Day care for adults is coming

by Janice Shepherd
Staff Writer

"A homey atmosphere, a place to feel comfortable," will be the major attractions of Adult Day Care Center soon to be located at Archer Park, said Patsy Evans, director of the center.

The center will be located in a modular home that will be set up behind the Prestonsburg Senior Citizens Center, which will operate the adult center, Evans said. The unit was acquired through the auspices of the Episcopal Church in Prestonsburg and preparations are being made for its transfer to the park this weekend.

Doug Lawson, with the Big Sandy Area Development District, hopes the adult center will be open in February. "Renovations must be made," Lawson said. "More bathrooms must be added and made handicap accessible."

Both Evans and Lawson expressed enthusiasm for the project which was also implemented in Pikeville in October.

There has been a need in Floyd County for this center," Evans said.

Lawson echoed her sentiments, "Adult Day Care is just catching on. There has always been a need for them, especially for Alzheimers patients. Their caregivers cannot leave the house. They can't go to the store. They have nobody to help them."

Caregivers of patients who need to be supervised and have some degree of mobility will find a brief respite from their daily vigilance. The center will be open during normal working hours, 8 a.m.-5 p.m., five days per week so that caregivers do not have to give up their jobs to provide adequate care for their relatives.

Evans said stimulating activities are planned at the center, including games or exercises.

"Activities will be based on the assessment of each client," Lawson said. "The center will provide a supportive environment for individualized, personal care."

Enrollment in the program is limited at present, Lawson said, but he hopes the center will eventually take care of "up to 20 individuals." Presently, there is a waiting list with six names and Lawson said six more could be added. To add someone's name to the list, call Prestonsburg

Fired trooper to appeal dismissal

Former Kentucky State Police trooper Jerome Martin has filed an appeal of his dismissal in Franklin Circuit Court. Martin was fired earlier this month on sexual misconduct charges.

Martin, 28, claims that the charges against him were racially motivated. Martin is the only black trooper at the Pikeville post.

Martin's attorney, Earl C. Mullins Jr. of Louisville has asked for a court review of the trial board's January 11 decision dismissing him for allegedly engaging in a homosexual act while on duty last May and then lying about it to superiors.

Hospital bonds are meeting topic

A public hearing and a special meeting of the Floyd County Fiscal Court will be held Friday beginning at 10 a.m. at the Floyd County Courthouse Annex to discuss the refinancing of hospital revenue bonds.

The court will have a second reading of an ordinance to issue $10,445,000 in revenue bonds for Highlands Regional Medical Center. The court will loan the proceeds of the bond sale to the hospital.

A public hearing will be held prior to the meeting in order for interested individuals will be given the opportunity to express their views on the proposed bond sale.

Two jurors disqualified :

Mistrial ends murder case

by Tony Fyffe
Paintsville Herald
News Editor

Johnson County Assistant Commonwealth Attorney J.D. Johnson said Thursday he will immediately request a new trial for a Johnson County man accused of murdering a Floyd County man last year.

Jim Jack Penix Jr. is charged with murder in the May 13, 1990 shooting of Barrett Heath Endicott, 19, of Prestonsburg at a Johnson County trailer park. Penix is also charged with first degree wanton endangerment for allegedly placing a rifle at the head of another man during the same incident.

Johnson will file a motion February 1 asking that a new trial be scheduled for Penix, whose murder case was abruptly halted Wednesday in Johnson Circuit Court.

Just minutes before opening arguments were to begin, Circuit Judge Stephen N. Frazier declared a mistrial in Penix's case. He based his decision on information received Wednesday morning that two jurors have connections to the Johnson County sheriff's department, which assisted in the investigation of the Penix case.

Jury selection for Penix's trial began Tuesday. More than 30 potential jurors were called, and the list was narrowed to 28. Twelve final jurors and an alternate were selected for the case Tuesday night.

During the selection process, jurors are asked several questions regarding the nature of the particular case. One question is whether jury members are related to or know the defendant, attorneys or investigators of the case.

Opening arguments and testimony were slated to start Wednesday morning, but Frazier informed the 13-member jury at 10:25 a.m. that the case would not proceed.

Frazier said he was told Wednesday morning that one juror, after returning home Tuesday evening, recalled not answering one of the questions asked earlier in the day.

And, "as bad luck would have it,

Two shootings investigated :

Pizzas stolen, robbery charged

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A 20-year-old Floyd County man was charged with first degree robbery for an incident allegedly involving the theft of two pizzas.

Ronnie Martin of Minnie was arrested January 17 and charged with robbery for allegedly taking two pizzas valued at $27.70 from James Hamilton. State Police Trooper Mike Thorpe arrested Martin, who was later released on a surety bond.

In other arrests, a 29 year-old Auxier man turned himself in for allegedly shooting a Prestonsburg man four times.

Daniel Vance was indicted on October 1, 1990 for allegedly shooting Jack Litteral on September 1, 1990 at Patton's Trailer Court in Auxier. At a pre-trial hearing held January 10, Vance pleaded guilty to first degree assault charges. The commonwealth attorney recommended a five-year sentence and Vance accepted. He will be formally sentenced at a later date.

Separate shooting incidents led to the arrests of two Floyd County men, one of whom allegedly shot his grandfather and the other allegedly shot his brother.

Gary Evans, 25, of McDowell was arrested January 17 after allegedly shooting his grandfather, Bill Evans, with a shotgun. The younger Evans was arrested by state police detective Joel Newsome and later released on a $5,000 unsecured bond.

The other shooting incident involved Robert E. Kidd, 18, of Harold who was arrested January 15 and charged with first degree assault and first degree burglary after allegedly took a 12 gauge shotgun from a residence and then shot his brother, Michael Kidd. Robert Kidd was arrested by state police Detective Les Stapleton.

In other police activity, Clayton Clouse Jr., 19, was arrested January 13 and charged with terroristic threatening and assault in the fourth degree for allegedly beating and throwing his father down, the complaint said. Clouse allegedly threatened to come back to his father's residence with a "machine gun and kill everyone in the home," the complaint said.

Other arrests made were Melissa Collins, 19, of Morehead, who was charged with forgery and unauthorized use of a motor vehicle for allegedly signing personal checks of her father's on December 28. In a com-

Coal tax issue in the middle :

Battle lines are forming

Groups usually sitting on opposite sides of the table when coal industry issues are debated joined forces in support of a bill to return more coal severance tax money to coal-producing counties but state leaders from central and northern Kentucky formed their own coalition to oppose the measure.

Representatives of groups as diverse as Kentuckians For The Commonwealth and Kentucky Coal Coalition stood behind Governor Wallace Wilkinson—literally and figuratively—as he tried Wednesday to drum up support for an increase in coal severance tax returns to coal-producing counties.

At the Wednesday morning press conference at the Capitol, the governor aimed his case at members of the media who have been slow to see the merits of returning additional monies from the tax to the 80 or so counties that have historically produced coal.

Wilkinson was flanked by state legislators from many Eastern Kentucky counties and by members of the groups that have banded together to support the measure now before the General Assembly's special session. The groups included United Mine Workers, AFL-CIO, Kentucky Association of Counties and County Judge-Executives Association, in addition to KFTC and KCC.

"We must get those counties up to the point where the revenue base will cover essential services and allow for future growth," the governor said, adding the state will never do as well as it can do until all its counties have an opportunity for economic growth.

Lawmakers opposed to the measure, including legislators from Central Kentucky, Northern Kentucky and Jefferson County, said the special session was not the time to decide the issue and they also questioned parts of the proposal.

Representative Ernesto Scorsone of Lexington said Wednesday with the nation beginning a recession there would be no extra funds in the state's budget. He suggested any redirection of coal tax money should be considered next year when the general assembly meets.

The proposal under consideration by the General Assembly includes the return of an added 13 percent in coal severance tax revenues to the coal-producing counties, most of which are in Eastern Kentucky. Wilkinson estimated the amount at about $23 million.

Under the proposed bill, the extra money would go into a trust fund aimed specifically at projects that would enhance the economic development of what are now the state's poorest counties.

Wilkinson said that until the infrastructure—primarily water systems, roads, and building sites—is improved, business and industry cannot be attracted to those counties. The trust money, he said, would go for "things to attract and retain jobs."

Improvements, he said, are already being made in the school system and in transportation facilities, which he likened to two legs of a stool. The third leg, essential for the stool to stand, is "resources for economic growth and development."

In response to a question, Wilkinson said he had placed the issue on the special session agenda because "time after time in the budget cycle, this issue has failed to get support. This issue has not been assigned the priority that it should be assigned."

State Representative Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, joined the governor in pushing for the measure. "Some say let's put it off until '92,"

Festival plans offer variety for discussion

Tentative plans include:

- Lectures about events that occurred in Floyd County during the Civil War.
 - A walk-through museum of artifacts from the Civil War.
 - A battle of the bands and radio deejays in the Prestonsburg Municipal parking lot.
 - An enactment of the Battle of Middle Creek.
 - A concert sponsored by the Kentucky Opry.
 - Arts and crafts and food booths.
- Interested persons are invited to attend the meeting and ideas and suggestions to expand the festival are welcome. For more information contact Fred James at 886-2335.

Vet center vigil draws ABC's eye

A television crew from ABC's Good Morning America program was in Paintsville Thursday to tape a candlelight vigil supporting U.S. troops in the Middle East.

The ceremony was sponsored by the Eastern Kentucky Veterans' Referral Center, a volunteer organization based in Paintsville which provides information and support services to veterans and their families in Kentucky's 7th Congressional District.

Bill Scurlock, a spokesman for the center, said he had no idea how the popular morning news program found out about the local vigil, held at 7 p.m. Thursday at the Johnson County courthouse.

Scurlock said the Veterans' Referral Center also planned to develop a support group for families of Eastern Kentucky soldiers stationed in the Middle East, and an organizational meeting is set for Tuesday, January 29, at 6:30 p.m. at the center, located on Broadway Avenue in Paintsville.

Wayland home is damaged by fire

An early Friday morning fire resulted in major smoke and water damage to the home of Buford Slone of Wayland.

Wayland Fire Chief Sammy Bentley reported the department received a call at 3:45 a.m. from a neighbor reporting Slone's house on fire. The department responded with 12 men and one truck to the one-story blaze.

The cause of the fire is unknown and the house was estimated to received 50 percent fire damage and 100 percent smoke and water damage. The Slone's were not home at the time of the fire.

Impeachment, incentives advance

A state legislative committee has recommended that Agriculture Commissioner Ward "Butch" Burnette face impeachment.

House Majority Leader Greg Stumbo, D-Prestonsburg, chairman of the seven-member House Impeachment Committee, told the House Wednesday that the committee's action was "one of the most unpleasant, if not the most unpleasant task, that we've ever been confronted with."

The membership of the House is expected to vote today, Friday, on the committee's recommendation. If approved, an impeachment trial will be held in the Senate.

Burnette, convicted of theft on charges he paid a secretary before she actually began working, began serving a one-year sentence on Saturday.

Only two people have been impeached in Kentucky history. Only one, state Treasurer "Honest" Dick Tate has been convicted by the Senate and removed from office. That was more than a century ago.

Other news from the ongoing special session of the Kentucky General Assembly:

•The Senate Appropriations and Revenue Committee on Wednesday approved economic incentive packages for Delta Airlines and Scott Paper Company.

The Delta package includes tax credits worth an estimated $3 million per year for five years; and a limit of $4 million per year on the amount of jet fuel tax the company will pay.

The Scott Paper Company package includes $7.45 million for road improvements, a $2 million grant to train workers, and $4.5 million in low interest loans.

The total value of both economic incentive packages has been estimated at $300 million.

•House Bill 11, which tightens drunk driving laws, got its first public hearing Wednesday before the House Judiciary Committee.

The bill would make it illegal to drive with a blood-alcohol level of that happened not one time but twice," Frazier said.

Johnson said Thursday the two jurors told Frazier they had ties to the Johnson County sheriff's department.

One juror, Rex Scarberry, said "a member of his family was closely associated with one of the deputy sheriffs," Johnson said. He was excused from the case.

Both sides agreed to continue with the 12-member jury until another panelist, George Spriggs, informed Frazier he had "forgotten" being deputized by Sheriff Gene Cyrus in the early 1980s, Johnson said.

Spriggs is an unpaid deputy and doesn't perform any duties, Johnson said.

When jurors are selected, both the prosecutor and defense attorney are allowed to eliminate—or strike—a certain number of jury members for cause.

The issue, Johnson said, was not the perceived impartiality of Spriggs, but the fact that Penix's attorneys—Teddy Flynt and Ned Pillersdorf—were denied the opportunity to strike him during selection on Tuesday.

Flynt said Wednesday morning that he would have asked that the deputy be stricken, Johnson added.

And, because other potential jurors had officially been dismissed from hearing the Penix case, they could not be recalled.

For that reason, "the present panel must be set aside (for the Penix trial) and a new jury selected on another day," Frazier said in declaring the mistrial.

If the case had proceeded and Penix convicted, the Kentucky Supreme Court would have likely overturned the jury's decision and order a new trial, Frazier said.

A new circuit panel will be seated in June, Johnson said he would ask that a new trial be scheduled soon after the panel is in place.

"No one is at fault," Frazier said Wednesday. "This occurrence happened because people were forthright and ethical and came forward with information they had forgotten."

Frazier described the character of Scarberry and Spriggs as "excellent." Frazier also praised the "excellent work and preparation" of Johnson, Flynt and Pillersdorf.

"I believe this has been the best prepared case that I have ever seen in the last seven years as circuit judge," he said.

Johnson said he would not entertain a plea bargain agreement in the case.

Inclement weather affects attendance at district meet

by Kathleen Carroll
Contributing Writer

Weather reports threatening snowfall for Eastern Kentucky seriously reduced attendance at the Kentucky Human Services Association district meeting Thursday at May Lodge in Jenny Wiley State Park. The meeting was expected to draw attendance from twelve counties, instead it attracted only a handful of participants from the immediate area.

The district gathering had planned to hear presentations by two speakers, Ann Greene, the Adult Education Director of the Floyd County Literacy Council, and Libby Jones, wife of gubernatorial candidate Lt. Governor Brereton Jones. Both speakers conducted informal presentations and responded to questions from the audience.

"The newest service of the Literacy Council," said Ann Greene, "is a letter writing campaign to the men and women in Operation Desert Shield." Greene explained, "there are many from this area who have loved ones now stationed in the Middle East. We know they would like to write to them, but cannot." Greene added, "so we invite anyone who cannot write to call us or come in to see us. We'll help them write as many letters as they want to send. We can be reached by calling 886-READ (or 886-7323)."

Greene described the work of the Floyd County Literacy Council, which also services communities in surrounding counties. "When the census reports that more than one-third of this area's population are functionally illiterate," Greene explained, "you have to find different ways to make services accessible to the people who need them." According to Greene the Literacy Council has recently initiated a referral program to make literacy tutoring available through the food stamp program.

The Council is also seeking new volunteer tutors for the literacy program. Tutors are trained by the Council to assist students in learning how to read. "Many of these students want to read, so they work hard—quite a few of them go on to complete GED studies. It can be a very rewarding experience," said Greene.

Attending the meeting after touring the Prestonsburg Senior Citizen's Center, Libby Jones discussed the services of the Sanders-Brown Center on Aging at the University of Kentucky which provides medical care, education for human services workers, and community services such as day care for patients suffering from Alzheimer's disease. "You are on the front lines of aging services," Jones told the small gathering, "and the Sanders-Brown Center would like to establish a dialogue with you to address specific problems you might face."

Jones also introduced the Association of Older Kentuckians (A-OK) which is designed to disseminate information on aging services statewide. The organization centers around the "Prime Time" radio show hosted by Al Smith. Listeners can participate in the program by calling 1-800-767-4AOK. The program is aired daily on WPRT in Prestonsburg and WPKE in Pikeville.

Questions from the audience addressed many problems confronting Eastern Kentucky human services workers, including the need to increase public awareness of how human services funds are spent, the need for consumer protection services for the aged, and the need for financial assistance for those whose Medicare or Medicaid programs do not meet their medical expenses. "All of these suggestions are good. Affordable health care will be a central issue of the 1990s," said Jones.

When asked if new interest in aging services would spur state investigation of the failure of many nursing homes to provide adequate emotional care in addition to the minimal medical care many patients now receive, Jones answered, "I hadn't mentioned nursing homes because the problem is so complex, making it difficult to fully address and understand. So many of us have loved ones and friends in nursing homes that I am sure we are all concerned that they get the very best care."

said the House Democratic Floor Leader, "but if you start out behind and don't catch up, you just get farther and farther behind."

Stumbo said, after the press conference, that the diversity of support was a strong point for the proposal. "Many (of these groups) have been opposed on other issues, but they've come together for this," he said.

State Senator Benny Ray Bailey added that the proposal has the support of every candidate for governor, except Gatewood Galbraith whom he was not able to reach.

Taking a shot at media stories and editorials critical of the proposal, Bailey said, "What little pittance of tax we (Eastern Kentucky) get, we're accused of waste, but let me tell you, Eastern Kentucky has no monopoly on waste."

northern and western Kentucky amount to only about "five or six years of what we recommend for the coal severance tax."

"If we can, for a single industry, give (the equivalent of) five or six years of coal severance tax (money), then we can recommend that $23 million or so go back to those counties," he said.

The governor said that passage of the proposed bill will not endanger funding of education reform or any other state program. He termed the proposal "economically sound."

Floyd County Judge-Executive John M. Stumbo was also at the press conference as a representative of both the county and the Kentucky Coal Coalition. KCC had planned a reception for legislators Wednesday evening, in an effort to lobby for broader support of the proposal.

"If someone needs constant medical care," Lawson said, "we can't do it. That is an Adult Day Care Health Model. We are a social model."

An Adult Day Care Health Model provides supervised health care for someone who must be constantly monitored by health professionals.

A social model meets the social needs of the client, giving them continued physical activity and supervision. Meals will also be provided at the adult center.

Lawson said he hopes the project will expand. "There are no limitations where an Adult Day Care Center could be."

PALS class presented at Methodist Hospital

The Methodist Hospital now has several new certified pediatric advanced life support providers and instructors thanks to an American Heart Association two-day class. The Pediatric Advanced Life Support (PALS) class was presented by the Emergency Medical Training Association from Huntington, West Virginia at the Methodist Hospital. Several medical professionals from the Methodist Hospital and from West Virginia completed the class and are now certified. The two day event included not only basic life support techniques, but also more advanced techniques including intubation, intravenous infusions and management techniques. The medical personnel's skills and knowledge of treating critically ill infants and children were tested and the participants who successfully completed the tests were certified.

cher, Shirley Vanover, Anita Varney, Pat Thacker and Joan Johnson. The Pediatric Advanced Life Support Certification will require that certified providers be re-tested every two years to assure that they keep updated and retain their skills. The PALS program was developed by the American Heart Association and the American Academy of Pediatrics in order to train health care professionals in the special approach needed for infants and children. The pediatric approach focuses more on respiratory system and circulation problems rather than the adult life support program which focuses more on heart problems.

Middle school PTA meets Tuesday

The Adams Middle School PTA will meet Tuesday, January 29 at 7 p.m. in the school's cafeteria. The meeting is expected to last one hour. "Our main emphasis as a PTA," said PTA President Sandra Robertson, "is to provide information to parents, students and faculty. We want everyone to feel affiliation and pride in our school." At its November meeting, the parent-faculty group voted to become a PTA rather than a PTO. "Prior to the meeting, the officers explored the differences between PTOs and PTAs," explained Robertson. "Several factors favored our becoming a PTA. As a PTA we are part of a nationally recognized group; there is no need for a separate charter; we are already incorporated and tax-exempt; we receive materials and support; and there is a lobbyist in Washington who advocates for our children's best interests." Other PTA officers are Tom Price, vice-president; Gwen Hammonds, vice-president/faculty representative; Bonnie Hale, secretary; Linda Francis, treasurer. Robertson plans for each one-hour monthly meeting to include 15 minutes of business, 15 minutes spotlighting a student activity or class, and a 30-minute program. Committee reports will be presented at Tuesday's meeting. New memberships will also be taken at a special reduced fee of $2.50. Any interested adult may join.

Basic EKG interpretation class at OLW

Our Lady of the Way Hospital will offer a Basic EKG Interpretation class at Our Lady of the Way Hospital on February 21 and 22. The instructor is Billie Turner, RN from Our Lady of the Way Hospital. Registration will begin at 8:30 a.m. The program will start at 9 a.m. Both instruction days must be attended in order to receive 11 contact hours. This workshop will focus on both basic arrhythmia interpretation and nursing interventions. Lectures will be supplemented with practice sessions in interpreting selected EKG strips. This program is sponsored by the Kentucky Board of Nursing. Pre-registration is required and up to 10 registrants is a must before the class will be held. To register contact, Carol Prater, Human Resources Dept., Our Lady of the Way Hospital, 285-5181.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Kentucky's own version of the Flat Earth Society (groups of legislators from Northern Kentucky, Central Kentucky and Jefferson County) has reinforced the notion that Kentucky does, indeed, revolve around the Golden Triangle and any ventures beyond its borders would be foolish.

After all, these high priests of high-handedness huff, one doesn't chance sloshing the mint julep by stepping off the edge of the world. Goodness no, sacrifice a virgin quickly, slay the fatted-lamb (some new potatoes would be nice with that) burn the heretics at the steak, er, stake.

The sacrifice here, of course, is a proposal to give coal counties a larger cut of the coal severance tax take. Legislators from the aforementioned areas chanted in unison Wednesday against such a plan, suggesting it violated the Eleventh Commandment...

Thou shalt not permit Eastern Kentuckians to get off welfare.

Other reported reasons for opposing the coal tax proposal emanating from from the Golden Triangle Caucus include:

A. "Just where in the Hell is Eastern Kentucky?"

B. "Why don't they just move to where the jobs are?"

C. "We've already taken the tolls off the Mountain Parkway, what more do these people want?"

D. "If they had jobs, where would they find the time to shop in the Fayette Mall?"

E. "Let them eat coal."
Isn't it great to live so close to Kentucky?"

It's early yet, but the May primary affords Eastern Kentuckians the opportunity to make inroads into the power base that controls what does and doesn't happen in Kentucky.

We've never considered the office of Lt. Governor to be very important in the grand scheme of things in the Commonwealth, but one candidate for that office deserves our support.

Paul Patton has demonstrated time and again that his heart and his head belong to an Eastern Kentuckian. His ideas work, too.

Patton is a proven leader and we can give him the chance to lead in May.

Think about it.

Kentucky Senator Wendell Ford has renewed his efforts to have Congress pass his "Motor-voter" bill, which makes voter registration automatic.

It's a good idea.

Under the plan, people would be automatically registered to vote when they apply for a driver's license or renew their licenses.

The system would just about guarantee that anyone who wants to vote will be registered to do so. We support it.

The war in the Persian Gulf has caused concern among us all, but life goes on at home.

Particularly at our home, where the presence of a three-year-old son has a way of breaking the tension.

This week's diversion from the war came when Allan, by some means known only to him, happened to get a small piece of cauliflower stuck in his eye.

Amid his howls of pain, the lad found the composure to blame his plight on his ten-year-old sister Megan who, of course, wasn't within 100 yards of the scene of the crime.

This is the same child, we'll add, who once required emergency room treatment to remove a Crayon from his nose, which had been placed there, the boy claimed, by the dog.

And, this is the same child who, after trashing his sister's room to the point of where it looked like terrorists detonated a nuclear device in Barbie's Dream House, unblinkingly accused his grandmother of being responsible for the carnage.

We had her arrested, of course. The war in the gulf may be over soon, but we've still got to face the teen years.

Eeeeeeeeyiiiiiiiiiii!

God made this world like He wanted it to be;

Now they are tearing down His mountains and cutting down His trees.

The rich seems to get away with most anything.

The politicians are their puppets; They have them on a string.

So, wake up America and get out and vote.

Get shed of all those politicians Trying to cut your throat.

They seem to be for the rich; They want to tax the poor and cut

Medicare down to the core.

They seem to vote themselves a raise most anytime.

They don't care if the old folks have a dime.

So, wake up America and get out and vote;

Get ahead of all those politicians Trying to cut your throat.

They seem to be for the rich; they let them pollute the streams,

Plus all the waterways nationwide, it seems.

Politicians shake your hand when they want your vote,

But when they get elected, they want to cut your throat.

So, wake up America and get out and vote;

Get shed of all those politicians trying to cut your throat.

Yes, they seem to be for the rich; they want to tax the poor,

And take everything away from you.

Do I have to say anymore.

Red Cross receives letters from soldiers

Red Cross Chapter 1917:

I received your package a few days ago and just now got a few minutes to sit down to write this.

I would like to say thanks to everyone that made this care package possible. You would not believe how great it was to eat actual soup out of a can. Things that people take for granted in everyday life become luxuries when you don't have it.

I would also like to say thanks to all the kids at Cow Creek Baptist Church for their messages of support. It's you people that we're over here for, and we won't let you down.

I thank God everyday that I'm from a place where the people do care and I want to tell each and every one of you that you have a special place in my heart. You made a lot of people over here very happy and made me very proud to tell everyone that this package came from my hometown.

Speaking for my battalion, I would like to say thank you, and we hope each and every one of you had a very Merry Christmas. Also remember Christmas as the Lord Jesus Christ's birthday and not for all the presents, lights and decorations that a lot of people get caught up in.

It is a time for giving and all of you have given us the knowledge of knowing that people do care about us being over here. May God bless all of you.

Cpl. Ronnie Parsons
Marine Corps

Red Cross:

I would like to thank you all for the package I received from you today. All of the stuff is very useful.

Hope they solve the crisis soon. So we can return home.

I hope you all have a very Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

And I hope I see you all when I return. Take care of yourselves, and thanks again for the package.

Moses Frasure Jr.
U.S.S. La Moure County

Red Cross:

I have received your package and I thank you all a lot. The things have come in real handy. All the other soldiers say thanks, too, because we all share. Some people don't get any packages so we distribute the stuff.

I thank you again and I hope you all have a Merry Christmas and a Happy New Year.

Veterans Affairs

Following are representative questions answered daily by VA Counselors. Full information is available at any VA Office.

Q.—I am preparing my taxes and would like a statement of my taxable income from VA since I receive VA benefits. Are VA benefits subject to federal income taxation?

A.—VA benefits are not subject to federal income tax, and we do not provide a W-2 or 1099 form to you or the IRS, with one exception. Interest paid on accrued GI insurance dividends left on deposit is subject to taxation.

Q.—I understand the Budget Reconciliation Act recently limited compensation payments to certain incompetent veterans. What are the limitations?

A.—The Budget Reconciliation Act requires that payment of compensation to a non-hospitalized incompetent veteran, with no spouse, child or dependent parent, be suspended in any case where the value of the veteran's estate (not including the veteran's home) exceeds $25,000 until the value of the state is reduced to less than $10,000. The Act further provides for payment of the total amount of compensation that had been withheld, should the veteran subsequently be rated competent for 90 days. This provision will be effective through September 30, 1992.

Q.—What percentage of disability do I need to qualify for vocational rehabilitation?

A.—Any veteran who has not filed an application for vocational rehabilitation before November 1, 1990, must have a service-connected disability rating of 20 percent or more. Additionally, VA must decide that the disability is a handicap to gainful employment.

Tax strategies for investors:

Don't let taxes reduce your pot of gold

If you think you're paying Uncle Sam too much of what you make on your investments, you may want to take a closer look at tax-free and tax-deferred investments. Just remember that tax treatment is only one factor to consider when developing an investment strategy, advises the Kentucky Society of CPAs.

Municipal bonds offer investors a way to earn tax-free interest income. Issued by state and local governments, municipal bonds help raise money to build schools, roads and other projects. In the last few years, the municipal bond market has become a more complicated place for investors. In the past, all municipal bonds were exempt from federal tax, but changes in the tax law created three different tax treatments of municipal bonds. The interest you earn on the traditional obligations of state and local governments remains tax-free. And, in most states, if the bonds are from your home state, you generally escape state and local taxes as well. However, certain bonds issued for private purposes, such as industrial development, now generate interest that can be subject to the alternative minimum tax. Still other bonds, including those issued to finance sports stadiums and convention facilities, no longer qualify for any federal tax exemption.

To determine if municipal bonds are the right type of investment for you, you should compare the return you can collect from a tax-exempt investment to the return you would get from a taxed investment. You should also weigh the security and the term of the bond under consideration. In addition, keep in mind that if you need to sell a municipal bond before its maturity, you must report your capital gain or loss on your tax return. What's more, you cannot deduct investment expenses associated with tax-exempt investments.

By transferring money from an investment that accrues interest daily to one that pays interest at maturity, such as Treasury bills, you can defer the taxes due on your investment earnings. Treasury bills are issued in denominations of $10,000 and up, and mature in three, six or 12 months. The bills are issued at a discount, with the interest paid when they are redeemed at maturity for face value. Interest on T-bills is completely exempt from state and local taxes; federal taxes are not due until the year the bills mature.

Many banks, brokerage firms and other financial institutions offer Certificates of Deposit (CDs). The interest earned on CDs is subject to federal, state and local taxes. But, because earnings on CDs are taxed in the year you receive them, you can use CDs as a means of deferring interest income. When you buy a CD that matures next year, the interest it earns is not taxable until then.

However, you should keep in mind that early withdrawals from a CD are generally subject to an interest penalty. If you have to make an early withdrawal, remember that this penalty is deductible even if you do not itemize your deductions.

In 1982, the government created Series EE U.S. Savings Bonds to provide savers with a guaranteed minimum interest rate, plus a chance to earn more if interest rates rise. If you cash in the bonds early, a lower fixed rate applies.

Savings bonds have two special tax appeals. First, interest earned on savings bonds is exempt from state and local income taxes. Second, since you collect your interest when you redeem the bonds, the interest is generally not subject to federal tax until then. However, you can choose to report the interest annually. If you select this option, and later you decide that you would benefit more from reporting the interest when you redeem the bonds, you can switch methods only with the consent of the IRS.

Beginning January 1, 1990, a new tax benefit was created for certain U.S. savings bonds. Interest on these bonds is not taxed if the bonds are redeemed to pay college expenses. But, in order to qualify for this tax treatment, certain conditions must be satisfied: the bond must have been issued after December 31, 1989; you must be 24 years old or older at the time the bonds are purchased; and you must use the bond's proceeds for qualified educational expenses incurred by you, your spouse, or dependents for higher education. This exclusion is phased out if your adjusted gross income falls within certain ranges—between $60,000 and $90,000 if you are married and filing jointly, and between $40,000 and $55,000 for single taxpayers and heads of households. These dollar amounts will be adjusted annually for inflation.

Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs), Keoghs and other retirement plans continue to offer liberal tax benefits. These plans represent another way you can defer some of your taxable income. With an IRA or Keogh, not only do you defer paying taxes on the money you invest, but the interest you receive on your investment is also deferred until the money is withdrawn. In addition, some investors can still claim a deduction for the amount contributed to an IRA. Restrictions on deductions are based on your income and whether you are covered by a retirement plan at work. With a Keogh, deposits are tax deductible regardless of your income, and money in the plan is allowed to grow and compound tax-free until withdrawal.

To be a successful investor, you need to know how to use the tax rules to your best advantage. The rules can get complicated so it may be wise to consult a CPA before embarking on your investment plan. Used properly, tax planning can be an effective way to minimize current taxes while accumulating greater wealth.

Youth seeks nice family this seventh grader think C.J. "hung the moon." Besides reading better, he was recently student of the month and elected to the Student Council. He is particularly good at art and shows a real talent for watercolors. He says he can paint what he feels. He enjoys swimming and a good game of basketball. He is also likely to beat you at pool.

Generally C.J. is well behaved but admits he loses his temper occasionally. He is making improvement with his self-control. Girls are a major focus for him.

"A nice family" is C.J.'s only request. What he needs is guidance and attention from his own family. He needs to be adopted.

The Special Needs Adoption Program has over 250 children waiting for an adoptive family. These children are Caucasian over the age of ten; black children of any age; children with mental, emotional or physical problems; and/or three or more brothers and sisters that need to be placed together.

Please call the Special Needs Adoption Program at 1-800-432-9346 or contact the Department for Social Services office at (606) 886-8192 for information on how to make "C.J." your son or to adopt any of Kentucky's waiting children.

Carl or "C.J.", as he prefers, is an engaging, friendly teen, born Sept. 28, 1975, who likes to be helpful and usually seeks to please adults. He has a warm smile, brown hair and eyes, and a smattering of light freckles across his nose. C.J.'s early years have been very difficult and he still is coping with understanding past events while staying hopeful about his future.

This year at school C.J. has found success and is proud! The teachers of Workshops to help doctors, dentists

Floyd county high school seniors who want to become physicians or dentists will get an early start toward their goal next summer at the University of Kentucky or the University of Louisville.

Sixty-five high school seniors from certain Kentucky counties will be chosen to attend a five- or six-week college preparatory workshop at one of the universities from applicants who live in Kentucky counties or areas of some counties that have too few physicians or dentists.

The workshops are part of the state's Professional Education Preparation Program, which was designed to help increase the number of students in medical or dental school from Kentucky counties experiencing a shortage of physicians or dentists.

Students attending the workshops will meet and work with medical and dental students and professionals and receive instruction in reading, writing, study skills, and problem solving.

They will also have classes in biology, chemistry, and other sciences to improve their chances of doing well in their premedical or pre-dental college studies.

Room and board and all workshop instruction will be provided without charge to the participant. Each student will also be given an expense allowance.

The workshops will be only the first in a series of activities that will be provided the participants. Additional programs and services designed to help them succeed in becoming doctors or dentists will be provided throughout their undergraduate and medical or dental school studies.

Interested high school seniors can get further information and application forms from their high school counselor or principal, or by contacting the Professional Education Preparation Program, Kentucky Council on Higher Education, 1050 U.S. 127, South, Suite 101, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Applications must be received by March 1.

Tenth year of Berea craft festival set

The 10th Anniversary of the famous Berea Craft Festival will be held at the annual site, Indian Fort Outdoor Theater during Friday, Saturday and Sunday, July 12, 13 and 14. This classic showcase of original and professional arts and crafts features exhibitors from at least 20 states who are there by special invitation.

Applications are now being accepted for a very limited number of exhibitor spaces. All high quality crafts showing originality, excellence in quality, and professionalism will be considered for this special anniversary year. To apply, craftspersons must send five slides or samples of their craft with a description of their work to: Berea Craft Enterprises, P.O. Box 128, Berea, KY 40403, and enclose a SASE.

Arthritis Foundation names Eastern Ky regional director

The Arthritis Foundation, Kentucky Chapter has appointed Tamara J. McConnell of Lexington as Regional Director of Eastern Kentucky. Miss McConnell will be fundraising in 46 counties to raise money for public education and research for the foundation. She will be based in the Bluegrass Branch Office located at 366 Waller Avenue, Suite D102, Lexington, Kentucky 40504. The phone number is (606) 276-1496. Miss McConnell was previously employed with Lane Communications Group, Inc.

Storm soldiers will retain MSU spring fee

Morehead State University students in the National Guard or Army Reserves will not lose their spring tuition/fee payments if their units are activated as a result of "Operation Desert Storm."

"We initiated this policy last fall as the Mideast crisis unfolded, but as more students now may be affected we want to stress that they will not be penalized if they follow the normal withdrawal process," said Mike Walters, MSU assistant vice president for fiscal services.

Students who are called for military duty will be given two choices. MSU will either refund the payments or issue a credit to the students for the next semester in which they enroll.

Mountain Voices — by Willie Elliott

Have the phone companies called you yet trying to get you to switch your long-distance carrier? If they haven't, just hold on. They will be calling. I have a problem with this: they all offer such good deals that I can't refuse so I tell them all to switch me to their lines. I'll have more wires in my house than Ma Bell if this keeps up.

When all this mess started, I just let some computer assign me a carrier. I think all the messages go over the same wires and sound the same so I didn't worry too much about it. We don't make more than two calls a month, and I can hear the other party as clearly as I need to. If we have to resort to dropping needles to see if we can hear each other, I figure we have run out of conversation and should hang up.

Our simple life with long distance began to change about two weeks ago. AT&T called and gave some valid reasons why I should switch from MCI to their company. Well, the reasons weren't really that valid: I agreed to be switched to get them off the line. I hear enough commercials on television and radio. This week MCI called and offered us a twenty dollar certificate to be changed back. I suppose they call this effort "Dialing for Customers." So I said to switch me back. Now I'm waiting for a better offer from AT&T. Maybe they will offer some free 900 time. I hear that is the place to reach out and touch someone. Does anyone know how I can get in touch with Sprint? I want that company in on this. They may offer me a computer to go with them.

My wife was not pleased with all this. She said, "Willie, just tell them our phone is fine and hang up." That woman lacks a sense of adventure. I could carry on this little game with the companies until I broke some kind of record for the number of times I had my phone switched in a year's time. Who knows, I could become a spokesperson at large and the companies would bid (big bucks) for my services. They must wait though as I still have two years of teaching before I can retire. I couldn't possibly give all that up for mere money.

If you get a call from any carrier (foreign or domestic) that offers a better deal than those I have described, let me know. I know I'm leaving myself open for smart cracks such as: there's a man who changes long distance carriers as often as Dan Quale makes a political faux pas. Of course that is an exaggeration as no company could make that many changes.

The phone companies spend so much time and effort for my patronage when my phone bill comes to no more than $75 a year. What a country!

Demonstration project underway in county:

by Janice Shepherd
Staff Writer

A new project in Floyd and Magoffin counties is following an Eastern Kentucky tradition—the friendly neighbor down the road who is always ready to lend a helping hand.

The Long Term Care Demonstration Project, implemented by the Big Sandy Area Development District, is that friendly neighbor. The project serves as a coordinating agency and offers assistance to Floyd or Magoffin county residents who need help with daily activities: housecleaning, shopping, doing laundry, taking medicine, cooking, and getting to any particular appointments.

The coordinating staff for the Big Sandy project is Bonnie Hale, Aging Services director; Mary Ann Hall, district Ombudsman; Jody Spradlin, case manager supervisor; Regina Dye, case manager for Floyd County; and Carol Lewandowski, case manager for Magoffin County.

"Our goal is to allow persons to live independently at home as long as possible," said Spradlin. He explained that the project is a 2-year-pilot program to provide a focal point for the numerous human service agencies in the Big Sandy Area.

Referrals for potential clients of this free service are made through friends, relatives or other agencies, such as a senior citizens center.

Referrals may be made by calling the Big Sandy Area Development District at 886-2374 where Marcy

Martin will talk with the caller and gather pertinent information for the case manager. Once the information is complete, the case is turned over to the county case manager who will assess the situation, Magoffin case manager Lewandowski said.

"For example, if we received a call from someone at the senior citizen's center, expressing concern that a 55-year-old man seemed undernourished, first we would collect statistics (name, address, telephone number)," said Floyd county case manager Dye.

Dye said she would first contact the individual by phone and gather more information. She would then pay a personal visit to assess the situation.

Dye explained the composite case: "Suppose the man cannot eat because he cannot see well. He may be burning his food because he can't see well enough to know if the gas flame is too high, or he can't see what type of canned food he is trying to open. In that case, I would set up an appointment for him with an optometrist. If he needed transportation, then I would arrange that with another agency."

The case manager also follows through after the doctor's visit to make sure "things are going well," she said. Lewandowski also explained that patients have trouble getting doctor's appointments. "Sometimes, it takes months to get an appointment," she said, "but we can usually get the appointment sooner."

The Cabinet for Human Resources has several service agencies in the county that operate independently, but now with the coordination abilities of the Long Term Care Case Management Demonstration Project, more clients will be able to access those health care programs.

The project will employ a system of case management to assure that appropriate services are provided to all persons who fall within the guidelines specified by the Health Reform Act.

"Age is not a factor in eligibility," said Spradlin. Kentucky regulations state, in part: "The cabinet, through the Long-term care demonstration program, shall provide access to information, counseling and screening... for persons potentially in need of long-term care services without regard to the person's income, in order to assist functionally impaired persons in accessing available services."

For more information about the program, call Jody Spradlin at 886-2374, Dale Niswonger with the Division of Aging Services in Frankfort at (502) 564-6930, or the toll-free number, 1-800-866-1086. Referrals may also be made at the toll-free number.

The pilot project is currently implemented in six Kentucky counties and is a result of the Health Care Reform Act of 1990 (House Bill 239) sponsored by Sen. Bennie Ray Bailey. The project is funded through the Cabinet for Human Resources.

Tidbits

Mountain lure

The hills of Eastern Kentucky have cradled me for most of my life. My roots extend through the Civil War—back to the Widow Howard who lived around David. This heritage is what holds me here, an apron string tying me to the land of my birth.

I have made a few excursions out into the world that exists beyond the hills, but I have always been drawn back to the land of family.

My first excursion into this outside world occurred when I was about nine years old. My dad was unemployed in Kentucky, so he went north to seek his fortune. As soon as he had a steady income, he sent for his family to join him. We did.

Indiana's flat lands seemed harsh to young eyes that were used to hillsides. This land of farming communities had a stench—cattle burning on a funeral pyre—that assaulted my sense of smell. I was used to stomping my way through dew-dampened forests where the tang of mountain air tickled my nostrils and filled my essence with its sweet aroma.

Indiana was also a brutal land where a southern twang brought laughter and mockery to the lips of an unkind people. I was used to the smiles that adorned the faces of soft-spoken southerners.

Indiana was a land that did not appeal to me or to my family. The magnetic pull of the hills touched our hearts and pulled our feet homeward, despite the offer of steady employment in this land of many industries.

After three years of isolation in a land without the comfort of a few hills to soften its landscape, we headed homeward.

My final excursion from the land of my birth was when my husband became part of the U.S. military force. For three years, I traveled to Alabama, Maryland, New York and Germany. Always during this time of roaming, exploring and learning, I yearned for home.

When I finally reached the land of my memories, I dug down deep and planted my own roots.

Caring friends

Anyone who contacts the Big Sandy Area Development's Long Term Care Demonstration Project will find a friend. The project's staff are concerned about the quality of life experienced by individuals who need long-term care. Staff members say their goal is to help provide a standard of living so that these individuals may live an independent life at home. Anyone wishing to make a referral may call the Prestonsburg office at 886-2374 where they will be greeted by Marcia Martin, pictured on left. Marcia will then refer the case to either the Floyd County case manager, Regina Dye (shown at back of photo), or the Magoffin County case manager, Carol Lewandowski (pictured on right). Case manager supervisor for the project is Jody Spradlin (pictured in front of photo). The program is a two-year pilot project that acts as a coordinating agency for the various health services programs in the Big Sandy area. Smile Awhile — by Sarah Hopson

Maybe I'm imagining things, but it is starting to seem as if all the high school coaches in Kentucky have become more fashion conscious since Rick Pitino made his Fifth Avenue entrance onto the lush meadows of the Bluegrass.

My husband and I attend every ball game our 13-year-old son plays so we are obliged to notice the coaches' attire, and most of them have replaced the Bobby Knight "sweater look" with the chic, sophisticated "Pitino Look". The similarity doesn't end there.

Maybe it can be attributed to the elegant way an Armani jacket drapes over the shoulder, or the way the pleats fall on the neatly pressed trousers, but, whatever the reason, the coaches are not only dressing like Pitino, they're starting to acquire his mannerisms.

"Jimmie," I said to my husband at one of our son's games. "Is that Rick Pitino over there?"

"Of course not. That's the opposing team's coach."

"But look at his hair. He's got it slicked back just like Rick's."

"It's not him, Sara," my husband reaffirmed.

"Then why is he wearing a suit if he's just a grade school coach?"

"Don't ask me, Sara. I came to watch a ball game not a fashion show."

"Look!" I screamed. "Did you see that? He just folded a towel and placed it on the floor under his knee."

"Sara," my husband said, dryly,

"Do you see Bernadette Locke on the bench?"

"No," I answered.

"Then it's not Pitino. Just hush and watch the game."

The next game we attended was a tournament. When we arrived, the coaches were so identically dressed you would have thought you were at a Rick Pitino "look-a-like contest."

"Jimmie," I said. "I really think that man over there is Rick Pitino."

"Sara, we've been through all this before. It's not him, they're just dressed like him."

"But listen to the way they talk and walk. It's eerie."

I finally got Jimmie to walk over among the group and listen to their conversations. And though most of them still had that Eastern Kentucky twang, they attempted to inject long "i's" and short "a's" into their speech.

"What were they saying?" I asked Jimmie when he returned.

"For a while, I thought they were talking about foot injuries because they kept mentioning blistered heels. Then I realized they were talking about breaking in new Italian leather shoes."

"Are you serious?"

"This is starting to get ridiculous."

"Why do you say that?"

"Because one of the coaches said he was going to start having his boys practice at six o'clock in the morning."

"Maybe he just wants to teach them more discipline."

"I thought that, too. But when he mentioned a weight training program, I thought he was going to be extreme."

"Lots of high school coaches have weight training programs," I reminded him.

"But this guy coaches first grade?" As absurd as it all looked and sounded, the real kicker came as we were leaving the gymnasium to go home. Walking out in front of us were two coaches discussing their salaries.

"I don't know how long I can keep this up," one of the men announced. "I really need more money."

"Yeah," the other one said. "This coaching is really starting to get expensive."

"Tell me about it!" the first one exclaimed. "It's gotten so bad even my wife wants a pair of Gucci loafers."

"How selfish. Doesn't she realize that coaching has become a visible profession where your team's playing ability can be affected by what you wear?"

"I told her that, but she said winning wasn't everything."

"It's tough when your spouse isn't supportive. What are you going to do?"

"The only thing I can do. I'm going to see if they'll extend the credit limit on my charge card."

MSU students sends visual letter from home

by Heather L. Richie
MSU Student Writer

A Morehead State University junior has "written" a visual letter addressed to the troops in Saudi Arabia.

"It's everyday people just saying things; that's what makes it different," said Karen Coburn, describing the videotape which has occupied her time and thoughts for several weeks.

Unlike some other tapes she has seen, Coburn's messages aren't exclusively from relatives of military personnel. "There's only 10 or 12 people talking," she explained. "It's babies and kids and dogs and nature—the trees changing color."

The daughter of Arnold and Wilburn Coburn of Grayson, the MSU coed said that the tape was a suggestion for a class project that she didn't like at first.

"I started thinking if I were in that position, what I would want to see," she said. It occurred to her that just seeing pictures of Kentucky should make her feel closer to home from anywhere. "Once I started thinking in that vein, it was easier," she added.

Coburn anticipates a wide variety of reactions from the viewers—including homesickness. "I specifically included a few funny parts, so it wouldn't make them so homesick. It certainly was not my intention to make them depressed."

The 20-year-old wants the troops to know that they are over there for a reason. "It was touching to learn that even though some (people) don't support the involvement, they do support the troops," she said.

It wasn't always easy getting people to talk, because some would "hem and haw" in the presence of the camera. Others didn't want to go on the camera because their "hair wasn't right," the MSU radio-television major said.

Another problem encountered in producing her letter was with people who wanted to make rude or mean comments about Saddam Hussein. She chose to leave those statements off in the editing process. "It wouldn't do any good. It's not a message to Saddam anyway. It's a message for the troops," she explained.

Despite her initial disinterest in the project, Coburn found more empathy herself for the troops and their families somewhere along the line. In fact, she may do another tape next semester—focusing on winter or spring scenes.

"I was hoping for snow in this one, but we didn't really have any and it was more important to get the tape completed and over to our troops," she said.

What started out as a 15-minute project for a video class has grown into a 35-minute video letter that Coburn doesn't want to take much credit for.

"I just put it together. I wanted it to be a community—or at least campus—effort. It's just America, or a part of it."

National Geographic Bee at Adams Middle School

The first round of the 1991 National geography Bee will be held January 18 at the James D. Adams Middle School.

The National Geographic Society is sponsoring this event for the third year. Students in fourth through eighth grades in almost 40,000 schools across the United States, the District of Columbia and five U.S. territories, as well as the Department of Defense schools around the world are eligible to participate. Additional sponsorship is being provided by Amtrak and Kudos Snack.

The winner of the Adams Middle School will advance to the next level of competition, a written examination. All school winners have the potential to win the national championship and its first prize, a $25,000 college scholarship at the finals May 22 and 23 in Washington, D.C.

The 4th grade class of Glessie Stumbo at Prestonsburg Elementary sent Christmas cards to local servicemen and women stationed in Saudi Arabia as part of their Social Studies curriculum. They have received several replies from the soldiers with explanations of their jobs and their importance in being a part of Operation Desert Shield. The students plan to remain in contact with these men and women.

HOROSCOPE

January 27 through February 2

By C.C. Clark

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)

Don't ignore a nagging health complaint. If you are not feeling up to par, there is probably a pretty good reason why. Loved ones will surprise you this week.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)

Accept your loved one's limitations, and you are on your way to a wonderful romance. Don't push things, but don't sit idly by either. You know how to handle the situation.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

It is sometimes difficult for you to pass on certain responsibilities, but in some cases it is a necessity. At the same time, don't take things too lightly.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

Emotional stress can really get you down this week. Just remember you've been through worse times, and you are a trooper. Good times are just around the corner.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

It's easy for you to diversify if you are open to change, but sometimes you simply need to relax. You are the type of person who can do it all, but now you just need to rest.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

You will feel like the sacrifices you've made this past year were all for nothing, but it isn't true. You'll soon see how well things are going to work out.

LEO (July 23 - August 22)

This can be a very positive and productive time if you will stop living in the past and get on with things. Self-improvement classes will help you win in the workplace.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)

Personal relationships will take a front seat this week on your list of priorities. A friend or loved one needs your undivided attention and cooperation.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)

Take command of your life and do with it what you think best. While others' opinions may enter in to your decisions, it is important to trust your own instincts.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)

Sometimes it is best to leave the past behind and start from scratch on certain projects. Keep in mind that you are only limited by what you think you cannot do.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)

Be careful when making accusations, especially concerning your work environment. If someone has been taking advantage of you, let them know in a tactful way.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

It is corny but true: Honesty is the best policy. Be honest with yourself first, and then it will be much easier to explain your feelings to a loved one.

VIDEO BIJOU

'I Love You to Death'
good source for laughter

By Steven Alan McGaw
I Love You to Death (1990)

This riotous black comedy attracted a fair amount of attention when it was released last year, but not nearly enough. True, a story of a woman who hires drug-addled crazies to murder her philandering husband may not sound like fodder for hilarity, but give it a chance. Director Lawrence Kasdan seldom misfires. Oh yeah, bear this in mind, it's based on a true story.

Kevin Kline stars as a vain, self-absorbed pizzeria proprietor who just can't be faithful to his devoted but decidedly unglamorous wife, played by Tracey Ullman. Kline views every skirt that passes by as a potential conquest. At length, Ullman finally realizes what's going on, aided by her abrasive, thickly-accented mother (Joan Plowright) and a neighborhood teenager (River Phoenix) with a fierce crush on her. Ullman decides she's had enough and wants Kline taught a lesson: death! Phoenix proposes that his two penniless, brain-fried friends (William Hurt and Keanu Reeves) act as hitmen. What follows must be the longest-running, most problem-ridden murder attempt in movies. And the funniest.

If you enjoy strong ensemble acting, catch this film. If you like stories with a pretty bizarre point-of-view, this is the one. If you're planning to kill your spouse, don't look to this movie as a primer. Just look for laughs.

LOCAL ATHLETES HOPE TROOP SUPPORT

With the war raging in the Persian Gulf, local basketball players and other officials have not forgotten the sacrifice that our troops are making in the gulf war. In recognition of the troops, the Allen Central cheerleaders are wearing yellow ribbons on their uniforms to show their support.

The Pikeville High School boys and girls basketball teams have flags sewn on their uniforms to demonstrate their standing behind the American soldiers in the Persian Gulf.

Even referee Teddy Hall has gone a step beyond the other officials and sewed an American Flag patch as well as a yellow ribbon on the jacket he wears before each game he calls. Hall has also sewed a patch of the American Flag on his striped shirt. Says Hall, "If they can go over there and fight for me, it is the least I can do here at home."

Now, folks how can you boo or holler at an official that is that patriotic? Be easy on Teddy the next game you are at and he referees. Way to go Teddy!

MANY FANS SUPPORTING AMERICAN TROOPS BUT WANT TO SEE GAMES CONTINUE

In just talking with players, coaches and fans in general, they all support our troops 100 percent, but think the games should go on. More later on this.

BASKETBALL ATTENDANCE SEEMS TO BE DOWN THIS YEAR

Where have all the basketball fans gone? The gyms are no longer full like they were last season. Conference game attendance has drastically fallen off and that doesn't speak well for the non-conference games.

We can't blame the weather because the weather has been great. I know we have not had the quality of teams as in the past. But that is no reason to quit supporting your team. Tournament time is drawing nearer with each passing day and your team needs your support. Look over the schedules and pick out a game to go to and support your high school.

DUNCAN INKS PACT WITH REDS

In Cincinnati Reds news, Mariano Duncan signed a one-year contract with the Reds for an estimated $925,000. Duncan had his best season as a professional baseball player last year with the Reds. Duncan batted .306 with the Reds while leading the National League in triples with 11. Duncan had 10 long balls for the Reds. The signing of Duncan leaves 18 Reds players yet to go through arbitration. Outfielder Eric "The Red" Davis says although he will not be ready for spring training because he's still recovering from injuries suffered during last year's World Series at Oakland, he will be ready when it counts — opening day. Said Davis, "the kidney no longer causes me pain." Neither do his knees, hips and shoulders, all of which hurt last year.

WAS SCHEDULING GAME WITH RUSSIANS A MISTAKE FOR UK?

Since Coach Rick Pitino's troops were blistered by the Soviet team in an exhibition game, the Wildcats haven't been growling like they were before the meaningless game. The defeat — I mean beating — took some wind out of their sails. I said the game was a mistake to play. Since the game, the Wildcats haven't looked or shot the same.

Just to play one more game in Memorial Coliseum was the given reason. However, though struggling from the outside, the Cats are playing some good defense. Some are talking about a 23 win season for the Wildcats now. I agree if they can regain the form that got them 15 wins.

The Alabama game will be a big test for the Cats. Kentucky has always had trouble winning at Tuscaloosa. I look for Chris Webber to be more interested in Kentucky next year than folks in Michigan want to admit. He has stated he likes Pitino's style of basketball and a program that is getting a lot of positive reviews lately has helped, not discounting the fact of being able to play in the NCAA next year as a freshman. I believe UK is much higher on his list than before the season began.

Until Wednesday, good sports everyone!

McDowell Hopes Second Time Around Better Than First

The McDowell Lady Daredevils are hoping that their game tonight against conference leader Allen Central will be different than when the two teams met earlier at Allen Central. The Lady Rebs posted a 67-63 victory over Coach Cassandra Keathley's Lady Daredevils in that one, despite Lori Bryant's 25 points.

The Lady Daredevils even held a 10 point advantage at halftime only to see it disappear in the third quarter as Allen Central took a one point lead.

Darnella Bradley, Teresa Gibson and Stacy "Mini" Moore each scored in double figures for Allen Central.

Stopping Bryant at home will be the top assignment for Allen Central. The Lady Daredevils seem to play harder at home and could pose a problem for the Lady Rebs. Other Lady Devils players must take a more active role in the offense for McDowell. After Bryant's 25 points, Jenny Slone, with 12 points, was the only other double figure scorer. Coach Keathley needs more point production out of Christy Mullins and Kristi Pack. Nikki Mullins has been doing an excellent job of late off the bench for McDowell.

There is not just one individual player on the Allen Central team who McDowell must stop, but five of them.

PREVIOUS MEETING
AC 67 McDowell 63
Bryant 25 Points
Gibson 18 Points

Allen Central is a balanced team that is led by the three-point shooting of Gibson. Coach Keathley knows about the senior forward as Gibson connected from the 19' 9" line for five treys in the last meeting between the two teams. "Mini" Moore had two three-pointers in game one.

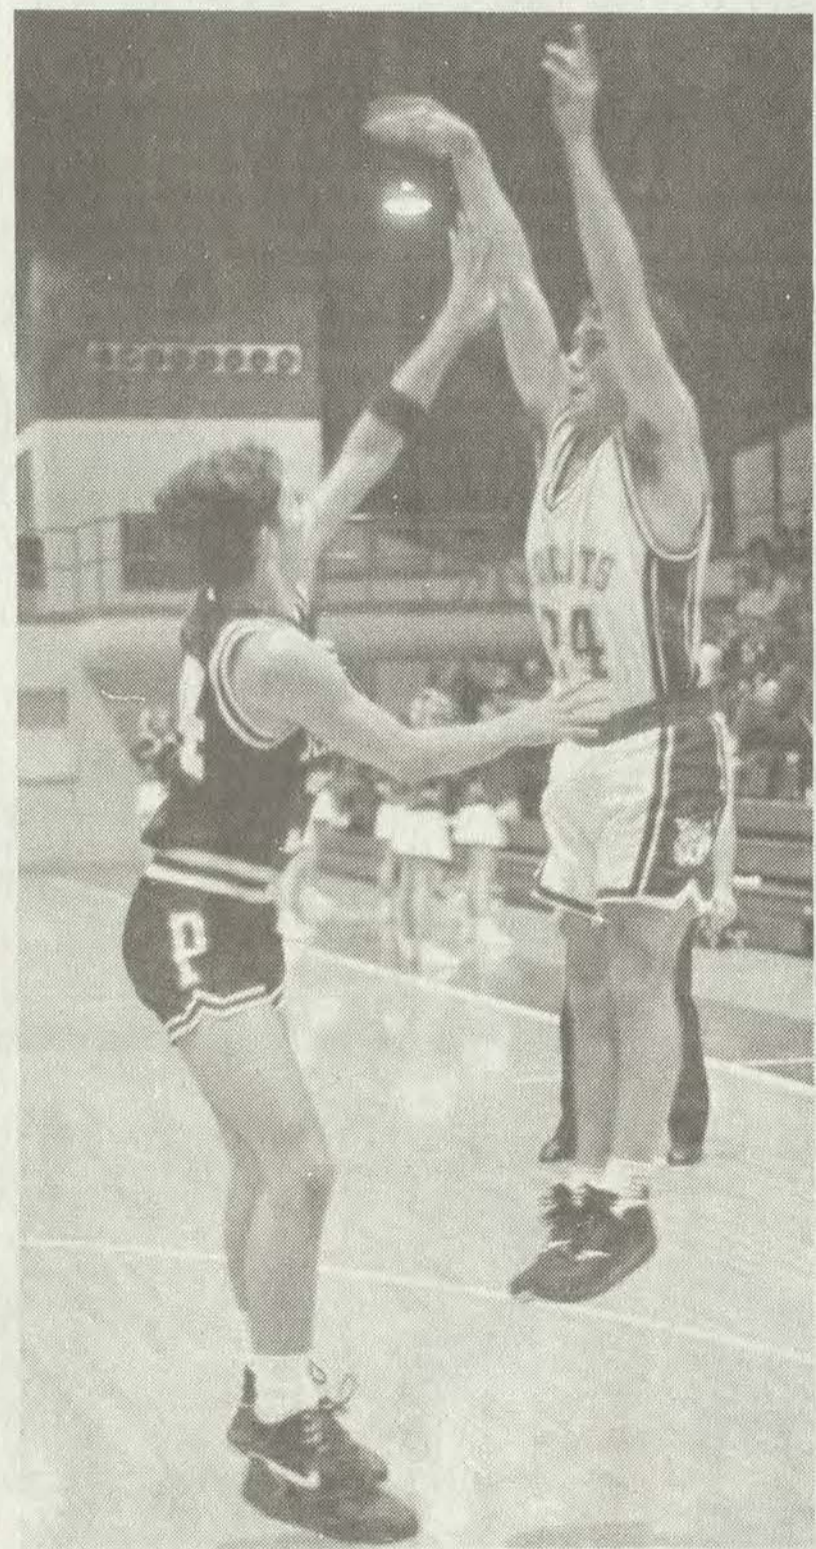

This could be a big win for the Allen Central Lady Rebels, especially on the road. Central has three other road games remaining with Prestonsburg, Wheelwright and Betsy Layne.

McDowell has only one game to play away from the Devils Den — at Wheelwright. Three games at home remain on the Lady Devils' conference schedule.

Game time will be 6:30 p.m. No radio.

Bobcats "Pitch" Shutout In Second; Hold Off Prestonsburg

"I've gotcha' Adam"

Prestonsburg's Aaron Tucker seemed to be helping Betsy Layne's Adam Gearheart (24) while the forward fired up a shot from the corner. The Bobcats defeated the Blackcat 53-49 in a conference game.

It was Floyd County Conference basketball at its best — make that at its worst — as the Prestonsburg Blackcats and Betsy Layne Bobcats hooked up for what could be the worst high school game of the season.

"Please don't write this game up," pleaded Bobcat mentor Junior Newsome. Newsome could be overheard asking his players how they expected anyone to be able to watch a game like this one.

The truth is, both teams tried hard. But turnovers and missed shots — easy shots — made the game a drag in the first half. Betsy Layne finally held off the Blackcats to record a 53-49 win over Coach Gordon Parido's squad.

The first half was not indicative of how these two teams can really play. But both teams struggled big time in the first two quarters. It was so bad for Prestonsburg that they failed to score in the second quarter. Things weren't any better for Betsy Layne as they managed only nine second period points. The scoreboard was stuck on a 16-15 score for what seemed to be an eternity.

Prestonsburg committed 25 first half turnovers but because of the coldness of Betsy Layne from the field, the lead was only five, 20-15, at the half.

"We just didn't take advantage of all of Prestonsburg's turnovers in the first half," said a disappointed Newsome. "We should have been up by 15 points anyway."

Both teams missed easy, under the basket shots in the first half.

Prestonsburg held a 15-11 first quarter lead as they were going for their second straight conference win and third of the season. John Clark hit a three-pointer to give the Blackcats a 3-2 lead following Keith Hall's opening game basket. The lead went to 7-3 on baskets by Chris Burke and Clark. After Adam Gearheart hit a corner shot, Clark and Worthie McGuire gave Prestonsburg a 11-5 lead.

Robert Hammond's basket and a bucket by Clark off of a great feed from Aaron Tucker put the Blackcats on top 15-9. Phillip King scored with 16 seconds to go to make it 15-11.

Then came the drastic second quarter. Prestonsburg had several chances to put some points on the scoreboard but missed some "bunnies" underneath. Betsy Layne had only two field goals in the period, hitting five free throws.

Whatever Coach Parido told the Blackcats at halftime must have worked, because Prestonsburg came out and outscored Betsy Layne 13-5 in the third quarter to take a 28-25 lead.

Betsy Layne recaptured the lead, 30-28, on a basket by Hall and a three-pointer by Chris Newsome. Phillip King's three-point play the old fashioned way gave Betsy Layne a five point cushion.

Two field goals by McGuire, sandwiched around a basket by Berne Eplin closed the lead to 35-32.

Betsy Layne built the lead to 44-35 in the final quarter. Jason Crisp hit a bucket and then a three-pointer for a 46-40 game. After King's basket put the Bobcats up 48-40, Prestonsburg ran off five straight points to come within three, 48-45.

Prestonsburg got to within two, 51-49, on an offensive rebound by Hammond. King's two free throws set the final margin.

King's 17 points led the Bobcats in scoring. Keith Hall tossed in nine points and Newsome and Adam Gearheart added eight each.

Clark had 15 points to lead Prestonsburg. McGuire added 14 points and Crisp finished with seven. Prestonsburg shot only two free throws the whole game, hitting one. Betsy Layne attempted 26 charity tosses and connected on 15.

Prestonsburg falls to 3-10 overall and 2-3 in the conference. The Blackcats will be at Johns Creek Friday night and will travel to Whitesburg Saturday night.

Betsy Layne goes to 12-6 overall and 4-1 in the conference. The victory was Betsy Layne's fourth straight. The Bobcats will travel to Wheelwright Saturday night to continue play in the conference.

Rebels Post "Trey-riffic" Win Over Wheelwright, 62-54

While bombs rained in Iraq, "treys" rained on the Wheelwright Trojans at Allen Central Tuesday night as the Allen Central Rebels (11-9) won their first Floyd County Conference game of the season. The Rebels were 0-4 going into the Tuesday night match up. Wheelwright remains winless in the conference at 0-3.

The Rebels connected on eight three-pointers (treys) enroute to their 62-54 victory. Junior Stewart Hall had five of those treys in scoring 19 points to lead the Rebels. Chuck Laferty, off the bench, tossed in 12 points and Todd Lucas, who is showing his early season form, added 11 points.

Hall completed an unusual four point play in the second quarter. Hall hit a three-pointer and then was fouled. The junior guard connected on the free throw for a four point play.

Tony Soler, who doesn't try the three-pointer normally, hit two of the "bombs". Todd Lucas had the other three-pointer.

In the early going, it looked as if the Trojans were going to get their first conference victory. But as usual, the Trojans were not able to put together a complete game as they allowed the Rebels to get back in the game.

Wheelwright, leading 28-22 at the half, held a 31-26 lead midway through the third quarter. Hall hit a three-pointer and Chuck Laferty grabbed an offensive rebound and put it back to tie the game at 31-31. Harold Johnson hit a turnaround jumper and Hall answered with a basket to tie it at 33-33. Allen Central went ahead on a jump shot by Ronnie Sammons. Carl Watkins free throw gave Allen Central a three point lead 36-33 as the third period came to an end.

Steven Johnson, who was relegated to the pines for much of the first part of the game, hit a three-pointer to tie the game and Harold Johnson's basket gave the lead back to Wheelwright.

Tony Soler then hit his second trey and Laferty grabbed another offensive rebound for a basket to put the Rebels up 41-38. Two field goals by Wheelwright's Paul Hall sandwiched around a basket by Lucas made it a one point game. Allen Central scored the next five points on a three-point play by Lucas and two free throws by Laferty. The spurt put the Rebels on top 48-42.

After Harold Johnson's bucket for the Trojans, Hall hit another three-pointer to give the Rebels their biggest lead at seven points. Layne Bailey's trey cut the lead to four with 2:45 showing. Hall, on another three-pointer, put the lead back at seven and Laferty, who had an excellent game on the boards, hit two free throws to extend the lead to nine.

Wheelwright could get no closer as time ran out.

The Rebels, normally a 50 percent free throw shooting team, connected on six of eight down the stretch.

Allen Central held a first quarter lead at 16-11 behind the "bombardment" of three's by the Rebels. Soler, Lucas and Hall hit back-to-back treys in the period as they went on top 16-7 early. Baskets by Paul Hall and Layne Bailey cut the lead to five before the quarter ended.

Wheelwright outscored Allen Central 17-6 in the second quarter to take a 28-22 halftime lead. Harold Johnson had six points in the period in scoring 19 points for the game. The Trojans scored the first six points of the second frame to take a 17-16 lead. Ronnie Sammons' rebound basket made it 18-17. Wheelwright scored the next six points on baskets by Paul Hall and Bailey to go ahead 23-18. Stewart Hall then hit his unusual four point play to make it 23-22 with 3:40 remaining in the period. Wheelwright scored the next five points of the half.

Paul Hall finished with 13 points for Wheelwright. Bailey tossed in seven.

For Allen Central, Sammons had nine points and Carl Watkins finished with five.

Kentucky Class A Regional :

Lack Of Defense, Cold Shooting Eliminates McDowell In Regional

There was no defense, just standing around both on offense and defense for the McDowell Lady Devils as they faced a much improved Pikeville Lady Panther team in the opening round of the Girls 15th Region Kentucky All Class A tournament at Elkhorn City Wednesday night. McDowell scored only 10 points in the first half, struggling to score that many, in falling 66-43.

Leading scorer Lori Bryant tried playing with the flu but was unable to perform up to her ability. In fact the high scoring forward sat out part of the third period and all of the fourth. She did manage to score 14 points to lead the Lady Devils.

Pikeville was led in scoring by Sandy Ford, 28 points, and Teresa Lockheart added 14 points. It was the same two that led the Lady Panthers over McDowell in an earlier, regular season game at McDowell.

Pikeville jumped out to a 20-6 first quarter lead and really never looked back. McDowell was guilty of 14 first quarter turnovers and 26 for the first half. Weak passes were intercepted by the Lady Panthers as the Lady Devils played out of sync. Unassured of themselves, the Lady Devils had problems of passing the ball, let alone hanging on to it.

Pikeville scored the first seven points before Bryant hit a jumper with 4:30 remaining in the first period. Ford scored seven of the Lady Panthers' first nine points, including a three-pointer. Lockheart's basket with 1:43 remaining made it 15-4 before Debbie Fannin hit two free throws for McDowell. Lisa Lockheart's three point play with 17 seconds to go gave the Lady Panthers a 20-6 first quarter lead.

The lead swelled to 24 points in the second quarter as McDowell continued to struggle big time. Four free throws — two each by Pack and Bryant — accounted for the Lady Devils points in the stanza. McDowell was guilty of telegraphing their passes and were easily picked off. Things got worse for McDowell as Pikeville, under former University of Kentucky Lady Cats player Maria Shockey, rolled out to a 34 point advantage, 50-16. The score left the McDowell faithful spellbound.

Trailing 54-18, McDowell scored the last six points of the third period on two baskets by Jenny Slone and a bucket by Kristi Pack.

The Lady Devils looked like their old selves in the fourth quarter as they started moving on defense and causing Pikeville to turn the ball over. Fannin started the quarter with a shot from outside. Slone and Christy Mullins followed with a field goal to make it 56-30. After two free throws by Teresa Lockheart, McDowell scored the next five points — baskets by Christy Mullins, Pack and a free throw by Carrie Newsome.

Ford hit a jumper and Lockheart followed with a bucket for a 62-35 game. Fannin then hit a three-pointer. Newsome hit one of two free throws.

Nicky Mullins scored a field goal and two free throws to cut the 34 point lead to 19. Pikeville scored the last six points of the game to win 66-43.

McDowell outscored the Lady Panthers 33-30 in the second half.

Fannin finished with seven points for McDowell. Pack and Slone both added six points and Christy and Nikki Mullins had four each. McDowell will host Allen Central tonight in a big, big conference match up.

Betsy Layne Looks To Win Fifth In A Row

Coach Junior Newsome's Betsy Layne Bobcats (12-6, 4-1) will visit Wheelwright (3-11, 0-3) tomorrow night (Saturday) in a quest for their fifth consecutive win and second straight conference win. The Bobcats beat Prestonsburg 53-49 Tuesday night at Betsy Layne.

Wheelwright is still looking for conference win number one and, more importantly, they are looking to break a seven game skid. The Trojans fell to Allen Central at Allen Central Tuesday night for their seventh consecutive loss.

For Coach Monroe Jones' Trojans, the breaks just haven't been coming lately, although the Trojans are playing better basketball. The Trojans had McDowell on the ropes at home and let them get away. At Allen Central, Wheelwright led by six at halftime only to experience some cold shooting in the third period. Putting together a four quarter game has been a problem for the Trojans.

Harold Johnson leads the Trojans in scoring, but Wheelwright needs help from other key players such as Paul Hall, Layne Bailey and Steven Johnson. The strong point seems to be inside to Harold Johnson.

Betsy Layne struggled against Prestonsburg at home Tuesday night but did what they had to do to win. Phillip King is one player the Trojans will have to neutralize if they are to win. King is quick and hits the boards hard. Adam Gearheart is a streak player able to hit five or six shots straight. Chris Newsome will need to find his shooting eye and Berne Eplin will have to lend a hand on the boards.

Don't let Wheelwright's 0-3 conference record fool you. The Trojans are rough to handle at home. Betsy Layne on the other hand has picked up four of their six losses on the road.

The benches could decide this game. Betsy Layne seems to appear to have the better of the two. Jonathan Tackett, Jody Coleman and Shawn Wallen lead the Bobcats "pine sitters".

Steven Shelton sees a lot of playing time off the Trojans' bench as does Mike Newsome.

Game time is 8 p.m. No radio!

Rebels

The Rebels were looking for some momentum from the Pikeville game in which they went to overtime before losing. The Rebels looked sharp in the opening period and then seemed to stand around on defense.

Wheelwright had the momentum going into the final stanza. The Trojans seemed to lose it after the three point play by Lucas at the four minute mark.

Allen Central hit 15 of 19 free throws. Wheelwright connected on five of six.

Allen Central will play at McDowell tonight and Wheelwright will host Millard. The Rebels are 11-9 on the season 1-4 in conference play. Wheelwright falls to 3-10.

ENDANGERED SPECIES FUNDING - IN DANGER?

Could it be that the Endangered Species Program is itself in danger of one day becoming extinct?

In a recent audit report, the U. S. Interior Department's Office of the Inspector General (OIG) concluded that the program's "mission cannot be fully accomplished at present funding levels" and further "questions whether...the program as it is presently structured and funded is feasible."

Translation? The battle to conserve and protect endangered species is being lost primarily die to lack of funds.

The federal government spends some $8.4 million annually on its recovery plans to aid endangered species. Though that may sound like a lot of money, split 50 ways (among the states) it's really not much at all. "I think it's safe to say that endangered species are not a high priority item with the federal government," said Lauren Schaaf, director of the wildlife division for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR).

"Literally billions of dollars are spent on other social and environmental problems, so in relative terms, we spend next to nothing on endangered species," Schaaf commented.

In addition to the lack of dollars, wildlife management officials generally agree that another major problem with the program is that monies are awarded annually — on a competitive basis — making any long-term planning impossible. Management agencies don't know from year to year how much — if any — they'll receive.

In Kentucky, 27 wildlife species including selected mammals, certain birds, and several freshwater muscels are protected by the federal Endangered Species Act.

At this time, most of Kentucky's allocation is being spent on bats — the gray bat, the Indiana bat and the Virginia big-eared bat. Extensive studies are being conducted to determine their seasonal locations as well as breeding and feeding habits. This information will one day aid in the recovery and protection of bat species found in Kentucky.

"The practice of wildlife management has a long history of success. Wildlife management works," said Schaaf. "There just hasn't been the level of commitment — in terms of dollars — necessary to achieve the results we'd like to see."

In a nutshell, the OIG's report might be interpreted to mean we need to take a hard look at our present endeavors. The Inspector General seems to be saying it's time to get seriously into the business of endangered species conservation and protection — in terms of both structure and major financial commitment.

1992 TROUT STAMP ART CONTEST UNDERWAY

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources is accepting entries for the 1992 Trout Stamp Design Competition. The artist submitting the winning entry will be awarded $450.

The subject matter for the 1992 Trout Stamp is a still life of any tackle or gear associated with trout fishing and may include any species of trout. The contest opened in mid-December and the deadline for entries is 4:30 p.m. EST, March 15, 1991.

A panel of five judges with expertise in art, ichthyology, trout fishing, printing and art marketing will select the winning entry.

Persons wishing to participate in the competition should begin by obtaining an official entry form and compete contest rules and procedures. Contact the Trout Stamp Contest Coordinator, Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601.

KENTUCKY ART AND WILDLIFE EXHIBIT SLATED

The "Art and Wildlife in Kentucky Exhibit" will open September 5, 1991, at the Soaper Arts Center in Henderson, Kentucky.

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources has been joined by first time co-sponsor, the Henderson Arts Council, in presenting the popular wildlife art show. Artists from Kentucky and bordering states will be invited to participate.

Works will include any and all media of undomesticated wildlife (no dogs or cats please!) including wild mammals, birds, fish and other aquatic life, reptiles, amphibians and scenes depicting hunting and fishing activities. Artwork's must be relevant to the states represented — an African safari scene would be unacceptable.

The biannual exhibition will run through October 18 and is funded in part by grants from the Kentucky Arts Council and the National Endowment for the Arts.

More information can be obtained by writing the Henderson Arts Council, P.O. Box 234, Henderson, KY 42420.

BANNER YEAR FOR HUNTER EDUCATION

Last year, nearly 16,000 students successfully completed the Kentucky Hunter Education Program, an increase of approximately 3,000 over 1989. An additional 224 trainers also were approved, bringing the number of certified instructors statewide to 912.

Effective March 1, successful completion of a state-approved hunter education program is required for all hunters — resident or nonresident — born on or after January 1, 1975. Bowhunters not in possession of a firearm while in the field may carry a "National Bowhunter Education Program" course completion card to satisfy the requirement.

Children under 10 are exempt, provided that while in the field they're accompanied by an adult capable of taking immediate control of that child's firearm or bow.

Persons exempt from having a hunting license are also exempt from the hunter education course completion requirement.

To find out when the Kentucky Hunter Education Program will next be presented in your area, contact the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY; phone (502) 564-4762.

AT LOOK AT KENTUCKY'S MAJOR LAKES

The March-April edition of HAPPY HUNTING GROUND magazine promises to be a genuine "keeper" copy, especially for anglers. Featured articles include a profile of each of Kentucky's major lakes, advice on ideal times for productive fishing and a peek into what the decade of the '90's may hold in store in Kentucky's fishermen.

The early spring edition also takes a look at the state's growing bald eagle population and introduces readers to a new concept in conservation education.

With Taste Of Victory

Allen Central Wants More At McDowell Tonight

Having tasted victory in the Floyd County Conference, the Allen Central Rebels would like to experience it again when they invade the Devil's Den tonight at McDowell. The Daredevils currently lead the conference with a perfect 4-0 record.

For coach Johnny Martin's ball club, the inspired play of Stewart Hall helped the Rebels take the Pikeville Panthers to overtime before falling. Then the Rebels posted a 62-58 conference victory over the Wheelwright Trojans Tuesday night — their first.

Beside Hall's play, Tony Soler is playing with more confidence of late. Soler has been a force on the boards for Allen Central along with Chuck Laferty. Laferty's point output has been down lately, but he makes up for it in other areas of play, such as rebounding and defense.

If Ronnie Sammons is having a good outing, coupled with the performances of Hall and Soler, the Rebels could very easily claim a much needed second conference win.

McDowell, on the other hand, is coming off a week's layoff, not having played since they defeated Millard last Friday night. The game with Shelby Valley was postponed because of weather conditions.

McDowell (8-8) has been impressive in conference play, having won road games at Allen Central, Betsy Layne and Wheelwright. Only a road trip to Prestonsburg remains on the conference road schedule for McDowell.

Stacy Hall is in top form and leads the Daredevils in scoring with a 20 point average. More playing time for Barry Hall has created a three-point threat for the Daredevils to go along with much improved Doug Hopkins. The difference in this game could be the inside game of Matt Johnson and Dale Hinkle versus the inside game of Mike Allen (if able to play) and Carl Watkins. Johnson has been averaging around 10 points per game and Hinkle has been a big plus off the bench for McDowell.

Game time for this one is 8 p.m. and it will be aired by WMDJ-FM with the voice of Dale McKinney calling all the play-by-play for you.

Lady Toppers Extend Streak; Home For Five Straight

Western Kentucky's Lady Topper basketball team extended its winning streak to 12 straight after a three-game road sweep and now returns to Diddle Arena for a five game homestand.

The Lady Toppers, ranked 15th in the USA Today poll and number 16 in the Associated Press Top 25 rankings, homestand will continue through a February 9 showdown with UNC Charlotte, the second place team in the league.

Western raised its record to 14-1 with a big road win at Vanderbilt Wednesday night, and is undefeated on an opponent's court. The lone loss of the season came at the hands of number 4 North Carolina State in the championship game of the Wahine Classic in Hawaii in November.

In the Vandy win, WKU's backcourt duo of Kim Pehlke and Renee Westmoreland combined to connect on nine of ten from long distance, including a perfect 6-6 performance from Pehlke that set new school and league records. The two former "Miss Basketball" products have propelled the Toppers to the top of the national statistics for three point accuracy, as Western is shooting better from long distance than form the field.

"We are playing with a lot of confidence right now," Pehlke commented. "This is a balanced team. It seems like a different person picks us up each game."

Moore, Yates Lead :

Lady Rebs Roll Past Wheelwright 77-38; Bradley Suspended

If the Allen Central Lady Rebs were to win their fourth consecutive game, the underclassmen would have to do it. The Lady Rebels were playing without their starting center Darnella Bradley who was suspended for disciplinary reasons, according to Lady Reb coach Bonita Compton. High scoring forward, Teresa Gibson, is still nursing a bad leg. Gibson hopefully will be ready for the McDowell game tonight, but the status of the availability of Bradley is still unknown.

"Whether Darnella comes back and plays anymore this season will depend on Mr. (Jody) Sword (Allen Central's principal)," said Compton. "It will be his decision."

The underclassmen of the Lady Rebs rose to the occasion as Stacy "Mini" Moore scorched the nets for 23 points, including five three-pointers. Sophomore Jenny Yates added 22 points. Moore dished off six assists in the game and Yates had seven steals.

"Jenny played a great game," explained Compton. "She can shoot the basketball when she wants to."

Eighth grader Veronica McKinney came off the bench to score six points and pull down five rebounds. "Veronica had a good game for us also," stated Compton.

Replacing Bradley in the line up was Pam Webb who responded with 12 points and helped control the boards.

"This team passed the ball better than they ever have," the Lady Rebel mentor said. "The underclassmen came through for us."

Stephanie Little led Wheelwright in scoring with 10 points. Shena Collins had eight points. Becky Allen and Kathy Isaac added seven. Allen had one three-pointer in the game.

Rhonda Leedy came off the Allen Central bench and scored six points while point guard Jenny Wiley also added six.

Allen Central improves to 9-5 in winning their fourth straight. The Lady Rebels continue to lead the conference race with a 4-0 record. Allen Central has won three straight conference battles.

Wheelwright loses for the sixth straight time in going to 2-7 and 0-3 in the conference.

The Lady Rebs will travel to McDowell tonight to face a charged up Lady Daredevil team. Wheelwright returns to action Saturday night when they host Betsy Layne.

OUTDOORS

FISHIN' TIPS FROM THE TRACKER® PROS

Very few people have ever drowned in a boating accident who were wearing a life jacket. If you are in a boat, especially if you are a non swimmer, be sure to wear a PFD.

Most fishing tournaments require the life jacket to be firmly attached to the body anytime the outboard is in use. Excellent rule to follow whether in a tournament or not.

Most states require a kill switch in the boat for outboards in excess of 50 H.P. This safety device is only effective if it is attached to the operator.

Clip it to the ring on your life jacket. If the jacket doesn't have a ring, sew one on. The kill switch will cut off the engine should the driver get thrown from the boat. It can save your life on the water.

Fishin' Tips are presented by America's #1 fishing boat.
