Stormy Weather...

Increasing cloudiness is on tap today, with a 50 percent chance of thunderstorms with highs in the upper 80s, says the Jackson Weather Service. The chance of more thunderstorms tonight is 50-50, with the temperature low of around 70. Don't hide the umbrella, because Thursday's forecast holds a 30 percent chance of showers, with highs in the mid to uppers 80s and lows around 70.

The extended weekend prediction is for a little more sun and a lot of humidity. Weekend highs are expected to be in the mid 80s, with lows between 65 and 75.

It's Football Time!

This week, the Floyd County Times offers its readers a comprehensive guide to football throughout the county.

Allen Central, Betsy Layne, Prestonsburg and Wheelwright teams are highlighted in this week's newspaper, in a special supplement that includes schedules, rosters, team photos and more.

Curtain Call

If you haven't seen any of the musicals at Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre this season, you have one last chance for each before the 1989 productions end with Saturday's performance.

Tonight is the final showing of The Jenny Wiley Story, and tomorrow, Fanny Brice, Funny Girl, sings her heart out one last time. Friday is the final performance of what many consider the season's best production, The Mystery of Edwin Drood. And Saturday, it's curtains for the season when the lights fade out on Camelot. Show time is 8:30 p.m.

Even if you've seen the shows, go again, if for nothing else than to say goodbye to Jim Deaton, who recently resigned after four years as general manager of the theatre, and welcome to Tedi Vaughan, his replacement.

VAUGHAN

Change Withdrawn

A proposed federal rule change that would have allowed strip mining on some protected lands has been withdrawn, according to Office of Surface Mining officials.

The proposal, if approved, would have removed the buffer zone that protects homes, schools, cemeteries and public parks. Restrictions currently keep strip mine operations at least 300 feet from homes, schools and churches, and at least 100 feet from cemeteries and public roads.

According to Joe Szakos and Jerry Hardt of Kentuckians for the Commonwealth, OSM withdrew the proposal as a result of public pressure. KFTC had coordinated a letter-writing campaign in Kentucky.

P'burg Agenda Set

The Prestonsburg City Council will meet Monday, Aug. 28, at 7 p.m. in the council room, Municipal Building.

Under new business, council members are expected to discuss the property tax rate, volunteer firefighters program, and membership in the Kentucky Industrial Development Council. Other items include a Planning and Zoning Commission recommendation concerning property on North Arnold Avenue, liability insurance renewal, discussion of litigation, and the manager's position for the Main Street Program.

The meeting is open to the public.

Recycling Day Set This Saturday

Floyd Countians will have an opportunity to "stop throwing it all away" on Saturday, August 26, a day which has been declared "recycling day" in Floyd County.

The recycling drive is being organized by Kentuckians For The Commonwealth, and co-sponsored by Mountain Christian Academy, where the recyclables will be stored before being transported to a recycling redemption center.

The drive is an effort by KFTC members to not only help Floyd Countians become aware of the urgent need to recycle garbage, but also to illustrate the ease with which it can be done. Members hope it will be a ground-breaking experience that will some day lead to regular recycling programs in Floyd County that allow people to recycle their garbage without having to leave town.

"I urge everyone to participate and become involved in the recycling movement," said Karen Alfano, an attorney with Appalachian Research and Defense Fund of Kentucky. "Recycling is a solution to our waste problems that can no longer be ignored."

As landfills continue to become overloaded and unsafe, and as companies continue to try to bring incinerators and out-of-state garbage into Kentucky, people are beginning to realize that garbage is a major environmental, economic and health issue in Kentucky and across the nation.

As a domestic expenditure, solid waste disposal is second in cost only to education in the U.S., according to Earth Care Paper, Inc. a national company which sells recycled paper products. The company also points out that recycling saves our natural resources, creates less pollution, and even creates jobs.

"Even though the county looks better, and the people are doing better, they're still throwing a lot of litter out," says Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo.

"Litter stopped a lot of the culverts up (during recent rains), and the water ran over and cut up the roads. The culverts stopped up because of the litter," he added.

Participating in the recycling drive, as well as the county's solid waste program, "helps all the way around," the judge says. "It beautifies the county and helps with our ditchlines and creeks, and makes it look much better."

The public is invited to drop off any recyclables — glass, plastic, aluminum, paper, or newspaper, at one of four sites — at the intersection of US 23 and South Lake Drive in Prestonsburg, at Mud Creek Clinic, at the David School, and at Mountain See RECYCLING DAY, Page 11

Recycling Day Scheduled

David Schmidt, a member of Kentuckians for the Commonwealth, left, hands Floyd Countian Bobby Blackburn a stack of old papers to be stored and later recycled. Other area residents can help out by participating in a recycling day sponsored by KFTC with assistance from Mountain Christian Academy. The public can recyclables — glass, plastic, aluminum, paper, or newspaper, at one of four sites — at the intersection of US 23 and South Lake Drive in Prestonsburg, at Mud Creek Clinic, at the David School, and at Mountain Christian Academy, off Route 80 in Martin — that will be set up from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. Saturday, Aug. 26.

Gambling On Not Getting Sick: Lottery Of Uninsured Employees

by Pam Shingler, Assistant Editor

A chemical salesman works for a company that offers him no medical insurance coverage. He's in his mid-50s, approaching the time when his body may begin to need medical attention. Plus, the hundreds of miles a week he drives to serve his customers up the odds of an accident that will require medical service.

The salesman, a religious man, doesn't realize that he's a gambler. Without insurance, he gambles that nothing will go wrong that will force him to seek medical treatment. If it does, he will have to pay the cost out of his own pocket.

Not to take that gamble would mean he would have to pay well over $100 a month for insurance for himself. To cover his wife would take an additional, similar amount. And because he lives in Floyd County and Eastern Kentucky where wages are lower and costs are higher than average, he simply cannot afford the $200-plus a month expense.

The salesman is one of an unrecorded number — probably thousands — of Floyd County workers who are not covered by employers' insurance and cannot afford to buy it on their own.

In a sense, they're the working poor. They have jobs and, thus, do not qualify for state or federal assistance programs. But their income is not enough to cover a "frill" such as insurance.

Area hospitals refer to persons without insurance or state medical cards as "private pay" patients. Kevin Yeager of Highlands Regional Medical Center's business office estimates that about 8 percent of the hospital's clients fall into that category. "Most are out of work or are not covered by their employer," he says.

Toby Music of the social services department of Our Lady of the Way Hospital says simply that "a lot of ours are private pay patients."

Both hospitals have an "open door policy," meaning that no one is turned away because of inability to pay.

Describing OLTW's charity care plan, Music said, "We take into consideration the income and number in the family and try to set up a payment plan."

"For anyone who is willing to pay, we will work out an installment plan," Yeager concurs. "The main thing is that the patient pay something every month."

Installment plan is probably the correct terminology. The cost of a hospital stay can range from the cost of buying a major appliance for the home to the purchase of a car or a house.

Yeager estimates that the average cost of an average stay in a hospital — not just HRMC, but across the state — is close to $4,000. That figure, he said, includes average diagnostic test fees, but it does not include the fee a doctor charges each time he or she looks at the patient. The patient has to work out payment to the doctor separately.

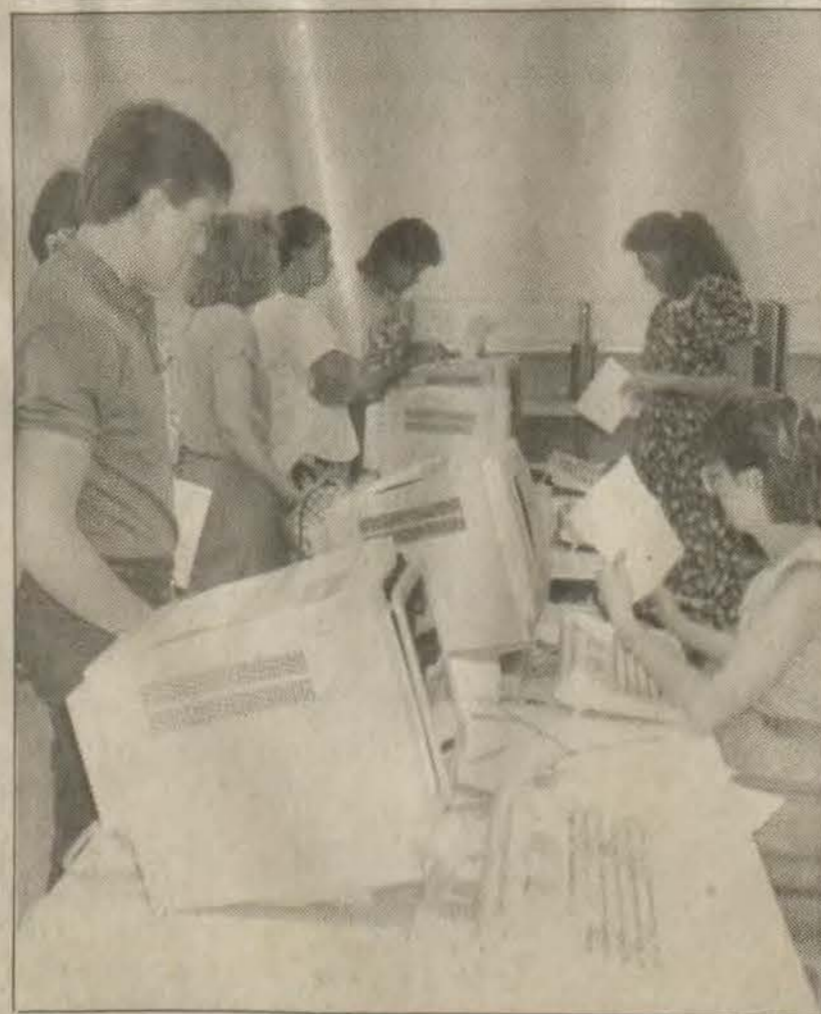

The average hospital stay, by the way, is about five days. If treatment takes longer than that and if more diagnostic tests are required, the patient can figure on chalking up a bill of more than $800 a day.

Even employees whose employers include medical coverage in a benefits package are advised to read the fine print on policies. Many insurance carriers today, perhaps in an effort to stem frivolous insurance usage, attach a number of conditions to their agreement to pay for medical services.

Some Blue Cross policies, for instance, require the patient, his physician or the hospital to give advance notice of the patient's admission to a hospital and daily notice of the continuance of hospitalization.

A local secretary, believing she was well covered by her employer-paid Blue Cross policy, last year gave birth to a daughter in a local hospital. The 20 percent of delivery cost that she would have to pay would be a hardship, but at least she anticipated it. What she did not anticipate was

Class Consciousness

Lines were dwindling Monday afternoon as students were into the third day of registering for fall classes at Prestonsburg Community College. By Tuesday afternoon, about 2,150 students had already punched in, said PCC President Dr. Henry Campbell, adding that he expects about 2,300 students before registration ends next week. "We're full to the brim," said Campbell of what is expected to be the college's largest enrollment ever. The president said students also appear to be signing up for more classes than usual. Classes start today.

Two Lawsuits Filed Against School Board

by Anne Chaney, Editor

Prestonsburg attorney Ned Pillersdorf has filed two separate suits against the Floyd County Board of Education in the Eastern District of United States District Court in Pikeville.

Both suits allege that the plaintiffs, Joyce Reynolds Blackburn and Ed Patton Jr., were not rehired because of politics in the system.

Blackburn, who taught at Allen Central High School until this academic year, was not rehired by the board, apparently as part of a reduction in teachers mandated by the state Board of Elementary and Secondary Education.

Blackburn is suing the Floyd board and, individually, Superintendent Ronald Hager.

Blackburn was employed in the district for four years. She is alleging that Hager did not recommend that she be rehired in an attempt to punish and intimidate her, as well as other teachers in the district, for expressing their views about the operation of the school system.

Noting that Blackburn was an outspoken critic of the system, speaking publicly about them, the suit also alleges that Hager and the board "have a long policy record and policy of retaliating against outspoken school employees by taking and/or threatening personnel action against them and their families."

Before her discharge, the suit states, Board Chairman reportedly told Blackburn that if she would "shut up," her job would be secure.

Blackburn is seeking reinstatement with back pay and lost benefits. $1

Bridge Under Troubled Waters

Hard thunderstorms last Friday morning caused creeks to rage in parts of the county. Several bridges on Conley Fork of Spurlock Creek were washed out by turbulent waters. Roads and streets in other sections were mired in mud as the rain fell faster than drains and ditches could process it.

Mud, Mire Mangle Sections Of County

Many Floyd Countians woke up Friday morning to mounds of mud and the evidence of pre-dawn thunderstorms.

About 2.37 inches of rain fell on the area in just a couple of hours during a series of early morning storms, according to the US Army Corps of Engineers at Dewey Dam. Residents of the Middle Creek section of the county give unofficial estimates of four or five inches of rainfall in that area.

Several area businesspersons arrived at work to find water in their stores and offices as a result of the impact of the rain on windows and walls. At The Floyd County Times, for instance, water was two inches deep in some parts of the building.

City streets and county roads were mud-coated as morning traffic wended its way in the area, primarily because drainage systems were incapable of handling the amount and concentration of rainfall.

Classes at Clark Elementary School were canceled Friday with two first grade rooms filled with mud and water. Carpets in the two rooms will have to be replaced, according to a school spokesperson. Water apparently filled the back parking lot of the school and came in side doors, causing damage to the rooms and to the gymnasium, boy's shower room and

The Times Are A Changin': Newspaper To Go Twice Weekly

Beginning Friday, Sept. 1, the Floyd County Times will be published on Wednesdays and Fridays, breaking from the past tradition of a Wednesday-only issue, according to Marty Backus Sr., publisher.

The change is prompted by the newspaper's efforts to better serve readers and advertisers, he said.

"We wouldn't be making this move if we didn't believe in the progressive future of the area," Backus noted. "If one would just tour our county, they would find plenty of things that tell you we have many reasons to be optimistic about Floyd County. That's why the Times is continuing to invest in this area's future."

Backus said that several of the newspaper's clients have expressed interest in advertising weekend sales in a Friday newspaper, in addition to Wednesday's Times. With the change, the local company can offer an advertising vehicle to meet customers' needs three days each week — in Monday's Eastern Kentucky Shopper, and in the Wednesday and Friday Floyd County Times. Backus said Friday's issue will

by Tess Whitmer,
Staff Writer

During the regular session of the Floyd County Fiscal Court Friday, two road disputes were discussed, back-hoes were bid on, a loan for East

Kentucky Utilities Co. was approved, the county detectives pay was changed and a secretary was hired.

Rita Davis, who has been before the court many times, and several other Dwale residents showed pictures and described their continuing problem with overflowing ditches.

Davis said that a three foot culvert is receiving 12 feet of water, adding that Dwale gets all of the water from US 23 south of Wicke's. Judge/Executive John M. Stumbo said that the state routed the water that way and he would see what could be done about it.

Davis also cited the debris left apparently after repair work was done by C & O Railways, blocking the culvert in front of her store. Another spot, the C & O spur track, holds water back, causing additional problems, Davis said. Stumbo informed her that he was in favor of trying to get that unused track removed and had been consulting the railroad about it.

Another Dwale resident mentioned the ditch in front of Kentucky West Virginia Gas Co., saying it also caused blockage and needed "to be dug out more."

In a separate matter, Lee Fontz of Harold brought to the attention of the court his dispute with a neighbor resident concerning the removal of a gate constructed to block a county road. Fontz said the gate, when closed, prevents him and other residents from gaining access to the rest of their property, gas meters and a fire hydrant. He also added that the person who constructed the gate is causing problems and not allowing him and some other property owners to cut their grass or walk their property lines.

Font said he was bringing assault charges on another individual.

"When my 17-year-old son was tending the grass the man told him it was private property and he jumped him, shoving him against the gate," Font explained. Mrs. Font added that they have been threatened, had rocks thrown at their house and have been generally harassed.

Judge Stumbo asked that County Attorney David Barber go to the property and investigate the problem and resolve the boundary dispute.

In old business, a loan from the First Commonwealth Bank for $29,383 was approved to finish the East Kentucky Utilities, Inc., restoration project. All magistrates except Jackie Edford Owens voted for the resolution.

"They've nickel and dimed us to death over the last four years," Owens said. "We ought to sell that thing or give it away or something."

In other business, four companies bid on the county back-hoes: Wilson Machinery, Wayne and Supply, Brandeis and Commonwealth Equipment. The judge said that he and the magistrates would study the bids and accept the lowest or the best bid.

In new business, Debra Rowe was hired as a secretary for the county attorney's office and a pay change to $6 per hour was approved for the two county detectives in charge of the prisoner work clean-up program.

It was resolved that the county attorney should research to dispute over the boundary line of the Meadows Branch/Job Corp Road since the Job Corp wishes to build a new building in that area. A transfer of $2,000 from one account to another to pay monthly bills was approved.

Fires Destroy Three Homes

Three early morning fires destroyed households in Maytown, Bevinsville and Sizemore (Left Beaver) this past week.

A fire reported at 7:25 a.m. on Thursday, Aug. 17, totally consumed a house at Sizemore before the Left Beaver Fire Department could arrive. "We were held up 25 minutes in traffic by the McDowell school," said Morris Tackett, fire chief. "People parked in the road in front of the school had us blocked both ways."

The firefighters arrived at Ballard Mosley's home at about 8 a.m. Tackett reported that the owners said the fire started in the laundry room; both were home at the time, but no one was injured.

Two other fires both started around 2 a.m. Monday. One in Maytown destroyed a mobile home owned by Mike Martin. Keith Hayes of the Maytown Fire Department said the cause of the blaze is still under investigation by the state police. "We responded within five to six minutes after receiving the call," Hayes reported, "but usually by the time it is reported it is beyond control."

No one was at home at the time. The second fire took place at Jack's Creek Hollow in Bevinsville, and the Southeast Fire Department responded, but was unable to douse the flames in time to save the residence of James Sammons and family, said Daniel Gullett, firefighter.

According to Gullett, the Sammons family was at home and asleep when the blaze started. By the time they awakened, it had spread beyond control. They suspect it started in the furnace area of the house. The occupants were able to escape injury and the Southeast Fire Department, backed up by Wheelwright Fire Department, arrived within eight minutes of the report. "Neighboring houses were in danger," said Gullett, "but we managed to cool them off enough to prevent any damage."

Gullett noted that it took about 45 minutes to douse the flames, and the departments stayed on the scene for approximately another hour and a half.

Martin Housing Project Modernization Scheduled

The Pageant Hill Project, a 40-unit housing complex in Martin, is slated to receive more than $500,000 worth of renovations within the next year and a half, according to Helen Ison, executive director of the Housing Authority of Martin.

The project is funded by a grant from the US Department of Housing and Urban Development and will involve "complete modernization of the interior and exterior," Ison said.

Among interior renovations will be replacement of floor tile, the addition of bathroom showers, installation of closet doors and updating of kitchens and bathrooms. Exterior changes include new siding, construction of a dividing wall between units and installation of metal doors.

Site work will include improvements in drainage, concreting and a retaining wall. Ison said the maintenance building will also be overhauled, and a playground will be built.

She said the 25-year-old complex's more than 130 tenants will not be displaced during the renovations. "We're really looking forward to the modernization," said Ison, "and we're hoping to get some good bids from local contractors." Bids on the contract are slated to be opened on Aug. 31.

Twenty-Five Year War On Poverty Recognized

Floyd County Judge Executive John M. Stumbo recently signed a proclamation presented by the National Association of Community Action Agencies recognizing that a quarter-century has passed "since the nation declared unconditional war on poverty."

The proclamation, presented by NACAA in cooperation with Big Sandy Area Community Action Program, Inc., refers to the enactment of the Economic Opportunity Act, signed into law on Aug. 20, 1964. The proclamation reads, in part: "The Community Action Agencies have made an invaluable contribution to our nation, through the development of innovative and cost-effective programs which have helped millions of poor Americans find their way out of poverty...the paradox of poverty in the midst of plenty continues today when, although 1987 represented the fifth year of economic recovery, the poverty rate that year soared higher than in any year in the 1970s, higher even than during the major recessions of 1974 and 1975." In signing the proclamation, Stumbo showed his support for the Community Action Agencies and his name will be included in the list to be presented to the US Congress and to the President of the United States in conjunction with the National Association of Community Action Agencies' Rededication Ceremony in Washington D.C. Friday, Sept. 8.

Movin' Right Along

By Anne Chaney

The name of my column is truer than usual this week, as I face every editor's dream.

The dream, of course, is that on Friday, Sept. 1, the Floyd County Times will be published both Wednesdays and Fridays.

We'll be able to print more news in a more timely fashion, and I can't imagine anything that I'd like better. We'll be able to have more "hard" news — more detailed coverage of local government, for instance. We'll be able to run the Wednesday school board meetings in Friday's paper, rather than having to wait until the following Wednesday. We can expand our business news pages, keep printing school news, and perhaps publish Poet's Corner on a more regular basis.

To me, the most important things in each week's newspaper are often some of the smallest — a birth announcement, engagement or wedding. We are (despite being the largest weekly in the state) truly a hometown newspaper, and those are the articles that this newspaper is built upon.

Sure, we'd like to think every Floyd Countian reads the fiscal court stories. We'd hope that most all of our readers take time to study the school board stories. But when push comes to shove, our newspaper's foundation is made up of the occasional things that are so important to our readers: the arrival of a child, a relative's wedding, or the obituary of a loved one.

With the addition of a Friday issue, we'll be able to print even more of the news that chronicles our readers' lives. And best of all, for those occasional folks who bring in the coming Saturday's wedding on Tuesday afternoon (the society section is published Monday night), we'll have another newspaper and more time to get your story in for you.

I'm optimistic about the Friday newspaper. For me, it is a personal "first" — although I've worked at a newspaper that publishes three times a week, it was in a different department. I've never edited a twice-a-week paper, and I'm looking forward to the challenge.

The editorial staff is planning some special features for the Friday issue, ones that we hope you will enjoy. We're also planning some changes —

"Our Yesterdays" will be moved to Friday, as will the television guide and weekly horoscope. We'll carry the full array of other news: sports, meetings, an editorial page and obituaries.

We can even add some things — and that's where you come in. If you have ideas or suggestions to improve our current newspaper, or things we can add to Friday's paper, please call me. I'd be tickled to talk about it.

Letters To The Editor

Supporters Of Sheriff's Ranch Thanked

Dear Editor,
We have come to the close of another camping season at the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch in Gilbertsville, and the ending of the 10-week summer camp session brings with it a multitude of mixed emotions for those of us who work here.

After 11 summers of working with the needy children across the state, many returning for camp several years in a row, we have come to know many of the children personally and it's always a little sad to know that when the children leave here on Friday, we will not be seeing another group on the following Monday until camp opens again next summer. Our Ranch resembles a "ghost town." There will be no smiling faces in line for breakfast, we will not hear water splashing in the pool, see a game of volleyball on the sports field or hear the laughter of children playing throughout the day. And, while all of this will be missed, the 24 of us who work here during the summer will certainly carry with us in the coming months, a blessing within our hearts and the privilege of knowing that we helped to make the summer of 1989 a memorable one for 919 young boys and girls.

Although we would like to take credit for the enjoyment provided to these needy children, we must admit we could not have done it without the sheriffs, deputies, their wives and other interested people throughout the state. Most of all, the credit for the successful operation of our summer camp must go to the financial supporters. Our forever faithful "Honorary Members," civic organizations, and businesses who support our camp by making donations which keep us solvent year after year are to be commended for their help. We have some wonderful children in our state who will become our leaders in years to come and each of our supporters can be proud that they have had a part in molding these young lives.

We will be working hard in the coming months in preparation of the 1990 camping season and will continually strive to expand and build our camping program to the advantage of the children attending the camp. Sheriffs in each county will be taking applications after the first of the year for children to attend next summer. See your local sheriff for an application and transportation to attend this camp free of charge.

On behalf of the staff, counselors, cooks, office, housekeeping and maintenance personnel, thank you all for your support and for allowing us to be a part of the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch.

Sincerely,
Ray H. Stoess

Teacher Noted By Child's Parents

Dear Editor,
It is the beginning of a new school year, summer is over and it is time to settle down. Over the past few months, we have heard a lot of negative remarks concerning our Floyd County School System. While some of these remarks may be true, I feel there are teachers that deserve recognition for their dedication to our children.

A perfect example of this dedication is Marcella Slone, a first grade teacher at Prestonsburg Elementary School. My daughter, Misty Woods, was a student in Mrs. Slone's class during the 1988-89 school year. I am sure that Misty was the kind of student that caused dedicated teachers like Mrs. Slone to have nightmares. Mrs. Slone never gave up through all of Misty's "I don't want to," "I don't care," "I can't" or "That is the best I can do" syndrome.

Mrs. Slone stayed on top and kept encouraging Misty, patting her on the back and giving her the love and attention she needed. Today, Misty began a new school year full of self-confidence and excitement that I am sure that Mrs. Slone helped give her. My husband and I would like to take this opportunity to thank Mrs. Slone for her dedication not only to our child, but to each and every child's life that she touches.

Sincerely,
John Clinton Woods and Beckie Woods

Reader Trying To Locate Family

Dear Editor,
I am trying to locate two lost relatives, and I thought I could do it through your newspaper.

Azzie McCoun of Floyd County married Pauline Don and had two children, Pauline and Don McCoun. I don't know their birth dates, but Azzie McCoun was born in 1903 and died in 1937. Pauline and Don are my first cousins.

Please unite me if you know anything about them or have the name and address of someone who can help me. Thank you so much.

WHEN WILL CONGRESS PASS ACID RAIN LEGISLATION?

When will President Bush sent Congress his clean air bill last month, the debate in Washington once and for all ceased to center on whether the nation needs an acid rain bill and became one of how to achieve reductions in acid rain precursors.

With this in mind, and with Congress poised to begin full scale debate on the issue shortly after returning from August recess, three questions come to mind: 1) Will Congress use the President's acid rain proposal or develop its own approach? 2) If Congress uses the President's bill, will attempts be made to change it substantially from its present form?; and 3) when will Congress get around to actually enacting a clean air bill?

In response to the first question, it is likely that the President's bill will serve as the basic framework for any acid rain legislation with which the 101st Congress deals. One reason for this prediction is the fact that Bush's acid rain plan is generally considered the strictest part of his clean air proposal. Indeed, Bush's plan for reducing acid rain may be one of the toughest ever proposed, particularly from the point of view of the coal and utility industries.

Happy Birthday, Pam!

'Sister' Leaves Mountain Family

by Pam Shingler,
Assistant Editor

Wrapping up six years in Floyd County this week, Sister Mary Gervase estimates she's worked with 600 persons, either as students in her literacy and GED classes or as students she's taught to be reading tutors.

The vivacious teacher can't begin to estimate the number of miles she's driven over winding roads, along dirt lanes or up local hollows in her quest to take adult basic education to residents of Floyd, Knott and Magoffin counties.

"It's a whole new life for them once they start reading," said Sister Gervase of her literacy program students. "Several who started in the literacy program are now working on their GED. Some of the GED people have gone on to college, and some became certified literacy tutors and are helping others."

Sister Gervase came to Floyd County six years ago this month after teaching eighth grade for 30 years in Sandusky, Ohio. Her first job with the Christian Appalachian Project in Martin was as a volunteer tutor for students at Mountain Christian Academy. "There was no literacy or GED program at that time, but tutoring at MCA gave me a feel for the area and the people," she said.

The Port Clinton, Ohio native said she met her first adult student at a clinic where she had taken a friend for treatment of a bee sting. The student would come to Sister Gervase's house for help with mathematics. Soon others asked for help.

In 1983, she took a workshop at Morehead State University in teaching adults to read, using the international Laubach technique. She then began gradually to work with adults who wanted to learn how to read. In the summer of 1984, she received certification to certify tutors who could then teach reading to adults.

A year later, she left MCA and began CAP's literacy and GED programs. "They (the adult students) just started coming," she said, adding that in four years more than 600 adults have been involved in the programs, either as students or tutors.

The first organized classes were in Martin at CAP's headquarters. Today, they have spread to Prestonsburg, Garrett, Price, Weebury, Wheelwright, Topmost and Salyersville.

"Churches and community leaders have been extremely supportive by letting us use their buildings, free of charge," said Sister. In some cases, she has gone to students' homes when they were unable to drive to community centers.

"The groups at the centers develop real concern for each other," she said. "They help each other." She admitted that she, too, has developed close bonds with her students.

Sister has also been driven to get as many volunteer tutors involved as possible. In 1986, she convinced trainers from New York to come to Floyd County to certify persons to train others to be tutors.

She has trained 31 students at Allen Central, McDowell and Betsy Layne high schools to be reading tutors for their peers.

A member of the Sisters of St. Francis since 1949, the Catholic nun said she has seen families changed by parents getting their GED. "Then they understand how to help their own children," she said. "They also know a little more about what their rights are. Some start to speak up and say 'That's not right' when they see an injustice."

Sister Gervase quarrels with the popular adage "Illiteracy Breeds Illiteracy." She said she prefers the more optimistic outlook that literacy breeds literacy. "It's amazing. A whole new world is opened up when a person learns to read. People get excited when they can read a billboard, for instance. A person who can't read lives in constant fear."

She also has high praise for her students. "It takes so much courage to walk in a class and admit 'I don't know this,'" she said.

At the end of this week, the energetic sister will leave the area for a year's "sabbatical" in Minnesota, a kind of retreat after years of almost non-stop activity. She expresses a desire, however, to return to Eastern Kentucky and resume the important task of adult education.

"I love the people here," she said. "I really feel accepted. At the learning centers, we're like a family."

Farewell, Sister Gervase

Sister Mary Gervase relaxes for a few minutes between running to class and packing her belongings. After six years of establishing and teaching in literacy and GED programs, she is leaving the area—perhaps temporarily.

Business Leads County In Lottery Ticket Sales

McDowell Stop and Shop leads 11 top Floyd County lottery ticket retailers, according to information from state lottery officials.

The McDowell firm, between April 4 and Aug. 23, sold $115,862 in instant tickets, making it one of the top

50 retailers in the local region. "Our retailer network has been incredible," said Frank O. Keener, president of the lottery. "We originally expected to have 3,500 retailers selling instant tickets. On opening day, we had about 4,500 retailers, and have maintained a level of about 4,300 to date. While we have lost a few along the way, we have had others sign up."

Other Floyd County retailers making the region's top 50 are, in order of sales:

Super America in Martin, $103,500; Super America in Prestonsburg, $91,372; Moore's Quick Stop in Martin, $79,778; Estill Stop and Shop in Estill, $75,500; Floppy Mart in Prestonsburg, $70,484; Prestonsburg Sundry Store, $58,808; P&B Liquor in Harold, $57,500; The Market Place in Prestonsburg, $57,500; Skeans Shell Mart in Prestonsburg, $57,012; and Stone's Market in Bevensville, $55,792.

In Pike County, the top retailer was Super America in Pikeville, with $122,500 in sales. Leading Johnson County retailers is Jim's Stop and Shop in Paintsville, at $90,500. In neighboring Magoffin County, Super America in Salyersville leads with $83,000 in sales.

Back To School?

The Betsy Layne Senior Citizen's went "back to school" Thursday, as did younger students in the county. They dressed up in the outfits they wore when they were in school, conducted class, sang songs and played games. Pictured above is Darlene Walker (right), director of the center, doing her rendition of "Mary Had a Little Lamb," represented by Christine Meade (left).

W'wright Commissioners OKs Bids, Hears Complaints

Wheelwright City Commission, at its Aug. 17 meeting, gave David Hall the go ahead to begin building four gates to be placed over city roads to prevent illegal garbage dumping. Hall submitted a bid estimate of $735 for the gates.

Two of the gates will block entrances to the old slate dump road which has been heavily used lately by illegal dumpers. Another gate will be put in Hall Hollow and the fourth across from No. 2 store, Dennis Harris introduced the motion to approve the bid, and Jerry Tackett seconded it.

The commissioners denied a request from Wheelwright High School to use a set of bleachers that belong to the city. At first, they discussed referring the request to the city's Parks Commission, but the mood shifted as commissioners, as well as local residents in attendance, recalled that the city has consistently lost materials and equipment it has lent.

Local citizen Lowell Parker questioned, "Who has the authority to do what?" Considering the tone of the discussion, he said, the commission should make the decision "rather than pass it to the Parks Commission." "I think we're all pretty well in agreement that the bleachers aren't going anywhere," said Commissioner Harris. The Commission then voted not to lend the equipment.

Commissioners also heard the first reading of an ordinance to continue the city tax rate at 40 cents on each $100 worth of property. The rate is the same as it has been for several years, said Clerk Mary Ann Johnson.

Members discussed an inquiry from a resident interested in buying a city-owned garage in the lower end of town. Following the discussion, Commission Dennis Holbrook, acting as mayor pro tem, said, "The consensus appears to be that we're not interested in selling at this time."

Holbrook informed commissioners and residents that the city is applying, through Big Sandy Area Development District, for a $10,000 grant to improve the city's swimming pool. He said the bulk of the money, if received, would go toward purchase of a new filtration system.

In other business, the commission accepted a $925 bid for auditing services from accountant Darrell Madden and voted to table discussion on an ordinance on litter and rubbish. Commissioners said they needed more time to study copies of other cities' ordinances on the issue.

Commissioners heard complaints from several citizens about speeding vehicles on city streets. Addressing Police Chief Terry Hill, Commissioner Harris said, "Let's catch some people, write some tickets and get the word around."

Holbrook instructed Hill to enforce existing speed limits and asked Clerk Johnson to call Gary Rose of the Kentucky State Police to request back up support. Hill said he has written tickets and has arrested numerous law violators, but he expressed concern about the extent of prosecution by county officials.

Commissioners also agreed to review the city's property maps in response to a citizen's complaint that another resident was grading city land for private construction.

Still other citizens registered complaints about road conditions following placement of new water pipeline. Holbrook said complaints should be made to the city utilities office, so they can be checked out before the construction project is released.

Absent from the meeting were Mayor Larry Mullins and Commissioner Joe Stewart. The next regular meeting is set for 7 p.m., Sept. 21, at the city hall.

'Something To Shoot For':

Gun Class For Women Offered

by Pam Shingler,
Assistant Editor

For local Annie's—or Glenda's or Mary's or whomever—it's time to "get your gun." For a free gun safety workshop, that is, sponsored by the Prestonsburg Police Department on Saturday, Sept. 23.

A Gallop Poll last year indicated that more than 15 million women nationwide had bought or were considering buying a gun for personal protection. Police Chief Dickie Campbell is concerned that those Floyd County women who are among that number know how to handle a gun safely.

"The workshop will be mostly on safety," said Campbell. "We'll talk about the people who are killed each year with an 'empty' gun."

The class, which begins at the Municipal Building at 10 a.m., will include what different types of guns will do, safety features, how to clean a gun safely and laws regarding firearm usage. "It's for their own safety mostly, not how to kill someone," Campbell said.

Following the classroom session, participants will go to a firing range where they will get actual practice in shooting. The department will provide guns and ammunition for those women who don't have their own, Campbell said.

"A lot of people think you can just put a gun out there and shoot it," the chief said. "They'll find it's different when they shoot at a target."

Certified instructor Darrell Conley will teach the class. "He knows how to put them (guns) together and take them apart," Campbell said.

Barbara McGarey, dispatcher for the local police department, took the class last year when it was offered for the first time and plans to take this one, as well. "The class gave us a lot more confidence in case we did have to use a gun," McGarey said. "I highly recommend it. Every woman needs this type of class."

"Especially the ones who live alone," Campbell added, to which McGarey countered wryly, "And some who live with a man."

Campbell said more than 20 women took the class last year, and he expects this year's enrollment to be even larger. "Last year we had a lot of women who had guns but didn't even know how to load them. This is a good course if somebody wants to learn how to use a pistol safely."

Each of the participants will be given certificates. During the target practice segment, the best shooter will also receive a trophy, Campbell said. "That gives them something to shoot for," he added.

For more information on the class, call the department at 886-1010.

Ready, Aim...

Dispatcher Barbara McGarey gets instruction on proper gun usage from Prestonsburg Police Chief Dickie Campbell. McGarey is one of the enrollees in a workshop on gun safety for women, sponsored by the local department on Sept. 23.

Six Accidents Leave Victims Unhurt

Six different auto accidents involving two cars each took place in Prestonsburg this past week, according to police reports. No one was hurt in any of the accidents, and all cars remained in serviceable condition.

On Wednesday, Aug. 16, two different collisions were recorded. A vehicle driven by Luther Grimm, 71, of Paintsville, was traveling south on US 23. When he began to make a left hand turn he collided with Janice Wright, 51, also of Paintsville, who was in the left turn lane. The investigating officer was Ricky Roberts.

That day also saw Gwendoy Harrison, 39, driving a vehicle owned by the State Transportation Cabinet, being struck by John Webb, 26, of Paintsville, as he backed out of a parking space at McDonald's.

Harrison's car was hit on the right rear.

Wayne Thompson, 33, of Swamp Branch, had his 1988 Chevy S10 side-swiped by another vehicle as he was pulling into the Prestonsburg Village shopping center Thursday. According to Officer R. Frasure, the owner of the offending vehicle did not stop to give his/her name.

Also on Thursday, Joy Caldwell, 26 of Salyersville, and a juvenile were victims of a parking lot mishap. Ferguson was driving a vehicle owned by Frances Corder of Wayland. She was traveling north in a traffic aisle of the Wal-Mart parking lot when she struck Caldwell's vehicle coming the other way. Officer Nick Stanaford cited Ferguson for driving without an operator's license.

On Sunday, Morgan Adkins, 45 of Pikeville, driving an '86 Dodge owned by James Blackburn of Regina, was attempting to get in the right hand lane of US 23 when she side swiped 30-year-old Paintsville resident Christine Bright's '87 Honda Civic. Bright was entering US 23 from Route 1428 and she was not seen by Adkins at the time, according to investigating officer Tim Mellias.

At the Super America gas pumps Alex Spencer, 58 of Van Lear, and Bart Akers, 18 of Prestonsburg, were involved in a collision on Monday. According to the police report filed by Officer R. Frasure, Spencer and Akers were both pulling up to the pumps, Spencer, not seeing Akers moving, cut in front of him and hit him with the side of his truck.

Improvements In Times Announced

allow readers to have even more current, up-to-date news.

"The Friday newspaper will offer everything the Wednesday paper does," said Backus. "We will include society news, sports, obituaries, an editorial page and several features, as well as 'hard' news coverage. We hope that with this change, we will be able to better serve readers and provide them with more timely articles."

Among the specific changes that will be made, he said, are moving "Our Yesterdays," the television guide and weekly horoscope to Friday's edition.

Both newspapers will be delivered to mail subscribers the same day they are available from stores. Same-day delivery is currently provided with the Wednesday Times.

The advertising deadline for Friday's newspaper will be 5 p.m. Wednesday for legal, classified and display ads. The editorial deadline will be 5 p.m. Wednesday for society and school news, as well as obituaries. All other news, including sports and letters to the editor, must be received by 10 a.m. Thursday.

The Floyd County Times is Kentucky's largest weekly newspaper, with a circulation of more than 11,100 each week. The Eastern Kentucky Shopper has an average weekly circulation of 13,000 in Floyd County.

In other areas, the newspaper offices will be expanding in the near future. The primary reception area and some advertising offices will be moved next door, into what was formerly the Kentucky Vocational Rehabilitation office.

Additionally, the Floyd County Times recently completed the purchase of Highlands Publishing, Inc., a web press operation that was previously owned by the Times, the Paintsville Herald and an individual investor.

The press operation currently prints the Times, the Herald, the Salersville Independent, the Licking Valley Courier, the Wolfe and Elliott county newspapers, shopper's guides for both Johnson and Floyd County, and two periodicals for local organizations.

School Board

million in punitive damages from Hager, a jury trial, attorney's fees and other compensation for pain and suffering.

Patton's suit, while naming the Floyd board and Hager individually, also names the state board and John Brock, state superintendent of education, as defendants. Also named individually as a defendant is Dr. Mary Hall, a local board member.

The suit alleges that Patton, former transportation director, was not rehired because he supported a candidate challenging Hall in the school board race last year.

Brock and the state board are also named as defendants, as they have final approval over the local district's decisions under Phase 3 of the academic bankruptcy law.

"The Floyd County Board of Education has a custom, policy and tradition of intimidating, punishing and retaliating against employees who speak out on issues of public concern," the suit reads. "Specifically, the defendants, Ronald Hager, Mary Hall and the Floyd County Board of Education, target employees who actively support school board candidates that oppose them. The political allies of Ronald Hager are known as the so-called 'Hager Connection'."

Patton is seeking reinstatement with back pay and lost benefits, punitive damages against Hager and Hall of $1 million each, a jury trial, attorney's fees and compensatory damages.

kitchen. No official estimates of damage were available Tuesday, but Delores Dingus of the county judge-executive's office said county work crews will have "a lot of overtime this pay period." Crews have been at work primarily in the western part of the county.

Monday, crews were busy clearing mud from KY 404, the David road, and cleaning clogged drain ditches. Since the weekend, they have worked on Conley Fork of Spurlock Creek, apparently the hardest hit section. By Tuesday, crews had replaced four bridges at Conley Fork, with more to go.

At the Sally Compton residence on Conley Fork, water came to the front porch. "I've never seen it come that far in such a short time," said Compton's daughter Maudie Slone.

The rapid water, Slone said, picked up her brother's Toyota truck and "took it out of the yard," finally depositing it in a tree. Slone said the truck was destroyed. Other vehicles in the yard were damaged.

Slone also said that her sister's mobile home was moved slightly by the impact of the water, which also washed away everything that was stored under the dwelling.

"It was pretty scary," Slone said. "It seemed like we were in the center of the storm."

County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo said damages in that one area amounted to "probably $30,000."

Damage to family gardens was also extensive. Jim Anderson, a Spurlock resident noted for his crops of huge pumpkins, said half of this year's pumpkin crop was ruined.

As the flowers in the valley and atop the mountains spread their fragrance in the air and their beauty across the land. I see you in the mist, as the mist starts to rise I see all the beauty that you have through your body and soul, I see the twinkle, the love in your eyes. I know God made you from the mold of a rose. You were like a flower spreading beauty throughout our lives.

Whenever I see a flower in bloom, I'll know you are near. The rose I find in the deepest valley, the rose at the top of a mountain, the rose of our hearts, for your beauty and love we will treasure forever.

Thank God for all the flowers, thank God for our rose. One of the most beautiful creations of all. Thank you for Scott, the flower of our lives.

Love always and forever.
Sadly missed by mom, dad, brother, sister and Granny.

Correction

Due to incorrect information given to the Times, in Mary Grace Allen's obituary, Wednesday, Aug. 16, the name of one of her sons was misspelled. The correct spelling is Taggett Dean Allen. Also, she is survived by 20 grandchildren instead of the 19 stated.

Correction

Insurance

the bill three months later from the hospital's collection agency.

Checking into the situation, she found that the insurance company had refused to pay its share of the hospital bill because it had not been informed in advance of her admission.

"We found out that the hospital or the patient has to inform the insurance company," said the secretary, who wished not to be identified. "Everyone agreed that I was in no condition to inform them when I went into labor."

Consequently, she said, hospital officials agreed they should have notified the insurance carrier and forgave the carrier's share of the bill. Still, the secretary was left with about $600 to pay to the hospital, which she is now doing on an installment basis.

The secretary is also typical of many other working persons in the area in another way. Her employer pays the premium for insurance coverage on her and gives her the option to pay for coverage of her family.

However, her family remains uninsured, she said, because to pay for their coverage "would take about a third of my pay check." She said she "hopes" no one in the family gets sick or becomes injured.

Ironically, persons who don't work are better off to some extent. For those at the lowest end of the income scale, state and federal programs kick in with medical expenses.

According to Linda Allen, case worker specialist with the local office of Kentucky Department of Social Insurance, persons who make below certain income levels, whether working or on state assistance, are eligible for state medical cards, or Medicaid. The medical card assures that these persons receive normal medical care.

To be eligible for the state-assisted medical coverage, Allen said, a household of two persons must have a monthly income of $267 or less. In a family of seven with an income of less than $567 per month, each member is covered. For each additional family member over seven, $60 may be added to the permissible income, she said.

But even Medicaid has restrictions. According to HRMC's Yeager, state aid typically pays for no more than a 14-day stay in the hospital at one stretch. He cites a recent case in which a patient was hospitalized for more than 30 days, racking up a bill of some $45,000 beyond what the state medical card would cover. Cases such as this, he said, "usually end up as charity," with the hospital having to absorb the cost.

There is one source of help for the uninsured employee — the Floyd County Health Department, which offers a sliding fee scale in which charges to the client are based on his or her income and size of family.

"It used to be that we thought in terms of people who were indigent, overall," says Jane Bond, the department's health educator. "Now we have people who work but are medically indigent."

Services of the department, however, are primarily of a preventive nature, she said, which leaves out those people who have illnesses that require more intense medical treatment.

The department, for instance, provides immunizations for children from across the county. It also provides a variety of tests, ranging from blood pressure monitoring to chest-rays for suspected tuberculosis patients.

Children up to age seven are treated through the state's Well Child Program.

Probably the department's most comprehensive program is the Pre-Natal Program which offers regular monitoring of pregnant women and, where necessary, covers the cost of delivery. Generally the program covers women who are not insured, but don't qualify for Medicaid, Bond said.

"The basis of the Pre-Natal Program," she said, "is to assist those couples who work at the grocery store or the service station, earn minimum wages and are not insured by their employers, the people who are trying to do something with their lives, but need help."

Yet, overall, for persons who cannot afford the cost of medical insurance and who are not covered by their employers, health remains a lottery game. Can they win another day without contracting an illness or sustaining an injury that will require hospitalization? Or will the risk prove too costly?

Next week: Is there a solution?

Recycling Day

Christian Academy, off Route 80 in Martin — that will be set up from 10 a.m. to 1 p.m. KFTC members will be available to help at each site. Clean and sorted recyclables will be greatly appreciated.

"We need to make sure lids are removed from glass and plastic (milk jugs and 2-liter bottles) and they are rinsed," said KFTC member David Schmidt. "Aluminum cans and aluminum foil should be separated, and newspapers should be neatly bundled," he added. Schmidt has been collecting recyclables at Mountain Christian Academy from students and employees, and transporting them to major recycling redemption centers.

"Any profits (from taking the recyclables) could keep the program going," said KFTC Steering Committee Representative Betty May, as KFTC members and others in the community continue to examine the long-term benefits this drive could have.

In a related area, County Attorney David Barber is continuing to oversee the work of about a dozen prisoners who travel the county each week, cleaning roadsides and ditches.

"It's working out real well," said Barber. "It fluctuates between eight and 13 people. We're concentrating on picking up garbage on the roadside, but we've also branched out to cleaning up some of the larger cemeteries that have fallen into bad neglect problems."

Barber said the prisoners, who join the garbage detail voluntarily, have worked in most all areas of the county since the program began in April.

The workers have proven to be an added bonus for some of the county's senior citizens, as well, says Barber.

"While we're out, we're cleaning up the yards and cutting the grass for some elderly people who can't do it themselves," he said.

He called the program one of the "good, positive things" his office has done, with "results people can see and appreciate. A lot of the things we do, people never see and know about, and therefore don't appreciate as much."

"It just makes sense that when you can keep 10 to 15 people working for the price of two guards, you do that as much as possible," he continued.

"What's really discouraging is that we can clean up an area, and two weeks later, drive back through there and people have thrown out their fast food containers, beer cans and pop bottles in the same area. We could spend all our resources in one little area and never get it finished."

Cats Claw It Out: Blackcats Over Bobcats, 31-6

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

It was the opening game of the 1989 football season as the Bobcats of Betsy Layne made a visit to the home field of the Prestonsburg Blackcats. A large crowd was on hand to witness the opening contest for both schools.

"We were extremely pleased with the number of Betsy Layne fans who came to support us," Coach Gerald Newsome said of the Bobcat faithful. "Our side of the stands was almost as full as Prestonsburg."

But the large contingency was not enough to hold off the home-hungry Blackcats, as they "blitzed" the Bobcats by a score of 31-6, as freshman quarterback Aaron Tucker threw for two touchdowns and ran for another in the opening season victory.

"I don't think we were ready to play," Coach Newsome stated. "We weren't as hungry as Prestonsburg was. They just took it to us."

Both teams played to a standstill in the first quarter as neither team was capable of making it into the end zone. Betsy Layne senior tackle Dave Raczkick was injured in the first quarter. The extent of the injury was not known.

With 11:52 to go in the second stanza, Betsy Layne quarterback Craig Hunter was sacked in the end zone for a safety, to give Prestonsburg a 2-0 lead.

Prestonsburg added six more points with 8:41 to go in the second, on a 13-yard run by senior Ryan Porter (5'10", 191). The extra point failed. Prestonsburg led 8-0.

Prestonsburg's defense was too strong for the Bobcats who were unable to move the ball.

"Overall we played well," Blackcat mentor Bill Letton said. "Our defense stood out early in the game. Once we got off and rolling, there was a letdown on defense. Hopefully we can improve."

Prestonsburg's line was strong and was mixing up its defense and running traps, according to Coach Newsome.

"Our interior defensive line was all confused as to what we were trying to do," he said.

Freshman quarterback Aaron Tucker (6'1", 152) took the football in from three yards out, and Jason Storey kicked the extra point to put the Blackcats up 15-0.

Betsy Layne, after a long run, took the ball to the Prestonsburg 20-yard line, but the Blackcats' defense held, and at the half Prestonsburg held their 15-0 lead.

At the 7:39 mark of the third quarter, Tucker hit receiver senior Jeff Sloan with a 70-yard toss for another Blackcat score. Storey added the extra point to put the Blackcats up 22-0.

"Aaron did a fantastic job for his first varsity game and a season opener," Coach Letton explained. "He did not appear one bit nervous in the game."

"We had a young cornerback in the game," Newsome said, "and he sort of got confused who to pick up. We had to play some kids out of position after Raczkick got hurt. We did a lot of things wrong and Prestonsburg capitalized on them."

With 4:51 remaining in the third period, Prestonsburg had the ball on the three-yard line, but the Bobcats' defense held the Blackcats at bay to prevent another score.

"Our kids took a lot of pride in the goal line stand," the Betsy Layne coach said. "Of course we're not down, the kids are not down. We got beat on the big plays."

It was 24-0 after the Bobcats were caught for another safety. Tucker closed out the Blackcats' scoring with a toss to senior Mike Crace (5'11", 150), who took the ball in from 20 yards. Storey kicked his third extra point to make the score 31-0.

With time running out in the game, senior halfback Larry Hall (6'1", 180) took the ball 78 yards for the lone Betsy Layne score. The extra point failed.

Prestonsburg will go up against Tates Creek this Friday night on the road. The Creekers were hit hard by graduation this past spring, but Coach Letton is not taking anything for granted.

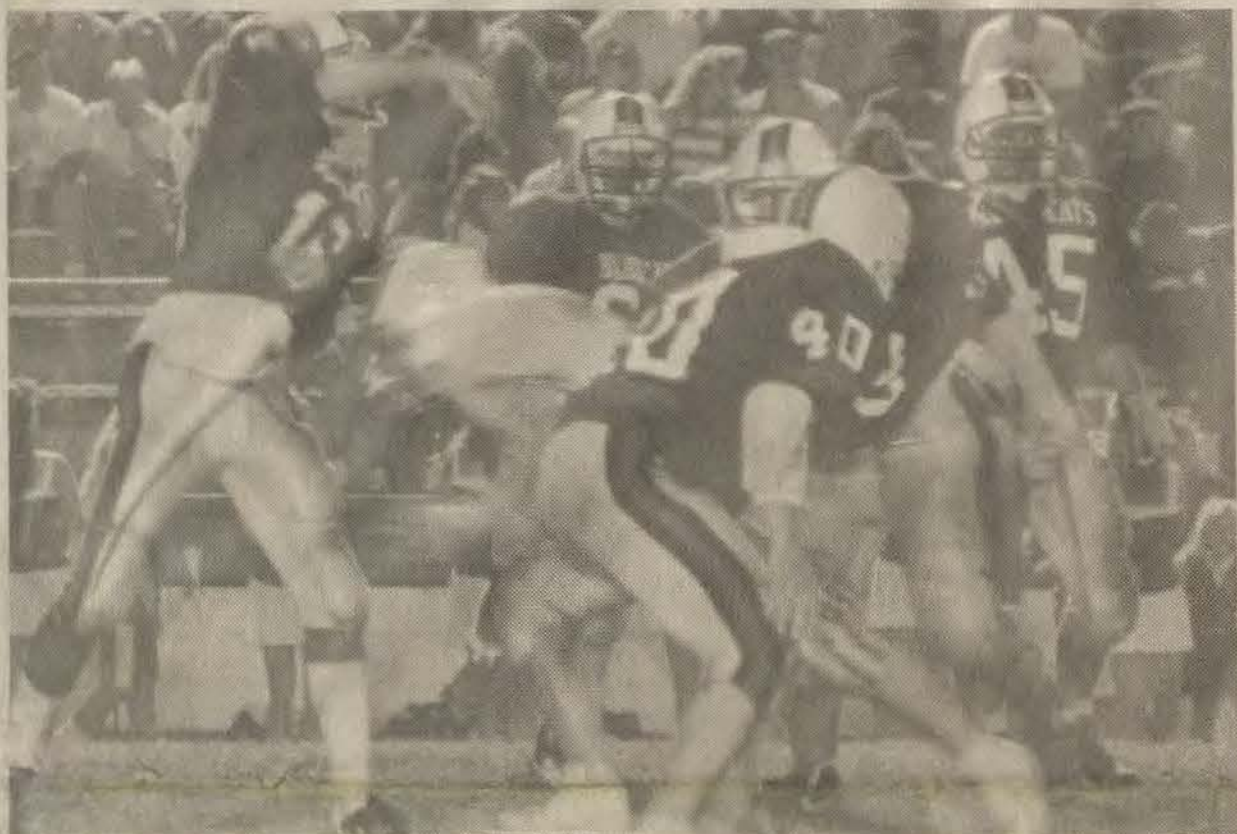

"They got beaten last night (Friday night) in their home opener, and they will still be looking for their first win when we go in there. They could be dangerous because of their first loss. They will be pressed to get a win. Tates Creek will be out to show the fans they are a good football team in spite of losing their backfield from last season, especially Allen James.

"We still need some depth on offense and defense," he said. "We need more people to play on both lines."

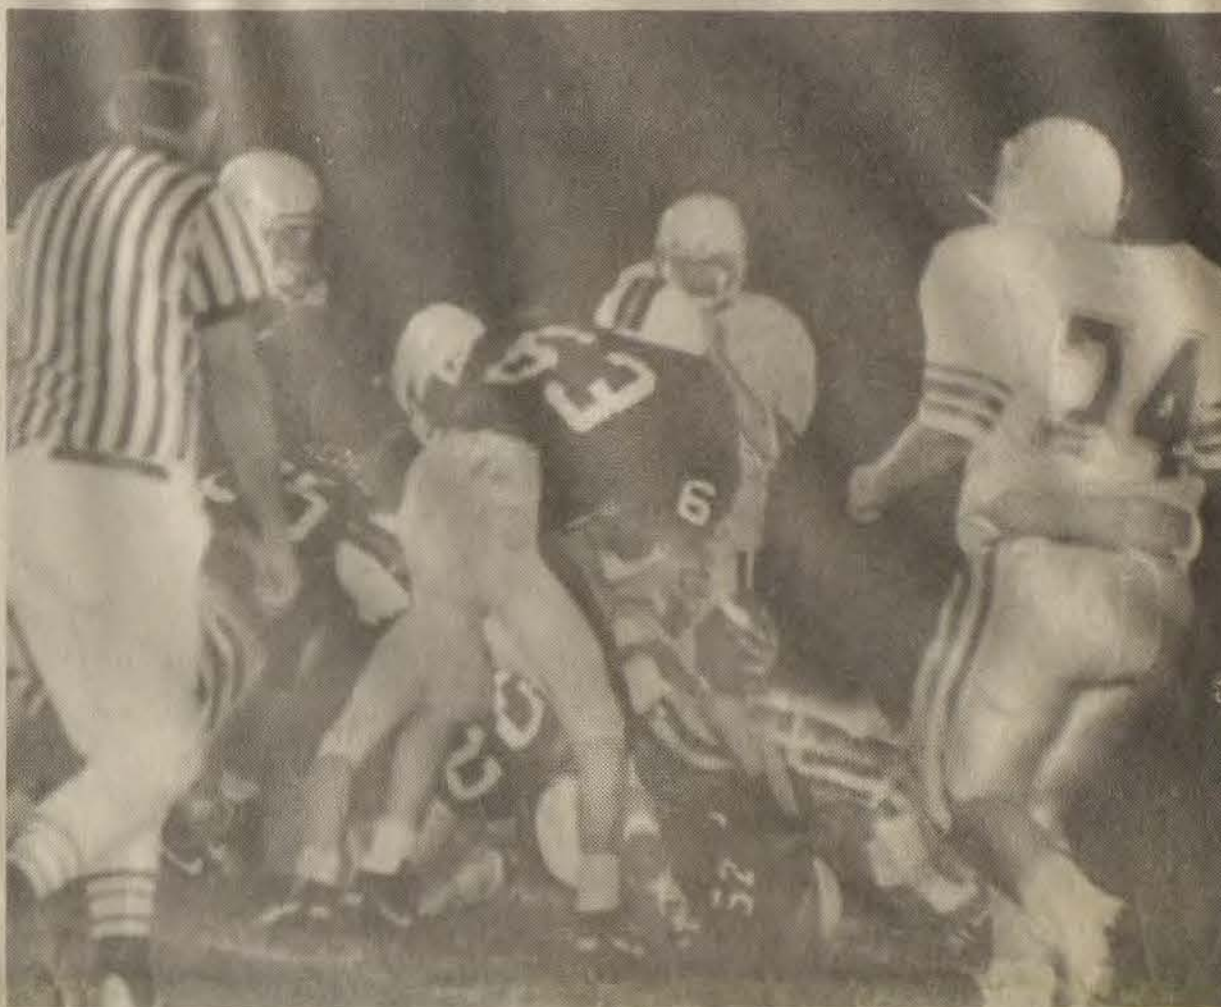

Betsy Layne will play host to Magoffin County this Friday night. "Magoffin County is the same kind of team that Prestonsburg is," Newsome remarked. "We will use the Prestonsburg game to prepare for the Hornets. I believe our players will be fired up in their first home game. I look for Magoffin County to run the wishbone against us. Our players need to develop a 'can't happen again' attitude."

Prestonsburg goes 1-0, and Betsy Layne is 0-1.

Touchdown Pass

Blackcat quarterback, freshman Aaron Tucker, tosses to Jeff Sloane on this pass for a touchdown. Tucker tossed to Mike Crace and took the ball cross the goal line for two other TDs. The Blackcats defeated the Bobcats, 31-6.

Pile Up

A pile up occurred on this play between the Betsy Layne Bobcats and Prestonsburg Blackcats last Friday night at Prestonsburg as the Bobcats made a goal line stand. Prestonsburg won the game, 31-6.

Elkhorn City Rolls Past Wheelwright Trojans, 16-0

by Ed Taylor,
Sports Editor

Coach Roger Johnson's Wheelwright Trojans defensive team showed up, but the offense was slowed down by the Elkhorn City Cougars, as the Trojans fell to the visitors 16-0 Friday night.

"I thought our defense was as about as well played as we expected it to be," Johnson said. "We held off three or four goal line stands of Elkhorn City's. We were blaming our offense linemen at first, until we saw the tape."

The Trojans were guilty of fumbling the football five times and had a crucial pass intercepted in the first period.

"We had a good first series in the first quarter," the Trojan mentor said. "I think had we scored on that drive, we would have never looked back. The loss of James Branham (5'9", 160) will hurt us. He was a big clog in there for us at linebacker."

Branham pulled some ligaments and will be out two to three weeks.

Wheelwright received the ball first on the kick off as senior halfback Chad Hall (6', 175) took the kick off at the Trojan 18 and moved to the 22-yard line. Hall ran the ball on three consecutive carries up to the Trojans' 32 for a first down. Junior quarterback Steven Johnson hit Hall with a pass for a gain of 14 yards.

Sophomore Steven Jackson (5'6", 148) and Mike Justice (5'7", 180) junior fullback, ran the ball to the 46-yard line of the Cougars. Johnson found Jackson for a 29-yard completion, and Hall carried the ball to the Elkhorn City 10-yard line, where it looked like the Trojans were about to hit pay dirt.

Cougar guard Kevin Coleman picked off a Johnson pass on the four-yard line as Elkhorn City took possession, thus ending the Trojans' march of 68-yards.

Neither team was able to score in the first quarter. The Trojans had the football on their own 17-yard line with 9:10 to go in the second period. On a hand off from Johnson to Bobby Hood, Hood fumbled the ball and recovered for a five-yard loss. On a second and 15, Wheelwright was called for a delay of game and penalized five yards, placing the ball almost on their goal line.

When Johnson attempted to throw his way out of the end zone, Cougar cornerback Kevin Hunt intercepted a Johnson pass on the Trojan 17. The Cougars moved the ball to the Trojans' one when Mike Aragon took the ball across for a TD. Mitchell Potter converted the extra point to give Elkhorn City a 7-0 lead.

Elkhorn City took a 14-0 lead on a touchdown by Ricky Reed in the third stanza. Potter kicked the extra point for the Cougars.

Wheelwright was unable to get its offense going, and the rains made the field that much harder to run on.

"We'll bounce back," stated Johnson. "We'll be all right."

Elkhorn City picked up a safety in the fourth quarter to make the final score 16-0.

Jackson unofficially rushed for 76 yards while Hall ran for 58.

Wheelwright will travel to Fairview this Friday night for an important district game at 8 p.m.

Fairview played at Magoffin County last Friday night and lost to the Hornets 48-0.

"They'll run a wishbone on us and blitz a lot on defense," Johnson predicted. "We were disappointed in our specialty team. We let them get outside and they made some big yardage on the punt returns. That won't happen again."

Johnson To Jackson

Wheelwright quarterback Steven Johnson (2) goes to halfback Steven Jackson (24) for a 12-yard run against the Cougars of Elkhorn City. The Trojans lost, 16-0.

Forward Motion

Steven Johnson (2), of Wheelwright shuffles off a forward pass to Steven Jackson (24) against the Elkhorn City Cougars last Friday night at Bracket Field. The Trojans dropped the contest 16-0, regardless of a good defensive effort by the Trojans.

Ballard, Sloughs Waterfowl Hunting Regulations Listed

Waterfowl hunting regulations for the Ballard and Sloughs wildlife management areas were set by the Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission Aug. 14 in Frankfort.

Goose hunting on the Ballard Wildlife Management Area in Ballard County will begin Dec. 12 and continue through Jan. 31 or until the quota for the Ballard Reporting Area is reached, whichever comes first. Duck hunting will open Dec. 13 and run through Jan. 7.

On the Sloughs Wildlife Management Area in Henderson and Union counties, hunting will be allowed on the Crenshaw and Duncan tracts for only four days each week.

Season dates, bag limits and other regulations will correspond with those of the western waterfowl zone, except that hunting must cease at 2 p.m. Regulations on the other tracts of this wildlife area remain essentially unchanged from last year.

Hunters must apply in advance to hunt at Ballard and on the Crenshaw and Duncan tracts at Sloughs.

Applications forms are available by writing the Department of Fish and Wildlife, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. Completed forms must be received by Sept. 30.

Keying The Defense

Wheelwright keys their defense on Elkhorn City's ball carrier Ruben Hylton (77) in the season opener for both schools at Wheelwright. The Cougars tripped the Trojans 16-0.

Sack The Quarterback

Cougar tackle, Shannon Thompson (54), goes after Trojan quarterback, Steven Johnson, in last Friday night's season opener for both teams. The Elkhorn City won over the home team Trojans 16-0.

Sports Flashback

A Look At Yesteryear

JUNE 2, 1949

High School coaches were mourning the "passing" of star athletes in Floyd County with the graduation of players.

But Coach Denzil Halbert of Martin High, for one, is so well fortified with reserves he is smiling bravely through the tears while others are lamenting loud and long, with prospects for the coming season dim.

Hardest hit was Wheelwright's Maroons, Prestonsburg's Blackcats and the Auxier Hornets. Wheelwright lost six basketball players, B. Hall, V. Hall, J. Curry, V. Osborne, W. Johnson and H. Davis, leaving Coach Adrian Hall the task of rebuilding around big R. Curry, regular center during the past season.

Prestonsburg, a team which never got going last year after losing a flock of stars at the 1948 commencement, loses these players from their basketball, football and baseball teams: Gene Boyd, Paul Harmon, Quentin Allen, Jesse Wright, Charles Durham, Bill Harvey Howard, Gene and Joe Spears, Joe Stanley, Charles and Martin Burchett. The four first named played basketball.

Maytown Wildcats lost all-Floyd forward Wendell Jones, Ross Cooley, a regular guard, and Jess Boyd, sharp-shooting forward. McDowell will have to comb the nearby woods to find replacements for "Wild" Bill Stumbo whose play was of such high caliber he has been selected by Western's Ed Diddle for the Kentucky-Indiana All-Star game, and for Bobby Turner, a high scoring guard whose last-second set shots from far out staved off defeat for his team on several occasions.

Martin's Purple Flash saw the departure last week of Elmer and Charles Lafferty from the basketball and football teams, and Vance Porter Jr., a member of the school's fine pitching staff, but Coach Halbert is deep in reserves and doesn't have too much grieving to do. Coming back next year are Doug Lafferty, all-Floyd center, Bob Taylor, "Squirt" McCarty, Pete Grigsby, Bert Campbell, and others.

Five of Auxier's nine graduates were members of the Hornets' net team. Loss of these — Ernest Honeycutt, Bobby Curnutte, Wilbur Hager, Ursa Wilcox and Alfred Wilson, has coach Herschell Martin faced with the job of pulling not one but several out of the hat if he's to figure in next year's basketball campaign.

The Wayland Wasps, like Prestonsburg, lost material in all three sports, but not in large numbers. Players for whom replacements will be sought are R.L. Connors, Jack Spradlin, Joe Hopper and Buford Slone.

Loss of Richard W. Davis, elongated center, Donald Meade and Herschel Conn affects Betsy Layne, but Coach Ted Akers still has three sophomores who range from an even six feet to six feet three, and some other stellar performers. In the same fortunate position is Coach Claude Frady of Garrett, who lost two stars in Jack Patrick and Claude Bolen, but who has Mullins, Duff, Slone coming back.

Where's The Ball?

What seems to be missing in this photo is the football. Trojan quarterback Steven Johnson (2), has the ball as he rolls out behind Mike Justice (10) against the Cougars of Elkhorn City. The Cougars won the game, 16-0.

Notice To All Ducks: Duck! Season Scheduled Nov. 23-26

The statewide duck season will open Nov. 23 and run through Nov. 26, with the second phase from Dec. 13 through Jan. 7, according to regulations approved by Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Resources at its Aug. 14 meeting in Frankfort.

Hunters will use a conventional bag limit system again this year. The daily limit will be three ducks, with only two mallards (only one of which may be a hen), one black duck, two wood ducks, one redhead or one pintail allowed in the bag. Canvas-back ducks may not be taken.

Hunters may take 15 coots or five mergansers (only one of which may be hooded merganser), in addition to the daily duck limit.

In the Eastern Goose zone, the season will be open Nov. 23 and run through Jan. 31. In the western zone, the same dates will apply to species other than Canada geese, except that goose hunting for all species will cease if a quota for Canada geese is reached.

In the Western Goose zone, the Canada goose season opens Dec. 2 and run either through Jan. 31 or until harvest quotas are reached. The quota for the entire western zone is 31,000 Canada geese, with 20,000 of these allocated to the Ballard reporting area, 6,000 to the Henderson-Union reporting area, and 5,000 to counties associated with these reporting areas.

Fulton County will remain open to Canada goose hunting until Feb. 9 unless the Ballard Reporting zone quota is reached before that date.

Hunters may take five geese daily, with only two white-fronted geese allowed. The daily bag may also include a maximum of two Canada geese, except in the Western Goose zone where, during the January portion of the season, hunters may take three Canada geese daily.

Shooting hours for waterfowl are from one half hour before sunrise until sunset, except in the Ballard Reporting Area, where all waterfowl hunting must stop at 3 p.m. during the Canada goose season.

The boundary between the eastern and western zones runs from Fulton to Henderson along the Purchase Parkway, I-24, U.S. 641, U.S. 60 and U.S. 41.

Hunters in the entire western zone and in Lyon, Caldwell and Hopkins counties must use steel shot for all waterfowl hunting.

Bell County south of route 119 and east of route 25E will be closed to goose hunting this year, as will all of Clay County. The Boech Creek Wildlife Management Area in Clay County has been closed to all waterfowl hunting, and Paintsville Lake will be opened to waterfowl hunting during regular seasons, as will be portions of the Grayson Lake Wildlife Management Area.

Portions of Muhlenberg, Ohio, Butler, and Hopkins counties will be closed to goose hunting because of an ongoing restoration project there.

What Are We Cheering For, Anyway?

by Naomi Greer
PM Editorial Service

Maybe you thought someone just made up the names of college sports teams. Perhaps you never gave it a second thought. Where did they get the names "Tarheels" and "Boilermakers"? And what exactly is a "Hoya," anyway?

In reality, school nicknames often are steeped in tradition. The University of Alabama, for example, acquired its current name, the "Crimson Tide," when in 1907, its football team beat the odds and tied archival Auburn during a torrential down-pour. A reporter coined the phrase "Crimson Tide," because the match was played in a sea of mud.

At Purdue University, two new coaches who were dissatisfied with scrawny team members hired several husky boilermakers — workers who assemble or repair boilers — as reinforcements. The press heavily criticized the team — which went on to record a string of victories in 1889 — calling them "sluggers," "cornfield sailors," "haymakers" and, the one that stuck, "boilermakers."

At Georgetown, the traditional "Bulldog" mascot often is dropped in favor of "Hoyas." School legend has it that years ago, a Georgetown team called the "Stonewalls" was dubbed "Hoya saxa", combining Greek and Latin terms to mean "what rocks!"

One of many stories explaining the origin of "The Tarheel State," which gave the University of North Carolina-Chapel Hill athletic teams their name, dates back to the Revolutionary War. According to legend, tar was dumped into what is now the Tar River to inhibit British troops from crossing. When the troops did reach the other side, their feet were black, leading them to believe that anyone crossing a North Carolina river would end up with tar heels.

Similarly, the Oklahoma "Sooners" team name dates back to early settlement of that region. According to legend, some individuals "cheated," coming out early to stake their claims and thus were dubbed "Sooners."

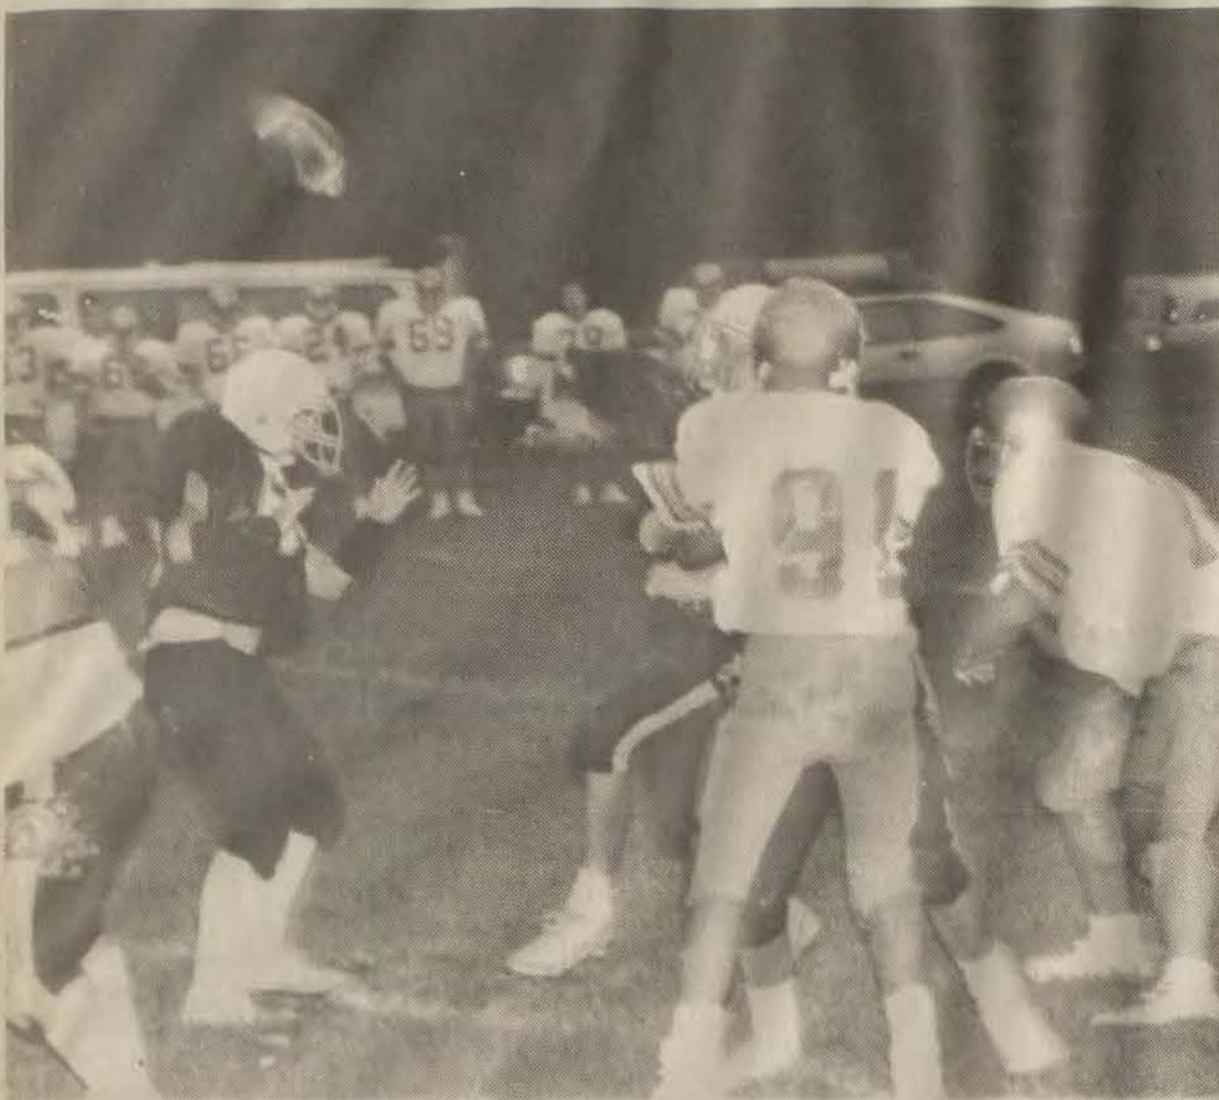

One of the more widely accepted theories behind the origin of the Indiana University "Hoosiers" dates back to 1825, when contractor Samuel Hoosier began working on the Louisville and Portland (Ohio Falls) Canal. Hoosier preferred the "better diggers" from the Indians' side of the river, and when the "Hoosier" men dispersed, they carried that name back home.

While most teams have origins that are difficult to pinpoint, others have obvious names. Syracuse University officially adopted orange as the color for all its athletic teams in 1890. Originally called the Indians, Syracuse teams eventually became known as the "Orangemen."

In the West, many teams boast names from the animal kingdom, including the Washington Huskies, the Texas Longhorns, the Oregon State Beavers, the UCLA Bruins and the University of California-Santa Cruz Banana Slugs — the Banana Slugs?

According to Athletic Director Dan Wood, the choice of "Banana Slug" as the official school mascot at UC-Santa Cruz reflected the students' desire that their sports program remain "as amateur and as pure as possible."

"It was counterrevolutionary underdog symbol," Wood said. "The only way you could get hurt by a banana slug is by stepping on it and falling on your butt."

Corrections

In last week's Floyd County Times, under the picture "Frazier Signs With UK", we reported that Frazier was the son of former Floyd Countian Fran Francis. The line should have read "the son of former Floyd Countian, Fran Frazier."

We reported last week, in a story on the old Elkhorn baseball league, that W.C. Cooley was hired in at Inland Steel at a starting wage of $10.25 an hour. The correct wage should have been $10.25 a shift.

The Times regrets the errors and any inconvenience they may have caused.

Quarterback Hand Off

Wheelwright Trojan quarterback Steven Johnson (2), fakes a hand off to running back Chad Hall, as the Trojans fell to the Elkhorn City Cougars, 16-0.

County Fish & Game Club Fish Fry Sept. 3

Floyd County Fish and Game Club president Jerry Bailey announces that the local club, located on Johns Branch, will hold its annual fish fry on Sunday, Sept. 3.

The fish fry will begin about 8 a.m., and last until 4:30 p.m., he said.

"We're going to have a lot of things to do and a lot of things going on," Bailey added. Games and contests will include horseshoes, bait casting, B.B. shoot, coon drag and a pony ride. The club will be giving away a shotgun and rifle at the Labor Day event. The Floyd County club will also fry fish.

Plans have also been made for members to place wood duck boxes in left and right Beaver Creek. They also lease out the club buildings for receptions, reunions and other activities.

"We also take donation of toys for Toys for Tots," Bailey stated.

For further information on the Floyd County Fish and Game Club, or using the club house for any activities, contact Bailey at 358-4416.

Learning Hunting Safety

The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Department recently sponsored a hunter's education course at the Floyd County Fish and Game Club on Johns Branch. Here, instructor Zadis Tackett gives some pointers to would-be hunter Ivan Stanfield of Dry Creek.

Dove Season Opens Sept. 1; Few Changes

With the exception of calendar date changes, the 1989 dove season remains unchanged from last year when the number of hunting days were reduced, but bag and possession limits increased.

The three-phase season offers 60 hunting days with hunters allowed to take 15 birds per day. The possession limit is 30.

The first two segments of dove season are Sept. 1-30 and Oct. 7-30. Shooting hours are from 11 a.m. to sunset for both periods.

The third phase of the split season runs Dec. 1-6, when shooting hours are sunrise to sunset.

Officials remind hunters that hunting any migratory game bird over baited areas is illegal. Normal agricultural practices do not constitute baiting.

Illegal baiting involves placing grains, salt or other items to lure game birds within shooting range. An area remains baited for 10 days following the removal of all attracting substances.

For more information on illegal baiting, contact the state conservation officer in Floyd County, or request the pamphlet, "Illegal Baiting For Doves," by contacting the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Public Relations,

#1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601, or call (502) 564-4336.

September Duck Hunting
Waterfowl hunters may take wood ducks only during the early duck season, Sept. 6-10. Bag and possession limits remain unchanged from last year.

Hunters may harvest two wood ducks per day; the possession limit is four. Shooting hours are from sunrise to sunset.

Catfish, it is said, are America's bread and butter fish. Even though most anglers pursue these whiskered denizens of the deep in a casual, Huck Finn, cane pole tradition, some chase their quarry with all of the enthusiasm of the most devoted bass fisherman.

These anglers, America's catfish fanatics, know that there is no better time to hunt their bowhiskered quarry than after the sun has played its final hand of the day. For when the sun has set and shadows rule the land, the catfish is king of the watery underworld.

These experts also know that the easiest way to obtain enough catfish fillets for Sunday's afternoon family gathering is to use some type of multi-hooked fishing system which does not require the angler's constant attention.

Historically, trotlining has been widely regarded as the most productive catfishing technique in existence. Basically, a long, heavy line is stretched from bank to bank across a stream or buoyed in a reservoir. Shorter lines of about 18 inches are then attached to this main line at intervals of about 36 inches. Depending on the length of the main line, trotlines are usually fitted with 15 to 25 hooks which are baited at sundown and then left for the night.

In the spring of the year, the most productive trotline sets are normally in creeks, while main lake/river locations are better in the summer and fall. All things considered, the single most productive location for a lake-set trotline is on some type of structure adjacent to the inundated river or creek channel. You will catch more cats with a set in the shallows on the high side of the channel. But a trotline set at the base of a drop into the river channel will typically produce the largest fish.

While many commercial catfish anglers swear that trotlining is the world's most productive technique, one group of anglers takes quiet exception to the statement. Their favorite angling method also is an absentee technique involving the use of scores of hooks. It is called the limblining, and it is a deadly, though seldom practiced, catfishing strategy. For the most part, limblining is a extraordinarily simple technique. Basically, anglers suspend a hook from a small, green limb overhanging the river/lake edge so that it dangles just under the surface. The hook is then baited with a live baitfish of some sort. Three- to 4-inch creek chubs are most popular when seeking large numbers of catfish, but baitfish like 6- to 8-inch chubs, 10- to 12-inch suckers or carp and 4- to 8-inch catfish and mudtoms are used when hunting giant cats.

Once set, the baitfish swims on the surface, attracting the attention of the hungry predators ambling beneath. And when a catfish hits a limblined baitfish, chances are great that you will be able to put that fish into the boat. The live, green limb or twig to which the line is tied provides a tremendous amount of give. Thus, the fish has nothing to pull against, nor does it have enough space to wrap the line around some obstruction and pull free.

One of the keys to successful limblining is proper placement of the rig. Normally, the bait is presented on the surface in water 4- to 6-feet deep, and never more than 10-feet deep. In deeper water, the catfish cruising the bottom will never notice the struggles of the baitfish above it. Increased limblining catches are had when the rig is placed just above or below a deeper pool rather than along a half-mile stretch of shallow water. (The cats hold in the deeper pool by day and venture into the shallows at night to feed.) Too, the best success is had when the bait is placed in the vicinity of some underwater structure. Undercut banks, rocky overhangs, hollow logs and brush piles are prime targets.

For anglers in the know, the sight of a small twig dancing over the surface of the water is a sure sign of catfishing success.

While some anglers prefer to hang their hooks from a taut line or a wispy tree limb, other catfish experts suspend theirs beneath a floating jug. Jug fishing is not only loads of fun, it is extraordinarily effective for anglers skilled in the technique. The reason for this uncanny productivity is that no other catfishing technique so easily covers so much water with so many hooks.

Jug fishing is a simple technique consisting of no more than a few plastic jugs, each fitted with a length of twine and a hook. Though some anglers prefer jugs as large as gallon milk jugs or empty antifreeze containers, quart-sized motor oil jugs are nearly ideal. The length of line between jug and hook is the critical factor here, dependent upon the depth at which the fish are holding or feeding.

Throughout the year, catfish move from their daylight, deepwater holding areas to nearby shallow water feeding grounds at night. Thus, for lake-bound cats, prime jug fishing areas include flats off creek and river channels and points, while river-bound fish are more likely found in the shallows just above or below a deep pool. When jug fishing these spots, the baited hook should be positioned about a foot above the stream or lake bottom.

For the most part, jug fishing consists of baiting the hooks, dropping the jugs overboard, and then locating them again several hours later. Most often, lake anglers release the jugs in the back of a creek and collect them as they reach the lake. In streams, simply release the jugs above a set of riffles and then run downstream and wait for them to drift down to the boat. Of course, the missing jugs most often have fish on them...and the hunt begins! Catfish, when hooked on a jug line, tend to move into shallow water where they can rest without the floating jug tugging on them.

Next time you get a craving for a meal of fresh, Southern fried catfish fillets, try one of these absentee fishing techniques. Chances are good that a single night of fishing will fill your freezer! Good Fishing!

Father-Son Teams Competing Regularly In Bass Tournaments

A new generation of bass tournament fishermen is quietly making plans to push out some of the established stars of the sport — and the chances are they'll do it, too.

But don't look for it to happen right away.

"This is his first professional tournament and he still has a lot to learn, but I will say he did out-fish me on the last day of practice," laughed Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff member Denny Brauer, during a recent national tournament on Alabama's Lake Guntersville in which his son Chad also competed.

"I've had him in the boat fishing with me since he was in diapers. I thought he'd get burned out because he's been around it so long, but he's become very competitive, and he's an excellent bass fisherman."

Benny Brauer isn't the only pro who's competing against his son these days. Johnson Outboards Pro Staff member Guido Hibdon, winner of the 1988 BASS Masters Classic, has been fishing with his son Dion since 1985. Last year was particularly exciting, since Dion also qualified for the Classic.

"We compare notes periodically during the day on the water," says Guido, "and at night we share our secrets. We compete against each other, but we're also each other's biggest fan. If I can't win, I want him to, and he feels the same way."

Evinrude Pro Staff member Bo

Dowden, winner of the 1980 BASS Masters Classic, was also joined by his son Willis, 17, at the recent Lake Guntersville event.

"This is his first tournament, too," explained Bo, "and he's just here to learn. He caught his first bass when he was three, and now he wants to fish tournaments."

"The biggest problem we're having here," laughed the Evinrude pro, "is that he keeps robbing my tackle box."

Johnson Outboards Pro Staffers Ricky Green and Randy Dearman have also been joined by their sons, Ricky Jr. and Slade.

"Ricky's becoming a good bass fisherman," said the elder Green, "and I'm proud of him. The hardest transition a young angler must make in fishing tournaments is a mental one. You need to learn to react faster to changing conditions, as well as deal with the constant pressure of competition."

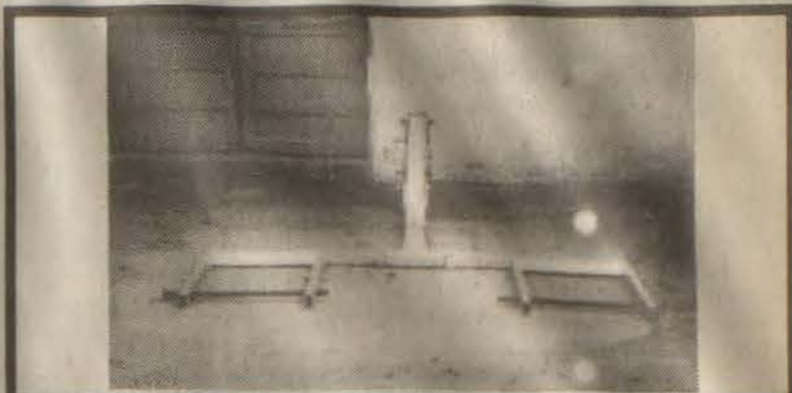

"A lot of fishermen have the same mechanical abilities," Green continued, "but they never learn to think in terms of competitive fishing. Experience is what teaches this, and it's very gratifying for me as a father to see my son beginning to develop it."

Fellow Johnson pro Randy Dearman echoes Green's thoughts. "Of course, you think about how your son is coping during the day, and you worry a little if the conditions are bad," he said. "You can't help but feel proud, though, when you see him step up to the weigh-in stand with a bag of fish."

Newsome, Valera Win Memorial Golf Tournament

A low gross score of 68 made Jimmy Newsome of Pikeville the winner of the second annual Blackburn Memorial at Green Meadows Country Club in Pikeville. Lin Valera of Pikeville shot an 83 to take the low gross award in the ladies division.

Newsome and Valera were joined by 95 other golfers who entered the tournament for $75 each, with all proceeds donated to the scholarship fund at Pikeville College. Low net scores of 65 were registered by Leslie Combs and Phil Blake, both of Pikeville.

The tournament was hosted by two brothers, PGA golfers Woody and Mike Blackburn, in memory of their parents, Clyde and Kathryn Blackburn, formerly of Betsy Layne.

"Many individuals deserve recognition for making this tournament a success," said the Blackburns. "Luther Minor of the Green Meadows Pro Shop did a great job of coordinating the event. Coal-Mac, Inc. provided lunch for all participants and many local physicians and businessmen responded to a request by Walter May to underwrite the cost of the dinner."

"This tournament is growing each year and the generosity of all these individuals results in more dollars being available for students in need," stated Pikeville College President William H. Owens. "It is my pleasure to thank everyone who participated."

Riding The Rapids: Better Than Walking

by Tess A. Whitmer
Staff Writer

Members of the Big Sandy Hiking Club recently decided to give their feet a rest and take to the water. This summer, they challenged the white water of the Lower Gauley River in West Virginia.

They left for the trip on a Saturday afternoon and arrived in time to set up camp and cook dinner over the fire. Several other members stayed at nearby hotels or lodges, but a few outdoor-types decided to sleep in the woods, according to Tom Geis, club co-coordinator.

On Sunday the Gauley River, located in central West Virginia near Anstead, was at nine feet above normal level due to heavy rains, and the group was almost not permitted to ride the rapids. But a few hours later two rafts, carrying eight passengers/paddlers and a guide each, embarked for a four hour "ride of a lifetime."

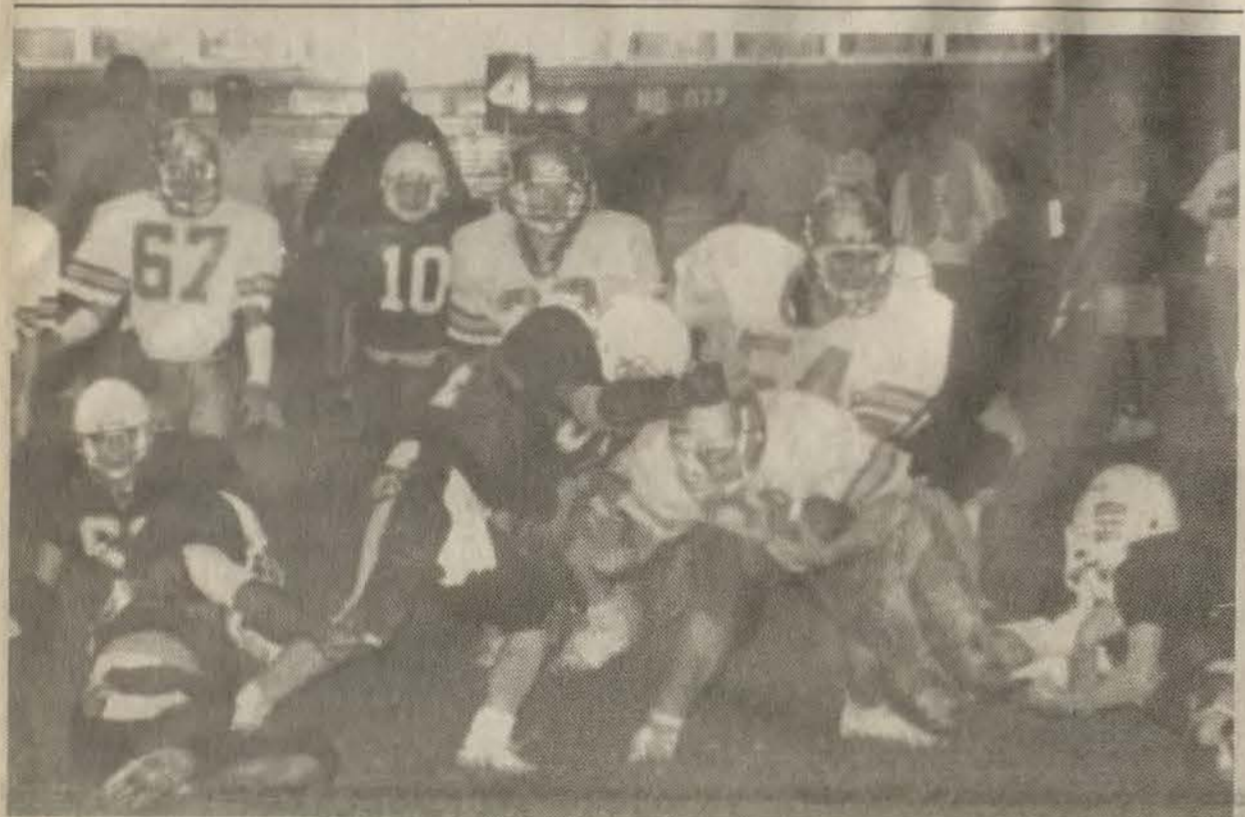

"I've never done anything like this before and was quite nervous about the whole thing," remarked Bob Looney. "Now I know I've found my calling in life. I'll definitely be back to do this again, soon."

Returning to the raft rental place by bus, that trip being almost as frightening as the river trip, as remarked on by a member of the group, the river riders were served refreshments and given the opportunity to purchase T-shirts and photographs, which were taken by professional photographers during the trip.

All members back safely, the group decided that the trip was well worth the distance traveled and merited another excursion, this time to the New River. Anyone interested in attending such events or hiking trips to such places as Natural Bridge, Carter Caves and The Breaks can contact Brenda Music or Tom Geis at Prestonsburg Community College, 886-3863. Trips will begin again this fall.

Coming Home Is Martin Homecoming Theme

by Pam Shingler,
Assistant Editor

It doesn't exist anymore, but that doesn't stop alumni of Martin High School from getting together and talking about 'time was.'

"After we're gone, no one will remember Martin High School," says Delores Dingus, probably the school's number one fan and a member of the committee that's planning the Labor Day weekend bash for all graduates of defunct Martin High.

That's why Dingus, MHS class of 1956, is determined that the memories will last as long as possible. Next week's all-day program will be the second such all-classes gathering, although individual classes have met over the years.

The committee is expecting even more than the 800 registrants who turned up for the 1986 reunion. "We're expecting them from Florida, Ohio, Michigan, Indiana, California," Dingus rattles off the list. "We even have someone registered from Nome, Alaska."

Dingus and the rest of the committee hopes that someone from each of the old high school's graduating classes, from 1926 until 1972, will be there.

She added that businesses will be decorated, as will the streets. "There will be purple all over that town," she said, referring to the school's primary color and its athletic team designation as the Purple Flash.

The festivities, all set at what is now Martin Elementary School, open on Friday, Sept. 1, with a reception at 4 p.m. to honor all of the school's former principals and coaches. Late registration and "mingling" start at 10 a.m. Saturday, with lunch in the school cafeteria at noon.

1950s theme. For the occasion, the committee has managed to reunite one of the area's most popular bands of that era, the Blue Notes.

The festivities, all set at what is now Martin Elementary School, open on Friday, Sept. 1, with a reception at 4 p.m. to honor all of the school's former principals and coaches. Late registration and "mingling" start at 10 a.m. Saturday, with lunch in the school cafeteria at noon.

"Welcome Home Ceremonies" begin at 1:30 p.m., with Dale McKinney, class of 1963 and owner of radio station WMDJ in Martin, as the master of ceremonies. Invocation will be by Bill Hughes, grade school principal and member of the class of 1948. Roy Ratliff, class of '45, will follow with the formal welcome, and Eunice "Sis" Flanery Hall, class of '53, will present a memories segment.

The highlight of the afternoon program will be the honoring of Denzil "Hoss" Halbert, longtime Purple Flash basketball coach. Former assistant coach Jack Hutchinson, class of '48, will lead the tribute.

Attorney Jim Hammond, class of '62, will then present reunion awards in categories such as favorite male teacher, favorite female teacher, best decorated window and alumnus who traveled the farthest. Closing out the afternoon ceremonies will be the benediction by former star athlete Arthur Smith Jr., class of '55.

Class reunions, in groups of five, are scheduled for 3 p.m. Saturday. The "joint will jump" later that evening with a dance, built around a

The group, comprised of mostly Martin graduates, includes Randall Stith on saxophone, Dickie Campbell on drums, Troy Calhoun on guitar, Ron Wright on keyboard and Mike Howell, sitting in on bass. During the 1950s and '60s, they played to audiences throughout the area.

Dingus, a former Martin cheerleader and pianist for the Blue Notes, gets most excited when talking about the dance. "We'll have purple arches and a replica of the Big Y Drive In, and we'll have '57 Chevys around, along with murals of dancers," she said, adding that participants are expected to dress "in your favorite memories of the '50s."

She said she still has her original cheerleading sweater and has found an old cheerleading skirt. She's now frantically trying to find a pair of authentic saddle oxford shoes.

During the activity, she said visitors will be able to view a videotape of the school's past. Walter Clyde Dingus, class of '56, has videotaped the graduating class from each of the school's yearbooks and has added footage from past class reunions, she said. To add to the nostalgia, Dingus said the committee will have available screened prints of the high school building and tapes of the school's last band, which includes a rendition of the school song, "Loyal and True."

The reunion will culminate Sunday afternoon with a picnic at 1 p.m. at Allen Park.

Dingus said the idea for the all-class reunion originated with the late Phyllis Mayo. "Several of us were perennial guests at all of the individual class reunions, whether ours or not. One day Phyllis suggested we have one for all classes," Dingus said. "When she died, several of us were at the funeral home and we decided to follow through on her idea."

The first general reunion in 1986 materialized, and the planners decid to repeat it every three years.

Other members of the planning committee are Hubert Frye, '50; Jackie Osborne, '54; James "Demp" Allen, '55; Walter Clyde Dingus; Eugene Rodney Hutchinson, '56; Glenda Mayo Frye, '57; Freda Collins Calhoun, '58; James Maryland Osborne, '58; Charles "Crush" Dingus, '59; William "Bud" Reynolds III, '65; Nora "Tish" Clark Boyd, '67.

The Fitzpatrick-Harmon House

First In A Series

National Register of Historic Places: Court Street Home Designated 'Historic'

One of the oldest houses in Prestonsburg is among the 12 local sites recently entered in the National Register of Historic Places.

Referred to as the Fitzpatrick-Harmon House, it is located at 102 East Court St.

The two-story house is believed to have been built about 1890 by H.H. Fitzpatrick in a style popular at that time. The original part of the house consisted of two rooms downstairs and two rooms upstairs — what is now the rectangular section that faces the street. A kitchen jutted from the back of the original building, giving the house an L-shape.

Fitzpatrick is believed to have sold the house in 1898 to James Spradlin, who sold it six years later to David O. and Catherine Harmon, whose heirs still occupy the dwelling.

Living there today are four generations of Harmon descendants: the Harmon's daughter, 91-year-old Anna Stumbo; her daughter and son-in-law, Kathryn and Chalmer Frazier; the Frazier's daughter, Elizabeth, and their granddaughter, Lynn.

The two-story rear section was added about 1904. Since that time, the house has been altered little — a criterion for inclusion in the National Register — except for the replacement of the front porch after the original was damaged in the 1957 flood.

Mrs. Stumbo, whose father was a teacher and principal of Prestonsburg Grade School, remembers when her mother kept boarders in the large house. Members of "guarded" grand juries stayed there and were charged 30 cents per meal, she recalls.

According to a report by David L. Morgan, director of the Kentucky Heritage Council, "The Fitzpatrick-Harmon House exemplifies a house type popular in Prestonsburg during the mid-to-late nineteenth century... it retains considerable historic fabric and remains the city's finest surviving example of Victorian-era vernacular architecture."

Morgan, who is also the state preservation officer, added that the house is "the property best representing the formative era in the city's development (c. 1817-1899)."

The Fitzpatrick-Harmon House is one of six houses included in the recent National Register designation. Also added to the register were the First United Methodist Church, Harkins Law Office, Town Branch and West Prestonsburg bridges, post office building and the Front Street Historic District.

Criteria for selection to the register include consideration of architectural, archaeological, historic or cultural significance and the maintenance of the original appearance. According to the Kentucky Heritage Council, listing on the National Register provides recognition of the importance of the property and some protection against encroachment by federally funded projects.

The National Register is a part of the US Department of Interior's National Park Service.

Arts Council Sets Area Meeting

The Kentucky Arts Council is taking the "Arts to the Counties," and the public is invited to take part in the meetings.

For this region, Hindman is the setting. On Thursday, Sept. 14, registration will begin at 6:30 p.m. and the business meeting at 7 p.m. at the Hindman Settlement School at the Forks of Troublesome Creek.

"The council is taking arts to the counties to provide opportunities for citizens to discuss ways we can work together to ensure access to the arts for all people in Kentucky. We want to hear from community leaders, educators, artists, arts organizations and Kentucky citizens who encourage and appreciate the arts," said Laneita Thurman, commissioner and chair of the council.

Also to be discussed is whether the goals developed in the 1986 regional forums meet individuals needs. Those goals are:

- Recognize and encourage the rich cultural diversity of our people by providing for equitable distribution of the Commonwealth's cultural resources to individuals and groups representative of that diversity;

- Guarantee the right of Kentucky residents to equal access to cultural organizations, activities and programs supported by public dollars;

- Provide opportunities for and vigilantly protect the freedom of artistic expression;

- Aggressively promote the right and opportunity for every child to an arts education;

- Challenge Kentuckians to attain the highest standards of quality in the development, execution and presentation of artistic expression;

- Provide the promotion, encouragement and assistance to artists and arts organizations that will enable professional artists to live, create and thrive within the state;

- Establish clear, open procedures for the creation of public cultural policy that will reflect the cultural needs and goals of the people and which will encourage broad and equitable public participation in the process of debating and promulgating that policy.

Boredom is a habit that creeps into the lunch box almost before we're aware of it. That affects a lot of people since today's lifestyle finds packed lunches not only on their way to school, but to the office as well. With a few fresh ideas, aided with a dash of imagination, any man or woman can make lunches that travel well.

The mainstay of the lunch box — sandwiches — can vary every day because there are so many different kinds to choose from or create. Cheese is an ingredient that lends itself well to fillings, making them nutritious and tasty. Cheesewiches use cheddar, carrot, peanuts and raisins held together with dairy sour cream. Another recipe combines cheddar with summer sausage and seasonal fruits. Applesauce adds a surprise taste to shredded Swiss with peanut butter.

Lunchtime dessert can be a yummy bar made with the all-time favorite ingredients for desserts: chocolate and nuts. Fresh fruits are also wonderful items to take a long. Choose those that are in season for the best buy.

Add fun to the lunch by putting in a surprise ingredient if packing the box for someone else. A cartoon, a special note, a favorite piece of candy or gum will do for starters. One surprise, plus the reaction, will help you think of others to follow.

CHEESE SAUSAGE SANDWICHES

3 ozs. thinly sliced summer sausage
1 cup (4 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese
1 tsp fresh lemon juice
1 tsp Worcestershire sauce
1/4 tsp paprika
1/8 tsp garlic powder
1/3 cup dairy sour cream
8 slices white bread, buttered
Lettuce

Shred sausage in blender or chop finely by hand. Combine sausage, cheese, lemon juice, Worcestershire sauce, paprika and garlic powder. Fold in sour cream. Arrange lettuce on 4 slices of bread. Divide sandwich mixture evenly on remaining 4 slices of bread. Close one slice of each together.

Makes four sandwiches.

CHEESEWICHES

1/2 cup (2 oz.) shredded cheddar cheese.

1/4 cup shredded carrots
1 Tbsp chopped peanuts
1 Tbsp chopped raisins
1/4 cup dairy sour cream
4 slices whole wheat bread, buttered
Lettuce

Combine cheese, carrots, peanuts, raisins and sour cream. Arrange lettuce on 2 slices of bread. Divide sandwich mixture evenly on remaining 2 slices of bread. Close one slice of each together. Makes 2 sandwiches.

SWISS-PEANUT BUTTER SANDWICH

1/2 cup (2 oz.) shredded Swiss cheese, at room temperature
1/4 cup chunk-style peanut butter
2 Tbsps applesauce
1/8 tsp nutmeg
4 slices white bread, buttered
Lettuce

Combine cheese, peanut butter, applesauce and nutmeg. Arrange lettuce on 2 slices of bread. Divide sandwich mixture evenly on other 2 slices of bread. Close one slice of each together.

CHOCOLATE NUT BARS

1 cup (2 sticks) butter
1 cup firmly packed light brown sugar
1 egg
1 tsp vanilla extract
2 cups all-purpose flour
1/4 tsp salt
1 cup (6-oz package) semi-sweet chocolate pieces
3/4 cup chopped nuts

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Cream butter; gradually add sugar and beat until light and fluffy. Beat in egg and vanilla. Mix flour and salt; gradually add to creamed mixture. Spread evenly in buttered 13 x 9-inch pan. Bake 20 to 25 minutes. Remove from oven and sprinkle with chocolate pieces; allow to melt. Spread chocolate evenly over top; sprinkle with nuts. Cool in pan on wire rack; cut into bars. Yields 32.

Those deli salads are tempting shortcuts when in a hurry to get a meal on the table. But it's simple to create some deli magic at home, economically and more in tune with your family's tastes.

These two entree salads are easy to prepare and combine some favorite everyday and special occasion foods with good-for-you dairy products. Each recipe has only a few ingredients and simple preparation steps.

Pronto Pasta Salad, as the name implies, can be prepared in short order. It is a warm salad which can be rounded out into a meal with the addition of crisp bread sticks or toasted garlic bread, fresh fruit and a beverage.

When inviting a group of friends over for lunch, Quick 'N' Easy Chicken Salad is a good choice. Serve the salad in miniature pastry shells — the kind found in the frozen case — or on split croissants.

PRONTO PASTA SALAD

1 cup dairy sour cream
1/2 cup grated Parmesan cheese
1 Tbsp dry Italian salad dressing mix
3 Tbsps butter
4 cups: combination of fresh broccoli flowerettes, strips of red pepper, sliced zucchini, sliced fresh mushrooms.
8 ozs. uncooked fettucine noodles

Combine sour cream, cheese and salad dressing mix; set aside. Melt butter in a large skillet. Sauté vegetables until tender crisp, about 5 to 7 minutes. Drain, add noodles to skillet with vegetables. Stir in sour cream mixture. Toss gently over low heat until well combined and heated through. Serve immediately. Serves four.

QUICK 'N' EASY CHICKEN SALAD

1 cup dairy sour cream
1 package (about 3/8 oz.) instant onion soup mix
2 cups cooked, cubed chicken
2 cups cooked broccoli flowerettes
1 cup chopped walnuts
8 small pastry shells, prepared or frozen and baked (or 4 large pastry shells)

Unsalted sunflower seeds, if desired
Combine sour cream and dry soup; mix well. Combine chicken, broccoli and walnuts; mix well. Stir in sour cream mixture. Chill, covered, 1 to 2 hours to allow flavors to develop. Fill each small pastry shell with about 1/2 cup of chicken salad. Garnish with unsalted sunflower seeds.

LOCAL CHURCH WOMEN MEET

The Local Church Women met Friday, Aug. 18 at 10:30 a.m. at the First Presbyterian Church, Prestonsburg. In the absence of Marian Masters, president, Eva Collins, first vice-president presided. The Rev. Quentin Scholtz, pastor for the First United Methodist church, led the group in the opening prayer. The Rev. Tim Jessen, pastor of the host church, gave the invocation, which was followed by the serving of refreshments by the women of the church.

The major part of discussion during the meeting centered on the future of the Loaves and Fishes Food Pantry, which was sponsored for a few years by the Local Church Women and the Prestonsburg Ministerial Association. Tibbs, Whitaker Exchange Wedding Vows

Mr. And Mrs. Tony Whitaker

Anna Marie Tibbs and Tony Randall Whitaker were united in marriage Saturday, April 22, in a garden ceremony at the Whitaker home at Boldman. The double ring ceremony was solemnized by the groom's father, Elder Michael Whitaker of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Guy W. Tibbs of Columbus, Ohio. Her paternal grandparents are the late Luthur and Earlene Tibbs of Betsy Layne, and her maternal grandparents are Francis Wilson and the late Nelson Wilson of Columbus, Ohio.

The groom is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Michael Whitaker of Boldman. His paternal grandfather is the late Thurman Whitaker and his maternal grandmother is the late Pearl Campbell.

Nuptial music was provided by Billie Jean Osborne. Sheila Justice, cousin of the bride, presided at the guest register. Guests were ushered to their seats by Jeff Ratliff and Roger Dale Caudill. The wedding was directed by Sandy Cole Tackett.

The bride was escorted by her father across a white arched bridge to a southern style gazebo decorated with peach carnations and greenery.

The bride wore a floor-length gown of white satin and Venice lace, lavishly trimmed with iridescent sequins and pearls. The dress featured a Queen Anne neckline, Elizabethan sleeves and full skirt layered with Chantilly lace ruffles that extended to a chapel-length train. The bride wore a white satin hat, trimmed with Venice lace and accentuated with iridescent sequins, bugle beads and pearls. A French netting pouf and streamer were attached with an illusion bow. The bride carried a bouquet, surrounded by French Alencon lace and filled with white silk roses and satin star flowers accented with pearl filaments.

The groom was suited in a silver tail tuxedo from the Dynasty Collection and wore a white rose on the lapel.

Acting as maid-of-honor was Katie

Tibbs, sister of the bride. Bridesmaids were Jennifer Tibbs, sister of the bride, and Cindy Rasor. All wore tea-length dresses of peach crocheted lace.

The flower girls were Jennifer and Gloria Campbell, cousins of the groom. Both wore floor-length dresses of white moire taffeta with peach satin bows to accent a dropped waist.

Dennis Williams served as best man and the groomsmen were Keith Slone and Rusty Rowe. The rings were presented by Dustin Elswick, cousin of the groom. All wore gray tuxedos from the Dynasty Collection.

The bride's mother chose a longsleeved dress of soft periwinkle blue. The groom's mother wore a petal-hemmed peach dress accented with rhinestones and a cascading bow.

When the couple was introduced as Mr. and Mrs. Tony Randall Whitaker, helium filled peach balloons were released into the sky.

A garden reception was held immediately following the ceremony and featured a three-tiered cake topped with a gazebo, trimmed in peach satin, resembling the one the ceremony was performed in.

The couple spent their honeymoon at Disney World in Orlando, Fla., and now reside at Boldman.

Drama premieres Sunday on HBO

By Candace Havens

Forty-three million dollars is a lot of money. That was the first weekend's gross for the hit film Batman, starring Michael Keaton. And to think that Hollywood and Batman fans were horrified when Keaton was cast as the caped crusader.

Michael Keaton stars as a drug addict who slowly reforms in Clean and Sober, Sunday on HBO.

Now most of those critics say Keaton was perfect for the part. In actuality, Keaton himself didn't really know if he could play Batman: "I looked at the script and said, 'No way could I do this film.'" But he did, and it was a hit. Keaton almost made the mistake of saying no to another film that has brought him great critical acclaim, Clean and Sober. That film premieres Sunday, Aug. 27, on HBO.

Throughout his career, Keaton had made some bad decisions, taking roles in Gung Ho, Johnny Dangerously and The Squeeze, and had just recently gotten things back on track with his wonderful performance in Beetlejuice. Keaton was scared of taking on such a dramatic part as Clean and Sober.

"When I read the script for Clean and Sober, I thought: What is redeemable about this guy (Daryl Poynter)? I couldn't think of any reason why people would pay to go see this guy," Keaton said.

Things changed when Keaton accidentally bumped into Bruce Willis, who was also interested in the part of Poynter, at a bar. Willis told Keaton he would be crazy not to try for the part.

The fact is, Clean and Sober is not a pretty movie. It is a hard movie about cold, hard, sobering facts.

Poynter's first dose of reality comes when he wakes up next to a girl he hardly knows and finds out she has had a cocaine-induced heart attack. The police tell Poynter to stick around, and he loses it. He decides that he must run away. The problem is, even though he stole $90,000 from his real estate firm, he still doesn't have any money. He also owes his favorite drug dealer a few thousand dollars.

When he hears a radio ad for an addiction treatment center that promises complete anonymity, he decides it might just be the place to hide.

In the beginning, Poynter is belligerent with the staff and other patients. Even as he goes through the pain of detoxification he can't admit that he really has a problem.

Toward the end of Poynter's rehabilitation we start to see some of the wild paranoia leave his eyes, and the nasal quality begins to leave his voice.

When he is released from the program he is deluged with guilt from all the pain he has caused to everyone around him.

The film moves quickly and you actually become involved in the journey of self-discovery of Daryl Poynter, due to Keaton's superb performance.

Books & Things:

Diseases, Nutrition & Health: What's The Connection?

by Trisha A. Morris
PCCLibrarian

Keeping the body healthy can be an obsession, a necessity or something you never thought about. The following books from the Prestonsburg Community College Library will alert you to symptoms, tell you about ways to stay healthy and perhaps help you avoid illness.

The History of Scurvy and Vitamin C, by Kenneth J. Carpenter. With the exception of famine, scurvy is probably the nutritional deficiency disease that has caused the most human suffering in recorded history. Scurvy plagued sailors on long ocean voyages and broke out whenever groups of people had to be supplied from a considerable distance, as in the California gold rush, the American Civil War and Arctic expeditions. It also appeared as a "disease of affluence" in the 1880s among infants receiving proprietary foods as substitutes for breast-feeding.

In this book, Professor Carpenter surveys the long and fascinating history of the theories about the cause of this strange disease and illustrates how the changing ideas about scurvy reflected the central scientific and medical beliefs of the times.

Written for the non-specialist, it will be of interest to the general reader as well as historian and scientist.

Depression After Childbirth, by Katharina Dalton. For 50 percent of women, postnatal depression is a horrifying reality which hits them at a time when they most need their strength and enthusiasm to cope with a new baby. At best it is a mild attack of "baby blues," at worst it leads to mental illness (which can last for up to 20 years) and, occasionally, suicide.

In this book, Dr. Dalton attempts to dispel the common belief that it is a combination of sleeplessness, lack of outside contacts and loss of independence that causes a woman to feel depressed after the birth of her baby, and that she could easily return to normal if she would only "pull herself together." Using many case histories to emphasize her point, Dr. Dalton argues that a cure will only be achieved when postnatal depression is recognized for what it is—a hormonal change that occurs in woman's body after childbirth.

For anyone concerned with postnatal depression, this book will give a greater understanding and help sufferers to recognize their own symptoms and seek correct treatment.

Arthritis, by Sheldon Blau and Dodi Schultz. What is arthritis? A twinge relieved by a dose of patent medicine? A curse of old age? An ailment that can be warded off by copper bracelets or mega-vitamins?

On the contrary, the many forms of chronic arthritis afflict some 50 million Americans — but are fully understood by few. Now, in clear, common-sense language, an authority on arthritis and a medical writer explore past and present fantasies, explain the facts of causes and treatments (revealing the risks, as well), explore fascinating future paths promised by current research and offer explicit hints for the arthritis sufferer on such oft-ignored topics as coping with household chores — and with profound problems posed by human relationships.

Dr. Blau and Ms. Schultz paint, in full detail, the picture of chronic arthritis — our nation's third-ranking cause of disability.

Kidney Disease, by Stewart Cameron. Kidneys do not rank high in popular discussion of body organs, but if they stop working wedie and if they become blocked we hurt—a lot. So, instead of being embarrassed, we should be informed about the organ that so marvelously regulates our bodily fluid.

This book attempts to explain what healthy kidneys do and the effect of what infected kidneys fail to do. It discusses kidney stones, high blood pressure and the kidney, inherited kidney disease, Bright's disease, dialysis and kidney transplants.

Written in layman's language and filled with instructional diagrams, the text can be easily understood while still being informative and accurate.

Osteoporosis, by Wendy Smith. Claiming more than 200,000 victims each year, osteoporosis affects half of all women over 45. This disabling and potentially fatal condition is the primary cause of dowager's hump and hip and wrist fractures in older women.

There is no cure for osteoporosis — only treatment and prevention. This concise guide will help you identify and eliminate habits that may increase your susceptibility to the disease and show you how to build up your bones through a combination of diet and exercise.

It includes a meal plan, illustrated exercise program, and pros and cons of estrogen therapy, along with the details of new experimental treatment.

The Rutgers Guide to Lowering Your Cholesterol, by Hans Fisher. We all know something about cholesterol, and we all worry about it. The link between it and heart disease — the single greatest cause of death in America — grows clearer every year. But knowing we should do something is never as good as knowing exactly what to do. This book tells, in clear, easy-to-understand language, exactly what cholesterol is, why it deserves its reputation as a contributory cause of heart attacks and strokes, how it interacts with other foods and fats in our diet, and who among our population needs to worry about it.

The guide includes a collection of tasty, low-cholesterol, low-sodium recipes, a shopping list for low-cholesterol foods, hints for healthy substitutes, charts of cholesterol contents of common foods and lists of foods you should emphasize and foods you should avoid.

The Lifelong Nutrition Guide, by Brian L. Morgan. With all the fad diets around, it's easy to lose sight of the bottom line — well-balanced, nutritious eating habits. Written by a professional, The Lifelong Nutrition Guide presents the facts you need to personally design a diet tailored to your specific needs.

It includes advice on vitamins and minerals, nutrition after cooking; vegetarianism, heart disease, risks of sugar, caffeine, cigarettes and stress, and infant nutrition, natural versus bottle-feeding.

Easy to read and understand, the book is designed to help you make decisions for your individual lifestyle.

Brown, Tuttle United In Marriage June 10 At Paintsville

Mr. and Mrs. Mark Tuttle

Wendy Leigh Brown, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Vernon Brown of Thelma, and Mark Anthony Tuttle, son of Mr. and Mrs. Cornelius Tuttle of Auxier, were married Saturday, June 10 at the Southside Freewill Baptist Church of Paintsville. The Rev. Larry O' Bryan of Union officiated the double-ring ceremony.

The bride, escorted by her father and given in marriage by her family, wore a gown of white satin. The fitted basque bodice was designed with a

V-neckline, complemented with long tapered sleeves and frosted with Venice lace. The gown had an open keyhole back and was draped with strands of pearls. It had a semi-cathedral length train. She chose a V-shaped crown of pearls with a pouf and double tier veil of illusion. She carried a cascading bouquet consisting of peach carnations and gladiolus intertwined with aqua mist ivy.

The maid-of-honor was Sharon Hall of Williamsport, a friend of the bride. Bridesmaids were Leisha Stone of Thelma and Greta Williams of Wittensville, friends of the bride. The junior bridesmaid was Beth Brown of Thelma, sister of the bride. The flower girl was Erica Tuttle of East Point, niece of the groom. They wore satin aqua mist gowns with floor-length hemlines. The gowns had sweetheart necklines, basque waists with lace trim on the sleeves and bustles with candy-box bows on the back. They carried a hand bouquet with flowers matching those of the bride.

The best man was Marvin Tuttle of East Point, brother of the groom. Groomsmen were Ron Diddle and Jeff Scott of Lexington, friends of the groom. The junior groomsman was Nathan Spradlin of Denver, cousin of the groom. The ring bearer was Chris Stambaugh of Oil Springs, cousin of the bride. They wore charcoal-gray tuxedos with white boutonnières.

Veronica Hayes of Thelma, cousin of the bride, greeted the guests at the register. Following the ceremony a reception was held in the church social hall.

The bride is a 1987 graduate of Johnson Central High School and attended Prestonsburg Community College. She is employed by First National Bank of Paintsville.

The groom is a 1987 graduate of Prestonsburg High School and attended Prestonsburg Community College. He is employed by Kentucky State Department of Transportation. The couple resides in Paintsville.

Mr. and Mrs. John Burchett

The Springboro, Ohio, Christian Church provided the setting for a summer wedding uniting Julie Michelle Belcher and John Michael Burchett in matrimony.

A program of music was presented by Annette and Lisa Allen, cousins of the bride. They sang solos and provided traditional wedding music. Photographer for the occasion was Roger Belcher, uncle of the bride.

The bride, escorted by her father, wore a full length satin gown accented with hand beading and sequins, with a high lace collar and long tapering sleeves. Her headpiece was covered with lace, sequins and drop pearl beads. She carried a bouquet of fresh flowers intertwined with white ribbons, ivy and baby's breath.

Highlands Folk Festival To Get Underway Sept. 7

The 24th Annual Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival will begin Thursday, Sept. 7 at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park, with activities continuing through Sunday, Sept. 10.

"This is a festival with unlimited growth potential," said festival director Kathy Lowe. "It combines the best of local, regional and even nationally-known talent. We gear our activities to different age groups with special emphasis on senior citizens, youth and children. The festival contributes to the economy of the area by attracting tourism and by providing a market for the work of local artists and craftspeople."

The Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival, Inc. is a locally based non-profit organization of volunteers formed to continue the work of the late Edith Fitzpatrick James, who passed away earlier this year. She founded the festival to celebrate and preserve the mountain music and other aspects of local cultural heritage which have roots in Europe.

"We often take for granted the people and ideas we have always known," says Lowe. "As I contact people from outside the area, I am continually surprised at the widespread reputation of the Kentucky Highlands Folk Festival and the work of Mrs. James. Most of those I contact are familiar with the festival and are very anxious to participate."

The festival will open Thursday, Sept. 7, with traditional mountain music by local and area bands in the park's amphitheater at 7 p.m. The evening has been designated senior citizens' night, Lowe said, and all seniors will be admitted for $1.

The arts and crafts fair begins Friday, Sept. 8, in the amphitheater lot at noon. Also Friday, at May Lodge, the festival is host to an Appalachian Writer's Workshop for high school students, conducted by Appalfoiks of America. Friday at 6 p.m., the Appalfoiks staff will give a poetry reading at the amphitheater, followed by a program of traditional mountain music at 7 p.m.

The arts and crafts fair continues on Saturday. Also Saturday, Appalfoiks of America will conduct an open workshop for adults at May Lodge, and workshops and exhibitions will continue throughout the day. A children's fun fair will also be held.

At 4 p.m. Saturday in the amphitheater, a program of dance will begin, and be followed by more traditional mountain music at 7 p.m.

The arts and crafts fair continues on Sunday, at 10 a.m., and the festival will close at 5 p.m. in the amphitheater with religious music.

Most activities are free. For more information about the festival, call 886-1497.

Dark Clouds

You broke my heart when you went away—
Now I face sadness with each new day,
The sun disappeared behind a cloud.
Now my world is draped in a dark shroud.

The days seem so long and "oh so sad—"
You were the dearest friend I ever had,
The Spring has no meaning as the flowers began to grow—
I feel so alone because I miss you so.

I sit and pine as I think of you—
And I wonder each day if you think of me too.
I'll remember our love when we were young and gay
I will always wonder why you went away.

I will carry your memory safe in my heart,
And wonder why we had to part.
Though things did not happen as we had planned
We may meet again in another land.

Fire, Fire Fire

Shoot that black coal down
put the load on the belt line.
Outside she'll fall to the ground and meet the sweet old sunshine.

somebody yell 'Fire, Fire, Fire'

I'm doing what my daddy done working where there's no sun.
About all I ever did know working this lonesome punch hole.

Shoot the black coal down
somebody yell 'Fire, Fire, Fire'

Some day the roof may fall
Yes Lord, I'm ready for the call.
Some nights I just kneel and pray for one more sunshine day.

Somebody yell 'Fire, Fire, Fire.'

Fifteen years working low coal makes a young man feel mighty old.
But you know some hot summer day, about noon, I'll just walk away.

Shot the black coal down
Somebody yell 'Fire, Fire, Fire.'

Every Time You Come Around

Every time you come around I tell my heart not to let you in.

But every time you come around I fall in love all over again.

I tell myself to be strong enough to tell you no.

But every time I try my heart won't let you go.

Whenever you need some one to talk to you always turn to me.

Whenever I need some to talk to it's you I never see.

I've learned that you only need me whenever you feel alone.

So the next time you come around you'll find that weak part of me will be gone.

A Simple Man

(Golden Poets Award winner in 1985)

A simple man, he wore plain clothes
In his old age he sat under the apple tree,
And whittled with his best friend,
An old case knife.
That he'd owned for forty years.
He loved to talk with all who passed by his way.
He wore a bill cap on his head,
And thought about day gone by
When he talked about his mother,
A tear came to his eyes.
When he talked about his mother,
A tear came to his eyes.
When he meditated on life,
He pondered to question— Why?
He tried many vocations in life.
A stone cutter by trade was he,
And for a time he dug coal.
Seventeen years he worked in the state highway, Never making more money, than enough to get by.
I remember his sunburned hands and arms,
His weather beaten face and neck,
Skin that looked like leather—
Just a plain and simple man,
As he sat under the apple tree,
While watching the cars and world,
As they passed him by.

Cold and Lonely Night

I find myself wishing that if you had known,
Instead I didn't tell you and now you're gone.

Wishing that you were here to hold me tight.
Wishing that you were near on this cold and lonely night.

I care so much for you, that it scares me inside.
I can't seem to concentrate on anyone else,
only you, you're always on my mind.

I wish I could've told you how I felt and how, that since you've been gone, it feels as if a part of me has left.

I have all these fears inside of me.
Sometimes I find myself thinking of how I've always dreamt it could be.

If only you were here on this cold and lonely night.
I could tell you how I've always felt and you could hold me tight.

Encounter

Tonight I met this stranger,
His name I did not ask,
But he told me of my future
And drew a picture of my past.

He knew my darkest secrets
And he said he knew my heart,
He told me if I'd take the first step
Then a new life for me would start.

I told him there was no hope for me
And tears fell from his eyes.
He said 'you mean it was all for nothing,
The Saviour that has died.'

Somehow I got this feeling
That he had suffered so himself.
This pity trip I was having
I started feeling for someone else.

I put down my whiskey
And I listened to what he said.
I noticed signs of torture
From the scars of his head.

He said I've seen the sadness
And souls that seem so lost,
But if they felt the torture that he went through
As he hung upon that cross...

And had they seen the mother weeping
As they crucified her son,
And yet he gave them hope
For the things that were to come.

I know about this painful world
But with pain there should be hope.
Knowing what He's planned ahead
Gives us strength to cope.

But please, before I leave you Think of all you could do.
Tell others of hope above
When they're feeling down like you.

And as he reached his hands to me,
I felt comfort deep inside
And then I saw his nail scared hands
The tears fell from his eyes

I felt this need to kneel and pray
At that time it seemed so right.
As I arose it felt so strange,
For he had vanished from my sight.

Oh, yes, I will remember him,
And my love for him will grow.
For he gave to me my new life,
And he threw away the old.

More People Leaving State Than Moving In

Some 70,000 more people moved out of Kentucky between 1980 and 1986 than moved in. That trend may have serious effects on all Kentuckians, said a University of Kentucky sociologist.

"When people move to other states, Kentucky loses valuable resources. Studies have shown consistently that younger, better educated and more skilled people are more likely to move," said Tom Ilvento, a demographer with UK College of Agriculture.

The loss of the younger and better educated residents may thwart future growth in the state, he said. A critical mass of young, talented leaders is needed if the state is to develop. Kentucky needs to build and maintain its state and local leadership.

Why are people moving out? Ilvento speculates that unemployment and underemployment may be responsible for the decline.

"People may be leaving Kentucky because of the depressed economies in many counties. Unemployment estimates for Kentucky continue to be 2 to 3 percent higher than for the U.S. Furthermore, many Kentuckians are underemployed," Ilvento said.

Not all counties in Kentucky had more people move out than move in, he said. Forty-five counties had more people move in than out.

"Generally, counties located in urban areas or close to urban areas had more people moving in than moving out, except for Louisville, where the trend was the opposite," Ilvento said.

Ilvento also noted that overall the population of the state increased 1.8 percent during the period, largely due to that fact that births outnumbered deaths.

Varneys Honored By Church Members

On July 30, at the close of the morning service, Maytown First Baptist Church, the church members honored Pastor and Mrs. Bob Varney for their 24th wedding anniversary.

Special Programs Chairman Libby Flanery presided. Members volunteered testimonials of love and gratitude for the couple. The Varneys will begin their 10th year of serving the church in October.

Flanery read several quotes from a 1984 letter sent by A.B. Colvin, retired director of state missions. He wrote that under Varney's leadership Maytown baptisms were then a ratio of one new convert to every five members. The figure was a ratio seven times that of the Southern Baptist Convention, and eight times the average in the state.

Near the close of the feature Marie Martin presented the Varneys with a porcelain statuette, a sculptured replica of "The Transfiguration" by Raphael, renowned artist and sculptor of the Italian Renaissance.

Church Of Christ Plans Sermons Aug. 27-Sept. 1

Members of the Church of Christ on Spurlock Creek at Printer are hosting a series of gospel sermons to be preached Sunday, Aug. 27, through Friday, Sept. 1, at 7 o'clock each evening.

Bill Mead will be the pastor for the series of meetings. Meade, born at Printer moved to Ohio as a young man, and has been preaching for 36 years.

A special Sunday service will be held at 2:30 p.m. At that time, Mead will show slides of a recent gospel tour he made of Ghana, Africa. He will also show some souvenirs.

Because the congregation supports its own works, there will be no nightly collections.

School's Open; Drive Safely

Lilla Mason, executive secretary of AAA's Foundation for Safety, stopped by last week to give Prestonsburg Police Chief Dickie Campbell a supply of posters reminding motorists to be extra careful now that school is open. Mason pointed out that children have no depth perception until they're around nine years old, and thus cannot judge distance and speed of an approaching vehicle. She also said that since children do not operate vehicles, traffic signs and rules have little meaning to them. She advised motorists to stay alert wherever youngsters walk or gather and to observe traffic laws regarding school zones. Campbell said he will post the safety posters around the city.

Cancer Hopeline

Question: My grandfather was recently diagnosed with Merkle cell carcinoma. What exactly is this? How is it treated?

Answer: Merkle cell carcinoma was first identified in 1972 and, until recently, was considered a very rare form of skin cancer. However, new high power electron microscopes have improved the ability to identify this cell type.

Merkle cells are most commonly found on the scalp, neck, face and fingertips. Like other skin cancers, Merkle cell carcinoma usually appears in areas that are exposed to the sun, but it can occur anywhere in the body. It occurs most commonly in older patients generally between the ages 50 and 90. Unlike some other skin cancers that appear as a sore that does not heal, Merkle cell cancers begin as painless lumps on the surface of the skin.

Because Merkle cell carcinoma is a relatively new diagnosis, treatment recommendations may vary. However, because of its tendency to recur, after surgical removal most doctors recommend aggressive treatment. Proper treatment includes removal of the tumor and a wide margin of healthy tissue. Because this type of cancer often spreads to the lymph nodes in the area of the tumor, removal of the affected lymph nodes may be recommended. Some studies have suggested that lesser surgery followed by radiation therapy (treatment with x-rays) may be adequate treatment for early cancer. However, definite treatment guidelines can be developed only after more patients are studied.

Sir James Paget, a nineteenth century surgeon. Paget's disease of the breast is a rare type of cancer which accounts for about 3 percent of all breast cancers. Paget's disease of the bone is the name for benign (noncancerous) disorder of the bone which often leads to deformed bones. To confuse this issue even more, this name has been given to a few other rare benign disorders, such as Paget's disease of the vulva.

Paget's disease of the bone is found most often in patients over the age of 40, and is slightly more common in males. Unlike the other rare Paget's diseases, Paget's disease of the bone is fairly common. The cause is unknown. Bones that are commonly affected are the pelvis, skull, femur (thigh), spine and tibia (shin). The bones that are affected by this disease are thickened, but are weaker than normal bone. It is this softness which causes the bones to deform. As this disease becomes more active, pain and deformity can increase and bone fractures may occur. In about 1 percent of all cases, Paget's disease of the bone can lead to cancer of the bone.

For further information on Paget's Disease or any cancer-related subject, contact the Cancer Information Service, 1-800-4-CANCER.

your TELEPHONE CONNECTION

by Art Willett
Manager - South Central Bell

Telecommunications is key to education, economic development.

A world of opportunity for growth and development awaits us in Floyd County. More and more, emerging technology promises to unite our cities and rural areas into one global economy. And the connecting highway is the telecommunications network.

We need only look at what's already being achieved in other nations. Yet, it's important to note that Americans today are being denied access to such services because of federal restrictions on the Bell telephone companies.

More than 4 million French families have computer terminals installed in their homes, hooked up through telephone lines, offering over 10,000 different information services.

In the United Kingdom, British Telecom has a videotex system connected to over 200,000 businesses and residence subscribers through telephone lines. One of the programs offered, Education 2000, uses videotex to promote education. Another service, Chat Back, is for children who have speech or other communications difficulties.

In the Canadian province of Saskatchewan, farmers can use Agritex, a service providing weather information, commodity rates, agricultural data and other information.

Similar services are also available in West Germany, Sweden, Japan and Singapore.

The United States still has the best telephone network and service in the world—in price, service and availability. And we have the technology to provide these kinds of services—and more. But other nations are pulling ahead of us.

The possibilities for yet-to-be-discovered information services in the 31st Century are staggering. It's not an overstatement to say that telecommunications has the potential for revolutionizing education and commerce.

But restrictions on the Bell telephone companies are preventing Americans from being able to take full advantage of these possibilities. Industry experts predict that thousands of U.S. jobs would be created—including many in rural areas—by lifting information services restrictions. Congress is presently considering a bill that would relax some of the restrictions, and we hope they'll carefully consider the impact.

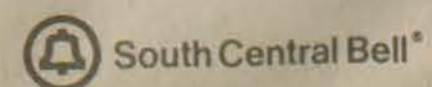

In Kentucky, our modern telecommunications network gives us an opportunity to be highly competitive with other states for new businesses and jobs. We want to keep that momentum going.

Our goal is to ensure that Kentuckians in all areas—urban and rural—have access to the latest, most modern information services available anywhere in the world. We need a public policy that allows the people of Floyd County, and throughout America, that privilege.

The Pioneers—working for a better Kentucky

Did you know that last year members of the Telephone Pioneers of America performed more than 286,000 hours of volunteer work in Kentucky? The Pioneer spirit is the embodiment of South Central Bell's dedication to making a difference in the communities we serve.

I'd like to take this opportunity to salute the Kentucky Pioneers for their tremendous hard work and dedication, to making our state a better place to live.

Legislative Perspective

by Rep. Greg Stumbo

In recent years there has been a new energy among East Kentuckians. There is an excitement and a new attitude about the positive things that can happen in the mountains. For the first time in its history I believe East Kentucky is in the forefront in exorcising many of the major ailments facing the Commonwealth.

East Kentucky communities have made an exemplary effort, in comparison to other small communities in the state, to clean up and provide safe solid waste landfills. Major changes have broadened the availability of medical services, the fine arts and shopping area. We now have animal shelters to control our strays and the tourism trade is booming.

All of these positive activities indicate that East Kentucky is seeking to shake its negative image and is charging toward the 21st Century in style.

However, before East Kentucky can obtain the equal footing with the rest of this Commonwealth that it richly deserves, at least one other major objective must be addressed. And, that is the network of four-lane highways that must be completed to open up the area to the rest of the world.

When attracting business to the area, transporting children to school or enticing tourists to visit our beauty, there must be a network of efficient roads.

In the 1960s, the Appalachian

Regional Commission mapped out a network of highways that would, in fact, open the mountain area to cross country travel. But that plan was never completed. The first major four-lane highway to open traffic to Central Kentucky came with the Mountain Parkway, making easier access to medical facilities and shopping in Lexington. It opened in 1966. But it is not yet four-laned into Prestonsburg. The two-lane highway with a pass lane still runs from Campton to Salyersville, and the extension from Salyersville to Prestonsburg and Route 23.

Although the Daniel Boone Parkway is a two-lane road with a pass lane stretching from Hazard to London running adjacent to Route 80, it was built wide and straight and was completed in the early '70s, allowing for safe, efficient auto travel.

Two key roads of critical importance to East Kentucky's chain of highways are Route 23 and Route 80. For years East Kentucky legislators have been seeking support for the completion of these important pieces of the mountain puzzle. Until approximately 15 years ago, these roads were mostly ignored by state government. Recently large sections of these highways have been four-laned and the new six-year road plan has several sections of Route 23 in Floyd County scheduled for completion by 1991 or earlier.

Floyd County projects set for construction in 1990 include new four-laning of Route 23 from Prestonsburg to Paintsville. The plan includes a new two-lane road from Bays Branch designed to extend Route 23 to Highland Memorial Hospital.

This should complete most of Route 23 in East Kentucky except for Robertson Creek in Pike County.

Route 80 is nearly completed, except for the part that parallels the Daniel Boone Parkway.

According to the road plan, the Abner Fork Bridge at Melvin will be replaced. Two other bridges, the one to Dwale and the Combs Bridge going into Prestonsburg still need to be replaced.

East Kentuckians have made impressive progress toward achieving the dream and the equal status among other areas of the state that is sought. I believe our highways are an important link to this status and I think it can be done with existing revenue sources.

Scouting Frankfort

Boy Scout Troop #870 of McDowell recently visited Frankfort. Touring the House chamber were, from left, Michael Salyer, assistant scoutmaster Randy Click, Michael Bakay, Mark Salyer, Shawn Salyer and scoutmaster Dr. Andy Elliott. The scouts also visited the National Scout Museum at Murray and Mammoth Cave during their four-day educational/fun excursion.

Floyd Students Participate In 'Destination Graduation'

"Destination Graduation" is a network of 12 colleges in southern and eastern Kentucky that provides tutoring aid for approximately 2,000 ninth graders who are identified by their schools as "at risk" of becoming dropouts.

Morehead State University, one of the institutions in the network, hosted a summer residential program designed to reward those in the program who showed tremendous progress during the past school year. Forty-eight students were given the opportunity to spend two weeks at MSU.

Several area students, sponsored by Prestonsburg Community College, participated in MSU's summer "Destination Graduation" program.

They were Tammy Barnes and Sarah Summers of Paintsville High School, and Homer Will Tackett and Dennis Crager of Wheelwright High School.

"The program emphasized learning to work in a real world environment," said Dr. Wallace Flint, MSU assistant professor of education and coordinator of the program.

Building a house, cutting lawns, gardening, housecleaning and preparing meals for the elderly were some of the projects undertaken by the students, according to Flint.

Participants were paired with MSU student counselors — who served as role models — during the two-week period. "They developed a carrying for each other, which is a strong motivator," Flint said.

The students saw how their counselors took charge of their lives and made a plan for the future by completing high school and continuing to college. "All of us know from our own lives that we were influenced by certain people who really cared," explained Flint. "We believe that this was the special magic of this program."

The main focus of the summer was building a Habitat for Humanity house, according to Flint. "This was an adult-type job and the students realized what they were doing for the family was very important," he noted.

KFTC Among Appalachian Foundation Grant Recipients

For its 1989 grant cycle, the Appalachian Community Fund, a public foundation dedicated to promoting social and economic justice in Central Appalachia, has awarded $60,000 in grants to 23 nonprofit community organizations located in the Appalachian region of Tennessee, Virginia, West Virginia and Kentucky.

The groups chosen received between $1,000 and $5,000 each to work on issues such as poverty, health care, pollution, discrimination, unemployment and community self-determination.

In Kentucky, five nonprofit community groups received $15,400, including the Prestonsburg-based Kentuckians for the Commonwealth, a grassroots, multi-issue, membership-based group promoting active citizen participation in the democratic process.

The Appalachian Community Fund supports emerging community groups involved in exciting and innovative regional projects. "The organizations chosen demonstrate quality work addressing the root causes of social and economic problems in Appalachia. We believe the work of these groups will bring about lasting social change in our Appalachian region," said Louise Howell, chair of the board of directors.

Other groups receiving grants in Kentucky are Appalshop, Inc., a community-based media center that promotes positive social change through documenting the issues, ideas and culture of Appalachia; Barwick Community Gardens Cooperative, promoting self-determination through assisting residents of Barwick to grow their own food by supplying plants, seeds, equipment and advice on gardening; Central Appalachian Peoples Federal Credit Union (Berea), providing an array of financial services to eastern Kentucky families including financial counseling, loans for business, homes and insurance coverage and the like. ACF funds will be used for staff development and training. Also receiving an ACF grant is Livingston Economics

duction work while building a worker owned business.

Founded in 1986, the Appalachian Community Fund was established to be a source of funding for community groups addressing critical social issues of powerlessness, declining living standards and inequality in Central Appalachia. "We bring new money and resources back to the Appalachian region. The money we raise comes from individuals in the region and is used to solve immediate problems and to change the systems responsible for these problems," explains Wendy Johnson, executive director.

Anyone wishing to become a donor to ACF for simply wanting more information about the program including these organizations, call or write ACF, 517 Union Avenue, Suite 206, Knoxville, TN 37902, (615) 523-5783.

The Great Depression was at its height when these Wheelwright residents lined up for "relief" in 1932. Soup kitchens and food lines were common across the country at that time.

Slone Attends Summer Media Internship Project

MARY SLONE

Mary Margaret Slone of McDowell High School was one of eight high school students from Eastern Kentucky selected to participate in Appalshop's Summer Media Internship Program in Whitesburg.

Appalshop is a nationally-recognized media arts cooperative which houses Appalshop Films, Headwaters Television, Roadside Theater, June Appal Recordings, WMMT-FM, and its own performance gallery and studio space. Since 1969, Appalshop has produced work about the Appalachian region. The work includes more than 40 documentary films, original theater productions, books, television shows and 49 record albums. Appalshop productions are seen by audiences throughout the United States and in Europe, Asia and Africa.

The Summer Media Institute is a five-week program designed to introduce Eastern Kentucky high school students to video, film and audio recording. Applications were sent to teachers throughout the region, asking them to recommend one student from their school for participation in the program. Students were chosen based on motivation, interest and leadership ability.

Jeff Hawkins, director of the institute, said, "The eight young people who were with us this year are eight of the brightest, hard-working kids I've ever dealt with. They have worked hard to learn a great deal in a relatively short period of time. I am excited to see how they develop their knowledge further as they create media in their own communities."

During their five weeks at the Appalshop Center, students attended workshops conducted by media professionals, worked in audio and video production and completed three group media projects. Those projects included a live radio call-in show which focused on the UMWA's strike against Pittston Coal in southwest Virginia, a brief video about a museum in Leslie County, and a video documentary about a Knott County craftsman.

The eight students also split into two-person teams to create media projects on topics including Eastern Kentucky's dangerous highway system, Appalshop's first 20 years, the way elderly are dealt with, and censorship in public education.

During the final phase of the institute, each of the eight students will create a media project with the assistance of other students from their high school. They will teach fellow students what they learned during their summer at Appalshop.

Slone and her sponsor, Sally S. Miller, will be working on a project tentatively titled, "A Window of Memories" at McDowell High School.

The institute was developed by Hawkins, an English and drama instructor at Whitesburg High School, and Dee Davis, executive producer of films at Appalshop. The institute, founded last year, received funds this year from the Appalachian Regional Commission and the John D. and Catherine T. MacArthur Foundation.

UNDERWEIGHT, OVERDOSED

One factor that physicians should take into account when prescribing medications is a patient's weight. In particular, when a drug is highly toxic (as in the case of cancer drugs), dosage is calculated on the basis of body weight. However, when more common drugs are prescribed, there is a tendency to overlook an elderly patient's weight. According to doctors at Harvard Medical School, elderly patients who tipped the scales at less than 110 pounds were at particular risk for receiving prescription medicines in overly high dosages. On average, these older, underweight patients received dosages that were 31 to 46 percent higher than normal. In light of these findings, elderly patients should remind their physicians of their underweight status before a prescription is written.

COOLEY APOTHECARY wants you to know that we carry a full line of health care items. If your physician prescribes medication for you or a member of your family, keep in mind that we maintain the highest standards of the pharmaceutical profession. Learn for yourself why your friends and neighbors already rely on us. Complete patient profiles are maintained to aid us in checking for possible drug interactions. It also allows us to quickly give you any information you need for income tax and insurance purposes. We are located at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3.

HINT: Age itself is a factor in how the body metabolizes most medications.

Railroad cars are lined up at the Auxier trestle in this early photo. Northeast Coal Co. began operations in 1908 at Auxier, one of the earliest mining sites in Floyd County. Many of the early miners and their families came to Auxier from mines in Johnson County. The town was named for one of the oldest families in the area.

Remodeling: Costly — Or Or Cost Effective?

Every home sometime during its life gets remodeled. The question should be "What remodeling can I do that will give the greatest return?" The National Association of Real Estate Appraisers offers these hints to remember when remodeling time comes.

The answer to that question and all remodeling considerations is: Do those things that potential buyers in your area really want. What buyers want is what they will pay for when they buy a house. Items that least excite buyers will not command great returns.

A new roof, new electrical wiring, or even a new plumbing system can cost many thousands of dollars yet not return anything to the home owner. The reason is simple—potential buyers believe all homes have roofs that don't leak, electrical and plumbing systems that work, therefore, no excitement and little value increase. If everything in competing properties is equal, the new roof or electrical system might help to sell the house quicker, but probably at the same price as competitive properties with older systems.

Kitchens, baths, outside decks, patios, fireplaces, attractive landscaping are all items that return a great deal of their investment cost. In fact, many of these items may return even more than they cost to do, provided some judgment is used during the remodeling process.

Remodeling a kitchen can be expensive, but it can be very worthwhile. If a kitchen has old and poor cabinets, replace them. The same is true with the floor covering. Purchasers today, almost without exception, demand a nice kitchen. Baths fall into the same category. If the bathroom fixtures are old, replacing them may not be that expensive and may substantially increase the value of the house.

"Appraisers from across the US constantly tell me that a fireplace returns the cost of reasonable installation," says E. Kenneth Twichell, managing director of the National Association of Real Estate Appraisers. "Say a fireplace can be installed for $2000, it is very likely the home will bring $2000 more on the market."

If you live in a cold winter climate, a garage is thought necessary, and therefore to build one may be a very smart idea. In some cases, not only will a potential buyer be willing to pay for the cost of the garage, but the possibility exists that without one, the property may not be easily saleable.

The only word of caution is don't get carried away with remodeling. You can spend $25,000 on remodeling a kitchen or $10,000 on a fireplace. Neither of these "over expenditures" is likely to return its full cost, so do everything in moderation.

The National Association of Real Estate Appraisers makes its Roster of Designated Certified Real Estate Appraisers members available to the public at no charge. Should you have valuation questions, simply write the NAREA, 8383 East Evans Road, Scottsdale, Ariz. 85260.

TOUCHDOWN

Healthy Parsons Key To ACHS Season

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coming off a 4-7 record last year and the loss of two-thirds of their backfield, the Allen Central Rebels will be looking to 5' 10", 180-pound senior Mickey Parsons for the school's first winning season.

There is nothing wrong in looking to the speedy running back. Parsons is capable of hitting the openings that his offensive line provides for him. The senior running back has set his sights on a 2500-yard rushing season.

"Mickey is one of the top backs in the area," Allen Central head coach Donnie Daniels says of his running back. "He is going to have to stay healthy and that will be a big plus for him. Mickey is a very underrated back." Staying healthy has been a problem for the speedy running back in years past.

Gone from last year's backfield is fullback Bear Halbert and Remus Addington. Much will depend on the ability of Tommy Gibson and Kevin Hall to step in and take up the slack created by the departure of the former backs.

When you talk about an offensive line, you think of Brian Meadows, a 307-pound, 6' 6" senior who can open holes for the backfield.

"Brian has made a commitment by losing a great amount of weight. He has better mobility this year, and this will enable him to cover more ground," Daniels said.

Joining Meadows on the offensive line will be junior Brian Wallen, 6' 3", 302 pounds of unmovable force. Billed as one of the top blocker-back combinations a year ago, Parsons and Wallen are ready to prove that the experts were not wrong in picking them.

Wallen was active in track and field this past summer, especially in the discus throw, and has shed some pounds. Along with Meadows, the two could have opposing coaches talking to themselves.

"Brian is the strongest player on the team. He has played at the varsity level since eighth grade. Brian is getting better every year, and he should have two great seasons with his strength being a big advantage," Rebel mentor Daniels said.

Once again junior B. J. Aldrich, 6', 180 pounds, will get the nod at the quarterback spot. Aldrich has been impressive in the early season sessions. He is a knowledgeable quarterback, who will be called upon to fill in at defensive position also.

"B.J. is getting better and better with each practice," his coach said. He could become a great option quarterback. With the loss of some secondary personnel, he may have to step in and fill some holes."

Coach Daniels likes the work habits of Kevin Hall, a 5' 11", 195-pound senior, who seems to have a nose for the football. He is the kind of player who can come in and give some rest to the other backfield personnel.

"Kevin's a strong individual," Coach Daniel's explained. "He has good speed to cover the ground like a linebacker should. He works hard on every down. Kevin will be a big asset to the Rebels this season."

The Rebels will be coming off their best season last year, 4-7, a record they expect to improve on this year. Some of the formidable opponents on the Rebels schedule are Paintsville, Hazard and Raceland. But this year's team says that this is a different team than in

A winning season will be riding on the shoulders of a senior oriented team. Parsons' health, Meadows' commitment and Wallen's strength could be the key for a successful season at ACHS.

With this being the Rebels third varsity season, Daniels sees this as the year that Allen Central can have its first winning season.

"Our team strength is going to be a big advantage for us," he says. "We have experienced players coming back and that helps our defense (seven returnees) and offense (eight returnees)."

"Like any small school, depth is a problem. We don't have the players to pick from, like a big school. We pretty well have to take those who come out."

The kicking game could prove to be a problem for the Rebels this season. "Yeah, it's still one of the weaknesses we have here."

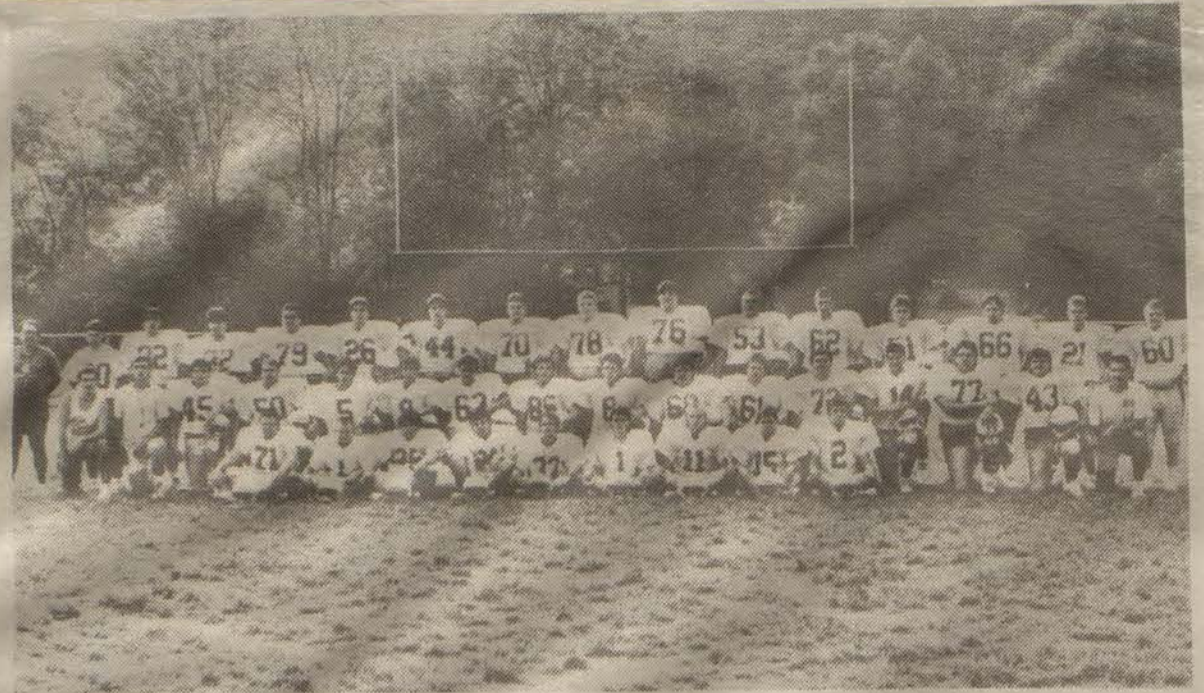

the past. There seems to be a new attitude, and senior leadership seems to be a strong point for this year's Rebels.

Junior running back Tommy Gibson could be a pleasant surprise for the Rebel team this year. When you watch the 6'195 pound junior run you can see that he has the ability to become an all purpose back.

"Tommy can run and catch the ball out of the backfield and split out wide for a deep threat," Daniels remarked. "He loves to on defense and hit hard."

Defensive end, Brett Meadows, a junior at 6'1", 184 pounds, seems

"Brett is a hard hitter with a great big play ability," says Coach Daniels. "He moves through blocks real well to the ball carrier." The 6'1" junior also plays end on offense.

Daniels will be assisted by Darren Conn, Robbie Click, Jeff Hughes and as always the founder of Rebel football, principal Don Daniels Sr. The Rebels will be adding a new concession stand along with a new press box at the athletic complex this fall. Bleachers also are being installed. Lights are a missing item on the schools field causing them to have to play their home games in the afternoon on Saturdays. While other schools enjoy the luxury of having lights, the Rebels can only wait till that comes. The Daniels take their football serious, and so should it be.

Senior Leadership Big Asset For Bobcat Squad

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Betsy Layne Bobcats first year coach Gerald Newsome is looking to his seniors for strong leadership during the upcoming football campaign in 1989.

The new coach at the local high school began his football practice sessions by trying to instill pride in the players and a winning attitude. Newsome, who succeeds Vince Tucker as Bobcat mentor, inherits a team that went 3-6 last season.

"We will be looking to our seniors for the leadership this team needs on offense and defense," the first year coach said. "That is going to be one of our strong points because of the seniors we have this year."

Newsome also knows that when a new coach comes in there is a new system to learn. There will be changes that the players are not familiar with and have to cope with.

"That's going to be a weak point for us," he explained. "Learning a new play system, that's always a problem."

Coach Newsome is looking to second-year quarterback, senior Craig Hunter to lead the offense at quarterback. Hunter, who will be the offensive captain, draws high praises from his coach.

"Craig has a steady head and is smart," Newsome stated. "He is a great team leader and will run the offense for me at quarterback." Hunter says that the Bobcats won't be just a running team, but will mix up their offense with running and passing.

Senior linebacker David Recznick, 6'3", 230 pounds, will captain the defense. "David is a strong defender. He is a very smart player and also a great team leader. He is the finest linebacker in the county," Recznick looks to be a leader for the younger players. He also expresses his acceptance of the new look that Coach Newsome has brought to the Bobcat team.

Returning at the fullback position will be senior Morris Adkins, at 6', 215 pounds. Adkins will give the Bobcats that much needed size at the fullback position. "Morris is a very strong runner and blocker," Newsome remarked. Adkins wants to be able to rush for 1200 yards this season and hopes that will lead to a scholarship next fall.

Senior Gary Shortridge will be at a guard position for the Bobcats this season. "Gary is a very strong guard," his coach said. "He is in great condition, and he's a great pulling guard." Shortridge believes the 1989 Bobcats will surprise a lot of people. Shortridge contributes a new attitude as a plus factor for this year's squad.

good speed." Bias believes the influence of the coaching staff this year will make a big difference in the way the Bobcats will perform.

Senior end Larry Hall will be a threat for long yardage for the Betsy Layne team. "Larry has great experience. That is just what senior tight end Patrick Spradlin brings to the Bobcat team. "Spradlin is a good blocker and a short yardage threat," Newsome says. Spradlin is glad that a local coach was given reign of the Betsy Layne team. He wants to be able to make the big catches or just block.

Among juniors Coach Newsome is expecting to help this year's team is Mike Cecil. At halfback, Cecil may be small but makes up for his size with quickness and knowledge of the game.

Chad Hunter, a junior guard, will help shore up the offensive line for the Betsy Layne team. "Chad is a very strong player and a great pulling guard."

Junior Bobby Weiss at halfback plays with a lot of confidence. "He is a great defensive cornerback and will make the big play," the Bobcat mentor stated.

Keith Mulkey, junior halfback and linebacker, is strong and plays with a lot of determination.

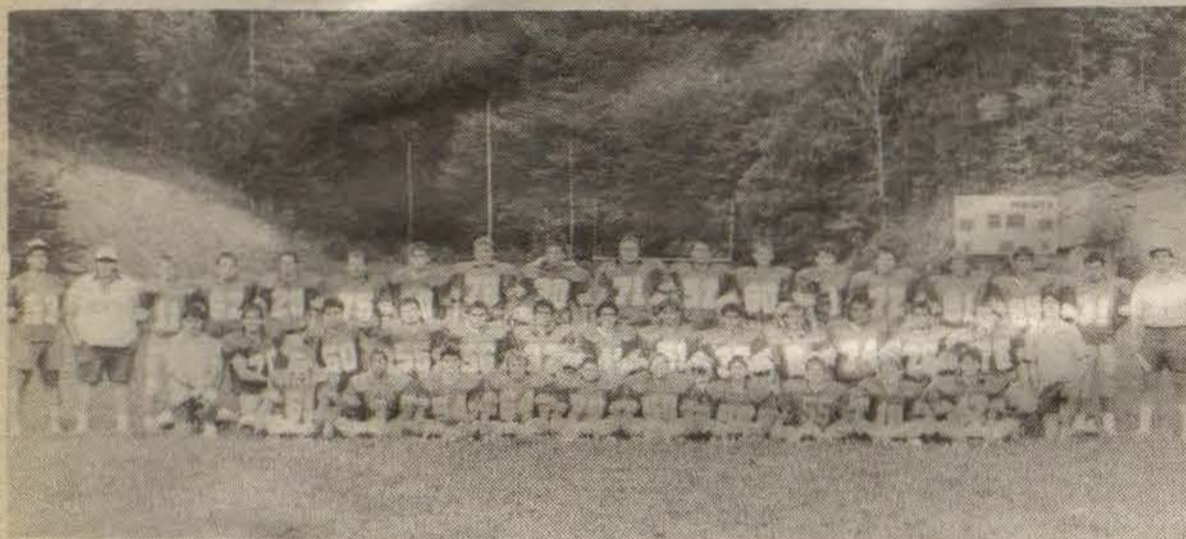

Newsome is assisted by Dewey Jamerson, Joey Cecil and Harold Wallace. The Bobcats could be a sleeper this season. Whether there would be a Bobcat team or not has been laid to rest. The team has a new look, a new attitude and new uniforms. It's a new season and the results could be very positive.

Newsome also knows that when a new coach comes in there is a new system to learn. There will be changes that the players are not familiar with and have to cope with.

Halfback, senior Chris Bias will add an additional threat to the Bobcats' running game. "Chris is very quick," Newsome said. "He is a outside option runner. He has hands," Newsome remarked. "He also has quickness to go with those great hands. He is a definite long yardage threat for us."

Spotlight: Gerald Newsome, Betsy Layne's New Head Coach

The new look the Betsy Layne Bobcats have adopted this football season also includes a new coach, Gerald Newsome, football coach at John M. Stumbo Elementary for the past seven seasons. He replaces Vince Tucker, who took a position as an assistant at Morehead State University. Newsome has also served as an assistant at the local high school for the last two years.

Newsome believes that instilling pride into his players will eventually reach the fans of Bobcat football.

"We want to put some pride back into Bobcat football. It's been a dead bush that others have beaten. We are going to build this program back to respectability," Newsome said in an earlier interview.

Newsome says he will keep an eye on the grades of his football players this season. He stresses academics as a very important aspect of being able to play on the Bobcat football team.

"There will be no hard feelings between this year's football team and other schools," reported Newsome. "We will play hard on the field and give it all we have, but when the game is over we'll all still be friends."

Talking to Coach Newsome, you can see the concern and respect he has for the kids in the school system and especially on the Bobcatsquad. His players have responded by giving their cooperation.

"This is the most cooperative group of players I have ever coached," the Bobcat coach stated. "Their attitude is very positive." A problem in the past years, according to returning players, was the attitude of past coaches. The players said they would be yelled at and cursed, but things are different this year. Newsome has stressed no foul language on the team, and coaches are included.

"Coach Newsome has expressed to us in practices respect for others and our grades," senior linebacker Dave Recznik said, "and that was something that was missing on last year's team."

With a new team attitude and a new coach, the Bobcats could be a surprise this football season. The old adage, "where there's a will, there's a way", could certainly hold true here because with the new Bobcat coach, there's a will and he will find a way.

Newsome and his wife Kathy reside at Grethel with their daughter Andrea and son Brandon. Newsome is a teacher at John M. Stumbo Elementary.

District Playoffs: Goal For Letton's Blackcats

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

Coach Bill Letton's Prestonsburg Blackcats are looking to improve on their 2-8 finish a year ago, their second worst season in a decade, and get back into the playoff pictures that they were so much part of in the early '80's.

The last time the Blackcats were in the playoffs was in 1985 when they lost in semifinal action 20-7 to Newport Catholic. Prestonsburg finished the '85 season with a 12-2 record. Since then it has been up hill as the Blackcats have tried to build their squad back to playoff capability.

Gone from last year's team is receiver Danny Hamilton, quarterback Tim Trusty, and fullback Kevin Dotson.

Returning from last year's 2-8 squad will be Mike Crace (5-10, 136) at the flanker position. Kevin Adams will fill the position he held last year at tight end. Senior Jeff Sloan will see action at the wide receiver spot for the Blackcats this season. Sloan could become a favorite target for first year quarterback Aaron Tucker.

When it comes to moving the ball on the ground, Compton will be the one who gets the call. The big running back has a way of finding the openings and has the speed to go right or left and power to go up the middle.

With the graduation of Dennis Smith, Coach Letton will count on Aaron Flannery and Ryan Porter to fill the tailback positions.

The Blackcats' kicking game looks promising with junior James Campbell doing the kicking. Reserve place kicker Jason Storey could help at this spot for Prestonsburg.

Heading up the defensive line for the Blackcats this time around will be senior Jimmy Nelson (5-8, 172). Nelson will also be on the offensive line, opening holes for the backfield.

Although this year's edition of Blackcat football may be small on the lines, it will be quick. The quickness could be a strong point in this year's campaign.

"We will be smaller but quicker and stronger than last year," senior Mike Crace said in an earlier interview. A desire to get back to respectability is a goal for this year's team. A long absence from the playoff picture has made them hungry for a return.

The Blackcats' schedule is anything but easy. The Blackcats will take to the road in only their second game of the regular season against always tough Tates Creek.

Danville makes an appearance on the local team schedule this season as Coach Letton makes a return to his alma mater in a Sept. 22 game. Throw in preseason favorite Pikeville, who graduated 23 seniors from last year's team; Paintsville, ranked fourth in the preseason polls; M.C. Napier and Belfry, and you have some hard games ahead.

Nelson, who has promised to try to bring the Blackcats back into the playoffs, believes that this year's team can be a winning team and win its share of games in spite of a tough schedule.

"I feel better going into this year's schedule," the defensive lineman said. Nelson believes this year's squad will be better prepared mentally and the leadership will be stronger.

Blackcats

Prestonsburg needs to stay healthy and be consistent on offense. The defense should be one of the best in the district. Tucker will get his "baptism" early against Tates Creek. The young quarterback seems to have the savvy to not panic, seems to know what he wants to do with the football and plays with a lot of confidence.

This year's Blackcat team has something going for it that wasn't there last year, according to the Blackcats seniors — confidence and desire. They believe this can be the year of the "Cats".

Optimism Is High In WHS Trojan Camp

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

This time of year just before the regular season begins, everyone is optimistic about their playoff chances in the upcoming campaign. Wheelwright coach Roger Johnson and his Trojans are no different.

True, gone are fullback Vic Cotton, halfback Handy Jackson and tight end Chris Thornsbury, but looking at who is returning for the Trojans, one has to be optimistic.

Returning at halfback from last year's 2-8 squad will be Bobby Hood, a 5' 9", 150-pound senior. Hood was at quarterback last year but will be located in a different position in the backfield this season — at halfback.

"Bobby has good speed," Coach Johnson says, "and he has good hands also. He shows a lot of leadership on and off the field. This year he will be playing a new position on defense — defensive linebacker. But Bobby is the kind of player who catches on quick."

Hood has the ability and speed to go up the middle. When the middle is closed, he can use his speed to sweep to the end. Hood could have a big year rushing and could lead the Trojans to their first winning season in several years.

Joining Hood in the backfield will be 6', 175-pound halfback, senior Chad Hall, who possesses a nose for the game and seems to know where to go when he gets the ball.

"Chad is a great runner," says Johnson. "He's a strong kid, and he is going to make us a good defensive linebacker."

Hall will complement Hood well in the Trojan backfield, keeping the opposing team's defense honest and from keying on Hood.

If Hood and Hall are not enough to cause opposing coaches to be concerned, throw in one Mike Justice at fullback and you have a formidable trio. Justice is a 5' 7", 180-pound junior, who can get his team some tough needed yardage.

"Mike will be called on to go the extra yards that we will need," related Johnson. "We will also use Mike in the linebacker position on defense also."

Calling the signals for the Trojans this season will be junior Steve Johnson at 5' 10", 158 pounds. Although Johnson is unproven at the spot, he has the ability to step and take control and run the football team this season.

"Steve throws the ball real well. He has the ability to run the option well. We could use him on defense, and may have to, but we prefer that he be on the sidelines while the defense is on the field so we can talk," his coach remarked.

The end positions will be filled by Brian Rhea and Robbie Wright for the Trojans' offensive line. Rhea, a junior at 5' 11", and 187 pounds, has the good hands to handle the pass, according to mentor Johnson.

"Brian not only has good hands, but he is a good blocker also. He is going to make us a good defensive linebacker this season," Johnson stated.

Wright is a junior, weighs in at 170 pounds and stands at 5' 10". Wright has been blessed with good speed and has a good pair of hands to handle the football, according to Johnson. He runs the passing routes well and will be used also at the cornerback position on defense.

According to Johnson, a lack of depth and size could hurt his offensive line. "That's going to be our weak point on offense," says Johnson. "But we are going to be a quick team, and we just have to use our speed against the larger teams. We certainly cannot go against them size against size."

Johnson will use his biggest player, 6' 2", 243-pound Nolan Newsome, at left tackle. Newsome is a good blocker and his size is a plus in that area.

Junior James Branham will come in at the left guard spot. Branham is 5' 9" and weighs 160 pounds. "James is a quick and strong player. He will be playing both offense and defense for us."

The youngest player on the offensive line will be sophomore Marty Tackett, a 6', 190-pound center. "This will be Marty's second year of starting for us. He has good size and is suitable for the center spot," Johnson relates.

Shane McCoy, Greg Burke, Eddie Shelton, Steven Jackson and Steve Shelton round out the Trojan defense. Shelton is the only the larger schools. But what they lack in depth can be compensated for in desire. This year's Trojan team has the desire, attitude and willingness to do what it takes to bring a winner back to the small Floyd County town. With the right leadership and the potential that is displayed, this year's team could make local fans forget about last year's 2-8 team.

This year's Trojan team has the desire, attitude and willingness to do what it takes to bring a winner back to the small Floyd County town.

Newman is a 6' 1", 225-pound junior, considered by his coach to be a hard worker and developing into a good blocker.

The Trojans defensive team will be led by 6' 3", 210 pounder, Adam Hall, considered the strongest player on the Wheelwright team.

"He can clog up a hole when he's in the game," says Johnson, "and he plays real hard aggressive defense."

Senior Darren Caudill will fill the spot at nose guard. Caudill is 5' freshman in the starting lineup and has been showing daily improvement.

Coach Johnson says that Clayton Hamilton, a 6' 2", 195-pound sophomore, should make a contribution to this year's team. "Hamilton will be a big plus for us this year."

Lack of depth could plague this year's Trojan team, something they have been accustomed to over the past years. They do not have the student body to pick from as do

50 Years Of Football Nostalgia

We thought it would be fun to recall some of the great moments in football, as recorded in The Floyd County Times, going back 50 years, 1939 up to 1979. It is surprising how the sport has changed in our county since then. Have a look.

September 21, 1939

Prestonsburg will lift the lid on the local football season (Sept. 23) when they will attempt to do more scratching than the Louisa Bulldogs do chewing.

With a team that will average 160 pounds both offensively and defensively, Coach Bob Harlowe does not lack for physical strength in his aggregation, but is a bit worried about the lack of speed in two or three vital spots in the Blackcats machine.

The visitors will bring their school band, in uniforms, with them. Game time is 2:30.

September 28, 1939

The Prestonsburg Blackcats fell to the Louisa Bulldogs, 6-0, after holding the powerful Dogs scoreless for practically the entire game. The Blackcats were unable to withstand the Bulldogs' final power drive and went down under a 6-0 score in the last minute of play in a Big Sandy Conference game.

October 19, 1939

The Catlettsburg Wildcats clawed the Prestonsburg Blackcats 31-0 in a football game at the local field. After a first half standoff, Catlettsburg scored five second half touchdowns to win big at Prestonsburg.

September 29, 1949

Rolling in high gear after three bad starts, the Prestonsburg Blackcats routed Boyd County, 31-0 at the Prestonsburg field.

Blackcat James Delong scored on a one-yard plunge for the first score. He also converted the extra point. Willis scored when he scampered off tackle for a touchdown. Neeley converted the extra point to give the Blackcats a 14-0 lead.

Willis scored again in the third period and he also converted the extra point for a Blackcat 21-0 lead, Neeley, on a spin play raced 25 yards for a touchdown. Delong converted the extra point.

Jimmie Mayo intercepted a Boyd County pass and raced 30 yards to paydirt. Monday following the game, Mike Horn and James Delong were declared by the school ineligible for further competition because of their grade credit.

September 29, 1949

The Wayland Wasps stung the Jenkins Cavaliers 26-7 in a recent football game at Wayland.

Berkeley scored three touchdowns for the Wasps. Berkeley's first score was on a 60-yard run. He also had runs of 35 and 40 yards. Berkeley had a fourth touchdown called back when it was ruled that he stepped out of bounds. Doug Castle waded through the Jenkins line for a 18-yard score.

September 10, 1959

Coach John G. Goble made a successful debut as the new football coach for the Prestonsburg Blackcats, when the Cats clawed the Wheelwright Maroons, 32-0. Junior halfback Bob Smith scored for the Blackcats from four yards

Football: How The Game Came To Be

With the popularity of the game of football, have you ever wondered how such a sport ever got started?

Football began in the mid-1800's, when a game similar to soccer was played in the East. The object of the game was simply to kick a round ball across the other team's goal line. The teams sometimes consisted of as many as 30 or even more players.

As the soccer-like game became popular, stricter rules were adopted and schools began to organize teams. The first college football game was played on Nov. 6, 1869, in New Brunswick, N. J. Rutgers defeated the College of New Jersey (now Princeton University), 6-4.

In 1874, the first of several changes brought football closer to today's game. That year, Harvard played McGill University of Montreal. The visiting Canadians, instead of playing the soccer-like kicking game, picked up the ball and ran with it. They scored by either carrying or kicking the ball over the goal line. The McGill players also tackled the Harvard ball carrier. McGill's game, played between 15-man teams, was a variation of rugby football, a game developed from soccer in England.

The Harvard team liked the new version of football and introduced it to other college teams in the United States. Running, blocking and tackling soon became as important as kicking.

About 1880, they adopted rules allowing a team to keep possession of the ball while trying to make a first down. Also, the number of men on each team was reduced to 11. The rules concerning possession and first down improved the game by giving teams time to plan strategy for advancing the ball. At first, a team had to advance the ball only five yards in three plays for a first down. Many of the early rules varied from game to game and depended on agreement between the teams beforehand.

During the 1880's, football spread quickly from Eastern colleges to high schools and community playgrounds throughout the East and Midwest. Many towns organized football teams and developed rivalries with one another.

By 1900, football consisted mostly of running, blocking and tackling. Teams ran with the ball to advance it, but kicking was still the most frequent way of scoring. Soon, merely kicking the ball over the goal line became too easy. To make scoring more difficult, a narrow goal area in the middle of the goal line was added. The ball had to be kicked into this area for a score. Later goal posts marked the goal area, and finally a crossbar was placed between the posts.

As running, blocking and tackling became more and more important in football, so did strength and wrestling ability. Football games became violent, and many players were injured. Many games seemed more like organized fights than athletic events. Some players wore uniforms with straps on the shoulders and hips so teammates could pull them forward and advance the ball. Members of the other team tried to pull them backward.

In 1905, President Theodore Roosevelt saw a photograph of an injured football player and threatened to ban the game if such violence continued. Some college presidents prohibited football at their schools because of the frequent injuries.

In 1906, college coaches and faculty members changed the rules of football to take some of the stress away from running and blocking. A back was now allowed to throw the ball forward to another back or to an end.

Forward passing quickly became an established part of football and helped make the game more popular than ever. Passing let smaller, faster players compete successfully and required careful planning and the use of many different plays.

The first forward pass was thrown for an 18-yard gain by Wesleyan University against Yale in 1906. But passing did not become popular until 1913, in a game between Notre Dame and Army. The Army team was favored to win because it was stronger and heavier than Notre Dame. But Gus Dorais, the Notre Dame quarterback, threw the ball several times to Knute Rockne, a star end, and Notre Dame won, 35 to 13.

Football, more popular than ever. Enjoy it!

UK Football Outlook

Wildcats Are Growling, Fans Are Excited

by Cliff Smith
Contributing Writer

Could this be the year? Can the University of Kentucky Wildcats realistically vie for the SEC football championship in 1989?

Can you recall a UK gridiron team that in the same year boasted two legitimate All-American candidates? Or as many as eight players with All SEC potential?

It has members of this year's team growling for action and fans of UK's "second sport" perhaps more excited than they have been in years.

Offensive tackle Mike Pfeifer (6-7, 305, sr.) and defensive tackle Oliver Barnett (6-3, 285, sr.) have already been named to the first team of some preseason All-American teams. They are on everyone's checklist.

Inside linebacker Randy Holleran (6-1, 240, jr.), outside linebacker/defensive end Tony Massey (6-2, 221, sr.), free safety Ron Robinson (6-1, 185, sr.), defensive guard Jerry Bell (6-3, 284, soph.), fullback Andy Murray (6-1, 246, sr.) and tailbacks Al Baker (5-11, 225, jr.) and Alfred Rawls (5-11, 200, sr.) — all have, at their respective positions, potential to be All SEC players in 1989.

Holleran was All SEC last year as a sophomore, and Jerry Bell was a 1988 Freshman All SEC honoree.

One has to go back 24 years to 1965 to find another UK football team with as many as two players on it who made All America teams the same year. Still, 1950 is the only year that Kentucky has ever won an unshared SEC championship in football. Therein lies the reality and the rub. The SEC is one tough conference, probably the toughest in the country.

A more realistic, yet still hopeful assessment of the Wildcats' prospects this fall, would project their going 5-2 or 4-3 in the conference, 7-4 overall, and then to a bowl.

When Jerry Claiborne became head coach in 1982, he modestly said his goal would be to make Kentucky football competitive in the SEC. For a school that ranks eighth out of 10 teams in the all-time SEC football standings, that has never been and isn't now an easily achieved objective.

But Claiborne has done that, as the two bowl teams of 1983 and 1984 and last year's close—though losing—efforts against Auburn, Alabama and LSU, plus the victory over Georgia, show.

Kentucky won't take anybody by surprise this year as it did in 1988. In a league usually characterized by the six "teams to watch" and the "four others", Kentucky has traditionally been one of the latter. Yet all seem cognizant of Kentucky as a "dark horse" threat this year.

Whether Kentucky can produce a winning 6-5 or 7-4 team this year will depend largely on three things: (1) coming up with improved, consistent performance at the quarterback position; (2) no debilitating injuries to key players, and (3) developing capable blocking help at tight end.

Chuck Broughton (6-4, 230, sr.) kept his number one quarterback position on the depth chart going into fall drills by a poised performance in the Spring Blue-White game. But Freddie Maggard (6-2, 227, soph.) was somewhat disadvantaged in the comparison by the fact the new option offense which he does best wasn't unveiled.

Which quarterback plays most may be determined by fall pre-game practice and by what a given game plan calls for in terms of use of the option.

Whether Kentucky can produce a winning 6-5 or 7-4 team this year will depend largely on three things: (1) coming up with improved, consistent performance at the quarterback position; (2) no debilitating injuries to key players, and (3) developing capable blocking help at tight end.

Redshirt freshman quarterback candidates Ryan Hockman (6-2, 190) and Brad Smith (6-2, 190) performed well in the spring and could see action. Smith began in the spring considered fourth, but was as impressive as anyone at times and looked sharp in brief appearances in the Blue-White intra-squad game that capped off spring practice.

UK has a good pass catching tight end in 6-6, 230-pound, junior Mike Meece, who can run a 4.6-4.7 40-yard dash. It needs depth and one or more good blockers at the position. The staff hopes to find them among junior college transfers Bobby Henderson (6-3, 240) and Rodney Jackson (6-3, 240) and incoming freshman Terry Samuel (6-3, 225) who has good strength and 4.7 speed in the 40.

Jim Graves (6-6, 235, soph.) was switched from reserve defensive tackle to tight end in the spring to bolster the position and may also see playing time there this fall.

Kentucky returns seven starters on offense and seven starters on defense. For the first time in decades, it has some depth at lessen the effects of this.

Overall, the team stacks up as improved offensively and as once again likely to be plenty tough defensively. The kicking game which caused such havoc early in the season last year looks promising in all respects in 1989. It all means UK has a good chance this year against at least five of its seven conference foes and should win at least two and possibly all four of its non-conference games.

out. After a Wheelwright fumble, Dennis Stephens recovered the fumble and ran 30 yards for a TD.

Fullback James Allen intercepted a Maroon pass. He then carried the ball on four carries 43 yards for a score. Smith topped off the scoring with an 8-yard run.

The Blackcats defense, led by Larry Garrett, Paul "Red" Minix and Bobby Marshall, held the Maroons to two first downs.

The Prestonsburg Blackcats suffered just their second loss of the season to the Belfry Pirates, 42-14, in the finals of the Class AA Championships. Prestonsburg held a 14-12 half-time lead. Prestonsburg scored first in the first quarter and looked like they were going to move away easily, when quarterback Mark Miller ran four yards for a touchdown, and he also converted for two points to make it 8-0 after the first quarter.

John Paul Leslie ran the ball into the end zone for a score and the Blackcats failed to convert the extra point. Prestonsburg held a 14-0 lead. Belfry scored twice in the period, but failed to convert the extra points.

In the second half it was all Belfry, as they mauled the Cats 42-14.

Also on this date, Coach Shorty Jamerson and his Wheelwright

Trojans won a big game over Napier, 20-6. Chipper Branham and Dwight Jackson led the Trojan attack.

October 31, 1979

The Prestonsburg Blackcats bounced the Hazard Bulldogs in a thriller, 19-14. Fullback Dewey Layne ran 38 yards for a touchdown. Layne also had a 11-yard run for another Blackcat score. Layne had a total rushing yardage of 195 for the game. The victory was Prestonsburg's fourth in a row to improve their record to 6-4.

Attrition High In The SEC

by Cliff Smith
Contributing Writer

Every year in February, football buffs look to see how their favorite team did in the recruiting war that is an almost never ending matter of concern to coaching staffs.

And every year in the SEC, its 10 member schools rack up new recruiting classes of close to or more than 20 promising new athletes each.

Comparisons are inevitably made—height, weight, and speed in the 40 and 100 yard dashes, bench press, high school record and more.

Except for a few who become Proposition 48 casualties early on, many of these young men begin their preparation during the summer, reading playbooks, lifting weights, running, and engaging in other preconditioning drills under circumstances not prohibited by the NCAA.

And then in they come during the month of August to face both a level of competition they have never actually competed in, plus the academic demands of college.

Quite a few do not survive, succumbing to lack of desire for play at such a physically punishing level, frustration, disappointment if they realize they won't achieve as they had hoped, injury or academic failure.

The attrition appears greatest in Coach Pat Dye's program at Auburn, followed closely by Alabama, Tennessee, and Ole Miss.

Of the 1985 recruiting class of 27 student athletes at Auburn, six completed their eligibility last year and four remain on the 1989 roster. Seventeen are no longer trying to play.

At Alabama, 14 of 29 of the 1985 recruits are gone from attrition. Two of its '85 recruits were junior college transfers who completed their eligibility in two years, six completed four year eligibility last year, and seven of the original 29 are on Alabama's '89 roster of players.

The numbers are quite similar at Tennessee and Ole Miss.

Eleven of LSU's 1985 signees have departed via attrition.
