Happy Birthday, USA

by Pam Shingler
Editor

The Fourth of July is a time for family get togethers, fireworks, carnival rides, music — general celebration. Across the country today, people much like us in spirit and dreams will enjoy the holiday that breaks up the summer.

As with most other holidays, we tend to lose ourselves in the sparklers, the fellowship, the revelry, and there's nothing wrong with that. July 4 is cause for celebration.

What we must not forget, however, is what we are celebrating: the birth of a nation.

On this date in 1776, a bunch of people declared their independence. Most of us would likely have called them radicals if we'd been there. For several years, they'd been raising a fuss, burning British symbols, leading protests, writing scalding tracts condemning their king and their motherland.

Put simply, they didn't approve of the actions and control of the British government — of which they were a part. They were, for the most part, an educated, intellectual lot.

They were also, to some extent, a mix of people, with a variety of ancestral backgrounds, albeit mostly western European. Their forebears had come from not only England, but also from Scotland, Ireland, Germany, Holland and France (much as ours).

Most of them or their ancestors had not come to these shores as landed gentry. Most were here because they had dreams of becoming well off, or because they were escaping persecution of some kind, or because they were sent here either for being poor or otherwise unsavory in their native lands.

Let's make no bones about it. They were not the creme de la creme of European society by any stretch of the imagination. No matter how much we try to glamorize our family trees, these United States of America were given birth by a band of rebels, radicals, rabble-rousers.

But just look what they made. They gave rise through one document, the Declaration of Independence, to a war of revolu-

The Declaration of Independence

When in the Course of human events, it becomes necessary for one people to dissolve the political bands which have connected them with another, and to assume among the Powers of the earth, the separate and equal station to which the Laws of Nature and of Nature's God entitle them, a decent respect to the opinions of mankind requires that they should declare the causes which impel them to the separation.

We hold these truths to be self-evident, that all men are created equal, that they are endowed by their Creator with certain unalienable Rights, that among these are Life, Liberty and the pursuit of Happiness. That to secure these rights, Governments are instituted among Men, deriving their just powers from the consent of the governed, That whenever any Form of Government becomes destructive of these ends, it is the Right of the people to alter or to abolish it, and to institute new Government, laying its foundation on such principles and organizing its powers in such form, as to them shall seem most likely to effect their Safety and Happiness. Prudence, indeed, will dictate that Governments long established should not be changed for light and transient causes; and accordingly all experience hath shown, that mankind are more disposed to suffer, while evils are suf-ferable, than to right themselves by abolishing the forms to which they are accustomed. But when a long train of abuses and usurpations, pursuing invariably the same Object evinces a design to reduce them under absolute Despotism, it is their right, it is their duty, to throw off such Government, and to provide new Guards for their future security...

We, therefore, the Representatives of the United States of America, in General Congress, Assembled, appealing to the Supreme Judge of the world for the rectitude of our intentions, do, in the Name, and by Authority of the good People of these Colonies, solemnly publish and declare, That these United Colonies are, and of Right ought to be Free and Independent States; that they are Absolved from all Allegiance to the British Crown, and that all political connection between them and the State of Great Britain, is and ought to be totally dissolved; and that as Free and Independent States, they have full Power to levy War, conclude Peace, contract Alliances, establish Commerce, and to do all other Acts and Things which Independent States may of right do. And for the support of this Declaration, with a firm reliance on the protection of divine Providence, we mutually pledge to each other our Lives, our Fortunes and our sacred Honor.

A bad day to be a fireman

Two gas lines broken, two trucks collide

Members of the Prestonsburg Fire Department had a busy day Monday when two gas lines were ruptured in less than 10 minutes, followed by a two-vehicle accident on US 23.

Residents of the Green Acres apartment complex had to be evacuated when a tractor mowing a field at Prestonsburg Community College accidentally struck a valve on a one-inch gas line. The line was shut down and repaired before residents of the complex were allowed to return to their homes.

Only six minutes after the call near Green Acres, fire and rescue workers were called to 38 Hillside Dr. in Lancer, where a car had reportedly run over a gas meter and ruptured a two-and-one-half inch gas line. Workers evacuated the immediate area until a worker from Columbia Gas could repair the line and replace the meter.

Shortly before midnight Monday, workers received a call that a tanker truck had been involved in an accident on US 23.

Upon arrival at the scene, workers discovered that the truck was a large tool truck instead of the tanker that was originally reported.

The truck's driver, Victor Boyd, told rescue workers that he had fallen asleep while driving and that he struck a pickup truck parked by the road, before he crashed into a guard-rail. Neither Boyd nor the two men sitting in the truck were seriously injured in the accident; however, considerable damage was done to the parked vehicle and to the tool truck.

Fire and rescue workers remained on the scene until the large truck was cleared because of fears that gasoline in the truck's portable generator and oxyacetylene tanks on a welder unit might catch fire and explode.

Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said that the department was assisting the Auxier Volunteer Fire Department on the accident and that the scene was cleared shortly after 2 a.m. Tuesday.

Club owner counters petition bearers

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer
The owner of the Hi Hat Entertainment Center responded this week to allegations by Hi Hat residents that the bar was the key factor to the upcoming wet/dry election in the Clear Creek precinct.

"Since I have run that bar, I have always closed down for three days whenever there has been a funeral," said Arlene Hall. "I lost a lot of money by doing that, but I did it out of respect for the people of the area."

Hall said that she is upset that some of the people who signed the petition for the wet/dry vote are the same people who often frequent the entertainment center. "A lot of those who signed have drank many a beer in that bar," she said.

The Hi Hat Entertainment Center has been closed since June 30, said Hall, who explained that the alcoholic beverage license expired on that day. "I really don't even know why they are having an election. There is only one carryout store left in the precinct and that is up in Ligon."

Hall said that she does not expect to reopen the bar in the near future because "I'm just tired of the business."

Accusations of trouble at the center were refuted by Hall, who said that while the bar has had some bad moments, "I've never had half the trouble up here that I've had with other bars."

A source in the Floyd County Sheriff's department confirmed that the bar had not been a source of trouble and deemed the nightspot as "kind of quiet."

Floyd County Clerk Carla Boyd confirmed that the election date was set after the petition for the vote was received by her office.

"I'm not against a wet/dry election," said Hall. "I just don't want to be called the reason for the election. I've lost a lot of money running my bar straight, but I did run it straight."

The special election in the Clear Creek precinct will be Aug. 4.

Getting ready

Adopt-a-Highway

Man wounded in shooting at Eastern

An argument between two Langley residents resulted in a shooting early Tuesday morning at Eastern.

Michael Keenes, 20, of Langley is reported in fair condition at the University of Kentucky Medical Center following the shooting. He was reportedly taken to Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin immediately after the incident and then transported to Lexington.

Keenes was shot once in the left arm and chest after he reportedly got into an argument with William Hensley, 18, of Langley shortly after 1:30 a.m. Tuesday.

Hensley allegedly used a shotgun of undetermined caliber in the assault, according to Kentucky State Police in Pikeville.

Hensley was lodged in the Floyd County Detention Center, where he is charged with first degree assault.

Juvenile returned after escape

A juvenile who escaped from custody in Floyd County was returned to the Floyd County juvenile Detention Center Monday after he was arrested in Grayson.

The 17-year-old reportedly escaped from authorities on June 19, after or during a private consultation with his attorney. The youth had been scheduled for a court hearing on the day of his escape.

The juvenile was recaptured in Grayson by Kentucky State Police from the Ashland post, on June 29. He was subsequently returned to Floyd County where he will reportedly be charged for the escape.

Members of the Floyd County Sheriff's department would not comment on the juvenile's method of escape or say if others may have been involved.

Regional Roundup

Court says Pike man stands acquitted

FRANKFORT — A Pike County man, acquitted of federal charges of murder in the death of a non-union coal truck driver in 1985, cannot be tried again by the state, the Kentucky Supreme Court ruled last week. Paul Smith of Sidney was accused of firing the fatal sniper bullet that killed Hayes West during a violent strike four years ago. Smith was acquitted in federal court in 1988, but the state filed charges of murder a month after the US District Court action. (The Courier-Journal)

Pike man shoots wife, two others

PIKEVILLE — A gunfight in the parking lot of Pikeville Elementary School in which two men were wounded apparently preceded a Pikeville man's paralyzing shooting of his wife at the Pikeville Dairy Cheer Friday night. Johnny Lee Rose, 21, is accusing of shooting Frank Coleman Jr. and Randolph Coleman during an argument at the parking lot. Rose allegedly then went to the restaurant where his 17-year-old wife Elizabeth Rose was working. The couple are said to have argued and the young man reportedly shot his wife in the neck with an automatic pistol. He then waited for police to arrive. (Appalachian News-Express)

Courthouse dedicated

PIKEVILLE — The dedication of the $7.4 million Pike County Hall of Justice took place last week. The four-story building houses the county jail, district and circuit courtrooms and other government offices. The new jail has 143 beds with divisions for maximum, medium and minimum security prisoners, as well as accommodations for women and juveniles. (Appalachian News-Express)

Region high in student loan defaults

ASHLAND — Latest figures from the US Department of Education reveal that former college and vocational school students in northeastern Kentucky are behind by more than a half million dollars in student loan payments. Former Morehead State University students are in default of $192,249, and former students at Mayo State Vocational Technical students have past due bills totaling $113,007. The federal government is expected to make the schools take special precautions to ensure students will pay back money they borrow. (The Ashland Daily Independent)

Former Magoffin official charged with murder

SALYERSVILLE — While Pikeville singer Marlow Tackett was performing at a Fourth of July celebration Sunday in Salyersville, a man in the crowd was being shot. Former Magoffin County property valuation administrator Howard Harlo Back was charged by police with the shooting death of Giffard Taulbee, his former brother-in-law. Taulbee, 54, was reportedly shot seven times by Back, 53, while the festival went on around them. A dispute over a woman apparently led to the shooting. (Lexington Herald-Leader)

Down on the (fish) farm

LOUISA — The region's first large catfish farm is expected to be started soon in Lawrence County. A group of businesspersons is leasing a 350-acre site from Roe Creek Development Corp., a landfill operation, for $1 a year for the experiment. The corporation said it will dig the ponds, stock them and pay an overseer. (The Lexington Herald-Leader)

Workers strike nursing home

HAZARD — Some members of District 1199 of the National Union of Hospital and Health Care Employees went on strike Sunday at Hazard Nursing Home, a 150-patient facility. Other workers, however, crossed the picket line. The local voted 35-27 Saturday to strike after negotiations over a new three-year contract broke down. (The Courier-Journal)

Boyd man sentenced on murder charges

CATLETTSBURG — Life plus five years in prison was the sentence handed down last Friday to Lindsey Castle, 62, of Shopes Creek, convicted in the murder and sexual abuse of a retired school teacher and civic leader. Castle pleaded guilty in Boyd Circuit Court of shooting Louise Wilcox, 65, of Ashland in early June, then sexually abusing her body. (Lexington Herald-Leader)

Show of appreciation

Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn recently presented Charles West with a certificate of appreciation. West allowed the fire department to use four off road vehicles to set up and ignite the city's fourth of July fireworks display. (Photo by Tim Preston) tion, a break with the country that claimed them as colonies, and launched a nation that, in its origin, was truly unique.

On this day 214 years ago, two of those outrageously defiant radicals affixed their names to the paper that declared that the fledgling colonies were no longer a part of the then strongest government on earth, Great Britain.

Signing on behalf of the representatives of the colonies were John Hancock (of the big signature), president of the new Congress, and Charles Thomson, secretary.

History tells us that the other signatures were probably not made until August. But this is the day we celebrate, the day when the deed was done, when King George lost a fortune.

From these early radicals, a few years later came the Constitution, the document upon which this new country was to grow and develop into a haven for people from across the globe.

The passing of time and the events attached turned these rebels into statesmen. Their ideas have been accepted by billions of people from every corner of the earth.

Today, while we're celebrating, let's whisper a thank you to John and Charles and Henry and Benjamin and Thomas and James and all the other radicals throughout our history whose ideas about freedom and government of, by and for the people have enriched us.

Happy birthday, USA. And thanks.

Have a safe "Sparkling" July 4th

Only certain fireworks are legal in Kentucky, but even the lawful ones can be dangerous if not handled properly, warn Department of Health Services product safety officials.

Kentucky law allows non-explosive fireworks such as sparklers, snakes and smoke devices. Bottle rockets, missile-type rockets, Roman candles, and firecrackers that have a loud explosion or shoot into the air are NOT allowed under the law.

Kentuckians using fireworks should always follow some common sense guidelines to ensure a safe Independence Day. "One of the most important things to remember is that children really do need close adult supervision when using fireworks," said product safety manager Terry Wescott, "even if they are using only sparklers."

Sparklers are popular among young children, but they burn at a very high temperature and can easily catch clothing on fire or burn the skin.

Wescott offered some other safety tips for a safe celebration.

—Don't hold fireworks in your hand and wait for the fuse to burn to the end.

—Before using fireworks, read and follow all warning instructions printed on the label.

—Light fireworks outdoors in a clear area away from buildings and flammable materials. If the grass is dry, be particularly careful.

—Keep a bucket of water nearby to douse fireworks that are ignited but don't go off.

—Do not relight or handle malfunctioning fireworks. Throw water on them and discard.

—Never attempt to make fireworks.

—Don't throw lit fireworks at another person.

—Don't carry fireworks in your pocket.

—Light fireworks one at a time and away from other people.

—Never light fireworks in a container, especially glass or metal.

"Using fireworks on July the Fourth is an American tradition, and we're not telling anybody to abandon their fun," Wescott said, "but we are asking them to use a little care."

A student once wrote: "It is bad manners to break your bread and roll in your soup."

MAGISTRATE - DIST. 2

During last month's Fiscal Court meeting, the Floyd Countians in Action (FCIA) group attended the Fiscal Court meeting because of the medical waste incinerator behind Highlands Regional Medical Center. This group of people were as concerned as I am about STOPPING "OUT OF COUNTY" MEDICAL WASTE from entering Floyd County and that's being burned on a lot behind Highlands Regional Medical Center. At this time, they are burning MORE "MEDICAL WASTE" than the University of Kentucky. They are NOW accepting "MEDICAL WASTE" from around 5 other counties. This "MEDICAL WASTE" consists of legs, arms, blood, bandages, and other body parts. These incinerators have been known to put off a TOXIC GAS into the air which has the same as AGENT ORANGE that was used in Vietnam. The ashes from these incinerators are normally Highly TOXIC. These ashes in the past have been taken to the Floyd County Landfill. When the people from FCIA asked for Robert McAninch (who is our Solid Waste Commissioner) to resign because he also set on the board of the Medical Waste Incinerator—I had no problem making the motion for him to step down from one of the two boards. I have seen in only 4 short years how he has flooded our landfill with "OUT OF COUNTY" GARBAGE. This started when Knott County was paying Perry County $68,000 a year to take their trash. Perry County was going to raise it to around $90,000 a year, but Floyd County took the trash for around $38,000 a year—which allows Knott County's Senior Citizens to pay less than Floyd County Senior Citizens and Knott County's other citizens bills are less than Floyd County citizens. Now we are also taking Johnson County's trash, Martin County's trash, and as of July 1, Pike County's trash. One person said that if it wasn't for Mr. McAninch taking care of Floyd County Solid Waste that we would be burying ourselves in our own trash—that's a whole lot better than burying ourselves in everybody else's trash. I'VE GOT NO GRUDGES AGAINST ANY ONE. The fact is that if we don't stop this "OUT OF COUNTY" garbage and "OUT OF COUNTY" Medical Waste NOW—at this rate Floyd County will not have decent drinking water or air fit to breathe. IT'S UP TO YOU—the people of Floyd County to HELP us STOP this—ALL OVER THE COUNTY—This affects everybody. I urge everyone from ALL FOUR DISTRICTS to attend the next FISCAL COURT MEETING—July 20, 1990 at 10 a.m. or call each of your Magistrates or Judge and express your feelings on this. The number in Prestonsburg is 886-9193 and tell us if you're for it or against it. AT THIS RATE—In 10 years will Floyd County be known as the "DUMPING GROUNDS" of Eastern Kentucky?

Georganne Brown was recently sworn in as an assistant county attorney, working with County Attorney Jim Hammond, right. Conducting the swearing in was Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo. Brown, the daughter of George Cecil and Bertha Mae Brown of Prestonsburg, is a graduate of the Salmon P. Chase College of Law at Northern Kentucky University and Transylvania University. She also attended Prestonsburg Community College. Since August 1989, she has been associated with the law firm of Latta and Brown. She was admitted to the Kentucky Bar in May. (Photo by Kim Frasure)

AAA: Auto vacation costs $198 daily

A family of four vacationing by car this summer should budget an average $173 for daily food and lodging, plus $25 for each 300 miles of driving, AAA Blue Grass/Kentucky reports.

This total represents a $6 per day increase over last year's $192 suggested average budget.

AAA recommends a family of two adults and two children plan to spend $80 a day for lodging, $93 a day for meals and $8.40 for each 100 miles of driving.

There are significant regional differences in lodging and food costs. The Northeast has the most expensive average food and lodging prices while the Midwest has the least expensive.

To save on lodging expense, AAA recommends making reservations. If that is not possible, travelers should arrive at destinations early enough to have a selection of accommodations and prices.

Meal costs can be reduced by having the main meal at midday to take advantage of lower lunch prices, picnicking or enjoying "early bird" dinner specials.

AAA's driving budget assumes the family car will average 23 miles per gallon. The budget includes allowances for tire wear, oil and maintenance. Costs will be higher or lower depending on the fuel economy of individual vehicles.

In addition to lodging, food and driving costs, families should budget for amusements, admission fees, road and bridge tolls, recreation and shopping.

Jobless figures announced by local office

Of persons receiving unemployment insurance in a four-county Big Sandy area during April, almost 40 percent had been employed in mining/quarrying, according to the latest Labor Force Profile released by the Prestonsburg office of state Employment Services.

About 17 percent of those unemployed had worked in services, 16.4 percent in wholesale and retail trade and 15 percent in contract construction, according to statistics for Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin and Martin counties.

The figures also show that some 30 percent of men and women receiving unemployment insurance had drawn for 15 weeks or more. Fifty percent had received unemployment benefits between five and 14 weeks.

In the period between July 1, 1989 and April 30, 1990, the regional office received notice of 2000 job openings and filled 1780 of those.

Hospitality House requests help

After years of providing a "home away from home" for thousands of people, including many Floyd Countians, the Lexington Hospital Hospitality House needs help.

The Hospitality House, located at 342 South Limestone, provides a comfortable, warm environment for family members who have loved ones in Lexington hospitals for extended periods.

In just this past year, the Hospitality House has opened its doors to more than 35 Floyd Countians. Some individuals have used the facilities for up to six months when a family member faces a long stay in one of the hospitals. The Hospitality House allows family members to spend as much time together as possible while relieving some of the burden of frequent travel and the expense associated with hospital stay.

Services include sleeping areas, laundry facilities, bathing facilities, meals, telephone, and support from staff and other visitors to the facility. Those who stay are charged no fees. However, annual expenses for operating the facility run between $70,000 and $80,000 per year. Most of the money comes from private grants and other resources.

Church and civic groups are encouraged to donate collected goods to the Hospitality House. Items that are always needed are personal care items for the visitors such as shampoo and conditioner, laundry and dishwasher detergent, and toilet tissue. Furnishings, such as twin beds and bedside tables, can be used. Fans are always needed, particularly in the summer months. Food is frequently donated, but coffee is always in short supply.

Barbs & Bouquets

By Marty Backus

Too little too late. That's about the best way I can describe last Thursday's open house, sponsored by Medisin Inc. at their Auxier headquarters.

It appeared most, if not all, the Auxier residents who attended the meeting did not change their minds about Medisin's incinerator. They believe their environment is being polluted by the incinerator and that it is harmful to their health.

Medisin officials have admitted such a meeting should have been held prior to firing up the incinerator months ago. Hindsight is easier than foresight.

Having to use such an incinerator to destroy medical waste has me wondering if we're heading in the right direction. It seems to me a good bit of the medical items tossed in the incinerator would be better utilized by recycling. My term of recycling is more in the form of sterilization — such as surgical gowns, rubber gloves, hypodermic needles, syringes, medical glass containers and things like that. It may cost more, but it might help relieve the worries of the Auxier residents.

Now, don't get me wrong. We have a lot of medical waste that has got to be destroyed by such folks as Medisin Inc. But I think we've made a lot of waste out of reusable things.

While on my soap box, let's look at how much our country is wasting, all for the sake of convenience.

Just about all soft drinks come in those over-sized plastic bottles or aluminum cans. Milk is poured out of plastic jugs, while other liquid products come in different-sized and shaped plastic containers.

Why can't we look around to see what a mess we have made of our countryside by casually tossing these containers over the hillside, into the creeks or filling up landfills. Then, after looking around, why can't we realize we are smothering ourselves with our throw-aways.

Let's go back to deposit containers. You know, glass pop bottles and milk containers. When purchasing these items, we've got to put down a deposit, which might make many of us a lot less likely to junk up our land.

It might be more expensive, but it's a lot healthier for us and everything around.

Finally, this is what President Woodrow Wilson said about our flag.

"The flag is the emblem of our unity, our power, our thought and purpose as a nation. It has no other character than that which we give it from generation to generation.

The choices are ours. It floats in majestic silence above the hosts that execute these choices, whether in peace or war. And yet, though silent, it speaks to us — speaks to us of the past, of the men and women who went before us, and of the records they wrote upon it.

Report to Kentucky

By Sen. Wendell Ford

FEDERAL RECYCLING EFFORT REFLECTS KENTUCKY'S THRIFTY WAYS

Most Kentuckians — and just about all of the rural Kentuckians I know — are well aware of the value of being thrifty and getting full use out of everything they own and every resource at their disposal.

When I was growing up on a Kentucky farm, we had a saying that what you can use once well you can use twice very well.

In my opinion, that bit of wisdom can be put to very good use by our federal government. And that is exactly what I am trying to do in a stepped-up effort to make the greatest possible use of recycled paper in our government printing operations.

As chairman of our Joint Committee on Printing, I recently took steps to see that recycled paper is made available for all of the most common categories of government printing.

The importance of this effort is easy to see when we look at the growing problem of waste paper and other solid waste being hauled from the East Coast and elsewhere to be dumped in landfills across this state.

We have to protect our environment, and our federal government is a good place to start when it comes to reusing instead of burying a wide variety of paper products.

The federal government each year buys 486,000 tons of paper, roughly 2.5 percent of the annual sales of the US paper industry. I see this as an opportunity for our government to serve as a role model in using recycling to help protect our communities, our forests and our world from environmental damage.

We began this federal effort about a year ago on the basis of recommendations put forward by the Environmental Protection Agency. Our program has been successful, with prices paid for recycled paper products having fallen 12 percent in the course of a year. But our approach has been based on the idea that competitively priced supplies of recycled paper are sufficient for only a small number of federal uses.

Feeling very strongly that we can do more, I have ordered new and revised specifications to require the fullest possible use of recycled paper for copiers, laser printers, writing stationery and other federal purposes. In addition, I have asked the Public Printer to purchase recycled newsprint as it becomes available on a competitive basis for the Congressional Record and the Federal Register.

We are putting out the word that a demand for recycled paper is there to be met. I am sure that when this nation's very progressive paper industry reads our new specifications, it will be only a matter of time before adequate quantities of recycled paper become available at competitive prices.

If past practices hold true, many state and local governments will follow our federal pattern of using recycled paper products. Some already are moving in this direction.

I can't say how many tons of old newspapers, junk mail, shredded computer printouts and the like will be saved from the landfills and reused under our new policies. But I believe that these policies do represent one way to combat our solid-waste problems — the way of good, old-fashioned thriftiness.

Requests support for Vet to Vet

Dear Editor,

I am writing to you about a unique project and opportunity for Eastern Kentucky. This is a Vet to Vet exchange program with the USSR.

One hundred veterans across the country will be traveling to the Soviet Union in August 1990. These American veterans will be meeting with Russian veterans of the Afghanistan War, many of whom suffer the same type of health problems as our veterans. But unlike our veterans, they don't have even the most rudimentary medical supplies. The vets who lost limbs either don't have prostheses or must use ones crudely made from leather and iron.

The suffering of these veterans is universal and we feel there is a common bond among these who fought the wars, regardless of country or nationality. We feel that US veterans can bring counseling, encouragement and fellowship to their Russian counterparts.

A mission of peace, not war! Who better to bring gestures and words of peace than those who fought and know the horrors of war?

President Gorbachev recently visited the United States to promote relations. This international statesmanship is very encouraging. However, we're confident that this goodwill mission by veterans to help veterans will go a long way toward enhancing the cause of peace and promoting understanding and friendship.

Of the 100 veterans chosen, only one from Kentucky was selected. He is John Cook from Johnson County. John has a service connected disability from the Vietnam war. John is a professional counselor who has much experience in working with and counseling other veterans. He is a member of Vietnam Vets of America, Veterans of Foreign Wars and a life member of Disabled American Veterans, as well as a member of the Veterans Referral Center, PLUS Inc. You can be assured that John will represent us well in Russia and will be appreciated by the Russian Afghanistan vets. John will be getting pictures, stories and other mementos to bring back and will present a report on his trip. He will be available to you for any program you wish.

We can all take pride in the fact that an Eastern Kentuckian was selected to represent Kentucky and the United States.

However, our mission here is not complete. We need your help. We must raise $3000 to help with our veteran's travel and other costs. This amount will also permit the purchase of medical supplies for the wounded Russian veterans. We have already received some contributions and all will be acknowledged.

An account has been set up at First National Bank in Paintsville. You can send support to PLUS Inc. — Vet Referral Center, 505 Broadway, Paintsville 41240. Checks can be made to PLUS: Vet to Russia. Our nonprofit corporation tax ID number is 61-1142308. As we must send in initial payments this month, your prompt response will be greatly appreciated.

Eastern Kentuckians have always answered our country's call in time of war in an exemplary manner. I am confident we will do no less in this mission of peace.

If you have any questions, you can call me at 886-8143 or 789-1329. You can also reach John Cook at 789-1366 or 789-8760 and John Wells III at 789-4700.

Owens responds

Dear Editor,

In response to Geri Bates' letter to the editor last week: Obviously you must not know me or Mr. DeRossett either one very well. The load limits I vote to put on the roads are put there to make coal companies, construction companies and drilling companies stand good for the damage they do to the county roads and county rights of way.

Some of these companies are not even from this county. I don't think it's right for companies to come in here and destroy our county roads and leave it for the county to have to spend county money to fix something back that was already in good shape before they came in here. Yes, I'll get them and I'll make them post bond — every time I can get the Fiscal Court to go along with me.

Guess what — during my 4-1/2 years as magistrate, I have never had to enforce a 10-ton limit on a coal haul road to make the coal operator (the owner of the mines) fix the road, because when I've got problems on a road that the coal trucks are damaging, I go talk to the coal operator like a man and I ask him to help us fix the road back. I have had no problem at all for the last 4-1/2 years, but if I do have a problem, I have the guts to stand up and do what I think is right for the county. I think that if you'll notice, you'll see more Owens stickers on coal trucks than anyone else because I know how hard it is for a miner to feed his family. I have been a miner myself for over 13 years.

In response to Rebecca Stephens' letter in last week's paper: You stated that I made a motion to get rid of Mr. McAninch without one shred of evidence. I've got all the evidence I need — a man that will take garbage from Knott, Johnson, Martin and Pike, the biggest county in the state, and bring it in here to pollute and poison our creeks, streams and drinking water and a man that sits on the board that helps bring medical waste from five or more counties which consists of legs, arms, body parts, blood, etc., and all other hospital medical wastes to be incinerated and poison the air that we breathe and our children breathe — I don't need any more evidence. I think the man should step down from one of the two jobs.

You also stated that I didn't care about the debts that Floyd County Solid Waste has incurred. The problem with Floyd County Solid Waste's debts is their own management, because if I had been over the contract to let Knott County bring their garbage in here, which they are paying around $68,000 to Perry County and it was going to be raised to around $90,000 — I sure wouldn't have gone over there and took it for $38,000 a year.

I am not worried too much because the Floyd County Fiscal Court has a million dollars in the bank. I think the Fiscal Court is doing a good job managing money. I'm very proud of Gerald DeRossett for standing up the way he has on this medical waste incinerator.

Cartoon offends postal workers

Dear Editor,

Although I'm not accustomed to writing letters like this, I felt compelled to do so in this case. Your publishing of a cartoon by Ramirez (whoever that is) in your June 27, 1990, edition depicting a slovenly, careless and uncaring postal employee who snidely, perhaps cavalierly, answers an honest query from one of his patrons, is insensitive at best. Call it poetic license, caricature or whatever, but to us, the hardworking employees of the US Postal Service, it was downright rude.

Ours is not an easy job, but we don't let that stand in the way of getting it done. We handle over 550 million pieces of mail each day and we move it over thousands of miles from the tip of Maine to Hawaii and beyond. As an example, compare that to the 800 million pieces handled each year by NZ Post in New Zealand over 300 to 600 miles. Then compare postal rates; even at 30 cents for a first class letter; ours is the lowest among major nations in the free world: Japan, 42.8 cents; France, 40.5 cents; Great Britain and Canada, 33.5 cents; Italy, 56.4 cents, etc.

Recently, on Charles Kuralt's Sunday morning news show on CBS, he did a segment on a rural carrier in Louisiana, who happened to have Postmaster General Anthony Frank for a "helper" for a day. Before the segment was aired, Kuralt discussed it with one of his fellow journalists and elicited the response that he could hand his carrier a letter in New York and it would be taken to his mother in some small rural town in Texas and all of this for a quarter. He thought that was a pretty good deal. One of the people on that rural carrier's route was filmed stating that he thought the rates should be raised to 50 cents, that it was worth it to have good mail service.

Now I would be the first to say that we the employees of the Postal Service aren't perfect and sometimes a piece of mail does get lost, hopefully, only temporarily. However, I submit to you that anyone or any organization which handles 550 million of anything, from marbles to melons to mufflers each and every day, will most likely displace one every now and then. Perhaps, even you good people at the Floyd County Times have made misprints or typing errors which somehow ended up in print for all the world to see, some of which may have even called for an apology on your part. Well, we do apologize for our errors and attempt to do better every day. After all, it's not called the US Postal Service, it's the US Postal Service and that is what we try to give — Service.

So, to say the least, I certainly think that cartoon was rude and unwarranted. It's remarkable that since the days when Benjamin Franklin started the postal system in this country, that Americans have come to expect expeditious delivery of their mail as the norm rather than the exception, a fact established by over 200 years of dedicated service. And yet, the Postal Service becomes the target of various slurs and assorted abuse every time there is a rate increase. Perhaps some of us haven't noticed that since the days of the three-cent stamp, we also can't find the nickel Coke or Pepsi.

By the way, did you get your mail today? Fairly routine for you, wasn't it? Perhaps you should come down and see what goes on behind the scenes.

—John R. McIntosh
Letter Carrier
Prestonsburg

(Editor's Note: The Times apologizes for the cartoon poking fun at the Postal Service. Yes, we do depend on that service which, we agree, is outstanding 99 percent of the time. And yes, we do make more errors than we like.)

'Regulations... antiquated'

Dear Editor,

Medisin vice president Robert Ford's and Floyd County Solid Waste Commissioner Bob McAninch's main argument for Medisin's waste incinerator is that it meets all state regulations. Since Kentucky's regulations are at best antiquated, I don't think that this argument is in the best interest of the people. Many recent studies have been published exposing the risk of infectious waste incineration. The Center of the Biology of Natural Systems (CBNS) at Queens College in New York supports the theory that dioxins/furans will be created after the gases leave the furnace no matter how hot the furnace is (CBNS, 1984). The New York Academy of Science (NYAS, 1984) also supports theories on how dioxins and furans are formed in incinerators. And there are many more.

Although there is an infectious waste disposal crisis in this state, incineration is not the solution to this problem. It's been proven that infectious waste incinerators generate toxic air emissions, contaminated waste water and toxic ash. Despite these many problems, infectious waste incinerators are still advocated by government and industry as the solution to the crisis. This is due to the simple fact that many large corporations and investment firms stand to make a lot of money building infectious waste incinerators. Whether the incinerator works or not is not their problem. The only proven thing about incineration technology is that it has proven to fail.

For more information on the dangers of infectious waste incineration, write Greenpeace, 1436 U St., NW, Washington, DC 20009. Inquire about their video "Rush to Burn."

Handling out-of-town dental emergencies

Pack a dental emergency kit next to your bathing suit and travel guide when you head out on your vacation this summer.

A toothache, lost filling or broken retainer shouldn't spoil your fun away from home as long as you've got the basics of dental first aid in your suitcase: oil of cloves, aspirin or aspirin substitutes, bicarbonate of soda, gauze pads, cotton swabs, floss and paraffin.

"Remember, your dental first aid kit is intended for temporary emergency care, before you can find a dentist or hospital emergency room," said Dr. Douglas H. McCall, president of the Kentucky Dental Association. "If you're in the United States and need a dentist, simply contact the local dental society for a reference."

"If you're out of the country, contact the U.S. Embassy or the embassy of another English-speaking country for the name of a trustworthy dentist. Hotel personnel often are able to refer you."

"If you are out in the wilderness far from the nearest town, use the items in your dental first aid kit as long as necessary until you can find help."

Follow these instructions during an emergency:

* For a toothache or sore and injured areas, rinse your mouth vigorously with warm water to clean out debris. You might try rinsing with a mild solution of salt and warm water. Use floss to remove any food that might be trapped between teeth. If swelling is present, place a cold compress on the outside of the cheek. Do not use heat, and do not place aspirin on the gum tissue or aching tooth.

* For a knocked-out tooth, place the tooth in water or wrap it in a clean, wet cloth. Do not scrub the tooth. You can reposition the tooth into its socket, handling it as little as possible. Rinse your mouth first with a solution of water and bicarbonate of soda. See a dentist immediately; sometimes lost teeth can be reimplanted.

* For a lost filling, apply oil of cloves to cotton. Squeeze out the excess and place a small piece of the cotton in the cavity, or cover the cavity with paraffin. Take aspirin as needed.

* For a bitten lip or tongue, apply direct pressure with a clean cloth and apply cold compresses. If bleeding doesn't stop or if the bite is severe, find a dentist or hospital emergency room.

* For objects wedged between teeth, remove with floss. Don't use sharp or pointed instruments.

* For orthodontic problems — especially if a wire is broken — cover the end with a small cotton ball, piece of gauze or paraffin. If the wire is embedded in the cheek, tongue or gum, do not try to take it out. Save any loose or broken pieces of wire and take them with you to the dentist or orthodontist.

* For a possible jaw fracture, immobilize the jaw by any means — with a tie, towel, handkerchief — and go to a hospital emergency room.

Service expanded

Ultrasound services have been expanded at the Methodist Hospital in Pikeville to allow non-invasive vascular screening services.

The new service will allow technologists to accurately screen and evaluate a patient's vascular system.

Technologists are using the new system to identify reduced blood flow in the patient's arteries in the lower and upper extremities, to identify compression syndromes and to evaluate the deep venous system.

According to a hospital spokesperson, the new equipment is also digital, providing more stable pictures and clearer images for physicians to read. The system is also expandable and reprogrammable for new technologies.

Confiscated contraband

Prestonsburg Police Chief Greg Hall, Mayor Ann Latta and City Det. Jeff Stumbo pose behind drugs, weapons and drug paraphernalia that have been confiscated over the last year. The items on the table range from pounds of marijuana, to large and small amounts of cocaine and illegal weapons. Chief Hall said the drugs would be destroyed in the near future. The Prestonsburg Police Department is investigating any tips phoned into the department. All tips will remain anonymous, he said. (Photo by Tim Preston)

Gas prices up 3 cents: AAA

Motor traveling over the fourth of July weekend will find gas prices up 3.1 cents from Memorial Day, AAA said last week.

AAA's fuel gauge survey shows the average price of gasoline is $1.162 per gallon nationally, compared with $1.131 in late May. The national average includes self-serve and full-serve prices of regular leaded, unleaded and premium gasoline.

Self-serve gasoline averages $1.084 for unleaded, $1.091 for regular and $1.249 for premium unleaded. Full-serve gasoline averages $1.308 for unleaded, $1.245 for regular and $1.434 for premium unleaded.

For the state of Kentucky, the average price of gasoline is $1.143 a gallon, nine cents lower than this time a year ago.

Sixty-nine percent of the stations surveyed will be open 24 hours.

The Fuel Gauge Report is conducted for AAA by Computer Petroleum Corporation which monitors more than 50,000 daily wholesale and retail gasoline prices throughout the United States and Canada.

When Woodpoint Geriatric Care Center needed a new health insurance company, they came back to a familiar name.

In 1987, Woodpoint Geriatric Care Center in Florence, Kentucky, left Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky for another health insurance company. They said our rates were too high.

In 1989, Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky welcomed a new client — Woodpoint Geriatric Care Center. Now, why would a company who left us want to come back?

Woodpoint learned the hard way that some health insurers lure new business with low rates the first year — often to follow up with steep rate hikes in succeeding years.

So Woodpoint signed up with us again. For a fair price. For value. For service. For the most recognized health care card in Kentucky. And Blue Cross and Blue Shield of Kentucky has taken steps to insure that Woodpoint — as well as companies across the Commonwealth — joins the growing number of businesses that stay with us year after year.

We're concerned about rising health care costs. So we're working with our customers to control claims, cut administrative costs and keep our company on sound financial ground. We want to deliver the best value in health insurance possible — a value that will build strong, long-term relationships with every customer we have.

We have not reached all our goals. Not yet. But we're on our way. Choose us again, or for the first time. And choose the health plan companies all over Kentucky are coming back to.

New books address women's health

By Robert Engelman

Scripps Howard News Service
At least when it comes to bodies—and, by extension, their repair and maintenance—no one disputes that women differ from men.

So it's surprising how few consumer books, beyond the ubiquitous weight-loss "guides," have been devoted to women's health concerns.

That's beginning to change, however, as more women become doctors and researchers and more data emerge on issues unique to their sex.

Prentice Hall Press has recently published not one but three books that together deal comprehensively with women's physical and emotional well-being.

In "Every Woman's Health," ($22.95), 15 physicians—all women—offer an 825-page compendium to such topics as sexuality and fertility, menopause, cosmetic surgery, aging and spouse abuse.

Some concepts are illustrated with simple line drawings. The book contains a mini-encyclopedia of several hundred health and medical terms, plus a few appendices.

A companion volume, "Every Woman's Emotional Well-Being" ($21.95), assembles 23 physicians, educators and writers on subjects ranging from self-esteem and friendship to job stress and humor.

Editor Carol Travis is a social psychologist reknowned for research and publications on anger. Throughout the book, guidance is offered on when to seek professional help, and the final chapter is titled "A Consumer's Guide to Psychotherapy."

Athletes and those increasing their physical activity are the target audience of "The Bodywise Woman" ($11.95). The book was researched and written by the staff of the Melpomene Institute, a Minneapolis-based center for research on women's health.

Biomedical researcher and marathoner Judy Mahle Lutter found in 1981 there was no research on whether women distance runners missed periods or not. She turned her curiosity into the institute, named for a Greek woman marathoner who broke the all-male rules in the 1896 Olympics.

Lutter also determined it was the low-calorie diets of many runners, not the running itself, that caused the erratic menstruation.

The book goes beyond exercise and menstruation to the influence of pregnancy and aging on fitness, raising fit children and choosing the right physical activities.

"Our position is that what is fun is what a woman's going to do, whether it's just stepping out the door to walk or starting tennis lessons or going to an aerobics class," Lutter said in an interview. "Lifelong physical activity is a positive thing, and however you do it is what is best for you."

Chimpanzees seem to eat some plants in the wild strictly as medicine, according to Harvard University anthropologist Richard Wrangham.

Studying the African primates, which many geneticists say are humankind's closest relative in the animal kingdom, Wrangham was amazed to see some carefully choose certain leaves, roll them up and swallow them unchewed. The same animals often exhibited symptoms of physical distress, such as vomiting or diarrhea.

Wrangham later collected some of the leaf bits from the animals' waste and analyzed using an electron microscope.

Preliminary analysis indicated the leaf, from a plant called Aspilia, is a powerful antibiotic, and further tests are now being conducted at the University of California at Irvine and the University of British Columbia.

Wrangham is now studying more plants that seem to have medicinal uses for chimps. Sometimes the animals grimace as they chew, he noted, suggesting they don't like to take their medicine any more than humans do.

Harold Rattlesnakes overcome Garrett Braves, 13-3

Champs in Johnson County invitational

The Harold Rattlesnakes spotted the Garrett Braves three first inning runs and then came back to post a 13-3 victory over the Braves in the championship game of the Johnson County Babe Ruth Invitational Tournament at Johnson Central High School Monday evening.

Barry Clark went the distance for Harold in picking up the win. Clark struck out nine batters, getting the side in order in the sixth.

Harold scored four times in the bottom of the fourth inning to take a 7-3 lead.

Mark Reed got the fourth under-way for the Rattlesnakes with a lead off single. James Roberts and Brian Hunter walked to load the bases against Braves pitcher Robbie Sexton. Steve Clark hit a roller in front of the plate where Reed was tagged out at home.

Shawn Newsome singled to left center to score Roberts and Hunter. Barry Hall's bouncer back to the mound evaded the pitcher, and Clark scored on the miscue. Barry Clark's grounder to short went through for an error allowing both Newsome and Hall to score.

Garrett took a 3-0 lead in the first inning on four hits. Webie Prater reached on a walk and was safe at second on a catcher's throw. When the ball went to the outfield, Prater journeyed to third base. The throw back into the infield was misplayed at third base, and Prater came in to score.

With one out, Robbie Sexton singled and was out at second base on a force out off the bat of Frank Martin. Murrill single scored Martin, who had stolen second. Nathan Moore followed with a base hit, and Steve Turner drove in Murrill with a single.

The 3-0 lead held up until the bottom of the third when Chris Potter got the Harold third underway with a lead off double. Clark singled, moving Potter to third. After Newsome fanned, Hall forced Clark out at second base, allowing Potter to cross with the second run of the inning to make it a 3-2 game.

Harold scored four times in the bottom of the fifth with two outs to take a 11-3 lead. Reed struck out, and Toby Newsome, pinch hitting for Roberts, grounded to first base. Brian Hunter then singled and stole second.

Potter then collected his second double of the game and two RBIs with a double, scoring Hunter. Potter came home on Barry Collins' two base hit. Barry Hall followed that with another run-producing double. Frank Martin came on in the inning to relieve Sexton and got Barry Clark to pop out to short.

The Rattlesnakes added two more in the bottom of the sixth on a base hit by Collins, an error off the bat of Derrick Newsome and an RBI infield single by pinch hitter Greg Hunter. Collins scored on the Hunter hit, and Newsome came across on a fielder's choice on Potter.

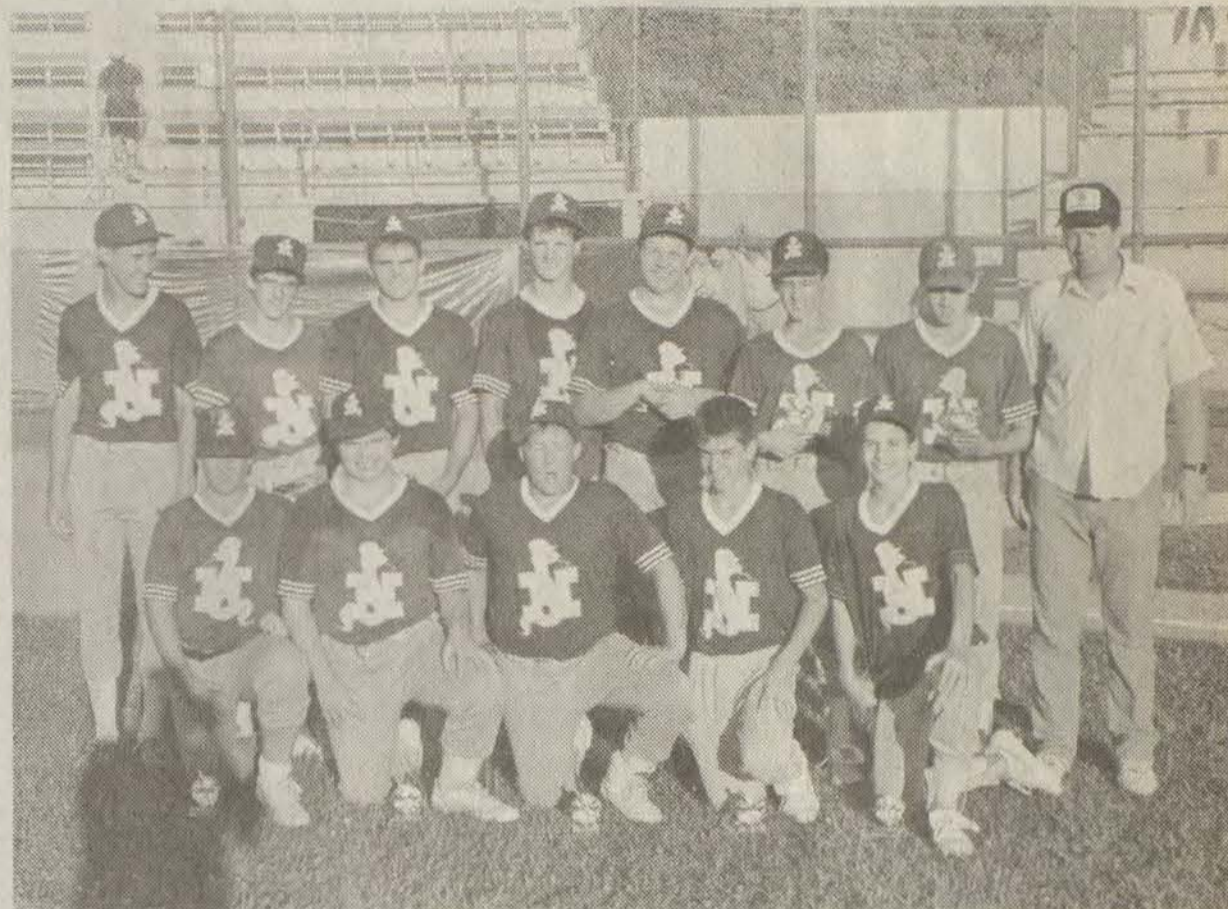

After the first inning, the Braves just could not seem to get their offense in gear as they got men on base, but with two outs. No one could come up with the big two-out hit.

Robbie Sexton was the losing pitcher for the Braves. Sexton was tough to hit the first two innings as he struck out the side in the second inning after the Rattlesnakes put their first two runners on base. Sexton recorded seven strikeouts while giving up 10 hits. Martin gave up two runs in allowing two hits and struck out two.

The game was surrounded by some controversy over the umpiring in the tournament. Several fans were questioning the calls of the home plate umpire and had to be warned to cease the vocal abuse.

The Rattlesnakes are now 10-3 on the year.

Braves win BC tourney

Jenkins homers, Bevins fans 8 in 9-3 win over Reds in finals

The Martin Braves and Martin Reds met in the final game of the Beaver Creek Little League Tournament at Martin for the second time in the playoffs.

The Braves had defeated the Reds 20-9 in an earlier game in the winners' bracket of the double elimination tournament. The Reds came out of the losers' bracket by defeating a good McDowell Stars team.

This time the game was a little closer than the first one, but the results were the same — the Braves came away a 9-3 winner, thus capturing the tournament title held by the Wayland Dodgers from last year.

The win gave the Martin Braves an excellent 19-1 record, their only loss coming at the hands of the Garrett Pirates. Jason Bevins was the winning pitcher and Shannon Slone took the loss. Bevins worked all six innings for the Braves, striking out seven while giving up eight walks. Bevins scattered four Reds hits in the game.

Slone tossed the full six for the Reds and struck out six Braves. He walked four and yielded the game's only home run, a two-run shot by Thomas Jenkins in the fifth inning. Slone also hit two batters.

The Braves jumped on Slone early in the first inning, scoring four times to take an early 4-0 lead. Beau Tackett led off the game with a walk, and J.P. Skeens doubled, scoring Tackett. After Brandon Kinzer grounded to short, Bevins roped a base hit, scoring Skeens.

Adam Coleman walked, putting runners on first and second. Jenkins fanned and Charles Twiss singled, loading the bases. Chris Cornette lined a single to right center, scoring two more runs for the Braves.

The Reds pushed across a single run in the bottom of the first inning when Slone led off with a double and moved to third on a wild pitch. Slone scored on a sacrifice by Kevin Robinson.

Neither team could score as both pitchers settled down and pitched some great baseball, until the fifth when the Braves exploded for five fifth inning runs to take a 9-1 lead. J.P. Skeens doubled, leading off, and moved to third on a passed ball. Skeens scored on a sacrifice fly off the bat of Brandon Kinzer. Bevins collected his second hit of the game, a two-bagger to left center. After Coleman fanned, Jenkins hit his home run.

Charles Twiss kept things going for the Braves in the fifth with a base hit. Cornette followed with a base-on-balls. Both runners scored on an RBI single by John Paul Sexton.

The Reds came back in their half of the fifth with two runs. Rusty Young struck out, leading off the frame, and Kevin Tackett walked. Mike McKinney lined a base hit up the middle. Bentley fanned for the second out, and Slone walked to load the bases. Kevin Robinson drove in McKinney and Tackett with a base hit. The inning ended when Phillip Robinson struck out.

The Reds loaded the bases in the sixth inning, but were unable to push across any runs.

For the Reds, Kevin Robinson had three RBIs. Jenkins, Cornette and Sexton each picked up two for the Braves. J.P. Skeens had two doubles in the game as the Braves collected 13 hits.

Both teams played errorless baseball, and both teams stranded eight runners. The Braves had six stolen bases with Twiss and Cornette getting two each. The Reds swiped four and finished the season at 16-4.

Drift Giants fall to Braves behind Bevins' no-hitter, 11-1

The last time the Martin Braves and Drift Giants got together for a good game of hardball, the Braves had to go eight innings to subdue the Giants 7-6.

However, things were different this time around as the Braves showed no "mercy" in defeating the Giants, 11-1, in the quarter finals of the Beaver Creek Little League tournament at Martin on Friday, behind the no-hit pitching of Jason Bevins.

The game was called after four innings because of the 10-run rule. Bevins struck out eight batters en route to his fourth win of the season. Patrick Bryant took the loss for the Giants. Bryant and Bevins were the pitchers of the extra inning game played earlier. Neither was the pitcher of record in the donnybrook.

Martin scored five runs in the second inning to take a 6-0 lead. With one out, Charles Twiss singled, and Chris Cornette drew a walk off starting pitcher Patrick Bryant.

John Paul Sexton then tripled, scoring both Twiss and Cornette. Brandon Moore walked, and Beau Tackett laced a base hit to drive in Sexton. J.P. Skeens singled home Moore, and Jason Bevins doubled in two runs.

The Braves had scored a single run in the first inning on a one-out walk to J.P. Skeens and a base hit by Bevins.

Thomas Jenkins opened the Braves' third with a double and came around to score on a base hit by Sexton.

Drift scored its lone run in the bottom of the third inning when Matt Marcum walked with the bases loaded. Bevins had walked the first two batters of the inning and then struck out Justin Hopkins and Bryant before issuing walks to T.T. Pack and Marcum.

In the fourth frame, the Braves put the game away with four runs in the inning. Brandon Kinzer singled home Beau Tackett, who had walked ahead of Skeens, who also walked. Adam Coleman also had an RBI single in the inning for the Braves. Jenkins also doubled in a run.

Bryant had five strikeouts for the Giants in his three-and-two-thirds of work. Bryant walked three.

Bevins fanned eight and issued seven walks in his four innings. The Braves had 12 hits in the contest.

BRAVES BEST JAYS

In an earlier game in the tournament, the Braves rolled past the Martin Blue Jays by the score of 30-1. Charles Twiss led the hit parade for the Braves in picking up the win, with a five-for-five night at the plate, including three triples.

Twiss had nine RBIs in the game for the winning Braves. Adam Coleman also had a Braves triple. Jason Bevins homered in the second inning when the Braves scored 20 runs on 13 hits. Brandon Kinzer had four RBIs with a double. Brandon Moore went three-for-four with two doubles and a triple.

Beau Tackett continued his hot hitting by collecting three doubles. Thomas Jenkins was two for two with a double.

Jervis had the only hit for the Blue Jays, a fourth inning single, spoiling Twiss' bid for a one-hitter. Twiss struck out six batters in the game. The Blue Jays scored their only run in the third inning when Osborne walked, leading off the inning, and scored on a base hit by Gibson.

Harold Rattlesnakes advance in tourney

The Harold Rattlesnakes won two games over the past weekend to advance to the finals of the Johnson County Babe Ruth Invitational Tournament. The Rattlesnakes defeated Citizens Bank, 24-9, and Wheelwright, 8-3.

Against the Citizens Bank Babe Ruth team, Barry Clark hurled the first five innings for Harold in picking up the win. Chris Potter pitched the final two.

Harold scored six runs in both the second and fifth innings. Shawn Newsome carried a big stick for the Rattlesnakes with four hits, including a double. Barry Clark went three-for-five, scoring four runs. Barry Hall had a three-for-six night, including a double.

Harold took an early first inning 3-0 lead on base hits by Chris Potter and an RBI single by Newsome. Clark scored two runs with a base hit to center.

Harold made it 9-0 with a six-run second. Wildness on the pitcher's part and some shaky defense coupled with a double by Barry Collins.

Citizens Bank plated two runs in the bottom of the third inning when C. Lemaster's and B. Taylor led off with walks. An error at second base scored both runners who had moved up on a wild pitch.

Citizens Bank pushed across four in the bottom of the sixth without the benefit of a base hit. Woods and Crace reached on walks, and A. Lemaster reached on an error to load the bases. Blair and C. Lemaster walked, forcing in two runs, and another error at second let two others cross home plate.

In the second game, the Rattlesnakes bit Wheelwright, 8-3, to advance to the championship game. Barry Hall picked up the win in game two as he also batted the Harold team to victory with a two-hit night and a two-run double in the second inning. Toby Newsome also had an RBI single in the inning.

Wheelwright made it 3-2 on a bases-loaded base hit by Mike Crager. Wheelwright loaded the bases on three consecutive walks to Doug Johnson, Terry Crager and Kevin Johnson. Chad Allen also had a hit in the inning.

Shawn Newsome, who had singled, scored on a double by Barry Clark to make it 4-2 in the third inning.

Kevin Johnson drove in Doug Johnson, who had walked with one out, for a fourth inning Wheelwright run and a 4-3 score.

Harold pushed across three in the fifth frame, loading the bases on two base hits and a walk. Greg Hunter's double scored Clark and Newsome, who reached on a fielder's choice.

In the top of the fourth, the Braves put the game away with six runs, again the scoring coming with two out. With two runners on base, Tackett doubled in one run. Skeens followed with an RBI single, and Kinzer got his second double, scoring two more runs.

The Reds plated a single run in the bottom of the fourth on three base hits by Jason Shannon, Phillip Robinson and Thacker, but it wasn't enough as the Braves mercied them, 20-9.

Shannon Slone had four RBIs for the Reds, and Thacker added three.

Divying bragging rights

Bevins' homer, 5 RBIs, lead Martin Braves past Reds, 20-9

Ask any of the Beaver Creek Little League fans and they will tell you that it has been a fast season of Little League baseball in their league this year.

That season was capped off with a double elimination tournament that concluded this past Sunday at the Martin Park. Two Martin teams, the Braves and Reds, hooked up in the finals to decide who would have bragging rights in the city.

Coach Steve Jenkins' Braves came away with a convincing 20-9 win over the Reds of coach Lonnie Robinson. The loss was the first for the Reds in the tournament which will require another game to be played.

Thomas Jenkins was the winning pitcher for the Braves with some relief help from Chris Cornette. Jason Shannon took the loss for the Reds with Shannon Slone coming on in relief. Jenkins worked the first three innings for the Braves, giving up nine hits and striking out four. Jenkins issued six bases on balls.

The Braves scored 12 times in the first inning and never looked back in recording their 18th win of the season against only one defeat. The Braves sent 16 men to the plate in the first inning. Jason Bevins had the big hits for the Braves as he drove in five first inning runs with a home run and a double in going three-for-three in the contest. Bevins doubled in the first with the bases loaded and then hit a two-run home run also in the first.

J.P. Skeens drove in three runs in the first with a double also. Brandon Kinzer got in on the act as he reached starting pitcher Jason Shannon for a double to drive in two runs.

The Reds came back with two runs in the bottom of the first inning on a two-run, one-out single by Kevin Thacker with the bases loaded. The Reds loaded the bases when the first three men reached.

Shannon Slone walked to lead off the inning. Kevin Robinson singled and Jason Shannon walked to load the bases against Jenkins. After Phillip Robinson struck out, Thacker delivered his run-producing single. Shannon Ferrell and Rusty Young struck out to end the threat.

The Braves pushed across two more runs in their half of the second with two outs. Charles Twiss singled, leading off, and Cornette, who was perfect in the game, reached on a base hit. John Paul Sexton and Chris Moore struck out before Beau Tackett tripled, scoring Twiss and Cornette.

It was 14-5 after the second frame when the Reds reached Jenkins for three runs in the second inning. Mike McKinney got a one-out single and Shawn Bentley walked. Shannon Slone then roped a base hit to center, scoring McKinney. Kevin Robinson singled home Bentley, and Slone scored on a wild pitch.

Robinson's squad tallied three more runs in the bottom of the third inning, after the Braves went out quietly in the top of the inning, to make it a 14-8 ball game. The scoring took place with two out, when Ferrell walked leading off, and Young

Robinson: BC North All-Stars will surprise some people

It is All-Star Little League time again, the votes are in, and some players have been left off the All-Star rosters because of certain league rules.

The Beaver Creek Little League, which fields 12 teams, has two All-Star teams, one from each division. While some perceive that the Beaver Creek South team looks like the team to beat, Beaver Creek North coach Lonnie Robinson warns not to overlook his North squad.

"We'll be all right," he says. "We will surprise some people. We are considered the weaker of the two squads. But I believe after we have worked together we will come around."

Robinson has some grounds on which to base his argument. He has the number one pitcher in the league on his squad in the person of Kevin Robinson (yes, they are related). Robinson has only fanned 123 batters in 44 innings of work this season. He is a hard thrower and seems to get stronger as the game progresses.

Robinson says that he will also be using Brad Allen of the Garrett Cubs and the Martin Cubs' Jonathan Scarberry in his rotation.

"They will help us," he stated. "Each pitched a lot of innings for their respective teams this year."

"We're not going to have a lot of power on this team, but our quickness will make up for some of that. We have players who are good contact hitters and I believe we will be a strong defensive team."

Robinson says that he will mix up his lineup. By that he says that kids who are used to playing the infield position will be called on to play in the outfield.

"Some will be playing out of position," he related. "But they are All-Stars and should be able to do that."

Jason Shannon, Martin Reds, will be looked to for the power this club may need.

"Jason is a good bat," Robinson remarked. "He plays a good third base and will probably bat in the number three or five spot."

Kevin Robinson, Martin Reds, will also be expected to furnish some home run power.

"Kevin can play anywhere," explained the North coach. "He will be our number one pitcher also. He is 8-2 on the season and had 124 strikeouts."

Shannon Slone will add some quickness to the North All-Stars line up.

"Shannon is a very quick player."

He can run the bases very well and we will also pitch him some. He is an excellent lead off hitter."

Robinson will count on Brad Allen for the long ball and he will probably be at first base for the North team.

"Brad's a good hitter. He has good speed also and is very good defensive first baseman," Robinson said. Another player who Robinson says can play anywhere is Jonathan Scarberry.

"Jonathan is a good contact hitter," said Robinson of the versatile player. "He can run the bases well and play any position on the field."

"Tim Bellamy will play the outfield and infield for us," said Robinson. "Tim is a good base runner also, and he will be doing some pitching."

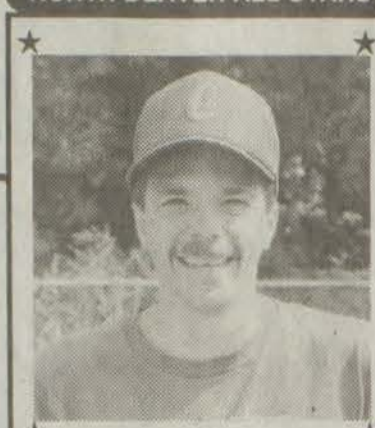

Larry Hunter, a big player, will be behind the plate for the North All-Stars.

"Larry can connect for the long ball," stated Robinson. "He is a good contact hitter and has decent speed on the bases."

Dugout Dope

Well, vacation time is over and it's time to get back to the old computer and the baseball diamonds. Nancy and I had a great vacation in Georgia. I must admit I missed being at the playoffs of all the leagues. I am sure there were many exciting games.

Congratulations to the Martin Braves and Prater Creek Indians upon winning their respective tournaments. The Braves won over the Reds to capture the Beaver Creek Little League and the Indians won over a good Allen Astros team to win the Harold-Allen-Prater tournament.

The Martin Padres did it again. They came back, just like last season, and won the Martin Pee Wee tournament. The Padres were in a rebuilding year, having nine new players.

The McDowell Sluggers are having a great year. They are 18-0 as of this writing. The Pee Wee teams are a lot of fun to watch.

Still on the horizon are the Little League All-Star tournaments to be played at Inez this year. Last year I saw some great baseball from these youngsters. I can't wait until it gets underway again. It all starts this Monday evening, July 9.

Teams from Wheelwright, Harold-Allen-Prater, Prestonsburg, as well as two Beaver Creek teams, will represent Floyd County in the regional games. Paintsville, last year's winner, always fields a strong team. The Harold-Allen-Prater team will be a good one, as will the Beaver Creek South and North. Wheelwright always comes up with a very competitive team.

This should be a great tournament for Little League baseball fans. I hope all the parents and other fans of the Floyd County teams will be in attendance and support their favorite team.

A couple of weeks ago, I wrote in this column what a disappointment Eric Davis of the Cincinnati Reds was this year. Wouldn't you know it, the next night he hit two home runs and a third a night later. He now has 11 home runs and seems to be getting into a groove that he is capable of. It will be too late for all-star votes, but if he stays healthy, he can definitely be a big bat for the Reds in the second half of the season. As it was pointed out to me by an Eric Davis fan, he has always been a slow starter. Well, he is belting the ball now, and I hope he continues to do so.

High school football practice will begin soon and we will be turning our attention to the grid iron in about three weeks. Should be a good season for some of our local teams. We will be there to give you all the coverage we can as the season progresses.

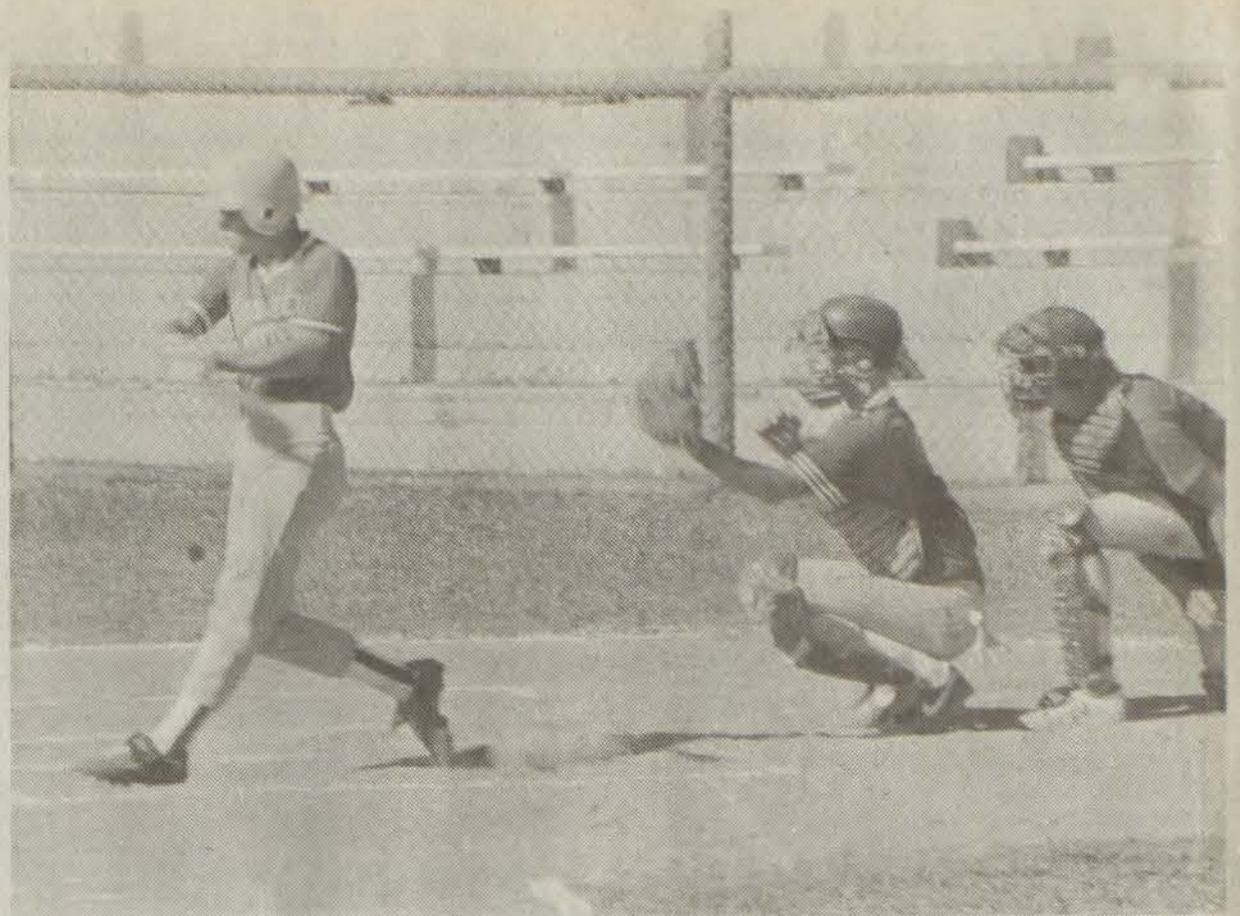

Some basketball news still remains in the sports spotlight as the Kentucky Girls All-Stars returned from Europe on a successful tour of several different countries. Sheldon Clark's Lady Cardinal Ida Bowen led the Kentucky team in scoring as they finished the tour 8-0.

Bowen, 6' 1" senior, will be looking to lead the team of coach Robin Harmon to a state visit this coming spring. Bowen is being recruited by more than 100 colleges including national power, Stanford.

Way to go Rattlesnakes! Congratulations to the Harold Rattlesnakes for winning the Johnson County Babe Ruth Invitational Tournament Monday evening. The Garrett Braves made a good showing also in the tournament, finishing second.

One thing that I have seen this summer in baseball is that many other activities have drawn the attention of those playing baseball. While school was going on, the proms, dances, outings, trips and graduations influenced the schedule of games to be played. If one player was involved in any of these things, the game was canceled. What about the other players who want to play. Some coaches will not play if their top player has to go to a dance, prom, etc. I have always been convinced you cannot excel at anything if you do not give it your full attention. If ball players want to be ball players, they need to give their attention to playing baseball and not going on outings and such. To be successful you must be dedicated.

ing along good is Mike McKinney. McKinney has sat out organized baseball play and just came back this season and is showing signs of making good contact with the ball.

"Mike is coming on real well but wise," said Robinson. "Because he is such a large player he doesn't have the real good speed."

Central Finance finishes 1st in division

The Central Finance softball team, playing in the Minnie Softball League, captured first place in its division for the first half of the season.

The Central team had a 14-4 record. The team also finished second in the league's mid-season tournament.

Members of the team are Jimmy Helton, Mark Helton, Steve Helton, Willie Johnson, Dennis Johnson, Mickey Johnson, Bill Hammonds, Terry Hall, Brad Hall, Johnny Little, Lester Blackburn and D.C. Carr. The team is managed by Willie Johnson.

The Central Finance team will be starting the second half of the season this coming Sunday afternoon.

"We are not going to have a lot of power on this team, but our quickness will make up for some of that." Lonnie Robinson, Beaver Creek North Coach

R.C. Duff is rated by Robinson as a respected hitter. "R.C. makes good contact. He is another one of those kids who can play anywhere."

Chris McKinney, Martin Cardinals, will add some batting strength to the North all-stars.

"Chris is a good hitter. Again makes contact and is a good outfielder."

A player who will see some time behind the plate for the North team is James Potter.

"Potter is a real good catcher. He can hit the ball and runs the bases decently," said the North mentor.

Mike Bryant has the tools for being a good outfielder for the North team. Robinson says that Bryant is a good hitter and can really help the team in the outfield.

Kevin Thacker is one of those type of players you are just glad to have on your team.

"Kevin is a tremendous hitter," stated Robinson. "He has good speed on the base paths and rarely strikes out."

Daryl Shepherd will add some strength to the North team. He can be used anywhere and does make contact with the ball.

Robinson says that the strong points of this team will be the pitching. So for those teams who think playing the Beaver Creek North team is going to be easy pickings, Coach Robinson says there will be some surprises awaiting them.

The North team will battle the Harold-Allen-Prater All-Stars Tuesday, July 10, at Inez.

By HAROLD COOLEY
GUARDING AGAINST MOTION SICKNESS

Anyone who is planning to take a vacation cruise may want to consider taking along a specially-administered drug to guard against motion sickness. The drug is a belladonna alkaloid that is introduced into the bloodstream via an adhesive patch. When the drug-impregnated patch is worn on a hairless portion of skin (usually behind the ear), it releases a constant low dose of the motion sickness drug for up to three days. Belladonna alkaloid is the strongest and most effective drug for combating nausea and the vomiting of seasickness. Unlike a pill which delivers short, more intense bursts of medication into the bloodstream, the externally worn patch delivers medication at a more constant rate.

At COOLEY APOTHECARY we consider each of our customers important to us. You will see this reflected in many different ways. First, we offer you fast, efficient service in meeting all your pharmaceutical needs. Secondly, our staff is here to answer any questions you have concerning any product that we have available. Our registered pharmacist is always on hand to be of assistance when it is required. Complete patient profiles are maintained here at #2 Town Center Bldg., 886-8106. MasterCard and Visa honored plus we welcome all third party payments. Open: Mon. - Fri. 9-5:30 Sat. 9-3.

BASKETBALL CAMP AT MARTIN

The Martin Grade School basketball camp of coach Jimmy Hopkins will get underway this Monday, July 9, at the Martin gym. Coach Hopkins is one of the county's premier coaches in elementary basketball, turning out topnotch teams every year.

The camp will run Monday through Friday beginning at 8:30 a.m. and ending at 3 p.m. The camp will stress the fundamentals of the game as well as dribbling, rebounding and game activities. Entry fee into the camp is $35 per player.

The camp will also feature one-on-one and two-on-two competition. Free throw awards and hot shot contest will also be featured in the camp.

BLUEGRASS GAMES UPDATE

Registration for the sixth annual Bluegrass State Games is continuing at a healthy rate. So far about 7,000 people have registered.

The games will offer 19 sporting events this year. Participants may register for only one sport; however, they can enter more than one event within that sport.

Six teams will represent Floyd County in the softball division. State-wide Recovery, coached by Donnie Williams, will be taking part. Last year's Bluegrass Games Champions, Ken's Sports Shop, will be back to defend their title. Dale McKinney's WMDJ team will also be in Lexington for the softball tournament.

The women will also be there as the Lady Blues, coached by Toney Conn, have registered to play. The Brew Crew will be in action also.

In tennis, Carolyn and Clarissa Short of Allen will play in the women's division of the games.

The Bluegrass State Games are scheduled for July 27-29 with registration continuing until July 13.

Spearfishing decision mocks equality

By Lowell Branham
Scripps Howard News Service
Judging from recent news reports, Indians and whites are still ready to go to war again in Wisconsin.

The bone of contention is spearfishing. The federal courts have once again displayed their Solomon-like wisdom by ruling that Indians are entitled to spearfish but whites are not. Evidently that's equality under the law, 1990s style.

The court rulings have led to numerous clashes between spearfishing Indians and non-spearfishing whites. There have been hot words, hurled missiles and scattered fist-cuffs but so far, fortunately, nothing any worse than that.

The conflict arises from Indian treaties signed way back in the 19th century, the provisions of which the noble and enlightened judges have chosen to resurrect just as if nothing had changed in the ensuing 150 years.

It's not just spearfishing that's at issue. US District Judge Barbara Crabb decreed in early May that Wisconsin's 4,000 Chippewa Indians (who make up less than one-tenth of one percent of the state's population) are entitled to 50 percent of the natural resources on lands and waters owned by the state.

In other words, each Chippewa's fair share of natural resources (judged to include fish, game and timber) is around 1,250 times greater than each white citizen's fair share. Everyone is equal, understand, but the good judge feels that some ought to be a tad more equal than others.

I wouldn't want to cast aspersions on our federal judiciary, but occasionally it hands down decisions that make one wonder how some of its judges passed first grade, much less the bar exam.

When it comes to spearfishing, Indians aren't limited to 50 percent. Since whites can't do it, the Indians get the whole caboodle. Wisconsin's irate white sportsmen claim that spearfishing is about as sporting as dynamite — and almost as deadly.

And they're right. I know because in my wild and misspent youth, I did a lot of spearfishing. We called it gigging rather than spearfishing, but that didn't make it any less lethal — or any more legal. Understand, the backwoods society I grew up in wasn't exactly noted for its devotion to game laws. Respect for game laws was something I had to learn later in life.

The only fishing tackle we boys could afford were cane poles with thick linen lines about as subtle as logging cables. We could catch slow-witted redeyes and sunfish with such an outfit, but all the fish with learning ability had been well educated by several generations of lean and hungry mountain lads who preceded us.

By day, the mere appearance of a human shadow on the water or the vibration of a footstep on the bank were enough to send the more wary species of fish scattering like frightened quail. Enter the same stretch of water at night, however, with a bright carbide light and a stout gig in hand, and it was like plucking sleeping pullets off a roost.

The experts who claim to know everything tell us that fish don't sleep, citing as evidence the absence of eyelids on all critters outfitted with fins and scales. Since I'm not a fish, I can't knowledgeablely dispute the experts.

But I do know that fish are overtaken by something at night that makes them act totally different than they do in the daytime. Otherwise, our gigging expeditions would have been exercises in futility.

A fish that by day flees wildly at the slightest hint of anything amiss will at night lie as unmoving as a log while half a dozen lumbering boys approach it abreast, sloshing water and grinding streambed rocks and gravel underfoot.

Unless nudged by an unwary foot, the quarry usually stays rooted in place until impaled by the gig. It's like shooting fish in a barrel, without having to pay for the ammunition.

I'm glad I don't live in Wisconsin. Given my own nefarious past, I'd be a hypocrite to take an active role in the movement against spearfishing. But I sure don't blame the state's white sportsmen for being boiling mad.

Few would deny that our native Americans have been among the most rottenly treated of all minorities. But to try to right the wrongs of the past by conjuring up new wrongs for the future corrects nothing at all. Moreover, it turns stupidity into a judicial precedent and makes a mockery of the principle of equality.

The legal argument used to justify spearfishing is that it was a traditional method the Indians used for taking fish at the time the treaties were signed. That's true as far as it goes, but the traditional light source was a flaming torch, not a modern spotlight.

Since the 19th century Indians also used torches for taking deer at night, perhaps the judiciary's next ruling will empower the Chippewas to collect their court-ordained half of the Wisconsin deer harvest by jacklighting them at night.

Bassin' with the pros

How your smell can affect your fishing success

Did you put on clean socks before your last fishing trip? Did you spill gasoline when filling up the boat? Do you chew tobacco or smoke cigarettes while you fish?

If so, you could be limiting your fishing success, simply because you smell bad to bass.

"There definitely are negative smells that repel fish," notes former biologist Ken Cook, now a full time bass tournament pro and member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff. "The plain truth is that some fishermen smell worse than others, and they transmit this negative odor to their lures and line."

"The fish smell these scents and move away instead of striking."

Bass have a well-developed olfactory sense, he explains, although they do not depend on it nearly as much as some other species like catfish or trout. The larger a bass grows, however, the more it does use its sense of smell.

Among the turnoffs to bass, says Cook, are the chemicals present in human perspiration, which fishermen can't control. One particular chemical, known as L-serine, has been isolated as one of the worst fish repellents.

Hunter's class

The Kentucky Fish and Wildlife Resources will sponsor a Hunter's Education course at the Prestonsburg Church of God in Goble Roberts addition on July 5, 6 and 7. The free classes will begin at 6:30 each night.

For more information on the course, contact Blackburn at 886-3837 after 6 p.m.

"It is interesting to note," explains the Evinrude pro, "that not everyone has the same amount of L-serine in their perspiration. Many of the top tournament pros have been tested and shown to have very low amounts of the chemical."

The solutions, says Cook, are to try to avoid imparting negative scents to lures, and perhaps to add positive ones, such as one of the many commercial fish attractants now available.

"I have actually taken soap in the boat with me and washed my hands when I got gasoline or some other odor on them," Cook explains. "This is certainly something worth considering."

"Another possibility is to spray your hands, lures and line with a masking agent that hides the human scent. These are usually available in fishing tackle stores in convenient spray bottles and are easier to use than soap."

Cook likes to use one of the commercial fish attractant sprays, believing it not only masks his own odor but also adds a positive scent to his lures.

"Not all lures need a fish attractant," he notes. "I don't believe smell makes much difference in fast moving lures like spinnerbaits or crankbaits, but for slower lures like worms and jigs, I believe the attractants definitely bring more strikes."

Cook pays particular attention to his line, something many anglers overlook when using spray-on attractors.

"At times, fish smell the line before they do the lure," he explains. "I'll spray my reel so the line is covered each cast."

"You don't have to spray your lure after each cast, but I don't think it hurts anything to spray it again after each fish you catch."

That first summer of baseball

by Hank Aaron

The weather has gotten warm, and daylight lasts well into the evening hours. Summertime is here and that means it's time for baseball. All around America, bats, balls and gloves will be in constant use until fall turns to winter.

It's hard for me to remember exactly when or how this all began for me. That first summer of baseball happened about 50 years ago.

We didn't have too much of a baseball team back then. When I was growing up in Mobile, Ala., in the 1930s and '40s, everything wasn't as organized as it is now. In fact, very little was organized at all.

If you had a baseball, other kids in the neighborhood were drawn to it just like the adults were drawn to visit whoever owned the first television set. Usually there would be just that one ball, and every kid would come around to beat on it.

Everything was shared. It wasn't like we had a lot of equipment. If you had a glove, you had to share it. If you played first base, you had to give your glove to the first baseman on the other team when he came out to field.

Now there are sculptured baseball diamonds everywhere for children to play their games. Back then, we had to find an empty field and then step off what we guessed was the proper distance between first, second and third bases and from home plate to the pitcher's "mound." No, we never had a pitcher's mound. We just stood where we thought it should be and used our imagination when we wound up to throw the ball.

When did it dawn on me that I might be good at this game? Actually, it wasn't until I left home to play baseball for money. Before that I was only playing about once a week, and you never know how good you are until you play it on a daily basis. That was when I started feeling like I had a little potential.

We didn't have a high school baseball team. We had a softball team and a football team, but baseball was not part of the curriculum.

Today there is no excuse for a kid not to play baseball if he has any talent for the game. Everything is so much more convenient for young athletes today.

But, hey, we didn't do so badly turning out athletes in Mobile. After I came along, there were Willie McCovey, Billy Williams, Tommy Aggie, Cleon Jones, Frank Bolling, Amos Otis and my brother Tommy Aaron. So maybe fancy equipment isn't everything.

Hank Aaron is the top home-run hitter of all time with 755 homers. A member of baseball's Hall of Fame, Hank is senior vice president of the Atlanta Braves.

Pike County American Legion sweeps Millard in doubleheader

Includes Floyd players

The Pike County American Legion team, coached by Estill Collins, took a doubleheader from Millard Senior Babe Ruth team, 11-0 and 13-1.

Several Floyd County players are playing on the Pike County American Legion team with the absence of such in Floyd this year.

Tim Watkins, Prestonsburg, picked up the win in game one as he combined with Todd James for a one-hit shutout. However, Watkins had a no-hitter when he was lifted in the fifth inning in favor of James.

James allowed the only hit Millard had. Watkins had three strikeouts and walked three in the four innings he worked. James walked two and fanned two.

Watkins swung a heavy bat for the Pike County team with a solo home run in the second inning to give Pike County a 1-0 lead.

Jeff Lovely, Magoffin County, had a third inning double and scored on a base hit by Matt Adkins of Pikeville.

Pike County scored eight times in the sixth inning to put the game away. Jamie Lawson, McDowell, had a two-run single in the inning and Phil Burchfield had an RBI double for the Pike County team.

Pike scored single runs in the second, third and fourth innings. Jerry Ray's sacrifice fly scored a fourth inning run.

Jamie Damron was the losing pitcher working 3-1/3 innings. Damron had four strikeouts, and he walked four, giving up three runs. Joey Thacker came on in relief and gave up the eight sixth inning runs. He walked four and fanned three.

In the nightcap, Pike County exploded for six third inning runs and pushed across five in the fourth for a 13-1 win. David James scattered four hits in recording the win. James had three strikeouts. David Little suffered the setback in four innings of work.

Stuart Robinson, Martin, had a three-run homer in the third inning, scoring Jeff Lovely and Jerry Ray ahead of him. Tim Watkins had a good second game with a run-scoring double in the fourth inning and an RBI triple in the third. Jerry Ray and Jason Taylor had RBI singles in the six-run third.

Matt Adkins drove in two runs in the fourth with a base hit.

The Pike County American Legion team will travel to Boyd County for a tournament on Friday.

Officials' camp set July 9-13

According to Teddy Hall, the first annual 15th Region Referee's Camp will be held at the Pikeville College gym starting Monday, July 9. The camp is scheduled to run through the week, in conjunction with the Pikeville High School Boys camp.

Hall states the purpose of the camp will be to help older and new officials with their mechanics of the game, plus to familiarize officials with the new rules for the coming basketball season.

The camp is open to all those who wish to attend. Hall stressed the need for new officials to join the seasoned ones at the camp.

"We need new blood in our region in refereeing," the veteran official stated. "This camp will be a good opportunity for those who have been thinking about taking up officiating. Even if they have not called a game, we want them to be here."

Hall says that the officials camp will be held the same week of the Pikeville High School basketball camp and that officials in the camp will be calling the games at night for the players' camp.

The Amazon is too wide at many points for a person on one bank to see the opposite shore.

"This will afford each official a chance to call a game each night and then they will be critiqued by instructors, pointing out mistakes, ways to improve in their mechanics and positioning. We're not just going to be looking at the negative things but also the good points and we will tell them of their good points."

The camp will run all week and will be from 5:30 p.m. until 10 p.m. Special speakers are scheduled to speak each night also. There is a $30 entry fee for each official. All officials are asked to bring a black and white official's shirt and shoes for the camp.

For more information on the camp, contact Teddy Hall at 886-1510 or 874-9777.

David woman is 'Mother of the Year'

by Patricia Watson
Elizabeth Shepherd of David was named "Mother of the Year" by the Independent Christian Women's Fellowship at the Mother-Daughter-Friends banquet May 19 at May Lodge.

Known as Lizzie, the honoree was married to the late Ashland Shepherd. Together, they were active in the Christian ministry for more than 40 years. One accomplishment was the founding of the Open Door Church at David in 1956.

By no means wealthy, she and her husband helped others whenever they found need, whether it was food, clothing or shelter, often doing without themselves.

Sewing was one of her great services. She took an active role in making children's clothing and quilts from her own supplies, giving them freely whenever needed. One year, she made 60 little dresses for children in her area.

Yet, sewing was both pleasure and necessity for her, for she has used this skill in caring for others all her life. As a girl, she took on the responsibility of helping to raise her younger brothers and sisters after her mother's death at age 25. Then, years later, after the death of her own son, Ralph, and after a time of waiting, she and her husband gained custody of their son's four young children.

Today, she has five living children: Grace Clark, an administrative assistant at First Commonwealth Bank of Prestonsburg; Paul Shepherd, lead man at a plastics factory in Warsaw, Ind.; Sally Reynolds, a director of data processing at Highlands Regional Medical Center;

ELIZABETH SHEPHERD
Mother of the Year

Russell Shepherd, math teacher and baseball coach at Prestonsburg High School, and Bobby Shepherd, scale man at Beverly Mining of Branham and Baker at David.

In addition, she has 20 grandchildren and eight great-grandchildren.

A special tribute was given by her granddaughter Patricia Lafferty of Hippo and by daughter-in-law Sheryl Shepherd of David. After interesting parts of her life were revealed, she received a framed certificate and a double pink carnation corsage from the Independent Christian Women's Fellowship. Her family presented her with a dozen roses, various gifts and a special note from her granddaughter, Susan, who is in Italy.

While the "Mother of the Year" award was a high point of the evening, other special points of interest included music by Pat and Ron Chaffins of Pippa Passes; speaker, Verla Pettit of Memphis, Tenn.; toasts to mothers and daughters by Rhonda Crisp and Christine Crisp of Martin.

Co-hostesses for the evening were Barbara Wynsma of Eastern and Patricia Watson of Martin. Also, piano music for group singing was provided by Lois Holmquist of Eastern.

The banquet theme, "Garden of My Heart," was followed with decorations of potted flowers, fresh ferns and pink hearts forming a chain down the white table coverings linking to melon-scented mint green colored candles. Accents were green programs.

Attending the 14th annual banquet were nearly 150 women from local communities, as well as nearby counties.

In Loving Memory of Willie Hale

Has it really been eight years,
Since you were called away.
We still feel your presence in our hearts,
It seems just like yesterday.

Every year at this time,
We feel the need to say,
How much we all love and miss you,
Since that sad July day.

Mom, she still misses you,
More than you could ever know,
And all of us children try hard, Dad,
But can't feel the empty place left here below.

And of your four grandchildren,
Two can remember and two never knew,
What a truly wonderful person,
We all lost, when we lost you.

Missed with sadness, but remembered with love by your wife, children and grandchildren.

Tips for eating out with kids

It's a fact! Children do like to eat out.

According to a study by the Roper Organization for USA Weekend, 55 percent of families surveyed said their children influence the family's choice when the dinner destination is a full-service restaurant.

And, the National Restaurant Association says that restaurant visits by children under the age of six jumped 36 percent during a recent seven-year period.

As the lifestyle of the typical American family becomes busier, mealtime is often the only time during the day when the family is together. In the past, parents left the kids with a babysitter so they could enjoy a relaxing dinner out.

But times have changed. It's become increasingly important for families of the '90s to spend quality time together, and more than ever children are joining parents at restaurants.

According to Judy Kelly, a spokeswoman for The Ground Round Inc., a national restaurant chain, the family visit to a restaurant should be a pleasant and fun dining experience for everybody.

Choose a restaurant where both children and families are made to feel welcome. As an example, Kelly says that a favorite family restaurant should offer something to entertain children without disturbing other diners and, at the same time, allow parents to enjoy a good meal in a relaxed atmosphere.

While the restaurant industry is catching up to the needs of the family, Kelly stresses that parents can make a difference between the family dining out experience being a pleasant one or a tension-filled nightmare.

She offers the following "ground rules" for parents when taking children out to a restaurant.

**The easiest child to take to a restaurant is an infant. Special accommodations need to be made for toddlers, who are naturally fidgety and have short attention spans. Bring a toy, coloring book and crayons from home to keep the child amused, in case the restaurant you choose does not provide them.

**Parents with an infant should bring bibs and extra bottles of formula.

**A child's manners and eating habits are important when dining out. Be consistent. Overreacting to a child's bad behavior at a restaurant is confusing, even unfair, when the same behavior is acceptable at home.

Encourage good eating habits in general, but dining out is an excellent time to reinforce them. Remind the child to say "please" and "thank you" when being served. And have a boy hold a chair for his mother.

**If a child has an "accident" such as spilling milk, don't make a big thing of it. In a calm voice, say, "It was just an accident. Let's clean it together."

**Tantrums are another story. A child has a tantrum to achieve a goal. It's best to take the child away from other diners. After he calms down, ask the child why he is upset. Once the reason for the tantrum is known, parents can better cope with the situation.

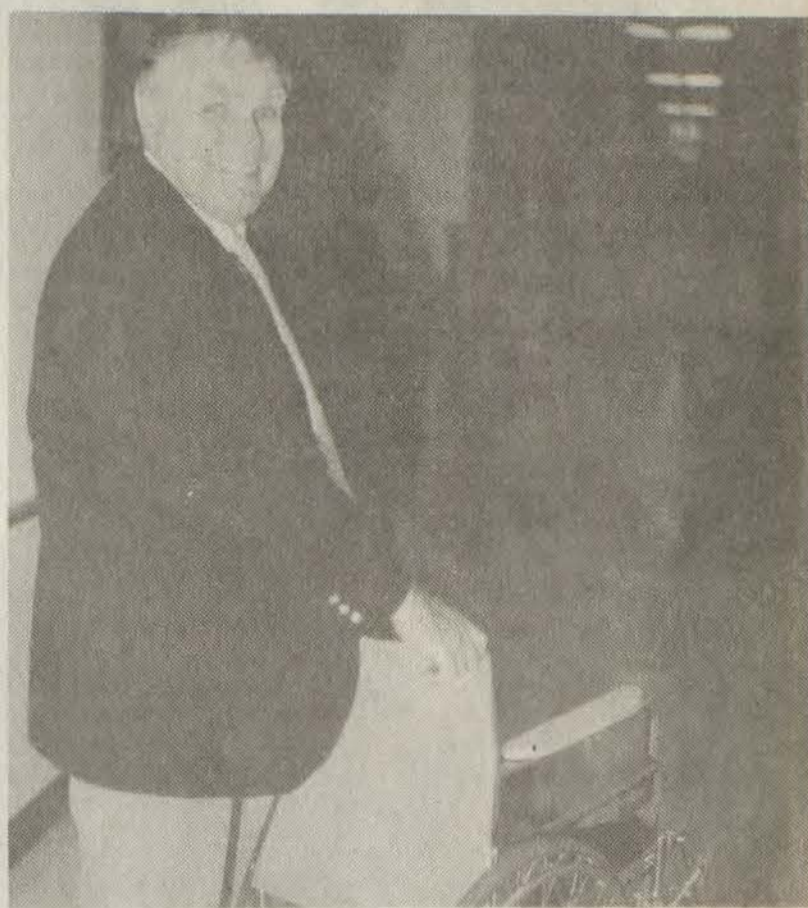

Sometimes children are just plain tired or not feeling well and need to go home.

**Keep in mind that children are a part of the dinner party and, as such, should be included in the conversation. It's a good time to talk with kids about school, sports and new friends they've made. And be a good listener!

What can parents do to make the restaurant visit with a child more pleasant?

Says Kelly, "Relax and be patient. Tell your child and show him by your actions that you are glad to have him with you."

"Mealtime should be 'quality time' for a family. Parents and children should make the most of it."

The Log Cabin, Part 6

Work was hard, but life was good

by Barbara P. Martin
Contributing Writer

These isolated farms housed hundreds of animals. Chickens, geese, ducks, sheep, hogs, cows, guineas and sometimes turkeys were available to grace the family table at mealtime. Outside the kitchen door, a short distance from the house, was a log smokehouse. Pork preserved in salt, or by smoking, was stored there until needed.

Horses and mules were kept to share the workload. Late in the evenings at feed time, the air was explosive with animal squeals, grunts, baas, etc. It was quite a sight to see all the animals clamoring to be fed. The food supply of hay and corn had been raised on the farm.

It was truly a kingdom with all needs supplied through planning and effort. It was a good life. Even though the work was hard, all shared by performing tasks suitable for his size, strength and age.

People were very close in isolated areas such as Wilson's Creek. This has been handed down to the present day. The Ratliff heirs have built their homes in close proximity to the center of the original family nucleus. During the time of my original study of the cabin, I found several members of the clan busily enjoying an Easter Sunday picnic.

Among the group was Tommy Moore, who was in his early '90s. He gave me information about the scaffolding needed to build a cabin. Moore's stories are among the jewels of the interviews, which I added to the Appalachian Oral History Department archives at Alice Lloyd College.

The Oldtime Funeral

Feeling the need to do a first-hand interview regarding this story, I visited Susie Click Hicks of Mousie. She is a granddaughter of S.P. Ratliff. After his death in 1933, her mother Mrs. Joe Click, Roberta (or Robert, since no one ever pronounced the "a"), heired a plot next door to the cabin. We visited there after a funeral once. Susie thought it might have been for Bill Frasure, as he was buried in a cemetery similar to the one I described to her.

Many people attended in spite of the fact that the site was hard to reach.

COOKING WITH 'CUKES'

Happy Independence Day

For a summer "pick-me-up" that's a little different — cool and refreshing, but low in fat and calories — try munching a cucumber. Due to its 95 percent water content, the inside of a cucumber can be 20 degrees cooler than the outside air on a hot day, making it a real cool cuke.

A fresh cucumber provides a lot of crunch, with only about 40 calories in a medium-sized cucumber. And, while it's not a nutritional powerhouse, a cuke can provide nearly a quarter of the recommended daily allowance of vitamin C.

It's a cool and pleasant way to get at least some of the recommended five or more daily servings of fruits and vegetables advised by the American Institute of Cancer Research and other health groups.

Look for cucumbers no longer than seven inches and not overly large in diameter with good green color all over. Dull, yellow or puffy cucumbers with shriveled ends can be tough and have a bitter flavor. Because of their high moisture content, cukes must be refrigerated and kept from drying out. Store them in a perforated plastic bag in your vegetable bin or in a brown paper bag near the bottom of your refrigerator.

Most cucumbers are eaten raw or pickled and are particular favorites in salads or cold soups. For a change, instead of crackers, try cucumber slices, topped with lowfat cheese spread. Cucumber boats (a cucumber cut lengthwise with seeds scooped out) are an attractive way to serve your favorite summer salad.

Cucumbers' subtle flavor combines well with herbs such as basil, chervil, chives, dill, mint and parsley.

At home on tables throughout the world, cucumbers are found on a Scandinavian smorgasbord or in an Indian "raita" to cool the fiery tastes of curry and spices. The following recipe is the perfect accompaniment to a dish like chicken teriyaki. With its interesting oriental flavor, this salad is like eating pickles — without the salt.

CUCUMBER ORIENTAL

1/2 lb cucumbers (about 1 medium)
2 Tbsps white vinegar
2 Tbsps water
2 tsps soy sauce (low sodium if desired)

1 tsp sugar
Cut off the ends of the cucumber and discard. Score the skin of the cucumber lengthwise with a fork so that it is marked with parallel lines. Peel or leave the skin on as you prefer. Cut the cucumber in half lengthwise and scoop out the seeds. Cut the halves crosswise into thin slices.

Stir together all the remaining ingredients in a non-metal bowl. Add the cucumber slices, stir to coat well, cover and let marinate at least 20 minutes. This recipe will provide 2 servings of 1 cup each. Each serving contains 28 calories and no fat.

If a hot cup of soup really warms you up on a cold winter's day, then why not serve a chilled bowl of soup to cool you down on a hot summer's day? Summer soups are lighter than their winter counterparts, relying more on fresh vegetables and fruits and less on meat and legumes.

Since most cold soups must be cooked first and then cooled, they are a perfect make-ahead dish for summer entertaining. Most require at least four to five hours of refrigeration before serving. But you can speed things up by using a metal bowl or by starting the process in the freezer (being careful not to let the soup freeze).

Try this mild, refreshing soup as a perfect cooler on a hot summer day, or as an accompaniment to a hot and spicy meal.

COLD CUCUMBER-YOGURT SOUP

2 cups plain low-fat yogurt
1 cup skim milk
2 cups cucumbers, peeled and chopped
3 scallions, chopped
2 Tbsp dried dill (or 1/4 cup fresh)
Several dashes of pepper to taste

Place all the ingredients in a blender or food processor and blend until smooth. Cover and refrigerate at least 1-2 hours (or overnight). Serve, garnished with an additional bit of chopped dill or scallions if desired. This recipe yields 4 servings, each containing 2 grams of fat and 105 calories.

****

The following recipe features a light cucumber-dill sauce that provides the perfect accent for fish and proves that not all sauces need to be high in fat and calories.

FISH FILLETS WITH CUCUMBER-DILL SAUCE
1 lb fish fillets, fresh or frozen, thawed haddock, sole, cod or other fish)

Small amount of lemon juice
Cucumber-Dill Sauce:
1 lb cucumbers, shredded (about 2 cups)
1 cup plain lowfat yogurt
1—1/2 tsp lemon juice
3 tsp fresh snipped dill (or 3/4 tsp dried)
1/4—1/2 tsp white pepper

Place the fillets in a lightly oiled baking dish. Squeeze the lemon juice lightly over the top. Bake, covered, at 450 degrees for 8-10 minutes or until the fillets flake easily with a fork. While the fish bakes, prepare the sauce.

Peel the cucumbers, slice lengthwise, scrape out the seeds and coarsely shred. Place in skillet along with yogurt, lemon juice, dill and pepper, mix well and cook over low heat until sauce is hot. Transfer fish to serving plate and top with sauce, about 1/2 cup per serving.

This recipe with produce 4 servings with about 130 calories and 1 gram of fat each.

Higher meat prices give kick to state food index

from KY FARM BUREAU
Rising prices at the meat counter during May gave a kick to Kentucky's food price index, pushing the indicator up nearly a dollar to $71.18, according to Kentucky Farm Bureau's marketbasket survey.

The index, which represents the average retail cost of a 40-item marketbasket, had fallen three months in a row through April, when it stood at $70.20. But higher prices for beef and pork in May overrode the effects of cheaper poultry and dairy products and left food costs at their highest level since February.

Nine of 10 red meat selections showed higher price tags in May, as sharp reductions in hog and cattle numbers on farms combined to force prices higher throughout the meat marketing chain.

In percentage terms, beef prices rose 4.8 percent and pork shot up 5.3 percent. Popular outdoor barbecue items like pork chops and T-bone steaks led the surge, but such staples as ground beef, bacon and sausage were also more expensive.

Poultry and eggs countered the upward trend, showing a price reduction of 7.8 percent. Chicken breasts were 19 cents a pound cheaper, averaging $1.87, while large eggs at 74 cents a dozen, were selling 17 cents below April levels.

Dairy prices dropped a modest one percent, as tabs on milk and ice cream reflected decreases. Two percent milk sold at $2.07 average per gallon, down nine cents from the previous month. Ice cream, the subject of major summertime price promotions by dairy suppliers, dropped 12 cents per half gallon.

Among vegetables, prices on cucumbers, peppers and tomatoes all fell, but those drops were offset by higher costs for lettuce and potatoes. Grain-based foods were 2.5 percent higher, on the strength of more costly wheat bread and vegetable oil.

Most rabbits are nocturnal creatures, preferring to eat and play from dusk until dawn. During the day they rest and sleep.

Log Cabin

straight up the point, which rises at the end of the Ratliff land.

Uncle Harry Lee Moore arrived on a beautiful horse, with saddle and stirrups squeaking. (We had always pronounced his name 'Hair-lee' or 'Har-lee'.

He was not a tall man, but bronzed in the sun, with handlebar mustache, brown hat and clothing to match. I can still see him in my mind's eye, riding a nice brown saddlehorse straight up the hill.

Some younger men offered to help him dismount, but he stayed in the saddle, as it was too much of a problem to remount. He was in his 90s. The horse picked grass a little as he sat and listened to the sermon, before starting back to Turkey Creek where he lived. The deceased had probably been a good friend of his to cause him to take such a long trip at his age.

When the service was over, the congregation left the hill to have dinner with someone who lived near. This was the practice. We chose to go home with Susie. She was a good friend of my mother, and she had extended invitations.

Sometimes the dinner announcements were made to the whole crowd as soon as the sermon ended. They told who all had prepared to feed the people and how to get to their house. Lots of people went to such meetings to get a good dinner. All were welcome.

Remember, this was the time when everyone raised their food and there was no scarcity. Apple pies would be stacked four or more deep on one plate. Cream pies would have to be given their own space, as they were covered with deep meringue and could not be stacked. Some cakes were put above the level of the table on a cake stand. In that case, you eyed the one you chose to have for dessert and hoped there was still some left by the time you were ready to have yours.

Ladies waited table to help serve the food and to run off any stray insects buzzing through.

Huge containers held large amounts of green beans, traditional chicken and dumplings, corn on the cob and sometimes cut off corn, as well, to accommodate the needs of someone who could not eat it on the cob because of loss of teeth. Potato salad might also be joined on the table by mashed potatoes or fried potatoes. Vinegar slaw and leaf lettuce also were placed on the groaning table.

Dishes were crowded as thick as they could be set. Cooked prunes, fried sulfur apples, pickled corn, roast pork, everything that the cook could imagine to fix in order to have enough.

The Clicks' tables were loaded with food in the kitchen also, waiting to be served. People filled the places set at the dining table and left as soon as they had completed their meal. Immediately, a clean plate was set down for another person to come in to eat.

Some gracious person would go through the house, asking those in the various rooms and on the porch, if they had already eaten, for fear that someone would be missed. Very few were too bashful to eat, but many held back shyly, saying that they were not very hungry, but maybe they had better eat for the long walk home.

While people were rotating through the dining room, guests sat about the house, inside and out, talking. It was hard to decide where you wanted to wait your turn, so you listened in each room and on the porch for the conversation in session. Then you joined the group whose talk suited you best.

Youngsters gathered together and played games outside until they were called to eat. Small children prowled through the rooms getting corrected by any adult who saw that correction was needed. Already fed from their mothers' laps, they were ready for fun.

The infants were either held by adults or, if asleep, they were on the beds snoozing away.

Persons wishing to discard outer garments had to watch that a blanket on the bed did not contain a sleeping child before placing their sweater, coat, shawl upon it.

Some infants woke up frightened at being in unfamiliar surroundings, and the mother would come flying, uttering words of comfort. It was the responsibility of all to notify the mother, as quickly as possible, when an infant awoke. Crawlers placed on the beds might have an adult relative, or an older brother or sister, sitting nearby with the specific job to remove them from bed as soon as they awoke, for fear of their falling off and being injured.

Next: Pride in ownership.

Science is changing foods

by Patricia A. Leatham

US Food & Drug Administration
The new biotechnology, a scientific revolution less than 20 years old, is beginning to change the foods we eat.

Cloning, genetic manipulation, cell fusion and mutation may seem like fantasies out of Star Trek, but these scientific processes are being applied to tomatoes, milk and other foods.

One current focus of research is a tomato genetically engineered to stay firm far longer than an ordinary tomato. Its developer claims that it looks the same, feels the same and tastes the same as other tomatoes, and its nutritional value is identical.

Waiting in the wings is another tomato plant altered to contain a bacterial protein toxic to plant-attacking insects but not to other living things. The primary issue with both of these "new" tomatoes is whether the introduction of single new properties might mask other unforeseen changes as well.

The ultimate question may be how many properties can be changed in an organism before it becomes something else. A tomato improved in one specific way seems obviously to still be a tomato, but does it remain one if you alter it in 10 ways or 20?

When traditional methods crossed the tangerine with a grapefruit, the new genetic structure was clearly something else, now sold as a tangelo. The new biotech questions are far more subtle. FDA must grapple with concepts of this sort as it considers the many new biotech food applications now being developed.

Most address foods in ways that can't readily be seen — by improving nutrition content, preventing spoilage, or even eliminating the need for chemical pesticides.

Most of the new biotech projects now in the works would do little to affect the taste or appearance of food, although a few promise to improve the flavors and consistency of some vegetables or reduce the fat content of some meats.

"Biotech Burgers" won't be available at your neighborhood fast food emporiums soon. Apples the size of pumpkins aren't right around the corner.

But there may soon be the option of buying low-fat, low-cholesterol steaks, long-lasting nutritionally and superior vegetables and fruits abundant because of an extended growing season — all courtesy of the new biotechnology.

Cholesterol not just a concern of adults

There are some children whose battle with cholesterol begins about the same time they learn to walk.

These are children born with lipid disorders, children whose cholesterol levels would make an adult nervous. About five percent of children between the ages of five and 18 have cholesterol levels over 200. As the numbers climb, so does the risk. Children with cholesterol levels higher than 500 stand a good chance of developing coronary heart disease and subsequently suffering a heart attack before the age of 20.

But at age four, high cholesterol is a silent menace, layering its fat deposits year after year without outward indication. And unless a child is tested for cholesterol, the problem may go unrecognized for decades.

Thanks to Alliant Health System's Community Trust Fund grants, lipid testing is growing in frequency among the offices of the area's general pediatricians. Louisville's Lipid Resource Center, founded by pediatricians Glenn R. Stout Jr., D. Geraldine Paxton and Stephen P. Wright, now routinely offers cholesterol testing to their patients and statistical cholesterol findings to other area pediatricians. The largely inner-city University Child Health Specialists' clinic also offers the testing.

As an extension of the resource center, Kosair Children's Hospital and the University of Louisville Department of Pediatrics in March opened the Preventive Pediatric Cardiology Service. A multidisciplinary effort, the clinic follows patients identified with lipid disorders or at risk for developing high cholesterol levels.

Headed by Dr. Allan H. Rees, the clinic saw its first patients on March 28.

A battery of specialists combine expertise to offer nutritional evaluation and therapy, drug treatment, evaluation and management of high blood pressure, exercise and pulmonary function testing, and smoking prevention and cessation counseling.

In general, children with lipid abnormalities who don't respond to dietary and exercise therapy through their pediatricians will be referred to the clinic.

"Dietary changes are the first step," says Dr. Rees. "We insist on diet and we're prepared to be aggressive about the issue through the dietitians working with us." The clinic plans to maintain close contact with families, pediatricians or the family's doctor, reevaluating patients after several months.

For children whose cholesterol remains very high — over 185 in spite of aggressive dietary modifications — drug therapy will be instituted. Because cholesterol is an important element of cell metabolism, cholesterol-lowering agents must be used more conservatively than with adults, says Dr. Rees.

"As pediatric cardiologists, we were trained to treat congenital heart disease, but we never had a chance to prevent heart disease," said Dr. Rees. "This is a positive step and I am very optimistic about its success."

Kosair Children's Hospital is a 227-bed pediatric tertiary care center. It is the pediatric teaching hospital for the University of Louisville School of Medicine.

Beware of arthritis quackery

Unproven remedies from copper bracelets and uranium mines to snake venom and megavitamins are being tried at least once by most of the 37 million Americans with arthritis, according to the Arthritis Foundation.

In addition, one study shows that one in 10 people trying an unproven remedy for arthritis reports harmful side effects.

There are an estimated 500,000 people with arthritis in Kentucky alone. People with arthritis often turn to unproven remedies because they get impatient or discouraged with traditional treatment methods for arthritis.

"It often takes time for doctors to diagnose the exact form of arthritis and find a medication that works best for the person being treated. Meanwhile, the persistent pain of arthritis is strong motivation to try anything that people think may help," said John L. Cowan, MD, co-chairman of the Medical and Scientific Committee of the Arthritis Foundation's Kentucky Chapter.

Unproven arthritis remedies are treatments that have not been proven through proper research to be safe and effective. According to Dr. Cowan, many unproven remedies for arthritis are harmless, such as mineral springs or vinegar and honey.

Others have unknown effects on the body, such as fish oil, been venom and special diets.

Still other unproven remedies have harmful effects and should not be tried, such as snake venom, large doses of vitamins, DMSO and drugs from other countries with hidden ingredients. In fact, a survey for the Department of Health and Human Services shows one in 10 people trying an unproven remedy for arthritis report harmful side effects.

However, the effect of any unproven remedy may be harmful if it encourages a person to slow down or stop prescribed medical treatment, possibly resulting in greater damage to joints or loss of movement.

Arthritis Foundation chapters nationwide have information about both proven and unproven treatments and can help to answer questions. In general, Dr. Cowan says to suspect a treatment as an unproven remedy if it:

- * Claims to cure arthritis or works for all types of arthritis
- * Uses only case histories or testimonials as proof
- * Cites only one study as proof or a study without a control group
- * Does not list contents or has no directions for proper use
- * Has no information or warnings about side effects
- * Claims it's based on a secret formula or is available only from one source

Kentucky Real Estate Commission

Q. We have been receiving information in the mail regarding timeshare developments and resorts. Can you tell me what a timeshare is and how it works?

A. A timeshare is an arrangement where the buyer gets the right to use and occupy the premises at a particular recurring time block each year. It is a form of communal ownership which allows multiple purchasers to buy an interest in property usually located in a resort or vacation area.

The program can offer the purchase of a condominium unit or apartment for a specific time period each year. Others use a rotation system whereby the occupant can purchase a different time period each year. Each owner is typically charged a fee to provide yearly maintenance services for the property.

Under KRS 324.142, any person or organization who engages in sales of a promotional nature in this state for time share property must apply to the Kentucky Real Estate Commission for approval. Also, any such promotion of property located outside Kentucky, whether time share or not, must also be approved by the Kentucky Real Estate Commission. Developments requesting approval must submit a registration form, copies of all sales contracts, promotional materials, articles of incorporation or partnership, and other such documentation as required under KREC regulation 201 KAR 11:180. Approval must be obtained from the Kentucky Real Estate Commission prior to promoting the property to Kentucky residents.

All sales contracts used in the sale of timeshare units must provide a specified cancellation clause for consumers. Violations of the statute or regulation or failure to comply with the cancellation provisions can result in revocation of the development's approval to market and sell timeshare units in Kentucky.

Any person who is contemplating any purchase of this nature is cautioned to make certain they understand fully of the requirements and regulations governing these type of developments.

The Kentucky Attorney General's Office under the authority of statutes KRS 367.470-367.480 governs recreational and retirement use land sales. Questions on this type of development should be directed to the Attorney General's Office of Consumer Protection.

If you have other real estate questions, please contact the Kentucky Real Estate Commission, 10200 Linn Station Road, Suite 201, Louisville, Kentucky 40223; (502) 425-4273.
