A few clouds.....

The weatherman says it will be partly sunny today with the high in the lower 80s. Tonight look for partly cloudy skies with the low in the lower 60s. Tomorrow should be mostly cloudy with the high in the lower 80s. Tomorrow night is expected to be mostly cloudy with a low in the lower 70s. Uuuuummm.

Mine Safety Class offered at PCC

Prestonsburg Community College, in conjunction with Floyd Engineering Company and through a grant from Bluegrass State Skills Corporation, is offering a 24-hour (surface) and 48-hour (underground) mine safety class. As soon as 15 registrants sign up, the class will begin. To register, call 886-3863, ext. 278.

Dance for Special Olympics

A fund-raising event for Area 16 Special Olympics is set for Friday, Aug. 3, at 7 p.m. at the Blue Goose gym, next to Hardee's in Pikeville. The Hillbilly Square Dancers will perform. Tickets are $2.50.

The organization also plans a horse show at Archer Park on Aug. 11 at 7 p.m.

For information, call Floyd County director Kim Tackett of Hi Hat at 452-2828.

Pass it on

Word is that many people who received flyers in the mail from the Floyd County Bicentennial Committee tossed them out without realizing their value. The material dealt with the Floyd County history book, now being planned in preparation for the state's 200th birthday in 1992.

The committee is soliciting histories of families, communities, churches, schools, businesses, etc., for inclusion in the high quality, keepsake book. It'd be a shame to publish a history of the county without including a wide variety of people and places.

For information, contact the chairman of the Bicentennial Committee, James O. VanHoose at The Bank Josephine, 886-9101, or the folks who are working on the book, Phyllis Honshell and Sandra Robertson at PCC, 886-3863, or Carolyn Traum at the Bookworm, 886-8228.

Clean-up reset

Saturday, Aug. 4 is the rain date for the clean up of KY 1428 from Lancer to Allen. Employees from R&S Trucking, Worldwide Equipment and May Metal are reminded to meet at 8 a.m. to clean up the roadway and motorists are reminded to drive safely and watch for people along the side of the road.

Hearing on Aging

The Big Sandy Area Agency on Aging will hold a public hearing regarding the amendment to the 1991 Area Aging Plan due to expansion of the Homecare and Adult Day Care program. The hearing will be Tuesday, Aug. 7 at 11 a.m. at the Prestonsburg Senior Citizens Center, Archer Park. The public is invited to attend.

Dropouts targeted by grant

Congressman Chris Perkins announced Monday that the Appalachian Regional Commission has approved $600,000 in funding to continue a state-sponsored program designed to encourage Eastern Kentucky students to stay in school.

The ARC's grant will be channeled to the Kentucky Department of Local Government and will be used exclusively to discourage students in Eastern Kentucky schools from dropping out, according to Perkins.

"Education is the key to the future of Eastern Kentucky, and I wholeheartedly support the state's continued commitment toward encouraging students to stay in school," Perkins said. "The more children that stay in school, the better chance we have to make our region a more attractive place for business and a better place to live."

The project, administered by the Kentucky Department of Education, uses various approaches to dropout prevention and is currently implemented in 25 Eastern Kentucky counties.

The ARC's portion of the grant amounts to almost three-quarters of the program's total cost of $802,832. Of the remaining funds, the Commonwealth will provide $34,830, with the rest coming from local sources.

Sheriff's officers find drugs, check out 'strange behavior'

The Floyd County Sheriff's Office released information this week on a drug raid in Martin that was conducted on July 13.

Deputies Larry Newsome, Danny Jarrell, Roy Compton and Chief Deputy Linzie Hunt, along with Kentucky State Police Troopers Lloyd Stapleton and Les Stapleton, conducted a drug raid on the home of Linda and Anthony Salisbury of Pageant Heights in Martin and seized 10 doses of LSD or "blotter acid".

Both Anthony and Linda Salisbury were later arrested and charged with possession of illegal drugs. LSD is listed as a schedule 1 narcotic.

More recently deputies were given an anonymous tip that a marijuana patch was growing in Stratton Branch.

Chief Deputy Linzie Hunt and Deputy Lloyd Powers investigated the area Saturday and found seven marijuana plants which were confiscated.

Later that evening, Chief Deputy Hunt was called to investigate reports of a woman displaying "strange behavior" near the dam at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

The year was 1909. Patients were brought to the new hospital in Martin by train and pushed across an open field into the offices of the new Beaver Valley Hospital.

Dr. Walker Stumbo and his brother, Ed Stumbo, a dentist, had built the hospital to help serve the people of Floyd County.

"I remember when I was in the old Beaver Valley hospital for surgery in the late '30s," said Opal Martin of Allen. "There was a little boy across the hall from me, and he was very ill. What I most remember was Dr. Walk Stumbo. He spent the entire night walking the halls and praying to the Lord for that little boy. I worked as a nurse for years at other hospitals and seeing that really left an impression on me because it was the only time that I ever heard a doctor pray like that."

The Beaver Valley Hospital, which holds memories for many Floyd Countians, will soon exist only in memories as it undergoes demolition to make room for a parking lot.

"It was nice to have (the hospital). In those days there wasn't anything else," said Anna Jones, 83, of Hi Hat. "The train was the only way of getting there. You had to go in the early morning or late at night."

Jones explained that while she was never a patient at the hospital, her father and brother both had amputations performed there, and one of her grandchildren was born there in 1946.

"There are many memories of the hospital. But, in my day we didn't go to the hospital just to have a baby," she said.

JW Summer Theatre sets Homecoming

by Kathleen Carroll Contributing Writer

As the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre moves into the last month of its 1990 season, plans are being made to remember and appreciate all who have worked to make summer stock a 26-year-old tradition in Floyd County.

The annual Homecoming Cabaret is slated for Monday, Aug. 13, at the amphitheater at Jenny Wiley State Resort Park.

"I would like to see the time when this theater would have one night each season when everybody who has ever been associated with it — board member, volunteer, actor, technician, musician, someone who has helped to raise funds — thinks of this as a time to come home to see their old friends," said general manager Tedi Vaughan.

"They become like family. Lots of

Flush that idea

Public toilets create local stir

Work has been halted on the public restroom being built in the Municipal Parking Lot, downtown Prestonsburg, because of a stink being raised by area residents.

According to Fred James, city administrator, the project has been planned for two years, and monies were budgeted to build the joint restroom/storage building. A public notice had been placed in the newspaper, and city council members had discussed where to place the building.

The idea, James said, was to have a building that housed conventional toilets, was handicap accessible and easily cleaned. It was also to be used as a storage place for street cleaning supplies presently housed in a closet at the city hall.

James noted that the building was proposed to be open from about 8 a.m. to 4:30 p.m. at which time it would be locked, unless a festival or other special activity was going on.

Apparently, last week the start of the construction caused an uproar among residents who live in the area of the site, across from the courthouse and post office, and a petition was started in protest of the project.

"They are going to have problems keeping it clean," said one resident of the neighborhood who asked to not be identified. "There should have been more public input on it. It might not have been so bad if they would put it on the other end of the parking lot, away from people's homes."

"I think it's terrible," said Rose Collins, who lives and works in the home near the proposed site. "We already have public restrooms in the courthouse right across the street. I just don't think it will work."

Collins explained that she felt the public restroom could not be properly maintained without a full time attendant and that the facility would produce an offensive odor in the neighborhood around the site.

A petition is being circulated by area residents in an effort to halt the construction of the facility. The petition will be presented to members of the city council at their next regular meeting Aug. 13, at 7 p.m.

According to James, the city council will hear from those in opposition at the council meeting and then decide whether to continue the project as planned. He said there are several ways that the project could be altered, such as having the restrooms only open during festival time, that may solve the problem.

"We really had no idea that there would be opposition to this and that it was not a needed project," James said. "So, we are waiting to see just what the objection is and then decide how best to handle it."

MC fire leads to one arrest

A trailer fire on Middle Creek early Saturday morning has resulted in the arrest of a woman by the Kentucky State Police on an arson charge.

According to Glen Vaughan of the Middle Creek Volunteer Fire Department, he and six others responded to a call at about 12:30 a.m. Saturday.

Vaughan, who was the first on the scene with the fire truck, said that the residents had already put out the exterior blaze with a fire extinguisher. The home suffered about $1200 damage to its screened-in back porch, Vaughan estimated.

Eddie Pelphrey and his wife and two daughters had been in Lexington while her father was having open heart surgery and returned "just in the nick of time" to put out the fire at their home, Vaughan said.

Since the fire was of suspicious nature, Vaughan called in the Floyd County Sheriff's Department and KSP to investigate. Trooper Les Stapleton was the investigating officer who later arrested Janice Prater, a neighbor who lived behind the Pelphreys, on a charge of arson.

Fire destroys Compton home

Members of the Mud Creek Volunteer Fire Department responded to a fire early yesterday morning at John Hall Branch in which a dwelling was destroyed.

Firefighters received a call at 2:55 a.m. Tuesday, regarding a fire at the home of Otto "Charles" Compton.

Four members of the fire department responded to the blaze with two trucks. The firemen battled the early morning blaze, running out of water at one point and being forced to make a second run, according to Chief Evans Davis.

No injuries were reported, and the cause of the fire has not been determined.

Firefighters were on the scene until about 5 a.m.

Local agencies resent spill regulations

Part 2
by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

The Occupational Safety and Health Administration is not making any friends with its ordinance on hazardous waste spills and releases. OSHA so controls the actions of any responding units to spills as common as truck fuel and chlorine that any local efforts are extremely hampered.

Now before any fire department can shut off the source of the spill, the firefighter needs to be specially trained and have specialized safety equipment. The responding agency also must report to a series of agencies or face a fine upwards of $10,000 and a year in jail.

Prestonsburg Fire Chief Tom Blackburn said that he was really perturbed when OSHA enacted these regulations. In fact, he said, half of the fire departments on hand last October when the regulations were introduced got up and left and didn't even hear the rest of the speech about what they can and cannot do.

He said it seemed unreasonable that OSHA has demanded the need for specially trained personnel and technical equipment, yet has refused to set up a team or provide funding for regions to assemble one.

"The cities and counties are liable to make sure their people are trained and OSHA will fine people," said David Chaffins of Disaster and Emergency Services.

"They've almost put fire departments out of business handling stuff that we've handled for 100 years," Blackburn said. "We are all suffering under all this, the only difference is that we are making the step that everybody will eventually have to make. They may hold it off for the next two or three years until somebody gets fined or something. The city has made it a point to go on and deal with this and work with the program and avoid any fines we can."

According to the law, untrained personnel are not allowed on the scene. This requires that all firefighters and police officers be trained, not all to the same extent. There are four levels of training: 1) Awareness, which enables a person to identify the substance and then evacuate the area if it is hazardous; 2) Operations, which enables some diking and containment of the spill substance; 3) Technician, a person trained with the proper equipment to stop or slow a leak by plugging a hole or turning a valve, etc.; and 4) Specialist, someone who can conduct cleanup operations and all the other needed actions.

Chief Blackburn, Chaffins and one other firefighter have been trained to the Technician level. Two other Prestonsburg firefighters are presently at the EPA School in Cincinnati. According to Blackburn, all local firefighters will be trained to the Operations level. He said he sees no need to go to the specialist level since that is not an emergency concern and cleanup operations can be contracted out.

"Our people will be technicians and operations. The law, and that's what makes this thing a little bit hairy for any of us, says anybody going to this scene will be at the operational level. Any police officers blocking traffic, by law they have to be at the operational level, they have to take so much training."

"According to your levels of training, you can only go to certain zones," Blackburn said. "And if you have no training whatsoever, you don't need to be where that overturned truck is leaking product around the soles of your shoes. He needs to be back at the cold zone, blocked off where you are protected and you have the public back there where they are protected. These are laws, and if you allow someone in those zones and they become contaminated then you are subject to fine. All of our hands are tied on this. If you have no training, that's when you get into problems."

Every incident has zones around it. The first and most dangerous zone is the "hot" zone. The next is the "warm" zone, meaning there is no danger of being in contact with the product, and then there is a "cold" zone, which means you are beyond any contamination.

The proposed HazMat Team would be equipped and trained to go all the way into the hot zone, fix the problem and come back out. The closest such team is at Ashland, but they are there for Ashland Oil Company, according to Chaffins.

Anybody who works a hazardous material incident must be at the operational level, even in the cold zone. All emergency personnel should at least be at the awareness level. That way, if they respond to an accident and someone is injured they will be able to identify hazardous situations and leave the scene. These requirements put quite a burden and responsibility especially on volunteers.

The required training doesn't mean everyone has to go to EPA School; the training will be offered here through vocational education and some local instructors with DES such as Major Larry Adams of the Prestonsburg department, Chaffins said. "If they are going to work incidents, they have to be trained."

These are not DES policies, but state and federal OSHA regulations that DES is the coordinating agency for. The DES ordinance discussed at Fiscal Court (on Friday, July 20) was only an ordinance for a county or city government to pass to recoup county funds spent on a hazardous material incident from the person responsible for the spill.

Chaffins' intent was to get something on the local level so that the municipality can direct-bill the company that spills the material. Since this is not the county's ordinary line of business, it could not bill for the spill without this ordinance. More than likely local material will be used on a local spill, so this protects the county.

The coordinating effort between the five surrounding counties has already begun for the establishment of a regional hazardous material reaction team, Chaffins said. Until then all they can do is what they have been doing since March, observing, reporting, and acting according to the law.

these people have fond memories of Jenny Wiley Theatre," Vaughan said. "We invite them to come home and spend an evening with us. If they want to perform, they can. If they just want to come and enjoy the show, they can."

Vaughan said that more than 1000 actors and actresses have performed here since the theater began in 1964. Added to this number are hundreds more technicians, musicians and volunteers.

The main problem, the manager explained, is reaching all of the people to invite them. Actors and musicians tend to change addresses frequently, and even some local supporters of the theater have moved out of the area.

"We want to make certain that everyone associated with the theater, present or past, is invited; but because records have been poorly kept, we may not have a current address," Vaughan said, adding that anyone who has been associated with the theater should not wait for an invitation to the gala.

"Don't hesitate to call us and tell us we missed you," she said. "We will make every effort to accommodate you."

"While we gather together as a family, we would also like people to join our family. If you are new to the audience or new to the area, please come and enjoy an evening of entertainment," she said.

The present season's company has already begun rehearsing the entertainment for the Cabaret on Aug. 13. The program will feature songs, dances and vignettes from the troupe's favorite Broadway shows, not necessarily the current season's productions. A big company production number is planned.

Alumni of the theater are welcome to audition and perform. Auditions are set for Aug. 2. Call the theater for time and details.

Hors d'oeuvres will be provided for the 7 p.m. reception on Aug. 13, with Cabaret entertainment following at 8:30 p.m. The cost will be $25 per person.

Because limited seating is available, all are encouraged to respond by Aug. 8. For more information, call the box office at 886-9274.

When Seconds Count, Think Of Us First.

The number one killer in Kentucky and the nation is heart disease, and it can strike at any time. That's why Our Lady of the Way Hospital is now part of the Heart Emergency Network, a system designed to reduce the time between the onset of a heart attack and the initiation of advanced medical treatment. By combining the resources of Our Lady of the Way Hospital and the Saint Joseph Heart Institute, the Heart Emergency Network assures you of receiving the most advanced cardiac services available.

It's A Matter Of Time.

The sooner a heart attack victim receives treatment, the better the chances for complete recovery. The Heart Emergency Network brings immediate cardiac emergency services to where they're needed most: right here at Our Lady of the Way Hospital. We can administer clot-dissolving drugs right in our Emergency Room, quickly restoring cardiac functions and helping minimize damage to the heart.

And we have a direct 24-hour electronic communication link to the physicians at the Saint Joseph Heart Institute.

Know The Signs.

The first step to saving your heart is to lead a heart-healthy lifestyle, which includes eating a high-fiber, low-fat diet; exercising; and not smoking. The next step is to know the symptoms of a heart attack so that you know when to seek help. The warning signs include:

- Pain, pressure, fullness, or a squeezing sensation in the center of the chest, lasting 2 minutes or longer.
- Severe pain that radiates to the shoulders, arms, or neck.
- Shortness of breath, dizziness, fainting, nausea, or sweating.

Some of these symptoms may not be present, or they may subside and return. Any one of them needs immediate attention, and we're ready to give it, any time, day or night.

Down the drain?

Plans for a public restroom in downtown Prestonsburg have been stopped up, at least for the time being, in response to protests by residents who live in the vicinity of the proposed facility. Work had started last week on preparing the site, at the corner of the municipal parking lot on Central Avenue. Members of City Council are expected to rehash the topic again at their Aug. 13 meeting. (Photo by Tim Preston)

Pet show planned in Pikeville

Pike County Humane Society invites everyone to attend its seventh annual Pet Show to be held Saturday, Aug. 11 in the Pikeville City Park. In case of rain the show will be held at the Pikeville College Gym.

The Pet Show will be a major event in the all new Pike County Fair. Registration is from noon to 1 p.m. and judging begins at 1:30 p.m.

Classes are set up for pedigree and mixed breed cats and dogs and other animals. All pets are welcome. More mixed breed and peculiar animals are urged to attend. No training or tricks are required. For further details, call Mary Wells at 437-7230.

The different classes available for the pets to enter are: Pedigree Dogs (one breed per class), Mixed Breed Large Dogs, Mixed Breed Small Dogs, Puppies, Pedigree Cats and Kittens, Mixed Breed Cats and Kittens, Jr. Exhibitor Obedience (age 14 and under), Sr. Exhibitor Obedience (age 15 and over), Tricks, Other (ferrets, birds, reptiles, etc.)

For the second year in a row, Girl Scout Troop No. 421 will be judging "fun classes" throughout the day. Classes such as: Best Dressed, Shortest Legs, Longest Tail, Oldest Pet, Greenest Eyes, Saddest Eyes and more. Area merchants have donated pet products to be awarded to fun class winners.

Pictures will be made for $3 or $4 for a picture button. Pike County Humane Society will, weather permitting, have a Pet Fair open for public visitation. Shelter residents will be on hand to be adopted to a good home or just to love on for awhile.

Officiating over this year's pet show will be Nancy Meyer Cade, a veteran showperson, Jennifer and Jerry Waddell, Human Society members, and volunteers will again serve as statisticians.

Proceeds will go toward the public education and the spay and neuter program.

Money for new business is topic at seminar

Are you in need of a loan to start your own business? Maybe the business loan seminar on Aug. 2 on the Morehead State University campus will have some answers for you.

In the session, participants will learn what documentation is needed to put together a good loan package. Also included will be the "five C's" in borrowing and why some bank loans are rejected.

The seminar is sponsored by the School of Business and Economics Small Business Development Center at MSU, Morehead/Rowan County Chamber of Commerce, Mt. Sterling/Montgomery County Chamber of Commerce, Buffalo Trace Area Development District, and Gateway Area Development District.

The program will begin at 6 p.m. in the Butler Hall Conference Room. A $5 pre-registration fee is required. Arrangements will be made for the handicapped when requested in advance.

ROADS AND GARBAGE
Have you noticed how the loads of coal in trucks traveling through Prestonsburg seem to have diminished in size. I mean, you can hardly see one single mound extending over the top of the trailer bed.

Could it be because law officials in Boyd County have a scale now to weigh the coal trucks? Is this what happens when someone has the guts to enforce the law? I don't know, but the evidence indicates that it does.

We spoke about the subject of coal trucks and their weight affecting the Bert Combs Bridge last week in this column. Since then, travel has been affected to some degree, and from what we can find out it's going to be affected drastically in the near future.

It's because of the visit last week of Transportation Secretary Milo Bryant who took one look at the load on the bridge and said he had seen enough.

From what I've been told, at the time of Bryant's visit a coal truck just happened to be broken down at the intersection leading off the bridge. Upon seeing the line of other coal trucks backed up on the span, he needed to see no more.

Now the question is, when will the weight limit go into effect? When will the trucks start going toward Salyersville and then to Paintsville, and what do those road signs that have the black plastic covering on them say?

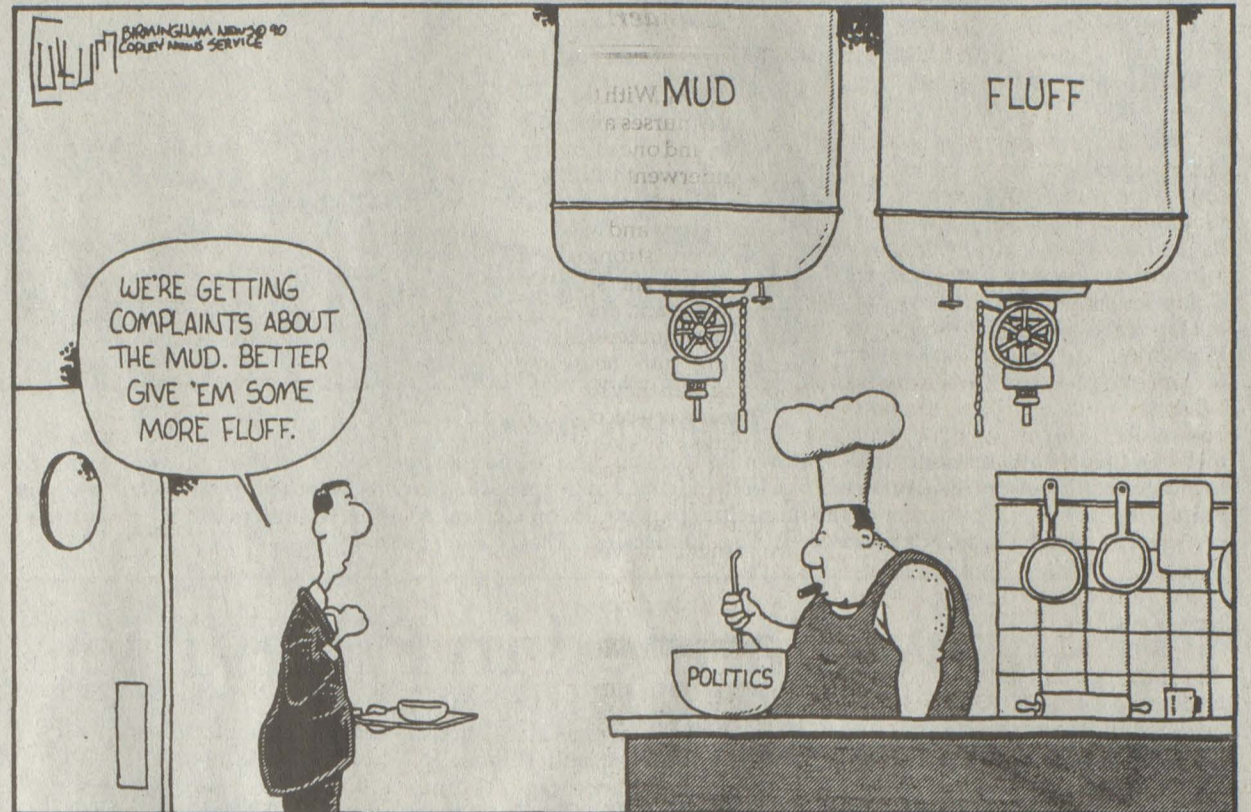

One source says those US 23 road signs, which are covered up, have the wrong weight limit written on them.

A neighbor told me this week that truckers can travel the road toward Salyersville, then turn off to Paintsville and drive the route quicker than going US 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville. Would be interesting to hear from a driver or two and see what their thoughts are on this subject.

Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta and her administration have something that is free, and it's a great plan. With everyone — or at least most everyone — being more clean-up conscious, the City of Prestonsburg has for any business that wants one, a recycle trash can. The way it works, you put the can next to an area that has a pop machine. The cans are put into the recycle can, city workers pick up the soft drink containers regularly, and everyone has a little bit cleaner area.

If you're interested, why don't you call city hall for information, 886-2335.

'Support teachers'

Dear Editor,

It's time we as Floyd County parents and students stand up and say "yes, let's support our teachers."

It's time for the teachers in Floyd County to receive the pay raise they deserve.

Both my parents were, or are at the present time, teachers. From personal experience I know that a teacher does not simply work from 8 a.m. to 3:30 p.m. Many nights, almost every night of the school week, my parents would bring home papers to grade, prepare lessons for the next day, or simply be on the telephone talking to concerned parents. A teaching job does not just end when the school day is over.

Many times I have known my Mom and Dad to pull money out of their pockets to buy school supplies that they knew were needed for their students and classrooms. Supplies needed to help educate your children, that the school system did not supply.

All teachers deserve a salary that goes along with the hours they work. A teacher does not work an eight-hour shift job; but a shift that can run as many as 12 hours a day. Plus our teachers also work many hours on the weekends. School is not simply a job from 8 to 3:30 five days a week, but a seven-day a week job.

Let's show our support for our teachers. Stand up and say "yes" to the raise for our teachers.

Questions actions

Dear Editor,

I attended the Floyd County Solid Waste Commission meeting on July 25, 1990. The members of the commission were asked by Floyd Countians In Action to pass a resolution that would prohibit any commission member from serving on the board of a private, for-profit waste facility in Floyd County. The commission unanimously declined the resolution. This resolution is a state law which governs the Floyd County Fiscal Court. By declining this resolution, the waste commission has placed themselves outside of the law that governs the Fiscal Court which appoints the waste commission members.

At the present time, any commission member can open, own or operate a private waste company in Floyd County and still continue to serve on the Floyd County Solid Waste Commission. A member can also serve on the board of a private waste company.

I certainly hope we aren't going to be exposed to another profit polluting company with little regard for their neighbors or be exposed to a sign that might read, "Bush's Burning Incinerator" or "Caudill's Chemical Waste Management."

'Thank a teacher'

Dear Editor,

What should I say or how shall I begin? I really don't know. Let's start by saying "I AM A TEACHER." I'm proud to be a teacher; but I am not proud of the salaries that we, the teachers in Floyd County, receive.

Do you, the citizens of Floyd County, think that what teachers make is truly enough? No, you don't, because if you did, you would not have signed our petition when one of our teachers asked you.

Did you ever stop to think that when you signed your name to that piece of paper, or any piece of paper, that it was because of a teacher, maybe a first grade teacher who taught you to do that. We all have had teachers who stand out in our minds more so than others. I have, for instance, Mrs. Mary Vance, Miss Ruby Akers, Mrs. Shirley Vanderpool, Mrs. Marie Stumbo, Mr. Lloyd Stumbo, Mr. Sherill Frazier, and last but not least, and surely the most important to me, Mr. Paul Luxmore. It was in a joking manner, that he, Mr. Luxmore, "dared" me to return to school (which I did upon his dare).

I was a dropout. I quit school to get married. I thought the "dream" I had of one day becoming a teacher would never happen. But it did because of a "dare" from my husband. Yes, I was married to the guy who dared me to return to high school, and, in fact, became one of my teachers.

Parents, citizens of Floyd County, do you realize that without teachers where would we be? Without teachers, who would teach your children? You could say that you would; but if you think that, you would be forgetting one very important fact — a teacher or teachers taught you; so that now you are able to help your child or children whenever possible.

I ask all parents and my former students of Floyd County to come to the board meetings, and write letters to the editor in support of salary increases for teachers. Everyone is concerned with the quality of education that our children receive. Help us to help your children receive the best education possible and let's put Floyd County first in the state or in the nation.

Let's show everyone that we, the Floyd Countians, do care about education and what is happening to it. We do want a better education for our children.

See you at the board meetings and, "IF YOU CAN READ THIS, THANK A TEACHER."
—Roberta Luxmore

Still fundraising?

Dear Editor,

Well, here we go again. The Floyd County Board of Education has just reaped the benefits of HB 940, realizing some $4 million, and I have just heard some very disturbing news. While talking to a colleague at the July Board of Education meeting, I was invited to attend a horse show. I thought this was rather interesting since I had not attended a horse show in more than 20 years. I inquired further.

The teacher explained that the horse show was being organized to raise money. Well, that was sort of expected. But then I was shocked to find out what the money was to be used for when raised. The teacher explained that the show was a fundraiser for the new Adams Middle School. I found this peculiar since the school has not even opened its doors as of yet. Maybe the cheerleaders needed new uniforms, I thought. No, that wasn't it. Maybe the football team needed equipment. No, that wasn't it, either. Then what? What could be so pressing, that a new school, from the roof to the furniture, needed to have a fundraiser before the school even opened?

The teacher explained that the money was to be spent on classroom materials for the new school. The teachers were giving up their weekend to hold a fundraiser so that they would have the materials needed to conduct the everyday operation of their NEW school. I feel that this is an insult in the light of HB 940, and the fact that the Floyd County Board of Education has this new money. This is just one more example of what teachers must do and what the Board of Education will not do for the students of Floyd County.

McConnell's Comments

FIGHTING BACK AGAINST OUT-OF-STATE GARBAGE

The problem of garbage being imported into our state has reached crisis proportions. Last year alone, close to a half-million tons of out-of-state waste was dumped in landfills scattered between Ashland and Paducah. The steady stream of trucks coming from New York, New Jersey, Pennsylvania and others threatens to turn our state into the Garbage Barge of America.

In order to turn this situation around, I introduced legislation to give Kentucky officials, and not Washington bureaucrats, control over out-of-state garbage. My bill authorizes either the state or the county where a landfill is located to impose higher dumping fees on out-of-state garbage.

At a recent meeting of the Senate Environment and Public Works Committee, I testified that establishing a national policy which gives states immediate and complete control over out-of-state garbage is an idea whose time has come.

The only way to accomplish this goal is by allowing states to increase tipping fees on imported garbage. The National Governor's Association has endorsed my proposal and called higher fees on imported garbage critical for proper waste management. The environmental organization Friends of the Earth stated that my legislation is the best tool for states to regulate garbage flowing across their borders.

Under certain circumstances, counties may find it economically advantageous for landfills to accept imported garbage. My legislation recognizes this fact and gives officials the flexibility to impose the fees on whomever they choose and in whatever amount they believe is appropriate. The revenue that is raised from this fee can be used by the state or the county to pay for road maintenance to handle the increased number of garbage trucks, help landfill operators meet increased environmental protection standards, or decrease the local tax rate.

Environmentalists and government leaders agree that the only way to regulate or shut-off the flow of out-of-state waste is by giving states the authority to impose dumping fees on imported garbage. My legislation will do exactly that and also provide the groundwork for developing a long-term management plan that emphasizes recycling and other measures that will allow us to dispose of our waste while protecting our fragile environment.

A string along conversation
by Willie Elliott

On a late summer afternoon, you can have a conversation with family and friends on almost any topic. That is, any topic that is current and worn to shreds and more than likely to be the next subject on the Oprah or Geraldo show.

But let someone bring in a bushel or two of green beans to be strung and the level of the conversation rises dramatically.

Before the job is begun, some of the younger members of the family are called to help. Invariably, one of the youngsters will comment, "But I don't like green beans."

This is countered with the stock answer: "They'll be better than snowballs this winter."

My parents always said that to me. Then when winter did come and I ate a snowball for the sheer fun of it, they would scold me. "Don't eat that snowball; it will give you the sore throat."

As everyone settles in to get the beans strung, different jobs are assigned. Some do the stringing and others do the breaking. Each family has a standard of how many times to break. I used to think it was a law that the vegetables had to be broken between each bean. Now I'm told the best way is to break between every two or three beans. Old habits are hard to shake; I break between every bean.

Before three beans have been strung, the group will know at least four people who have beans for sale and how much they are charging. The price quoted always comes in dollars per bushel. This year the standard price seems to be $20 per bushel.

Then the group is treated to a list of people who have canned a large number of beans for the winter. Here it seems everyone tries to get as close as he can to 100 quarts. It doesn't matter if there are two or 12 in the family.

Then Nanny wishes how she had some good beans to dry to make "shuck beans." This sets off someone's taste buds and he delves into the menu for a delicious meal with shuck beans. It always includes shuck beans, buttermilk, corn bread and a big onion. We all agree what a terrific meal that is (except the onion).

About this time, names begin to be bounced around. The typical question will go something like this: Do you remember Old Man So and So? From this point on, one personality after another is discussed.

Everyone has to be careful in these conversations. In these close-knit families of Eastern Kentucky, everyone seems to be related, and if one is not careful, he can offend one that is present. If he is caught, he simply says, "Well, it's the truth." Then we go to another name.

Before long, the beans have all been strung and everyone gets up to go home or do another chore. Now that the beans have gone, the conversation seems to have lost its magic.

What is as rare as a blue moon and more valuable than gold?

I have a really thought provoking question for you. When was the last time that you had a really great day?

Not a good day wherein nothing had happened, but a great day when good things actually happened for you.

For me, I think it had been years since a truly exceptional day wandered into my life. That is until last Friday.

I woke up Friday morning and instead of my normal last minute beat the clock routine, I discovered that I had awakened an hour early. Rather than crawl back into my bed and wait for the alarm to signal its usual foghorn, I turned that sucker off and got up.

Sitting at my kitchen table I watched the usual morning cluster of rabbits, birds and chipmunks while enjoying an oversized bowl of Cap'n Crunch.

I must say that there is probably enough sugar in that stuff to get anyone going in the morning.

Anyway, it was really a very pleasant experience, watching nature's little wonders while enjoying a wave of sugar and artificial sweetener induced euphoria.

Not a bad start. When I got to work, things continued to go my way.

The day started with a bit of a fashion shoot at Watson's in Pikeville. I was working with three children and two teenagers, and to my delight the whole thing went great. None of the kids were crying or being troublesome. Actually they all acted better than some of the professional child models that I photographed with the big studios up north.

Our teenagers were very professional and followed direction without any trouble. If you have ever attempted to photograph a group of young people in the early morning you know how rare it is to find such a good group.

I also had several calls regarding a story that I've been researching, specifically the feature in today's paper on the old Beaver Valley Hospital. Those who shared their memories with me had such fond kindness in their voices that I couldn't help but get infected by it.

What could be better you might ask? How about money!

Out of the blue my former apartmentmate Chris walked into my office with a small but much needed check.

At this point I didn't know whether to sing a few lines from that Zip a Dee Doo Da song or go bet on a horse.

How could it be? Me, having a blessed day?

Then my paranoid mind got back into gear.

By the time quitting time rolled around I was sure that someone I know would be killed in a car wreck or slaughtered by a crazed axe-wielding housewife who had read too many issues of the Weekly World News and The Star.

But, the entire weekend went well and several of my friends showed up for a bring-your-own steak barbecue on Sunday.

Sometimes it takes a slap in the face to see it, but life can be rewarding after all.

***
Before I forget, I want to thank the ladies in the pharmacy at the Martin Rite Aid for their help in providing background information on last Wednesday's story about prescription drug abuse. Their cooperation and input definitely made the piece a better story. Thanks a lot.

Memories

By all accounts, the Beaver Valley Hospital had a humanitarian aspect that has been lost in the high technology medical practice of today. Those who could not pay were treated anyway. If a family member of a patient had nowhere to sleep and nothing to eat, arrangements would be made for the comfort and security of that person.

Mrs. George Knoll of Wayland said that she was married in 1932 and soon after became "with child. We didn't have any money at all, not a dime," Knoll said.

"We had problems with both me and the baby, and my husband and I rode a train in from Wayland. Dr. Walk Stumbo found out that we didn't have any money, and my husband told him that he would have to hitch a ride in from Wayland every day, but Dr. Walk called a boarding house in town and had a tray of food sent up for him every day that we were there. When my husband asked the doctor how much he owed him, Dr. Walk told him that he didn't owe a dime. We lost our baby, but he did save my life."

"He was as tough as nails," Knoll said of Dr. Walker Stumbo. "But I don't think there was ever a better doctor in this area."

Mrs. Joe Hicks of David Road said that she was a patient at Beaver Valley for two weeks in 1930. She was 18 years old and the mother of two young children. "We were there for two weeks and it didn't cost us a dime, we couldn't afford to pay."

Hicks also said that the hospital staff fed and sheltered the mule that she and her husband rode in on. Meals provided at the hospital were served on a long table at which patients sat and ate, "just like we were at home," Hicks said.

Like many of Martin's low lying buildings the Beaver Valley Clinic was prone to flooding. Wanda Gregory, who worked at the hospital until it closed in 1967, said that she helped clean the building after a particularly bad flood shortly before it was closed. "I would have let the flood have it. I don't know why anybody would want to clean up a mess like that."

"I used to love to go into the delivery room and hear the babies make their first cry," Gregory said. "That is just the most beautiful sound in the world."

"My least favorite memory is of when we had to empty those spit cans in the mornings. Those old men with emphysema and lung problems would fill those things up during the night and another girl and I had to empty them. She would start gagging at the smell sometimes and we would both get sick."

It would seem that the compassion of the staff at Beaver Valley did not change, even though the doctors on staff did change through the years. Dr. Claude Allen is remembered as one of the hospital's primary physicians and one of the more dedicated surgeons to practice at the facility.

Estill Jean Endicott of Cow Creek explained that she and her unborn child had been given up to die when she was in Beaver Valley Hospital in 1960. Endicott said that it was during the biggest snowfall of the year with accumulations of two feet or more and Dr. Allen got a jeep to drive to the hospital to work with the dying mother and child. Through his expert care both mother and child survived. Of the incident, Endicott said, "It's something I'll never forget."

When Friday's edition of The Times reached Judy Stauffer in Chillicothe, Ohio, she was prompted to call. "My mother, Madgalene Hamilton, worked at the old hospital in 1952 (as a nurse's aide). And that's where she met her husband Elic Blanton, my father. In fact, I was born there as was one of my brothers."

"I hate to see it torn down. I guess it's called progress," Stauffer said. She added that her mother, who was from Ligon, lived on the third floor of the hospital while she worked there.

Libby Martin, a resident of Wayland, wrote her memories — good and bad — of the Beaver Valley Hospital so eloquently that The Times is running them as she wrote them.

"I remember the Beaver valley Hospital so well. My life and the life of my unborn child were saved there in the early fall of 1945."

"I had been a patient for five days with a bowel infection and I was also seven months pregnant with my second child, when I developed acute appendicitis. My doctor, Dr. Claude Allen, was on a fishing trip and was not available. When my blood count kept creeping up into the danger level, Dr. Robert Sirkle called Dr. Claude to come in, advising that it seemed the need for surgery was imminent."

"Dr. Preston was called in from Pikeville, and in the wee hours of the morning I was carried up for surgery. I say 'carried up', for I was literally carried on something like an army stretcher (a piece of canvass tacked onto two poles). I thought for sure they would drop me as they went around the turn of the stairway. (No, folks, no elevators).

"There was no air conditioning either, and it was a very hot time. I could not be put to sleep for it would have meant certain death for my or dishes. "Bedding was in short supply and the mattresses were terrible, and one could lie in bed and watch the roaches running over everything. The building, having been consisted of such things as 'soup beans', greasy fried potatoes and chocolate pie. When I asked for something lighter, I was brought what was supposed to be vegetable soup, mostly water with corn and cabbage in it, both items that hurt my stomach."

"The only bathroom was at the end of the hall. The odor of Lysol disinfectant was so strong through the building, it's a wonder that patients survived breathing it. Having been a patient in many hospitals since then in both city and Eastern Kentucky, one of the things I appreciate most is the lack of disinfectant odor."

"Lest you think I mean to run down the old hospital, I do not mean unborn child. With three doctors and that many nurses around the operating table, and one at the head fanning me, I underwent the surgery.

"Dr. Claude, even though having been off duty and with the scent of alcohol very strong on his breath, administered the spinal. I am sure those nurses and doctors heard more Bible verses quoted and more prayers ascending into heaven early that morning than they had heard in years."

"During my recovery, for the first three days I was kept drunk on morphine to keep me from going into labor. There was no penicillin for civilian use at that time and sulfa drugs made me very ill. The Martin water was terrible tasting and there was no ice and not enough flatware

Filling God's Pantry takes help of local humans

by Kathleen Carroll
Contributing Writer

God's Pantry. The name is somewhat deceptive. Some may think it is a church soup kitchen. Others might think it is a program distributing food only to one church affiliation or another. God's Pantry is neither.

God's Pantry Crisis Food Center is an ecumenical, community-based program established to meet the hunger and nutritional needs of the people in 48 counties in Central and Eastern Kentucky. Through its food bank program the pantry provides both food and non-food products to private, non-profit organizations who are involved in meeting the needs of the hungry poor.

The purpose of food banking is to prevent usable food from going to waste and to channel this food to hungry people through organizations that serve the needy. God's Pantry acts as a clearinghouse to distribute food and non-food products to children's homes, day care centers, nursing homes, soup kitchens and emergency food programs.

God's Pantry operates two warehouse locations to serve member agencies. The Lexington site is the primary facility, while the West Prestonsburg warehouse is intended to serve member agencies from Breathitt, Floyd, Harlan, Johnson, Knott, Leslie, Letcher, Magoffin, Martin, Perry and Pike counties.

In the past year God's Pantry East (as the West Prestonsburg office is known) has held two food drives, which have not been as successful as staff had hoped. Manager Debbie Amburgey said that one reason the drives were unsuccessful was "because so many people in this area live right at the poverty level. Nearly 37 percent live at poverty level or below poverty level."

Charles Slone, a VISTA volunteer who secures food donations for God's Pantry East, agrees. "We've never done any statistics," he said, "but we suspect that most of the giving comes from people who can identify with poverty rather than those who are well-off. Realizing this, the food bank has since concentrated on improving community awareness of who we are and what we do."

Amburgey agrees that lack of awareness is the most difficult problem for God's Pantry East to overcome. "I know that there are many agencies out there who qualify to use our goods, but they simply don't know about us."

Amburgey sees many people who are surprised to discover how they can benefit from God's Pantry East. "I just wish more churches and other agencies understood what we do — that we offer items that can make a food budget stretch further."

Above all, God's Pantry East is not a supermarket. "We are not trying to take business from grocery stores," said Amburgey. "That wouldn't be fair. Besides, we really do not offer the same things. I don't have fresh antony Bank in Martin."

Both agreed that the small donations are, in many ways, more meaningful. "We got a $2 donation from a lady over in Pippa Passes," said Slone. "To me that was important because the commitment was there despite the fact that she was unable to give very much. People give what they can. During the food drive a lady gave three pounds of food. What a wonderful gift! It was like she was saying 'this is all I can afford, but you can have it.'"

Because God's Pantry receives no

milk or fresh eggs, things you would want to buy at a grocery store. But someone could supplement those fresh items by coming here for cereal, chips, cookies, dish washing detergent and other items that would help those precious dollars go so much further at a grocery store."

God's Pantry can offer great savings in some areas. "You have to remember," Amburgey said, "the kind of savings we offer with these goods can be substantial. We sell by the pound, not by the product."

Awareness, however, is not the only problem God's Pantry East faces. Resources in Eastern Kentucky are limited. According to Amburgey, "the foodbank in Lexington can go to food manufacturers who are practically right around the corner, and pick up products. We don't have that option here."

"To complicate things," Slone added, we are restricted to this 10-county area. We cannot even go to those counties that may border this area, but not part of our assigned district. That's tough on us."

"Another problem," Amburgey said, "is corporate rules prohibiting a food resale outlet to donate food. They have to sell what they bring in. It's a shame when a policy requires a resale outlet to sell two-day old bread to a pig farmer for 5 cents a loaf before they can give it to someone who needs it."

"Furthermore," Slone said, "most retailers now have their own reclamation centers, so instead of a store giving goods away, it all goes back to the reclamation center for redistribution. The bottom line is that we can no longer access that sector."

"That's not to say retailers never give," said Amburgey. "Some businesses have given occasionally, like Frito Lay or Pepsi Cola, but I really appreciate their gift because we can always use whatever they may send us."

There are also retailers who give their products directly to other social agencies. "I am very careful to remember those ties because I will not take away from one of those agencies. In the long run those retailers are meeting the same needs," Amburgey said.

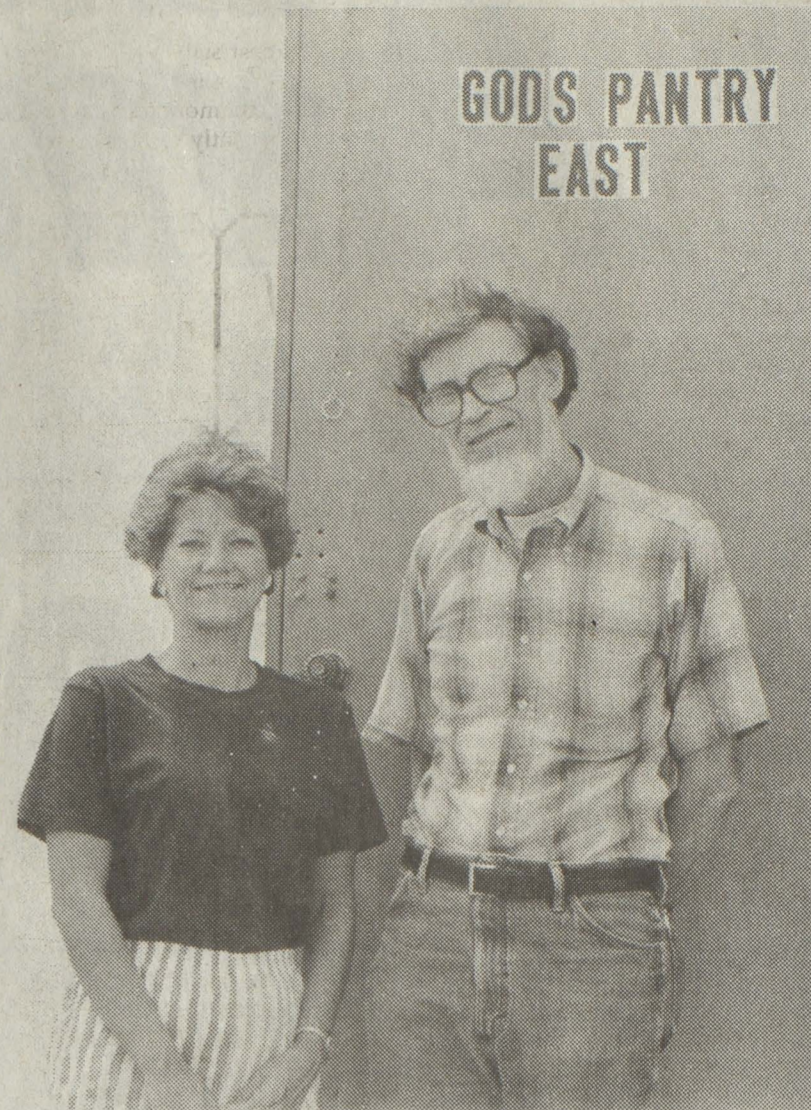

"I think we should also say that people have given money in the past, and that always helps too," said Slone. Monetary donations have ranged from large to small, both public and private.

"Some of our biggest supporters," Amburgey said, "have been people like Arnold Turner Jr. and Charlie Johnson; and businesses like First Commonwealth Bank and First Guar-regular or governmental funding, it is dependent on individuals, churches, businesses and organizations to keep the foodbank operational. Not all donations need to be food items. "Chances are, if you can donate it, we can make use of it!" the manager said.

TURNING MEMORIES INTO MEMOIRS by V. Gay Herrin Associate Professor Developmental Writing

Memoirs (written personal accounts of happenings) increasingly are becoming a popular form of writing. Most weeks The New York Times has a memoir listed among its best sellers of non-fiction. These generally are written by celebrities such as movie stars or political personalities, and they usually make for interesting reading.

One of the more recent memoirs on this list was My Turn, by Nancy Reagan, who clearly defined the art of memoir when she said, "...I want to tell my side of the story." A memoir does evolve from an event or time in history, but it does more than report facts — it also reports the author's emotions and feelings about what happened. In other words, a memoir is the personal side of a story — the side only that particular person can write.

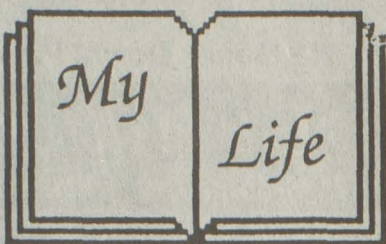

For example, there have been many books written about Jacqueline Kennedy Onassis, but the most coveted book is her memoirs, which was not and apparently will not be written. We know what has happened to this intriguing woman, but we do not know how she felt or feels about any of it.

Memoirs are so personal that when Jimmy and Rosalyn Carter tried to team write their memories of the Carter Presidency, they frequently had to separate sections into Jimmy's memories and Rosalyn's memories. The truth in a memoir is the truth as the writer sees it, and sometimes that's more fiction than fact.

After all, we tend to see our lives to our advantage, and that's okay for memoirs because they are not to be read as historical documents or philosophical truths but simply as stories from a personal point of view.

The writing of memoirs is not restricted to the rich and famous; they just seem to be the only ones who can get published or sell enough to be listed as a best seller by The New York Times. As a matter of fact, the memoir is a common person's craft, but I only recently came to realize this.

Since I've sent my three children into the world as young adults, I often find myself drifting back, actually daydreaming about events of their childhoods. Most of my memories are delightful, endearing or comical, but some are of heartrending, tiring and trying times.

These times (good and bad) are gone forever, and that's not sad because all of us have exciting times ahead. It's just that after 27 years of active parenting, I am having a little trouble adjusting. The house is too quiet and the telephone and doorbell ring too seldom. The reminiscing, however, is helping me to adjust, to resolve happenings and outcomes, and to realize that in spite of all my mistakes as a parent, my children are okay adults.

Nevertheless, I feel a need to explain some of parental actions and reactions and to tell some of my favorite stories, but my children are very busy people and after having just escaped childhood they would rather put it away than to remember it. When I approach the subject, I get a hug and a "Oh, Mom...What time is it?" response; I get the message: Let's get on with life!

My husband, on the other hand, is willing to listen, but he keeps interrupting my stories with corrections according to his perceptions (his truths). I've stories to tell but no one to listen, so I've stopped talking. Now when I reminisce, I write. The paper and pen do not interrupt or correct, and I feel creative as I turn my memories into memoirs. Although there's no formula for writing memoirs, there are some techniques that can be helpful. If you're uncertain about how to get started, I suggest you read some published memoirs. Even those that have, at one time, been best sellers eventually end up on the bargain table at bookstores, and occasionally one will make it to a library shelf.

Modeling another writer is a very useful writing technique, especially for beginners. Just choose your favorite author's style and adapt it to your stories. For instance, the content of many of my memoirs reminds me of tales in Erma Bombeck's Family — The Ties That Bind...And Gag! (on The New York Times bestseller list for six months), so sometimes I fashion my stories after her very informal, conversational style and organize them as separate tales with titles. This is an easy and natural way to record events as they come to mind, and this technique lends itself to short spurts of writing.

Also, recording memoirs on loose-leaf paper and filing them in a binder easily allows the writer to make changes in content or organization.

In addition to reading published memoirs, I have benefited from reading Inventing The Truth — The Art and Craft of Memoir, edited by William Zinsser. This book is a collection of six lectures on writing memoirs presented at The New York Public Library in 1986 by noted contemporary American writers. Each discusses his/her writing process and lists a bibliography of favorite memoirs. My personal copy of this book is on reserve at Prestonsburg Community College Library and can be checked out at the circulation desk.

Oops...

Apparently an article about the old home in Allen which was being torn down in the Wednesday, June 6, issue of The Times was in error. According to The Times' source, the house was built and owned by the Martin family. This is not true, according to Mary Belle Layne Short of Prestonsburg. She had a picture of the old home taken in 1977. On the back of the picture it read "built by William Henry Layne about 1831 and occupied by him and his family until his death in 1841."

Short said she had been told all her life that this was an old family home and she has spent the time since the article appeared hunting up said picture to prove it.

As we have found, when writing about historical times in Floyd County, often there are as many versions of a story as there are people to tell it. Consequently it becomes difficult to be 100 percent accurate when dealing with people's memories of places and events. Although we try to be as accurate as possible, we can only go with what people tell us in many instances, and we apologize if we sometimes miss the mark

Correction

In the obituary of Arnold Bradley appearing in the Wednesday, July 25 issue of The Times, the servicing funeral home was accidentally listed as Hall Funeral Home. Actually it was Carter Funeral Home of Prestonsburg who took care of the arrangements. The Times sincerely apologizes for this error.

More women, infants affected by Medicaid

Kentucky's Medicaid program will serve an average of 8,000 additional infants and expectant mothers in each of the next two years due to a voluntary expansion of the eligibility coverage plan approved by Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson and the 1990 General Assembly.

The expansion extends Medicaid to families with incomes at or below 185 percent of the federal poverty level for prenatal and delivery care to women during their pregnancies and for 60 days following delivery and for infants to age 1. The previous limit was 133 percent of the federal poverty level.

"This is the third prenatal and infant care expansion of Medicaid since 1988," said Commissioner Roy Butler of the Department for Medicaid Services.

"However, while the previous raises from 100 percent of the poverty level were mandated nationwide by the federal government, this action is strictly voluntary by Kentucky to meet the needs of more low-income families.

"The importance of early medical attention for pregnant women and newborns with health problems has become more apparent during the last few years," Butler said. "In the long run, this care decreases infant mortality and sickness and saves countless dollars in health expenses."

Eligibility for medical assistance is based on family size and monthly income limits. For a mother and child, the increase to 185 percent will mean a monthly income limit change from $933 to $1,298. The limit for a family of four will rise from $1,408 to $1,958 monthly. The unborn child is counted as a family member in determining the income limit for the family.

The cost of the expansion is estimated at nearly $19.2 million in the 1990-91 budget (about $5.2 million in state and $14 million in federal funds). During fiscal year 1991-92, the cost will exceed $23 million, with almost $6.3 million in state and $16.9 million in federal funds.

Last year, Kentucky's Medicaid program served a monthly average of 14,053 children and pregnant women. By the end of the current fiscal year, that number is expected to exceed 33,000 with the fiscal year 1991-92 client average expected to surpass 38,300 because of the expansion.

There are currently an estimated 387,000 Kentuckians eligible for all services covered by the state Medicaid program.

"Since Kentucky began offering Medicaid coverage to pregnant women and infants as a special category in 1987, this group has become one of the fastest growing segments covered by Medicaid," Butler said.

Most new recipients will receive care through the Kentucky Patient Access and Care (KenPAC) program, which matches a Medicaid patient with a primary care physician for regular medical needs, Butler said. However, women can choose an obstetrician for prenatal and delivery care.

Applications for medical assistance may be filed at local Department for Social Insurance offices.

The application can be processed quicker by bringing proof of the following: earned income such as pay stubs; unearned income such as letters from Social Security; resources such as bank statements; life insurance policies or burial reserves; Social Security number; health insurance; and pregnancy such as a doctor's statement with expected delivery date.

Area CAP receives grant for homeless

CAP receives grant for homeless emergency housing, special job training, food and clothing for Kentucky's homeless citizens will be supported with $377,870 in federal funds, Cabinet for Human Resources Secretary Harry J. Cowherd, MD, has announced.

Grants under the federal Stewart B. McKinney Homeless Assistance Act will be provided by the cabinet to 23 regional community action agencies across the state for use during the 1990-91 fiscal year.

The five-county Big Sandy Area Community Action Program, headquartered in Paintsville, will receive $20,000, the fourth highest amount in the state, behind Louisville-Jefferson County, Bowling Green and Lexington-Fayette County community action programs.

This is the fourth year of the McKinney homeless support funding and the agencies will have about $21,000 in third-year carry-over funds for services next year.

"For many of these agencies, the grants represent the difference between staying active in helping the homeless and being forced to close or severely curtail their basic food and emergency shelter services," Cowherd said.

"In other areas, the funding will enable those agencies to extend these types of assistance for the first time to the homeless in their communities or to support existing programs as offered by churches, the Salvation Army and public housing authorities," he said.

The Paintsville office, which covers Floyd, Johnson, Magoffin, Martin and Pike counties, plans to use the grant for general funds and keep providing the same services it has always done, helping transient persons, people who have lost homes in fires and temporarily displaced families.

Applications were reviewed and funded based upon the scope of the services proposed, the quality of the proposal, the availability of any carry-over funds and the identified homeless population in the agency's service region.

Natural resources cabinet invades KY State fair

Move over midway rides, livestock shows and blue-ribbon winners. The Kentucky Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet is planning an outside exhibit at this year's Kentucky State Fair that's sure to catch the attention of all the fair's visitors.

For the first time ever, the cabinet is leaving the confines of an exhibit building to create an outdoor display entitled "Discover Your Environment."

Each tent in the exhibit highlights the activities of individual cabinet agencies. Technicians will be on hand to demonstrate regulatory activities such as air monitoring, asbestos removal and water testing.

Children are sure to be delighted by a special hands-on exhibit sponsored by the Division of Forestry, Kentucky Forest Industries Association, Nature and Conservation Center and the Kentucky Department of Education. Nature stories and special activities will entertain youngsters daily.

A demonstration on the art of chainsaw carving and appearances by Smokey Bear will occur at this tent. Also, the Commonwealth's history will be traced through the growth rings of a 250-year-old tree.

Fairgoers will not be able to overlook the mountain of trash built by the Division of Waste Management. The mountain will simulate the hundreds of pounds of trash four people generate a year.

Next to it will be a much smaller mountain containing that same trash with all of the recyclables removed. Visitors will learn about the basic how-to's of recycling, community recycling programs, and how to buy recycled products.

A manmade stream will be featured at the Division of Water's tent. Fairgoers will learn how inspectors work with Water Watch groups across the Commonwealth to keep waterways clean and usable.

Air monitoring will be conducted each day at the Division for Air Quality's tent. Instruments just like the equipment in the air monitoring trailer are placed in and around cities in the Commonwealth.

The division display also includes an exhibit on asbestos removal. A protective "moonsuit" worn by asbestos removers is a highlight of the display.

In addition, representatives from the Louisville Vehicle Emissions Testing Program join the air quality display to show how pollution control devices work on cars and trucks, how they are tested and how their use can help clean up the air we all breathe.

Visitors will be able to see how the Commonwealth's waterways are kept safe in the Division of Water Patrol's tent. Water Patrol officers will demonstrate required safe boating equipment and techniques.

The cabinet's Emergency Response Team is always on-call to respond to train derailments, spills, truck accidents and other emergencies involving hazardous substances.

Fairgoers can look through the fully equipped ERT vehicle that has the necessary first aid supplies, protective gear for on-site evaluations, equipment for gathering data and samples at the accident site, and an ERT "moonsuit."

The Division of Energy tent features a solar panel generating electricity. The exhibit also shows pollution-reducing mass transit systems, solar cars and a demonstration on how to caulk.

Division of Environmental Services technicians will show some of the equipment used in testing environmental quality, on land, in the air or in the water. The exhibit also provides a photographic look at some of the processes that go on in the division's laboratory.

Farmers and landowners will be especially interested in the Division of Conservation's exhibit. A no-till planter will be displayed, and staff members will demonstrate how it can plant a seed without disturbing the field.

The Department for Surface Mining Reclamation and Enforcement will display a strip mine site model. The model shows various phases of mining, from disturbance of the land to its reclamation.

The exhibit promises to be interesting, informative and fun for all ages during the Aug. 16-26 fair in Louisville. Located on the East Lawn, it will give people the opportunity to see how the cabinet works to protect the environment. Visitors will also discover how they can help protect and enhance Kentucky's environment and its natural resources.

Bluegrass games overview

Games were fun; everyone came home a winner

At the University of Kentucky's Commonwealth Stadium more than 15,000 athletes paraded on to the grass of the home of the Kentucky Wildcats football team, as the opening ceremonies of the 1990 Bluegrass State Games officially got underway.

Martha Wilkinson, wife of Gov. Wallace Wilkinson, declared "let the games begin."

All of the pomp and pageantry of the opening ceremonies was a sight to behold. All five of the Floyd County Senior Citizen Centers — Wayland, Wheelwright, Martin, Prestonsburg and Betsy Layne — led the way onto the field as part of the Governor's Pacesetters.

The Senior Citizens had taken part earlier in the day in Frankfort in the ceremonies that began the carrying of the flame to Lexington. The National Guard Running Team carried the flame from the state's capitol to Commonwealth Stadium where Bobby Collins of Lexington, along with celebrity guest Dominique Wilkins, lit the torch to the cheers of thousands of spectators and athletes.

One of the highlights of the opening ceremonies was the fly-by of three Blackhawk Helicopters that passed directly over Commonwealth Stadium, bringing the applause of the crowd as they lit up a darkening sky. Three F-4 fighters did a fly-by also but off to the side of the stadium where they could not be seen by some spectators.

Othello Pumphrey sang the National Anthem and touched the heart of all Kentuckians with his rendition of "My Old Kentucky Home" as the people from the Bluegrass State gave him an astounding round of applause.

Several dignitaries were on hand to help out in opening the 1990 Bluegrass States Games. University of Kentucky Interim President, Dr. Charles Wethington, remarked how the university was proud to be part of the Bluegrass States Games and being able to lend its facilities for the staging of many of the events in the games. The state's First Lady spoke of the purpose of the games and what they mean to all Kentuckians.

Carl Frey, chairman of the board of the Valvoline Oil Company, one of the sponsors of the games, spoke of his company's involvement in the eighth annual games, an idea that his company made a reality for thousands of Kentuckians. Lexington Mayor Scotty Baesler lauded Lexingtonians for their cooperation in hosting once again the games around the city.

The largest applause was reserved for the celebrity speaker, Dominique Wilkins of the Atlanta Hawks. When master of ceremonies Cawood Ledford, voice of the Kentucky Wildcats and a celebrity in his own right, introduced Wilkins, the stadium went wild.

Wilkins said it was a different feeling getting such a standing ovation, something he had never gotten before when he played against the UK Wildcats in basketball. Wilkins played his college basketball at the University of Georgia where he was the all-time leading scorer in his three years at the university.

Mrs. Wilkinson and Wilkins then delivered the Oath of Athletes, after which Bobby Collins, a member of the Kentucky National Guard marathon team, carried the flame into the East end of the stadium for the lighting of the games flame.

After Wilkinson declared the games open, a loud round of cannon shots and fireworks closed the ceremonies.

The majority of events got underway on Saturday morning, with events being staged all around Lexington. The men's Class C softball tournament was held in Frankfort.

It was a busy time for parents, who came with their family participants, for athletes and even for reporters. It was an enjoyable time as the weather, though hot, was still on the dry side. Events took place in softball, basketball, horseshoes, bowling, archery, shooting, tennis, croquet, track and field, etc.

Motel rooms were scarce by Saturday morning as many of the athletes began to pour into the city. The way the games were managed was really unbelievable, especially with so many taking part. The games were very, very well organized and everyone knew his or her part as staff members. The games were staffed with voluntary helpers.

The media people were more than helpful for those who had never covered the games before, providing information to the press and feeding information of county winners.

Shepherd hits grand slam

Ken's Sport Shop wins softball title, 16-15

It came down to the final regular season game between Ken's Sport Shop and Statewide Recovery, in determining who would be crowned league champions of the Archer Park Softball League.

Ken's scored a single run in the top of the seventh inning that proved to be the winning run as Statewide scored twice in the bottom of the frame to give the final score of 17-16.

Ken's Sports Shop scored eight runs in the sixth inning to come back from a 12-8 deficit and take a 16-12 lead. Bobby King led off the sixth for Ken's with a long home run. Mike McQuate singled and Howard went out on a fly ball to center.

With one out, Jerry Fultz and Cole drew walks to load the bases. Pitcher Tim Rice helped his own cause with a sharp single that brought home McQuate and Fultz.

Shelton reached on an error that allowed Cole to trot home, and base hits by Bowersock and Jimmy Blankenship scored Rice and Shelton. Bowersock and Blankenship scored on a base hit by Hale.

Statewide went out in front, 6-2, after two innings with three runs in each of the first and second. In the first, J.C. Blanton accounted for two of the three runs with a home run.

Donnie Williams scored the first run, after walking, on a fielder's choice play.

In the second, Randy King singled and was forced out at second by Dennis King. Gary King then roped a hit to center, and Bobby King followed suit, scoring Dennis King. Williams singled in Gary King and Bobby King.

Ken's scored five times in the third inning to take a 7-6 lead in the seesaw game. Four of the runs came on Shepherd's grand slam home run.

Statewide's four-run fifth reclaimed the lead for the second place team. Statewide put two runners on base hits, and J.R. Gamble parked the ball over the fence for a three-run home run. Randy King doubled and scored on two sacrifice fly balls.

Ken's Sports Shop had taken an early 2-0 lead in the top of the first inning on a home run by Bowersock.

The home run came with Shelton on base via a base hit.

Ken's Sport Shop ended the season with an 18-2 record, and Statewide finished with 16-4.

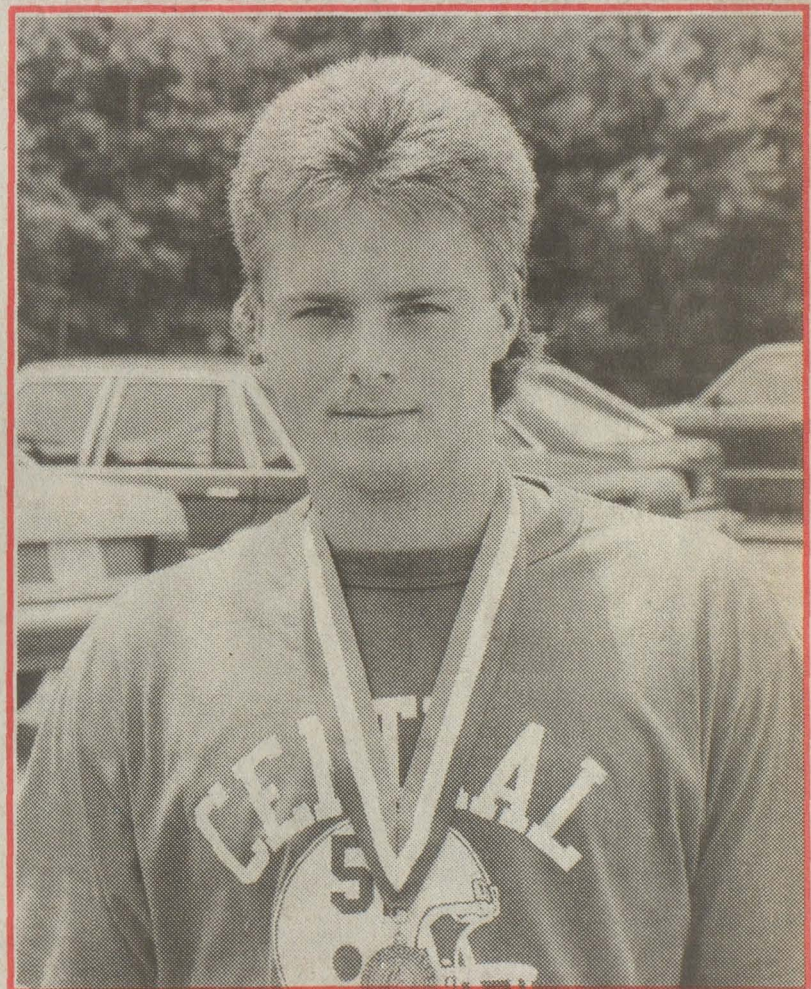

"If we had lost the game," says Kenny Conley, "we would have been co-champions with Statewide with 17-3 records. It was a good ball game."

The Cavaliers finished third and Johnson Motors was fourth. All four of the top teams will advance to state play Aug. 10, 11 and 12 at Owensboro.

Regional play will begin tonight (Wednesday) at Archer Park in a double elimination tournament.

Slone places third in discus

Allen Central's Tim Slone, a newcomer to the field of discus throwing, took third place in the Bluegrass States Games discus throw last weekend. Slone had a throw of 110 feet to take the Bronze Medal spot.

Anthony Fister of Fayette County took the Gold sport with a throw of 141 feet. Robert Deaves of Oldham County was second at 125 feet.

Slone, who been under the guidance of Brian Wallen, also a discus competitor, never began throwing the discus until a year ago. He was part of the two players that made up the track and field team of Allen Central. The other, of course, being Wallen.

With new head football coach Dewey Jamerson, who was track and field coach at Betsy Layne last year, now at the Right Beaver school, both Slone and Wallen could have an exceptional year this coming spring in the discus throw.

Jamerson is known for his enthusiasm in track and field, and with his encouragement, Wallen and Slone could have a real shot of moving up in regional meets as well as state. Both players will be playing football for Jamerson this fall, and he will be reminding them of their potential for the spring.

Correction Wrong pitcher listed

In error, Chris Hicks was listed as the losing pitcher in the championship game of the Little League All-Star game at Inez last week against Paintsville.

Jason Hackworth was the one who started the game and suffered the setback. Chris Hicks did not pitch in the game. Chris is a fine ball player and we apologize for the mistake in identifying each player.

Prestonsburg coach Rodney Osborne called to correct the mistake and we appreciate his doing so. We try to take every precaution to keep all the names straight in our reporting. But sometimes, because we are human, we do err.

Again, we apologize to Chris and his family for the mistake.

Martin threesome takes second place

The hot weather in Lexington over the weekend did not stop the trio of Johnny Mayo, Delmer Hall and "Kokie" Dingus as they took to the basketball court (outdoor courts) on the campus of the University of Kentucky as part of the Bluegrass States Games last weekend.

You would have to know these three players to understand why they, all over 35, would even attempt to play under such conditions. They all are very competitive players and the weather has no bearing on their thinking (or lack of it).

"It sure was hot out there," said Hall. "My feet were getting awful hot. The heat was coming through the bottom of my shoes."

The threesome had to come from behind in the first game of the morning as they faced a tough Sumdae team. The Martin trio trailed 11-9 when Dingus got hot from the outside, and the local team scored seven unanswered points to win the first game 16-11.

In three-on-three basketball, a player receives two points for a bucket scored from the three-point line and one point for each basket tossed in on the inside. Each player calls his own fouls and a 30-minute time limit is set on each game.

The first team that scores 16 points is the winner or if time expires after 30 minutes, the team ahead at the expiration time is declared the winner. Each game has an official who keeps score, time and settles any disputes that arise.

"Some of these old players don't look like they could play basketball anymore, but that team we beat sure surprised us," Mayo explained.

Martin won the winner's bracket of the 35 and over division but lost twice to Estill County in the final round, 16-15 and 16-14.

"We had to play a team that was in the 35-40 age group," Mayo stated. "They had the advantage over us. We are 43, 47 and 49. The oldest they had was 40. That wasn't right for them to do us that way. They said they had no place to play them so they put them against us."

Mayo said that his team tired in the finals and that Hall suffered from stiff knees. "I was sore and tired, but Kokie just kept taking it to them."

"Several people including the officials said that we should have gotten the Gold Medal because we did win our age group," Mayo continued, "and we might yet. They haven't decided yet."

"It was a lot of fun though," Mayo says, "and I recommend that everyone in Floyd County just load up the buses and head for Lexington next year for the games, I highly recommend it."

QUOTA DEER HUNTS

If you're planning to participate in one of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources' quota deer hunts this fall, you'll need to apply by Aug. 31.

Quota deer hunters are chosen by random drawing from submitted applications.

1990 quota hunts are scheduled on Beaver Creek, Clay, Dewey Lake, Grayson Lake, Higginson-Henry, Kleber, Mill Creek, Paintsville Lake, Peabody/White City, Taylorsville Lake, West Kentucky and Yellowbanks WMAs.

King homers!

Bobby King smiles after hitting a long home run in the Bluegrass State Games Saturday afternoon at Lexington. The homer was one of only two hit out of the large park. King plays for Ken's Sports Shop, which won the game, 22-4, and took the Bronze Medal in the games. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

This year's youth hunts will be at Grayson Lake and West Kentucky WMAs. (Youngsters age 10-15 may apply for one youth hunt and one conventional quota hunt.)

Quota deer hunters age 16 and over should remember the "One" rule: One hunter may apply One time to One area on One form.

As many as four hunters who want to hunt together may apply as a group. Each hunter fills out one application card in his name, then the cards (two, three or four) are stapled together and mailed in one envelope.

Application forms contain hunting dates and complete information on how to apply. Applications are (or soon will be) available from county clerks' offices and the fish and wildlife department.

To request an application, write: Quota Deer Hunt, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, Division of Public Relations, #1 Game Farm Rd., Frankfort 40601, or call (502) 564-4336.

TAGS ONLY, PLEASE

Anglers who return fish tags to the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources should send only tags — not the fish.

The person who opens the mail has begun to smell a little fishy lately and prefers you keep your catch.

Each returned tag nets the angler $5 and helps fishery biologists gather valuable information to better manage a particular species.

Several fish species have been tagged in Kentucky waters. They include crappie in Nolin River Lake, black bass in Green River, black bass and rock bass in the northern and main sections of Elkhorn Creek and white bass and striped bass in Barren River Lake.

If you catch a tagged fish from these waters, please return only the tag. Postage paid envelopes for returning fish tags are available from bait and tackle shops and district fisheries biologists.

Upping the catch with new sunglasses

Fishermen can always be counted on to buy any item they think will help them catch more fish or bigger fish. A list of fishing aids that has appealed to those who fish would include a multitude of items ranging from special lures to very elaborate (and expensive) electronic depth finders.

Now, thanks to optical science, fishing enthusiasts have another item to add to their fishing arsenal.

The main reason it is difficult to see below the surface of a body of water is because of daylight reflecting from the surface of a lake or stream. If reflected light could be eliminated, it might be easier to see those areas where fish like to hide out.

Now people who fish are discovering special sunglass lenses with unique polarizing properties to cut out reflected glare. Polarized sunglasses are not especially new, but what is new is all the lens forms in which these hard working sunglasses can now be made.

Polarized lenses originally were only made of glass. They featured two wafers with a plastic polarizing filter sandwiched in the middle. Such lenses were heavy and the glass wafers had a tendency to separate.

Today, however, many polarized lenses are made of lightweight plastic and utilize a polarizing filter that is molded right in the plastic so any delamination is a thing of the past.

Polarized lenses can now be made in almost any prescription, including bifocals, trifocals and even the new "no lines" bifocals. Polarized sun lenses are also available with silver and gold mirrored coatings, ultraviolet absorbing filters and even come in a version that incorporates a popular "blue blocking" filter.

Special polarizing glass lenses have recently been introduced that darken automatically in the sun and lighten indoors.

No, your eye doctor can't guarantee you'll catch more fish when you wear polarized lenses, but at least you'll be able to see the one that got away!

Most improved squad

The Melvin Grade School cheerleaders were chosen as the Most Improved Cheerleading Squad at the recent National Cheerleaders Association camp at Prestonsburg Community College. The Melvin cheerleaders brought home two blue and red ribbons and one white. The Left Beaver squad also brought home the spirit stick. Those attending the camp were, front row, Melinda Wilson and Stacey D. Johnson; back row, Karen Tackett, sponsor, Melissa Tackett, Kim Dorton, Brandi Tackett.

All-Star memories

by Hank Aaron

The recent All-Star game brought back a lot of memories about how great it was to be part of an All-Star team.

Every now and then a player not selected will claim that he would rather have the day off. He's not fooling anyone. I played in 23 All-Star games, and the last one was as much of a thrill as the first one.

I really got a kick out of meeting the other players and getting the opportunity to play against the stars from the other league—in my case, the American League. Except for a few spring training games, players never get to see the stars of the other league in person. I always enjoyed the chance to meet and observe the American League All-Stars. It's just a tremendous honor for any player, no matter how many times he's chosen.

Some people think the All-Star game is just a popularity contest, but I think it's more than that, especially in recent years. There was a time when perhaps you had more of the main players, even if they weren't having the best season. In fact, I remember when Cincinnati stuffed the ballot boxes, and the commissioner had to intervene, putting Willie Mays and myself on the team.

But I think recently that it's the player having a great season that gets chosen. For example, you have somebody like Greg Olson from the Atlanta Braves who was a free agent back in November make the All-Star team. He's having a decent season and because of that he was chosen, even though he's not as well-known as many other players.

I think it's been handled pretty fairly overall. Years ago, the players controlled the vote. I believe the fans are doing as good or better a job with their ballots. After all, the All-Star game is a fan's game, and it makes sense for them to make the selections.

Of course, the managers select the pitchers and backups, and they can run into some serious trouble with that. No matter who they pick, they're going to have to leave somebody off. You've got many players having great seasons, but people have to remember that the All-Star game is basically the same as a regular season game.

The managers have to keep this in mind when making their selections. They pick starting pitchers, but they also have to include short relievers. You can't put all starters on a team.

I think the system works, and most of the guys who deserve to play get chosen. And whether it's once or many times, it's always a great feeling to be recognized for playing good ball.

One personal memory that stands out happened way back in 1955 when I was playing for the Milwaukee Braves. We had rallied to tie the game 5-5 and sent it into extra innings. Mickey Mantle had hit a home run for the American League. I'll never forget Stan Musial hitting a homer in the 12th inning to win the game for the National League.

I was just a substitute for that game, but watching Musial hit that home run was almost as exciting as playing myself.

Bow fishing on tap Aug 4-5

Greg's Sporting Goods of McDowell will sponsor its second annual Bow Fishing Tournament on Aug. 4 and 5. The tournament will get underway at 8 a.m. Saturday, and conclude at 4 p.m., Sunday.

Trophies will be awarded to the first, second and third place finishers. Winners will be determined by total weight of fish caught. The tournament will be based on the "honor system" of the fishermen, and fish must be taken by bow. A trophy will be presented to the fisherman who takes the largest fish.

Entry fee is $10 and each fisherman may register by calling 377-1172. Entry deadline is Friday, Aug. 3 at 5 p.m.

Allen continues to bring home the gold

Kenneth Allen, 57, of Prestonsburg continues to rack up the Gold Medals as a yearly participant in the Bluegrass States Games in the field of archery.

Allen, who uses a combination bow, over the weekend won his fourth Gold Medal with a first place finish in the bow hunters Over 55 Freestyle Unlimited event. Allen finished with a total of 85 points.

"I have only been involved in archery since 1988," he remarked, "and I entered the Bluegrass Games for the first time then."

So the sport of archery is still new with the Prestonsburg man, who also captured second place in the Field Archery Over 55 Freestyle Unlimited event with a score of 246 points. The second place finish earned the Floyd Countian a Silver Medal, his second in the games.

Allen, who has been nicknamed "Buzz", has earned the respect of his fellow shooters and has made a strong showing in all the events that he has entered.

"I got into archery for something to do," said the winner of other archery tournaments. "I shoot somewhere every weekend. I get with Randy (Polk) and we are usually somewhere in some tournament."

This is the third consecutive year that Allen has won a Gold Medal in the Bluegrass States Games.

Each participant is allowed a round of warm shots at targets placed at different yardage such as 20, 30, 40 and up to 65 feet. Each shooter must shoot at each target, getting three arrows at each one scoring points of 4, 3, 2 and 1.

The time which is traditionally shown on clocks displayed in catalogues and windows is 8:18.

How To Spinnerbait For Grass Bass

If you plan to fish grassbeds for bass this summer, do it with a willowleaf spinnerbait.

That's the advice from full-time professional angler Jerry Rhyne, who's been a spinnerbait fisherman for 29 years. He thinks the willowleaf blade offers several advantages over other types of spinnerbaits.

"A willowleaf produces a lot of flash and vibration," says Rhyne, a member of the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff, "but it doesn't disturb the grass the way other blades do. It doesn't snag and get clogged on every cast."

Willowleaf blades — so named because they have the same long, narrow shape as the leaf of a willow tree — come in several sizes. Rhyne uses a variety of sizes depending on the thickness of the grass, water clarity and size of the bass present.

Larger willow leaf blades often work well in Florida and other places where you might expect really big bass to be," Rhyne notes, "but in colder water where you may retrieve the lure more slowly, a smaller blade might be more productive."

"You really have to let the fish tell you what they want."

One thing the Johnson pro does not do is mix another blade style with the willowleaf as many anglers do.

"I think a second, smaller blade in front of the willowleaf takes away some of its effectiveness," he says. "It changes the flow of water over the willowleaf so the larger blade doesn't create as much vibration."

Rhyne does not use tandem blade willowleaf spinnerbaits, either. Although such lures produce a lot of vibration, Rhyne feels the first blade offsets the second. Tandem blade willowleaves are also difficult to cast.

"What I do like with my spinnerbaits is a light wire so I can feel more vibrations," he explains, "and I like a large 5/0 hook, regardless of the lure's weight and size."

When he fishes a willowleaf spinnerbait in summer grass, Rhyne concentrates along the edges of the grass, often casting parallel to the edge and keeping the lure just a few inches below the surface.

He suggests changing retrieve speeds periodically, suddenly speeding up or slowing the lure, to try to trigger a following bass into striking.

"Another popular retrieve with willowleaf spinnerbaits is to bring the lure through the grass and then let it fall down the edge of the grass," Rhyne adds. "Bass frequently hold along the edges of cover like this, and they ambush the spinnerbait as it flutters down beside them."

Rhyne has been fishing spinnerbaits ever since he used his first one in 1961 when he was a fishing guide on South Carolina's Santee-Cooper lakes. His client one day was a lure manufacturer who produced some of the earliest spinnerbaits, but he fished them more like a plastic worm.

"I looked at the lure and thought it would be more productive if you brought it right through cover instead of pumping and dropping it along the bottom," Rhyne recalls, "so that's how I started retrieving it."

"Once I did, things started getting exciting. I believe I caught three bass over eight pounds that day. I've been a spinnerbait fan ever since."

PROFESSIONAL GUIDE TEACHES TOURNAMENT TRICKS

Lake Okeechobee, Fla., guide Steve Daniel has successfully fished professional bass tournaments for years, but he's one angler who doesn't mind giving away tournament tricks.

As a guide on the huge lake, he offers a full dawn-to-dusk day of instruction aptly titled "Fishing A Tournament Tackle Box," in which he shows clients how to properly use all the lures in the tackle box he takes to the tournaments.

"It's really been fun to see the intense interest the clients have in learning the different techniques we use with lures," explains the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler. "Many of them are club fishermen looking for an edge over their fellow club anglers."

"The object of the day on the water is to learn more about lures, rather than simply catch bass."

One of the tricks Daniel shows his clients is how to modify a small top-water chugger plug so it more effectively imitates a fleeing baitfish.

"What we like to do," explains Daniel, "is use a wood file and take off the bottom edge of the face. Instead of having a concave face, we change the plug so the face just slants straight back."

"The result," he continues, "is a lure that doesn't 'pop' the water nearly as loudly when you move it. Instead, it's much quieter and swishes through the water."

"It doesn't dive when you reel it back fast either. It stays on top of the water. When we are trying to imitate a fleeing baitfish, we make a long cast, then reel this lure back to the boat as fast as we can. Because the face is smooth, the lure stays on the surface."

He also recommends using these lures with 15 to 20-pound test line, because it will help them float better.

In his day of instruction, the Johnson pro also discusses plastic worms, buzz baits, spinnerbaits and crankbaits. With both spinnerbaits and crankbaits, he recommends fishing 20-pound test line because he doesn't think bass pay much attention to line with these particular lures.

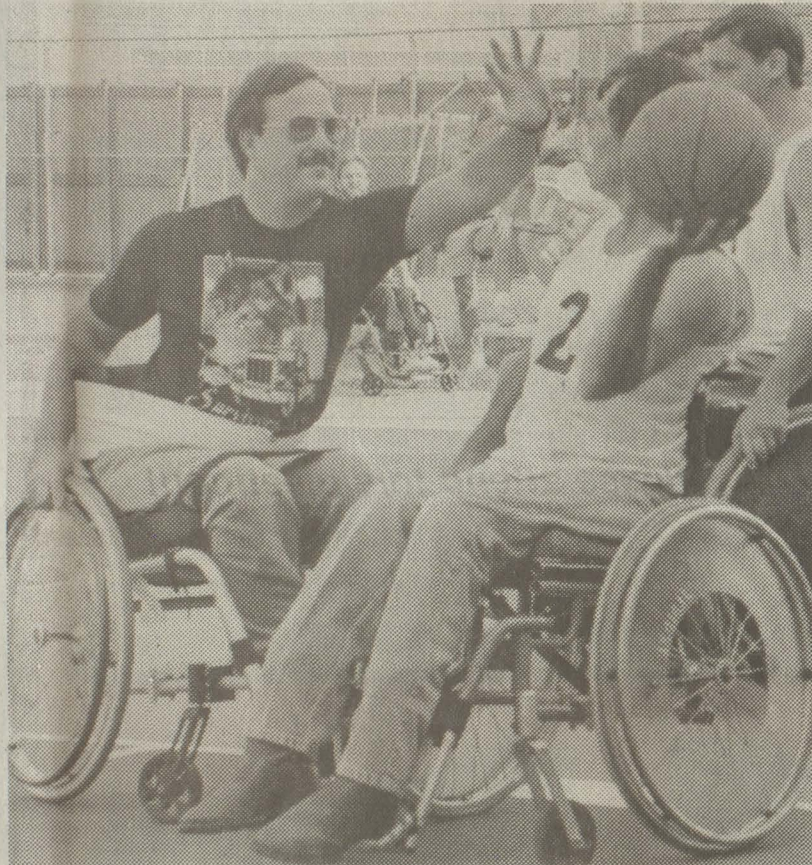

What does spook bass, he tells his clients, is fishing a really noisy lure like a buzz bait in shallow water.

"In shallow water, you want to retrieve a buzz bait just fast enough to make the blades turn and keep the lure on the surface," he explains. "In dingy water, or over slightly deeper depths, you can use a buzz bait that makes a lot of noise."

Thus far, Daniel's instruction days have been quite popular and he intends to continue them.

"When I was just getting started fishing," he says, "I learned a lot from talking with the tournament pros. Now, I have a chance to share some of my tournament knowledge with others, and it's a lot of fun."

Block that shot!

Floyd Countians bring home seven medals

It was a good outing for Floyd Countians in the Bluegrass States Games in Lexington over the weekend. All told, seven medals were brought back to the Eastern Kentucky county: two gold, two silver and three bronze.

Four events saw participants from Floyd County place either first, second or third in four separate events. Gold Medals were earned by Phillip A. Horn and Kenneth Allen. Horn placed first in the bow hunters 18 and over Freestyle Unlimited with a score of 65. Allen earned a Gold in the bow hunters Over 55 Freestyle Unlimited with a score of 85.

Allen also brought home a Silver Medal for his second place finish in Field Archery Over 55 Freestyle Unlimited with a total score of 246. James Randy Polk won a Bronze Medal in the bow hunters 18 and over Freestyle Unlimited. Polk finished with 90 total points.

In basketball, the team of Johnny Mayo, Delmer Hall and Colin "Kokie" Dingus placed second in three-on-three basketball and won a Silver Medal. The threesome was listed as Martin on the tournament drawings and prompted Hall to say "it seems that all Martin teams do well."

In softball action, Floyd County had six teams entered, including two women's teams. However, only one came away with the medal and that was Ken's Sport's Shop, who finished third in the Men's Class B Tournament. Ken's team received a Bronze Medal for its efforts. It was the defending champion from last year's tournament.

Allen Central's Tim Slone took third place for a Bronze Medal in the 17-18-year-old discus throw. Slone, a relative newcomer to the sport, had a throw of 110 feet for a third place finish.

Another Allen Central thrower, Brian Wallen, who has made a reputation of being very competitive in the discus circle, had to sit this one out because of an injury suffered in football practice.

"Brian was very disappointed that he did not get to compete in the games," said his mother Mary. "He got hurt Thursday evening in football practice and had to have eight stitches put in his arm where it was ripped on a football helmet." Wallen was a Gold Medal winner in the 1988 games.

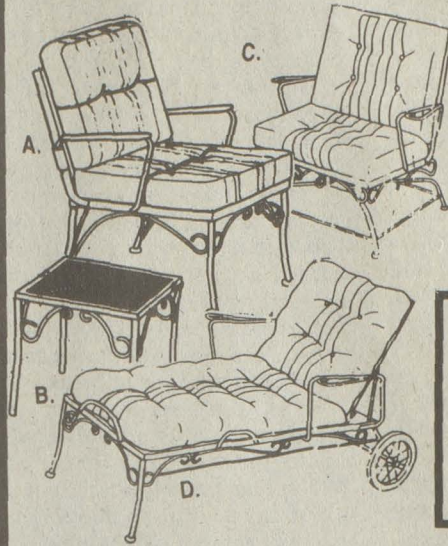

After all these years...
She finally made it.

Caves are cold, wet and fascinating

by Larry Rea

Brent Wilkins didn't crawl under his bed when he was a kid. He never locked himself in a closet. And he never spent the night in a relative's basement. But Wilkins sure loved to spend time in caves. Big caves, little caves, all types of caves.

When his family would visit a pay-to-see cave, such as Carlsbad Caverns in New Mexico, Wilkins would usually slip away from the tour group. "I always wanted to leave the group and see something in the cave that nobody else might have seen," Wilkins said.

Wilkins, of Collierville, Tenn., hasn't lost his love affair. He lives for weekends when he can get away from his job and go caving.

He isn't alone, though. The lure of going where few people have gone helps cavers forget how cold, wet and miserable a cave can be.

"Caves are not very pleasant," said Jerry Vineyard, deputy state geologist in Missouri. "You're generally cold, wet and muddy when you come out of a cave; you're half caked with mud and you feel frozen to the bone. But you keep going back."

Why? "Because it's something you must do," said Wilkins, who considers himself a "modern day explorer."

Each cave is different. In addition to stalactites and stalagmites, calcium rich waters have helped create odd-shaped formations, including cave pearls, cave popcorn and draperies.

Despite the darkness, wet passages and curious formations, there is a surprising diversity of cave creatures able to survive in year round temperatures in the mid-50s.

Cavers must deal with bats. Three endangered species of bats are found in Arkansas caves: the Indiana bat, the gray bat and the Ozark bit ear bat. Cavers also might find wood rats, vultures, raccoons, pickerel frogs and salamanders.

Only Missouri has more caves than the Tennessee, Alabama, Georgia area, said Jeanne Pridmore, administrative secretary for the 8900-member National Speleological Society in Huntsville, Ala. The offices for the NSS are located on — naturally — Cave Avenue.

There are 3,000 caves in northern Alabama, including one located under the Huntsville courthouse.

Dr. William T. Hill, director of Tennessee's department of conservation geology division in Nashville, said, "There are thousands of caves" in Tennessee.

Most are located in the midstate area, near Nashville, he said.

One of the most popular caving locations in Tennessee is Fall Creek Falls State Park. "This area has numerous large caves with rooms as big or bigger than the Mid-South Coliseum (a 11,200 seat arena in Memphis)," said Larry Smith of Memphis, an avid caver.

"As a caver you learn to look around for caves," Wilkins said. "We'll see a farmer and ask him, 'Got any holes on your place, partner?' Usually, they'll tell you about a cave that nobody's ever gone into before. That's kind of neat."

Rick McDaniel, biology professor at Arkansas State University and a caver for more than 25 years, said Arkansas "is saturated with caves." Because of the abundance of caves in the area, he favors caving in the Ozark Mountains in the north central and northwestern portions of the state.

Wilkins, president of the 30-member Memphis chapter of the West Tennessee Grotto Club, recently returned from rappelling down a 440-foot cave near Scottsboro, Ala. The cave featured five miles of passages. He hopes to one day rappel a 580-foot drop in a Georgia cave.

"That's half the height of the Empire State Building," said Wilkins, 32. "To get inside the cave in Alabama, I had to get permission (from the landowner) and crawl around a two-foot ledge looking straight down into a deep dark hole the size of my store. It was enough to put a lump in my throat, but it was an incredible experience."

Caving is so popular in Missouri that the state has designated 1990 as the Year of the Cave. Vineyard said 5,000 recorded caves are in Missouri. There were 437 after the state's first cave survey in 1956.

"Certainly there are a lot more that we haven't found," said Vineyard, 55, who has been involved in caving for more than four decades. "Caves are fascinating. And people who go into caves develop high conservation ethics."

Conscientious cavers, said Pridmore, follow the same motto: Take nothing but pictures, and leave nothing but footprints.

"It's a total escape from the real world," Wilkins said. "We've pushed miles past where man had never been before. When you bust through into an uncharted area of a cave, it's like stepping foot on the moon."

Wilkins said he doesn't think there is a "fearless caver." He admits being caught in some dangerous spots, including once in Missouri when his partner got stuck in a passage three to four feet wide and one foot high. Because of his small frame (5-6, 125 pounds), Wilkins was able to squeeze through the passage. His partner, who was 50 pounds heavier, couldn't resist trying, too. He got stuck.

Wilkins said "true panic" hit him when he realized if his partner was stuck, so was he, as his way out was now blocked by his partner.

"I knew I would have to not convey my fear to him or we'd be in worse trouble," Wilkins said, noting that his partner was hyperventilating. Getting as close to his partner's face as possible, Wilkins talked to him to help him calm down and he was able to back out of the passage.

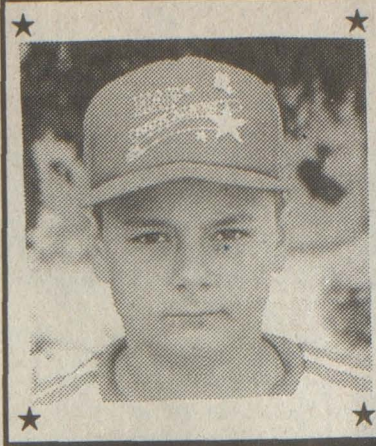

"If you're prepared, the most dangerous thing about caving is driving to the cave," Pridmore said. "We've had a very low accident ratio in our caves. But it's like anything else, you can get into trouble if you aren't prepared. You need to know what you're doing."

The Log Cabin, Part 10

Hog head cheese and a mysterious cemetery

by Barbara P. Martin
Contributing Writer

Susie Hicks recalled a story told by her late husband, Jonah Hicks. When he was young he had to help butcher hogs. It was hard work, heating water, scalding and scraping the winter meat supply. When the job was done, the ladies of the house cooked up a big mess of the fresh meat. The men were called to the table and all ate heartily.

The work of the day had required much time, and by now it was getting dark. To walk off their huge meal, they went coon hunting. Returning home about midnight, they flew into the leftovers from supper and ate as much again. This time they laid down on it, and he declared it did not hurt them a bit. Later in years, he was fearful to do such a thing.

A snack very popular, which went with hog killing time, was head cheese or souse. Melissa Martin gave me the recipe.

Cook head, ears, feet until the meat is so tender that it falls off the bones. Remove it from the heat and pick meat from bones as soon as it gets cool enough to handle with bare hands. Add sage, pepper and salt to taste. Mix well. Put into a iron skillet and cover with a plate. Add a weight to the top of the plate to press out the excess grease. If more than one skilletful is made, the second may be placed on top of the first to serve as weight for the first. Several skillets may be stacked this way. Let it set overnight in a cold place. Next morning remove the grease that has accumulated by

Former residents receives recognition

The Teddy Keene family of Georgetown, formerly of Floyd County, was one of 51 American families from each state and the District of Columbia recognized as a "Family of Achievement" for their dedication to the enrichment of quality of life for a family member with mental retardation.

The special recognition was part of the national celebration of "Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy Family Appreciation Day" July 22.

Teddy Keene is the son of Earl Keene and the late Lonnie Keene of Hi Hat, and his wife, the former Denise Mead, is the daughter of the late Don and Virginia Mead, also of Hi Hat.

Denise Keene is president of the Kentucky Association for Retarded Citizens and is involved with that organization at the local and national levels, as well. She is also on the Public Advocacy Commission, Protection and Advocacy Advisory Council and State Advisory Council for Exceptional Children.

All four members of the Keene family, Teddy, Denise, Don and Darrell, are involved in some aspect of volunteer work for the advocacy of disabled persons.

The Keene family was recommended to the Kennedy Foundation by national and local groups active in the field of mental retardation. Participants included the ARC, the Down Syndrome Congress, Special Olympics and the Beach Center at the University of Kansas at Lawrence, which made the final selections for the foundation.

Family Appreciation Day commemorated the 100th birthday of Rose Fitzgerald Kennedy whose lifelong commitment to persons with mental retardation and to the importance of the family has been an inspiration to the nation.

By Kim Frasure

PINK'S THE WORD

There seems to be a color craze going around. And, yes, I have hopped right on the band wagon and decided to go cherry coke. This new craze I joined is called "Jazzing," not a permanent color, just a 4-6 week thing.

Anyway, once the hairstylist had applied the Jazzing and placed me, bag on head, in the chair the process began. Another stylist and a client passed by me on their way to the shampoo bowl and the lady said "Oh, pink!" as she looked at my hair.

At which time a large frog stuck in my throat and I began to panic. "PINK, Oh, No!" I was thinking. My hair stylist kept reassuring me, "It's okay, don't worry!" Well, after the Jazzing took effect the towel came off — and, indeed, there were some pink curls.

You see, only a week prior to this beauty session I had gotten a permanent, and the Jazzing grabbed up some of those curls. It was late, so I decided to go on home, and if some of the pink didn't wash out I'd just return on Saturday to see what the stylist could do.

As I opened the door and headed into our house there sat my husband on the couch. His eyes were as big as 50 cent pieces, and he proceeded to gulp and pitch himself onto the floor laughing his fool head off.

"WHAT!" I screamed.

"Oh, Spouse," he said, "you're pink."

"Just on the sides, a few curls," I said.

Afterward he tried to make up for bruising my feelings. I was a wreck. Saturday morning came and as fast as I could I got to town to get the pink out. But I got to town too early. So, I came to the office to do some paper work and wait. As I approached the boss's office, I said good morning.

"Oh, my gosh!" he said. "Well, your hair matches your tie dyed shirt anyway."

I laughed and headed for my office where there are no windows. Lo and behold an advertising customer comes in. I caught on that he was being polite, but his eyes kept staring at my hair. Finally, on his way out of my office door he turned slowly and said, "Kim, what color is your hair?"

"Cherry Coke," I replied.

"Well," he said, "it matches your shirt."

That's it, I'm outta here, off to get this pink out. I got to the shop and the first thing the girls said, was, "You wore the wrong clothes." No kidding.

Now I'm gonna have to buy a new wardrobe to match my hair! I suppose that's as good an excuse as any to go shopping.

Anyway, the stylist took great pain in washing and re-washing my hair until finally a major difference was made. It also took a few snips on those two very pink curls, but now they're gone. I have to admit, it was fun, and so far it's been a fantastic conversation topic, especially here at the office. Oh well, till next week...

County Kettle

Is a feature offered by the Floyd County Times. Send all recipes, kitchen tips and suggestions to "County Kettle," The Floyd County Times, P.O. Box 391, Prestonsburg, KY 41653

by Tess A. Whitmer

I'd like to send a great, big thank you to Frances Pitts of the Floyd County Extension Office. Frances provided me with some wonderful articles on different garden fruits and vegetables that she got from the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

These will be appearing from time to time in this column. Of course, we still welcome home recipes from our readers. Send them in.

The first edition from the Extension service is about Kentucky Tomatoes.

The tomato is one of the most popular and versatile members of the fruit and vegetable group of basic food groups. The tomato is native to the Americas and was cultivated as early as 700 AD by the Aztecs and Incas. The conquistadors took seed back to Europe in the 16th Century and the tomato soon became popular in Mediterranean countries.

The British liked its brilliant red color but believed the tomato was poisonous. This same fear existed in the United States until early in the 19th Century. In 1812, the Creoles in New Orleans started adding tomatoes to gumbo and jambalaya. By 1850 the tomato was an important produce item on the market in every American city.

In Kentucky tomatoes are in season from July until October.

FRESH IS BEST

The nutrition of the tomato is just as good as the flavor and aroma. The tomato has several nutrition pluses. It is low in calories and rich in vitamins C and A. It is also a source of potassium and iron. The tomato is naturally low in sodium and free of fat and cholesterol, making it a healthy addition to almost any diet.

SELECTING AND STORING

Choose smooth, firm and plump-looking tomatoes with a good color. Ripe tomatoes should be completely red or reddish-orange, depending on variety. Since vine-ripened tomatoes have a short storage life, it may be necessary to complete the ripening at home.

To ripen tomatoes, keep at room temperature. The process can be quickened if the fresh tomato is placed in a brown paper bag. Tomatoes have a natural gas, ethylene, that hastens the ripening when they are confined in a closed bag. After the tomatoes are ripened, they can be stored in the hydrator drawer of a refrigerator for several days. One pound has about 2 large or 3 medium tomatoes. One bushel contains about 55 pounds and yields 20 to 40 pints.

TIPS ON HANDLING

It isn't necessary to peel fresh tomatoes before eating them. If the tomatoes are to be peeled, use heat to cause the skins to slip away from the flesh. Submerge tomatoes in a pan of boiling water for about 30 seconds. Transfer to cold water and the skins will peel right off.

To slice tomatoes, use a serrated knife.

To broil tomatoes, remove core and halve crosswise. Sprinkle lightly with a herb mixture and dot lightly with butter or margarine. Broil until tomatoes are tender and topping is lightly browned.

To bake tomatoes, remove core and halve crosswise, dot with butter or margarine. Bake in hot oven, 425 degrees for 10-15 minutes.

To microwave, half tomatoes crosswise, dot lightly with butter or margarine. Microwave on high power for 3-4 minutes for 4 halves or 5-6 minutes for 6-8 halves.

Suggested seasonings for broiled, baked or microwaved tomatoes: chopped green onion and 1/2 tsp of sour cream, dill with 1/2 tsp mayonnaise, grated onion and shredded cheddar cheese, fresh herbs such as basil, chives, fennel, marjoram, rosemary, sage, tarragon or thyme.

GAZPACHO SOUP

1/2 cup cucumbers, finely chopped
1/2 cup peeled fresh tomatoes, finely chopped
1/4 cup of the following, finely chopped:
green peppers
sweet red peppers onions
celery
3 Tbsps olive oil
2 Tbsps wine vinegar
Tomato juice to cover
Salt and pepper to taste
Place all ingredients in a quart jar. Refrigerate

SCALLOPED FRESH TOMATOES

1 lb fresh tomatoes, peeled

2 Tbsps margarine
1/4 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup coarsely chopped green pepper
1 Tbsp flour
1 tsp salt
1 Tbsp sugar
3 slices toasted white bread, cut in 1/2 inch squares

Preheat oven to 350 degrees. Use tomatoes held at room temperature until fully ripe. Cut out stem ends of tomatoes. Coarsely chop tomatoes (makes about 2-1/2 cups); set aside. In a medium saucepan melt margarine. Add onion and green pepper; saute for 3 minutes. Add flour; cook and stir for 1 minute. Stir in tomatoes, salt and sugar; cook and stir until mixture boils and thickens. Stir in half of the toast squares. Pour into a greased 1-quart casserole. Top with remaining toast squares. Bake until hot and bubbly, about 15 minutes.

STUFFED TOMATOES

Tomato shells or petals make an attractive way to present many salads, such as chicken, tuna, potato, chilled vegetables, coleslaw and even gelatins with vegetables.

To make tomato shells, first slice a whole tomato crosswise at its fullest part so that the core is removed. Hollow out a shell using a paring knife to slice around the tomato and a spoon to scoop out the middle. The shell should be about 1/2-inch thick. Next, stuff the shell with a filling of your choice.

To make tomato petals, first remove the core of a whole tomato with a paring knife. Then slice the tomato into quarters, leaving the bottom inch of the tomato intact. Separate into 4 petals and fill the area between them with salad.

BROILED TOMATOES

Broiled tomatoes make a colorful and delicious garnish or side dish. On small, uniform tomato halves, sprinkle Parmesan cheese mixed with buttered bread crumbs. Broil under a preheated broiler until bubbly.

CANNED TOMATOES

Use only firm, ripe, perfect tomatoes. Do not can overly-ripe tomatoes because they may not have enough acid for safe processing. (They can be satisfactorily frozen for use in soups, casseroles and other cooked dishes.)

To loosen skin, dip tomatoes into boiling water for about 1/2 minute, then dip quickly into cold water. Cut out stem ends and peel tomatoes.

HotPack. Cut peeled tomatoes into quarters. Bring to a boil; stir to keep tomatoes from sticking. Pack boiling hot tomatoes to 1/2 inch of top. Add 1/2 tsp salt and 2 Tbsps bottled lemon juice to pints, 1 tsp salt and 4 Tbsps bottled lemon juice to quarts. Wipe jar rims clean. Adjust jar lids. Process in boiling water bath (212 degrees), 35 minutes for pint jars and 45 minutes for quart jars.

As soon as you remove jars from canner, complete seals if necessary.

CHILI SAUCE

1 gallon tomatoes (after peeled, cut up)
1 quart onions, chopped

3 cups brown sugar
4 Tbsps salt*
3 tsps pepper
1 tsp mustard seed
1 tsp celery seed
1 tsp allspice
2 tsps cinnamon
1 tsp whole cloves
1 quart vinegar

Combine tomatoes, onions, sugar and spices. Cook until thick. Add vinegar and cook until very thick. Pack in hot jars and adjust lids. Process 15 minutes in boiling water bath canner. Makes 5-1/2 pints.

*Salt is for flavoring only and may be omitted for low-sodium diets.

TOMATO SAUCE

10 lbs. tomatoes, peeled, cored and chopped
3 medium onions, finely chopped
1 clove garlic, minced
1-1/2 tsp oregano
2 bay leaves
1 Tbsp salt
1 tsp black pepper
1/2 tsp crushed red pepper
1 tsp sugar

Cook chopped onion and garlic in small amount of water in a large saucepan until tender. Add remaining ingredients and simmer about 2 hours, stirring occasionally. Press mixture through food mill, discard seeds. Cook pulp over medium-high heat until thickens. Stir frequently to prevent sticking. Pour, hot, into hot jars, leaving 1/4 inch headspace. Adjust lids. Process half-pints 30 minutes in boiling water bath. Makes about 5 half-pints.

Visiting from Italy

Victoria and Joseph Campigotto are visiting from Vicenza, Italy, this summer. Their maternal grandparents are Grace Clark and the late Henry Clark of David, and their great-grandmother is Elizabeth Shepherd, also of David. They are accompanied by their mother, Susan Campigotto-Geer. Their father is Chief Warrant Officer 3 Ronald Geer, formerly of Huntington, W. Va., and a 22-year veteran of the Army, now serving with the 69th Ordnance Company in Vicenza. They plan to return to Italy in late August.

Highlands Regional staff going smoke free

"Smoking is no longer fashionable or socially acceptable. It has been proven to be dangerous to not only your health, but to those around you. In fact, there have been recently recorded legal cases won by people suffering damages to their health resulting from the effects of the secondary smoke of others in the work place.

"The consequences of smoking are now being revealed as multifaceted and with the real issue to be addressed by every smoker being, how to successfully and permanently quit smoking."

These were part of the opening remarks made by Dr. Thomas Cooper and Dr. Richard Clayton, founders of the Cooper-Clayton Method To Stop Smoking, at a seminar on smoking cessation, July 17, at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

The program "Smoke by Choice, Stop by Choice: your personal program to gain freedom from nicotine" has been critically acclaimed to have clinical studies indicating a 45 percent success rate after one year, among those completing the entire 24-week program.

Thomas Cooper, DDS, is a professor in the department of oral health sciences at the University of Kentucky College of Dentistry and senior dentist at UK. Dr. Cooper developed his smoking cessation program from his own successful smoking cessation after a 36-year smoking habit.

Richard Clayton, PhD, is a professor in the department of sociology at the University of Kentucky and is scientific director of the Center for Research on Drug Abuse Prevention.

Clayton and Cooper were among the elite group of 50 scientists invited to contribute to former Surgeon General Koop's Report on Health Consequences of Smoking: Nicotine Addiction, issued in May 1988.

According to Cooper and Clayton, nicotine is the most addictive drug known to man. It is a mood altering drug whose abuse can cause side effects that include causing the blood to have an increased tendency to clot; higher metabolism; irritability of the bowel; and a suppressed insulin output. These are in addition to the more commonly recognized smoke related health problems such as pulmonary emphysema and lung cancer.

Highlands Regional Medical Center is now offering the Cooper/Clayton Method to Stop Smoking Program to its employees and physicians in an attempt to better prepare them for the time when all public service institutions, including Highlands, will be smoke free.

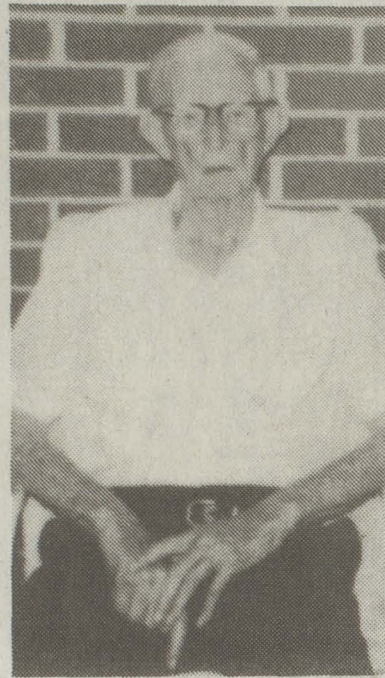

To date, five hospitals in the area are smoke free. They are Central Baptist, St. Joseph's Hospital, Good Samaritan, Cabell Huntington and the University of Kentucky Hospital.

Smoke free

Dr. Richard Clayton and Dr. Thomas Cooper from the University of Kentucky presented a smoking cessation program to employees and physicians at Highlands Regional Medical Center to prepare the staff for the time when the hospital goes smoke free.

KENTUCKY'S WAITING CHILD

Twelve year old Scott enjoys playing on his bike, camping, hiking, running, and swimming. He wants a family that "doesn't drink alcohol, doesn't get mad easily, one that will talk to me when I need it, and one that loves me."

Kentucky has over 275 children waiting for an adoptive family. Like Scott, these children wait in foster homes, if they are lucky. Kentucky has a shortage of foster and adoptive homes for older children.

The Department for Social Services is looking for people who can make a commitment to children. You can be single, an apartment dweller, or have a moderate income. There is no fee charged for services.

If you want to make a difference in the life of a child, consider fostering or adoption. For information call:

After a two-week honeymoon in Hawaii, the couple resides at Abbott in Prestonsburg.

Handicap groups now banded together

Fifty-three statewide and regional associations that represent a wide assortment of people with handicaps are now banded together under one flag—that of the Kentucky Coalition for People with Handicaps Inc.

"We have gone our own ways for too long," says Jane Hart of Frankfort, the coalition's new president. "I think that acting and speaking together will help us reach a common goal—a better life in Kentucky for all people with handicaps."

According to Gail Lincoln, coalition executive director, there are 65,000 people in the state with disabilities. Most are represented on the coalition. Many are members, along with their families and friends.

Hart says the coalition is working for:

—a major increase in residential and support services across the state;

—a major increase in supported employment so that people with disabilities can hold down regular jobs; and —better, more integrated educational choices.

Reaching these goals would be helped by more representation for disability advocates on Kentucky's 14 regional Mental Health Center boards, and more monitoring and consultation for their services, she said.

The coalition will survey all candidates for legislative posts in September to determine the depth and scope of their commitments to services for people with handicaps.

Also, all gubernatorial candidates will be invited to speak at the coalition's breakfast for legislators next Jan. 9 in Frankfort during the General Assembly's organizational session.

Other newly elected officers of the Kentucky Coalition for People with Handicaps are Keith Adams, vice president, Paducah; Philip Grossman, secretary, Louisville; and Joe Ann Dove, treasurer, Winchester. Also on the board of directors are Arthur Campbell, Louisville, personnel committee chair; Graeme Hopple, Newport, issues committee chair; and Bob Moore, Lexington, research committee chair. Additional staff are associate director Cherry Moore, Lexington; Donna Connell, Morehead, parent coordinator; and Jeff Burgin, Louisville, consumer coordinator.

Since her retirement from the state division of mental retardation three years ago, Hart has been a full-time activist. She says that educating the public, members of the state legislature and other policy makers about the problems and possibilities of people with handicaps is the key to getting the right services and the money it takes to fund them.

"All we seek for Kentuckians with handicaps is the independence and productivity that comes from living and working in the community, like the rest of us," she says.

Travel to Lexington

KSDAR State Registrar and John Graham DAR member, Mrs. Ray Brackett, accompanied by KSDAR State Organizing Secretary, Mrs. Samuel Gayhart of Hindman, were in Lexington on July 18 and 19 for an executive and state board of management meeting at the Campbell House.

On Wednesday, both attended the Colonial Dames XVII Century luncheon at Spindletop. Also, while in Lexington they visited with Laura and John Thrasher and Sandra Gayhart.

KMI art in NY

Pineville artist Mason Combs' work of "Winter Quarters — KMI" will be exhibited in New York City during September. The exhibit titled "Our Own Show" includes more than 250 paintings and drawings by members of the Society of Illustrators.

"Winter Quarters — KMI" is valued at $3000.

Combs' illustration depicts the Kentucky Military Institute winter facility at Venice, Fla. KMI was the oldest private military school in the nation. Founded in 1845 near Frankfort, it was later located in Lyndon, along with its Florida winter quarters. The school closed in 1971.

Combs is presently illustrating all United States service academies. His paintings and prints are sold from Flocoe gallery in Pineville. The New York exhibit is scheduled Sept. 6-28 at The Museum of American Illustration, 128 East 63rd St.

To wed Saturday

The bride-elect is a graduate of Betsy Layne High School and will attend Prestonsburg Community College this fall. The prospective-groom is a graduate of BLHS and is employed by the Tackett Branch Coal Company. The wedding will be Saturday, Aug. 4 at 2 p.m. at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Arnold Salisbury on Toler. A reception will immediately follow the ceremony.

WAYLAND AREA SENIORS

Mildred Halbert, center director

The board of directors of the Wayland Area Senior Citizens met Tuesday, July 24 at 6 p.m. at the center with chairperson Elmer Morrison conducting the meeting. Colleen Prater from the Big Sandy Area Development District was in attendance.

Director Mildred Halbert advised that the name of the center had been painted on the sides of the center's van. There was some discussion concerning health insurance for the three permanent employees; namely, the director, the cook and the van driver. Prater volunteered to check on group rates and advise.

She reported, however, that all centers do not have this fringe benefit as it is something each center must decide upon. Morrison explained that since health insurance had not been budgeted, it would have to be considered at a later date.

The director passed out copies of the recent inspection of the center, which gave a very favorable report. Prater then advised there will be a cooks' training on Aug. 3, to be conducted by Debbie Patton, a registered dietitian.

The next meeting of the board of directors will be Aug. 21, at 6 p.m. at the center.

Those present were Elmer Morrison, Bert Herigan, Odis Perry, Lula Ratliff and Libby Martin, directors, Colleen Prater and the three permanent employees of the center and some of the members.

Childbirth group gets match grant

The Big Sandy Family and Childbirth Education Association has received a $3500 matching grant from the Christian Appalachian Project of Lancaster.

A condition of the grant states that the Big Sandy Family must raise $1750 to demonstrate community support in order to be eligible for the funds.

The group plans to begin a fund-raising campaign to solicit the money needed to qualify for the grant. The success of this campaign will determine the Big Sandy Family's ability to continue to offer the prepared childbirth classes.

The Big Sandy Family has given prepared childbirth education classes in Prestonsburg since 1978 and in Paintsville since January 1990. More than 1200 pregnant women and their partners have taken the classes.

Information on the physical and emotional changes of pregnancy, labor and delivery, and breastfeeding is presented in the 14-hour course.

For information on the classes or to make a donation, contact Mary Pettey in Prestonsburg at 886-8544.

New technique

Gayle Bastin (left), Homemaker and Craft Exhibitor from Somerset, came to Prestonsburg to teach a workshop on Fabric Dye on Sweat Shirts. Twenty-seven homemakers from the Floyd County area were present, along with Floyd County Home Economist Frances Pitts (right), to learn the new techniques with the dyes and fabric.

Log Cabin

strawberries mixed with rhubarb for a pie filling.

These simple desserts were made on days when the workload was heavy, like wash day, when the old gasoline Maytag washer was pulled out and filled. Two more tubs of water were carried to rinse in. The popping motor noise was deafening and could be heard a mile away.

These ladies knew what hard work was. Home chores included hoeing in the garden. Roberta and Callie sewed their families' clothes. They cut them out without a pattern, by guess, and sewed them together with a treadle sewing machine, run by foot power. They looked neat and no one ever knew, unless they told them, that they made their own clothes.

At that time, the fun game for young and old was to wade in the branch for relaxation. Who would be satisfied with that now?

SEARCH BEYOND LIFE

On a knoll behind the S.P. Ratliff cabin were several graves. I went there in search of more information regarding the original owner, Polly Ratliff. The dates on the grave markers are proof that it was indeed a good life, or they would not have lived so long. They seemed to be lined up, one after another, with the oldest first. Newer graves were in the back.

The first one was very old, unnamed and alone... Polly Ratliff? Or someone no one remembers? Could this have been a bride for whom the house was built? Did her husband fall at a time when he was far from her side so that he could not assist her in making history and thus make her lie in death alone.

Former resident dies

Mrs. Ballard Herald has received word that her sister Electa Risner Argood died on Saturday, July 27 in Deland, Fla.

Mrs. Argood, who was born and spent her early years in the Prestonsburg vicinity, has resided in Deland for the past several years. Funeral services and burial took place there.

Among those surviving, other than Mrs. Herald, are another sister, Hazel Baldrige of Bonita, Fla., and several nieces and nephews, including Jean Burke of Prestonsburg.

Engagement told

NANCY HELEN REED

Phyllis A. Reed of Drift announces the engagement of her daughter Nancy Helen Reed to Elbert Richard Hines Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Elbert Richard Hines of Richmond, Va.

The prospective groom is a graduate of the University of Richmond and is co-owner of Priceless Pages Bookstore in Richmond.

The wedding is planned for 2 p.m. on Nov. 10 at Bon Air Baptist Church in Richmond.

Visitors to Grethel

Roxie Corbett Dickinson and children, Joshua, Jocelyn, Jonathan and Joel, recently visited in the Grethel area. She is the eldest child of the Rev. and Mrs. Gene Corbett, who pastored the Grethel Baptist Church from October 1959 through September 1964.

She spoke briefly during Sunday morning and evening services, giving an update on the Liberian Civil War which has caused them to return to the US.

After the Sunday evening service a time of food and fellowship was enjoyed at the church annex. The visitors were en route to Galeton, Pa., for temporary housing. Her husband Brian was in Pennsylvania for speaking engagements. The family had been visiting her parents in Flagstaff, Ariz., where her father is pastor of the Baptist Mid-Missions Open Bible Baptist Church.

ARTHRITIS SUFFERERS...

Don't Postpone Your Tee Time!

If you suffer with arthritis of the knee or hip, you're not alone. Over a half million Kentuckians (one in every three families) have unsuccessfully tried numerous medications as well as walking aids. If you're still not getting relief, the answer may lie in a safe surgical procedure—TOTAL KNEE AND HIP REPLACEMENT.

Don't be reduced to being a spectator. If you've resigned yourself to a life of pain and discomfort, why not consider what an artificial implant can do for you? It may be the most painless decision you ever make!
