Thanks, Canada

A strong Canadian high is pushing south and giving Eastern Kentuckians a respite from August's normal heat, according to the US Weather Service in Jackson.

Today's forecast is for mostly sunny skies; temperature highs in the upper 70s, and nighttime lows in the mid-50s. Thursday's is about the same, except the skies are expected to be only partly sunny.

The extended weekend prediction is for "more of the same," say the meteorologists, with highs in the mid-80s and lows in the mid-60s. Grab a sweater and enjoy.

Allen Hires Officer

Allen City Council lost a member and gained a new policeman at its Monday night meeting. Willard Adkins turned in his resignation as council member because of the "hassle," he said. Other council members did not move to appoint an immediate replacement.

The council also voted to accept the resignation of Eddie Robinson as policeman and to hire Larry Goble, on probationary basis, to replace him. Goble, who said he has worked with the Floyd County Sheriff's Department for several years, was a finalist for the position when Robinson was originally employed in April.

City clerk Bill Parsons noted that the city has completed its street project with the pavement of Tandy Street and Beaver Avenue. Cost of the project was about $25,500, he said.

Council members present were Larry Castle, Vern Porter, Elmer Parsons and Adkins. Next regular meeting is Sept. 11 at 7 p.m. at the Allen Water Commission building.

Grand Jury Call

Persons desiring to appear before the Floyd County Grand Jury, which begins session Sept. 5, must first contact the Commonwealth Attorney's office to set up an appointment to discuss and prepare their case. Deadline for setting up an appointment is Aug. 24.

Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton said each person will then be assigned a specific date and time to appear before the grand jury. For an appointment, call 886-1604.

Board To Hear Update, KEA Officials

Smith, Program Director, May Be Rehired Tonight

Floyd County School Superintendent Ronald Hager will recommend that Janie Bailey Smith be rehired tonight as the district's Head Start Program director.

Smith, who was not among the majority of district employees hired by the board in June, had charged the local administration with political retaliation.

Smith claimed that her mother, Marcella Bailey, had supported the challenging candidate during the county attorney's race, while the board and other local politicians had supported the incumbent.

The Head Start director attended the State Board of Elementary and Secondary Education meeting in mid-July, talking with Dr. John Brock, state superintendent of public instruction, concerning the political allegations.

Hager said Tuesday that he will recommend at tonight's board meeting that Smith be rehired.

State Department, KEA Reps To Speak At Board Meeting

Three representatives of the state Department of Education will attend tonight's Floyd County School Board meeting to discuss progress made in the district since the state intervened the district in January.

Dr. Betty Steffy, deputy superintendent of instruction and head of the intervention team, is scheduled to speak, as are Dr. Ed Ball and Robert Gover.

Tonight's meeting, originally scheduled at the administration building in Prestonsburg, has been moved to the Prestonsburg High School cafeteria to accommodate what local officials predict will be a large audience. The meeting time, 6 p.m., remains the same.

Also on the agenda are David Allen, president of the Kentucky Education Association, and Jim Slatery, KEA's general counsel. Both will speak on behalf of the Floyd County Education Association.

Additionally, board members are See BOARD, Page 8

Bills Still Unpaid; Gas Company Doesn't Dun

Almost six months after Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co. sent bills totaling some $8 million to local gas companies it supplies, the initial shock seems to have worn off and no plans have been made to pay the whopping sum.

"The matter is still before the Federal Energy Commission," said Bill Harvey Howard, head of Prestonsburg Utilities, yesterday. The city's gas supplier was assessed $2.8 million when KWVG billed for a deferred rate increase it said had been okayed by the FEC.

KWVG, a division of Equitable Gas Co., apparently requested a rate increase in 1978, which was not approved. In 1986, federal courts ruled that the company's request could be applied retroactively. For almost three years, however, the gas supplier and the federal regulatory agency have been at odds as to how the increases can be collected.

Howard said negotiations, since the winter billing to the local companies, have involved the giant gas company, FEC and the Kentucky Public Service Commission, whose attorneys are also acting on behalf of the smaller utilities.

Howard added that he received a letter Monday informing him that KWVG has extended the time for negotiations with no interest until Nov. 1, setting aside a previous Sept. 1 deadline.

In addition, Howard said attorneys for the smaller, municipal companies found a mistake in KWVG's calculations on interest and taxes, which more than halves the total bill.

Audrey Yates of Wheelwright Utilities, which also buys gas from KWVG, said she has not received any update on the negotiations. "We have written to Kentucky-West Virginia (requesting information), but we haven't received any answers," she said.

Yates, who describes the tiny municipal utility company as non-profit, called the request for back payment "ridiculous on the face of it." She added that 70 percent of the utility's customers are on fixed incomes and could not pay additional amounts.

In a report to Prestonsburg City Council shortly after the KWVG bill was received, Howard said that to pay the retroactive rate increase, the local utility would have to pass the bill along to its customers. He estimated that each customer would then owe more than $2,000 apiece, or "a $30.39 surcharge on the monthly bill for 84 months, plus the cost of regular gas usage."

Mike Little Gas Co. in Melvin was also among those billed by KWVG — to the tune of nearly $500,000. "What small utility can pay that?" a spokesman for the company asked. "We're just waiting to see what happens."

What to do about persons who have died or moved away during the time KWVG said the fuel was used and what to do about new customers who would be asked to pay for gas they did not use are among the many questions surrounding the dilemma.

Howard said he doesn't expect to see a decision on the matter for some time. Meanwhile, the companies and their residential and business customers will play the waiting game.

"We can negotiate for 20 years," said Yates of Wheelwright Utilities' problem in relation to the KWVG billing. "There's nothing we can do to generate more funds."

Area Retired Miners File Suit To Regain Lost Health Benefits

Several area residents have filed suit in US District Court, Pikeville, challenging interpretations of regulations that have left them without medical benefits they believe were promised to them by union contract.

The suit, on behalf of 21 miners and two miners' widows, was filed in July against Left Beaver Coal Co. in Drift and trustees of the United Mine Workers Association's Health and Retirement Funds.

All disabled or retired, the miners claim that what they thought were lifetime medical benefits were cut off in 1988, when Left Beaver Coal said it was no longer affiliated with the miners' union. The company also apparently said it was no longer responsible for carrying out the terms of the 1984 National Bituminous Coal Agreement, the last union contract under which the plaintiffs had worked.

The UMWA Health and Retirement Funds, which the union says is a contractual operation separate from the union, refused to accept responsibility for the miners' benefits. The

"These families are being financially devastated," said Ned Pillersdorf, the miners' attorney. "This is a really major problem that is brewing everywhere. It's come to a head here."

Funds' position is that Left Beaver is still a financially sound company and thus responsible for continuation of benefits.

"These families are being financially devastated," said Ned Pillersdorf, the miners' attorney. "This is a really major problem that is brewing everywhere. It's come to a head here."

"We don't care who has to pay," Pillersdorf added, in explaining why the action was taken against both the company and the Funds.

In a letter to US Cong. Chris Perkins, who has tried to intervene on the miners' behalf, UMWA official Lanny Shortridge emphasized that the union does not agree with the decision of the Funds' managers.

"It is important that I explain that the UMWA Health and Retirement Funds are trust funds operating under contractual and federal regulations and that no UMWA officer or employee has a voice in the decision to approve or deny benefits," Shortridge wrote.

"The UMWA does not agree with the employer or the Funds position and has engaged in litigation to insure our members have the benefits they are entitled to," he continued.

Trust Funds officials contend that pensioned miners under the 1974 union contract qualify for medical coverage from the Funds only if their last contract employer is no longer in business. Left Beaver, they claim, does not fit that description.

Some of the miners have been able to enroll in an insurance plan with the See SUIT, Page 15

Woman Found Guilty In 1988 Shooting Death

A woman accused of the shooting death last fall of her apparent live-in boyfriend was found guilty of first degree manslaughter yesterday by a

Floyd County Circuit Court jury. The jury recommended a 10-year prison sentence for Karen Couch, 29, of Van Lear (Floyd County) who was charged with shooting James Ronald Hudson, 39, last November at the residence they reportedly shared near Dewey Dam. Formal sentencing is set for Aug. 17.

During the two-day trial, Couch said she only intended to maim Hudson, who she said had been beating her and her son, according to Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton.

The prosecutor said he had expected the case to be a "test case on how far a person can go when allegedly being abused." He added that the jury apparently did not see the case in that light.

In addressing the members of the jury prior to their sentence recommendation, Patton told them he was "concerned about the defendant's lack of remorse, lack of sorrow."

Couch's attorney, Ned Pillersdorf asked the jury to "give her the lowest sentence," considering that she had no previous record. Ten years is the minimum sentence on the charge.

Prestonsburg's Downtown Area Sidewalk Replacement Underway

Utility and beautification are the aim of a sidewalk replacement project set to begin soon in Prestonsburg's older section.

The project, estimated at $50,000 to $60,000, augments construction that is already taking place as a result of the need to replace water lines in parts of the city, according to City Administrator Fred James.

"Starting with those in worst condition, we hope to have most of the sidewalks that need to be totally rebuilt done by the end of the year," said James, adding that the project is made possible through the city's share of municipal road aid money from the state and coal severance tax replacement of old water lines has found us with new sidewalks," he said.

Because of the city's "limited manpower," the sidewalk construction will be done by private contractors, the administrator said. As a result, several projects can be done concurrently, he said.

Among affected streets are Howard, Graham, Friend, Third, Court, South Arnold and "various lengths" of Highland and North Arnold. In some cases, the utility company is replacing one side of the street and the city the other, James said.

Dr. Betty Steffy:

State Can Help, But It's Ultimately Up To Community

by Anne Chaney, Editor

(Second of a two-part interview.)

Does the Kentucky Department of Education have enough leverage to help create and ensure lasting change in the way Floyd County schools operate?

Yes — and no — says Dr. Betty Steffy, state deputy superintendent of instruction.

There is continued intervention under Phase 3 of the state's academic bankruptcy law, in which the local district must make required improvements.

There is also the threat of Phase 4, which allows local board members and/or the superintendent to be removed from office.

"It's troublesome to the district," says the head of the Floyd intervention team, "and they want to avoid that. They (understood) Phase 3, but they weren't sure how it would be implemented."

Regardless whether the district is in Phase 3 or 4, Steffy says that permanent change — real change — won't come from Frankfort.

"In the final analysis, the state department doesn't have as much clout as the local district has. The community has all the clout it needs to change the board by electing new board members if they are not happy with the current ones."

"The community has the power. The community has the mechanism to fix it, and for whatever reason, hasn't or won't — that's my biggest frustration. The mechanism is there to effect change within the Floyd County system. The community hasn't done that, and what that says to me is that the community is satisfing with the FCEA (Floyd County Education Association).

"We were also hopeful that the administration would publish periodic updates to teachers. We didn't feel that was the role of the state department."

Now, said Steffy, the state is requiring that it be done. Teachers charged that the state was moving too slowly. Many were angered by Steffy's earlier comment that two years' progress had been made in the district in six months.

In terms of planning, Steffy says, two years' progress has been made. "We have trained staff in strategic planning, in effective administration, trained administrators in effective schools, devised new kindergarten through 12th grade curriculum guides in five content areas and — although not complete until the end of August — adopted a new organizational structure and developed new job descriptions to accompany it."

"We've specified specific administrative goals for the next school year — that's done — and building administrators are developing activity plans to meet these goals — that will be done by the end of August.

"I think that's two years' planning in six months, when none of this existed before."

The deputy superintendent wasn't surprised by the Floyd County Education Forum's request to the state Board of Education that the district be moved into Phase 4.

"I think that was more of a statement of frustration on the part of the executive committee of the Forum," Steffy says, "and also a feeling that the state department would not make that recommendation for whatever reason. So, the executive committee of the Forum made it directly to the board."

"There's not a clear understanding of what the current legislation allows the state department to do," Steffy continues. "I think that they're expecting too much, too soon. My question back to the committee: Specifically what did they expect to see?"

"There's the newsletter from the superintendent — there seems to be a need for periodic update. . . . There seemed to be a desire by the executive committee of the Forum for a reduction of central office staff, and we haven't been able to pull that one off."

"I'm unclear, beyond these two things, what they expected to see that didn't happen."

Steffy recognizes that the Forum and other organizations in Floyd County are adamant that change is needed. But, she adds, "The fact that it remains the same tells me that the majority of the community is satisfied with what they have."

The department has not had much direct contact with the local board, Steffy explains, but has instead relied on Ron Hager, the Floyd superintendent, to keep it abreast of the state's activities.

In hindsight, she notes that the state board has received monthly updates from department staff, adding, "We should have been supplying the local board with updates as well."

Steffy and other state staff will attend tonight's Floyd County school board meeting to discuss progress in the district (see related story). Continuing charges of politicking and political patronage have likewise hampered the state's efforts in the district, said Steffy. The local board opted earlier this year not to reduce central office staff by three positions after Hager was accused of political retaliation; the board also chose not to take stringent action against administrative assistant E.P. "Pete" Grigsby, accused of politicking on school grounds during school time.

"(That) says to me that there is real mistrust about the motives of almost everyone. They're perceived to be political. With the reduction of administrative staff, Ron was accused of politicking. The board, by its vote, seemed to agree — or at least they had reasonable doubt."

"The mistrust seems to be related to the political activity — I don't know if it's real or simply used as an excuse," she added.

Steffy says while the district remains in Phase 3, the state has little real leverage to dispel political activity in the district, other than seeing that the board adopts a policy of posting vacancies and job descriptions.

"We have no leverage to say 'Hire Person A over Person B, or 'You may not hire Person C,' — that's a local district decision."

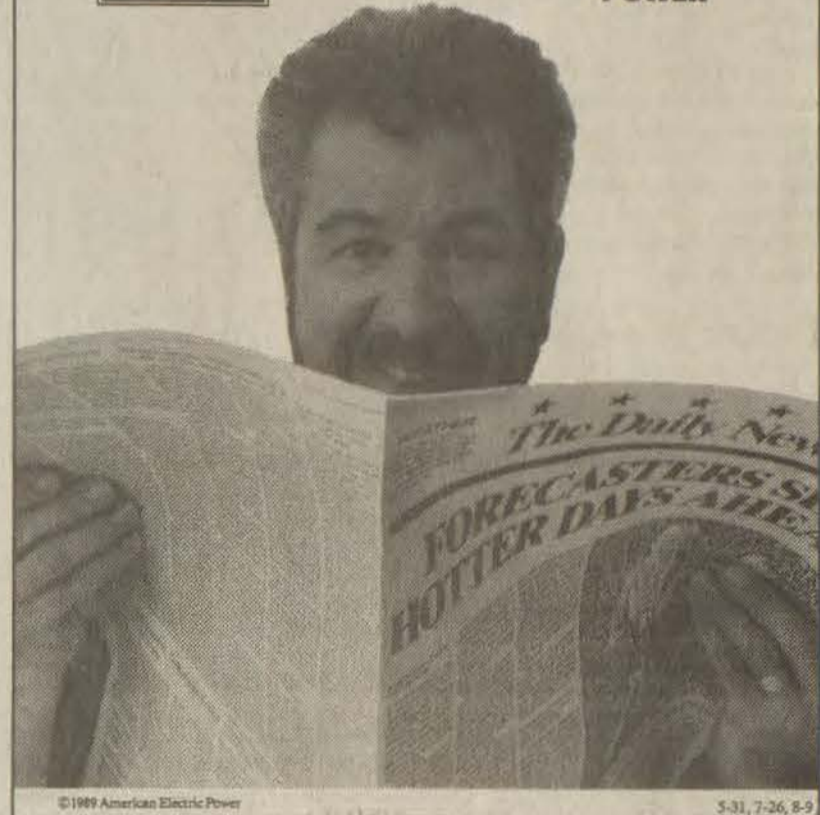

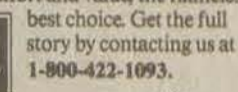

"I don't believe they're self-serving people," Steffy says of the Floyd board. "I believe that the board of education cares about the community and the children of Floyd County."

Although she disagrees with some decisions the board has made, she adds, "We tend to say that they're all mean board members, but I believe that they do care."

Louisa Man Is Killed In County Line Accident

A Louisa man, Charles W. Preston, 61, was killed in a two-vehicle collision Friday night on US 23 north, near the Floyd-Johnson county line. Injured in the crash were Harold Carr, 64, also of Louisa, and Timmy Campbell, 28, of Viper in Perry County.

According to Kentucky State Police reports, an automobile driven by Carr was traveling south about 8:35 p.m. when it crossed the center line and hit Campbell's vehicle head on.

Preston, who was a passenger in Carr's vehicle, was pronounced dead on arrival at Highlands Regional Medical Center. Carr and Campbell were also taken to HRMC and then transferred to St. Mary's Hospital in Huntington. Tuesday, Carr's condition was listed as critical, and Campbell was in serious condition.

Floyd County Rescue Squad responded to the accident call and assisted in removing the injured from the vehicles. Also responding were Anthony Castle of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department and KSP Trooper Mark Padgett, who is still investigating the accident.

Texas Man Indicted For Trafficking

Jack Anthony Hunter, 39, of Houston, Texas, has been indicted on felony drug charges resulting from his arrest near Prestonsburg recently.

Hunter has been indicted for possession with intent to distribute 30 pounds of marijuana and possession of a firearm during the commission of a drug trafficking crime, according to Louis DeFalaise, United State Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky.

According to Assistant US Attorney Thomas L. Self, the two-count indictment was filed in US District Court in Lexington on Aug. 2. The defendant could be sentenced to up to five years in prison and fined up to $250,000 if convicted on the drug trafficking charge, and could also receive an additional five year consecutive sentence without parole or probation if convicted on the firearm offense, DeFalaise explained. The arrest and indictments followed an investigation by the Kentucky State Police at Pikeville.

Hunter was stopped on Town Branch Road, near Prestonsburg, on July 28. Police found 30 pounds of marijuana in his car. Kentucky State Police officers estimated the street value of the substance at about $48,000.

Road Work 'Critical' For Floyd, Says Stumbo

State Rep. Gregory Stumbo is confident the major road construction planned for Floyd County will result in major economic benefit for the area.

Stumbo, majority floor leader of the Kentucky House of Representatives, said this week that Floyd County road construction figures prominently in the six-year road plan recently released by Milo Bryant, secretary of transportation.

"Most construction scheduled for Floyd County has a completion date set for next year or 1991," Stumbo said. "Most of the construction on-line is for upgrading Route 23, which is critical to the area," he added.

"Route 23 is one of the key arteries to opening up the mountains for tourism and economic development. Even now, in its poor condition, Route 23 is one of the most traveled highways in East Kentucky," Stumbo said.

Projects set for construction in 1990 include new four-laning of Route 23 from Prestonsburg to Paintsville. The plan also includes a new two-lane road from Bays Branch designed to extend Route 23 to Highland Regional Medical Center.

Stumbo also said the Abner Fork Bridge at Melvin will be replaced according to the road plan.

Stumbo added that he believes the major road work planned for Floyd County can be accomplished without an increase in the gasoline tax.

Local Man Found Guilty of Assault

A Floyd County Circuit Court jury found Stephen Ray Carroll of Martin guilty last week of third degree assault in a case stemming from a 1987 incident.

Carroll had been charged with assaulting Deputy Sheriff Ricky Thornsbury with a 2"x4" board when Thornsbury attempted to serve papers on him, according to Commonwealth Attorney Jerry Patton's office.

The jury recommended a one-year sentence, to include time Carroll has already spent in jail, according to Patton's office.

It's hard to accomplish something when your heart isn't in it. It's just as hard to achieve positive change when your heart is in it — if the heart is leading the head.

Floyd Countians are seeing both attitudes within the context of their educational district.

Board members are generally seen as unresponsive, while teachers are crying for change from the local and state level. At the same time, state officials say they are doing as much as they can as quickly as they can. The voice of the public, unfortunately, is nowhere to be found.

The solution, we suggest, lies in positive motivation as opposed to negative bickering.

Lasting change will never come to Floyd County until three separate and distinct groups come together: the voters, the teachers, and the administrators.

For the teachers, the responsibility is to teach children. For the voters, i.e., parents and district patrons, it will not come until they shoulder the burden of a fiscally sound district, even if it means raising taxes. For the administration, the change will come when there is responsiveness within the system and without.

Teachers, acknowledging that they and their profession have been badly abused by a political administration and an uncaring public, must find the inner strength to put the unchangeable past behind them, and move past confrontational methods and toward cooperation.

Parents and other voters must understand that more money is required for better education. It isn't being poured down a drain — it's being poured into their children's futures. All the extras that aren't really extras — art, music, special projects — come from local funds. Parents must take an active role in their child's schooling, at home and in the classroom. And as voters, we must all place a higher priority on children's education than a job for friend or family.

The administration has acknowledged — very quietly, perhaps — that the Floyd district is fundamentally flawed, and nothing less than a complete overhaul is required. The problems won't miraculously vanish. It's time for board members and administrators to do the best they can under the present circumstances, and commit themselves to reform. Power, when it befalls a person, is a true test of his or her character. All of their actions have significant influence upon others. What is said is heard, what is thought is felt. Those with power can bring progress to the district — or continued chaos.

Each of these groups has a common goal: Quality education for our children. The time is exceptional in terms of energy and desire for change. The leaders of each group must come together in the spirit of cooperation, leaving past misdeeds behind and bringing only the desire for a better future.

The longest day of the year lasts only one day, and the current inflexible standoff will, indeed, come to an end. When it does, the teachers, administrators and public will still be here. We'd like to think that they'll be working together instead of mutely standing apart.

Farm family field day held on the farm of J.L. Lafferty Sr. at Cliff Saturday, presented evidence of successful farming resulting from advanced agricultural techniques. Letters To The Editor

Likes Newspaper Policy & Changes

Dear Editor,

I want to thank you for adding the death date to the obituaries in your paper. So many people cut out and save obituaries of relatives and close friends, but they don't think to write the date of the newspaper on the obituary. A few years later they no longer know when the person died. The longtime policy of the Times to include the parents of the deceased and the maiden names of the married females listed in obituaries makes the difference between a news item in the Times and just the impersonal paid announcement which is so prevalent in large daily newspapers. I would not want my obituary to appear in a local Dayton, Ohio, newspaper. It would serve no purpose, because those who care about me would already know and to others it would be a meaningless announcement.

I would think that your increased coverage, with lots of pictures of the youngsters involved in local sports of all kinds, would be a real inspiration to the youth of the area.

I can't help but believe that subscriptions must have increased immensely in the past two or three years. Your paper has truly become a paper of and for the people of Floyd County. In the years to come, it will be a very valuable source of genealogical information to the researcher. Assuming, of course, that it is being micro-filmed.

Now if we could just get the people who throw parties for their parents and grandparents to provide more information about these wonderful people they are honoring, it would make much more interesting reading. Such desirable information would include where the persons being honored were born and their parent's names. People are known by their parents, not their children.

Almost invariably, when asked about who a person married the reply is "such or such's son or daughter."

One of the realizations to come very early when doing genealogical research is that the ancestry of others is rather boring to read up to the point the researcher discovers a relationship. It then becomes extremely interesting reading. This is just one of those self interest quirks of the human beast. I would venture to say that in Floyd County everyone whose family has been in the area since prior to 1850, is related in some way to at least half of the population of the county.

My original purpose of this letter was to provide the enclosed two pictures and information about them. The originals were very faded and these copies may not be of sufficient quality for you to use [Editor's Note: Only one of these photos was of reprintable quality] but, that is your judgment, as is how you use this letter, if at all.

The two pictures are of the construction of US Route 23 just north of Louisa, about 1915. The one picture is of the road grader preparing the road bed. The second is concrete forms still in place. It was taken from a point about half the distance between the utility poles closer to the house than the point where the road grader picture was taken.

The operator of the mule-powered road grader is James Clay Whitaker. He was raised in Floyd County on Jennies Creek just inside the Floyd-Johnson county line. His father was Martin Van Buren Whitaker of Magoffin County and his mother was Angeline Yates of Morgan County. Both are buried in the Robinson Cemetery on Jennies Creek.

I look forward to getting the Floyd County Times each week.

Most respectfully yours,
Clarence E. Shepherd

Reader Defends Earlier Letter About Education

Dear Editor,
The last thing you need taking up space in your letters section is a shouting match between T.D. Allen of David, whomever he or she is, and me. However, I must respond to Allen's letter defending the Hager administration.

Allen did not state specifics. Instead, implied, "It's better than the previous one." Allen also cited the fact that a former administrator is being investigated for improper political activity on school grounds.

Question: Is that the same administrator who is an assistant to Hager? Could this administrator have been politicking on school grounds with the advice and consent, if not under direct orders, of Mr. Hager?

Is T.D. Allen denying me my First Amendment rights to speak and write about the Floyd County Schools because I don't live in the county? Applying that rationale, does that mean I can't voice my views about a subject or person on the national scene because I don't live in Washington, D.C.? Does T.D. Allen deny my right to voice rage at the brutal murder of a fellow Kentuckian, Colonel Higgins of Danville, because I don't live in the Middle East? Allen must be taking a cue from Hager and the school board. Just ask some of the brave teachers and Ed Patton, former transportation director, regarding free speech, as well as the violation of a person's civil rights.

T.D. Allen failed to disprove one of my undeniable truths of life about Hager. Why Dr. John Brock, state superintendent of education, has not reached this undeniable truth of life is a mystery to me. Time for Phase 4.

T.D. Allen should read and digest your reporting of the situation in the July 12th edition. And let's hope Allen reads it with an open mind.

Sincerely,
Helen Storie Nicola

Dear Editor,
In regard to the letter to the editor I sent about Prestonsburg, I didn't mean it the way it was said about my not wanting to come back to live there. I meant to write that I wanted to come back to live there. It is my home and that is where I would like to live the rest of my life.

In City Limits?

Dear Editor,
If the Prestonsburg Police Department would spend more time patrolling the streets of the city instead of being parked at Rudd Equipment Company in the early morning hours trying to catch peoplespeeding down the hill at the Holiday Inn who are trying to go to work, there wouldn't be as much vandalism in the city.

Isn't that outside the city limits? US 23 South of Wal-mart?

Please don't publish my name or I'll surely get a ticket.

KET Examines Child Abuse, Highlights Wayland Program

On Monday, Aug. 28, at 10:30 p.m., KET will rebroadcast "Child Abuse: Stop the Hurt," a KET Special Events Unit production which featured Wayland area residents on their annual "Stop the Hurt Day."

The program films the day's entertainment and a keynote address given by Travis Fritsch, victim advocate with the state attorney general's office in Frankfort.

"The number of reported child abuse cases continues to increase each year," says Fritsch. "These children are in need of protection and their families need critical support services. I am proud that in Kentucky we have the basic agencies and school programs to address the problem of child abuse, although continued support for these efforts is needed."

Just before this airing, KET will run a special 90-minute edition of "This Is Kentucky" which will focus on child sexual abuse. The program will feature a panel of social service and mental health experts; viewers are encouraged to call in questions and concerns.

Excerpts from interviews with convicted child sexual abuse offenders will be interspersed throughout the live call-in. The interviews, produced by Jack McDowell of Eastern Kentucky University, focus on three areas of concern: what kind of people molest children; how they obtain access to children; and how they avoid getting caught.

"These interviews offer insight to families so that they may recognize the warning signs of abuse and learn what assistance is available in Kentucky," said Elizabeth Pryor, KET outreach coordinator.

Michigan Resident Charged For Receiving Stolen Property

A Michigan man was arrested Thursday at Goble-Roberts Addition by Prestonsburg police on a number of charges, including receiving stolen property.

Johnny R. Greene, 26, of Adrian, Mich., was taken into custody at about 2:20 a.m. by Officer R.J. Conn. Greene was also with operating on a suspended license, attempt to elude and carrying a concealed weapon.

Operating on a tip, Conn said he spotted the stolen vehicle in the parking lot of Dixie Apartments. Conn, assisted by Sgts. J. Stumbo and M. Ormerod, blocked Greene's exit from the parking lot.

Greene was lodged in Floyd County jail, where he remained yesterday under a $15,000 bond.

In other police action, Officer R. Roberts investigated an accident Aug. 3 on Mays Branch Road, when James Fife of East Point lost control of his car, which hit a curb and turned over. According to the police report, Fife's vehicle tore down a gas meter and also caught fire.

A rear-ender Aug. 2 at the intersection of KY 1428 and Webb Lane involved vehicles driven by Penny Neeley and Glenn Holbrook, both of Prestonsburg. Holbrook was treated and released at Highlands Regional Medical Center. The investigating officer was Nick Stanaford.

In an Aug. 3 accident at the Holiday Inn parking lot, a car driven by Michael West of Martin struck a parked car owned by Irvin Patrick of Thealka. West was taken to Floyd County jail by Officer Conn, where a breath analysis revealed a .20 percent alcohol level.

Sgt. Jim Mullins investigated an incident Aug. 5 in which a vehicle driven by Linda Kirby of Prestonsburg reportedly lost control, hit a ditchline and damaged a fence and post at Cliffside Road Apartments.

Also on Aug. 5, Sgt. Gerald Clark reported that a car driven by Nancy Darnell of Griffithsville, W.Va., backed into one operated by Allie Ball of Prestonsburg while both were on University Drive.

Commodity Distribution Set Aug. 10

The Big Sandy Area Community Action Program, Inc., will begin distributing USDA commodities on Thursday, Aug. 10 from 8 a.m. until 4 p.m., or until commodities are gone, according to Billy May, executive director.

Distribution will continue on Friday, Aug. 11 during the same hours at the Community Action Office if needed, May said.

The distribution locations are the Senior Citizens Center, Wheelwright; Mud Creek Clinic, Grethel; and the swimming pool building, convention center, in Allen Park.

Commodities to be issued, according to May, are cornmeal, flour, peanut butter and raisins.

Persons will be limited to picking up commodities for themselves and two other households. May said that all persons picking up commodities for another household must have the following information before commodities will be released to them: The Social Security card for the person the commodities are being picked up for, or a Medicare card or driver's license, and a signed, dated note from the person giving permission for their commodities to be picked up for them. This note must also include the number in the household, total household income for the previous month and complete address.

He recommends that persons bring a paper bag or other container in which to carry commodities.

rebuilding projects," he said, indicating other areas will be considered in the future.

The replacement will include ramps at crosswalks and ends of streets. Eventually, James said, plans include building up some sidewalks where repeated paving has brought the street to sidewalk level.

"The bottom line," he said, "is to have sidewalks that are safe and that look good. We realize the inconvenience, but if we just hold our breath and be patient, we will have sidewalks that will last for 25 to 35 years."

Auxiliary's Donation Purchases New Infant Care Monitor

The Highlands Regional Medical Center Auxiliary recently presented $7,843 check to Clarence Traum, hospital administrator, to purchase a new instrument called a transcutaneous monitor for Highlands' nursery.

This device is able to monitor oxygen and carbon dioxide concentration levels in an infant's blood through electrodes attached to the skin, eliminating the use of needles, according to hospital officials. Although this device can be used on adults as well, it will be used primarily by the nursing staff on infants who are receiving supplemental oxygen therapy, officials say.

The auxiliary, which began in 1974

as a fund-raising and patient service volunteer group at Highlands, has provided children in the emergency room and out-patient surgery with small gifts, supplied toiletries for intensive coronary care unit patients, provided complimentary coffee service for families of surgery patients, delivered patient mail and provided patients with a "hospitality cart" service.

Funding for the auxiliary comes from the operation of HRMC's gift shop. All proceeds are donated to the hospital for various projects and equipment. Past contributions include a portable ventilator, crash carts, defibrillators, a fetal monitor, rockers for the nursery, furnishings for the pediatric playroom and the complete entrance to the medical offices.

"We would like to once again express our appreciation to the auxiliary for its continued dedication to providing services and fulfilling the special needs of patients and employees," said Kathy Rubado, HRMC public relations director.

Carter County Artist's Work On Display; Reception Aug. 31

Ruby Queen, a mostly self-taught Carter County artist, will exhibit her work at the Prestonsburg Community College Art Gallery in the Magoffin Learning Resource Building during the month of August, according to Etta Cantrell, art gallery coordinator.

Queen lives on a farm at Hitchins where she paints landscape, portraits, animals and rural scenes. She has participated in various exhibits throughout Kentucky and she has received many awards for her artwork, according to Cantrell.

Locally, Queen has exhibited at the Ashland Mezzanine Gallery, the Paramount Art Center in Ashland, the Kentucky Highlands Museum, Morehead State University Appalachian Celebration Art Show, and throughout Kentucky in the University of Kentucky "Images from the Mountains" traveling exhibit of Kentucky artists.

A reception for the artist is scheduled for Thursday, Aug. 31 at PCC's gallery from 2 to 4 p.m. The public is invited to view the artwork and meet the artist during the reception.

August Gallery Highlight

Ruby Queen, whose painting "Grandpap's Place" was a merit winner in UK's traveling exhibit, will have her works on display at PCC's gallery during the month of August.

McConnell's Report

TIME TO GET TOUGHER ON CRIME

Every five seconds, an American falls victim to a violent crime. More than 8 million serious crimes — murder, assault, rape and burglary — will be committed this year. This reign of terror has left a terrified nation in its wake. Americans are retreating behind locked doors while criminals take over the streets.

One reason for this is that our justice system favors the "rights" of criminals over the rights of victims. Over 8 million serious crimes will be committed this year, and less than one-tenth that many criminals will be arrested. A fraction of those will be convicted and only one case in six will lead to a prison term. Up to 90 percent of cases are plea-bargained, while most "life" terms for murder result in less than 10 years behind bars.

It is time that criminals were held accountable for their offenses. I have joined President Bush in proposing some needed changes in our justice system, as part of a comprehensive anti-crime package. We must have mandatory minimum sentences. Loopholes through which criminals are freed must be closed. The practice of endless court appeals and delays must be stopped. We also need more prisons. Our law enforcement officers must be confident that their efforts to apprehend criminals are not undone by the courts. The final measure of our success should be that our citizens feel safe.

The measures I am supporting in President Bush's anti-crime package will restore integrity to our justice system. There is no justice in sacrificing the freedom of decent Americans from terror and violence. Our justice system has been so obsessed with doing no wrong, that it no longer is doing right by the vast law-abiding majority of Americans. This is a travesty.

At the current crime rate, 83 percent of children now 12 years old will become victims of actual or attempted violence.

H&R Block to Offer Tax School In Prestonsburg

Thousands of people are learning the skill of income tax preparation from H&R Block and are earning money as income tax preparers.

H & R Block, the world's largest income tax preparation service, is offering a basic income tax course starting September 7th.

During the 13 week course, students will study all phases of income tax preparation and receive actual experience in preparing individual returns. Experienced Block instructors will teach current laws, theory and application, as practiced in Block offices nationwide. There is a classroom discussion on each tax subject and practice problems at every level. Courses are programmed to teach students increasingly complex tax problems as study progresses. Students will find the course both interesting and challenging.

Courses are ideally suited for people who want to increase their tax knowledge and learn how to save money on taxes or who are looking for a rewarding career. No prerequisites are required to enroll.

Qualified course graduates may be offered job interviews for positions with Block. Many accept employment with Block because of the flexible hours available. However, Block is under no obligation to offer employment, nor are graduates under any obligation to accept employment with H & R Block.

One low course fee includes all textbooks, supplies and tax forms necessary for the completion of the course. Certificates and 7.5 continuing education units will be awarded upon successful completion of the course.

Registration forms and a brochure for the income tax course may be obtained by contacting H&R Block office at:

expected to address yet another central office and staff organizational chart. The board approved an organizational chart earlier this year and submitted it to state officials, who are requesting that some modifications be made.

The 1988-89 financial audit will also be presented to the board, and will likely provide some good news: the Floyd system will end the year in the black, and not in a deficit situation as was predicted in December.

Smith

"There were some problems with administration of the program, and there still are some with transportation," Hager said.

"However, we have a plan of action to resolve any other problems that exist. Everyone knows their roles and what is expected of them."

Hager, who said he did not initially recommend Smith for the position, said charges of political retaliation were groundless.

Donate Blood, Receive Free Cholesterol Check

Good health seems to be an issue of importance to everyone these days. As a whole, Americans are taking better care of themselves through healthy habits such as diet, exercise, and stress reduction.

Donating blood is another healthy habit, according to Tim Thompson, Central Kentucky Blood Center representative.

"When someone donates blood at Central Kentucky Blood Center, they receive a blood pressure check, temperature and iron level check," said Thomson. "It's an excellent mini-physical."

During August, CKBC will also perform a free cholesterol test on each unit of blood donated and send the results to donors. "We need healthy donors to provide a safe blood supply for the community," Thompson said. "Central Kentucky Blood Center is offering this free cholesterol test as a service to make sure our donors stay healthy."

Interested persons can join the following donor groups during August: Food Lion, Wal-mart, East Kentucky Explosives, Kentucky West Virginia Gas, First United Methodist Church and Our Lady of the Way Hospital.

"No other habit you develop will affect so many people in such a personal and positive way. Please give the 'gift of life' and help prevent critical summer shortages," Thompson urged.

For more information about donating blood or scheduling a blood drive, contact Georgia Sanders at 886-1557 or Thompson at 1-800-432-9528.

Don't Dump; Recycle

Although no excuse exists for dumping garbage along roadsides, many Floyd Countians still do. That's why Kentuckians For The Commonwealth and Mountain Christian Academy have declared Saturday, Aug. 26, as "Recycling Day." Glass, plastic, aluminum and paper products will be accepted that day at four locations: intersection of US 23 and South Lake Drive in Prestonsburg; Mud Creek Clinic; David School and Mountain Christian Academy. "Dumping" will be allowed at those sites from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m.

Local Bell Employees Avert Strike

Floyd Countians will escape problems that are crippling telephone services in neighboring West Virginia and other states, thanks to last weekend's contract agreement between the Communication Workers of America and Bell South, parent company of South Central Bell, which serves most of the area.

CWA members in three Bell-related companies in 15 states have been on strike since the weekend, forcing company managers to pinch-hit.

"We solved ours (contract problems) at the last second — Saturday night," said Art Willett, manager of South Central's local group office in Pikeville. "The reason is that we started negotiating early."

BellSouth includes both South Central and Southern Bell, the two companies which cover most of the southern states. Willett said the local district includes 61 workers in Floyd County and 82 in Pike County.

The agreed upon contract, Willett said, includes a four percent pay hike for the union members and an "incentive benefit" in which employees will receive "an incentive award depending on how well the company does in meeting its standards."

In addition, South Central will continue to provide medical coverage for its employees, apparently the source of the primary dispute between CWA and the other telephone companies.

Willett said the total package amounts to an "8 to 11 percent increase over the next three years."

Hospice Receives Foundation Grant

The Steele-Reese Foundation has awarded Hospice of Big Sandy a grant for $75,000, over three years, to increase the agency's beginning endowment fund.

Chris Conley, Hospice executive director, said the grant will be allotted in $25,000 yearly installments. The funds, she said, will be added to the endowment investment begun in 1986 by a contribution from Dr. and Mrs. William Cook. Cook was a founder of the local program.

Conley said the organization plans to invest $20,000 of the first grant installment and to use the remaining $5,000 to purchase materials for Hospice's volunteer training, bereavement and community service programs.

The grant money is not available for ordinary operating expenses, said Conley. "We will continue to need and welcome the financial support of our friends in Floyd and Johnson counties."

Hospice, with offices in Prestonsburg and Paintsville, provides training, counseling and medical attention for patients and families of patients with terminal illnesses who wish to remain at home.

New President Selected For Kentucky Power Co.

Coulter R. Boyle III, currently vice president of Kentucky Power Company and a veteran accounting and finance professional, will become president and chief operating officer of the company May 1, 1990.

The 41-year-old executive will succeed Kentucky Power President Robert E. Matthews, who will retire on that date. Matthews, an active civic leader in Eastern Kentucky for many years, has been chief operating officer of Kentucky Power since 1978 and an American Electric Power career employee since 1950.

According to company officials, the selection of Boyle is a key part of a senior management transition beginning across the AEP system, which will result in five new operating company presidents and a new executive vice president-operations at the Service Corporation in Columbus, Ohio.

Boyle, reared in Wheelersburg,

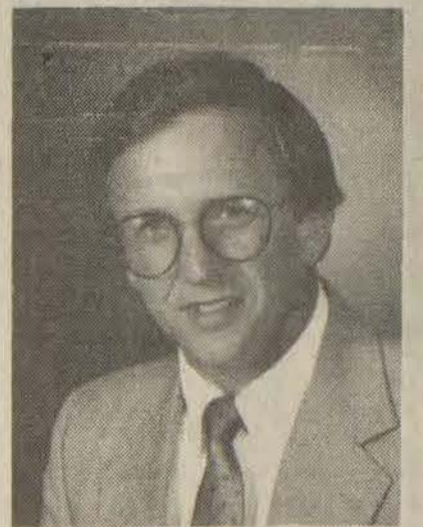

Ohio, is a certified public accountant and a member of the American Institute of CPAs. He is also an accounting graduate of Ohio University and holds a master's degree in business administration from Xavier University.

He worked for the former Columbus and Southern Ohio Electric Co. from 1970 until 1980. He was transferred to the Service Corporation in 1980 shortly after that company became AEP's eighth operating company.

After moving to Kentucky Power as accounting manager and assistant secretary-treasurer in 1981, he was promoted to executive assistant to the president for accounting in 1985. He was elected vice president in 1987.

Boyle is a member of the Board of Directors of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce, Junior Achievement of the Ohio Valley and the Paramount Arts Commission in Ashland.

Kentucky Group Seeks More Interstate Mileage

Kentuckians for Better Transportation, in testimony presented recently to the US Department of Transportation in London, recommended a 30 percent increase in each state's existing Interstate mileage.

Pike County Judge/Executive Paul Patton, a regional chairman of KBT, testified in support of expanding the Interstate system.

"To consider that this system is complete is to admit that our nation is finished. We will condemn millions of Americans in the vast land mass of our nation to a second-class status.

We will accelerate the trend to a coastal economy," said Patton.

"The fact is," said Patton, "that virtually every factory is being built near an Interstate. Communities on an Interstate are prospering, communities remote from an Interstate are withering."

Kentucky presently has 742 miles of Interstate highways which carry 22 percent of the state's traffic. A 30 percent increase in the state's Interstate mileage would give Kentucky an additional 223 miles of Interstate highway.

Patton said a new Interstate highway for Kentucky should follow the Mountain Parkway from Winchester to Campton and go directly to the Pikeville-Elkhorn City area, running midway between Hazard and Prestonsburg. He said from Elkhorn City the Interstate should go to Grundy, Va., and then into southern West Virginia to Bluefield and intersect with I-77.

Approximately 110 miles of the highway would be in Kentucky. The present federal-aid highway program expires in 1991, and nationally groups such as KBT are making recommendations for a new federal-aid highway program. The program recommended by KBT would result in $90 million more in federal highway funds annually for Kentucky, raising 1989 figures of $165 million to $235 million for future years.

Jack Fish, president of KBT who also testified in London, said "We believe it is in the national interest to expand the Interstate highway system."

He said there are major corridors across the nation where Interstate-type facilities are needed. "These are our safest and most efficient highways. These are the highways of the future. They are the computerized vehicle guideways of the future and will further enhance the safety and efficiency of highway travel. Not extending the system can permanently penalize many regions by denying them full participation in the national economy."

Fish also said Interstate maintenance should continue to be a separate funding category, with 90/10 federal/state funding. "The Interstate system is just too important to risk allowing it to deteriorate," said Fish.

Fish recommended that the Highway Trust fund should be removed from the Unified Federal Budget, Gramm-Rudman and obligation controls. He said Kentucky could be getting $50 million more per year for much needed highway improvements if the Federal Highway Trust Fund was not being used to help show a balance in the federal budget.

Noting that the present federal gasohol exemption costs Kentucky $35 million per year in federal highway aid, Fish said the highway program should not be used to subsidize gasohol.

Economic Development Group Discusses Area Potential, Problems

Several members of the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce Economic Development Committee met over breakfast at the Holiday Inn Saturday, July 29, to discuss the problems and possibilities for continued development in the county.

In a combined "get-to-know-you" and "Where do we stand?" session, about a dozen community leaders from across the county talked about small business, industrial prospects, education, public relations, problems caused by the coal mining industry in Eastern Kentucky, transportation and venture capital.

Attending the meeting were Roger Recktenwald, executive director of Big Sandy Area Development District; Glen Floyd, president of J&R Construction; Jerry Fultz, educator and Wayland resident; Bob Meyer, projects manager for Big Sandy ADD; the Rev. Don Fraley Jr., representing the Left Beaver Community Development group; Patricia Murphy, mayor of Wayland; Tim Hites, Chamber president; Fred James, city administrator, Prestonsburg, representing Mayor Ann Latta; Russell Briggs, associate administrator of Highlands Regional Medical Center; Tom Hereford, director of the area Department of Employment Services; Mike Vance, representing Mountain Comprehensive Care, who also serves on the Prestonsburg City Council; and Anne Chaney, committee chair and editor of the Floyd County Times.

Several members expressed concern at the lack of economic growth in the county. They said that while coal companies helped towns flourish in earlier years, when firms left, the towns lost residents, revenue and enhancements.

"They took millions of tons of coal; when they left the county, they left nothing but a hole in the ground," said one committee member.

Members also discussed Eastern Kentucky's perception statewide and on the national level, acknowledging that the region is often linked with poverty, low education levels and a "hillbilly" stigma.

In an effort to improve the county's image, committee members supported a proposed joint venture between county, city and education governing bodies to employ a public relations person.

In a separate area, Recktenwald and Meyer explained venture capital funds being applied for by Big Sandy ADD. They will present a follow-up report at the committee's next meeting, which will be Saturday, Sept. 16, at a location yet to be determined.

Concerning transportation, members discussed the segment of US 23 from Prestonsburg to Paintsville, and a proposed three-lane road linking KY 122 on Left Beaver to KY 80 near Eastern. The group asked Wayland

Mayor Pat Murphy to contact other mayors in the county and ask them to approve resolutions supporting continued work on both projects; Wayland Town Board members approved both proposals during their Tuesday, Aug. 1 meeting.

Before adjourning, members agreed to come to the September meeting with a list of three potential industries suitable for the county, and an explanation for each, and a list of three small business/entrepreneurial ventures, again with an explanation of why each would be suitable for the county.

Anyone interested in serving on the Economic Development Committee may contact Chaney at 886-8506 during business hours, or 886-9121 at other times.

School Bell Awards

Vikki Young Franklin of WQHY/WDOC Radio, left, and Anne Chaney of the Floyd County Times, right, each received School Bell Awards recently from the Kentucky Education Association. Betty Rowland, area KEA representative, center, made the presentation. The awards are given annually to journalists for outstanding coverage of education issues, said Rowland. This year, 12 awards were presented in Kentucky: six to newspapers, and three each to radio and television stations.

Unemployment Rate Drops In Five-County Big Sandy Area

Permanent and summer job seekers streamed into Kentucky's labor force in June, setting a new employment mark and raising jobless rates in 59 counties.

In 54 counties, unemployment rates dropped in May and June, while in seven others, the rates were unchanged.

Statewide, the unemployment rate jumped from a revised 6.6 percent in May to a preliminary 7.3 percent in June, but was still well below the 9.1 percent of June 1988.

Ed Blackwell, the cabinet's chief labor market analyst, said the June figures reflect the normal seasonal hirings, as well as additional permanent jobs.

"Rates in 106 counties were down from last June," Blackwell said. "And while the number of counties with rates above 10 percent rose from 31 in May to 34 in June, that was down substantially from the 64 double-digit jobless rate counties recorded a year ago."

Magoffin County, long having one of the top five jobless rates in the state, shared a 14.3 percent unemployment rate with McCreary County.

In the Big Sandy district, which includes Pike, Floyd, Magoffin, Johnson and Martin counties, unemployment decreased from a revised 11.4 percent in May to a preliminary 10.8 percent in June. Rates ranged from 9.6 percent in Johnson County, the only single-digit rate in the district, to Magoffin's 14.3 percent rate.

The monthly sample of claimants of unemployment insurance benefits showed 42 percent had worked in mining, 21 percent in trade, 15.6 percent in construction and 8.6 percent in services.

By county, the jobless rates in June were:

Floyd, 10 percent, down from May's 10.3 percent; Johnson, 9.6 percent, down from May's 10.3 percent; Magoffin, 14.3 percent, also down from the previous month's 16.3 percent rate; Martin, 11.2 percent, down from May's 11.7 percent; and Pike, 11.1 percent, down from the previous month's 11.5 percent.

IN MEMORY Of Arnold Hunter
Sept. 29, 1922 - Aug. 10, 1986

You ever were and will always be a giant among men, standing tall, good, and kind, in a world mired down with sin. So rare you were, a precious jewel, a gift from God above, showering all you met and knew with warmth and cheer and love. Though often faced with trial and strife, let down by friends and kin, you gave of self, forgiving all, a giant among men. 'Give me the Bible', you said each day, for all my steps enlighten. That lamp of safety as your guide caused all our lives to brighten. Though now you're gone, how blessed we are for memories given when God's grace gave us a short time with a giant among men.

'None knew thee but to love thee'

In Memory Of Walker Newsome
(Aug. 8, 1928-Jan. 11, 1989)

In the twilight of the evening, When the sun was going down, Daddy, I looked into my past and This is what I found. Even though we had some sad times, The good times were there to. I could not have made it in this world Without your love to carry me through. I get so lonely at times that I think That I can't go on. Then I look at my two sons and realize That their love will keep me strong.

I miss you very much daddy.

Two Area Cemeteries To Be Moved Due To Construction Of New US 23

Approximately nine graves in two cemeteries must be moved to prepare for construction of the new US 23 four-lane, according to Department of Highways officials.

Both cemeteries are located within the proposed right of way of the project.

One is located on the west side of KY 1428 on property owned by John Wallen and is about two miles north of Prestonsburg. The names of persons buried there are James M. Baldrige and Louise B. Baldrige.

The second cemetery is located on the west side of KY 1428 near the intersection of Hager Branch Road and KY 1428 on property owned by the Kathleen L. Gibson Estate, and is about five miles north of Prestonsburg. It is thought to be known as the Auxier Cemetery and contains about seven graves, according to Jack Litton, right of way agent. The name on one of these graves is Maggie Auxier Shepherd.

Litton is seeking information concerning the names of anyone who might be contacted who may have knowledge of persons buried there, names and locations within the cemetery of unmarked graves, names and addresses of next-of-kin and any information that might be helpful in determining the number of graves in the cemetery.

Anyone having such information may to Litton at the Department of Highways, P.O. Box 347, Flemingsburg, KY 41041.

Suit Filed

help of the union. But the plan requires that individuals pay more than $200 a month for coverage, according to W.C. Turner of Minnie, who worked for Left Beaver for "30-some years."

"They just quit paying our medical bills. We didn't get any warning at all," said Russell Jacobs of Stanville, a miner for 33 years, 13 of those at Left Beaver.

"Some of us were lucky," said Jacobs of the predicament. "We had a little nest egg built up so we could pay our bills." Jacobs said he had to pay out about $2,300 in pharmacy bills after his benefits ended.

According to Pillersdorf's office, both the company and the Funds have until about the middle of this month to respond to the suit.

Besides Jacobs and Turner, the plaintiffs are Herschel Stumbo, Kermit Newsome, Ross Lewis, Thurman Paige and Clarence Turner, all of McDowell; Minnie Sammons, executrix of the estate of Eugene Sammons, Manton; Jimmy Ratliff, Langley; Edward Newsome, Chester Newsome and Cecil Newsome Jr., all of Teaberry; Delilah Honeycutt, executrix of the estate of Hansel Honeycutt, Prestonsburg;

Don M. Ratliff, Hunter; Bascomb Horn and Freddie Gibson of Hi Hat; John D. Martin, Beaver; John Dalton, Wayland; Bobby McGuire, Price; Ray Walters, Minnie; Russell Pack, Drift; Ben Hall, Topmost, and Ballard Gibson, Ligon.

The suit asks that a decision be made that one of the defendants be responsible for medical benefits for the miners and that the plaintiffs be compensated for lost death benefits, their payments to medical providers, their outstanding medical bills and their attorney fees.

New Attitude, Leadership Make Up '89-90 PHS Squad

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

A new season is about to unfold for the Prestonsburg Blackcat football team as they will be going against first-year coach Gerald Newsome's Betsy Layne Bobcats in their opening game at home on Friday, Aug. 18.

With the new season come a new attitude and leadership, at least according to the senior standouts on the Blackcat team.

"I feel better going into this season's schedule," senior linebacker and guard Jimmy Nelson proclaimed. "Last year our attitude was wrong and we didn't have the leadership we needed. This year we have more leadership, we're more together and we all get along with one another. There is no bitterness on this year's team."

The Blackcats face a schedule with some strong opponents, but that doesn't concern Nelson. "I believe we can be above .500 when the season ends. Even though the schedule is tough, we can still win our share of games."

Nelson hopes to be able to contribute to the team's success by being a leader on the team. "I want to play hard on every play, come off the ball hard and contribute to the team the best I can. I promised this town that I would try and help lead the team back into the playoffs come Dec. 1."

Senior guard Tommy Poe contributes working hard in the weight room as one reason this year's Blackcat squad will be competitive. "All the players have been working hard in the weight room all winter," he said. "We have a whole new attitude and a desire to win. If we try hard and play hard, we will be above .500 for the season. A personal goal I have is to use my strength to block for the 'glory boys' (fullbacks). I think we will be in the playoffs Dec. 1."

Returning center and defensive tackle Kevin Adams thinks of this year's football team as a family.

"Everyone has a happy attitude this year. We're like a family out there. We get along well. Attitudes on a team are extremely important. That's what hurt us last year. It is a key in winning," the senior center says. "I believe this year's team will be a very competitive team. I'm happy with our team and I just want to be able to open some holes for our runners. We will have a quick line and we will need to utilize our quickness."

Senior Mike Crace talks of the practice sessions the team has been going through daily. "We do good in practice. The players' attitudes are very positive and good. We're playing together. My personal goal this season is to attack the ball and come off the ball good, to get some blocks downfield. I want to make some key yardage on third down. We will be playing a tough schedule but we can do it. We will be smaller but quicker and stronger. I want us to get back in the playoffs on Dec. 1."

Allen Central Overcomes Johns Creek 'Cats, 14-12

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Although the weather resembled anything but football weather, that didn't stop a big crowd from coming out to the first-ever grid-o-rama at Brackett Field in Wheelwright, as the host Trojans sponsored the football event.

Johns Creek, Allen Central, Virgie, M.C. Napier, Betsy-Layne and Wheelwright participated, with each team playing two 15-minute quarters.

In 90 degree temperatures and under threatening skies, Coach Donnie Daniels' Allen Central Rebels came from a 12-0 deficit to overcome Johns Creek 14-12 in the first game. In game two, Virgie erased a 13-0 lead to defeat a good M.C. Napier team, 14-13.

Senior Mickey Parson rushed for an unofficial 75 yards and scored a first period touchdown to lead the Rebels to an enthusiastic first game victory over the Bearcats.

Johns Creek had first possession on the Rebels' 30 yard line. After moving the ball to the Rebels' 41, Philip Birchfield carried the ball 59 yards for a Bearcat touchdown and a 6-0 lead. The conversion attempt failed.

Allen Central had possession at the 13-minute mark in the first segment. On the initial play from scrimmage, Terry Spurlock was called off-sides and the Rebels received a five yard penalty. Tommy Gibson carried the ball for a gain of nine yards. Ken Hall picked up the first down with a six yard gain.

On first and 10, senior Mickey Parson fumbled the ball on the Johns Creek 45. Bearcat quarterback Chris Gannon carried the ball, on a sweep to the right side, to the Rebels' 36 yard line. Running back Lawrence Branham went 36 yards into the end zone for a TD, giving Johns Creek a 12-0 lead. The conversion attempt fell short.

At the 11:15 mark, Allen Central had the ball on their own 36 yard line. On second down Bret Meadows was whistled for face masking and the Rebels were put back 15 yards. Gibson picked up four on second down and Parsons carried for 10 and six yards respectively for a Rebels' first down. With 8:10 left in the period and the Rebels on the Bearcats' 24 yard line, quarterback B.J. Aldrich's pass was deflected into the hands of receiver Spurlock on the Bearcat 16.

Parsons carried the ball to the Johns Creek eight. On the next down, Parsons broke through the middle to the three. On third and goal, Parsons went around right end to score. Kevin Hall got the two point conversion and the Rebels trailed, 12-8.

The Rebel defense went to work, holding the Bearcats scoreless on their next possession. Johns Creek had the ball with 6:14 remaining in the game and a 12-8 lead. The Bearcats were unable to move the ball from their own 30 as the Rebel defense caught Gannon for a sack on third down.

With 4:46 remaining in the first quarter, the Rebels marched 50 yards on 13 plays for a touchdown and a 14-12 lead. The Rebels moved the ball to the Bearcat five yard line when Johns Creek was called again for a face masking and was penalized half the distance. The ball was moved to within three yards of the goal line, and the first period ended. The Rebels put six more points on the scoreboard on a yard plunge by Aldrich. Allen Central failed to convert the extra points.

The Bearcats mounted a threat in the second stanza with the ball on their own 30 yard line at the 14:55 mark. Johns Creek moved the ball to the Rebel 28, and the AHCS defense went to work. The Bearcats had the ball and first and 10 and fumbled the ball on first down. Terry Reed recovered the fumble for Allen Central. Neither team was able to score during the remainder of the game.

Gibson rushed for 43 yards and Hall ran for 32 for the Rebels. The Rebels had only eight yards in passing while picking 150 yards rushing.

The game between the Trojans and Bobcats was called because of severe weather. The two teams had played six minutes into the first quarter with no score.

After the AHCS/Johns Creek match, Coach Daniels told his team that it was the first time a team he coached "made the big plays instead of giving them up."

"Now we start building. You should never look back because you have tasted victory," the Rebel football mentor explained.

The younger players who saw no game time weren't left out. "We have to build the younger players up to this level of competition. If you were get hurt you may become afraid to play. Even though you did not play, you are still part of this victory," Daniels said.

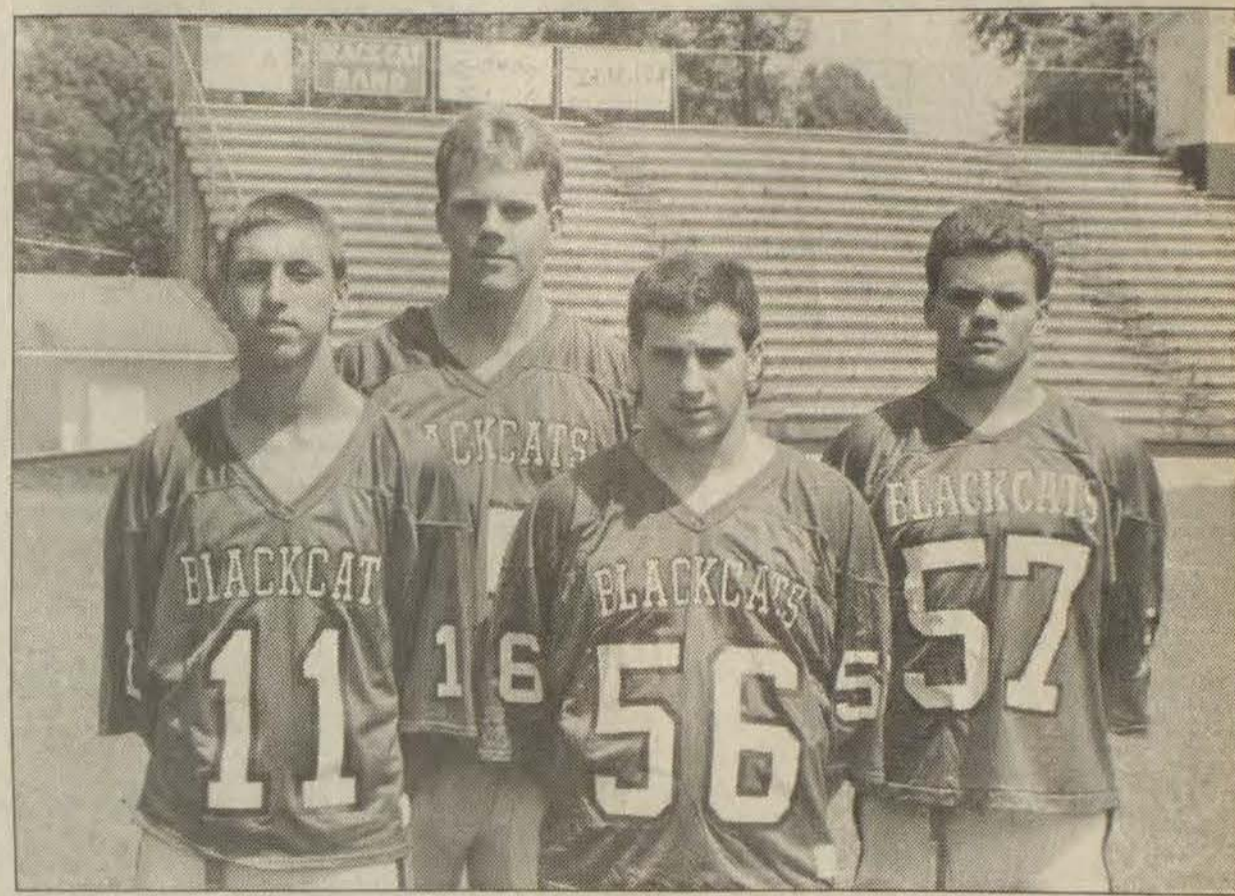

"We are doing much better," Coach Daniels said. "We didn't miss tackles in this game and I am pleased with the first two weeks we've been together."

"We've got a lot of young players, this is their first time playing and they made some mental mistakes."

"I see a big improvement in our squad. We had good execution and we came off the ball real well," Daniels said. "We are tackling better. Our defense needs some work, but we haven't really work on that much in practice."

School principal Don Daniels Sr. sees some weaknesses that the Rebel team has to work on. "Their work techniques need working on, such as blocking and defense. We don't have

Lumberjack Sport:

It's A Family Affair

Family Affair

Andrew Reed, left, Loretta Reed, center, and John Reed, right, are enjoying a new sport — lumberjack. All three compete in the lumberjack events around the country. "I've always enjoyed the outdoors and being around my father's sawmill," Mr. Reed said. Reed placed seventh in the lumberjack meet in Webster Springs, W. Va. Mrs. Reed won the axe throw at Hindman in the Ginger Bread Festival.

Living in an area where basketball is the number one sport, along with football and baseball, few have had the privilege of observing a different kind of sport that seems to be catching on in this part of the country — lumberjack.

The sport of lumberjack is held in two different divisions: Collegiate and Professional. The Professional Division is broken down into the handicap level and the championship level. The sport is most popular in the northwest where timber camps are prominent.

A local family has become active in lumberjacking. Andrew Reed, his wife Loretta and son John, who lives on Arkansas Creek, has been entering the lumberjack events since March of this year.

"I became interested in the lumberjack sport in early spring," Reed relates. "They had a meet in Morehead, and my wife Loretta went to her family's reunion, so I went to Morehead to watch the events. I used to play in the woods as a child and I grew up around my dad's sawmill on Raccoon Creek, so it was natural that I would enjoy the sport."

"I entered recently in the events at Webster Springs, W. Va., where I placed seventh. I won about $30 for the placing. I've won about four coolers in other events," Reed says. "ESPN is supposed to show the event on Sept. 4."

Lumberjack competition is composed of different events, such as underhand chop, standing block chop, cross-cut, axe throwing and chain saw.

The sport is considered hazardous, Reed explains. "In one meet in the underhand chopping event, a man hit his block and the axe glanced off the block and cut the front of his shoe off, just missing his toes."

There are no qualifications to enter the sport. The event holders supply all the tools, chopping axes, throwing axes and chain saws.

"The chain saws are 'souped' up and they really cut through a log very fast," the younger Reed (John) says. John placed first in the chain saw event in a recent Hindman meet with a time of 16 seconds. "They have what's called a modified hot saw event. Some saws have a go-cart engine in them," John says.

The axes that are used vary in length and sizes, depending on whether the event is chopping or axe throwing. The chopping axe, which weighs around five pounds, is a single bit axe and has to be kept very clean. "A clean axe cuts back friction," Reed says.

In the Kentucky State Championship, a throwing axe cannot be longer than 24 inches, weighs around 2-1/2 pounds and is a double bitted axe.

"An axe will cost around $100 for just the head. The handle runs around $8," Reed explains. "I order my axes from Balley's which is a logging supply company."

Mrs. Reed placed first in an axe throwing event at Hazard recently. In this event, a man must throw from a distance of 20 feet, 15 feet for women. A circular slab of wood is used for a target, with a bull's eye painted on it. The participant gets a practice throw and then throws three times for a score.

"Years ago in the lumber camps, men would go to the camps and have to stay weeks at a time. They didn't have any other sports, so they started competing against each other as to who could cut a log faster or saw the tops out of trees quicker. They did this to entertain themselves. That's how they got the sport started," says Reed, explaining the origin of the sport.

"Women mostly enter in the axe throwing events," Mrs. Reed says, "although some do compete in other areas also. They have what is called the Jack and Jill Cross-Cut event, where a man and a woman will use a cross-cut saw and cut down a tree or saw a log. There are also the Jill and Jill event in cross cutting as well as Jack and Jack."

Reed has a desire to see local clubs formed in the sport although none now exists. "There are not that many people locally who are interested in the sport. We're hoping to be able to have a lumberjack exhibition at the Red, White and Blue Day in Martin in October. Nothing has been decided about it yet, but we're hoping they will have it."

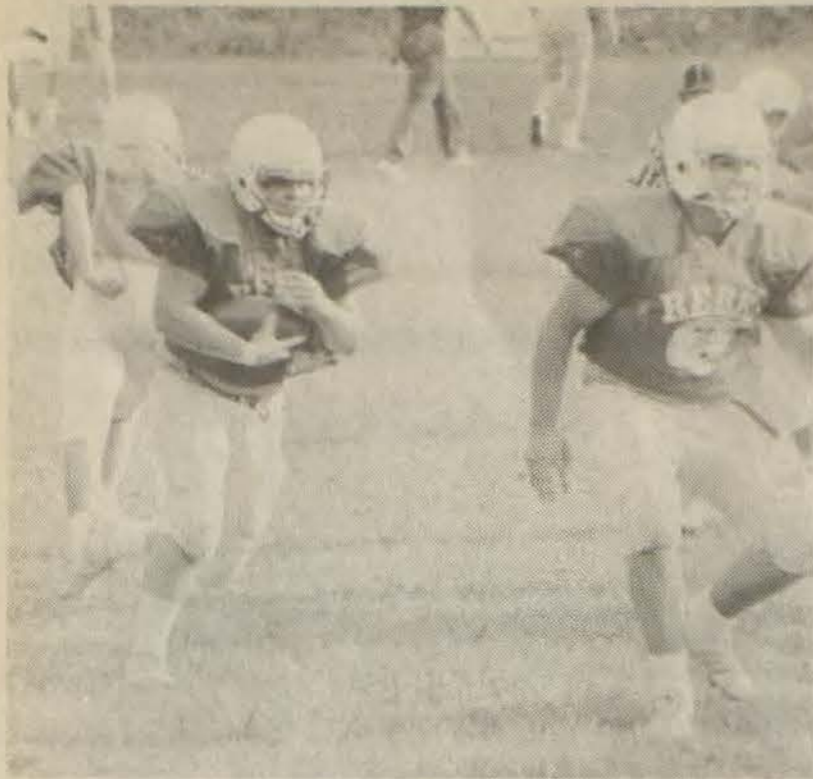

"I think a lot of people would be interested in it," he says. "We've talked to Billy Joe Kerr, Jim Spangler and Danny McGinnis about coming the speed other teams have. On the positive side, we were down 12-0 and came back they didn't quit. I like that in a team. The offense knew what to do. We had good second and third efforts. This win will be a confidence builder for our team."

"Aldrich did a good job at quarterback for us," the elder Daniels said. "Of course, he does more than any kid we've had. He always gives a 100 percent."

The principal added that Mickey Parsons "is the best thing in the county," while noting that teammate Tommy Gibson compliments Parsons. "When the defense keys on Parsons, Tommy is there."

Ken's Sports Shop Earns Seventh Tournament Title

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The 17th Annual Peterson Invitational Softball Tournament was held this past weekend in Johnson City, Tenn., with 20 teams taking part. Ken's Sport Shop of Prestonsburg walked away with its seventh tournament title of the season on a 20-5 victory over the Ruffin Reds in the championship game.

Jimmy Blankenship, who coach Kenny Conley declares to "be the best softball player I have ever seen," won the most valuable player award

(a VCR), and also won the home run trophy with four round trippers.

The winners played four games on Saturday and two on Sunday in capturing the tournament crown. In the first game, Ken's Sport Shop defeated G&L Express of Knoxville, Tenn., 21-2. Blankenship and Mike Howard each had four hits in the game, including a home run apiece. Kane Hale had three hits for the winners.

The local team continued in the winners bracket with a 10-4 win over Star-Market of Greenville, Tenn. Blankenship homered for the Prestonsburg team and contributed two singles in the victory. Howard had a double and a single, while Bobby Bowersock had two doubles.

Mor-Flo from Johnson City, Tenn., was the next opponent to fall to the local squad. Ken's Sport Shop slipped by the good Johnson City team 6-5. Blankenship led the hit parade for the winners with a double and a triple. Howard and Tim Rice had two hits each.

In the finals of the winners bracket, Ken's defeated the Ruffin Reds of Asheville, N.C., 13-7. Bowersock had three hits in the contest, including a double and a triple. Hale and Rice had two hits, as did Blankenship, including a triple.

The Asheville-based Ruffin Reds won the losers bracket and faced Ken's

Sport Shop in the final round. Ken's suffered its first loss of the tournament to the Reds, 11-8. Blankenship had two home runs in the game. Bowersock tripled. Bruce Shelton and Mike Belcher had two hits in the losing effort. Tim Rice and David Conley added two singles for the local team.

The two teams met in the championship game. Bobby King led Ken's Sport Shop in hitting with four connectors, including two doubles. Shane Nickel had three hits with one double. Blankenship homered and singled for the winning team, and Rice also had a good day at the plate with three hits, including a double and a triple, in the 20-5 win.

Blankenship, in winning MVP honors, had 15 hits in 17 plate appearances. He had four home runs, two triples and two doubles. Ken's Sport Shop became the first Kentucky team to ever win the coveted tournament.

The local softball powerhouse will be entering the state tournament at Bowling Green on Aug. 18-20. There will be 55 teams in the double elimination tournament.

Seven Championships

Ken's Sport Shop just won its seventh tournament title with a 20-5 win over the Ruffin Reds of Asheville, N.C. to capture the 17th Annual Peterson Softball Classic. The local team also won the Bluegrass Games in Lexington two weeks ago.

"I plan on sending my axe to Paddy Stevenson, who is a native of England, to have it sharpened for competition," the lumberjack enthusiast says. "He has been in a lot of competition and knows how to sharpen the axes."

"We practice every day in our back yard," Reed said. "We have all the things here they have at the events. I try to run a lot to help build up my stamina because the standing block chop and underhand chop takes a lot out of you."

Entry fee for each event ranges between $2 to $4 per person, Reed says, adding that sometimes the prize money will run around $1500-$2000. The one with the most overall points takes the prize.

Reed and his family plan to enter the Kentucky Logging Show in Bowling Green on Sept. 16-17. They plan to enter all the events in the meet.

Trusty Signs With Alice Lloyd College

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The 58th District can boast of many outstanding baseball players that were showcased this past season. But if you talk with coaches around the county and region, they never hesitate to talk about the play of Tim Trusty of the Prestonsburg Blackcats.

Trusty signed a letter-of-intent to attend Alice Lloyd College on a baseball scholarship this fall. Trusty was one of the top players on Eagles mentor John Mills' list.

Tim Trusty of Prestonsburg signed to play baseball for Alice Lloyd College this fall. Trusty played third base and pitched for the Blackcats. He also attended a Cincinnati Reds try out camp. "Tim is the best third baseman we looked at this year," Alice Lloyd mentor John Mills says.

Searching For Fishing Sponsorship? Here's How

Bass anglers everywhere search for sponsors to help support them while they compete in tournaments, but unfortunately, many of them hurt their chances because they don't go about a sponsor-search the proper way.

That's the word from Larry Koger and Jim Hladnik, sales promotion coordinators for Evinrude and Johnson Outboards, who receive letters, telephone calls and resumes from hopeful bass anglers every week.

"What we're looking for are good salesmen who can represent us at shows and seminars," explains Koger. "This is true of all companies who may want to sponsor someone, and it isn't limited to bass tournament fishing, either."

"Any type of sponsor wants a person who presents himself well to the public and also to his peers. This is true in automobile racing, selling basketball shoes, or promoting a cake mix."

"In our sport, if an angler happens to win a bass tournament, it's really just frosting on the cake. I believe the average anglers place far too much emphasis on the winning. The question a fisherman must ask is not 'What can you do for me?', but rather, 'What can I do for you?'"

"At Evinrude and Johnson Outboards," explains Hladnik, "resumes submitted by hopeful fishermen are sent back to dealers in that angler's region so we begin to learn who he is,

"We really suggest anglers work through their local dealers first before contacting us. When the dealer believes he has someone worthy of consideration, we prefer that dealer refer him to us. The dealer can also have the angler write a resume that can be sent at the same time as this referral. It's very important to us that a sponsored fisherman be able to work on the local level first."

Koger and Hladnik attend approximately 30 bass tournaments annually on behalf of Outboard Marine Corporation, traveling at least 100,000 miles in the process. They're normally too busy to do any fishing themselves, but they watch their sponsored pros very carefully.

"Often, we may refuse an angler one year but tell him to try again later because we are interested," says Koger. "Competitive tournament fishing is a long learning process, and we believe fishermen need to learn to fish locally and gradually climb up the ladder, just like in minor and major league baseball."

"Periodically, we review every sponsorship we have. If our requirements are not being met, we will terminate a relationship with that fisherman," says Hladnik.

"We are always looking for new talent, but he must be articulate, present himself well to the public, and have product knowledge as well as fishing knowledge."

Newsome's Bobcats Like Their New Look

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

When a new coach comes on the scene and starts making changes, it has a tendency to upset some fans and players.

Not so with new first-year head coach Gerald Newsome's Betsy Layne Bobcats. The Bobcat players like what they have seen in their new coach.

In an interview with eight of the seniors on this year's Bobcat football team, all seem to agree the best change is the encouragement they get from this year's coaching staff, as well as the pride that the coaches are trying to instill in the players.

"We've learned a lot from Coach Newsome. We've worked hard in practices and I think we are going to surprise a lot of people," senior linebacker Dave Recznik stated. "Coach Newsome has expressed to us to respect the coaches and our grades. This is something that was missing in last year's team. It will be a big change for us, but we are going to have to just accept it."

"I think the attitude on this year's team is great," the linebacker stated. "I want us to win the conference for the first time and have a winning season," Recznik said in explaining his personal goals for the upcoming season. "I also want to show some leadership for the smaller kids and show them how to play. I want to do well because of the standing for my name."

Senior tight end Patrick Spradling has seen a big difference in practices so far this season. "Practices have been great," he says, "a lot better than last year. There is a lot better attitude on the team, and everybody wants to win. Last year nobody cared. We went out and never expected to win when we went on the field. It's different this year."

"I personally want to help in any way I can to help us to be a winner," Spradling said, "in making the catches or just blocking, I want to help."

Was there a concern among the players about the delay in hiring a new coach for the football program this year? "Yes, we were all concerned," the tight end says. "We didn't know if we were going to have a team this year or not."

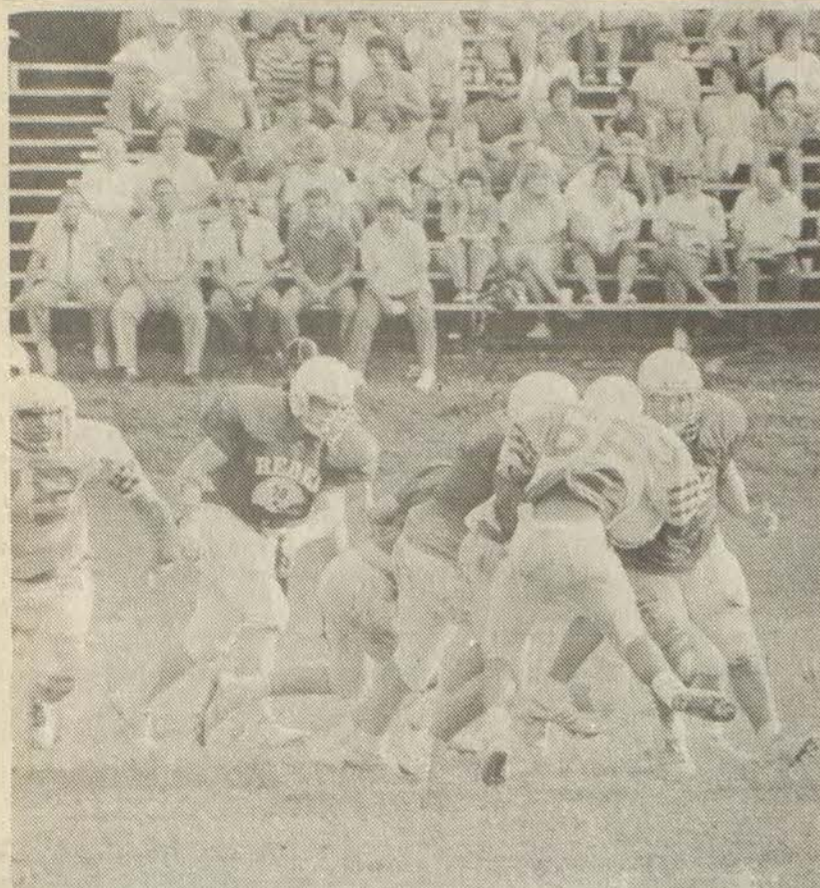

What about having a local coach, versus someone from out of state? "It's better to have someone locally," Spradling says. "He knows the players, the players know him and it is better overall. We're glad they gave Coach Newsome the job."

An above .500 season is the goal for senior tight end Jack Jarrell. "I believe we can have a 6-5 season or better. Everybody is working hard and the seniors are showing the needed leadership we need."

"I want to help the younger players along, show them the offense and offer advice if they need it."

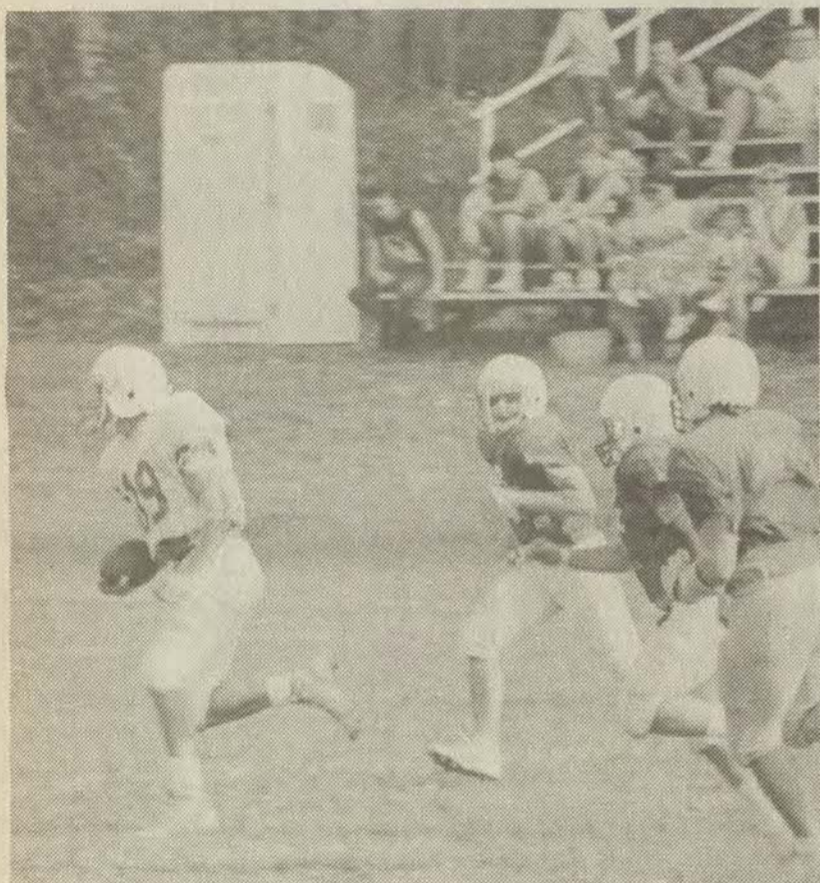

Fullback Morris Adkins has set his goal on rushing for 1,200 yards. "This is good bunch of players. We're all close and we play as a unit," he says. "Coach Newsome and the other coaches, they don't holler at us and cuss us out. That makes us want to play harder. There's no cussing allowed on this team. Coach Newsome is a good coach."

"I'm playing this year for a scholarship," the big fullback said. "A college scholarship is important to me. I believe we can have a good year. We have Lawrence and Leslie counties on our schedule and the old state champions, Pikeville. We'll do all right."

Stopped at the Line of Scrimmage

Running back Mickey Parsons of Allen Central is stopped at the line of scrimmage against the Johns Creek Bearcats in the Trojans Grid-O-Rama last week at Bracket Field. Parsons rushed for 75 yards in leading the Rebels to a 14-12 victory over the Bearcats.

In Pursuit

Allen Central defenders are in pursuit of Johns Creek receiver Philip Birchfield in the first quarter of play in the Grid-O-Rama at Wheelwright last Saturday evening. Birchfield scored on this 60 yard run. The Rebels won the game 14-12.

Senior offensive tackle John Ousley thinks a big plus for this year's Bobcat squad is a strong coaching staff. "Our coaches this year came in here with a lot of experience. That can't do anything but help us as a team," Ousley said. "We have some players we are looking for leadership, such as Craig Hunter, our quarterback. Chris Bias and Gary Shortridge know how to play."

One of the changes that Ousley appreciates is the "no cussing" rule. "That really helps," he notes. His goals? "I want to be able to clear the lanes and keep our quarterback from being sacked. We will be a strong team. If we get the leadership we can go as far as we want to."

"We have a lot of people with a positive attitude," says senior guard Gary Shortridge. "We will do good and surprise a lot of people. One goal I have this season is to beat Prestonsburg (Betsy Layne's first game opponent). We have a cleaner attitude on this year's team. The coaches have tried to instill some pride in us. We have to learn to play by the coach's rules."

Senior halfback Chris Bias sees a difference in attitudes from the coaches and team captains on down as a major difference. "Coach Newsome has his roots here. He wants to do good as our coach. He makes us want to go and give a 110 per cent every day." But, he adds, "We still need to learn to adjust to our offense more."

Craig Hunter, senior quarterback for the Bobcats, has received confidence from his coaches in his ability to lead the team. "If everybody keeps the attitude they have now, we can help Coach Newsome build a program at Betsy Layne. We have some good underclassmen players and that will help the coaches to build for next season."

Hunter also sees a difference in the Bobcat offense. "Last year we ran most of the time. This year you'll see us mix it up more. When we go on the field we want to get on the board first and play the tough 'D'."

"I'm trying to be a leader on this year's team," Hunter stated. "I want to make all-conference this year. And, like the other players have said, I believe we will surprise some people this year."

The Bobcats will open up the regular season with a road game against the Prestonsburg Blackcats on Aug. 18th.

Compton, Music Capture Men's Class A Doubles Title

The Paintsville City Parks Recreation Department, with assistance from the local chapter of the USTA National Junior Tennis League, held its 1989 edition of the Paintsville City Tennis Tournament at the city parks and the Perkins Rehabilitation Center.

A total of 131 players took part in the city meet, making it one of the largest tennis tournaments in this part of Kentucky. The junior events had 61 entrants, while the adults had 76 participants. Although tournament entry was limited to residents of Floyd, Johnson, Lawrence, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties, tournament popularity and the subsequent increase in entrants has pushed to the maximum the use of existing facilities at the city park and the Perkins Rehabilitation Center, according to tournament officials.

The men's A singles title was won by Randy Chapman of Inez, by a 6-4, 6-4 score over Prestonsburg Russell

Music, Jr. Chapman defeated two-time defending champion Don Compton of Prestonsburg by a 6-0, 6-1 score in one semi-final while Music was defeating Pikeville's Lee Smith 6-1, 6-1.

The women's A singles title went to 14-year-old Dawn Maynard of Pikeville as she defeated doubles partner Christi Bartley of Pikeville by a 6-4, 6-3 score. Maynard had captured the women's A crown in recent tournaments in Hazard and Prestonsburg prior to this tournament. In semi-final action, Maynard was defeating Allen's Clarissa Short, 6-2, 6-1, while Bartley defeated Lois Howard of Prestonsburg by 6-1, 6-0 scores.

The men's "B" singles drew the largest number of entries — 31. Although play in this event sometimes resembled a test of endurance rather than tennis skills, the backboard-like style of Chris Waugh of Allen prevailed in a 6-4, 6-1 triumph over Joe Burchett of Prestonsburg. Waugh received a semi-final default from Prestonsburg's Benji Caudill as Burchett was defeating a fatigued Greg Ratliff of Prestonsburg, 6-3, 6-2.

David's Marina Allen bested Paintsville's Leneda Fuller by a 6-3, 6-4 margin to take the women's "B" singles. Allen defeated Judith Short from Allen, 6-3 and withdrew in one semi-final as Fuller rallied to take a 4-6, 6-4 and 6-2 decision from Rhonda Stephens also of Paintsville.

The men's "A" doubles final provided a measure of revenge for defending champions Don Compton and Russell Music Jr. as they downed Inez's Randy Chapman and John Crum by a 6-3, 6-1 margin. Semi-final action saw Compton and Music escape with a 6-4, 3-6 and 6-1 victory over Pikeville's Jimmy Ratliff and Jim Vanover. The other semi-final match was a 6-4 and 7-6 (7-3) victory for Chapman and Crum over Prestonsburg's Mike Adkins and Bobby Hamilton.

Greg Ratliff and Chris Waugh teamed to defeat Mike Litafik and Craig Smith, from Phelps, in a close 6-7, 6-2 and 6-4 men's "B" doubles final. Ratliff and Waugh fought off Paintsville's Larry Crum and Randall Stephens by 6-2, 3-6, and 7-5 in one semi-final while Litafik and Smith were defeating Prestonsburg's David Ellis and Wes Hamilton in the other semi-final.

Bartley and Maynard captured the women's doubles crown with a 6-1 and 6-2 score over Leneda Fuller and Lois Howard. Bartley and Maynard defeated Judith and Clarissa Short by 6-1 and 7-5 in one semi-final while Fuller and Howard bested Paintsville's Etta Cantrell and Lisa Conley by 6-4 and 6-0.

The mixed doubles title went to brother-sister combination of Don Compton and Louisa's Terri Spradlin as they battled to a 6-3 and 7-5 victory over Jim Vanover and Dawn Maynard. Spradlin and Compton dispatched Clarissa Short and Bobby Hamilton by 6-1 and 6-2 in one semi-final as Maynard and Vanover defeated defending champions Tim and Lois Howard by a 6-3 and 7-6 margin.

In the junior singles events, the boy's 17 and under was won by Paintsville's Shane Castle by 6-0 and 6-2 over Martin's Brian Stewart. The girl's 17 and under title went to Sheila Justice with a 6-4, 6-3 victory over Lesley Gray in a match between local players. The boy's 13 and under event was won by Jesse Rudd II of Salyersville by a 6-0 and 6-0 margin over Paintsville's Kevin Glover who was playing up one age group. The all local girl's 13 and under final was won by Dawnielle Blankenship by a 9-8 pro-set over Cindy McCarty who was also playing up one age group. The boy's 10 and under singles was captured by Pikeville's Eddie Blackburn, Jr. over Paintsville's Eric Justice by a 6-0, 6-0 score. The girl's 10 and under title went to Salyersville's Jamie Rudd with a 8-0 pro-set conquest of Paintsville's Paula May.

Men's A Doubles Champions and Runners-up

Don Compton and Russell Music Jr., both of Prestonsburg, captured the Men's A Doubles Tennis championship in the Paintsville Tennis Tournament at Paintsville's City Park last week. Compton and Music defeated John Crum and Randy Chapman 6-3, 6-1 to win the crown. Pictured, from left, are John Crum and Randy Chapman of Inez, Russell Music Jr. and Don Compton of Prestonsburg.

Tip: Crank Deep For Summer Bass

Think deep and crank hard. That's the way to catch largemouth bass on many lakes throughout the hot summer and even into the fall. It is not an easy technique, but it frequently results in very heavy stringers.

"Deep cranking usually becomes effective within three to four weeks after the spring spawn and can last until the following spring," says Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member Jack Chancellor, winner of the 1985 BASS Masters Classic.

"What you're keying on when you fish this way are reflex strikes from bass that see a lure zipping past them. I believe that may be one reason this type of fishing often catches larger fish. I've had at least two 10 bass stringers caught this way that weighed more than 60 pounds."

Deep cranking, explains Chancellor, involves the use of a deep diving crankbait that will chug along the bottom at depths between 12 and 15 feet. He uses 12-pound test line, and a seven-foot casting rod to help get his lures that deep.

"The mouths of tributary creeks, lake points, and channels are the best places to fish this way," says the Johnson pro. "I like to keep my boat in deep water and cast into shallow water on top of the point."

"On the retrieve, the crankbait bumps along the bottom and bounces off any stumps or rocks. Then, with my rod tip, I try to pull the lure down over the edge of that point where the bottom falls away to 12 or 15 feet."

Working edges like this is an important part of deep cranking, Chancellor emphasizes, because summer bass frequently suspend in the deeper water right along that drop. Deep cranking can even be effective on lakes with heavy vegetation because the fish still relate to that edge where the depth changes.

"The only difference in fishing lakes where grass or other vegetation is growing," notes Chancellor, "is that casts are made parallel to the edge rather than over the top of the grass. The edge of the grass usually marks the dropoff into deeper water, so your lure still comes through the primary strike zone."

The normal retrieve for both grass and rocky lakes is a fast one. In addition to steady reeling, Chancellor also utilizes a lot of rod tip motion. He likes to pull the lure along the bottom by sweeping his rod periodically to one side.

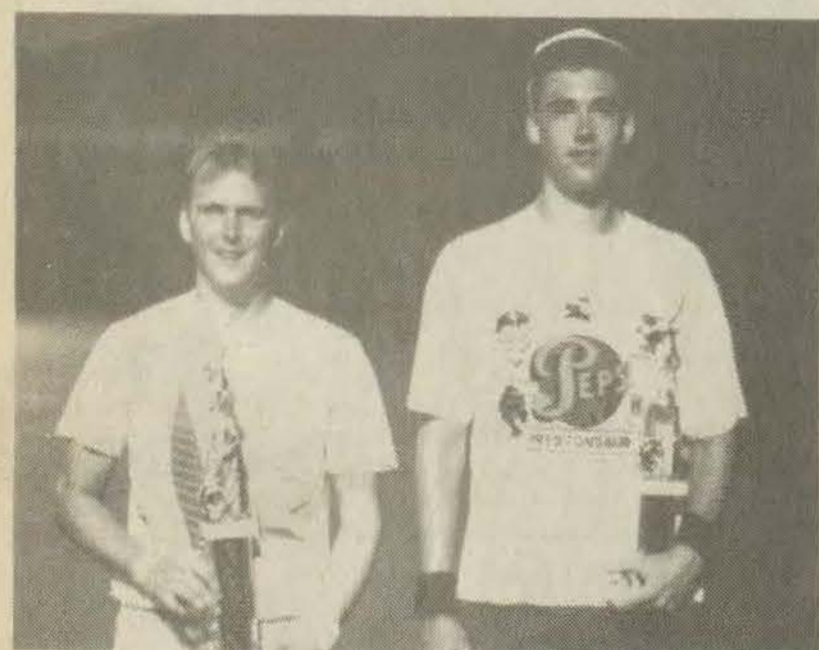

"What this does," says Chancellor, "is give the lure a slightly erratic motion. The crankbait is bouncing along the bottom. Then it stops. Then it suddenly starts moving really fast again."

"This erratic movement is what helps trigger those reflex strikes."

Good for Six

Tommy Gibson of the Allen Central Rebels clutches the football after being tackled by Tim Blackburn in a scrimmage game against the Johns Creek Bearcats at Wheelwright's Bracket Field. The Rebels slipped past the Bearcats, 14-12.

Men's B Singles Winner

Chris Waugh, left, of Allen defeated Joe Burchett, right, of Prestonsburg, 6-4, 6-1, to win the Men's B Singles title at Paintsville last week. The tournament had 131 participants, making it the largest tournament in this part of Kentucky.

Fishing Tips:

To Catch Crappie, Bluegill & Catfish

By mid-summer, most of Kentucky's major lakes settle into a summertime water temperature pattern which will vary only slightly until cooler fall weather arrives. As a general rule, when summer weather causes surface water temperatures to elevate, many fish seek lower depths where the water is cooler. Under these conditions, fishermen who want to have a successful angling venture need to find out where the fish are.

One tool anglers find helpful in locating fish is a liquid crystal graph which depicts the pattern of the lake's bottom and shows any cover and structure between lake bottom and the fisherman's boat.

Another handy item to have on hand is a fish attractor map, which shows specific locations where brush and other debris have been placed in the water to provide cover for fish. In some Kentucky waters, fish attractor sites are marked with buoys or signs along the bank.

A fish attractor map for Kentucky and Barkley lakes is available free to individuals upon request, but supplies are limited. Contact the Western District Fisheries Office, Route 4, Box 785, Murray, Ky. 42071; phone (502) 588-4039.

Here are a few tips on summertime fishing for crappie, bluegill and catfish in Kentucky waters. If you're planning to fish farm ponds, be sure to get permission from the landowner first.

Crappie: Anglers who want to take home a mess of crappie when water temperatures are in the 80s and 90s should look for these fish in deep water cover areas. It may take a little extra time to locate deep water dropoffs, brush piles and other submerged cover where these fish are likely to be, but the effort will pay off in the end.

Although there are several methods for taking summer crappie, one of the best is a jig/sinker rig. Some anglers have success fishing several poles at a time with lines at various depths, each rigged with jigs that have different, brightly colored skirts.

All of Kentucky's major lakes have crappie, but the top crappie producing lakes are Barkley, Barren, Kentucky, Nolin, Rough River and Taylorsville.

Anglers should keep in mind special creel limits for crappie apply to Barkley, Barren and Kentucky lakes. Check the current fishing digest for complete information. The statewide limit on crappie is 60 per day of any size.

Bluegill: Easy to catch bluegill stay active through the warm summer months and can be found in many lakes, streams and farm ponds in Kentucky.

Even though this shallow water species tends to scatter after spawning, anglers should try fishing for bluegill near fallen trees, submerged bushes and log jams or along rocky banks. Insects and small minnows are the dietary choice of this panfish.

If you've never used ultralight fishing equipment for bluegill, you might want to give it a try, especially on small lakes or farm ponds. The combination can result in a surprising amount of action.

When using ultralight equipment, be sure the rod, reel and line weight are properly matched. Artificial lures such as 1/32 or 1/16 ounce jigs with a one inch twister tail, grub, plastic minnow look alike or tinny spinner work well and fit the bluegill's small mouth.

Catfish: Summer is a great time to fish for "old whiskers" in Kentucky's lakes, rivers, streams and ponds. Though all three of Kentucky's catfish species can be found in the state's major lakes, it's the smaller state owned lakes that have an abundance of channel cats. And this particular species of catfish is more widely distributed across the state than either the blue or flathead catfish.

Top catfish lakes include Barkley, Dewey, Green River, Kentucky, Nolin River and Rough River lakes.

Catfish naturally feed on minnows and both threadfin and gizzard shad, and during the hot weather months catfish can be found on the bottom, near deep water dropoffs, creek channels or submerged rockpiles.

Catfish are noted for their strong sense of smell, and "stink baits" which humans find revolting have irresistible appeal to these whisker fish. For example, catfish consider a combination of shad gills and viscera a tasty morsel. Some catfish anglers swear by similar smelly concoctions.

If you want to "double, double, toil and bubble" a stink bait, try this one. Mix together chicken blood and intestines, add a glob of carp dough, a sprinkle of Limburger cheese and a dash of mustard. Place the mixture in a tightly sealed glass jar and set it in the sun until the contents are rancid. Call a friend to aid you when the jar is opened. (He can revive you.)

Some catfish anglers prefer more conventional baits (with a milder aroma) such as chicken livers, small bluegill, catpaw worms, nightcrawlers, crayfish, and, of course, minnows.

Canning jams and jellies is a long standing tradition in some families, while in others it is a new discovery of what to do with those 50 gallons of blackberries they've picked.

Either way, Francis Pitts, Floyd County Extension Agent, reminds readers that there are new recommendations for storing these sweet treats.

"Some of the best news is that making these products at home is no longer an all-day chore," Pitts said. "Commercial pectin products in liquid or powder form may be used, reducing the cooking time to minutes."

"Even those trying to restrict calories or sugar in their diets can enjoy sweet spreads," Pitts added. "Jellies and jams that contain modified pectin, gelatin or gums may be made with non-caloric sweeteners."

She explains that the new guidelines caution against the use of paraffin or wax seals. "Even though sugar helps preserve jellies and jams, molds still can grow on the surface of these products. Research now indicates that this mold, which people usually just scrape off the surface, may be more harmful than once thought. Some jars of jelly having surface mold growth have been found to contain mycotoxins. Mycotoxins are known to cause cancer in animals, and their effects on humans still are being researched." Because of possible mold contamination, paraffin or wax seals are no longer recommended for any sweet, spread including jellies. To prevent growth of molds and loss of good flavor or color, Pitts suggests all jams and jellies be processed in a boiling-water canner for 10 minutes.

Pitts explains the process as follows: "This process is safe for all elevations in Kentucky. However, if you know that your elevation is less than 1,000 feet, a five-minute processing time may be used. Then the jars must be sterilized by boiling for 10 minutes before they are filled."

"Some instructions from commercial sources recommend a 1/8-inch headspace and no process, instead calling for inverting the hot jar for five minutes to achieve a vacuum seal. Inverting the jars, however, is not a reliable way to seal them. A 1/4-inch headspace should be used and the jars should be processed. If mold forms on your jams or jellies, the entire contents of the jars should be discarded."

Although the kitchen is traditionally thought of as the favorite gathering place, few people consider it a desirable spot to be "holed up in" while entertaining. This is where the microwave proves to be a very valuable asset. It gets the host/hostess out of the kitchen and allows him or her to spend more time with the guests.

In this age of high-technology, many households have microwaves and there is less of a "fear of the unknown" pertaining to the actual mechanics of the machine. But, good microwave recipes are still a rarity and people may be reluctant to try them.

POULET A LA JARDINIERE

2 whole boneless chicken breasts (about 1 1/2 lbs.), halved and lightly pounded Pepper
2 Tbsps chopped parsley
8 pieces carrot (about 3 x 1/4 inch each)
2 Tbsps butter or margarine
1 bay leaf
1 envelope Lipton Onion-Mushroom Recipe Soup Mix
3/4 cup water

3/4 cup dry white wine
1 Tbsp cornstarch
Sprinkle each chicken breast half with pepper and 1/2 Tbsp parsley, then top with two carrot pieces; roll up and secure with wooden toothpicks.

In 2-quart oblong baking dish, microwave butter at high (full power) two minutes. Add chicken and microwave covered for five minutes. Add bay leaf, then onion-mushroom recipe soup mix blended with cornstarch, water and wine. Microwave uncovered eight minutes or until chicken is done, rearranging chicken once. Let stand covered five minutes. Remove bay leaf. Makes about four servings.

Conventional directions: Increase water to 1 1/4 cups. Roll chicken as above. In medium skillet, melt butter and brown chicken over medium heat. Add bay leaf, then onion-mushroom recipe soup mix blended with 1 cup water and wine. Simmer covered 15 minutes or until chicken is done. Stir in cornstarch blended with remaining water. Bring to a boil, then simmer, stirring constantly, until sauce is thickened, about five minutes. Remove bay leaf.

Beef is one food which is very well suited to microwave cooking. Use a low power setting such as medium or medium-low to prepare tender, flavorful and evenly cooked roasts. One of the keys to cooking beef roasts successfully in the microwave is to select a cut in the appropriate size. Choose pieces that are even in shape, size and thickness, and that do not have excess fat.

Compact, uniformly-shaped boneless beef roasts weighing about two to three pounds, such as beef eye round roast, are ideal. This size beef roast browns naturally in the microwave. It cooks in less than an hour, a time savings of at least one third, compared to conventional roasting.

Always place beef roasts fat side down on a rack in a microwave-safe dish. Rotate the dish 1/4 turn every 20 minutes. Cover the meat with waxed paper or a paper towel to prevent spattering.

Since meats continue to cook after being removed from the microwave, take the roast out when a meat thermometer inserted at the thickest part registers five degrees below the desired temperature. Cover the roast with foil and let it stand 15 to 20 minutes before carving.

This Quick Italian Style Beef Roast and Vegetables recipe can be prepared in less than one hour, serves four, and provides only 227 calories per 3-ounce portion of trimmed beef.

QUICK ITALIAN BEEF ROAST AND VEGETABLES

2-3 lb. beef eye round roast
1 1/2 tsp flour
1 tsp dried basil leaves, crushed and divided

1/2 tsp dried oregano leaves, crushed

1/8 tsp pepper
2 medium zucchini or yellow squash, cut into 1/2-inch thick slices
2 tps olive oil
1 tsp lemon juice
1/2 cup cherry tomato halves

Thoroughly combine flour, 1/2 tsp basil, oregano and pepper; rub over roast. Place meat, fat side down, on a rack in a microwave-safe dish, cover with waxed paper and microwave at medium-low or 30 percent power (about 200 watts). Allow 14-16 minutes per pound.

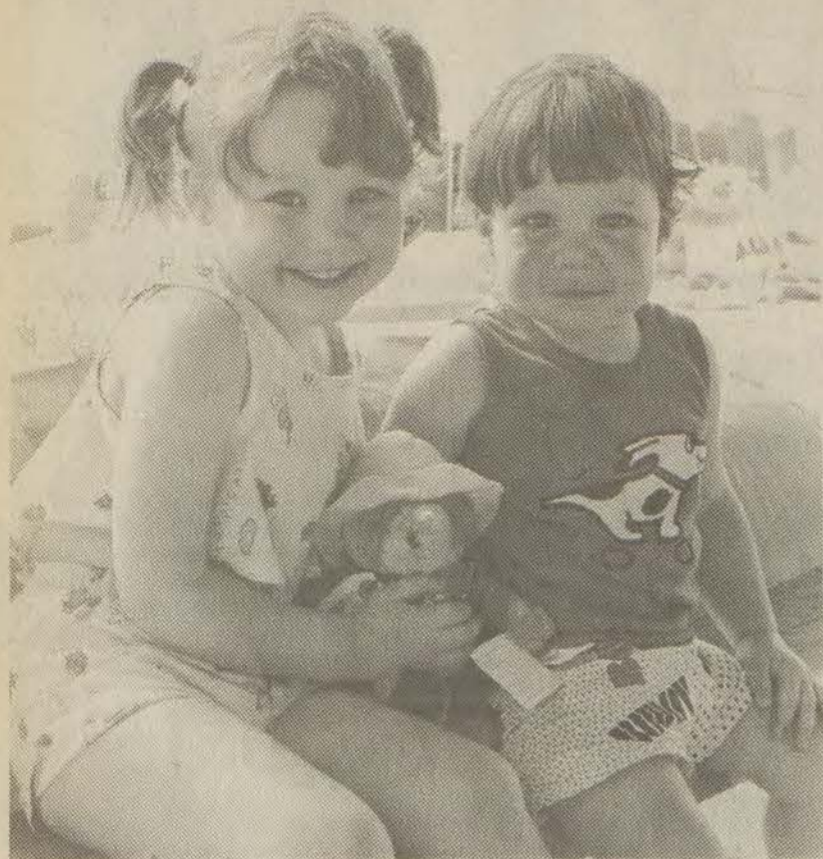

Rotate dish 1/4 turn every 20 minutes and turn roast over at midpoint of cooking time. Shield edges that appear to be over cooking with small pieces of foil.

For a rare roast, remove meat when a meat thermometer inserted into the thickest part registers 130 to 135 degrees. Cover roast with foil and allow to stand 15 minutes.

While roast is standing, place zucchini in a 1-quart microwave-safe dish. Add olive oil, lemon juice and remaining basil; toss to coat.

Cover and microwave at HIGH, 3-4 minutes or until tender, stirring after two minutes. Add tomatoes; toss gently, cover and let stand one minute.

Carve roast into thin slices and serve with vegetables.

How much does it cost to run news in the Floyd County Times?

NOTHING!

There aren't many things that are free anymore, but news in your hometown paper is. We'll run weddings, engagements, church news, birthdays, anniversaries, announcements, obituaries and more AT ABSOLUTELY NO CHARGE!

There is never any charge for any news printed in the Floyd County Times!

Have a picture? Bring it in! There's no charge for pictures, either. (We ask that you try to bring in a black and white photo, or a studio-quality color photo, but if you've only got one, and it isn't either, bring it in anyway—we'll look at it and tell you if it can be used or not.)

You can bring it in, mail it in or call it in—whichever is most convenient for you.

Former Floyd Countian Wins Silver Poet Award

Delia Mays of Bluefield, Va., formerly of Price, is the winner of the World of Poetry's 1989 Silver Poets Award.

According to the board of directors, the award is given to poets who have "shown the confidence, skill and depth to express themselves in poetry."

The award presentation will be at the Washington Hilton in Washington, D.C., on Saturday, Sept. 2, at 1 p.m. during the Fifth Annual World of Poetry Convention.

Mays is a retired nurse from Appalachian Regional Hospital in McDowell. She takes time out from her homemaking duties to write poems and folklore articles for "The Mountain Laurel Magazine," published by the Laurel Foundation, Inc., of Dan, Va. She had several articles, short stories and poems published in 1988.

Mays will arrive in Washington the morning of Friday, Sept. 1 and attend a reception that afternoon featuring Willard Scott of NBC's Today Show and Helen Hayes, America's first lady of the theatre. A dramatic reading of Oscar Wilde will be presented by playwright Larry Maraviglia. That evening, Bob Hope is to present the special awards at the Silver Banquet.

Saturday, Sept. 2, Mays will attend the poetic lecture series featuring the world's greatest poets, poet laureate Howard Nemerov, Pulitzer Prize winner Louis Simpson and American Book Award winner Sister Sonia Sanchez. Following the brunch, Dr. Phillip Walker will speak.

The gold and silver poets round-robin and awards presentations are scheduled between 2 and 5 p.m. The night will conclude with the formal banquet, which will be taped for a later showing on television.

Activities for Sunday begin with a "Musical Wake-up" by Jim Baris and the "Winged Victory Singers," followed by a reading of the 12 convention poetry contest winners. While the judges make the final decision, actor Tony Randal will make the keynote address. Randal will crown the World of Poetry Laureate for 1989, after which John Campbell will induct the poet into the World of Poetry Hall of Fame.

Tips To Speed SS Benefit Application

Some may think applying for Social Security disability benefits is a long, difficult process. While considerable time is involved, the application can be completed without much trouble, according to Jim Kelly, Social Security district director for the Big Sandy area.

Security district director for the Big Sandy area.

Social Security Disability is a program for people who cannot work due to a severe impairment expected to last at least a year or result in death. Anyone who feels they meet these conditions should apply right away.

Kelly gives these hints in applying for disability:

Call the Social Security office and arrange an appointment or apply over the telephone. An appointment is not necessary, but phoning first will enable one to know what information to have ready.

Information is needed about the applicant's medical condition and treatment, marital status, minor children and work record for the past 15 years. Also needed are the applicant's Social Security number, spouse SS number and W-2 forms or tax returns for past years.

"Many people like to wait to apply for disability, but the initial application process can take two to three months," Kelly said. "If you have to stop work due to an injury or illness, you should apply right away."

Kelly added that when contacting Social Security, one should provide the names, complete addresses, phone numbers and patient or clinic number of any doctors, hospitals, or other medical facilities where they have been treated. Treatments can be described in the applicant's own words.

The local Social Security office will forward the information on the application to a disability determination services office, which will contact the doctors, hospitals, clinics and other medical sources for complete medical reports, Kelly explained.

"Social Security will not ask you to see a doctor unless medical information is needed and has not been provided in reports furnished by your own doctor," Kelly said. "Social Security does not have doctors who examine patients. Each consultative examination is performed by a private physician who charges for the visit. If an examination is scheduled, the applicant does not have to pay the doctor."

Anyone desiring more information about the Social Security Disability Program can call the local office and request the pamphlet, "Disability." More information about Social Security, Supplemental Security Income, and Black Lung can be obtained at the Big Sandy Area Social Security office, located on US 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville, 886-8525.

Pharmacy Footnotes

MEDICINE CHEST CLEAN UP

At least once a year, everyone should go to the household medicine cabinet and throw away outdated medicine. If no clear expiration date appears on a medication, it should be tossed out in order to rule on the side of safety. Even if aspirin has not exceeded its expiration date, it should be discarded if it smells of vinegar. This odor is a sign that the aspirin has decomposed due to moisture in the bottle. It is also smart to throw out any "leftover" antibiotics in the medicine chest. In theory, there should never be any leftover antibiotics to begin with because these medications are prescribed to be completely used up by the end of the term of their use. In fact, any medicine prescribed for a one-time problem should not linger on in the medicine cabinet beyond the point at which the condition clears up.

COOLEY APOTHECARY carries what you would expect to find in a well inventoried drug store. We are very proud to be able to provide families in this area with all their pharmaceutical needs. Our records are fully maintained so your doctor can check for drug interactions and allergic reactions. They can also be readily available to you for insurance and income tax purposes. You'll find us located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106 and open Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-5. Master Charge and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments.

HINT: Over time, moisture, heat and light conspire to break down all drugs.

KET Offers Telecourses For College Credit

One graduate-level and eight undergraduate-level telecourses broadcast on KET are being offered for credit at Kentucky colleges and universities for the fall semester. Registration is underway at Ashland Community College and Lees College; for a free copy of the Fall Semester 1989 College Credit Telecourses Schedule Guide, call KET Higher Education at (800) 432-0970 ext. 386.

KET telecourses are fully accredited college-level courses. Just as with on-campus courses, students have textbooks, professors, assignments, tests and tuition. The main difference between telecourses and on-campus courses — and what makes telecourses so convenient — is that the majority of classes are broadcast on KET.

McDowell Resident Receives Top Honor

Outstanding!

Alelei Singayao of McDowell received the Most Outstanding Participant Award in the Medical and Allied Health Sciences program held at Lees College in Jackson this summer. Buford Howard, PhD, director of MAHS, presented the award to Singayao at a formal banquet held recently on campus. Singayao is the daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Ruben Singayao and is a graduate of McDowell High School.

Lees College hosted the six-week MAHS program and co-sponsored it along with the federally funded Health Career Opportunity Program. The eighth annual program, which ran from June 19 through July 28, is offered free of charge to participants in an effort to prepare Eastern Kentucky students for admittance to specialized schools for medicine, dentistry, veterinary medicine, pharmacy and allied health.

Students were selected for the MAHS program based on their interest in the health care field, their high school grade point average, their motivation and recommendation by a high school official.

"These students receive first-hand experiences that enable them to make a rational decision about their future early in their college tenure," said Dr. Howard. "Our hope is that when the program is completed, participating students will be better able to cope with college-level instruction in all courses especially the sciences. Based on the experience of former participants, these students should have a high level of success."

Telly Savalas returns as 'Kojak' in the fall

Actor reprises role that brought fame

By Mary Ann Townsend
After 11 years, Telly Savalas returns to the role which made his a household name when ABC picks up his popular series Kojak this fall.

In the years since the series went off the air in 1978, two Kojak movies, The Belarus File and The Price of Justice, brought in big ratings for CBS. That success, undoubtedly led ABC to consider the Universal series as the fourth spoke in its mystery wheel on Saturdays.

Since we last saw him, Theo Kojak has been elevated in his position in the New York City police department, but he's still the same hands-on detective who is fascinated by the whole legal process.

Savalas was originally the sixth choice of actors to play the role of Kojak in the original pilot The Marcus Nelson Murders in 1973. "I did The Marcus Nelson Murders, not realizing that in small print it had an option for a series," Savalas said. "And that's what happened. We did the show, it was very successful. And I was getting on a plane, going back to Europe, and I was stopped at the airport, and they said 'We've got 'ya.'"

One of Kojak's trademarks will be different—he will substitute his passion for lollipops with passion for a woman—while one thing will remain the same—his shiny, clean shaven head. But the actor did not shave his head merely for the role of Kojak. Savalas, who shaved his dome for a role in The Greatest Story Ever Told, recalled, "George Stevens said, 'Telly, you're playing Pontius Pilate, I want to shave your head because it gives me a feeling of power, since the man wasn't this effeminate guy sitting on a couch chewing grapes. Well, how do you feel

The actor didn't mind, but he didn't want to scare his young children by coming home bald. "I brought my kids in the next day. They shaved my head, the kids never even noticed. And it's been that way ever since," he said. Savalas said the power of television made it difficult for him to break the mold of the Kojak character. "I made over 16 major motion pictures before Kojak with some of the biggest stars in the world. And people seem to forget about that," he said. "Breaking the mold of a character you play on television so successfully after five years is kind of a tough job."

Then why would he want to succumb to the role again? "Number one, the character comes easy, and I have a great deal of affection for him," Savalas said. "And also the fact that it's a part of a wheel now, it will be on once a month and we have the time, as a two-hour show, to do things which are significant. And from that point of view, that's why I'm getting back into it."

TV Q&A

Tough guy Charles Bronson actually quite a family man

By Polly Vonetes

Q: Charles Bronson is my favorite actor and I would like to know where he was born, how old he is and what his name was originally. I have seen every movie that he has made and enjoyed them all. Where can I write him? —Jim Bradbrook, Chino Valley, Ariz.

A: Charles Bunchinsky, born on Nov. 3, 1921, in Ehrenfeld, Pa., decided to change his name to Bronson in 1954. He shares a lavish Bel Air, Calif. estate with his wife, actress Jill Ireland, and their six children. Try contacting him in care of his agent: Paul Kohner-Michael Levy Agency, 9169 Sunset Blvd., Los Angeles, Calif. 90069.

Charles Bronson

little chance of Hell Town returning as a series on the networks.

Q: I saw a movie about 10 years ago starring Stacy Keach. He was a doctor for Vietnam veterans in a rehab center. There were many vets there with post war problems (crazies). By the end of the movie they found out that Keach was also a vet that was off balance. I loved the movie, please tell me the name and how I can purchase or find it. —Yannissa Harris, Marion, Ark.

A: This was a difficult task. First of all, the original title, Twinkle, Twinkle Killer Kane, released in 1980, had been changed to The Ninth Configuration. Starring with Keach, the psychiatrist in a compound of military misfits, were Ed Flanders, Moses Gunn and Neville Brand. A film with such a poor rating is seldom released on video. Ask at your video store, they may have more information on it.

Cancer Hopeline

Question: My 22-year-old cousin was diagnosed earlier this month with acute myelogenous leukemia (AML). He began chemotherapy and was planning for a bone marrow transplant. We have just found out, however, that his siblings do not "match." Can you explain what "match" means? He now hopes to have his own bone marrow "recycled." Please tell us about this recycling procedure. What is it and how does it compare to a sibling transplant?

Answer: Leukemia is a cancer of bone marrow cells. Bone marrow transplants (grafts of new tissue after diseased marrow has been purged) have become a treatment option in certain patients with leukemia, producing a possible cure for some patients.

The term "match" refers to how closely the donor's marrow resembles the patient's marrow. Studies have shown that transplants are more likely to be successful if certain (HLA) "self recognition" proteins on the surface of the patient's white blood cells are the same (match) as the proteins on the cells received from the father. There is a 25 percent chance that any one brother or sister will be HLA identical, "matching" the patient.

Transplants from a brother or sister are called sibling or allogeneic transplants. This is the most common type of transplant. In some cases, a brother or sister's marrow may not provide an identical match, but may be close enough to achieve a successful transplant. However, the greatest chance of success is when the donor and the patient are HLA identical.

Without a compatible match, the patient is more likely to reject the graft or develop a serious illness, called "graft versus host disease" (GVHD). GVHD occurs when the transplanted white cells recognize the patient's tissues as foreign (not "self") and the donor's marrow attacks the patient's organs and tissues.

In cases where there is no acceptable "match," an autologous (self) graft may be possible. The process of "recycling" that you referred to involves removing the patient's own marrow, cleansing it of leukemia cells and storing it for return to the patient. In the meantime, the patient will have intensive treatment (with chemotherapy, and possibly radiation treatments to the whole body) to rid the body of all leukemic cells. When treatment is complete, the patient's own "cleansed" marrow is returned, much in the way that a blood transfusion is given. This clean bone marrow will find its way to the bone marrow tissue where it will begin producing new blood cells within several weeks. One benefit of this type of graft is that it will not be rejected and won't cause GVHD. Another advantage is that the time of recovery is faster, reducing the chance of infection due to low blood counts. One of the major risks of this graft is that the cleansing process may not rid the marrow of all the leukemic cells and the patient could relapse.

While bone marrow transplant continues to show great promise, the risk of serious infection is high for several weeks after the procedure until the new marrow begins to produce white blood cells. These cells are needed to fight infection.

Cancer centers throughout the country are doing research with both types of bone marrow transplants. Research continues to overcome the problems. For more information about bone marrow transplants, call the Cancer Information Service at 1-800-4-CANCER.

Giving Something Back

ATV Accidents Claim Lives Of 35; Majority Under Age 21

Of the 35 deaths due to all-terrain vehicle accidents in Kentucky in the past five years, 71 percent have been among people under age 21. Children under age 13 account for nearly a third of the victims.

ATV fatalities have occurred in 28 Kentucky counties, including Floyd, according to state Department for Health Services investigations of these accidents. During the past five years, there have been two deaths in Floyd County attributable to all-terrain vehicle (ATV) accidents.

Meanwhile, statistics from those investigations show that fatality victims of ATV accidents are overwhelmingly young males operating three-wheel vehicles.

However, according to E.P. Conyers, consumer product safety branch manager, there have been deaths in older age groups, among females, passengers of ATVs, and among people riding four-wheel vehicles.

"Our analysis shows that Kentucky statistics fairly well conform with the results found nationally," said Conyers.

"We know, for example, that three-wheel vehicles are much more likely to flip over than the four-wheel variety. We also know that, because of the design of the ATVs, youngsters under age 12 have no business operating these motorized vehicles. They often get in trouble because of the speed with which ATVs travel and the young person's lack of coordination and inability to handle the vehicles," he said.

Deaths have occurred in 28 counties among Kentuckians ranging from age 1 to 77. Of the fatalities, 83 percent have been male; 66 percent have involved three-wheel vehicles. The accidents occurred on paved and gravel roads, front yards, farm fields, wooded and recreation areas.

The US Consumer Product Safety Commission has banned the sale of new three-wheel ATVs because of their lack of stability. The commission also requires that consumers buying new ATVs be offered free safety training. The offer is retroactive to those who bought a vehicle since Dec. 30, 1986.

"There's no way to know how many Kentuckians take advantage of the training, but everyone who buys one of these vehicles most definitely should have safety training," said Conyers.

One safety measure to remember, he said, is that children should not be operating adult ATVs. The vehicles come in two sizes — one for ages 12-16 and one for 16 years or older. ATVs with an engine size greater than 90cc are not to be sold to anyone under age 16. ATVs are not designed for children under 12.

"When buying ATVs, parents should keep in mind that children should have a child's model," he said. "But there's more to safety than that."

Conyers says that ATV users should wear helmets and that the vehicles are designed for only one person — no passengers. Of the accidents reported in Kentucky, nearly half involved two or more riders on one vehicle.

ATVs are not manufactured for use on public roads; however, several deaths involving collisions with other vehicles on public roads have been recorded.

Anyone driving an ATV should become familiar with its operation before getting on it, Conyers advises.

"Don't think just because you can drive a car or because a child can ride a bike that the ATV will be easy to operate," he said. "Somebody should check you out on the machine before you take off."

Children using ATVs should be under adult supervision. "Children generally don't have the coordination or the understanding of the dangers involved to use these vehicles without supervision by a parent or other adult," Conyers added.

VA Serves County Vets, Their Families

The US Department of Veteran Affairs, through its regional office and medical centers in Louisville and Lexington, serves some 359,000 Kentucky veterans and their dependents.

All are potentially eligible for VA benefits and services, including education, home loans, hospital care, pensions or national cemetery burial.

According to John Hagan, director of the VA regional office in Louisville, his office administered over $300 million in compensation, pension, education and other direct benefits to Kentucky veterans and their families.

"That doesn't include the millions of dollars in home loans we guarantee on behalf of veteran home buyers. These dollars represent a significant economic impact on the Commonwealth," he said.

In Floyd County, the office disbursed a total of $3.5 million during the 1988 fiscal year. Of that amount, $3.2 million was for compensation and pension; $86,997 for readjustment and vocational rehabilitation; and $209,850 for insurance and indemnities.

In Johnson County, the office disbursed a total of $2.5 million. Of that amount, $2.2 million was in comes and pension; $97,000 in readjustment and vocational rehabilitation; and $110,807 in insurance and indemnities.

In Pike County, the office disbursed a total of $4.5 million. Of that amount, $4 million was for compensation and pension; $97,884 for readjustment and vocational rehabilitation; and $307,591 for insurance and indemnities.

In addition to the benefits available through the VA regional office, the VA Medical Centers at Louisville and Lexington provide medical and health benefits, said Hagan.

"We want to alert all veterans and their dependents to benefits and services available to them. Call our toll-free number, 1-800-292-4562, for assistance," Hagan said.

Books And Things

Biographies Open Doors To Private Lives

by Trisha Morris
PCC Librarian

The stories of other people's lives can be instructive, historical or just plain intriguing. The following biographies from the PCC library open the door to the lives of a politician, a comedian, a musician, an archaeologist, a feminist and a local Kentucky family.

The McCoy's, by Trudy Williams McCoy. The story of the legendary feuding families of Kentucky's history—the Hatfields and the McCoy's—is told from the latter family's material and point of view. This book was discovered after a television interview with the author and was subsequently printed and preserved by the Preservation Council Press of Pike County. Skillfully edited by the late Leonard Roberts, it is a history, as well as a testimonial of what happened to the families of this border state who became divided between Union and Confederate long after the Civil War was over.

Filled with pictures, indexed and including a McCoy genealogy, it could be savored for local interest, along with its historical information and insight.

Ida Tarbell, by Kathleen Brady. Ida Tarbell is a masterly portrait of an extraordinary woman. As one of America's foremost investigative journalists, she interviewed such figures as Mussolini, Zola and Pasteur; wrote groundbreaking biographies of Lincoln and Napoleon, and did lively pieces describing America at war, studies of labor issues and tariff controversies, and a classic expose of John D. Rockefeller and the Standard Oil Company.

Across the pages of this biography bustle Teddy Roosevelt, who coined the term "muckraker" for Tarbell; Jane Addams, who challenged Tarbell's position on women's issues; Henry James, who ardently approved of her; and Herbert Hoover, whom she helped shield from scandal, and many, many more.

Alive with the vitality of America on the brink of the 20th century, Ida Tarbell is a masterful story of a fiercely independent woman and a social biography of the times she helped to shape.

Lincoln, by Russell Freedman. Abraham Lincoln stood out in a crowd as much for his wit and rollicking humor as for his height. Here is a warm, appealing biography of our Civil War president, illustrated with dozens of carefully chosen photographs and prints.

Freedman begins with a lively account of Abraham Lincoln's boyhood, his career as a country lawyer and his courtship and marriage of Mary Todd. Then the author focuses on the presidential years (1861-1865), explaining the many complex issues Lincoln grappled with as he led a deeply divided nation. The book's final chapter is a moving account of that tragic evening in Ford's Theatre of April 14, 1865. A photobiography, the book abounds with pictures of the president's life and career.

Mary Leakey: An Autobiography. Mary and Louis Leakey are two of the most noted anthropologists and archaeologists of this century. This book, an autobiography of Mary Leakey, is as much about her husband's life and achievements as it is about herself.

Mary Nicol, born in 1913 in London, was the only daughter of Erskine Nicol, the famous artist. He took her to France—and the legendary cave paintings which whetted her interest in archaeology—and tested her natural talents as an artist. These talents brought about her meeting with Louis Leakey, and their marriage in 1936 heralded the second phase of Mary's life. Louis introduced her to Africa, which was to be her home for nearly half a century. His death thrust her into the spotlight, and as she struggled to continue his research, as well as her own, she matured into her own stage of life.

The story of Mary and Louis Leakey is the private and public story of two people and their work, but it is also the story of Africa and its prehistoric heritage.

No Direction Home, by Robert Shelton. This painstakingly detailed biography of Bob Dylan documents his successes and failures, his life and music. It is the story of a popular hero of "Woodstock" fame, of a rebel who challenged his culture and helped to build the '60s counterculture and of a penitent adult who tried to turn against the excesses of what he had helped to create.

Dylan's story charts a social history of the last three decades. It touches on the Beatles, the Band, the Byrds, Baez, Brando and an alphabet of others.

Shelton examines the myths and distortions surrounding the restless artist. In the many voices of the people who have known him, the author explores the artistic birth, death and rebirth of Bob Dylan.

Dukakis, by Charles Kennedy and Robert Turner. The authors have covered their subject for the Boston Globe since his days in the Massachusetts legislature. They followed him for their newspaper audience through his political victories and defeats and as he pursued his presidential candidacy.

Using extensive, intimate interviews with the subject, his family, friends and adversaries, the reporters weave a fascinating portrait of the Massachusetts governor and the man who was the Democratic candidate for president.

Subtitled An American Odyssey, this story of a son of a self-made Greek immigrant is full of pride, puritanical reform and iron self-discipline. It is the story of Mike Dukakis the man, as well as Mike Dukakis the politician.

The Cosby Wit, by Bill Adler. Not since Mark Twain and Will Rogers has there been an American humorist who has captured the public's affection and admiration as Bill Cosby. Bill Adler's biography of this nationally known comedian emphasizes shining examples of his wit and humor.

From his birth in a Philadelphia suburb in 1937, this book follows William Henry Cosby Jr. through his school years, his military experience, his time of the theatre and night club circuit and his many television credits. There is a glimpse into his private life with his wife Camille, his determination to finish his education and an explanation of the success of The Cosby Show.

Filled with pictures of Cosby with his friends and family, the book is a tribute to a mass media success story.

Poet's Corner

Local Poet Published In Anthology

The following poem by Leigh Ann Smith, a senior at Betsy Layne High School, was recently published in the American Poetry Anthology, a treasury of today's poetry:

Progress

The land of plenty
Hath met her doom.
Something we've all contemplated,
But not nearly this soon

Her barren parched lands,
Her dark polluted sky,
Bring to shame her once crowning glory
That withered as the years went by

In these final days
We begin to reflect
And discover that this destruction
Is due to cause and effect

The cause being "progress",
The effect being deterioration.
It has blindly led to the fall
Of our once great nation

The moment is now upon us,
All we can do now is reminisce.
Look around you my friends and tell me,
Is this progress?
—Leigh Ann Smith

The Four Beautiful Seasons

The air is cool and crisp
After the summer storm has passed by.
The Yard and garden look as if
They had been washed clean,
The colors of the flowers
Shining so clear and bright,
Raindrops still clinging to some of the flowers
Although the storm has scattered
Some of the petals across the lawn.
The tops of the tall trees swaying in the soft breeze,
Watching everything it suddenly comes to my mind,
Fall is on the way.
The leaves will soon be so many beautiful colors,
Yellow, red, and golden brown,
They hold the many colors for several weeks,
Then when the wind starts to blow
They come trembling to cover the ground.
Then as the season changes and the snow drops
Begin to fall, so white and clean,
Cold days the world outside,
So quiet and still.
Then we begin to watch for spring,
When all is green once again,
And the little birds are flying
From tree to tree —
Building their nests as they begin to sing.
It is then we begin to understand
So many things,
And as we raise our eyes to the beauty
Of the trees, so tall,
We know that God made all four seasons,
So beautiful, for us all.

—Myrtle Berry,
Martin

The Meadows

Through a meadow on this earth,
I stumble and I fall.
Never really knowing,
The right or wrong at all.

Learning life the best I can,
Has never been so rough.
I always thought life would live,
And couldn't be so tough.

In this meadow that I walk,
I carry only pride.
That soon will be badly hurt,
If it leaves my side.

Dust falls here instead of rain,
Draining out my tears.
Taking all the joy I had,
Replacing them with fears.

Now my heart is badly crushed,
Leaving me no truth.
And my mind has wrongly seen,
Seizing all my youth.

—Mary Meadows,
Clark Elementary

The Mirrors In A Rose

A rose is like a window,
That gleams amongst a church.
It shades the love in color,
And gives a life to search.

In trueness and in laughter,
It settles in your heart.
Knowing how forever,
You wish to not depart.

A rose is like a raindrop,
With teardrops in its fall.
Breaking parts to and fro,
Clashing toward a wall.

Crying when there's laughter,
And laughing when there's cry.
It tells us all a story,
Within itself — a lie.

A rose is like a diamond,
As strong as earth itself.
It brings forth many pleasures,
Beauty, love, and wealth.

It passes in its pleasures,
A mirror of deceit.
And crumbles all the soil,
Laiden on your feet.

With nothing else to turn to,
I hum a last few words.
A rose may live as love,
And also die unheard.

Mary Meadows,
Eighth grade,
Clark Elementary School

Blue Sky And You

The sky is very high Clouds like waves flow by.
The sky is very blue
And so are you.

I really don't know if you're blue,
If so, think of something to do!
I'm sure it will make you feel better,
Cause you'll feel like writing a letter!

—Brandon Howell,
McDowell

Kentucky

Kentucky is a "great meadow,"
The sky is blue, and the grass, too.
The motto is "United We Stand, Divided We Fall,"
It's also a sign
In Freedom Hall.

—Misty Newsome,
McDowell

Clouds

The clouds are pink and blue
And very fluffy too
They're different shapes and sizes,
big and fat,
But most of all, they're neat to look at.

—Kris Branham,
McDowell

Way up high
We see the sky
Sometimes it makes me
Want to fly.

The Oldest Daughter's Lot

More than once I really wanted to say,
"Please, could I just go outside to play?"
But I was needed to help cook a meal,
Using beans, potatoes, flour and meal.

I wished my cooking sessions were few,
Senia was outside, and Harlen, too.
Would the children wait on me all day,
If I got the chance to come and play?

But wait! I'm finished and I fly out the door,
To catch up with the others and fun that's in store.
What do I see when I've reached the top of the mound?
They didn't wait for me, and are now all wound down.

"Will next time be different?" I wishfully ask.
Either they'll wait, or I'll get out of my task.
Hope springs eternal and dreams have no end,
As I hear Daddy holler and it starts, yet, again.

—Debbie Hatfield,
Prestonsburg

Silver Poet's Award Winner Lost Love

In remembrance of days long past —
I think of a love that did not last,
A love as pure as the fallen snow,
With the dearest one I'll ever know.

Fun filled days so wild and free —
Moon-lit nights by the shining sea,
Memories linger of the love we once knew —
The happy days were all too few.

Now that our love has faded and gone,
I sit here and grieve all alone,
I think of our love and a long ago past —
We never dreamed it would not last.

New love comes and old love goes,
We can't foretell the future, only God knows,
As years roll on and heartache mends,
We can't be sweethearts — but let's be friends.

Delia Mays

Clouds

Clouds are white,
Clouds are blue,
Clouds are almost Cuter than you.

—B.J. Moore,
McDowell

Dreams

Thoughts of you are always on my mind.
Memories linger of a long ago time,
In younger days when our hearts were gay —
We were so happy before you went away.

We spent our days in the warm summer sun —
By the light of the moon our dreams were spun,
We dreamed of a cottage with a white picket fence —
We knew that dream was soon to commence.

Then your love for me faded and you went away —
Now my hearts filled with pain as I face each new day,
I hope you'll be happy in your home by the sea,
As you stroll on the sand "will you think of me?"

I'll always wonder what might have been —
If our dreams had come true way back then,
When our hearts were young and our dreams were new,
And we had hopes they would all come true.

Delia Mays

Life

I knew a boy named Kevin
He died when he was seven.
He came back to life at eleven,
Do you suppose from heaven?

—Kevin Bartley,
McDowell

Goodbye

You're resting now, at last,
All your pain has passed.

You don't have to hurt any more,
Because now you're on that heavenly shore.

We saw you suffer for so long,
At least now your suffering's all gone.

It hurt us a lot to say "Goodbye"
And it's hard not to question "Why?"

When we remember, we try and smile,
God knows you walked your mile.

Maybe it's selfish of us to wish you here,
But we all held your love so dear.

So in these parting words we say,
May we all see you again some day."

"Our Commonwealth is enhanced by higher education. If we are to continue to prosper, we must heighten our commitment to all of our universities."
William E. McAnulty, Jr.,

"Our first priority must be elementary and secondary schools. However, I think it is the state's responsibility to keep a strong higher education system, and ours to pay for it."
Carolyn Keith, Owenton

"I can't think of a wiser way of spending a tax dollar than having it go toward a person's education."
Charles Satterwhite, Owenton
Circuit Judge

"There can be no greater investment for society than to commit substantial funds and personal efforts to higher education. The cultural, economic and social benefits far surpass any alternative use of resources."
William A. Stone, Louisville

Priority Number One: EDUCATION

Two entities impact every person in Kentucky, each and every day: the weather, which we cannot influence, and higher education, which we must.

Regardless of whether your home is in the country or the city, the support and success of Kentucky's public higher education system is closely linked to your future... to the future of the nearly four million individuals in the state... and to the future of the Commonwealth itself.

Although Kentuckians sometimes do disagree on major issues, this subject is an exception—nine out of ten concur on the importance of quality higher education.* Here's a sample of what people are saying, state-wide.

*Source: Public opinion survey conducted by Cambridge Reports, Inc., March 1988

"Higher education can impact the elementary and secondary schools. A strong higher education system can raise Kentucky's standing nationwide in elementary and secondary education."
William LeGrand, Warsaw
Retired Postmaster

"A college education opens doors. I feel universities should be funded well enough to offer scholarships that would afford more people an educational opportunity."
Rick Norris, Carrollton
Utility Customer Service Representative

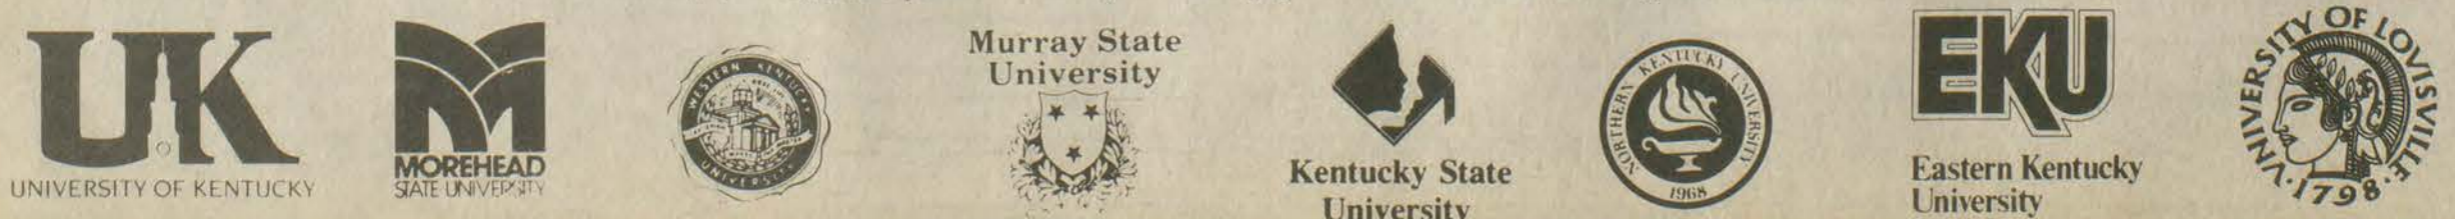

"Maximum funding for higher education should not be just one of our priorities—it must become the priority. Even at the expense of increased taxes, higher education must be viewed as our only means of future growth."
Tom Meeker, Louisville
President, Churchill Downs

"The value of higher education to Kentucky is a better-educated workforce. This would allow us to compete with other states in attracting new industry, thereby creating new jobs and new tax revenue."
Willie Kendrick, Hopkinsville
Real Estate Broker

"My goal as a teacher is to give students the skills, knowledge and motivation to realize their greatest potential. Without the opportunity for higher education, this goal can never be fully realized."
Sherleen Sisney, Prospect
1984 National Teacher of the Year

From The Superintendent's Desk . . .

By Ronald Hager,
Floyd Superintendent

Welcome to a new school year! I certainly hope all of you had an enjoyable summer vacation, and are prepared to enthusiastically participate in the educational opportunities provided during the 1989-90 school year.

Each new school year presents opportunities for various beginnings — new classes, new friends, new faces and new instructional materials and programs to respond to the needs of all students. However, newness alone cannot produce transformation. We ourselves must be willing to be caught up in the rebirth that is possible with each new school year.

The Floyd County School District will continue to provide all students the opportunity to participate in an educational program of high quality instruction. The most important aspect of any school system is the manner in which children are taught — in other words, instruction. The task of determining the needs of students rests on the parents, the personnel of the individual schools, and the Department of Instruction. Together, along with the local board, they are responsible for providing the best quality education possible.

Our focus is to make available the best possible climate for study, the finest teachers, and the most up-to-date textbooks and instruction for each and every student. The school district has developed a series of programs that reaches out to meet the needs of all Floyd County students. A renewed emphasis on the basic skills has led to an improvement in standardized test scores. Students' test scores from last year indicate that in every grade level tested, scores were above what the state projected they would be.

In some of our schools, test scores on the state-mandated tests were above the state and national average. There has been an improvement in the ACT scores, but we still need to work to improve student achievement.

In January 1988, the state Board for Elementary and Secondary Education, upon the recommendation of Dr. John H. Brock, superintendent of public instruction, placed the school district in Phase III of the Educational Improvement Act because of student attendance, test scores and a projected financial deficit.

At the conclusion of the 1988-89 school year, the only non-compliance was student attendance, which was short of the 93.5 percent standard by seven-tenths of 1 percent. This year, the school district has established a goal to improve student attendance to 94 percent, and to reduce the dropout rate below the present 4.2 percent.

Obtaining Your Diploma Is Key To Future Goals . . .

Last year there were 532 graduates from Floyd County high schools. Graduating from high school is one of the most important events in life. It is an event which marks the successful completion of childhood and the beginning of adulthood. The high school graduate is viewed as a person who has achieved an important goal and is ready to take on new challenges: job training, college or other post-secondary training, marriage, family, home, financial obligations and other adult responsibilities. A diploma is a "key" which can unlock the door to many opportunities, and is the basic foundation upon which the graduate can build a solid future. Last year our graduates received 114 scholarships and grants to further their education.

Students who drop out of school may find many doors locked to them because they lack the important key of a high school diploma. Dropouts generally have more trouble getting and keeping good jobs. Employers are less likely to invest money in training dropouts and less likely to advance them in their jobs. As a result of not completing school, dropouts are often forced to spend the rest of their lives attending what has often been called the "school of hard knocks."

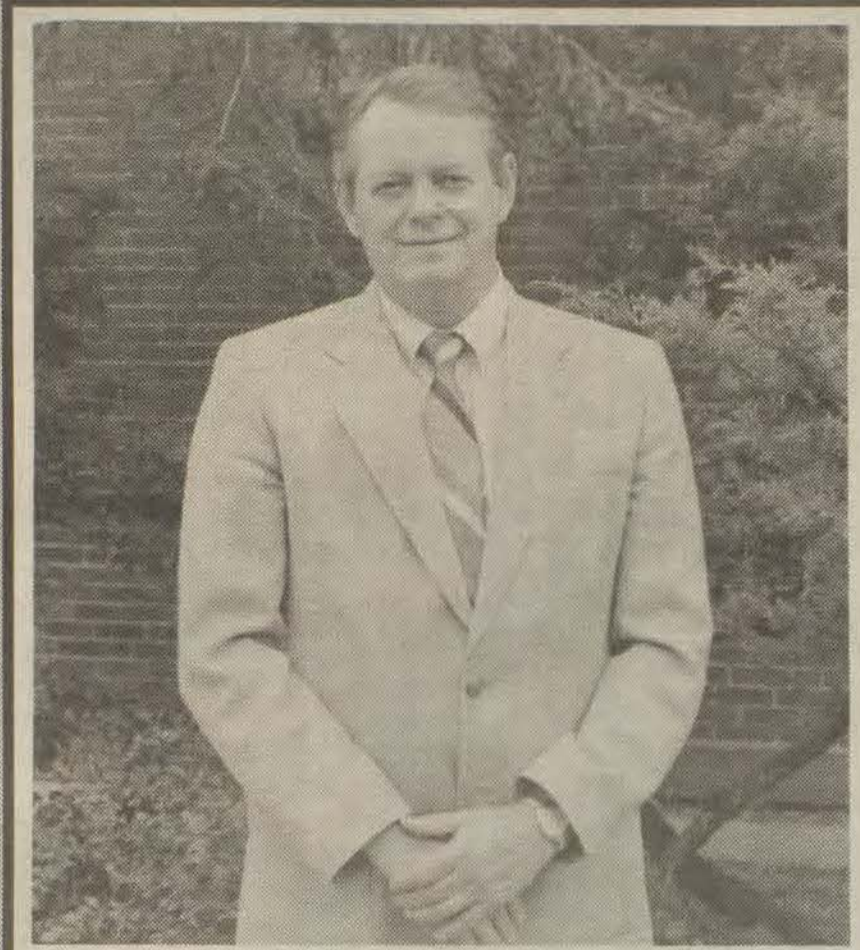

Attendance: Important For Students And System

When people have difficulty with reading, writing, math and other basic skills, their potential in life is severely limited. In this fast changing, complicated and technical world, an education is absolutely necessary.

Some students drop out of school because of low intelligence or other learning problems. However, most dropouts have average or above average intelligence, and do not have learning disorders. Students drop out of school for many reasons. Sometimes they are simply immature. Sometimes their parents lack a sense of responsibility. Sometimes the educational system may be insensitive to student needs. Usually, however, dropping out is the result of a combination of these and other factors which disrupt the student's regular school attendance.

Regular school attendance is a necessary part of the learning process and is a key to getting a good education and graduating. Irregular school attendance limits the learning process and reduces the ability to get either a good education or a diploma. The instruction a student misses when he or she is absent one day is lost forever. Students who are frequently absent are putting their futures in jeopardy. Chronic absenteeism, especially truancy, is a behavior highly associated with dropping out of school. Students who are allowed to miss school for illegal reasons, or quit school because they do not want to attend, are establishing a pattern of behavior that may follow them through life and seriously impair their potential.

School attendance is one of the most important issues facing schools in Floyd County. Student absenteeism costs the taxpayers in Floyd County and the school district approximately $1 million each year in lost revenues, and greater loss in human potential. But school attendance is not an impossible issue to resolve. Students must be taught to understand the value of education. Parents must learn about their roles and responsibilities in promoting regular attendance. The Floyd County School District has developed new attendance policies which are in effect this school year. Also, various programs have been designed to keep students in school. The more people know about the importance of regular school attendance, and the better they understand their roles in promoting it, the greater will be the educational experience for every student.

There's More Work To Be Done Locally . . .

We all can be proud of what we achieve in the Floyd County School District — in the classrooms, on the playing fields and stages — but our achievements are not due to complacency and satisfaction with the status quo. The school district is presently utilizing the Accreditation Report of 1988, the Curriculum Audit of 1988, and the Blue Ribbon Panel's recommendations to develop a long-range plan to insure continuous progress in our schools for the next 10 years.

Communication: A Necessary Ingredient

Another area that our school district and all personnel will be working on this year is communication. This is a very important ingredient in any successful school program. Do you have concerns about your child in school? Don't keep them inside — communicate! Is something happening in the schools that you see as potentially damaging? Don't fret about it — communicate! Do you have something that bothers you about a teacher, an administrator, a program, a condition of a school building, a rule of the school? Don't sit and worry — communicate! Do you feel that something is wrong, terribly wrong, with the state of education in our schools? Don't tell your neighbor — tell us and communicate!

When we communicate, we share our feelings, and there is an exchange of information that can open the minds of both sides. Through this process of communication can come understanding, and with understanding comes a new commitment. A commitment to further communication; a commitment to finding out for ourselves the exact nature of the problem; a commitment to work together, the school and the home — two of the most powerful forces on earth — to seek remedies; to seek solutions; to seek that common ground that will eventually allow our schools and our children to be the best they are capable of becoming.

We, you and I, the school and the home — we can communicate. We can work together. We can understand the problems, the concerns, the frustrations of each other. We can come to a new understanding and a new appreciation that will serve one purpose and one purpose only — the growth and development of all Floyd County children.

It is within our grasp. For the children's sake, we can do no less than try. Become involved and communicate. Attend parent-teacher conferences, join local PTA and PTO organizations — become involved in the education of your child.

Schools Offer Nutritious Meals For County's Students

By Tess Whitmer,
Staff Writer

School is fast approaching, and one of the highlights of the day, in a child's mind, is lunch.

Creating a lunch menu that meets guidelines set by the National School Lunch Program and recommended daily allowances (RDA) is not as easy as one may think, according to Sharon Newsome, Floyd County School food service co-director.

Newsome, co-director for four years and previously an economics teacher at McDowell, said that all menus must include the four basic food groups — dairy products, breads and cereals, meats, and fruits and vegetables. The 93 cooks, managers and central office staff in the food service department make sure that all meals meet the standards; if they don't, says Newsome, the government will not subsidize the program.

Federal funds make it possible for the schools to charge 75 cents for lunches and 50 cents for breakfasts. These prices only apply to students who are not on the free and reduced lunch program. According to Newsome, every child, at the start of school, receives an application for their parents to fill out to determine if they qualify for the free/reduced lunches, based on family size and annual income. Parents are notified of acceptance into the program via the child.

Newsome added that all of the schools in the county, except for Prestonsburg High School and elementary school, are considered "severe need" schools — meaning that more than 50 percent of the students participate in the program.

A Summer Feeding Program recently ended at these "severe need" schools. The program allows children ages 3 to 18, no matter what the family income, to eat lunch for free during the summer months, according to Newsome.

The 20 schools in the county serve 6,500 lunches daily, and about 2,200 breakfasts. Newsome said she wished the number of students eating breakfast was higher, noting that "children learn better when they eat better."

"There are many scientific studies which show that it is hard to concentrate on learning when you're hungry.

"These breakfasts are not just for low-income families. Parents who both work often do not have time to prepare breakfast, so the children skip it. But there is no need to, when these properly-balanced breakfasts are offered for only 50 cents."

Newsome added that they have received a new recipe card file from the USDA which concentrates on reducing sodium, cholesterol, fat and sugar from the children's diet. She stressed that they were not eliminating these things but only reducing them, since a child who eats properly will be a more healthy adult.

This year, schools will also provide an "offer vs. serve" policy, allowing students in the third grade and up to turn down any one of the four food units offered at breakfast, and any two of the five at lunch.

Following is a list of the lunch menus for the first three weeks of school:

ACHS Begins New Scheduling Program

by Anne Chaney,
Editor

Last year, when Allen Central High School principal Don Daniels was faced with reductions in teaching staff, he responded with a new academic schedule that offers greater flexibility for teachers and wider course offerings for students.

As a result, when students step on campus to begin this school year, they'll step into a much-modified instructional program.

ACHS previously followed the traditional six-period school day. This year the school embarks on an innovative program — for Eastern Kentucky, at least — of seven class periods each day.

The program, experimental in Floyd County, is used by 25 to 30 other Kentucky schools.

"We lost three of our teaching staff," notes the ACHS principal. "It was bad enough to lose them, but that meant we also lost 15 course selections — and I thought we already needed more."

By beginning school five minutes earlier, and shortening class periods by about seven minutes each, Daniels was able to clip enough time from the day to add a seventh period. Now, he says, he'll be able to add 13 course selections, as well as replace the 15 that otherwise would have been lost.

Daniels hopes the wider course offerings available under the seven-period day will help with yet another problem faced by the school: perennial low attendance rates that are far below the state-mandated minimum.

The change won't hurt instruction, he says, but will actually help.

"In high school, national studies have shown that students' attention spans are around 22 minutes in each class in the mornings and about 19 minutes in the afternoon," he explains. "Most discipline problems also occur in the last 15 minutes of each class."

Additionally, students will have the choice of attending early and late classes at the school, or sticking with the traditional 8-to-3 schedule.

"Our volunteer classes begin at 7 a.m. and 3 p.m. The kids who come early can get out about 2 p.m., and that lets them attend Prestonsburg Community College. Some of our students work, so they can go to work, too," says Daniels. "With the 3 to 4 o'clock class, students can come in later, at 9 a.m."

Parents must furnish transportation for the volunteer classes, the principal notes.

"We have kids who have a hard time getting to school by 8 a.m. I think this will have an effect on attendance — it should be better. Also, the seven-period day will increase the challenge to kids, because they will have more course selections they are interested in," he said.

"There are state-required courses, and kids have to take certain classes. They don't have a choice. With seven periods, kids can select another course they individually would like to have. "Any time kids are interested in a course, they'll come to school and go to class."

The broadened day will include new offerings across the curriculum, such as third-level foreign language classes. Previously, students in advanced (II and III level) courses were in the same class, with modified instruction for each group.

"This way, we can offer a full third level," Daniels explains, "or a semester-long class on something that was maybe just a unit of another class before."

The added period will also let the staff offer low-demand classes at more than one time each day, helping prevent scheduling conflicts.

Yet another change will be the elimination of class bells. The bell will ring once, at the beginning of the regular school day.

"Kids will wait for the tardy bell and run to class. Well, we're asking them to dismiss themselves. I don't believe we should program kids to act on a bell," Daniels explains. "This will make them more responsible and more business-like for them."

"These are young adults. They should know they should be in class, and not wait around for the tardy bell and make a mad dash for it."

If students are late more than nine times they're dropped from the class, but not placed in a study hall. The pipe-puffing Daniels dismisses study halls with a determined wave.

"We will put them into a study skills class, which does them a lot more good," says the principal, now in his fourth year of leading

Allen Central High School, Eastern

ACHS students and staff.

The class covers, primarily, developing study plans, how to study a textbook, studying for exams, developing memory, writing, taking notes, hints for successful studying and studying for specific subjects.

DRIVE SLOW

Parents Helping Students & Schools

Parents and teachers can often be partners.

When they work together, the benefits are threefold: The parent wins, and the teacher wins. Most importantly, the child wins.

Following are some questions for parents of school-age children.

- Do you tell your child that his or her education is important?
- Do you make sure your child attends school every day? Do you schedule appointments after school?
- Do you attend parent-teacher conferences?
- Do you make time to talk to your child's teacher often?
- When there is a problem, do you go right away and talk to your child's teacher? Do you find out what you can do to help?
- Do you plan a quiet time each day for your child to study?
- Do you set aside a few minutes each day to work with your child?
- Do you limit television time?
- Do you ask about homework?
- Do you go to PTA or PTO meetings?
- Do you encourage your child to read? Do you read to your child? Do you have your child read to you?
- Do you visit the library with your child?
- Do you observe conditions in your school and ask what you can do to help if a problem exists?
- Do you volunteer to help in your schools?
- Do you play games with your child?
- Do you ever attend school board meetings?
- Do you make sure your child has enough rest?
- Do you make sure your child eats a good breakfast?
- Do you teach your child to respect others and their property?
- Do you give books to your child?

If you answered "yes" to all or most all of the above, you are the kind of parent every teacher wishes for, and your child is very lucky.

If you had several "no" answers and you are willing to make the effort to change them to "yes" answers, again, your child is very lucky.

Every child deserves to be a winner. Please post these questions in your home as a reminder. Your child will thank you for it.

New Policy Gets Tougher On Absenteeism

by Tess A. Whitmer
Staff Writer

"A day that a child misses from school is a day of instruction that they can never gain back," says Maurice Allen, director of pupil personnel in the Floyd County school system. "High attendance in school will pave the way for future responsible employees on the job who are not a liability because of absenteeism."

A student who attends school regularly will be more likely to master the essential skills for each grade level, and be prepared for the succeeding grade, Allen explains. The goal of high student attendance must be espoused by parents as well as school personnel, for parents are the ones who teach their children value, he continues. If they feel school holds so little importance that a vacation, doctor's or dentist appointment can take priority, then the children will reflect that attitude in their desire to attend, he said.

The new Floyd County attendance policy makes each position within the school system more responsible because it clearly defines the role of each. The law states that each parent or guardian residing in Kentucky send their 6-through 16-year-old dependents to school. Any child who has been absent from school without valid excuse for three or more days, or tardy on three or more days, is regarded as truant, the director explained. The parents of habitual truants, (nine or more days of absences or tardies) will be taken to court and fined $10 for the first offense, and $20 for every offense thereafter.

Allen feels that if the courts enforce the system of fines, the local district will have no problem meeting the state's minimum standards for attendance, 93.5 percent, which the high schools, remedial education and kindergarten classes presently do not achieve. He added that this was one of the goals this year, as well as having each elementary school raise its previous attendance record by 1.5 percent.

"Each school system in our state receives funding through the Minimum Foundation Program, based on the average daily attendance of pupils," Allen said. "Higher pupil attendance means more funds for school systems to spend on providing a better education."

If the school system meets this year's goals, it will receive an additional $180,000 in funds, Allen explains.

"Money is a factor, but when you have an average of 625 students per day absent, as Floyd County had last year, that is also a lot of free education going to waste," Allen said.

According to the policy, a child who misses class work due to an unexcused absence cannot make it up, and the pupil shall receive a failing grade for the work missed. Even though a pupil may have parental consent to stay away from classes, the school authorities reserve the right to decide upon the validity of the absence.

High school students who are absent or tardy from a class nine times will be placed in study hall. By this time, according to policy, the parents will have been contacted three times by mail informing them of the child's absences and the consequences, the guidance counselor will have talked to the child three times and a director of pupil personnel (DPP) will have been notified.

As a last resort to continued absences, the DPP will institute court proceedings against parents whose children continue to violate the state attendance law.

As part of the district's plan of action, schools will have the authority to provide incentives to children for having perfect attendance. Certificates are already awarded to these children and each school has implemented different prizes such as pizza parties, field days and trophies to classes who hold attendance records. The winners of last year's countywide attendance trophies were Auxier Elementary, Harold Elementary and Wheelwright High School, Allen said. Also this year, a special trophy is being awarded to Auxier for the greatest increase in percentage of attendance, 2.35 percent.

Reynolds Relates Floyd Teachers' Concerns

by Bud Reynolds, acting president, Floyd County
Education Association

In a letter dated Aug. 1, Superintendent of Floyd County schools Ron Hager asked teachers in Floyd County to make 1989-90 the best school year ever — to view this as a new beginning. Floyd County teachers are eager to do what Mr. Hager has recommended. It is, in fact, what we want. But our beginning may not be the one envisioned by Mr. Hager. If Mr. Hager is serious and we have no doubts that he is, we ask that he and the Board of Education also be willing to take a new step — make a fresh beginning. As teachers, we want the following:

— To be treated as professionals. We ask that the Floyd County Board of Education view us as trained professionals who deserve to be dealt with honestly, openly and in a fair manner. We don't want teachers to feel that they "owe" anyone except the students in this county — and to them, we owe the best education that we are capable of giving. Teachers in Floyd County need to be given the opportunity to give that to students.

— For the children of Floyd County, we ask that the past patterns of intimidation and political favoritism be put behind us. We ask that good teachers be rewarded for performance and when that is not occurring, we will work with the board to insure better performance.

— It is vital that the board of education demonstrate its belief in the necessity of good teachers — not through empty words, because everyone in this county makes that statement: "We are doing this for the good of the children." We ask that the actions of the board show that they really value the students in this county through the actions they choose to take.

If the local board values the learning of students, if they value teachers and what they do, they should be given top priority in this county. That belief can best be demonstrated by the financial decisions that the board makes — where are they willing to make cuts? Despite recommendations of the state department, the number of administrators in Floyd County has not been reduced. The area that the Curriculum Audit as most critical of was the administrative level in this county. NOT one criticism was directed towards teachers. All the criticisms centered around the lack of good administration. Was that area reduced in recent cutbacks? No.

At least 10 teachers that we know of have lost their jobs. The decision to cut only teachers is typical of what has been happening to us for the last 11 years — we have been asked to raise money for supplies to teach, to pay for field trips for students, to sacrifice again and again. Who will this decision to correct financial problems by cutting teachers most directly affect, besides those teachers who have lost their jobs and a piece of their dignity? In the end, it has to be the students of Floyd County. You can't cut 10 teachers without reducing the number of course offerings or without increasing the number of students in the classes that are offered. It will be harder for students in this county to learn. If the priority in this county is really students, would we cut teachers, or are there other areas that should have been reduced?

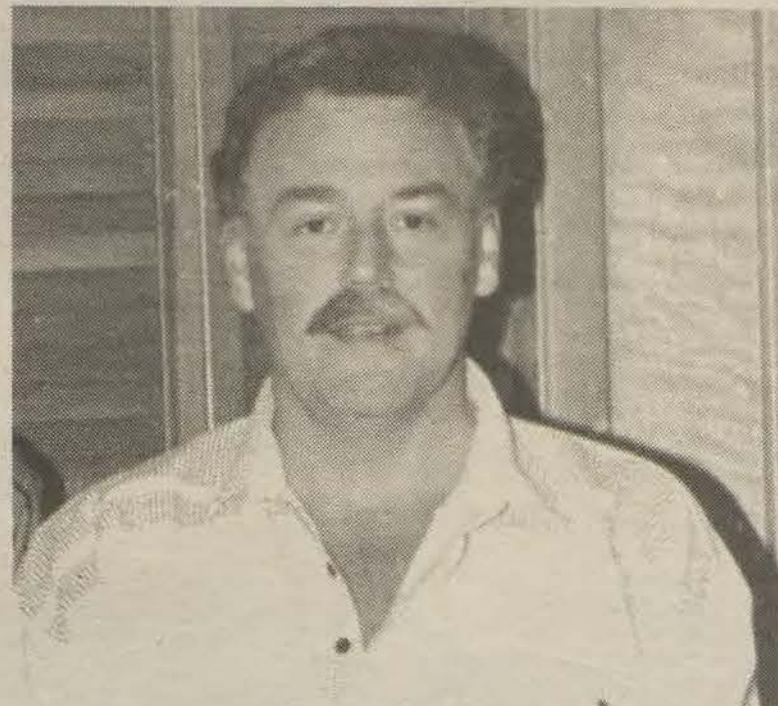

— We want our local board to create a climate in which good teaching can occur — a climate that, in turn, leads to more effective learning on the part of our students. Betty Steffy, the Kentucky deputy superintendent of public instruction, admits to being personally frustrated after working in Floyd County for only six months. Yet she attributes the low morale and the lack of trust on the part of teachers to the fact that we somehow expected progress to take place quickly. Out of the 176 days that she and her staff have devoted to Floyd County, could not one day have been devoted to an explanation to teachers of what the district plan was once it had been formulated? Couldn't one or two of those 176 days have been spent seeking teacher involvement? Every sound theory of management would say that is exactly what should have occurred.

Do you really expect teachers to perform effectively in an atmosphere in which they do not know what is going on, where they have to be afraid of what they will find when they go to work each day?

One has to wonder about Steffy's frustration. What would she feel if she had been here for the past 11 years, as some of us have been? How would she feel if she had attended meeting after meeting with members of the Floyd County school administration and board and been referred to as "children" and realized after giving up almost a complete year of time, that no real accomplishments had taken place? would she be able to enter the classroom with enthusiasm and a sense of "re-birth" that Mr. Hager has said that we need?

— During the past 11 years, we have graduated two classes of students from the high schools in Floyd County. Is it reasonable to assume that these students have gone through the system unaffected by what has been going on around them? Have they received the BEST education that they could have? The first graders in Floyd County will be the Class of 2000. Will they be victims also of this turmoil? Or will the people in this county really begin to place them first?

Our expectations from the state department of education:

— Accountability. We were told when we left Phase 2 by the state department of education that Phase 3 would be different. Up to this point, we were told, the state department had been able only to "advise." In Phase 3, things would be different. The state department could mandate certain actions of our local board. Could one of these recommendations have been a meeting with teachers? Why did the state department not insist on that? The Curriculum Audit demonstrated the lack of communication within our system, and did the state department really expect the system they found flawed in this area to effectively communicate with teachers?

The definition of what the state department can and cannot do seems to change and shift — depending on who is talking and in what situation the conversation is occurring. At the state board meeting, Dr. John Brock (state superintendent of schools) said that he had not "signed off" on any of the proposed changes in

Team Effort Helps Children Learn More, Earn Higher Scores

By Tess Whitmer,
Staff Writer

Learning doesn't just happen. Good education takes three partners: student, teacher and parent.

What, though, is the parent's role? What can a mother or father do to help their children do better? The first thing a parent can do is to send the child to school and show interest in what they are learning, says Larry Jervis, testing coordinator/psychologist for Floyd County schools.

The parent who lets a child miss a day of school is taking away something that the child can never regain and, more importantly, sends the message that school isn't that important.

According to information compiled by some 1985 "Teachers of the Year," a parent can also reinforce learning by watching for moments when they can help teach. At the store, ask, "How much change will I get?" If planning a trip, let the child help map the route. How many miles is it? When will the family arrive?

Children do as their parents do, not as they say. If a parent gets excited about new books and new ideas, a child will, too. If a parent acts as if anything worth doing is worth doing well, that's how a child will do school work.

Teach the child to ask questions when reading a book, says Jervis. What made this explorer so successful? Who risked his life for his country and why? What caused the famine? Encourage the child to draw conclusions. If studying an invention such as the telephone, have the child imagine what life would be like without it.

This analytical thought process of utmost importance, says Jervis, in helping the child to score higher on new standardized tests to be administered this term.

The Comprehensive Test of Basic Skills IV shows children's strengths and weaknesses in specific areas by analyzing their ability to put things into sequence, reason out solutions, determine meanings of paragraphs, follow an electrical circuit chart, read charts and determine their meanings, etc. Jervis said that this test is harder than previous tests, but it does a more thorough job of evaluating students' overall performance and critical thinking skills.

He equates the learning process with that of building a house

"You need a good foundation to build on if you don't want the walls to lean and the roof to leak. The schools can teach the basic skills all day, but if a child is not required to put them to use outside of school, they could lose them."

Jervis said computers are a great medium to provide children with the necessary repetition required to master skills.

Each school presently has a computer which is being used for scanning and analyzing test scores, and is also used in the remedial reading program, according to Jervis. Last year Floyd County was chosen to take part in a pilot program that, using the computers and scanners, allowed teachers to administer a test called the "Criteria Reference Test for Reading, Grade 5", and then gain immediate test results pinpointing each child's ability in the different sections tested. These sections were chosen by area teachers as those they wanted in their curriculum.

Jervis said the success of this program has yet to be determined, since the pilot program was only in three schools. During the standardized testing this year, a comparison can be made between the schools which used the CRT and those that did not.

The fifth grade was targeted because previous test scores show above average marks in the grades 1-4 and a sharp decline in grade five, increasing again through eighth grade with a slightly less sharp decline in ninth grade, increasing only marginally before graduation. Jervis said that this year's testing report would be presented before the September board.

He added that Floyd County students are scoring above national and state averages on these tests, and if the results were listed on a school-by-school basis instead of by school district, some schools would rank way above norm.

If parents wish to assist their children in scoring better on these tests, he suggests they allow their children to figure out solutions to problems on their own instead of being given the answer. He said that cognitive skills can be practiced during simple, everyday activities, such as baking a cake.

Also, every child needs a quiet study area, safe from interruption, equipped with a good light. Agree on a regular time for studying there and don't allow television, stereos or phone calls during this time.

Remember that each child is different. Some do best completing all their studying and homework in a single session. Others do better if they study for 20 minutes, take a break and then come back to it.

personnel in Floyd County. Does that mean his approval is needed? If so, why couldn't he have been more assertive in other areas?

— Don't allow your actions in this county to be affected by politics — whether they be local or state politics.

— Give Floyd County teachers some credit. Teachers in Floyd County are not polarized. We have been struggling for the past 11 years to talk with members of the local board. We are willing to listen as long as real concerns are addressed. Despite Steffy's concern, we believe in ourselves — how could we have survived the last years without a belief in our own worth? Certainly, we have had no one from the administration to reinforce the value of what we do. We are not part of the problem.

In a recent letter to the teachers in Floyd County, Hager said of the

Floyd County school system, "Our program is what it is because a staff of dedicated, aspiring men and women have a common goal — to do what is best for students — and are always looking for ways to achieve that goal."

In part, Mr. Hager is right. For the past several years, the Floyd County school system has been held together by a group of dedicated staff members — the teachers of Floyd County.

In what could only be referred to as almost combat-like conditions, teachers have gone on teaching, trying to work at times without books and necessary equipment and supplies — but we can no longer do that. We will not do it. In some ways, we have kept this system going, and that may have been wrong. We have done so because we have felt a responsibility to the students in our classrooms.
