Landfill threatened by regulations

by Frank Clark Staff Writer

State regulations, recommended by Gov. Wallace Wilkinson's office, may shut down the Floyd County landfill and dozens of other landfills across the state.

Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo expressed concerns Wednesday that excessively strict state regulations recently announced by the governor would, among other things, require special plastic liners to be placed under all landfills and could drive the price of operating the county landfill excessively high.

"Right now, we're in the black with our operation," said Stumbo. "We're the only county in the state covering all our costs and making money, and we take no money from the General Fund. But that'd change if these regulations come through." Floyd County is only one of five counties in the state with a universal garbage pickup program. Stumbo says that between 120 to 125 tons of garbage a day goes into the landfill, located on KY 122, not far from the Floyd County Technical School. Despite the large quantity of trash going in, no ill effects on the ground water have been recorded.

"The ground water under the site is purer now than when we began using the site," said Bob McAninch, a political science professor at Prestonsburg Community College and a nationally recognized expert on landfills and waste disposal.

"The state is placing unnecessary restrictions on landfills in Kentucky, such as the plastic liner requirement. These liners are not necessary, and the idea is being pushed primarily by the plastic companies. In many instances, it's more ecologically sound to have unlined landfills," McAninch said.

McAninch cited cost figures for placing liners in a landfill at about $300,000 per acre. For Floyd County, which currently operates on only five See LANDFILL, Page 3

Operating on borrowed time?

New regulations sponsored by Gov. Wallace Wilkinson threaten to close the Floyd County Landfill in 1992. The landfill is one of 78 operating in Kentucky that could be forced to close, due to the cost of meeting new, stricter operation regulations. Floyd County officials question the motivations behind the new regulations, which could limit the state to a total of five large, privately owned landfills. A public hearing on the regulations will be held in Frankfort next Thursday.

School Board meeting roused by three citizen group complaints

Without complaints from three citizen groups, Wednesday night's meeting of the Floyd County School Board would have elicited more yawns than it actually did.

The agenda included approval requests for recommendations on routine operational matters made by Superintendent Ron Hager, discussions on how to pay for surprise debts and construction needs, a pitch by a television programming company—standard issues for the school board.

However, representatives of three groups enlivened proceedings during the public comment segment at the beginning of the meeting.

Speaking on behalf of the Floyd County Education Forum, Jean Rosenberg read a statement to the board which the Forum had previously run as an advertisement in newspapers. In the statement, the Forum took issue with a reference about negative community involvement in a December report to state Superintendent of Public Instruction John Brock from Robert Gover, the department's consultant to the local system.

Rosenberg said the Forum is "disappointed that the state's consultant put citizen efforts in such a negative light." She pointed to positive efforts the citizen's group has made on behalf of school improvement, and she asked that the board continue posi-

Place, Jo Elliot of Price for Jo's and Charles Hutchinson for Charlie's, also at Price.

Hutchinson's application was the only one that attracted a protest from more than 25 citizens. The citizens of Price contend that the "entertainment center" would increase traffic and congestion, create an intolerable noise factor and be a danger to their children, according to the petition filed in court.

Several residents were present at the hearing and noted that they would go to Frankfort to protest the opening of such an establishment in their "model community", should the need

Only one out of five persons applying for an entertainment license at the Floyd County Court hearing Thursday was approved. Jack Patton, who operates Jack's Place near Hueysville, had his renewal application for a bar-carryout, with a pool table and jukebox, approved by Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo.

Four other petitions were disapproved because the applicant did not meet state guidelines, according to County Attorney Jim Hammond. They were Luther Paige for Beaver Grocery on Tackett Fork of Big Mud Creek, Janice Hall of Grethel for Jan's

Cooling off time

We'll be returning to more winter-like weather this weekend, following the last few days of seeming summertime.

Friday will be cloudy with a 60 percent chance of showers in the morning, diminishing in the afternoon. Temperatures will fall into the mid-40s by evening. Friday night will be partly cloudy, with lows in the lower 30s.

Saturday looks to be continued partly cloudy with highs in the lower 40s. Saturday night will bring clearing skies and lows in the 20s.

Sunday will be mostly clear with temperatures in the upper 40s, and partly cloudy skies at night with lows in the 30s.

Monday and Tuesday look to also be partly cloudy, with highs in the lower to upper 50s and nighttime lows in the 40s. There's a chance of rain Tuesday.

Optimistic buds

The unseasonable warm weather Floyd County has been having recently seems to have some of the local plant and animal life confused. This little bud was scene peeking up through the leaves beside the Times office. With a quick glance around the area one can see several weeping willow trees already in bloom. Several small animals have been scene coming out of hibernation and the birds have been singing up a storm these past few days. Hopes are that the frost, that could come as early as today, does not kill off these early arrivals.

Labor-Management Committee to meet

The public is invited to attend the next meeting of the Big Sandy Area Labor-Management Committee to be held Tuesday, Feb. 20, at 6:30 p.m. in the old Big Sandy Area Development District building, 130 N. Lake Dr., Prestonsburg. The meeting will include a discussion of the committee's upcoming education program and the future reception series. For more information, call Scott Richardson, program director, at 886-3036.

Holiday closings

Monday is President's Day in celebration of George Washington's and Abraham Lincoln's birthdays. All federal offices, including the post office, will be closed. Also closed will be state and county offices, including the Department of Employment Services and the Floyd County Health Departments. All area banks will be closed as well. Prestonsburg City offices will remain open, and there will be school throughout the county. The Floyd County Solid Waste will continue its regular garbage pickup and the office of The Floyd County Times will be open on Monday as usual.

Bad day on the mountain

Two separate car accidents occurred within an hour of each other Thursday afternoon on Abbot Mountain, following a rain shower that slicked the mountain road. This accident occurred when James A. Davis, 19, of East Point apparently slid on a bend and sideswiped a vehicle driven by Betty Crisp, 38, also of East Point. Crisp was transported to Highlands Regional Medical Center following the accident. The Floyd County Sheriff's Department responded to both accidents.

Now for the good news

TV turns into real bonus for county students

by Pam Shingler Editor

Can you believe it? Floyd County high school students are being allowed to watch television at school. In fact, they're being encouraged to do it.

Of course, the kids love it, but now the teachers are in favor of it, too. What's the world coming to?

"It's one of the finest things I've seen happen," proclaims Joyce Watson, one of Allen Central High School's prize teachers.

Of course, Watson doesn't promote students' overexposure to the controversial tube. What she does promote is the use of the Star Channels program on Kentucky Educational Television.

Watson is one of a number of teachers in all of the county high schools who sing the praises of the program which allows students to take subjects the schools simply don't have the resources to offer.

Students throughout the county, for instance, are taking this semester a course called discrete mathematics, an advanced, fairly specialized course that most schools could not offer. Finding teachers for such a course is one problem, and justifying offering it to the handful of students who might be interested is another, especially in light of the need to present a range of basic courses.

Across the county at 10 a.m., the television comes on in selected classrooms. Students open their notebooks and switch on their portable keyboards that allow each to interact with the teacher on the screen.

From a KET studio more than 100 miles away, master teacher Tom Graviss emerges on the screen with a welcome and a warm up routine. In the day's lesson, he explains a new concept in the complex math and illustrates it graphically while a camera focuses on his handwork.

He gives the students a similar problem to work out or asks them a question about the concept. The ACHS students, along with students in 41 other counties and 16 other states, punch in their answers on the keyboard, and almost instantaneously, Graviss records the compilation, giving a graph showing what percentage of students answered correctly. The system gives him a chance to back up and explain the concept again if too many students appear not to have understood.

By phone, students can call Graviss with specific questions.

Graviss sends his tests and answer sheet (for school officials only) to the school via computer printer and modem. Test results are logged back to him and he can compute the results for his anxious audience the next day, showing them how they compare to the 618 students in the class at various locations.

For review, students can take a copy of the taped lesson home with them, which adds to their study time.

Each day, the show features a particular school in the network. Graviss wears a tee shirt from that school and converses on the phone

The first official step to address long term water problems in the Weeksbury, Melvin, and Burton areas of southern Floyd County was taken by the state Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet this week.

A state-funded "Weeksbury Groundwater Contamination Study" was announced. The study will undertake to sample and test existing and potential groundwater sources, in an effort to identify the severity, extent, and source of water contamination in the region. It will also seek the causes of water depletion.

Some $40,000 have been earmarked for the study, according to State Rep. Greg Stumbo.

According to residents in the area, the impact of coal mining over the past century, combined with the effects of recent gas well drilling, has reduced the quality and quantity of well water. Many residents have been forced to collect rain water, buy bottled water, or carry water in from other towns serviced by city systems.

David Gardner of the Big Sandy Area Development District says that the newly authorized study is the first step needed to bring state funding to bear on the county's water problem.

"A trust fund was established, controlled by the federal Office of Surface Mining, to be used for mitigation purposes on abandoned mine lands," said Gardner. "In order to receive funding from the Kentucky Abandoned Mining Land program, Floyd County may have a new, highly trained crime fighter working in the Sheriff's Department some time this year. Unlike most county deputies, however, this law enforcement officer will be furry, long-tailed, and have an exquisitely sensitive nose for drugs.

Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson has developed a proposal to purchase a drug sniffing dog for the county. Last Monday, he went before Prestonsburg city council requesting funding assistance for the purchase of the animal, as well as training for a county deputy who would work with the dog. Council agreed to grant $3,500 for the project.

Drug dogs have been operating with law enforcement agencies for many years with great success, says Thompson. They have been trained to find marijuana, hashish, cocaine, and heroin, and some are used in bomb detection by the U.S. Customs Service. Others are used for tracking.

"This dog would be used primarily for drug searches in buildings and cars," said Thompson. "It's really practically impossible to hide the scent of narcotics from a trained dog. I think having a drug dog would greatly improve the county's ability to deal with the area's drug problem."

While the initial cost for the project seems relatively high, Thompson believes the animal would quickly pay for itself.

"The cost to purchase a trained dog is about $7,000," said Thompson.

State studies solutions for area water problems age." In conjunction with the class, Watson's students are trying to devise a schedule of classes for the school that would allow each student at ACHS to have optimum choices.

"I didn't think any of this (course-work) would apply to me, but it does," confirms student Darnella Bradley.

Last fall, Floyd County high school students had the opportunity to take a course in probability and statistics via Star Channels. The course is one that most schools could not have offered individually because of the lack of teachers and interested students. For both semesters of this year, students are taking physics, another course that would be difficult to offer at each high school.

Next year, the school system plans to opt for Star Channels classes in Japanese and Russian languages, world geography and advanced placement economics, according to Gary Frazier, assistant superintendent for instruction.

Regional Roundup

House panel revives Mayo project

PAINTSVILLE — The House sub-committee recently recommended the reinstatement of the $4.6 million high technology project for Mayo State Vocational Technical School in Paintsville with full-funding for the 1990-91 biennium. Two years ago, a variation of this year's Mayo project was recommended for funding by Gov. Wilkinson but cut out of the budget by the state's General Assembly. The revised Advanced Technology Training Center incorporates a high technology training but in a more specialized field and without the option of students transferring to other training centers after completing core curriculum. The scope of the Mayo proposal includes construction of a new 38,000 square foot technology center which will house programs for diesel technology, industrial technology and transportation training. (The Paintsville Herald)

Restaurant tax rejected by Council

PAINTSVILLE — A tax proposed by Mayor John David Preston as a means of raising revenues for tourism and recreational development — including the purchase and renovation of the John C.C. Mayo Mansion — faced a 2-1/2 hour discussion during the February City Council meeting, and then was rejected after the first reading. Preston, modeling the levy after the one in Prestonsburg, wished to impose a two percent levy on city restaurants as a means to raise a proposed $125,000 annually with revenues earmarked for the city's recreation and tourism budget. The mayor offered the tax proposal after noting that city revenues were "flat" with little growth, compared to ever increasing expenditure needs. (The Paintsville Herald)

Pike UMW local taken over by district officers

PIKEVILLE — A dispute over strike benefits has prompted United Mine Workers president Richard Trumka to take over a Pike County union local, a move union officials there say is unprecedented in recent memory. District 30 treasurer Charles "Hawkeye" Dixon was appointed administrator of the Local 2492 and a delegation was appointed to travel from Washington to Pikeville to hear grievances of the 90-member local. The leader of Local 2492, Hilman Dotson Jr., was resigned and bitter about the takeover and appointment of the commission feeling they wouldn't get a fair hearing. Dotson was among 11 striking miners arrested on burglary charges Feb. 5 after they occupied District 10 headquarters to protest termination of their strike benefits. (The Appalachian News-Express)

Woman dies trying to fight house fire

LEBURN — A 17-year-old Knott County woman died in an early morning fire that destroyed her trailer home. Betty Stidham (Softshell) died in the fire about 5:15 a.m., state police report. Foul play is not suspected. Firefighters do not know what started the blaze. The victim's husband, James Stidham, told the coroner that his wife awakened him about the fire. The two unsuccessfully fought the fire. Stidham said that when he kicked the door open so the two could escape, he believed that his wife was right behind him as he left the dwelling. She was found on the kitchen floor, dead from smoke inhalation, carbon monoxide poisoning and heat. (The Troublesome Creek Times) certain steps must be taken, including an initial study. The study will first determine if a problem exists, and how serious it is. "Secondly, the study will see if damage was caused by mining or not," he said.

"Finally, it will determine if damages were caused by pre-law mining. AML funds can only be used for mitigation work in areas where damage occurred prior to 1977, when federal regulations on mining were enacted."

Gardner noted that, following the study of the area's water situation, several alternatives will be offered in the report.

One would be to do nothing. A second would be to drill new wells, but, as the ground water appears contaminated, this would not solve the problem. A third possible solution might be to build water storage cisterns and haul the water into the area, but, says Gardner, this appears impractical.

The final solution, and the one most favored by residents in the area, would be to tie the area to a public water system. Gardner said that if this solution could be proven to be the most effective, the state would have to support it.

"AML grants cover 100 percent of the costs of mitigation," said Gardner. "A certain amount of AML funds are allocated to the state each year for these purposes."

The cost to bring a public water system to this section of Floyd County, however, might surpass the entire amount of AML funds granted to Kentucky, noted Gardner. A 1987 study estimated that such a project would cost $2,827,000.

Whether the state would be able to grant this amount to the county in the near future is open to question. Despite this, Gardner believes the announced state study reflects positive action in dealing with the county's water woes.

Reaction to the announcement of the study was mixed, when residents were informed that the study was not scheduled for completion until June of 1991.

"I know that miracles can't be worked overnight, but many people badly need water right now," said Peggy Bradford, a Weeksbury area resident who has spearheaded a call for improved water. "We've been working on this for 10 years, and there've already been several studies. There is plenty of water in the area, in these abandoned mines, and I'd like to know if it is possible to get an emergency purification system hooked up so we could get water to people sooner."

Regardless of the delays, Bradford was still pleased that state action was being taken.

"I do want them to continue with this study," noted Bradford. "It may be the only route we have to get this situation taken care of."

In a release prepared by State Rep. Greg Stumbo's office, Stumbo encouraged residents affected to actively participate in the state study and provide information on the water situation in the area, if so requested.

Stumbo also stated, "A lot of hard work by a lot of people has finally resulted in a tangible approach to a problem that has existed in this region for a long time."

Board Meeting

tive programs initiated by the Forum.

"We need channels at every level to let us know what's going on," she said, referring to a past complaint that the board does not adequately communicate with its constituencies.

Delores Smith, chairperson of the board's Blue Ribbon Panel which was convened last year to make recommendations on school improvement, was the next citizen to bring a message to the board. Following a report of the school system's Long Range Planning Committee by chairman Quentin Scholtz, Smith asked the board "that you follow the recommendations of the Long Range Planning Committee better than you did the Blue Ribbon Panel."

"We do not take the recommendations (of the Blue Ribbon Panel) lightly," responded Supt. Hager. "You will get a report on how we've carried out the recommendations."

"We made it clear at the beginning that this was a committee and that when its work was done it would be over," Hager said of the panel, adding that many of the panel's suggestions have been initiated.

In his report, Scholtz had said that his committee wants "to work as hard as the Blue Ribbon Panel, but not to duplicate what it did." He said that in formulating long range plans for the system, the committee will use data collected by the panel.

Money for the purchase of paper was the thrust of the third group's address to the board. Linda Spradlin, president of the Parent Teacher Association at Prestonsburg Elementary School, accompanied by a number of PTA members, said her organization has been asked to supplement the school's fund for paper supplies.

"We have been asked to purchase supplies for the school at more than $800," Spradlin said. "This is the responsibility of the board and not of the PTA. We had hoped to begin renovating the blacktop playground area, but we have to put that on hold."

Spradlin said the PTA should be "responsible for luxuries and the board for supplies."

Russell Frazier, assistant superintendent for finances, told the board and the PTA members that the school should have enough money to pay for paper. He explained that state and local funds add up to more than $8 per pupil for such necessary supplies as paper.

Hager told the group, "We'll work with you on this."

Returning to the written agenda, the board heard a report from Russell Frazier that a final audit of costs of the 1984 flood has resulted in a bill from the federal government for $345,347 — the amount apparently overfunded to the then-school board for damages incurred by the flood. The total represents the difference between insurance coverage and what was submitted at that time as actual flood damage costs.

"This is hard luck and may cause a deficit this year," Frazier said. "We did not plan on this and didn't know it was owed. This may mean considerable belt tightening."

Hager told the board his administration will "need your support to go back and find the funds," indicating that administrators will try to discover the root of the problem.

The problem of supplying water to the new Garrett/Wayland grade school was also discussed. Nelo Francis of Francis Water Company, which supplies water to that area, estimated the cost of bringing water to the school site at more than $130,000, not including a holding tank.

Hager indicated that East Kentucky Utilities will do the gas pipeline construction to the school for free and asked Francis to consider a similar action.

"We'll provide the water, but the means of getting it to you is something else," the water utility manager said.

The board requested that Francis meet with the school's architect and engineer concerning water needs and to seek more bids on laying the water pipelines.

The problem of utility supply prompted extended discussion of the need to use Phase 2 construction funds to complete the projects now under construction with Phase 1 funds.

In other action, the board instructed Attorney Bill Francis to draft a contract which can be made with groups requesting use of school facilities for non-school activities. The action results from the need to absolve the school system of any liability stemming from non-school use of facilities.

"We want community groups to use the schools, however, we are under tremendous liability," Hager said.

Board member Dr. Mary Hall expressed her concern over the liability issue when schools are used for election polling places. "That's where we're most liable," she said.

Board members also witnessed a demonstration of the Channel 1 Network, a television program bringing news to the classroom. The system, which has stirred controversy in some communities, includes two out of 12 minutes of commercials, which fund the program.

In the demonstration of a sample news program, commercials for a shampoo, jeans and automobile were aired. The commercials pay for the program, making it free to schools, the representative said. With the approval to install the system in Floyd County schools, the company will give each school $50,000 worth of equipment which it will maintain, he said.

The board deferred a decision on the proposal until after the March meeting of the Kentucky School Boards Association, which is expected to address the matter.

In the treasurer's report, Russell Frazier said that the ending balance for January in the school system was $792,533.

75 firefighters respond to Tuesday fire in Bypro

A raging fire Tuesday night in Bypro destroyed a large furniture store, and required the combined effort of 11 fire departments and 75 firefighters to put it out.

According to Captain Daniel Gullett of the Southeast Volunteer Fire Dept., a fire started at about 7:25 p.m. on the second floor of Homer Osborne's Furniture Store in Bypro and was reported by Lifeline Ambulance service.

Wheelwright and Southeast fire departments responded, but, on seeing the size of the fire and building involved, began calling in departments from around the county, as well as from Pike and Knott counties, for assistance.

From 15 to 20 fire trucks and 75 firefighters battled for about five hours before gaining control of the blaze, said Gullett.

The entire second floor and its contents were destroyed. Much of the first floor was also ruined by smoke, water and flames.

One Southeast firefighter was injured and was transported to McDowell Appalachian Regional Medical Center. He was treated for a hand laceration and released.

Two businesses located adjacent to the burning building, Family Drug Store and Medi Home Care, were threatened by the fire. Melted and damaged roof shingles were reported from the two structures after the blaze. Firefighters left the scene at about 4 a.m.

The fire is being investigated by Kentucky State Police arson investigators, in order to determine the cause.

The building was owned by Sandra Daniels, daughter of Osborne.

Fire departments responding to the mutual aid call for assistance included Shelby Valley from Pike County, Mud Creek, Knott County Fire and Rescue, Left Beaver, Garrett, Martin, Maytown, Topmost, Pippa Passes and Prestonsburg.

PUBLIC NOTIFICATION FOR INFORMING THE PUBLIC OF POSSIBLE IMPACT TO AN IMPORTANT LAND RESOURCE

City of Martin

The U.S. Department of Agriculture, Farmers Home Administration (FmHA) is considering a preapplication for financial assistance sponsored by the City of Martin, SAI# KY850424-0429. The specific elements of this proposed action are the construction of a new 120,000 gpd wastewater treatment plant, rehabilitation of the existing sewer system, and the extension of sewer lines to serve the Old Post Office Road and River Bottom areas of Martin.

If implemented, the proposed action would impact the floodplain of Beaver Creek. The purpose of this notice is to inform the public of this possible result and to request comments concerning (1) the impacts of the proposed location on the floodplain, (2) alternative sites or actions that would avoid these impacts, and (3) methods that could be used to reduce these impacts.

The proposed action is available for review at the FmHA District Office, Omar Catron Building, Main & Washington Street, Campton, Kentucky 41301.

Any person interested in commenting on the proposed action may do so by sending such comments within thirty (30) days following the date of this publication to Ms. Mary Ann Baron, State Director, Farmers Home Administration, 333 Waller Avenue, Lexington, Kentucky 40504.

Allen Central High School students pore over discrete math problem, taught by a television teacher through KET's Star Channels program. Floyd County, with six schools on line, is the state's largest participant in the TV-generated course.

says Frazier. "There's no end to what can be done."

To incorporate the Star Channels programming in six county high schools, including Floyd County Technical High School, cost $6000, Frazier explained. Of that, KET absorbed $3000.

But to recoup its investment, KET charges the school system $300 per student. That means for Watson's class alone, the system is paying KET $3600. Added to that is the cost per student at each of the five other schools.

"We're hoping," said Frazier, "that KET will be funded enough to forego the per pupil charge."

The cost, he adds, is worth it. "Because of our involvement in Star Channels, we're offering opportunities for students that they wouldn't have otherwise. The students taking these classes are the top students and frequently they have fewer opportunities to be challenged."

Floyd County, with six schools, has the largest participation in the program in the state, Frazier said.

Although a regular classroom teacher is not required to sit in on the television courses, Watson prefers to do so. "I'm taking notes in case I get the opportunity to teach a class in discrete math myself," she says.

ACHS student Laurie Conley says she really likes the concept. "You can learn more and the material is better," she says. The only drawback, according to Conley, is when the local school is not in session, for instance for bad weather, and the class is broadcast anyway.

She added, however, that a tutor hotline to KET provides help with problems.

"I love it," declares Delbert Goins. "I take a lot of math classes, and this kind of opportunity isn't offered every day."

Business seminar
set for Ashland

A seminar on "Your Business Future in the World Market" is set for Thursday, Feb. 22, from 6:30-9:30 p.m. at the Ashland Plaza Hotel in Ashland.

The seminar is sponsored by the Kentucky World Trade Center and the Morehead State University/Ashland Small Business Development Center.

Billed as "for the experienced exporter and the business person new to international trade," the session will feature talks by Kentucky World Trade Center representatives and a successful exporter.

Pre-registration is required and the fee for participation is $20. For information, call Linda Akers at 329-8011.

could come up with $300,000 per acre for the fill," said McAninch. "Costs for garbage pickup would have to go from the current $8 to $19 or $20. Right now, there's not a single landfill in Kentucky that could meet these regulations."

McAninch noted that he had been quietly informed that trash from many of the counties surrounding and including Floyd County would be forced, if the regulations take effect, to haul to a 1000 acre landfill in Greenup County owned by Addington Corporation. According to reports on campaign donations listed in the Lexington Herald/Leader from the past gubernatorial race, Addington was a strong financial supporter of Wallace Wilkinson.

"With these regulations, it appears that the state is hoping to have only five privately owned landfills in the state," said McAninch. "Tens of millions of dollars are involved here, for those who operate the landfills."

McAninch stated that not all of the proposed regulations are negative. One of the most important ones requires the monitoring of well water around the landfills. This he considered positive.

He also believes that some of the 78 landfills currently operating in the state are potentially hazardous and should be closed. However, many, such as the one in Floyd County, are operated effectively and serve the area well.

"We've been operating on only five acres since the landfill opened nine years ago," said McAninch. "We have about 19 more years to go on these five acres. We estimate that we could operate on the 518 acres of this fill for another 700 years. It has an indefinite life."

When asked what Floyd County's response should be to the proposed regulations, which would begin taking effect in May and require full compliance by 1992, McAninch was adamant.

"My recommendation would be to let the landfill shut down and have citizens write to the state to change this situation. If they're going to do this, let the state come and collect the garbage. This is an example of a group of bureaucrats gone wild, none of whom have picked up a bag of garbage in their lives."

(Editor's Note: A continuation of this story will be carried in next Wednesday's paper, examining the local impact of the new regulations and possible responses by the county.)

ACHS named school of the day

Allen Central High School has been selected as "School of the Day" for Tuesday, Feb. 20, in KET's Star Channels distance learning course Discrete Mathematics.

One of the schools from Kentucky and 17 other states receiving the satellite-delivered, live interactive high school course, Allen Central will be featured for the course's 10 a.m. section. Students enrolled in the course are Darnella Bradley, Carla Coburn, Laurie Conley, Matthew Elliot, Delbert Goins, Kellie Griffith, Kelly Hairston, Kim Robinson, John Stone, Krystal Scott, William Wohlford, and Robyn Williams. Their on-site classroom facilitator is Joyce Watson.

"School of the Day was implemented so that students in the distance learning classrooms across the country can meet their peers and share school spirit," said satellite classroom's teacher Tom Graviss. "It's a fun way for the students to get to know each other better."

Featured schools send in photos of the members of the class and the classroom facilitator and, if they choose, a tee shirt, sweatshirt, or other school-spirited apparel carrying their school name or mascot. All students receive a geography lesson, as well when a map pinpointing the featured school's location is shown.

On the day a school is featured, Graviss begins the class by talking on air with the students at that school. "Unlike a traditional classroom, the students would not get a chance to meet each other without this element," Graviss said.

By Pam Shingler

A caller the other day asked my name, and as usual I spelled out the last name to cut down on the possibility of seeing it come out as Shingles or Shingleton or Schindler, as it often does.

"You're not from around here, are you?" the caller asked, referring to the name which isn't familiar among Appalachian clans.

"I am," I replied, "but the name isn't."

Sometimes, when similar conversations take place, as if to justify my existence, I mention kinfolks whose surnames appear frequently in chronologies from the earliest days of settlement in these hills.

This time I was too busy to bother, but the discussion touched some part of my brain storage and brought forth thoughts of my former father-in-law whose name I've kept much longer than I kept his son who gave it to me.

Memories of my father-in-law are nearly all pleasant. He was a very special man who kept in touch with me lovingly long after I'd ceased to be his daughter in the eyes of the law. Though he did not understand the break up, he never allowed it to affect our relationship. I remained, in a sense, his third child. He called regularly, sent cards on special days and every Christmas sent five pounds of sweet, shelled pecans to me, my mother and my aunt and uncle, from his south Georgia grove.

A couple of years after the death of my mother-in-law, he even called to get my blessing on his wish to marry again. His birth children were most unhappy with the match, and he wanted my opinion. Convinced that he needed a companion and knowing he had much love to give, I encouraged this 74-year-old man to do what he wanted to do, to make himself happy. About a year later, his new wife called to tell me he'd died quickly of a heart attack on his way to a business appointment, active to the end. She reminded me of how much he loved me and thanked me for urging him to give her the happiest year of her life.

Born into a wealthy, politically powerful family, he had nonetheless experienced a life full of hard knocks. His own father had lost most of his wealth before he had been able to give this youngest son a house and a business stake as he'd done for his older children. The youngest son, my father-in-law, had been left with only a crumbling mansion and a lifetime of debt. He worked unceasingly on the old house, his diminishing pecan grove and his sales job. His two children, neither understanding the value of a dollar, heaped him with further debt. He cared tenderly for his stepmother until she died, and he tended lovingly to a wife who daily battled depression. He was looked upon as a tragic figure in the small town that had once revered his family name.

Yet, through it all, he maintained incredible optimism and an energy level unequalled by men decades younger. I never saw him unkind to anyone. He treated all people with respect and he loved to a fault.

He taught me much about unqualified love. And he taught me, importantly, that it is possible to love and respect someone while having fundamental philosophical differences with that person — something I thought was impossible until I met him.

M.P. Shingler was a product of a society where blacks were traditionally servants and second class citizens. He was, in a word, a bigot. He believed strongly in segregation of the races — a concept I was and still am totally opposed to. He and I spent hours debating the issue, neither ever shaking the other's belief. After a time, we ceased to debate and accepted a stalemate on the issue.

As strongly abhorrent of his prejudice as I was, I would never have associated with him had I not been forced to because of my marriage to his son. While I would have liked to have changed his attitude on this issue, I would have missed so very much had I written him off because of it. That attitude, as much as I disapproved of it, was only one part of him. The other parts were fine and good and noble. Our disagreement was over a profound issue and yet he and I still found a common ground, ripe for love and respect.

Too often, we tend to write people off over less important issues. We allow something that comprises 10 percent or even one percent of a person's make up to cloud our vision of the total person. When we do, we cheat ourselves out of potentially rich experiences and beautiful memories.

When we allow this tendency to affect any of our relationships, whether among lovers or parents or neighbors or community members or whatever, we sow the seeds of stagnation and we slow the growth of progress, productivity and harmony.

M.P. Shingler taught me this, though he probably didn't know he was teaching. Admittedly, I sometimes forget. But I try to remember what a precious lesson it was. And I am grateful to him.

Letters To The Editor

Concerned about waste

Dear Editor,

Here in Lawrence County, asbestos is being brought in from New England and dumped in our local landfill. The landfill is already full, but its operators are trying to find ways to expand it to take more out-of-state garbage. Maybe they'll keep piling it up, and soon we'll have mountains made up of other people's trash alongside the real mountains God put here.

Could this same situation happen in Floyd County? You bet it could. All over Kentucky, our counties are being targeted for the dumping of out-of-state waste, including some hazardous waste.

There are a lot of reasons why Kentucky and other southern states are being looked upon as dumping grounds — we still have plenty of room for landfills. But one of the main reasons this can happen is because the people of Kentucky have no say in the matter. The only people in Lawrence County who decided to bring the asbestos in were those people making the money from it, not the people who will suffer the consequences.

If our legislators are interested in protecting Kentucky, our land and drinking water from out-of-state garbage pollution, they need to act now. Legislation known as "solid waste local control" is being introduced in the General Assembly that would give the people of Kentucky a say in where the trash that is dumped in their community comes from. If we don't want it, it shouldn't be forced down our throats by those wanting to make a few bucks at our expense.

I hope everyone in Floyd County will contact their legislators and ask them to support the solid waste local control legislation. It needs to be done right now to protect Kentucky from becoming a dumping ground for out-of-state garbage. The toll-free number in Frankfort for leaving messages for legislators is 1-800-372-7181.

Commends efforts

Dear Editor,

I want to commend The Floyd County Times for beginning a series of articles highlighting the many positive programs and outstanding individuals in our schools. I agree with your editorial position that the storm of negative publicity about our schools and Floyd County in general has been damaging to the morale and self-image of many students, teachers, administrators and citizens.

Certainly, all segments of our county must strive for improvement in the quality of life (schools, government, recreation, economy, etc.) in Floyd County. However, although we have many areas in which improvements can be made, there are many things in our schools and county of which we can be proud.

We owe it to our children and ourselves to make every effort to enhance the image of Floyd County and Eastern Kentucky. The Floyd County Times has taken an excellent first step.

Thank you.

'Don't rock the boat'

Dear Editor,

I am 75 years of age and for the past 40 years have been in the public eye in some way or another. I have complained publicly and privately about the conditions of our county. The law enforcement and the lack of it, in most cases it has been the lack of it. I have complained about the waste of the taxpayers' money or the little service we have gotten for the taxes we have paid. I will say that if you complain, you're subject to ridicule and criticism. And you are an outcast regardless of your politics. You must always remember not to complain, don't rock the boat. I have been tagged, bull headed, a complainer and even called a Republican and they have no right to complain.

I want to compliment all the people in the county that have complained justly about the conditions in our county. As a citizen and a taxpayer, you have the right to expect nothing but the best from your elected officials and when you don't get it you should tell the world about it. You don't expect complaining and excuses for the shortcomings of the people elected to serve you. These same elected officials are put in office as servants of the people and not as masters. And everyone in the county is due the same treatment as anyone else. It hasn't been delivered that way.

It's like playing poker in a game, who should drink and who should smell. Ask yourself, are you a drinker or a smeller? I hope more people will have the courage to complain when complaining is justified. If you have a gripe that is legitimate, make your voice heard, always remembering, THAT EVIL PREVAILS WHEN GOOD CITIZENS DO NOTHING.

For those who use complaining to cover up their mistakes, I now have the new mare's milk drink to be taken by mouth only. It's called the super piledriver to cure a mouth out of control, contains one jigger of the famous tooty fruity, one jigger of strawberry, three jiggers of Preparation H. Special instructions come with the driver, back up against a concrete wall then drink slowly.

The results, all at once after administering the drink, your eyes will roll back, your tongue will quit flapping, you'll have a sense of tranquility and you'll be able to talk to anyone in a civil tongue and with intelligence. This sense of tranquility will last for a period of three days at which time you will revert to your old condition, but with enough will power you might be calm and collected for the rest of your life. You may never blaspheme your constituents again.

Has kind words for Job Corps

Dear Editor,

I was sorry to read about the unfortunate situation in Floyd County regarding the local people and the Job Corps students.

Happily, The Floyd County Times is concerned that this situation be speedily and justly resolved. I hope that what I have experienced will be of some help.

About two summers ago, some of the Job Corps students and their supervisor were here at Turkey Creek and on Stonecoal as workers on a community project. I worked with and observed them for the better part of two days. I then said and say now with the same conviction, "These workers did the very best they could."

They were obedient. They were hard working. They were respectful. Further, there was no foul language. There was no dope. There was no smarting off. There was no aberrant behavior of any sort. They sensed they had a job to do and they worked with purpose and good cheer.

These young people were a mixture of black and white. The question of color never did arise.

As noted by The Times, many of the students are away from home. Further, they are at a critical period in their lives. We need to encourage them just as we encourage our own.

If there is any future furor or dispute, let it not be caused by a Floyd Countyman who, though wanting dignity and respect for himself, denies it to a fellow human being.

Kim's Korner

By Kim Frasure

Recently a dear friend of mine has gone through a very traumatic experience. A few months ago, while pregnant, she was diagnosed as having Hodgkin's Disease. Unaware, I phoned her while here visiting from Lexington.

When she told me the news, I thought my stomach and heart would explode. There's no way she could have Hodgkin's, I kept repeating to myself. No way.

This was, and is, a lady with one of the biggest, kindest hearts, anyone could ever know. A true, "stand by you no matter what" friend.

After my return to Lexington, I could not seem to get her off my mind. I called her mother's sisters to keep up with how she was doing. I prayed every night for God to remove this disease and let her be her cheerful, kind self again.

In October, after moving back to Floyd County, I'd stop at school where she teaches to see her. But, every time I stopped she'd gone to Lexington for chemotherapy treatment. I'd heard, as people always do, the worst — she looked bad, pale, was losing weight — I was so frightened for her, I dreaded the thought of facing her. Seeing her would break my heart.

In October, she and her husband lost their second child. There were so many complications with his birth, yet he held on and fought for months. How she made it through these agonizing months, I can't begin to imagine.

As I sat at the funeral home talking with her sister as she tried to convince me to go to her home, the tears and fear overpowered me and I returned to work.

It wasn't until last Friday night, as I spotted her and her family across the gymnasium floor at the high school from which we both graduated, that I was able to face her. My shoulders tensed, and my eyes filled with tears as I approached her. She looked great! Nothing like I had heard. It was like a thousand tons of weight and grief had been lifted from my shoulders.

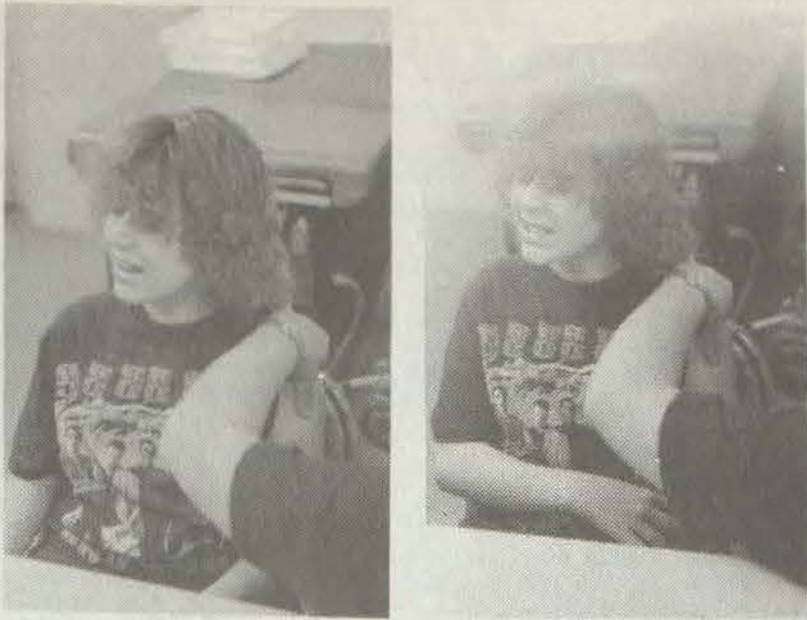

We talked for a little while and then she told me, "My Hodgkins Disease is gone, Kim." I could have screamed with the joy, but the realization brought tears to my eyes, and hers. I thanked God that our prayers, along with many others', had been answered.

Her doctor has instructed her to continue chemotherapy treatments until July. But she's going to be just fine. I can't tell her how much this means to me. This is why I wanted to dedicate this column to her. Special friends are so valuable that when you find one like the one I've just written about, you need to hold on to that person and don't let them get away.

She is living proof that prayers are answered. I will never doubt the will of God again and urge anyone who has a person they are praying for not to give up hope and, don't avoid them — they need your support now more than ever.

Ow, Oow, Ooow

No, mom this doesn't hurt a bit...Kathy Mullins, daughter of Danny and Katie Mullins of Hi Hat, wasn't exactly comfortable when getting her measles shot Wednesday at the Floyd County Health Department. She was one of about 40 students, who came with their parents to receive the measles-mumps-rubella shot, which, according to Kentucky Department for Health Services, is a requirement for those students entering the sixth grade this fall. Mullins is in the fifth grade at McDowell Elementary. So far, five schools have received the shots, with 10 more scheduled over the next two months.

Licenses Denied

arise. The citizens present also were considering pursuing a wet/dry election in that precinct in the near future.

Hammond recommended that the County Judge turn down Hutchinson's application for a license for the following reasons: "The applicant has a criminal case pending in Floyd District Court; a court date was set, he failed to appear, and an FTA was issued. Also, a plumbing health warning was posted on the building being renovated by the applicant... Said warning was removed by the applicant or at his direction, contrary to the laws of the Commonwealth of Kentucky."

When confronted with this evidence as to his ability to obey the law of the state, Hutchinson admitted to such acts at the hearing. Hammond noted Hutchinson threatened the residents, in the courtroom, asking them to "step outside" to settle a dispute. The presence of a Kentucky State Police officer quieted the action.

State Statute states that "no permit shall be issued to a person who is not of good moral character or who will not, in the judgment of the court, obey the laws of the state in carrying on of the business." Hammond believed, as did the judge, that Hutchinson showed a "propensity to disobey the law."

Hutchinson was informed by Hammond that he had the right to appeal the judge's decision by filing a complaint within 10 days to the Circuit Court.

Because of the protest by the citizens, Hutchinson was also unable to get approval from the state for a beer license, according to a letter from Martin L. Hogan, malt beverage administrator for the state. The petition by the residents of Price was also filed against Jo Elliott.

According to an investigation conducted by Hammond and State Trooper Les Stapleton, Luther Paige was denied his license because he had been found guilty of possession of marijuana on two separate occasions in the Floyd District Court and also of DUI in Pike District Court. Jo Elliott had also been found guilty of DUI in Floyd District Court, and Janice Hall was also found guilty of disobeying the laws of the state within the recent past.

EKU presents performance

Eastern Kentucky University's Back Theater will be the site for the play "Music Man" on Wednesday, Feb. 21, through Saturday, Feb. 24. The performance is slated to begin at 8 p.m. with tickets going for $6 at the door.

Former Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theater director, Homer Tracey, will direct the students of EKU's Music and Drama School as they play the characters in this well known play.

MYTHS AND FACTS ABOUT COCAINE—

Cocaine has enjoyed such a fashionable image that most people believe things about the drug that aren't true. By unmasking the myths and learning the facts about this drug, we can keep our misbeliefs from getting in the way of doing something about cocaine abuse. By learning how dangerous this drug really is, we can keep ourselves and those we care about from unknowingly falling into the trap of cocaine addiction.

MYTH: Cocaine is a safe drug.

FACT: Cocaine is dangerous to both body and mind. It can cause tremors and convulsions, infection, heart attack, stroke, psychosis and death.

MYTH: Cocaine is not addictive.

FACT: Cocaine is highly addictive. Addiction can develop after only a few uses. Some crack users say they felt addicted from the first time they smoked. When you are addicted, all you think about is getting and using cocaine. Family, friends, job, home, possessions and health become unimportant. Most people require professional help in order to stop using it.

MYTH: Cocaine does not stay in the body long.

FACT: Traces of cocaine and its metabolites can be detected in the urine for up to a week.

MYTH: Cocaine is an elite drug used only by high class people.

FACT: Cocaine is a common drug used by people of all social and economic classes.

People never think anything bad will happen when they start using cocaine. Whenever and however you use cocaine, you're playing Russian Roulette.

"Sending a deputy to Arkansas to receive training with the animal, which takes 30 days, will run another $1500. Finally, it'll cost about $500 to $750 to build an area to keep the dog in. Because of federal laws which allow for the confiscation of property of narcotics dealers, we could pay for the cost of a dog with one confiscated car."

The German shepherds and Labrador retrievers trained for police work are used because of their strong instincts to play and retrieve. An elaborate, 14-week course develops the animals' ability to recognize drug odors, search out their hidden locations and signal to the handler the presence of the illegal substances. The 30-day course required by a county deputy allows for the deputy to learn how to work with the animal, as well as develop the bond between man and animal which is necessary for the two to work together effectively.

Thompson, who has operated with drug dogs before, noted the strong legal credibility given to a drug dog.

"The dog is considered by the court to be an expert witness," he said. "If a dog reacts positively to a car at a roadblock, or to a locker in a building, that provides grounds for a search warrant. These animals are taken seriously."

Thompson hopes to receive more financial support for the drug dog project from private contributions, as well as from the county Fiscal Court. He expressed thanks to the county for past support and to the City of Prestonsburg for the recent contribution.

Thompson hopes to have a drug dog working with his department by September or October of this year.

FLOODPLAINS NOTICE EARLY PUBLIC NOTICE

The City of Martin is considering improvements and additions to its Wastewater Treatment System as a Small Cities CDBG Project. A portion of the project is located in the 100 year flood plain. To rehabilitate the existing system and to extend sewer lines into unserved areas of the City, it is necessary to carry out this project in the flood plain. The city is interested in discussing alternatives to the project and securing public perceptions of possible adverse impacts that could result from the project and possible minimization measures. Please send written comments to Mayor Raymond Griffith, P.O. Box 603, Martin, Kentucky 41649. Comments will be received until March 4, 1990.

Religious Viewpoints

by Barbara Princess Acree Martin

God's plan for His people is told to us in His story of love in the Bible. His book begins with Genesis which means a beginning or a forming of something — here it means the universe, or the Earth and its celestial bodies as we know them. This great production took much time and many characters to perfect. Each actor had to be groomed to perfection by God to perform his own particular task. Having many of our ideas, which God acknowledges, it has taken 2000 years since the birth of the savior to produce conditions, which would be somewhat suitable as desirable living conditions, if the characters of the world would behave as honestly and true as God wishes them to. Anyone who lives or has lived is one of these characters. Some play more important parts than others, but all initiate and leave lasting impressions on the human society in his particular niche in time.

WHO IS GOD?

God is the main player in this world performance, which some people say will have no end. He tells us in his best seller in all the world, the Bible, how he made the world and what he plans to do with it. He also shows that in particular cases, he is willing to make concessions to those who are deserving, particularly if they request it. This indicates that He is the just and righteous ruler who controls the complete major spectacular, which we know as the real world.

So that we will know who God is, He builds up the climax to the time of His birth. His mother, Mary, gave birth to Him as a major episode, which illuminates the rest of the story and its performance in the beginning, and will do so until the end. The details and the timing is known only to God. His perfect plan follows a time schedule which appears quite long to us, but He seems to never be in a real hurry, manipulating His theories and people like puppets on a string who willingly make themselves available to Him to be used for this purpose.

The Supreme Being which we know as God was born in a stable near the date 3 AD per man's calculations. God's plan is that at His birth, the age would change. Before Christ, BC, became AD to indicate this change. Jesus would bring Him knowledge which He would impart to the world. This knowledge would allow the people to make better plans than they had previously done in order to produce a better civilization in which people could live in harmony without animosities. God would still be in control, the Good Father who loves his children, the people of the world, and wants the very best for them all.

As his plan unfolded we find Jesus living in the home of a carpenter, who was his stepfather or foster father. This good man, who was willing to give up many privileges, was an example of what is expected from the servants of God whom Jesus, when he came, named his friends rather than servants, since they were more close to him and wished him well. There he began his trade as a creator of things, as he was destined to be. To form or fashion, with his hands, items necessary for life with a flourish of beauty, usefulness, and stability. Whenever we gaze out a window, around a room or into the sky, we see what this simple beginning prepared Him, as God, to be able to make.

God, who appears in his composite works, has three phases or personages, The boss is God, under Him we find his middle self, the Holy Spirit. Some believe that he did all the work which was planned first by God. It is my belief that this Holy Spirit can move into and out of any day or space in time at will. This may have been first achieved after his death on the cross, where, He as an innocent man was brutally beaten, crucified, fed vinegar when he thirsted, and was forced into death by a sharp weapon thrust into his side. Three days he lay in a borrowed tomb, donated by a wealthy man for his use. The local government dispersed those who were to follow him with his teachings.

Time seems to mean nothing to him. He appears in the beginning along with his other counterparts, who appear later in his story. God tells, through the words of Jesus Christ, that in heaven those things which were first will be last, and the things which were last will then be first. The Bible contains many such mysteries which are interesting to read and ponder. Many read and pray for an understanding. True followers are often surprised by what is presented to them to increase their knowledge. Plans for each individual are followed through. God is likened to a busy father, who must give his attention to His task, while He nurtures, loves, and guides His offspring into fulfillment of their duties in life. In return for His assistance, the prodigy attempts to follow His directions to perfection. The Master Planner and the workers producing perfect products. Many who lack understanding, as common onlookers would do, may meander in and out of the working area and stall production or delay its completion due to lack of knowledge, which they have not asked for maybe because they are not aware that they can request it, and receive it.

Our conclusion is that God is the Supreme Being, who created the universe and keeps it maintained, who has two other personifications of Himself to assist with this task. These perfect personalities work steadfastly to maintain the standards, and rest on the seventh day, so that they may return with renewed strength to maintain quality performance, and further the progress. Constantly they ask their helpers to hold fast to their belief in them, so that they will not be led away from their tasks. New workers are invited in to keep the performance of high quality, and to help preserve the strength of those who have labored long. Are you willing to help? Find a social institution and pitch in. He still needs all the help He can get, and believe me, life is not over yet.

Some agree to help Him at an early age but some look elsewhere to see what else is new. By the time they find out, it is too late to escape the snare. God is constantly available to help you to spring the trap. Just call upon His name — Jesus — and those with a sincere desire can be restored.

Restaurant supervisor wins wheels

Druther's Restaurants area supervisor John Hesselbrock, center, receives keys to his new company car, a 1990 Jeep Cherokee, from the company's president Tom Hensley, left. Hesselbrock, whose territory includes the Prestonsburg Druther's won the use of the new vehicle for a year because of the success of the restaurants in his area. A Mt. Sterling native, Hesselbrock formerly operated the Druther's restaurant in Pikeville. In addition to Prestonsburg, his area includes the chain's operations in Paintsville, Pikeville, Grayson, South Williamson, Louisa, Olive Hill, Flatwoods and Campton, Kermit and Man, W.Va., and Grundy, Va. Also at the key presentation was company chairman Robert Gatewood.

Equal opportunity exists for heart disease

In the traditionally male-dominated world, women and children have often been the recipients of good-intentioned protection from danger. As children strive for the rights and respect afforded adults and women seek equality with their male counterparts, there is one aspect of life where discrimination does not exist.

Cardiovascular disease has been and still is an equal opportunity killer. It is America's number one cause of death, accounting for more lives lost than all other forms of death combined. The American Heart Association is trying to dispel the dangerous myth that heart disease happens only to men.

In truth, every year since 1908 cardiovascular disease has killed more women than any other disease, including cancer. Twice as many women die of coronary heart disease than of all types of cancer combined.

The major difference between heart disease in men and women, experts say, is that it occurs later in life for women, usually after menopause. A number of other important facts are not widely known.

—Heart attacks are more often fatal in women than in men.

—Heart and blood vessel diseases in women tend to go undiagnosed until much later in life.

—Chest pain is more likely to be the first symptom of coronary heart disease-CHD in women, whereas almost two thirds of men with CHD have a heart attack or sudden cardiac death as the initial sign of heart disease.

—Cholesterol is an equal-opportunity risk factor for CHD.

—Studies have shown that estrogen-replacement therapy after menopause can help to protect women from CHD.

Women are in the unique position to influence their family's health. Although the number of women in the work force has increased significantly over the past 30 years, women are still more apt to shop for and prepare food and to look after the health of their families.

For children heart disease usually takes the form of some type of congenital heart defect. While these defects often have no outward symptom, their effects can be devastating, and they are more common than many people know. One in every 100 infants is born with a congenital heart defect; that's over 25,000 each year.

While some of these defects can be effectively corrected with surgery, some have no long-term treatment or cure. Congenital heart defects afflict these children, limiting their activity, their education, and all too often their lives. Parents, too, feel the effects through extensive medical bills, special educational needs, and the constant concern for their child's health. Research is the only hope for many of these families.

So while most of us associate heart disease with men — or at least adults — women and children are indeed affected by this equal-opportunity killer. The American Heart Association is the largest voluntary organization dedicated to the reduction of disability and death due to cardiovascular diseases and stroke.

During February, American Heart Month, AHA volunteers conduct a massive awareness and fund raising campaign to support the association's research, educational, and community service programs throughout the year.

State Government News Summary

Bad news for catfish lovers... Certain fish species caught in the Ohio River should not be eaten because of the potential health risk from polychlorinated biphenyls (PCBs) and/or chlordane, the state departments of Health Services, Environmental Protection and Fish and Wildlife Resources have advised. The Fish Consumption Advisory, issued jointly by the three agencies, cautions against eating channel catfish, carp and white bass from the border river. Data collected by federal agencies over the last three years show that these species, taken from various locations in the Ohio River, are contaminated with levels of PCBs and chlordane that approach or exceed the limits set by the US Food and Drug Administration.

Cough, cough... Kentucky has more areas not meeting the national ozone standard than any other state in Region IV of the federal Environmental Protection Agency's jurisdiction. Consequently, the EPA has required the state to begin the process of revising its implementation plan for achieving and maintaining ozone air quality standards. Ozone has been shown to cause immediate short term changes in lung function and is suspected of playing a role in the long term development of chronic lung diseases. Major contributors to the ozone problem, says the state Division of Air Quality, are, in order of importance, transportation, fuel combustion, industrial processes and solid waste.

Getaways growing... 1989 was a banner year for Kentucky tourism, according to the state Tourism Cabinet. State park sales posted gains of three percent over the previous year, and the state's travel business barometer showed monthly increases of between 3.4 and 6.6 percent during the summer months. Fishing grew to a $1 billion industry last year. Telephone calls to the state's toll-free travel information line increased by 27 percent.

Be prepared... "Emergency Preparedness — a Kentucky Priority" is the title of a seminar set for Feb. 22-23 at the Ashland Plaza Hotel in Ashland, sponsored by the Kentucky Safety and Health Network. Community officials, business and labor leaders and private citizens are invited to attend the sessions which will feature leading authorities on earthquake preparation, mining emergencies and local emergency preparedness committees. For information, contact Donald Cooke with the Kentucky Labor Cabinet, OSH Division of Education and Training, 1049 US 127 South, Frankfort 40601; 502/564-6895.

Medicaid approved... Kentucky's special Medicaid program pairing more than 200,000 low income mothers and children with doctors and clinics for most of their health care while reducing their overall health care costs has been approved for two more years by the federal government. The funding affects the Kentucky Patient Access and Care (KenPAC) program for recipients of Aid to Families with Dependent Children benefits. More than 1000 doctors in 111 counties, including Floyd, provide services under KenPAC.

Obituaries

Gaynell Clark May

Gaynell Clark May, 85, of Stephens Branch Road, Martin, died Tuesday Feb. 13 at her home following an extended illness with cancer.

Born Dec. 21, 1904, at Gulnare in Pike County, she was a daughter of the late W.C. and Ruth Ann Scaff Clark. She, and her husband of 62 years Ollie May, were wed on July 2, 1927. She is preceded in death by one granddaughter.

Mrs. May was a charter member of the Martin Freewill Baptist Church since November of 1949. She remained active in service until her illness confined her to her home. Her love and devotion to her lord was shown by her years of attendance and her participation in many activities of her church, including the Women's Auxiliary. Mrs. May did numerous solo performances at special church events and funerals, and she was a foster mother to many children in Martin and the surrounding areas of Floyd County.

In addition to her husband Ollie, she is survived by one son, Joseph F. Smith of Ashland; three daughters, Kathryn L. Fraley of Venice, Fla., and Jean Watson and Altonette Bentley, both of Martin; one brother, Emery E. Clark of Fredericksburg, Va.; 10 grandchildren and 19 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be today, Friday, Feb. 16, at 2 p.m. at the Hall Funeral Home Chapel, Martin, with the Revs. Bobby Baldrige, Ken Lemaster, Gary Allen and Dan Heintzelman officiating. Burial will follow in the May Family Cemetery at Stephens Branch, Martin.

Serving as active pallbearers are Frank DeRossett Jr., David Watson II, Kevin Reid, Dan Goodman, James Douglas DeRossett, Randy Robinson, Brent Caudill, Todd Wells, Jerry Prince, Ryan Prince and Rick Barton.

The honorary pallbearers are Thomas Clark May, Earrit Hayes, James Meade, Delano May, Clifford D. Letta, Dr. Blake Burchett, Dr. Robert Marshall, Rev. Green Boyd, Rev. J.A. Dickerson, Rev. ## Betsy Layne joins network, thanks to local businessman

Betsy Layne Elementary joins Allen, Martin and McDowell Elementary Schools in a telecommunications project, the first of its kind in the state of Kentucky.

Through a central computer located in Cincinnati, Ohio, teachers will be able to type students' writing into a computer, send it across telephone wires by a modem which converts the text into electrical impulse and have other students read the work at the other end and comment on it.

Floyd County students have already been exchanging writings and comments with students in Estill, Warren and Whitley Counties and the country of Israel.

On hand for the hook-up was long-time leader in telecommunications and television Paul R. Gearheart, owner of local station WPRG and Harold Tel-Com Inc. Gearheart is sponsoring the initial cost of the program and presented Principal Enoch J. Mitchell with a check.

Also present was Carol Stumbo, county coordinator of writing, to explain the process of the program to Nadine Blankenship, seventh grade teacher, who will direct the students at Betsy Layne Elementary.

PCC instructor a prizewinner

Kathy Stewart, center, assistant professor of business and economics at Prestonsburg Community College, won a Random House Dictionary as the door prize during a luncheon at a recent Morehead State University business teleconference. Presenting the award is MSU President C. Nelson Grote. PCC marketing student Linda Howard accompanied Stewart. High school and college students from throughout the region attended the conference.

Where do the books belong?

by Amy Allen and Brad Compton
Wheelwright High School

The Wheelwright City Council at its Thursday, Jan. 25, meeting donated all the books in the now deserted Wheelwright Public Library to students Amy Allen and Brad Compton.

About 2000 books were to be sorted and distributed on Saturday, Feb. 10 by Allen, Compton, Carol Stumbo, Delores Woods and Joyce Johnson. The books were given to the librarians from Wheelwright High School, Melvin and Osborne Elementary Schools to be placed in the schools.

The books were left in the library after it was shut down about five years ago. In the past, all attempts to free the books from the aging building had failed because no one was sure who really owned them.

After finding out the books had been abandoned, Allen and Compton decided that something needed to be done with them. They started making phone calls to find out the owners of the books.

Allen found out that Paul Gearheart owned the building and had no plans to restore it to a library, but as far as he knew some of the books belonged to the city and the others to the Floyd County Public Library. Then Compton contacted the Floyd County Public Library to ask if the library owned any of the books. The librarian said they owned some, but not many.

After discovering who owned the books, Allen and Compton decided to go before the Wheelwright City Council and propose that council award them the books to distribute to the three surrounding schools.

On Thursday, Jan. 25 they were added to the evening's agenda and presented their proposal to the Council. The Council unanimously agreed to give them custody of the books on the condition that they were distributed fairly and the two students be accompanied by Ruth Daniels of the Floyd County Library.

Practical Ideas for Parents to Help Their Children

HOMEWORK

Try These Five Homework Tips

Here are five tips to make homework time easier for you and your child:

1. Have a regular place for your child to do homework. Use a desk or table in a quiet room. Be sure there's plenty of light.
2. Find a regular time for homework. You may want to make a rule, "No television until homework is finished."
3. During homework time, turn off the TV, radio, and stereo.
4. Before your child begins, talk with him/her about the homework assignments. Help him/her plan how he/she will use his/her time.
5. Set a good example. While your child is doing homework, spend some time reading or working yourself. Then when homework is done, you can both talk about how much you have accomplished.

Eating out

Mrs. Ernie Shelton's class at the Drift Head Start Center visited the Prestonsburg McDonald's recently. They toured the facilities to observe the preparation of meals by a chain restaurant and were treated to lunch.

ACHS students attend conference

Allen Central High School students Robyn Williams and Chris Ousley toured displays in the Adron Doran University Center between sessions at a recent business teleconference at Morehead State University. They were among 75 high school students attending the program on "Doing Business in the Pacific Rim." The conference was sponsored by MSU's School of Business and Economics.

Lady 'devils upset Betsy Layne, 43-40

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

McDowell coach Cassandra Keathley's Lady Daredevils ended the dreams of the Betsy Layne Lady Bobcats of winning the Floyd County Girls Conference title outright Tuesday night at the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse.

The Lady Cats fell to the Lady Devils, 43-40, in a thriller in high school basketball. Betsy Layne, despite the loss, still shares the title with Allen Central who defeated the Lady Cats last Friday night at Allen Central.

Betsy Layne had a 6-0 record before entering the Allen Central contest and needed only one win to capture sole possession of the number one spot. The two teams will have to draw to determine who will be the number one seed in the 58th District tournament on Feb. 28.

Junior Lori Bryant scored 20 points to lead the Lady Devils in scoring. Priscilla Crawford tossed in 14 points, eight coming from the free throw line.

Betsy Layne looked good in the third quarter, after trailing at half time, 24-22. Brenda Hamilton and Melissa Bailey opened the third stanza with baskets to take a 26-24 lead. Betsy Layne went on top, 34-29, as Hamilton continued to use her speed and get some steals for easy baskets. The Lady Cats led by five, 36-31, going into the final quarter.

The fourth quarter belonged to the Lady Devils as they outscored the host team, 12-4. Crawford's two free throws made it 36-33. Jenny Slone scored the next four points, two free throws and a two-pointer, to put the McDowell team in front, 37-36. Bryant's bucket made it 39-36. Hamilton hit on a short jumper for a 39-commented Kristi Pack. "If we hadn't worked together as a team, I don't know if we could have pulled it out or not. There's no doubt that we can play with anybody and I believe that Betsy Layne has come down a little bit."

"We showed we can play with others and I believe we should be rated higher than what we are," says Jenny Slone.

What is the cause for the improvement in the Lady Daredevils team? "A lot of practice, the coaches and the girls just coming together," explained Slone.

According to Coach Keathley, her team was unable to rebound like it should have because the defense of Betsy Layne pushed them out from the baskets.

"We were pushed out to the top and it was hard for us to get on the offensive boards," she said. "I believe we got one offensive rebound in the first half."

Keathley says that her team was standing around and watching the game instead of participating in it.

"In the second half we didn't do much better," the Lady Devils mentor stated, concerning the lack of rebounding, "but we were hitting better from the field."

Keathley says that she was happy with the two-point lead at half time, but she "didn't want the girls to know it."

"We hadn't done anything right

Two free throws at :02 lift PHS over W'wright

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It was a wild and exciting night at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse, and defense was not the name of the game Tuesday night as the Wheelwright Trojans rolled into town to face the Prestonsburg Blackcats for the second time in two weeks.

The two teams met earlier at Wheelwright where the Blackcats posted an overtime win over the host Trojans. This time it was at Prestonsburg, and the Blackcats pulled out a 95-92 thriller over the visiting Trojans to go 4-4 in conference play.

With two minutes left in the game and Prestonsburg up by three points, 86-83, the Blackcats went into an early stall. Wheelwright elected to put the Cats on the foul line and began to foul. Prestonsburg hit two free throws and led, 88-83.

The Trojans came back and scored on a three-point play to cut the lead back to two, 88-86. Wheelwright, looking for the Blackcats to go to another stall, was caught napping and Prestonsburg got a run out and two points for a 90-86 advantage.

Wheelwright guard Bobby Hood hit a three pointer and brought the Trojans to within one point, 90-89. With the one point lead, the Blackcats began to hold the ball and John Clark was fouled. Clark, who scored 23 points in the game, calmly hit both charity tosses and the Blackcats were up by three, 92-89.

Wheelwright on the next possession tried to tie the game from the three-point range and missed on two tries. On the rebound Prestonsburg went back to the foul line but missed the front end of a one-and-one. Randy Boyd then came up court and fired from the three-point stripe, and the ball found the basket for the "tre" and a tied game of 92-92 with four seconds to go.

On the in bounds play for Prestonsburg, Wheelwright foolishly fouled Clark who walked to the line and sank both free throw tosses for a 94-92 Prestonsburg lead. A desperation shot by the Trojans fell short and Clark was fouled again. At the foul line he hit the front of a bonus for a final score of 95-92.

Wheelwright held a one-point, first quarter lead at 19-18 and trailed at the half by just two points, 42-40. The game remained close with Prestonsburg leading by three, 69-66, going into the final stanza.

Prestonsburg placed four players in double figures with Chris Slone hitting for 25 points. Clark, who played an excellent game, added 23 points for the Blackcats. Center Kevin Adams tossed in 19 points and Worthie McGuire netted 10 points. The win gives the Blackcats a 9-11 overall record.

Wheelwright placed five players in double figures, led by Bobby Hood's 25 points. Steve Johnson and Randy Boyd tossed in 19 points apiece. Harold Johnson tallied 17 in the game. Wheelwright falls to 4-12 on the season overall and 1-6 in the conference.

Rebels' hot streak continues with win over JCHS, 69-60

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

The Allen Central Rebels' "hot streak" continued Tuesday night as they battled one of the top teams in the 15th Region, the Johnson Central Golden Eagles of coach Alvin Ratliff.

The win was the Rebels' fourth without a defeat as they won over the Golden Eagles, 69-60, behind the 14-point performance of three players: Joey Conn, Rick Smith and Mike Hancock. Kevin Spurlock had 10 points and Cotton Parsons netted nine. Todd Lucas and Terry Spurlock each had four points.

The streak began with a victory over the Elkhorn City Cougars. The Rebels then defeated Betsy Layne and Prestonsburg in conference wins.

Allen Central had leads of 15 and 20 points throughout the game until the final period when the Golden Eagles made a run.

"We played well," Rebel coach Johnny Martin said of his team's performance. "We ran a little more with the ball than we had earlier because it was not a conference game. We led most of the game."

The last time the Rebels trailed was 18-17 after leading 17-14. The Rebels lost the lead on two steals and two dunks. Allen Central outscored Johnson Central 17-4 to take a 34-22 lead to the locker room at half time.

The lead expanded to 20 points throughout most of the second half.

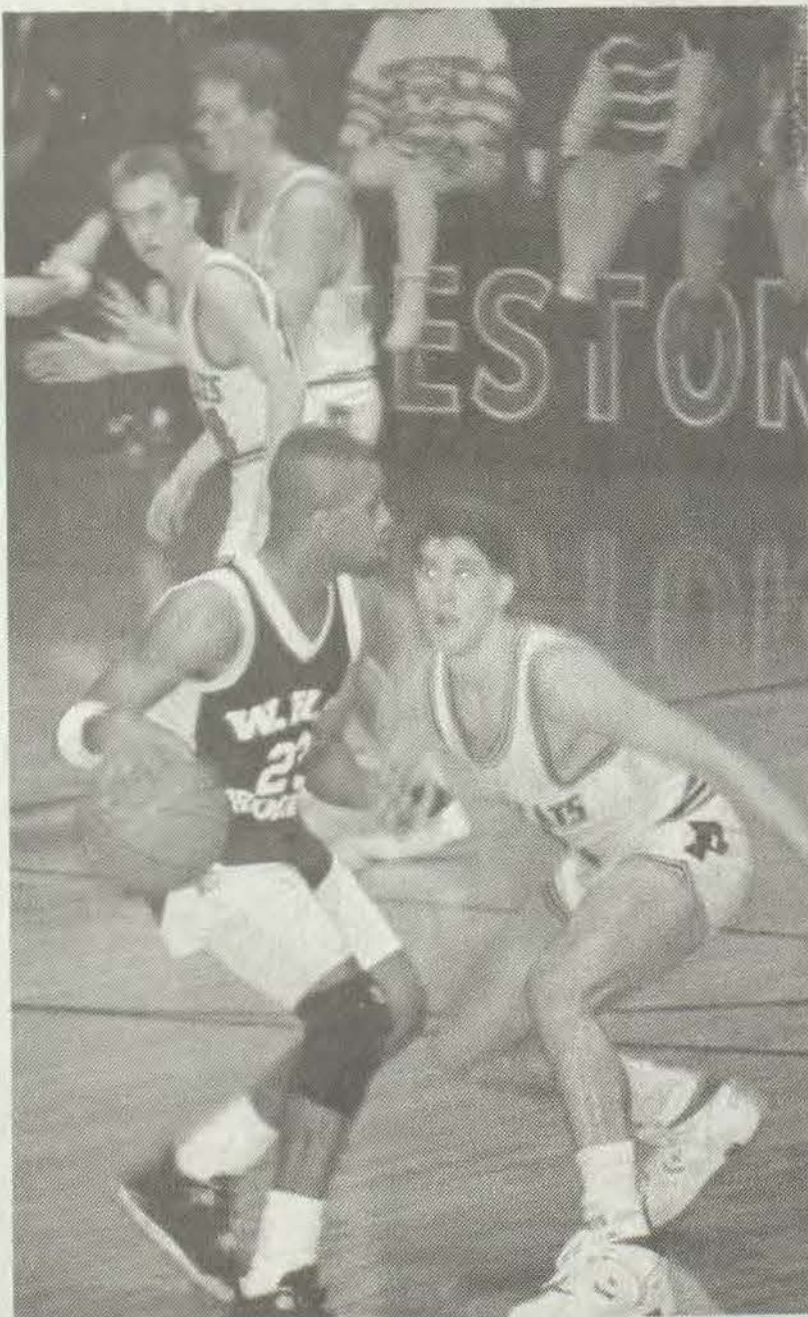

"I was really pleased with how we played," Martin explained. "We missed three front ends of bonuses down the stretch, though."

Tim Pelphrey led the Golden Eagles in scoring with 15 points. Avery Fairchild added 14 points and Rick Conley tossed in 13. Johnson Central's big center, Jody Salisbury, finished with 12 points.

The win improved the Rebels' record to 10-11 overall, and they will try to even at 11-11 against Leslie County Friday night. Allen Central defeated Leslie earlier at home.

Shannon's free throw at :06 defeats Betsy Layne, 61-60

by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

It had the atmosphere of tournament action. The crowd filled the D.W. Howard Fieldhouse and Kim Carter did an excellent rendition of the National Anthem as she always does.

Fans were excited as the Betsy Layne Bobcats were about to entertain the McDowell Daredevils. No basketball fan in the gym went home disappointed, except perhaps for the losing side, since both teams played hard in McDowell's 61-60 win Tuesday night.

On the line for the Bobcats was the Floyd County Conference title outright. Betsy Layne came into the contest with a 5-2 conference record and the Daredevils were 3-3. A victory would have assured Betsy Layne a conference trophy.

With :06 showing on the scoreboard clock, senior Scott Shannon stepped to the charity line with frantic Betsy Layne fans waving pom poms and hats and other things to distract the Daredevil shooter. The game was on the line.

"I tried not to pay any attention to the fans," Shannon stated. "I knew that the first one was going in. I think my God that it went in. I choked on the second shot, but that first one going in was good enough for me."

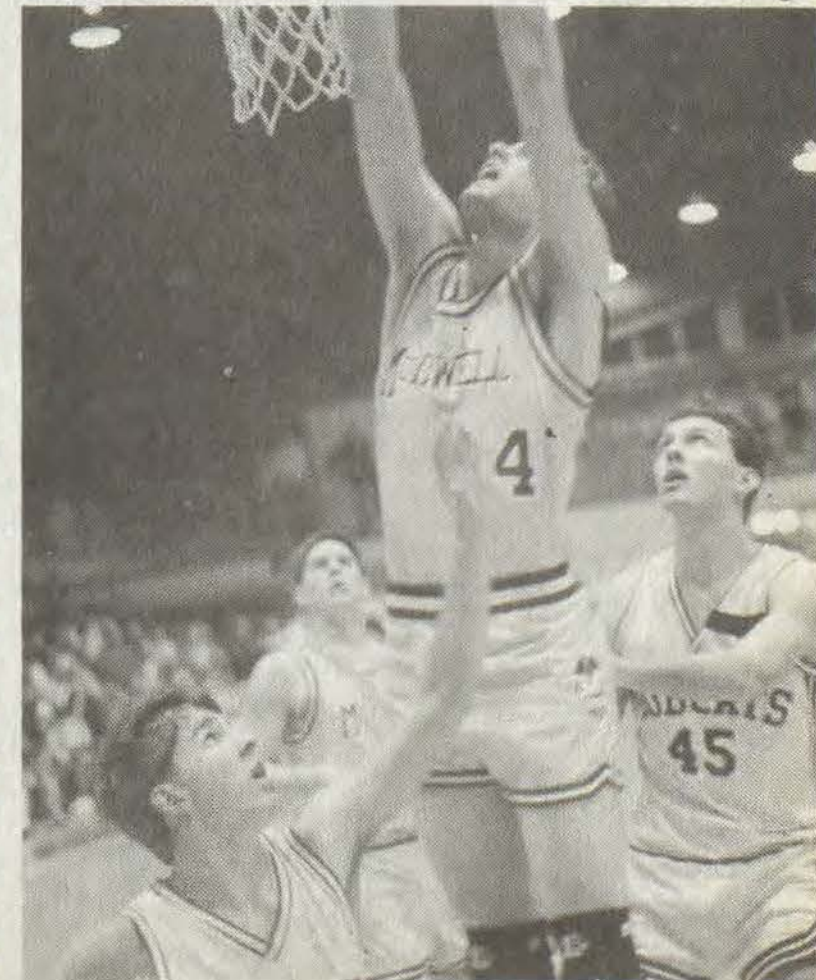

Shannon hit the first free throw and the second shot came off to the left where the Bobcats grabbed the rebound and got the ball into the hands of Adam Gearheart. On crossing the half court line the ball was knocked loose and a scramble ensued for the loose ball.

McDowell's Mike Duddleson was whistled for the foul when the clock ran out. The McDowell coaching staff contended that time had expired before the whistle was blown for the foul. A discussion followed for 15 minutes to decide what to call.

Once it was decided that the called foul would stand, confusion reigned over who was to shoot the free throws.

Keith Shelton (44) scores two points on this basket as Sam Stewart (45), Keith Hall (12) of Betsy Layne watch. Shelton had 19 points in the game to lead the Daredevils to a thrilling 61-60 win over the Bobcats.

Collins Brothers commit to Richland

Two Paintsville High School standouts, Chris and Craig Collins, one a former player, gave their verbal commitment last week to play basketball at Richland Community College in Decatur, Ill., next season.

Chris Collins, a high school standout at Paintsville a year ago, has been attending the University of Kentucky where he has done well academically. He will transfer to Richland College with a 3.0 GPA. Collins averaged 19.1 points per game, four assists and five rebounds.

Craig Collins is enjoying a very good season with the Paintsville Tigers.

"We are happy to have been able to secure the services of two players of the caliber of Chris and Craig," coach Jim LeMaster stated. "We feel that they can come in and contribute immediately to a program that has been dented this season by injuries of every type."

"We look forward to getting the Collinses on campus, and feel they will have very rewarding careers at Richland."

When it comes of telling of the places you have been, Burt Layne, teacher at Allen Central High School, has been around. Layne has been senior sponsor in Floyd County for the past 21 years — 19 of those at the Right Beaver school.

Layne has been to the Bahamas, New York, Washington, DC, Orlando and Daytona Beach with 21 different groups of seniors.

"I even toured Kentucky twice," the senior sponsor said. "But this is my last year as a senior sponsor."

Layne cites just being tired as the reason for giving up the trips to the southland.

"My favorite place of all the places I've been has to be Washington, DC," he said. "I enjoyed seeing the Washington Monument, Lincoln's monument and other sights of the capital."

Layne says that he has no favorite group he has traveled with, but that all "of them have been good." He made his first trip in 1972-73 when he accompanied a class to New York City.

"We never did go back to New York because of the problems they had there," Layne explained. "It was just too rough."

Layne was an assistant principal at Prestonsburg High School from 1979-1981 before coming to Allen Central in the 1982-83 school year. He was well known for his refereeing in the high school ranks until he retired after 16 years.

"I used to referee at the old Garrett High School's junior varsity games and I got paid $2.50 a game. Up at Wayland they paid $5 and I always loved to go to Wayland."

"You know, when I was a senior at Martin High School I didn't go on a senior trip. I wanted to stay home and play baseball. It rained all the time they were gone and I didn't get to play baseball anyway, well maybe one game."

Layne remembers some humorous moments on the 21 senior trips he has made.

"We told our students that if they were not on time where we told them to be we would leave them. We were in Florida and left Lolita Baldridge one time. She was inside playing the video games and we thought she was on the bus. We got 10 miles up the Sunshine Parkway before we realized we had left her. We had to turn around and go back for her. We found her waiting there for us."

"We were going on a cruise in Florida and I realized I had left my shaving kit back at the airport in Miami. I hopped a cab and went back to Miami and got my shaving kit. On the back to the boat area, a drawbridge came up and held up the cab. I made it back to the boat five minutes before it sailed," he recalls.

Layne feels that he has "done his share" and will step down after this year. He says the odd thing about all the trips is that he has made them with only three principals, J.O. Dindus, James Hensley and Don Daniels. "I've enjoyed being with the kids," he said. "You just have to watch after them and see they behave themselves."

If you attend the Allen Central basketball games, you will find Layne behind the concession counter selling popcorn, hot dogs and candy to help students raise money for their senior trip. Layne should be recognized by the school for the 19 years he has put in as senior sponsor.

Free Throw

Gearheart volunteered his services, but it was decided that he was not the shooter and Craig Hunter, a substitute for the injured Chris Newsome, was the chosen Bobcat to toe the charity stripe.

charity tosses by Gearheart made it 58-57 at the :34 mark. After Duddleson missed two free throws, Shelton was fouled with :19 seconds to go. Shelton hit both shots for a 60-57 lead. Gearheart, as he has done all sea-

The officials had one second put back on the clock before the free throw attempts. Hunter was awarded a one-and-one attempt at the line with a chance to win the game and the conference title outright. Hunter's free throw drew heavy metal and bounced off the rim giving the victory to the Daredevils. Hunter just stooped to the floor as teammates tried to comfort him.

McDowell held an 11-point lead, 55-44, with 3:38 to go in the game. On the Daredevils' next four possessions, they turned the ball over letting Betsy Layne back into the game. The Daredevils also went cold from the foul line where they could have salted the game away, but instead they almost gave the game away. McDowell center Keith Shelton, normally a good shooter from the charity stripe, missed two front ends of bonuses.

"I've been missing free throws the last three to four ball games," the mild spoken Shelton explained, "I don't know what's wrong I just haven't been making them like I did the first of the season."

Duddleson also missed the front of two bonuses in the last 56 seconds of the game.

The Betsy Layne defense really got after the Daredevils, causing some costly turnovers. To make things worst for McDowell, Stacy Hall fouled out with 34 seconds remaining in the game.

Betsy Layne pulled to within one point of the Daredevils, 56-55, with 55 seconds remaining on two free throws by Hunter. McDowell called time out.

"When they cut the lead to one point, coach said for us to keep our heads and keep cool, to just go out and work hard," senior forward Marc Hall stated.

Stacy Hall's two free throws gave McDowell a 58-55 advantage. Two son, hit the big three-pointer for the Bobcats to tie the game at 60-60 with :09 showing. On the ensuing in bounds play, Shannon was targeted for the foul by Betsy Layne with six seconds remaining.

"It was shades of the Johns Creek game," explained McDowell coach Johnny Ray Turner, in reference to his team's inability to hold a 10-point lead at the Bearcats' den earlier in the week, a game that was lost in overtime. "We had poor free throw shooting, but we're going to make them I guarantee it. This game here will make us."

"We make our free throws and the game's not even close," assistant Daredevil coach Jimmy Hopkins assured.

McDowell improves to 4-3 in the conference and 9-15 overall. Betsy Layne falls to 5-3 in conference play and 11-9 overall.

Shelton led the Daredevils in scoring with 19 points. Stacy Hall and Mike Duddleson added 15 apiece.

Game scoring honors went to Adam Gearheart with 28 points. Phillip King tossed in 11 as did teammate Sam Stewart.

in the first half. We didn't run a set offense. We weren't doing what we were supposed to do on defense, but we were still hanging in the game. That's always a good sign. We had hoped to change things in the third quarter, but again I was disappointed. They were slow getting back on defense and making stupid mistakes."

"The girls were really enthusiastic about this game," Keathley stated. "We had a little team meeting today and they were just determined not to roll over and die."

Keathley feels the district tournament is wide open and her team plans on winning it because of the way they have improved.

Betsy Layne standout Brenda Hamilton took scoring honors with 24 points as the only player in double figures. Melissa Bailey finished with six points and Shelia Hall added five.

Former WW player/coach

Martin welcomed home at WHS Homecoming

by Ed Taylor Sports Editor

Garnis Martin, one-time coach in Floyd County, was honored as "Garnis Martin Day" was proclaimed in the city of Wheelwright last Friday night at the Wheelwright gym. Martin returned to the Floyd County town after 49 years.

"It was a tremendous occasion for me," the Hall of Famer stated. "I want to thank Elmer Ferguson for getting the ceremonies together. He has been a long friend of mine."

Martin said that he was surprised that he knew so many people after a long absence.

"It was real honor to have your home town to honor you like they did me," he remarked. "It took a lot of planning."

On hand to take part in the events of the evening were Ron Hager, superintendent of Floyd County schools; Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo and State Rep. Greg Stumbo. Former Wheelwright Mayor Elmer Ferguson, organizer of the events to honor Martin, acted as the Master of Ceremonies for the festivities between halves of the Wheelwright and Mullins basketball game.

According to Ferguson, the ceremonies were great and went off really well. Martin was presented a painting of the Wheelwright High School that was painted by Billie Jo Stegall, art teacher at the school.

Supt. Hager presented Martin with a Certificate of Achievement for his coaching in Floyd County. Judge Stumbo signed a proclamation declaring Feb. 9, 1990, as Coach Garnis Martin Day in Floyd County. Also presented to Martin was a plaque from the City of Wheelwright proclaiming Feb. 9 as Coach Garnis Martin Day in the City of Wheelwright.

Rep. Stumbo presented credentials from Gov. Wallace Wilkinson naming Martin as an official Kentucky Colonel.

Martin is well known for his coaching record at Bardstown High School where he became the winningest football coach in the state of Kentucky this past season. Martin, who vowed to keep on coaching until he gets his 300th victory, may have some second thoughts.

"Now it is a year-to-year thing," he explained. "I'm thinking more now about retirement and plan to decide in the spring. Its not final. I have no hobbies to keep me busy and I guess coaching is my hobby. My after school hours are spent in coaching."

The former Floyd County coach has won 279 games as a football coach.

Martin, however, began his coaching career in the Right Beaver school of Wayland in the sport of basketball. He was named to the all-district tournament team in 1940-41. He attended Tulane University and returned to Floyd County to coach football at Wayland High School and then, later, basketball at Prestonsburg High School where he took his team to the semi-finals of the Regional tournament.

"We were beaten by McKell up in Northern Kentucky in the semi-final game," recalled the Bardstown coach. "Don Willis, Clyde Lafferty and Jr. Huntley were on that team."

Martin this past season was named to the Kentucky Hall of Fame and is the second person in Kentucky to receive the Governor Happy Chandler Award.

"Perhaps the biggest honor I have received was when I was elected to the Kentucky Hall of Fame. As well as I can recall, I am the only high school coach in the Hall of Fame. People like Pee Wee Reese, Johnny Unitas and others and I come along in the high school ranks."

Martin was a bombardier in World War II and was shot down while flying in a B-24 bomber. He was listed as missing in action but he turned out to be all right.

The honoree has had an illustrious career in the field of coaching, winning many awards.

Martin has seven children and 11 grandchildren.

Derby Classic field set

Louisville — All five University of Louisville basketball recruits, as well as University of Kentucky three, and a host of other outstanding players will be in Freedom Hall April 21 for the annual McDonald's Derby Classic all-star basketball game.

Anthony Cade, Dwayne Morton, Brian Hoggood, Tremaine Wingfield and Greg Minor have agreed to play. UK recruits Jamal Mashburn, Carlos Toomer and Gimel Martinez will be in the game, as well.

Tickets, $10 and $4, go on sale to the public April 2.

Cardinals take district wrestling tournament

Harrison County — Sheldon Clark Cardinals captured their first ever district wrestling championship with a victory over runner-up Johnson Central at Harrison County. The Cardinals finished with 214 points to capture the title. Johnson Central totaled 197, and Bates Creek took third with 172.

Reds sign Reed, Griffey and O'Neal

Cincinnati, Ohio — The Cincinnati Reds made head way in trying to get all roster players signed before the beginning of spring training, scheduled for Feb. 15 (if the owners do not lock the gates), by signing Ken Griffey, Jeff Reed and Paul O'Neal. Cincinnati is a favorite of many sources to challenge for the Western Division title.

Lisa Leslie scores 101 points

Inglewood, Calif. — Lisa Leslie of Morningside High School in Inglewood, Calif., scored 101 points in only 16 minutes of basketball. Leslie fell four points shy of the record set by Cheryl Miller. Morningside opponent, South Torrence High School, walked off the floor after trailing 102-24. Leslie made a last minute appeal to the South Torrence coach to play so she could score five more points. The coach asked the team if they were willing to and the team voted no. The game was later ruled a forfeit, erasing all the feats of Leslie.

Feds Creek Fuller is fifth in state

Feds Creek — Feds Creek girls standout basketball player, Claire Fuller places fifth in the state of Kentucky in scoring. The 5' guard also is second in the state in three-point shooting. Fuller recently set a new national record for high school girls by hitting 13 three pointers in one game against Elkhorn City. Fuller is averaging 28.5 points per game and is hitting 3.9 three pointers per game. Move over Jody Thompson.

All A Classic a success

Lexington — It was thumbs up for the Kentucky All "A" Classic basketball tournament last week. The program was a sure success if not from the monetary value, certainly from fan interest. It is a good program that allowed the smaller schools to showcase their talent. No doubt some of the teams that participated in this year's "sweetsixteen" will not be able to make a second showing at the "big daddy" of sweet sixteens, the Kentucky State Tournament at Freedom Hall in Louisville next month. However, excitement will be in order when it comes tournament time next February.

Dedication ceremonies marking the completion of a $150,000 waterfowl habitat improvement project on the Sauerheber Unit of the Henderson-Sloughs Wildlife Management Area (WMA) are scheduled for Saturday, Feb. 17 at 12:30 p.m. The public is welcome to attend.

This MARSH (Matching Aid to Restore States' Habitats) Project is a cooperative effort between the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources and Ducks Unlimited, a private, international conservation organization that focuses on waterfowl and wetland habitat.

In addition to the acquisition of much needed acreage next to the Henderson-Sloughs WMA, the MARSH Project included the installation of a waterwell and the construction of a low-level dike to create a shallow water impoundment ideal for waterfowl, shorebirds and other wetland species.

The Sloughs WMA receives extensive use by both ducks and geese during winter migration periods. The area is widely known for its wintering Canada geese, which last December's extreme cold brought to Western Kentucky in record num-

MCA to host junior tourney

The Mountain Christian Academy will host its first annual Junior Basketball tournament at the Martin-based school.

The tournament will begin on Friday (tonight) at 6 p.m., according to tournament director Harold Tackett. The eight-team double elimination tournament will continue on Saturday morning at 8:30 a.m. and conclude with the championship game Saturday evening.

The tournament is junior varsity age and will include teams from Betsy Layne, Martin, Maytown, Porter, Allen, two teams from Prestonsburg and Paintsville.

The school has plans to hold a training league tournament next weekend.

Fourth in a series

Teen pregnancy: A situation of decisions, problems

by Tess A. Whitmer
Staff Writer

For three weeks The Floyd County Times has been running a series on Teen Pregnancy. The first part dealt with the statistics. The second addressed the services available to the teenager who finds herself pregnant, or is interested in finding out more on birth control. The highly successful Betsy Layne Daycare program was the focus of the third part in the series.

But one essential part of this puzzle has yet to be discussed, and that is the teen mother herself and the dilemma she faces when trying to be a parent while still, to some, a child and to complete her education.

There are as many reasons for the condition as there are pregnant teens. Some choose to become pregnant to get out of school, to get out of home, to start their family, etc. Others find themselves pregnant by accident, either after marriage or before, do not believe in abortion, cannot face the separation accompanying adoption, or see keeping and raising the child as the only solution.

Becoming a mother at the tender age of 15, 16, 17 or even 18 presents numerous complications. First the expectant teen must decide about her future, her education and her career. She, and the father, face the ordeal of confronting their parents and making a decision about marriage.

Some girls see marriage as just another problem and choose to remain single and raise the child at home with their parents. Others, often because of family pressure, are determined to get married and give their child a legitimate name.

Whatever the case, a child faced with the consequence of raising a child is in a turbulent situation. Oftentimes, health problems occur because the young body is still growing and is not yet ready for the strain pregnancy and giving birth puts on it. Consequently, the teen is forced to miss school and must find the determination and the means to finish her education.

The two girls who are featured in today's article represent two of the situations described above. Both students are from Betsy Layne High School and are planning on finishing their education. And both agree that the nursery at the school and home economics teacher Patricia Huffman were key factors in their decisions.

Della Frasure is a 16-year-old wife. She got married last July, basically, she says, to get out of the house and to be with the man she loves. Frasure had planned to have children, but only after finishing high school and college. She hopes to be a radiologist.

Recently Frasure found out she was pregnant. Now a sophomore and three months pregnant, she is unable to attend school because she and her doctor feel it could endanger the baby.

She contends she was experiencing a great deal of nausea and dizziness, accompanied by abdominal pains. Through her physician she obtained a release certifying she needed to be on homebound study. With a 3.8 grade point average, she does not want to get behind in school.

However, a school system administrator did not see Frasure's situation as warranting the homebound program. Apparently Ogie Slone, special education coordinator, contacted Frasure's physician and found the teen's pregnancy to be a normal one. Because of doctor-patient confidentiality, this fact as reported by Frasure, could not be substantiated.

The guidelines for homebound study, as set forth by the Kentucky Department of Education, state: "The condition of pregnancy is not to be considered a physical or health impairment in and of itself."

Slone pointed out that during her five years in the position, she has put pregnant students on homebound but only if there are complications in the pregnancy that threaten either the life of the baby or the mother. Most of the homebound students need the personal tutoring because of injuries from car accidents, broken bones, surgery, fragile handicaps or emotional disturbances.

Although she cannot receive homebound instruction, Frasure has another option to finish her education. According to Huffman, the nursery program, which recently received funding for the next year, has in the past provided correspondence course material for students who had to leave school because of pregnancy.

Huffman feels, however, that with the availability of the homebound instruction program, she should not have to do this with the nursery funds. Floyd County has two full-time homebound teachers, who carry an average caseload of more than 10 students a day, with an additional five teachers doing part-time home instruction, according to Slone.

Whatever the result of Frasure's situation, she is determined to finish school.

"Della will graduate from high school and college, she's a tough little girl and she'll figure it out," Huffman said.

The second girl interviewed was a lot luckier that Frasure, in that her pregnancy presented only a slight obstacle to her education. Rhoda Mae Hall was able to carry her baby to full term while attending school and dropped out for a year after giving birth.

When she dropped out she was a first semester senior. She has returned this semester to complete the last of her requirements and is scheduled to graduate this spring.

Hall wanted to get married, but could not get her parents to allow it, so she planned to get pregnant to force the issue and was married in April 1988. She does not regret her decision and says she would do the same thing, if she had to do it over again.

She says she dropped out for the year because her pregnancy had caused her to miss some school and she was behind in her studies. She also wanted to spend the time with her newborn, now 15 months old.

Hall uses the nursery at the school and is able to see daughter Courtney between classes and during her free period. She says she's doing well in her classes so far this year and doesn't foresee any problems with a spring graduation.

Her reason for wanting the high school degree is: "If anything should happen to my husband, I want to be able to support my baby."

Hall says she and her husband receive help from her parents. Financially, the family is struggling, because Hall's husband was recently laid off from a coal mining job. The couple receives food stamps, a medical card and assistance from HUD.

With all the obstacles facing Hall's family, she says she likes being married and a mother, "We have our problems like everyone else, but I wouldn't trade it for anything."

Presbyterians to feature speaker on AIDS

Allen Mickel of Lexington, who is deeply interested in ministering to persons with AIDS, will be special speaker at the First Presbyterian Church of Prestonsburg on Sunday, Feb. 18, at 7 p.m.

His story recently appeared in the Sunday Lexington Herald-Leader, after his wife died from AIDS.

Mickel's talk will follow a meeting of the Men's Fellowship, which will also focus on AIDS. The public is invited to attend.

Newborn feeding topic of OLWH class

The health education department of Our Lady of the Way Hospital will hold the fifth class in the Childcare Series on Wednesday and Thursday of next week at 10 a.m. and 1 p.m.

The class is for expectant and new parents and will cover breast feeding, bottle feeding, preparation of formula, care of bottle and nipples, burping, allergies and feeding on demand.

Mary Montgomery, RN, certified childbirth instructor at Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education Association, will be the presenter on Feb. 21 and 22. The class is free and a gift for mother and baby will be given to each participant.

ELIZABETH ANN GREGORY

Gregory engaged

Cathy and Bill Gregory of Lexington and Janet and Ronald Glasscock of Winchester announce the engagement of their children, Elizabeth Ann Gregory and David Brian Glasscock. The prospective bride is the granddaughter of Mr. and Mrs. Milton Ryan of Van Lear and Wanda Gregory of Martin. The groom-elect is the grandson of Mr. and Mrs. Russell Adams of Winchester. The wedding ceremony is planned for May 12 at 5:30 p.m. at the Southern Acres Christian Church, Lexington. The gracious custom of open church will be observed.

Floyd County Families: Our Heritage

(3-9-#18) Priscilla Meade born ca 1805 married May 14, 1826 Eli (Stur-gill) Sturgeon (September 17, 1804) Floyd County, Ky.

Eli, was born in Grayson Co., Va., the son of John and Amy Hall Sturgeon. Eli was probably the reason his parents moved to Floyd Co., from Scott Co., Va. in 1837. However, Eli moved to Floyd Co., Ky., prior to 1826, when he married Priscilla Meade, born ca 1805.

It is believed Priscilla died between 1840 and 1842. 5 of Eli and Priscilla's children were born in Scott County, Va., the last 2 were born in Floyd Co., and Jefferson was born in Johnson County, Ky.

There is no listing of Eli Sturgeon in any 1830 census that I can find, however he is listed in the Floyd census in 1840. The 1840 census shows Eli living in Floyd Co. with the following occupants in his household.

- 1 male under 5
- 2 males 5 under 10
- 2 males 10 under 15
- 2 males 15 under 20
- 1 male 40 under 50 assuming Eli born 1800 in 1840 (40 years old)
- 2 females under 1 under 5 under 10 (Elizabeth-?)
- 1 female 15 under 20 (????????)
- 2 females 20 under 30 (assuming Priscilla born 1810 her age 1840-30)
- 1 female 60 under 70 (Amy Sturgeon, Eli's mother-??)

After the death of Priscilla Meade Sturgeon, between 1840 and 1842, Eli married May 27, 1845, Delinda Clark, born May 6th 1827, died December 26th 1899. D/O Daniel and Elizabeth Clark. (Taken from her obituary as written by Elder K.F. Hall in the minutes of the 75th annual meeting, dated 1900, of the New Salem Assoc. of Regular Baptists, Pike Co. Sept. 22 & 23.

The following is the way the marriage consent is written. File No. 851-License issued May 27, 1845 by Lohn D. Mims Clk. for marriage of Eli Sturgeon and Belinda Clark. Clerk certified that the "the necessary Certificate was produced to me from Elizabeth Clark parent of the said Belinda Clark." Bond signed by Eli Sturgeon and Elijah Hall (by marks).

Letter: "Floyd County State of Kentucky to wit Mr. John Mimes Sur this is to let you no that I Alisabeth Clark am willing for my dater (word marked thru) daughter Belinda Clark to inter marry with Eli Sturjel for she is of age given under my hand this the 27th day of May 1845. Alisabeth Clark atest Elighah Hall.

Married-"N") Bthe within was duly executed on the 28th day of May 1845. By me Samuel Reed.

(Known) children of Eli and Priscilla:

- #589 Blackburn ("Blag") Sturgeon (February 12, 1827-May 8, 1893) married Lucinda Clay on February 17, 1845.
- #590 John Sturgeon born 1828, Scott County, Va.
- #591 Leroy Sturgeon born 1831.
- #592 Miles Sturgeon born May 1833 in Va. married March 25, 1852, Amanda Hall, born 1835, D/O Jesse and Nancy Elliott.

- #594 Sarah Sturgeon born 1837
- #595 Emanuel Sturgeon born 1838.
- #595-A- John Jefferson Sturgeon (February 7, 1838-March 1924) married June 12, 1860, Serena Fairchild, born 1838. D/O Lowry and Rachel Lemaster Fairchild.

(Known) children by Delinda Clark:

- #596 Colbert Sturgeon born 1844
- #597 Joseph Craiten Sturgeon (October 1846-1923) married Lourisa Lewis in May 12, 1866.
- #598 Martha J. Sturgeon born January 1848 married March 28, 1866 Isaac H. Hanna, born 1845, in Pike County. Isaac was a well known minister in Pike County, Ky.
- #599 Sarah Ann Sturgeon born 1850 married June 28, 1875 Moses F.

Rice. Born 1851

#599-A-Mary Catherine Sturgeon (Sturgill) born 1851 married 1st in 1869 Jewel S. Keathley, 2nd in 1884, James T. Compton, Pikeville, Ky.

#599-B-Lucinda Alifair Sturgeon born 1860 married Lorenzo D. Estep. Issue: 3 children died young. 1 son John Estep born ?

#599-C-Lewis Sturgeon born June 1864 married January 1, 1882 Margaret Hall born February 1865, Floyd County, D/O Greenberry Hall.

#599-D- Louvina "Vanie" Sturgeon (June 12, 1868-April 27, 1957) married April 4, 1887 Noah Akers born July 9, 1868, S/O John B. and Susan Hall Akers, all of Floyd County.

(3-9-#19) Elizabeth Meade born 1802 died prior to 1829 married John Baldrige in Scott County, Virginia, Sept. 24, 1818.

Elizabeth Mead Baldrige must have died prior to 1829, because in Perry County, Ky. on Oct. 1, 1829, the same John Baldrige married another Elizabeth Baldrige. She is listed as stepmother in the 1880 Johnson Co. Ky. census, to Elizabeth Riffett, the only known daughter of John Baldrige and Elizabeth Mead Baldrige. We can only assume that the second Eliz. Baldrige, helped bring up the daughter of the first Eliz. Mead Baldrige.

Known children of John and Eliz. Mead Baldrige:

- #38 Elizabeth Baldrige born Oct. 1826 married James Riffett. 1850 Pike census shows:
- Living at #826: John Baldrige 50 born Va.
- Eliz. Baldrige 50 born Ky.
- Living at #827 James (Riffett) Replit 25 born Ky.
- Eliz. (Baldrige) Replit 20 born Ky.
- John Replit 6 born Ky.
- Elizabeth Replit 4
- Katherine Replit 2
- Note: Living at #838 is Rhodes Mead and family. This is in keeping with the tradition of that era to live close to a relative.

We next find them in the 1860 Floyd County Census at #9 of the Washam Dist.

(3-9-#20) Keziah Meade (1805-ca 1840) married Thomas Blackburn Akers, (1805-1888). Married Floyd Co., Ky., April 24, 1823, then sometime after 1840 moved to Johnson Co. Keziah, died soon after the birth of her son, John R. Akers, in 1839-1840. Note: Blackburn then married Elizabeth Baldrige on Oct. 24, 1843. This Eliz. Baldrige was the daughter of William and Mary Baldrige of Russell County, Va. and a sister to John Baldrige that married #19 Elizabeth Meade.

Thomas Blackburn Akers was the son of Valentine Akers and Francis Baskett Akers.

The marriage records show that Mary (Arnett) Baldrige gave consent for her daughter, Elizabeth, to marry Blackburn Akers. William Baldrige died in Russell Co., Va., in 1825 and the family moved to Mud Creek in Floyd County, in the next year or so. Their son William Jr. moved to Lee Co., Va., and did not come to Floyd Co., until after 1840. Another son Robert, came to Ky. from Russell Co., Va., after 1838 and prior to 1840. This information is based on tax lists of Russell and Lee Counties of Va., and Floyd County Ky. Tax lists, census reports and marriage records.

The above information was extracted from a letter from C.E. Shepherd, Dayton, Ohio, dated June 13, 1981, to Wm. Akers, Lexington, Ky. (Known) children: (1850 Johnson Co. Census)

HOROSCOPE

February 18 through February 24

By C.C. Clark

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)

A love relationship will go to new heights this week. Take this joy and happiness and run with it. You deserve to have it all.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

Good fortune comes if you recover from discontent. One who seems snobbish tries to make you feel bad about yourself. Don't allow it; look for the humor of the situation.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

You overcome a crisis by putting trust in someone who has been through the same situation. You will appreciate the protection and sincerity of a close friend.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

A man with power will cause you money trouble. Knowledge shared in a conversation will help turn your troubles around. Avoid acting immaturity in public.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

Your work will become like a new world to you. You will discover joy in tasks that were unbearable before. All of this is due to a subtle change of attitude on your part.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)

You need help dealing with a certain relationship; a special friend could be just the one to help. Listen closely to this friend and follow your head, not your heart.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)

If you concentrate on gathering details, you'll finish your work more quickly. Avoid indecision when dealing with someone you love.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)

A wish in connection with a loved one most likely is fulfilled. Following a false path could cause you to lose a great deal of money this week.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)

A woman will be instrumental in helping you through a crisis. A disagreement about ethics could cause a separation between a friend and loved one.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)

Avoid rash statements; they could be detrimental to a love relationship. Loved ones will seem unsympathetic but the opposite is actually true.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

A woman could quite easily become an enemy if you say the wrong thing. Think of how you would feel if you were in her situation and deal with it from that point of view.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)

You will think about changing your job, but now is not really a good time, financially or emotionally. Take time to think things through. You never know.

Nasty Boys, based on real-life police, stars Don Franklin, Benjamin Bratt, Craig Hurley, James Pax and Jeff Kaake, and premieres Friday on NBC.

New kind of cop show takes from real-life

Vegas drug squad reenacted in series

By Anne Wheeler

A new kind of police force comes to the screen Friday when Nasty Boys pre-empts True Blue to premiere as a series on NBC. (A two-hour pilot of the show is set for Monday.)

Modeled after an actual undercover narcotics force developed in Las Vegas, the Nasty Boys are maverick cops who are promised they may keep all vehicles, cash and weapons confiscated in their busts.

"When it first started, it was a very traditional unit," said Jim Jackson, a founding member of the real-life unit, now a technical adviser for the show. "Later, we became creative," he said, explaining that the group invited the press along on busts and created a rap song and a music video to impress upon Vegas audiences that they were there to combat the drug problem.

The television version of the Nasty Boys is made up of drug ring infiltrators (Benjamin Bratt, Craig Hurley and Jeff Kaake), a munitions expert (Don Franklin) and a martial arts expert (James Pax).

Dennis Franz, who starred as Det. Norman Buntz on Hill Street Blues and his own spinoff Beverly Hills Buntz, plays Lt. Kreiger.

"Kreiger is assigned to the unit because he is perceived to be a dirty cop," Franz said. "Because he wears expensive clothes he gives cops and criminals the impression that he is walking on both sides of the law. He's a good cop, but one who is not beyond bending the rules to see justice served."
