MSU dean, wife apparent suicide, murder victims

MOREHEAD — A Morehead State University dean apparently shot his wife and then himself last week. The bodies of Larry Jones, 49, and his wife, Ellen Barker, a professor at Bloomsburg (Pa.) University, were discovered in their university home by a campus security supervisor, following the receipt of an apparent suicide note sent to MSU President C. Nelson Grote. The Rowan County Coroner said Jones had carefully planned the deaths, mailing four Express Mail letters shortly before the estimated time of the deaths and telling a post office clerk he was leaving Morehead and never returning. Crisis loan approved for schools

SANDY HOOK — The Elliott County School District received approval recently from the State Board of Education to borrow $250,000 from a state emergency loan fund. School officials say that without the loan the county's school may have to close temporarily, because local property taxes have not been collected for two years. (Elliott County News)

Pike man indicted on rape charges

PIKEVILLE — A Pike County grand jury has indicted Billy G. Anderson, 34, of Pikeville on charges of first degree attempted rape for an incident that allegedly occurred on March 16 in the city park. (Appalachian News Express)

Musician to play jailhouse blues

PIKEVILLE — Sammy Adkins, lead singer for Ralph Stanley and the Clinch Mountain Boys, began serving a five-year term last Friday for his conviction two years ago for attempted rape. Attempts to appeal the conviction had been denied. (Louisville Courier-Journal)

Wrong answer

PIKE COUNTY — Mike M. Hicks, 35, of Robinson Creek, was shot early Friday morning, apparently for refusing to give a battery jump to a stranded motorist. Hicks apparently stopped to assist Bobby R. Billiter, 31, of Pikeville at 5:55 a.m. Friday. When he told Billiter he couldn't provide a jump, Billiter allegedly pulled a handgun and shot Hicks three times. Hicks was transported to the UK Medical Center and Billiter was arrested and lodged in the Pike County Jail on charges of first degree assault. The case is still under investigation by the Kentucky State Police.

Missing woman found in river

PIKE COUNTY — The body of Glema R. Tackett, 61, of Pike County was discovered at 2:30 p.m. Saturday in the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River by the Pike County Rescue Squad. She had been missing since Feb. 26. No foul play is suspected in the case. The case is still under investigation by the Kentucky State Police.

Teen killed in Hager Hill wreck

JOHNSON COUNTY — James A. Davis II, 19, of East Point was killed in a car accident Sunday night, while traveling north on US 23 at Hager Hill. The accident occurred at about 11:05 p.m. when the Ford Mustang he and Christopher S. Houston, 19, of Hager Hill, were traveling in dropped off the brim of the road. The vehicle then came back on the road and crossed into the southbound lane, into the path of a tractor trailer driven by Joe Meade, 33, of Paintsville. Both passengers of the Mustang were ejected from the vehicle. Davis was pronounced dead on the scene. Houston was taken to the Paul B. Hall Medical Center and was then transferred to Cabell-Huntington Hospital, where he was listed in critical condition. Meade was not injured in the accident. KSP is investigating.

Association would be held to determine if their Minnie building could be rented by the school board to house the students.

Such a relocation would depend on whether the building could meet health and safety standards and whether building owners are open to the board's offer, said Frazier.

If this option fails to materialize, Frazier said that the students would then be sent to another school, probably Osborne Elementary. A split-shift schedule will be designed, with Osborne students beginning classes earlier and McDowell students beginning in the afternoon, in order to provide the state required six hours of instruction daily.

"Obviously, our first choice is to solve the problem at McDowell," said Frazier. "If not, we still have to get back to providing instruction. We are going to have school somewhere."

The rash outbreak was first reported on Tuesday, March 13, when several grade school children began scratching at red patches which appeared on their arms and faces. Several were sent home.

The following day, more than 70 children in both schools were sent home with the rash, and local doctors and health officials were called in to examine the school buildings for possible environmental contaminants.

Thorough searches, checks on janitorial cleaning products and a complete disinfecting of the school buildings and grounds were conducted over the next several days, but the rash outbreak continued.

State and local health department officials initially believed the rash was caused by the Fifth Disease virus, a mild childhood virus that causes a lace-like rash and slight fever. The virus has been reported in several Kentucky schools.

However, following blood tests on four affected children, results were returned from the Center for Disease Control in Atlanta last Wednesday, showing that the virus was not causing the rash in the four children. That information was released last Friday, throwing McDowell parents into an uproar over the unknown ailment effecting their children.

Sunday afternoon, about 100 parents gathered at the First Baptist Church in McDowell to discuss the situation, listen to a report from the local health department and search for a way of dealing with the mysterious ailment.

Earl Compton, director of the Floyd County Health Department, addressed the gathered parents, but was unable to banish their fears for their children or soothe anger at state health and school board officials for not providing answers or shutting down the schools.

"If the school board was concerned about this situation, they'd be up here and checking out the building," said one mother. "Why aren't they up here to talk with us?"

The lack of communication between parents and school board officials was a common complaint at the Sunday meeting. The inability of Compton and other health experts to determine the cause of the outbreak also increased the sense of panic and anger felt by some parents.

"What good is it for my kids to go to school and get an education if they're going to die of lung cancer from what's in the air at school," shouted one father. "They're breathing it in when they're in that school."

Despite frustration at the perceived failure of the school board to provide information, most of the gathered parents agreed to send children to school on Monday to participate in a medical survey and blood tests that Compton said would help health workers find answers to the outbreak. However, most also expressed determination to stop allowing their children to attend school after Monday until a cause for the rash was discovered.

On Monday morning, Dr. Andrew Pelletier, from the Epidemic Intelligence Service of the state Department for Health Services was confronted in the elementary school building by a group of parents who wanted answers from the state as to what action was being taken to solve the McDowell problem.

Pelletier said that no blood tests or air tests at the school would be performed, but that a survey would be conducted with all students in the two schools to seek to identify common elements in the outbreak.

Questions on the distributed survey asked students if they ate school-served meals, if they drank water in the school, or if they rode the bus to school, and specific questions were asked about the effects of the rash

Options:

- 1) Solve problem at McDowell schools.
- 2) Move classes to another location.
- 3) Split-shift at another school.

and whether the severity of the rash varied, depending on what building the child was in.

As Pelletier talked with parents, a steady stream of children began to flow from various classrooms, complaining of the rash and scratching their arms, necks, faces and chests, disrupting classes and requiring parents to come to the school to pick up the uncomfortable children.

Many parents present at the school Monday said that would be the last day of attendance for their children until the source of the outbreak was found.

Results from the survey, said Pelletier, would not be available until the end of the week, following computer analysis.

Most parents present in the school Monday were not satisfied with what they viewed as an inadequate effort by the state to discover the source of the outbreak. At the Monday night meeting in McDowell, many parents agreed to keep their children at home.

Following Tuesday morning's protest and extremely low student attendance in both schools, the school board made its decision to shut the school down two days prior to spring break.

"I'm satisfied and I think most McDowell parents will be satisfied," said Brenda Cook, who was instrumental in organizing the local parent effort. "We didn't want this situation drawn out so long, but we're thankful to whoever made this decision. They (the school board) have come up with a solution to our situation, and they've agreed to what we asked. We're satisfied."

School superintendent Hager noted that two school systems in West Virginia had reported similar rash outbreaks, and air tests had been unsuccessful in determining the cause.

Good isn't good enough anymore.

Students learn about the problem of waste disposal

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

Concern about the environment and the state of solid waste is growing in Floyd County. This is evident by the amount of attention the topic has been getting from local groups and educators.

With this in mind, a group of students from Prestonsburg Community College used the forum of Professor Leo Weddle's Social Problems class to call attention to the problem of pollution and proper disposal of waste.

Charles Parson, who sees himself as a "radical environmentalist," moderated a panel discussion at PCC Tuesday. Several experts in the area of waste disposal were invited to speak on the panel, but only about half kept the engagement.

The fact that several members of the panel canceled out shows what a controversial and highly political issue this is," noted Prof. Weddle.

The four persons who did turn out for the discussion were David Cooley, supervisor and manager of the Floyd County Landfill; Robert Ford, vice president of Medisin Inc.; D.L. Bocook, civil engineer and owner of Bocook Engineering in Paintsville; and David Gardner, representative of the Big Sandy Area Development District.

"No one in government is opposed to anything that will help the environment," noted Cooley, "but, you have to consider whether the constituents will pay for it."

Most of the panelists agreed that many people have the philosophy about the waste problem, "out of sight, out of mind."

"Too many people are apathetic...everyone wants everyone else to do something with the garbage so they don't see it," Parson commented. The students agreed that their visit to the landfill last Friday wasn't a pleasant experience, but most people never see the process the garbage goes through and therefore don't care.

Ford noted that the real pressure about medical waste didn't start until the syringes and bags of blood and such started washing up on the northeast coast of the country. Highlands Regional Medical Center and Consolidated looked at the problem in 1987 and created the Medisin Inc. to research the problem of medical wastes of which there are several types, including solid waste, recyclables, re-usables, pressurized containers, radiological waste, regulated medical waste, cytotoxic waste and infectious waste.

Each stream is separated and segregated for proper disposal. Ford commended the incineration program, noting that it reduced the volume of waste by 96 percent. "Incineration is the most acceptable means of dealing with hospital waste. And it is an approved method to destroy all pathogens," he noted.

This incineration project is a pilot program for the rest of Kentucky. Others states, such as Ohio, Virginia and Illinois, have also been looking at it.

Floyd County was also the first in the state to begin universal garbage collection, according to Cooley. Although the program began in 1981, Cooley noted that it was difficult to implement all at once.

Illegal dumps still are springing up all over the county, although every unit of housing is billed $8 a month for collection. "There are some not paying their bill, but we have been taking them to court and we collect. We have never lost a case yet," he stressed. "We only have one ecology officer...the public needs to help by looking for dumpers and getting involved in the court process by testifying against the culprits."

Cooley noted that the most persistent dumps are in isolated areas. "These people must have a lot of intestinal fortitude to traverse some of these access ways to dump," he said, noting the illegal dump off the old Auxier Road as a prime example.

Although the state is in the process of imposing new, more stringent regulations on landfills, Cooley is confident that the Floyd Landfill will be able to work with these stipulations and continue to operate.

Bocook, whose firm has been involved in the constructing of landfills, noted that there are precautions taken in the building of such a site to prevent leaching and contamination of sub-surface waters. Material is placed down to act as a membrane for the fill. Also used in combination with the membrane are clays and gravels, all tested for permeability, as well as sanitation chemicals.

He noted that continual monitoring and testing is taken place at sites to assure that the surrounding environment is not receiving any contamination.

Both Cooley and Bocook noted that recreational sites are being constructed on former landfill sites. The site must be closed and monitored for 10 years before such development can begin and then no building is permitted to be constructed above a closed landfill.

The audience questioned the process of recycling products to help the environment. "Recycling is coming into its own lately, but right now it's not economically feasible," pointed out Cooley. "Other states have mandatory recycling laws, but there is no market that large in Kentucky."

Cooley told the students that private groups would lose money in recycling and if the state could even come up with a system to break even in the effort, he was sure it would implement one.

"Right now we have to work on the manufacturers of products to use biodegradable products. This is something that is going to affect you and your kids, and more people need to get involved," he said.

Something smells

Students from Leo Weddle's Social Problems class at Prestonsburg Community College made a visit to the Floyd County Landfill to learn of its operation. The trip was one part of study about solid waste "The Law and Alternatives." David Cooley, landfill supervisor, was on hand to explain the disposal process and the new regulations being created for landfills in Kentucky.

best prices, without sacrificing quality, and conserving energy and things like that," he pointed out.

"Prices will be raised as a last resort, but our customers have already told us to raise the prices and not sacrifice the quality of the food or the service," Absher said.

The manager at FoodLyon, Roger Watts, agreed with Absher's statements that more efficient working standards would be the best way to reduce the payroll.

"We knew this was coming and have already given all our employees raises, so everyone is at or above $3.80 per hour," he said. "We had discussed this and decided that focusing on training and making our employees more efficient at their jobs would decrease the number of manhours."

"As a matter of fact, we already have seen a payroll reduction this past month due to the success of the training. I think that training is the best way to compensate for the increase in salaries," Watts said.

Watts noted that prices do go up, and down, but at grocery stores, it isn't due to the minimum wage increases.

Kentucky Fried Chicken of Prestonsburg, along with the local franchise's 10 other stores, has also been slowly increasing its employees wages, so as not to get hit with a big increase all at once, according to Prestonsburg store manager Cindy Hatfield.

"We are not planning on raising our prices on chicken at all. If we need to increase prices it will be on side items and desserts, and even then not more than 10 cents," Hatfield noted. "We have a good working relationship between management and employees, and our workers will offer to leave early if they have all their work done and things are slow. That really makes a lot of difference on the payroll when people jump in and volunteer to help out like that."

The minimum wage may have changed, but according to Karn, the overtime regulations and child labor laws are still in effect and remain the same.

For more information on these laws and any other pertaining to labor concerns, contact the US Department of Labor, Wage and Hour Division at 432-0665.

House Week in Review

By Rep. Russell Bentley

The legislative spotlight, trained for months on education reform, widened to envelop the budget as we completed the 1990 session's penultimate week in the House of Representatives.

The massive education reform bill cleared two committees before we approved it on the House floor, leaving the Senate a week for its deliberations. Undoubtedly, we will wrestle with this historic legislation in conference committee right up to the sounding of the session's final bell on March 29.

Dozens of amendments were added to House Bill 940 during a marathon four-hour spirited debate.

The landmark bill passed 58-42 with Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson in the chamber, observing the unprecedented proceedings.

Also folded into the bill was a compromise funding plan to pay for the new educational system, which includes a 1-cent increase in our state sales tax and changes in our income-tax system. While our Appropriations and Revenue Committee struggled with this proposal, three other budget bills were pushed along the legislative process: spending proposals for the executive, legislative and judicial branches of government.

By the time you read this, my colleagues in the House will have voted on the $8 billion, two-year executive budget and sent it on to the Senate. The Senate will then debate the bills and make changes of their own; changes the two chambers fail to agree on will be resolved in conference committees, which will likely meet long into the night.

Although it seems as if the session just began, it will end on Thursday unless legislative leaders extend the calendar. We'll then recess for 10 days to allow the governor to decide whether to veto any legislation. We'll return to Frankfort April 11-12 to consider action on gubernatorial vetoes.

Despite a lot of talk about a possible special session to deal with education or any lingering budget problems, it now seems that there is no such meeting in the cards for the immediate future. Bearing that in mind, several other important issues were dealt with last week.

We passed HB 814 which created a new Cabinet for Workforce Development to encompass adult and vocational education and vocational rehabilitation programs. This cabinet is intended to help Kentuckians who do not plan on attending college prepare to enter the workforce.

Also receiving approval was HB 893, which establishes a state plan to clean up hazardous waste sites. The program is designed along the lines of the US Environmental Agency's Superfund program and will provide cleanup money for sites which do not qualify for federal funds.

A bill approving a $600 million road-bond issue received committee approval and will be acted on shortly by the House. This is part of the administration's plan to build several much-needed roads across the state.

Among the projects which are expected to be funded include reconstruction of US 68-KY 80 in western Kentucky, US 23 in Pike County, US 127 in central Kentucky and US 25 E in Eastern Kentucky.

Committee approval was given to legislation prohibiting the Kentucky Lottery Corp. from conducting sports-related or casino-type activities.

I'll try to provide you with an update on the particulars of the budget in my final column, wrapping up this most remarkable session, next week. If you have any comments, please call me toll-free at 1-800-372-7181.

Legislative Prospective

By Rep. Greg Stumbo

Last week members of the House of Representatives donned their statesmen's cloaks to etch history in the legislative journals with passage of a sweeping education reform bill. It is likely to be the most important decision I will ever make as a legislator. And, it is possibly the most important commitment that Kentucky will ever make for its future.

Despite sometimes hostile debate and several surprising vote reversals, supporters of the reform package were pleased and relieved at the bill's passage. Governor Wilkinson watched the floor debate from a chair near the Speaker's podium. Kentucky has taken a bold step forward with a new system of education tailored to fit the demands of the 21st century.

The massive piece of legislation dramatically alters school curricula by providing for a number of progressive programs. Site-based management will allow for more decision making at the school level with parents, teachers and administrators sharing in the process. Early grade levels have been eliminated. A comprehensive statewide technology program, and a new statewide evaluation program will be developed. The measure makes preschool available for all handicapped children in the Commonwealth and establishes a statewide summer school.

Also among reform measures is a provision that the Department of Education be replaced in 1991 with a new Education Commission.

A new branch of the Legislative Research Commission will be organized to oversee evolution of the new system.

The duties of the current Superintendent of Public Instruction will be phased out by July 1, 1991, and a Commissioner of Education will be appointed by the state school board.

The legislation reduces the state school board to 11 members with one from each of the seven Supreme Court districts and four at large to be appointed by the governor and confirmed by the House and Senate.

The new system will be funded on a per-pupil formula basis with additional funds provided for physically handicapped or learning disabled students. Local effort for funding education is also increased.

Financial rewards will be granted for schools that succeed in meeting certain academic and social guidelines defined by the Education Commission. Schools that fail to progress though the tiering process may be subject to sanctions including dismissal of teachers and administrators.

Tied to the success of the comprehensive program is the revenue generating measure that includes change in our state income tax system and an increase in the corporate tax. The tax portion of the bill also includes a one-cent increase in the sales tax. House Bill 417 was signed into law by the Governor. That bill creates the job creation authority for many East Kentucky counties that will be a coordinated effort between government and business. Road bond legislation was passed by the House. The bill authorizes the Transportation Cabinet to issue bonds totaling $600 million for several major road projects critical to the revitalization programs planned for rural Kentucky. It is an important aspect of East Kentucky's economic development plans.

This is the last full week of the 1990 General Assembly. We will spend it ironing out final details on measures before the House and Senate and considering any bills the governor may veto.

Workshop planned for small businesses

The East Kentucky Small Business Development Center and the International Revenue Service are offering a Small Business Tax Workshop, Thursday, March 29, from 9 a.m. to 4:30 p.m.

It will be conducted by Flo Barton of the IRS and will be presented at the Pikeville Public Library. The workshop is free and open to the public.

Special arrangements for the handicapped will be made if requested in advance. Contact Linda Casebolt at 432-5848 for more information.

eye to revising it. Upon a required second reading, the council voted to repeal an old ordinance which closed Margaret Street, which results in the street now being opened.

A contract offered by the state Department of Rural and Municipal Aid that would give the city the bulk of its share of municipal road aid in July, rather than in quarterly payments, was approved by council, on a motion by Dr. Gary Brown, seconded by Callihan.

James told council that the 80 percent "up front" payment could be deposited in a bank to draw interest for use when street repair needs occur. The contract calls for the city to ante three percent of the allocation into an emergency fund to be shared with communities statewide, with the remaining 17 percent to be paid to the city in February.

Latta reported that members of the deacon board at First Baptist Church had proposed that church members maintain a free soft drink stand at the municipal parking lot on weekend evenings when young people congregate there. The mayor added that she suggested that other churches also get involved. Fannin moved that the city forego a parking lot rent fee for the church, Vance provided a second, and council approved the motion.

Latta also noted that, on the suggestion of Attorney Brown, the city should schedule public hearings on the local cable franchise. Communi-

Woman critically injured by knife

A 16-year-old West Prestonsburg girl was critically injured Saturday, when she was struck by a knife thrown by her husband.

According to Kentucky State and Prestonsburg police reports, Judy Skeens, 16, of West Prestonsburg received a wound to the chest from a thrown knife, following an alleged argument with her husband, Thomas Skeens, 20.

Judy Skeens was rushed to Highlands Regional Medical Center emergency room, where doctors reportedly worked to repair her damaged heart and replace lost blood. Skeens' condition was upgraded from critical to serious Monday.

Thomas Skeens was arrested and lodged in the Floyd County Jail on charges of first degree assault. He is being held on a $25,000 cash bond or a $50,000 property bond.

cation law requires a locality to have such a hearing within the last six months of the 36th month of a franchise contract or else the franchise holder continues without public input.

Council also voted to declare three sanitation vehicles as surplus property. They include a flat bed collection vehicle, a street sweeper and a garbage truck. Funds from the sale are to be used to purchase a new, smaller garbage truck which will more easily fit in alleys and narrower streets.

Council members are to meet today with the police and public works departments to discuss budgets.

PROPERTY PURCHASE

Following adjournment of the regular meeting, council members called a meeting of the Prestonsburg Holding Corporation to discuss purchase of the Salisbury property on Front Street. The decision was made to purchase the property to be used as a city parking lot.

James said the acquisition and development of the land will assist in revitalization of the downtown area.

The city, according to Latta, has held an option to buy the property but had been hoping for a grant to help with the purchase. Two grants proposals for that purposes have been rejected.

Absent from Monday's meeting were council members Bill R. Collins and William O. Goebel. The next regular meeting of the group is April 9 at 7 p.m. at the Municipal Building.

Shotgun incident at city barbershop

An afternoon altercation in a Prestonsburg barbershop Thursday exploded into a wild-west scene between a shotgun-wielding Town Branch man and three Prestonsburg police officers with drawn weapons.

The incident began about 4 p.m. Thursday, when Albert O. Gibson of Town Branch apparently entered Wright's Barbershop on Court Street and began harassing people in the shop.

"He came in and was bad-mouthing everybody," said Frank Nelson, 23, of Prestonsburg. "When I went outside with him, he attacked me."

Following the fight with Nelson, Gibson apparently returned home and picked up a shotgun.

Prestonsburg police, who had responded to the report of a fight at the shop, were in the shop when Gibson allegedly called Wright's and told Gary Wright, who answered the phone, that he was coming back with a shotgun.

Officers Rick Conn and Anthony Castle positioned themselves outside the shop to intercept Gibson, and Sgt. Mike Omerod stayed in the shop, taking a report from those present.

Gibson appeared suddenly, pulling up in a vehicle in front of the barbershop and pointing a loaded shotgun at the front window into the shop, threatening the seven persons in the shop, including at least one child.

The police officers ordered Gibson to drop the weapon at gunpoint, and he was apprehended without further incident. He was charged with seven counts of first degree wanton endangerment, DUL, disorderly conduct, and terroristic threatening.

Police Chief Greg Hall commended the officers involved in the incident. In a written release, Hall stated, "The officers placed themselves in immediate danger of serious physical injury or death in order to insure the safety of the citizens of this city."

Bar owner shot

A Toler Creek bar owner accidentally shot herself Monday in her trailer, according to Kentucky State Police reports.

Connie H. King, 38, the owner of Connie's Bar in Toler Creek, was apparently attempting to unload a .22 caliber pistol, when it discharged, striking her in the upper-left chest. She was discovered by neighbors who rushed into the trailer after hearing the gunshot. They found her in the bathroom.

She was rushed to Pikeville Methodist hospital and was listed in stable condition.

The incident is under investigation by the Kentucky State Police.

Sheriff's raid takes two

A Saturday night narcotics raid by the Floyd County Sheriff's Department resulted in the arrest of two Floyd County men.

Following investigation by the sheriff's department, a search warrant for the residence of Kelse J. Chaffins, 39, of Rock Fork near Garrett, was obtained.

According to a report by Deputy Rick Thornsbury, Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and deputies Thornsbury, Frank Stone, William Howell, Danny Jarrell and Dwaine Jarrell participated in the midnight raid. The officers entered Chaffins residence, arresting Chaffins and Steve D. Gunnell, 32, without incident.

Both men arrested were charged with possession of less than eight ounces of marijuana, and Thornsbury said further charges are pending, following state-performed tests on certain substances confiscated during the raid.

In other reports, Thornsbury noted that the past weekend was a very active one for the sheriff's department, requiring numerous responses to domestic cases in the county.

"The number of callouts this weekend by far exceeded the normal level," said Thornsbury. "This was the busiest weekend all year for domestic incidents."

Hearing slated on water in southern tip of county

Water problems in the Weeksbury, Melvin and Bevinville areas will be the subject of a public hearing on April 12 at 6 p.m. at Melvin Grade School.

The Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet is sponsoring the hearing as part of its investigation of the impacts of pre-1977 mining on ground water quantity and quality in the Weeksbury-Jacks Creek area of southern Floyd County, according to a public notice that appears in this week's edition of The Times.

The investigation will include a study of contamination problems along all of Jacks Creek, the headwaters of Left Beaver and Abner Fork, as well as various hollows in the area, the notice states.

The Cabinet's Division of Abandoned Lands, in conjunction with Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo's office will conduct the hearing.

The purpose of the meeting is to explain the scope and schedule of the ground water investigation and to solicit input from citizens affected by water problems.

Results of the investigation will be used to determine if money from the Abandoned Mine Land Reclamation Fund can be used to address the problems.

Additional information may be obtained by contacting the Division of Abandoned Lands, 618 Teton Trail, Frankfort 40601 or by calling 502-564-2141.

Coal company posts finances

Addington Resources, which has coal operations throughout the Big Sandy Valley, has reported higher revenues and lower earnings for 1989. Total revenues for 1989 increased 12 percent from $220.8 million to $247 million, as tonnage of coal shipped rose 8.5 percent to 6.5 million tons, according to the report. Net income was $8.5 million, compared with $13.3 million in 1988.

Company president Larry Addington attributed the earnings decline to flooding which disrupted coal production and highway construction in the first quarter of 1989 and to a strike by United Mine Workers against Pittston Coal Co.

Production has since returned to normal as net income for the fourth quarter of 1989 increased, he said.

"We're focusing closely on developing our coal mining and landfill businesses, and we expect 1990 to be a very productive year," Addington said.

The company president said the company is acquiring additional low-sulfur coal reserves in anticipation of increasing coal production in 1990 and beyond. Additionally, the company is investigating opportunities to develop environmentally superior recycling centers and associated landfills, he said.

The company, with coal operations in Kentucky, West Virginia and Ohio, also engages in contracting, highway construction operations and sanitary landfill development and operation.

Don't look now but Maysville High School has ask to merge with Mason County High School for the 1991-92 school year. Maysville, with only 130 students in grades 10-12 reached the semifinals of the first Kentucky All "A" Classic Tournament last month and finished this season with a 23-10 record.

DANVILLE TO FACE HARRISON IN REC BOWL
Danville, last year's Class AA football champion, will play Harrison County in the opener of the annual Recreation Bowl doubleheader next August in Mount Sterling. Montgomery County and Woodford County will play in the second game.

OXLEY STILL PLAYING AT 77
Lus Oxley, native of Ashland, still plays basketball full court. What's wrong with that? Oxley is only 77 years old.
"Nobody my age is playing in the United States," he is quoted as saying. So what does Oxley do. "I play against the younger players."

"I scrimmaged against Rowan County out of the 16th region and last year's champion and went four quarters," he said proudly.

TURNER, JONES TO ASSIST IN SHOOTOUT
McDowell coach Johnny Ray Turner and Wheelwright's Monroe Jones have been named as assistant coaches to Prestonsburg's Gordon Parido in the Kentucky Mountain Shootout, an all-star game between 15th region and 16th region players. The two assistants were picked by Coach Parido.

BABE RUTH MEETING
According to Floyd County Babe Ruth League president Harold Case, the Floyd County Babe Ruth Association will hold its first spring meeting Sunday, April 1, at the convention center at Allen Park at 6 p.m. In last Friday's edition, we incorrectly listed April 8. All coaches and interested persons are urged to attend. For more information contact Harold Case at 285-9324.

ROBERTS' 17:24 GOOD FOR 17TH PLACE
Rick Roberts' 17:24 mark in the St. Patrick's Day 5K run in Lexington was good for 17th place among 1,000 participants. The run was 3.1 mile course. Roberts runs in the 30-39 age division. Roberts is a veteran of many races, including the Boston Marathon.

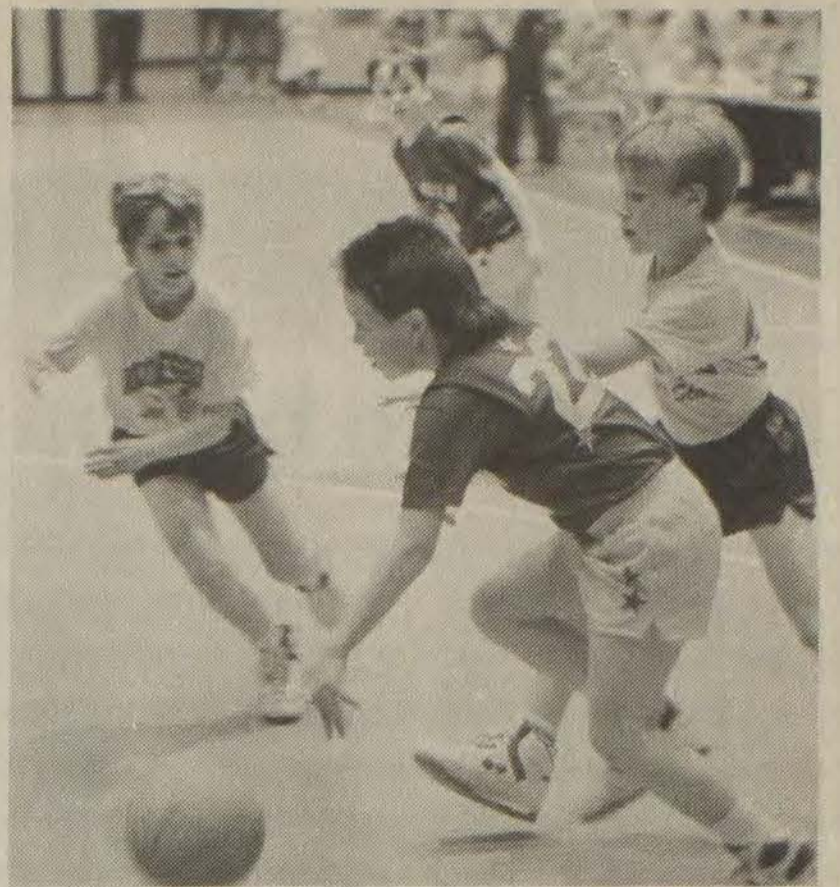

BASEBALL CARD SHOW THIS WEEKEND
A baseball card show will be held at the Carriage House in Paintsville Friday and Saturday, March 30-31. Friday's hours are 5-9 p.m. and Saturday, 10 a.m. till 4 p.m. Admission to the show is $1.

WILLARD CANDIDATE FOR HILLTOPPER JOB
Kentucky assistant basketball coach Ralph Willard is seriously being considered for the head coaching job at Western Kentucky University. Former head coach Arnold Murray resigned under fire last month. Willard came to UK with new coach Rick Pitino. Pitino is quoted as saying, "Some day Ralph will have his own team."

CURRY MAD THEN GLAD
University of Kentucky head football coach Bill Curry did not like what he had seen of the UK football players in his first day of spring practice. After three days into practice, Curry now says that he is pleased with what he sees. He has singled out the fact that this year's edition of Wildcat football has a group of hard working players. Curry also said of his squad that they had shown improvement from day one to day two.

THOMPSON, SPAKE SELECTED FOR TRYOUTS
The Kentucky All-Star selections were announced over the weekend and the 15th Region had two players, one for the boys and one for the girls, selected to try out for the All-Star squad. The Kentucky All-Stars will meet the Indiana All-Stars in a two-game series later in June.

Jody Thompson of Feds Creek, a future UK Wildcat, will try out with the boys team and Elkhorn City's Stacey Spake was selected for girls competition.
The Tryouts will be at North Hardin High School on April 28 and 29.

Let's get Billy!

Billy Mitchell (22) of Martin tries to avoid the defenders from Middlesboro in junior pro training league action at Richmond recently. The Martin team was taking part in the Eastern Regionals at Madison Central High School. (Mitchell was incorrectly identified in last week's edition.)

Sportsman's Club offers year-long activity

Middlecreek Sportsman's Club officers

The Middlecreek Sportsman's Club recently elected new officers and board members. The local club will be starting its second year with many programs being planned.

The sportsman's club plans a trip to Cave Run later in the summer and a fishing tournament is also in the planning stages. The club will be raffling off several items in the coming year. Education is also on the agenda for the club as it will host courses on hunter education safety, handgun safety and also a safety class on handguns for women.

If you like turkey shoots, the Middlecreek Sportsman's club has that planned also. Planting food plots will be interesting to many sportsmen in the area. Coon hunting meets, as well as squirrel hunts, will be held in the coming year at the club along with coon drags and rabbit hunts.

The club also met with the Magoffin County Fiscal Court on wild dog control. The club donated picnic tables to the local fire department and had a pancake day with free coffee to travelers on Memorial Day. The club hosted the League of Kentucky Sportsman's regional meet last July and donated money to the Middlecreek Volunteer Fire department for Christmas gifts and food baskets.

The club meets the first Sunday of each month at 6 p.m. at the fire department. Anyone wishing to join or just renew membership may contact Larry Dotson at 886-6128 or any of the club officers. Club members express their thanks to everyone who has helped in the past and those who are helping still.

and Tim Pelphrey of Johnson Central; Magoffin County's, Donald Helton; J.J. Hylton of Belfry; Chad Hunt of Johns Creek.

Chris Harrison of Tollesboro, first team All-Stater, was the state's leading scorer at 33 points per game, with Thompson finishing second with an average of 30 points per game. Thompson averaged pulling down 12 boards a game.

Harrison has also made an oral commitment to play basketball for the UK Wildcats, however, Harrison will have to wait the 1991-92 season because he is only a junior this year.

Other first team All-State members, besides Thompson and Harrison, are Dwayne Morton of Louisville Central; Andy Penick of Pleasure Ridge Park; University Heights Sergio Luyk.

Morton and Penick are the top two candidates for the title of "Mr. Basketball" in Kentucky this year. Morton has been the center of some controversy lately in the recruiting wars and has been ruled ineligible to play for the Louisville Cardinals by the NCAA. Louisville has appealed the ruling.

PHS tennis teams have high expectations

Prestonsburg High School tennis coach Bobby Hamilton has high expectations of this year's team. Hamilton expects his Prestonsburg team, along with regional power Russell, to challenge for the tennis title this time around.

Home matches for Hamilton's team will be played on the courts at Allen Park until the new courts at Archer Park are completed. The first home meet for the Blackcats will be on Wednesday, March 28, in a 5 p.m. start. This will be against Russell for the boys' team only.

The girls' tennis team, coached this year by Sandy Brookover, will start the season on April 9 in an away match against Morgan County. The girls' squad, along with the boys' team, will travel to Leslie County on April 10.

Returning for the boys from last year's squad will be Joe Burchett and David Thompson.

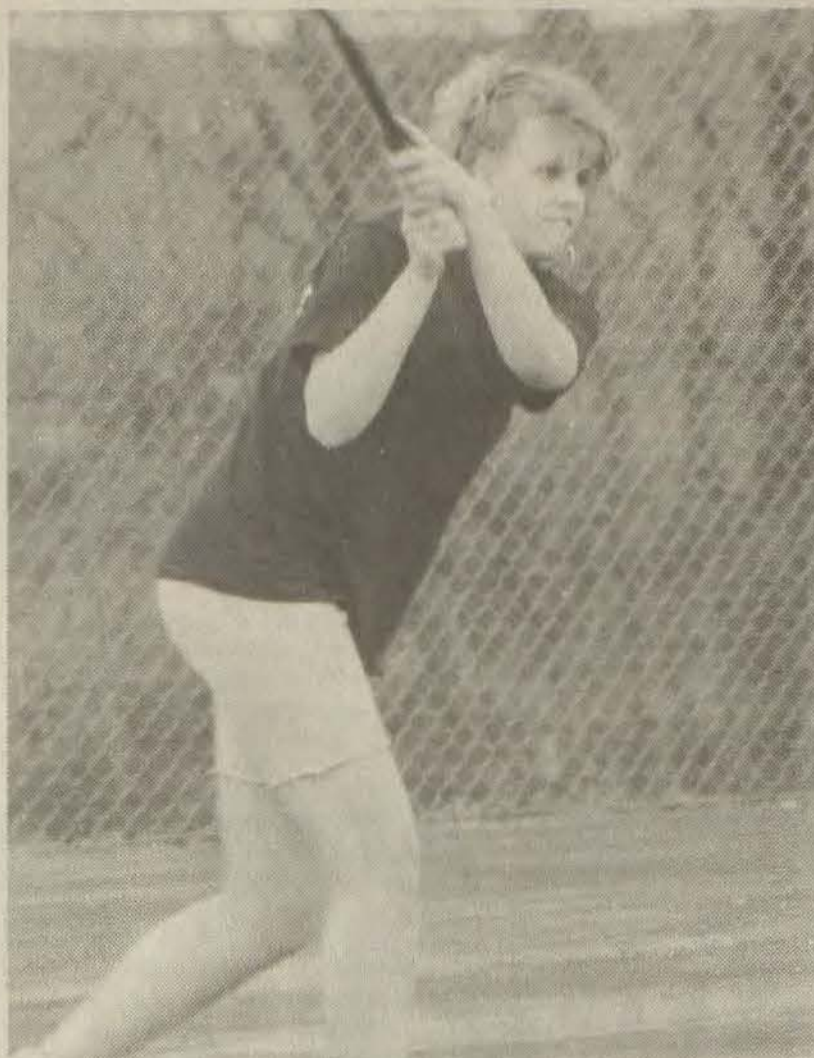

For the girls, Robin Allen, Krystal Howell and Laura Miller will be back. Howell will be the captain of this year's tennis squad for the ladies. Newcomers for the girls' team are Raquel Cain and Kerry Merion. Other members of the Lady Blackcats squad are Rachel Ousley, Sandy Nelson, Jennifer Carroll, Myra Huffman and Jessica Wright.

Other boys players include Paul Horn and this year's captain, Tim Martin. Brian Stewart will also be returning for Prestonsburg. According to Hamilton, Chris Sturgill is a very promising tennis player.

Tennis season begins soon

The Prestonsburg Ladies Tennis team is anxiously awaiting the start of the 1990 tennis season. The Prestonsburg ladies are scheduled to start on April 9 in a road meet at Morgan County. Several promising newcomers will be welcomed on this year's squad. Sandy Brookover coaches the Prestonsburg team.

High expectations

The season hopes of the Prestonsburg Ladies Tennis team will ride on the play of this year's captain, Krystal Howell. The Lady Blackcats tennis season will get under way on April 9 at Morgan County.

Thompson returns

David Thompson is one of several returning players on the Prestonsburg tennis team of coach Bobby Hamilton. The coach will be looking to Thompson and some other returning racket men to bring a winning season to the local team.

Odds 'n Ends

WEDNESDAY, MARCH 28
87th Day, 278 to go

Battle of Glorietta Anniversary: On this day in 1862, near Santa Fe, N.M., Confederate forces briefly prevailed over Union troops in what some have called the most important battle of the Civil War in the Southwest; it was feared that the rebels would go on to the rich gold fields of Colorado and California.

Muslim Holiday Ramadan: The month of Ramadan traditionally begins when Moslem sheiks in Saudi Arabia sight the new moon; during this holy month, Moslems abstain from food, drink, smoking, gambling and sex from sunrise to sunset.

St. John Nepomucene Neumann: The first American male to be canonized by the Roman Catholic church was born on this day in 1811 in Bohemia; he came to this country in 1836 and was proclaimed a saint in 1977.

Three Mile Island Nuclear Power Plant Accident: A series of accidents began on this day in 1979 at Three Mile Island, near Harrisburg, Pa., causing reevaluation of the safety of nuclear power generating operations.

Notable births: Actor Dirk Bogarde, 69; actor Ken Howard, 46; former Secretary of State Edmund Muskie, 76.

THURSDAY, MARCH 29
88th Day, 277 to go

John Partridge "Death" Hoax Anniversary: English astrologer John Partridge so offended readers by his foolish predictions that satirist Jonathan Swift published an almanac under a pseudonym in which he predicted Partridge would die on March 29, 1708. Partridge, in trying to prove he was still alive, became an even greater target of amusement by writers continuing the fiction of his death.

Karen Ann Quinlan Birth Anniversary: The young woman who became the center of an international legal, medical and ethical controversy over the right to die was born this day in 1954. Quinlan's parents petitioned the court in 1975 to discontinue use of a respirator on the woman who was believed unrevsibly comatose, and after a long court battle permission was granted; however, she continued to live until 1985, never gaining consciousness.

John Tyler Birthday: 10th US president, John Tyler, was born this day in 1790 in Virginia; first president to marry while in office (1841-45).

Other notable births: Singer Pearl Bailey, 72; football player Earl Campbell, 35; former presidential candidate Eugene McCarthy, 74; gymnast Kurt Thomas, 34.

Where are they now?

From advertising to art, local woman hits the canvas

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

When she worked at The Floyd County Times, few knew of the extent of talents that lay hidden beneath the exterior of a very organized and professional advertising manager.

But, in November of last year, Brenda Lee Crouch left the newspaper to devote full-time to her passion — art. Since then, many are coming to discover the diversity and skill this young woman possesses, and her business is taking root.

"Graphics by Lee" is the name of her studio in her home on Middle Creek, where Crouch does custom art for clients who want to give a unique gift or just remember that special person with a portrait.

Presently Crouch is concentrating on pencil sketches and lithographs (sketches done on a background theme, such as sports or hobbies). But, she is also slowly expanding her repertoire into such things as Scrimshaw etching on powder horns and what she terms "oddities."

"If a person is decorating a home and has a particular color scheme in mind, sometimes finding just the right type of art work can be difficult," she explained. "If they tell me what they want, I can usually put it together for them."

Crouch is skilled in pencil, oils, acrylics and colored pencils and she is looking to perfect her air brush skills as well.

For her portrait and lithograph work, Crouch projects a picture of the subject on to the canvas to get a rough outline, proper placing of the eyes and such. After that step is completed she then free-hands in the shading and details to come up with an uncanny likeness of the person.

In addition to the already developed background themes on the lithograph canvas, Crouch said she has had requests to customize the backgrounds, adding things like pipes and tools for a construction worker for example.

Crouch received her formal education in commercial art at Morehead State University, but she noted that her love of the profession began in high school. "I had a teacher who was really special. She saw the potential in me and pushed me and gave me the incentive to stick with it," Crouch recalled.

Directly out of college, Crouch began work at The Floyd County Times as a layout designer for ads. "There was some creativity involved in that, and I was happy doing it," she said. "But as I learned more about the business and was promoted to ad manager the creative aspect of the job sort of dwindled out." Crouch noted that after she got off work, she was normally too tired to do much drawing and got away from it for awhile.

After six years at the newspaper, she decided it was time to get back into her work as an artist and struck out to start a business of her own.

"Business has really started picking up as people hear about my work, but now that I've started back at the paper part-time, it has cut the hours I can devote to my projects," she said. "I came back because I wanted to help out the paper."

This past month she has been training a new ad manager and helping out while one sales agent has been in the hospital. But, she will be going back to her craft full-time in about one month, she added.

At the age of 28, Crouch has developed a studio in her home and has gotten her customers mostly by word of mouth and advertising in the paper. She has plans to expand her business and create a workshop in the basement of her residence so she can do more specialized work with air brushing and working on wood.

"I don't want to get bogged down, just doing portraits. I want to try different forms of art, such as the scrimshaw work. There aren't many people who do that any more and it has sort of become a lost media," she continued. "The work is real tedious, but the results are worth it."

The scrimshaw requires minute scratching on such things as horns and knives and then the area is colored in with a dye resulting in a unique and customized piece.

The charge for such a piece is about $120 with the horn included. Crouch charges about $50 for a portrait of one person on a lithograph and framing is extra.

"If a person gives me a good picture of the subject's face and another of the whole body, I can get an idea of the person's build and can pose them however they like," she explained.

She gave an example of a lady who wanted to create a sort of memorial for her late husband. The customer requested that the man and his granddaughter, whom he had never seen, be pictured together.

"The photo shops weren't able to blend the photographs to make the picture she wanted, so she came to me," the artist noted.

The largest project she has done so far, is of six people (a couple with their four children surrounding them). The customer supplied Crouch with individual pictures and she created a collage of their faces. It took her about one and a half weeks to complete.

"I can usually get the entire project, drawing, matting and framing, done within a week's time. But the sooner I get the order the better, because I may have back orders that need to be done first," explained Crouch.

Anyone interested in contracting work from "Graphics by Lee" can contact Crouch at 886-2994. Just give her a description of what you want, or go to her studio and see some of the sample projects, and she'll be able to quote a price and date of completion.

People will also be able to see her work soon on display at area craft shows or in a local gallery. Presently she is working on a portfolio and additional samples and display pieces for this project.

Pasta or noodles are good guys in the complex-carbohydrate group of foods, but there's one way to make a pasta meal even more nutritious: Sneak in vegetables in nearly equal proportion to the pasta.

For instance, if you're cooking linguine or any flat-type pasta, shave off thin ribbons of carrot or zucchini and microcook or steam briefly.

Toss the cooked vegetables with the cooked, drained pasta, and add a sauce-of-choice for a lighter, more nutritious presentation — not to mention more colorful.

Regular egg noodles are delicious cooked and drained, then tossed with butter-steamed, coarsely shredded cabbage. The proportions are up to you, but any combination up to equal parts is fine. Instead of plain poppyseed noodles with butter, try the noodle/cabbage combination and toss with sour cream; sprinkle with poppy seeds.

Shredded nappa (a mild Chinese cabbage) or iceberg lettuce is a fiber-rich addition to fettuccine and sautéed chicken-breast strips. Another novel dish is to spread chopped spinach and low-fat cheese on cooked lasagna noodles. Cut each roll-up in half and place over a meat sauce with the ruffled edges of the noodles on top. Cover and bake to heat through.

 CHICKEN AND LETTUCE FETTUCINE

- 1 small head iceberg lettuce
- 6 ozs. fettuccine
- 1 Tbsp olive oil
- 2 large garlic cloves, minced
- 1/4 lb boneless, skinless chicken breasts, thinly sliced
- 1/2 lb. sliced fresh mushrooms
- 1 cup frozen peas
- 1/2 cup julienned red bell pepper
- 1/4 cup chopped fresh basil (or 1 Tbsp dried)
- 3 Tbsps cornstarch (scant)
- 2 tps chicken bouillon granules (or 2 chicken bouillon cubes)
- 1/2 cup dry white wine
- 1 cup water
- Freshly grated Parmesan cheese
- Freshly ground pepper

Core, rinse and drain iceberg lettuce; shred 4 to 5 cups by using a long-bladed knife and cutting board. Set lettuce aside.

Cook pasta just to al dente stage according to package directions in boiling salted water.

Meanwhile, heat olive oil in a large skillet or saucepan. Add garlic, chicken and mushrooms; cook until chicken is no longer pink, about 5 minutes. Stir in peas, red bell pepper and basil.

Combine cornstarch, bouillon granules, wine and cold water; pour into chicken mixture and heat, stirring often, until sauce thickens.

Drain fettuccine and stir the shredded iceberg into the chicken mixture after it's removed from heat.

Make nests of the pasta on warm plates and spoon on chicken-lettuce sauce. Top liberally with freshly grated Parmesan and pepper.

Yields four servings. Prep time: 30 minutes.

 LASAGNA ROLL-UPS

- 12 cooked lasagna noodles
- 2 Tbsps olive oil
- 1 large onion, coarsely chopped
- 2 cups sliced fresh mushrooms
- 1 cup beer
- 1 lb frozen ground turkey
- 1 (15-oz.) jar spaghetti sauce, any style
- 2 cups ricotta cheese
- 1 (10-oz) package frozen chopped spinach, thawed, well drained
- 1/4 cup grated Parmesan
- 1/2 tsp garlic salt
- 1/4 tsp freshly ground pepper

Have salted water boiling and cook lasagna noodles according to package directions.

Meanwhile, heat olive oil in a large saucepan and saute onion and mushrooms over high heat until nearly tender; stir often. Remove vegetables with slotted spoon; set aside.

If lasagna is done by this time, drain and cover noodles with cold water; set aside.

Add beer and frozen roll of turkey to saucepan and cover. Cook over medium-high heat to thaw the turkey. Uncover occasionally and scrape off cooked meat. When completely thawed, cut through meat to break up large pieces.

Remove cooked meat with slotted spoon and boil beer to reduce to half. Return turkey and vegetables to beer in pan; stir in spaghetti sauce. Pour into a 13- by 9-inch baking pan, ungreased.

Blend the ricotta cheese, well-drained spinach, Parmesan cheese, garlic, salt and pepper. Drain noodles and spread 3 Tbsps of cheese mixture to edges of each noodle.

Roll up each noodle and cut each roll in half, so each has ruffled edge. Place cut sides down in turkey mixture. Cover with foil and bake at 350 degrees until hot a bubbly, about 30 minutes.

Or cover glass baking dish with plastic wrap and microwave on 75 percent power about 5 minutes. Yields eight servings.

 CHEESY PASTA PRIMAVERA

- 1 cup coarsely chopped onion
- 2 Tbsps butter or margarine
- 2 Tbsps flour
- 1 1/2 cups milk
- 1 cup (8 oz) Wispride sharp cheddar cold pack cheese spread
- 2 cups sliced fully cooked smoked sausage

- 8 oz fettuccine
- 1 pkg. (16 oz) mixed vegetables (broccoli, cauliflower and red pepper)
- In a medium saucepan saute onion in butter until tender. Stir in flour. Cook, stirring until bubbly. Gradually stir in milk; continue cooking and stirring until sauce thickens and comes to a boil. Add cheese and stir over low heat until melted and smooth. Add sausage and cook until heated through. Cover and keep warm.
- Meanwhile, cook fettuccine as directed on package. Add vegetables to pasta after five minutes; return to a boil and continue to cook until pasta and vegetables are tender. Drain well and return to cooking pot. Stir in sauce with sausage and serve at once. Makes 4 servings.

 SEDANINI ALLA CRUDAIOLOLA (Pasta with Uncooked Vegetable Sauce)

- 1-1/2 lbs fresh ripe tomatoes
- Coarse-grained salt
- 2 medium-size cloves garlic, peeled
- 1/2 tsp hot red pepper flakes, to be added to marinade (optional)
- Juice of a medium-sized lemon
- 4 medium-sized inner white celery stalks, well scraped
- 1/2 cup olive oil
- Salt and freshly ground black pepper
- 1 lb dried sedanini — preferably imported Italian

(If this pasta is unavailable, any short tubular pasta two to three inches long and 1/2 to one inch in diameter, may be substituted.)

To Cook the Pasta
Coarse-grained salt
To Serve

Blanch the tomatoes in salted boiling water, then remove the skins and seeds, leaving the tomato fillets whole. Place tomatoes in a crockery or glass bowl along with the garlic and hot red pepper flakes, if used, and pour the lemon juice over. Cut the celery into pieces the same size as the pasta and put them, along with the oil, in the bowl. Season with salt to taste and abundant black pepper, but do not mix. Cover the bowl and refrigerate for at least one hour or until needed.

Bring a large pot of cold water to a boil over medium-heat, add coarse salt to taste, then add the pasta and cook it for 9 to 12 minutes depending on the brand. Meanwhile, mix the tomatoes with the other ingredients and coarsely chop the parsley. When the pasta is ready, drain and transfer it to a large serving platter, then pour the sauce over. Mix the pasta and sauce together very well, then sprinkle the parsley and basil all over, mix again and serve.

KIWANIANNES HOLD MONTHLY MEETING

The Prestonsburg Kiwanianes held their monthly luncheon meeting, Thursday, March 22, at the May Lodge. Hope Whitten, president, led the group in the Kiwanian Blessing, after which lunch was enjoyed.

The devotion was presented by Mabel Jean LeMaster, who read from Kings, Chapter 5, Verses 1-14. She also read "God's Help," from the "Upper Room" Magazine, and a poem entitled "The Wonder and Loveliness of Rowena Cheney," and closed with a prayer.

In the absence of Dorothy Osborne, no minutes were read. Garnett Fairchild gave the financial report.

The following members were listed as ill, and "get well" cards were signed to be sent to them: Dolly Petrey, Osborne and Jane Wallace.

The president reminded those present that the semi-annual Heart Clinic, held at the Floyd County Health Department, for which the Prestonsburg Kiwanianes and the Kiwanis Clubs furnish snacks and milk, would be held there in April.

Garnett Fairchild read a card from the family of a late member, Mary Margaret Webb, thanking the group for the monetary donation made in her memory, to the First United Methodist Church, where she had been a long time member.

In the absence of Wallace, program chairperson, the president presented Virginia S. Goble, who gave a program on "Kentucky." She talked about the forthcoming centennial celebration, with emphasis on the "History of Floyd County" to be published in conjunction with this event, and she stressed the idea that cooperation from all communities in Floyd County would be necessary in helping to make this publication and the Centennial successful.

Goble discussed "Kentucky Firsts" from a handbook by Robert A. Powell and, following her discussion, she gave a "quiz" on this topic.

Then, she showed slides of "familiar faces and places" — of which were May Lodge during the fall of the year, the Prestonsburg courthouse and post office, the Floyd County Health Department during the early days, the Garfield Place and many others.

Attending this event were Goble, Whitten, LeMaster, Fairchild, Mildred Salisbury, Rebecca Rasnick, Ada Meade, Lucy Regan, Myrtle Allen, Maman Leslie, Minerva Cooley and Docia Woods.

Quotes and Quibbles

Coordinated by Sandra Robertson, PCC Director of Library Services

Beginnings
by Sandra Robertson

Beginning today, "Books and Things" becomes "Quotes and Quibbles." Several faculty members from Prestonsburg Community College will be writing articles for the new column. From time to time I may contribute book reviews as Trisha Morris did for "Books and Things." But the topics for "Quotes and Quibbles" will vary from week to week. The authorship will also vary from week to week.

Thinking about the end of Trisha Morris' "Books and Things" and the beginning of this column led me to reflect that beginnings of new endeavors often have ties to events in the past. The library at PCC moved into a lovely new facility (Magoffin Learning Resource Center) in November 1988. But the book collection was started back in 1964 by Robert Wallace who was the first librarian at the college.

The new library has a special collections room in it. Some of the books purchased by Wallace are in Special Collections, as well as items donated and purchased later.

What is so special about a Special Collections book? These are books, papers and pictures about our past — the history and culture of Eastern Kentucky. One of these books — Foretaste of Glory has a note in it written by its author Jesse Stuart. Stuart wrote in part: "I see you have a first edition here. My friend, these are getting very scarce. And incidentally, this book was not liked too well here when it was published. Now the attitude has changed."

Also in Special Collections is a copy of Harry Caudill's Dark Hills to Westward: The Saga of Jenny Wiley. Copies of these books are hard to find now also. The three-volume set of Kentucky in American Letters by John Wilson Townsend is also present. Kentucky has so many authors that a three-volume set is needed to cover them all.

Many persons use Special Collections to do genealogical work on their family histories. Works which are useful for that type of research include Genealogies of Kentucky Families, Jenny Wiley Country, Kentucky Pioneers and their Descendants, Historic Families of Kentucky, Kentucky Marriage Records and Early Families of Eastern and Southeastern Kentucky.

Anyone can use the Special Collections room. Visitors to the library are welcome. However, as Jesse Stuart wrote in his note, "My friend, these are getting scarce." For this reason, the books and other items must be used in the Special Collections room and cannot be checked out.

As we move into the last decade of this century, it is important for our people — and especially our young people — to know and understand our past history and literature. If we are not secure in this foundation, moving into the technological age of computers and high speed information transmittal will leave us as unsteady as a tree with weak roots.

REBEKAHS HONOR LONG-TIME MEMBERS

The regular meeting of Miriam Rebekah Lodge #31 was held on Tuesday evening, March 20, with the noble grand, Beverly Hackworth, presiding. Those in need of sympathy and those on the sick list were recorded and cards were signed for them.

The noble grand reminded the members of the visit to the Mountain Manor Nursing Home on April 1 at 2:30 p.m. She gave a report of the District #4 meeting held in Inez on Saturday, March 17, stating that 13 members were present, and the Miriam lodge won the attendance banner.

A memorial service was held for members who passed away in 1989. Taking part in this were Lorena Wallen, Paulena Owens and Mabel Jean LeMaster. Hope Whitten conducted the school of instruction. It was decided that May 1 would be the date for the initiation and re-obligation ceremonies.

The 25-year-and-over members were honored by the noble grand with a birthday cake. As the names were called each of them lighted a candle and placed it on the cake and shared with the others, some highlights of their years in the order. Each honoree was presented a remembrance, and the noble grand read a poem entitled "We Cherish."

After the group was seated, LeMaster was escorted to the center of the floor and presented a jewel by Hackworth, Mary Ann Prater and Virginia S. Goble. LeMaster was the recipient of a 50-year pin.

Those honored, and the number of years they have belonged to this order, follows: Willa Mae Branham, 28; Stella Copley, 38; Burieta Gearhart, 43; Virginia S. Goble, 37; Mabel Jean LeMaster, 50; Lois Ann May, 28; Vina Nuckles, 37; Norma S. Stepp, 37; Hope Whitten, 37; John N. Burchett, 37; Susan W. Garrett, 45; James B. Goble, 37; Effie Hopkins, 61; Maman Leslie, 35; Garnett Mayo, 40; Florence H. Reynolds, 39; Lorena Wallen, 30; and Mary Zemo, 41.

A collection for the Arthritis Fund amounted to $77. An exchange of gifts was held with all those present participating.

Prior to the meeting refreshments were served in the dining room, and door prizes were awarded. Birthday greetings were extended to Hackworth.

In addition to those who were honored, present at this meeting were: Dorothy Osborne, Pearl Robertson, Claudine Johns, Dora Johns, Mary Ann Prater, Mary Sue Martin, Debbie Johns, Myrtle Allen, Owens, Donna Thomas, Margaret Baldrige, and Hackworth.

The next regular meeting will be April 3 at 1 p.m. in the IOOF Hall.

FLOWERS ON THE ALTAR

Flowers on the altar of the First United Methodist Church during services there this past Sunday morning were in honor of the baptism of David Banner Leslie IV. They were placed there by the church family.

West to Eastern (Part 2)

by Barbara Martin

In case anyone is wondering where Eastern, Ky., really is, it is located between Garrett and Martin on Right Beaver Creek. Highway 80 has split it in half, but we don't complain much as we are thankful for the better road.

Old Highway 80 was a turning, twisting, up and downhill, two-lane highway — a nightmare to travel.

Lifelong residents of this community are smug in the knowledge that we have always had a pretty good town with good neighbors. Many people seek housing here as they have heard that it is a good place to live.

From what I have been able to find out from older residents, Eastern is about 70 years old. It has already outgrown one name — Osborne, the name of one of the earliest human inhabitants. Its age is restricted to these few years because it was originally owned by large landholders. Subdivision to survivors down through the two to three hundred years has produced the small holdings which might be only a house and one lot of various size.

Its hard-working citizens have the reputation of being intelligent, having unlimited ingenuity, and fun loving vitality. Their culture is based on religion (mainly Old Regular Baptists), but few are active church members.

Except for a few years, there has always been at least one grocery store, which changed from feed fuel for the mule and horse transportation to the modern Roger's Chevron Station, which furnishes the "feed" to our automobiles.

It has been my permanent address since 1932.

Modern day genealogists declare that the native stock is Anglo-Saxon (English) with a scattering of German and Scotch-Irish. Mixed with the utility of these stocks is the native intelligence of the Cherokee Indians.

Walter Scott "Hoosh" Martin, a local historian/genealogist, told me the story of the London Company of England. He said it had been handed down by word of mouth for many generations. "They" said that the Allen family of this area had been given land grants, which ran along both sides of Right Beaver Creek from Allen to Wayland, to encourage them to come to the New World to "trade and traffic." Hoosh encouraged me to investigate the truth of the story if ever there was a chance.

During my Alice Lloyd College study schedule, I found the time by using the topic to do required research papers. I will share with you some of my findings.

In 1606, King James I of England granted a charter for settlement of South Virginia, between the 34 and 38 degree of latitude. An association of noblemen, The London Company, named because of where they lived, sent three ships of immigrants to America with a "get rich quick" scheme. The ill-fated company is better known as the Jamestown, Va., settlement. They did not succeed with their plans, but they did open the new world to colonization.

Some of the company found, upon reaching their destination, that their names were listed as the first council of Virginia. The names had been sealed in a box by King James. To see that laws were obeyed, Capt. John Smith, Edward Maria Wingfield, Christopher Newport, John Ratcliffe, John Martin and George Kendall were the appointees.

Wingfield was elected to lead, but was fired when he attempted to slip away from the settlement. Newport returned to England, leaving Smith, Ratcliffe and Martin in charge. Ratcliffe became governor, and Martin at one time was given the position, but resigned after one hour because he did not want the responsibility. Most leadership was left to Smith.

The first colonists were ill-suited for their jobs since many were sons of English nobles. Smith sent word to the King to send common laborers next time and no more people who had to be waited on.

Many people carry the blood of these early forefathers who dared to settle a wilderness. They made their way to "back country" Virginia, since divided into other states, including Kentucky. Many of the names found here today coincide with rosters of those adventurers: Ratliff (Ratcliffe, Ratcliff), Martin, Allen, Turner, Hall, Moore, Stewart, etc.

Ratcliffe and Martin were given the reputation of being poor judges as to what to do when danger was near and not very active workers in times of peace. I believe that they circulated that story in order to get away to carry out their original plans: to "trade and traffic." Their forebears were among the first settlers in this area.

Since the Martins in our family married into the Allen family and worked for them, Martin may have been sent ahead to scout out the new grant for the Allens. Personality factors will allow these assumptions because they are inherited or learned. A survey shows that the Allens did appear thickly settled along Right Beaver Creek. (To be continued)

SELF-CONTROL

It used to be that a person with minor symptoms of ill-health would automatically turn to the doctor for diagnosis and medication. However, over the past two decades, there has been a steady trend toward self-diagnosis and self-medication. In recognition of this trend, the Food and Drug Administration began reviewing its approval of over-the-counter products in 1972. Since then, the FDA has lifted the prescription-only restrictions on at least thirty medications. For its part, the FDA ordered improvements that made the new over-the-counter drugs safer and more effective. The consumer's responsibility lies with self-diagnosing correctly and reading the instructions and restrictions that apply to the drugs taken.

COOLEY APOTHECARY meets the highest level of professionalism in our business and would be honored to become your pharmacy. Whether you would like our advice regarding an over-the-counter product or have a prescription to be filled, we are here for you. Our records are fully maintained for all drug warnings, drug interactions and personal drug allergies here at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. Master Card and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon.-Fri. 9-5:30, Sat. 9-3.

HINT: Since 1982, the money Americans have spent on self-diagnosis kits has more than quadrupled.

Real Estate

Real Estate Roundtable

Q. A friend of mine recently bought a new home on land contract. Can you tell me what this means?

A. A land contract or contract for deed is a written agreement between a buyer and seller for the seller to finance the purchase of property. The purchase price may be paid in regular monthly payments. It may also require a substantial down payment, with the balance due within a specified period of time. Under this type of agreement, the buyer is given possession of the property, but the title remains in the name of the seller. When the final installment is paid, the seller must transfer the title to the buyer.

The contract should contain the sales price, terms of payment, a legal description, buyers' and sellers' names, rights of the parties to include maintenance and use of the property, and tax and insurance payments. Also, the contract should address prepayment rights and remedies to the seller if the buyer defaults. The contract must be signed by all parties. One advantage in this type of contract is that it enables buyers to purchase property under more reasonable terms, often with little or no down payment. It also provides an avenue for persons who may not qualify for a bank loan at the time of the contract.

Since this type of contract involves various risks for both the buyer and seller, the contract terms must be very specific and completely outline each party's responsibilities.
