Panel Recommends Against Move

Floyd School Takeover Decision Expected Today

An advisory panel refused yesterday to recommend that the State Department of Education intervene in the daily management of the Floyd County school district under the academic bankruptcy law. However, final state action will be up to the state Board of Education, which will consider the matter today.

Henry Pogue, chairman of the state board, who tried unsuccessfully yesterday as a member of the state Advisory Committee for Educational Improvement to get the panel to approve state intervention in the daily affairs of the Floyd and Whitley county school districts, declined to predict what action the state board would take.

Most school districts are currently under phase two of the state academic bankruptcy law. State Superintendent of Public Instruction John Brock recommended that Whitley and Floyd be moved to phase three — the phase in which the Department of Education sends a team of officials into the local district to oversee daily operations.

Floyd County Superintendent Ronald Hager said after the meeting he was pleased with the action of the advisory panel. He declined further comment.

Districts in phase two have been declared deficient under the law, and must submit plans to resolve their problems. The department provides the district help to do so.

Hager had urged the advisory panel not to recommend moving Floyd County into phase three.

The advisory panel recommended that Floyd and Whitley counties remain in phase two, and that they receive as much management assistance from the state as they would under phase three. The key difference is that under the panel's recommendation, the local board would not have to follow the state's suggestions.

But the panel's recommendation calls on the department to report to the Educational Improvement Committee and the state board any efforts not to cooperate with the state.

Brock said he will stick with his recommendation that Floyd and Whitley be moved to phase three.

Several members of the advisory panel questioned the necessity of moving the two districts to phase three in light of Brock's statement that their current administrations have cooperated with the department's efforts to improve the districts.

"That is where my quandary comes," said committee member Frank Hatfield of Louisville. "In phase two, evidently, the state has done everything it knows to do and the local district has cooperated. How can we do any better than that (in phase three)?"

But Brock said he must deal with the state law. "Your point is you have a piece of legislation you are dealing with that you obviously don't agree with — as many of us don't — but it is there, and you have got to deal with it," Brock said.

The law calls for intervention if districts fall below certain standards in four general areas:

— Dropout rates. A district may not have a dropout rate in grades seven to 12 of more than 5.5 percent. Floyd's rate is 4.3, which meets state standards.

— Attendance. The attendance rate for students in grades one through 12 must be at or above 93.5 percent. Floyd's rate is 92.4 percent.

— Academics. A district is deficient if students in three or more grades do not demonstrate mastery of at least 80 percent. In Floyd County, students in three or more grades fall below the 80 percent mastery level on KEST scores in reading, writing, spelling and library references. They are within state standards in math, the fifth subject area.

— Financial. Prior aid from the department has failed to resolve Floyd County's problem. The district does not necessarily have to have a deficit in order to fail this standard, although the local district has a projected deficit of $345,824 at the end of the fiscal year (June 30).

The local district has done very little to reduce present overstaffing in non-certified personnel, said Gordon Nicholls, spokesman for the Department of Education.

Nicholls said there are also other areas in which the local district has failed to comply with suggestions made by the department.

Board Members Sworn In

Floyd County School Board members Tommy Boyd, Dr. Mary Hall and James A. Duff were sworn in at last Wednesday's meeting. Boyd, a newcomer, and incumbents Hall and Duff joined other board members to ask state officials to provide financial expertise and assistance to the beleaguered local district.

Eleven individual structures and six buildings comprising a proposed Front Street Historic District have been proposed for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places, according to Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta.

The Kentucky Historic Preservation Review Board will consider the nominations during a meeting Thursday, Jan. 26, at 10 a.m. in the State Board of Education Conference Room on the first floor of the Capital Plaza Tower in Frankfort.

Properties or structures are generally nominated for historical or architectural significance. Local nominations are:

The sole Republican candidate to file is Keith Williams of Dana, for Magistrate, District 4.

Democrat candidates who have filed to date are:

Magistrate, District 1: Curtis Risner of Prestonsburg, Gerald DeRossett of Prestonsburg and Thomas Lafferty Sr. of Prestonsburg.

Nominated For Register

The B.F. Combs House on North Arnold Avenue, home of Dr. and Mrs. Garland Godsey, is one of several structures in Prestonsburg to be nominated for inclusion in the National Register of Historic Places.

City Employees Receive Raises

Effective immediately, the City of Prestonsburg's employees will receive raises of either 5 percent or an additional 35 cents per hour.

In Monday night's council meeting, members voted to approve 35 cent per hour raises for public works employees, and 5 percent raises for all other city employees. Mayor Ann Latta said that while a budget amendment would be necessary to provide the raise, funds are available.

On a motion by Bill Callihan, seconded by Charles Hale, the proposal passed without opposition.

In a separate matter, officials also voted to replace all parking meters downtown with rebuilt meters.

Before the council were two proposals — one to convert present meters, and another to purchase rebuilt meters. In either instance, the meters would reflect the city's new 25 cents per hour parking fee.

"Our meters are old, and we have a whole bunch of them that need repair. I think we'll be a whole lot better off in the long run if we get the rebuilt ones," said Callihan. "I believe our best bet ... would be to get that one-year warranty."

Council members also discussed whether to eliminate nickel and dime slots in the meters, but chose, instead, to keep them so that users could purchase parking for times less than an hour.

"If it doesn't cost any more, we ought to make it as convenient as possible," said councilman Adrian Blackburn.

A motion to purchase rebuilt meters with slots for different denominations passed unanimously.

The council also discussed monthly parking permits, currently available to people who park downtown. The permits will be numbered so that police officers can ticket anyone whose permit has expired.

Delinquent Taxpayers To Be Notified By City

Wayland City Council, at its Saturday meeting, voted to send letters to delinquent taxpayers with the notation that they will be taken to small claims court if city taxes are not paid by a deadline, to be determined later.

The move is necessary to generate funds for the city, which ended 1988 with a balance of $1,700.

Also at the meeting, Gene Mullins was appointed to Council, replacing Kermit Smith, who resigned last month for health reasons.

Council also discussed the purchase of a used police cruiser. Mayor Patricia Murphy agreed to ask County Judge Executive John M. Stumbo for financial assistance for the $4,000 purchase.

Because of vandalism resulting in damage to an estimated two-thirds of the city's Christmas tree lights, Council authorized the city clerk to buy 200 new lights.

Murphy reported that she is exploring funding sources for a new sewerage system for the city. She also said she will again contact state and federal officials concerning the problem of coal-related fires that have been burning continuously in and around the city. She also is to check into citizen complaints concerning television cable service.

Council members in attendance were Gene DeCoursey, Tommy Robinson and Robert Webb.

The council will hold its next regular meeting Saturday, Feb. 4 at noon at City Hall.

Martin To Study Wages

At a short meeting Wednesday, members of Martin City Council discussed group insurance plans, agreed to apply for an engineering grant and set up a committee to study employee wages.

A representative of Equitable Insurance was given the okay to meet with the city's nine employees on Jan. 11 at 4 p.m. to discuss a proposed medical insurance plan for which the city will pay half the premium. The council also agreed to pay half the premium for employees who already have another insurance carrier at comparable rates.

Members passed a resolution that the city apply to the state for a grant to pay for preliminary engineering for a proposed waste water system.

After a brief executive session, the council appointed a salary/wages committee to study pay scales for employees. Appointed were clerk Johnnie Stephens, City Attorney Dan Caudill and Mayor Raymond Griffith.

Councilmen attending the meeting were Denzil Halbert, Earrit Hayes, John L. Maddox and Joe Simpson.

The next scheduled meeting is Wednesday, Feb. 1 at 7 p.m. at Martin City Hall.

Board Meeting To Be Televised

Tel-Com Cable's WPRG, Television 5, will air the Floyd County Board of Education's Wednesday, Jan. 4 meeting this Friday at 7 p.m.

In addition, the station will air an in-depth interview with Pike County Judge-Executive Paul E. Patton, a former candidate for the state lieutenant governor's post, on the GED program Sunday at 3:30 p.m.

Checking Out

Business was slow at Heck's check-out lanes Monday. Ironically, sales are expected to pick up during the store's going-out-of-business sale. The Highlands Plaza store is one of 20 Heck's stores in six states slated for closing.

Prestonsburg Heck's To Close

"It's depressing now, but when the store is all empty, it'll be worse," said Carol Collins, who began working at Heck's in Prestonsburg when the discount department store opened in 1976.

Collins, head of the clothing and jewelry department, is one of 29 full- and part-time employees who will lose their jobs when the store closes this spring.

Last week the financially troubled Heck's, Inc., headquartered in St. Albans, W. Va., announced the closing of 20 stores, including the Prestonsburg store at Highlands Plaza.

"We knew they had to close 20 stores," said local manager Jerry Tackett, "but we had pretty good feelings about this store."

Tackett said he believed the local store was "on the borderline" when the company was making the decision about which stores to close. "I think the decision was based on future projections rather than past business," Tackett said, indicating increased competition from new discount stores in the area affected his store's sales.

Tackett, who has been with the company for eight years, was formerly manager of the Maloney's store in Martin, which is also part of the Heck's chain. The Martin store will remain open, according to Heck's spokesman Bill Bragg.

The closing date for the Prestonsburg store will depend on how quickly the store's present inventory sells, said Tackett, adding that the close-out sale is expected to begin next week. He is still awaiting specific orders from the St. Albans office.

Tackett met with employees Monday to discuss severance pay and details of the closing. The manager estimates the weekly payroll at

Brock was very complimentary of the cooperation he has received from Hager, whom he pointed out has been in office only six months.

"Floyd County has made tremendous progress," he said. "I believe Floyd County is certainly headed in the right direction. It's too early to see whether the progress will show up in academics."

Pogue agreed that there has been cooperation by Hager's administration, but he said that has not always been the case with past district administrations.

"There has been a continuing series of problems over the years," Hager told Hatfield. "There has been, in my opinion, insufficient progress evidenced in that school district" to prevent it from being moved to phase three.

Hager and superintendents of other districts complained that there is "a stigma" attached to a district that is moved into either phase two or phase three.

Brock said he was sorry about that misinterpretation.

"There will be considerably more help given in phase three than there has been in phase two," Brock said. "That is the positive side of it. Unfortunately, it looks like it is a very negative thing that we are threatening the superintendent and the board members and, of course, that is not my thinking."

Hager complained that the state has not provided sufficient help from experts to assist Floyd County in overcoming its problems.

The past management of the school system was heavily criticized in a curriculum audit of the district, including charges of nepotism, cronyism, widespread fund raising by students with no central office control, and little coordination of curriculum between grades and schools.

Hager made a lengthy defense of the recent improvements made by the system, and said there was no justification to move it into phase three.

He said the state board had previously given no indication it wasn't satisfied with the progress made by the district to overcome its problems.

Hager said not all of the goals have been established.

"However," he continued, "if you look at the progress report, you will see we have complied with timelines as established by statute and we have seen considerable progress. I do not believe that, based upon the progress that the district has shown — as recently as in the last six months — that it's warranted that this district be moved to phase three."

"I don't believe the recommendations are justified. I know they are not required by statute (nor) that any school district in the Commonwealth of Kentucky be moved from phase two to phase three."

Hager also cited the poverty in the school district. "We have over 5,500 students from families who are declared economically deprived," he said.

"With the tax base of that school district, we would have to increase taxes over 500 percent to gain the necessary funds to equal Fayette County's $1,800 per pupil."

Fayette is the richest county school district in the state.

He said the Floyd district is concerned about attendance problems, noting that for every 1 percent attendance rises, the district gains $100,000 in state funds.

Hager said the system has tried hard to get students to go to school.

"We have had pizza parties," he said. "We have given away trophies, we have given away bicycles. In one school, we even gave away a car to get students to attend school. In essence, it's a sense of bribery which I don't believe in, but that is a fact."

He said the Floyd school system has three programs to improve attendance and the dropout rate. One utilizes board funds, one is funded by a grant, and another is being done in conjunction with the Floyd County Education Forum.

He said the district has made significant improvements in achievement tests. At one point, he told the panel that if eight students "had scored a couple more points, we would not be deficient."

Hager has asked the state Department of Education to provide financial expertise and assistance to the local district. Districts that run a deficit may have their financial management taken over by the state under another law, as has been done in Pike County.

However, if the state board moves Floyd to phase three today, that would already be done.

William McCann, a Lexington attorney representing Whitley County, challenged the legality of moving that district to phase three. He indictated if the state board proceeds to do so, the action would be challenged in court.

Hager said late last week that the procedures for declaring a district academically bankrupt are outlined by state statute, adding, "Any attempt by Superintendent Brock or any other state Board of Education official to take over the Floyd County School District will be an abuse of that law."

Hager said the district and local board "have shown and demonstrated a willingness to have a look at the school system by outside individuals who are objective," citing the recent curriculum audit.

"I can see no legal grounds at all" for a state takeover, said Hager last week.

Prior to yesterday's meeting, Hager had said the local district, if moved into phase three, "intends to initiate a legal action to determine if there are sufficient grounds for the state board's action."

School Board Seeks State Help; Elects Officers

By Anne Chaney Editor

At last Wednesday's Floyd County School Board meeting, Superintendent Ron Hager asked the board to request financial expertise and assistance from the state Department of Education.

In light of a projected $345,000 deficit at the end of the current fiscal year (June 30), the board unanimously approved Hager's request.

The action fell just short of asking state officials to take over finances, as they have done in neighboring Pike County. A management assistance team has been working with Floyd County school officials since 1983, including, in part, assistance with fiscal matters.

In other business, board members Dr. Mary Hall and James Duff were sworn in for new terms, while the board welcomed Tommy Boyd, a newly-elected member. Elected as board officers were Dr. James Adams, chairman, and Duff, vice-chairman.

During the public comment segment of the meeting, John Rosenberg, representing his wife, Jean (a member of the Prichard Committee), asked board members about funds that were to have been placed in escrow for school facilities construction. Rosenberg asked if the funds had been used for general expenses, and how much the district's projected deficit would be.

Melva Lawson, representing the Little Mud Improvement Committee where Spruce Pine School is located, asked the board not to close the school.

"It has been rumored that our school may be closed in the near future," said Lawson. "The parents, teachers, other school employees, students and the entire community whom I represent... are strongly against closing our school."

Lawson said the school provides a healthy, wholesome and drug-free environment for children; serves the entire community as a voting precinct, meeting place and playground for young people; and said without the school, students would have to be transported several miles, placing them on the road "from early morning until late evening."

Lawson also asked the board to consider improvements at the school, including a library and trailer to house it.

In other business, the board heard a report from Gary Frazier, assistant superintendent of instruction, regarding textbook selection. Saying past selection had been "a popularity contest," Frazier asked that a textbook recommendation committee be selected by the superintendent, with teachers in each curriculum area reviewing and recommending textbooks.

Frazier said the new process would allow books to be better aligned with the district's testing program.

Hager, in making the recommendation, added, "All too often in many districts in Kentucky, your textbook becomes your curriculum. Your textbook should be part of your curriculum."

The board unanimously approved the process on a motion by Hall, seconded by Boyd.

Frazier also reported on recommendations made in the recent curriculum audit, and progress made by the district.

State officials have said they will provide training and instruction to district administrative personnel, said Frazier. In addition, individual schools in the district are purchasing a total of $100,000 in computers and software to allow schools to test students and identify problem areas before state tests are administered.

In routine matters at its board meeting Wednesday, the Floyd County Board of Education handled several personnel matters.

The resignation of Sharon M. Lavender, gifted-talented teacher, was accepted due to employment elsewhere. Also resigning were Debora Kidd, part-time cook at Harold Elementary, and part-time cook Barbara Parsons, of Allen Central High School.

Pamela Y. Stumbo, Irene Bartley and Lou Vanover were employed as certified substitute teachers. The board also employed 16 emergency substitute teachers. They are Tracey Justice, Timothy Burke, Tena K. Burke, Donna H. Dyer, Ronald Shepherd, Pamela Baldridge, Norma Jean Patton, Sherrie W. Stone, Sabrina C. Lazar, Laresa Puckett, Tammy Stanley, Ron Smith, Kimberly Campbell, Donna Bailey, Wanda Johnson and Connie Hall.

In other action, the board employed three substitute cooks: Avonelle Bentley at Stumbo, Phyllis Horn at Allen, and Katie Boyd at Harold. Ruth Wallace, a cook at Garrett, was transferred to replace Parsons, who resigned from ACHS.

Volney Allen was employed as a part-time plumber for the district, retroactive to Sept. 1.

The board employed Virginia Hughes as part-time cook at Garrett, replacing Ruth Wallace, who transferred to ACHS. Judy Stephens was transferred from full time custodian to part-time cook and part-time custodian at Harold Elementary. Jeff Baker was employed as part-time custodian at Harold Elementary, filling a part-time custodian vacancy created after the transfer of Judy Stephens and resignation of Deborah Kidd. Employed as a substitute custodian was Katie Boyd, at Harold Elementary.

Food service food and supply bids were awarded, and bids were accepted for roofing supplies and custodial bids.

Do-It-Yourself Road Repair

Virgil Halbert Jr. said he volunteered to use his own materials and equipment to fill up the many potholes on John's Branch Road, near Maytown, if the county would provide the materials. But Halbert said the county's delivery late last week "wasn't enough gravel to feed a chicken." Halbert's father, Virgil Sr., said about 14 families live on the rural road and have to maneuver their cars in and around the holes, ending up with ruined tires and wheel alignment problems. The younger Halbert said he has been using his own tractor and scraper blades for "six to eight years, maybe longer," to keep the road passable. Magistrate Jackie Owens did not return calls from the Times last week concerning the John's Branch problem.

"The closing affects all of Floyd County," said Chamber of Commerce President Tom Hereford. "When you figure that every payroll turns over three times, the impact of the store's closing will be felt by many other businesses."

"The Chamber is obviously concerned," he said. "We'll go out of our way to assist any business that's interested in coming into that location."

Hereford, who also heads the local office of the State Department of Employment Services, added that his office will "do everything we can to help Heck's employees find new jobs."

the Prestonsburg store and 19 others in Kentucky and five other states are closed.

Attorney Burchett Makes Predictions For '89

W.W. Burchett, Floyd County's resident prognosticator, presented his predictions for 1989 at Thursday's Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club meeting.

Attorney Burchett, who earlier made the presentation for clubs in Lexington and Ashland, has been assessing prospects for the new year for "30 to 40 years now." Here are his sometimes reasonable, sometimes irreverent pronouncements for the end of the '80s decade:

Gov. Wilkinson has completed 13 months in office. The big issue in the election was the lottery, which became law. His number one piece of legislation was the succession amendment. There was no succession amendment and will not be in '90. With the media and prosecutors being what they are, if you play it right you can serve two terms anyway, one in the office and one in the penitentiary.

His tax amnesty was probably his greatest success. He has been abrasive to the legislature, the school people—everybody that opposed him. I expect him to have trouble with all his programs. After the Supreme Court decision, there may be a "tax reform" to implement the Court's mandate. Maybe he wants an excuse. Our governor is having some problems with choosing the right people to run his lottery. Jim Bakker and Tammy Faye are presently out of work and have had a lot of experience in the money business. I don't know what he could do with Jessica Hahn.

The big story in Kentucky is, as usual, politics.

Kentucky is one of the few states that has two elections every year, and sometimes a few "specials" in-between. It takes two years and $5 million to be elected US Senator or governor. Historically, the candidate that spends the most money is the winner. It is small wonder that we have candidates already off and running for the Senate and candidates for governor in warm-up suits.

The Senate race must be decided in '89, although the election will not be until May 1990. The Democrats will make a judgment soon as to whether Mitch McConnell, with his millions in campaign funds and Bush early in his term, is beatable. If they think he is, they will come forth with a fresh, strong candidate — not Harvey Sloane. If they decide he is not beatable they would sacrifice Harvey as token opposition.

Then there is Wallace. It is hard to believe that once you have been governor and experienced the smell of the greasepaint and the roar of the crowd, you would be content to go back to selling books for a living. A man that could run for governor and start from where he did could be easily convinced that he could win for the Senate. And look who would urge him to run — his friends, of course, Lt. Gov. Brereton Jones and his supporters and all the ones that would like to see him out of the governor's office. He gets everyone.

By the end of '89 there will be two candidates off and running for governor in '91 — Scotty Baesler, mayor of Lexington, and Brereton Jones, lieutenant governor. We may have a political contradiction. No man not born in Kentucky soil has served as its governor. Invariably, the candidate that spends the most money is the winner. One of these axioms may be broken, or we may have other candidates.

But has it crossed your mind? Kentucky has had a woman governor and her name is Martha. Wallace cannot run again, but what about Martha? Have you ever heard of Martha's Army? After they teach everybody to read they could turn to politics.

The news in government in '89 will be on the national scene. We will have a new administration in Washington. We may go from the great communicator to the great imitator.

George Bush, the 41st president of the US whom it will cost $25 million to inaugurate, has done well naming his cabinet. He has selected experienced, knowledgeable and acceptable people. He is sticking to the more traditional Republican conservatives. He is also signaling by his appointments a more conciliatory attitude toward Democrats than did Reagan. He will have no difficulty with Senate approval.

His problem is what to do with Danny Quayle and Willie Horton, the star performers in the presidential campaign. Quayle can be "golf commissioner," and for the next four years Willie Horton can be the "gipper."

You can expect productive arms reduction agreements between the US and USSR. Bush and Gorbachev will meet in '89 at least once.

Bush and Baker will get along better with Gorbachev than did Reagan and Schultz.

During the campaign did you see Mike Dukakis riding in the Sherman tank? Gorbachev saw that. It scared him to death and less than two months later he made an arms reduction agreement with the US. It even got Arafat talking peace.

It was a good thing Gorbachev came over here for the meeting. It is the first arms deal Bush could remember anything about.

Read my lips — George Bush will raise taxes. This will first be noticed at the gas pump, where we will pay more than a dollar a gallon. In new taxes, Congress will make George take the lead.

There will be more soldiers than pilgrims in Bethlehem in '89, but it is very likely that we can see a glimmer of hope for productive talks that might lead to peace all over the world.

Wall Street will continue the takeovers. We will still have the leveraged buyouts and junk bonds. The Dow will settle in around 2400 to 2500, and unlike last year it will not go up or down more than 40 or 50 points in any given day.

Interest rates on the long term will decline and the economy is expected to slow down.

Barbara Bush will get along better with Raisa Gorbachev than did Nancy Reagan. She will be wearing her own clothes and she will be jealous of Raisa's pretty legs.

Evil will persist in the world. There will be fewer planes hijacked and more planes bombed, more hostages taken, more riots and demonstrations all over the world.

Reagan and Bush won't testify for North. They can't remember.

The big story in sports in Kentucky will be the NCAA investigation of University of Kentucky basketball. Every farmer knows that when one chicken is pecked and blood is drawn, every chicken in the henhouse will take its turn and peck that chicken to death. It is recorded in the Holy Writ. "Let him without sin cast the first stone." Does Kentucky stand alone or is it a victim? Does the system need a reformation?

County officials, in what was once the biggest election of all, will stand for election in '89. Most incumbents will seek reelection and win. Do we not have as many qualified can-

About $30,000 in damage resulted from this Friday fire at the home of Marisa Johnson in Lancer. Fire Dept. Responds To Two C & R Alarms Prestonsburg Fire Department responded to two separate utility calls from C&R Office Supply last week, according to Fire Chief Tom Blackburn.

On Friday, Jan. 6, employees reported smelling smoke in the office. Fire department officials discovered that the smell was coming from a hanging heating unit which had turned on without the fan coming on. An outer panel had turned bright red from the heat.

The gas and power to the unit were turned off by fire department officials and office personnel were advised to contact a repair person.

On Tuesday, Jan. 3, C&R Office Supply staff reported the lights in the building going off and on. Upon arrival, the fire department found one bad light and electrical circuit problems.

The problem with the light was handled by the fire department, and the electrical problem was handled by a repair person, said Blackburn.

In an accident report on Jan. 6, Officer Roy Roberts of the Prestonsburg Police Department reported that Estill Howell, 78, of Prestonsburg, cut in front of Geraldine Robinson, 22, of Raccoon, on U.S. 23, at the Archer Park entrance.

Minor damages were sustained by both vehicles.

Gilliam, three daughters, and his parents James Harold and Barbara Stephens Gilliam of DeFord, Mich.

Funeral services are today at 2 p.m. at DeFord Community Church, with burial in the Novesta Township Cemetery in Cass City, Mich.

Editorial

It is easier to be public spirited, when it's not your base being closed. Still, we believe that shutting down or reducing operations at 91 military facilities across the nation is in the best interest of the nation. We also believe that there could be a silver lining for the communities most directly affected.

For the nation as a whole, the cut-backs recommended by a non-partisan commission appointed by Defense Secretary Frank Carlucci could save $5.6 billion over 20 years. Local communities, of course, are apprehensive, and lawmakers representing areas affected already are looking for ways to block the closures. Sen. Pete Wilson, R-Calif., suggested he would look for ways to deny money for some of the California closures. He spoke of "very seriously flawed" reasoning behind some of the commission's recommendations.

Fortunately, neither Wilson nor any other lawmaker is likely to prevail. The commission, chaired by former Rep. Jack Edwards, R-Ala., and former Sen. Abraham Ribicoff, D-Conn., was established to avoid the congressional stalemate that has kept unnecessary military facilities on line for at least the past 10 years. Congress itself could never bite the bullet.

The commission's report now goes to Carlucci, who will have until Jan. 16 to approve or reject the entire list. He cannot remove any facilities from the list, nor can he add any. If Carlucci accepts the recommendations, they will go into effect — unless both houses of Congress vote by the end of April to reject the entire list. Even then, the president could veto the congressional action.

For local communities, the key to surviving, indeed thriving, in the wake of base closings is aggressive and imaginative political leadership. Military facilities transformed into industrial parks or community-college campuses have provided more stable sources of revenue and jobs than the military facilities did. It may take a few years, but communities with leadership and vision rarely regret the loss.

Letters to the Editor

Reader Supports Editorial Opinions

Dear Editor, I have followed the gyrations and machinations of Floyd County's School Board with more than a passing interest. You, Ms. Chaney, are to be commended for your editorials. Your sense of the situation is remarkable.

At this point, it is only fair that I define myself. My formative years were spent in the Floyd County schools. All but two of those years in the McDowell schools; my junior and senior years were spent at Maytown High School. Whatever I am today, I owe to those selfless teachers, as well as the support of a strong family who instilled in each of us an indomitable spirit. It was that spirit you witnessed in Ed Patton, Floyd County's transportation manager, and a nephew of mine.

I will refrain from detailing my impressions of some members of the board, and will concentrate on Eddie and his very fine attorney. As I followed the thrusts and parries, the poem, "If," by Kipling, came to mind. Anna Sue Stumbo was the teacher who made us memorize that poem. At the time, we didn't understand it and didn't want to memorize it, but knew we had to. So many times since, I've brought forth that poem. In fact, I wonder if it's ever out of my mind. Here's the first paragraph:

*If you can keep your head when all about you
Are losing theirs and blaming it on you;
If you can trust yourself when all men doubt you,
But make allowance for their doubting too;
If you can wait and not be tired by waiting,
Or, being lied about, don't deal in lies,
Or, being hated, don't give way to hating,
And yet don't look too good, nor talk too wise.*

There are three more paragraphs to "If", and at this moment in time, I would like to say, thank you, Anna Sue Stumbo, for your persistence in insisting we memorize it.

During the public persecution of Eddie, I recalled reading Theodore Roosevelt's speech, "Man in the Arena." Here are a few lines from that speech:

It's not the critic who counts, nor the man who points out how the strong man stumbled or where the doer of deeds could have done them better. The credit belongs to the man who is actually in the arena. The man whose face is marred by dust and sweat and blood, who strives valiantly, who errs and comes short again and again because there is not effort without error and shortcoming, but who does actually strive to do the deed, who knows the great enthusiasms, the great devotions, who spends himself in a worthy cause, who at the best knows in the end the triumphs of high achievements and who at the worst, if he fails, at least fails while daring greatly.

Ed Patton and his attorney decided to fight the good fight in that arena, and chose not to go quietly into that good night. I offer my heartiest congratulations to them.

One more thing: You can tell a lot about the character of a man by the way his family feels about him. I proudly refer you to a letter to the editor written by Eddie's son, Mark. Sincerely, Helen Storie Nicola Tucson, Ariz.

Student Takes Issue With Recent Opinions

Dear Editor, This letter is a response to the last two letters written by Sheila Mann and Phyllis Craft. Both of my parents are teachers. My mom teaches second grade and my dad teaches sixth

What kind of job does Sheila Mann have? Does she have to put up with 25 kids asking questions every minute in her face? I would say not because if she did, she would not have written that letter.

I would have to agree with Phyllis Craft on many things she said in her article. My mom and dad both went to college, and even went back to get more education. My best guess is that Sheila Mann probably has about 12 years of education, or maybe less.

Yes, the teachers wanted a raise, but not all for themselves—but for us, the children. We need many more materials in our schools. Our administrators are doing their jobs for the money. If they were in it for the kids, why don't we have science labs in the grade schools or a computer room for every school? Why do teachers have to buy materials for their room? Why do teachers have to save and scrape for every package of paper they get?

So by now, I guess, you get the point. I'm proud to have my parents be teachers.

Concert Series Board Meets

James W. Ratcliff of Prestonsburg was elected chairman of the Eastern Kentucky Concert Series board of directors Jan. 3 at Prestonsburg Community College when the group met to revitalize after several years of dormancy.

About 25 persons attended the meeting at which Ronna Yeager was elected secretary and Burieta Gearheart, treasurer. Both are from Prestonsburg.

Ratcliff said the position of vice chairman was left vacant until the board can attract involvement from surrounding areas.

Two ad hoc committees were formed from those attending, one for program assessment to gauge community musical interests and the other to coordinate budgeting for planned programs.

Also formed were standing committees for ticket sales, publicity, and program arrangements. The board, which is open to all interested area residents, will have its next meeting on Feb. 7 at 7 p.m. at the college.

The Writing On The Wall

An anonymous prophet left a telling mark on this flat car stranded at a railyard on KY 7 near Lackey. Despite the spelling, the phrase "I am dieing" presents a chilling message. Could the author be referring to the coal industry or the railroad industry, which coal spawned almost a century ago. Both have experienced "boom and bust" cycles in Floyd County and the rest of Eastern Kentucky.

Minister To Address PC Convocation

A Berea minister who worked in the civil rights movement in Memphis at the time of Dr. Martin Luther King Jr.'s assassination will speak at Pikeville College on Tuesday, Jan. 17.

Richard Moon, a Presbyterian campus minister at Memphis State University in the 1960s, will speak at convocation in Chrisman Auditorium at 11 a.m.

"Dick saw, up close, some of the turbulence that characterized the 1960s," said Phil Blake, associate director of external affairs for Pikeville College, who knows Moon personally. "His work in Memphis and his relationship to Dr. King's efforts there should be of interest to our students, most of whom were only small children, or were not yet born at the time."

In addition to being a campus minister, Moon was associate pastor of an inner-city church in Memphis.

and took part in a number of civil rights struggles around Tennessee. In the spring of 1968, he supported attempts by Memphis sanitation workers to persuade the city to recognize their union. King was in Memphis to lend his support to their effort when he was assassinated.

Hospital Announces On-Site ER Physician Coverage

Our Lady of the Way Hospital began 24-hour on-site physician coverage of its emergency room Jan. 1.

"We've had 24-hour physician coverage for many years," explained Chief Executive Officer Sister Mary Fanning. "But on-site coverage means a physician, whose sole purpose is to treat emergencies, will be available in our emergency department all day and night."

Previously, staff physicians took emergency room call during the day while maintaining regular business hours in their offices near the hospital. Acute Care America, of Huntington, WV, provided emergency care physicians for evening, night and weekend coverage.

Now Acute Care America will provide round-the-clock physician services for Our Lady of the Way Hospital's emergency room.

State Needs New Methods To Fight Environmental Threats, Says KFTC

A Kentucky citizens group said last week that the state needs new methods and greater resources to fight environmental threats.

Kentuckians For The Commonwealth, a statewide citizens group, released a comprehensive report on environmental problems in Kentucky Wednesday at a press conference in Frankfort. Leaders of the organization said that budget and staff increases for enforcement agencies were necessary, as were new restrictions on burning and burying solid and toxic wastes.

"We're all prisoners of convention and are used to throwing things away," said Patty Wallace, KFTC chairperson. "Recycling is the fastest, safest and cheapest way to get rid of our garbage." Wallace said that Kentucky needed more programs to reduce, recycle and re-use wastes.

"The big challenge for Kentucky is waste reduction," said Jean True, chair of KFTC's environmental rights committee. "Industry can save money—in raw materials, in liability costs, in public relations—by reducing wastes."

The report by the Prestonsburg-based group includes 187 recommendations for state action, including banning commercial toxic waste incineration, hiring more state inspectors, creating tougher air pollution limits and giving prison sentences to corporate officials convicted of deliberately violating environmental regulations.

"We're concerned that landfills are putting our entire groundwater system in jeopardy," said Penney Sanders. Low costs make dumping in Kentucky attractive for other states, Sanders said.

Leaders of Kentuckians For The Commonwealth presented the report to state officials, who are developing Kentucky's first "environmental management plan." A draft of the state's plan is expected to be released in May.

The report, "The A-B-Cs of Environmental Management in Kentucky," was endorsed by the Kentucky Resources Council, Citizen's

Clearinghouse For Hazardous Wastes, Greenpeace, Lawrence County Concerned Citizens, Bridge Alliance, Concerned Citizens Coalition, Concerned Citizens of the Mud and Green Project, Association of Concerned Environmentalists, Keep Cannon Creek Clean, Concerned Citizens of Morgan County, Fleming County Concerned Citizens, Greenup

Residents Opposing Waste Landfill, Henry-Trimble County Concerned Citizens, Paddlewheel Alliance, Long Fork Concerned Citizens and Valley Watch.

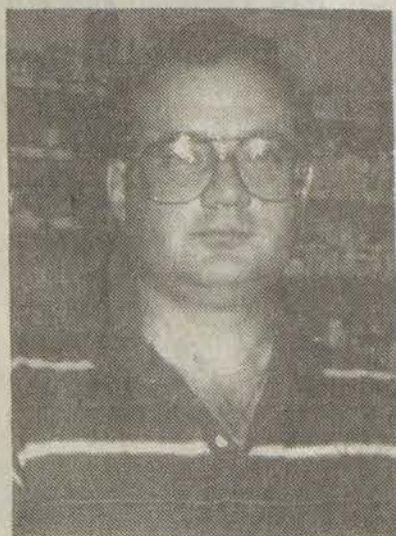

For a copy of the environmental report, write to Kentuckians For The Commonwealth, Post Office Box 864, Prestonsburg, Ky. 41653, or call (606) 886-0043.

Religious Viewpoints

by Hondel Adams, Evangelist, First Christian Church

What makes a nation great? Is it military might? An endless chain of military powers have passed into oblivion. I read recently that the world's leading scientist revealed for the first time that we have perfected two different atomic devices that are too powerful to test. The Pacific Ocean is not wide enough nor long enough, nor deep enough for us to take one of these gadgets out in the middle of it and set it off! It is too powerful to test!

Is it wealth that makes a nation great? The treasures of many a vanished civilization would make us gasp, but they did not preserve those nations.

Is it education? The Greeks, noted for their learning, fell. A few years ago the finest education was to be found in Germany, but Germany fell.

Is it science? We consider ourselves the most advanced of all time in the realm, yet when we witness the destructiveness science has accomplished in its atomic and hydrogen bombs, we feel a sickening dread lest it become our means of destruction.

Is it religion? Man is incurably religious, but a tremendous proportion of religion is pure superstition and tradition, which has no power to uplift.

Our real need is for the teachings of Jesus to be applied in our lives. This produces righteousness, and "Righteousness exalteth a nation." Measured by this standard, our nation is woefully short. True, we have much that is good. A cut flower looks good, too, but it cannot last, for its roots are severed.

Outwardly, religion flourishes. More names are on roll books and more money is given than ever before.

"Our gifts, however, are less percentage wise. Far more is wasted on sheer trivialities or squandered on vice than is given to God. Fewer than half of the nation's people are attending church, and even less are applying Christian teaching in their lives. What a paradox! More church members and more sin! "Sin is a reproach to any people."

In our country, sin is a flourishing business. Crime, delinquency, drunkenness, dope addiction, vandalism, subversion—all are on the increase. This proves that the religion of millions must be an empty profession.

We need our spiritual roots restored! We need to let our lives be transformed into the joy-bringing goodness of Christ. Honor him in your deeds. Make provision for your spiritual growth. Honor his church constantly with your presence and support! "Build your hopes on things eternal; hold to God's unchanging hand."

"We look not at the things which are seen, but at the things which are not seen; for the things which are seen are temporal, but the things which are not seen are eternal" (2 Corinthians 4:18). This truth is quickly recognized in the material realm.

The world owes its scientific progress to the people, who could look at the things they couldn't see; who could dream of better days, build castles in the air—and then put concrete foundations under them.

In spiritual things, this attitude of the follower of Christ seems impractical. How can one look at the things which are not seen? Simply by taking heaven as his goal, instead of anything earthly.

The word "temporal" means belonging to time. The things which we see are not destined to be permanent; but they are perishable. Even the so-called Terra Firma (solid earth) will melt and vanish in the fire of the last day (2 Peter 3:10). Until we learn to look beyond the temporal things, we shall never please God.

"...hounded like a wounded brute, Man with all his worldly loot, Is caught at last—by what he chases."

The wisdom of being a Christian will be seen when the Lord returns, the heavens and the earth shall pass away, and only the things which we cannot now see remain.

"Righteousness exalteth a nation; but sin is a reproach to any people" (Proverbs 14: 34)

In Loving Memory of Audrey Howard Ousley
Mamaw

Gray hair pulled in a bun,
Eyes sparkling at remembered fun.
A smile, a goldtooth like a banner glow,
Petted and loved knowing no foe.
Small and frail now needing us more,
We've taken care of her now as she did as before.
Remembered things of days gone by,
Happiness, love, a shake of her head, a sigh.
But in my memories I see,
A strong, straight lady as she used to be.
Sweeping her yard as a queen goes to court,
Black hair, sparkling eyes, Oh, what a sport.
Never laughing when you painted leaves,
Or loving hands on a scraped up knee.
On the front porch swing watching us play,
We knew then that she'd always stay.
And in my memories I'll always hear,
The laughter and stories oh so dear.
All these things come you see,
In one small bundle so dear to me.

Harmon Leedy: Helping Parents Of Handicapped Children

The Handicapped Child's Advocate

Harmon Leedy, from a donated office at Mountain Comprehensive Care, voluntarily directs the Parent/Professional Resource Center which advocates the rights of handicapped children and helps parents through emotional, physical and financial crises.

The best resource in the Parent/Professional Resource Center at Mountain Comprehensive Care is not a book on helping the handicapped child or a videotape on various handicaps, or, even a directory of specialists in the field.

The best resource in the center, located in donated space on MCC's third floor, is not a thing. It's a person.

Harmon Leedy, the parent of a handicapped child, volunteers his time to counsel and assist other parents of handicapped children.

Leedy brings 15 years of experience to the job. After three healthy daughters, he and his wife had a fourth daughter born with cerebral palsy, a crippling disorder of the central nervous system with varying degrees of severity.

"The doctor told us 'The chance of your daughter living more than 24 hours is one in 1,000,'" said Leedy of that day 15 years ago. "We had no idea what the problem was. We had never even heard the words cerebral palsy before."

The tiny girl did live past the day, taking half an ounce of milk at a time, the father said, and despite warnings of doom from the doctor, the couple decided to take the baby home.

For six months, the family worked in shifts, caring for the baby who never responded. "Then one day, my wife was bathing her and she opened her eyes, looked around the room and let out the biggest scream you ever heard," Leedy said. "She started making progress then."

Today, dozens of battles and hundreds of thousands of dollars in medical bills later, their daughter is a student in Floyd County school system, with access to various therapies that have helped her to progress even more and enjoy the semblance of a normal life.

The intervening years, however, were often difficult. "We didn't know where to turn. Everyone would give a different answer," Leedy said. "Everyone told us what she could not do, no one told us what she might do." The information the couple did get was "more bad than good," he said.

The Leedys fought countless battles trying to get their daughter into the educational system where she could get professional help which the family could not give. Leedy had to become an expert on HB94-142, the federal law that requires that all children be given an equal opportunity for education regardless of handicap and condition.

They fought countless more battles getting financial help. Leedy said the insurance from his electrician's job was cancelled about a year after the baby was born because of the medical expenses that often accompany handicaps. "You can go from middle class to poverty very quickly when you have to deal with medical costs," he said.

Leedy learned, by trial and error, how to successfully apply for Social Security disability and a Medicaid card, and where to find other help with the mounting debts.

He now lends his own experience to other parents faced with similar problems. Perhaps even more important, Leedy said he is willing to listen to and counsel parents who are having difficulty coping with the stress that having a handicapped child can place on a family.

Leedy considers no assistance too small. He has arranged transportation for parents and handicapped children to medical appointments. He has put parents in contact with dentists who will work on the teeth of a severely handicapped child, with which most dentists have no experience.

"Our job is to let parents know what's there, to see that they can get the things they need to go on living," said Leedy. Leedy joined the ranks of the handicapped himself three years ago when an eye disease left him blind.

Leedy's volunteer work with handicapped children led last year to his appointment as a parent representative for the State Department of Education's special education wing. He serves on an advisory committee made up of professionals and parents of special needs children. He is the only parent on the committee from this part of the state, he said.

Recently he travelled to Frankfort as an advocate for Kentucky HB 241. The bill, which passed in 1984, called for additional funding for special education programs. But, according to Leedy, no money was ever appropriated.

"We don't have appropriate classrooms, we don't have equipment, we don't have enough teachers and aides, we don't have enough specially equipped buses. We need more of everything to have educational opportunity for handicapped children," Leedy said.

Leedy mans the Parent/Professional Resource Center daily. In addition, to his own experience, the center offers brochures and books relating to handicapped children for use by parents and professionals who work in special education.

Leedy has also organized a parent support group, which is set to meet Jan. 20 at 6 p.m. at the center. Parents who are interested in the group or in the center's resources may call Leedy at 886-8572, ext. 52, or 886-1723.

Charged After School Bus Wreck

Jimmy Darrell Smith, 42, of Majestic in Pike County, has been charged with driving under the influence following his car's head-on crash with a school bus carrying 56 students.

Five Phelps High School students were treated Thursday for minor injuries after the collision knocked the bus to the edge of a 20-foot embankment into a creek.

Smith was listed in guarded condition at Pikeville Methodist Hospital. Smith is also charged with operating a vehicle on a suspended license.

The accident took place on KY 632 near Phelps about 3:30 p.m. Thursday. The students escaped through the rear door of the bus.

Hospital To Dedicate New Services Sunday

Our Lady of the Way Hospital will formally dedicate its new mammography services and outpatient surgery suite Sunday, Jan. 15 at 4 p.m. in the hospital's main lobby.

An open house will be held from 3 p.m. to 5 p.m. in conjunction with the ceremony.

"We are proud of these improvements and we are pleased to have this opportunity to present our facility and staff to the public," said Sister Mary Fanning, chief executive officer. "We hope many people will join us for the celebration."

Our Lady of the Way Hospital began mammography services Oct. 5. Its Senographe 600T is the only one in the area and is the most advanced system on the market.

Renovations of former patient room 201 began in August and created the present outpatient surgery suite. The suite features a family visiting area, a way station and three cubicles for recovery.

Hospital managers will give guided tours and serve refreshments during the open house.

Additional parking will be available at the Martin Clinic across from the hospital. Attendants will assist visitors with parking.

UK Dean To Address Kiwanis

Emery Wilson, dean of the College of Medicine at the University of Kentucky, will be the featured speaker at the Jan. 19 meeting of the Prestonsburg Kiwanis Club at 6 p.m. at the Highland Regional Medical Center.

Wilson will present an update on the latest achievements of UK, Kentucky's 123-year-old land grant institution and review goals for UK's future.

Wilson received his M.D. from UK in 1968 and is a native of Frankfort.

THANKS

The staff of Mountain Manor Nursing Home would like to thank all the businesses, churches and schools for their generous donations and gifts in helping to make the best Christmas ever for all their residents.

Branham To Manage Johnson County Firm

Estill Branham, owner of Auxier Road Gas Company, was recently named to manage the Johnson County Gas Company.

The Johnson County company has been operating under a bankruptcy reorganization plan since 1984, and owes approximately $1.3 million to the state Department for Local Government, as well as $156,000 to Columbia Gas.

Johnson County Gas Co. customers will now do contact the firm at Branham Village, located in Floyd County about six miles south of Paintsville. For more information, call 886-3757.

Need Applications Approved By State

The Commission for Health Economics Control in Kentucky approved several certificate of need applications, including two affecting Floyd County residents.

The board approved a request from HCP Respiratory Care Division, Louisville, to expand its mobile health service to include nursing homes in Floyd, Knott, Lawrence, Perry, Pike, Boyd and Breathitt counties, at an estimated cost of $65,950.

Also approved was a request by Story Consulting Services of Prestonsburg to expand its mobile health service in Floyd County, at an estimated cost of $19,455.

A request by Parkview Manor in Pikeville to convert 24 intermediate care beds to the skilled nursing level was not approved by the board.

Banking School Gains Accreditation

The Kentucky School of Banking recently became the first banking school in the state to be fully accredited by the American Bankers Association, according to Dr. Susan Newkirk-Moore, KBA vice president and director of education.

As a result, she said, students may now receive up to five college credits for attending the school, through an arrangement with the American Council on Education's Program on Non-Collegiate-Sponsored Instruction.

Floyd Countians who were 1988 graduates or who are currently second-year students include Donna R. Roope, personnel clerk at the Bank Josephine in Prestonsburg; Linda E. Lenox, credit analyst with the Bank Josephine; and Brian K. Ousley, financial analyst with the First Commonwealth Bank in Prestonsburg.

A Little Less Litter

Ricky, left, and Jeff Kiser display some of the trash they've collected on a stretch of US 238. Their employer, Mountain Enterprises of Allen, has "adopted" the highway for clean up.

An 'Enterprising' Endeavor

Business is literally "picking up" for Mountain Enterprises, an asphalt paving company in Allen.

The company has taken State Transportation Secretary Milo Bryant up on his Adopt-A-Highway proposal and has assigned two full-time employees to pick up trash thrown by careless motorists onto US 23 south of Prestonsburg.

Employees Ricky and Jeff Kiser of Caney (Pike County) are working eight hours a day, 40 hours a week for four to six weeks to clear the road shoulders of debris, according to company spokesman Robert Bell.

Last week while picking up between the intersection of KY 80 and the stoplight at Allen, the two men gathered at least 1,500 pounds, or about 25 bags, of trash per day, Bell said. "It's pitiful how much people throw out."

The Kiser brothers have found discarded items ranging from baby bottles to car parts. The most common items they are picking up are beer bottles and cups of tobacco juice, they said.

"We don't pick up too many pop cans because a lot of people gather them up to sell," said Jeff.

The company has been able to dump the trash at Floyd County Solid Waste landfill on KY 122, free of charge, said Bell. "David Cooley at the landfill has been extremely cooperative," he said.

The Mountain Enterprises employees will work their way to the Pike County line over the next few weeks, Bell said.

SS Claimants Have Right To Representation, Says Kelly

Most people who have business dealings with Social Security handle their own affairs with some help from Social Security personnel, according to Jim Kelly, Social Security District director. The aim of social security is to make certain that those entitled to benefits get them, and to help applicants establish their right to them.

However, a person who wishes to be represented in his or her dealings with Social Security may arrange for this. The representatives may be a lawyer or any other qualified person. Social Security personnel are prepared to assist by providing a list of legal service organizations, such as the Legal Aid Society or the state or local bar association, from which the names of attorneys may be obtained.

There are some limits on who may represent a person in his or her dealings with Social Security. First, the representative must be an individual, not a corporation or organization.

Second, a person cannot act as a representative if he or she has been prohibited from engaging in such activities because of having violated provisions of the Social Security law, said Kelly.

Third, under certain conditions, a current or former employee of the government may not be able to act as a representative. Further details about this restriction may be obtained from any Social Security office.

Once a representative is decided upon, Kelly says, the appointment must be made in writing. A form for this purpose is available at any Social Security office. The representative's authority ends when final action is taken in the case or when the person being represented asks that it end.

More information about a person's right to be represented can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security office, located on U.S. 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. The telephone number is listed in the local telephone directory under U.S. government.

Noontime temperatures at the lunar equator reach 212 degrees Fahrenheit, the boiling point of water. Had one of the Apollo astronauts dropped an egg into a small hole in a lunar boulder, it would have dropped slowly in the one sixth of Earth's gravity, without breaking, and boiled and congealed quickly.

didates as we once had, or has the prestige of holding public office become tarnished? This will be a lackluster election, with very little interest and a light voter turnout. I don't know whether the fault lies with the voters or the candidates.

SOME THOUGHTS ON EVENTS IN 1988

Santa Claus almost didn't make it last year. They held up his ACT score because he sat close to Rudolph at the test. The Department of Transportation made him submit to a urine test. He is so big, it looks like he has been using steroids and they almost took his title away from him. But that is not the big problem. He wants a 50 percent pay increase like Congressmen, federal judges and cabinet members and is threatening a strike.

The Carrollton school bus accident was the biggest news story of the year and shook up the populace about drunk drivers.

The law suit over the taxing levels for the poor school districts will probably have more lasting effect on Kentuckians than anything that happened in '88. The Supreme Court will affirm the judgment entered by Judge Corns to the extent that the law makers will be forced to seriously address the subject in '90, maybe before. Gov. Wilkinson will welcome this decision. It will give him a good excuse to yield to the pressure and raise taxes to implement the school program.

Oral Hirshiser replaced Ollie North as national hero.

Elvis Presley is sure enough dead.

Mickey Mouse turned 60.

Superman turned 50.

Bat Man's boy wonder "Robin" died.

In Texas, you could buy an electric toaster and they will give you a Federal Savings and Loan.

Mike Tyson knocked out Spinks in 91 seconds to become heavy weight champion of the world, but a little 116-pound woman, Robin Givens, landed a knock-out punch on him. She didn't want his money and neither did her mother, but they asked for $125 million.

George Bush changed Pearl Harbor Day to Sept. 7.

We elected a Republican president and Democratic Congress.

People predicting the end of the world sold their books on credit. Homeless street people shivered in the shadows of Trump Tower. We have more leisure time, but look to foreigners to supply our toys.

The world opens its heart to the victims of the Armenian earthquake in a gesture of global goodwill, and a terrorist plants a bomb on a PanAm 103, killing 270 innocent people.

Woods, Retired Army Officer, Dies

Luther L. Woods, 47, a highly-decorated, retired U.S. Army lieutenant colonel, died enroute to the Greater Southeast Community Hospital of heart failure on January 1, after a five-year battle with cancer. He was pronounced dead at the Walter Reed Army Medical Center.

Woods and his family have lived in Clinton, Md. since 1972, except for a short absence during his military career. Woods was born in Hazard on Nov. 14, 1941. He attended high school in Hindman, and graduated from West Point in 1963.

He was commissioned in the infantry and attended airborne, ranger, and the basic infantry officer course at Ft. Benning, Ga. His first assignment was with the 101st Airborne Division at Ft. Campbell. After Pathfinder School in 1965, he went to Vietnam with the First Brigade of the 101st. He served there as a recon platoon leader and company commander. For the extraordinary heroism he showed as a company commander in the battle his company waged for four days in June 1966 when it was surrounded by the Viet Cong and cut-off from other U.S. Forces, he was awarded the Distinguished Service Cross, the nation's second highest award for valor in combat. During this four-day battle, his company repelled a number of fierce enemy assaults, automatic weapons fire and mortar attacks, killing 96 Viet Cong insurgents.

In 1966 he went to Germany where he served in Headquarters CENTAG until 1968, when he returned to Vietnam as an advisor. During his second Vietnam tour, he advised a Vietnamese ranger battalion and was aide-de-camp to the senior advisor to the Vietnamese Third Corps.

In 1969 he went to the Armor Advanced Course at Ft. Knox, and then to the Naval Postgraduate School in Monterey, Calif. for a masters degree in operations research.

From 1972 to 1975 he served in the Pentagon in ODCSPER. From there he attended the Command and General Staff Course at Ft. Leavenworth, Kans. After that he was assigned to the 1st Cavalry Division at Ft. Hood, Texas.

He returned to the Pentagon in 1978 to work in the Office of the Chief of Staff of the Army and on the Army Secretariat. He retired in 1983. After retirement, he worked for Information Systems and Networks Corporation in Chevy Chase, Md., and for Systems Research and Applications Corporation in Arlington, Va.

His awards and decorations include the Distinguished Service Cross, Bronze Stars for Valor and Merit, the Legion of Merit, the Meritorious Service Medal and the Combat Infantryman's Badge.

He was active in the Boy Scouts of America and the Legion of Valor and attended the Clinton United Methodist Church. He taught Sunday School and directed youth affairs for his church. He was active with the Tantallon Yacht Club for Washington, D.C.-Maryland, having served on its Board of Directors for many years and was currently serving as its Commodore. He was also a member of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, and the Disabled American Veterans.

He is survived by his wife Ruth; a son, Luke; and a daughter, Leah, of Clinton, Md.; his mother, Cleo, of Hindman; a brother, Clarence, and a sister, Brenda Bailey, of Hippo.

55th Anniversary

Elmer and Letha Williams of Alger, Ohio celebrated their 55th wedding anniversary with a surprise party at the home of Lemuel and Loretta Williams of Prestonsburg. The three-tier cake, decorated in white, pink and green with love birds on top, was baked by Helen Williams. They have three children, Estill Lee Williams of Ada, Ohio; Leatrice Prater of Lima, Ohio; and Kay Brummett of Alger, Ohio; 11 grandchildren and 11 great-grandchildren. She is the daughter of the late G.W. and Rachel Music Holbrook. He is the son of the late Harrison and Izanio Richardson Williams.

State Employment Up, Big Sandy Reflects Trend

Employment in Kentucky in November set a new all-time high, according to Ed Blackwell, the state's chief labor market analyst.

"Some (people) have been hired to fill temporary job openings, especially in retail trade, that we see at this time each year, but the majority are working in permanent jobs," Blackwell said.

Unemployment in November, the most recent month for which figures are available, recorded a 6.8 percent jobless rate statewide.

Elliott County recorded the highest rate, 18.3 percent, followed by Magoffin County with 16.8 percent.

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure employment trends rather than to actually count the number of people working.

In the Big Sandy Area Development District, the jobless rate decreased from a revised 11.7 percent in October to a preliminary 11.2 percent in November. Rates ranged from 10.2 percent in Johnson County to 16.8 percent in Magoffin County.

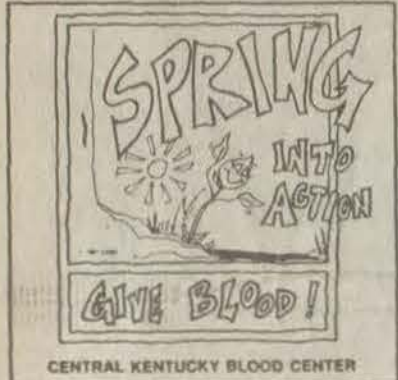

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 50 percent had worked in mining, 10.7 percent in both trade and services, and 7.5 percent in manufacturing.

Floyd County's unemployment rate stood at 10.6, while Martin recorded 12.8 percent. Pike County had a 10.8 percent jobless rate.

When in the 1920 Olympics Theresa Weld of the U.S. became the first woman to attempt a jump in figure skating competition in the 1920 Olympics, she was reprimanded for her "unfeminine behavior."

Moving Along

Todd Justice (34) dribbles back toward the hash mark in Saturday's game against the Mullins Tigers. The Blackcats ended the night with an 82-64 victory.

Bownes Dominates Contest

Ida Bownes, a 6'1" basketball standout for the Sheldon Clark Lady Cardinals, scored 18 points and blocked seven shots to lead her team to a 66-51 victory over the Allen Central Lady Rebels in basketball action Monday night.

"Sheldon Clark is a very strong team," Lady Reb coach Bonita Compton said. "They are really a solid ball club. They can rebound, shoot, and play a very tight defense."

Allen Central came into the game with a good 6-1 record. Sheldon Clark was 7-5, and ranked on top in the 15th Region.

"Sheldon Clark has played a lot of the top state teams and that has helped them this season," Compton explained. "They participated in the Central Kentucky tournament and played Henry Clay, who is ranked fourth in the state, a very close game," Compton said.

The Lady Cardinals' tenacious defense held Allen Central to just seven first quarter points. Sheldon Clark led at the first stop, 16-7.

"We were just outplayed," Compton added. "We had seven shots blocked by their 6'1" center."

Sheldon Clark dominated second quarter action and led at the half 36-21.

The Lady Rebels were limited by the Lady Cardinals defense and board work to just one shot at the basket.

"We have been used to taking 50 shots a game" Compton said. "We only had 32 attempts, but we shot 50 percent for the game."

The Lady Cardinals extended their lead in the third stanza and led by 20 points at the end of the third quarter, 52-32.

Allen Central managed to make a run in the fourth quarter, but could not catch the Lady Cardinals and Sheldon Clark coasted to their eighth victory, 66-51.

Jo Ann Conn led the Allen Central

Lady Rebs in scoring with 15 points, and Teresa Gibson added 14 points.

Sheldon Clark was led by Ida Bownes with 18 points, and Angela Bailey tossed in 12 points.

In last week's action, Allen Central defeated the Lady Trojans of Wheelwright, 54-50.

Jo Ann Conn scored 20 points to lead the Lady Rebs in scoring. Tiff Click tossed in 11 and Teresa Gibson had 10 points.

Jedon Hood led the lady Trojans with 16 points. Talitha Hutton added 13 points and April Bradford scored 12 points. Wheelwright is 1-7 overall and 0-2 in conference play. The Lady Trojans will host the Lady Daredevils of McDowell on Jan. 17 at Wheelwright.

Allen Central is now 6-2 and has a 3-0 conference record. The Lady Rebs will host the Lady Bobcats of Betsy Layne, also 3-0 in conference play, in a battle for sole possession of first place this Friday night at Allen Central.

P'burg Men Defeat Mullins

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Gordon Parido and his Prestonsburg Blackcats returned home after suffering their third consecutive loss at the hands of 15th ranked Pulaski County, 70-57, to take on the Mullins High School Tigers.

"I feel we had our best defensive effort. We played our best defensive game of the year against Pulaski County Friday night," Coach Parido explained. "Pulaski County is one of the top ranked teams in the state and did just what they had to do to win."

The game was closer than the final 13 point difference indicates. "We were just six points behind with three minutes left in the game, and we felt we could still win it," Parido said.

Todd Justice lead the Blackcats in scoring with 15 points and Scott Hall added 12 points.

In the Mullins game, Todd Justice scored 14 points to lead the Prestonsburg Blackcats to an 82-64 non-conference basketball victory over the Mullins High School Tigers. Chris Slone hit for 12 points for the Blackcats and Thomas Nairn added 11, and Scott Hall and Kevin Adams scored 10 each to add to the Blackcats' balanced attack.

Mullins opened the game by scoring first to take a 2-0 lead, and did not get another scoring attempt until four minutes were left in the quarter because of the Blackcats' pressure defense, which forced Mullins into some early turnovers.

The Blackcats, moving to 6-3 overall and 3-1 in conference play, scored the next eight points and never looked back.

The Tigers had closed the gap to four, 10-6, but the Blackcats went on another 8-2 spurt and lead at the end of the first stanza 18-8.

Early in the second quarter Prestonsburg had extended its lead to 20 points at the 4:40 mark, 30-10. The Blackcats' strong rebounding on the offensive boards merited them several second and third shots at the basket.

Along with their strong rebounding, they played a very solid defense that cut down the Tigers passing lanes and at the end of the first half Prestonsburg was on top, 41-21.

With Prestonsburg controlling the ball at the start of second half action, they made another run and at the 4:45 mark of the third stanza had pulled out to a 54-22 lead, mostly on the strength of some very unselfish play.

"On our team it doesn't matter who gets the points," the PHS mentor said. "These kids are very unselfish and are always looking for the open man."

The Blackcats seemed to tire somewhat in the third quarter as the Tigers began to get some easy baskets and cut in the 32 point lead.

"We were tired. We didn't get back from Pulaski County until 2 a.m. (Saturday morning) and I noticed that they were tired when they came tonight," Parido said. "We needed a game like this one."

PRESEASON SCOUTING

If you're bored with the ballgames, can't find a bird or bunny to shoot at, and feel a bad case of cabin fever coming on, consider spending an afternoon doing something that is sure to improve your fishing through the coming year.

During January and February, the waters of most flood control impoundments (like Dewey and Fishtrap) are at their lowest level of the year. Thus, all of the structures in the summertime shallow to mid-depths are now in plain view.

This provides a unique opportunity for the serious angler to better learn his or her favorite lake, or any lake, for that matter. Also, because the area most often occupied by largemouths (2 to 10 foot depths) is on dry land, anglers can easily construct brush and rock structures which will hold fish when the water later rises overtop of them.

The first step is to obtain a good, detailed, topographical map of the lake. Then, weather permitting, plan to spend a day on the lake. Take your map, a notepad and a pen, and stick a chainsaw, a spool of nylon rope or twine, and a few cinder blocks in your boat.

When you arrive at the lake, visit your most productive fishing spots and see if you can determine what was holding the fish in that area. Was it a brushpile? Maybe a few big rocks? Perhaps something relatively inconspicuous like a shallow ditch or depression?

Next, make your way slowly around the lake. On a larger reservoir, you might need to limit your

Bobcats Lose In First Round Of Pikeville Invitational, 49-46

The Betsy Layne Bobcats, having just come off a big victory Tuesday night over Johnson Central High School 66-58, traveled to Pikeville for first round action in the Pikeville Invitational Basketball Tournament against the Belfry Pirates. The Pirates defeated the Bobcats, 49-46.

Sluggish play for both teams seemed to dictate the tempo of the game. Coach Junior Newsome was quick to sum up his team's woes. "We were tired, having played so many games the past week," he said. "The week before, we played four games in the Hazard Invitational tournament, then Tuesday night we went to Johnson Central for a game, and we had to come into Pikeville to play Belfry on Wednesday night."

In the first quarter, both teams played even basketball, with neither team seeming to get the advantage. At the end of the first stanza Betsy Layne was on top, 13-10.

Neither team could pick up the tempo in the second quarter. Betsy Layne outscored Belfry 8-4 to extend its lead by seven, 21-14, at the half.

In second half action Belfry seem to pick the tempo and outscored the Bobcats 15-8 to tie the score at the end of the third quarter, 29 all.

The Belfry Pirates then went on to outscore Betsy Layne 20-17 in the final stanza and win the game, 49-46.

Betsy Layne was led in scoring by senior Keith Hall with 13 points. Sam Stewart added 12 points, and Duran Newsome tossed in nine.

Betsy Layne's record dropped to 10-4 overall with a conference record of 1 and 1. Friday night the Bobcats will be on the road for another conference game against the Allen Central Rebels.

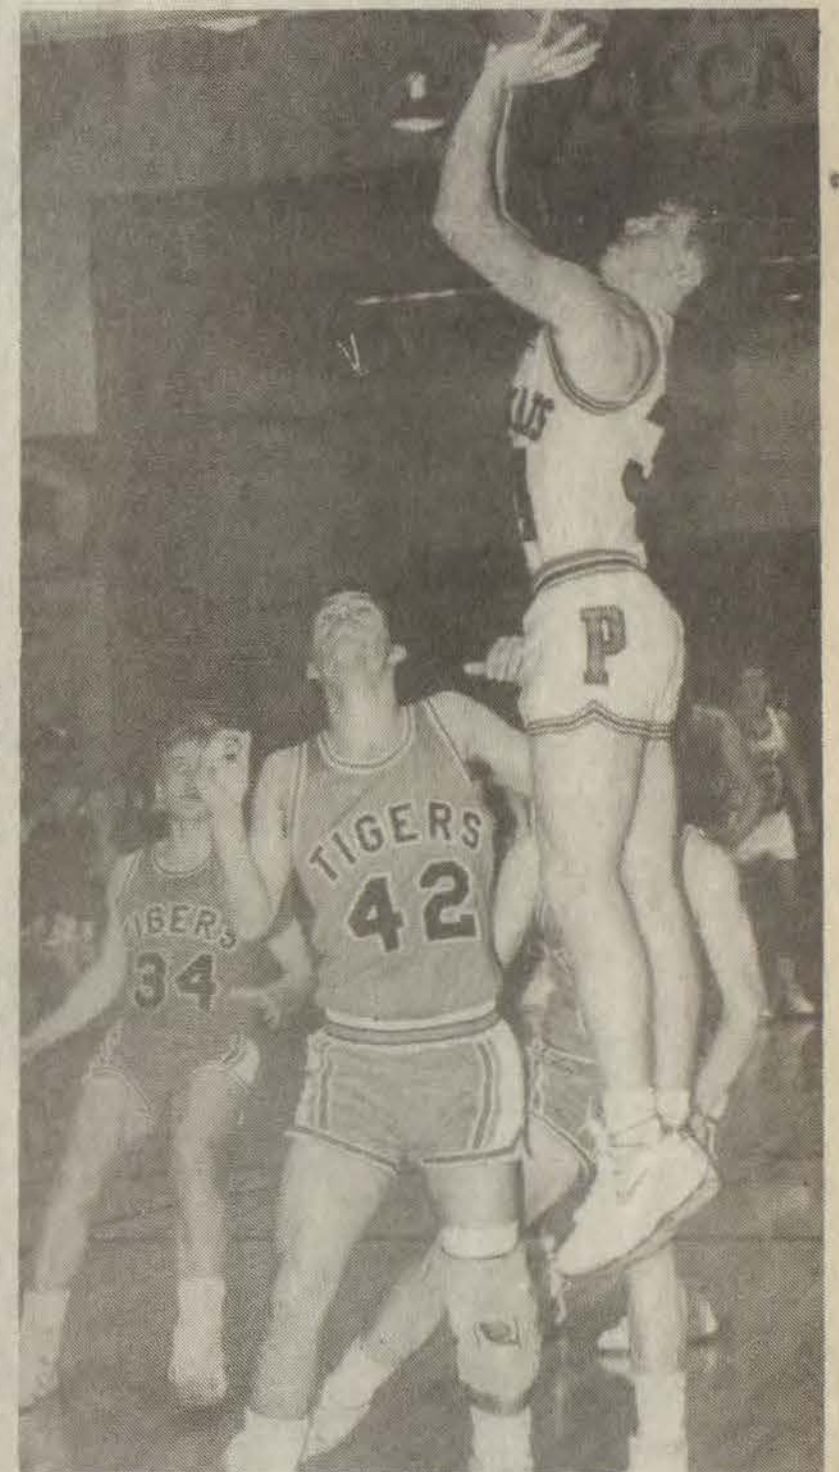

BETSY LAYNE 13 8 8 17 (46): Keith Hall, 2-1 4 13; Barry Hamilton, 1-0 0 2; Sam Stewart, 3-0 2 12; Earl Lawson, 2-0 0 4; Duran Newsome, 4-0 1 9; Larry Hall, 1-0 0 2; Steven Parsons, 2-0 0 4.

Up, Up And Away

Prestonsburg senior forward Todd Justice, right, goes high up and over Mullins defenders to take aim at the basket. PHS won the non-conference contest Saturday night, 82-64.

McDowell Lady Daredevils Fall, 45-41, To Dorton Women; Inconsistency Is Key

Webster's dictionary defines inconsistent as "not always holding to the same principles or practices."

This is how first year coach Cassandra Keathley described her McDowell Lady Daredevil's basketball play so far this season.

"Our inconsistency has hurt us this season," Keathley said. "We will play real good for about three-fourths of the game, and lose it in the fourth quarter."

"We have the talent to be a good team," Keathley added. "We just need to play consistently for 32 minutes."

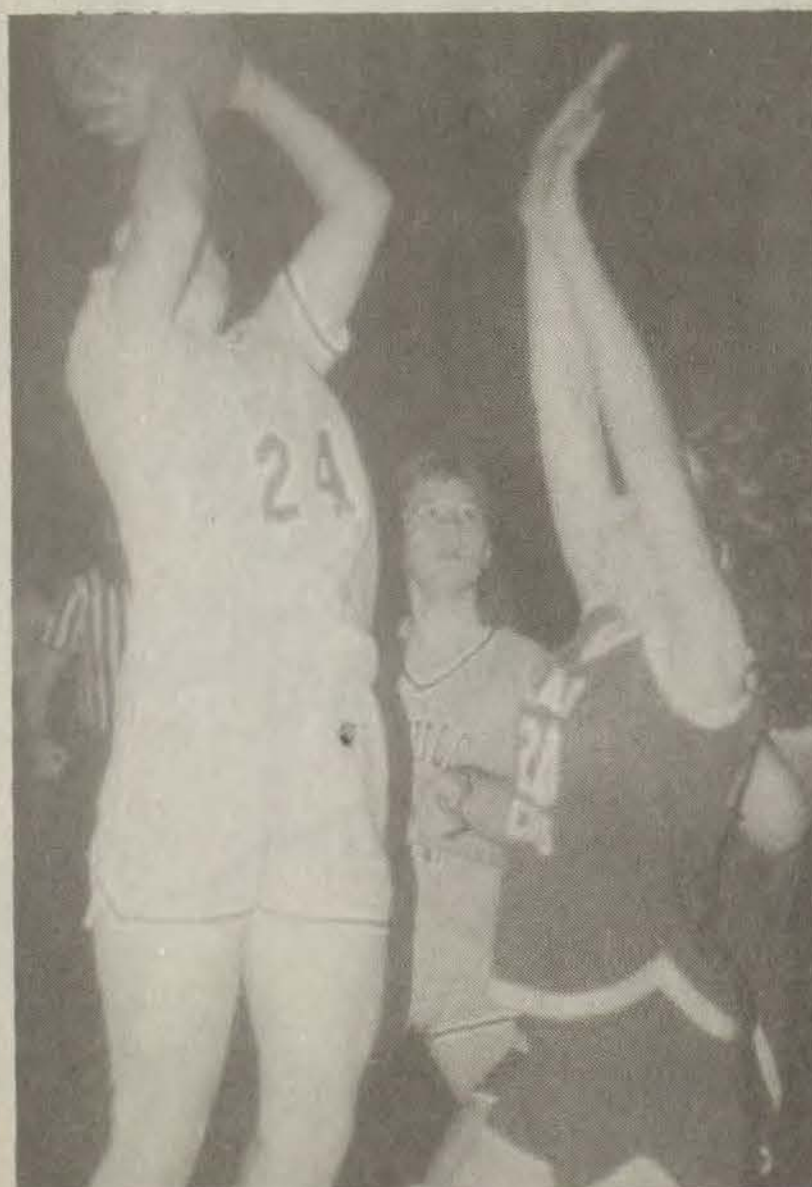

Monday night's game was no different as the Lady Daredevil's hosted the Dorton Lady Wildcats in a non-conference contest.

In the first quarter, the Lady Daredevils inability to hit the open shots allowed the Lady Wildcats to build an early 10-2 lead. The Lady Daredevils were also guilty of several turnovers, and at the end of the first quarter Dorton held a 12-4 lead.

In early second quarter action the Lady Daredevils fell behind by 12 points, 16-4, at the 6:38 mark. McDowell then called a time out.

McDowell returned to the floor with full court pressure that forced Dorton into several turnovers. Lori Bryant and Gloria Mullins went to work, scoring the next 10 points between them and cutting Dorton's lead down to two. MHS trailed at the half, 18-16.

Slim Loss

The McDowell Lady Daredevils lost by a narrow margin to visiting Dorton Monday night. The Lady Wildcats added the non-conference win to their record by a 45-41 score. Above, Gloria Mullins (24) of McDowell scores two.

From Roundball To Raquetball, Grigsby Still A Champ

Racquetball Champ

Floyd County native Geri Grigsby is currently ranked fourth in the nation in racquetball, as reported in the National Racquetball Magazine.

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

She excelled in basketball at McDowell High School. She is the all-time leading scorer in basketball in the state of Kentucky for both boys and girls, scoring 4,385 points in three years of competition.

She is Geri Grigsby, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. P. Grigsby Jr. of McDowell, and is a former basketball standout at McDowell High School.

Grigsby now is enjoying yet another sport, racquetball. She's just not enjoying it but excelling in it, also. She is currently ranked fourth in the nation in the women's singles for the 25 and over group, by the National Racquetball Magazine.

She is the singles defending champion in Kentucky, and the singles state champion in Indiana. Grigsby shared the state's Women's Doubles title in the last two years. Currently, she shares the state's mixed doubles title, as she did last year.

What causes someone who has spent most of her life playing basketball to take up the sport of racquetball? "While I was living in Lexington, I loved to play tennis. I was invited to play a game of racquetball. It was a sport I soon learned quickly and loved to play," Grigsby said.

"I began to realize I was good at racquetball and started entering different tournaments," she added. "When I finished basketball at U.K. and was in law school, and being used to competing, I needed a way to exercise so I picked up the game of racquetball."

"The first tournament I won was a local tournament in Lexington in 1984," she said. In 1987, she was state doubles and singles champion.

Grigsby began entering 15 to 20 tournaments a year in Ohio, Tennessee and North Carolina. "I've played in tournaments in Columbus, Cincinnati, Indianapolis—all over," she adds.

There are three levels of competition in racquetball. The novice level is composed of D, C, and B, then "open," which is top in the novice level. "My first year I was relatively new to the sport," Grigsby said. "I competed on the novice level, playing my way to the open."

Even though she had only been playing for two years she "...had to play against women who had been playing 10 to 15 years longer than me." She was quick to add, "Last year, I played on the amateur level, which is the second level of competition in the nationals," played in Houston, Texas, in May.

"This year I feel I am capable of competing on the pro level, the third level of competition," Grigsby added. "At the nationals, I get to meet hundreds of people from all over the country," she said.

"I've played 11 matches in two days," she adds. In Houston, last year, she made it to the quarter finals of the nationals. She also shares six other doubles titles in Kentucky and Indiana.

What is Grigsby doing today?

"I'm now an attorney with the Legislative Research Commission at the Capitol Building in Frankfort." She's also spent a year and a half as Assistant Commonwealth Attorney in Louisville.

"What's good about my job at the Capitol is I'm still in contact with Eastern Kentucky," Grigsby said.

What are her goals in her profession as a lawyer? "I'm happy with my work and I enjoy it very much," she said. "I enjoy working with good, talented people and working with legislators."

Her goals in racquetball? "I'm currently talking to companies about sponsorship in the nationals this year," she said. "I want to enter some pro tournaments this year."

Grigsby plays racquetball five or six days a week, "sort of go from one court to another court."

Even with her work at the Capitol and her love for racquetball, she still finds time for other activities. "I still have my music, singing at weddings, and playing the guitar and piano and time to write songs," she said. "These are activities that I just have to take time out for." She jogs and lifts weights as other time-filling events in her busy life.

"My dad taught me that in basketball, confidence is a great key, along with hard work," she says. "I have been able to take that principle and apply it to my everyday life." She was quick to add, "Although I live in Louisville and work in Frankfort, I'm still a Floyd Countian. My heart is still in Floyd County."

Checking Grigsby's high school basketball records at McDowell High School, as a sophomore she averaged 41 points a game, and during her junior season she raised her average to 45 points a game. She closed out her basketball career by averaging 49.8 points a game as a senior.

What about her freshman year? "There was no girl's basketball in high school then."

Blackcats

In the fourth quarter the Blackcats began to substitute, allowing other players a chance to play. "We could have left our starters in and may have won by 40 points," Parido said. "In games like these, you let your other people play and gain some experience."

"We have a game Tuesday night with Phelps, and we tell our players that Phelps is still the 15th Regional champ until someone else wins the title," Parido explained. "It is a motivating factor to our kids to play the 15th Regional champions."

Mullins coach Coy Sammons, former basketball standout at Betsy Layne High School said, "We just did not prepare for them like we should have." He also added, "We won our first three games and now we have lost the last two, and we are a little disappointed."

"Prestonsburg played a tight defensive game, we will just go back and work hard in our practices" he added. Mullins record fell to 3-2.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats will entertain Coach Monroe Jones and his Wheelwright Trojans Friday night in their homecoming game.

Trojans Take Third In Greenup Tournament

Coach Monroe Jones and his Wheelwright Trojans took to the road over the past weekend, which seemed to be filled with invitational tournaments, traveling to Greenup County to play M.C. Napier from the 14th region. M.C. Napier came away with a 97-67 victory.

The 30-point defeat is the kind of game "...that makes a coach's hair turn gray," assistant coach Stan Berger said.

In spite of the great performance by 6'2" Craig Martin, who scored 35 points, M.C. Napier was not without its top offensive player, Hoskins, who as a freshman tickled the nets for a game-high 37 points.

"He is just a great ball player," Berger said. "He has tremendous potential."

The Trojans fell behind in the first quarter early as M.C. Napier built an early lead and led at the first stop, 23-14.

Wheelwright, experiencing defensive breakdowns and committing numerous turnovers, fell behind by 21 points in the second quarter, 45-24.

"We came out flat on defense and we played flat on defense," Berger explained. "They just beat us bad, despite the great offensive night by senior Craig Martin." M.C. Napier is a good basketball team.

At the start of the second half, the Trojans picked up on their offense and cut M.C. Napier's 21-point lead down to 12.

"We cut into their lead and made a comeback, but we turned the ball over too much," Berger added. "M.C. Napier just ran their fast break and sometimes they would have all five players out on the break."

M.C. Napier gradually built its lead and went on to win by 30 points, 97-67.

Hoskins led M.C. Napier in scoring with 37 points. Wheelwright was led by Craig Martin with 35 points. Bobby Hood scored 10.

In losing to M.C. Napier, the Trojans moved into the consolation game against 13th region opponent Rockcastle County, on Saturday night.

Craig Martin scored 36 points in the contest and Wheelwright defeated Rockcastle 76-65 to take third place in the tournament.

Once again, the Trojans got off to a slow start, scoring just six points in the first quarter. Rockcastle led by five, 11-16 at the end of the first quarter.

The Trojans then shifted gears at the start of the second quarter to take a 29-24 half time lead.

"We told them they have got to start moving the ball, something we did not do in the first quarter," Berger said. "Vic Cotton came off the bench in the second quarter and sparked our team and began to penetrate Rockcastle's defense opening things up for the other men. Tony Isaac hit a couple of three pointers for us in the second quarter," he added.

The Trojans extended their lead to seven, 51-44, at the end of the third quarter and went on to win the contest, 76-66.

Craig Martin led the Trojans in scoring with 36 points, and was also named the tournament's "Best Offensive Player." Bobby Hood scored 14 points for Wheelwright.

Wheelwright improved its record to 6-3 overall and has a conference record of 1-0.

Wheelwright will travel to Prestonsburg Friday night for another important conference game.

"Our full court press got us back in the game," Keathley said. McDowell's pressure defense forced Dorton into several walking violations.

McDowell struck first in the second half as Gloria Mullins hit a short jumper to tie the score and was fouled on the play. She converted the free throw to give the Lady Daredevils their first lead at 19-18 at the 7:43 mark of the third quarter.

What started out as a runaway game turned into a good ball game with the lead changing hands, as both teams began to score with some consistency. As the third stanza ended McDowell held a slim three point lead, 31-28.

The lead continued to change hands in the final stanza, but at the 4:48 mark the Lady Daredevils had built a lead of four points and led, 37-33.

Dorton scored underneath with a three point play and went back in front, and never trailed again, going on to win the game 45-41.

McDowell's record is now 6-9 overall, and in conference play, is 0-4.

The Lady Daredevils will have a week off and will take to the court again on Tuesday, January 17, against the Lady Trojans of Wheelwright in a conference match at Wheelwright.

Prestonsburg Women Win 2

"We finally put together a complete game, and had double figure scoring in every quarter. If that's something we can do consistently, then we'll be all right," said Coach Bridget Clay after Thursday's win over visiting Wheelwright.

The Lady Blackcats came away with a 57-34 win, following on the heels of a 57-53 overtime win against McDowell.

After several consecutive games prior to the Christmas holidays, the wins came as a welcome relief for the beleaguered Lady Blackcats.

PHS and Wheelwright played steadily through the first eight-minute period, but in the second stanza, the Lady Blackcats came alive, scoring 11 points and holding WHS to only two. Although Wheelwright outscored PHS in the third frame, Prestonsburg returned the favor in the fourth, scoring 22 and holding the Lady Trojans to 10.

Leading the PHS attack was Karen Frazier, who hit eight from the floor and seven of 10 at the line for 23 points. Included in Frazier's total are five of seven free throws hit in the fourth quarter.

Also scoring in double digits for the Lady Blackcats were Michelle Clemmons, with four from regulation, one three-pointer and four of seven at the line for 15 points, and Amy Hicks, going five from the floor and two of two at the line for 12 points. As a team, Prestonsburg was hot at the line, hitting 70 percent of all freethrow attempts.

For Wheelwright, April Bradford and Jedon Hood shared high scoring honors, with 14 apiece. Bradford canned four from regulation and six of nine at the line, while Hood had three from the floor and eight of 11 at the line.

Against McDowell during earlier action, the Prestonsburg women pulled out a 57-53 barn-burner in overtime.

PHS led in the first half by as many as six points, but McDowell cut the margin to two at the half, with P'burg on top, 22-20. Prestonsburg came out cold in the third quarter, hitting only one field goal during the entire period, although Frazier hit four of five attempts from the free throw line.

"We couldn't get started in our offense, although we did well defensively," said Clay.

In the fourth period, McDowell led by as many as seven, but the Lady Blackcats kept chipping away. The squads remained knotted at 47 each at the end of the fourth, prompting an overtime session.

"Overtime was all Karen Frazier," said Clay, noting that Frazier hit seven of nine free throw attempts. With three of her fellow starters and one substitute fouled out, eighth grader Carolyn Reffitt came into the game and, with 28 seconds remaining, took the ball through McDowell's full-court press, coast to coast, to score a layup and put her team up by five points.

Frazier ended the game with a high of 22 points, including only three from the floor — she hit 16 of 21 attempts from the line. Also in double figures was Michelle Clemmons, with one two-pointer and one three-pointer, as well as five of six free throw attempts, for a total of 10 points. Amy Hicks and Kathy Slone contributed eight points each.

As a team, the Lady Blackcats hit a phenomenal 24 of 29 attempts for 83 percent free throw shooting on the night.

McDowell's Lori Bryant led her team in scoring with eight from the floor and four at the line for 20 points, followed closely by Gloria Mullins, with seven from the floor and five free throws for 19 points.

With the wins over McDowell and Wheelwright, Prestonsburg improved to the 6-5 mark overall, and is 3-2 in conference play.

Keepers

search to a single creek arm or section of the lake. As you ease along, carefully examine the exposed shoreline and make careful notes of any structures you find which might hold fish. Be sure to triangulate these structures with permanent, on-shore objects so that you can locate them again when they are covered with water.

The next step is to create a few structures of your own which will hold fish. Both Fishtrap and Dewey are sadly lacking in submerged fish-holding structure, and your addition of either brush or rock formations are sure to increase your fishing productivity in the coming years.

Although most anglers are familiar with the creation of brush attractors, few realize that rock formations will also attract and hold fish of all sorts. Sonny and Joe Lee, a father and son bass fishing duo from Knoxville, Tenn., spend much of the winter creating rock structures. The exposed banks are usually littered with rocks, and all you have to do is stack them up.

The Lees usually build rockpiles ranging in size from four to six feet high, and six to 10 feet in diameter.

Larger rocks are preferred, because they offer larger spaces between them in which the baitfish, bluegill and even smaller bass and catfish can hide. Stick a clump of brush amidst the rocks and you'll improve the productivity of the structure.

Brushpiles can be created by dragging dead trees and fallen limbs to the shoreline. Cut them into a suitable size, tie them together into a suitable shape, and weight the clump with a cinder block. Discarded Christmas trees, easily obtainable at this time of the year, also make fine fish attractors.

Place your rockpiles and brushpiles in areas which should be attractive to bass or crappie. Preferred locations include on the lip of a drop into deep water, in a creek channel, in the back of a shallow cove, or on a barren flat. Be sure to mark the exact locations on your map. When placing these structures, be sure that they are not located in a spot where they will pose a threat to boaters.

Rock and brushpiles are especially attractive to tournament anglers, as they provide secretive, exclusive fishing holes. By creating a dozen or two of these structures and dispersing them in a variety of areas, you can quickly jaunt from brushpile to brushpile, and usually bag a largemouth from each one. After quickly catching a limit of fish, you can spend the rest of the tournament day searching for aunker. This is the manner in which most bass tournaments are won.

If you like the idea of improving your angling success, and catching more fish this year than you did last year, then study the lake and build a few brush and rock piles. But you'd better hurry; the Corps will be raising the water level before too long!

Lexington Lafayette Downs McDowell 80-59

Stiff Defense

A Dorton Lady Wildcat stays with McDowell's Jenny Stone (53) as Stone takes aim at the basket. Dorton won the non-conference game, 45-41.

The McDowell Daredevils are getting used to playing top 20 teams. With a recent game against highly-rated Pulaski County, coach Johnny Ray Turner and his squad traveled to Lexington to play another top ranked team, the Lafayette Generals, and came back with a loss 80-59.

"Lexington Lafayette is one of the top 20 basketball teams in the state," coach Turner said. "They're a team that will just overpower you because of their height."

In first quarter action, the Daredevils played the Generals tough and on even terms as the two teams battled to a 14-14 tie. In the first period Lafayette's top player hit three of his five three pointers.

"They could really shoot the three point shot," Turner said. "I believe they hit about eight or nine three pointers against us."

Lafayette dominated the second quarter by controlling the boards and pulled away as they built a half time lead of 34-26.

"They shut down our offense. We couldn't do what we wanted to do," Turner said. Lafayette is a big team. Players they have are 6'7", two are 6'5", 6'3", and 6' he added. "But they are not just tall, but have size to go with their height — they're just a big team."

In the second half, Lafayette's big man hit one three pointer and a teammate scored one of his three pointers as the Generals widened their lead by 13 points at the third quarter stop, 54-41.

In the fourth, it was all Lafayette as they outscored the Daredevils 26-18 to go on and win the game, 80-59.

McDowell was led in scoring by Henry Webb with 21 points and Dickie Joe Shannon with 19 points.

McDowell fell to 5-6 overall and has a 2-2 conference record. Tuesday night the Virgie Eagles pay a visit to the "Devil's Den" at McDowell for a non-conference game.

Wells Wins

Larry Joe Wells of Paintsville was the winner of the "Big Buck Contest" sponsored by Allied Sew-Vac Center and Mert's Guns and Ammo of Allen.

The deer's rack had 10 points and was 22 inches wide. It was killed in Lawrence County on Nov. 11.

Mert Depoy presented Wells with a Weatherby Mark V rifle for winning the contest.

Billy Osborne of Melvin, was the winner of the Remington Oil Print, and a clock was won by Jeff Slone of Craynor.

New Fishing Regulations Now In Effect

The new year almost always brings a few changes in fishing regulations, so before going out on those winter fishing trips, anglers should be aware of the new rules in effect for 1989:

Trout: A 10-inch size limit has been placed on brook trout. Creel limits are two daily and two in possession. Brook trout anglers may use only artificial flies or lures with a single hook in special brook trout streams as designated by signs.

Size and creel limits for rainbow and brown trout remain unchanged from last year with no size limit, daily and possession limits are eight. Previously all trout species were lumped together under one creel limit with no size restrictions.

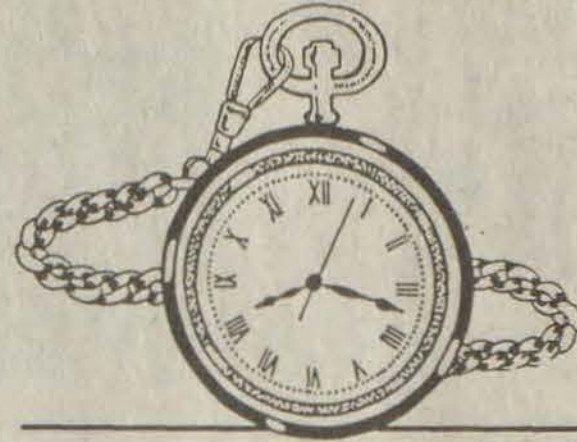

Crappie: Kentucky and Barkley lakes (and their connecting canal) have a daily limit of 30 crappie, with a possession limit of 60. The 10-inch size limit on crappie at Barren remains in effect.

Barren River Lake, Barren River (and its tributaries above the dam)

30 crappie may be creel per day. That's five up from last year.

Bass: The minimum size limit for largemouth and smallmouth bass at Lake Cumberland is 15 inches. Striped bass (rockfish) may be creel at a rate of three per day, with a possession limit of three.

The winner of the 33rd annual Kentucky State Bowling Tournament held recently in Ashland was the Construction Associates Team No. 2 from Classic Lanes in Pikeville.

The team, owned and sponsored by Blake Robinson of Pikeville, had a decided Floyd County favor: other team members are Ronnie Little of Weeksbury, Dale Compton of Weeksbury, Danny Smith of Betsy Layne and Ronnie Faine of Wheelwright.

The team total of 3,346 total pins won by two pins over Country Lanes of Ashland, and was worth $1,000 to the winners.

Other Floyd County notables were the Prestonsburg Merchants, finishing 11th in the event; the Velocity Market Team, 15th; Harris Trucking Company, 19th; and Price's Supermarket, 34th. All of these teams bowl at Rebel Lanes in Prestonsburg. They show the quality of bowlers in Floyd County, as there were 201 teams entered in the tournament.

Floyd County natives in singles competition who placed among the 680 entrants were Ronnie Little, 22nd; Dale Compton, 34th; Bill Roop of Weeksbury, 41st; and George Faine of Wheelwright, 57th.

Basketball involves running, jumping and quick changes of direction. Any of these aspects of the game may result in injury.

Many basketball injuries may be avoided with proper preparation before a game. Five to 10 minutes of warm up time should be followed by a minimum of five minutes of stretching exercises. The coach or trainer should make sure these are performed in the correct manner, without bouncing. Adequate pre-game exercises will decrease the possibility of muscle pulls, strains and shin splints. Athletic taping, properly applied, will lend support to the ankle to help prevent sprains. Good quality high top tennis shoes, fully laced, aid the ankle in the same manner. To the athlete who has a problem with "weak" ankles or who sprains his ankles often, tape and correct shoes are essential.

When injury does occur, first aid for the athlete is important to minimize swelling, pain and damage to the injured part. An easy way to remember what to do is to think of the word RICE. The letters stand for rest, ice, compression, and elevation. Under no circumstances should the athlete play on an injury if any instability or swelling is present. These are a cardinal sign of a more serious injury. Coaches and players are reminded, tape is not a cure for an ankle sprain but a preventative measure. Tennis shoes should not be removed, except by a doctor. The shoe provides compression and, as stated, is part of the first aid treatment. The shoe also acts as a splint should a fracture be present. Ice should be applied outside the shoe.

McDowell's Lisa Collins: Future Singing Physician?

by Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

A Minnie teenager hopes that if, as Mary Poppins says, a spoonful of sugar makes the medicine go down, then her future patients will appreciate her sweet singing.

Lisa Collins, 17-year-old senior at McDowell High School, wants to be a doctor one day, but along the way, she's attracting quite a following for her musical abilities.

"Mom tells me I've been singing since I could talk," said Collins. Her parents, Dave and Anne Collins, recall a trip to Wyoming when their daughter was 2 years old and had just learned her first song. The tot reportedly sang "Little Brave Sambo" during nearly every walking hour on the cross-country trip.

Collins' first public appearance was at the Squirrel Festival at Sloan when she was 8 years old. Since that time, she has garnered dozens of awards and has earned spending money through her music.

Last year she sang for Gov. Wallace Wilkinson, whom she calls "Wally," at political fund-raisers; at age 11, she sang with the warm-up band at a George Jones concert in Paintsville. The band was so taken by the young singer that they wanted her to go on tour with them, Collins said, "but my mom said I had to go to school."

Since grade school, the teenager has performed before all kinds of organizations in Eastern Kentucky, and regularly sings for parties in Lexington on the recommendation of a caterer there.

"I sing for my own enjoyment," she explains, readily admitting, however, that "the pay is pretty good, too." The young professional adds that she doesn't charge for performing for community service groups.

When she was 10, Collins was in Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre's production of "Annie," cast as an orphan and understudy for the actress playing the title role. She had planned to try out for last year's theatre productions, but she was injured in an accident that caused her to miss auditions for both the theatre and the Governor's School for the Arts.

Among her other engagements have been the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn, Hermitage Landing in Tennessee, Brown Derby and Pier 31 in Ft. Myers, FL, and Closeup Foundation in Washington, D.C.

Besides singing, Collins plays piano, alto and tenor saxophone, trumpet and drums and is teaching herself the guitar and harmonica. Her piano playing has won three superior ratings at district competition. She earned the first chair in saxophone the first year she tried out for the All-County Band in 1987 and was recently accepted into the All-District Band which will perform in concert later this month at the Carriage House in Paintsville. When she began taking piano lessons at the age of 8, Collins' parents hesitated to buy a piano until they were sure their only daughter was serious about music. They made her a painted keyboard out of cardboard which she "practiced" on between lessons.

Seeing the girl's interest, Anna

Collins said she gave up her vacation to buy a piano. "When the piano was delivered, Lisa jumped up into the truck to play it before it was unloaded," said Mrs. Collins.

But for the young Collins, music is not her life. Her long range goal is to be a physician. In this year's McDowell High School yearbook her ambition is listed as "singing doctor."

Her grades have not suffered from her musical activity. She has been on the school honor roll for 12 years and was co-valedictorian of her eighth grade class. She hasn't decided on a particular college yet, although she has been offered a music scholarship from Eastern Kentucky University.

She got a head start on her college education last fall when she took two classes at Prestonsburg Community College in addition to her regular high school classes.

She's also active in the First Baptist Church of McDowell. Last summer she was a member of the church's youth group which traveled to churches throughout the state performing a religious musical, "The Clown."

"I just started singing and found out I liked it," said Collins. "My parents didn't push me into it, but they have given a lot of support. We joke that mom is the chauffeur and daddy works to keep us on the road."

The future Dr. Collins will doubtless sweeten her diagnoses with happy tunes.

A Spoonful Of Sugar

Lisa Collins of Minnie wants to be a doctor, but meantime she's a comer as a singer and musician. The clear-voiced young woman is as apt to belt out a chorus of "New York, New York" as she is to interpret a plaintive Patsy Cline ballad.

MAGIC PACKAGE CHICKEN

4 tsp. butter
2 tsp. four
1/2 cup milk
1/2 cup white wine or dry vermouth

Make a paste with the remaining butter and the flour and set aside.
Mix the milk, wine, and chicken broth together in a 1-quart saucepan and bring to a boil. Add the paste and stir until smooth.

Remove from heat and add cayenne, nutmeg, cloves, mushrooms, and chives. Lay each chicken breast on a square of buttered foil. Divide the sauce evenly over the breasts.

Fold edges and seal together, but do not wrap too tightly around chicken. Bake for 10 minutes. Serve wrapped in the foil.

under cold, running water for a minute to stop cooking.

When the peppers have cooled enough to handle, peel off the skin and trim away any black spots on the peppers.

Cut out the core, remove all the seeds and slice lengthwise into long, thin strips.

Place in a mixing or serving bowl. Stack the fresh basil leaves and cut crosswise into thin strips.

Mix the basil with the red pepper.

Dressing: Place the vinegar in a small mixing bowl and gradually whisk in the olive oil. Season with salt and pour over the vegetables.

Let the ingredients marinate in the refrigerator for several hours before serving.

EXPECT TO COUGH

An expectorant is a drug used as an aid in removing mucus from the bronchial airways. Such action temporarily relieves coughs due to minor throat irritations and colds. An expectorant may act to dilute secretions so they are looser and more easy to cough up, or to stimulate the secretory and vomiting reflexes to encourage a deeper and more effective cough. They are useful in relieving a non-productive cough or thick, dry cough in which little sputum is raised. Persons who are already coughing up copious amounts of loose phlegm will not benefit from an expectorant. Guaiifenesin is the most widely used expectorant cough medication, and has very few reported adverse effects.

Pharmacists at COOLEY APOTHECARY look forward to meeting the complete pharmaceutical needs of every member of your family, so if you need an over-the-counter cough remedy or cold tablet see us first. Everyday low prices are available on prescriptions plus we offer senior citizens an additional discount. For accurate, sound and safe advice, you will find us located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3.

HINT:

A persistent cough can be a sign of serious illness. Consult your doctor if coughing lasts for more than a week or is accompanied by fever.

PRESTONSBURG WOMAN'S CLUB HAS MEETING, JAN. 5

The executive board of the K.F.W.C./G.F.W.C. Prestonsburg Woman's Club met at the Floyd County Library on Thursday, Jan. 5, at 7 p.m., for the purpose of discussing matters to be brought before the club at its regular meeting there, later in the evening.

Boots Adams, president, presided. Others present were Phyllis Herick, Judy Kittle, Joyce Allen, Maxine Bierman, Elizabeth Ramey and Docia Woods.

Adams also presided at the regular meeting. Lucy Regan brought the devotions. The Pledge of Allegiance to the American flag was said in unison. The president welcomed the members and guests. The treasurer's report was given by Elizabeth Ramey.

The president said that a series of Bicentennial commemorative plates would soon be donated to the club's Arts and Crafts House at Archer Park. She added that the 1975 plate was needed to make the series complete, and asked that any member having this plate please consider donating it for this purpose.

Adams said that it had been learned that Andrea Stephens who received the Prestonsburg Woman's Club's scholarship to attend Prestonsburg Community College during the past semester, had made sufficient grades to enable her to have this scholarship renewed by the club for the forthcoming semester, and it was agreed that this would be done.

The president read a letter from the director of the Indian Summer Camp for children with leukemia, asking that a donation be made for this cause. The club voted to donate $250, the amount charged for sending a child to this camp, and decided that proceeds from the "white elephant" sale later in the evening, would be used for this purpose.

Reports were heard from Mabel Brown and Eileen Burchett on the Arts and Crafts House; Boots Adams (for Sandy Burchett) regarding the new committee which she heads, asking that members submit names for this committee, the purpose of which is to visit club members who are unable to attend meetings; and from Docia Woods, who reported that news of this club had been submitted to the K.F.W.C. Magazine.

Adams said she attended, on Nov. 12 in Frankfort, the dedication of the Vietnam Veterans' Memorial, and that the local club had made a donation toward this memorial.

The president asked that members please complete worksheets showing the number of hours donated toward community improvement, and submit them to her by Saturday, Jan. 14. If worksheets are not available for this purpose, she added that notations could be made of this information and submitted to her.

Following the close of the business session, Judy Kittle presented the Rev. Quentin Scholtz, pastor of the First United Methodist Church. Then, what undoubtedly must've been one of the most spirited auctions in the annals of time, took place, with Rev. Scholtz "pushing the wares," and selling items for prices heretofore unheard of, to a group of well-satisfied customers. And the result was that enough money was raised to send a child with leukemia to the Indian Summer Camp.

On behalf of the club, Kittle presented Rev. Scholtz a gift.

Hostesses for this event were Ruth Hall, chairman, and Lucille Nunery, Ditty Tackett, Mary Beth Compton, Turp Combs and Alice Howard.

A dessert course was served to guests. Rev. Quentin Scholtz, Sarah Goble, Cassie Allen, Pauline Crisp and Sue Martin.

Members of the executive board and other members present were Dorothy Stover, Roberta Sloan, Mable Brown, Burieta Gearhart, Lucy Regan, Mabel Donahoe, Lida M. Howard, Eileen Burchett, Carolyn Traum, Fannie Runnels, Maman Leslie and Alice Harris.

The next meeting will be Thursday, Feb. 2, at the Emma Wells May Cultural Center.

The devotional leader will be Judy Kittle; the program leader will be Pauline Sparks and the program entitled "Aids—An International Epidemic," will be presented by Dr. Mary Pauline Fox, administrator of the Pike County Health Department.

Angie, 38. Found houseware parties the ideal excuse to mix a blender of margaritas. But in a few years, it went from women friends to lowlifes and losers hanging around her home late into the night. Sometimes, her husband had to load up the kids and go midnight bar-hopping to find her. Finally, he nailed up doors and windows to keep her out. In desperation, convinced she'd be dead within a year, Angie came to CareUnit.

"I learned more about myself than I'd learned in a lifetime. I left with an inner confidence I'd never had before."

Angie is now sober, and is rebuilding her relationship with her husband and two daughters.

AN INVITATION FROM MISS AMERICA of 1986...ASKING YOU TO Come to the City...

Susan Akin Says: "It may surprise you, but I know a lot about grocery stores...my grandmother owned one. So I grew up knowing what people expect from their grocer. That's why I'm happy to speak for Food City...They really measure up to my grandmother's one big rule. It was so simple. She said..."A grocery store must always provide the very best quality at the very best price." And that's what Food City does everyday. In fact, I believe my grandmother would say for the best quality at the best prices in the country, come to the city...Food City."

CITIZENS OF FLOYD COUNTY:

It is an upmost necessity that we put security and safety back into our Floyd County Jail System. We need to have cleanliness and provide descent meals for the inmates.

We can change this current administration and more. We need a stronger security system to provide safety for all inmates.

We need to abolish inmates hurting one another or themselves. We also need to provide proper medical attention to our inmates when in need of medical attention.

Citizens, we all know these are problems that we have in our Floyd County Jail System today. We need to and must abolish any acts of carelessness and violence.

Maybe no one is perfect—we all know that, but as long as inmates are serving time to pay their debts to society they need protection, safety and good hot meals to eat.

Citizens, let's change to a new administration and build a solid foundation—progress for all or else, one day, the state government will change it their own way with a tax increase. We don't need another tax increase in Floyd County when this office can be fulfilled and maintained locally without any tax increase due to this position of office by state government.

first, Robert Pinson came in second in that event and Guialene Smith rounded out third.

The Lost In The Shuffle Bridge Club will elect its King and Queen of Hearts on Feb. 7. The coronation will be held on the night of St. Valentine's Day. The winners' sovereign reign will end on February 14, 1990. If you are interested in being King or Queen for a year, launch your campaign now!

Robert Pinson, secretary-treasurer, presented the fiscal report for 1988. The club, being $2.84 in the red, is considered a smashing success, thanks to the ingenuity of the board members.

Several people are still conversing about the "flaming-branded-spoon-pudding-fruitcake" which was brought to the Christmas dinner!

Attentive consideration: "Zeno argues in favor of the apparent contradiction that an arrow in flight must always be at rest." — Ayer. What is your opinion?

Health Tip:

Prompt Heart Attack Treatment Saves Lives

by J.R. Becknell, R.Ph.,
OLWH Pharmacy Director

Every year, approximately 1.5 million people suffer heart attacks. For 540,000 of the sufferers, the direct result is death.

These figures seem high, but actually they represent a decrease in the number of people who die as a result of myocardial infarction (heart attack).

The decrease in heart attack deaths can be attributed to several factors, including diet, exercise and the current availability of new, advanced drugs that can dissolve life-threatening clots in the coronary arteries.

A heart attack occurs when a small piece of free-floating material in the blood becomes lodged or wedged in the coronary artery, causing a blockage and loss of oxygen to that portion of the heart. Severe chest pain (which is frequently mistaken for heartburn or indigestion) sometimes begins as a small pain in the chest which may radiate into the back, neck, arm or a combination of extremities. Nausea and shortness of breath usually accompany the chest pain.

These symptoms should not be ignored. Delaying treatment can damage the heart muscle beyond repair.

If you've been experiencing heart attack symptoms or want more information on the causes, effects, treatment and prevention of heart attack, consult your family doctor.

If you have questions about this ar...ticle or would like a free copy of it, contact J.R. Becknell, R.Ph., Pharmacy Director at 285-5181, extension 361 or write Pharmacy, Our Lady of the Way Hospital, Box 910, Martin, Ky. 41649.

Class Studies Earth

Mrs. Harris' seventh grade class found science can be fun and tasty as they used apples and M & M's to study the structure of the earth. Here, they are doing "hands-on" activities to learn about weathering and erosion. Harris was one of the four teachers from the Floyd County to attend the science conference in South Carolina, sponsored by NSTA, where they attended "hands-on" activity workshops.

Wilkinson Encourages Responsibility

by Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

The commander of "Martha's GED Army" is getting tough. "I talk to students all over the state. They say 'I don't like school.' I ask why, and they reply, 'I don't know,'" Kentucky's first lady Martha Wilkinson told a Prestonsburg Community College audience Thursday. "Then I try to make them feel like two cents," said Wilkinson, speaking at the new semester's opening faculty seminar. "I tell them that 'til you want to be responsible, nothing will happen in your life. You are the only person who can make something happen,"

Wilkinson said. A faculty member yelled "Amen," and others joined in applause. Wilkinson has championed the cause of literacy and has pushed GED training since her husband became governor in 1988. With Kentucky Educational Television, she formed "Martha's GED Army" to get volunteers to help with the high school equivalency training programs. But her message last week switched responsibility from school systems, teachers and parents to the students themselves. "We must get across to young people just who is responsible, if we are to prevent more dropouts," she said.

"All kinds of help is there. Whether you want to pick it up is up to you, I tell them." Wilkinson said no one is talking to Kentucky's young people that way. "You must be accountable for your own life," she said. "I tell them to deal with reality. I want to break the cycle of poverty in Kentucky and I'm trying to show people that education does make a difference." Wilkinson said she advises older people who didn't finish high school or who can't read or write not to waste the rest of their lives. "You can't change 20 years ago, but help is there if you decide you're going to change the future," Wilkinson said.

She said she hopes that within the next few years "we will have made such a great dent that the 'in' thing to do will be to stay in school or get a GED." Wilkinson lauded GED and literacy volunteers and the growing number of businesses that are encouraging employees to learn to read or to enroll in GED programs. "I hope what I'm doing will soon result in the lack of a need for Martha's GED Army," she said. Prior to Wilkinson's talk, the PCC faculty heard about local literacy efforts from Marcie Menster and Dan Greene of the Floyd County Literacy Council.

WHS Honors Students Of The Month

by Mona Waddles
and Tammy Johnson

For the past four years, students at Wheelwright High School have been recognized for their academic achievements with the Student-of-the-Month Awards. Doris Osborne, a history and biology teacher at the school, initiated the awards because she and other faculty members felt that students who were making strides in academics were not receiving enough recognition. The Student-of-the-Month awards are presented to those students who demonstrate outstanding achievement or the biggest improvement in class performance. Parents are invited to the school for the awards ceremony and for lunch when their son or daughter wins an award. Over the years, many students have been honored for their efforts in academics.

MICHAEL MARTIN

In 'Who's Who'

Michael John Martin, 16, of Prospect, Ohio, has been named in the Who's Who Among American High School Student's recent publication. He is the son of John and Kendra Martin of Prospect, and grandson of Elva Martin of Hueysville and Mr. and Mrs. James Shanklin of Wooster, Ohio. He is presently participating in football, basketball and baseball at Elgin High School in Marion, where he is a junior. He also is a member of the choir and show choir there. He is presently working on his applications for one of the military academies that he would like to attend after graduation.

Allen's Class Has Best Attendance

Mrs. Allen's fourth grade won best attendance for the third month. They were treated to free snack and pop. The class also participated in the PEP program sponsored by Bank Josephine. As a follow-up, students set a goal to save at least 25 cents a week for an eight week period. Each child had saved enough to have a personal pan pizza, and a lesson in depositing, saving and managing money was learned.

BETA Club Staying Active

The McDowell High School Beta Club has been very active lately. They are sponsoring a literacy program in conjunction with the Christian Appalachian Project. The program is on a totally voluntary basis and is to help those 16 and older who request help, to learn to read or to improve reading skills. On the day of the first meeting, Sister Gervase held up a sign written in Russian and asked if there were any volunteers to read it to her. When no one responded, she went on to explain how some people felt that way when it came to reading English. She helped members to realize the problems not being able to read can create. She went on to show club members the Laubach method for teaching these students. The Laubach method stresses the importance of phonics and is designed so that a student can never answer a question wrong (maybe we should get her to show this technique to Mr. Blackburn). Another project the club has taken on is a fund drive for UNICEF. UNICEF is a worldwide donation based organization which works directly with the people. This means that instead of going through the government, the money goes directly to the children in need of it. UNICEF funds are used for food, vitamins, and immunization from life-threatening diseases for these children. During intervals between voluntary work such as this the Beta Club members have also been raising money for their trip to New York. They have also taken time out of their busy schedules to elect officers for the 1988-89 school year. They are as follows: president, Keith Shelton; vice-president, Todd Caldwell; secretary, Brent Rose; and treasurer, Alelei Singayao.

Toy Donation

SHELIA LAWSON

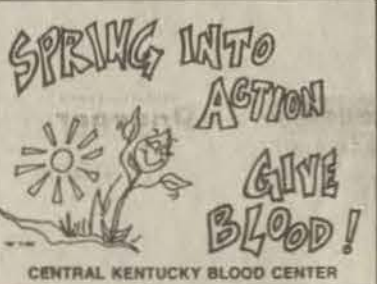

A teacher of many years, with concern for the health and well-being of her students, Shelia Lawson has earned recognition from her colleagues.

James A. Brooks, tutor and advisor in the dropout prevention program at Betsy Layne High School, says Lawson has contributed to the well-being of the students through her concentration on teaching the hazards of alcohol and drug abuse.

Lawson, as an educator, has applied her many talents to making sure her students have a complete awareness of the dangers of using alcohol and drugs and the effects on their lives.

Brooks said he appreciates the efforts of Lawson as her efforts have a direct bearing on the success of the dropout prevention program at Betsy Layne High School.

Former Student Speaks To Seniors

Eric Lawson, former student of McDowell High School and current student of Berea College, recently held a meeting with the top seniors at McDowell High School to discuss Berea.

He offered information on financial aid, academic requirements, housing, leisure and social events, and some of basic rules to follow while attending Berea College. He also offered to set up a tour of the campus for the seniors interested.

Berea College is one of the top colleges academically, and it generally gets students from the Appalachian area.

The following are the comments from some of those who attended the meeting. Tish Stone said "Eric really encouraged me to attend Berea, I really feel that Berea can help me reach my goal in life."

Tina Price replied, "I think that Berea wouldn't be a wise place for me to attend college, it sounds interesting not boring."

Patricia Tackett commented, "I think the presentation Eric presented was wonderful, I actually think that if I wasn't already planning to attend Berea before the lecture, I certainly would have chosen to attend after the lecture."

Blue Star Tattoo May Contain Drugs

Although its never been found in Floyd County, national health officials are alerting parents and children of the danger of a tattoo called Blue Star.

It is a small sheet of paper containing blue stars the size of a pencil eraser. The star, soaked with LSD (acid), can be removed and placed in the mouth, according to officials.

A red stamp, called Red Pyramid, along with microdots and window panes, is also being distributed, reported officials.

All are health hazards and children must be advised of the dangers involved, say health officials.

Students Named In 'Who's Who'

Morehead State University will be represented by 57 students in the 1989 edition of Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges.

Three Floyd County residents are among those representing MSU. They are Lora Lynn Hardwick, senior, the daughter of James Hardwick of Betsy Layne; Donnie D. Kidd, senior, son of Don Kidd of Grethel, and Sheridan Martin, senior, son of Sherman Martin of Drift. They join other outstanding students selected from more than 1,400 universities and colleges in the 50 states, the District of Columbia and several foreign nations.

To be selected for inclusion in the listing, a student must demonstrate academic achievement, service to the community, leadership ability in extracurricular activities and the potential for continued success.

NOTICE TO TELEPHONE SUBSCRIBERS IN FLOYD COUNTY, KENTUCKY

Telephone rates in the Wayland (358) exchange are being raised as a result of an increase in the number of telephone stations in the area. This action is in accordance with the statewide rate schedule approved by the Kentucky Public Service Commission. The South Central Bell Telephone Company will make the following rates for local exchange telephone service in the 358 exchange effective January 28, 1989.

Volunteer Corps Growing

The Parent Volunteer Corps in Floyd County is off and running, with more than 320 parents donating their time and talents at 10 schools.

Schools participating include Allen Elementary, Clark Elementary, Martin Elementary, Maytown Elementary, Melvin Elementary, McDowell Elementary, McDowell High School, W.D. Osborne Elementary, Prestonsburg Elementary and Wheelwright High School.

The number of volunteers at each school ranges from four to as many as 67.

Directors of the program are Marlene Hall, Karen Caudill and Freda Hicks. The three co-directors have visited each school in the county to explain the program, and have met with all principals.

Coordinators for each school were trained in October, and in November, the group compiled and wrote its constitution and by-laws.

The corps has several plans for the future, according to Hall. The group will meet with all volunteers at their respective schools for introduction, orientation and training. This will be followed with the development of an evaluation process for the program, and placing a volunteer in each school to call parents about absenteeism.

Members also want to increase participation in the coming school year, and hold a recognition ceremony for those who are participating in the current year's program.

PREPARING FOR AMERICA'S FUTURE

By
HEATHER CARREEN WATSON
GARRETT ELEMENTARY SCHOOL

*In Flanders' fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses, row on row,
That mark our place, and in the sky,
The larks still bravely singing, fly,
Scarce heard amid the guns below.
We are the dead; short days ago
We lived, felt dawn, saw sunset glow,
In Flanders' fields.*

*Take up our quarrel with the foe!
To you from falling hands we throw
The torch; be yours to hold it high!
If ye break faith with those who die
We shall not sleep, though poppies grow
In Flanders' field.*

These lines were written by John McCrae, a gallant soldier and a brave fighter. Many students cannot quote poems which were written to honor our heroes. We, as Americans, can help prepare for our future by better educating our students, the next generation of voters and leaders. This education should strive to imprint upon the students the morals, strength of character, and patriotism which provided the foundation on which our country was conceived and has been maintained. In preparing for America's future, we must take up the torch—not in physical battle, as was done during the World Wars, but through better education and intellectual development. This education needs to be well-rounded and should include social studies, mathematics, science, problem solving and critical thinking, language arts, and an appreciation for the humanities.

A better social studies education will help the students by reminding them of the wars which were fought for our freedom. A more extensive civics program will make the students more aware of the election process and help them to choose the best candidate for the office. It will help them understand how the government works, for example, how a bill becomes a law. A better American history education will help students to realize the hardships that others went through just to insure our freedom.

Better mathematical and scientific programs will help the country and its students through scientific advancement. This advancement will contribute to the improvement of many programs, especially the space program. This will help keep the United States a formidable opponent in war and hopefully discourage war in general. Such advancement is equally important in peaceful activities such as finding cures for modern diseases like AIDS. Critical thinking skills and methodical problem solving have always been the basis for science and mathematics. These skills must continue to be taught as we enter the next century. We need to be prepared to solve the problems that will accompany the increasing technology.

Language arts must be stressed as we need to communicate more and more with the rest of the world. A better humanities education will benefit our students. If they, today's students—tomorrow's leaders, can learn to express themselves peacefully through writing and other art forms, they can use these skills to help the country to become more friendly toward other countries. Through these art forms, they can also see that people from other countries have the same human feelings that they do.

In conclusion, I feel as though we can best prepare for America's future through educating our young people more extensively and by helping them to understand and appreciate the freedom that we won over two hundred years ago. By providing a better education, the leaders of our country can preserve "liberty and justice for all".

Books And Things:

Volumes Discuss Ecology, Management of Nature

by Trisha Morris
PCC Librarian

In the nostalgic reporting of the "big stories" of 1988, many concerned our management or mismanagement of nature: allowing the natural burning of more than 800,000 acres of Yellowstone National Park, the fight to free three whales trapped in Alaskan ice, sewage along the nation's shores, oil spills, acid rain, and on and on. The following books from the PCC library discuss the many aspects of the constant struggle to live with nature.

Acid Rain, by Robert Ostmann. Once-vital forests are dying, entire species of fish have become extinct, and billions of dollars worth of buildings, cars, and art work are becoming corroded because of the rain. Sulfuric showers, April acid, nitric rainbows — nasty, toxic, corrosive names for what was once the universal symbol of natural purity — rain.

When the alarm of the '60s and '70s stopped the pipes and smokestacks from disgorging vile fluids and noxious emissions into the air, most people looked no further. This book chronicles what happened when the rain drops turned sour. A good introduction to a complicated subject, it offers both historic and contemporary information and finally, gives suggestions for managing this man-made problem.

Noise: The Unwanted Sounds, by David Lipscomb. Noise pollution has become an increasingly popular area of general discussion. Defined as unwanted sound, noise is a problem that demands attention because it affects national health. Dr. Lipscomb, director of the Noise Study Laboratory at the University of Tennessee, points out that the sound level in some cities has increased 10-fold in 20 years; that 10 million Americans already are suffering hearing loss from noise; that noise creates numerous physiological reactions; and that in industrial plants, noise causes a $4 billion annual loss from accidents, turnover, fatigue and absenteeism.

Dr. Lipscomb presents not only facts and figures about noise pollution, but also philosophic and speculative ideas, theoretical considerations, and a sprinkling of humor. Written for the lay person as well as the specialist, it presents technical information in an easy reading format. If nothing else, this book will convince readers to enjoy the pastoral solitude of the beautiful Eastern Kentucky mountains, which are filled with the calming noises of birds and scampering animals.

The Violent Face of Nature, by Kenneth Frazier. Eastern Kentucky is well acquainted with floods, other parts of the world know earthquakes, hurricanes, and volcanoes, and through the media, of people feeling the human pain of the fearful destructiveness of nature's violent force.

This book puts into perspective the nine most violent occurrences in nature as they continue to shape the natural history of our planet. Part I examines each phenomena — how they form, build up, and ultimately release their power. Part II tells how society copes with the random, but very real, pattern of destruction resulting from these natural disasters. The author gives an up-to-date assessment of the new methods of forecasting, prediction, and warning; an analysis of how we prepare for and respond to disaster; and his own critical views on the kind of solutions that experts are exploring today.

The Politics of Ecology, by James Ridgeway. A startling history of environmental pollution. James Ridgeway's book hits hard at the politicians and the industrialists who used the nation's concern to court their own causes, cover up their weaknesses or line their own pockets. It's an easy reading chronicle that will take readers' breath away and leave them mad.

Dams, Parks and Politics, by Elm Richardson. Another chronicle into the politics of ecology, this book draws on federal and state archives and private papers of administrators to look into such federal ecology programs as logging in Olympic National Park and the decision to build a reservoir in the middle of Dinosaur National Monument Park. Although dated, it tells stories that could be equated with events, accomplished and proposed, that are present stories in Kentucky, and it gives the history which today's ecological decisions are based upon.

Garbage, by Katie Kelly. Katie Kelly's report on the garbage crisis is complete, entertaining (often hilarious), and fully documented. She's christened America as "the Garbage Center of the World" and gives the startling statistics that Americans produce 440 million tons of the stuff annually, and spend over $4 billion a year to get rid of it.

Kelly shows the serious and the funny side of garbage. She takes readers to a perpetually-lit garbage dump, introduces them to San Francisco's singing garbage collectors, and tells them about a dedicated "garbologist" who enjoys burrowing into the refuse cans of such notables as Neil Simon, Abbie Hoffman and Muhammad Ali.

Forevermore, by Donald Barlett. The turtles that creep along the banks of the Savannah River are radioactive — so is the water in a well serving a borough in New Jersey — so is the soil in a drainage ditch in an industrial park in Houston. They are only examples of the symptoms of the inability of government and industry to control nuclear waste.

In 1950, waste from the commercial use of the atom was counted in ounces — today it is counted in tons. It has to be stored somewhere. The author tells us it is in two Tanker trucks buried in rural South Carolina, inside an inflatable nylon dome in Idaho, and in simmering liquids in an underground steel tank farm south of Buffalo, N.Y. Only examples of a long list, but enough to make one wonder. There are things in this book people don't want to know — but there are things in this book that people must know. It is well titled.

Ecology. Ecology is the study of living things in relation to their environment and to each other. This volume from the Life Nature Library is a masterpiece in color photography, charts, and narrative of the many faces and challenges of the world man shares with the animals and the forces of nature. From sea lions to ground squirrels, zebras to crocodiles, this book is about how each has made a home on this wrinkled and constantly-changing planet, and how each has changed that home.

In the final chapter, "Man Versus Nature," is a quote that tells the reason for all books on ecology: "After 10,000 years of exploiting nature, man finds himself in a world molded closely to his needs and desires. But only now is he becoming aware of the consequences of his thoughtless prodigality with natural resources... only now is he beginning to conserve and reclaim natural communities."

The largest restaurant chain is McDonald's Corp. Beginning as a hamburger stand in 1955, it's sales today surpass $11 billion.

MCA Students Participate In Two Christian Programs

Mountain Christian Academy students recently participated in an Advent program and a Christianity in Action program. These programs allowed the students to experience their Christian faith as part of the school's curriculum.

During Advent, the four weeks preceding Christmas, guest ministers spoke at weekly assemblies. The Rev. Garfield Potter of the United Methodist Church in Martin spoke on the gift of faith. Father Joseph Muench of St. Martha Catholic Church in Water Gap spoke on the gift of peace. The Rev. Arnold Turner of Pleasant Home Baptist Church spoke on the gift of new life. The final Advent presentation was given by the school's founder, Father Ralph Betting, who spoke on the gift of love.

The Christianity in Action program involves students in making their Christian faith a reality to others, said school officials. Gail Brown's first and second grade students collected school supplies which were sent to Nicaragua in November. Margaret Tracey's fifth and sixth grade students joined Cindy Hall's seventh and eighth grade students in a Christmas program for the Martin Senior Citizens' Center. Hall's class also helped Christian Appalachian Project workers deliver Christmas packages to the elderly and collected toys to assist the Prestonsburg Christian Academy's toy drive.

Mountain Christian Academy is in its sixth academic year. Enrollment is open at each grade level and the third quarter begins Jan. 16. Visitors are welcome to observe the school's program and can arrange visits by calling the school.

Marcy Walker.

Marcy Walker is a favorite among daytime drama viewers. As Eden Capwell on NBC's Santa Barbara, she is the beautiful and spirited daughter of wealthy C. C. Capwell, and for three years she played the conniving Liza Colby on All My Children.

"Eden is a fiercely independent young woman," Marcy says, "who unfairly compares every man she meets to her dad—a super-successful, larger-than-life Santa Barbara businessman.

Looking back on her career, Marcy says that two significant things stand out in her mind. One was a counselor at Triad High School in Troy, Ill., who tried to stop her career by telling her she couldn't participate in the school dramatic society because she was "overqualified." "It was right then that I decided I was going to succeed as an actress in spite of his trying to stop me," she said.

The other significant event in Marcy's life took place when she went to enroll at Southern Illinois University. While she was talking to the school's theater manager, a call came from New York casting director Jane Iredale asking if they had any likely candidates for a Southern belle role in the PBS production of Life on the Mississippi, starring Robert Lansing. As a result of this call, Marcy did not go to college. Instead, she auditioned, won the part over 2,000 applicants, and went off to New York to work on the picture.

After this breakthrough, Marcy made over 40 commercials including ads for Kodak, Mellow-Yellow and AT&T, and landed two starring roles for the Cable TV Network.

Finally, in 1980, after auditioning for daytime shows for eight months, Marcy was offered starring roles in both As the World Turns and All My Children. Since that day, she has become a very successful actress, with Emmy nominations to prove it.

Marcy's mother is a self-employed interior designer, and her father is a field service engineer for Emerson Electric. Because of her dad's business taking him all over America and to other parts of the world, Marcy attended five different high schools, and lived in Tehran, Iran, where she learned to speak the Iranian language of Farsi.

In her free time, Marcy exercises, reads, travels, follows the Los Angeles Lakers basketball games and writes scripts.
