Truck Overturns, Spills 40 Tons Of Coal

A tractor-trailer rig overturned at the US 23 intersection in Prestonsburg early Tuesday morning, spilling more than 40 tons of coal across the roadway. City police, fire and street department personnel worked for more than three hours to clear the road.

Truck Overturns, Spills 40 Tons Of Coal Onto US 23 Intersection

A dangerous mix of coal, diesel fuel and oil was strewn across the US 23 intersection in Prestonsburg early Tuesday morning when a driver lost his brakes and was unable to negotiate the turn.

According to city officials, more than 40 tons of coal, as well as 30 to 40 gallons of diesel fuel and oil, spread across the road when the truck overturned around 7 a.m.

Sand was dumped on the road to absorb the fuel and oil, and a backhoe was used to remove the coal, according to Fire Chief Thomas Blackburn.

The accident required that all of the morning's traffic be rerouted as area residents were driving to work.

According to Police Chief Dickie Campbell, the driver of the truck was Danny R. Bates, 37, of Bevinville. Bates, who was uninjured, told police officials his brakes failed, and he was unable to negotiate the turn. No citations were issued.

The truck belonged to Mary's Trucking of Halo, owned by Mary Martin. The driver was going to Ashland.

Campbell said Tuesday's accident marked the third in recent years involving a truck overturning at the intersection.

Eight firefighters, four police personnel and several street and sanitation department workers worked throughout the morning to clear the road.

Coincidentally, said Blackburn, fire department personnel had earlier been scheduled to participate in a training session this coming Saturday that virtually paralleled Tuesday's accident—a rig overturning at the US 23 intersection.

Petition Drive Hits Snag; AG's Opinion Will Be Sought

The petition campaign seeking an April referendum on liquor sales in the Prestonsburg area hit a snag in the Floyd County Clerk's office Tuesday evening.

When clerk's staff began validating signatures on the petitions from Precincts #3 (Depot) and #4 (Richmond), they found that addresses of signers and the date signed were missing, according to County Clerk Carla Bolton.

"According to what I understand the state regulations to be, the names, addresses and dates signed must be on the petitions," said Bolton. "I have to call the Attorney General on Wednesday morning for instructions."

Bolton said that signatures may be added to the petitions today, but that "Wednesday should be the last day" if the referendum is to come before the voters before the May primary.

Petitioners had reportedly set an April 22 target date for the referendum, which would open up the question of legal liquor sales in the city and surrounding areas—a question that was raised county-wide in 1982 when voters approved the sale of alcoholic beverages. The present campaign seeks separate elections for eight precincts in the area of the city.

Bolton said that state law forbids a referendum within 30 days of a regularly scheduled election. April 22 is latest possible date for a referendum before May 23, the date of the primary. The earliest the liquor referendum could be scheduled after the primary is June 22, to meet the 30-day waiting period.

As of Tuesday evening, the only precinct for which signatures had been validated was Precinct #1 (Courthouse), which Bolton said had "more than enough" valid signatures. Before the petitions can be filed with the county judge/executive's office they must have signatures of at least 25 percent of the number of votes cast in the last general election.

Bolton said she had hoped to verify the signatures for each precinct on Tuesday, but the discovery of the petitions with incomplete information at about 5:30 p.m. Tuesday caused her to stop, pending an opinion from the Attorney General.

Contacted last night about the problem of the signatures, the Rev. Ron Masters, pastor of Community United Methodist Church and one of the participants in the referendum campaign, said, "We'll have to wait and see what the Attorney General's ruling is, and then decide what to do."

Masters said the petitioners "tried to have more than enough names" for each precinct. "I believe we have additional names over the number required," he said.

"This is the first time a lot of us have ever done this (circulate a referendum petition)," he said. "This is one of the areas we should have been made aware of."

Wheelwright Joins KML, Opts To Buy Police Cruiser

The Wheelwright City Council approved the purchase of a police car and agreed to join the Kentucky Municipal League during Saturday's regularly-scheduled meeting.

On the recommendation of Police Chief Terry Hall, the council agreed on the $4,000 purchase price for a 1985 Ford LTD Crown Victoria. Hall said the seller, Dalton Conley, said he would guarantee the car. Hall also said he has a buyer for the present cruiser, which has 168,000 miles on it and requires frequent repair. Hall said the prospective buyer has agreed to pay $800 after the police equipment is removed.

Mayor Larry Mullins said the purchase "will save money in the long run, but things may be kind of tight for awhile." On a motion by Dennis Harris, seconded by Jerry Tackett, the council gave Hall permission to arrange the sale and purchase.

Mullins introduced information about membership in the Kentucky Municipal League, an organization made up of cities and towns across the state. Access to lower cost liability insurance is the primary advantage of membership in the organization, he said.

"For cities that own property, insurance is a must, but it's just too expensive for us," Mullins said. "Liability insurance for a city of our size would be several times more than our budget. This is an opportunity to afford it (insurance)."

Harris moved that the city pay the $175 membership fee to join KML. The motion was seconded by Tackett and passed by the council.

The council also gave first reading to the state-mandated Non-Partisan, Primaryless Ordinance. The ordinance stipulates that the city continue to have non-partisan council elections, with no primary. A second reading will be made at the next regular meeting.

Responding to a written request from the Wheelwright High School Investment Club, council voted to donate $25 to the club. Randall Johnson of Wheelwright Utilities, who was in attendance at the meeting, said the utilities commission will match the city donation.

Mullins related a request from Dorothy Henson that the city assume payment for a street light in front of her house, which she has been paying for. Council members decided to check with the power company to find out if the light is needed. If it is determined to be necessary for resident safety, the city will take over responsibility for the light, the council agreed.

Members also discussed the winter's heating bill for the fire department, where a heater is maintained to keep the water pump from freezing. Tackett said he would have a city worker turn the heater down each morning and then turn it up at night to protect against a potential freeze. Council members agreed to consider the purchase of a new furnace for the fire hall before next winter season. Harris suggested looking into adding more insulation to the facility.

Also relating to the fire department, citizen James Butler reported that firefighters had a difficult time finding a working water hydrant during a recent fire. Tackett and Harris volunteered to see that all hydrants are checked and that inoperative ones be marked. Mullins reminded those present that when the new water system is completed, new hydrants will be in place.

Butler also reported that several trees on property abutting his property are rotting and represent a hazard to residents in the area. He said that a tree fell recently on his porch and did a great deal of damage. "A lot of trees need to come down," Butler said. "They could fall on houses and power lines."

No one present was sure who owned the property in question, although some suggested that the city might own it. Mullins said he would check on who owned the property and council will decide what course to take in removing the trees that pose a threat.

In other discussion, Harris announced that certificates have been given to persons who helped during the water crisis in December, when the city was without a water supply for more than a week.

"If we missed anybody, we want them to know we certainly do appreciate their help," he said.

At the beginning of the meeting, attorney Jim Hammond, the guest of former mayor Elmer Ferguson, spoke to the council about his candidacy for county attorney.

Councilman Joe Stewart was absent from Saturday's meeting.

The next scheduled meeting is Saturday, March 18 at noon at the Wheelwright city hall.

Current Carries Car Into Creek

Rain and snow throughout Floyd County this week proved the culprit in a number of mud and rock slides, and also contributed to a serious accident Monday night.

Diane R. Ochala, 30, of Bonanza, was attempting to drive up Abbott Creek, which was flooded at several points—some as much as two feet deep—according to officials with the county sheriff's department.

Ochala apparently attempted to drive through the water, then opted to back up and turn around. While turning, a front tire slipped over the creek bank, which could not be seen due to the water.

Ochala got out of the car, only to watch the swift current carry it into the creek, where it got hung on a bridge. The entire rear of the vehicle was submerged, said officials.

Ochala, who was not injured, did not have any passengers.

The auto, estimated to be a total loss, could not be removed until Tuesday morning, when the current slowed and water level dropped.

In other weather-related incidents, County Judge/Executive John M. Stumbo said a number of rock and mud slides were reported, beginning as early as Saturday morning. Others were reported through Tuesday afternoon. Stumbo said all had been cleaned up.

"A few drainage pipes are stopped up," said the judge, "but right now, most of the roads are clear."

Stumbo said a blocked pipe at Auxier which temporarily stranded residents was expected to be cleared by Tuesday afternoon.

In a related matter, school was dismissed early Tuesday afternoon at Allen Central High School due to high water on some roads.

Access Road Creates Mudslide

When Diann Prater first got up Tuesday morning, she looked out the window to see if the heavy rains of the night before were continuing.

She wasn't prepared for what she saw.

The hillside seemed to be running across the road and surrounding her house on Stumbo Hollow, off Middlecreek Road.

"The mud was two to three inches deep on the road and in my yard and carport," she said, describing the sight that greeted her sleepy eyes.

What she later found out when county workers came to assess the situation was that an access road to a mine site on the nearby hill had broken under the pressure of the heavy rains. Mud, rocks and pieces of log from the caved in road had plummeted down the hill and into a culvert under the road.

The debris clogged the culvert and the mud took an over-the-road course into Prater's yard. County workers

No volcanic lava flow this. It's just plain Eastern Kentucky mud, flowing off a hillside at Stumbo Hollow, near Middlecreek Road. Heavy rains Monday night eroded a mine access road higher up the hill and caused mud and debris to slide into yards and roadway.

Lottery Office May Be A Safe Bet, But It's Not A Sure Thing

Officials at the Kentucky Lottery Corp. in Louisville refused Tuesday to confirm that Prestonsburg has been chosen as the site of the southeast regional lottery office, although many persons in the area believe that it has been.

Both the Lexington Herald-Leader and the Courier-Journal have run classified advertisements for "sectional sales manager" with Prestonsburg listed as a place where the position is available. The ad states that the position is the "same as a Regional Sales Manager, except the geographic territory of responsibility will be smaller."

A representative of Lottery Corp. marketing director Melanie Bridgemon said Tuesday that the ads "do not mean that the decision is final," concerning Prestonsburg's selection.

A source who asked not to be identified said that the decision to locate the office here is definite, though not official. Another source said that a lease is expected to be signed on a selected office site in town by the first of March.

Kentucky S&Ls 'In Good Shape'

by Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

Despite negative publicity nationally, savings and loan associations in Kentucky are "in good shape," and the ones in Eastern Kentucky "are probably stronger as a group than the state as a whole," contends the vice president of a Floyd County savings and loan association.

Robert Brown of United Federal in Prestonsburg said area savings and loans are not the focus of the recent national attention that has been centered on the thrift institution industry.

"The problem started in the oil producing states," Brown said. "If you could eliminate Texas, Alaska, Oklahoma and Arkansas, you'd have no problem."

The problem, which has drawn increased national media coverage, stems from the insolvency of several S&Ls, primarily in the Midwest and West, and threatened takeovers by the federal government. President George Bush recently announced steps his administration is taking to correct the problem.

"We in the industry have seen this (the present situation) coming for a long time," said Brown, adding that the federal government deregulated the industry several years ago, giving S&Ls "more power, but with too little supervision and regulations."

Some S&L managers invested in "highly speculative ventures" after deregulation. When the oil industry, in particular, bottomed out, the S&Ls which were connected to it started to experience problems, Brown said. "They began to have more losses than the Federal Savings and Loan Association Insurance Corp. had reserves."

That's not the situation with United Federal, which has offices in Prestonsburg and Knott County, and its neighbors in this region. In fact, United Federal's assets increased by more than $2 million from December 1987 to December 1988.

Brown added that United assets have increased by more than $200,000 since the beginning of January, making the local institution "more profitable than savings and loan companies of comparable size."

While he said he doesn't know of anyone who has pulled their money out of United since the national crisis has been uncovered, Brown said he has had several depositors call or come in to talk to him.

"They've come in almost apologetically to get some understanding of the situation, particularly our older customers," Brown said. "We feel very, very fortunate, because to date, they've all stayed with us."

The executive said that the federal probe is concentrating on "the problem S&Ls. We have had regular exams each of the last two years and have been found to be clean and profitable. We see nothing that's going to change our mode of operation."

Brown said that United's de-

Chamber Supports Current Liquor Sales

Members of the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce approved a resolution Monday supporting the sale of liquor by the drink in Prestonsburg, and also adopted a new membership fee schedule.

H.D. "Buddy" Fitzpatrick, part owner of the Holiday Inn of Prestonsburg, made the motion to go on record recommending no change in the status of alcohol sales in the city. Following a second by Burl Spurlock of First Commonwealth Bank, the motion was unanimously approved.

Fitzpatrick said the "dry" forces' petition was "contrary to economic development efforts," adding, "Prestonsburg has made tremendous strides. The Chamber should support movements that have gotten Prestonsburg back into the ballgame. We have been on the outside, looking in."

"I think it is certainly a backwards step to take away or reduce the desirability of this community in this region — one of which is the availbility of distilled spirits or wine," said Spurlock before seconding the motion.

Chamber members also passed a resolution recommending against closure of the Jackson Weather Service office, noting it is the only one in Eastern Kentucky.

"It is instrumental in times of flooding and adverse weather," noted Bill Howard, City of Prestonsburg Utilities Commission superintendent. "It would be very detrimental for it to close."

The resolution passed without opposition.

In other business, the Chamber's executive board adopted a new membership fee schedule. The new fees, based on employment, are: two to 20 employees, $150; 21 to 50 employees, $300; 51 or more employees, $500; individuals, $100; and governmental agencies, $150.

A new member promotional program is planned by the Chamber in late April or early May.

Greene: An 'Unsung American'

Dan Greene, founder of the David School, has been named the February "Unsung American" by Capital Cities/ABC-TV. Smith Corona is recognizing Greene's achievements by awarding him a personal word processor for his dedication to helping dropouts and aiding the literacy movement.

The "Unsung Americans" is a new Public Service Announcement series produced by Capital Cities/ABC as part of Project Literacy U.S., a national public service campaign to raise awareness of the importance of strong basic skills and major problems of young people, such as dropping out of school, substance abuse, teen pregnancy, delinquency and unemployment. Each month, an individual from around the nation will be featured as an "Unsung American" for his or her outstanding volunteer activities that aid the positive development of young people.

Greene, 39, is the first person chosen as an "Unsung American," meaning he is featured this month in a 60-second commercial to encourage potential volunteers.

The commercials offer a toll-free telephone number (1-800-228-8813) for people if they want to volunteer their time. Operators at a contact center will connect callers with volunteer groups anywhere in the nation.

Greene traveled to Appalachia as a volunteer worker 20 years ago, and stayed on in the coal fields of Eastern Kentucky to help young people deal with difficult problems, both educational and societal.

In 1972, with the help of a local clergyman, Greene began the David School, an alternative school designed to deal with an incredible dropout rate of almost 40 percent.

The school was formed to serve those students who had dropped out of public school because of apathy and parental indifference. With only limited resources, he created a model school that would reach dropouts, improve the community and its self-image, and significantly improve student attitudes and achievements in education.

Today, the David School has been recognized as a model dropout prevention program in the mountain community and throughout Kentucky. Last fall, Greene was recognized for his outstanding leadership in literacy by the Kentucky Department of Education.

The school operates on an annual budget of $160,000, with about half the money coming from individual donations and the rest from private foundations and several government programs.

Catholic Diocese, Ministerial Association Plan Prayer Walk

On Saturday, Feb. 25, downtown Prestonsburg will be the site of a Lenten Prayer Walk sponsored by the Southeastern Peace and Justice Committee of the Catholic Diocese of Lexington, in cooperation with the Floyd County Ministerial Association, according to Sister Mary Ellen Koenn of Drift.

"This is going to be a meditative walk, with a focus on local issues of concern, like literacy, hunger, housing and health," Koenn said. "We'll be stopping at various sites in Prestonsburg to draw attention to each issue, and have a short prayer at each one."

The walk will begin at 3:30 p.m. in the Prestonsburg Municipal Parking Lot across the street from the Floyd County Courthouse.

At 5 p.m., the group will gather at the First United Methodist Church on Arnold Avenue for an ecumenical prayer service, whose focus will be global issues of peace and justice, Koenn said.

The public is invited to both events. For more information, contact Koenn at 886-1242 or 377-1185.

who responded to Prater's call had to disconnect three gas lines before clearing the culvert, leaving area residents without gas for several hours.

County workers also spent the morning clearing mud from the road and from Prater's carport.

Tuesday afternoon, workmen from Branham and Baker Mining Co. were attempting to clear the mire to correct the situation. A spokesman for the mining company said the firm opted "two or three years ago" not to mine the site after the access road was already built. He said the company is "in the process of getting a release" from the reclamation bond.

James Gevedon of the Bureau of Surface Mining confirmed that the mining company is in the second stage of the reclamation process. Gevedon is investigating the washout and its effects.

Letters To The Editor

Observations Made On Wet/Dry Petition

Dear Editor,
I am writing this in response to the latest effort to legislate morality.

I am, of course, referring to the wet/dry petition being circulated by a few of our area churches. While I realize that it is totally within their rights to put this matter before the voting public once again, I would at least like to make these observations.

First — and let's face facts — liquor was here in this city before legal sales started, and will be here if legal sales are ended. The way the situation is at present, sales of alcoholic beverages are strictly regulated as to days and hours of operation, and to whom these sales may be directed. No one under the age of 21 is permitted to purchase alcoholic beverages of any kind. Bootleggers don't discriminate. They will sell to anyone who has the money to buy. In other words, no legal sales, no restrictions.

Secondly, legal sales provide revenue and employment to an area which desperately needs both. To end this would once again place this revenue into the pockets of a select few. The city's loss will be their gain. If the people who are circulating this petition are successful in getting this on the ballot, then the registered voters of our city need to get out and vote to stay "wet" and within the law.

Road Weight Limit Opposed By Reader

Dear Editor,
The article I read in last week's Floyd County Times concerning the stopping of coal hauling through the City of Prestonsburg leads me to believe that no one wants to help the coal companies or coal truckers.

They are being pushed off the road, getting sued, or getting a ticket from the weight man almost weekly — anything from overweight to God only knows what else. It seems to me that every one is getting together to put a stop to coal business in Eastern Kentucky, and it will be a sad time for the working people of Floyd County and the whole state.

I have never worked in a coal mine or driven a truck hauling coal, but I don't envy the people that have to do it for a living. I wonder how many of the persons who want the coal to stop in Prestonsburg have had to start their work day at 3 a.m., and make hauls to Huntington or Ashland two or three times a day. Some of us, instead of biting the hand that feeds us, want to take it completely off at the elbow.

All the jobs in this part of the state are coal or coal-related, and we need to help them in every way we can to insure our livelihood and the future of our children. I think the people of Prestonsburg who elected the persons that came up with this bright idea should consider voting them out in the next election.

Truckers, I urge you to remember if your coal truck isn't welcome, then your money shouldn't be, either. I myself think that a coal truck looks a lot better than a whiskey or beer truck, but as the old saying goes, beauty must be in the eyes of the people who make the laws for all of us.

Sincerely yours,
Don Riley,
Harold

Dear Editor,
Help! Help! We are choking to death in litter! Have you taken a good look at the roadsides of Floyd County? Throw-away glass bottles, plastic cartons and paper are stacked at least three feet high!

Is it any wonder that we cannot attract new industry to our area?

I beg our elected officials to organize a county-wide cleanup. Please. We need the opportunity to see the "real beauty" of our county.

BUDGET COULD HELP KENTUCKIANS, BUT PRICE TAG UNCLEAR

With the formalities of starting up a new administration all but completed, Congress will turn its attention to one of the President's most recent actions — his first budget.

I was pleased with President Bush's speech to the joint session of Congress and the entire country a short time ago. I thought he took a more realistic approach to the agenda that Americans want than we've seen over the past eight years.

We saw signs of the kinder, gentler nation he promised in the campaign. Mr. Bush has also promised increased funding for some of our most troubling domestic problems like drug abuse and the need for better education for our youngsters.

I was very pleased with several of the items he suggested that are favorable to Kentucky.

The President talked about the need for clean-air legislation, an issue that much of the Congress and the nation are very concerned about. And he supports the achievement of clean-air goals through developing clean-coal technology. This is a very important sign for Kentucky's leading industry and will allow the nation to be less dependent on foreign oil.

Another message I was particularly pleased with was that of the need for a two-year budget cycle for the federal government.

Former President Reagan called for a biennial budget in his last two budgets but never before have our efforts on this front won such a strong endorsement. Only a few weeks ago I reintroduced my bill to put the budget on a two-year cycle.

Some parts of Mr. Bush's budget message concern me, however.

I haven't heard adequate discussion yet of farmers' needs. In fact, the President's message only briefly mentioned this vital sector.

While several of Mr. Bush's proposals sound good, the price tag is still unclear. A one-year freeze in defense spending will bridge some of the gap for proposed spending, but not all of it.

There is talk of a cut in the capital gains tax to increase revenue. But the White House will have to face Congress on that point. Many of us see that move as just a tax reduction for the rich.

Other cuts must be found if we are going to meet the goals that have been proposed. And there is an air of cooperation in Capitol Hill to work together to meet these goals. The President has expressed a willingness to work with legislators, and that effort will be reciprocated.

Now it is time to roll up our sleeves and get the job done.

Report to Kentucky

SENATOR WENDELL FORD

BUSH BUDGET OFFERS COMPASSIONATE APPROACH TO FEDERAL DEFICIT

One of the biggest problems facing President George Bush is the huge federal deficit. On Thursday, Feb. 9, Bush delivered his first address to a joint session of Congress and unveiled his proposal to cut spending while charting a course to eliminate the deficit. I think Bush's speech outlined a positive, aggressive plan for dealing with our budget problems while giving high priority to several critical areas.

Bush has stated that he wants to lead a "kinder, gentler America" and his budget is exactly that. Within the limits of deficit reduction, Bush has crafted a plan that will redirect funds into areas that will continue the social development of America and help us keep our competitive edge in world markets. He has done all this without a tax increase.

The areas that the Bush budget will have a significant impact on include: Education

The presidential merit school program will receive $250 million for award grants and payments to outstanding teachers. Schools which are producing exceptional students will also get additional funds. The Head Start program for small children will benefit by receiving a 20 percent increase to accommodate more 4-year-olds. Total federal spending for education will amount to $768 million by 1990.

Child Care

Working parents will be pleased to know that $331 million will be set aside to create a tax credit for child care. If a family's income is so low that it does not pay income tax, then the credit will be refunded by the federal government. Families that are claiming the current $2,400 tax deduction can continue to do so.

Environment

Bush promised to make the environment a top priority during his campaign for president and this is reflected in his budget's commitment to expand our forest preserves. Over the next four years, $220 million will be earmarked for the acquisition of new parkland and recreational areas.

Housing and Homeless

There are thousands of people who, through no fault of their own, have been forced to live out in the streets or in homeless shelters. The Bush budget takes special aim at this problem by allocating $676 million to programs that provide people with temporary housing while giving them the opportunity to attend job-training classes so they can find permanent employment.

Bush's speech presented a financial blueprint that includes fiscal restraint while providing additional funding for needed programs. It is a compassionate budget. Now the ball is in Congress's court. Partisan bickering and differences must be pushed aside and both Republicans and Democrats must work together to get this budget passed on time.

Veteran, 53, Fulfills Lifelong Dream: GED

All his life, Frank Howard has regretted dropping out of high school with a half semester to go.

Through a stint in the Air Force, a variety of jobs in Michigan and, locally, and a try at his own business, Howard said he knew there were opportunities to complete his basic education. "But a person just keeps putting it off," said the 53-year-old Martin man.

Last summer, with the urging of Claude Ratliff, veterans employment representative with the state Department of Employment Services, Howard decided to do something about his dream. He enrolled as one of the first students in a special GED class for veterans.

Taught in space lent by the National Guard Armory north of Prestonsburg by volunteers from the David School's GED program, the class started at the end of last May. In December, Howard passed the GED test.

"My lifelong dream was to get a diploma," Howard said last week as he received the Robert Broskie GED award. (Broskie is a Vietnam-era veteran who originated the idea of special GED classes for vets in Ohio.)

"I knew I was going to complete the program if it took me 10 years," said Howard, who's entertaining the thought of college now.

A new employee of Emmanuel Coal Co., Howard urges "anyone who doesn't have a diploma or a GED to complete it. Jobs are hard to get," he added. "The first thing they (employers) ask is 'Do you have a high school diploma?'"

"Employers figure that persons who have completed high school or a GED program have demonstrated they can complete what they begin, they can stick with their goals."
-- Claude Ratliff

Ratliff, who was Howard's employment services representative, said that the last three "good" jobs that he worked with Howard on required a GED or high school diploma. Ratliff defines a good job as one with decent wages and benefits.

"Employers figure that persons who have completed high school or a GED program have demonstrated they can complete what they begin, they can stick with their goals," said Ratliff who counsels daily with veterans who lack a high school education.

Last year, Ratliff reviewed his files and found that more than 160 veterans registered with employment services had not completed high school. He then made plans for the Prestonsburg class and one in Paintsville and launched a campaign to encourage his clients to enroll in the GED program. The campaign included announcements in area media and a series of letters to the veterans, pointing out the reality of their situation.

"The US economy has flipped," said Ratliff. "Where once the American economy centered on production, now we're in the information and service age." He points to US Department of Labor estimates which project that by the year 2000, service and information jobs will account for 80 percent of all jobs.

"It now takes an education to survive. I try to 'bother' them, to be a burr in their side," said Ratliff, alluding to his efforts to get his clients to seek their GED. "That's my job. To me, these 168 people have been left out. By 2000, they may be tax burdens, but there's also a lot of human spirit that's lost."

Four people are now enrolled in the program at the Armory. Since the program started, three students, including Howard, have earned their GEDs.

"We would like to have six to eight," said Monica Schieber, who teaches the classes every Tuesday and Thursday from 1 to 3 p.m.

Keeping the classes small allows students to work at their own pace, Schieber said. The teacher can also spend time with students individually to work on sections of the GED training that require more emphasis.

Howard, for instance, said that for him the math study came very easy. His primary concern was the English portion. "I dreaded that part of the test," he said. "I'd never had to write an essay in my life." Schieber and teacher Marcie Menster, therefore, spent more time with Howard bonding up on the English.

For Howard, the regrets about not having a basic education are over. "I just wish I'd done this 20 years sooner," he said.

Frank Howard of Martin, right, proved to himself recently that learning has no age limit by receiving his GED at the age of 53. In recognition of his achievement, Howard received the Broskie Award from Claude Ratliff, veterans representative with the Department of Employment Services. Howard prepared for the GED exam in special classes for veterans, sponsored by the department.

Herrin-Johnson Pharmacy Sold; Will Become Rite Aid

Herrin-Johnson Pharmacy in Prestonsburg's Highlands Plaza shopping center, officially becomes Rite Aid Discount Pharmacy tomorrow, according to co-owner Eric Herrin.

The sale, said Herrin, who will remain as pharmacist, has been in the making for several months. The Harrisburg, Penn.-based company, which owns about 2,200 Rite Aid drug stores nationwide, also owns a store in GlynView Plaza.

Rite Aid personnel will be at the store Thursday for inventory, and the sign outside the store will be changed, said Herrin. He said the store will remain open during the changes.

Herrin expects the company will also "do some remodeling and some re-merchandising," adding that the new owners will "probably not carry as many gifts" as the present store.

He said he also expects the new owners to expand store hours.

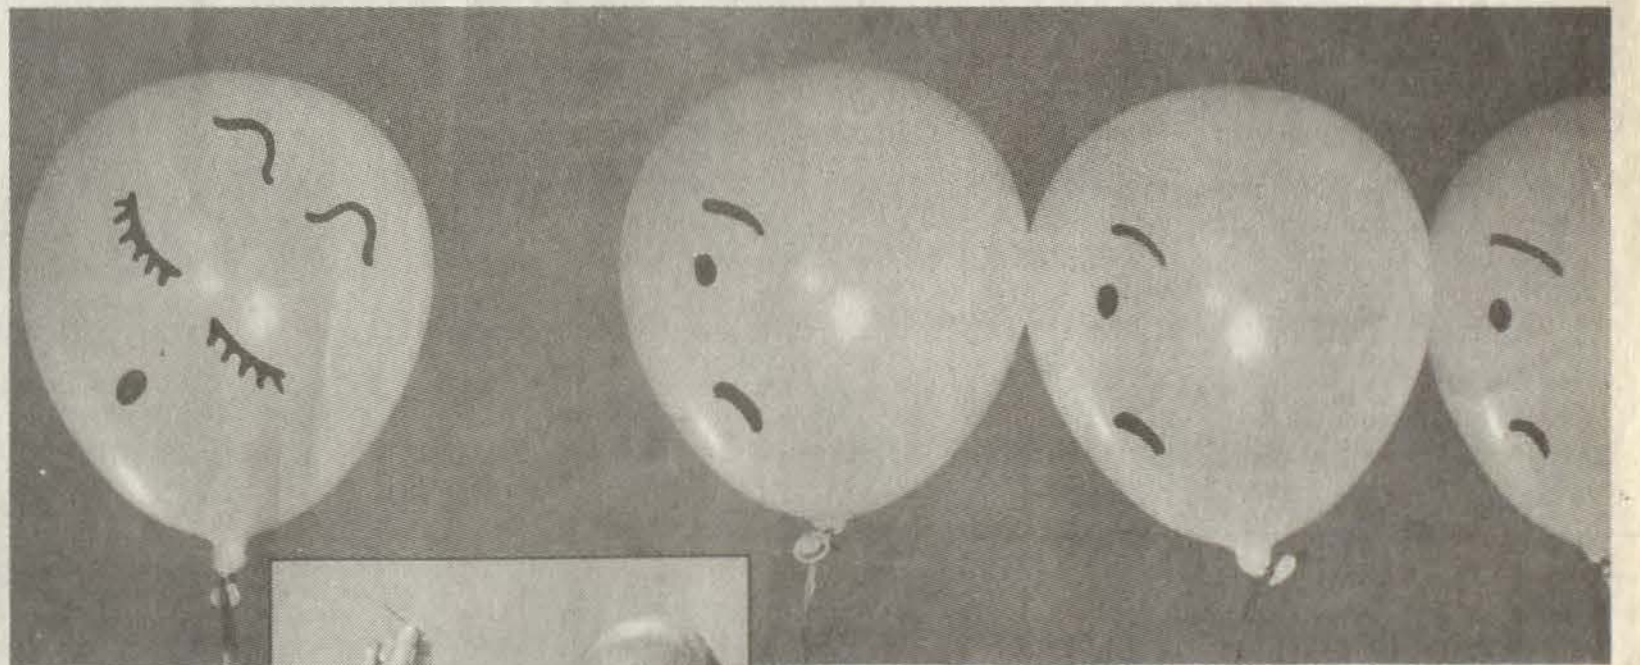

Rite Aid officials "have said they will give job security for all employees," Herrin said. The store employs eight workers, he said.

Herrin originally opened his pharmacy 15 years ago on Court Street in downtown Prestonsburg. He was joined a year later by pharmacist Cloyd Johnson. They moved to Highlands Plaza 9-1/2 years ago, Herrin said.

Herrin would not disclose the amount of the transaction.

State, Local Unemployment Down; But Don't Break Out Champagne

The good news is the state's unemployment rate for 1988 was the lowest during this decade. The state Cabinet for Human Resources released its year-end figures Monday showing that last year's average rate of 7.9 percent is the lowest unemployment rate since 1979.

The bad news is that while the Floyd County jobless rate is lower than it has been in several years, it still is almost 5 percent above the state average, according to figures supplied by the local office of the Department for Employment Services.

Tom Hereford, director of the local employment office, said that the 12.5 percent rate of unemployment for Floyd County workers "is an improvement for us, but it still reflects a real problem."

"It's kind of like choking on a gnat," Hereford said. "We may be on the upswing, but we're not well yet."

Hereford said that the high unemployment rate in Floyd and other Eastern Kentucky counties is offset by extremely low rates in some central Kentucky counties, such as Woodford, where, he said, as few as 2 percent of the labor force is unemployed.

The local year-end average, he said, includes a high of 14.9 percent unemployed in May, as well as a low of 9.7 percent in December when temporary Christmas jobs may have improved the statistics.

Hereford said his office placed "a lot" of unemployed persons last year, but most were in fast food and retail sales positions. The majority of these types of jobs, he said, are part-time and pay minimum wage.

"Certainly, we would like to see more full-time placements," he said.

The Floyd County rate is more than twice what Hereford considers a "healthy" unemployment rate of six percent.

The Cabinet for Human Resources in Frankfort attributed the drop in the state unemployment rate to the recruitment of the Toyota automobile manufacturing plant in Scott County and related smaller industries, according to wire service reports.

Saturday Snow Signals Shoveler

Jonathan Carroll of Wheelwright spent part of Saturday shoveling snow for neighbors after an early morning snow covered the southern part of Floyd County. Prestonsburg and environs escaped the white scourge while the Wheelwright area received two to three inches of snow. The line of precipitation cut through the county around Martin, with the snow getting heavier farther south into Pike, Knott and Perry counties. Because of the wetness of the snow, roads were fairly clear, and most evidence of the morning snowfall was gone by late afternoon. Carroll is a seventh grader at W.D. Osborne Elementary.

As Simple As It Gets

Now that prospective voters don't have to go to the courthouse to register to vote, this new voter registration form simplifies the process considerably, according to Floyd County Clerk Carla R. Bolton. In addition to being simpler, the new form has a couple of features that assist the clerk's office and help protect voter rights. Voters may now indicate if they need permanent assistance in voting, which alerts the election workers to needs of voters in their precincts. Also, the stub on the right of the form gives registrants a receipt, indicating that they have registered. The person registering the potential voter must sign the receipt and give it to the newly registered voter. If the person doing the registering forgets to turn in the voter registration form, Bolton said the voter has proof of registration. On election day, the voter can bring the receipt to the Clerk's office to validate eligibility if the voter's name does not appear on the precinct roster.

Registration At Polls Could 'Set State Back 20 Years,' Says Bolton

A bill under consideration by the US Senate would "set Kentucky back 20 years" in terms of elections, according to Floyd County Clerk Carla R. Bolton.

For federal elections only, the bill proposes allowing voters to register to vote on the day of the election, said Bolton, who recently attended a meeting in Frankfort of the County Clerks Legislative Committee. US Senator Wendell Ford met with the group to hear their comments on the proposed legislation.

Bolton said passage of the legislation would undo the progress that has been made in the state's attempts to reform the election process. As it is proposed, the bill has no safeguards against a person registering and voting in several districts or counties in the same election, she said.

With election day registration, poll workers would not be able to check on whether the voter has already attempted to vote in another area, as is now possible with the state's "on-line" computer system, the clerk said.

Also of concern to the county clerks, Bolton said, is another section of the bill which makes voter registration a part of the driver's license application. The hitch, she said, is in the fact that 16-year-olds may get a driver's license, but cannot vote until they are 18. Thus, young drivers may not register until their driver's licenses are renewed four years later.

Sen. Ford advised the clerks that they will have to compromise on some parts of the federal bill if they wish to get rid of the election day registration section, which, Bolton said, is the most objectionable.

The compromise, she said, will likely come in the clerks' accepting the bill's proposal for a standard, nationwide poll closing time. To align the Eastern time zone, in which Kentucky falls, with western zones, local polls will have to stay open until 9 p.m. on federal election days.

Bolton said Floyd County polls will still have to open at 6 a.m. to allow citizens to vote before going to work, making for 15 hours of open polls.

"It will be a long day," Bolton said, "but we (county clerks) agreed to compromise on that issue."

Underground Storage Tank Workshop Slated

A workshop on new regulations of the US Environmental Protection Agency concerning underground storage tanks is being sponsored by Hazard Community College, Friday at Hazard Appalachian Regional Medical Center.

According to an HCC news release, the workshop is designed for persons who operate or work with underground storage tanks, such as gas station and coal company operators, funeral home directors, building inspectors, engineers, architects, city officials, petroleum distributors and firefighters.

A representative of the EPA's Office of Underground Storage Tanks will be among the speakers, along with state officials.

More information is available from the HCC Business and Industry Technical Assistance Center, 439-5856.

Clarification

Albert O. Gibson, recently listed in district court news, and Dorothy Branham, a witness in the case, were ordered by the judge to stay five miles away from each other.

Branham and Susie Wills, a witness in a related case, are also to stay five miles away from each other, the judge ordered.

Prestonsburg Council Meets Monday, Feb. 27

Kentucky The Only State To Retain Jailer's Position

By Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor

Trivia buffs will be interested to know that Kentucky is the only state that has jailers, as such. Most states assign the responsibility of keeping the county jail to the sheriff's office.

A controversy surrounding the question to have or not have a county jailer goes back at least to the 1890 constitutional convention, when the faction in favor of the position of jailer won out.

While the need for a separate elected office remains debatable, in Floyd County, at least, the jailer does have a job to perform. Some Kentucky counties have ceased to maintain jails, resorting instead to contracting with other counties or regional jail facilities for incarceration of their prisoners. Many of these counties continue to elect a jailer even when the position is obsolete.

Regardless of the scope of his responsibilities, the only qualifications for the jailer's job are the same as most other elected county officials. The candidate must be 24 years old, a resident of Kentucky for two years, and a resident of the county for one year.

"Each county jailer has custody, rule and charge of the county jail and all persons in the jail," according to the Legislative Research Commission's Duties of Elected County Officials.

Simply put, if the county jail were a motel, the jailer would be the innkeeper. State law mandates that the jail "be kept comfortable, warm, clean and free from vile odors," and that "prisoners confined in the jail must have sufficient bed clothing."

The jailer is also responsible for seeing that the inmates are adequately fed; in the case of Floyd County, this means the jailer hires a cook and assistant cook.

In addition to these helpers, the jailer employs a matron and assistant matron, particularly to work with female prisoners, and seven deputies. The staff is required to maintain a facility that is open 24 hours a day, seven days a week with an inmate capacity of 50 men and 10 women—who are seldom happy to be there.

Although the local jail's primary role is to house county prisoners, it also holds state and federal prisoners, as needed, on a fee basis. Until 1985, the jailer was a fee officer, much like the sheriff and county clerk, but now the fees brought in by serving state and federal courts goes back to the county for the jail budget.

The jailer is responsible for preparing the jail budget, including estimated expenses and revenues, for approval by the fiscal court. He must also make monthly reports to the fiscal court on the budget status, condition of the jail and data on the prisoners.

The state corrections cabinet requires jailers to take a basic training course in the first year of office, as well as annual training courses sponsored by the cabinet. According to the Legislative Research Commission, the fiscal court is also required to "establish education and training requirements" for the jailer's deputies.

The Floyd County jailer's salary is the allowable state maximum: $34,860-plus. He also receives a $300 monthly allowance from the state.

Minor Accidents Are Reported

In an accident on Friday, no injuries were sustained and no citations were issued, according to Officer Roy Roberts of the Prestonsburg Police Department.

A vehicle driven by Donna Bradford, 38, of David was hit in the rear end by a vehicle driven by Kevin Dotson, 18, of Prestonsburg. Both vehicles were traveling north on North Arnold Avenue.

Bradford had a passenger, Velta Hall. Dotson had passengers, Jimmy Marcum and Brandy McDonald.

Both parties had insurance. In a separate accident on Wednesday, Warren Johnson, a witness to the accident, informed police officers that a brown and white truck hit the vehicle of Rhonda Heinze of Prestonsburg while attempting to park in the Food City parking lot, Officer Ralph Frasure said.

The driver of the truck was Danny Newsome of Melvin.

No citations were issued. Following an accident near the Holiday Inn on Tuesday, Feb. 14, Sue Nairn of Prestonsburg was treated at Highlands Regional Medical Center and released.

Nairn lost control of her vehicle while attempting to avoid another vehicle, said Cpt. G. Hall. She then crossed the median and hit a vehicle driven by Lisa Haynes of Mousie.

PSC Grants Requests To Floyd Utility Firms

The Kentucky Public Service Commission decided on two cases involving Floyd County utilities recently.

David Water District was granted a limited deviation from regulations regarding water storage requirements, contingent on its filing a firm agreement with its supplier by Feb. 28.

A purchased gas adjustment was granted to Equitable Gas Co. in Floyd and nine other counties. The adjustment is to reflect a $103,228 increase in wholesale costs from Equitable's supplier, Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co. The average annual increase per residential customer is $21.60, effective Feb. 12, subject to refund due to the suppliers' rates being subject to refund at the Federal Energy Regulatory Commission.

Other counties included in the Equitable adjustment are Johnson, Knott, Lawrence, Leslie, Letcher, Magoffin, Martin, Perry and Pike.

Bobcats Avenge Earlier Loss To Belfry, 79-67

By Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was senior night at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse at Betsy Layne Saturday, as the Belfry Pirates came to town to provide the opposition.

The senior basketball, baseball, cheerleaders, managers and band members were given a special recognition by the school. A plaque was presented to Lady Cats coach, Karen Henry, by the Lady Cats basketball team.

This night was special in another way, as senior Duran Newsome poured in 26 points — to lead the Bobcats to a 79-67 victory over the Belfry Pirates. The victory enabled the Bobcats to avenge a loss to Belfry in the Pikeville Invitational tournament earlier this season.

Betsy Layne raced out to a 7-0 lead in the first quarter on a three-pointer by Keith Hall, a lay up by Hall and two technical free throws by Newsome. Belfry came back to cut the lead down to one point, 17-16, as Betsy Layne held a two-point lead at the end of the first period, 19-17.

Belfry's Mike Hatfield hit an eight-foot jumper to tie the score, 19-19, at the opening of the second quarter. Baskets by Newsome, Earl Lawson, and Sam Stewart put Betsy Layne back on top by six, 25-19. With 46 seconds remaining in the half, Betsy Layne led by 12 points, 36-24. A basket by Chris Lafferty made it 36-26 at the end of the first half.

Belfry outscored the Bobcats, 16-13, in the third stanza to cut Betsy Layne's lead to seven, 49-42.

A three-pointer and two free throws at the opening of the fourth quarter put Betsy Layne up by 12 again, 54-42, with 7:25 to go. A goal by Barry Hamilton, a free throw by Stewart and a basket by Doug Willett moved the Bobcats out to their biggest lead, 59-44. The Pirates then went on a 14-6 run to cut the Bobcat lead to six, 71-65, with 1:02 remaining. Two free throws by Stewart, four charity shots by Hall and a bucket by Craig Hunter gave the Betsy Layne squad a 79-67 victory.

"In spots tonight, we looked as good as any team I've coached here at Betsy Layne," Junior Newsome said.

What happened to the 15 point lead early in the third period?

"We became disorganized," 6'5" junior center Sam Stewart said. "We made some mistakes."

Practices for the Bobcats have been going well. "We had three of the best practices we've had all year," assistant coach Keith Henry said. "I knew we were going to play good tonight."

Hall is having to play with a heavily-wrapped leg.

"Hall pulled a hamstring," Newsome said. "It's not serious, just precautionary."

Coach Newsome was elated over his team avenging an earlier loss to Belfry.

"We had just played in the Hazard Invitational then came to Pikeville to play Belfry and our team was tired," Newsome explained.

"We're not thinking about Wheelwright or McDowell right now," junior Larry Hall said. "We've got Knott County and Virgie to play yet."

Betsy Layne goes to 18-8 overall and will play Virgie Friday night at Betsy Layne.

Newsome's 26 points led the Bobcats. Hall tossed in 20 points, and Stewart netted 11.

Keepers!

By Chris Altman

Last week's column discussed the pH of water and how it affects fish of all species. This week, I'll expound on that, and tell you how to use pH to improve your fishing.

But first, here's a quick review of last week's column. pH refers to the acidity or alkalinity of the water, and it is measured on a scale of 1 through 14. A reading of 7 is neutral, while one of less than 7 indicates acidic water, and a pH greater than 7 tells you the water is alkaline.

pH plays a major role in the fish's ability to extract oxygen from the water. The fish are most active and breathe most effectively in a pH of 7.5 to 8.5, thus this is their preferred range. In water with a pH below 7 or above 9, fish become stressed and are difficult to catch.

pH is generally highest at the surface and decreases gradually as you go deeper. The pH in a lake can change rapidly. Factors such as the intensity of the sunlight and rain exert a great influence on the pH of the water.

Without question, pH is among the most critical variables with which an angler must contend. In fact, many professional fishermen believe that pH is the most crucial factor when trying to locate fish.

The only practical way to determine the pH of the water is with a pH meter. These rather advanced electronic units accurately show the pH in tenths of degrees. By dropping the probe at one-foot intervals, you can gauge the pH of the water from surface to bottom. Use the meter to eliminate all of the water with a pH below 7 and above 9, and all of the water below the pH breakline.

During the winter months, when the lake is not stratified, surface pH is a prime consideration. In cold months, lakes normally have a low pH, usually less than 7.5. Because the lake is not stratified (divided into layers of decreasing water temperature) you can generally base your fishing decisions on the pH at the surface. If the pH throughout the lake is below 7, you should fish where the surface pH is highest. Concentrate your efforts at the depths where structure is best and where the fish should be found at this time of year.

While fishing with Basil Bacon last week, I watched him use a pH meter to eliminate miles and miles of unproductive water. We fished waters with surface pH less than 7, but could not get a strike. When Basil finally located water with a pH of 7, we began catching fish. We then fished areas which were identical to that one in nature, depth and water color, but had a poor pH — and did not get a single strike!

During the warmer months, when the lake is divided into distinct layers, sub-surface pH is much more crucial. At that time, you are seeking the point where pH changes most rapidly. As you lower the probe, the pH will generally drop slowly. But at some point, you will notice a more rapid drop in pH. That point is called the pH breakline, and it is one of the most important aspects of modern-day fishing.

Basil Bacon, an 18-year veteran B.A.S.S. tournament pro, has been studying pH and its effects on fish for many years. As a result, he has learned to use a pH meter to greatly improve his tournament winnings.

"During the warmer months of the year, a pH meter can solve one of fishing's most difficult determinations — knowing how deep to fish. By lowering the probe a foot at a time and paying attention to the readings, you can pinpoint the pH breakline," Bacon says. "That is where you should fish. Actively feeding fish will be found at that depth. There is no question about it, and you don't have to second guess the meter — simply fish at that depth."

Dick Healey, a pH wizard with Lake Systems Division (makers of pH meters and the Color-C-Lector), explains the phenomenon. "A reason for the existence of a pH cline (or breakline), and why it is a good depth

Lady Blackcats Lose Early Lead, Fall To PHS Lady Panthers, 59-53

Teresa Lockhart tossed in 24 points to lead the Pikeville Lady Panthers to a come from behind 59-53 basketball victory over the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats Monday night.

Prestonsburg looked sharp in the first quarter, jumping to a quick 9-2 lead on a three-pointer by Michelle Clemmons, another basket by Clemmons and baskets by Kathy Slone and Amy Hicks, to cause Pikeville to call an early time-out.

Five points by Slone, and baskets by Clemmons and Karen Frasure extended the Lady Blackcats lead to 11 points, 19-8, at the end of the period.

In the second quarter, Lockhart connected for 14 points to help Pikeville lead at the half, 30-29. Turnovers and missed free throws hurt Prestonsburg and allowed the Lady Panthers to outscore them, 22-10, in the second stanza.

Prestonsburg seemed to be slow in getting back on defense, as Pikeville caught them with their backs turned and went in for the easy baskets.

Frasure hit a three-pointer early in the third period after a basket by Pikeville's Candia Tackett, to tie the score at 32-32.

Lack of ball movement and eight points by Tackett and six by Lockhart, enabled Pikeville to take a 48-40 lead at the third step.

Prestonsburg, normally a good free throw shooting team, had trouble in hitting from the charity stripe, a missing eight free throws — including two front ends of one and one in the fourth stanza.

Pikeville had built its lead to 12 points, 56-44, with 4:50 to go. Baskets by Hicks, Slone and another three-pointer by Frasure and Prestonsburg had come back to within five, 56-51, with 2:21 to go.

The Lady Blackcats had opportunities to pull closer, but bad shot selections in the final minute allowed Pikeville to hold on and win by six, 59-53.

Lockhart led Pikeville with 24 points and Candia Tackett added 15 points.

Prestonsburg was led by Frasure with 20 points. Slone netted 13 and Clemmons tossed in 11 points.

We just fell apart in the second quarter, Clemmons said. "We didn't play well," she added. "We need to get it together before tournament time."

The Lady Blackcats fell to 12-11 overall. Prestonsburg shot just forty-four percent from the foul line, which is very uncharacteristic of their team.

Prestonsburg will host Lawrence County Thursday night, and Mullins will make a trip into town for the regular season final at the fieldhouse Saturday night.

Former BL Bobcat Invited To Tryouts By Tampa Buccaneers

By Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Carlos Reynolds, a 1984 graduate of Betsy Layne High School and a wide receiver and running back on the Bobcats football team, has been invited to the tryout camp of the Tampa Buccaneers at Tampa stadium on May 29.

Reynolds is the son of Dennis and Ossie Reynolds of Grethel.

Reynolds moved to Orlando, Fla. to pursue a career in professional wrestling. He wrestled in the Florida Championship Wrestling Federation for two years. Reynolds competed against wrestlers such as Wah Hoo McDaniels, Tommy "Wildfire" Rich and Buddy Landell. He was tag team partner with J.T. Southern and with Tommy Rich, against the Midnight Express and the Rock-N-Roll Express. Reynolds' first love has always been the Tampa Buccaneers.

"They have always been my favorite football team," Reynolds explains. "I've always wanted a chance to try out for them."

Reynolds was invited to the Buccaneers' try outs after coach Ray Perkins overheard a conversation between Reynolds' girl friend's mother and a co-worker, who works at Disney World in Orlando, about Reynolds' desire to play for the Buccaneers.

"Coach Perkins asked her for my name and address," Reynolds said. "He invited me to come to their camp for a tryout."

Besides the tryouts he will be taking part in the four pre-season

Lady Blackcats Fall To Phelps

The Phelps Lady Hornets played host to Bridget Clay's Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats Friday night at Phelps, and the Lady Hornets, considered to be one of the best in the 15th region, handed the Lady Blackcats a 82-61 loss behind the 20-point performance of Becky Mullins.

"Even though we lost by 21 points, I feel we still played good basketball," Clay said. "It helps a team to play another team like Phelps."

Prestonsburg was able, behind Karen Frasure's 27 points, to close the gap on Phelps and had pulled to within eight points, 37-29, at the half.

"It's best to get your first look at a team like Phelps now," Clay explained. "You can be better prepared and know what to expect the next time you play them, especially in the regional tournament."

The Lady Hornets took a commanding lead in the third quarter as they pulled away to a 24 point advantage, 63-39.

"We were only down by eight at half time, Clay said. "We couldn't get it together in the second half."

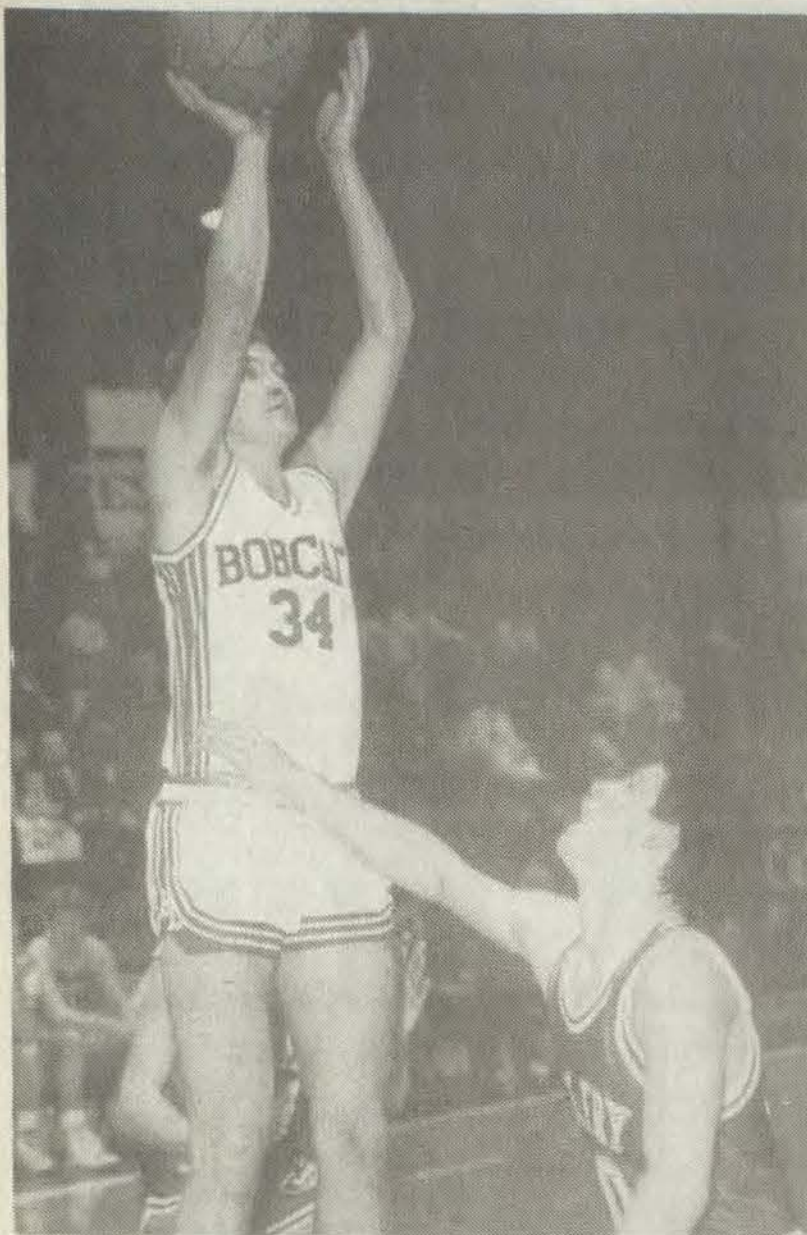

Phelps went on to capture the victory over the Lady Blackcats, 82-61.

57-48 victory over Morgan County.

Frasure hit 19 out of 22 freethrow attempts for 88 percent shooting at the line.

Clemmons added 12 points for the Lady Blackcats. Tina Conley led Morgan County with 10 points.

Clay's Lady Blackcats will host Lawrence County Thursday night, and Mullins will travel to Prestonsburg on Saturday.

Up For Two

Earl Lawson (34) hits a short jumper for two points against Belfry Saturday night at Betsy Layne. The Bobcats topped the Pirates, 79-67.

Frasure led Prestonsburg in scoring with 27 points, and Michelle Clemmons and Kathy Slone added 13 and nine points respectively.

Becky Mullins topped the Lady Hornets with 20 points. Marsha Manor added 17, and Allison scored 15. Chrystal Dotson tossed in 16 points.

Thursday night, Prestonsburg entertained Morgan County, a team out of the 16th region.

Karen Frasure, who was coming off a 41-point, 20-rebound outing against Millard, scored 37 points, 12 rebounds, five blocked shots and five steals to lead the Lady Blackcats to a

Lady Rebs Earn Twin Wins Over Area Squads

Bonita Compton's Allen Central Lady Rebels have much on their minds in the remaining days before the 58th District Tournament begins.

The condition of their leading scorer, Jo Ann Conn, is still in question. Conn has been nursing a badly sprained knee and has not been able to participate in the Lady Rebs games recently.

Monday night, other things occupied the minds of the Lady Rebels as June Buchanan out of the 13th region came to the J.H. Allen Fieldhouse for basketball action.

Sophomore guard Stacy Moore scored 11 points to lead the Lady Rebs to a 48-37 victory over June Buchanan.

Vanhose, who is averaging 39 points per game, was held to 24 points to lead the Lady Tigers.

Allen Central is now 10-9 overall. They will travel to Dilce Combs for their final regular season game Thursday night.

Both teams struggled in the first quarter as turnovers and the inability to hit shots dictated the tempo of the game. Buchanan led at the end of the first quarter, 9-8.

Allen Central came out in the second period with more intensity and pulled out to a four point halftime lead, 21-17.

It was all Allen Central in the third stanza as they outscored Buchanan 15-2 and went on to build their lead to 17 points, 36-19, at the end of the first half.

Buchanan made a run at the Lady Rebels behind the scoring of Gina Hall to close to within eight, 40-32, but Allen Central went on to take the contest 48-37.

Moore led Allen Central with 11 points. Steph Wallen and Teresa Gibson each tossed in 10 points.

Hall led Buchanan with 22 points.

In an earlier game, the Lady Rebels defeated the highly-regarded Paintsville Lady Tigers at Allen Central.

Cougars Trip Wheelwright, 73-60

By Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Monroe Jones' Wheelwright Trojans are looking for a little momentum going into the 58th District Tournament next week against McDowell.

"We're playing better basketball right now," Jones said. "We've played six games in nine days, and we're a little tired."

The Trojans played well in the first stanza against Elkhorn City Saturday night, claiming an early lead, 15-12, at the end of the first quarter.

Wheelwright picked up its intensity in the second period and built on their lead. Wheelwright held a 38-30 half time lead.

The second half was the downfall for the Trojans, as they managed to score only 12 points in the half.

Wheelwright held a five-point lead at the end of the third quarter, 47-42. The Trojans scored three points in the final period, but the Cougars outscored Wheelwright 19-3, to take the 61-50 win.

"We won four of our last six games," Jones said. "We could have been six and zero. We lost a close one at Millard."

Senior forward Craig Martin, 6'2" led the Trojans in the losing cause with 14 points. Bobby Hood, Brad Compton, and Vic Cotton each scored 11 points.

"Hood is out with the chicken pox," James said. "He will miss our last two games, and he won't be able to practice with us. We're hoping he will be able to play by tournament time."

In a game played Friday, Wheelwright surprised regional power Sheldon Clark 81-71 on the Cardinal's home floor.

"Our confidence is sky high," Jones says. "After a win over Sheldon Clark on their home floor, it has to really be a confidence booster for our players."

Hood scored 26 points to lead a balanced scoring attack for Wheelwright, as senior Craig Martin tossed in 21 points, and Chad Hall and Todd Jackson netted 12 and 10 points respectively.

Brad Compton, who drew the defensive assignment on the Cardinal's all-stater Keith Hale, pulled down 15 rebounds and held Hale to 25 points. Hale had burned the nets for 54 points previously at Wheelwright.

Chad Hall led the Trojans with 20 points. Craig Martin added 18 and Brad Compton tossed in 16.

Wheelwright now stands at 11-13 overall and will travel to Dorton on Friday night, and visit Wolfe County Saturday night.

"We've beaten Dorton twice this year," Jones said. "We lost to Wolfe County earlier."

Keepers

to fish has to do with the water clarity and how deep the sunlight can penetrate. The sun causes photosynthesis in the phytoplankton (green water vegetables), and this causes the pH to rise. The zoo plankton are there to feed on the green phytoplankton, the baitfish come there to feed on the zoo plankton, and the feeding gamefish come there to feed on the baitfish. In essence, you have an entire food chain congregated at the pH breakline. You can find fish deeper than the pH breakline, but they won't be feeding fish."

In summation, you can use a pH meter to eliminate poor, unproductive water with a pH less than 7, greater than 9, and all of the water below the pH breakline. If the entire lake seems to have a pH below 7, look for the highest pH and fish there.

If the entire lake has a pH above 9, look for the lowest pH and fish there, and also fish fairly deep (remember, pH generally drops from surface to bottom).

Lake Systems, a Missouri-based company which is probably most recognized for the production of the Color-C-Lector, is the only company producing pH meters nationwide. The most popular unit is undoubtedly the Combo-C-Lector. This nifty piece of electronic wizardry, which sells for less than $100, combines a pH meter, a temperature probe, and a Color-C-Lector (which tells you the color fish can see best) all rolled into one unit. This hand-held meter utilizes a 50 foot cord (marked at 1 foot intervals) which is attached to a weighted probe. You can use it to locate pH breaklines, surface pH, surface temperature, thermoclines, lure colors to use, and a host of vital fishing information.

The more advanced Multi-C-Lector is a permanent unit which is attached to your boat. The information panel mounts on the console while the remote probe unit mounts on the transom. Basically, this fascinating unit performs all of the functions of the previously mentioned Combo-C-Lector (and many others as well), but it does it all automatically. The probe is raised and lowered by a motor controlled from the information panel on the console. You can raise and lower the probe with a touch of a button, and then read the information given on the panel. You can also set the unit to perform an automatic search through a selected depth range. The probe will drop at one foot intervals until it reaches the selected depth (giving you pH, color, and temperature information at the location of the probe as it falls) and then raises automatically.

When the search is complete the information panel will tell you the location of the pH breakline, the depth of the thermocline, the water clarity through the depths, the color which fish can most easily see, etc., etc. The Multi-C-Lector is a truly fascinating piece of modern day technology.

Obviously, the factors affecting fish and their behavior are all interrelated and quite complicated. A pH meter is just one more way to pinpoint the location of gamefish, and thus improve your fishing success.

Because of limited time and space, these articles over the past two weeks simply hit the high spots of utilizing pH. If you would like more information on the subject, as well as information on the pH units discussed here, I suggest you contact Dick Healey at Lake Systems. At your request, he will be happy to send you several informative papers on the subject of pH, fish location, and color perception in fish. Write Dick Healey, Lake Systems Division, 315 E. South Street, Mt. Vernon, MO 65712.

P'burg Junior Pro: Not Just A Basketball Program

The Prestonsburg Junior Pro basketball program was a program that was discussed over and over again. Should we, or should we not? The decision was made, and in 1988 the Prestonsburg Junior Pro Program was organized.

"We discussed it for five years. Finally, I said if we're going to do it, let's do it," program president Dickie Hall said. "We saw the Martin program and it's success, and Johnny Mayo, who is a good friend of mine, has helped us a lot.

"It took us five to six years to get started," Hall explained. "We started with 90 kids last year, and this year we have 140."

The Prestonsburg program has six training league teams, four junior varsity and four varsity teams.

The games are played on Saturdays at the high school gym from 8:30 a.m. until all games are completed. Like the McDowell league, the program is coordinated by a board of directors. Cecil Lester is the vice-president, and Pat Willis acts as secretary and treasurer for the league.

Robert May, principal at Prestonsburg High School, and Coach Gordon Parido also serve on the board of directors.

"Mr. May and Coach Parido have given us tremendous support," Hall said. "Whatever they can do for Harold playing in our league, and we also have kids from Auxier and Allen taking part."

The teams are named after professional teams such as the Sonics, Pistons and Lakers.

This is the first year that the Prestonsburg league has been sanctioned with the National Junior Pro Federation.

"We stress discipline in our us, they are willing to do."

Attendance at the games will return from 125 to 175 people.

The league is supported financially by charging $250 for each sponsor, plus the revenue from the concession stands.

The money is used to outfit each team in uniforms and furnish basketballs. They also pay the expenses of their all-star teams in tournament play on the state level.

Although they will have no local tourney this year, league members plan to have one next year.

"We started late this year," Hall said. "We try and not to interfere with other county games, such as grade school ball games. Next year, we plan to start earlier, so we can have our own tournament.

"There are no girl leagues because the girls don't seem interested in playing," Hall added.

"We're Prestonsburg first," he explained. "We do have a team from league," Hall explained. "No arguing, no cussing, and we have no problems with the fans."

Recently, the league had the opportunity to display its talents at half time of the game between Prestonsburg and Greenup County.

Parents donate their time as coaches in the Junior Pro program.

Mike Potter, who coaches the Pistons, explains his part as a coach.

"We'll practice twice a week for about two hours each time," Potter stated. "I stress to the players to listen, be alert, be there and how to act and conduct one self as a young adult," he adds. "We teach them sportsmanship, no fighting."

What about parental support?

"The parents have been excellent," he said. "They back me all the way."

"This program is a tremendous help to kids," he said. "It helps them to develop their skills," Potter adds. "If the boys want to excel, it's up to them to learn."

"The program also teaches the players to get along and respect each other."

"Our kids learn to be competitive," Hall adds. "To be good losers, but not like to lose. We will stop play to show our younger players their mistakes," Hall explained.

Jan Wells, a junior pro mother whose 11-year-old son, Zack, plays on the junior varsity Lakers, expressed her feelings about the program.

"This is a wonderful opportunity for the kids to learn a lot about basketball," she said. "I really enjoy it. It's worth getting up early on Saturday mornings to come to the games."

What about having to take her son to practices?

"It doesn't bother me," she said.

"There, he learns the fundamentals of the game."

Mike Hatfield and his wife

Peggy, whose son Mike also plays for the Lakers, really likes the program.

"Mike has improved a lot his first year," Hatfield said. "The coaches help those that are not the best players."

Hatfield's wife, Peggy, explains, "It's good for the boys, and it gives them experience."

Sherry Shepherd from Auxier, whose son Kevin plays on the junior varsity Bulls, tells of her son's first year:

"Kevin has improved 100 percent," she states. "He played in school ball last year, but he didn't get to play much. Here, he gets to participate in the games."

The program has a way of giving players more confidence.

"Kevin was insecure at first," Shepherd said. "Now he has more confidence in himself. It's just great that the coaches donate their time to teach other kids," she said.

Prestonsburg Junior Pro basketball is just another example of the popularity of the program. It is growing in numbers every year.

Surgery with the light touch.

There was a time when surgery was, to say the least, discomfoting. To say the most, traumatic.

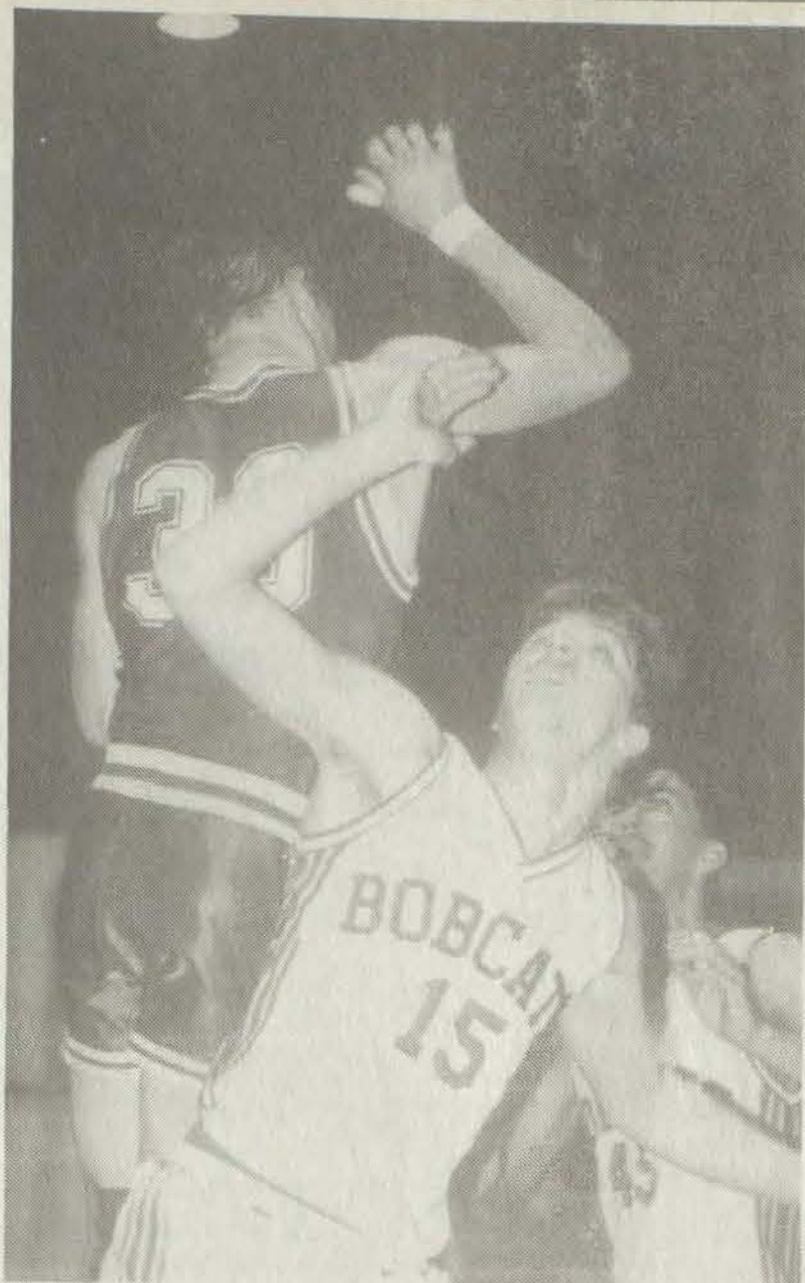

Central Baptist Hospital just helped change that. Now, many gynecological, thoracic, vascular, urological, neurological, plastic and other surgical procedures can be performed with the use of a safe, precision surgical laser. Its use means less pain and blood loss. And, in many cases, outpatient surgery. In most, a quicker recovery and a more comfortable one.

If you or a member of your family should need surgery, ask your doctor about laser surgery at Central Baptist Hospital.

Once you see the light, you will never feel the same about surgery again. Call Central Baptist Hospital at 275-6665 for more information.

Floyd Basketball: The Best There Is, Part II

At the beginning of the basketball season in November, the women's teams at the five high schools were filled with excitement and expectation.

This season, the Lady Rebels of Allen Central had set their sights on a trip to the regional tournament.

"We want to get to the regionals; that's our goal," Lady Rebel mentor Bonita Compton said. "We don't want to get beaten in the first game of district."

The Lady Rebels have fallen on some hard times of late. Jo Ann Conn, their leading scorer, is still hampered with a badly sprained knee. Conn's status for the district tournament is the big concern for Allen Central.

"We hope that Conn is able to play and play at full strength," Compton said. "We'll see."

Besides Conn, Allen Central has a very talented ball club. But like other clubs, they look good in spots and there is a lot of inconsistency about them. Sophomore Stacy Moore gives the Lady Rebels the outside shooting they need, even of the three-point variety. Senior Steph Wallen plays a strong inside game, and adds to the team's rebounding strength, while Tiff Click and Darnella Bradley are also talented players. If they put it all together, Allen Central could take it all.

Karen Henry's Betsy Layne Lady Cats, labeled "not a conference contender," surprised a lot of people by winning their second straight conference title with a 7-1 record.

Brenda Hamilton, a junior guard, is the leading scorer for the Betsy Layne team, and works with senior Danita Johnson to lead the team — a task which was expected of them at the start of the season.

While others may have had doubts about the Lady Cats' ability to win, the players felt different.

"We were determined to prove others wrong about us," Johnson said recently.

The Lady Cats are not without their "rising stars", as sophomore Nancy Shepherd has really come into her own to help lead the Lady Cats.

"My confidence is growing," Shepherd said.

The Lady Cats will be trying for their second district title come March 1. With their pressure full court defense and the speed of Hamilton and the three-point threat of Johnson from the 19'9" mark, Betsy Layne has to be labeled a tournament favorite.

First-year coach Cassandra Keathley of the McDowell Lady Daredevils has turned things around for the women's program there.

The Lady Daredevils are led in scoring by senior Gloria Mullins, a 5'4" guard who likes to take the three-pointer and is a bona fide threat to score from outside.

McDowell is a young squad. Keathley has high expectations for her team next year. Their supporting cast is made up mostly of freshmen and eighth graders, promising a bright outlook for future teams at McDowell.

Lori Bryant, a 5'8" junior forward, plays a strong game underneath and can also hit the short jumpers. Tish Slone, another senior, adds to the inside game as well as strength on the boards.

McDowell could be a sleeper in the district this year. If they play a full 32 minutes with consistency, they could pull off some upsets.

"We'll play good for half a game, and then let down," Keathley said. "We just need to be more consistent."

When fans think about Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats basketball, they think of 5'9" Karen Frasure, a multi-talented basketball player that has several colleges knocking at her door.

Frasure is the Lady Blackcats' leading scorer and is seventh in the state, averaging 25.4 points per game. Frasure is also averaging in double figures in rebounds at 12 per game.

"Karen is more than a team scorer," coach Bridget Clay has said of her star player. "She's a team leader."

Sophomore Kathy Slone, who is averaging 12.8 points per game, is another talented player for the Lady Blackcats. Slone's style of play complements Frasure, getting the ball to her on the break. Slone is strong on the boards and is the team's best defensive player.

"We have won some of our games this year because of the defensive play of Slone," Clay says.

Michelle Clemmons, although only 5'3", is the team's ball handler and play maker.

Along with Betsy Layne, Prestonsburg also has to be considered a tournament favorite, after finishing second in the conference with a good 6-2 record.

Every tournament has to have a dark horse, and perhaps that's the title the Wheelwright Lady Trojans carry into this year's district tournament. Finishing last in the conference with a 1-7 record, the Lady Trojans still have something going for them this year — Coach Judy Eversole. Eversole is known as a strong tournament coach.

Betsy Layne's Danita Johnson recognized this in her assessment of the Lady Trojans.

"Judy will have her team ready for the tournament," Johnson said.

The Lady Trojans are led by Jedon Hood, a junior forward, April Bradford, a junior forward, and freshman Becky Allen.

This is not an unfamiliar position for the Lady Trojans. Last year they knocked off the number one seed and advanced to the regional tournament. Eversole is hoping for a repeat of last year's tournament.

"I believe we can do it again," Eversole said. "The team believes it can."

Women's basketball in the 58th district has provided fame with some exciting basketball this season. With the many young players coming up, there is reason to believe more exciting women's basketball is yet to come.

Even though the Frasures, Johnsons, Wallens and others may not be playing here next year, they have helped provide fans with some great basketball. To them, we wish the best, and appreciate their contributions.

Next week "Tournament Break-down" — A look at how each team fared against the others.

Why? Why? Why?

This day has been cold and hectic, you're almost glad to finally see it come to an end. You have been working very hard and have become exhausted. It's beginning to get dark outside and you look forward to lying in your cozy warm bed. Suddenly, the telephone rings out, there on the other end is a frantic voice screaming "My house is on fire!" You jump to your feet, scrambling toward the door, as someone else diligently dials other numbers waking other firefighters. You dread the cold car and really don't want to go, but deep inside you know that you must. As you race down the road you notice that the rest of the community is still asleep. Your mind races at the thought of someone in need of help, so you push on. Finally at the scene of the fire, you see the rest of your fire fighting family which you have learned to love and respect. They are more than friends, they're people of iron willing to sacrifice whatever it takes to save a human life. After a long struggle with danger and heat, you return home with a sense of pride. For you were fortunate this time because there was no loss of lives.

Firefighting isn't all guns and glory. For sometimes you may not make it home in time for sleep. But yet, you have the satisfaction of knowing that you have the love of both the community and of the person you saved.

It seems that our small community has divided into two separate parts. Each accusing each other of vile and vicious rumors. If each person would funnel his energy into a common cause, wouldn't it make our community invincible? It takes a lot of small parts to make a whole; clear thinking, gratitude, labor, a helping hand, and most important, a common enemy. FIRE!! Some people are saying that they don't need the fire department. How about the ones that do? Is it going to take another death to convince these people of how desperately we are needed?

McDowell Rolls Over Millard

Coach Cassandra Keathley is still looking for some consistency from the McDowell Lady Daredevils as the district tournament gets ever so close.

McDowell played host to the Lady Mustangs from Millard Monday night, and junior Lori Bryant scored 18 points (all in the second half) to lead the Lady Daredevils to their 12th victory of the season, a 57-43 rout of the Lady Mustangs.

Bryant has been on the illness list since she's had the flu.

"Lori's been sick," Keathley said. "She still played a good game for us."

McDowell fell behind early as Millard rolled out in front to take a 15-10 first quarter lead.

Keathley wasn't pleased with the way her team performed.

"I feel they could have put forth a better effort," Keathley said. "They thought all they had to do was show up."

McDowell trailed at the half by four, 24-20.

In the third period, Keathley brought her "B" team in, and they outscored Millard 16-8 and gave McDowell the lead at the end of the third stanza, 36-32.

"Our 'B' team got us the lead," Keathley explained. "They put forth an effort."

In the fourth quarter McDowell outscored the Lady Mustangs 21-11 and picked up their 12th victory against 11 defeats.

Bryant's 18 points led McDowell in scoring. Gloria Mullins added 12 points.

Jody Lowe led the Lady Mustangs, and Anita West added 13 points.

McDowell improves to 12-11 overall, and will close out their regular season at Jenkins, Thursday night.

MILLARD 15 9 8 11 (43); Jody

Lowe, 7-0 4 18; Anita West, 6-0 1 13; Kay Lowe, 2-1 18; Angie Thacker, 1-0 2 4.

MCDOWELL 10 10 16 21 (57): Gloria Mullins, 5-0 2 12; Priscilla Crawford, 1-0 0 2; Kristi Pack, 1-0 0 2; Jenny Slone, 2-0 2 6; Kristini Bevins, 2-0 2 6; Lori Bryant, 8-0 2 18; Tish Slone, 1-0 1 3; Kathy McQuate, 2-0 0 4; Debbie Fannin, 1-0 0 2; Shelby Howell, 0-0 2 2.

"Kenny is the one that got me started in football," Reynolds said. "He wanted to play and dared me to go out for the team. I found out that I liked it, and played at J.M. Stumbo from 1977-80."

Reynolds has started running in the cold months to get his speed back.

"I'm in weight training," Reynolds said. "I've been swimming a lot, and doing some road work. Kenny is helping me and is really pushing me to get me in shape."

Reynolds is very confident in making the Buccaneers team.

"I believe I can make the team," Reynolds said. "I have the confidence that I can."

Lady Trojans Topple Feds Creek, 65-53

The Wheelwright Trojans won their fourth game of the season, as Jedon Hood scored 33 points to lead her squad to a 65-53 victory over Feds Creek Monday.

Wheelwright not only displayed its offensive ability, but its defense held Feds Creek to one lonely first quarter point. Wheelwright held a big lead at the end of the first period, 25-1.

The Lady Trojans then put their bench into the game, and Feds Creek outscored Wheelwright 18-8, but the Lady Trojans still held a comfortable 14 point half time advantage, 33-19.

"We're not out to embarrass any team," Coach Judy Eversole said. "We wanted our other players, who don't get to play much, get some playing time. They come to practice, so we want to play them, also."

Wheelwright was playing without one of its starting guards, Tahilita Hutton, who is out sick.

With the starters back in the game in the third quarter, Wheelwright was able to establish a 23-point lead at the end of the third stanza, 55-32.

Eversole sent the subs back into the game in the fourth quarter, and Feds Creek outscored them 20-10, but the Lady Trojans were able to win their fourth game of the season, 65-53, over Feds Creek.

Jedon Hood scored 33 points to lead the Lady Trojans. April Bradford added 16 points.

Fuller, Feds Creek sensational freshman, burned the nets for 42 points in the losing cause.

Last Thursday night Wheelwright traveled to M.C. Napier and lost by 20 points, 55-35. Jedon Hood scored 12 points to lead the Lady Trojans.

Smith had 17 points to lead Feds Creek. McIntosh and Baker each added 15 points each.

"We're playing better basketball," Eversole said. "We're looking to the tournament," she added. "We're hoping to pull off an upset."

Wheelwright is now 4-15 overall. The Lady Trojans will visit Mullins Thursday night and will host Dorton in the final game of the regular season on Monday night.

Sam Stewart of Betsy Layne goes for a slam against Belfry last week in the basketball action. Stewart was called for walking, but the Bobcats went on to win 79-67.

Angie, 38. Found houseware parties the ideal excuse to mix a blender of margaritas. But in a few years, it went from women friends to lowlifes and losers hanging around her home late into the night. Sometimes, her husband had to load up the kids and go midnight bar-hopping to find her.

Finally, he nailed up doors and windows to keep her out. In desperation, feeling she'd be dead within a year unless she got control of herself, Angie turned to CareUnit.

"I learned more about myself than I'd learned in a lifetime. For the first time, I feel good about myself."

Angie is now sober, and is rebuilding her relationship with her husband and two daughters.

Bassin' with the Pros

Bass Pros Give Lure Color, Spinnerbait Tips

In case you're still undecided whether or not the color of a lure has any bearing on your fishing success, ask BASS Masters Classic winner Guido Hibdon.

"I'm convinced it does," says the popular Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member. "I believe lure color is becoming more and more important, too, as bass receive harder and harder fishing pressure."

"Years ago when I was guiding every day on Lake of the Ozarks in Missouri, I noticed certain colors always seemed to bring better results than others in the clear water. The colors were normally blue, white and red."

"In muddy water, those colors did not work very well. Instead, brighter colors, such as black with lime or chartreuse added, consistently produced better."

Today, anglers have available to them a special probe that when lowered into the water tells anglers which lure fish can see best at the depth. It was developed by fisheries biologist Dr. Loren Hill of the University of Oklahoma after nine years of research and is widely used by anglers throughout the United States.

"I use the unit a lot now," says Hibdon, "because it gives me a short-cut to catching bass. Using the proper color lure isn't going to make bass bite, but it does fill in one more piece of the fishing puzzle we always have to solve."

Hibdon remarks times years ago when he fished lakes where bass would hit lures of any color. The same is not true on those lakes today, he says.

"Fishing pressure has caused bass to become much more selective," he explains. "I fully believe an angler has to key in on as many conditions as he can to be continually successful."

Not long ago Hibdon had another opportunity to see the importance of color in his lure choice. He was fishing a national bass tournament in Florida on a lake where he has traditionally fished a smoke-colored plastic jig with good success for years.

He tried it again this time, but without any luck, even though he knew he was putting the lure in front of bass. He could see the fish in the clear, shallow water.

"I checked the color monitor and it told me to switch to orange," Hibdon explains. "I did, and I caught 28 bass weighing more than 40-pounds."

"I think color, and other factors, such as proper pH, water temperature, and the availability of cover will all become more important in the years ahead and anglers everywhere will have to pay more and more attention to them."

HOW TO CHOOSE A SPINNERBAIT

For more than half a century anglers have been using spinnerbaits to catch largemouth and smallmouth bass, and indeed, many fishermen rate the lure as the best overall bass-catcher available.

Today's spinnerbaits, however, come in such a wide variety of styles and sizes that it can be difficult choosing the proper lure for the existing conditions.

"It's tough," says Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff member Tom Mann Jr., "because today spinnerbaits are designed for specific fishing situations. To be truly efficient, an angler needs to be familiar with those designs."

Most of the design differences are in the blades, Mann points out. Certain blades produce more flash or vibration than others.

"The elongated willow leaf blade creates a lot of flash in the water and looks like a baitfish," explains Mann. "The willow leaf is also excellent when fishing around grass or moss because it cuts through the vegetation very well."

"On the other hand, a teardrop shaped Colorado blade can be used more effectively through bushes, branches and other forms of cover. I call this type of spinnerbait a finesse lure, because it does not produce quite as much vibration or flash and is often retrieved more slowly than a willow leaf."

Some spinnerbaits have two blades, and these are called tandems. The blades aren't always the same type, either. One of Mann's favorite combinations features a larger willow leaf blade and a small Colorado blade. The overall lure weighs one-half ounce.

"Large willow leaf spinnerbaits don't always run straight," says the Evinrude pro. "The big blade produces so much lift the lure tends to roll over. The smaller Colorado blade helps counter-balance this and keeps the spinnerbait running true."

Spinnerbaits with two Colorado blades are often used when an angler wants to cover a lot of water in a hurry. The lure is retrieved quickly just below the surface along the edge of shallow cover.

Spinnerbaits can be used to bring bass up out of deep water, too, says Mann. Under these conditions, such as when bass may be suspended in flooded timber or holding along deep channels and ledges, an extra large single Colorado blade is used. It is retrieved slowly several feet below the surface.

"Weight is also important when choosing a spinnerbait," says Mann. "I normally use a one-half ounce model, but if I keep missing strikes because the bass aren't hitting well, I'll switch to a one-quarter ounce spinnerbait that I can retrieve slower but keep at the same depth."

"For deeper water, I use a spinnerbait weighing as much as a full ounce because it falls a little faster."

Veterans Questions And Answers

Question: I will complete VA's vocational rehabilitation program shortly. Can I draw additional subsistence while I'm receiving assistance with job placement?

Answer: Yes. A veteran who has completed his or her vocational rehabilitation program is entitled to subsistence allowance at the full-time rate for two months following completion of the program.

Question: I am an 80 percent service-connected veteran. I receive my compensation plus widow's pension benefits based on my husband's service. I received a notice from the VA stating I may be eligible for aid and attendance under my pension benefits. If I am eligible for A & A, and elect improved pension, how would this affect my pension?

Answer: Under improved pension, compensation is counted as income. The election may still be advantageous if you have large medical expenses, such as nursing home charges, which are deducted from total income to determine countable income for pension purposes. The VA will not accept an election of improved pension unless it is to your advantage.

Question: I am the widow of a Vietnam veteran who died as a result of a service-connected disability. My late husband never used his VA loan entitlement. Am I eligible for this benefit?

Answer: Yes, if you are not currently married. The widow of a veteran of World War II, or later period, who died as a result of service-connected causes is eligible for the home loan benefit.

Question: I am a former prisoner of war, but not have been rated as service-connected disabled by the VA. Am I entitled to VA dental care?

Answer: Yes. If your POW internment lasted 90 days or more, you are eligible for all needed dental care.

Question: My brother is incompetent and draws compensation benefits. He is not married and has no dependent children. When he was hospitalized recently, his benefits were terminated. Is this correct procedure?

Answer: If your brother's estate was in excess of $1,500, the law requires that his benefits be terminated while he was hospitalized since he is incompetent and has no dependents.

Of The Matter!

We are pleased to join the AMERICAN HEART ASSOCIATION in offering the following advice on how to recognize a heart attack . . .

Delay spells danger. When someone suffers a heart attack, minutes - especially the first few minutes - count. Know the signals!

1. Chest discomfort is the most common sign of a heart attack. It usually has the following characteristics.
  - What? Uncomfortable pressure, squeezing, fullness, tightness, or pain.
  - Where? In the center of the chest behind the breastbone. It may spread to either shoulder, the neck, the lower jaw, or either arm.
  - How Long? The discomfort of a heart attack will usually last longer than two minutes. It may come and go.

2. Other signs of a heart attack may include any or all of the following.
  - * Sweating
  - * Nausea
  - * Shortness of breath
  - * Weakness

3. However, many patients do not have any of the typical signs.
  - * The pain may not be severe.
  - * The person may not "look poorly" or have all the symptoms.
  - * In general, sharp, stabbing short twinges of pain (less than 10 seconds) are usually not signals of a heart attack.

In Sweet 16 Academic Showcase

Two County Teams To Advance To State

A total of 504 students from 76 high schools in the eastern part of Kentucky visited Morehead State University this week to participate in the last of four regional competitions for the 1989 Sweet 16 Academic Showcase.

While a number of Floyd County students were eligible to attend, few did, due to inclement weather, according to school officials.

Those placing at the regional meet were Christopher Comer, Ernest Croot III, Frank Davis and Keith Exley, earning fourth place in the computer division; and Doris Conn and Michael Collins of Allen Central High School, earning second place in the journalism advertising/promotion division.

The top four winners in each of the 19 academic categories will go to Lexington next month for the state finals, held at Transylvania University.

A total of 1,750 students from 187 high schools will have competed in the program statewide at the end of the Morehead regional, according to Marianne Blodgett, spokeswoman for the state's Sweet 16 Academic Showcase. The other three regionals were held at Eastern Kentucky University, Georgetown College and Murray State University.

Floyd County students eligible to participate in the regional competition, their grade and category, include:

Betsy Layne High School: Steven

C. Parsons, junior, art, two-dimensional; Leonard D. Stevens, junior, chess; Leigh A. Smith, junior, creative writing; Angela V. Coleman, senior, essay writing; Melissa A. Harmon, junior, instrumental music; Fred W. Conn, senior, math; Leigh A. Smith, junior, math; Victoria L. Taylor, senior, math; Kimberly A. Hamilton, junior, math; and Kristy J. A total of $75,350 in scholarships will be awarded on the state level, Blodgett said. First place individual winners will receive $2,000 in scholarships; second place, $1,200; third, $850; and fourth, $600. First place team winners will receive $1,350 each in scholarships; second, $950; third, $650; and fourth, $400. The scholarships can be used at any Kentucky post-secondary educational institution, she explained. High schools which have first place winners also receive $1,000 to be used for academic programs.

Money for the scholarships and other program costs come from private business donations and a televised auction in Lexington. The auction raised about $98,000 this year.

In the past three years, more than $200,000 in scholarships has been awarded to 182 students from 88 Kentucky high schools.

Categories of the competitions are art, three-dimensional and two-dimensional; music, vocal and instrumental; journalism, feature writing and advertising/promotion; English, creative writing and essay writing; speech; computer problem solving; math and chess.

The Academic Showcase was started in 1985 by Lexington Mayor Scotty Baesler to spotlight and reward academic skill and achievement.

David Seniors Visit Pikeville College

Pikeville College recently hosted 14 seniors from David School for a day on campus. "As all these students consider entering college in the fall, this gives them the opportunity to interact with the current college students, faculty and staff," said John Sanders, associate dean of admissions, financial aid and continuing education. David School seniors visiting PC were, front row from left, Tina Miller, Ella Pennington and Harmalena Leedy; second row, Marty Green, Lisa Pritchard, Jenny Carpenter and Kevin Nelson; third row, Dale Johnson, Keith Flannery and Terry Baize; back row, Perry Crider, Alex Johnson, Shane Maggard and William Marsillett.

Slone Wins Bee

Bethany Slone recently won the spelling bee at Wayland Elementary School. She also placed first in the Right Beaver Sectional Academic Governor's Cup competition. She is the daughter of Charles and Patricia Slone.

Jervis, McDowell Teachers Study Test Score Improvement

Larry Jervis, the Floyd County school district's psychometrician, visited several McDowell High School educators recently to discuss ways to improve students' scores on standardized tests.

Jervis and the teachers primarily studied the Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills (CTBS).

Mr. Hall, the principal at McDowell, and Jervis met with Bobbi Lynn Moore, Dulcinea Phipps, Lisa Anderson, Willie Elliott and the guidance counselor, J.O. Dingus.

Jervis presented computer data to show how this year's 10th grade students performed on last year's standardized test, and explained a computer system that will be used at some schools to help students improve their scores. One of the features of the computer program, said Jervis, is a question bank that can provide questions for practice in different skills areas. For example, said Jervis, questions can be provided to a teacher on facts versus opinions, and the teacher can use it in class to determine the mastery level of the students.

Teachers attending the meeting said they saw a need to use the skills with their lesson plans, and said they did not want to isolate the skills and teach them "in a vacuum."

The educators said the skills need to be integrated with the concepts and activities currently being taught.

The Corns Decision: Judge Agrees; Tells Legislators To Act

By Tom Parrish
(Fourth in a Series)

In his preliminary ruling, issued on May 31, 1988, Franklin Circuit Judge Ray Corns found unequivocally for the Council for Better Education.

"The General Assembly," declared the judge, "has failed to provide an efficient system of Common Schools throughout the state..."

Although the term "efficiency" includes the idea of "efficiency in the traditional economic sense, it is more far reaching when applied to education," wrote Corns. It meant, he said, that the system must be "adequate, uniform and unitary," requiring "substantial uniformity, substantial equality of financial resources, and substantial educational opportunity for all students." The school finance system, he said, is "unconstitutional and discriminatory."

The 66 property-poor districts had won a sweeping victory.

In his ruling, the judge announced that he would appoint a small select committee to suggest remedies for the problem of inadequate school funding. When legislative leaders reacted with some anger to what they regarded as an invasion by the judiciary into their territory, the judge declared, "Contrary to what some people think, I'm trying to be a help, not a hindrance." After all, he said, "it's up to the General Assembly to decide what they want to do."

But, of course, this May 31 opinion, and the final ruling to be issued after the advisory committee made its report, would call on the governor and the Legislature for some remedial action. (It was hardly surprising that the Legislature leaders appealed Corns' decision. The Governor and Superintendent of Public Instruction John Brock did not appeal. In fact, Brock reversed the position of his office as a defendant, and became a plaintiff.)

Carefully crafted to avoid undue ruffling of gubernatorial and legislative sensibilities, the committee's report, released Sept. 21, 1988, proved to be a cautious document.

It offered no explicit proposals for new taxes or new laws. It limited itself to discussing what the constitution requires, not how that requirement should be fulfilled. This approach pleased some observers, who felt that anything more precise would, as one editorialist said, "have given some legislators the opportunity to create a political smoke screen on the issue. They could and would have tried to hide behind a bogus issue of constitutional powers."

(But another writer expressed displeasure with this middle-of-the-road approach. Quoting a saying he attributed to Dr. Grady Stumbo, a former Kentucky human resources commissioner, the writer declared the "only thing you find in the middle of the road is yellow lines and dead possums.")

In any case, the committee enunciated three main principles: when taxpayers put forth the same effort, enough state money should be provided to ensure that they receive sufficient funds for an adequate school system; school districts that wish to provide more than the minimum level of funding must retain that option; and Kentucky must make sure that no child is deprived of education because of a lack of willingness on the part of his or her community. Clearly, these principles leave the Legislature with an array of options.

On Oct. 14, 1988, having digested the committee's thinking, Corns issued his final judgment, in which he declared that an efficient school system is "a tax-supported coordinated organization which provides a free, adequate education to all students throughout the state regardless of geographical location or local fiscal resources." If some schools are inadequate, he said, then the system is inherently inefficient.

An efficient system must be adequate and must possess substantial uniformity. Adequacy, however, does not constitute a limit on the aspirations of a school district; it is free to exceed the standard.

The judge could hardly have been more explicit. The next move was up to the governor and the Legislature. Since many senators and representatives agreed with Corns' views, battle lines were not clearly drawn between the judiciary and the Legislature. And, though not in precise terms, the governor expressed support for Corns' decision.

But even if the governor and Legislature should begin to move promptly toward implementation of the decision, and thereby call for new levels of taxes, they would have to take account of the fact that in the minds of many taxpayers across the Commonwealth, the very word "Frankfort" evokes images of favoritism and corruption—and that many citizens harbor a not altogether ill-founded belief that in the mountain counties, particularly, educational funds are dispensed primarily on the basis of political patronage rather than of educational need.

In his May opinion, Corns acknowledged the existence of mismanagement and waste, but observed that, even with good management and a total absence of waste, the poorer districts would still find themselves far behind those with greater wealth.

Despite his previous restraint, he said he could see no alternative to the creation of new taxes—although, of course, the decision belonged to the Legislature.

Student Registration Slated

Students at Betsy Layne, McDowell, Prestonsburg, and Wheelwright high schools will have the opportunity to register to vote in the next few weeks without leaving their schools.

Personnel from the Floyd County Clerk's office will visit the schools to register students who are already 18 or who will be 18 before Nov. 8. The students are eligible to vote in the May 23 primary election.

Registration is set for today at 11 a.m. at Betsy Layne and tomorrow at 8:15 a.m. at McDowell. Students at Prestonsburg can register on campus on Feb. 28 at 11:30 a.m., and Wheelwright students are scheduled for March 1 at 9 a.m.

On-site registration has already taken place at Allen Central High School, where 55 students were registered.

Students who are unable to register on those dates may register at the clerk's office in the Floyd County Courthouse from 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. Monday through Thursday, and from 8 a.m. to 7 p.m. on Fridays, according to Clerk Carla Bolton.

Chapters Mark Nat'l FFA Week

Feb. 18-25, 146 Kentucky Future Farmers of America (FFA) chapters will recognize "National FFA Week," which will honor the nation's first president, George Washington, who was also an outstanding farmer.

The national FFA center is located on 37 acres of Washington's Mt. Vernon Estate. FFA was organized in 1930 and is the largest youth organization in the nation, with 12,500 members in Kentucky.

FFA members are high school students studying vocational agriculture to prepare for additional agriculture-related classes. There are over 200 careers available in agriculture, and the industry employs over 22 percent of the nation's workforce.

FFA chapters at Betsy Layne and Prestonsburg high schools are among the 1,100 students who attend leadership training camp in Harrodsburg, and the 1,200 students who attend the state convention in Louisville.

Children's Art, Theatre Classes Offered By PCC

Prestonsburg Community College will be offering a children's art workshop and a children's theater workshop on Saturdays, beginning March 4 and continuing through April 29.

Both workshops will offer programs for children 6 to 8 and 9 to 12 years of age.

For more information, call PCC's Continuing Education and Community Services office at 886-3863, ext. 215.

Clark Science Students See Louisville Exhibits

Recently, the seventh grade students at Clark Elementary School traveled to Louisville for a science field trip.

The students toured the Museum of History and Science, where they viewed displays on electricity, dinosaurs and space, as well as other science-related exhibits.

Favorite Historian Day

Donna Stambaugh's eighth grade class at Auxier Elementary School recently held a "Favorite Historian Day." Students researched and wrote an article on the historian of their choice, and portrayed that character for classmates. The activity was done in conjunction with the "People Who Made History" unit in social studies.

Five WHS Seniors Earn 4.0 Averages

by Pam Harris and Tammy Hall

Five Wheelwright seniors have earned a 4.0 grade point standing for the recently-completed first semester grading period.

Gina Johnson, 17, is the daughter of Bill and Jimmy Lou Johnson of Bevinville. She plans to attend Morehead State University, majoring in biology. Her extracurricular activities include playing basketball and performing as a majorette, as she has for four years. She has also studied karate for six months. Johnson enjoys playing the piano and saxophone.

"You have to make good grades to make it in the world, and that is the way you get judged by society," says Johnson.

Lisa Anderson, 17, is the daughter of Ruby and Shawn Anderson of Wheelwright. She plans to attend Morehead State University, enrolling in the pre-law program. She has been a member of the Beta Club for two years, and the Honor Club and Future Homemakers of America (FHA) for four years. She is also a member of Future Business Leaders of America (FBLA) and Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD).

"It was important to get good grades, because it reflects on the rest of your life," said Anderson.

Rafael Ramos, 17, is the son of Rafael and Pilar Ramos of Spain. He plans to attend a college in Spain called ICADE and study business law and economics. His extracurricular activities include FBLA and soccer.

Trina Johnson is the 17-year-old daughter of Gary and Katie Johnson of Melvin. She plans to attend Morehead, majoring in biology. She is a four-year member of FHA and the Honor Club. She has also been in the Beta Club, FBLA and SADD. She is also a majorette, and plays the flute.

"If you don't have good grades, you can't get into a good college," said Johnson.

Tyra Newman, 17, is the daughter of Harold and Georgie Newman of Hi Hat. She plans to attend the University of Kentucky, majoring in engineering. Newman plays the saxophone and piano, and is a member of the Beta Club and FBLA. She is also a majorette.

Newman said she feels that good grades help students enroll in better post-secondary schools.

McDowell SADD Chapter Holds Yearly Poster Contest

by Kristina Bevins

McDowell High School's Students Against Drunk Driving (SADD) chapter recently held its second yearly poster contest, with the theme, "Drive Sober/Drive Safe."

The winners were:

Kindergarten through fourth grade: Kerrie Patton, third grade, first place; Nicholas Stumbo, first grade, second place; and Danielle Tackett, third grade, third place.

Fifth through eighth grades: Judy Lawson, eighth grade, first place; Michelle Hall, eighth grade, second place; and Olivia Coleman, seventh grade, third place.

Ninth through 12th grades: Robin

Robinette, junior, first place; Henry "Buck" Parsons, senior, second place; and Margaret Hall, junior, third place.

The contest followed the rules and regulations of the national poster and essay contest held in Hurst, Texas, sponsored by Mothers Against Drunk Drivers. Separate categories were available for kindergarten through fourth grade students, those in grades five through eight, and those in grades nine through 12.

The first place winner in each category received $25 and a trophy; second and third place winners received trophies. Several honorable mentions were also awarded.

Judges for the contest were Lola Brasheur and Russell Hall from Mountain Comprehensive Care in Prestonsburg; and Karen Petry, representing Champions Against Drugs in Pikeville. Posters were judged on the message they conveyed, as well as the amount of work and effort involved in creation.

In conjunction with the contest, a bulletin board contest was also held at the grade school. The winning entry, designed by Jerri Turner and her second grade class, will be displayed on the bulletin board downstairs in the old high school. Their efforts will be rewarded with a pizza party and plaque presented by the SADD chapter.

Area Graduating Seniors Can Apply For Community Service Scholarships

Graduating Eastern Kentucky high school seniors who are planning to continue their education may apply for the Christian Appalachian Project's annual community service scholarships.

According to Glen Taul, manager of scholarships for CAP's Lancaster office, seniors in Floyd and 24 other Eastern Kentucky counties are eligible. The recipients of the $1,000 and $500 scholarships are chosen by local committees.

Taul said the primary factor for selection is community service and involvement. Academic achievement and financial need are secondary considerations, he said.

Students who have participated in service projects through local organizations like the church, Chamber of Commerce, Scouts, service clubs, women's clubs or volunteer groups may apply.

The scholarships are for one year and can be used at the school of the student's choice.

For more information, graduating seniors may contact Taul at CAP, 322 Crab Orchard Road, Lancaster, KY 40466, or telephone 792-3051.

Students Join Newspaper Project

Ruth Webb's third grade class at Anxier Elementary School is participating in the Lexington Herald-Leader's "Newspaper Alphabet Animal Safari." The activity reinforces skills in reading, following directions, placement in alphabetical order, distinguishing sounds, numbers, and different sections of the newspaper, said Webb. For extra credit, students have made replicas of Abe Lincoln's log cabin.

More Eastern Ky. Dean's List Students Named By School

Due to a change in the way Eastern Kentucky University calculates the Dean's List, 68 fall semester names have been added to the list.

As of the final tabulation, five Floyd County students have been added to the list of names, including Jeffery Dwayne Campbell, Lauren Marie Slone, Jamie Lynn Wallen, Linda Marie Whitten and Elizabeth Lois Williamson.

At its January meeting, the EKV Board of Regents changed, and made retroactive for the fall semester, the way Dean's List honor are defined.

To be eligible for standard Dean's List recognition at EKV, a student still must achieve a 3.5 grade point average out of a possible 4.0 and be enrolled for 14 or more credit hours.

The Board of Regents ordered that for students taking 12 to 14 semester hours, the requirement be changed from 3.75 to 3.5 GPA.

"Carrying 12 semester hours with 3.75 honors is mathematically impossible unless a student scores a perfect 4.0," said Dr. John D. Rowlett, EKV vice-president for academic affairs and research, and dean of the faculties.

Who's Who

Chris Hopkins of Minnie was recently chosen to be listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students. He was nominated by Joan Caldwell, biology instructor at McDowell High School. He is the son of Barry and Patty Hopkins, and the grandson of Sidney and Launa Allen and Paul and June Hopkins.

SAMONS FOR MAGISTRATE

DIST. #3

Time For A CHANGE!

I want to take this opportunity to again ask for your support with my candidacy for Magistrate in District Three. I am pleased with the favorable response you have given me as this campaign begins. I agree with so many of your assessments that this race is between one other candidate and myself.

I am running against some good candidates and friends of mine. However, the big issue is which candidate is strong enough to bring about a change which we so badly need in our district. If you will give me your honest vote I promise you four years of honest, courteous and accommodating service.

I know you agree with me that we must demand honesty and integrity in our elected officials if we are to instill these qualities in our children.

When I am elected your magistrate, all sections of our district will be treated fairly; my telephone number will always be published to receive your suggestions.

Your vote and influence will be appreciated.

Jones: A Math Teacher For All Ages

by Malissa Hall

"I enjoy any group that wants to learn," says Ray Jones, a math teacher at Wheelwright High School.

Jones, who has taught math for 26 years, teaches chemistry, Algebra II, geometry, advanced math and Math II. According to Jones, each class is different, with different types of students.

"Mr. Jones is a good teacher who is patient and is willing to explain things until a student understands," said senior Marsha Johnson, one of Jones' chemistry students.

Over the years, Jones has developed patience and understanding for his students — not only during classroom activities, but outside school as well. He has sponsored the Beta Club for 19 years. Each year, the club has a blood drive, but Jones is really excited about this year's club, because members plan to go to New York.

He also keeps the score book for the men's varsity basketball team, sponsors the "Mathathon" at Wheelwright, and is one of the sponsors for this year's graduating class. Jones has proven to be a respected teacher who takes time for the students and fellow teachers at Wheelwright High School. He cares about the students and the potential they have.

Jones has lived near Wheelwright all of his life, and knows how the children of the community react to education. He was a 1959 graduate of WHS, and knows what local students want and need from school. Although he was active in his studies, he was not able to play any sports or become involved in clubs because he had to walk four miles each day to catch the bus for school. He lived on Riley's Branch, walking two miles out of the hollow to catch the bus, and two miles back to get home.

Jones is the son of Tildon Jones and Lillie Cook Jones. After high school, he attended Pikeville College for four years, where he began as a pre-engineering major, but soon changed to mathematics.

After college, he taught night classes at McDowell, Stumbo, Bosco, Melvin and Wheelwright for adults who had not finished high school so they could get their GED.

Jones' hobbies include carpentry work and gardening. He spends most of his free time reading or watching television.

After teaching for several years, Jones married a 1965 graduate of WHS, Sue Hall. After marrying, Jones says he influenced his wife to go to college and become a math major.

Sue Jones now teaches at Wheelwright High School as well. The couple has one daughter, and lives at Jacks Creek.

"Mr. Jones is an excellent teacher. I've had him for four classes," said senior Gina Johnson. "He is a fair teacher who really knows his stuff."

Jones was recently nominated for the Presidential Award for Excellence in Science and Mathematics Teaching by Doris Osborne, a fellow teacher of 22 years.

"Ray Jones is fabulous," said Osborne. "He's easy-going, and would grade a student's homework from Sept. 1 if the student turned it in."

"Ray Jones is a sincere, dedicated, strict and fair teacher," said fellow educator Harold Newman. "We think of him as the school mathematician and statistician. He's been faithful to the ball team for 26 years."

Studying The Continents

Ramona Aiken's fifth and sixth grade students at Auxier Elementary School are studying the seven continents. The students discussed climate, food and dress in other countries, then divided into groups. Each group will draw a map and flags of their specified continent. They will also gather information on industry, climate, customs, dress and other areas, said Aiken. To culminate the activity, the class will have "Continent Day", presenting information to the entire class and dressing according to the customs of the continent they studied.

Valentine's Party

Students in Mildred Whitaker's kindergarten class at Auxier Elementary School recently celebrated Valentine's Day with a party. The students also exchanged cards. They are shown with containers that were used to hold Valentines that were exchanged. Parents assisted with refreshments.

Writing Program To Benefit From Telecommunications

It is well past six, and schools have been dismissed for several hours, but English teachers are hooked up to telephone lines, filing stories from their hotel rooms in St. Louis.

Maya Angelou, the author of I Know Why the Caged Bird Sings has just delivered a keynote address at the annual meeting of the National Council of Teachers of English and teachers in Connecticut, Idaho, Colorado and Alaska are waiting to hear what she had to say. James Britton, the writing theorist, is holding a meeting with another group of teachers. In time, that will be reported, also.

Those are just some of the voices that are being carried across wires into the computer room at Wheelwright High School each day as part of BreadNet, the telecommunications network established by the Bread Loaf School of English in Middlebury, Vt. BreadNet teachers talk on-line about everything from their impressions of the NCTE conference to an open discussion of teaching philosophies and practices.

"Networking has the potential for affecting what is going on here in Floyd County classrooms," Carol Stumbo, coordinator of the Writing Across the Curriculum program said. "Through our hook-up, the teachers in Floyd County can have access not only to the most recent trends in the teaching of English in the state of Kentucky, but also across the country."

Kentucky is one of the leading states in the push to emphasize writing as a means of learning through the Pilot Writing Project, which has been funded by the state legislature. Kentucky's efforts are part of a broader national trend though that has emphasized writing since the early 1970s.

"Bread Loaf recruits the top teachers and students from across the country in the field of English, and to have access to those people and their knowledge is an important step for us here in Floyd County. I hope I will be able to share print-outs of some of the information we receive through BreadNet with teachers in the writing program here in the county," Stumbo added.

BreadNet offers two services to teachers who have attended the Bread Loaf School of English. The first is the opportunity to exchange student writing through formal conferences such as "World Trade" in which students from throughout the world describe and talk about their own history and culture. The second service is a type of constant in-service, a community of teachers who share practices and information with each other.

Two important conferences have taken place on BreadNet this year for teachers. In October, Dr. Margaret Reil from Washington, D.C., spent a week on-line during the evening answering questions about telecommunications and student writing. At the moment, teachers are exchanging classroom observations about everything from methods of teaching writing to research projects that they are conducting with their own students.

"One of the teachers on BreadNet who teaches in Montana has a project called 'Homestead.' His students are interviewing residents about the development of their part of the country and what it's like living in isolated communities. Other teachers work in urban areas and have an entirely different perspective and set of conditions. It's an interesting mix," Stumbo said.

"I think this step also paves the way for future use of technology in area classrooms—especially those of English teachers. Through the use of a modem and access to database services, students in the smallest schools can obtain research and information not available in local libraries. Schools in Louisville and Lexington are just beginning to make use of this technology.

"I think we have tended to think of computers as something that belongs to another academic area, but word processors are going to play an important role in the teaching of writing," Stumbo continued. "Then there is desktop publishing. With the right equipment, students can write, edit, and lay-out their own magazines and print them, without ever having to leave the premises. All of it is exciting and I'm glad Floyd County is moving in that direction, even if it is only in small ways at the moment," she explained.

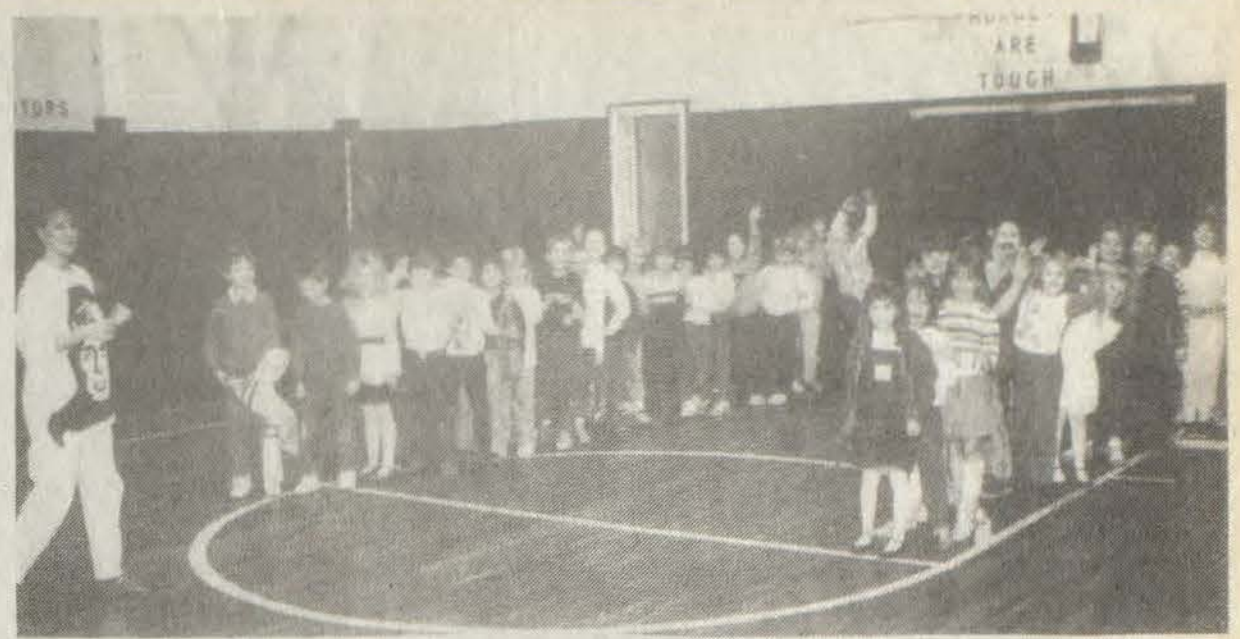

Bread Loaf provides scholarships to English teachers from rural areas. Any teacher in the county who is interested can acquire more information by writing the Bread Loaf School of English, Tilden House, Middlebury College, Middlebury, VT 05753.

TV Q&A

River Phoenix eats right, lives unpretentiously

By Polly Vonetes

River Phoenix

Q: My question is about River Phoenix. Can you give me any information on him? Is he involved with anyone? —Shawna Garner, Marshall, Ill.

A: River was born on August 23, 1970, in Madras, Ore., the eldest of five children. His free-spirited family has traveled extensively in the Western hemisphere. His brother, Leaf, was born in Puerto Rico and his sisters, Rainbow, Liberty and Summer, were born, respectively, in Texas, Venezuela and Florida. At 18, he is polite, articulate, clean-living and very close to his family. They are strict vegetarians—"we don't even touch fish, milk or eggs," he reports. Their lifestyle is unpretentious, ignoring the usual impulses toward settling in a permanent home. They live on the road a lot between campgrounds, rented homes and their mobile home. So far, River is not involved with anyone.

Q: I'd like to know if Guy Williams of Zorro is any relation to Van Williams of The Green Hornet. —Morris Stangle, Carrollton, Ky.

A: No, there is no relationship between the two Williamses. Guy was born Jan. 14, 1924, in New York City as Armando Catalano, son of a man who once called Palermo, Sicily, home. Van was born Feb. 27, 1934, in Fort Worth, Texas, on a large ranch. He intended to make raising cattle his life work.

Q: Did James Garner's TV detective series The Rockford Files air under another name? —Norman Larson, Anchorage, Alaska.

A: I can find no other listing for The Rockford

Files. The pilot film premiered under that name on March 27, 1974. The series began under the same name on Sept. 13, 1974, and continued until July 25, 1980, all on NBC.

Q: I'm wondering if you could find out about a movie for me. It starred Christopher Reeve, it was a science fiction, time travel film made in the '70's. What is the name of the movie and how would I go about asking HBO to air it again? —Cindy Richardson, Peck, Idaho.

A: Christopher Reeve marked his screen debut in 1978 in the film Gray Lady Down. The film you are referring to, Somewhere In Time, was released in 1980 and co-starred along with Reeve, Jane Seymour and Christopher Plummer. You could write HBO, 1100 Ave. of the Americas, N.Y., N.Y. 10036 to request this film, or contact one of your local channels. They may have it in their library of films.

Please send your questions about television past and present to: Polly Vonetes, TV Q&A, P.O. Box 17748, Fort Worth, Texas 76102-0748.

Daniels-Rice

Burch Unites Daniels, Rice In Marriage At Little Paint

Lori Daniels and Steven Rice were united in marriage on Dec. 31, 1988, at 2:30 p.m. at the Little Paint First Church of God at East Point with the Rev. Wayne Burch officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Daniels of Van Lear. The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Rice of Prestonsburg.

Tina Hurst, cousin of the bride, greeted guests.

Terri Brown, Barbara Meek and Larry Brown, soloist, provided pre-nuptial musical selections.

The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white bridal satin. The Queen Anne neckline was accented by small ruffles. A basque bodice beaded with pearls and sequins was highlighted by long illusion sleeves with beaded puffs. Wide imported lace encircled the cathedral train, which was trimmed with satin ruffles along the back hem. The veil was a traditional pearl beaded Juliet cap with pencil-edged veiling of sparkle illusion.

The matron of honor was Lisa Staggs.

Bridesmaids included Beth Stewart, Melissa Rice, Valorie Fannin and Tammy Lane. They wore identical gowns of midnight blue iridescent taffeta with three-quarter length sleeves, dropped waistline and graduated hemline.

Flower girls Lauren Rivera, Lindsay Rozovich, Heather Burton and Telah Watkins sprinkled the aisle with flower petals. They wore midnight blue tea length bubble gowns trimmed in white Venice lace.

Serving as best man was Barry Rice, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Lance Daniels, brother of the bride, Tim Bandy, Matthew Hutchinson and Phillip Burkholder.

Jeremy Watkins acted as ringbearer, and ushers were Wayne and Stacy Evans, cousins of the groom.

Ruby Daniels, mother of the bride, wore a tea length slate blue gown and matching jewelry and accessories.

Carol Rice, mother of the groom, wore a royal blue crepe gown with matching accessories.

The reception was held in the church fellowship hall. The bride and groom greeted guests as they stood behind a photo collage of themselves from past to present.

Guests served themselves from a buffet of hot and cold hors d'oeuvres and fruit punch.

The best man toasted the couple preceding the cutting of the traditional tiered wedding cake.

The couple departed amid showers of rice en route to Lexington by limousine embarking upon a honeymoon in Hawaii.

The couple resides in Speedway, Ind.

Rehabilitation Service Offers Work-Similar Exercise

by Pam Shingler
Assistant Editor
The large letters painted on the walls of a new Prestonsburg business are more than just decorations.

"Back to work," which adorns the training room of Employment and Rehabilitation Institute of Kentucky (ERIK), is also the company philosophy, according to director Diana Loveless.

Back To Work
Physical therapist Diana Loveless demonstrates the work simulator machine at Employment and Rehabilitation Institute of Kentucky (ERIK). The machine recreates physical work conditions for persons who have been injured and need to develop muscular strength to return to work.

Getting an injured worker back to work is the aim of the operation, the only one of its kind in the area, said Loveless, a registered physical therapist.

The treatment goes beyond physical therapy she said, to simulate the actual work of the injured employee. The office, located on Riverside Drive in the former Cooley Medical Building, is equipped with computerized exercise machines and other types of gear to help the injured worker regain strength and dexterity.

One machine, called a work simulator, can, with changes of attachments, mimic the effort needed to do jobs ranging from shoveling and sweeping to driving. Clients can program the machine for a certain resistance level and work up to the actual resistance level experienced on the job.

Another piece of equipment gives the injured worker whose regular job requires climbing exercise in climbing. The employee can use the machine a little each day, until he has built up enough strength to tackle his job again.

In addition to a stationary bicycle and a treadmill that can be elevated to simulate a sloped walkway, ERIK has equipment to build pushing, pulling and lifting muscles.

Working primarily with the mining industry, Loveless said she has the capability to simulate "whatever they have to do to go back to work."

"A lot of people who are off work for a long time simply have lost the muscular strength to do a job," she said. "Over just a two-week vacation we lose some strength for physical labor, so just think what it's like to be off for several months."

Each client is tested before a treatment program is prescribed. Loveless researches what muscles are used in a client's particular job and sets up a program to restore his or her competence. Her tests compare the client with "a healthy person" and the client works toward that standard.

Typically, a person using ERIK's services starts a training program for three to four hours a day, and gradually works up to eight hours to make sure he can stand a regular shift of work without further injury or excessive fatigue.

The business, which opened last fall, takes referrals from employers, physicians, attorneys, insurance adjusters, judges and rehabilitation specialists.

"Most of our clients have a job to go back to," said Loveless, stressing that ERIK does not help clients find jobs.

A Logan, W. Va. native, Loveless has been a physical therapist for 20 years. She has worked in hospitals in Washington, DC, West Virginia and Tennessee, and has had special training in work rehabilitation therapy.

The program, which Loveless refers to as "work hardening," can be strenuous — as many mining jobs are. "One man, after several treatments, said 'I'm going back to work. This is too hard,'" she said.

With enough space for six to eight clients at a time, ERIK is open from 8 a.m.-5 p.m. Monday through Friday.

Eva, Harmison Hale Form Unique Team

Eva Allen Hale is made of the right stuff. While her life has not been a bed of roses, she has spent most of it helping others achieve their dreams.

She has given 13 years of her life to the children of Floyd County, working as an elementary school teacher. Four of those years were spent at David when it was a thriving model mining community.

Her compassionate spirit led her from the school room into social service, where she was to spend the next 29 years. The first 10 years, she was a service worker for Kentucky in Floyd and Magoffin counties—a large area of responsibility for one person. She worked with families beset with difficult problems, and her task was to minister to the needs of the entire family.

As the years passed, Eva—who attended Alice Lloyd, Georgetown and Pikeville College, receiving her AB degree from Pikeville—saw other compelling needs and challenges. Her next 13 years were spent counseling high school students from public assistance families who wanted to attend college or professional schools. She touched the lives of thousands of young people in the 15 Eastern Kentucky counties that were her responsibility.

Faithfulness has its rewards, and she was recognized for her responsibility and dedication. She exhibited leadership qualities, and was appointed supervisor of the Kentucky Child Welfare Program in Floyd and Magoffin counties—a position she held until her retirement in January 1983.

During this same period, she found time for other things, as well. As a member of Irene Cole Memorial Church, she taught Sunday School for pre-schoolers for 13 years. In addition, Eva Hale has been an active member of the "Rebekahs" for 32 years.

In 1954, she found herself a widow with two small children. Both grew to be responsible adults: Joe is a sales representative for Moore's Food Supplies, Inc., in Tullahoma, Tenn. Sally is a clinical social worker with a private practice in Lexington.

For eight years, Eva has served as a board member of Mountain Comprehensive Care, and chaired the board for two years. She was president of Floyd County Mental Health for four years, and is currently the Floyd County chairperson for the foster care program.

Harmison, who grew up in the Blue River area of Middle Creek, was one of 10 children—five boys and five girls. When his father's health failed, his mother moved the children to West Prestonsburg so they could attend school for nine months. While still in grade school, Harmison went to Berea Academy, working his way through school.

He also participated in the college's work program, likewise finding time to participate in athletics as a member of the track team. He worked as a student in the college's bakery and was recipient of a grant from General Mills, which led to a special study ("Wheat and Flour"), for which he received college credit. Following graduation in 1937 with a bachelor's degree in biology, Harmison accepted employment with General Mills as quality control technician in the firm's Minneapolis laboratories.

Except for a time out for World War II duty in the European and Pacific theaters from 1941 to 1945, Harmison continued to serve General Mills as consultant. In private practice, he traveled widely throughout the country to colleges and universities, including Texas A&M, Virginia Tech and Princeton.

During his years with General

Mills, Harmison found time to be active in the First Presbyterian Church in Minneapolis, organizing the church's first Boy Scout troop and serving as church elder.

He is the father of three children, all of whom are college graduates.

Following the death of his first wife, he married Eva, a friend from their childhood on Middle Creek.

Harmison and Eva fit each other to a tee. They were married in 1982.

The couple has worked as a team in the Jenny Wiley Chapter 3528 of the American Association of Retired Persons, providing successful leadership in the chapter's "55-Alive" program, the annual health fair, tax assistance and charity programs.

The Hales have lent their skill as instructors for the "55-Alive" defensive driving classes for AARP, reaching over 300 senior drivers. They have also served AARP's tax assistance program for elderly and low income citizens as counselors, instructors and coordinators. They give of their time freely—co-chairing the local AARP chapter's Christmas charity program, overseeing the procurement and distribution of gifts to area nursing home residents.

Eva, Harmison Hale

Attentive consideration: (repeated by request) "Out of the litter of muds and gravels that make the soil of the world, we have picked some traces of the past of our race and the past of life. In our laboratories we have gleaned some hints of its future. We have a vision of the opening of the story, but the first pages we cannot read." -H.G. Wells, The Undying Fire

Gorrell, Jones United In Double-Ring Ceremony

Gorrell-Jones

Jonna Beth Gorrell and Carroll Bryan Jones exchanged marriage vows at the Community Methodist Church in Prestonsburg on Oct. 17 at 2:30 p.m.

The Rev. Ron Masters and the Rev. Carl Baldrige officiated the double ring ceremony.

The bride is the daughter of John Gorrell of Louisville and Clara Gorrell of Prestonsburg.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Jones of Winchester.

Nuptial music was presented by Pam Leslie, pianist, and Linda Smith, organist. Wayne May and Paul Smith performed the vocal selections.

Sharon Bailey, cousin of the bride, and her husband, Gary, presided at the guest register.

The bride, escorted to the altar by her father, and given in marriage by her parents, wore an ivory satin gown with an off-the-shoulder neckline edged in Alencon lace and hand sewn pearls. The elongated waist bodice was accented with re-embroidered Alencon lace with pearls completing the detailing of the design. The short pouff sleeves were accented with bow, lace and pearls, and the dropped hip skirt flowed into a circular chapel train accented by a bow.

Her veil was a double layer of scalloped illusion held by a Venise lace tiara cap, and she carried a cascade of ivory silk roses accented with baby's breath and ivy.

The couple observed the unity candle ceremony with the mothers of the bride and groom also taking part in the service.

Carrie Loeser of Bardstown and Susan Castle of Lexington, sisters of the bride, were matrons-of-honor. The bridesmaids were Stephanie Morgan of Lexington and Michele Wells of Mt. Orab, Ohio, cousins of the bride. They each carried ivory nosegays of silk roses, baby's breath and ivy, tied with satin ribbons. Their tea-length gowns were sea-foam green noire taffeta, enhanced by off-the-shoulder short pouff sleeves, vee neckline and elongated fitted bodice.

Attending the groom as best man was his father, Richard Castle. The groomsmen and ushers were Steve Botner, Steve Green and Tim Sluder, all of Winchester. Jeff O'Conner of Frankfort and Marty Thompson of Lexington.

Weston Gregory Loeser of Bardstown, nephew of the bride, served as ring bearer.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held in the fellowship hall of the church. Assisting were aunts of the bride, Rosellen Wells of Mt. Orab, Ohio, Catherine Prater of Charleston, W. Va., Angela Hager and Shirlee Branham, both of Prestonsburg. Wells was the director of the wedding and caterers were Cheryl Sexton and Ernestine Collins.

The bride is a graduate of Prestonsburg High School. She attended Eastern Kentucky University in Richmond and is employed by the University of Kentucky College of Dentistry.

The groom is a graduate of George Rogers Clark High School and EKV in Richmond. He is employed by Superior Paint and Decorating in Lexington, and is a member of the musical group, "Quadra".

Following a wedding trip to Fripp Island, S.C., the couple is residing on Harrodsburg Road in Lexington.

Pre-nuptial parties for the couple included a bridal shower given by Mrs. Dean Lucas and Joy Center at the Lucas home in Lexington.

A bridal shower at the Community United Methodist Church fellowship hall in Prestonsburg was given by friends.

The wedding rehearsal dinner was at the Holiday Inn in Prestonsburg with Mr. and Mrs. Richard C. Jones as host and hostess.

Following the wedding reception, friends and family gathered at the Holiday Inn for a celebration party toasting the bride and groom.

Fourth Annual Day Of Prayer For Unity Set Sunday, Feb. 26

The fourth annual Day of Prayer for Christian Unity, sponsored by the Floyd County Ministerial Association, will be held Sunday, Feb. 26 at the St. Martha Catholic Church beginning at 7 p.m.

A rehearsal for a combined choir to sing at the service will be held at 6 p.m. Singers from all area churches are invited to participate in the combined choir.

The Day of Prayer began several years ago as a local effort to combine the traditional World Day of Prayer observance, sponsored by the Local Church Women, with the Week of Prayer for Christian Unity. Since World Day of Prayer this year is March 3, the local observance will be held the Sunday before.

At the combined community service, which is part of the pre-Easter services planned by the Association, there will be prayers for Christian unity, scriptures and a talk by Faye Ruffing, coordinator of Cooperative Christian Ministries of Floyd County, in addition to the combined choir.

Cooperative Christian Ministries was started as an effort to coordinate the ministries of various food pantries in the county, and has expanded to include the churches in cooperative efforts to meet human needs in the county, including such things as rent, utility needs and medical needs, in addition to dealing with hunger.

Following the service, there will be a reception sponsored by the Local Church Women. At that time, various organizations and service agencies in the area are invited to distribute literature or exhibit displays about the services they provide.

The Ministerial Association has cooperated in the planning of the Lenten Prayer Walk to be held on Saturday, Feb. 25 through downtown Prestonsburg, and next month will plan and sponsor the combined Holy Week services from March 20 through March 24. The Easter sunrise service will be held on March 26.

ASPIRIN FOR WHAT AILS YOU

Most of us think nothing of popping a couple of aspirin tablets at the first sign of a headache or muscle pain. As much as 20,000 tons of aspirin are consumed each year in the U.S. Because aspirin is available without a prescription and is inexpensive, most folks don't even consider it a "real" drug. However, aspirin is perhaps the closest thing to a wonder drug yet invented. It relieves fever and inflammation, and reduces pain as well as any non-narcotic drug on the market. Aspirin is now being used experimentally as a "blood-thinner" to reduce the risk of heart attacks and strokes. It may even be useful in slowing the growth of cataracts. Aspirin can have serious side-effects, however, including tinnitus, headache, dizziness, and mental confusion, as well as stomach upset and bleeding. As with other medications, it should only be taken when needed.

Here at COOLEY APOTHECARY we aim to offer you the finest professional service available anywhere. We're in the business of helping you stay healthy and are always available to answer any of your questions about your over the counter remedies or prescription medications. We look forward to being of service to you in the near future here at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3.

HINT: If you are pregnant, never take any medication, including aspirin, without your obstetrician's approval.

1989 Realty Outlook Optimistic, Says Group

Low unemployment, moderate interest rates and low inflation in 1989? Clearly an optimistic view, but Dr. John Tuccillo, chief economist and senior vice president of the National Association of Realtors, predicts that the next five years will look a lot more like 1982 to 1987 than 1977 to 1982.

In his article, "1989 Outlook: The Dawn of the Past?" in the January/February issue of Real Estate Today, the official publication of the National Association of Realtors, Tuccillo examines the probable national economic condition for 1989.

In a regional outlook, real estate professionals from across the country share their perspectives about markets in 1989 for the real estate industry. Practitioners predict that the west coast states will do well. Alaska and the mountain states will continue to progressively work out of the slump caused by the oil and agriculture crisis of the past decade.

The housing market in the south is staging a comeback in some areas after a decline with the demise of energy-related industries and other factors in the early 1980s. Suburban growth has replaced city expansion as a trend, and city-based buyers continue to dominate the rural property market.

The consensus among midwestern real estate professionals is to expect market stability; however, concern over several market issues was voiced. These concerns include affordability, market activity and environmental considerations, each of interest to midwest consumers as well as industry practitioners.

Affordability is also a concern in the northeast, particularly for first-time buyers. Home values will continue to increase, but at a much slower pace, predicts one real estate professional. Increased taxes and regulations affecting real estate are issues northeasterners will face in the coming year.

Home values have increased in most parts of the southeast, although apprehension exists over the threat of tax reform and its impact on second-home sales. Sources also cited difficulty in leasing office space, which has been overbuilt in most of the region.

Buyer Demand Boosts Resales To 9-Year High

In-depth studies of a timely real estate topic—housing demand—is provided in a new research paper, "The Estimation of Housing Demand: A Review of the Evidence," available from the National Association of Realtors.

The publication is part of the "white paper" series, issued by NAR's economics and research, real estate finance and forecasting and policy divisions, to provide the media with useful, up-to-date information pertaining to the real estate industry.

"The Estimation of Housing Demand: A Review of the Evidence" highlights the responsiveness of housing demand to income and housing price. It focuses on how much more housing is purchased by higher-income households than lower-income, and how much more housing is purchased when prices drop. For instance, the study determined if incomes rise by 1.0 percent, or if home prices fall by 1.0 percent, housing consumption rises by about 0.6 percent. The "white paper" series is prepared under the supervision of Dr. John A. Tuccillo, NAR chief economist and senior vice president of real estate finance.
