School District 'Adrift,' Says Audit Team

by Anne Chaney
Editor

Those attending Wednesday's Floyd County Board of Education meeting received a double dose of bad medicine, in the form of two reports: a much-lauded curriculum audit found that the district has virtually no curriculum coordination or planning; in addition, the district may face a deficit of $325,000 at the end of the current fiscal year.

The curriculum audit, the first in Kentucky, revealed students are "acting as tax collectors" in garnering $1.7 million in fund raising; it also found political patronage by board members and administrators, a lack of goals and accountable board policies, and virtually no coordination of students' academic studies from class to class, school to school.

The possible deficit, meanwhile, may mean that the state Board of Education will vote at its January meeting to take control of the district's finances. The state has taken that step in the Pike County school system.

According to district superintendent Ronald Hager, an exit report three to four weeks ago by state auditors indicated that the district may end the year $325,000 in the red.

In question, said Hager, is whether funds generated by additional tax were placed in a restricted account for school construction projects currently underway.

"I don't know if the money was placed in the general fund, and if it was used to alleviate the deficit," said Hager. He said he expected to receive a final report in the next week.

The funds, collected over the last two years, are required by state law to be placed in a restricted account to be used as local funding for planned construction of four schools. Payment is due on the projects in January or February.

Should Floyd County be declared a deficit district, said Hager, "Then I would presume the state would take over, as they did in Pike County." He said the threat of state control has been apparent for "quite some time."

CURRICULUM AUDIT

"The recent history of the Floyd County Schools has been one of conflict and instability, particularly in the office of the superintendent," stated the report. "The school system stands at a unique crossroads. It can get on with its struggles to come to full compliance with state requirements and mandates, or it can slip back into the poor management practices of the past."

Audit team members studied documentation throughout the 9,385-student district, visited all schools, and talked with ad-

Ivel Blaze Damages Home

Firefighters Danny McCoy, left, and James Banks, right, survey the James Settles home Tuesday morning. The blaze was reported shortly before 7 a.m.; it resulted in heavy smoke, water and fire damage to the $300,000 home located in Ivel.

Tuesday Fire Heavily Damages Ivel Residence; No One Injured

When Allen Fire Department firefighters arrived at the home of James "Jimmy" Settles at Ivel just before 7 a.m. Tuesday, they found two rooms at the back of the house ablaze, with flames shooting out of the downstairs windows.

What they didn't know at the time was that the house included a full-size basement, and that was where the flames originated.

Firefighters Todd Gray and Joey Reynolds attempted to go down into the basement via a stairwell located in the home's front room, but were forced to return upstairs.

Fire department personnel began removing valuables for the family from the second story of the $300,000 home as others monitored the basement blaze.

Part of the first floor fell into the basement, said Gray, as firefighters fought to contain the blaze. Flames spread through the attic, going through chimneys and causing damage to the roof.

"After three or four hours of fighting the fire, it was brought under control," said Gray. Personnel remained on the scene two hours longer to find and extinguish hot spots.

The Betsy Layne Fire Department

assisted by sending breathing apparatus.

The home incurred extensive fire, water and smoke damage. The flames are believed to have started in the basement, where Settles' son's bedroom is. Jimmy Settles Jr. was awakened by the smoke, and alerted the other six members of the family.

The cause of the fire has not been determined, but officials have ruled out possible arson.

"They were lucky to get out of the house," noted Gray, who expressed thanks to the Settles' neighbors for providing coffee throughout the cold morning.

Name Festival, Receive $100

A county-wide festival is being planned the week of May 8-14, 1989, for Floyd County residents, and the festival's board of directors is seeking a name for the event.

A contest, which includes a $100 prize to the winner, is open now through Jan. 10 for area residents who would like an opportunity to name the festival.

According to festival officials, the name should include some, or all, of the themes that will be part of the event, including arts, education, season of the year (spring), emphasis on family (May 14 is Mother's Day), and the culture of Eastern Kentucky.

Names may be submitted to the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce, 31 North Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, or taken to the Chamber office. In case of duplicate winning entries, the first received will be declared the prize winner.

The contest is open to anyone who wishes to participate.

The festival board of directors will make the final decision, and reserves the right to extend the deadline.

To enter, participants should send the proposed name, their name, address and telephone number to the Chamber. Students are also asked to include the name of the school they attend.

Mayor Reports To City Council: Good News Abounds In P'Burg

by Anne Chaney
Editor

The news is good in Prestonsburg these days: the city is fiscally sound, the police department is doing well, the fire department has little business, several streets have been repaved and Archer Park is undergoing a continuing facelift.

If that's not enough, officials are also planning to finance new sidewalks and curbs in the downtown business area, and begin a major push for economic development throughout the city.

Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta covered those points and several others Monday night as she addressed the city council, delivering her annual report on the condition of the municipality.

Following are highlights from her report:

FINANCE

—The city is "safely in the black," said Latta, after nearly three years of coping with inherited deficits and the loss of Federal Revenue Sharing funds. The current budget is $1.7 million, with new revenue provided by the 2 percent tax on restaurant sales and hotel and motel room rental. Latta said all proceeds from the tax are dedicated to developing increased recreation, tourism and convention business, which she called the key to the city's future economic growth.

—The tourism tax is bringing in more than originally planned; initial estimates called for $135,000; in the first half of the year, it generated $100,000. From those funds, the city is developing brochures, assisting in planning for a new festival, and renovating Archer Park. Archer Park work included swimming pool renovation, a new baseball field and fencing.

—A youth center has been established, and a part-time director employed.

—The city survived a 22 percent increase in health insurance premiums for its employees, and will begin looking at new salary schedules in January. Latta says funds for a raise are available.

—More than 20 businesses expanded or located in the Prestonsburg area this past year.

POLICE DEPARTMENT

—Capt. Dickie Campbell was promoted to chief of police in January. The department has answered more than 3,000 complaints this year, closed over half of the cases it opened, made more than 500 non-criminal and more than 240 criminal arrests, issued nearly 1,500 citations, and performed more than 10,000 security checks.

Of the 356 accidents worked in the first 11 months of the year, only one fatality was reported (the first in almost six years).

—Five police vehicles were purchased for the department from the State Police auctions of used cruisers, at a total cost of $11,025.

—Although not strictly related to the police department, representatives of the city met with state transportation officials, helping bring about Gov. Wallace Wilkinson's announcement that construction will begin in Prestonsburg on a new US 23 in 1989. A mid-year survey revealed.

Christmas Parade Held

A number of Floyd County residents lined up Friday night to watch Prestonsburg's Christmas Parade, which included an appearance by Santa and Mrs. Claus.

Accident Claims Life Of One; Injures Seven

A family outing turned into tragedy for a Grethel family Saturday.

Roy L. Adams, 43, was killed when the Ford sedan he was driving was involved in a head-on collision with a pick-up truck, driven by John J. Jarrell, 21, of Banner at about 2:50 p.m. in front of the farmer's market at Bowman on US 23 South.

Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson said that Jarrell, and Adams' wife and five children were all injured in the accident.

Lou Adams, 38, Joseph Adams, 13, and Jarrell are reportedly in critical condition at University of Kentucky Medical Center. The four other Adams children, Ronald, 17, Daniel, 14, Jason, 5, and Roy, 2, are in fair condition at Pikeville Methodist Hospital, according to the hospital.

Jarrell, who was absent without leave from the National Guard, was traveling northbound when his truck collided in the median with the southbound Adams vehicle. National Guard officials are investigating Jarrell's absence without leave.

Wheelwright Water Situation Improving

Residents of the Wheelwright area had running water in their homes by last Thursday, a privilege they had missed for over a week.

Although interruptions occurred Thursday and Friday as leaks appeared in the system, the town's water supply "seems to be back to almost normal," said Wheelwright Mayor Larry Mullins.

Residents are still urged to boil their water, Mullins said, "as a precaution," until the lines which were unused for so long clear themselves out.

The mine reservoir which was thought to have dried up apparently replenished itself and workmen were able to pump water into it from other mine water holes, Mullins said.

The Kentucky National Guard which came to the area on Dec. 1 also stocked a supply of purified water for the town before leaving last Saturday.

Construction is still underway to reach a new source of water in another mine and should be completed later this week, Mullins said. Construction is set to begin on a new water system once the second source is on line, he said.

"A lot of people helped make life a little more tolerable for us," Mullins said. "I hope we never have to go through an ordeal like this again."

Ruling May Affect Status Of Cemetery

About two dozen persons crowded into the tiny hearing room of the Kentucky Department of Surface Mining here Thursday to witness the charges brought against local miner and developer Gary Branham.

Most of the visitors were relatives of persons buried in the Bingham Cemetery, located on US 23 north of Prestonsburg on a hill being developed by Branham.

At issue was not the cemetery itself, but the state's contention that Branham, owner of Triple B Mining, had mined the site without a permit.

During the seven-and-a-half hour hearing, Attorney Norman Bennett, representing the department, brought out an array of witnesses to try to prove that Branham had taken coal for sale from the site.

Branham, through his attorney Charles Baird, contended he was developing the site for an office building, pasture and other uses. The uncovering of the coal was not intended in the excavation, Baird said.

State's witnesses included a coal truck driver who said he heard there was coal to be picked up on the site, even though he did not haul any coal away, and an inspector from the US Office of Surface Mining who testified he saw two loads of coal taken from the site.

According to Danny Clark, chief reclamation officer for DSM, Branham could not legally mine within 100 feet of a cemetery, "even with a permit." The cemetery regulation, Clark said, "doesn't kick in until he gets a permit."

Normally, a landowner can mine up to 250 tons of coal for his own, non-commercial use, said Clark. Branham, however, who has a permit to mine in Martin County, is considered a commercial miner and "could not even sell a ton" without a local permit, Clark said.

According to Clark, if Branham is found not guilty of mining without a permit, the issue of the cemetery is out of the department's hands.

Hearing officer Susan Johnson, a Johnson County attorney, has 30 days from the date of the hearing to make a formal decision. Johnson can determine whether Branham violated the law and, if so, she can determine the assessment against Branham. The state has recommended an assessment of $47,000. If the hearing officer finds Branham guilty of the violation, then he will also have to return the land to its original contours.

Attorney Bennett, in presenting the state's case, charged Branham with "knocking over gravestones, cutting trees and possibly removing graves."

Bennett claimed that there is "real danger that in the future, the hillside will erode exposing graves and causing further environmental damage."

PSC Rules On Utility Cases In Floyd County

The Kentucky Public Services Commission finalized a number of cases involving Floyd County utility companies, some resulting in decreases, and others in increases, or residents utilizing the different firms.

Auxier Road Gas Company was granted a purchased gas adjustment to reflect a $1,043 increase in wholesale costs from its supplier, Columbia Gas of Kentucky. The increase will result in an average annual hike of $2.28 per customer. The order became effective Tuesday, Nov. 14.

The PSC also granted Elzie Neeley Gas an adjustment to reflect a $202 increase in wholesale costs from its supplier, also Columbia Gas of Kentucky. The average annual increase per residential customer will be $2.28; the order took effect Tuesday.

In a separate case, officials granted Martin Gas an adjustment to reflect a $908 increase in wholesale costs from its supplier, Columbia Gas of Kentucky. As with other increases, residents will see their annual rates increase $2.28.

East Kentucky Utilities was granted an adjustment to reflect a $16,668 decrease in wholesale costs from its supplier, Kentucky West Virginia Gas Company. The average annual decrease per residential customer is $15.73, effective this month.

Also marking a decrease was Mike Little Gas Company, which received an adjustment to reflect a $7,744 decrease in wholesale costs from its supplier, Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co. The average annual decrease per residential customer is $16.07.

For Boyd, Home Is A Dream Coming True

by Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

The foot bridge crossing Buffalo Creek is two slick boards wide. A slack wire cable serves as a hand rail. Cecil Boyd has to cross the shaky bridge to get to the road from his home—if it can be called that—in the back room of a dilapidated structure that sits near the end of an isolated road in the northwestern part of the county.

From the road, the old house appears to be unoccupied—unlivable, in fact. Window panes are broken or missing, boards are rotted, and the roof sags.

Inside Boyd's room is a Fatso coal stove he uses to warm himself and his food. Soot from the improperly-vented stove covers everything in Boyd's tiny quarters. Near the unused inside chimney, the upstairs flooring is slowly making its way downstairs.

A single light bulb hangs from the ceiling, jerry-rigged with an electrical cord that runs to one wall and around another. During the day light hours the bulb is unneeded. Light enters the room around the closed door, through the stove vent and in two cracked windows.

In an outer room, once probably a kitchen, Boyd keeps a supply of food and steps gently over rotting floor boards.

But that way of life is coming to an end for the 83-year-old Boyd. Just a few feet from his family home, workers from the Christian Appalachian Project's home repair program are building a new residence for the Endicott man.

The 12x20-foot wood structure will not be extravagant by anyone's standards, but it will be sealed off from the winter winds with insulated walls and ceiling, and will have good ventilation for the sturdy old stove. It will also have a front porch where Boyd can sit when the weather clears and watch the hills and the wildlife that he's known all his life.

"At least it will keep him warmer and drier," said Jeff Russell, a CAP volunteer and Notre Dame-trained architect who is helping to build the new house.

If the money is forthcoming, the workers will also run water from Boyd's well and install a bathroom and septic system, something his old house never had.

"We usually try to repair homes," said Darrell Combs, manager of the CAP program. "But this one couldn't be repaired. The cost to repair would have been too much, and we probably couldn't have made it safe."

Combs estimates that the new house, without plumbing, will cost about $2,500. He is hoping that CAP can find the additional $2,200 to pay for the plumbing system.

The county has given bridge steel to build a new bridge across the creek. The CAP manager is now looking for bridge lumber to complete that phase of the renovation.

The Boyd home is one of about 300 the CAP crew has repaired, added to or built in the last few years. Repairs have ranged from new roofs to fixing electrical systems. Additions have included adding a bathroom for two elderly sisters and putting two large rooms onto a small house in which about 10 people lived.

Combs is hopeful that the state's new emphasis on the homeless will result in more funding for the program. "CAP has been trying to do something for the homeless for many, many years," he said. "We're glad the state is becoming aware of the hidden homeless which we've seen for years."

CAP relies heavily on volunteers, such as Russell and Fr. Jim Scott of Washington, DC who come in for special projects like the Boyd house, and Dan Becker, a Colorado construction worker who has committed a year. Two regular staff employees, Donald Puckett and David Hutchinson, are also involved in each project.

Combs finds out about housing needs from referrals, particularly from other CAP workers. Judy Crum, who works with CAP's elderly visitation program, referred Boyd.

When Crum first visited Boyd last

January, she was appalled at the living conditions. "He didn't want to leave his home and he had no medical reason to be in a nursing home," Crum said. "So I asked Darrell if there was some way he could help."

While his vision and hearing are not as perfect as they once were, Boyd is spry and healthy. He doesn't talk much, but his smiles and obvious joy are evident as he watches the workers put the finishing touches on his new home.

"No one has to live like this," Combs said. "The folks that are unable to help themselves are the ones being forgotten."

Cecil Boyd is no longer forgotten.

State Unemployment Declines; Big Sandy District Marks Decrease

A record number of Kentuckians on the job helped to produce a near-even split in counties with higher and lower unemployment rates in the state between September and October, the latest month for which figures are available.

Local unemployment rates rose in 61 counties, fell in 58, and the rate was the same in Bell County for both September and October.

The jobless rate in the Big Sandy district (Floyd, Martin, Johnson, Magoffin and Pike counties) decreased from 12 percent in September to 11.7 percent in October. Johnson County's 9.5 percent rate was the district's lowest, and the only single-digit rate. Magoffin County's 16.3 percent was the highest in the district, and the second highest county-wide rate in the state.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 53.2 percent had worked in mining, 14.6 percent in services, 9.5 percent in trade and 7.3 percent in construction.

"Kentucky's employment growth in October reflected seasonal job openings, as well as economic expansion," said Ed Blackwell, the state's chief labor market analyst.

TO THE VOTERS OF FLOYD COUNTY

Since my husband's retirement in October and during the past several months I have been asked almost daily as to my intentions concerning the upcoming May 1989 Election.

In answer to the above question, I would like to take this time to announce my candidacy for Magistrate in District Three during the May 1989 Election.

Due to the large number of anticipated candidates I felt that I needed to announce my candidacy as soon as possible in order that my friends and relatives have a chance to support the candidate of their choice.

Lets continue the progress and work already accomplished in District Three for the past twenty plus years by supporting and voting for Betty Caudill, Magistrate District Three.

Your vote and support will be appreciated.

Editorial

The curriculum audit recently received by school officials revealed what many Floyd Countians already knew: their educational district is a shambles.

The results shouted themselves across headlines of state newspapers, across radio waves and throughout livingrooms in Eastern Kentucky. While most people agreed that the district had long since passed, in a downward spiral, any hint of bare mediocrity, nearly everyone was aghast at the extent of the problems revealed.

We all want someone to say it isn't so — that the district is bad, yes, but not that bad.

Unfortunately, no one can. And with a projected deficit this fiscal year, it's a fairly good bet that we, like our Pike County counterparts, will see the state step in and control our financial dealings after the state Board of Education meets in January.

Somehow, we find ourselves in the strange situation of shaking the local board's hand at the same time we are rapping their collective knuckles.

We are glad that the board requested the curriculum audit, knowing that its objectivity and thoroughness would strip away all illusions that the district could manage itself. From the audit, school officials and the public have a base from which to begin rebuilding the system.

At the same time, however, we have a superintendent who has been with the district more than 20 years, who has, in fact, been assistant superintendent. We have fundamentally the same board now that we have had for years.

Why, we wonder, has something not been done before? And what should make the public believe that something will be done now?

We have the right to demand that board members, rather than providing passive support to the superintendent, be educational leaders, setting the pace, reaching for goals, and finding ways not to catch up, but to excel.

We obviously must restructure our school system, rebuild it from the ground up. To do that, the the Floyd County Board of Education is going to have to do something it hasn't done in quite some time: be progressive.

Letters to the Editor

Reader Offended By Recent Photo In Sports Section

Dear Editor:

I am writing this letter in response to a picture that appeared in the Dec. 7 issue of The Floyd County Times. The photograph showed a 15-year-old boy, chest out, chin up, proudly posed beside his first deer. The caption read that he had "bagged" his first seven-point buck while on a hunting trip with his stepfather. Isn't that special!

Now, I must say that this is certainly not the first photograph of this nature to appear in your paper and will probably not be the last. However, I decided that rather than silently endure the sickening disgust that such cruelty makes me feel, that instead, I would make my feeling known, as I am sure that there are countless others who feel the same way.

First of all, I wonder why it has never occurred to the Times staff that there are some people who do not agree that slaying helpless animals with guns and bows is sporting in any sense of the word. Secondly, there are those having no desire to be exposed to what they consider senseless violence.

While I realize it is not my place to tell others how to conduct themselves, I cannot see why everyone must serve witness to the barbaric exploitations of a few (or of many for that matter). There are some people who truly find such material offensive (even in Eastern Kentucky).

Surely, it is enough for the boy to have "bagged" his first deer. After all, doesn't that prove he's a real man? I don't think it's necessary for the rest of us to be used to reinforce his behavior while simply trying to keep track of the local news.

Sincerely,

Marie Hamilton
Stanville

More Comments On Homelessness Sought By Board

Dear Editor:

On behalf of the Kentucky Advisory Council on the Homeless, I want to take this opportunity to thank area residents, civic leaders and elected officials for taking part in the public hearing on the homeless issue in Kentucky, which the Council hosted Dec. 5 at the Archer Park Senior Citizens Center.

The first-hand knowledge, comments and suggestions shared with the Council at this hearing are exactly the kinds of information this body needs in order to come up with a comprehensive series of recommendations for action by this state to address the needs of homeless Kentuckians.

At the same time, I'm aware that time constraints and other factors may have prohibited some interested people in the Prestonsburg area from being able to fully participate in this first in a series of statewide hearings. For that reason, I am seeking any additional written comments from area residents who would like to share their thoughts on the needs of the homeless with the Council and other government services planners here in Frankfort.

Please address your correspondence to Kentucky Advisory Council on the Homeless, care of E. Douglas Smith, Deputy Secretary, Kentucky Cabinet for Human Resources, 275 East Main Street, Frankfort, KY 40621.

Again, thank you for your time and also your assistance in the important work of the Council.

Sincerely,

E. Douglas Smith
Chairman
Kentucky Advisory Council on the Homeless

Scott Thanks Area Voters, Calls For Unity

Dear Editor:

I would like to take this opportunity to thank all of the wonderful people that participated in the recent Seventh District Congressional race, no matter what side they eventually took. I know that everyone who participated did so from their heart, and with the true intention of furthering the future of Eastern Kentucky and our children.

The only place that I could really see that we really ever differed was on how to use the Congressional office. I see nothing wrong with using the Seventh District Congressional seat as a springboard for travelling the country and enticing businesses to come into Eastern Kentucky and using the office to coordinate the various legal and technical aspects encountered by the counties in locating these businesses or for that matter, going to the coal consumers and talking them into buying Eastern Kentucky coal. I was sure these would be questions which would be debated on into the future, and hopefully found correct.

But at any rate, we all know that we are some of the toughest, most disciplined people in the world here in the Seventh District and that once we have set our mind to it and really believe that we can accomplish a goal, then nothing can hold us back. I believe that we all, Congressman Perkins included, learned a lot about each other and I think that will help us all tomorrow. We have all got to help our Congressman, no matter what our party affiliations or beliefs.

I think if we will all sit down and reflect on it, we can all come to the same conclusion—and that is that unity is required to accomplish any difficult task. Remember the motto, "United we stand, divided we fall." We have fallen too many times in Eastern Kentucky and failed to give our leadership the necessary support because we get so divided. In the first instance we are all Eastern Kentuckians and I hope in the future we keep this foremost in mind and present a united front so that we can attain and achieve that which is rightfully ours, an opportunity to work. I don't think that is asking for too much, that our children can work at home instead of having to migrate and have to be away from us during their work life.

Simeon Willis, the Governor from Greenup County in 1944, was my great uncle, and in his address to the legislature that year, he made the comment that "Freedom without the opportunity to work is freedom to starve." I'm sure that he didn't mean to disparage the word "freedom", but it did point out even then that we have got to have an opportunity to work, especially here in Eastern Kentucky and that's not asking for a handout, just a helping hand.

If we all concentrate on this in the future, if we stay united, assist those leaders that help us, talk to those leaders that don't and get everybody going in the same direction, we can't help but accomplish something good for our homeland and children. That's something worth doing, worth living for and worth fighting for.

With kindest regards and best wishes for a happy holiday,
Will T. Scott

Reader Seeks Info On Family History

Dear Editor:

I am trying to write my family history and I have come to a dead end! Can some of your readers help me?

My ancestors, named James Bunyard, and his wife, Martha Jones, lived in Carter County in 1850. They had the following children: Susanna, Sarah, Barbara, Elizabeth, John J.C., Anna and Mary E. Mary Emily Bunyard (my great-great-grandmother) married Miles Pelfry in Carter County on Nov. 12, 1870. Then, the family seems to have disappeared from Carter County and I am trying to locate any relative who may have information on the Bunyards or Pelfrys. They may have moved to a neighboring county.

Any help you can give to me would be most appreciated!
Happy holidays!

Report to Kentucky

SENATOR WENDELL FORD

U.S. Senate, Washington, D.C. 20510

THE 101ST CONGRESS WILL FACE CHALLENGES

Despite the accomplishments of the 100th Congress, we have only begun to address some of our most urgent problems.

One of the most important issues I will be addressing is the improvement and expansion of our overburdened aviation system. We will search for ways to enhance aviation safety through an independent FAA, expanded pilot education and other measures.

I also will be pursuing our quest for greater energy independence through clean-coal research and other initiatives.

Our main goal still is to balance the federal budget without raising income taxes or cutting Social Security benefits. Enactment of a two-year budget cycle for the government should provide a valuable tool for dealing with the deficit.

In addition I see a need to follow up on our success with the burley-tobacco program by dealing with problems related to the buildup of surplus dark-tobacco stocks in Western Kentucky. And we will start crafting a 1990 farm bill to serve the common interests of consumers and economically troubled farmers.

Studying the new Catastrophic Insurance Program and making any needed refinements is an issue that many of us will remain involved with. We must insure that this legislation properly serves the health needs of the elderly.

Now that we have a tough new anti-drug bill in place, we must all work to see that these measures work to free our nation—and particularly our children—of the terrible threat of drug dependency.

Analyzing the possible results of the Canadian Free Trade Agreement to insure fair competition in the electric-power and other markets is important for Kentucky. And we must guard the interests of all parties, including consumers and the Kentucky coal industry, in the current restructuring of the electric-power industry.

Continued fair treatment of our nation's taxpayers will be sought by closely monitoring the effects of such measures as our 1986 tax reforms and our recent Taxpayer Bill of Rights.

The issue of safe and affordable child care without infringing on parental choice or restricting care provided by families and religious groups is an increasing concern.

Other family issues, such as adopting a comprehensive national housing policy and closely monitoring the new welfare reform measures, will also receive attention.

We must also continue to keep our nation's military strong and move beyond the INF Treaty as we deal with the Soviet Union and other nations in the quest for a more peaceful world.

The list of our concerns is lengthy, going beyond the few I've touched upon here. We made progress in several key areas in the last session and I am hopeful that such productivity can be continued in the 101st session.

Mayor Gives Annual Report To Council

ed that well over half of all accidents reported in the city occurred on US 23.

FIRE DEPARTMENT

The fire department, under the direction of Chief Tom Blackburn, made 362 runs this year — an increase of more than 100 over the same period last year. Only one major fire was reported, attributable to arson, and the home was actually burned twice before it was considered a major loss.

The department purchased a new fire truck with help from a $25,000 Area Development Fund Grant.

City firefighters received over 3,000 hours of training, and department members are offering new courses to stimulate additional interest in its volunteer force, which currently includes 28 persons.

The fire marshal's office conducted 152 public building inspections and 30 residential inspections, taught fire prevention programs at several schools, and held a two-day seminar for the staff at Highlands Regional Medical Center on the proper use of fire extinguishers.

PUBLIC WORKS

The new city garage was completed. Mike Meade was named superintendent of public works.

The department put down 50 feet of new sidewalk, installed some new drainage in three areas, and corrected surface water drainage problems. They also built two new picnic pavilions.

A mechanic was hired to get old equipment back in working order, at a substantial savings to the city.

RECREATION

A new senior citizens' outdoor recreation center and a new foot bridge across Middle Creek were completed at Archer Park.

The park's playground also got a facelift through the efforts of the Prestonsburg Rotary Club, which repainted and refurbished all the equipment. The Floyd County Soil Conservation Service provided gravel and drainage for the new baseball field, and a new T-ball field was built. Brush and scrub trees were removed from the park, and the entrance sign repainted.

The state Department of Fish and Wildlife built a new boat ramp on the Big Sandy River in Prestonsburg; available to sportsmen, the ramp can also be used to launch boats in emergency or rescue operations.

A beautification program was begun at Flood Gate Park, including construction of a shelter and planting of shade trees.

OTHER AREAS

The Main Street program was recertified for the third year, and received funding for the first time, enabling the city to hire a Main Street manager.

For the fourth straight year, Prestonsburg was named a Certified City by the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce.

FUTURE

Latta asked council members to join her in undertaking two major projects: building downtown sidewalks and curbs, and making a major push for economic development throughout the city.

"These are closely related," said Latta, "and both are essential to the future growth and development of the city."

A public hearing will be held Thursday, Jan. 5, at 7 p.m. in the council room of the Municipal Building to hear public comment and comment from downtown property owners concerning sidewalk rebuilding.

In the economic development arena, Latta noted the city must begin "a concerted effort to attract new businesses to vacant buildings, new industries to the area, and new jobs for our people."

She said she will appoint a blue-ribbon commission to form and execute economic development and recruitment efforts.

TO THE VOTERS OF DISTRICT 3:

I'm a coal miner and a Vietnam Veteran. I am aware of the needs of each of the communities I expect to represent and will provide each area with equal opportunities to improve. I am fair, honest and openminded.

I will try my best to see each of you before this election is over. You will not see any signs, posters or stickers of mine. I don't believe in littering our beautiful country side. The David School and its director Dan Greene will be the focus of a 30-second national public service announcement being filmed this week at the school.

The spot will be part of ABC-TV's Project Literacy US (PLUS) campaign stressing the importance of literacy and dropout prevention, said Frank Dupont, producer.

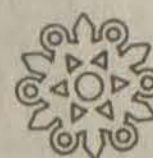

The film crew, which arrived Sunday, will stay through graduation ceremonies Thursday to shoot additional film footage for a proposed 8-10 minute documentary on the school, said DuPont.

ABC executives, said Dupont, heard about the school through contacts at the Appalachian Regional Commission and "have been very impressed by Greene." DuPont said Greene may also be included in a proposed series on people "who have helped make a difference" in dropout prevention and literacy.

This is the film crew's third visit to the school. They have interviewed students and faculty and have shot footage of the school and surrounding area.

Religious Viewpoints

By Patrick Banks
First Assembly of God
Martin

Millions of people see a large gap between a Christian life and a life without Christ.

This is not necessarily true. There is a change when one transfers his lifestyle, his allegiance, from so-called "worldly" things to "Godly" things. There is a drastic change, but it is in the character and beliefs of the individual. It is obvious to the bystander when God takes over and when Christ enters a life; the change is from within and is so richly enjoyed that one has become a different person, with little conscious effort on his or her part.

Youths may fear to admit Christ because they cannot accept all the sacrifices they see older people making. No doubt, there are sacrifices, but God greatly restores 10 times all that is lost with a new and richer life.

When I was an 11- or 12-year-old, I became interested in football, but I did not want my lifestyle to change. An opportunity arose for me to try out for the team. I had no particular talent, but the coach found a place for a short, overweight football lover. He had something in mind for me.

One year ago in Durham, N.C., I again tried something new. Even as I had decided to attempt to play football and follow the coach as my leader, I decided to follow Christ as my savior.

I decided to put faith in God just one time, so that I could say or feel that I had tried. My experience has been that of a richer, fuller life. Once a person realizes how simple Christ is, and receives the grace and blessings of God, they will never look back on the world.

God had a plan for me, as the football coach had. I had been watching life from the sidelines; now I am in the game.

We are all on God's game roster, but we have to ask to play. We have only but to knock, and the Lord will answer. With Jesus as quarterback, we will have another winning season.

BIBLE ANSWERS TO YOUR QUESTIONS

Why did Jesus come to earth?

I. The Reason

The Bible tells us man is forever lost because of sin. (Romans 5:12). "The wages of sin is death." (Romans 6:23). Man's destiny is the lake of fire. (Revelation 20:11-15). There is NO way man can save himself. (Ephesians 2:8-9). But Jesus came to provide that way. (John 14:6)

II. The Redemption

Because of His great love for man and because only He could be the sinless sacrifice needed, Jesus, the Son of God, willingly came to earth as the little Babe of Bethlehem later to become that sacrifice on the cross for the sin of all mankind. (Acts 4:12). Talk about a Christmas Gift—there is none greater! He gave all of Himself for us! What have we given to Him?

III. The Results

Jesus has provided the way to escape eternal death. This way is free to all who will accept it. Now man has the opportunity to choose his eternal destiny—heaven or hell.

IV. Your Response

Dear Friend, at this Christmas season, pause long enough to think about the real reason we are celebrating Christmas. Are you willing to accept God's free gift? It is yours for the taking. Simply ask Jesus to forgive your sins and receive Him as your Personal Savior. "For God so loved the world that He gave His only Begotten Son that whosoever believeth in Him, should not perish but have everlasting life." (John 3:16). Will you accept the Greatest Gift offered to mankind? If you do, you will certainly have the merriest Christmas and the happiest New Year you have ever had!

Your gentle face and patient smile
With sadness we recall
You had a kindly word for each
And died beloved by all

The voice is mute and stilled the heart
That loved us well and true,
Ah, bitter was the trial to part
From one so good as you.

You are not forgotten loved one
Nor will you ever be,
As long as life and memory last
We will remember thee.

We miss you now, our hearts are sore
As time goes by we miss you more,
Your loving smile, your gentle face,
No one can fill your vacant place.

Sadly missed
by your

District Receives Audit

ministrators and classroom personnel.

Auditors found ineffective board policies governing basic functions of the school system, according to the report. The team found no evidence of local long range planning, no local long range goals, and no connections between curriculum to provide for students' transition from grade to grade or school to school.

"Floyd County is a school system in name only," stated the report.

AUDIT FINDINGS

— No one interviewed in Floyd County cited board policy as an effective tool, said the auditors; practices occurred by custom, local prerogative or "by default."

Auditors said the system has no functional policy manual, and that a great deal of control is left to individuals. As one classroom teacher observed, "There are 22 schools, and 22 school districts in Floyd County."

— Long-range planning has been done only in response to orders by state officials.

— The current management system is unworkable, with 31 persons reporting directly to the superintendent. There is no central coordinating body to develop curriculum in the district, and principals receive little supervision.

— Leadership at separate schools reflects a wide range of competency. "A few principals were quite effective," said auditors. "Too many, however, had no idea of what constituted instructional or curricular leadership in their buildings."

— True accountability is impossible in Floyd County with current policies. Textbooks are often chosen on the basis of "freebies" given by publishers rather than relation to what should be taught.

The auditors also found political patronage, noting, "Seasoned board members and administrators recounted glaring interference in the hiring process by some board members who appeared to be more concerned about future votes than with actual job competence." One elementary school, they said, is staffed by three extended families who live near the school.

— Auditors found limited curriculum guides, no formal system of development or monitoring, and no plans to complete curriculum development. Teachers "viewed the textbook as the curriculum," and decisions regarding instruction at the classroom level are made mostly by individual teachers.

There are no procedures that involve teachers in curriculum development.

— The curriculum for the five high schools is uneven across the schools, and not equal within the schools. Lab facilities for science programs are not available at all high schools. "In one building, the well-designed science laboratories, in apparent good condition, are not hooked up to water, gas and electric utilities," said the auditors.

Foreign language offerings are uneven; one school offers two years of French, two offer German, one offers one year of French and three years of Latin, while yet another offered no foreign language this year.

Also cited as unequal were math, social studies, home economics, industrial arts and mechanics, agriculture, business and office skills and music.

— The district rarely uses test data to improve instruction; there is no board policy about testing, no plan to guide use of test data, and principals generally do not use test results to supervise curricular planning.

— The county's dropout rate is decreasing, but remains above the state average.

— Test scores have improved, but district rankings in relation to the rest of the state have not changed.

— Reading scores at the high school level are significantly below those of the elementary schools. The average score for kindergarten through eighth grade students, over a three-year period, shows a continuous increase. However, scores for the same period at the high school level "show either spotty rises or falls, or an even decline," said the report.

— Fifth grade test scores are consistently below the levels of other grades tested.

— Principals spend large amounts of time directing fund raising activities. "The children in Floyd County are acting as unpaid tax collectors," said the auditors. Students raised $1.7 million, an average of $193 per student.

Funds are used to replace furnaces, pave driveways, pay referees, buy dinners, repair gym floors, pay utility bills and purchase office and instructional supplies.

(Superintendent Hager said this week he felt that the $1.7 million did not include the cost of the items sold. He has asked state officials to determine the actual amount of profit from fund raising.)

At McDowell High School, students raised $10,000 a week, or $428 per student annually. Wheelwright students raised an average of $440 per student per year, followed by Betsy Layne ($307); Allen Central ($306); and Prestonsburg ($290).

On the elementary level, Wayland students raised an average of $246 each per year, followed by Maytown ($223); Allen ($188); Betsy Layne ($122); Stumbo ($115); Harold ($112); Auxier ($110); Melvin and Prater ($107); Prestonsburg ($103); Osborne ($99); Martin ($63); Clark ($57); and Garrett ($41).

— School facilities range from modern to deplorable. Some campuses were modern and well-kept, while others were old, but clean and usable. Other buildings lacked good ventilation, two high school bathrooms lacked any sort of privacy. The girls' restroom at Wheelwright High School has no doors, no paper and no running water.

RECOMMENDATIONS

— The board should develop public, clear, visible and written policies that set requirements for goals and objectives, establish priorities and provide criteria to assess administrative performance.

— Political patronage should be eliminated as an element of employment, assignment and evaluation. "Nepotism is rampant in some schools," noted auditors.

— A valid, long range plan should be created. Auditors recommended that the superintendent develop a long range plan (five to eight years), developed with community and staff input.

— Revise the organizational structure of the central office. "The district is carrying several administrators from the past whose functions appear to be more 'makeshift' than required," said the report.

— Monitor school principal performance and place poor performers on notice. Noting that many principals are marginally competent in providing leadership in academics, auditors recommended their job descriptions be revised, principals be assessed more rigorously.

— External fund raising by principals and schools should be severely curtailed, guided by board policies, and the sale of junk food to students stopped.

— Establish a safe, dignified and healthy physical environment for students in every school.

— Large schools should be staffed with assistant principals.

— Install a programmed budgeting system.

— Develop a plan and timetable to close at least two schools (Drift and Spruce Pine), and consider additional consolidations.

— Develop and implement a procedure to utilize test data.

— Expand the advanced placement program.

— Establish a curriculum management and monitoring system for use by principals.

— Establish a school board policy regarding the district testing program

— Establish a district curriculum committee to standardize course offerings, with the committee including principals, teachers, community members and central office curriculum and instruction personnel.

— Investigate the course offerings and instructional program at the fifth grade level.

— Reading programs at the middle and high school levels should be intensified.

— Develop and implement a long-range plan for curriculum development.

This is the 12th year Tackett has distributed toys, clothes, fruit and candy at what he calls "Marlow's Annual Christmas Party." The musician is expecting more than 4,000 persons at this year's giveaway, which begins at 1 p.m. Sunday, Dec. 18. The gifts have been donated by Marlow's customers and by other Floyd and Pike county residents. Today is Doll Day, when "anyone who is interested" can come in to make dresses for the dolls that will be given away, said Tackett.

Having A 'Beary' Merry Christmas Easy At May Lodge

If you don't like bears, don't go to May Lodge at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park before early January.

Of course, they are not real bears. They are fabric bears, stuffed and sewn by members of Homemakers Clubs in Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties.

"A Beary Christmas" is this year's theme with stuffed bears hanging on the Christmas tree, attached to the greenery on the stair railing and seated in chairs and under the tree. They range from a couple of inches tall to child-size and show off a variety of colorful prints.

Homemakers in the clubs, including 17 clubs in Floyd County alone, began work on the lodge decoration project in August. About 75 of them decorated the lodge on Nov. 30. This is the fifth year they have decorated the lobby and dining room at the lodge.

Materials for the project are paid for through sales of the decorations. For this season, the decorations will remain on display through Old Christmas, January 8, and will then be on sale at the Floyd County Extension Office at the Court House in Prestonsburg, according to extension agent Frances Pitts.

Holiday Poinsettias Available At Workshop

by Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

People who don't want to get into the holiday spirit should avoid Mountain Comprehensive Care's greenhouse on US 23 north of Prestonsburg this time of year.

The greenhouse, MCC's sheltered workshop, is a profusion of red, pink and white poinsettias guaranteed to give even Scrooge an infusion of seasonal cheer.

The greenhouse's 47 workers, all of them mentally handicapped or with developmental difficulties, have been growing the traditional Christmas plants since last May, according to Chalmer Howard, director of the facility.

The process starts with four-inch rooted cuttings purchased from a supplier. After they get some growth, said Howard, the greenhouse workers start more cuttings from the original plants. One plant can supply 25 to 30 cuttings, he said.

In late August, when customers are worrying about summer harvests and fall foliage, the young poinsettia sprouts are being rooted and potted. By late November, they have become the lush plants that grace tables in homes, churches and businesses.

Howard estimates the greenhouse sells "several thousand" poinsettias in pots and hanging baskets to individual customers, as well as to retail florists. "Poinsettias are our second money-making crop, behind the spring garden plants," Howard said.

The greenhouse "clients," as the workers are called, provide not only beauty to area plant lovers, but they also learn responsibility and a degree of independence while earning pay for their labor.

Purchases by greenhouse customers go back into the facility's operation as money for materials and pay for the workers who come from Martin, Johnson, and Floyd counties. "Our customers not only get quality plants," said Howard, "but they also get the feeling of supporting a worthwhile program."

While the poinsettias are selling, greenhouse personnel have already begun seed planting and cutting in preparation for the spring garden season.

Howard believes that working with soil and growing plants is an effective medium for working with people with special needs. "Essentially, we're saying to our clients 'You are a worthwhile person; you can be productive.'"

As for dealing with a poinsettia after the holidays, Howard departs from his horticultural colleagues who offer advice on preserving the difficult plant. "Enjoy your poinsettia to the fullest, maintain it for as long as you can, then toss it," he advises.

Legislative Perspective

By Rep. Greg Stumbo

by Rep. Gregory D. Stumbo, House Majority Floor Leader
Chalking up an overwhelming margin, the House of Representatives passed legislation creating a state lottery operation.

With less than two weeks of concentrated study, the House Committee on State Government presented House members with an excellent measure.

I am proud of the work done by committee members. As prime sponsor of the legislation, I know that long hours were spent in honest deliberation over the best way to establish a lottery. It is a bill that can establish a major enterprise for the state of Kentucky.

Major elements of the bill include:
—Creates an independent corporation to manage the lottery. The lottery is to be accountable to the Governor, the General Assembly and the public through a system of audits, reports and financial disclosure.
—Allows the lottery corporation to be given direction by a board of directors and a president of the corporation.

—Requires all records of the corporation to be open unless the information relates to a trade secret or the security of its retailers or the lottery.
—Subjects all employees of the lottery and those retailers participating in the lottery to security checks.

—Exempts the first $600 annually in lottery winnings from Kentucky income tax.
—Adds unclaimed prize money to the pool.
The board of directors and its president will decide on the type of games to be conducted and the price of tickets. They will also select the number and amount of prizes, as well as the method, selection and validation of winning tickets. Also decided by the board and its president will be the means of conducting drawings and the manner of payment of prizes.

This legislation did not address how lottery revenue will be spent. Legislators, including myself, agree that it is wise to wait until the 1990 General Assembly convenes to decide upon those kinds of expenditures. We will then have a more realistic idea of the monies the Commonwealth can expect to receive.

I feel the legislation is well written and every attempt was made to create an honest structure well above the hint of any irregularities. I think all supporters of the lottery owe a great deal to the members of the House state government committee for taking the extra time to insure such a quality piece of legislation. I am proud to have taken part in the process.

The measure will now go to the Senate. It is estimated that the General Assembly could possibly complete its work within the week.

Rebels Earn Trio Of Wins In Recent Cavalier Classic

Coach Johnny Martin's Allen Central Rebels picked up three wins as they sailed through the Cavalier Classic, winning the round-robin tournament.

The Runnin' Rebs downed Fleming-Neon in their opener, 68-48, and followed that with a 59-52 win over Whitesburg. In their final match against Jenkins, things were a bit slimmer, but the Rebs pulled out a 68-65 victory.

"I think we're improving every game," said Martin, adding that his team would continue to work hard to maintain the momentum.

In the classic, said Martin, the Rebs shot well, but three road trips to Jenkins contributed to slightly flatter play in the final contest against Jenkins.

"We got a little tired, and we are lacking in depth," said the coach.

In addition, Mike Collins, a regular off the bench, took a charge and suffered a concussion Friday, preventing him from participating in Saturday's outing. Martin said the injury will keep Collins out of action for up to four weeks. "It's going to hurt us," said the coach. "He's our sixth man, and plays an awful lot for us."

Now posting a 5-0 record, the Rebel coach is pleased overall with his team's performance. Scoring has been balanced, with several players having double-digit nights. In the classic, against Fleming-Neon, Todd Duff and Jamie Hall contributed 18 apiece, while on Saturday night, Joey Conn led the team with 21 points. Rick Smith chipped in 17, and Hall added 15.

"We're not into the tough part of our schedule yet," said Martin, "and we have some tough games coming up." Those include Tuesday's contest against Paintsville (scores were unavailable as of presstime), and outings against McDowell and Prestonsburg — all on the road.

"We've only had one home game," the coach notes. Despite that, the 5-0 mark has to be a pleasant way to enter the holiday season for Martin.

"We've been playing well offensively, and we're shooting 50 percent from the floor for the year," he adds.

Senior Jamie Hall has been a big surprise for the Runnin' Rebs this season. Hall, who last played basketball in the eighth grade, turned to football during his varsity tenure. An injury last year in pre-season play kept him out of action, but he appears to be making up for that — and much more — with his performances as a senior.

The Rebels will see action again Thursday, Dec. 15, traveling to McDowell to take on the Dare Devils, who are conference opponents. The Rebs' game at Prestonsburg Friday, Dec. 9, has been rescheduled to Monday, Dec. 19.

Bobcats Get Early Lead, Hold On To Margin To Best McDowell, 81-76

The Betsy Layne Bobcats picked up a conference win over McDowell Friday, jumping out to an early lead and playing steadily to claim the 81-76 win.

"They jumped out to an 11-point lead in the first quarter, 18-7, and continued to have an 11-point lead at halftime," said McDowell mentor Johnny Ray Turner.

"We came back in the third a little, and back in the fourth a little, and were within one point with two minutes to go, but we missed a bonus shot," said the coach.

While the Dare Devils are shooting well, said Turner, "We are flat. We can't get anything going on offense or defense."

One bright spot is 6'3" forward Rady Martin, a senior, who scored 34 points against the Bobcats. Most of those came on two-point shots from regulations (he had two 3-pointers), and a number were from free throws. Dickie Joe Shannon chipped in 20 points, while Webb contributed 13. Webb, who bruised his back with only seconds remaining in the game, practiced Monday and is expected to play for McDowell this week.

The Dare Devils, with the loss, go to 1-3 on the season.

"We still need to work on defense quite a bit," Turner said. "I feel like even though our record is 1-3, we have played competitively even though we've been beaten three times."

McDowell has a tough schedule this year, and will face as many as five games against teams ranked among the top 20 in the state, including Pulaski County, Central City, Lexington Lafayette, Clay County and Knox County Central.

"It can't do anything but help us, if we take the games positively, whether we win or lose," he added.

Turner will place emphasis on the squad's defense in coming practices; currently, the team plays a half-court man-to-man.

"In the games we've lost, we've gotten off to a slow start, and haven't been able to get any points on the board early," he adds.

McDowell will host Allen Central Thursday, in a game that Turner says will be tough. "Conference games are always very competitive — it doesn't matter who you are playing."

WHS Lady Trojans Struggling, But Coach Hoping For Turnaround

The Wheelwright Lady Trojans are continuing to look for a win, prompted in large part by a 40-point loss at the hands of the Elkhorn City High School Lady Cougars in the ECHS Invitational Tournament recently.

The inexperienced squad has one big plus: an experienced coach. Judy Eversole, who led women's teams to district and regional finals in past years for Floyd County, likewise took her WHS women's 1987-88 edition to the regional tour-despite a 13-15 record, and that's a performance Eversole hopes to be able to repeat, at least at the district level, this season.

The Lady Trojans had expected to open the season with a home game, but the city's water woes forced them to begin with the tournament in Pike County. In addition to falling to Elkhorn, the squad was also defeated by Letcher County, and lost again Monday night to the visiting Hazard women.

"Elkhorn has some big, good shooters, and they just had too much experience for us," said Eversole, also citing the school's larger student population as a factor. "We have a hard time trying to play these bigger schools."

Turnovers and lack of execution cost the Lady Trojans in points and statistics in the Elkhorn tourney, but the squad came together in a much more orderly fashion against Hazard Monday.

"We played excellently in the first half, and were down eight at halftime," said Eversole. "We did come back, but couldn't get a complete game out of the kids. Still, they showed the first signs of playing together as a unit."

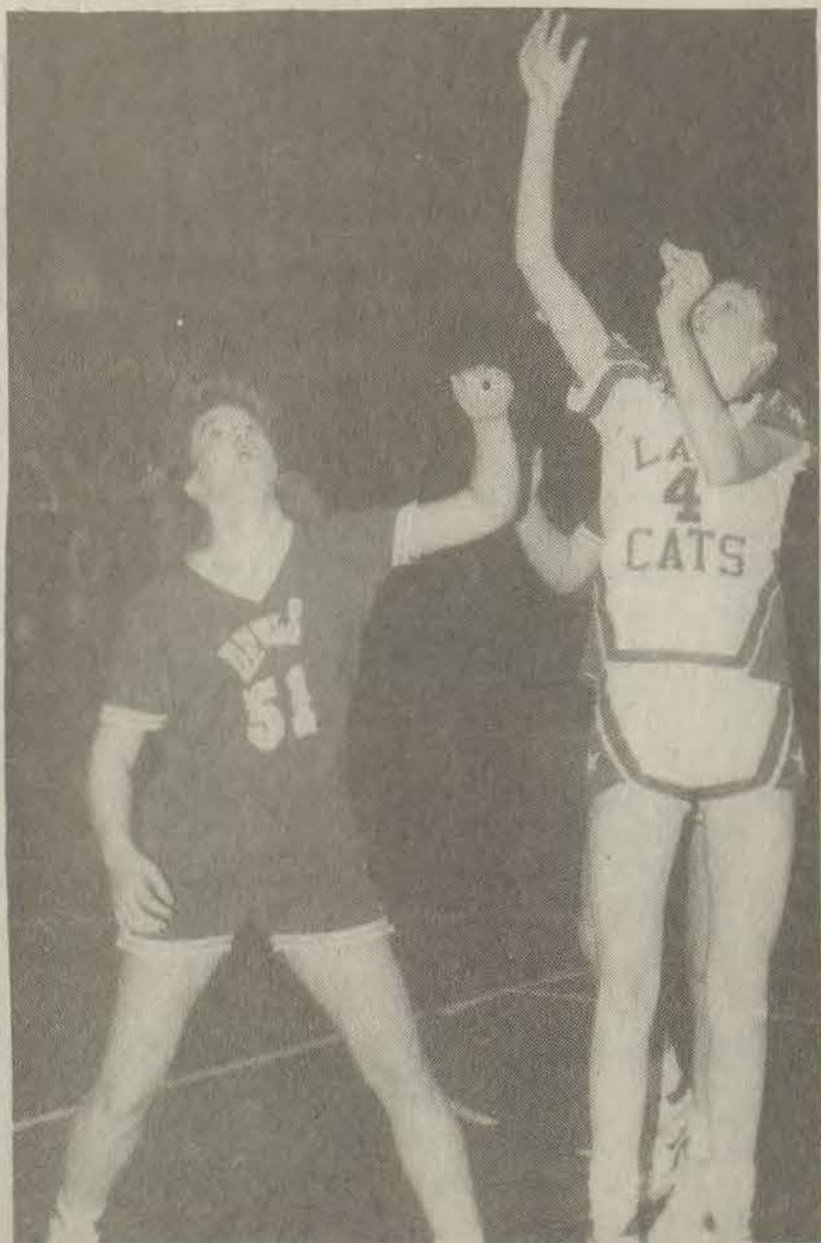

Against Elkhorn, the squad had a hard time getting the ball to stay in the hoop, and fared somewhat better against Hazard. The 75-45 loss Monday took the team to a 0-4 record.

Junior center Jedon Hood remains the squad's top scorer, helping offset teammate April Bradford's current shooting slump.

"I saw some bright spots," added Eversole. "When they put the pressure on us, we were able to break the press well, and that didn't hurt us as badly as it had. We executed offensively, where before we had not done too well."

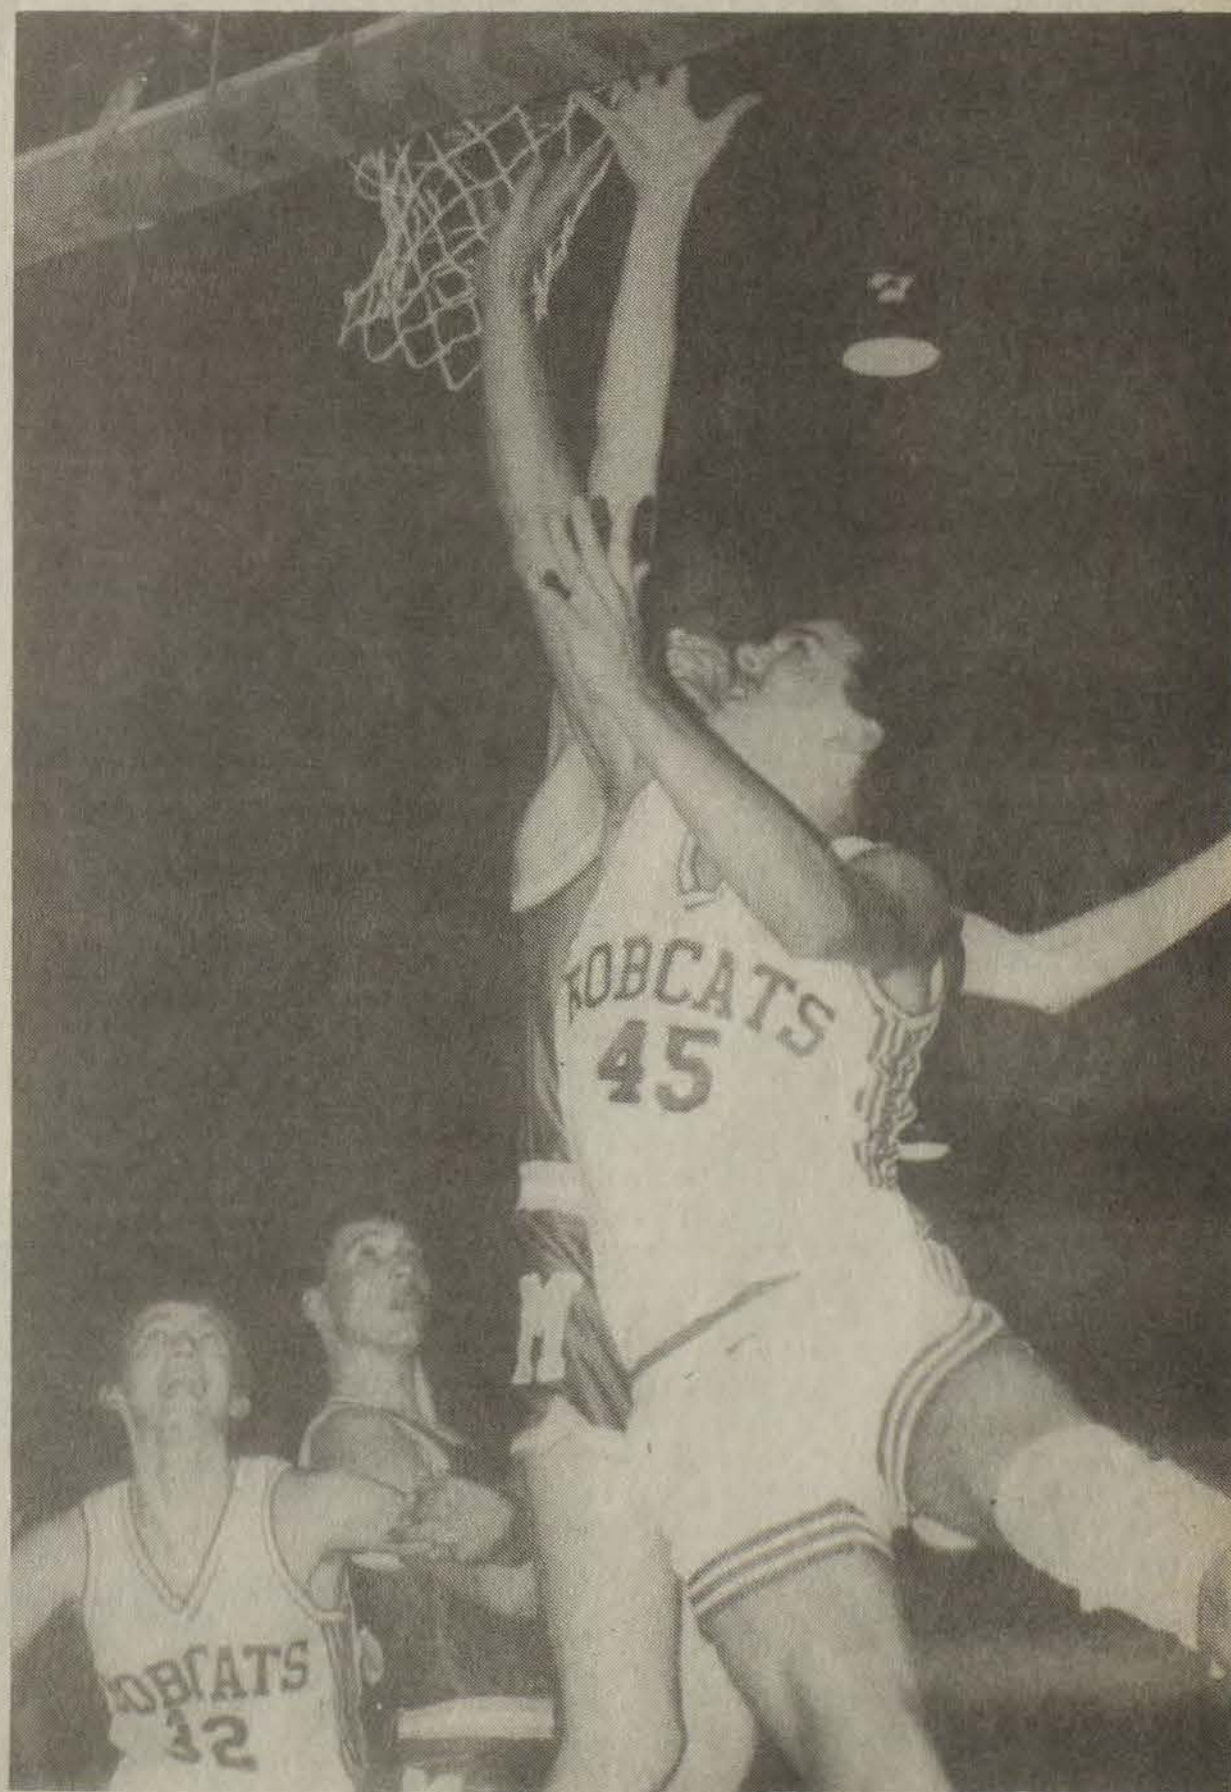

Eversole is now a coach in search of some leadership from her team, and hopes the squad's practices during the holiday break will have them ready for conference play the first of the year.

The Lady Trojans will host M.C. Napier this Friday night, and host Mullins on Monday, Dec. 19.

SANCTIONS IMPOSED FOR ILLEGAL SATELLITE DESCRAMBLER MARKETING

On November 10, John R. Ross, Sr. of J-Lyn Enterprises in Cartersville, Georgia, was sentenced under the laws which prohibit the marketing of unauthorized satellite programming descramblers. Ross received a one-year suspended jail sentence. He was also fined $3,000, placed on two years' probation, and required to forfeit all illegal items in his possession. The U.S. Marshall's Service arrested Ross on August 25 and seized unauthorized descrambling devices from his store, including receivers, descramblers, an EPROM burner and chips, and software used to tamper with descramblers. Other such enforcement actions are ongoing in various cities nationwide. Prior to Ross's arrest, the Federal Communications Commission had issued warning citations to descrambler marketers (Washington Report, August 8).

In its most recent report on scrambling, the FCC concluded that the theft of satellite programming through illegal descrambling devices is the greatest threat to the future viability of the home satellite dish industry (Washington Report, February 29). The FCC report recommended that Congress raise the penalties for piracy to deter such activity. In addition, victims of piracy are urged to seek relief under the piracy laws which include civil or criminal penalties of up to $500,000 in fines, five years' imprisonment, and seizure and forfeiture of descrambling devices.

Posthumous Scholarship Fund Created For Former PHS Athlete

A former Prestonsburg athlete and coach is being honored posthumously by a Lucasville, Ohio, high school with a scholarship in his memory.

William B. (Bill) Damron, who played basketball and football for the Prestonsburg High School Blackcats in the 1930s and was a PHS coach in the 1950s, coached the Valley High School football team to its only undefeated season in 1962, and now the school has established a scholarship in his honor.

Damron, who died last May, coached basketball at the Ohio school from 1955-63 and football from 1961-63.

The Bill Damron Scholarship Committee, made up of the coach's former team members, is raising money to fund an annual $1,000 scholarship to a senior athlete at Valley High. The award is to be presented at the school's yearly spring banquet.

Damron was married to the former Mary Katherine Mayo, a Prestonsburg native now living in Kingston, Ohio. He was the son of Lovada Brown Damron of Prestonsburg and the late Bob Damron, a former local railroad commissioner. One brother, Jeffrey Damron, lives in Allen.

Contributions may be sent to the scholarship committee, care of Robert Miller, P.O. Box 888, Lucasville, Ohio 45648.

Morehead Coach Granted Temporary Reassignment

Morehead State University Football Coach Bill Baldrige has requested and has been granted temporary reassignment because of health reasons, Athletics Director Steve Hamilton announced this week.

The reassignment is effective Jan. 3, and will last until March 20. Between now and Jan. 3, Baldrige will be on leave. During his period of reassignment, Baldrige will teach part-time in MSU's Department of Health, Physical Education and Recreation and will assist in planning for spring football practice and for the 1989 season on a limited basis.

Effective immediately and during Baldrige's reassignment period, Assistant Head Coach Vic Clark will be MSU's Acting Head Coach and will have complete control of the football program. All football-related decisions will be made with his approval.

"We are pleased to be able to honor Coach Baldrige's request for temporary reassignment," Hamilton said. "He has battled health problems the last two seasons, and we trust that when he returns on March 20, he will be 100 percent and ready to resume full coaching duties.

Baldrige's health problems began during the 1987 football season when he suffered chest pains following a football game at Austin Peay. He subsequently underwent two balloon angioplasties to relieve blockage in an artery near his heart. The pains reoccurred during the 1988 season following a football game at Liberty.

Dewey Fish, Game Club Elects Officers

The Dewey Lake Fish and Game Club held its election of officers for 1989.

Officers elected were Johnny Lafferty, president; Eric Hall, vice-president; Chalmer Howard, second vice-president; John Lenny Harris, secretary; Ron Goble, Earl Cline, Gerald Jones, Delmer Holbrooks, Paul Horn and Claude Newberry, board of directors.

"We have come a long way for fish and wildlife in the past few years," said Johnny Lafferty, spokesperson for the club. "but we have a long way to go yet."

"With the help of sportsmen in Floyd County, we can get it done. You have to work together, that's the key to success for fish and wildlife," Lafferty said.

The club is offering a $500 reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction of persons guilty of killing deer or turkey illegally in Floyd County. For more information, call 874-9359, 886-3313, or 1-800-25-ALERT.

The club meets the second Monday of each month, at the clubhouse at Stratton Branch, at 7:30 p.m. The public is invited to attend.

Training League Charity Games Planned Sunday

Teams in the Betsy Layne Training League will sponsor six charity games Sunday, Dec. 18, beginning at 1 p.m.

According to Roy Allen Hill, league spokesman, rather than charging admission, those attending games will be asked to donate items. Adults are asked to give canned food, while children are asked to bring a used toy.

At 4 p.m., Santa will visit. The league, which is for children in grades kindergarten through five, has about 100 members, said Allen.

Brady kids have grown up, gone in own directions

By Polly Vonetes

Q: On the long-running series The Brady Bunch, can you tell me what the six children are doing now?

A: The Brady kids, except for Susan Olsen, recently recreated their original roles for a CBS special movie that will air this Sunday. In an interview with Barry Williams (Greg Brady), who is appearing in a play on Broadway, he reported on the other Brady cast members. Maureen McCormick, Eve Plumb and Christopher Knight (Marcia, Janice and Peter) have agents and work occasionally. Michael Lookinland (Bobby) is studying filmmaking and is a production assistant on features out of Salt Lake City. Susan Olsen (Cindy) enrolled in a design school after the series ended. She and her husband, Steven Ventimiglia, have just sold several lines of sneakers to manufacturers.

Q: I'm a real big fan of Arnold Schwarzenegger. Will you please give me some information about him?
—Cody Masden, Montrose, Colo.

A: Arnold Schwarzenegger was born on July 30, 1947, in Graz, Austria. He was a sickly youth who was determined to improve his body and his health. In 1965 he was named Junior Mr. Europe and this prize led to others, including five Mr. Universe and seven Mr. Olympia titles. He emigrated to the United States in 1968, and became a citizen in 1983. In 1986 he married Maria Shriver. He is 6'2" tall, and weighs about 220 pounds. You may write to him c/o Oak Prodn, 321 Hampton Dr., Venice, Calif. 90291

Q: I've written other places

to try to satisfy my curiosity but with no success. I hope you can give me the information I seek. What has happened to Michael Nesmith of the Monkees? The other three seemingly ignore his existence in the few interviews I've seen. Please tell me about him. —Mary Jones, Port Oxford, Ore.

A: Michael Nesmith is alive and well living in Carmel, Calif. with his second wife, Kathryn. They have no children. He will not discuss the Monkees and has consistently refused all overtures to participate in a Monkees reunion. In 1985 he returned to television to star and host a seven-part summer comedy series for NBC. However, he is more interested in working behind the camera as a writer/producer than performing. Having inherited $47 million from his mother in 1980 (she invented Liquid Paper, which corrects typing errors), he has the freedom to choose when, how, where and if he works.

Brady Bunch reunites for holiday gathering

Family remains close on and off screen

By Mary Ann Townsend

Twenty years ago it was much more than a bunch, that a certain group of kids would somehow form a family and become known as the Brady Bunch.

Today, they're still very much like a family, and they reunited in August to film A Very Brady Christmas, which airs Sunday, Dec. 18, on CBS.

In A Very Brady Christmas, the six Brady kids return to Mom and Dad's house with their spouses and children for a special Christmas gathering. All except one of the original cast members—Susan Olsen, who played youngest daughter Cindy—are returning for the two-hour special.

Robert Reed returns as Dad, Mike Brady; Florence Henderson as Mom, Carol Brady; Ann B. Davis as Alice the housekeeper; Barry Williams as Greg; Maureen McCormick as Marcia; Christopher Knight as Peter; Eve Plumb as Jan; and Michael Lookinland as Bobby. Jennifer Runyon plays Cindy.

According to Williams, who portrays the oldest of the siblings, the actors unite for special events in real life, as well. Among some of the more recent off-screen reunions were McCormick's real-life wedding, and Williams' mid-October opening night in the dual role as Alfred/Sam in Romance, Romance on Broadway, which father Brady (Reed) attended.

"It's like a family, for better or for worse, we've got each other for our whole lives. We get together as friends," Williams said.

He said that while the actors occasionally get together off-screen, returning in the roles they originated in 1969 was a little eerie.

"It's pretty nostalgic, you could even say deja vu,

Barry Williams reprises his role as oldest son Greg in A Very Brady Christmas, Sunday, Dec. 18, on CBS.

practically," Williams said. "We recreated the set, the original house. I think the thing, the time that really hit me, was when we all sat down for our Christmas dinner and everyone was there—that was pretty spooky—you know in our roles, which kind of made it doubly spooky. We're used to seeing each other as adults and as friends, but not in the same roles."

Having started the series when he was 14, Williams literally grew up in the role he had for five years as Greg Brady. He said he learned some tricks of the sibling trade while working on the show. Off screen Williams has two older brothers, but in his Brady family he is the oldest of six. He said he learned some unique skills from his television role.

"I felt that they (writers and producers) had put in a great deal of expertise in manipulation and in how to boss kids around, how to take advantage of younger siblings, and I took full advantage of it," Williams chuckled. "I was also kind of resented for it by my new-found professional family, but we've all made peace."

Foot Wear

by Timothy Webb, D.P.M.
 "Ingrown" toenails are caused by chronic irritation of the skin brought about by incorrect cutting of nails, improper shoes, trauma or activity. The irritation can be so intense as to cause the side of the toe to swell, which in turn may cause the offending portion of the nail to cut into the flesh, resulting in infection. The condition is more likely when the toenail is wide in relation to the width of the toe.

We mentioned improper shoes as a cause of ingrown nails. Ladies' high heels with a narrow toe box adds to the pressure between the nail and skin. The high heels compound the problem by transferring most of the body's weight to the front of the shoe. Women's shoes aren't the only culprit. Steel-toed boots, worn by most miners and construction workers to protect against crushing injuries, have no flexibility to allow for movement of the toes. Pointed-toe cowboy boots are also notorious for aggravating ingrown nails.

The most important point to remember when purchasing shoes, in as far as the toes are concerned, is to allow for sufficient room to move the toes. Remember, the more narrow the end of the shoe, the more likely an ingrown nail will result.

The activity level of the individual comes into play primarily with teens and children. Young people simply do not allow an ingrown nail to slow them down. The movement at the toes increases the amount of irritation present. Often children do not even tell their parents until infection is present.

Many people say the correct method to cut your nails is straight across. In general, this is correct. However, it is important to know that the object in cutting them straight across is to avoid burying the corner of the nail within the skin of the nail groove. Nails may be rounded when cut as long as the corners are left long enough to be seen outside of the nail groove. To avoid ruining hosiery, the corners of the nails may be filed a small amount.

Most important of all, please don't try to treat an ingrown toenail yourself, especially with a pocket knife. An infection of the toe could possibly spread causing loss of toe, foot, leg or even your life. The correct and safest way to treat an ingrown nail is to see a doctor. Permanent correction of ingrown nails is available, ask him about it.

This is first of a periodic series dealing with problems of the feet. In future articles we hope to answer more questions you might have about foot health.

P'burg Lady Blackcats Defeat McDowell, 50-43

The Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats defeated McDowell recently, scoring 50 and holding the Lady Daredevils to 43.

Kathy Slone led the PHS effort, hitting six from the floor and six at the line for 18 points; Karen Frazier scored 16, while Michelle Clemmons added 12.

"They really did a good job," said Coach Bridgett Clay.

An added extra was the way Slone and Clemmons picked up the slack, with Karen Frazier ill. "Karen was not up to par," noted Clay. "She wasn't able to be the dominating player she usually is, and the other kids just picked up the slack."

In the first half, the team exhibited little patience. "We were out of sync," said the coach. "In the second half we calmed down and played well."

Clay cited McDowell as a much-improved team. The Lady Daredevils were led in scoring by Lori Bryant, who hit seven regulation field goals and one from the line for 15 points. Gloria Mullins added nine points.

With the win, the PHS women go 3-0 on the season (scores from Tuesday's game against Betsy Layne were unavailable as of presstime).

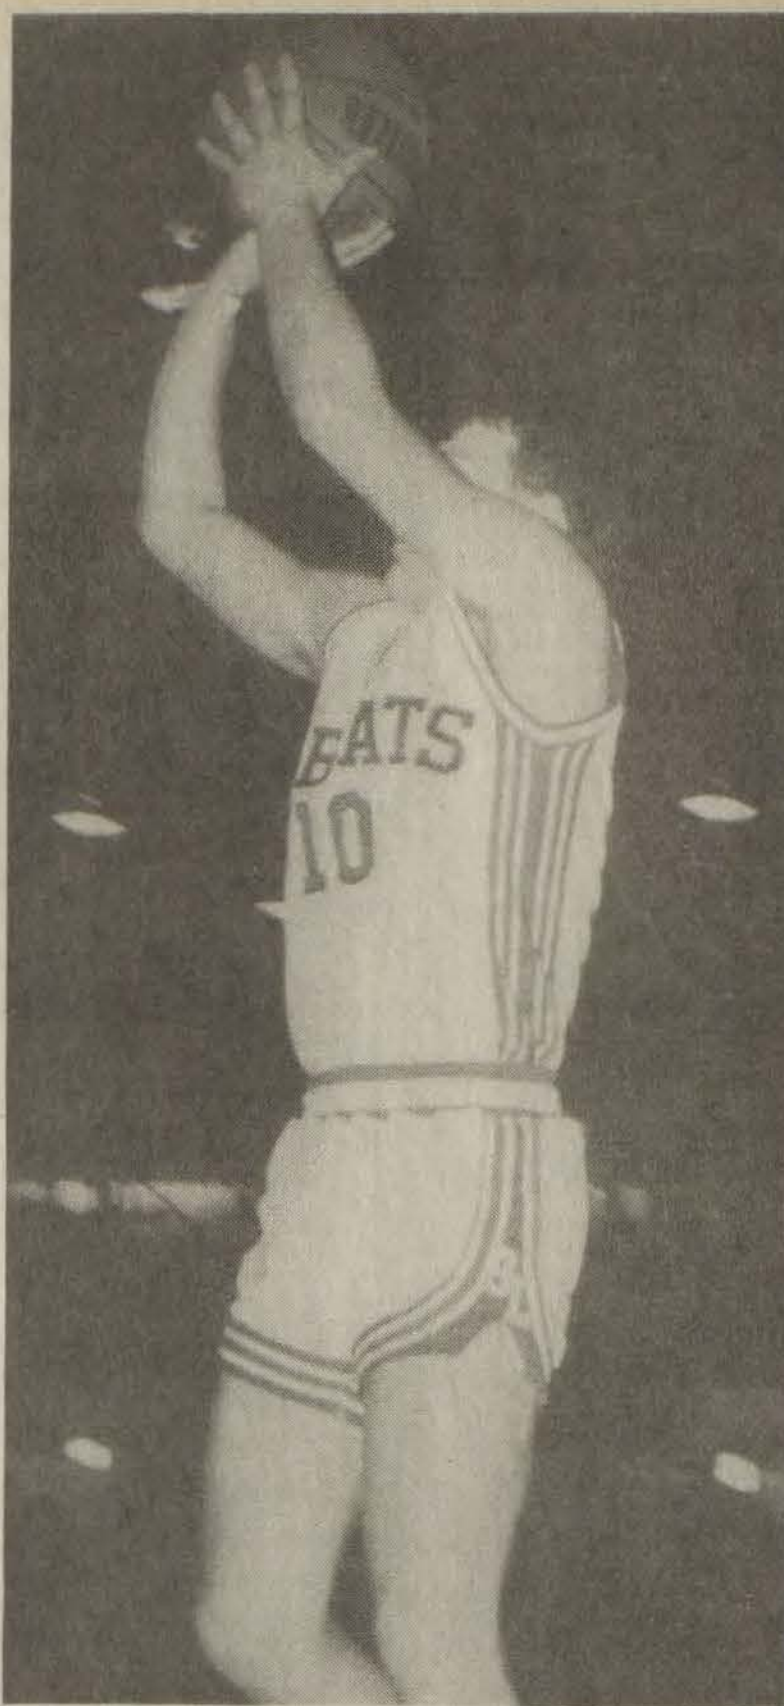

The victory over McDowell marked the Lady Blackcats' first conference win, to Clay's delight.

"On any night, any team can be knocked off (in the conference) — I don't see any clear front-runner at this time," she added.

The PHS squad will travel to Sheldon Clark Wednesday to take on the Lady Cardinals in the Sheldon Clark Invitational Tournament at 6:30 p.m., and will face Johnson Central Saturday at 11:30 a.m., followed by another game Saturday at 6:30 p.m. against Rowan County.

PRESTONSBURG 9 17 13 11 (50): Kathy Slone, 6-0 6 18; Karen Frazier, 5-1 3 16; Michelle Clemmons, 12; Angela Centers, 1-0 2; Robin Jones, 1-0 2.

Floyd Doctors Participate In Program For Needy Patients

The Kentucky Physicians Care program, a service that helps needy people obtain medical care, won a top award recently from the American Medical Association. The program, sponsored by the Kentucky Medical Association, refers indigent patients to doctors for free initial visits. It was awarded the AMA's first President's Citation for Service to the Public at a ceremony in Dallas.

Kentucky's program was chosen from among 17 nominees for the AMA award, which is to be presented annually to medical societies that foster community involvement by doctors. Physicians from Martin who are participating in the program include Dr. Claude Allen, Beaver Valley Clinic; Dr. Ray T. DeGuzman; Dr. Virginia A. DeGuzman; Dr. Allan D. Halbert; Dr. Gangadhar Maddiwar.

Physicians from McDowell and Wheelwright are Dr. John P. Fairchild, Regional Medical Center; Dr. Ruben P. Singayao, McDowell Clinic; Dr. Clarita V. Vicher, McDowell Clinic; and Dr. James VanHoose, Wheelwright Clinic. Other physicians include Dr. Blake R. Burchett in Betsy Layne; Dr. David M. DeLaRosa in Betsy Layne; Dr. Ira B. Polter in Lackey; and Dr. Francisco U. Puig in Auxier. Since the Kentucky Physician Care program's inception almost four years ago, more than 26,000 people have used the service. Of the 50 states, Kentucky was the first state to implement a statewide referral program where doctors volunteer their services to help poor people. The Arkansas Medical Society recently began the country's second such program. "Many people who participate in this program have no money and no insurance and wouldn't go to the doctor otherwise," said Dr. Russell Travis, a Lexington neurosurgeon who helped the KMA start and operate the program. "People don't like to beg and be rejected, so they don't go to a doctor. There's no question this program encourages people to go," Travis said.

Travis, who accepted the AMA's plaque and $5,000 stipend for the KMA at the national group's meeting in Dallas, said he hopes the award "creates a dialogue" to bring attention to the medical needs of the poor. According to those who administer the Kentucky Physicians Care program, only patients at or below the federal poverty level who don't receive Medicaid are eligible to participate. After the state certifies their eligibility, patients call a toll-free number and are given the name of a nearby doctor. The first office visit is free, and many doctors give reduced-rate or free care in subsequent visits. The toll-free number in Kentucky is (800) 633-8100. More than 2,200 Kentucky doctors—about half the state's practicing physicians—voluntarily participate in the program. For many, like Dr. Ray Cave of Leitchfield, it continues a trend of providing medical care to those who can't pay.

David Community Ballpark To Be Restored

When someone yells "play ball" in David in a year or so, it'll be because the community and its namesake, the David School, have figuratively been playing ball together for several years.

The David Community Development Corp. has sold more than 50 prime acres to the private, alternative school for development of a community recreation area and a new school building. The $20,000 price tag is well under market value for the flat acreage in the Middle Creek valley, according to Dan Greene, David School director.

In the first of a three-phase project, the school plans to restore the old ballfield that dates to the town's glory days in the '40s and '50s.

The restoration of the regulation-sized field will include contouring the land, installing of drainage, constructing bleachers and dugouts, and developing a parking area, Greene said.

Men in the community have volunteered to help the school's students and faculty with the project. When completed, Greene sees the field as a "first class" recreation area for the townspeople and the school.

In addition to the ballfield, the acreage includes a pond and an old lake and dam, which gave the land its local name of Reservoir Hollow. Greene would also like to see those areas restored for public use.

The second phase of the project is even more ambitious. A planning grant from the Ford Foundation will allow school officials to begin site preparation for the construction of a new school, which comprises the third phase of the land use plan. Greene hopes the site preparation will be underway by next fall.

The school which was started in 1974 is presently housed in a complex of company buildings left when Princess Elkhorn Coal Co. abandoned its David operations. Today, the space is inadequate for the school's more than 80 students, Greene said. Plus, the buildings, which were not designed for constant use by large groups of teenagers, are in constant need of repairs.

Greene relies on frequent volunteer help from across the country to make repairs, such as roofing and painting.

The new facility, about five years down the road according to Greene's estimates, will be designed to accommodate the personalized educational philosophy for which the school has become noted.

Considered an alternative school, the David School serves students who have dropped out of public school and who come from low income families. The emphasis is on small classes and individualized instruction when needed.

"We're pleased to be able to help the school with this property," said Tony Bentley, financial officer for the town's development corporation. "The David School is beneficial and needed in this area and it has proven itself in the David community."

South Central Bell Installs Automated Repair Service

As of Nov. 30, telephone repair calls for South Central Bell residence customers in Floyd County are being handled by the company's new automated repair service.

The new automated repair service will answer repair calls and take trouble reports from customers calling from touch-tone phones, according to South Central Bell manager Art Willett. "The computer will help us operate our repair service more efficiently," Willett said.

The computer will ask simple questions that customers can answer by pressing a specified number on a touch-tone phone. After the customer has answered the questions, the computer will tell the customer when the problem should be repaired, he said.

Customers calling repair service from phones that aren't equipped with Touch-Tone service can remain on the line and speak with a service attendant, Willett explained.

Willett reminds customers that the toll free number to call for telephone service repair problems is 1-557-6111. Customers can find information on repair service in the Customer Guide in the telephone directory.

Auto Repair: It's Not As Easy As It Appears

Auto Repair

Darren Johnson and Tommy Newsome work on fixing a cracked cylinder so that the students next semester can use it in rebuilding an engine.

In the automobile mechanics class at Garth Vocational School, Larry Jones tries to teach his students that auto repair is not as easy as it looks. "The days of the shade tree are gone—now it is technical," Jones said of automotive repair.

He hopes that his students are mature enough and really want to learn about auto mechanics when they start the class.

"A new car is complicated," he said, "so they have to be dedicated and know that it is what they want to do."

To learn about the complexity in cars, students gradually work towards more difficult tasks by doing learning modules, Jones said.

Although they may not finish all the modules in the two-year program, it does give students all the basics and helps them to decide if they want to learn more.

"We try to get as far as we can," he said. "They can go out of here and get a job in the field and have something to start with."

The basics they learn in the class include the basic engine, front end suspension, engine performance and analysis, automatic and standard transmissions and, time permitting, brakes and the ignition system, Jones said.

The class learns on cars donated by General Motors, and people also bring in cars for the class to fix, he said.

But one thing that will really help Garth's program will be getting ASE (Automotive Service Excellence) certified, Jones said.

"It's a shot in the arm if we're certified, so we are hurrying to do that," he said. The certification will help them to get newer cars donated by auto companies so the students will know how to fix them.

Before a student starts the program, Jones says students should know something about reading, math and basic physics before beginning the class.

"I hope to get to the point where I've got even more competent students because it is so technical," he said.

Most of the students like the class and say it's better than having to sit in a class all day, even though it is a hard class.

"It's hard but the teacher explains it well," said Tommy Newsome, a student in the class.

Learning Timing

Merle Marshall and Daniel Moore learn about engine timing hands on as they fix one in the workshop.

Floyd School Administrator Asked To Serve On Task Force

Gary K. Frazier, assistant superintendent for instruction for the Floyd County Schools, has been asked to serve on a state-wide advisory task force for middle school education.

Frazier was named to the post by Dr. John H. Brock, state superintendent of public instruction.

The task force will make recommendations concerning time-on-task requirements and curriculum offerings. The task force will meet approximately three times during the current school year. Findings from the group will be presented to the Kentucky Department of Education. The department will incorporate the findings, with their recommendations, to the state board of education for any revision of middle school education.

Pvt. Newsome Completes Marine Training

Marine Pvt. Christopher Newsome, son of Ray and Joy Newsome of Teaberry, has completed recruit training at Marine Corps Recruit Depot, Parris Island, S.C.

During the 11-week training, Newsome was taught the basics of battlefield survival. He was introduced to the typical daily routine that he will experience during his enlistment and studied the personal and professional standards traditionally exhibited by Marines.

He participated in an active physical conditioning program and gained proficiency in a variety of military skills, including first aid, rifle marksmanship and close order drill. Teamwork and self-discipline were emphasized throughout the training cycle.

Newsome is a 1988 graduate of Betsy Layne High School.

District To Participate In Ky. Student Project

Floyd County is one of 15 school districts selected to participate in the Student Scholarship Partnership Project during the 1988-1989 school year, according to Kentucky Department of Education officials.

The purpose of the Student Scholarship Partnership Project is to recognize and reward student achievement by providing financial incentives for post-secondary training and study opportunities at any accredited vocational or academic institution, officials said.

School districts selected to participate agreed to match a $2,500 federal grant on a one-to-one basis with funds from business partners in the local community.

The $2,500 grant, blended with $2,500 from local partnership efforts, will create a $5,000 scholarship fund in each of the 15 participating school districts for a total scholarship fund of $75,000. The Department of Education, in administering the project, has limited scholarships to a $1,000 maximum. Each district can award a minimum of five scholarships or more, depending on the amount of each scholarship.

Student eligibility for scholarship application is based on final semester grade of B or above, full use of academic/vocational potential; participation in school-sponsored activities; initiative to earn money; inability to continue education without financial assistance; neither receipt nor anticipated receipt of financial assistance during the 1989-1990 school year.

Scholarship applications will be available in the office of the local Superintendent. Students will complete the application, attach one letter of recommendation and return both to Superintendent.

Local school districts will name a three-person scholarship selection committee to review student application and award scholarships.

Floyd Teacher Recently Selected For State Committee

On Saturday, Feb. 11, 1989, the Kentucky Department of Education will review two of the specialty area tests from the National Teacher Examinations for use as a prerequisite to the certification of teachers for grades kindergarten through four.

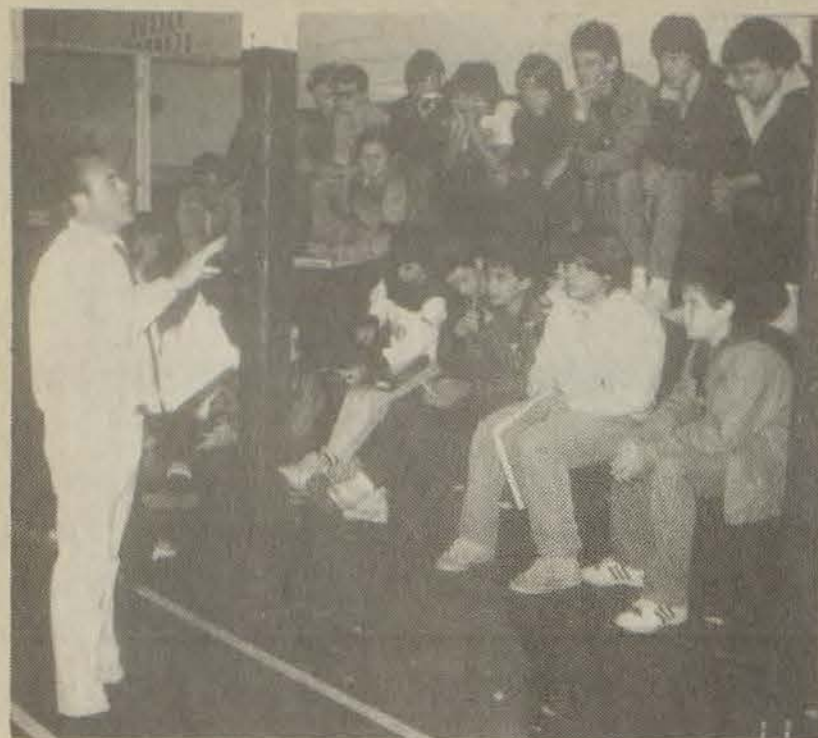

Sandra Newsome, a teacher at Melvin Elementary, has been asked to serve as one of the panelists, and will assist in the validation process by reviewing actual test items for appropriateness and relevancy.

Newsome is one of only 15 teachers in the state invited to participate in this program, according to Dr. John H. Brock, state superintendent of public instruction.

Christmas Fire Safety Tips Listed

Christmas and the holiday season is a festive time of year. It should also be a cautious time of year for fire safety in the home, according to State Fire Marshal Bill Martin.

"Trees and lights brighten the home and the spirits during the holidays," Martin said. "At the same time, Kentuckians need to remember certain rules when buying trees or stringing lights." Martin said that Kentuckians should take the following precautions when selecting and setting up a tree:

-If buying an artificial tree made of plastic, check for the Underwriters Laboratories label (UL). Some unlabeled trees burn easily.

-When buying live trees, look for the freshest one. Fresh trees are less of a fire hazard than dry trees. Check for freshness by looking for a deep green color, by smelling for a strong evergreen scent, by feeling for needles that are firmly attached to the limbs and by feeling for a sticky, sappy tree trunk.

-Once the tree is home, mount it in a sturdy, water-holding stand. Keep the stand filled with water so the tree won't dry out and become a fire hazard.

-At home, keep the tree away from fireplaces, radiators or other heat sources. It should not block doorways or be in the way of traffic.

In addition to trees, Martin explained that lights—whether inside or out—should be used carefully. Be sure to consider the following points before turning on the switch:

-Use only lights that have been tested for safety. Identify these by the UL label.

-Check each set of lights for broken or cracked sockets, frayed or bare wires or loose connections. Discard the unsafe ones.

-Never use indoor lights outside. Before setting up outdoor decorations, make sure the bulbs have been approved for outdoor use. Then, firmly attach the lights to trees or walls to prevent wind damage.

-Use no more than three sets of lights for every single extension. Follow the manufacturer's suggestion on the number of lights permitted in each circuit.

-Always turn off lights and other decorations before leaving home or going to bed. A short in any of the equipment is a fire hazard.

-Never use electric lights on a metallic tree. Instead, use colored spotlights above or beside a metal tree.

-Keep children away from lights and electrical decorations. Children risk shock or injury when they play with bright lights.

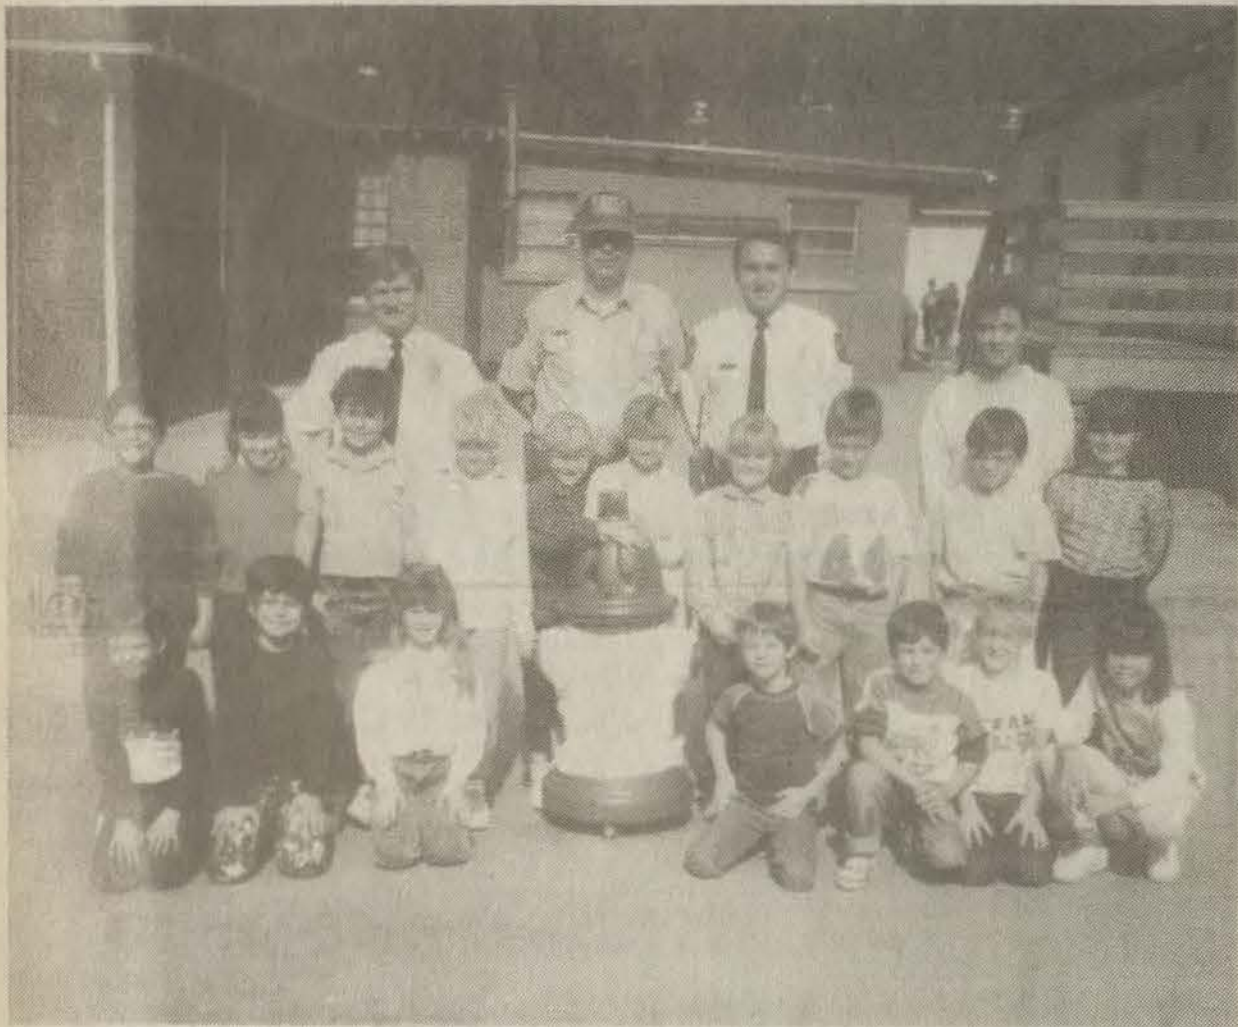

These suggestions merely highlight the safety considerations essential during the season. As Public Protection and Regulation Cabinet Secretary Theodore R. Colley said:

"The extra few minutes it takes to find the freshest tree or to read light labels are well worth it. It is much better to observe a preventive route and to enjoy a relaxed and safe holiday."

A financial aid workshop for students and parents will be held at Prestonsburg Community College Thursday, December 15 at 7:00 p.m. in Room 122 of the Johnson Administration Building. Students who need help in the completion of 1989-90 Kentucky Financial Aid Forms are encouraged to attend.

There will be an opportunity to ask questions about personal financial situations and how to report them on the financial aid form. ### NEW PROTECTION FOR VACCINES

Until October 1, 1988, parents of a child disabled by a normal childhood vaccination suffered doubly. The pain of the injury to their child was compounded by a lengthy court battle over damages. However, as of the aforementioned date, the National Childhood Vaccine Injury Act took effect. This law, supported by the American Academy of Pediatrics, says that any liability claims taken against a vaccine administrator or manufacturer must initially be routed through a specified compensation system. Those claimants with legitimate cause receive an annuity that covers medical expenses, pain and suffering, and projected loss of income. Not only is the new system viewed as fair, but it will provide settlement of claims within a year's time.

COOLEY APOTHECARY wants you to know that we maintain the highest standards of the pharmaceutical profession. Learn for yourself why your friends and neighbors already rely on us. Complete patient profiles are maintained to aid us in checking for possible drug interactions. It also allows us to quickly give you any information you need for income tax and insurance purposes. We are located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-5.

HINT: In Japan, suspension of pertussis immunization brought an increased incidence of the disease that far outweighed immunization side effects.

Books And Things:

PCC Books Detail 'How To' Toys, Crafts

by Trisha Morris,
PCC Librarian

In the days when life was simpler and modern department stores were non-existent, the gifts under the Christmas tree were made by hand. The following books from the P.C.C. library remind us when a piece of whittled wood and a rubber band could put a sparkle in a child's eye, and scraps of used material stitched together made a family heirloom.

Kentucky Quilts and their Makers, by Mark Clarke. The pioneer rural family striving to survive on what they could coax from the ground and their own ingenuity allowed nothing of use to go to waste. Outgrown clothing, flour sacks and whatever other materials they could save were salvaged to piece together for bed covering.

Handed down from mother to daughter and added to, when more material became available for extra padding, the quilt became a family heirloom. Treasured for hours of labor and its comfort of warmth, it was a gift given with love.

The intricate designs of the modern quilt came from these simple beginnings.

In this little book from the Kentucky Bicentennial Bookshelf series, Clarke examines the craft of quilting in Kentucky and finds it different but as lively today as it was 150 years ago.

From the lone quilter stitching in quiet contentment to the busy conviviality of the quilting bees, the quilts that Kentuckians make are prized for their design and workmanship. With original creations or a variation of an established pattern, with material salvaged or purchased, thousands of Kentuckians practice the ancient craft for gift giving and personal use. This book is their story and a display of their art.

How to Make Whirligigs and Whimmy Diddles, by Florence Petit. Properly called a gee-haw whimmy diddle, it was probably made by a mountain whittler and given its silly name when some child asked him what it was. Made with two sticks cut with notches and fitted with a propeller, it became a children's toy made from scraps and a few minutes of knife work. With a pocket knife, a couple of branches and this book, the toy of our grandfathers can be recreated.

From a carved duck to a corn shuck doormat, this wonderful "how-to" book gives directions to recreate the art of our ancestors. Today called folk-art and collected, it is sometimes a revelation to realize that we can make these things new.

The operative word for using this book is time. The book supplies complete instructions and a list of tools—all the aspiring artist needs is time and a new generation of children can be amused by a gee haw whimmy diddle or a whirligig.

Wooden Spoon Puppets, by Addrey Dean. You can buy them new or use mom's discarded one—add eyes, nose, hair—some discarded scraps for clothes and you are ready to give your own Christmas pageant with wooden spoon puppets.

The book gives hints for using other discards (plastic bottles, cardboard, old slinkies, buttons) to disguise the basic wooden spoon, making everything from shepherds to dragons.

A truly amazing collection of ideas, this book and free access to what can be scrounged from around most homes and any child or adult with an imagination, a pair of scissors, a hammer, and some glue could be ready for their first performance to amaze their Christmas visiting relatives.

In case modern imaginations are not what they use to be, the book ends with scripts for two original plays, suggestions for theater settings, and appropriate props. If you're a saver of odds and ends, this project will leave your wallet in your pocket.

Foxfire 3 ed. by Eliot Wigginton. Like all the foxfire books, this is a collection of folk tales and stories of how things were done in the old way. It tells about animal care and ginseng gathering, but mostly this edition of the series is devoted to the things that were made with discarded material and simple tools—often only a pocket knife.

Cornshuck dolls were fashioned from the dampened and shaped shuck of the corn—enhanced by using the silk for hair and colored with the dye from berries. Decorative flowers were also made from corn shucks, and so were mops and door mats. Gourds were used to fashion dippers, bird houses, dishes, baskets and even banjos.

The making of banjos and delimers is a large part of mountain heritage, and some of this history is traced in these stories. As could be expected in a "Foxfire" book, there are the ever-present interviews with plain people on plain subjects of every day living.

A nostalgic trip into the past when everything was used for something and most of that something would far outlast their modern, store bought counterpart.

Craft Projects, by Mike Bathum. Shaved crayon and wax paper, with a little imagination makes a stained glass window—artistically rolled and glued paper is an intricate collage—popsicle sticks and yarn become a Mexican good luck hanging—and straws and string become birds and dogs.

Craft Projects gives full, pictured directions to make all of the above and many, many other creative projects that use imagination and found material instead of money.

If you're a group leader looking for activities, an art teacher, or a fundless youth seeking ideas for Christmas presents, this book could be a boundless source of inspiration.

American Folk Toys, by Dick Schnacke. Recognizing that the folk knowledge to make homemade toys from scraps was disappearing with a generation weaned on the glitter of the shopping mall, Schnacke has gathered the surviving information for 85 folk toys in this entertaining book.

Here are toys made from wooden thread spindels (are they still wood?), clothes pins, peach seeds, nails, and lots of string and glue.

Divided into 13 sections, ranging from action and skill toys to puzzles, tops, dolls, and games, it enables the reader to produce for himself or his family and friends such exotic amusements as the flipperdinger and the sky hook, as well as the more conventional apple doll and cornstalk fiddle.

Inexpensive and ingenious, these toys will prove to be as much fun to make as they are to play with.

The Forgotten Crafts by John Seymour. More for reading and admiring than the previous selections, these crafts were not toys or past time activities, but what it took to exist. Thatching for roofs, sleds to move things, spinning to make thread for clothing, bricks for building and on and on—things the people (before mass production and modern materials) made themselves.

From the simplest thing like a bucket—without a handy hardware store and money in your pocket—it was made from natural materials.

This book shows, in painstaking detail, how they did it. A horse show, a wagon wheel, a boat, a barrel, a pair of shoes, a saddle—they are all shown being made the old fashioned way—by hand.

A book to make one humble, The Forgotten Crafts reminds us that we may be better educated but our ancestors could exist (very well) by using natural products, their own power, and family learned know-how.

Basketry of the Appalachian Mountains by Sue Stephenson. This book is a complete manual of the technology and history of basketry in the Appalachian mountains.

Stephenson, a native of the mountains, has examined hundreds of surviving baskets to record the techniques for making the traditional spint, willow, honeysuckle, and straw baskets as well as hearth brooms.

She provides complete, step by step instructions and diagrams for making, among others: a round service basket, a provider basket, a sewing basket, a two-pie basket and the master piece of mountain craft, the twin bottomed egg basket.

Stephenson explains the language of basketry (the meaning of such terms as froe, slype, and glut), includes notes on the use of dyestuffs, on cleaning and conservation of old baskets, and on collecting, as well as a list of suppliers of basketry material.

Before I decided to go to Excel College, I checked out some schools and into the background of Excel. I decided on Excel because I could get the training in the field I wanted and not have to take a bunch of other stuff I wouldn't need. The teachers concentrated on what I needed to know. They took their time to explain and make sure everyone understood it. The hands-on training with computers and doing assignments that you would be doing on the job was excellent experience. After graduation the Job Search Assistance Officer was a God-send. She helped me find a job that I'm really happy with. When I was getting discouraged, she helped lift my spirits so I could continue looking. I would like to thank all the staff and faculty at Excel for their help and encouragement.

Stephens To Participate In Education Program

Michele Stephens of Hueysville is working as a sales clerk for Peggy's Fashions.

She is among more than 160 Eastern Kentucky University students participating this fall in the University's Cooperative Education Program.

EKU's co-op students apply principles and theories learned in the classroom to practical, on-the-job situations.

Participants also receive a salary from the participating employer, which may help to defray college expenses.

"Cooperative education provides exceptional opportunities for students to gain experience outside the classroom," said Ken Noah, director of cooperative education at EKU.

"Many people don't realize that the majority of our co-op students are paid for their working hours in addition to the academic credit they receive."

Since EKU's program began in 1973, more than 7,500 students have been placed with employers in Kentucky and throughout the United States, Noah said.

EKU currently serves more than 13,600 students through programs offered by its nine colleges and the graduate school.

by Lorraine Beach
Pikeville's Lost In The Shuffle Bridge Club met at the Hotel Pinson Coffee Shop Tuesday, Dec. 6.

Guilene Smith, who recently returned tanned by four weeks of Florida sunshine, proved her bridge playing was not less illuminated as she captured first place, being victorious over 19 others! Second place went to Arnold Grudin, while Terrence Mulliken came in third and Ruth Friend, fourth. Congratulations!

The club extended a warm welcome to Arnold Grudin.

The Pikeville Jewelry Store gave a lovely gift to the first place winner, and a door prize went to Ruth Wells.

The pot-luck Christmas dinner was a tremendous success. Candelabra made a striking display of brilliant shining flames, joining the lesser candles on each table in casting shadows, erasing creases and furrows from the brow as the spirit of Christmas was felt and shared by all.

Those attending the bridge dinner were Vicki and Robert Pinson who were the host and hostess; Marie Looney, Mrs. Cappy Brown, John Rupley, Cynthia and Terry Mulliken, Jo Nell Robinson, Ruth B. Friend, Guilene Smith, Ruth Wells, Lorraine Beach, Doris Van Hoose, Betty Grudin, Arnold Grudin, David Leventhal, Evelyn Waggoner, Sara and Garry George, Jerry Barnard, Betty Burke and Mary and George Wells.

Rice Earns Scouts' Highest Honor

On Tuesday, Dec. 6, the Bluegrass Council of the Boy Scouts of America presented its highest award to a local scoutmaster.

In ceremonies held at the Marriott in Lexington, Johnnie Ross was awarded the Silver Beaver.

In his nearly nine-year tenure, Ross has served the Bluegrass council in a variety of volunteer positions including District Activities Chairman, Wood Badge Staff, Senior Patrol Leader for junior leadership training, Scoutmaster for Super Week and chairman and author of the Baden-Powell Outdoor Skill Development Program.

"My first priority is to the scouts of Troop 877 and Eastern Kentucky," said Ross, who has held the post of scoutmaster since 1980, when he returned to Floyd county after graduating from Berea college.

"As long as my efforts benefit the boys, then I feel like I've accomplished something," he added.

As scoutmaster, Ross has taken scouts to New Mexico's Philmont Scout Ranch, summer camp at McKee Scout Reservation, white water rafting along the New River, rappelling in Red River Gorge and in 1989, will accompany a contingent of scouts to national jamboree at Fort A.P. Hill in Va.

"Attending a national jamboree is the pinnacle of anyone's scouting experience," Ross said, "as a child I could not afford to attend—its like a dream come true" he added.

Of the 36 youth positions available, 30 have already been filled with local scouts including 14 from Prestonsburg.

In addition to serving the Boy Scouts of America, Ross also is Senior Warden at St. James Episcopal Church, Supervisor for the Floyd Co. Conservation District and director of the Prestonsburg Youth Center.

He is a 1975 graduate of J.H. Allen Central High School and a 1977 graduate of Prestonsburg Community College. His studies continued at Berea where he received a bachelors of arts degree in wildlife and resource management.

Upon his graduation in 1980, he has been employed as an environmental inspector with the Ky. Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet.

His current educational efforts focus on studies at the Episcopal Theological Seminary in Lexington, where he hopes to seek ordination to priesthood.

Kentucky Going After Tax Refunds In Child Support Cases; Deadline Soon

Time is running out on thousands of Kentucky parents who are delinquent in their child support obligations and face the possible loss of tax refunds and other considerations in 1989.

The Department for Social Insurance sent notices in October to more than 36,000 parents, outlining action the state plans to take on cases where parents have failed to keep their court-ordered support payments up to date, said Social Insurance Commissioner Mike Robinson.

In effect, the message was, "Pay up in full or file an appeal by Dec. 31."

"We're telling these individuals that the federal Internal Revenue Service and the state Revenue Cabinet will be asked to attach any 1988 tax refunds due to them in order to recover the unpaid support," said Robinson.

"The notice also lets the parents know that information on their delinquent child support case will be released shortly to consumer reporting agencies."

Robinson said the 7-year-old tax intercept program has been gaining success each year. Tax refund collections for 1987 almost doubled what was taken from the 1986 returns—from $3.4 million to $6.5 million. Information shared with credit rating bureaus is having an impact as well.

"The credit agencies look on a report of delinquent support just like any other unpaid bill with a court order for payment attached," said George Ewen, director of the Social Insurance Division of Child Support Enforcement.

"It's too early to fully measure the impact of reporting overdue support to credit rating firms," he said, "but we believe the policy was at least partly responsible for the $3.1 million increase in collections in the 1987 tax year compared to an increase of less than $300,000 from 1985 to 1986."

Persons who have received the state notices have two options.

"By Dec. 31, a parent has a chance to bring the obligation up to date or to challenge the amount of the unpaid support shown in the records," Ewen explained. "If the difference can't be settled by a departmental review, the next step is to take the matter back to the court where the original support order was rendered."

Most collections of late child support go into the state treasury as reimbursement for households receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC); any remaining balance is paid to custodial parents or guardians.

Anyone wishing more information or to inquire about an overdue child support notice may contact the Division of Child Support Enforcement at (502) 564-2838. However, appeals must be filed with the division in writing at: Division of Child Support Enforcement, Intercept Projects Section, Department for Social Insurance, 275 East Main Street, Frankfort, KY 40621.

Holiday Season Time To Give: Donate Blood

The holiday season brings thoughts of family gatherings, decorations, and gifts. Volunteer blood donors can give a gift of love to patients in local hospitals. Most donors' blood is separated into three components and transfused to three patients to meet their specific needs.

During the holidays, many donor groups and individual groups do not schedule a blood donation. This means less blood is available to patients hospitalized during December and January.

Share your holiday spirit and give blood this season. Your donation will be a gift of love to the suffering and ill.

During December and January, Central Kentucky Blood Center will be giving "Big Blue Blood Donor" T-shirts to all donors. The Prestonsburg Donor Center is open on Tuesday from 11 a.m. to 7 p.m. and Thursday and Friday from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m.

For more information, call 886-1557.

Midnight Dec. 16 Ends Tax Amnesty

Time runs out at midnight Dec. 16 for the Kentucky Tax Amnesty Program, which began Sept. 15. The one-time opportunity to pay delinquent Kentucky taxes without civil or criminal penalties and with one-half the tax interest rate will not be repeated.

All Revenue Cabinet Service Centers will remain open on Dec. 16 until 9 p.m. local time (and later if necessary) to provide amnesty assistance to taxpayers who wait until the last minute.

After amnesty, the Revenue Cabinet will vigorously pursue collection of delinquent taxes, said Scott Akers of the Revenue Cabinet.

A Revenue Cabinet Taxpayer Service Center is located in Pikeville, 1279 North Mayo Trail (U.S. 23).

New Babies...Amanda

Cuddle me softly,
Our skin to touch
Whisper out my name
How you love me so much?
Hold me to your chest.
Hear my little heart beat.
Wrapped in this blanket,
Feel my kicking feet.
My legs aren't strong yet.
Neither my arms, for they are weak.
Cuddle me softly
Until I fall asleep.
Say a Mother's prayer
While I lay on my bed,
Ask the Lord to bless me.
I am a miracle,
For it is said.
Oh! Cuddle me softly,
And I will understand.
Upon hearing mom's voice,
Gentle touch of her hand.

My Flower Garden

My family is my garden
That Jesus gave to me
And He watches daily to see
What kind of gardener I shall be.
My first flower was Amy
An orchid so very rare
That was handled delicately
And with much tender care.
The second flower was Rona
The American Beauty Rose
That blooms in the love of God
From her head to her toes.
Then my third flower changed a bit
All boy and I don't mean maybe
But to me, he is the greatest
And a darling blue-eyed Ronnie.
My garden must be watered daily
With a few thankful tears
And fertilized with God's perfect love
That will cast out all their fears.
I know God is watching
From His throne on high
My garden must have His very best
Or they will wither and die.
And since I am the gardener
I must hoe always in faith, hope, and love
So when it's time for a transplant
It will be in God's flower garden above.

Untitled

The fall morning came cool and clear
Busy sounds coming to my ear.
Building today, a sled they would make.
Uncles and Papaw already awake.
Hurrying to dress so I wouldn't miss
Watching the sled form or the new sun's kiss
Fog rising making the hills look brand new.
Leaves sparkling with the morning's dew.
Going down the proach I see,
The flames of a fire beneath the apple tree.
They'd already formed the runners from logs.
Saying 'Looks good' then bending to pet an old dog.
Knarled, chapped hands work in the cold
The young men working beside the old.
I watched and I learned, not how to build a sled,
But the important things, like how to work instead
When something needs done, go do it right.
Nothing stopping you, or raising a fight.
Working together they built that sled.
Children around them, stopping to get fed.
Going back and finishing up,
There stood a sled that could win a gold cup.

Summer

Summer is time to weed the garden
And let the driveway sealant harden
Time to get tans and pull out the fans
Time for baseball and going to the mall
Watching the fire flies light up the night
Summer is here; oh what a sight.

The General

My poetry echoed
Through the base
Till it hit the general
In the face
Then I heard him say with dread,

Cold Weather Tips From AHA Listed

Frigid weather strikes almost every corner of the U.S. The American Heart Association says your health could be at stake if you don't take some precautions to guard against the ravages of old man Winter.

Common sense tells us to bundle up when it's blistery outside. That means dressing from the feet up, including your head. A hat or scarf around your head helps to prevent heat loss from your body. Most heat is lost through the top of your head. Protect your ears and hands, too, since they are particularly susceptible to frostbite.

You may remember that as a child you had to pile layer upon layer of clothing on before playing in the snow. Such dress afforded little freedom of movement during snowball battles or sleigh rides. Today light-weight, well-insulated active wear is fashionable and comfortable for outside activities, as long as you still layer your clothing to provide "pockets" of warm air. A moderate outdoor exercise program can be maintained during the winter if you dress properly and pay attention to weather conditions.

Stay informed of weather forecasts and travel reports. Exposure to icy winds, snow, freezing rain and cold temperatures steals your body's heat. The wind is especially dangerous since it strips away the warm layer of air around your body. When a meteorologist gives you the wind chill factor, dress according to the factor level rather than the air temperature.

The American Heart Association points out that as you grow older, your body's thermostat may not be as effective as it once was. As a result, you may not adjust to the cold weather by adequately raising body temperature. If your temperature slips too low, heart failure and even death can result.

A person in poor physical shape may require more oxygen for the heart. If you're not used to strenuous physical exertion, don't attempt to lift a heavy shovel full of snow. The combination of sudden physical exertion and the cold increases the heart's work load. The heart must work harder to pump blood through narrower arteries, due to the cold weather's effect on the arteries. It's natural for some of the arteries to narrow when it's cold as a means to maintain body temperature. But the cold can spell danger to persons with arteries already narrowed due to fatty deposits in the arteries. Too much strain on the heart during these conditions could cause a heart attack.

With the approval of your physician try starting a moderate exercise program if you are inactive. By next year, you may be able to enjoy the winter weather with increased tolerance of its effects.

If you have a history of coronary heart disease, you should seek your doctor's permission before shoveling snow or exerting yourself in cold weather.

Good sense goes a long way in staying healthy during cold winter days. The American Heart Association agrees with the old adage, "Have sense enough to come in out of the cold."

"We call her the 'traveling Grandma,'" says Waneta. "She was one of 23 children and has five children of her own. She likes to fly Delta (Airlines—they have the same first name) to Phoenix, Ariz., Denver, Colo., and Harrisburg, Penn., where her children are. She also travels by car to Cincinnati to visit her

But Delta's work isn't confined to her home. Each week she donates several hours to tasks at Our Lady of the Way Hospital. There she visits patients, serves meals and ice, caters luncheons, shreds papers and works in the gift shop, among other things.

Delta had volunteered at the

hospital before, but not officially. Waneta says it was grief over the death of Estill Newsome, Delta's son and Waneta's husband, which prompted Delta to formally volunteer.

Waneta accepts volunteers from age 13 to 103 into the hospital's volunteer program. In addition to the tasks Delta performs, volunteers file, assist with transporting patients from department to department, contact ministers for patients, answer lights and phone calls at the nurses' station, deliver mail, read to patients, write letters for patients, and present Scrubby Bears. Volunteers with technical skills may perform other jobs. Volunteers select the hours they wish to work and the kinds of jobs they want to do.

"We can use all the volunteers we can get," says Waneta. "...By volunteering, they can contribute and discover what their little community hospital is all about."

Persons interested in volunteering their services to Our Lady of the Way Hospital may contact Waneta Newsome at 285-5181, ext. 337.

Phone Bill Gets New Look

Beginning this month, South Central Bell telephone bills will have a new look.

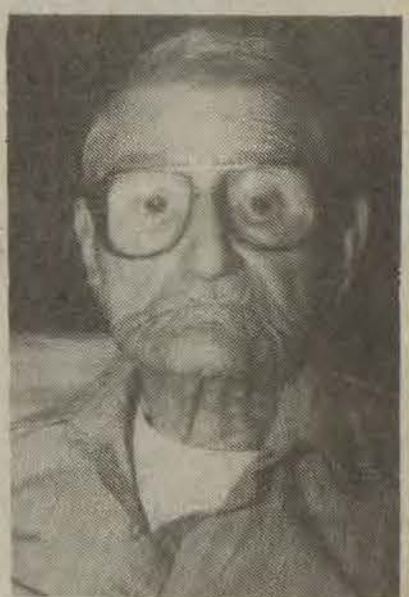

The company's monthly statement that goes to some 770,000 residence and business customers in Kentucky has undergone a complete redesign aimed at cutting the number of pages and making it easier to read and understand.

South Central Bell Manager Art Willett said, "Our new bill design reflects as nearly as possible what our customers have told us they want the bill to look like and what information they want it to contain."

He said that for most residential customers, the new bill will have one or two pages, instead of the current five or six. The pages will be larger, and color has been added to enhance their appearance and make them easier to read.

"We think our customers will approve of the new bill design," Willett said. "They told us what they like, and we've tried to give them just what they want."

TIFFANY OWENS
Joe and Teresa Owens of Garrett announce the birth of their second child, Tiffany Victoria, on Thursday, Nov. 17, at Methodist Hospital in Pikeville.
She is the granddaughter of Margaret Conley of Garrett and the late Virgil Conley, and Molly Owens of Langley and the late Ralph Owens.
She is the sister of Ryan Owens, 8, of Garrett.

"I was relieved to discover I was an alcoholic."

One man's story.

The word "alcoholism" is so loaded with shame, it's hard to imagine anyone ever being relieved to discover it applied to them. This is a glimpse of what one man went through to come slowly to that realization.

"The very first time I drank, I got drunk, I got sick, I had a blackout. I didn't intend any of that to happen."

Often from their very first drink, alcoholics seem to respond differently to alcohol. If you sometimes drink so much that you don't recollect certain events, then by definition, you have an alcohol problem.

Normal drinkers rarely lose control to the extent that they have a blackout.

"Within six years, I was drinking round-the-clock, a quart of vodka a day. I didn't care what happened."

As the disease of alcoholism progresses, more and more you don't control alcohol, it controls you. Once you start drinking, you can't be sure whether you'll have two drinks, or twenty.

The consequences—family difficulties, health problems, arrest, loss of job—cease to matter. All you care about is the next drink.

"I thought I drank because I was crazy. I never realized I was crazy because I drank."

The more you drink, the more trapped you become. That's because drinking at your present rate has devastating consequences. But the thought of cutting down is equally awful.

So subconsciously, you seek a way out by flatly denying you have a problem, and laying the blame for your misfortunes elsewhere. You're going insane, people have it in for you or you're simply unlucky.

"Towards the end, I lay in bed, a half gallon on the floor, soaking wet with sweat, a gun in my mouth."

The possibility of suicide is one reason CareUnit likes to treat people as early as possible.

Last year, our program helped over 55,000 people stop using alcohol and drugs.

Treatment is covered by most insurance plans, and includes medical supervision, education, group therapy and free lifetime aftercare.

Incidentally, there's no charge for the initial consultation, which may involve the drinker, or someone close to him.

"Once I admitted my real problem, the worst was over."

It may be hard to believe—and it may not happen until you've been in treatment for a while—but once you admit you have a problem with alcohol, you'll feel a strong sense of relief and release. Then—and only then—can you start to rebuild your life.

The man whose story you've read has been sober 15 years, he's a highly successful senior executive in a major corporation, and he owes his life to one phone call.

And that's the point. If you don't call, we can't help.
