitaker, history professor Dr. Tom Matijasic and political science professor Bob McAninch. Lots of discussion and no tests were key features of the courses.

A Wednesday field trip included stops at PCC's new art gallery for a look at an exhibit of Whitaker's work, a visit with noted author James Still at Hindman Settlement School and a tour of Appalshop in Whitesburg.

Other activities included a Christmas concert by the PCC Community Chorus, a singalong led by Kevin and Ronna Yeager, a talk on local politics by businessman Henry and Blake Barker. An evening was also set aside for the participants to demonstrate and share their hobby

For John and Addelle Schmick of Preston, Md., this was their 31st Elderhostel in eight years. Jesse and Claire Baron of Los Angeles picked this for their first Elderhostel experience. "If this is typical, it won't be our last," said Baron. The Californians planned a tour of southern Appalachia following the Elderhostel.

Vernon and Betty Riggenbach of Wooster, Ohio, were making a repeat visit. They also attended last year's Elderhostel at the park. We're hoping to fail square dancing," Betty joked last Friday, "so we'll have to come back.'

The next Elderhostel program, which will focus on the area's coal industry, is planned for Feb. 26 to Call toll free 1-800-346-4066

Legislative Perspective

Rep. Gregory D. Stumbo House Majority Floor Leader

In the November election, a majority of Kentuckians indicated their support for a statewide lottery. It is now the responsibility of the General Assembly to create appropriate and effective legislation establishing the best lottery system possible. And, because the people of the Commonwealth want a lottery, we are obligated to give them an efficient money-making endeavor.

Although lawmakers would have liked a longer period of time to study the bill proposed by the Governor's Lottery Commission before going into a special session, I am confident that most legislators are well prepared to make knowledgeable decisions as the lottery has been an issue before several prior Legislatures.

In an introductory joint session of the special General Assembly, the Governor indicated to legislators a willingness to compromise concerning his proposed legislation. He told us that the lottery should be "free from politics, free from unnecessary influence and free from corruption."

During the week, members of the House Committees on State Government and Appropriations and Revenue began indepth studies of bills pertaining to a lottery commission and the appropriation of revenue realized from a lottery. Representatives from several other states already running lotteries provided expert testimony to legislators and the chairman of the Governor's

The House Appropriations and Revenue Committee, in the meantime, looked at the Governor's specific recommendations for lottery revenue expenditures. A onetime Vietnam-era veterans' bonus, early childhood development programs and programs for the elderly are all proposed recipients of the lottery proceeds

It has been estimated by some sources that the lottery could produce more than $70 million annually for Kentucky coffers. Other independent estimates have been significantly more conservative. Members of the Appropriations and Revenue Committee said the Vietnam bonus to veterans could cost as much as $50 million.

The Governor has recommended that program expenditures for the elderly include home care-$8 million-a prescription-drugs program-$13 million, and adult day care-$2 million, for a total of $23

Early-childhood education and development programs would include an expansion of Medicaid eligibility to pregnant women and infants-$4 million, model pre-school projects and development programs-$16 million, a well-child program-$2 million for a total of $22

Members of the House Committee on Appropriations and Revenue voted to pass over the appropriations bills and approve a recommendation to place the proceeds of the lottery in a special, interest-bearing trust fund until the 1990 regular session of the Legislature. At that time, when a clear idea is available of how much revenue the lottery will produce, a final decision on how the money will be spent can be made.

I anticipate a committee vote on the lottery bill in the House State Government Committee this week.

Patton Retained By Board

Patton's attorney, Ned Pillersdorf of Prestonsburg, said he and his client did not attend Monday's hearing because they "saw no point in being there.'

Pillersdorf said he was not happy with the verdict.

"I thought that the whole situation was outrageous. On one hand, you have a board of education that, for years, has been threatened with academic bankruptcy: then you have a department that has been cited and commended, and they want to fire this guy.'

Pillersdorf said he felt his threat of litigation in federal district court on civil rights grounds played a major factor in the board's decision not to terminate Patton.

"They kind of spinelessly backed down, and in doing so took a gratuitous shot at my client," said Pillersdorf, referring to the letters of reprimand.

He said he may still pursue other litigation on Patton's behalf. "Idon't think he should have been reprimanded for anything," said

Pillersdorf, "and we highly resent

Pillersdorf also said he felt media coverage by state and local newspapers, televisions and radio stations was another factor in the board's decision.

The public airing of these patently frivolous charges, with the media and public sitting there hearing them, caused the school board to back down from any idea of dismissing him. Public outrage had a real bearing on the outcome.

After Monday's meeting concluded, the board chairman, Dr. James Adams, refused to comment on the outcome. Likewise, board member "Shag" Campbell declined com-

"I think the superintendent had a job to do, and was doing the job he felt he had to do," said board member James Duff.

Dr. Mary Hall, also a board member, said she did not feel Patton was a scapegoat in the teachers' sickout, as the transportation director and Pillersdorf had alleged.

'I think it was probably poor timing," she said. Hall also denied having made a statement that Patton needed to "get in line" prior to the November election: Patton publicly supported Hall's opponent, Ricky Hamilton, Both Patton and Pillersdorf had contended that the attempt to terminate Patton was politically motivated.

Those words are not even in my vocabulary," said Hall. "If there had been any political vendettas, we would not have sat in there for 13

Hall said she did not feel enough facts had been presented against Patton to merit his dismissal.

"I'm glad it's over. I was as surprised as anyone when the superintendent recommended his dismissal," said Hall.

She said she was not aware of any investigation into other supervisory positions in the district, but reiterated there was no political base to the charges. "I have no vengeance against anyone who campaigned against me; lots of other school board employees did, too, so why should I single out one person?

"I think what we have done is really fair; there is only a reprimand,' Hall continued. 'I feel like Mr. Patton has done a real good job. I complimented him several times, and that's why I was disappointed by his allegations.

Hall said the threat of a federal lawsuit against the board had no effect on her decision.

District Superintendent Ron Hager said he was "neither elated nor dissatisfied" with the board's decision.

"I will, during my tenure as superintendent ... expect personnel to carry out the statutes," he said. "I will continue to actively look over the entire school district.

Hager noted that the district has a history of violations of bidding statutes, and added that he would not condone future violations.

"I want a better managment system for the school system. I want taxpayers' money to be expended for the intended purpose, that being the education of the youth of our school district," he said.

Scouts Participate In Food Drive

Floyd County Boy Scouts Collect Food For Area Needy

Americans go hungry, 4 million of which are children.

It was this recent statistic which prompted "scouting for food," a national good turn coordinated by the Boy Scouts of America and executed locally by Abbott Creek Troop No.

With assistance from "Pack 32 and Webelos Den 5, we collected 2,051 items," said assistant senior patrol leader Scott Young, "and all the food collected will stay right here in Floyd County," he added.

The troop was able to conduct this project before Thanksgiving, when the pantries need it the most. "In a final message to scouts, the founder of scouting challenged us to 'leave this world a little better than we found it',' said scoutmaster Johnnie Ross, "and I believe this project has done just that.

The Abbott Creek troop was not alone in their efforts, scouts all over America collected food to feed the hungry during Thanksgiving. While the figures are not yet tallied, local

An estimated 40 million scout leaders believe that it was scouts who made the difference in hunger in 1988.

The food collected by Troop 877 has been distributed to four local pantries. Mud Creek Clinic. Wayland, Drift and St. Vincent's

"With the help of the Floyd County Ministerial Association, we were able to provide each pantry with much needed items," said Ross, "and we could not have done it

Several local churches acted as drop-off points, the First United Methodist Church, the Community Methodist Church, First Presbyterian and St. James Episcopal Church.

In addition to the drop-off point, door-to-door collection netted approximately 1400 items. The food was collected door-to-door from along Arnold Avenue, Briarwood, Clark Subdivision, Mays Branch. Riverside Drive, Trimble Branch, Second Street and Highlands the project, the troop discussed opening an additional pantry on Abbott Creek," said Ross, "but problems with storage, distribution and management led us to the most logical choice." The scout oath instructs scouts to "help other people at all times," and this project certainly offered help to those hungry at a time when the spirit of Thanksgiving has touched us all.

The troop is sponsored by St. James Episcopal Church, who are "very proud of the scouts and their leadership," says Rector Doc Whittaker. "We're certainly lucky to have such a visable youth group active in our community," he added.

When asked if this project might become an annual event, Ross replied, "I can see no reason why it shouldn't, it certainly has been the best national good turn conducted in my nine years as scoutmaster. But that's a decision that must be made at the national office. It will certainly be my recommendation that this food drive by scouts continue.

Tax Amnesty Program, Revenue Cabinet warned this week

Tax Amnesty began Sept. 15 and ends at midnight Dec. 16. Following amnesty, Kentucky law requires the Revenue Cabinet to "vigorously pursue" civil and criminal penalties against taxpayer "for all taxes found to be due.

Response to the program mandated by 1988 legislation has been good, with 4,735 applicants thru Nov. 29 and $7.8 million in delinquent tax collections. Business and individual taxpayers in 41 states, Puerto Rico. and the District of Columbia have submitted payments ranging from fourteen cents to $198,000.

The cabinet is confident that the official estimate of $10 million for the fiscal year will be met and may be exceeded. An additional $10 million is estimated for next fiscal year from increased enforcement programs which begin Dec. 17.

The Revenue Cabinet emphasizes that delinquent taxpayers should take advantage of the tax amnesty program. This applies to taxpayers owing taxes to the Kentucky Revenue Cabinet for tax periods en-mons, 2; Flo Jervis, 1.

The Prestonsburg Lady Black Cats lengthened their record to 2-0 on the season Thursday night with a 50-39 win over Lawrence County.

With a huge 29-point performance from Karen Frazier, and a 13-point effort from Kathy Slone, the squad lifted the hopes of Coach Bridgett

"Karen had an outstanding game, to say the least," said Clay. "She hit 10 of 13 field goals, including two 3-point shots, and was seven of 10 at

The coach also had high praise for Kathy Slone, who hit key free throws late in the game to help the team

Stephanie Allen, who contributed five points in the win, blocked three shots in the second quarter that kept Prestonsburg in the game, said

"Flo Jervis, even though she only scored one point, came in during the fourth period and really sparked us. and did an outstanding job." Clay

The praise for her team is not excessive, in light of a good first period performance, followed by a bottomof-the-barrel second frame.

The Lady Black Cats outscored Lawrence County 17-14 in the opening eight minutes, but then scored only two points in the entire following period. Lawrence County tacked eight points onto its score, and held a 22-19 lead at intermission.

In the third frame, Prestonsburg outscored its opponent 17-8, but not without some difficulty

"We got behind about seven points, and had to make some adjustments," said Clay, "After that, they had a hard time stopping us.'

Prestonsburg went on to score 14 in the final period, while holding Lawrence County to nine, to take the 50-39 win.

Clay's team traveled to McDowell Tuesday night: scores were unavailable as of presstime. The Lady Black Cats will be off for the remainder of this week, but will play at least five games next week. They will begin with a Tuesday contest hosting Betsy Layne, and will face Sheldon Clark in opening round action of the Sheldon Clark Invitational Tournament on Wednesday, Dec. 14. According to Clay, the team will play at least one game Thursday in the round-robin tournament, and play up to two games their second game of the tournament to do it, but the Betsy Layne Bobcats emerged from the Boyd County Invitational Tournament in first place.

After defeating Greenup County 66-60 in their first game, Junior Newsome's squad settled into an allout shooting war against Boyd County, snatching victory from the host team in the final seconds of the fourth overtime.

"That was the first four-overtime game I've ever been involved in as a coach," said Newsome. "It was an exciting way to play our second game of the season, especially in a tournament. There was a district or regional tournament atmosphere."

Newsome noted that Boyd County is one of the better teams in the 16th Region, adding, "Our kids showed a lot of character. We got down four points with just a few seconds left to go in the fourth, and then tied the score. Keith Hall hit a 3-pointer and was fouled, and made the free throws to put us into overtime."

From there, the teams played evenly for the first three overtime periods. In the fourth, with only four seconds remaining and the squad down two points, Duran Newsome hit a 3-point attempt to lead his team to the one-point win. Although Boyd County had an opportunity for a final shot, the desperation attempt didn't go, and Betsy Layne came away with the hard-fought win.

Although the victory put the Bobcats in first place, they went on to the round-robin tournament. They defeated the squad handily, 60-32, primarily on the strength of a 22-8 lead by the close of the first period.

It Took Four OT's, But

"We got out to a big lead at the end of the first quarter, and kept playing consistently throughout the game, said Newsome. "Ashland just wasn't able to catch up.

Giving credit where credit is due, Newsome noted that Ashland has a young team, compounded by coming off football playoffs. He said some players had seen only one week of practice. "They'll be a better team down the road, and we have to play them again in early February," he

In the Bobcats' first game of the tournament, they defeated Greenup County, 66-60, placing four players in double figures. Newsome led with 16, followed by Keith Hall and Barry Hamilton with 13 each, and Sam Stewart with 12.

"It was a hard-fought game. Greenup County is second in their region, and they are a big. physical team. Fortunately, we came out on top," said Newsome

It was a typical first game for both teams, said the Betsy Layne Coach. with plenty of turnovers and jitters for each club.

Lady Rebs' Win Over Combs Clinched By Wallen's 3-Pointer

The Allen Central Lady Rebels opened their season with a win over Dilce Combs Wednesday, 59-57, with Stephanie Wallen setting what may be a school record in the rebounding department

According to Coach Bonita Compton, Wallen hauled down 11 defensive and five offensive rebounds for a total of 16 - more than any other player in Compton's four-year stint as women's head coach.

Teaming with Wallen in the win was Stacy Moore, who hit a 3-point attempt with eight seconds remaining in the overtime contest to pull the Lady Rebs to victory.

First-game jitters were abundant. and Allen Central came out slow, trailing Dilce Combs 14-10 at the close of the first period. In the second frame, the Lady Rebs got back on track, scoring 16 points and holding Dilce Combs to only five.

"We settled down some," said Compton. "The team was nervous, and we got into some foul trouble. They had to begin playing team

Compton had to pull Lady Reb standout JoAnn Conn from the contest in the second period, with three fouls; she went back in the third and scored 10 points, but also committed her fourth foul. In the final period, Conn fouled out with about five minutes remaining

Allen Central outscored Dilce Combs 7-5 in overtime, sparked by Moore's closing-seconds 3-point shot, to earn the 59-57 win.

Gloria Mullins and Lori Bryant led the McDowell squad in scoring, with 15 and 14 points respectively. "Tish Slone also did a good job for us," said Coach Cassandin Keathley. "She had 13 rebounds and eight assists to go with her four points."

The Lady Bearcats were led by Tawanna Muncy and Ginny Ratliff, who contributed 10 points apiece.

The Lady Dare Devils got off to a slow start, and trailed Johns Creek 10-7 at the close of the first period.

"We started out slow, playing man-to-man. We weren't moving much, so we switched to a full-court press and pulled away. We moved better on offense and created some turnovers, which proved to be the key," said Keathley.

In the second frame, McDowell balanced its deficit and pulled away by seven to lead 27-20 at the half. The squad continued the momentum throughout the third period, scoring 10 and holding the Lady Bearcats to only four, and eventually won the contest, 53-32.

Changes Made In Waterfowl Regs

In response to low duck populations, several changes have been made in waterfowl hunting regulations for the 1988 season, according to Norm Minch, state Fish and Wildlife Division spokesman.

For the Dec. 10 through Jan. 4 duck season, a three-duck conventional daily bag limit is in effect. The daily bag limit of three many include no more than two mallards (only one of which may be a hen), one black duck, two wood ducks and one redhead. No pintails or canvasbacks may be taken. The possession limit is double the daily bag.

The goose season is already underway in the Eastern Zone for all species, and in the Western Zone for all species except Canada geese. The majority of goose hunting takes place in the Western Zone during the Dec. 10-Jan. 28 Canada goose season.

The daily bag limit on geese is five, with no more than two Canada geese and two white-fronted geese. The boundary between the Eastern and Western Zone is a line beginning at the Kentucky-Tennessee border at Fulton and extending north along the Purchase Parkway to I-24, east on I-24 to US 641, north on US 641 to US 60, northeast on US 60 to US 41, and then north on US 41 to the Kentucky-Indiana border.

Non-toxic steel shot is required for all waterfowl hunting in the Western steel shot will be required for all waterfowl hunting nationwide.

Another important change for this season concerns shooting hours. In the past, hunters were permitted to begin shooting one-half hour before sunrise until sunset. During the 1988 season, shooting hours are sunrise to sunset, except in the Ballard Reporting Area (Western Zone) where shooting hours are sunrise to 3 p.m.

The reduction in bag limits and shortening of shooting hours for the 1988 waterfowl season have been implemented in an effort to protect low waterfowl numbers, but still provide hunting opportunity. The decline in duck populations is primarily due to drought conditions which have existed in the Canadian prairies and Northern United States nesting The disappearance of grounds. suitable nesting habitat has been occurring for the last several years, not to mention the continuing loss of other wetland habitat to agricultural and other commercial development. Fortunately, geese have fared much better than ducks, said Minch. Kentucky's quota in the Western Zone continues to be raised each season, up to 22,500 for 1988. Goose season in the Ballard and Henderson-Union Reporting Areas will close when the quota in these two portions of the Western Zone is reached or on January 28, whichever comes first.

Waterfowl hunters in both areas are required to obtain and fill out a waterfowl hunting and harvest registration form, whether or not any geese are taken. This allows the harvest to be monitored so that quota will not be exceeded.

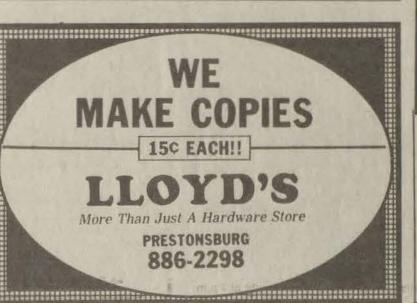

All waterfowl hunters age 16 and older must carry a valid federal migratory bird hunting stamp. Hunters required to possess a Kentucky hunting license must also carry a Kentucky Waterfowl Stamp. Both stamps must be validated by the hunter's signature written across the face of the stamp.

A complete guide to the 1988-89 Kentucky waterfowl season can be obtained free of charge by writing Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Public Relations, No. 1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601, or by phoning (502) 564-4336.

McDowell Falls To Owsley In Boyd County Invitational

Johnny Ray Turner's McDowell Dare Devils didn't have much luck their first game of the season: participating in the Dilce Combs Invitational Tournament, the squad fell in first-round action to Owsley County, 79-76.

"It was a close game," said Turner, "but we just had a bad game. We didn't play up to par."

In a contest that could have been tied, but for the lack of one 3-point shot, the Dare Devils stayed even with Owsley County until the fourth period.

In the opening frame, the two teams traded baskets, with Owsley coming out on top at the buzzer. 17-15. McDowell battled back in the second period, and returned the tavor at halftime, leading 37-35. The third period much of the same, with Turner's squad hanging on and adding one point to its lead.

Heading into the fourth with a three-point edge. Turner saw Owsley County fight its way back to tie the game, and eventually score three more to take a 79-76 win.

Owsley County sported a duo of juniors who combined to score 56 of their team's 79 points. Moore, a 6'6", 220 pounder, scored 30 points and thwarted many of McDowell's attempts to work under the boards. "He was a real strong player inside.

Despite the twin performance from Owsley County McDowell landed four plays in double figures, with Henry Webb leading the way Webb canned six from the floor and two from 3-point range, as well as four free throws, to score 22 points. Rady Martin contributed seven from the floor, including two from 3-point range, to add a 20-point effort. Also scoring in double figures were Dickie Joe Shannon, with 13, and Mark Hall, with 10.

"Game in and game out, we'll have four players in double figures." predicted Turner

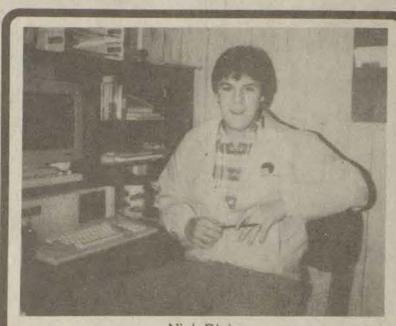

In earlier action, McDowell took on the Millard Mustangs, soundly stampeding the opposition 97-74. With the loss to Owsley County, the Dare Devils sport a 1-1 season record.

Scores of Tuesday's game against Prestonsburg were unavailable as of presstime.

Water Temperature: Major Factor In Fishing Success

One of the biggest factors in bass fishing success this time of year is one often overlooked by anglers.

It's water temperature, and it affects bass, the bait bass feed on, and the places bass go. It should also be a major consideration for the type of lure you choose, and how you use it.

"Just a matter of three or four degrees in water temperature can make a major difference in how active bass are," explains Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff member Denny Brauer. "In fact, fall and winter fishing is frequently better in the afternoons simply because the sun has warmed the water for several hours and made the fish a little more Brauer breaks down water temperature into four categories: below 45 degrees, bass are sluggish and very difficult to catch; between 45 and 65 degrees bass are more active but require slow, careful lure presentations; between 65 and 85 degrees bass are most active and fast lure retrieves work; and above 85 degrees bass begin to get sluggish and inactive again.

"The warmer the water, the more life in that water speeds up," Brauer explains, "and the colder the water, the more everything slows down.

"That's how you have to fish, too. In warm waters a lure that can be retrieved quickly like a buzz bait or spinnerbait often works well. In cold water, a slow moving lure like a jig or perhaps a falling spinnerbait is a good choice.'

The two times of the year temperature is most critical to fish. says Brauer, are the spring and the fall months. During these two seasons, any change in temperature makes a difference, but the bigger the change the greater the effect on up on the flats or points, especially when the weather is stable and fairly warm," says Brauer. "A sudden cold front that drops temperatures will cause those bass to move completely off that flat out to deeper

"The movement is a fast one, too," he continues. "You can catch fish up on the point one afternoon and go back the next morning and

"In the fall, bass frequently move not get a strike because the bass out the Evinrude pro, "is baitfish achave left."

> This time of year, Brauer recommends fishing flats or points near deep water. When bass have close access to deep water their movements won't be as far and they'll be easier to re-locate if they do move. Frequently, the bass move out to the channels and suspend in slightly deeper water.

"Another key to look for," points, a cove or up on a flat and don't see tivity. At this season of the year bass are feeding very actively. You probably won't see bass, but you can often see the bait. 'If you can see the bait, it will be because that bait is in shallow water. That means both the bait and the bass will be fairly active, so you can use a fast moving lure. "On the other hand, if you pull into any bait activity, you'll probably do better fishing a slower lure.

Brauer also suggests checking the water temperature in different areas of a lake as you search for fish. The upper end of a lake will cool fastest because the water is more shallow. Better fishing often takes place on the lower part of a lake this time of year, simply because the temperature is more

Boat Trailer Tips

If you're a bass fisherman who boat in place, and adjust them as simply too heavy to lift up to the trailers a boat to different lakes, chances are that on at least one of your trips you've passed a disabled fisherman on the side of the highway, a victim of trailer trouble.

Even worse, you may have experienced trailering problems yourself, such as a burned out wheel bearing, flat tire, or broken winch.

Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff Member Bo Dowden, a marine dealer in Natchitoches, Louisiana, and a successful bass pro who tows his boat to tournaments throughout the nation, has several suggestions that can help minimize or eliminate potential trailering problems.

"The most common fault." says Dowden, "is using a trailer too small. for the boat. The boat is either too long or too wide for the trailer, or it weighs too much. Either case invites trouble down the road.

When purchasing a boat, says Dowden, winner of the 1980 BASS Masters Classic, check the weight capacity plate on the trailer, then make certain the weight of your boat, motor and equipment do not exceed that weight.

Dowden recommends giving yourself as much as a 25% safety margin, since an overloaded trailer will put added stress on both the axle and tires. The width of the boat must also fit between the trailer wheels and not extend beyond them.

"The weight of the boat should be carried by the trailer runners." explains the Evinrude pro. "The rollers should not really carry any weight at all, and certainly should "Runners will get out of adjustment, too, especially if a fisherman trailers a lot. It's important to check necessary so they do support the boat properly, especially at the tran-

Another problem Dowden frequently sees is improper hitch weight. This is the amount of weight placed on the trailer hitch of the towing vehicle, and it needs to be at least 100 to 150-pounds, depending on both the size of the vehicle and the boat itself.

'If there is not enough hitch weight," explains Dowden, "the trailer will fish-tail side to side when you go down hills or change lanes to pass. It is extremely dangerous and can easily cause a driver to lose control, especially if his towing vehicle is a light one.

"To solve this, move the trailer winch stand forward several inches toward the towing vehicle. You may have to experiment, but a few inches is usually enough because it moves the entire boat forward.

Too heavy a hitch weight causes problems in loading rather than in highway handling. The trailer is hitch. To solve this, move the winch stand back several inches.

'Another common problem is burned out wheel bearings," says Dowden. "Bearings should really be greased every 100 miles or so if the driver makes a lot of short trips to the lake. The bearings heat up, and when they're submerged in water they'll begin to rust and eventually Tire wear is another common trailer problem, and Dowden suggests anglers keep trailer tires inflated to the proper pressure, and watch them carefully for any unusual wear patterns that might lead to a blowout later. Trailer tires need to be balanced just like automobile tires, too.

"Make certain the boat is securely tied to the trailer before you get on the highway," adds the popular tournament pro. "It's important to tie the boat to the trailer at each end of the transom as well as at the winch to keep the boat on the trailer if you have to stop suddenly.'

1951: Jamerson Sparks UK To 13-7 Win Over Oklahoma

(The following article, by free lance writer Henry C. Mayer, is reprinted with permission from the September 1988 Rural Kentuckian.)

"What a great way to end the season! It's not how you start it, but how you finish it. I was tickled to death we won."

That was how Walt Yowarski remembered the University of Kentucky's greatest gridiron triumph 37 years later.

The date was January 1, 1951, The place, the Sugar Bowl in New Orleans, where the Wildcats snapped the University of Oklahoma's 31-game winning streak and toppled the nation's top-ranked team before 82,000 frenzied fans. The final score was Kentucky 13, Oklahoma 7.

Kentucky's coach was Paul "Bear" Bryant, a motivator with few peers; its quarterback, Vito "Babe" Parilli, who could throw all kinds of passes and handle the ball with the finesse of a croupier at Monte Carlo.

Parilli set a national record during the 1950 season for the most touchdown passes — 23. But as former Notre Dame coach Frank Leahy observed, "His greatest ability [was] knowing when to throw his strikes and when to utilize the fine running ability of his teammates."

Bryant and his staff had given this bunch of Wildcats a blitzkrieg offense and a wear-'em-down defense. But as Leahy noted, the main reason for UK's Sugar Bowl victory was "an amazing ability to capitalize on the errors of their opponents."

The UK coaches had carefully watched the films of four Oklahoma games. Bryant personally scouted the team in its regular season finale, when they crushed Oklahoma A&M 35-13. He meticulously analyzed the Sooner attack, and hit on a defense Oklahoma coach Bud Wilkinson had never seen before. It amounted to a nine-man line. Kentucky realized that by outnumbering the Oklahoma forward wall, it would have one or two men to break in on the split-T quarterback almost as soon as he got the ball, thus upsetting his timing and forcing him to act sooner than he planned.

The results were devastating. Oklahoma, which had averaged more than five touchdowns a game, fumble ed five times. The first fumble came on the seventh play of the game as the Kentucky line got to quarterback Claude Arnold on his own 25-yard line. The ball fell from his hands and Yowarski captured it. On the very next play, Parilli passed 25 yards into the end zone, where Wilbur Jamerson, pinned between two Sooners, jumped and caught it. Bob Gain's kick made it 7-0 with only 2:50 having elapsed.

Kentucky put six more points on the board just before halftime after moving the ball 81 yards in seven plays. With the ball on the Sooner 48-yard line, Parilli passed to Kentucky's leading receiver, Al Bruno, who grabbed the ball at the 12. Hit at the eight, Bruno dragged his tackler to the one-foot line. Jamerson took it in.

Late in the game, Kentucky's Dom Fucci sent one of his sky-high punts soaring downfield. (Fucci's eight punts that afternoon averaged 41.7 yards.) Oklahoma's Jack Lockett fumbled and the ever-present Yowarski recovered the ball. It was the play the Associated Press reported "cut the life out of Oklahoma." Yowarski made 20 tackles in the only game of his college career as a defensive tackle and was named the most valuable player.

Oklahoma gave the UK defense all it could handle that day. The Sooners outrushed the Cats 189 yards to 84 and had the edge in first downs 18 to 7.

The Wildcats' greatest defensive moment came in the third quarter when Oklahoma, after moving the ball 68 yards, had it on third down at the Kentucky 2-yard line. Yowarski erupted to spill All-American Bill Vessels for a five-yard loss, then Kentucky's pass defense made it impossible for All-American Frank Anderson to eatch a toss from Arnold. Bryant used 20 linemen that day and all were equal to the task.

The team had been the first UK squad to win 10 games in a row and 11 in one season. They missed having an unbeaten season by losing to Tennessee 7-0 in subfreezing weather at Knoxville, where the cold and heavy snow made the field, as guard Allen Hamilton recalled, "like concrete."

The Kentucky players had hardly gotten to the dressing room after the Tennessee game when the Sugar Bowl bid came. Oklahoma had won the two previous years. The Kentucky team, the first to win a Southeastern Conference Championship, voted unanimously to go to New Orleans.

The 1950 team was unforgettable, awesome and deep. When fall practice started, 31 lettermen were on hand. The team set a school record for total offense, gaining 4,082 yards, and had the highest total per game, 370. It was unequalled in scoring 56 touchdowns, including 27 by air.

Kentucky outscored its opponents 380 to 62. Against North Dakota, three school records went into the books: the team averaged 9.1 yards per play, it tallied 12 touchdowns, and Bob Gain kicked 10 of 10 extra points. Parilli tied a school mark with five touchdown passes and Bruno did likewise by catching four of them. The final score was 83-0.

Parilli led the Southeastern Conference in passing yardage and percent of passes completed. He was one of four UK All-Americans that year along with Bruno, Gain and fullback Bill Leskovar. In 1982, Parilli was enrolled in the College Hall of Fame. Gain, a superb tackle, who was chosen as the nation's leading lineman in 1950, is also in the Hall of Fame. After graduation, Gain went into the Army, where he took part in some fierce fighting in Korea, Years later, in his autobiography, Bryant recalled how the night before one battle Gain had written to thank him for all he had done.

Others from that 1950 team felt the same about the man who became Kentucky's winningest coach with an eight-season record of 60-23-5. "In many ways we only really appreciated him after we had left school," Leskovar recalled. "But even as a student, he always had that tremendous presence and we knew he wasn't a phony. Bear would do anything for us and he often did, even after he was coach at Alabama."

Bryant revealed his own feelings about his Sugar Bowl champions in the dressing room after the game. "God love you," he said. "You're the best in the country."

Sibling squabbling is the most common denominator of households with two or more kids, says Ray Guarendi, a clinical psychologist in Ohio. According to Guarendi's article, some of the reasons siblings tangle include spending too much time together, sharing some of the same possessions, competing for parents' attention and looking for tattle-worthy

In order to tell if children are bickering too much, parents should ask themselves the following questions. How often do the kids really fight? Are their quiet times together slipping by unnoticed? Do they play side by side even while they fight? "In other words, does it seem that they can't live with each other but they also can't live without each other?, says Guarendi.

According to the author, sibling squabbling is a normal phenomenon. but parents can take steps to quiet the bickering by establishing some house rules for a fair fight. Here are some ideas from Guarendi.

-Do not intervene until the melee gets loud enough to become bother-

-If intervention is necessary, no tattling will be heeded and all parties will receive the same consequences.

-Don't try to figure out who started it. Although, every once in a while parents might have to identify the

-The TV, bike, game or whatever was being battled over can be removed and given to each separately for 10 minutes. Or, if the children can play cooperatively, they can share the disputed object for an hour.

Guarendi concludes by saying, 'The key to the success of any approach you choose lies in trying to stay out of the minor scraps as much as possible and to use the same clearcut consequences for both children when you do intervene.

Stuffed Spuds, Lowfat Toppings Provide Sound Nutritional Diet

Many people still mistakenly feel that potatoes are fattening, but consider the fact that there are more calories in a medium apple or banana than in a medium-sized potato.

Problems with calories and fat come when potatoes are processed into high fat snacks, such as chips, or into packaged mixes like potatoes au gratin. Frying potatoes also contributes excessive fat and calories, as do add-ons such as butter, sour cream

Fortunately for potato-loving Americans (we consume an average of 120 pounds of spuds per person per year), this is a very versatile vegetable, and there are many lowfat ways to enjoy it. So you can have the sound nutrition of potatoes-including lots of vitamin C, B vitamins, iron, calcium, fiber and protein-and still keep within the dietary guidelines to lower cancer risk established by the American Institute for Cancer

Stuffed potatoes are a good example. Potatoes mix well with a wide variety of lowfat foods and spices to create dishes that don't require extra fat for flavor

Party Marks End Of Studies

Eighteen graduating nursing students of Prestonsburg Community College and their instructors celebrated the completion of their studies with a pizza party Nov. 22.

The party was given by Our Lady of the Way Hospital to congratulate the students, most of whom did part of their first-year rotations at the hospital.

Public Relations Consultant Gwen Hall presented an audio-visual program on Our Lady of the Way.

Volunteers Needed To Help With Local Income Tax Returns

The Internal Revenue Service is seeking volunteers in Kentucky who can help people in the community with their tax returns.

The IRS will provide free training and will assign the volunteers to one of the many VITA (Volunteer Income Tax Assistance) sites located in community centers, libraries, churches and shopping malls.

Persons who like to meet and deal with a variety of people, have experience or can learn about preparing income taxes, and are willing to spend four or more hours a week from late January to April 17, may qualify for this program. Being a VITA volunteer, and helping other people with their taxes, is not only a rewarding experience, but is a very worthwhile community service.

For more information, call the IRS VITA coordinator at 582-6259 in Louisville, or from elsewhere in the state, call toll free 1-800-424-1040, and ask for Louisville extension 6259.

Sharpshooter Annie Oakley's real name was Phoebe Mozee.

Nursing Director Charlotte Lawson. RN. congratulated the students and encouraged them to apply for employment at Our Lady of the Way Hospital.

"We treat you like family isn't just a slogan," commented Lawson. 'All of us are parts of families and we understand how important it is to be off with a sick child or for some other family concern. Because of our active PRN and part-time staff. we can arrange for our nurses to be off when necessary. We also offer nurses with families and other commitments several employment options. They can work as needed (PRN), part-time or fulltime (35-40 hours per week) on either eight-hour or 12-hour shifts."

Lawson said there were openings in the obstetrical department and on the night shifts of the medicalsurgical department.

Personnel Director Margaret Hoover explained our Lady of the Way Hospital's benefit package and answered students' questions about particular benefits.

Obstetrical Supervisor Betty May. RN spoke about the hospital's emphasis on family-centered care, prepared childbirth and parentinfant bonding.

Students Studying Fuels, Environment

Elementary School, a group of eighth graders are engaged in an unusual project.

Since August, the talk in Bud Reynold's classroom has been of PSA's, alternative energy sources. the Greenhouse Effect, and the Industrial Revolution-sometimes

Doing Research

"In an ordinary classroom, you Foxfire of Rabun Gap, Ga. and the open up your textbook. You do Writing-Across-the-Curriculum pro- chapter one and you take a test over In two weeks, you go back to that have been conducting a study about chapter and you barely remember the relationship of fossil fuels to the anything," Chris Hunter of Bucks

"I admit I'm like that. I can memorize it one night and take a test and that's it, but on this project, I can remember what happened when we first started. It's interesting. I guess it's because we've never done anything like this before, and we're dealing with a matter that is going to affect us later in life and is affecting us now. We want to do something. he added.

"I really didn't know much about it when we started," R.J. Prater. another student in the class said, "because I didn't care, but it's fun and work too. We've been studying our environment and how pollution is destroying our world.'

Most of the students admit that research has been the heart of their project. For the first six weeks, students have read extensively in magazines and books in the school library and written letters to agencies such as the Environmental Protection Agency for additional information that could not be found in their library. In addition to the research, the students have conducted interviews with Bob McKannish of Prestonsburg Community College; Kenneth Scarberry, an electrician with Island Creek; Phillip Dingus, a resident of Martin; and just before Thanksgiving, held an interview with Johnny and Anna Lugia from the University of Rome in Italy. Johnny Lugia is a solar scientist who gave students information about solar energy as an alternative fuel source.

Students of the class sponsored a Parents Night on Nov. 22 at Martin School to explain their project to parents. Once the group has completed its research, it will prepare public service announcements about the environment to be aired on local radio stations. Students are also working on graphs, scripts and charts that will be part of a slide presentation.

In the last week of November the class took a trip to Berea College and made presentations to some of the teacher education courses there. Martin Elementary was host to a group of students from Berea College in October and because students were impressed with the class, they have been asked to come and speak to the classes there.

'It's so different," Chriss Hunter added. "In a textbook you know what you're going to do a week ahead of time, but in this project. you don't know what you're going to do next. It's exciting.

The room is full of drill presses, grinders and other machine equipment that the students from Betsy Layne, Allen Central and Prestonsburg high schools learn about and with during the morning.

The class is machine shop, and the students learn about production standards in industry, how to operate equipment safely and to get them started into industry, or ready for Mayo State Vocational Technical School or another school, said Phillip Ousley, teacher of the class.

various industries locally and nationwide, from Porter Industries to Toyota, Ousley said, and the class gives students a start in the field.

Machine shop, as all other classes at Garth Vocational School, is a combination of first and second year students who are learning a trade to take with them through life.

'A friend took it (machine shop) here and said I should take it," said Kevin Handshoe, an Allen Central student. Handshoe said after he graduates that he may find a job or go to Mayo.

But Steve Conley also from Allen Central, said that it was just the first year-after that he will say what he is going to do. Some of the things Ousley said students should know something about are decimals, geometry and

The class spends two days in the classroom hearing lectures, watching will be the head of the tool, and films and doing classwork, and the other three days are spent learning hands on, he said.

When a student graduates from the machine shop program, one of the main things he can do is read a blueprint, which is important in whatever field the student chooses, whether it be welding, carpentry, or any other field, Ousley said. He is also able to operate equipment safely, and be able to read rule and micrometer.

The students in the machine shop enjoy what they do and what they

. Students Plan Magazine

Carolyn Layne's eighth grade Across-the-Curriculum Program in class at Martin Elementary is hard at work on a magazine that it plans to publish sometime in the spring.

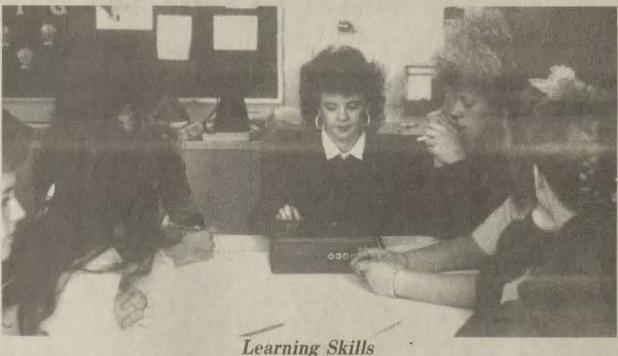

The group has already done several interviews and written stories and information that they have received from people in the community. The group hopes to gather information about their own area and combine that with stories that the students themselves will

Just before Thanksgiving, two students from the Mantrip magazine class at Wheelwright visited the Martin students to share what they have learned as a result of their own project. Two senior editors of Mantrip, Brian Boyd and Amy Payne, spent two hours at the school teaching students how to conduct interviews, transcribe them and then

"Some of them already knew what I was teaching them," Brian Boyd said. Many of the students worked on projects last year, gathering information and doing interviews. Hopefully, this year the students will be able to present their work in a form that they can share with others, said Layne Layne is a member of the WritingFloyd County. Money will be available from that program to purchase supplies and materials that the that members of the class are planning on taking to such places as Alice Lloyd College and the courthouse in

McDowell Educator Gets Foxfire Grant

This week, Willie Elliott and his English III students received a $500 grant from the Foxfire Fund. The grant covers the costs of implementing a program of studies in Appalachian literature, based on a draft course guide being developed by the Foxfire Fund of Rabun Gap, Ga. Elliott developed the program after attending the summer Foxfire Seminar at Berea College. This program offers teachers a chance to participate in the development of teaching strategies that involve students in studying the writings of Appalachian authors about Appalachia. The draft of the course guide was prepared by Eliot Wigginton and other teachers at Foxfire.

The Eyes Have It

Dr. Lee V. Majakey visited the fourth grade at Prestonsburg Elementary during the students' study of the eye. Pictured are Dr. Majakey and students from Linda Gearheart's science class.

The Appalachian Literature project is one of several that seek to involve students and teachers in the hands-on approach to classroom instruction that launched Foxfire. Classroom activities include reading excerpts from many Appalachian authors, interviewing living authors in the students' communities, students writing their own pieces, and other activities that teach academic skills while acquainting students with literature from their own culture.

Mr. Elliott and his class have been looking at several titles, and one of the novels that they plan to read, discuss and write about is Where the Lilies Bloom by Vera and Bill Cleaver. Another book under consideration is A Crack in the Sidewalk by Ruth Wolf. Other books by such authors as Jesse Stuart, James Still, Harriet Arnow, Al Stewart, Jim Wayne Miller, and other notable Appalachian writers will be used in the unit. Mr. Elliott plans to make use of the great number of writers in our own area. He hopes to have Gurnery Norman, James Still, Al Stewart, and other writers visit his class and talk to students about Appalachian literature, and discuss the writings that the students have done.

Mr. Elliott will send to Foxfire a summary of the things that go on in his class, and some of the material will become part of the course guide that can be used by other teachers to get started on an Appalachian literature unit.

Teacher, Class Receive Foxfire Grant

Willie Elliott's English III class recently received a grant from the Foxfire Fund to study various Appalachian authors. Pictured above are some class members, shown as the look at books by area writers. Elliott developed the program after attending a summer Foxfire seminar at Berea College.

Mayo Vocational Offers Technical Auto Body Class

The major objective of the auto body technology program at Mayo State Vocational Technical School is to prepare individuals for employment in the auto body repair field.

The program provides training in auto body repair, auto body painting and trimming, the proper use of hand tools, power tools and spray painting equipment. Students are provided shop experiences similar to those in industry, according to school officials. Shop math, science, and theory related to the repair of automobiles are included.

The auto body technology program provides trainees with skills and knowledge necessary for entry into the auto body repair trade. The program deals with the practical dustry. Students also complete such related classes as mig welding, consumer education, and computer literacy, explained the official.

When frame straightening was added to the curriculum, a frame straightener was purchased. This machine is designed to straighten vehicles with unitized bodies as well as conventional frames.

Employment of persons trained in auto body technology is found in all localities, note officials. Graduates may obtain employment in repair shops or service departments of automobile dealers, trucking companies, bus lines, and federal, state and local governments. A small number of workers are employed by and fundamental segments of in- motor vehicle manufacturers. An experienced auto body technician with supervisory ability may advance to shop supervisor. Insurance companies hire experienced workers as repair estimators. Many in the field open their own shops.

Instruction in the auto body technology program is competencybased. The 22-month or 2640 hour program is taught by Merle Pyles and Larry Little.

For more information about the auto body technology program or other programs taught at the school, write Mayo State Vocational Technical School, 513 Third Street. Paintsville, KY 41240 or call (606) 789-5321

Pikeville's Lost in the Shuffle Bridge Club is not a boll weevil looking for a home, just a club on the go that met at the Meyers Towers Tuesday night for the most exciting game ever! Robert Pinson was victorious for the second week in a row. John Rupley placed second, and Marie Looney came in third.

Although he missed one session, Rupley's total points titled him the player of the month. Vicki Pinson was runner-up. Congratulations!

The club received a card from Commadore Griffith, who is basking in the

All the commotion is not a buzz saw, just the telephone lines buzzing with the excitement of the upcoming Christmas dinner the club has scheduled for Dec. 6! So far there are six sets of players expected, and the list is growing (four per set).

The Rule of 11 was introduced Tuesday night and is being repeated here for those who were absent. Example: Suppose a 6 is led; 6 from 11 leaves 5. Five cards higher than the card led will be found in Dummy, Partner's hand and the hand of the Declarer. i.e., (dummy) Q 8 2; (you) A 10; (7 from 11 = 4

Lead: West led the 7. Dummy plays the 2. What card should East play? The 10. Why? Seven from 11 leaves 4. How many cards higher than the seven can East see? Four. Therefore, the 10 East holds is top.

Returning To Work Easier With SSI Be

are paid to people who suffer a physical or mental disability which has or is expected to keep them from working for a year or more, or to

Many people eventually return to work, and a number of Social Security rules are designed to make the journey back easier, according to Jim Kelly, Social Security district director.

"In general, these rules permit people to continue receiving cash benefits and Medicare coverage until they reach the point where they can work on a regular basis. Different rules provide similar assistance to Supplemental Security Income (SSI) beneficiaries. To avoid confusion, I will deal with the SSI rules in another column," he explains.

The first rule available to a disabled person who works is the trial work period. A beneficiary is permitted to work for up to nine months (not necessarily consecutive) without having the earnings affect Social Security benefits. After nine trial work months, a decision is made whether the beneficiary is performing substantial gainful work. If it is decided that the work is substantial gainful work, benefits will continue for the month in which the decision is made, and two more months. Thus, a disablmay have up to 12 months of unlimited earnings before disability benefits

Generally, earnings averaging $300 or more a month is considered substantial gainful work, said Kelly. If the work a person does is similar to that done by nondisabled persons in the community, then earnings of less than $300 a month may be considered substantial gainful work.

"If you are self-employed, we also consider such factors as the time you put into the business and value of your work as well as your earnings," he

'Remember, during the trial work period, there is no limit on how much you can earn so long as your impairment does not improve medically. After the trial work period, we look at the amount of money you have been earning to see if it averages at least $300 a month, or was worth $300 a month, which is considered substantial gainful work," said Kelly.

Books Highlight Wildlife

by Trisha Morris. PCC Librarian

The relentless spread of civilization has meant extinction for hundreds of the animals who shared this planet with mankind. The following books from the PCC library give us glimpses into this worldwide problem.

The Auk, the Dodo, and the Oryx, by Robert Silverberg. From more familiar names like passenger pigeon and bison to the further removed creatures in the title, this book tells the story of the animals which have become extinct-birds and beasts who have vanished from the face of the earth. Here are lively tales of voyagers who saw the great auk of Iceland, the zebra-like guagga of South Africa and many other nowextinct creatures while they still flourished.

Equally fascinating are the stories of animals who have been rescued from extinction by dedicated conservation groups and individuals.

Silverberg's absorbing and deftly written narrative has been handsomely illustrated and completed by a list of further readings and a good

From the Edge of Extinction, by Darryl Stewart. Without ignoring the enormous tasks to be met, naturalist and popular wildlife writer Darryl Stewart presents an optimistic account of what man has done to bring back 23 North American animal species from the brink of extinction. Here, packed with informative detail, are the stories of such animals as the bison, the whooping crane, the beaver, the trumpter swan, the pronghorn, the musk ox, the polar bear, the alligator, and timber wolf and many others who still inhabit our land, skies, and waters. In highly entertaining accounts, Stewart relates the conditions that placed them in jeopardy and the measures taken to ensure their survival.

With black and white illustration and such details as magatory routes, reproduction patterns and behavior, this is a well told and interesting documentation.

With a deceiving title, the book presents much, relating to the rise and extinction of many animal species. It preaches that the disappearance of wildlife is man, "as the most successful animal that ever lived," out-smarting himself. It names the underlying cause of animal extinction the same as that which created the population explosion, air and water pollution, the epidemic of pesticide poisonings, the specter of hunger and the threat of becoming one huge junk pile.

You won't read this book for enjoyment, the Milnes point out a lot of our faults, but you might read it for a clue to survival.

In Extinction, Stanley presents an authoritative analysis of these global disasters. A fascinating record of species of birds that will never be seen again. the stories are sometimes fantastic, often touching, even humorous, but ultimately sad.

The Dinosaur Heresies, by Robert Bakker. This book tells us that 50 million years or more have passed since the monstrous dinosaurs stalked the earth. No man ever glimpsed them when they lived, but their whitened skeletons haunt our museums as their mystery haunts man's imagination.

Bakker presents us with a book that doesn't need to be sneaked out of children's shelves. Written for adults, but without scientific jargon, this world-famous paleontologist tells the story of dinosaur evolution in a lively and entertaining style, and presents his theory of why the creatures ceased to exist.

Illustrated with over 200 detailed illustrations, this is a true mystery

Valuing Wildlife, edited by Daniel Decker. An economic and social perspective, this book is a collection of papers delivered to the New York chapter of The Wildlife Society in 1985. With a stated objective of "increasing awareness and appreciation of all wildlife values" and a desire to 'create a program of natural significance," the papers all have as their theme, the value of wildlife. They underscore the need to identify and project these values to a society and a world driven by the forces of cash income, profit motive and a soaring technology which are eliminating wildlife and its habitats through deforestation, intensified agriculture, wetland drainage, development and pollution.

With titles such as "Socio-Duckonomics" and "Beauty and the Beast," the contributions to this scholarly book are varied. While some would appeal only to the professional, there are many which can make profitable and enjoyable reading for the layperson with an interest in the field.

"I was relieved to One man's story.

The word "alcoholism" is so loaded with shame, it's hard to imagine anyone ever being relieved to discover it applied to them. This is a glimpse of what one man went through to come slowly to that realization.

"The very first time I drank, I got drunk, I got sick, I had a blackout. I didn't intend any of that to happen."

Often from their very first drink, alcoholics seem to respond differently to alcohol. If you sometimes drink so much that you don't recollect certain events, then by definition, you have an alcohol problem.

Normal drinkers rarely lose control to the extent that they have a blackout.

"Within six years, I was drinking roundthe-clock, a quart of vodka a day. I didn't care what happened."

As the disease of alcoholism progresses, more and more you don't control alcohol, it controls you. Once you start drinking, you can't be sure whether you'll have two drinks, or twenty.

The consequences—family difficulties, health problems, arrest, loss of job-cease to matter. All you care about is the next drink.

"I thought I drank because I was crazy. I never realized I was crazy because I drank." you become. That's because drinking at your present rate has devastating consequences. But the thought of cutting down is equally awful.

So subconsciously, you seek a way out by flatly denying you have a problem, and laying the blame for your misfortunes elsewhere. You're going insane, people have it in for you or you're simply unlucky.

"Towards the end, I lay in bed, a half gallon on the floor, soaking wet with sweat, a gun in my mouth."

The possibility of suicide is one reason CareUnit likes to treat people as early as

Last year, our program helped over 55,000 people stop using alcohol and drugs.

Treatment is covered by most insurance plans, and includes medical supervision, education, group therapy and free lifetime aftercare.

Incidentally, there's no charge for the initial consultation, which may involve the drinker, or someone close to him.

"Once I admitted my real problem, the worst was over."

It may be hard to believe-and it may not happen until you've been in treatment for a while-but once you admit you have a problem with alcohol, you'll feel a strong sense of relief and release. Then-and only then-can you start to rebuild your life.

The man whose story you've read has been sober 15 years, he's a highly successful senior executive in a major corporation, and he owes his life to one phone call.

And that's the point. If you don't call, we can't help.

He has provided the voices for several of the most successful and critically acclaimed animated series on the air. He has appeared on Newhart, Family Ties, The Tonight Show and HBO's Detroit Comedy Jam. He still plays hockey with a celebrity team that includes Michael J. Fox and Alan Thicke. ## Alex Haley delivers gift for 'Roots' fans

Gosset Jr., Burton reprise 'Roots' parts

By Jerri Hicks

It was more than a decade ago that Alex Haley's bestselling novel, Roots, touched television audiences with 12 hours of programming over eight consecutive nights. Deservedly, the series swept the Emmys that year, seizing nine awards in all. Two years later, Roots: The Next Generation, a 14-hour miniseries which won an Emmy for Outstanding Limited Series, followed.

Haley's creativity, realism and authenticity are sure to be awarded again with Roots: The Gift, which reunites two of the beloved characters from Rootsplayed by Louis Gossett Jr. and LeVar Burton-when it airs Sunday, Dec. 11, on ABC. Roots: The Gift is not a sequel to the original; it delves into the middle of the original Roots saga, and tells a story involving the same characters.

Gossett Jr. is the clever Fiddler, born into slavery and skilled in the art of survival. Burton is Kunta Kinte, the African who was captured and sold into slavery in America. Avery Brooks plays a new character, Cletus Moyer, a freed slave who turns to the reluctant Fiddler and confused Kunta for help in staging a Christmas Eve escape for a group of runaway slaves.

Set in the year 1770, Fiddler has accepted his life as a slave on the Reynolds plantation, but Kunta still yearns to be free, despite an unsuccessful attempt to run away three years earlier.

His desire to be free is heightened when he meets Moyer, who comes riding along confidently, a welldressed "free man of color." Even when Scarvie (Jimmie F. Skaggs), the brutal overseer, challenges Moyer, he successfully asserts his freedom. But it isn't long before bounty hunter Hattie Caraway (Kate Mulgrew) and her cruel gang arrive and claim Moyer, beating him and dragging him away in chains and putting an immediate end to his free-

Louis Gossett Jr. reprises his role as Fiddler in Roots: The Gift, Sunday, Dec. 11, on ABC.

Jerry Hardin plays Dr. Reynolds, the pompous master of Fiddler's plantation, who takes Fiddler and Kunta to the neighboring Parker plantation to help with the Christmas preparations. The elaborate preparations also absorb the thoughts of the mistress of the place, Amelia Parker (Michael Learned); her flighty daughter, Sarah Renshaw (Annabella Price); her 9-year-old daughter, Arabella (Brandy Brown), who befriends Kunta; and the longtime family maid, Mammy May, while Marcellus, the houseman, scurries about self-importantly.

Much to Kunta's dismay. Hattie and her gang stop to rest at the Parker plantation, dragging Moyer in chains. There Moyer confides to Kunta that he was part of a secret mission to lead a group of slaves to freedom.

Since Moyer's escape plan has turned into a crisis, he believes there is only one man who can lead the dash for freedom: the cautious, self-protective Fiddler. And only Kunta has a chance to make Fiddler understand that freedom is worth any risk.

FRANKFORT 40601

COMMONWEALTH OF KENTUCKY AUDITOR OF PUBLIC ACCOUNTS

125 CAPITOL ANNEX

BOB BABBAGE

To the People of Kentucky Honorable Wallace G. Wilkinson, Governor Honorable John M. Stumbo, County Judge/Executive Members of the Floyd County Fiscal Court

We have examined the statement of assets, liabilities, and fund balances arising from cash transactions of Floyd County, Kentucky, as of June 30, 1987, and the related statement of cash receipts, cash disbursements, and changes in cash balances for the year then ended. We also examined the Sheriff's settlement-1986 state taxes for the fiscal year ended June 30, 1987. Our examination was made in accordance with generally accepted government auditing standards, the Single Audit Act of 1984, and provisions of OMB Circular A-128, Audits of State and Local Governments, and the Audit Guide for County Governments issued by the Auditor of Public Accounts, Commonwealth of Kentucky, and accordingly included such tests of the accounting records and such other auditing procedures as we considered necessary in the circumstances. As recommended by the State Local Finance Officer, pursuant to Kentucky Revised Statute (KRS) 68.210, the accompanying financial statements are prepared on a cash basis. Consequently, certain revenues and the related assets are recognized when received rather than when earned, and certain expenses are recognized when paid rather than when a liability is incurred. This cash basis system does not require the maintenance of a general fixed asset group or general long-term debt group of accounts. Accordingly, the accompanying financial statements are not intended to present financial position and results of operations in conformity with generally accepted accounting principles.

In our opinion, the accompanying financial statements present fairly the assets, liabilities, and fund balances arising from cash transactions of Floyd County at June 30, 1987, and its cash receipts and disbursements and the Sheriff's 1986 state taxes charged, collected, and distributed during the year then ended, in conformity with the accounting system described above, applied on a basis consistent with that of the preceding year. The accompanying additional information, provided on Schedules A through E, including the schedule of federal financial assistance programs, is not necessary for a fair presentation of the financial assistance programs, is not necessary for a fair presentation of the financial statements, but is presented as additional anlytical data. This information has been subjected to tests and other audit procedures applied in the examination of the financial material respects in relation to the financial statements taken as a whole.

As required by the Single Audit Act of 1984, we have reported on the county's financial statements (page 1), its system of internal accounting and administrative controls (page 27), and the county's compliance with laws and regulations (page 30).

The county has shown marked improvement over prior years in both its accounting procedure's and compliance policies. We wish to commend the county for its efforts and urge that these improvements be maintained.

> Sincerely, Bob Babbage Auditor of Public Accounts
