This is the second time in recent months the Navy has had an addition made to its billboard erected on US 23 North near Sam An Tonio's Restaurant. This graffiti artist didn't waste much time reinserting his/her message on the sign, appearing only days after it was redone.

Teenage Pregnancy: Facts That Affect Floyd

by Tess A. Whitmer
Staff Writer
Part One In A Series

The issue of teen pregnancy is one that affects everyone. Whether a student, a mother of a teenager, a male or female adolescent, an educator or a taxpayer, the teen birth rate has a definite impact on the future of this county and this country.

The simple fact that a high number of babies born to teenagers have a dangerously low birth weight and that the mothers and fathers of these children generally drop out of school makes a statement about the upcoming generation and its success in life.

Floyd County, with one of the highest teen birth rates in the area, is in the middle of a statewide problem.

However, the public awareness of such problems is growing and measures are being taken to combat the problem.

The 1988 Kentucky Annual Vital Statistics Report records 8,817 births to teenage mothers, compared to 8,856 in 1987 and down from 12,287 in 1979.

The age 15-19 birth rate—a better comparative figure because it measures the number of births per 1000 teenage girls in a year—dropped 19 points in the state, from 75.8 births per 1000 female teenagers in 1979 to 56.8 in 1988.

Correspondingly, the US age 15-19 birth rate fell only from 52.3 births per 1000 teenagers in 1979 to a rate of 51.1 in 1987, the latest year for which national statistics are available.

Floyd County has the third highest rate of teen births in the state with a 1988 total of 159 out of 675 total births. This translates to 80.1 per 1000 teenage females in the county. Another alarming number is the age group under 15 years of age. Four girls under 15 had babies in 1988 in the county, a rate of 2.0 per 1000.

some progress in preventing teenage pregnancies, but the last national ranking (for 1986) still had Kentucky third in the percentage of births to

"Teenage mothers have a lot of emotional turmoil and their needs tend to get in the way of the babies. Life experience is essential to raising a child and these girls don't have it yet."

--Claire Martin, RN

The 1987 rates for the county are about the same, at 79.9 and 2.4 respectively. The year 1986 shows an unusually high birth rate at 88.0 for girls age 15-19. And 1985 registered at 79.3 per 1000.

While the statistics demonstrate Kentucky's progress on the problem of teen pregnancies, state maternal and child health experts say Kentucky still has a lot to do in the complicated area of adolescent pregnancy.

"A simple summary of these numbers is that clearly teenage pregnancy and all of its surrounding issues have not disappeared," said Patricia Nicol, MD, Department for Health Services maternal and child health director. "Yes, we have made teens."

Nicol points out that the age 15-19 rate dropped 16.8 points between 1979 and 1983 but fell only 2.1 points between 1984 and 1988. Further, the birth rate for very young mothers—under age 15—improved little, from

DARE Program Adopted

Two Prestonsburg police officers have just completed a two-week Drug Abuse Resistance and Education (DARE) training program, designed to teach Prestonsburg school children how to say no to drugs.

Officer John P. Hunt and Sgt. Sue Blackburn returned from Lexington

this week, having completed a two-week Drug Abuse Resistance and Education (DARE) training program. The DARE program was originally developed in Los Angeles, Calif., for the purpose of teaching children about the dangers of illegal drug use, as well as to build a positive self image among the children.

The program is designed to run for 16 weeks, allowing the police officer to spend one full school day a week with a class of fifth and sixth grade children. A second, modified course has also been developed to educate children in kindergarten through fourth grades.

"This program has been very successful in Lexington, the first place it was introduced in Kentucky," said Blackburn. "We think it can be just as successful here in Prestonsburg."

The police officers will develop a class plan for each session with the children, focusing on creating positive interaction between the officer and the child.

"We aren't interested in coming across as John Wayne to the kids," said Hunt. "We won't be wearing our

Magistrates, Station Tangle Over County Vehicle Usage

A minor tempest blew up Thursday between the four Floyd County magistrates and radio station WQHY-FM, owned by Gorman Collins Sr. and operated by Gorman Collins Jr.

The radio station's news program reported throughout the day that Magistrates Betty Caudill, Eral Tackett, Jackie Edford Owens and Gerald DeRossett had agreed at a specially called Fiscal Court on Jan. 15 to purchase four county vehicles.

Nothing too unusual about that...but according to the radio report, Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo was contacted and asked who would be the primary users of the vehicles. Stumbo noted that, once purchased, the vehicles would be used regularly by the magistrates.

The radio station then conducted a listener survey, asking what people in the county thought about the magistrates having the county purchase vehicles for their own use.

"People have been overwhelmingly against the county buying the new vehicles," said Gorman Collins Jr., a former candidate for magistrate in District 1, who was defeated during last November's elections.

Lackey Jail Echoes Town's Wild Past

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

Standing abandoned and open to the elements beside KY 7, the old Lackey jail is hidden now by overgrown brush and trees, providing the barest hint of it and the town's rowdy past.

While never a beautiful building, the squat, gray, concrete blockhouse saw a lot of action during the early to mid-1930s, when booming coal production and a large transient miner population dramatically increased the level of lawlessness in the area.

"Every weekend, there was one or two people killed," said Claird Caudill, who moved from Knott County to Lackey in 1921, as a four-year-old boy. "I can remember 40 or 50 people people killed as I was growing up, between Porter and Lackey. It used to be a pretty wild place."

Gorman Collins Sr., who grew up in Lackey during the 1920s and 1930s, also remembers the boom town qualities of the area.

"There was more money in Lackey in a week's time in those days than there is in a whole month in Prestonsburg today," said Collins.

"There was a series of about 10 mines operating in a five mile radius of Lackey. A big rail mine at the mouth of Lackey Hollow would be unloading up until 11 or 12 at night.

"Every weekend, there was one or two people killed."

--Claird Caudill

"One of the first drug stores around was there in town, along with a big bakery, and one of the largest clothing stores in the area. We even had a pop factory that made a soft drink called 'Howdy' that came in different flavors," Collins said.

"We had a rail depot and a big wagon post. On Saturdays, there'd be 75 wagons pulled up, selling chickens and everything under the sun," he added.

The mining jobs drew hundreds of new residents to Lackey and the surrounding area, among them some very rough customers who raised Cain and frequently partook of locally distilled moonshine, Caudill and Collins both allege.

"Sometimes I'd be afraid to go out and get milk," said Caudill. "I was 12 or 13 at the time, but there was so much shooting around, it was dangerous to go out on the streets."

"At night, the kids were kept inside," noted Collins. "I know, 'cause I was one of the kids kept in. There were a lot of robberies down by the railroad tracks. Anybody walking down there carried a pistol. Seemed like there were always chickens being stolen, too. That was serious back then, and got you sent to jail."

Members of the town board of Lackey decided to take action in the late 1920s or early 1930s. It was decided that Lackey needed a jail to deal with weekend drunkenness, rowdiness and thefts. Those facing more serious crimes could be transported to the Prestonsburg jail, which, up until that time, was the closest in the county.

"They put up reinforcing bars and poured the concrete, and there was the jail," said Collins. "They'd herd the drunks and criminals in there and the Police Judge would try the cases. He'd fine them or keep them in there 'til they got sober."

"Usually they'd just put them in

Reid, Sullivan To Be Arraigned Today on Charges

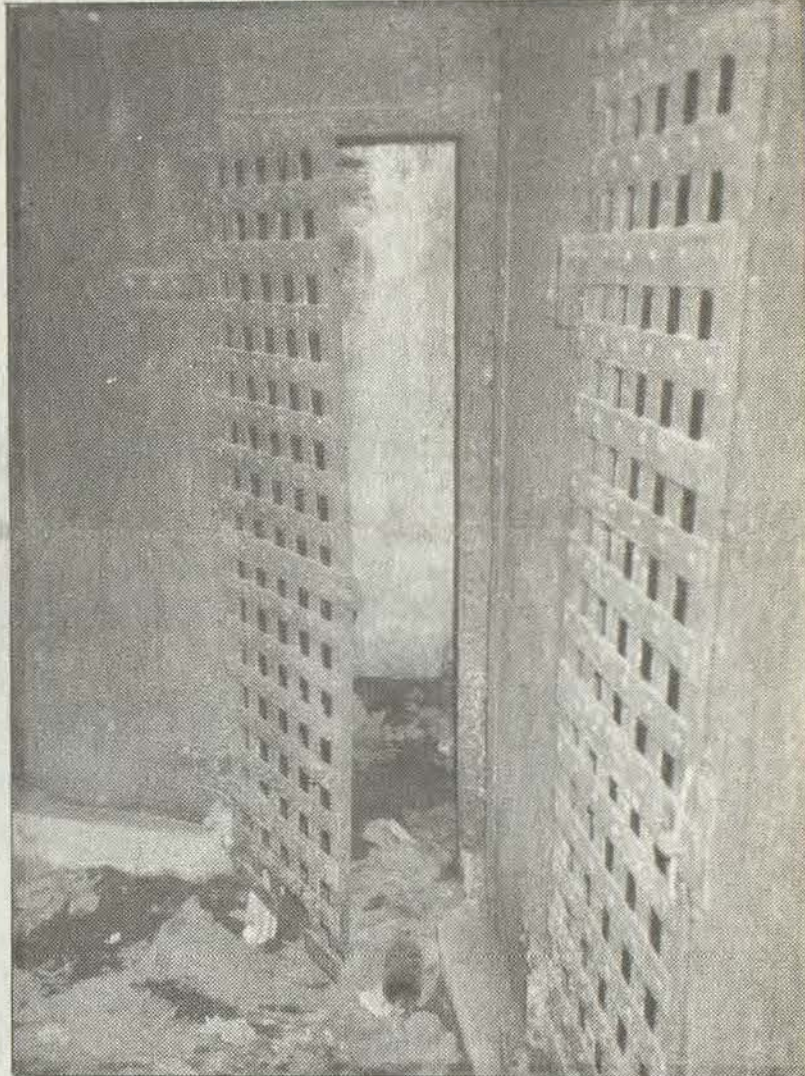

Martin pharmacist Ronald Reid, former Martin doctor George Sullivan, and four other defendants will be arraigned today (Friday) in US District Court in Lexington.

Reid and Sullivan were arrested last week on charges of illegally dispensing prescription drugs. Reid owns and operates Reid Pharmacy in Martin. Sullivan operated the Beaver Valley Clinic in Martin between 1987 and 1988, as well as the Vicco Clinic in Perry County.

According to Ned Pillersdorf, the Prestonsburg attorney appointed by the court to represent Sullivan, a federal trial date will be set at the Friday arraignment. He noted that federal cases were usually brought to trial more quickly than other types of cases. He also believes the case will be tried in Pikeville.

"Since they appointed me for the defense, it's most likely the trial will be held in Pikeville," said Pillersdorf.

Martin attorney Danny P. Caudill will defend Reid before the federal court and confirmed that the trial will be held in Pikeville. Neither Pillersdorf nor Caudill would comment on the specifics of the case prior to Friday's arraignment.

Creaking Doors of Times Past

The old cells of Lackey jail stand deserted today, open to the wind and rain. Sixty years ago, these iron doors held drunks and an occasional killer. The drunks would dry out until morning and be released. The killers could look forward only to a trip to jail in Prestonsburg, and perhaps a longer trip after that.

Stick 'em Up

Eastern Kentuckians have suffered a bit in the pride category lately. First, we got our feelings hurt by the big city television crew from "48 Hours." Then the governor reminded us that we live in the other Kentucky.

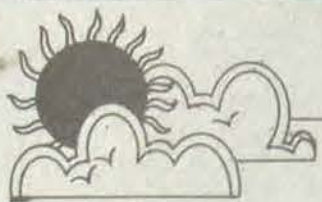

We're about due an infusion of good old, back-stiffening, head-hiking pride.

Those subscribers to The Floyd County Times who live in the county will find in their papers a free bumper sticker, just like the one below. Stick it on your car and let everyone know you're not a bit ashamed to be from Eastern Kentucky.

Those of you who pick up your paper off the rack at the many shops and stores that sell The Times also have the opportunity to get your own "Eastern Kentucky Pride" bumper sticker. Just come by the office of The Times on Center Avenue (Third to some), just down from the Courthouse, and purchase yours for 60 cents.

Or if you can't get by here, you can order a bumper sticker for $1. (The extra is to handle mailing costs.) Send your order to The Floyd County Times, PO Box 391, Prestonsburg, KY 41653, and we'll get your bumper sticker in the mail that day.

Let's wear our pride right where everyone can see it.

Not Much To Speak Of

The weather looks to be mild, but chilly in the coming days. Friday will be mostly cloudy early in the morning, changing to partly sunny with the highs near 40 in the afternoon. Friday night will be mostly clear with a low 25-30.

Mostly sunny weather will hit us Saturday with a high of 50-55. A chance of rain is forecast for Sunday with partial cloud cover Monday and Tuesday. Mostly mild temperatures with a high in the 50s and lows 35-45.

Letcher Woman Charged With Killing Infant

WHITESBURG—A 20-year-old Jenkins woman was charged Monday with the death of her six-month-old son, who died Friday from a blow to the head.

Brenda Hall Howard was arrested last Saturday, following an autopsy of the dead child in Louisville which revealed a skull fracture and brain damage, caused by a blow from a blunt object. The child was initially believed to have died from Sudden Infant Death Syndrome, or "crib death". Letcher County Coroner Winston Meade ordered the autopsy, based on the lack of an observable cause of death.

Howard has pleaded not guilty to the murder charge. She is being held in the county jail under a $75,000 cash bond. A preliminary hearing will be held today at 1 p.m. (Mountain Eagle)

Formal Principal Charged With Supply Stealing

ROWAN COUNTY—Clifford Wells, former principal of Rowan State Vocational School, was indicted Friday on 20 counts of stealing school supplies.

Wells faces 11 felony counts and nine misdemeanor counts for using school-owned supplies to build a storage building, a barbecue grill, a basketball goal, a dog house, and other items for his personal use. The value of the alleged-stolen supplies was set at $3,625.

State School Superintendent John Brock has demoted and reassigned Wells until the court case is resolved. Kentucky State Police are handling the investigation. (Morehead News)

Louisa Extends City Limits

LOUISA—The Louisa city council last week approved the annexation of 100 acres of land to be brought into city limits, increasing the total size of the city to 903 acres.

Seven businesses have disclosed their interest in locating in the new section of the city. Potentially 350 to 400 new jobs will be brought into the city if this occurs. Construction on the new businesses is expected to begin within 30 days, and new jobs could be available as early as June or July. (Big Sandy News)

Principal Passes Loading Bus

PIKE COUNTY—The principal of Sycamore school, James Bartley, was charged last week with wanton endangerment, for allegedly passing a school bus that was loading a child.

The mother of the child, Rose Crum of Ashcamp, said that a speeding car forced her daughter to run across the road to avoid being hit, as she was preparing to get on her bus to go to school. Crum followed the vehicle after the incident, which led her to the Sycamore school. The person who exited the car was allegedly Bartley, the school principal.

Bartley claimed that he was unsure what happened at the school bus stop, but apologized for the incident. A court date was set for Monday, Feb. 5. (Appalachian News-Express)

Consol Gives Coal Outlook For 1990

The market for the U.S. coal industry in 1990 is expected to improve from last year's levels when record consumption and production were achieved. Most economists are projecting continued slowing in the growth of the domestic economy, although a recession generally is not anticipated. Nevertheless, this level of economic activity will still result in higher demand for electricity.

Utility coal demand is projected to increase in 1990 due to the electricity generation increase, although some of the growth in electricity demand may be met by increased nuclear and hydro generation.

Demand for metallurgical coal by steel companies is expected to be flat in 1990, reflecting slackening demand for steel.

Steam coal used by industrial plants is forecast to remain close to the levels of last year. Coal exports are expected to remain at the strong 1989 levels.

Consol expects its solid performance to continue through 1990. Sales volumes are expected to reflect the effects of the anticipated growth in U.S. coal demand. Even with little or no growth in sales, however, earnings should remain strong because of continued improvements in productivity.

Consol continues to be concerned about the prospects for acid rain legislation as well as recent publicity concerning the global warming phenomenon.

Acid rain legislation, as currently being considered in Congress, would place a disproportionate share of the cost of emissions reductions on a relatively small number of states.

The company supports legislative provisions that would spread the cost of compliance more equitably and would mitigate the impact on communities that are economically dependent on the coal industry. Any legislative action on global warming would be premature, as the phenomenon requires long-term intensive study before response strategies are developed.

Consol also believes that the national interest would be served best by encouraging and fostering the development of clean-coal technologies.

Based upon continued strength in various domestic and export markets, coal production in southern West Virginia, southwestern Virginia, and eastern Kentucky is projected to record a gain of 3 percent or more in 1990. This follows increased demand in 1989, when coal output in this region rose by an estimated 2 percent, despite widespread work stoppages which occurred mid-year.

Even though shortages of certain premium grades of coal should diminish in 1990, buyers of coal produced in this area still should be concerned about securing adequate supplies.

Magistrates

"We've had 76 calls; 51 have been against and 25 have been for buying the vehicles. Most of those 25 were calling from the courthouse," Collins said. "Some of them were pretty mad at me, but more were outraged that this money is going to be spent on vehicles instead of on torn-up roads."

Collins also noted that it was the radio's news programmer who was conducting the survey, and that this was a news item, not a personal or political vendetta.

Judge Stumbo and the magistrates saw the news report and radio survey in a very different light.

"Gorman Collins Jr. needs a seven-foot suck bottle," said District 2 Magistrate Jackie Edford Owens. "He's basically a sore loser and a crybaby about the last election. If we bought a horse for us to ride around the county, he would get on the radio and cry about it."

"He's being a sore loser," said Gerald DeRossett, magistrate of District 1. "He's trying to get at us and nothing's working. Other counties provide cars for magistrates, and many companies provide company cars. It's not unusual."

"I haven't heard it, which shows you how much I think about listening to Gorman Collins Jr.," said Betty Caudill, District 3 Magistrate. "Somebody has to get beat in an election, but he's acting like a child."

All the magistrates' responses pointed to the need for county vehicles for the magistrate's use.

"I've been through a 1979 Jeep, a Ford truck, and now I'm driving my car," said DeRossett. "We have bought a lot of trucks and such for the county road crews and I believe we have gotten the county going in the right direction now."

Owens agreed with DeRossett about the wear and tear on personal vehicles. "I bought a brand new Monte Carlo when I was first elected and now, after 3-1/2 years, it has 82,000 miles on it," he said. "And those miles are Floyd County miles, I was only able to take a one-day vacation last year with all the problems that have hit the county."

Owens noted he also drove a four-wheel-drive truck and a pickup truck on the job and each had increased 35,000 and 34,000 miles, respectively.

"It's hard for me to keep furnishing a vehicle and insurance with the salary we get, which is not the maximum for the position," Owens noted. "If Collins had won the race he would have found out what a tough job it is."

Magistrate Ermal Tackett was unavailable for comment yesterday, but Caudill estimated her mileage at about 30,000 per year, DeRossett calculated about 50,000 per year, and Owens gave a much higher estimation.

DeRossett also mentioned the possibility of getting plow blades attached to the trucks to be purchased so the trucks could double as snow plows. Owens has been using a plow he bought for his truck for the past two winters.

"This is not something we are trying to be secretive about," Owens said. "We have brought it up at two public meetings and it has been advertised in the paper. We have nothing to hide."

Collins responded, "There is no other reason for reporting this item. I'm not going to get elected magistrate over this issue."

Lackey Jail

overnight and let them go," said Caudill. "I'd peek in as I was going by to see who was in for the night."

From what Collins and Caudill remember of those long ago days, the jail didn't seem to make a big dent in Lackey's crime problems. Caudill remembers at least four policemen being killed in the surrounding area. Two deputy sheriffs, brothers Ron and Dick Clark, were shot dead while attempting to make an arrest in the Garrett post office. Lackey policeman Dale Scott was killed in "Rat Row", a particularly rough section of Lackey, according to Caudill. The man who killed Scott was soon shot dead himself by friends or relatives of the dead policeman.

Attempts at organizing mine workers in the early 30s resulted in further trouble and violence.

A slow down in the coal market and drop in coal prices signaled the beginning of the end of the Lackey coal and crime boom. By mid-1930, mine production began dropping and people started leaving the area. World War II ignited and more people left the area, never to return.

By the mid-1960s, the old jail, deserted for 20 years, received new occupants of the inking kind. Hogs were kept in the old cells for about five years, providing a welcomed home for the jail's different breed of inmate.

Since it's time as hog haven, the jail has stood empty, a playhouse for children, spiders, birds and mice. The jail's screeching iron doors and narrow, barred windows provide the faintest echo of its wild past of 60 years gone by.

guns because they tend to distract schoolchildren. We want to spend time with them and develop a rapport, to promote the idea that we're there to help them. At the same time, we want to build self confidence among them, so that peer pressure to use drugs won't affect them, as it often does with teenagers."

At the end of the 16-week program, participants will receive a certificate during a formal graduation program. The ceremony is designed to reemphasize the importance of avoiding drugs.

DARE will begin at Prestonsburg Elementary no later than Feb. 5, said Sgt. Blackburn. The Floyd County Sheriff's Department is considering the start-up of a similar program for other schools in the county.

"Really, the primary purpose is to show kids that drugs aren't needed if you want to succeed in life," said Officer Hunt. "Through role modeling and education, we hope to get this message across."

Jenny Wiley Theatre Gets Interior Facelift

Most play watchers won't notice any difference. But when actors and crew return to Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre this summer, they may have to be reminded they're in the right place.

The state Parks Department is spending about $15,000 now to revamp the actors' dressing rooms and costume room to make them more space efficient, safer and cheerier.

Some showers that generally weren't being used have been removed in both men's and women's dressing rooms to free up the space. Both areas, plus the laundry room, sport new plumbing, and the electrical system has been redone.

New plumbing and lighting fixtures have been installed, and more mirrors are being added to aid the actors when they apply their stage makeup.

Redoing the plumbing and toilet and shower facilities has freed up more room for costume storage — a constant problem for theatre crews, according to theatre manager Tedi Vaughan. State workers have also built racks for hanging costumes in the middle of the dressing rooms and have added shelves for stashing hats and other costume props. Previously, the machines were set up wherever space could be found, generally in the middle of the room.

Other improvements include sandblasting peeling paint from the concrete floors and painting all the walls in lighter hues to brighten the windowless rooms that theatergoers seldom see.

Stanley Wodyard of the Parks Department said the improvements are made possible because some other department projects have come in under cost. "This is excess money, and we decided to spend it here at Jenny Wiley," Wodyard said.

"I don't want to exaggerate, but I'm tickled to death," said Leon Russell, manager of Jenny Wiley State Resort Park. "The Department of Parks hasn't forgotten the theatre. The work is being done and the money is being spent wisely. If people can just bear with us until 1991, it'll be even better."

Russell referred to the anticipated total renovation of the theatre that is scheduled to start next fall.

In addition to the interior work, Wodyard said his crew of workers from the Division of Special Maintenance and Construction expects to do about $10,000 worth of work on the theatre grounds. That work will include patching the roof on the lighting shelter and working on drainage around the theatre.

Russell and Vaughan gave theatre board members Linda Francis and Nancy Martin a tour of the remodeling in progress Wednesday.

Members of the board of directors and management of Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre met Wednesday with a crew from the state Parks Department's Division of Special Maintenance and Construction to take a look at what the workers have done to improve the dressing rooms and utility areas at the theatre.

Two Allen Central High School students earned a second place award during regional competition in the 1990 Sweet 16 Academic Showcase at Morehead State University, Jan. 20.

Davina Chaffins and Rodney Wiley finished second in the category of "Journalism: Advertising/Promotion." Brian Meadows, also of ACHS, took fourth place in the category of "English: Essay."

The top four winners in each of 12 academic categories qualify for state finals, March 14-16 at Pennsylvania University.

The MSU meet, which attracted 608 students from 63 high schools, was one of four regional competitions.

The only other area placements were Renae Blanton, Paintsville High School, third place in speech; Misty Daniels, Pikeville High School, fourth place, speech; and the team of Floyd Lowe, Greg Childers, Dennis Varney and Fiona Slone, from Johns Creek High School, which placed third in math.

Cow Creek Area News

Not all topics considered by the state legislature receive the kind of attention given to such issues as education, roads, prisons and welfare. And that's probably as it should be.

Last week, a little noted bill caught our attention. Seems a couple of years ago, the General Assembly passed a bill, HB 347, calling for an annual statewide slogan and essay contest among high school students on the subject of voting. We found out about it because the secretary of state is charged with publicizing and administering the contest.

Legislators certainly are to be applauded for the spirit of the contest mandate. Two issues here strike a nerve. First, anything—a contest or whatever—that goads students to write is commendable. Far too few opportunities exist for students to write or to learn to write.

Second, mention voting and I normally pull out my soapbox. I have no tolerance for people who do not exercise our most precious right. The lame excuses that generally boil down to fatalism, ignorance or laziness are just that—lame.

So I'm in favor of a contest that promises to reward students who will spend a few creative moments thinking about the importance of voting.

But (you knew it was coming), the terms of the contest just don't sit well.

For writing an essay, one student in each grade, 9-12, across the state can win a $100 US Savings Bond. Thus, a total of $400 will be given out to those students who take the time to think through a rational argument for voting, organize it into a compelling case and arrange the words coherently (and neatly, I suspect) on paper. To make a good impression, they'll no doubt type it.

Yet, for the students statewide who come up with a snappy slogan about voting, the purse is worth $1,750. In fact, the third best slogan pays two and a half times more than a prizewinning essay. The number one slogan writer earns 10 times that of a winning essay writer. Write a topnotch slogan of, say, five words—a decent length—and you pick up a neat $200 per word.

For those of us who believe a thoughtful essay containing a logical, compelling argument is more difficult to create and ultimately more persuasive, this contest is disturbing.

Perhaps this contest reflects the political climate not only of our state, but in our country as well. Perhaps it says something disturbing about our whole society.

A slogan is kind of like the long columns of box scores in small type in a big city newspaper. We know the score, but we have no idea how skillfully each team played or what strategies worked or whether the referees were fair or who the hero was or what the outlook is for the next game. An essay is the play by play account that explains the game.

Are we so hurried, so self-absorbed, so superficial that we value a catchy phrase more than something that might force us to pause and, God forbid, think, understand and act. Do we put more stock in a quick fix than in a carefully researched and planned program?

Just say yes.

Guns & Roses, a heavy metal rock group received two awards Monday night during the American Music Awards. Well known lead guitarist, Slash, was chosen along with another band member to accept the award on behalf of the group. With beer in hand and profanity in mouth, he strutted onto the stage, his black leather vest over his naked torso. Previously he had sat in the audience bare chested, surrounded by tuxedos and sequins.

I believe that Slash's representation of heavy metal rock groups left a bad image in the eyes of the viewers. No, not all heavy metal groups acted or dressed like Slash during the awards presentation, and maybe other members of the Guns & Roses didn't either. But with Slash representing them, musicians in that category are getting hit hard with ridicule and dismay, and so they should.

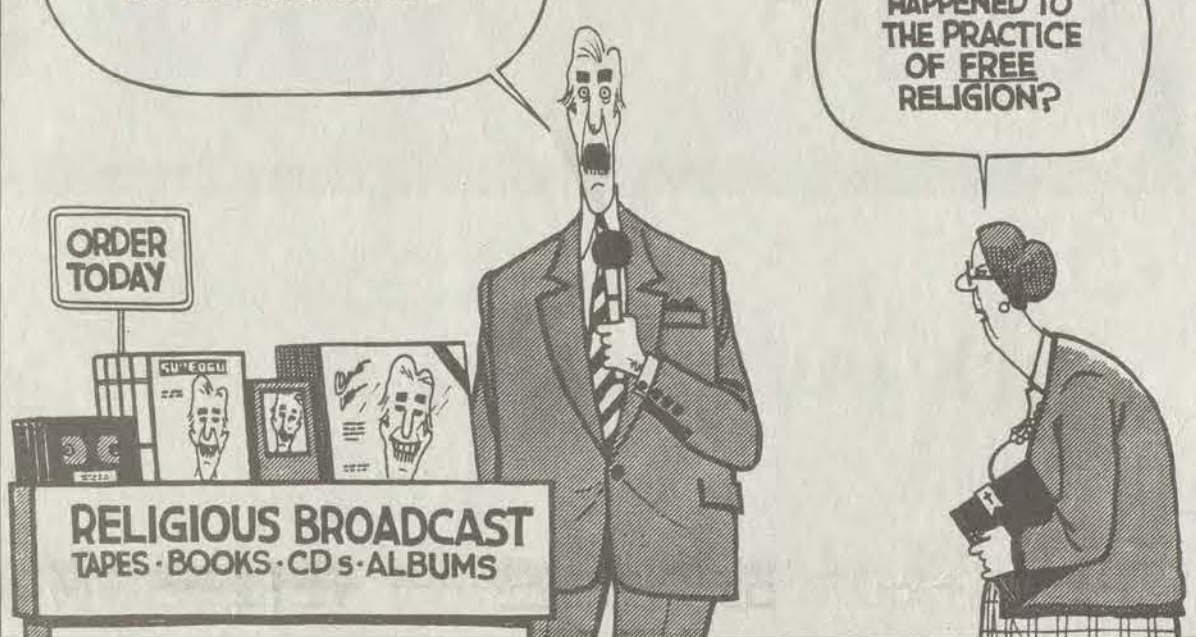

For those of you who missed the show, for the most part it was quite enjoyable. My brother, the biggest Janet Jackson fan around, was thrilled with the two awards she walked away with. And that gorgeous Randy Travis got his share, as well. Both of these artists and the other award winners were quite gracious in their acceptance of the glass pyramid on a black base.

As I said, the American Music Awards on the whole was excellent. It's just a shame that a few bad apples can spoil such an exquisite bunch. We've all heard around here these past few months how "both sides of a story need told." It's just that the "bad" side sticks like glue in most minds, like thorns on roses.

An even greater irony to this saga is the fact that last year was the first year heavy metal rock groups were included in the music awards with a category of their own. Maybe the fear that something like this would happen was the factor that prevented their admission earlier. Although I believe Alice Cooper did a satisfactory job as a presenter of the categories, even he frightened my little girl, who cowered on the couch when he came on the screen. However, I know when she gets to be about 10 years older, her room will no doubt be covered in posters of such men. Ah, for the innocence of youth.

Maybe dear ol' Slash, because of his open-mouth-insert-foot—half of his leg routine, will end up being Guns & Roses' "Bullet of Thorns."

Washington Report

By Congressman Chris Perkins

MAKING EASTERN KENTUCKY STRONGER AND SAFER

Looking back on 1989 and Eastern Kentucky, one word comes to mind...floods. Starting in January of last year, Eastern Kentucky experienced severe and repeated flooding throughout a nine-month period. Eight counties in our area were three times declared disaster areas. The flooding destroyed homes, damaged schools, and devastated many local businesses. Although I hope that 1990 will not bring the same degree of serious flooding, we cannot simply rely on our luck holding out. We must make Eastern Kentucky better prepared for flood disasters.

I have long recognized the need for flood protection in the Seventh district. In the 1989 session of Congress, I focused much of my efforts on securing funding for several flood projects in Eastern Kentucky. Fortunately, I was successful. This past fall, Congress approved $12.86 million in federal funds for Eastern Kentucky flood projects and studies in 1990. The money will go toward work at the following sites:

- $8.5 million for the Yatesville Dam project in Lawrence County
- $2.1 million for the South Williamson flood project
- $1.65 million for the completion of the Mine Fork Road relocation around the Paintsville lake

—$210,000 for a reconnaissance study of flooding in Jackson

—$150,000 for the preliminary engineering of the Hazard flood project

—$150,000 for a study of Licking river flooding in West Liberty

—$50,000 for a study of the channel diversion proposal in Clay City

—$50,000 for a study of the proposed buyout of residents at Fishtrap lake in Pike county.

Previously appropriated funds are being used for the cut-thru in Salyersville.

The approval of this funding represents a very positive step toward making us safer from the damage and danger of flooding by allowing important projects and studies to move more quickly and efficiently. Other problems still persist, however.

I remain concerned about the Office of Surface Mining's emergency program in cases of abandoned mine flooding. This past spring, I questioned the OSM's procedures in regard to abandoned mine emergencies involving flooding. As you remember, there were several reports that the OSM had run out of money and was ill-equipped to handle situations where people's homes and possessions were being destroyed by the effects of flooded abandoned mines. Furthermore, the severe flooding of this past fall aggravated the abandoned mine sliding problems we experienced in the fall. Since Kentucky has no state emergency program, we were and are dependent on the federal program and the valuable emergency services it provides. Because of this, I worked hard to ensure that the reauthorization of the Abandoned Mine Land Program, which includes this crucial emergency program passed the House. Included in the reauthorization was a measure that I introduced that would ease restrictions on the use of abandoned mine funding to help communities solve water supply problems. In addition, the OSM recently decided to open up a field office in Ashland to better handle such emergencies. In earlier instances, OSM people came all the way from Pittsburgh.

The very beauty of Eastern Kentucky—its hills and streams and narrow hollows—make it especially prone to serious flooding. With today's technological and engineering advances and the fine work of the Army Corps of Engineers, there are ways to lessen the severity. With the approval of over $12.5 million in federal funds for flood projects, we will be better prepared in the coming years. But we cannot rest here. More needs to be done for flood control in Eastern Kentucky, and I don't plan to stop here. Our health, our safety, and our future depend on it.

The Facts

1.5 in 1979 to 1.2 in 1988. "In the late 1970s and early 1980s we saw the availability of contraceptives to teens grow dramatically," she said. "This is one factor that explains the large drop in the early part of the decade."

"To make another sizable decrease in teen pregnancy, we must have a comprehensive approach to the issue," Nicol said. "This approach would involve education, counseling and availability of contraceptives."

A family life education curriculum mandated by the General Assembly and started in schools this month is promising in the fight to prevent teen pregnancies, she said. The classes, which are tailored for kindergarten through grade 12, include family values, responsible decision making, self-esteem, parenting skills and human sexuality.

"This new education effort along with the work that local health departments have been doing for years will be instrumental in continuing to lower Kentucky's high number of teen pregnancies," Nicol said.

In addition to the 10 years worth of data, an analysis of the 1988 birth data reveals other interesting points. "While the highest number of teen births occurred in an urban area, the highest rate occurred in rural Eastern Kentucky.

The KIPDA district, which includes Louisville, had the highest number of teen births at 17.63. The Cumberland Valley Area Development District had the highest rate at 73.1 births per 1000 teenage females. Although the Big Sandy ADD was listed at a rate of 66.3 rate, ranking third, Floyd County had a rate of 80.1.

**Of teenage girls giving birth in 1988, 51 percent were married at the time of birth. This compares to 78 percent of all women giving birth.

These statistics prompt several questions — How many of these conceptions occurred in marriage? Did these young married couples finish high school? How long will the marriages last?

"The likelihood is that one or both of these young people will drop out of school to support their family,"

Ted Hanekamp, manager of the department's family planning branch, said.

According to Hanekamp, 80 percent of the pregnant teens 17 and under never finish high school, and those who become fathers before 18 are about 40 percent less likely to graduate from high school. Teen marriages are two to three times more likely to end in divorce than marriages among older people.

**In 1988, only 59 percent of teen mothers had early prenatal care, the single most important factor in having a healthy baby. This compares to 76 percent of all mothers.

"We know definitely that early and effective prenatal care has a positive impact on a baby's health," he said. "If abstinence fails, contraception does not occur and a girl gets pregnant, the single most important thing she can do for her baby and herself is to get early prenatal care."

The lack of early prenatal care among teens translates into a high percentage of low birth-weight babies born to adolescents. In 1988, 6.7 percent of all babies were low birth-weight, but 8.6 percent of births to teens were dangerously small babies — under five-and-a-half pounds.

According to Claire Martin, RN, pediatric nurse practitioner for Floyd County, most teenagers don't come in for health care until the second or third trimester, after which the most critical time for the fetus development has passed. Martin attributes this fact to denial and fear, noting that pregnant teens don't face the facts of pregnancy until it is obvious.

Many teens don't seek medical attention at all, she pointed out.

This leads to a high rate of complications associated with the pregnancy and birth. Nutrition and proper care of the mother's system is a major concern for educators and prenatal caregivers.

"Generally teenagers don't have the proper diet needed to carry a baby. Also the fact that many of the teens use tobacco and alcohol contributes to the problem," Martin said. "Teenage mothers also are more likely to have improper weight gain or loss during pregnancy. This is something that is very important and needs to be monitored."

She also noted that teen mothers, especially those of low birth-weight babies, have a higher risk for neglect and abuse. "This type of baby requires numerous doctor visits and special care, which proves to be more than the teen mother can handle," Martin said.

"Teenage mothers have a lot of emotional turmoil and their needs tend to get in the way of the babies.

Life experience is essential to raising a child and these girls don't have it yet."

Other complications from early sexual contact is a high rate of cervical cancer (appearing later in life) and infant mortality, Martin said.

Part two of this series will discuss efforts by local health departments to provide education, counseling and health services — both birth control and prenatal care — to teenagers.

Sobering Thought

Question: How can a parent tell if a teenager is chemically dependent?
Answer: Chemical dependency in teenagers, just as in adults, is a primary, progressive, chronic, treatable disease. It is not a passing phase, or a symptom of some other underlying disorder. If left untreated, it will not get better. It can only get worse.

Though all adolescents experience emotional changes due to the following stresses of growing into adulthood, clusters of the following behaviors may signal chemical dependency:

- Sudden, noticeable personality changes
- Severe mood swings, depression or agitation
- A change of peer groups
- Worsening grades
- Loss of interest in extra-curricular activities
- Decreased interest in family activities
- Irresponsible attitudes toward household jobs and rules
- Neglect of personal hygiene
- Changes in sleeping or eating habits
- Sudden weight loss
- Increasing dishonesty
- Trouble with the law
- Truancy or tardiness from school
- Denial of drugs or alcohol being used
- Hiding drug paraphernalia or alcohol

No one is too young to have trouble with alcohol or other drugs. The sooner help is sought, the better the chances or recovery. Next Week — Twenty Questions For Parents.

The Everlasting Light

Those we love must someday pass beyond our present sight...
must leave us
and the world we know without their radiant light.
But we know
that like a candle
their lovely light
will shine
to brighten up another place
more perfect...more divine.
And in the realm of Heaven
where they shine
so warm and bright,
our loved ones live forevermore
in God's eternal light.

Perhaps you sent a lovely card, Or sat quietly in a chair,
Perhaps you sent a floral piece, If so we saw it there.
Perhaps you spoke the kindest words, As any friend could say,
Perhaps you were not there at all, Just thought of us that day.
Whatever you did to console our hearts,
We thank you so much whatever the part.

Good defense

Stuart Robinson of Prestonsburg is looking for somewhere to go with the ball against the defense of Chris Newsome (23) of Betsy Layne. Prestonsburg fell to the Bobcats, 63-53.

Cold second period Freezes Blackcats

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Prestonsburg Blackcats experienced some coldness from the field Tuesday night against the Betsy Layne Bobcats as they could only manage eight second-quarter points and dropped a 63-53 conference game to the front running Bobcats.

"Our defense was solid tonight," Betsy Layne coach Junior Newsome explained, "and defense is always supposed to be the solid part of your game. That's what we always tell our kids. When your offense is not clicking, your defense will always be there."

Senior center Sam Stewart led the Bobcats in scoring with 25 points. Teammate Adam Gearheart scored 17.

Betsy Layne jumped in front early, 6-2, on buckets by Stewart, Phillip King and Chris Newsome. Prestonsburg then came back with a 9-0 run to take a 11-6 lead behind the scoring of Ray Collins. Collins hit a three-pointer in the quarter.

Stewart controlled the boards for the Bobcats with several offensive put backs. Stewart scored eight points in the first quarter.

"Sam's coming into his own," Newsome said of his 6' 5" center. "Traditionally Sam has never been a fast starter. He just keeps getting better and better. He makes other teams play honest on defense. When they double and triple team Sam, he just dishes the ball off to someone else to score."

With Betsy Layne on top, 22-17, in the second quarter, Kevin Adams' basket underneath and Stuart Robinson's offensive put back cut the lead to one, 22-21. Betsy Layne then ran off 10 unanswered points to go up by 11, 32-21, at the half.

"We got some easy runouts off our defense," the Betsy Layne mentor said. "When you play solid defense you'll get the baskets. We were patient on offense and we got the ball inside to the people we wanted to when we couldn't someone hit the shot outside. That makes a balanced attack."

The Bobcats took a 40-28 lead middle ways of the third period only to have the Blackcats come back and cut the lead to six, 40-34. Gearheart's three-pointer just before the buzzer pulled the lead to nine, 45-34, at the end of the third period.

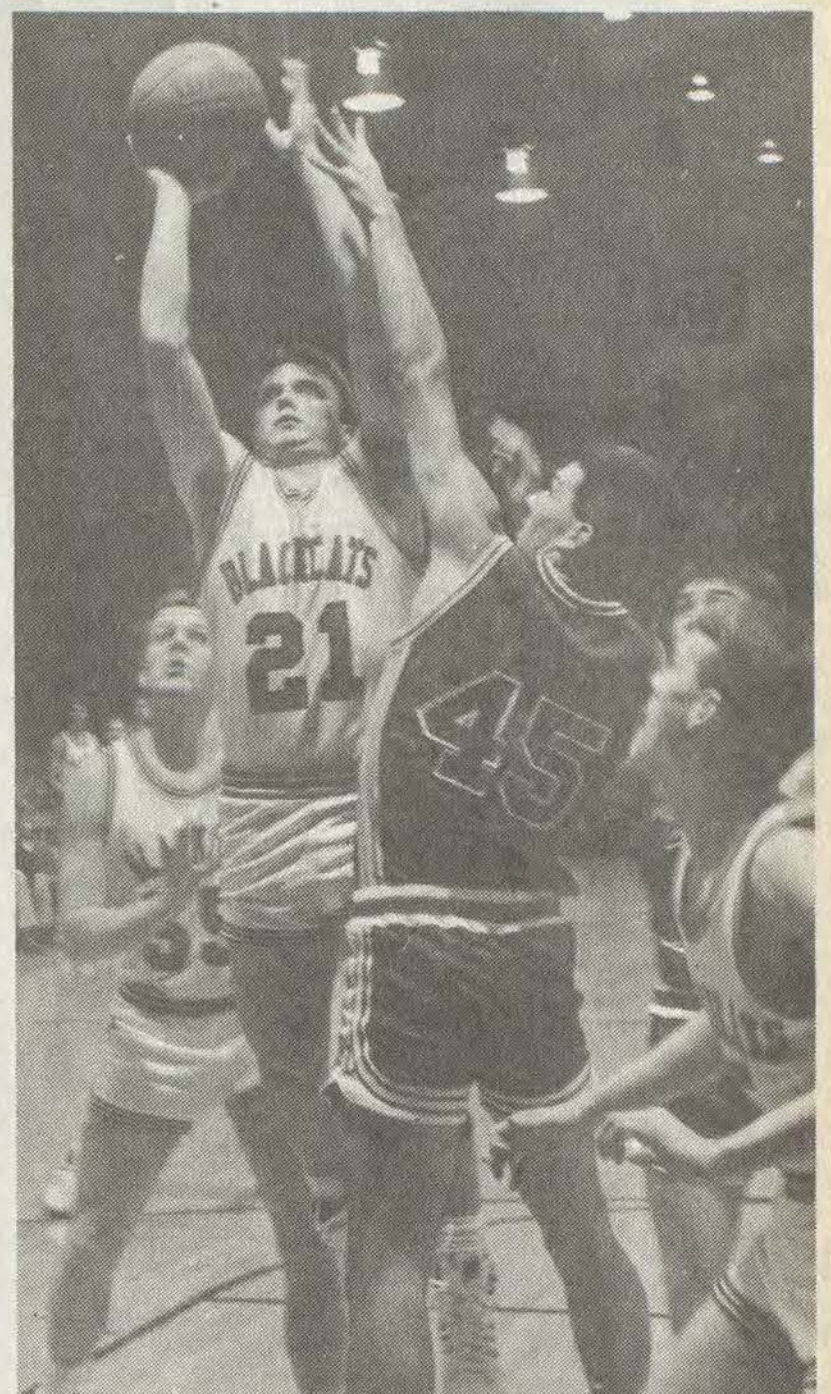

In the fourth stanza, again Betsy Layne pulled out by 12 only to have Prestonsburg cut the lead to six, 50-44. The closest the Blackcats could come was 52-44 with 2:28 to go.

Chris Slone led the Blackcats in scoring with 17 points. Bobcat Keith Hall shadowed Slone the entire game as the Betsy Layne defense keyed on the sharpshooter. Slone desperately tried to bring the Cats back from the three-point range but without success. Kevin Adams added 12 points for Prestonsburg.

"Keith (Hall) is slowly getting the reputation of being one of the top defense players in the state. He bothers you and hounds you all the time," said Newsome.

Betsy Layne goes to 9-5 on the season while Prestonsburg falls to 5-8. The win was the fifth conference win for Betsy Layne while Prestonsburg suffered its second conference setback.

Shelton scores 41 points as Daredevils continue roll

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

"We're on a roll" is the way McDowell coach Johnny Ray Turner summed up his team's play of late in high school basketball. The Daredevils, coming off a big win over the Musketeers of Greenup County to avenge an earlier loss, got revenge again as they stopped the Millard Mustangs, 95-82 for their second consecutive win and their fourth of the season.

McDowell fell to the Mustangs at Millard in the opening game of the season on Nov. 28, 80-74.

"Millard had 39 rebounds in that game back in November," said Turner. "In this game they got only 18."

Another big key in the win was the defense on Millard's outstanding center, Barry Hopkins. Hopkins scored 31 points in the first meeting between the two schools. Tuesday night Hopkins was held to 19 points.

The big gun for the on-charging Daredevils is Keith Shelton who scored a career high 41 points to lead McDowell to victory. The Daredevils also got some offense punch from the Hall Boys, Marc and Stacy. Stacy Hall scored 22 points while Marc tossed in 19.

"Keith just played a super game for us," Turner said of his center's performance. "He was hitting from the inside and outside. He even hit a three-pointer in the game. We were just running our offense and Keith was hitting out of the offense. That's what I like about it."

Both teams combined to score 45 points in the first quarter with the Daredevils on top at the first stop, 24-21. McDowell carried a 41-36 lead to the locker room at half time.

With the performance by McDowell's "big three", Turner quickly pointed to the play of Mike Duddleson as a key to his team's victory.

"Mike just hustled all through the game," Turner stated. "He was diving for the ball and coming up with loose balls."

"Our bench played super," the Daredevil mentor continued, "and they had to play with Marc and Stacy on the bench with two fouls each. Both sat out the second quarter and part of the first."

McDowell returned to the court in the third period and continued good play, enroute to a big 95-82 win over a tough 15th Region foe.

"We are playing as a team," says Turner, "and we are getting good play off the bench."

Turner credits the change in the Daredevil offense as a result of his squad playing as a team.

McDowell improves its record to 4-13.

McDowell will face Allen Central tonight in conference play at Allen Central at 8 p.m.

Seems these basketball players are all together as they try for a rebound in Floyd County Conference play Tuesday night at Prestonsburg. The Lady Blackcats fell to the Lady Cats, 71-42.

Smith leads Lady Cats To 71-42 win over P'burg

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats put a crushing blow to the conference hopes of the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats with a 71-42 victory Tuesday night at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse. The loss was the third conference setback for the Lady Blackcats, against one victory.

Jamie Smith, the Floyd County Times "Player of the Week" in girl's basketball, scored 18 points while gathering in 10 rebounds to help the Lady BobCats to victory. Smith worked hard on the boards getting several second shots in scoring her 18 points.

Brenda Hamilton, who started slowly, tossed in 14 points. Melissa Bailey was the third Lady Bobcat to hit in double figures with 12 points. Bailey had eight of her 12 points in the first quarter.

Betsy Layne came out smoking in the first quarter, blitzing the Lady Blackcats, 23-1. Kathy Slone's lone free throw at the start of the quarter was all the scoring Prestonsburg could muster. The Lady Blackcats turned the ball over eight times in the first stanza, allowing Betsy Layne to get some easy baskets.

Betsy Layne employed a tight 2-2-1 zone half court trap defense. Slone, normally a good free throw shooter, missed five of her first quarter attempts.

"I don't think it was as much the press that hurt Prestonsburg, although we did get a couple of baskets off of it. I believe our half court defense hurt them more," said Betsy Layne coach Cary Hopkins. "We went three or four times into Missy (Bailey) and she was fouled. I believe that was a big turning point, plus in that same

Lady Trojans rout ACHS

Basketball fans have been wondering when the really big upset might occur in high school basketball this season. Some thought it was when McDowell boys defeated the Betsy Layne Bobcats earlier in the year.

On Tuesday night the upset of upsets may have occurred, or did it? The Lady Trojans of Wheelwright placed three players in double figures enroute to a 61-50 win over the highly regarded Allen Central Lady Rebels.

Jedon Hood tossed in 24 points to head up a list of balanced scoring for the Wheelwright team.

"We played our best game of the season," Lady Trojan coach Donnie

Daniels said. "The big reason we won was that Stephanie Little and Carrie Smith played great defense on Conn (Jo Ann) and Gibson (Teresa)."

The Lady Trojans held the Lady Rebs to just 18 first half points, nine in each of the first two quarters, while compiling a 28-18 half-time lead.

"Jedon had an excellent game for us," the Lady Trojan mentor explained, "and this game had to be one of the top two offensive games we have had this season." Daniels said that his team performed well offensively against Paintsville in the other one.

Allen Central came back in the second half to play like it is capable of playing offensively. However, the

Focus on Floyd County Elementary Tournament

Well, the grade school basketball season is finally over. No one will miss the games more than me. I have thoroughly enjoyed attending and covering the grade school basketball season this year.

I am very impressed with some of the grade school players soon to infiltrate our high school ranks in the next two years. It reminds me of the quality of players we had in the high school ranks last year. And who can forget the season last year?

Thank you to coaches and players

To all the coaches and players: I want all of you to know, and I am sure I can speak for the basketball fans, that we thank you for the fun and entertainment you have provided for us. You have displayed a quality program on each level of competition that was very representative of your school.

Great job, Mark!

Congratulations to Mark Newsome, tournament director, for a job well done. We appreciate you, Mark! With all the cancellations because of snow, it had to become discouraging at times. But good ol' Mark hung right in there.

Congratulations are in order for the Allen Eagles and coaches David Mosley and Stevie Halbert for winning the boy's championship. Jalenda Shepherd brought the Lady Wildcats of Maytown from an underdog role to the coveted title in girl's basketball.

New coaches

Here's to the new coaches in the county grade school this season. Ernie Tackett did an excellent job with the Betsy Layne team this year. Tackett's team won its first six games of the season. The Lady Bobcats also had a new coach, Sheila Ortega, who made it a pleasure to cover her team's games. She took the Lady Bobcats further in competition than they have ever gone. The Osborne Eagles enjoyed a great season under new coach Meredith Slone. The Eagles lost only one time this season and that was to Allen in the semifinals of the tournament. Returning to the coaching ranks was Greg Johnson at McDowell. Greg is no stranger to coaching as he has pulled that stint before.

Who can say any more than what has already been said of Ashland Gearheart's job at Prestonsburg? Gearheart had the younger 'Cats playing top basketball. Dale Hamilton at Clark struggled, but mostly with real young sixth graders. Dickie Jarvis did an excellent job at Auxier, bringing a program that knew few wins of the past to a good season this year. In Dwight Newsome of Harold, you could see a little of dad's (Junior Newsome) coaching. Harold was a fine team and a strong team.

All the other coaches are veterans and just did an outstanding job this year.

Cheerleaders take first place

The Prestonsburg grade school cheerleaders, who always do a great job, won first place in the cheerleaders' competition during the tournament for the boys. For the girls, once again it was the Prestonsburg cheerleaders taking first place.

Martin girls set record

A tournament note worth mentioning was that the Martin girls basketball team was going for its sixth straight title until it was defeated. That may be a hard record to break. The Martin boys were shooting for their second straight title. The John M. Stumbo girls and Osborne boys were the only two undefeated teams entering the tournament. Both lost in the semifinals and finals.

All-Star playoffs

I would like to see an All-Star team selected from each section and the holding of a four team All-Star playoff. Think of the talent you could put together on each team. Forrest Hughes of Maytown mentioned this idea to me, and I think it would be great. So do a lot of the coaches.

Season extended

Three of the county grade school teams will extend their season by participating in the Pikeville Bears Elementary Tournament tonight (Friday) and tomorrow. Betsy Layne, Prater and Harold will take part. (See separate story)

Bobcats' Smith underrated In local girls' basketball

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

She goes out in every game, giving it all that she's got. She is seen diving on the floor for a loose ball or getting under the basket and mixing it up for a rebound.

"Miss Hustle" is an appropriate name for Lady Bobcat Jamie Smith, an underrated girl's basketball player in Floyd County.

Smith always has a positive attitude toward the game she has learned to love.

"I love the game of basketball," said Smith. "I just love to play the game."

Smith is a modest player who likes to give credit to other players while taking a back seat to them. However, the junior standout feels that sometimes she is underrated as a basketball player — "a little bit."

Then she adds, "But other players who are better than you should get the recognition."

Smith, who played grade school basketball at Harold, says that the hustle and diving to the floor is all part of her game.

"It keeps me going," she stated. "If I don't get on the floor, block out and rebound I don't feel I'm playing ball or doing the team any good."

"I love rebounding," said Smith, who is averaging around 12 per game. "My biggest game was when I had 16 rebounds."

Smith remembers that her biggest win since playing high school basketball was in the finals of the district tournament against Wheelwright as a freshman.

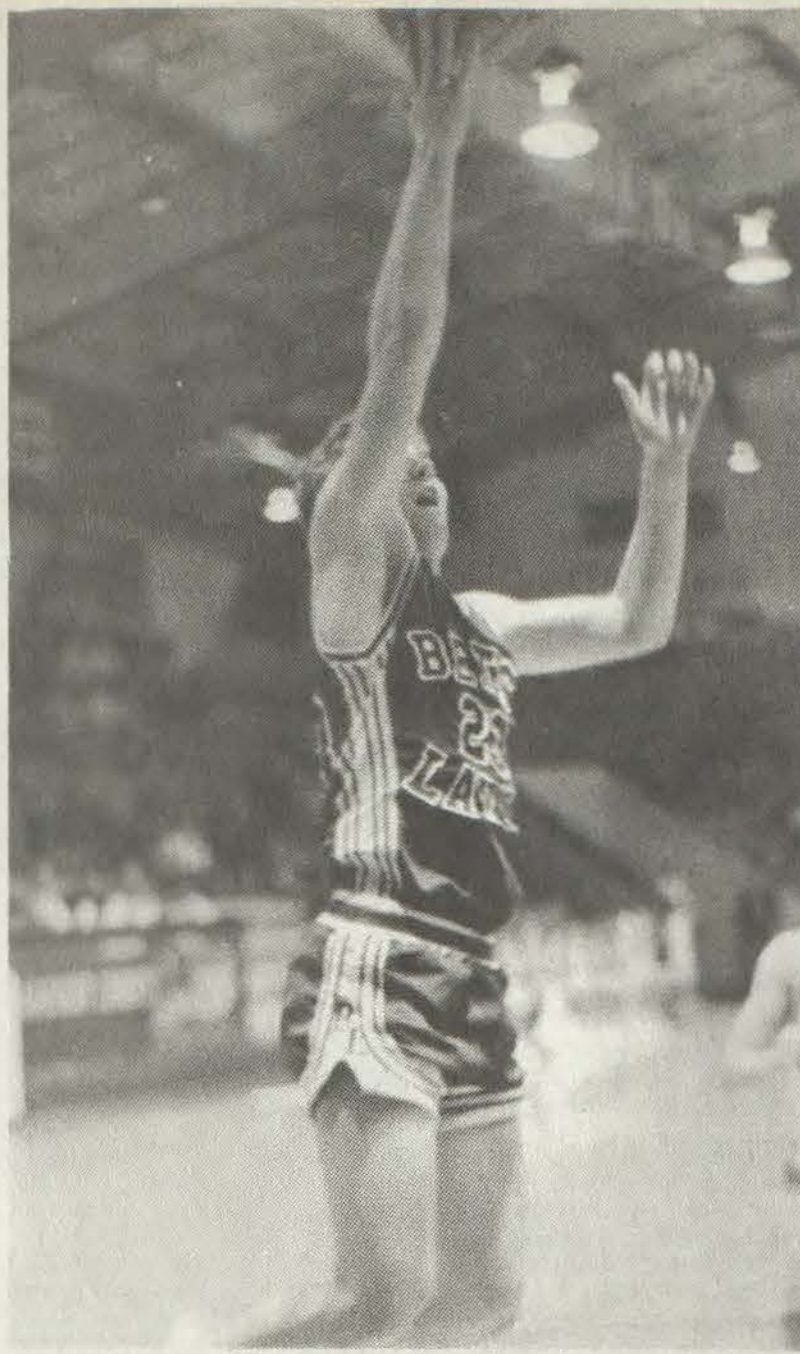

Smith became interested in basketball when she was young. "My cousin and I would play together when we were little. We would play on dirt courts and I like it so I went out for the team in grade school," explained the modest player.

One of the goals that Smith has set for herself as a senior is to go the state and score 20 points a game. With her hustle and desire, that doesn't sound out of reach.

"I think if you give it all you got and have loyalty the whole game, you will always come out a winner," Smith said in explaining her philosophy on basketball.

Smith is a pleasure to watch in the game of basketball. She doesn't take her role as a Lady Bobcat for granted. She wants to help her team to be a winner — which she has. But Jamie Smith, girl basketball player, will always be a winner with the fans.

The world's largest island is Greenland. It's 840,000 square miles.

Newsome for a lay in

Chris Newsome (23) of Betsy Layne scores off a fast break for the Bobcats against Prestonsburg. Betsy Layne went 5-1 in the conference with a 63-53 win over the Blackcats.

span they did turn the ball over in the press. We took a big lead and they kind of gave up after the big lead."

Prestonsburg played even with Betsy Layne through the second and third quarters. Betsy Layne led at half time, 37-20, as Prestonsburg scored 19 points in the second period. The Betsy Layne bench has been a big plus for the local team, coming in to fill positions.

"Brianna Boyd, Susan Conn, Carrie Newsome and Nikki Webb have done a tremendous job for us," Hopkins said. "Enough cannot be said for what they have contributed." Boyd scored nine points in coming off the bench. The Lady Bobcats are strong with a good bench.

"We played a lot of people after the first quarter, nine to 10 people plus our freshmen in the last quarter. The last four games, the bench has really helped us."

It was all Bobcats in the final quarter as they began to pull away from the Prestonsburg team. Slone, the team's leading scorer, finished with just 11 points as she was watched by Nancy Shepherd. Slone took a beating underneath the basket as the taller Lady Bobcats controlled the paint area.

Stephanie Allen led the Lady Blackcats in scoring with 14 points. Allen hit from the outside on the short jumpers as she was left open by the Betsy Layne defense.

"We played well tonight. Not to take anything away from Prestonsburg. They are a young ball club and I think Coach Clay realizes it was not their night. But in the second half, nobody could play," Hopkins said.

Hopkins said even though his team is 6-0 in the conference the game left with Allen Central could determine the conference champion.

"Allen Central still has a few games left and anything could happen. We still have a home game with McDowell."

Betsy Layne goes to 13-5 overall and 5-1 in conference play.

Lady Rebels look for win Against Lady Daredevils

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

Bonita Compton's Allen Central Lady Rebs will be looking to get back on the winning track in conference play when the Lady Rebels take to the court to host Cassandra Keathley's Lady Daredevils of McDowell tonight.

The host Lady Rebs defeated Prestonsburg last Friday night and were upset by Wheelwright Tuesday night at Wheelwright. The Lady Rebs stand at 3-2 in conference play and trail front-running Betsy Layne by two games. The Lady Cats are 6-0 in conference play by virtue of a win over Bridget Clay's Lady Blackcats Tuesday night. Prestonsburg stands at 1-3 in the conference.

The Betsy Layne win, coupled with the Allen Central loss, clinched at least a tie for the conference title for the Lady Bobcats.

McDowell comes into the game with a regional win over Johns Creek on Monday night and 1-3 in the conference race. Lori Bryant hasn't had the season yet that was expected of the junior. Jenny Slone has come around offensively for the Lady Devils with some good inside play.

Turnovers and inconsistency have haunted the McDowell team all season. But the same was true last season and all Keathley's team did was knock off Allen Central at home in regular season play and went on to the finals of the district tournament.

Could there be a repeat this time around? Not if Jo Ann Conn and company have anything to say about it.

This will be a good one. Game time, 6:30 p.m.

by Ed Taylor

For most teams in the Floyd County grade school basketball area, it is time to put the uniforms in moth balls and hide the basketballs. But for three Floyd County teams, the season will go on for another two days.

Betsy Layne, Prater and Harold will take part in the Pikeville Bears Grade School Invitational Tournament starting tonight and finishing up tomorrow evening.

Good play continues Against Rebels tonight

by Ed Taylor

Coach Johnny Ray Turner hopes the way his team has been performing lately continues tonight as his McDowell Daredevils get set to visit the J. H. Campbell arena for a conference match up with Johnny Martin's Runtin' Rebels of Allen Central.

The meeting will be the second of the season for the two schools. Allen Central took a 20-point victory over the Daredevils earlier in the season at McDowell. The Daredevils played the Rebels tough in the first half, but could not put together two good halves in falling 75-55.

This time the Daredevils are coming off two consecutive wins over Greenup County and Millard.

"Allen Central is a tough team and it will be a tough game for us," said Coach Turner. "I hope we can continue to play the way we are right now."

"All conference games are important," the Daredevil coach continued. "We will rely on our bench to help us. We have settled on eight players that will see the most action for us. The rest get to play on the junior varsity."

According to Turner, the bench played a big part in last Tuesday night's win over Millard.

"The tough schedule we have played all year has helped us mature as a team," said Turner, "and we are hitting our free throws better. That hurt us in the game against Wheelwright."

The Rebels come into tonight's contest off a win over Monroe Jones' Wheelwright Trojans Tuesday night. The Rebels, 3-2 in the conference, have been struggling offensive lately.

Game time is 8 p.m. See you there!

conjunction with Rax Restaurants, will sponsor the tournament which begins this afternoon at 4 p.m. with a game between Millard Elementary and Mullins. Betsy Layne is scheduled to face off against the 10-2 Pikeville grade school team in the second game at 5:15 p.m.

Virgie will encounter a tough Harold team in the first night game at 6:30 p.m. In the final game of the evening scheduled for 7:45 p.m. Prater will go up against Johns Creek.

The semifinals will begin at 10 a.m. and at 11:30 a.m. Saturday. The two winners will play at 5:15 p.m. just before the Pikeville Bears-Georgetown game Saturday night. Trophies will be presented at half time of the Bears game. Terry Fitzer of Rax Restaurant in Pikeville will present the tournament trophies and T-shirts at halftime.

The school with the greatest spectator support and displaying the best sportsmanship will receive a $1200 computer for its school, compliments of Rax Restaurant and Darrell Maynard of Eastern Telephone in Pikeville, Fitzer said.

This is the first of such tournaments at the local college.

Lady Rebs' defense couldn't stop the Wheelwright team.

"We made very few turnovers in the game," explained Daniels. "We played a triangle and two defense, with Smith and Little chasing Conn and Gibson. The way they handled us at Allen Central earlier, I thought we had to stop those two girls."

Also scoring in double figures was Becky Allen with 16 points, including two three-pointers. April Bradford tossed in 15 points for Wheelwright.

Allen Central was led in scoring by Gibson with 12 points. Conn finished with 11. Pam Webb contributed nine points in the loss.

Bassin' with the Pros

Using Light Line Will Mean More Fish

If you want to catch more bass, then switch to light line.

That's the advice of Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler Guido Hibdon, considered by many to be one of America's finest light tackle bass fishermen. He regularly uses lines testing as low as six and eight pounds, even in the heavy-bass waters of Florida.

"Light line gives your lure a totally different presentation," explains Hibdon, winner of the 1988 BASS Masters Classic. "Lures look more natural because they aren't pulling a heavier, stiffer line through the water."

"If you're careful, and recognize the limitations of light line, you can do anything with it you can do with heavier line. I regularly flip into thick cover with 12 and 14-pound test line, but most anglers use 20 to 30-pound test."

The Johnson pro made a believer out of many eight line skeptics recently when he landed an 11-pound, 8-ounce largemouth from Lake Okeechobee's grassbeds on six-pound test line.

"I could see the bass in the clear water," Hibdon recalls, "and I made at least a dozen casts to her with eight-pound test line, putting my lure right in front of her."

"She never looked at the lure, but instead, looked at the line. She could see it and realized something was wrong."

Before he cast with the lighter, thinner six-pound test line, however, Hibdon resorted to a trick taught by his father years ago in the clear Missouri lakes where Hibdon learned to fish. He used a marking pen and "camouflaged" the line with black marks every three or four inches for several feet above his lure.

"The marks made the line appear broken and less noticeable," laughs Hibdon, who has used this trick in several other professional tournaments. "The bass grabbed the lure on the first cast."

"When bass are very spooky and hesitant to chase lures, either because of weather conditions, heavy fishing pressure, or clear water," Hibdon adds, "light line will give you an extra edge."

Colvin likes roles of tormentor

Dogs love to torment cats! Cats love to torment rats! Kevin Colvin likes to torment referees. It doesn't matter if it's basketball, baseball or football. He enjoys hollering at them.

Colvin will stand in the stands at basketball games and holler at the officials. Regardless of the call, it was a bad one with Colvin.

"Hey, ref, that wasn't right." "Hey, ref, I'm talking to you. That was a horrible call."

Colvin is a senior at Prestonsburg High School and attends all the games in basketball, baseball and football.

"One time I tormented the umpire at a baseball game and was thrown out of the ball park," he said. "I have a lot of fun with it. The fans enjoy it and Mr. Childers (his science teacher) gets a kick out of it."

Colvin says that he doesn't mean anything by doing it, it's just fun. Colvin believes that most officials do a good job. However, sometimes he is serious in his taunting.

"One time I got carried away and was almost on the floor at a Betsy Layne game," he said.

"He's crazy," said Kim Horne, a student at Prestonsburg, "but we love him."

So, the next time you are at a Prestonsburg game and you look on the Prestonsburg side and you see a student standing in the crowd taunting the officials, that's Kevin. "It's all show," says the tormentor.

Brooke Theiss busy with more than 'Just the 10 of Us' role

By Polly Vonetes
 Q: I would like some information on Brooke Theiss and Jamie Luner of Just the Ten of Us and an address where I could write to them. —Cathy Rembish, Fulton, Mo.

A: Jamie Luner is a recent graduate of Beverly Hills High School. She was born on May 12 in Palo Alto, Calif. When she was 3 years old, her mother sent the budding actress' picture to an agent. For the next five years she appeared in numerous commercials. Her television credits include a guest appearance on Growing Pains and in the TV movie, Rules of Marriage. She resides part-time with her mother in Beverly Hills, and part-time with her father in the Studio City area of Los Angeles. She has an older brother. Brooke Theiss was born on Oct. 23, in Sherman Oaks, Calif. She stays busy as the "Maxie Girl" representative for Hasbro's Maxie Doll when not filming the series. A part in a national commercial for Coca-Cola launched Brooke's career while she was still in high school. She is currently on leave of absence from New York University's Tisch School of the Arts, but plans to resume her studies when time permits. Brooke is a great lover of animals. Her menagerie has included, at various times, more than 30 mice, rabbits and a reptile or two. She is active in her church. Write to them c/o Warner Bros. TV, 4000 Warner Blvd., Burbank, Calif. 91522.

About Animals

Ky. Veterinary Medical Assoc.

Long range weather forecasts and various almanacs indicate that Kentucky may be in for a cold winter which presents special problems to owners whose animals are outside.

One of these is the simple problem of sufficient water which can become a severe problem if temperatures get below freezing for a considerable period of time.

It is so obvious that it is seldom mentioned, but water is the single most important dietary component for all species. Adult animals can go a week or two without feed, but one day without water and they are uncomfortable, two days and they are obviously sick and in three days many will be dead.

Water is important in carrying waste out of the body, in digesting food, in breathing, in literally every body function.

Extremely cold weather, however, presents a difficult problem for many animal owners. Ponds, even streams may freeze over and the ice become so solid the animals cannot break through to drink. Automatic watering devices will work only to a point, after which troughs and sometimes the faucets themselves may freeze.

Usually, surface ice on streams and ponds can be broken and the troughs and faucets thawed sufficiently to allow animals to drink, though this may need to be done several times a day. Perhaps the most important thing is to remember that the water is a necessity, it must be available.

Possibilities of frostbite and hypothermia must also be remembered in extremely cold weather, especially for animals which may give birth out of doors.

Frostbite is the destruction of surface or superficial body tissue as a result of exposure to cold, with secondary structural and functional disturbances of the smaller blood vessels.

Hypothermia is the lowering of the overall body temperature.

Neither condition is particularly uncommon in young animals, especially poorly nourished calves and foals exposed to storms and/or extreme cold.

Pigs farrowed in extreme cold often suffer frosting of exposed parts, especially the ears, and/or hypothermia. Sometimes combs of chickens are affected.

Slight frosting causes the skin to become pale and bloodless, soon followed by intense redness, heat, pain and swelling. In severe cases, skin may be destroyed and peel off.

In hypothermia, metabolic and physiological processes slow. Respiration and heart rate slow down, blood pressure lowers and finally consciousness is lost.

Both can be treated by warming the animal, slowly to avoid shock unless death is imminent.

Temperature need not always be severely low to cause frostbite. Wind chill is likely a more important factor, and young animals begin to be at risk when the wind chill factor is zero Fahrenheit.

While your veterinarian can treat frostbite and hypothermia, prevention is the best route. If you have animals about to give birth, keep an eye on the weather. Wind chill factor charts are easily available; most places that sell calendars have them and most weather forecasts include that information.

Also, when you see extreme cold weather on the way, devise ways to prevent frostbite. Usually a windbreak is sufficient.

Your veterinarian can probably tell you some clever ways to solve the problems, but you'll have to ask or he or she won't know you need the help.
