A little bit of everything

The next few days should satisfy everyone weather wise, considering there will be such a variety of temperatures and weather conditions.

Friday will be cloudy with a 50 percent chance of rain and snow mixed. The high should only be in the lower 40s. Friday night we will see some clearing with a low at 25-30 degrees.

Saturday will be sunny and warmer with a high in the upper 40s. Saturday night its forecast to be mostly clear, low around 30.

Sunday will be perfect weather for outdoor, strenuous work. The temperature will be in the 50s and it will be mostly sunny. Sunday evening will be the same as Saturday night.

Monday there will be increasing cloudiness and a chance of showers developing, highs in the 60s; low at 35-40.

And finally, Tuesday, chance of thunder showers, high in 60s; lows in 40s.

Forum to discuss education reform

The state's education reform package will be the topic of the April 9 meeting of the Floyd County Education Forum. The meeting is at 6:30 p.m., Monday at the First Presbyterian Church in Prestonsburg. Everyone is invited to join discussion of the reform proposal recently passed by the Kentucky state legislature.

Tell it to the grand jury

The spring session of the Floyd County grand jury will meet April 9, 17 and 18. Walk-ins may appear this Monday from 9 a.m. until 4 p.m. Simply sign up on the sheet located on the door to the grand jury meeting room, and your name will be called in the order it appears on the sheet. Those desiring to speak before the grand jury at a specific time without waiting in line should call 886-1604 to schedule an appointment time on April 17 or 18.

Reward offered

A $1000 reward has been offered for information leading to the discovery of Michell Manns, 39, of Allen. Manns disappeared on Friday, March 16 and was last seen in Martin after telling family members that he was going to visit a relative in McDowell. Manns has brown hair, green eyes, stands 6'3" in height and weighs about 300 pounds. When last seen, he was wearing blue work pants and a white tee shirt. For anyone with information into Manns' disappearance, call the Kentucky State Police at 1-437-7311.

Regional orchestra being formed

The formation of an orchestra for musicians in the Big Sandy Area will take place Tuesday, April 10 at 7 p.m. on Prestonsburg Community College's campus. The formation of this orchestra is to satisfy the desires of musicians, especially those who may have played in high school bands at some point in their life or other musical ensembles. The group will especially be directed toward those who play brass winds, wood winds and double reeds. For more information call the Office of Community Services, PCC, 886-3863, ext. 278.

Woods fire threatens May's Branch homes

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

A brush fire in the hills above Mays Branch in Prestonsburg, spurred by strong westerly winds, briefly burned out of control Wednesday, threatening several homes with blowing hot ash and heavy smoke.

The fire was reported at about 2:30 p.m. to the Prestonsburg Fire Department and the state Forestry Office in Prestonsburg. Steven Brackett, district forester for Floyd County and the surrounding region, recruited a team of six Carl T. Perkins Job Corps students to assist five forest rangers in cutting fire lines to contain the fire and protect neighboring houses.

Hiking uphill through smoke and ashes to reach the top of the fire, the six students and Ranger Bill Curnutte surveyed the extent of the brush fire, which had burned through leaves, undergrowth, and fallen trees, but had only scorched standing trees.

The students, armed with rakes, attempted to establish a fire line, as the wind blew flames and smoke uphill toward the firefighters. But they were forced to fall back repeatedly as the fire spread around the fire line and continued to burn rapidly uphill.

Flames remained low to the ground, but smoke and ash made breathing difficult and cut visibility at times to only a few feet. For the young firefighters, several who had never worked a brush fire, the experience was frightening.

"I've never seen anything like this before," said one student, holding on to his hardhat and panting from the uphill run and blowing smoke. "I thought that fire was going to get us for a minute, there."

The fire slowed as it licked toward the top of the mountain and the students, directed by Curnutte, established a firm fire line and began working it down both sides of the hill to prevent any further spread of flames. After several hours of hard work, the lines were completed and the fire contained.

"It burned out after we put the lines in," said Brackett. "There was a possibility of the fire getting to one or two houses but no real great danger. This was a relatively small one, about four acres. We left about 7:15 p.m."

The Prestonsburg Fire Department responded to three separate calls at Mays Branch during the fire, cutting down flames that were approaching too closely to the house of Dr. Sujatha Reddy, which was vulnerable to hot, blowing ash. Edgar Jones, a 10-year resident of Mays Branch, was also concerned about the blowing fire, which reached the road across from his house.

"This is the first time I remember it making it down this far," said Jones.

"With the wind as it is, it could blow across and set these houses on fire." Brackett noted Thursday that, despite the Mays Branch fire and a second small ground fire in Magoffin County Wednesday, the spring fire season had been a relatively quiet one.

Fire seasons in Floyd and surrounding counties run from March 1 through May 15 and from Oct. 1 through Dec. 15.

Racing wind and fire

Students from the Carl T. Perkins Job Corp Center struggled against high winds, blowing smoke, and fast-moving flames Wednesday, battling to contain a fire in May's Branch in Prestonsburg. The fire raced up hillsides, initially defeating attempts to cut fire lines to block the path of the flames. The fire eventually slowed enough for the students and forest rangers to cut fire lines and ensure the safety of several houses near the burn site.

State budget summary: 1990-92

Following three months of negotiation, compromise and verbal wrestling among legislators in Frankfort, a final budget bill was approved by the General Assembly last week, allocating $8.9 billion for state programs over the next two fiscal years, beginning July 1.

About $1.26 billion in new revenue is expected to roll in to state coffers from proposed increases in sales, income and corporate income taxes. The elimination of federal deductibility from state income tax and a one-percent increase in sales taxes, from five to six percent, will most directly affect pocketbooks in the region.

Offsetting the tax increases are a series of spending proposals designed to improve the quality of life for residents of the state, particularly in the areas of education and transportation.

Below is a brief summary of the proposed budget, which is still subject to review and veto by Gov. Wallace Wilkinson.

Education: Funding for public schools and other education and humanities programs would increase from $1.63 billion this year to $2.02 billion in 1990-91 and to $2.18 billion in 1991-92. Most of the new money will be used to pay for higher state support for schools and school reform. All school districts will receive an eight percent funding increase in the first year and a five percent increase in the second.

Higher Education: State funding of universities would increase from $594 million to $657 million in 1990-91 and to $742 million in 1991-92. That would constitute a 10.6 percent increase in the first year, followed by a 13 percent increase in the second.

Transportation: A $600 million bond program was approved for 11 road projects in Kentucky, including planned improvements to US 119 in Letcher County.

Human Resources: Increasing dramatically from $588 million to $727 million in 1990-91, these funds will be used to provide a broad variety of services to Kentuckians, including increased health-care support through a bill designed by Sen. Benny Ray Bailey, which will allow for the provision of better medical care to rural Kentucky residents.

Natural Resources: State funding would grow from $34.5 million to $46.2 million in 1990-91 and to $53.6 million the next year. About 200 more employees are budgeted to improve environmental protection enforce-

Beaver woman injured in Prestonsburg accident

An elderly Beaver woman was seriously injured in Prestonsburg Thursday, when she was struck by a car as she crossed North Lake Drive in front of the Department of Human Resources building.

Lizzie J. Hall was apparently crossing the road with family members at about 1 p.m. yesterday at the crosswalk in front of the state building. They had crossed the northbound lanes and passed in front of a southbound car that had stopped to let them walk by.

When Hall stepped into the second southbound lane, she was struck by a car driven by Melinda Ousley, 24, of Blue River, according to Prestonsburg police. A witness at the scene estimated that Ousley was driving between 35 to 45 mph when her vehicle hit Hall.

The impact of the vehicle threw Hall in the air, her body coming to rest at the side of the road about 30 feet from the point of contact.

The Prestonsburg Police and Fire departments responded to the accident, and Hall was transported by P&B Ambulance to Highlands Regional Medical Center. According to hospital officials, she was taken by helicopter to Cabell-Huntington Hospital at about 4 p.m.

Hall was reported to have multiple bodily injuries following the accident. No condition release was available at press-time Thursday.

The accident is under investigation by Prestonsburg Police Ptl. Mike Conn.

55 pot plants taken in raid

A joint drug investigation between the Kentucky State Police and the Prestonsburg Police Department resulted in last week's seizure and destruction of 55 marijuana plants, which, if fully grown, would have had a potential street value of $44,000.

According to state and city police reports, the plants were being cultivated professionally in a small greenhouse just outside of Prestonsburg city limits.

Police raided the operation at about 11:30 a.m., March 29, discovering within the greenhouse an artificial lighting and humidity control system, designed to accelerate the growth of the illegal plants.

"These were very healthy, well taken care of plants," said Prestonsburg Police Chief Greg Hall. "Some of them were as tall as two feet."

Hall noted that full grown plants, between six and eight feet in height, are valued at about $800 a piece.

The names of those arrested and the location of the illegal greenhouse were not released yesterday, due to the ongoing nature of the drug investigation.

Participating in the marijuana cultivation raid were Hall, Prestonsburg Sgt. Det. Jeff Stumbo, KSP Det. Lee Weddington and KSP Troopers Les Stapleton and Stacey Troopers.

Coal Camp Kids, Part 3

Author's mother assails class system

By Barbara Ford Ritch
Edited by Paul Jordan

My mother was a stubborn and proud Catholic woman. In those early coal camp days the priests (Wayland Catholics got their first American-born priest in 1939), in their broken English, would chastise her for the sin of Pride. Mommie refused to take the priests' advice that she accept, without question, everything in the coal camp as "God's will" to be humble and hang her head, to bow under the yoke of the caste system employed in the camp.

Her forthright manner and determination to speak out were frequently an embarrassment to my father and instigated bitter quarrels between them. The "pecking order" of the coal camps was ill-concealed despite the company urging the officials' wives to become "involved" with the miners' wives, to be active and to take an interest in those "less fortunate" families.

The company's expectations and subtle demands never came to pass and my mother vented her frustration in various ways, some untraditional for the times.

In October 1942, Mommie wrote a letter to The Floyd County Times, recalling the Golden Rule of her farm childhood and comparing it to the coal camp officials,

"...These farmers did not hesitate to lay aside their own work to help a neighbor in need. There was no such thing as selfishness, exclusiveness or snobbishness among those good farmers and citizens of Hardin and Meade counties...One did not set himself above a neighbor because of Pedigree or Education or Wealth for they were all men and women of the soil..."

"I often times think that I have wasted the best years of my life living here in one of your coal mining communities, Wayland, where so much 'class distinction' is made in a 'class

Towers fade into firefighting history

by Frank Clark
Staff Writer

They stand quietly now, benign and crumbling giants, surveying the vista of mountains in loneliness, deserted by watchers who once stood on their lofty perches seeking that far-off puff of smoke.

At one time, 17 wood and steel fire towers strategically straddled the mountains of a six-county area, providing a means for spotting and pinpointing the location of wildfires which have burned in yearly cycles for a millennium throughout Eastern Kentucky.

Since 1974, all but a few of the towering structures have been abandoned, replaced by spotter planes which can survey larger areas, for less money, with fewer personnel.

Steven Brackett, state district forester for Floyd and five surrounding counties, noted that most firewatchers who worked the towers after they were constructed in the area in 1962 put in eight hour days of horizon-watching, hiking in and out morning and evening to spend their days in the sky.

"At first, watchers had phone hookups to the towers and, if they saw smoke, would call in to the central office," said Brackett. "Later, we set them up with two-way radios to communicate."

Using a pair of binoculars and the naked eye from a great height, watchers could spot a column of smoke many miles off. If smoke was spotted, the watcher would check an azimuth, much like the type a surveyor uses, which marked off the entire horizon into 360 degree sections. By sighting on the smoke, the watcher could call in the direction of a sighting, along with an estimation of distance to the fire.

The central office would take this information, said Brackett, and plot on a map the location of the fire. Information on the sightings of the same fire from other tower watchers could then be used to accurately pinpoint the fire's position, and firefighters and equipment could be scrambled to control or extinguish the blaze.

The system worked well for about 12 years, though occasional problems did crop up.

"We did have quite a few fires that burned right up underneath the towers," said Brackett. "Originally, we started with wood towers, but a fire burned a leg out of one of them, so we started building steel ones."

"Another time, the heater in one of the towers tore up and the guy who was up there built a fire on the floor of the tower's cab. Things caught fire

The Maytown Lookout Tower once served as a primary fire spotting station for a large portion of Floyd County. Abandoned in 1974 by the state Forest Service, this tower and 15 others in a six-county area now stand empty, open to the sun and stars.

College cancels professor's play

CUMBERLAND —A scheduled visit by First Lady Barbara Bush and the presence of "controversial" language are cited as reasons for the cancellation of a student play at Southeast Community College. SECC president W. Bruce Ayers contends his decision to stop the April 19-21 performance of "Krazy Quilt," a play written by Letcher County resident Bob Henry Baber, does not constitute censorship. Ayers added that the college's maintenance workers would not have time to help prepare for the play because they would be too busy preparing for Mrs. Bush's visit on May 4. (The Mountain Eagle)

Study questions inefficiency of government

WHITESBURG —Kentucky's local governments are closer to feudalism than democracy and leave most people without a meaningful voice in public affairs, according to Donald F. Harker, co-director of the Kentucky Local Governance Project. Harker, who was fired last year from his job as director of the state Division of Waste Management, is heading a two-year study designed to find out why local governments don't work. WHITESBURG —Meat lovers in Whitesburg have had to go to meatless meals this week as anonymous callers have plagued city police with warnings that supermarket meats have been poisoned. Meat has been removed from grocery shelves until the mystery is cleared up. (The Mountain Eagle)

Ashland bans street skateboarding

ASHLAND —Ashland youngsters will no longer be permitted to skateboard on downtown streets after the City Commission voted to ban the practice last Tuesday. City officials and interested residents are reportedly discussing other skateboarding sites. (The Lexington Herald-Leader)

Millard businessman convicted

PIKEVILLE —Don Adkins of Millard, operator of the Huddle House, was convicted in Pike Circuit Court this week of receiving stolen property. Adkins was alleged to have bought several items from Barry May which Adkins knew were stolen. The jury took less than an hour to reach the verdict, which carries a maximum sentence of 10 years in prison. (Appalachian News Express)

County donates to education fund

HINDMAN —Knott County Fiscal Court voted last week to donate $25,000 to the Knott County Educational Endowment and Trust Fund, a program designed to keep students in school and provide assistance to every student wishing to pursue an education after high school. The resolution committed a similar donation annually. (Troublesome Creek Times)

Childbirth classes at Our Lady of Way

Our Lady of the Way Hospital, in collaboration with the Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education Association, will begin the next series of six weekly Childbirth Education Classes on Monday, April 16, at the Seton Complex from 6:30-8:30 p.m. Personnel trained by the Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Association will be the instructors. The series will run through May 21.

A maximum of 10 registrants will be accepted for each series. Early registration is recommended to secure a place in the class. Interested couples or individuals may register for the April 16 series or for the series

Air test results expected today

Results from last week's air tests at McDowell Elementary School should be released today, say state health officials, possibly providing some indication of the cause for the rash outbreak that forced the closure of two McDowell schools last week.

Floyd County School Superintendent Ron Hager said Thursday that intensive cleaning efforts would continue at the elementary school through the weekend, in an effort to remove the unknown source of the irritating rash that has affected hundreds of McDowell schoolchildren since it was first reported March 13.

"We are proceeding with our plans to completely sanitize the school area," said Hager. "Hopefully, results from the air tests will provide the information we need to correct the problem."

Hager stated that the McDowell schools will be reopened Monday, following spring vacation, if cleaning is completed. A decision will be made Sunday to evaluate the readiness of the school following cleaning.

If the rash reappears, school officials have made alternate plans to hold classes in a local church building or at Osborne Elementary School, utilizing double sessions. Hager noted last week that if it becomes necessary to shut down the schools again, they won't be reopened until the source of the rash is discovered.

Dr. Reginald Finger, director of the Kentucky Department for Health Service's Division of Epidemiology, said that a possible connection between the rash and the use of a new type of writing paper in the schools had been checked without any positive result.

World Health Day

Using the theme, "Our Planet, Our Health; Think Globally, Act Locally", Joan Shalpin, ASC, of Our Lady of the Way Hospital and Jane Bond of the Floyd County Health Department watch Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo sign a proclamation designating April 7 World Health Day. A health screening for senior citizens will be held at Our Lady of the Way Hospital today for all seniors who wish to attend. The Christian Appalachian Project and the First Guaranty Bank of Martin cosponsored the proclamation and health screening.

New business opens in Martin

County Attorney Jim Hammond, Martin Police Chief Hershel Lester and other city and county officials were on hand Thursday to welcome shoppers during the grand opening of L.A. Joe's in Martin. The store is located at the old Hecks building. Owned by Jordache, the new franchise has already opened 57 stores across the country and hopes to have 43 more by the end of the year, according to store manager Jana Banks. She noted that the store is similar to Value City and deals mainly in clothing. Customers can expect to see some familiar faces, since many of the employees from Hecks and Take 10 are employed at L.A. Joe's.

State Budget

ment and 80 new surface-mine inspectors will be hired from this allocation. Also proposed is the creation of a $20 million fund for matching grants and loans to finance local landfills and other solid-waste facilities.

State Police: The number of troopers statewide will increase from 911 to 1000. State police officers will get, in addition to the five percent annual raise given all state workers, an extra raise of $2,500 per year.

Corrections: This budget will increase from $140 million to $181 million over the next two years. Retirement benefits for prison guards are improved and county jail reimbursements for holding state prisoners were increased.

Revenue: $10 million was approved to increase staff within the Revenue Cabinet and county PVA offices, in order to bring property assessments up to 100 percent around the state.

Workforce Development: A new Cabinet for Workforce Development would be created to oversee job training and vocational education.

Under the proposed two-year budget, about $1 billion in new debt will be created for the state.

(Information used in this report was compiled from articles in the March 31 edition of the Louisville Courier-Journal, with permission.)

Fire Towers

and he had to throw burning material out of the tower and caught the hill on fire," said Brackett, with a laugh. "Things happen like that sometimes."

Since 1974, most fire spotting has been done from a hired plane, which spends three hours a day in the air during the fire seasons (March 1 - May 15 and Oct. 1 - Dec. 15). Wildfires continue to burn in Floyd County and the work of the state Forest Service to contain and control them continues unabated. (See related Mays Branch story).

Despite the efficiently and effectiveness of the new system, the romantic in all of us tends to heave a sigh at the loss of the old fire tower system. The long days of watchers scanning the horizon for smoke, perched in a tower on the mountains above the world, has come and gone.

Martin requires loading license

The Martin City Council agreed Wednesday to pass an ordinance that will require an unloading license for persons delivering goods in the City of Martin.

Following second reading, the ordinance was passed, requiring a $50 annual fee from companies and businesses delivering goods in Martin. The ordinance will take effect on June 1.

In other action, council voted to provide a donation to support Martin Little League, Pee Wee, and Babe Ruth teams. No dollar figure was specified, and an amount will be decided at a later date.

A resolution was also passed regulating the official use of city-owned police cruisers, following an executive session by the council. No details as to the reason for passage of such a resolution were released.

Present at Wednesday's meeting were Mayor Raymond Griffith and council members Joe Simpson, Denzil Halbert, Erritt Hayes, James Robinson, and Pete Grigsby Sr.

At a special meeting two weeks ago, the city council agreed to donate $200 to Martin's Junior Pro Basketball program for the team to meet expenses in the state tournament.

P-burg Police quarterly report

The first quarter of 1990 was a busy one for the Prestonsburg Police Department. A release of the department's activity for January, February and March showed a rise in traffic accidents within the city and a significant increase in the number of cases closed, in relation to the number of cases opened, said Prestonsburg Police Chief Greg Hall.

In the first quarter of the year, Prestonsburg Police received 1,336 complaints, issued 854 citations, and made 413 arrests. Some 45 criminal investigations were opened and 42 were closed, indicating a very high rate of success in solving cases.

Traffic accidents reported in the city in the past three months numbered 109, close to half of those occurring in March. Police were also called out on 117 traffic control incidents and 156 parking control situations.

A similar report of activity by the Prestonsburg Police will be printed monthly in The Floyd County Times.

Park to get picnic shelter

The John M. Stumbo Park in Allen has been awarded a $20,000 grant to build a large picnic shelter, designed for family reunions, performances, and Sunday picnics.

The shelter project was selected by the state from among 77 other statewide project applications to receive the Land and Water Conservation Fund grant.

In a letter from Gov. Wallace Wilkinson's office to Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo, Wilkinson noted that the shelter project was selected because of its need in the community, community involvement in the project, and the ability of its sponsors to administer the grant.

The proposed shelter, says Stumbo, will be 28 feet wide and 64 feet long and will contain restrooms and space for large gatherings.

Project construction on the picnic shelter can begin this summer, following official approval for the grant by the National Park Service.

A press release from a Central Kentucky college arrived the other day with some good news for Eastern Kentucky students. The college, the release essentially said, is making a special effort to recruit from this region. Eastern Kentucky youngsters apparently would lend cultural diversity to the college's student population.

The effort is laudable. A college community should reflect a variety of cultures, philosophies and ideas. It's often the last chance some of us get to understand the beauty of differences. We should all be very happy that our students will now be the focus of a recruitment campaign.

But...reading the release left me with a sad feeling. That Eastern Kentucky students are considered a "target" population, in college admissions jargon, points up the reality of the two Kentuckys. That we remain somehow odd, bizarre — "quar" as the old timers say — is discouraging to ponder in this day and time.

In my travels across the country I've never met a person who made a disparaging remark when I've said I came from Eastern Kentucky. When I was in school in Ohio, the only person who ever remarked about my being a hillbilly and about the flat "i's" of my language was an acquaintance from Central Kentucky. When I went to the University of Georgia, I was not deemed strange because of my origin. While living in Arkansas and Pennsylvania, I never encountered anyone who acted as if I were an alien because I was from the mountains.

Call it paranoia. Call it oversensitivity or whatever. Now when I'm in Lexington or Louisville and my residence becomes known, I expect raised eyebrows and the hint of a smirk. Say "I'm from Floyd County" or Johnson County or Magoffin and watch the "Aha" sign come on. I begin to sense the expectation that I won't understand complex concepts or that my language will be primitive or that my thinking will be simple.

Maybe my perception is clouded by stories told by younger cousins who went to UK. All very bright with above average grades, they tell of teachers who make snide remarks and tell jokes about the "hillbillies." They tell of being unduly questioned when store clerks note that their home bank is east of the rolling hills.

Maybe it's clouded by a recent letter to the editor in the Lexington Herald-Leader that referred to us as "those people." The writer had a valid point in protesting the garbage dumped into the Kentucky River, but the tone of the letter made it clear he sees all of us mountaineers as dirty, offensive, unnecessary subhuman beings.

The frustration comes in determining how we can dispel the stereotype. What must we do to be accepted as kin to our brothers and sisters in the rest of the state? How do we overcome the perception that we're a strange, special class of people to be studied, to be looked down on, to be thought of as different from the norm? How do we change the state of mind of a state, so that our children are not treated as a separate culture that must be given an extra boost by persons wiser than we?

I'm not advocating that we deny our culture. In fact, I often regret that we've lost so much of the independence, self-sufficiency, grit and necessary craft that once comprised our mountain culture.

What I do advocate is something I have no power over. That is that the other Kentucky accept us and recognize us as a vital part of the whole.

Kim's Korner

During a recent trip to Lexington, I got the opportunity to observe today's college students. Amazing — to say the least. My younger brother Scott will be attending the University of Kentucky this fall. We went down to Lexington to kill two birds with one stone you might say; he was to register and I needed an adjustment from my chiropractor.

Registration began at 8:30 a.m. I dropped him off at the student center, drove around until 11, my appointment time, and then I was free to do whatever til 4:30 when it was time to pick him up. I thought I'd visit my brother-and sister-in-law while passing time. But then I realized it was Monday and they were all at work.

Since I didn't have any extra cash with me for shopping, I decided I'd just sit in the parking lot and hope Scott finished earlier than he thought. I arrived at our meeting space at about 1:15 p.m. The sun was shining and students were everywhere. It made me long for my college days back on the Prestonsburg campus.

But some things had changed. I've never in my life seen so many different styles of dress in one day. Some were in "jams", others in dresses or glamorous outfits. Still more were in jeans with holes in them from thigh to ankle. I saw layers of sweatshirts with sweatpants pulled up to the knee...It was really quite interesting.

One other thing I took note of was the fact that about every 10th student had a huge bag of Doritos in hand. "What's with the Doritos?" I was saying to myself. Of course, no one answered me.

Then, I saw this student walking toward my car. I have to admit, this person had the most beautiful head of light-brown hair with natural curls I've ever seen. You could tell this head had not been permed. This hair was gorgeous. I kept thinking "Boy, does she have it lucky!" But the closer the person got to me the more evident it became that she was a he.

Wouldn't you know it. We girls couldn't have it so lucky — to have a fantastic head of curly hair, without paying mega bucks for it. Ha!

Finally I spotted my brother approaching the sidewalk beside my car. It was 4:20. "What's up, sis?" he says. "Have you been here long?"

"No," I say, as I look at my watch. Only — wow — I was amazed how time had flown. These people were so interesting, passing by in their different apparel and hairstyles. I hadn't been bored at all.

But I did find out the deal on the Dorito's. They were on sale at the student center for 50 cents a bag. We are talking huge bags. That explained why I saw so many. I was beginning to think the Dorito Company was filming a commercial behind me somewhere.

Anyway, it was fun. I can only imagine the fun my brother's going to have this fall, along with keeping up his outstanding GPA. Keep it up, Bub! I'm proud of you!

House Week in Review

By Rep. Russell Bentley

Kentucky's state government revenue spending plan for the next two years was approved by the General Assembly last week. House Bill 799 contains all programs and services provided by state government and details where and how all revenues collected by the state are to be expended. This measure was the last major piece of legislation passed during a session which proved to be both momentous and stressful for all members of the General Assembly.

Appropriations totaling almost $8.9 billion include $1.1 billion in new money to be generated by provisions in the education reform bill's financing plan. Most of the Governor's recommendations remained intact but additional spending was added for several university capital construction projects and state park improvements. Forty-seven percent of the budget is set aside for the new public school system; 17 percent for health and human services; 16 percent for universities; 4 percent for corrections and the remainder going other programs.

The budget will provide about $1.94 billion in 1990-91 and $2.11 billion in 1991-92 for education spending. Higher education appropriations are up from $594 million to $656 million in 1990-91 and to $733 million in 1991-92. State universities will be at about 88 percent of full funding under the revenue formula that attempts to equate spending for Kentucky universities with that of neighboring states.

The Human Resources Cabinet will receive a 22 percent budget increase — from $588 million to almost $777 million in 1991-92 — to cover federally imposed reforms in Medicaid and welfare.

Also included in the CHR budget is an appropriation for the omnibus health-care bill plus more money for human services.

The $600 million road bond issue was approved and earmarks several highway expansion projects. The provision narrowly escaped defeat in the Senate and includes an amendment allowing for no exceptions to projects scheduled during the next two years in the six-year road plan.

Revenue staff was increased in the budget by $10 million to create a program to bring property assessments up to 100 percent of market value across the Commonwealth.

Advertising, park improvements including construction of cottages and expanded and new golf course for specified state parks totaled about $3 million.

The Cabinet for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection received perhaps the largest percentage increase — 34 percent for 1990-91, from $34.5 million to $46.2 million, and 16 percent for 1991-92 expanded to $56.6 million. The increase will be used for additional environmental inspectors, development of the state's first environmental plan and 80 new jobs in the Department of Surface Mining to comply with a court settlement over state surface-mining regulation.

Spending was increased in the Corrections Cabinet from $140 million to $162 in 1990-91 and $177 million in 1991-92. Project funding includes $30 million for a state prison in Muhlenberg County, increases in retirement benefits for prison guards, 75 more parole officers and a salary increase for state police.

I want to thank every one of you who has taken the time to phone or come to Frankfort to lend support, encouragement and good counsel to me. I have given every effort to help the people of my district and, again, I very much appreciate your help during this history making session.

Waiting for bridge

Dear Editor, I would like to let the fat cats of Floyd County know that the first snow of 1990 filled the hills and hollows on the 20th of March and no bridge at Hunter or no sign of a new bridge at Hunter.

The federal highway funds show the bridge to be replaced in 1991: the promise of about two weeks ago, from the state transportation director and the state representatives and county attorney and county judge.

Report to Kentucky

By Sen. Wendell Ford

COAL MINERS DESERVE SIMPLE FAIRNESS

Kentuckians and other leaders of the fight to help coal miners who could lose their jobs as a result of the Clean Air Act were disappointed but not defeated by a recent Senate vote on the issue.

Our proposal came within one vote, 50 to 49, of being approved by the Senate.

This vote reflected widespread support of a proposal to assist highly deserving workers in a small number of states in the face of powerful if misguided opposition. And it was a clear indication, in my opinion, that we had come to the Senate floor with a just cause.

Our amendment to the Clean Air Act was designed to keep thousands of miners and their families from undue suffering through no fault of their own. It also was aimed at saving scores of communities in Kentucky and other coal-producing states from the threat of devastating economic losses that could persist for years.

Because our cause is just, I believe that it also will persist. With the House still developing a clean-air bill, the Senate vote was only the first shot in our legislative battle. Whatever the outcome of this year's clean-air debate, I hope and believe that many Americans will join us in a continuing effort to secure appropriate help for our endangered coal mining communities.

Our support of the Coal Workers Protection amendment, introduced by Senator Robert Byrd (D-WV), was not an attack on the basic clean-air compromise that had been worked out in the Senate. I fought as hard as I could for the Byrd amendment only because I knew it was essential to the future of our state and its people.

As I said on the Senate floor, the economies of five Western Kentucky counties — Hopkins, Webster, Muhlenberg, Union and Ohio — are among those that would be hardest hit by acid-rain provisions of the Senate bill. Coal accounts for one of every four jobs and more than 40 percent of personal income in these five counties.

While Eastern Kentucky has more low-sulfur coal that could continue to be used, its economy also could be very seriously disrupted.

Without the Byrd amendment, the Congress could be delivering a harsh message to Kentuckians and others who have followed their fathers and grandfathers into the mines to help produce the energy to build the industrial might of a nation. All of a sudden, we will be saying to them, "by public policy, we are going to put you out of work."

We are trying to offer a simple plan of compensation and job training for displaced miners, who could easily number 5,000 in Kentucky.

Our opponents are wrong when they accuse us of favoring miners over workers in other industries, such as steel and petrochemicals. The Congressional Research Service has found that the clean-air compromise largely eliminated potential job losses in those industries.

Coal miners are the ones being treated unfairly by the Administration and other opponents of our amendment. These miners deserve our help, and we do not intend to give up the fight to see that they get it.

Getting Rebs ready for dis-trict is job 1 for new mentor

Having a winning season is what every high school baseball team shoots and practices for. Having a winning season is good for the team's morale and develops positive attitudes.

But for new coach Anthony Moore of Allen Central, having a winning season is not job number one — getting ready for the district tournament is.

The Rebels were locked into a battle in the 15th Region basketball tournament and that delayed the start of baseball practice. The lack of a field in which to practice on didn't help Moore's team any either.

"We just haven't had time or the facilities to practice on," the Rebel mentor explained. "We are just going to have to learn as the regular season goes on and try and be ready when the district starts in May."

The Rebels finished runners-up to Prestonsburg in last season's district tournament and were runners-up to Paintsville in the regionals at Pikeville last season.

Gone from last year's runners-up team are Todd Duff and Kevin Webb.

Webb is assisting Moore with the squad this year. However, before you shed any tears for the Rebels, take a look at who is returning this time around.

Kevin Spurlock, who is like having another coach on the team, returns to handle the duties behind the plate. Spurlock brings a lot of baseball experience back to this year's team. He's a solid performer on the field, as well as a leader the team needs. He can hit for an average as well as for power, with an excellent glove behind the plate and an above average arm.

Mickey Parsons also will be returning to the Rebels' pitching mound and also will be used in centerfield. The hard-throwing righthander was the mainstay of the Rebel pitching staff a year ago. Parsons, using an old expression, "can sure bring it up there." Parsons, like Spurlock, possesses the ability to hit the ball out of the park. He has the speed needed to run the bases and is a very definite threat to steal.

Also returning from last year's team will be first baseman Brett

Meadows. Meadows will be used a lot on the mound as he joins Moore's starting rotation. A hard thrower, Meadows can overpower the hitter. Meadows has yet to develop into the consistent hitter he is capable of being, but this year he may realize that he is going to have to pick up the slack created by the departure of Webb and Duff.

Dependable Terry Spurlock returns for his senior year and brings a good bat to the line up. Spurlock showed some consistency late in the season last year and Moore hopes he will be able to pick up from that time. Spurlock will be used in the outfield where he has good range.

Chris Kidd will be at third for the Rebels, a position he held down last season under coach Donnie Daniels. Kidd has the tendency to under throw to first base, leading to the question of whether he has the arm to play at third. He is a good contact hitter and has decent speed on the base paths. Kidd's improvement at third will be a big asset for the Rebel team as he needs to get more confidence.

Newcomer Chuck Lafferty is no stranger to the game of baseball — not with Charles Lafferty for a father. The elder Lafferty has been involved in the sport for several years and it shows in the younger player. Lafferty will be a big addition to the Rebel team. He can pitch and play anywhere in the infield or outfield. A solid hitter that hits with power, but more of a finesse hitter, the new Rebel can spray the ball to different areas.

John Martin and B. J. Aldrich return also for the Rebels this year.

It should be a good year for the Allen Central squad as it gets ready for district tournament time.

Golf association organizes at Jenny Wiley

A group of local golfers has formed a much needed local golf association, according to interim golf pro Rob Tackett. The group meet Tuesday night at the Pro Shop at Jenny Wiley Golf Course.

Officers were elected to serve in the new association for the coming year. Elected were: Jody Sword, president; Freddie James, vice-president; Dr. Eddy Clark, treasurer, and board members Tony Branham and Bill Hoppman.

The association will be known as the Jenny Wiley Golf Association. Tackett said the purpose of the association is to work in cooperation with the State Park System and local employees in promoting golf in the immediate area by encouraging individuals to purchase annual memberships. The association will encourage individuals and members to purchase attire and equipment through the local pro shop.

The association will assist local state park officials in recommending, purchasing and conducting work crews in continuing to improve the decor of the local golf course.

The association will coordinate the golf leagues and activities for its members in cooperation with employees of Jenny Wiley Golf Course.

The newly formed golf association will hold the first Association Golf Scramble on April 14th in conjunction with a membership drive.

"There will be a $20 annual membership fee for those wishing to join the local association. There will be a Tuesday men's league, and once a month a two man, four man scramble team event will be held," says Tackett.

Tackett says that the local club will hold a Golf Association Championship Tournament at the course. Other activities of the local association will include golf leagues, working with senior citizens and junior programs, if the interest is there.

"We will also have the help of some of our better area players with the junior programs," says the interim golf pro.

Tackett says the newly formed association has received the approval of Hysie Yessim, Director of Kentucky State Park System. "He has made all the resources available to us."

Tigers 'mercy' Rebels, 13-2

The Paintsville Tigers showed no mercy to the Allen Central Rebels in high school baseball Tuesday evening at Paintsville. The Tigers, a contender for the state championship this year, defeated the senior-shortened team, 13-2, in five innings. The game was called because of the 10-run 'mercy' ruling in baseball.

Paintsville pushed across four runs in the first inning to take a 4-0 lead on three base hits off Rebel starter Terry Spurlock. Williams led off the Tigers first with a single up the middle and stole second. Holbrook walked and Maynard singled home Williams. Blankenship followed that with another base hit scoring Holbrook and Maynard to make it 3-0. Blankenship then caught the Rebels napping and stole home to give the Tigers a 4-0 lead.

Allen Central picked up two runs in its half of the second to make it 4-2 without the benefit of a base hit. Chuck Lafferty got a lead off walk off Porter. John Martin drew a base on balls. Chris Kidd's grounder was misplayed by the shortstop and Lafferty came home with a run.

Terry Spurlock walked to load the bases, and after Rick Smith struck out, Steve Robinson reached on an error at second allowing Martin to come home with the Rebels' second run.

Paintsville added two more runs in the bottom of the third to make it 6-2 on long home run by Collins. Phelps had drawn a one out walk and scored on the round tripper.

The long ball haunted the Rebels again in the fourth inning as Holbrook took Spurlock downtown for a two run shot. Four Rebel errors let two other runs cross the plate, and it was 10-2.

Paintsville put it away with three more in the fifth on a two-run double by Maynard as the Tigers 'merced' the Rebels.

Scott Fairchild, 1-0, received credit for the win, while Spurlock, 0-1, was the loser. Fairchild won in relief of Porter.

Allen Central evens its record at 1-1 and will be back in action Monday afternoon hosting Jenkins at Allen Park in a 4:30 start.

BL scores 4 in 2, 4 to beat Daredevils, 11-0

The Betsy Layne Bobcats won their second game of the young baseball season with a 11-0 win over the young McDowell Daredevils. The Daredevils, having to play with a lot of young players, managed only two hits in the game, a single by Ben Lawson in the third inning and a double by Shannon Price in the fourth.

Chris Bias hit his second home run of the season in the fifth inning, a two-run shot to left.

"I hit a high fastball," Bias recalled. "He was throwing mostly slow curves and he tried to sneak a fast ball by and I just stepped up in the batter's box a little and hit it out. I thought it was a foul ball, but the wind blew the ball fair."

Betsy Layne picked up a run in the first inning when Craig Hunter led off with a base hit and scored when Adam Gearheart struck out and the catcher dropped the ball. On the throw to first, the ball was mishandled and Hunter came on home.

The Bobcats pushed across four in the second on three hits. Gearheart drove in two runs with a double in the inning. Two other runs scored on a two-base error on the leftfielder off the bat of Bias to make the score 5-0.

Four more crossed the plate in the fourth inning after Barry Collins reached on an error leading off the inning. He came around to score on a base hit by Hunter.

Hunter stole second and advanced to third on the overthrow. Gearheart hit a fly ball to left, scoring Hunter on the sacrifice fly. Darren Gearheart reached on a two-base error at third. Gearheart scored on Chris Newsome's base hit to left. Newsome finished the scoring by coming home on an error off Todd Akers' bat.

The final two Bobcat runs came in the fifth on the home run by Bias. The game was called after five innings because of the 'mercy' rule.

The Bobcats' record goes to 2-2, and Betsy Layne will travel to Sheldon Clark Monday afternoon.

In the nightcap game, McDowell took advantage of Betsy Layne errors to take a 13-3 win over the Bobcats.

Bud Kidd picked up the win for McDowell giving up three runs on three hits. Shannon Price and Britt Stumbo each had two doubles in the game, as well as two RBIs.

McDowell coach Greg Johnson said that it is going to be a good one, once the players can get some games under their belt and learn as the season goes on. Johnson is having to use freshmen pitchers, but says they have a lot of potential.

New Golf Association officers

The new Jenny Wiley Golf Association officers got together for a meeting Tuesday night. The new association will be working with other area golfers to help improve golfing in the area. Jenny Wiley State Resort Park Director Leon Russell, left, poses with Dr. Eddy Clark, Treasurer, Bill Hoppman, board member, Tony Branham, board member, Rob Tackett, interim golf pro. Absent from the meeting were Jody Sword, president and Freddie James, vice-president.

Archer Park gets new look

Archer Park has been undergoing some changes since the nice weather has been around. Park director Ralph Little takes a lot of pride in what the park has to offer sports enthusiasts in the county.

Four new water fountains are being installed at the city park by city utility workers. Little said the fountains are much needed in the area where the senior citizens building and playgrounds are.

Kay Willis, a member of the park committee, is excited about the completion of the new tennis courts.

"We are going to have courts we can be proud of," she said recently. "We have two tournaments this summer; one will be the biggest in Eastern Kentucky." The high school teams will also be using the new courts.

The courts are scheduled for completion around the last of May.

"We didn't want to hurry the completion of the tennis courts," remarked Willis. "We wanted the job to be done right, and anything worth having is worth having done right. We feel we have the best company around doing the work for us and they really know their business."

Tennis Tech Inc. of Louisville is working on the courts. Work began last fall on the courts, but flood waters created a problem for the workers, and even when the water receded, work was canceled until spring.

"We tried to work on it even after then," the head of the work crew said, refusing to give his name. "We did get the gravel on it and just had to quit because of all the rain."

The tennis courts are not the only thing being repaired at the park. All the baseball fields have been completely redone as far as the infields are concerned.

"Gerald Derossett, our magistrate, had 200 tons of sand brought in to use on the infields of our Little League and softball fields," said Little. "All the fields have been redone and are ready to be used."

New steps are being added to the pool area, as well as to the senior citizens center. Another new shelter will be going up later in the summer. The park had a new outdoor basketball court installed for the public to use.

Little said the pool is scheduled to open Memorial Day and that the racket ball area is available now.

The park's softball league will get underway later in April with a tournament scheduled for April 21 and another in conjunction with the Festival of Faces events in May. Women's softball will return to Archer Park this season with 10 teams scheduled to take part.

A view of new tennis courts

Ralph Little and Kay Willis stand on the spot where the new tennis courts are being built by Tennis Tech Inc. of Louisville. Little is director of Archer Park and Willis is a member of the board. Willis also heads up the tennis tournaments at the park. Completion is expected in late May.

Back replaces Mussenberger at CBS

After the CBS firing of Bret Mussenberger, popular sports announcer, the network was frantic over who would replace such a popular sports figure. The CBS brain-trust began the search for the replacement of the host of "NFL Today," "Road to the Final Four" and, of course, play-by-play of Major League Baseball.

The search for a replacement led the committee to the mountains of Eastern Kentucky. The crew had to come into town in disguise for fear of reprisal from the show "48 Hours." The replacement for Mussenberger was found quite by accident. While having lunch, the crew met the popular Floyd County Flash, Joe Back, at a local fast food chain. Back, on learning of their mission, offered to help in the search and began to relate his experience in the field of communication. He told of his state tournament interviews and the raves they got and of how he worked with a local television network in bringing the fans high school basketball.

The Flash gave such a fine picture of himself that he made a big impression on the search committee that the search ended with the hiring of Flash, eh, Back.

Says the CBS search chairman, "We were really impressed with the way Mr. Back presented himself. Why, the man should be in politics, he can sway anyone."

How did the search committee end up here in Floyd County. "We made a wrong turn," they related, "but we haven't made the wrong choice."

Why would Back, an undertaker with a local funeral parlor, want to switch positions and head to the Big Apple. Says Back, "Things are dead around here."

Back says that once he is settled in he plans to bring the popular threesome of B. J. Newsome, Teresa Gibson and James Allen to the Big Apple to expose the New Yorkers to some real class.

Unconfirmed sources say that with the popularity of Rick Pitino, UK head basketball coach, the state of Kentucky was not big enough for Back and Pitino and that Back jumped at the chance to move on to New York.

"We are fortunate to have the talents of a Joe Back in our employment," says the head of CBS. "Things around here are dead and Mr. Back has had experience in those circumstances."

The details of Back's contract were not disclosed, but sources close to the new CBS employee says "that he can now buy hot dogs for everyone."

World Record White Tail

Darren Howard of Salyersville is pictured with his world record white tail deer that will be on display at the Floyd County Library this Tuesday evening at 7 p.m.

Nails record white-tailed deer

Every year millions of hunters take to the field in hopes of bringing home that once-in-a-lifetime deer. Head held high and proud, horns shining in the autumn sun, it lives in the dreams and minds of all deer hunters alike.

The chances of bagging such a deer are so remote that a record book white tail deer has become one of the most difficult and sought after big game animals in North America.

Little did Darren Howard of Salyersville know that his dream would come true in the fall of 1988. Hunting in a county of the southeastern part of the state, Howard made a one shot kill on the new world record whitetail deer certified by the Safari Club International's record book committee. Scoring 141-3/8 points, it becomes the new world record in the Southeastern United States.

Safari Club International is the world's largest sportsmen's club with over 20,000 members throughout all continents. The Kentucky Chapter, of which Howard is vice-president, is dedicated to conserving wildlife and protecting the hunter in Kentucky. The chapter is planning an educational project in the local area to teach young people sports hunting, wildlife management and firearm safety.

Conservation projects are being developed to help the deer population in Kentucky. The chapter is also raffling off a Weatherby Vanguard rifle and any member of the chapter can buy any Weatherby rifle through the chapter for 25 percent off the retail price.

Howard's world record deer will be on display at the chapter's membership recruitment night on Tuesday, April 10, at 7 p.m. at the Floyd County Library Conference Room. Anyone wishing to see this deer or find out more about the chapter is welcome to come. For more information, call 886-1562.

Bassin' with the Pros

Unusual Bass Patterns Make Fishing More Interesting

Professional bass fishing guide Randy Dearman thinks he may have found some bass that didn't know shallow water existed.

"It was certainly one of the most unusual spring patterns I've ever encountered," says Dearman, a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff and a guide on Lake Livingston in Texas.

"For three years the bass actually made nests and spawned on the big limbs of flooded trees in 35 feet of water. The limbs they used were only about three feet below the surface, but I'd have thought the fish would have moved to the shoreline where they could spawn on hard bottom."

As spring begins to move across the nation and bass fishermen start looking for shallow spawning bass, Dearman offers several tips for establishing solid fishing patterns: "Remember that a pattern is a method of catching bass that can include many different variables, such as a particular depth, a certain type of water, or specific forms of structure," he notes, "and that determining the different ingredients in a pattern is not always easy."

"Normally, several different variables must be present, so it's important to pay attention to the conditions that exist where and when you catch your first bass of the day."

One good part about pattern fishing, adds the Johnson pro, is that once you do identify the different parts of the puzzle, you can generally go to other parts of a lake that have the same conditions and catch fish there too.

"Spring patterns are generally a little easier to identify than patterns at other times of the year," says Dearman, "because bass are moving shallow to spawn and the conditions they require for spawning are relatively easy to find."

The Texas guide recommends looking for large coves or flats offering close access to a deep water channel, some cover such as weeds, boulders or logs, and a fairly hard bottom. Depth should be less than 10 feet.

"These areas can be out on a main lake or back in a large tributary," Dearman explains, "but they will always have deep water nearby."

"Water temperature will also be important to a spring spawning pattern, because bass won't move in to spawn until the water temperature reaches the high 60s. Some areas of a lake will warm faster than others, so fish there will start spawning earlier than in other portions of the lake."

"You'll have to spend some time searching for these conditions, but they aren't really that difficult to find." And should bass fishermen spend much time looking for bass spawning in flooded timber?

"Not really," laughs the veteran angler. "That occurred on Lake Livingston soon after impoundment when the lake was still full of standing trees. They finally found the shallow water after the third year."

Now for the good news

Magazine class: students combine writing, computers and history

by Faye Owens and Kelly McKay

(Editor's note: While articles in the "Now for the good news" series are generally written by Times staff members, students from Wheelwright High School requested that this student-written article be used. We thought it appropriate.)

"This class has taught me courage," Devondrea Watts, a junior at Wheelwright High School, said recently about the school's Mantrip magazine class.

Watts, 16, has been in the class for a year. The work she does in the class includes interviewing, transcribing, working on computers and editing her work.

"It has taught me courage because before I was in this class I wasn't able to get up in front of people and talk, but now that I have been in here I am able to get up and say anything," Watts said.

Watts and her classmates go out into the community, talk to people, ask questions and then prepare their interviews in two issues of the magazine each year. The magazine is sold in more than 22 states and has subscribers from all over the world. Mantrip can be found in libraries at Berea College, Morehead State University and Appalachian State University in North Carolina.

It was first published in the spring of 1986, which is also when the class started. The students in the school's Oral History Project sell enough copies of the magazine to continue their work.

The magazine takes its name from the car that carries miners underground. Mantrip, the magazine, takes the reader on a journey of sorts — back into the history of Eastern Kentucky.

It features interviews with miners, but it also tells the story of farmers, doctors, teachers and housewives. Interviews with writers and artists are also featured in each issue of Mantrip.

Lonnie Slone, WHS principal, believes the oral history project makes for one of Wheelwright's better classes. He cites the skills the students learn in the class by doing interviews and having experience on computers in typing transcriptions of interviews and editing the work.

"Students are learning a little about their community, a little about their heritage. They are learning how to do interviews. They are learning techniques. They are learning how to write," said Slone.

"What impresses me most about this class is that this is a non-grouped class. In other words, these are not necessarily the best students in the school," the principal added.

Becky Allen, a 15-year-old sophomore, agrees with Slone. Sounding like a computer whiz, she said, "I didn't know a lot when I started this class. I didn't know how to use centering commands or use the printer. I didn't know that you could take an Applewriter program and change it to an Appleworks. Since I've been in the class, I have learned how to move from one file to another, using the clipboard.

"If I have a long story, I can find certain words quicker," she said, "and now I know how to use the Epson printer. I would like to know more about the Macintosh computer. I have learned how to put extra printers into the computer and how to load the printer."

Allen continued: "I can change margins and tabs and go from one file to another without reloading the computer. I have also learned how to format a new disk and put page numbers on my printouts."

A student may be in the oral history class all four years, but only get credit for two. Last year one student took the class without receiving any credit — and just for the fun of it. The class is offered to all students, freshmen through seniors. This year, 27 students are enrolled.

"The oral history project is one of the greatest things that has happened to Wheelwright High School. It gives the kids an education that you can't get anywhere else," states local resident Everett Hall.

Hall is a friend whom many students have interviewed during the class. He has given students much information about the history of Wheelwright.

Persons from outside the region have also been impressed with the class. A group of ministers from Berea College, for example, came to Wheelwright in November to see just how the class operates.

One of the ministers, Happy Duncan, shared her feelings about Wheelwright and the oral history students. "I am very interested in how a town picks up after being 'owned' by big coal companies. I also would like to know what happens to these very special people I met today."

"'48 Hours' did not do justice to this area. There is hope, strength and energy here. I thank God and you for this opportunity," Duncan said.

Leigh Pick, a student at Lancaster Theological Seminar in Pennsylvania, was also a member of the group. She said she spent most of her life in the Laurel Mountains of Western Pennsylvania. She lived on a dairy farm in conditions similar to what she saw in Kentucky.

Pick states, "It isn't always easy to live without some of the advantages that a city can offer, but, on the other hand, it makes a person dig deep down inside oneself to find ways to make life meaningful. It's good to see a school that helps its students do that." Class members were very pleased to have people from all over the world to come into the school to share what the students are able to do. Schools as small as WHS don't get recognized very much. To think that ministers from Africa and other foreign countries came here and were interested in what the students had to say and show them is important.

The students hope to experience more of this sharing in the future and hope that other schools in the region have the chance to do the same.

Riding high on the Mantrip

Wheelwright High School students are learning a multitude of skills in the class which produces Mantrip, a twice yearly magazine. From interviewing local people to using the computers, they prepare a publication that preserves and honors the history of their community.

EKU prof conducts writing workshop

Just recently, Dr. Charles Whitaker of Eastern Kentucky University conducted a three-hour "Writing Workshop" for teachers of the Betsy Layne, Harold, Osborne, Stumbo and Prater elementary schools and Wheelwright High School.

The workshop was held in the library of Betsy Layne Elementary with the following teachers: Nadine Blankenship, Lois Tackett, Patricia Adkins, Tammy Jarrell, Lynette Thomas, Kathy Wagner, Marilyn Barnes, Glenda Spurlock and George Case from Betsy Layne; Sherry Tackett, Becky Watts, Glenna Childers and Katrina Davis from Prater; Gayle Justice from Harold; Sherry Morris from Osborne; Janice Mitchell from Stumbo; Carol Stumbo from Wheelwright High School; and Thelma Spears, retired teacher from Betsy Layne High School who coordinated the workshop and acted as hostess, assisted by Janice Mitchell.

Whitaker began the meeting with a brief introduction about his life and his own experiences as a teacher of English and writing. Quickly following, he asked each of those present to write a list of what he or she considered problems in the teaching of writing. Afterwards, he asked the teachers to share their lists of ideas with one another.

Following the discussion, Whitaker told them that they had just experienced a sample of "writing to learn" — critical thinking, listing, sharing and talking about a meaningful subject.

Then, he asked the teachers to list goals that they would like to achieve with their students, among which were: self development, social development, language development, thinking skills, knowledge, independence and appreciation of culture. This listing was followed by group sharing and discussion.

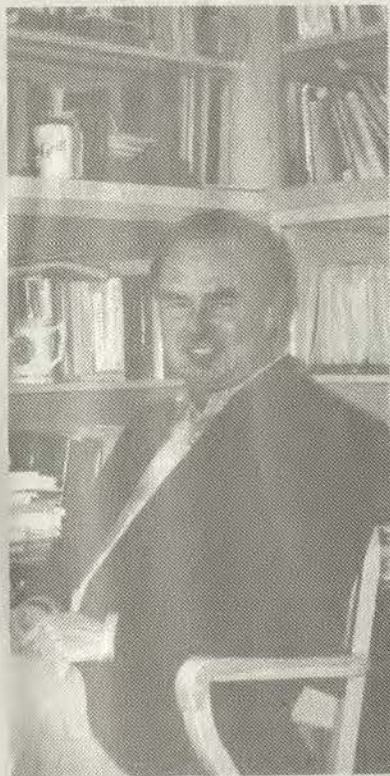

Whitaker then pointed out basic directions of how to use and support language, how to invite writing, how to use single-draft and full-cycle writing to learn, and how to do inventory and collaboration with students.

Finally, he demonstrated how that he had acted as a guide to his own daughter's full-cycle writing of a narrative. He showed samples of her writing which had occurred in each stage of the writing process — pre-writing, drafting, revising, editing and publishing.

After a very fruitful question and answer session, during which time teachers indicated interest in buying some of the books that were on display, the workshop ended.

Whitaker plans to return later in the spring for a follow-up workshop.

Practical Ideas for Parents to Help Their Children

Published weekly by the Floyd County Board of Education's Office of Instruction
Cary K. Frazier, Assistant Superintendent

Tips For Clearing Kids' Toy Clutter

Let's face it—kids don't like keeping their rooms clean. But too many toys can make the job even harder. Here are some tips for helping your child clear out the clutter:

- *Help your child sort through his/her toys. Give away those they have finished with.
- *Follow the "one-in, one-out" rule. If you buy a toy, try giving another toy away.
- *Make it easy to clean up. Put shelves at kid's eye level. Buy a few baskets or boxes for storing toys.
- *Make your child responsible for all his/her toy clutter. If things get too messy, put some toys away "because you obviously have more than you can care for."

Future Farmers speak out

Several members of the Prestonsburg Future Farmers of America recently finished first or second in District Impromptu Speaking. This allows the students to advance to the regional competition in Morehead. They are, from left, Ron Hampton (teacher-advisor), Kevin Osborne, Tim Vaughn, Johnathon Slone, Donnie Spears, Phillip West and Tresea Quillen.

WHS students instigate local Earth Week

by Adam Hall
Wheelwright High School

Six devoted students from Wheelwright High School recently had Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo declare the week of April 16-22 as Earth Week in the county.

The journalism students are involved in a World Class Environmental Conference that focuses on the problems affecting their communities. The Floyd County Board of Education has also asked all schools in the county to participate in Earth Day activities.

Students at WHS have already adopted a creek, organized clubs and started saving cans and glass to be recycled.

The first Earth Day was on April 22, 1970. It was started by students at a college campus who felt we needed to focus attention on our planet. It was not long until Earth Day spread throughout cities across the country. It also helped pass the Clean Air Act and the Clean Water Act. It also helped form the federal Environmental Protection Agency.

Earth Day for 1990 will be better than ever because of the participating countries. Citizens in African countries will be planting trees, having public lectures and recycling campaigns. Department stores in Australia will put up environmental themes in their windows. The Natural History Museum in China will have a special exhibit on the environment and the wise use of natural resources.

Flags will fly over many cities in Pakistan. Children in Brazil will give a presentation on the destruction of their rain forest. Senior citizens in France will lead children in a nature walk. In the US parades and public gatherings will take place in every city and trees will be planted everywhere.

Then finally, Floyd County will celebrate an official Earth Week, while the city of Wheelwright will have an official Earth Week which was proclaimed for April 16-22. This is the first time that Earth Day has actually been recognized in our area. Although the county clean up is set for May 14-25, we hope in following years to see the Floyd County Clean Up Program and the official Earth Week combined as one.

Math minds meet

The Eastern Kentucky Council of Teachers of Mathematics held its spring workshop on Thursday, March 29, at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

The meeting was a hands-on workshop concerning the Curriculum and Evaluation Standards for School Mathematics. The standards go into effect in August for all Kentucky public schools.

Session facilitators included Professors Ben Flora and Joyce Saxon of Morehead State University, Ann Booth of Lincoln County High School and Prof. Sue Cain of Eastern Kentucky University.

The workshop concluded with a moving address by Mark W. Trimble of Paintsville, owner of Mark W. Trimble Engineering.

MSU hosting Language Fest

Nearly 1000 students from 16 senior and junior high schools are expected to participate in the Eastern Kentucky Regional Foreign Language Festival on Friday, April 13, at Morehead State University.

Several academic competitions will be held in such categories as listening, speaking and writing proficiency, poetry recitation and extemporaneous prose reading for students in Latin, German, French, Russian and Spanish. Students will also compete in nonacademic areas which include construction models, regalia, costumes and chorus.

Judges for the festival will include faculty members from MSU's department of English, Foreign Languages and Philosophy, graduates from the department and area residents.

Serving as director of the festival is Mary Jo Netherton, associate professor of French, with assistance from students Lesia Brewer of Morehead and Hannah Horch of Maysville, who are serving as student directors, and other MSU foreign language students. Vandy Trent, department secretary, is serving as festival secretary.

Additional information is available from Netherton at 783-2779 or Trent at 783-2582.

Getting involved

Haley Caudill (left) and Amy Allen, both students at Wheelwright High School, present Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo with a proclamation for the recognition of Earth Week April 16-22. Judge Stumbo urges all citizens to participate in the activities scheduled for this observance.

McDowell students visit Pikeville College

Seniors from McDowell High School visited Pikeville College recently to learn more about the school from students, faculty and staff. Colleges offer credit for KET Telecourses

This summer, students can choose from among three undergraduate courses and one graduate course in education broadcasts on KET and offered for credit through a number of Kentucky colleges and universities.

The telecourses offered are "The Business of Management," "The Earth Explored," "Here's to Your Health," and "The Effective Teacher." A free copy of the Summer 1990 College Telecourses Schedule Guide is available by contacting KET Higher Education Manager Mary Olson at (800) 432-0907, ext. 386.

A graduate-level course, "The Effective Teacher" tackles classroom organization, individual differences in students, educational technology, and more. Experts explain results of current research in education, followed by classroom dramatizations.

"The Business of Management" is designed for the managerial candidate who has not had formal training in business management, as well as for undergraduate business students.

"Here's to Your Health" examines today's health issues and presents contemporary approaches to maintaining good health. "The Earth Explored" studies the forces that continue to shape the Earth, its physical geology, and its natural resources.

KET telecourses are fully accredited college courses and are made possible by the Kentucky Council on Higher Education.

FBLA leaders to attend state meet

The Future Business Leaders of America from Prestonsburg High School attended the Regional Leadership Conference on Wednesday, March 28, at Morehead State University where two members placed in the competitive events.

Crystal Osborne, 16-year-old daughter of Jonette Halbert of Emma and Freddie Osborne of Hunter, won third place in the keyboarding/typewriting application event.

Patricia Click, 17-year-old daughter of Jo Ann and Randall Crum of Prestonsburg and Melvin Click of Water Gap, won second place in the advanced keyboarding/typewriting application event.

The club also received second place in the name tag contest.

Both members will advance to the FBLA State Leadership Conference in Louisville April 26-28, where they will compete against other FBLA regional winners in their respective events.

The FBLA is sponsored by Judy H. Combs.

An oyster will produce a pearl when a foreign body such as a grain of sand irritates its soft body. The oyster secretes layers of pearl, a calcareous or limestone deposit, around the sand to protect itself.

MSU pre-registration

Pre-registration for Morehead State University's two summer sessions and the fall 1990 semester will be conducted during the week of April 16-20.

Only students currently enrolled are eligible to participate in the pre-registration process, according to Gene Ranvier, MSU registrar. Course schedules containing trial schedule blanks are expected to be available from the academic departments as of today, Ranvier said. Fall pre-registration option forms are also available.

Registration for graduate students, seniors and juniors will be processed first on Monday, April 16. All other students registrations will be processed Tuesday through Friday, April 17-20.

Students will register in their major department. Students who have not declared a major will register in the Office of General Studies, Allie Young 233.

Rape awareness program at PCC

A rape awareness program at PCC. A group of students from Professor Leo Weddle's social problems class at Prestonsburg Community College will be presenting a three-day program on Rape Awareness, starting next week.

The first day of the program will be Tuesday, April 10, where the students will have a display on the subject at the Pike Auditorium at PCC

7 local seniors accepted to Lees

Seven high school seniors from Floyd County have been accepted to Lees College in Jackson for the fall term of the 1990-91 academic year, announced Jerry McIntosh, director of admissions at the college.

Seniors from Betsy Layne High School include Morris W. Adkins Jr., Paula Jo Akers, Jessica A. Damron, Marsha Spears, Nicole L. Stratton and Tammy Jo Williams. Stephen M. Lilly, a senior at Prestonsburg High School, has also been accepted at Lees.

Planning to study for an associate of arts degree are Adkins, son of Anita Mays of Tram; Akers, daughter of Benjamin Akers of Ivel, and Stratton, daughter of Billy Stratton of Stanville.

Damron, daughter of Emmitt and Brenda Damron of Harold, wishes to major in education, while Spears, daughter of Roy Spears of Harold, wants to pursue a degree in business. Williams, daughter of Morris G.

Williams of Betsy Layne, desires to become a legal secretary, and Lilly, son of Sandra Lilly of Auxier, looks toward a major in science.

For more information about enrolling at Lees for the 1990-91 academic year, call the Admissions Office at 666-7521, ext. 30.

Problem Solvers going to State

The Future Problem Solving Team from Prestonsburg High School recently won first place in District and Regional competitions. The regional victory earned the team a trip to the state competition. This is the first time PHS has represented the 15th Region at the Governor's Cup in the Problem Solving Division. The members of the team, all seniors at PHS, are: Kim Horne, daughter of Seldon and Ramona Horne of Prestonsburg; Brian Stewart, son of Kenneth and Glenda Stewart of Martin; Paul Horn, son of Paul and Gilva Horn of Prestonsburg; and Wendy Reed, daughter of John and Diana Reed of Banner. The team is coached by Jerry Bryan Lafferty who also coaches the composition team which won District this year.

Local student receives scholarship

Kimberly D. Horne of Prestonsburg has been awarded a 1990 Pastors' Christian Leadership Scholarship at Georgetown College. Nominated by Rev. Steve D. Hopkins, First Baptist Church of Prestonsburg, this scholarship recipient was one of 53 persons selected from more than 150 applicants.

The Georgetown College Pastors' Christian Leadership Scholarship is designed to identify Christian young people with leadership potential and to broaden their educational opportunities. A committee of pastors and college staff selected the finalists who were awarded with either three half-tuition scholarships or 50 $400 scholarships.

Two receive ALC Memorial

Bill Melton, director of admissions at Alice Lloyd College, has announced the recent recipients of ALC's most prestigious scholarship.

John Slone, son of Mr. and Mrs. Larry Bentley of Wayland, and Patricia Tackett, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keniss Tackett of Harold, have accepted the Memorial Scholarship for the 1990-91 school year as incoming freshmen.

The Memorial Scholarship guarantees the student will have no out-of-pocket expenses for room, board or tuition for the academic year. The scholarship is the equivalent of an $8158 yearly grant. The scholarship is renewable each year the student is at ALC and as long as the student maintains a "B" or better average while completing a minimum of 15 hours each semester.

Berea offers course for women

The summer session of Berea College's New Opportunity School for Women, a career exploration and educational program, is scheduled June 10-30.

Wins awards

Davinia Chaffins, an Allen Central High School student, has been named an All-American Scholar and a US National Award winner in art by the United States Achievement Academy. The daughter of David Roger and Vicene Chaffins of Garrett, she was nominated by art teacher Carletta O'Quinn. Her grandparents are Mr. and Mrs. Hite Chaffins of Garrett and Avenell Collins of Hindman. Chaffins will be included in national directories of the academy.

The school, which is funded by a grant from the Ford Foundation, is designed for women 35 to 50 years of age who have not attended college. Applicants must be of modest income, have a high school diploma or GED certificate, and demonstrate motivation and an eagerness to learn.

Rooms and meals are provided at no cost and participants can apply for travel and child-care grants. Children cannot accompany their mothers to the campus.

Through testing and individual counseling, job skills and interests will be identified and participants will be placed in part-time jobs, at the college or in the community. They also will learn to write resumes and practice job interview skills. Semnars and other special sessions will focus on computer skills, self-confidence and stress management.

Educational and cultural opportunities will include classes in Appalachian literature, lectures and field trips.

The deadline for submitting completed applications is Sunday, April 22. Requests for applications and additional information should be addressed to Jane Stephenson, director, New Opportunity School for Women, CPO 2276, Berea College, Berea, KY 40404.

Qualified applicants will be invited to the campus for personal interviews, with the college paying transportation costs.

Centre offers new scholarship

Centre College has established a new competitive scholarship program to enhance the diversity of its student body.

Fifteen Presidential Scholarships, worth $20,000 ($5,000 per year for four years), will be offered to each freshman class. The program will begin with the freshman class that enrolls this September.

The awards will target groups underrepresented at Centre and students whose special talents, interests and backgrounds will enrich the college community. Blacks and Appalachian whites will be particularly encouraged to apply for the scholarships, according to Tom McKune, director of admissions and chair of the Special Committee on Minority Recruitment.

"This initiative will make the special educational opportunities Centre offers more accessible to all qualified students," said Centre president Michael F. Adams. "We are confident that not only will these students benefit from Centre, but Centre will become a better place because of them."

Students excel at Ohio schools

Two Stockdale, Ohio, students recently received top honors in local and county science fairs. They are Heather and Brandon McCoy, formerly of Bypro.

Heather won a superior rating for her project, "Air, Air Pressures and Gases," at the Eastern Junior High Science Fair. She received a superior ribbon and trophy. At the Pike County, Ohio, Science Fair, she won an excellent rating and was eligible for statewide competition.

Brandon won an excellent rating for his project, "How a Household Light Switch Works," at the Stockdale Elementary Science Fair. His project won another excellent rating in the Pike County, Ohio, Science Fair.

Heather is a seventh grader at Eastern Junior High School in Beaver, Ohio, and Brandon is a fifth grader at Stockdale Elementary. Their parents are Rick and Beth McCoy of Stockdale.

They are the grandchildren of Mollie Tackett and the late Everett Tackett and the late Aileen and Houston McCoy.

They formerly attended Melvin Elementary.

All the Headstart centers have been visiting the senior centers in the county to promote HANDY-O, Hugs Are Necessary for Developing Young and Old.

Getting a fresh start

Jane Stephenson (left), director of the New Opportunity School for Women, shares this year's agenda with Shirley Thompson, a 1988 graduate of the school. For women, age 35-50, the school offers job seeking skills and helps to build self esteem and determine individual interests for women who are going through a transition period in their life and either wish to begin working or change career fields. The school is limited to 14 slots and occurs June 10-30 at Berea College. (See related story.)

Winning by reading

Carlotta Jones' Chapter I reading students at W.D. Osborne Elementary proved recently that readers are winners. Several students won books, and others won books and medals for reading 20 library books to someone else, such as their parents, brothers and sisters, or grandparents. Second grade winners are Devin Newsome, Shane Howell, Willis Tackett, Jessica Hall, Amanda Caudill and Thomas Johnson. Third grade winner is Christy Stanley. Fourth grade: Patricia Tackett, Cassandra Hall and Suzanne Johnson. Fifth grade: Sheri Hall, Mark Gilliam, Travis Johnson and Anthony Howell.

Pushing school in the malls

Shopping centers, retailers and the Kentucky Department of Education are joining forces to show teenagers the value of completing high school. As a part of Project Care, shopping centers throughout Kentucky are being asked to set up display booths and career orientation programs for students during Dropout Prevention Focus Week, April 15-21. The project is a cooperative venture with Kentucky shopping centers and Kentucky Grocers Association and is organized by the Department of Education's Dropout Prevention Unit. Project Care is modeled on a successful program begun in 1987 at Center Services Inc. Manchester Square Shopping Center. In a one-day program, students selected by school counselors were introduced to opportunities in retailing and then went to work in stores, under the supervision of sponsoring merchants. The purpose was to demonstrate to students that academic skills are essential on the job. Because of the project's success in its first year, it was expanded to two days in 1988. Project Care has now expanded statewide.

Kentucky Department of Education coordinators will work with local shopping centers and local schools. Packets of information and display materials will also be provided to retailers.

Parents Rights

By Joyce Everly

The first three of "The Five Rights of Parents:"

1. The right to be informed about teachers and principals.
2. The right to be informed about curriculum.
3. The right to be informed about policies.

J. Cy Rowell states in his parents rights article: "These three rights to information are absolutely minimal rights if parents are to be informed PARTNERS in the educational process."

Rowell also says, "Parents are more than consumers or recipients (through their children) of a community's education services. They are also contributors to the shaping of administrative decisions and school policy. They have the right to seek to influence the decision-making process."

In Right Four, "To influence administrative decisions," Rowell states, "Traditionally, American public education has assumed that a board sets policy, the administrative staff carries out policy, principals supervise 'building,' and teachers teach."

As parents in the Floyd County school system, whose children have been victimized by the process for whatever reason, "tradition" is not one of this county's realities.

Parents have almost NEVER been allowed, invited or encouraged to be part of the decision-making process.

When parents show some interest in the educational environment of a school, they are asked to join the PTA/PTO. The involvement is narrowed to raising money for copy paper, copy machine repair, garbage bags, telephone bills, carpeting and the list goes on.

Nowhere in the county's school system does our local board and administration allow parents to be a meaningful part of the decision-making that sets policy on curriculum, hiring of teachers and principals or developing evaluation criteria. Study after educational study has proven that when parents are involved in all aspects of a school system, everyone benefits tremendously.

I think it is time for parents to become involved in the process of hiring. My feelings are echoed by Rowell. "Parents should be able to exert influence through proper channels on the administrative decision-making process as it involves teacher and principal evaluation. Specifically, parents have the right to commend teachers and principals in a way that will make a positive difference in their standing in the profession and the system. Likewise, parents have the right to protest incompetent or unfit teachers without fear of recrimination and with the assurance that their complaints, in keeping with due process, will be duly considered by school administrators."

In the Lexington Herald-Leader, dated March 30, 1990, banner headlines read "Education Reform Sent to Governor." I hope and pray that will mean that we will finally have an educational system where the educational welfare of the students will be the first consideration when the superintendent recommends, the board votes and the policy is passed.

I also hope that never again will a politician's political future be the only yardstick used to judge policy when the vote is called in a school board room.

Let us all hope that after Greg Stumbo, with a tear in his eye, said, "No child in Kentucky will ever have to look back and say that he or she didn't receive the full educational opportunity that he or she is entitled to," he will consider the students in his district first when decisions are made in the smoke-filled meeting rooms of Frankfort and Floyd County.

Safe areas invite free play

Children need lots of time to play, but at the same time parents worry about their safety, especially when their play takes them outside the home.

To support children's need to play and eliminate parents' worry, the places where children play must be safe, says the April issue of PTA Today, the National PTA's award-winning magazine.

What makes for a safe play area? In addition to discussing certain safety standards that apply to the physical environment such as the height of the equipment, acceptable playground surfaces, and the placement and construction of swings and slides, Francis Wardle, a consultant on play environments, offers the following safety guidelines for home and school playgrounds in an article in PTA Today:

* Children should be supervised at all times. When playing, children often test the limits of the equipment, therefore an adult should always be present in the play area.

* Playgrounds should suit the child. Because children pass through different developmental stages, playgrounds should match these stages. A playground designed for 4-year-old children will not suit 10-year-olds and vice versa.

* The play equipment should provide many possibilities for play. Boredom is a principal contributor to playground accidents. Problems resulting from boredom can be prevented by having a variety of equipment arranged in a way to maximize play possibilities.

* The playground must be maintained. Any faulty equipment must be repaired immediately and broken equipment removed.

Other articles in this issue, which bears the theme, "Safety: Indoors, outdoors and on the road," focus on preventing childhood poisonings, helping children feel safe when home alone, how too much sun can contribute to skin cancer, helping child pedestrians be safe and how the right equipment can make your child's bike ride a safe ride.

Copies of PTA Today are available for $2.50 each by sending a check of money order made payable to the National PTA, 700 N. Rush St., Chicago, IL 60611.

HOROSCOPE

April 8 through April 14

By A. Murphy

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)
Don't allow rumors to ruffle you; learn all the facts. Be cautious where strays and lost loves are concerned. Wear bright colors; it's the season.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)
You will find that exercise relieves tensions caused from betrayals, marital problems and money conflicts. Look to the future. After you see the worst, it is over.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)
Beware of a financially unstable person around you. Don't be brought down also. Look toward educational opportunities. A family reunion can be very healing.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)
Don't let impatience turn you into a type-A personality. Exercise and enjoyment of the outdoors are good for your health and your personal discipline.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)
Visit someone you know who is ailing. For effective communication, use persistence, clarity and patience. Put yourself on the receiving end for better understanding.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)
Tensions and bad feelings can be relieved with frank, honest conversation. Perfection does not exist in our lives, so aim for what is reality, not that which is impossible.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)
Remember the great healing power of laughter. Don't go where you are uncomfortable, either financially or physically. Try new things, but avoid danger.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)
Allow yourself to examine another point of view, no matter how foreign it may seem. Instead of feeling self-pity, learn how to budget and organize your finances and time.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)
Re-examine your own spirituality. Are you doing enough to satisfy your own needs? The more you reveal about yourself to those you care about, the stronger the bond.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)
Prophets of doom often just like to hear themselves talk. Think carefully about their words, and try not to become unnecessarily frightened.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)
Think about your dreams, and even write them down. Beware, however, of making complicated plans based on them. There are often advantages to unexpected delays.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)
Great personal warmth comes from volunteer work. Support your beliefs with your time and your talents. Don't spread yourself too thin or neglect your own family, however.

TV PIPELINE

'The Fugitive' finale was most watched series episode

By Polly Vonetes

Q: I've been watching The Fugitive on A&E with David Janssen. I'm curious if he ever found the one-armed man and proved his innocence and what Janssen is doing now? —Dave Martin, Middle River, Wis.

A: In a climactic chase scene, Kimble (Janssen) and the one-armed man cornered each other atop a water tower, Lt. Gerard (Barry Morse), in hot pursuit on the ground, realized he had been wrong about Kimble and shot the one-armed man to save the doctor's life. The one-armed man (Bill Raisch) plunged to his death before he could be captured. This final episode, which aired on Aug. 29, 1967, was seen by more people than any single episode of a regular series in the history of television. David Janssen died of a heart attack on Feb. 13, 1980. He was 49.

Q: Recently several of us were discussing a series that aired about 20 years ago. It was a half-hour show, about a mother-less family who lived in a high rise apartment. A blonde pigtailed daughter, named Biffy, freckled face boy, a butler (named Mr. French) and the father played by Brian Keith, were in the cast. Could you help us out by telling us the name of this show? —Thanks, Janet Himelspach, Broadus, Mont.

A: You could have guessed it was Family Affair. Brian Keith starred as "Uncle Bill." (Their parents had been killed in an accident. The closest relative was their Dad's brother, Uncle Bill.) Jody, played by Johnnie Whitaker, was the freckled face twin brother of Buffy, played by the late Anissa Jones. And how could you forget Cissy, the 15-year-old sister, played by Kathy Garver? The very English gentleman's gentleman, Mr.

David Janssen

French, was played by the late Sebastian Cabot. The series aired on CBS from Sept. 1966 to '71.

Q: Here in Canada I am a very big fan of Miami Vice. A few weeks ago on the show Sonny and Rico tossed their badges. But all the shows since feature them on the job as usual. Did I miss an episode? Or is the series ended and I'm getting reruns? —Carol Twardzik, Saskatchewan, Canada.

A: Miami Vice ended a five-year run on NBC with a two-hour movie on May 21, 1989. The episodes you are currently viewing are reruns being shown in syndication.

Q: In the 1974 television show Lassie, I would like to know whatever happened to Robert Bray, who played the forest ranger on the show. —Lester Nelson, Big Bear Lake, Calif.

A: Robert Bray retired from acting in the early '70s and lived with his family at Lake Arrowhead in California. He died March 7, 1983.

NOTICE OF INTENTION TO MINE

Pursuant to Application Number 836-0117 Am. #3

In accordance with the provisions of KRS 350.055, notice is hereby given that Coal Mac, Inc., P.O. Box 3428, Pikeville, Kentucky 41501, has filed an application for an amendment to an existing surface coal mining and reclamation operation. The amendment proposes to add an additional 38.2 surface acres and will underlie an additional 17.1 acres for a total proposed permit acreage of 611.9 acres, located 2.5 miles north of Galveston in Floyd County.

The proposed amendment is approximately 3.5 miles south from KY 979's junction with Branham Creek Road and located 0.1 miles east of Branham Creek. The latitude is 37° 27' 15". The longitude is 82° 37' 33". The surface area to be disturbed and the surface area overlying the underground mining and augering is shown on the included map.

The proposed amendment is located on the McDowell and Pikeville U.S.G.S. 7-1/2 minute quadrangle map. The operation will use the contour strip, area mining, auger and deep mining method of mining. The operation affects an area within 100 feet of Keathley Branch Road. The operation will not involve relocation of the public road.

This amendment proposes to add 37.9 acres of mining and associated structures and 17.1 acres of augering on the Firclay, Elkhorn No. 1, 2 and 3 coal seams.

The amendment application has been filed for public inspection at the Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement's Prestonsburg Regional Office, 503 South Lake Drive, Prestonsburg, Kentucky 41653. Written comments, objections, or requests for a permit conference must be filed with the Director of the Division of Permits, #2 Hudson Hollow, U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. 4-6-44F.

NOTICE OF PUBLIC MEETING

The Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet is initiating an investigation of the impacts of pre-1977 mining on ground water quantity and quality in the Weeksbury-Jacks Creek area of southern Floyd County. Beyond the communities of Weeksbury, Melvin and Bevinville (Jacks Creek), investigation of ground water (i.e., well water) contamination problems along all of Jacks Creek, the headwaters of the Left Fork of Beaver and Abner Fork, as well as in the various hollows in this area, will be included in the study.
The Cabinet's Division of Abandoned Lands, in conjunction with the Office of the Floyd County Judge/Executive, has scheduled a public meeting for Thursday, April 12, 1990, at 6:00 p.m. at the Melvin Elementary School.
The purpose of this meeting will be to explain the scope and schedule of the ground water investigation, and to solicit input from affected citizens. The results of the investigation will be used to determine if monies from the Abandoned Mine Land (AML) Reclamation Fund can be used to abate any identified problems.
All interested persons are encouraged to attend and participate in this meeting. Additional information may be obtained by contacting the Division of Abandoned Lands, 618 Teton Trail, Frankfort, Kentucky 40601, (502) 564-2141.
