Incinerator issue burns

Floyd citizens flood Fiscal Court with demands

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

The group Floyd Countians In Action, concerned with the medical waste incinerator located behind Highlands Regional Medical Center, literally took over the first hour of the Floyd Fiscal Court meeting Friday with four resolutions they wanted the members to pass.

While several FCIA members held up placards, George Scott Walker acted as spokesperson for the group and presented their demands in order. Walker's wife Deborah handed out red roses to those court members who voted for the group and black to those who voted against.

The first issue was demanding the resignation of Floyd County Solid Waste commissioner Robert McAninch. The group cited McAninch as possessing a conflict of interest in his capacity at the solid waste commission while simultaneously serving on the advisory board for Medisin Inc., operator of the incinerator.

McAninch defended his position on the board stating that it complemented his solid waste position in that he now possesses first hand awareness as to what is being hauled to the landfill from the incinerator. As of June 7 this year, the landfill has been accepting no ash from the medical incinerator, pending a study on its reported toxicity.

According to McAninch, the state sees the ash as non-toxic and has put no regulations on the landfill or cited it for any violation as far as the ash issue is concerned.

"We are asking you to stop one or the other," Walker countered. "We don't feel you can serve in the best interest of the people if you serve there (Medisin board)."

McAninch added that he was asked by Medisin for assistance in safe waste transmission and felt it was his duty as Solid Waste Commissioner to give such advice.

Magistrate of District Two Jackie

Edford Owens jumped on the bandwagon and quickly motioned for McAninch's resignation. Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo reminded the court that McAninch had 3-1/2 years left in his position and it was the commissioner's decision whether or not to resign.

Another bystander, Charles Parson with the Floyd County Litter Task Force, spoke up, "If McAninch resigns, who would be our watch dog to see we don't get out of state garbage and medical waste?" He was referring to McAninch's recent resolution not to take out of state garbage at the Floyd County Landfill.

After some time of bantering and Owens' repeated calling for a vote on the resolution for McAninch to resign, County Attorney Jim Hammond noted that the Fiscal Court was the wrong place to start on the charges of "conflict of interest."

The proper place to bring up these allegations would be before the Solid Waste Board, said Hammond. "He (McAninch) is owed due process, even with the best interest of these citizens, this needn't be brought in front of a public forum," he said.

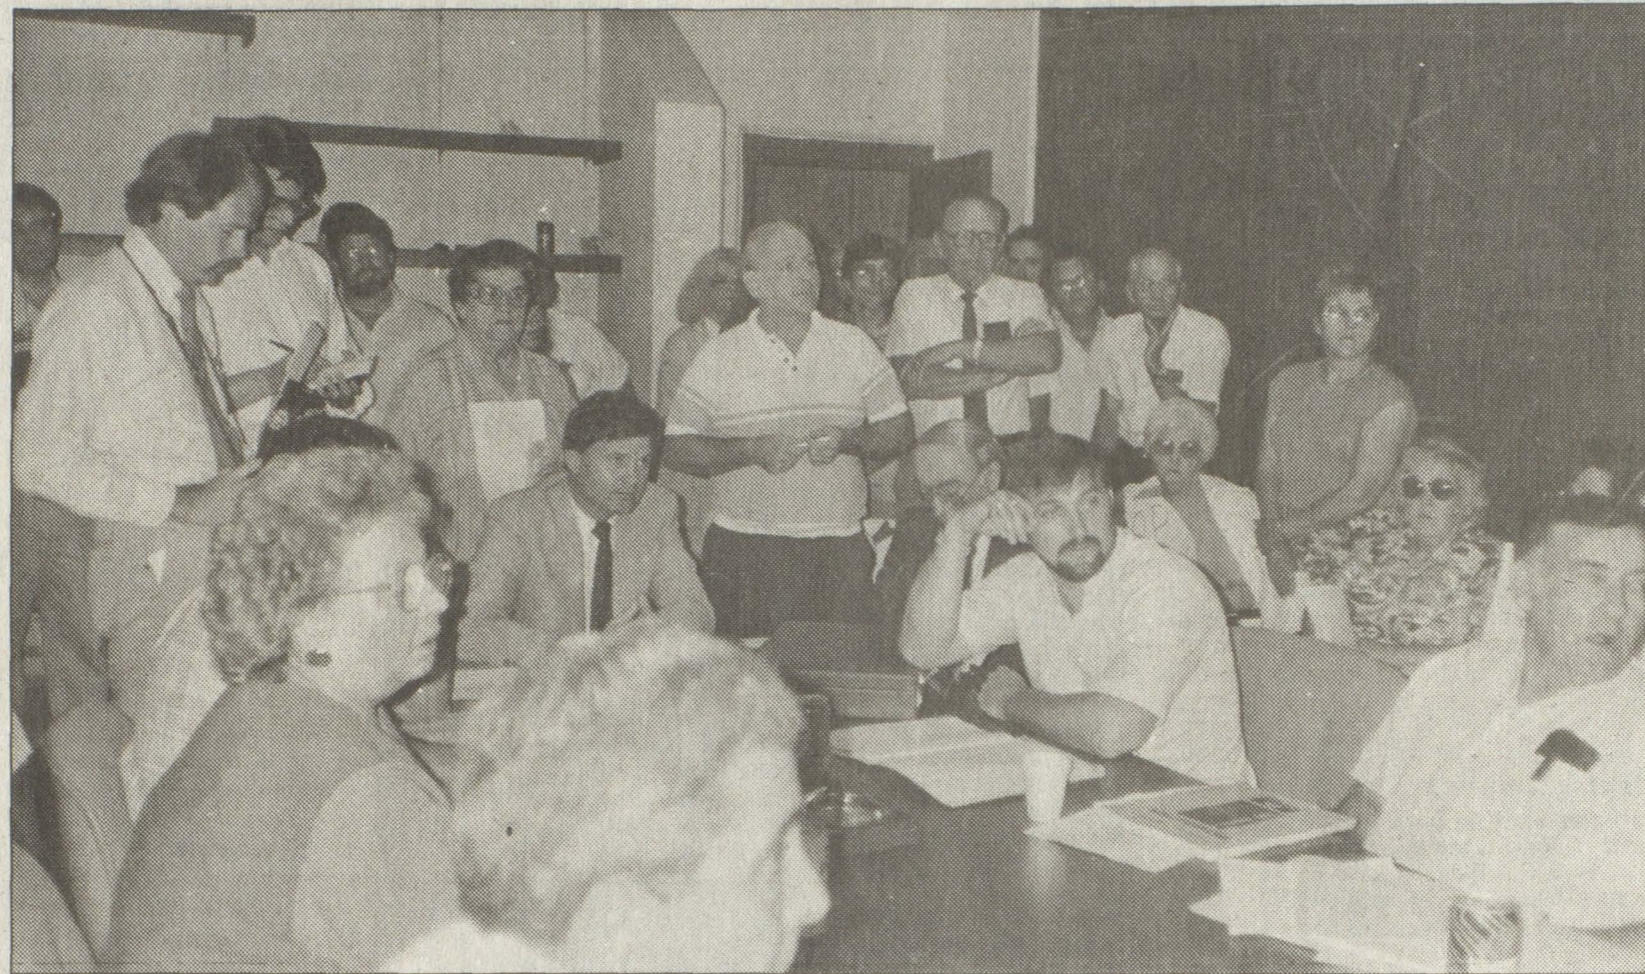

In answer to Owens' comment to send a letter of recommendation to the Solid Waste Board on this matter, Hammond said, "This needs to go through the chain of command instead of starting at the top. Not in defense of Bob, but in defense of fair play. I feel it would be an offense to everyone in this room to find him in conflict of interest without due process."

Floyd Countians in Action were not satisfied with this answer and contended that McAninch lent Medisin Inc. legitimacy and they alleged that he wasn't even aware of their actions.

"We are all concerned with toxics. They (Medisin) only generate 1/2 a can of ash a week," McAninch said. "Right now, in our opinion, it is safe. If the tests come back that it's toxic we will refuse it. They can take it to Roe Creek."

"A very small amount of hazardous waste is among the trash, I'm sure many of you throw out batteries...With 750 tons of garbage and that small amount of ash, the milk cartons will eat it up before it can leech out," McAninch said.

In defense

Surrounded by the opposition, Floyd County Solid Waste Commissioner Robert McAninch defends his position on the board and in an advisory capacity to Medisin Inc., operators of the local medical waste incinerator. Floyd Countians In Action attended in mass Friday's Fiscal Court meeting, seeking solutions for the disposal of medical waste other than incineration and disposal of the ash at the Garth Landfill. The citizens contend that the ash is toxic and are also fearful of the emissions from the incinerator. They claim the emissions irritate their respiratory systems and sting their skin. Upwards of 70 people attended the meeting with many standing in the hall for lack of space in the court room. (Photo by Mike Rosenberg)

Hotter, stickier

The weatherman is predicting hotter, more humid weather today. There is a 60 percent chance of summer showers and today's high is expected to be around 90 degrees. There is a 50 percent chance of rain tonight with skies clearing by morning and a low in the mid 60s. Sunny skies with temperatures in the mid 80s are predicted for Thursday. Thursday night should be mostly clear with a low in the mid to upper 60's.

Gas prices adjusted — again

There has been another change in one local company's gas prices as of June 11. The Public Service Commission granted East Kentucky Utilities a purchased gas adjustment to reflect a $243 decrease in wholesale costs from its supplier. The average annual decrease per residential customer is 24 cents retroactive to May 1.

Board calls special meeting

The Floyd County Board of Education makes it two weeks in a row, as it convenes for a special "clean up" meeting tonight at 6 p.m. at Prestonsburg High School cafeteria.

More personnel adjustments are on the agenda, along with textbook approval, insurance review, bid openings, and reports on school construction.

A hometown winner

The Floyd County Times has received several awards, including a first place, in statewide competition sponsored by the Kentucky Press Association.

In KPA's Better Newspaper contest, among multi-weekly newspapers, The Times earned top honors for promotions; second place for front page and editorial page; third for typography, and honorable mention for lifestyle section.

The awards were presented during KPA's summer convention last week at Kentucky Dam.

Full agenda greets Fiscal Court

Roads, bridges, bids, funds predominate

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

In addition to the demands of Floyd Countians in Action (see related story) at Floyd Fiscal Court last Friday, the court members attended to a full agenda of other business and citizen concerns, including the widening of Abbott Creek Road, acceptance of bids for a bridge and a surplus vehicle and the funding of fireworks for the Fourth of July.

Lisa Meade of the Left Fork of Abbott presented a petition from 26 landowners who had agreed to relinquish part of their property to widen and improve the area road. This was a result of an incident at last month's court meeting when court members agreed to fix the road but were concerned that they wouldn't be able to get the neighboring property owners' agreement.

Meade was also petitioning for the upkeep of the road, alleging that it had been blacktopped only two times in 10 years.

Meade noted that the property didn't need to be blasted and one person had already used his personal bulldozer to widen one spot and make it safer.

"There are over 60 homes up there and most are high income. There is plenty of tax money coming out of that hollow and everyone is being very cooperative," Meade said.

District One Magistrate Gerald DeRossett agreed to look at the situation and do necessary work.

A citizen from McDowell questioned the whereabouts of the reported bleachers for the Minnie Park. Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo informed him the seating should be here any day.

County Treasurer David Allen was re-sworn in, as was the new assistant county attorney Bob Bishop.

A bid of $79,950 was accepted from Coalfields Reclamation in Betsy Layne to build the Hunter Bridge and a bid of $330 from Billy Dingus was also accepted for a surplus vehicle from the Sheriff's Department.

Also in old business, after determining that the cemetery was not affected by the closing of the road on Crum Branch at Arkansas Creek, the

Perkins says flood study is a go for Beaver Creek

US Congressman Chris Perkins (KY 7th District) announced last week that $200,000 has been allocated to the US Army Corps of Engineers for a flood control study on Beaver Creek by the House Appropriations Committee.

The project was originally researched in the late 1960s and early 1970s, according to Dave Whalen, a spokesperson for Perkins, "but the project never got off the ground."

Whalen said that Perkins had asked that the $200,000 be allocated for a new study of the flood plane and what can be done to control flooding damage to homes along Left Beaver Creek and at the confluence of Left and Right Beaver creeks near Martin.

The study, if approved by both the House of Representatives and Senate, would be completed, "in a couple of years, probably," Whalen said.

The study, part of a proposed $12.84 million allocation, came before a congressional vote yesterday evening after press time, but is expected to be completed by next week.

Joseph indicted

A Prestonsburg man has been charged with 12 counts of developing a fraudulent scheme to obtain Medicaid benefits in an indictment handed down by the Franklin County Circuit Court Grand Jury.

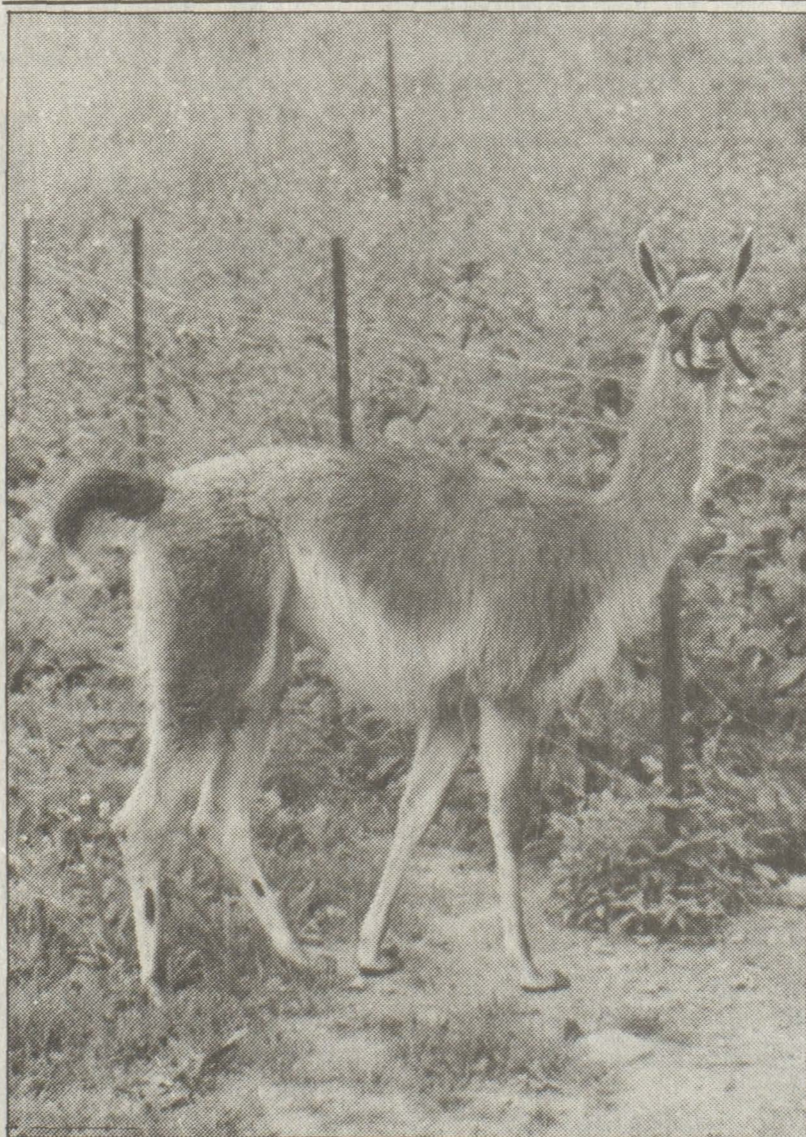

Herman Joseph of Prestonsburg was indicted June 11 by the grand jury for attempting to defraud the Medicaid program in excess of $10,000, according to the state Attorney General's office.

The indictments include the fraud charges, as well as 10 counts of first degree forgery and one count of filing a false Medicaid claim in excess of $100.

Joseph's alleged fraudulent acts involved transportation by an unlicensed taxi cab company. The alleged forgeries involved the forging of signatures on reimbursement checks for the transportation of Medicaid recipients.

A spokesperson at the office of the Kentucky Attorney General stated Tuesday that no further information about the Joseph charges could be released at this time.

Joseph is scheduled to be arraigned in Franklin Circuit Court on June 29.

A different kind of watch dog

Jacob, the llama, has been catching the eyes of motorists on Abbott Road recently. Jacob is owned by Clayton and Carol Holland, who say that they bought the animal to watch over and protect the 85 goats they raise in the valley behind their home. Carol said that she had been after Clayton to purchase the llama since seeing a television show detailing llamas' being used as guard animals on commercial sheep and goat farms. Reports indicate that the llamas regard the animals as their own children and will kick and spit at any intruder. The Hollands purchased Jacob after three of their goats were killed in an attack by wild dogs. The beast is native to the South American mountains. (Photo by Tim Preston)

Youth drowns at Dewey Lake

A young man who was swimming with friends Sunday at Dewey Lake became the third drowning victim at the state park this year.

Members of the Prestonsburg Fire and Rescue Department were called to the lake at about 9:45 p.m. Sunday in response to a possible drowning. Rescue workers dragged the lake bottom throughout the night and discovered the body at 7:50 a.m. Monday.

The body of Gregory Prater, 16, of Martin was discovered in the area of the boat ramp located near the ranger station.

Prater is the son of Brenda Joyce Hall Clay and Terry Adkins Sr., both of Martin. He was a student at Allen Central High School.

Funeral services for Prater will be today at 2 p.m. at the Nelson Frazier Funeral Home of Martin.

New Lottery man

Jeff Riley has been appointed the new area sales manager for the Prestonsburg regional office of the Kentucky Lottery. Riley is a native of the Wheelwright area and brings his knowledge of the area and its people to the new position. "I feel like I've been up every hollow in Eastern Kentucky," said Riley, "and those I haven't seen, I'm sure I will soon." (Photo by Tim Preston)

Vivian Birchfield, newly elected president of PCEA, petitioned the board to give local teachers a 25 percent raise from state funding instead of the initial 10 percent the board offered. The board refused to grant the raise. In addition, the Board voiced its opposition to the Pikeville annexation effort. (Appalachian News-Express)

Small plane makes emergency landing

JACKSON — A twin engine plane made an emergency landing near Jackson, and all four people aboard were uninjured, according to authorities. The plane was forced down about 11:30 p.m. Friday in an area stripped for coal when the engine stalled. The pilot and three passengers, all from Atlanta, were heading for a wedding in Ohio. The four spent the night in Jackson and boarded a bus for Ohio the next day. The names of the passengers were not released. (Lexington Herald-Leader)

JACKSON — A "sophisticated" marijuana greenhouse on KY 315 was raided last week for the second time this year and a Breathitt County man was charged with cultivating the illegal weed. Allegedly managed by William Ray Turner, the greenhouse was set with high technology timers that controlled the lighting and temperature to help the growth of the 72 plants discovered there. Turner was placed in jail under a $10,000 cash bond. (The Jackson Times)

Indictments announced for Medicaid fraud

FRANKFORT — The Franklin County grand jury on Friday returned felony indictments against Dr. Carmencita Gallosa of Paintsville, according to Attorney General Fred Cowan. Gallosa was indicted for billing Medicaid for services not rendered, a class D felony; for tampering with physical evidence, another class D felony, and for filing false claims under $100, a misdemeanor. Trial was scheduled for Oct. 10.

Fiscal Court

"You're saying that milk cartons eat lead," Walker asked.

"Look in any garbage can at any elementary school and you won't see a bottom in them, the milk eats it out," McAninch explained.

Walker suggested that better means of disposal can be found, such as on-site sterilization and compacting. Robert Ford, Medisin representative, noted that steam sterilization doesn't always work and some incineration would still be needed. He invited all interested parties to come to the open house for the incinerator scheduled for June 28, or to come any time and observe the operation.

The second demand of the FCIA pertained to prohibiting the dumping of the ash in the landfill. McAninch noted that this is already being done since the new regulation came out June 7.

The third resolution asked that a ban be placed on importation of toxic waste or medical waste into the landfill. Hammond noted that the most appropriate way that the Fiscal Court could handle this is by levying a heavy tax on imported medical waste such as was done in 1976 at Maxey Flats in Fleming County.

"This doesn't outlaw it but makes it cost prohibitive," Hammond noted. "No one wants Floyd County to be the 'happy dumping grounds' but we need to dispose of waste we create ourselves.

"Let's not be so naive to think someone else will take our toxic waste and I'll be daggoned if I want to see Floyd County get dirtier. We can't sit around and wait for the state and federal government cause it will never get done."

Hammond agreed to work up a proposal for a stiff tax to be levied on the haulers of toxic waste into Floyd County to present at the next Fiscal Court in July.

The final resolution presented by the group was to ban the importation of Solid Waste into Floyd County.

McAninch pointed out that in 1980 the state said the landfills in Kentucky would be built only if they were open to surrounding counties, thus preventing the need to build 120 landfills throughout the state.

"From day one we have accepted out of county trash," McAninch said. "If we ban it, somebody will have to pay back the $495,000 to the federal government," McAninch said.

Owens demanded a vote to stop this practice and McAninch noted that in about a year's time Floyd County may be the out-of-county garbage if solutions were not found to satisfy the new regulations for lined landfills.

The vote was taken and Owens and District One Magistrate Gerald DeRossett voted against out-of-county garbage while Magistrates Betty Caudill and Ernal Tackett voted for accepting it, as did Judge Stumbo.

"There no question about it, we have to take it," Stumbo said.

Several members of the crowd said they would remember this vote come election time and the judge commented that it was the only way to keep the garbage bills down.

"This court does not want outside waste, be it hazardous or not. But we have to resolve at the same time what we are going to do with our own waste," Hammond said.

Not satisfied with the results of the meeting and fearing that those present did not realize the extent of their concerns, Walker invited anyone who wanted to see the incinerator when it was fired up to give him his name and number so he could call them when it started.

"You don't even have to be outside to know it," Walker said. Some other members of FCIA testified to the stench the incinerator emitted and noted that it bothered their breathing as far as Auxier.

After the completion of the business with Floyd Countians in Action the Fiscal continued with a full agenda and other citizen grievances. See related story.

court moved to do so. The 1990-91 Fiscal Year budget was also adopted.

In new business, the court had received a petition from Coal-Mac about a notice of intent to relocate abandoned graves located on Keathley Branch at Toler's Creek. The court agreed to advertise the issue and address it at the next meeting.

Jailer Lawrence Hale made another appearance before the court asking for more workers. He noted that the last inspection of the jail found everything in satisfactory shape, but he said the inspector had recommended that another turnkey be hired so the keys can remain out front and not with the jailer who goes through the cell block.

Hale also asked that a doctor be hired to come by once a week to examine the men as a money-saving measure. Judge Stumbo told Hale to see if he could find such a physician to do the job and then it might be negotiated.

Dale McKinney of WMDJ radio station came before the court asking for support for the Fourth of July Celebration. McKinney's proposal included the court giving $5000 to purchase fireworks with the radio station taking care of the manpower, insurance and firing equipment, as well as putting together the rest of the celebration.

Magistrate Betty Caudill commented that the day was quite a success last year, and McKinney noted that between 7500 and 10,000 people turned out at the Allen park for watermelon eating contests, listening to music, sack races, fireworks, etc.

"This is great for the family, and Floyd County really needs something like this, so let's take the lead and do it for the people," McKinney urged.

The motion for the donation was approved quickly and unanimously.

Veronica Bolen of the Goodloe area asked the court what could be done about the damaged fire hydrant near her home. Judge Stumbo reported that Beaver Elkhorn Coal said the company would fix it when workers got the time.

Bolen also wanted a bridge mended, but Magistrate Gerald DeRossett said it was not in the county road system and Bolen would have to get a petition signed by other area residents requesting it be put into the system.

In new financial business, the court resolved to advertise for county supplies for 1990-91; the Timber Tax of $2499 was accepted from the Sheriff's Department and put into the general fund; the county moved to advertise for the repair of several county bridges that were damaged by floods from 1989; three stale checks were voided, and monthly bills were paid in the amount of about $531,713.

Permission was also given to the county judge to check with state and local agencies for the purchase of three general road trucks and to purchase said vehicles at the best price possible. Magistrate Owens, who recently received a 4WD truck from the county, jokingly asked the other magistrates if he could have the parts off their old trucks since he knew he wouldn't be getting another one.

Also approved was the hiring of the county workers. Look for the listing in Friday's paper.

Paul B. Hall accredited

Paul B. Hall Regional Medical Center of Paintsville has been awarded a full three year accreditation by the Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations.

JCAHO, the national hospital accrediting agency, announced its decision in a letter to Administrator Debbie Trimble Meadow. The Joint Commission's on-site survey of the Paintsville acute care center occurred in February. John E. Milton, director of the Joint Commission's Hospital Accreditation Program said, "The Big Sandy region should be proud that Paul B. Hall Medical Center is focusing on the most challenging goal: to continually raise quality to higher levels."

Noting that PBH and its predecessor, Paintsville Hospital, had earned accreditation continuously for almost 40 years, Meadows stated, "I am proud of this national recognition for our staff and our services and for the way they continue to respond to the challenge of exemplary service to our region."

A three-year accreditation is the highest and longest level of accreditation granted by the Joint Commission, Meadows added. She called the accreditation, "proof of an organization-wide commitment to quality health care."

Prestonsburg firefighters report busy week

Members of the Prestonsburg Fire Department got no rest last Sunday as they were called to a variety of situations, ranging from exploding air tanks to burning bulldozers.

One of the first calls Sunday came in at 1:33 p.m. and reported that a child had taken a dive into the shallow end of the Archer Park swimming pool, hitting his head on the bottom. Fire and rescue workers reported that Thomas Thornsberry, 16, of Prestonsburg had dived in and bumped his head in the four-foot section of the pool and received small cuts and a knot on his head as a result of the dive.

Exactly one hour later at 2:33 p.m., fire and rescue workers were called to the parking lot of SuperAmerica in Prestonsburg on a report that an older woman seemed to have suffered a stroke. Martha McCoy, 77, of Banner was found in the parking lot, suffering from extremely high blood pressure and other symptoms of a stroke related injury.

McCoy was transported to Highlands Regional Medical Center where she is listed in stable condition.

Later that afternoon an explosion was reported. Department members patrolled South Lake Drive in Prestonsburg and discovered that an air tank had popped a relief valve while sitting in the hot sun. The tank, filled with oxygen and located outside of the Cooley Medical Equipment office, caused no damage and no one was injured in connection with the relief valve opening. According to Fire Chief Tom Blackburn, there was no actual explosion, but the valve released a great amount of pressure and a loud "Pop or Bang" was created.

Later that evening at 10:25 p.m., firefighters were called to Pond Hollow on old Middle Creek Road to fight a bulldozer fire. Eleven men from the department arrived at the scene to find a large bulldozer on fire near the diesel fuel tanks and the cab of the vehicle. Firefighters extinguished the blaze, and the fire is under investigation by the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

Traffic accidents occupy police

Prestonsburg City Police responded to several traffic accidents over the past week.

An accident occurred on Friday, June 15, between Earl and Burchett streets. Edward L. Carter, 27, of Prestonsburg was reportedly pulling out from the Chrysler lot at Music-Carter-Hughes when he pulled into the path of a car driven by Sarah Stewart, 46, of Prestonsburg. Carter stated to police that he could not see the Stewart vehicle. Stewart was cited for no insurance. No injuries were reported.

A Prestonsburg man was arrested for first offense DUI following an accident Sunday on US 23. Delmer P. Baldrige, 33, and Dallas G. Polk, 19, both of Prestonsburg, were traveling south on North Lake Drive when Polk's vehicle reportedly cut in front of Baldrige. The Baldrige vehicle struck the Polk vehicle in the left front fender.

Baldrige claimed that Polk did not give him time to avoid the collision. Polk stated that he was completely in the lane when the collision occurred. Baldrige was later cited for Driving Under the Influence of alcohol. No injuries were reported and the accident was investigated by Officer Mack Stewart.

An 11-year-old Prestonsburg boy found himself in trouble following an accident Monday afternoon. John E. Thompson, 11, was traveling in the wrong direction on 1st Avenue while Jeffrey Combs, 23, of Ivel was attempting to exit a parking space.

Combs stated that he looked down the street and saw that it was clear before backing out. Thompson reportedly struck the Combs vehicle in the right front fender. Witnesses reported that Thompson was traveling at a high rate of speed and was weaving between parked cars before striking the car. Thompson was cited for no motorcycle operators license, no registration plates and no insurance on the vehicle.

An accident later Monday evening at the intersection of US 23 and Archer Park Road involved Michael N. Thompson, 24, of Prestonsburg and Kathy L. Lowe, 34, of Prestonsburg. Lowe was reportedly stopped at the traffic light at the intersection when her car was struck in the rear by a vehicle driven by Thompson.

Lowe stated that she saw the vehicle coming and that it appeared to be out of control. Thompson claimed that he switched lanes prior to the collision and that the Lowe vehicle remained stopped even though the light had changed to green. Thompson said that he could not avoid the collision with Lowe. Thompson was cited for failure to produce an insurance card. No injuries were reported and the accident was investigated by Officer Mack Stewart.

Another rear-end collision happened yesterday on North Lake Drive involving Bradis Burchett, 27, of Oil Springs and James H. Frazier, 54, of Staffordsville. Both vehicles were traveling South on North Lake Drive when Burchett reportedly struck Frazier's vehicle in the rear as Frazier was slowing down for a third vehicle. No injuries were reported and the accident was investigated by Sgt. Gerald Clark.

Fun and Sadness

Although the primary election wasn't too exciting, the general election in November might be more appealing.

Will Scott and Chris Perkins will be at it again with some observers saying Perkins is getting weaker as each election goes by. Only time will tell, but this will be one of the good-ies.

Harvey Sloane, the Democratic challenger against Republican US Senator Mitch McConnell, appears to have an uphill road to flip-flop against the incumbent. At this point, it appears Mitch is leading.

Closer to home, the district one race for school board might be shaping up to be a real gut-busting, rip-roaring, good ole mountain campaign. That is, if things develop as I believe they will.

The incumbent is James "Doc" Adams, who, it's projected, will run for reelection. So far, the only officially known challenger for that post is Eddie Billips of Prestonsburg. He appears to be at least a supporter of Greg Stumbo and is making his first try for public office.

However, to make this race truly exciting, we've got to have business-woman Delores Smith toss her hat in the ring. It's expected she will do just that.

Smith has been one vocal person in terms of school issues. I believe she ran unsuccessfully for a school board seat before. If she does enter the race, observers say she and her supporters will go all out to outcampaign and maybe outspend her opposition.

But there's still one big question looming. Delores Smith is building a house within district one boundaries, however, at this printing she does not live there. She lives in the Allen area. I'll have to check with Floyd County Clerk Carla Boyd to see when and how long a person must live in a district before they can file for office. If there's no problem and Smith files, look for some hot times in the county until November.

Every once in awhile, someone comes along who is just a pure pleasure to work with. You know the type — easy going, always with a smile, and always doing a good job without complaint.

Frank Clark fits that mold to me. He began working as a reporter here last fall. Although journalism was not his college major, he dove into it like a duck to water. However, Frank wanted to get into economic development work.

Last month he got his wish, a position in Hazard. Although I was glad for Frank, I was sad for myself and those who worked with him.

Last Saturday, the young Frank Clark and his bride-to-be found out he is suffering from a brain tumor.

After a stay at Good Samaritan in Lexington, Frank was to fly to Harrisburg, Pa., today for surgery later this week. If you have a prayer or good wish, please extend it on his behalf.

The New Middle School: An Example of Non-Participatory Leadership

by Timothy Jessen

When school staffing assignments were listed in last week's paper, it may have seemed like a perfunctory article, to be discarded as quickly as a list of delinquent taxes.

However, one list is of particular note and concern to parents and persons in the Prestonsburg community and area — the listing of the principal and staff for the new middle school being constructed near Lancer. Seldom is there such an opportunity to start new and fresh with a clean slate and a vision unhindered by the past.

But, while the state is mandating site-based management for all its schools in the next few years and Allen and Betsy Layne are already involved in that aspect of educational reform, at the newest school in our county we have a prime example of "business as usual," or more specifically, "politics" as usual.

More than a year ago, the Floyd County Education Forum asked that the hiring of the new school's personnel be open. Why not attract the best leaders from our county and beyond? Why not have a model middle school that can make Floyd County a leader, rather than two steps behind again? Why not advertise for a principal who has had experience elsewhere in the middle school experience, just as Kentucky's new commissioner of education will be hired after a national search?

Instead, the past year has seen the same old story of intrigue, gossip and rumor about those to be placed in the new school. And, at no place in the process, have parents — not to mention the community at large — been involved in the process. Far from participatory leadership, the community's wishes have been shut out from the start.

Fayette County has been working for several years to prepare for transition to an additional high school and moving to the middle school concept. The new high school principal was hired a year ago, and parents have had numerous opportunities to learn about the middle school idea, and how it will affect their children, in everything from academics to transportation.

Have local parents been involved thus far in Floyd County's new experiment? Not one word has been said about what we parents should expect, though the opening is now less than two months away. Except for a few private tours for selected groups, there has been no effort to involve the community and seek its support.

For example, the naming of the school was done without any consultation by the Board of Education. Perhaps the children would like to have been involved — and enabled to select a local heroine like Jenny Wiley for whom to name their school, or some other person of note in Kentucky or local history. It would have been a fine way to create enthusiasm for a new concept.

Similarly, the new school's colors were selected in a method that discouraged genuine participation. The new school should not belong to Prestonsburg — it is a merger of several schools, and it should reflect something new, rather than perpetuate the traditions and symbols of any of the previous schools.

One of the keys to effective schools, according to every authority in the field, is involvement of the community, especially parents. The more people feel they have invested in the operation of a school, the more they will invest themselves in its success — the whole reason for the now-mandated site-based management concept. But parental involvement — from determining what courses might be offered in the new school to having some say in important decision-making — has been all but ignored.

As Carol Stumbo said in her remarks to the Board, "Education is not buildings." A new school will make little difference in what happens in education if the people in it have not changed and if true reform is not welcomed.

It is not enough to be "emotional" about reform in Kentucky and Floyd County — we must do something about it, for actions speak louder than words. Thus far, it appears a golden opportunity has been wasted to involve parents and community in what should be a new horizon of hope for our middle school students.

There is still time for change, but it appears that glasnost (openness) and perestroika (restructuring) are not high priorities here. And until there is a genuine openness to reform, rather than a fear of it, we will continue in the old ways a while longer. Our children shouldn't have to wait for the best, and if we care about them, we will see that they have it. But, the new middle school won't change much, unless we — parents, community, and administration — who have responsibility for education care about making it the best. Thus far it is off to a very rocky start.

We wish the staff the best, and trust they are the best persons available to do the job. But since the process was never opened up, we'll never know what might have been, will we?

HOW DO REAL MEN HAVE FUN?

When I think of all of the stupid and ignorant things that I have done in my life, there are many things to remember.

Most of the truly dumb things were accomplished in my teen years, the reckless high speed driving of my brother's sports cars, the crazy motorcycle riding and all of the other things that people still like to remind me of.

In all that time however, I never, ever, ever, ever jumped over a cliff with ropes tied between my legs and a metal ring attached to my waist.

"Oh, You'll LOVE it!!!!!!!" I was told.

Let me back up and tell you this story.

My friend David was one of the unfortunate few to be wounded during the recent military action in Panama. There are several versions of David's story of the moments before the mortar round struck and sent shrapnel into his leg. My favorite is the one where he had just saved an entire orphanage from being fire-bombed while carrying an invalid blind nun over one shoulder and a kitten on the other, but that is another story.

David called and asked if I would be interested in covering a story about an Army Sargeant who was teaching delayed entry soldiers how to spit shine boots, clean weapons and (here's the dirty part) rappel.

I asked my editor if she was interested in the story and she gave me a green light on the project.

I really don't think that I had planned to participate, but as my luck goes, David had me pretty convinced that it was a real kick to rappel off a mountain. So, I told the sergeant in charge that I would "Go For It!"

We all met at the foot of the "mountain" (which in my opinion was a cliff) and we started to climb. I was given a brief, (30 seconds), but informative lesson on how to get down the face of the cliff.

My options were this simple: conquer a lifelong discomfort with high places and go down this rope, or be killed by the former special forces soldier who was telling me, in no uncertain terms, to "Get Off This Mountain."

So away I go, taking baby steps backwards off a crumbling hilltop approaching a straight drop off of at least 100 feet. I have a man with a crazy look in his eye telling me that if I even think of trying to come back up he's going to get "Real Mad." Truthfully, the fear involved in going down the cliff on a skinny rope wasn't nearly as frightening as finding out what exactly "Real Mad" meant to this guy.

Knees shaking, heart pounding and paranoia mounting, I leaned back into the seat and did my very best to look cool and get off this mountain. One thing I discovered, it is really hard to look cool when you are scared out of your mind. I tried not to look down, I tried to concentrate on pushing away from the hill and sliding down my rope to good old Mother Earth where gravity has it's own special way of telling me, "Stay on the ground, you idiot!"

About 15 feet from the top, however, I glanced down and basically lost any shred of sanity I had left. I didn't freeze on the rope or anything, after all I still had Commander Rambo warning me not to make him "Real Mad." Slowly and without any of the grace and style of a professional, I did make it to the bottom.

Those gathered at the bottom applauded and told me that I did really well, and I grinned and nodded thank you.

I had to leave following my escape, and within moments of getting out of the range of sight of the others who were rappelling, I tossed my cookies.

Yes, I admit it. I was so frightened by the whole thing that I involuntarily threw up. I had no choice in the matter.

There is one aspect of this mini-drama that depicts the cliché of every dark cloud having a silver lining.

After a few hours of thought I realized that I had conquered a major obstacle. I had been able to take a situation and deal with it appropriately and effectively, even though it was a situation that I otherwise would have paid to avoid. For one brief and shining moment, I was being all that I could be.

I do want to thank Staff Sargeant Povolko for the opportunity to participate, and to my new buddy, former Army Sargeant Charles Parsons for yelling loudly and getting me mad (or scared) enough to make it over the edge.

By the way, guys, NEVER ask me if I want to do that again. I'm afraid I might be stupid enough to say yes.

alarm:

(1) We lead the nation in the percentage of our population that smokes.

(2) We are #3 in lung cancer death rate and #6 in deaths from chronic lung disease.

(3) Overall, Kentucky is number one in the nation in smoking-attributable death rate.

The poll also points out that 65 percent of those surveyed said that smoking is limited to designated locations at their place of work. This, too, is encouraging data, and given the proven connection between secondhand smoke and lung cancer, smoking in the workplace will some day be completely restricted.

Toward that day, and to help business and industry adjust to this change, the American Lung Association of Kentucky has a complete program to help establish smoking policies and to implement them, along with smoking cessation classes and other aids. ### Smoking policies needed

Dear Editor,

The recent Bluegrass Poll on smoking shows that in spite of living in the heart of burley country, many Kentuckians (three out of four) agree that nonsmokers are harmed by breathing second-hand smoke. Our residents, as well as folks across America, are becoming enlightened to this poignant fact.

Yet much remains to be done and now is not the time to be smug. The grim statistics ring a note of

He's had it with 122

Dear Editor,

Let me update the readers on Rt. 122. They did it to us again. They came up here, put down some new blacktop in different places and drove away leaving us the same problem we have had for years. It's still a slow trip to Martin. They stopped at Price, I guess we don't need any new blacktop the rest of the way down Rt. 122.

One thing they may have done was made a first. Rt. 122 may be the longest section of highway in the world with a double yellow line. We should have the World Book of Records check it out. When you drive 122, it's like taking a slow boat to China and the yellow lines make you think the road is as long as the Great Wall of China.

I guess we people up here can just forget about a better road. I guess I'll just give up going down Rt. 122 and cross the hill to Rt. 7 and drive over the four-lane at Garrett. Let the 25-mile-an-hour drivers and the coal trucks have Rt. 122. Build the four lanes in Western Kentucky.

Thanks to PFD

Dear Editor,

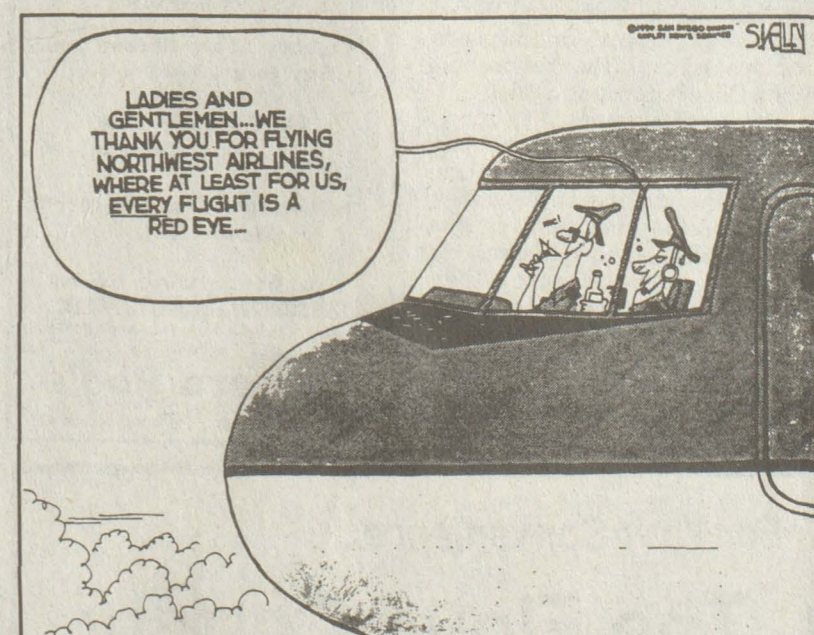

I would like to take this time to thank the Prestonsburg Fire Department and rescue squad for their response and continued effort to search and eventually find my mother. Also, the operator at South Central Bell who received approval from the supervisor to trace the phone call that led the team to find her, thank you.

The doctors told her that if she had not been found when she was, she would have died. I thank God for another chance.

The sirens alarmed the community of Lancer only to realize the closeness we all share. Neighbors were going door to door to help search for this person. We desperately need the 911 system now.

There aren't enough words to express the thanks I want to say to these individuals who helped through this ordeal. We'll never forget you.

Jenny Wiley Saga continues

(Editor's note: A page one story in Friday's edition of The Times was inadvertently cut off in its middle. Following is the completion of the story by Kathleen Carroll.)

This production offers a fresh approach to a cherished regional legend, one certainly worthy of being given another chance. "Even if you have seen this play every time we've ever done it," Vaughan said, "this one you should really come to see because it is quite different. It's an excellent production, I am very pleased with what Jim, Richard and the cast have done."

Ligon expressed satisfaction as well, "Now I think we can have a story that rivets the audience to their seats." Ligon describes the play as being staged in a broad, cinematic scope, "now it's very clean and simple, and that's what makes it very effective."

The play re-examines the relationships between the Indians and the settlers. The script is now more evenly weighted to explain both sides of the story. "In the history of the show," said Ligon, "no one has ever talked about it being controversial. I would like to see it spark debate, get people talking, thinking and emotionally moved." With the additions, the play makes a very contemporary statement, we all share the same place so we need to get along. Ligon added, "It all begins with understanding."

Those concerned about the parking at the theatre should know about the shuttle service between the Lodge and the Theatre. Give yourself a real treat to dinner at the Lodge, take the shuttle directly to the box office and the shuttle will take you back to the Lodge after the show is over.

"Prestonsburg can be proud of the Jenny Wiley Theatre," said Ligon, "It's inexpensive, you have an opportunity to see major musicals, with good strong talent and innovative design and direction. It feels like the beginning of a really good season this summer."

Area Labor Relations Rated

Seventy-two percent of area decision makers feel labor relations are viewed as "poor" by people outside of the region according to a recent survey of business owners, public officials, managers and civic volunteers carried out by the Big Sandy Area Labor-Management Committee (BSALMC). Twenty-five percent of area decision makers thought the area's labor relations were seen as "average", and only three percent thought outside perceptions were "very good." Eighty-six percent of those surveyed believe these negative perceptions keep outside companies from locating in the region.

Asked to list the causes of these negative perceptions, decision makers most often cited the tendency for conflict between labor and management and low levels of education and skills in the workforce.

"The most interesting conclusion we can draw from the survey is that the perceptions local decision makers have are as those they feel non-residents hold," notes Scott Richardson, program director of the BSALMC. "Over 80 percent of the local respondents agreed that labor relations in the region are frictional and sometimes violent, that we have an inadequate infrastructure and that our workforce is less educated than they should be."

Not all perceptions were negative. "Over half thought that area wage rates were competitive with other regions, and nearly all of those surveyed area employees were very productive," Richardson said.

Asked how labor and management could improve the region's chances of development, decision makers most often suggested more communication about each group's situation, needs and concerns. "I think people are beginning to realize that workers and managers share many of the same goals," said Don Combs, co-chair of the committee and assistant manager at Big Sandy RECC. Several of those surveyed suggested that managers and workers jointly approach local problems such as medical costs, workplace safety and product quality.

The survey was mailed to 57 decision makers in Johnson, Floyd, Martin, Pike and Magoffin counties. Thirty-six decision makers responded. Very few surveys mailed to labor union officials were returned. The BSALMC is currently conducting a similar survey of plant managers in the Northeastern and Great Lakes regions.

CAP promotes two to senior directors

MICHAEL SANDERS

The Christian Appalachian Project has promoted two of its directors to the position of senior directors, including a Floyd County man.

Maurice Mercier, formerly director of human development, is now senior director of that department, and Michael Sanders, formerly director of administration of the project's office in Martin, is now senior director.

Mercier will assume additional duties once performed by Ellen Burke, who will be leaving her position to pursue a Master's degree. He will administer 25 programs that affect people from preschool to the elderly in the areas of education, family problems, emergency assistance, training for handicapped adults in living and occupational skills, respite care for severely handicapped family members, and summer programs for children.

These programs are located in Garrard, Lincoln, Madison, Rockcastle, Estill, Pulaski, Casey and McCreary counties.

Sanders will be responsible for about 16 programs in Floyd, Magoffin and Knott counties that affect people from elementary school age to the elderly in the areas of education, family problems, emergency assistance, summer programs for children and community health education.

Mercier has been with CAP since 1971, when he came as a summer volunteer to work in the ecumenical Bible school in Berea. He started and operated the project's Group Home program for juvenile delinquent boys, ages 16 to 18, at Camp Nelson between 1974 and 1983, when he became director of human development.

A native of Iaeger, W. Va., Sanders started as a supervisor under Rev. Ralph Beiting, CAP founder, in 1983. He was promoted to director in 1985.

Proud "parents"

The Rev. Wayne Sparks (left), new pastor of the First United Methodist Church of Prestonsburg, Charlotte McFall and James Carter II, co-chairpersons of the church's adopt-a-road committee, stand under the newly erected sign proclaiming the next 2.5 miles of Watergap road as being under the care of the First United Methodist Church. The group is planning the first official cleanup in mid-July. McFall said she is proud of the project and her church members' commitment to beautifying a portion of the county. She urges other churches to accept the challenge and adopt a highway. ### FOLLOW THESE TIPS FOR SUMMER TOPWATER BASS

Early morning calm. An isolated bush along a shallow shoreline. A floating topwater plug. The heart-stopping strike of an exploding bass.

If you're a bass angler, it's probably easy to envision just such an image. Now that warm weather has arrived, early morning and late afternoon bass fishing with topwater lures becomes a standard technique on many largemouth and smallmouth lakes.

"Topwater fishing is a world of its own," says Stanley Mitchell, a Georgia-based tournament pro and member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff. "It's fun and exciting, and it's effective, too."

"I've caught bass over 10-pounds with topwater lures."

Topwater lures become effective after water temperatures reach about 60 degrees, adds Mitchell. Between 60-70 degrees, anglers may find topwater lures productive all day, but once temperatures climb above 70 degrees, topwater action is generally limited to early and late each day.

"These are the hours when bass are most active," explains the Evinrude Pro. "The exception occurs on slightly windy, overcast days when the fish tend to remain a little more active."

Because topwater lures come in a wide variety of styles and actions, retrieve speeds can be critical to success. Mitchell advises anglers to experiment with different retrieves until bass start hitting.

"Let the fish tell you how they want the lure," he says. "Normally, active fish strike when you move the lure fast, but as the bass become less and less active, the more you have to slow your retrieve."

A stop-and-go retrieve is often effective when bass follow a lure but don't take it, notes Mitchell. Many strikes actually come when the lure is stopped.

A stop-and-go retrieve often works well with a topwater lure we call a 'slush bait,' he explains. "These are floating lures that have propellers. They make a lot of noise and commotion when you move them, but you have to stop them periodically to really make them work."

"Move the lure fast for several feet, then stop it for two or three seconds, then move it again. Be ready for a strike anytime, but especially when the lure is stopped."

The Evinrude pro also advises to concentrate on fishing shallow water and casting close to cover, such as bushes, grasslines, or piers. Occasionally in deep, clear water, bass can be tempted to strike a topwater lure, but such activity is usually sporadic.

"The size of the lure you use is also important," adds Mitchell. "If you're fishing water that definitely has big fish, then use a larger lure, but if you're on a lake that generally produces small bass, then use a small lure."

"Topwater lures will catch big bass. I've caught several fish weighing 10 pounds with topwater lures, and it's a thrill."

FISHIN' TIPS FROM THE TRACKER® PROS

Stanley Mitchell

Filet knives—every serious fisherman owns one, or two, or ten.

They come in assorted sizes, lengths and degrees of quality. The secret of a good filet knife is how sharp it is kept.

Any good, sharp filet knife will work when there are a few fish to clean. But what about those rare days when a lot of fish are there for cleaning?

The best solution to this problem is an electric filet knife. It's easier to operate than a conventional knife, and does the job in half the time, and when mastered, actually does a better job than a manual filet knife.

Several electric knives are designed especially for filleting fish. They can be purchased for under $25.00 and make excellent gifts for that favorite fisherman. Remember to keep only those fish you intend to eat.

Fishin' Tips are presented by America's #1 fishin' boat.

Garrett scores 4 in 5th over Martin

Robbie Sexton scattered five hits and struck out 11 batters to lead the Garrett Braves to a 12-9 win over the Martin Expos in Babe Ruth action at Allen Park over the weekend.

The Braves scored four runs in the bottom of the fifth inning to break a 5-5 tie enroute to their victory. Arnold Prater got things going for the Braves when he drew a one out walk off Glenn Floyd, who came on in relief of Kenny Scarberry in the third inning. Scarberry had replaced starter Hubert Likens in the same inning.

After Prater reached, Hall was safe on an error. Robbie Sexton grounded out to first, moving both runners up. Frank Martin then laced a base hit to center field scoring Prater for a 6-5 lead. Martin came home on a wild pitch by Floyd.

Chris Mullins walked to load the bases and a run was forced home on a walk to Nathan Moore. Mullins scored on another wild pitch from Floyd. Steve Turner struck out to end the inning.

Garrett took a 1-0 lead in the bottom of the first when, with one gone, Jeremy Hall singled and scored on a single by Chris Mullins. Martin also had a hit in the inning.

Martin put two men on with one out in the top of the third when Kelly Stephens drew a lead off walk. Kevin Stumbo struck out and Chris Robinson singled. Sexton then struck out Floyd and got Scarberry on a pop to second.

Garrett added to the lead by scoring four times in the bottom of the third. The Braves loaded the bases on two walks and a single when Scarberry came on to pitch. Chris Mullins greeted Scarberry with a base hit up the middle, driving in two more runs. Moore's single loaded the bases again and Mullins came in to score on a wild pitch.

Errors were costly to the Braves in the top of the fourth when Chris Lafferty reached when the second baseman for Garrett booted a grounder. Jeff Kilburn lifted a pop up to second base that was dropped for another error. Both runners pulled off a double steal, and Lafferty scored on a passed ball. One out later, Kilburn crossed home plate on a wild pitch.

The Expos tied the game with three runs in the fifth inning. Toby Robinson led off the inning with a base hit. With two outs, Lafferty walked and Kilburn's base hit loaded the bases. Likens drew the two out walk, scoring Robinson, and McKinney's base hit scored Lafferty and Kilburn.

Martin made a run at the Braves in the top of the seventh inning. Lafferty was issued a one out walk, and Kilburn walked on four pitches from Sexton. Likens then roped a base hit to right to score Lafferty and Kilburn. McKinney was issued the third walk in the inning, and Stevens reached on an error when the first baseman failed to hold on to a throw. Stevens eventually scored on a wild pitch. Sexton fanned Robinson to end the threat and preserve the victory.

Likens suffered the loss for the Expos in going the first two innings and Sexton got the win. Garrett collected 12 hits in the game while the Expos were held to five. Martin stranded six runners and Garrett left 10 on. Martin committed three errors while Garrett was guilty of four miscues.

shortstop elected to go home with the ball to nail Allen at the plate. Combs and Robinson came around to score on a base hit by Scott.

Maytown scored a single run in the fourth to make it 19-3. Chris Halbert singled, opening the inning. After Jason Moore struck out, Shane Stumbo reached on an error on the pitcher, and Halbert was thrown out trying to go to third base. Shawn Robinson was hit by the pitch to load the bases and Keith Frazier walked, forcing in Stumbo.

Wayland scored its final run in the fourth inning. Brad Scott led off with a triple and was thrown out at the plate from center field when Lyons walked and the shortstop mishandled a throw to second base. Scott tried to score and was thrown out. Lyons came around to score on an error at third base.

Chris Martin doubled for Maytown in the fifth inning leading off. Halbert followed with an RBI single and scored on a base hit by Stumbo.

DIBBLE NOT SO FLEET FOOTED

Were you listening to the Reds-Atlanta game Thursday night when Rob Dibble did not run out a ground ball to Jeff Treadway at second base? After grounding to Treadway, half way to first base Dibble just stopped and went to the Reds dugout. The crowd of 23,000 gave Dibble a "what-for".

When a player of Dibble's talent is being paid what he refuses to hustle out a ground ball, whether he is a pitcher or not, he owes it to the fans to give it all he has. One of the reasons the Reds had not been winning to that point was no hustle.

Dibble has been in trouble a lot with the Reds' office and league office off and on in his career. He seems to think the rules don't apply to him. The incident got Russ Nixon, Braves manager, all bent out of shape. Nixon said that "baseball can go on without Dibble." I agree.

Newcomer Glenn Braggs has made an impression on Reds personnel. Braggs will be platooning with Paul O'Neil in right field. O'Neil will go against the right-hand pitchers, Braggs against the lefthanders. Whereas, Eric Davis gets to bat against both with his .175 batting average. All O'Neil did against Houston on Friday night was a four for four night with a team-leading 35 RBIs. Davis: K, pop up, walk, 6-3. One of O'Neil's hits: a double with a man on — off a lefthander.

Seems today you start them, not on what they are batting or how they are performing on the field, but by the amount of money they draw.

Hummingbirds, the smallest birds in the world, are native only to the Western Hemisphere.

Davis will be the number four hitter for the Reds as long as he is around and it does not matter what he is batting. If rumors have any truth to them (and most don't) the struggling Davis may not be around too long.

If O'Neil seems confused, what about the rest of the fans!

Congratulations to the Osborne Gas and Oil Cubs on winning the championship of the Prestonsburg Little League with a win over the Yankees. The Cubs finished the season with an outstanding 13-1 record, losing only to the Indians. It was a great team effort.
****

Tucker Howard, Paintsville's outstanding baseball player, was runner-up in the voting for the "Mr. Baseball" title to Pulaski County's Darren Burton. It was an honor, I'm sure, for Howard to finish second. However, he has had a solid season all year for the state champion Paintsville Tigers. And I am sure, as all fans are, without Howard it would have been a difficult feat to accomplish for Paintsville. While Burton had the numbers and comes from the larger school, Howard still deserved the title simply because he played for the state champions. In the hearts of Tiger fans, he is Mr. Baseball. Great year, Tuck!

Was it necessary for eight people to die because of the way a bunch of unruly, unconcerned Detroit Pistons fans celebrated the winning of the NBA World Championship? What in the world is there to celebrate by firing shots that took the life of a 19-year old boy. Others were killed because of auto accidents during celebrations in the streets. The same thing happened when the Tigers won the World Series and one died. Is a World's Championship worth the lives of individuals?

Kentucky All 'A' Classic to include girls basketball

Lexington Mayor Scotty Baesler and All "A" Classic officials announced plans for the second annual Kentucky All "A" Classic high school basketball tournament which has been expanded to include a girls' tournament.

Details of the tournament were announced recently at a news conference at the Lexington-Fayette Government Center.

Like this year the boys' teams will play regional tournaments with each of the 16 regional winners coming to Lexington Feb. 6-9 for the state finals at Memorial Coliseum at the University of Kentucky. "The girls' teams will hold regional tournaments one week prior to the boys regional with the winners from each regional advancing to four sectional tournaments held on the Saturday of the week of the boys' regional tournaments," Baesler said.

The girls' teams that win the four sectional tournaments will come to Lexington to compete on Friday, Feb. 8, at Memorial Coliseum in statewide semifinals with the championship game on Saturday evening, Baesler added.

Class A schools eligible for the tournament are ones that have enrollments of 424 or less in grades 10-12. There are about 139 Class A schools that are members of the Kentucky High School Athletic Association.

There will be 119 boys' teams and 113 girls' teams competing in the All "A" Classic, according to Tournament Director Stan Steidel.

Three boys teams — Paducah Christian, Spencer County and Lexington Christian — which did not participate this year will compete next year, Steidel explained. Six schools that played in the 1990 tourney will not return because of school district consolidation, he added.

With the addition of the girls tournament there will be nine sessions instead of eight in the finals at Lexington. There will be an afternoon and evening session on Wednesday and Thursday.

On Friday there will be a morning, afternoon and evening sessions and on Saturday there will be a morning and evening session.

All Academic and All-Tournament teams will be named for both the girls and boys tournament.

The net revenue from the tournament will be used to establish a grant foundation for academic pursuits for Class "A" schools in cooperation with the Sweet 16 Academic Showcase.

"We are so pleased to be able to again host this tournament in Lexington," said Baesler. "This tournament really gives the small Kentucky high schools and their basketball teams a chance to shine. We are expecting this tournament to be even better next year and Lexington will roll out the red carpet to make all the participants and fans feel at home and enjoy their visits here."

This year's tournament—the first — was a tremendous success with more than 33,300 fans turning out for the finals in Lexington.

"Coming away from the 1990 tournament that was so successful, you worry a little about improving on it," says Steidel. "Now we are becoming excited about 1991 and we will be able to make it better. The addition of the girls' teams was part of the tournament's original goals. To be able to attain that will make it exciting for all members of the All "A" committee.

Steidel says he also expects attendance to grow.

"I look for the whole tournament to grow in every aspect and I feel that the addition of the girls' teams is very positive and will add to that growth."

The idea for the statewide tournament for smaller schools developed from an All "A" Classic basketball tournament held in Northern Kentucky for about 10 years. The program was such a hit the coaches and school officials who organized the tournament decided it should be expanded to the entire state.

The tournament organizing agency is the Kentucky All "A" Classic Basketball Tournament Inc. The tournament is hosted by the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government. Funding for the event comes from corporate sponsors, donations and ticket sales.

University Heights Academy of Hopkinsville, Region II winners, won the first All "A" Classic beating Owsley County, 75-59.

Region 15 representative for the Class "A" tournament is Ken Trivette of Pikeville High School. Alternative representative is McDowell's Johnny Ray Turner. Girls Section 13-16 representative is Homer Brown of Jenkins High School.

Pikeville will be the site of the 15th Region tournament for the boys. As of yet a site has not been announced for the girls.

Participating in the boys and girls 15th Regional tournament will be Elkhorn City, Feds Creek, Johns Creek, McDowell, Millard, Mullins, Paintsville, Phelps, Pikeville and Wheelwright.

The state finals will be held at Memorial Coliseum on the campus of the University of Kentucky on Feb. 6-9.

The Floyd County Times will keep fans posted on all developments of the Kentucky Class "A" Tournaments.

'Slams' take Martin Braves over Astros

The Martin Braves improved their record to 14-1 with a 41-4 win over a young Minnie Astros team last week in Little League play at Minnie.

The Braves had three grand slam home runs by Brandon Moore, J.P. Skeens and Allen Coleman. Moore had a four-for-four night at the plate and scored five times in picking up eight RBIs.

Moore also drove in three runs with a third inning double that cleared the bases. Skeens tripled in the third inning, scoring a run for the Braves. Charles Twiss had a first inning home run and had six RBIs for the game.

Thomas Jenkins, 3-1, picked up the win for the Braves and went three-for-three from the plate. Jenkins helped his own cause by driving in three runs. Jacob Skeans had two hits, collected four RBIs and scored three runs.

Brandon Kinzer had a second inning run-producing triple for the victorious Braves. David Twiss hit a triple in the third, scoring a Braves run. Jason Bevins doubled in the second and picked up one of his three RBIs.

For the Astros, Josh Hall and Billy Hall each tripled for the Astros. Shane Hall took the loss for Minnie.

Job Corps falls to G'ville on the road

The Carl D. Perkins Job Corps center took to the road this past weekend facing the Greenville Satellite Center at Greenville. The Perkins Center was coming off a sweep of two consecutive doubleheaders the past two weekends.

The Perkins Center fell to the host team, 5-2, as errors opened the door for Greenville to score five runs.

The Prestonsburg center failed to score in the first four innings, falling behind 1-0 when Greenville plated a run in the second frame.

Greenville scored on a base hit by Kneapp, a two base error by Gibbs and a long fly ball off the bat of Phillips.

With two out in the home half of the third inning, Greenville pushed across three more runs to take a 4-0 lead. After the Perkins miscue, three straight hits by Rex, Reeves and Kneapp scored the three unearned runs.

Neither team was able to score in the fourth inning.

In the Perkins Center's half of the fifth inning, Xavier Slone led off with a triple and scored when Greenville's shortstop booted a ground ball.

Greenville added another run in the bottom of the fifth on a double by Lee who scored on two long fly balls. Lee tagged and went to third on the first fly out and scored on a sacrifice fly in the inning.

Perkins scored its second run of the game in the top of the sixth when, with one out, Steve Earls doubled. After Ashmeade grounded out, Bill Lee singled home Earls with the game's final run. Earl had two hits in the game, both being doubles.

This Saturday the Whitney Young Center will visit the Carl D. Perkins Center at 1 p.m.

Rangers shut out Indians, 12-0

The Prestonsburg Rangers, playing great baseball, defeated a good Prestonsburg Indians team, 12-0, in the Prestonsburg Little League at Archer Park Tuesday night.

Ricky Lemaster homered and tripled for the Rangers in the abbreviated game. Because of the "mercy rule" the game was called after four innings. Lemaster was perfect at the plate with three hits in three turns at the bat. Timmy Nunemaker also had a three-for-three outing, including a double.

Lemaster was the winning pitcher and Bennett Allen suffered his second loss of the year. Lemaster fanned five batters while Allen struck out six.

Jason Hackworth had two triples in the contest in picking up two hits and two RBIs.

Lemaster had two runs batted in. William Marsillett had a triple with two hits. Both Hackworth and Lemaster's RBIs came in the fourth inning when the Rangers scored seven runs.

For the Indians, Jason Blackburn had a triple. The loss dropped the Indians to 5-6 on the season and the Rangers improved to 12-2.

One of the stronger areas of the Prestonsburg Little League is the pitching. Pitchers like Allen and Lemaster, along with the Osborne boys for the Cubs, gives the league a good balance of pitchers. When All-Star time comes there will be no shortage of outstanding pitchers.

ANGLERS CITED AT TAYLORSVILLE

Taylorville anglers who add what they think are white bass to their stringers had better take another look. THERE ARE NO WHITE BASS IN TAYLORSVILLE LAKE.

There is a 15-inch minimum size limit on hybrid striped bass, but no size limit on white bass. Confusion when identifying the two species is resulting in citations for several Taylorville anglers who are keeping less than legal size hybrid stripers.

Although hybrid stripers and white bass resemble each other when small, anglers should have no problem telling the difference at Taylorville. Why? THERE ARE NO WHITE BASS IN THIS LAKE, only hybrids. So, if you catch a fish from Taylorville that looks like a white bass and it's less than 15 inches long, you'd better practice catch and release real quick.

TURKEY HUNTERS SET NEW HARVEST RECORDS

Kentucky turkey hunters got 1332 gobblers during the 1990 spring season, topping last year's record harvest by 35 percent.

Top harvest counties for the 1990 spring turkey season were: Christian, with 103 gobblers taken; Harlan and Letcher, 85 each; Nelson, 83; Bell and Muhlenberg, 64 each; Hopkins, 58; Ballard, 48; Caldwell, 44; and Larue, 35.

For the second year in a row in some counties, hunters had the opportunity to take two toms, and more than a hundred turkey hunters successfully bagged their season limit.

According to George Wright, turkey program coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, 20 percent of 6000 turkey hunters took one or more birds during the spring season.

"That's a respectable hunter success rate for this challenging sport," Wright said. "Back in 1976, before Kentucky's turkey restoration program began," the biologist recalled, "hunters harvested 24 wild birds and only two percent of hunters were successful."

"PLANTING" TURKEYS PAYS OFF

Kentucky's record breaking spring turkey harvest underscores the fact that turkey stocking is paying off.

Last year, 634 wild turkeys were released on 29 Kentucky sites able to support the birds.

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has been releasing/relocating wild turkeys in the state annually since 1978, bringing the resident wild bird population from 2,000 to a conservative estimate of 22,500 birds.

Additional areas will be opened to turkey hunting over the next couple of years, according to biologist George Wright. If Kentucky's wild bird population continues to prosper, the biologist believes a statewide spring turkey hunting season may be in place by the mid-1990s.

REPORT A TURKEY POACHER: CALL 1-800-252-ALERT

Poaching continues to be the main threat to Kentucky's wild turkey population.

The illegal taking of just one turkey, especially a hen, can drastically lower a flock's reproduction rate.

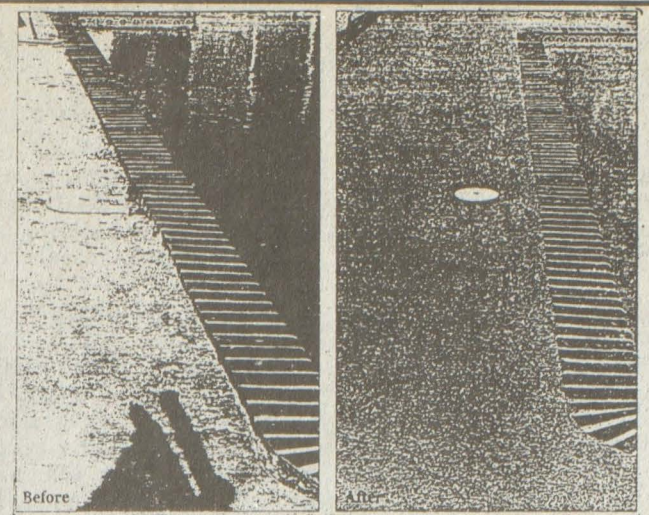

Turkey poachers soon discover there are some pretty stiff fines and other penalties for illegally harvesting a wild turkey in Kentucky. Courts have levied $1,000 fines, suspended hunting licenses and ordered violators to pay the replacement cost for each turkey illegally taken.

Sportsmen, conservation groups and concerned citizens are very important when it comes to helping protect Kentucky's wildlife. You can help by reporting game law violations directly to the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Simply pick up a phone and dial 1-800-252-5378 (Report-a-Poacher 1-800-252-ALERT). This toll free number is open 24-hours a day for reporting game law violations only.

Additionally, the National Wild Turkey Federation (which has five chapters in Kentucky), along with local hunting clubs, offers up to $500 rewards for information leading to the arrest and conviction of turkey poachers in Kentucky.

Pikeville's Howard says goodbye to coaching

Citing other pressing administrative duties, Pikeville High School's head football coach, Hillard Howard, says that he will be stepping down at the school to concentrate more on his duties as vice principal.

Howard has been head football coach at Pikeville for the past 18 years. He has won an unmatched three straight Class A State Championships. His team had won 33 straight games until the past season when coach Phillip Haywood's Belfry Pirates defeated Pikeville, 33-24, at Belfry. Pikeville won the state title this past fall with a 20-7 beating of Trigg County. The school finished the season with a sparkling 14-1 record.

According to reports, Howard submitted his resignation Monday night to the Pikeville Independent Board of Education.

Before becoming head coach at Pikeville, Howard served as an assistant coach to Ed VanHoose, who is now head coach at Boyd County High School. Howard's teams have captured 11 regional titles, three state championships and were state runners-up twice.

Moore, Bryant team up for no-hitter

Chris Moore and Patrick Bryant got together and hurled a no-hitter as the Drift Giants defeated the East McDowell A's 17-1 in Beaver Creek Little League action over the weekend.

Moore was playing his first game since returning from an accident that caused him to miss the team's two previous games. Moore ran his personal season record to 5-0 with the win. Moore hurled the first three innings, pitching no-hit baseball. Bryant came on in the fourth and also pitched three innings of no-hit ball. Moore had five strikeouts and Patrick recorded seven.

The Giants scored 10 runs in the third inning to take a 13-1 lead. In the inning Justin Hopkins led off with a double and scored on a three-run triple by Matt Marcum. Jamie Bowling, who had two hits in the game, drove in two runs with a single in the inning. Eric Cook had an RBI single also.

Cook was perfect in the game with a three-for-three outing. Steve Hamilton had two hits, including a double.

D. Sizemore suffered the loss and recorded three strikeouts. The A's scored their lone run in the third on four walks.

The win improved the Giants record to 9-4 on the season.

State parks join golf fundraiser

Kentucky State Parks have once again chosen to be a part of the best golf package in the state—the American Lung Association 1990 Golf Tour Card. This year seven state park golf courses are participating in the program.

"The Tourism Cabinet is proud to participate in worthy programs like this one," said Tourism Secretary Mary Ray Oaken.

"Proceeds from the card go to the Kentucky chapter of the American Lung Association and support professional medical education research, school health programs, support groups for people with lung disease, self-help programs for children with asthma and environmental and occupational health programs. Card holders can really feel good about having fun!" Oaken added.

The purchase of the green card offers a golfer the chance to play 18 holes at any or all of the participating courses in Kentucky.

"With 54 participating golf courses, a fee of $25 represents the best golfing buy in Kentucky," stated Buddy Demling, the project's honorary chairman. "I know of no other golfing program that equals this as far as a bargain goes."

According to Demling the Kentucky Golf Tour Card, now in its seventh year, is a major fundraiser for the American Lung Association. Last year nearly $34,000 was raised to fight lung diseases in Kentucky.

Golf Tour Cards may be purchased by calling the American Lung Association of Kentucky at 502-363-2652 (Louisville) or 233-3401 (Lexington). Golfers can order a card by mail by sending a check for $25 made payable to the American Lung Association of Kentucky, PO Box 969, Louisville 40201.

Change made in deer season muzzle loaders

Proposed season dates for the October segment of the 1990 muzzle-loading deer season in Kentucky have been changed from Oct. 6-7 to Oct. 20-21.

The new dates were set by the Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission following a public hearing on the matter May 25.

In addition to moving the first, two-day segment of the muzzle-loading season to Oct. 20-21, the commission has approved one other change for the upcoming deer season.

The minimum size muzzle-loading handgun that can be used for deer hunting will be .44 caliber. An earlier recommendation had been that the minimum caliber legal for deer would be .45, with the exception of the .44 Colt Dragoon and .44 Colt Walker. The change to .44 caliber or larger simplified the requirement.

Size limits of hybrids at Taylorsville told

Kentucky State Conservation Officers are again reporting a number of citations being issued at Taylorsville Lake for undersized hybrid striped bass.

Last fall, the same situation occurred following the first release of hybrids by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources in Taylorsville. To protect the hybrid population, a 15-inch minimum size limit is in effect for this species.

Most of the citations issued have occurred from anglers mistaking hybrids for white bass. White bass do not have a minimum size limit. However, the fish and wildlife department cautions anglers that unlike most waters, there are no white bass present in Taylorsville.

Hybrid striped bass and white bass look very much alike at smaller sizes, but hybrids can grow to more than 15 pounds.

Anglers who catch fish resembling white bass that are less than 15 inches long from Taylorsville should immediately return these fish to the water. Taylorsville's hybrids are expected to reach keeper size later this fall.

Hunter ed. required; dove season OK'ed

Mandatory hunter education and the 1990 dove season were approved by the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission during its June 11 meeting.

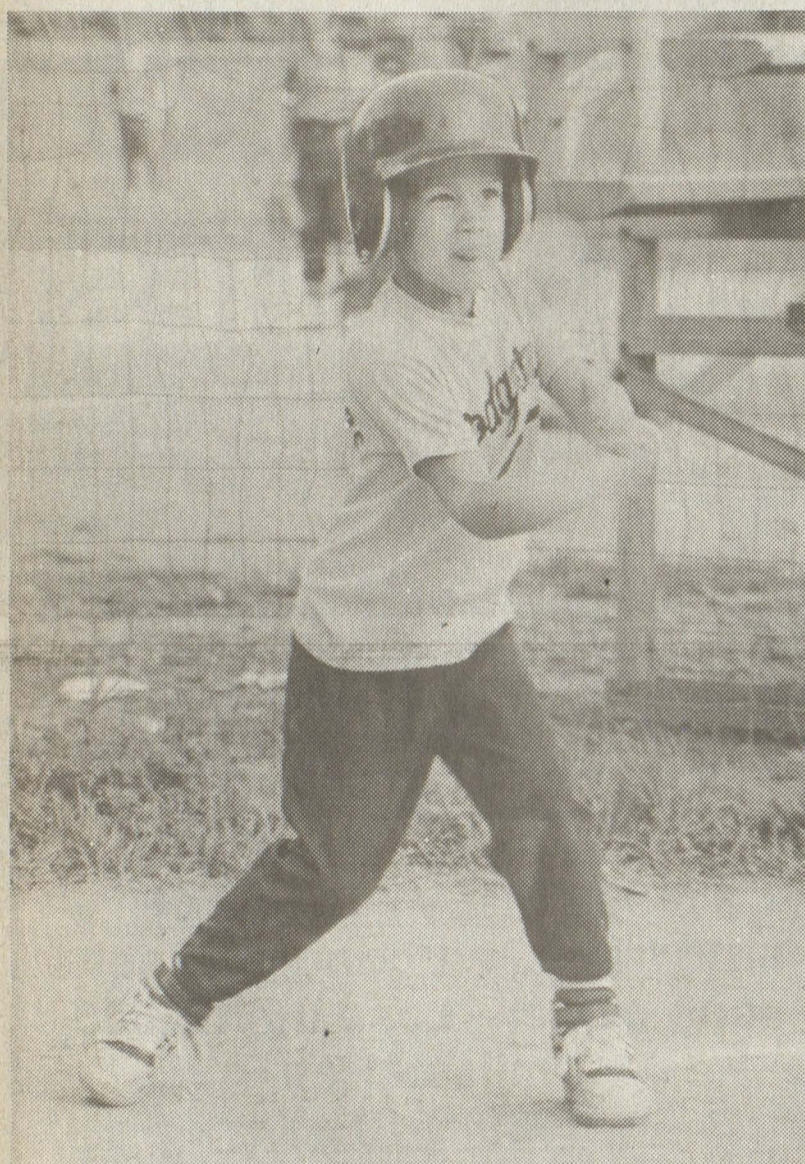

The hunter education regulation requires all persons born after Jan. 1, 1975, to carry a valid hunter education card, in addition to the appropriate hunting license while hunting in Kentucky.

Bowhunters may carry either an International Bowhunter Education Program (IBEP) card or a regular hunter education card. Children under age 10 may hunt without a hunter education card, provided they are accompanied by an adult. Hunter education is not required for persons who are license exempt. This regulation becomes effective March 1, 1991.

Pending Federal approval, the 1990 dove season will be Sept. 1-30, Oct. 6-29 and Dec. 1-6. The season for woodcock and snipe will be Oct. 1 through Dec. 4. Shooting hours and bag limits for these species remain the same as last season.

In other action, the commission approved the use of raccoon squealers during sanctioned field trials.

— approved effective March 1, 1991, prohibition of all commercial fishing below high lift dams on the Ohio River. Slatbaskets will be the only type commercial gear permitted in these tailwater areas.

The Tigers scored their run in the second inning. The Pirates added another in the third.

'Come here, ball!'

This Expos outfielder seemed to have a problem in picking up the baseball at the Allen Park Saturday. The sun was out and the weather hot, but that did not stop the Martin Expos and Garrett Braves from playing baseball. The Braves won the game 12-9. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

Still Traveling With The Times.

Prizes will Be Awarded!

The rules are simple: Take a snapshot of you prominently displaying The Floyd County Times at one of those exotic sights you visit (somewhere outside Floyd County). Send or bring the picture to the Floyd County Times office, 27 Central Ave., Prestonsburg 41653. Include an explanation of when and where the photo was taken and any other interesting information you'd like to share. We'll publish the photos we receive in upcoming issues of The Times.

Prizes will be awarded to the most unusual and/or interesting entries. Grand prize will be a solid marble Monument world time clock. The clock lets you tell time anywhere in the world. Five other prizes will also be awarded.

So go ahead and send in your entries!

The Travel with The Times contest will continue through this year, with the deadline of Dec. 31, 1990. Photos become the property of The Times, and the judges' decision is final.
