Floyd may get case :

Judge says opponent ineligible

by Terry Spears
Managing Editor
Appalachian News-Express

Circuit Judge Stephen Nick Frazier, Chief Circuit Judge for the 7th Judicial District, filed suit Tuesday in Floyd and Martin Circuit Courts, claiming that his opponent in the 24th Judicial Circuit is not eligible for the position.

Frazier, whose circuit includes Johnson, Martin and Lawrence counties, claims that Raymond "Ray" Kirk, his opponent in the November 1991 election, has not lived in the district he wants to represent for the required two years prior to election.

The suit was filed on Frazier's behalf by Pikeville attorney Masten Childers II, who said that it was filed in two counties because it is possible that the other judge in the 24th Judicial Circuit, James Knight, may not be able to hear the case. The statute governing such cases states that a judge in the district cannot rule on this case when he is involved in an election.

Although Knight is not involved in Frazier's particular election (Division I), he is up for re-election in Division II, facing a challenge from Paintsville attorney L. Owen Doyle in Division II of the 24th Judicial Circuit.

The suit states that "in the event (Knight) determines he is not qualified to hear the case, or in the event respondent objects to this matter being heard by (Knight), then movant alternatively moves the court to remove this action to the Floyd Circuit Court, where such action has been filed simultaneously..."

If Knight is not qualified to hear the case, the statute provides that it may be heard in an adjoining circuit, therefore the suit was also filed in Floyd County Circuit Court.

Frazier was elected to the bench in 1984. At stake is an eight-year term.

In addition to his duties in the three county area, Frazier is the chief judge for the 22 counties in the 7th Judicial District.

Childers said that he had no comment on the case, other than the suit is filed. "Our comment is limited to what we have filed, so as to not prejudice the disposition of the case," said Childers.

Bus driver is charged with theft by KSP

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

A Floyd County school bus driver was arrested by state police detectives last week on charges of unlawful possession of federal food stamps, receiving stolen property, obscuring the identity of stolen items and taking gasoline from a Floyd County school bus.

Denver Ousley, of Middle Creek, was arrested by state police detective Lee Weddington last Tuesday. Ousley is charged with possession of "a quantity of food stamps" in violation of federal law, theft by unlawful taking (taking gasoline from a school bus), two counts of obscuring identity and two counts of receiving stolen property.

Police allege that Ousley attempted to conceal the identity of a portable generator and a battery charger. He was also charged with two counts of receiving stolen property when investigators discovered a portable gasoline generator and a two ton jack.

According to Floyd County Schools Transportation Director Earl D. Ousley, Denver Ousley will re-

Right Beaver Food Store employees worked to replace a large window broken when a deer crashed through to the outside Tuesday afternoon. Store owners said two female deer entered the store around three o'clock Tuesday. (photo by Tim Preston)

Animals damage Right Beaver store :

Oh dear, deer!...

by Tim B. Preston
Staff writer

"We were just standing here behind the counter and heard what sounded like an explosion," said Arville Duff, owner of the Right Beaver Food Store.

"When we looked up there they were at the counter."

Duff's grocery store was the site of an unusual occurrence Tuesday. Two large deer, described as does, crashed into the front door of the grocery and wandered through the building before leaving by separate exits.

"I saw them come in and all I could say was 'deer,'" said Elizabeth Duff. "Both of them came in and hit the counter and knocked a scale off and broke it. Then one went into the hardware store (located next to the grocery) and the other went into the grocery. I think they walked every aisle in the store before they left."

Arville Duff said the larger deer eventually walked into a storage room, where he contained the animal before opening an outside door.

"It stood around and walked on some of the pipes and stuff and then it just left," said Duff.

The smaller deer caused more problems. After roaming through the store the animal jumped over a four to five foot cake rack, breaking out an eight foot by eight foot plate glass window to escape.

"All in all they probably did about $500 worth of damage," said Duff. Jimmy Hall, who lives next to the store, said that he saw at least two dogs chasing the deer before they entered the store.

"I looked out my window and saw some dogs chase them up out of the creek over there," said Hall. "Then when I came down I found out where they went to."

Summing up the experience Arville Duff said, "In 23 years in the grocery business I have seen a lot of two legged dears, but this is the first time I have ever had any four legged deer come in and look around."

For Floyd County father and son :

Desert Storm a family affair

by Tim B. Preston

For two Floyd County soldiers, "like father, like son" goes a long way. All the way to Saudi Arabia.

David Raymond Andrews, of West Prestonsburg, and his son David Foster Andrews are both stationed in Saudi Arabia with different Army divisions.

Elizabeth Sue Andrews, wife of David Raymond and mother of David Foster, said Monday that both men are very motivated and in good spirits.

"They are serving within a few miles of each other," said Andrews, "but, they only get to speak about once a month. They did get to spend Christmas together."

Andrews said her husband, a Vietnam veteran with many service commendations, awards and 22 years of service, is currently serving with the 37th Engineers Brigade.

"Basically they are there for combat engineering," she said. "They build bridges, roads and whatever else they need with whatever they have to work with."

Of her son, Andrews said, "He is very 'gung-ho', like many of the young soldiers over there. He is in an infantry unit, so I do worry about

School construction controversy growing :

One suit's settlement could start a second

by Scott Perry
Times Editor
and
Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The resolution of one lawsuit could be the beginning of another for the Floyd County Board of Education in a continuing, and expanding, controversy over school building projects.

Unanimous approval from the board last week to pay a $10,700 claim submitted by B&J Construction for contract work at the site of the new Left Beaver High School will likely end B&J's suit against the board. The construction company had demanded payment in the legal action after project architect James Ellis apparently declined to certify that B&J had performed the work for which the company sought payment.

The board's approval of the claim stemmed from another debated action taken during Tuesday's marathon session which, in effect, relieved the project architect of any authority to certify construction progress.

Voting 5-0 last Tuesday, board members approved a change in a contract held by school construction manager Martin Engineering which eliminated a requirement that the construction manager certify construction progress to the architect and the board. The change allows Martin Engineering to bypass the architect when approving claims for payment to subcontractors.

Board approval of the amended contract prompted Prestonsburg attorney Phillip Damron to vow last Tuesday that he would file legal action on behalf of architect James Ellis challenging the move.

Damron said this week the board had agreed in Tuesday's executive session that Martin's contract required the architect to verify work performed by the contractor.

"We agreed the construction manager contract required certification of the work performed to the architect," Damron said. "But that changed after I left the meeting. I found out Wednesday morning that the board voted to change the contract. The clause basically means the construction manager would be doing nearly nothing."

Toll-free number offered by sheriff

Floyd County residents who were once hesitant to telephone the sheriff's office when trouble broke out can now make the call without a long distance charge to their phones by calling 1-800-834-5430.

"The (toll free) service is mainly for emergency service for people who live in Mud Creek and other areas that are long distance calling areas," said Deputy Chuck Hall. "They are really the only people who would ever need it."

Hall emphasized that the toll free number was for emergency use only.

The original contract clause states that the construction manager "shall certify on each request for payment" that the amount is correct and the work has been performed.

According to Damron, the amendment to the contract will require the project architect to certify the work has been performed and construction materials delivered.

No lawsuit has been filed in the case because Ellis is out of town and will not return until next week. "I probably won't file until my client gets back," Damron said. "As far as I'm concerned (the clause) is not effective until the state reviews and approves it."

Damron said he had not received any official word from the board of education about the payment to B&J Construction or the amendment to Martin's contract.

The case was still pending in Floyd County Circuit Court Tuesday but board of education records show a check dated February 15 to B&J Construction for the disputed amount.

Court questioned over out-of-county haulers

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Slippery roads Friday in Floyd County prevented two members of the fiscal court from attending their regularly scheduled meeting, but the court conducted business as usual and heard from several citizens who braved the weather.

A Johnson County company hauling the county's reddog, gravel and blacktop was the main topic discussed by citizens, and the lack of an industrial park in the Right Beaver area highlighted the meeting.

Carlos Elswick and Greg Perry asked Judge Executive John M. Stumbo why the county contracted with J & W Enterprises of Johnson County to haul road material in Floyd County.

The men wanted to know why the county paid $277,000 over the past three years "just to haul" reddog, gravel and blacktop. Elswick said he verified the amount through the county clerk's records.

Stumbo told Elswick his figures were "completely wrong" and the company hauled and "spread" the road materials.

"We're not trying to make a scene," Elswick said. "But ever since we raised questions about hauling, everything just got cut off. Nobody is hauling now. We just want to work and we can haul reddog and gravel for the county. Why can't Floyd County people get the work?"

Stumbo asked Elswick why he came to the meeting to discuss the issue. "Why didn't you come and talk to me?" Stumbo asked.

Kentucky Opry seeks clear title to use name

by Tim B. Preston
Staff Writer

The Kentucky Opry, a non-profit organization devoted to promoting local musicians and music, has hired an attorney to research legal ownership of the name "Kentucky Opry."

Opry founder Billie Jean Osborne said Tuesday that questions had arisen as to the legal rights to the name and that an attorney would be researching the title, as well as seeking trademark registration for the group.

"There is apparently a place in western Kentucky which has been using the name or the word 'opry,'" said Osborne. "We want to make sure that we have everything in order before any legal problems come out of it."

Kentucky Opry President Keith Caudill confirmed Osborne's statements Tuesday, adding that the group wanted to be on firm legal ground before announcing any endorsements from established musical performers. "We just want to be safe," said Caudill.

In other opry news, Goose Creek Symphony vocalist Charlie Gearheart said Tuesday that he is very positive about the opry project and is also working toward a Goose Creek Symphony benefit performance for the group. No official dates have been set, but Gearheart said he would like to perform in conjunction with the Kentucky Opry during the upcoming Festival of F.A.C.E.S. in Prestonsburg.

Opry officials are also expected to announce the endorsement of country music star Dwight Yoakam in the near future.

Court

"This is the way the system works," Elswick responded. "This is where we're supposed to come to talk about it."

After much discussion, Stumbo told the men the court would contact them to haul road materials if the county needed their assistance.

The lack of a recreational park in the Right Beaver area was brought up by Don Hansford, a Babe Ruth coach. Hansford told the court that most of the county's parks and playing fields were already heavily booked. He said finding a convenient time for Babe Ruth practice was almost impossible.

"We've had to practice from 9-12 at night," Hansford said. "We also have an excellent 16-18 year-old program that we can't even get started because we have nowhere to practice."

Hansford also tossed out an idea to build an industrial park in the Right Beaver area with an athletic park big enough to host regional baseball tournaments.

The court agreed with the concept of an industrial park, but finding a suitable site was the major concern. Court members agreed to work with Hansford in finding a site and suggested both sides talk with Coal Mac officials about possibly building a site near its strip mining project at Eastern.

In other business, Mike Vance from Mountain Comprehensive Care asked the court to pay over $2,000 it owed for psychological evaluations of approximately 25 jail inmates. Vance explained that prisoners whose relatives have obtained a mental competency petition had to be evaluated.

Judge Stumbo said no money had been budgeted for that service and he didn't know where the funds would come from to pay the bill.

County Attorney Jim Hammond explained the county was liable for the expense because it was obligated to pay for the evaluations. Hammond said when a mental petition is sought, the issue is thoroughly discussed with both parties before an evaluation is performed.

Stumbo said the court would try to find the money and report on the situation at next month's meeting.

The rest of the agenda included:

- a resolution to enter into a county road-aid contract with the state to receive $665,800 for road maintenance, reconstruction or construction;
- a resolution to take Station Branch Road into the county system;
- advertise for bids for a fire truck for the Middle Creek Fire Department;
- advertise for bids for a bridge on Clear Water;
- a resolution for a pay increase for deputy jailer Joseph Jody Mullins;
- a resolution for a six percent cost-of-living increase for the county clerk's employees;
- a resolution to hire Christopher VanHoose as a deputy jailer;
- a resolution on budget transfers; and
- pay all bills and claims.

Magistrates Betty Caudill and Ermil Tackett did not attend Friday's meeting. The next scheduled meeting of the court will be Friday, March 15 at 10 a.m. at the courthouse annex. The meetings are open to the public.

main employed by the school system pending a resolution in the case.

"I talked to him and he denied the charges," said Earl Ousley. "So, until he is proven guilty we won't be doing anything. If he is found guilty we will probably act accordingly. He is an excellent bus driver."

Ousley said he was surprised when he was told of the arrest, noting that Denver Ousley's fuel consumption rate was more efficient than most other school bus drivers.

"We keep a chart on how much fuel is used by each bus on every run," said Ousley. "His chart shows a better mile-per-gallon rate than almost any other driver."

VIPS helps children put all the pieces of their world together

Visually Impaired Preschool Services, VIPS, is a non-profit agency serving visually impaired and multiple handicapped infants and toddlers until age three. The newly opened VIPS office in Martin is operating in conjunction with the Christian Appalachian Project and will serve a 40 mile radius.

Visually Impaired Preschool Services, Inc. was founded to help visually impaired children function best in a sighted world. Visually impaired children need to learn to put all the pieces of their world together. They need to be taught that all those sounds, smells, textures and tastes have meaning. The earlier they can develop social, motor, language, and cognitive skills, the easier the transition to public schools.

VIPS offers a variety of services, free of charge, which address the individual needs of the child.

Intervention: Trained teachers provide educational intervention through in-home visits.

Parent Training: Families can learn techniques for encouraging learning and independence.

Advocacy: VIPS staff provides parents with updated information on their child's rights to services.

Family Support: Parent to parent support is provided through workshops, newsletters, and interest groups.

Referral Services: VIPS helps families obtain other services for their child.

For more information or referral contact the Visually Impaired Preschool Services, Joyce Guerra, early interventionist, P.O. Box 1119, Martin, KY 41649, or call (606) 285-3858 or (606) 285-9741.

Pike residents are convicted of mail fraud

Louis DeFalaise, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Kentucky, announced the conviction of three Pike County residents in United States District Court in Pikeville.

According to Assistant United States Attorney Thomas L. Self, Alvis Lloyd Keene, 52, his wife, Beatrice Ann Keene, 34, and his sister, Peggy Schnell, 35, all of Pikeville, were convicted by a jury in United States District Court in Pikeville on Friday, February 8, following a nine day trial.

The jury found Alvis Lloyd Keene guilty of 13 counts of mail fraud and one count of conspiracy to commit mail fraud. Ann Keene and Peggy Schnell were both found guilty of conspiracy to commit mail fraud.

They were convicted of devising a scheme to sell credit life and disability insurance to customers who purchased motor vehicles from Keene's former business, Lloyds Used Car Company, Inc., from February 1985 through June 1986 by selling them policies of insurance on companies which were not authorized to conduct insurance business in Kentucky.

Keene created two purported insurance companies, Delta Life Insurance Company and People's Unemployment Benefits Company, on which the defendant sold policies of insurance to individuals who purchased vehicles and financed their payments through a local bank.

United States District Judge Joseph M. Hood set sentencing for April 9, in Pikeville Federal Court. Alvis Lloyd Keene could be sentenced to up to 70 years imprisonment and fined up to $3.5 million. Ann Keene and Peggy Schnell could receive up to five years in prison or fined up to $250,000 each.

The case resulted from an investigation conducted by the United States Postal Inspection Service.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

Ancient calendar-makers displayed remarkable foresight when they decided to allocate February just 28 days.

Despite that thoughtfulness, February still ranks in our book as the longest month of the year.

At a much younger age we learned to decipher the calendar in much the same manner as everyone else. Lately, though, we've used our editorial license to devise a more appropriate version of the lesson...

Thirty days hath September,
April, June and November.
All the rest have thirty-one.
Except February,
It's home with the flu.

If the frost is on the pumpkin, the pink stuff's in the fridge.

Anyone with children knows we're referring to those bottles of antibiotics, some variety of a cillin, from which doses are allocated with regularity from early October until the first game between the Reds and Dodgers.

We've used the pink stuff so frequently, in fact, that we've developed our own special menu of curative cuisine which includes pink stuff milkshakes, peanut butter and pink stuff sandwiches and mashed potatoes with pink stuff gravy.

The kids are so accustomed to the stuff that whenever they get a case of the sniffles, they just open the fridge and take a slug straight from the bottle which, by the way, we keep filled from the 55-gallon drum that does double-duty as a coffee table in our family room.

Nowadays, when someone says they're "in the pink," we know what they mean.

If Isaac Peterson makes bail, the future of America is assured.

An Alabama judge, responding to critics that he was too lenient on habitual crooks, set Peterson's bail at $9 trillion on a theft charge.

If Peterson can scrape up the cash and then skips on his trial date, the bail bucks would be enough to bail out the national debt...three times over.

There's a deficit reduction plan taxpayers and law-abiders can applaud.

The Floyd County Board of Education was correct in rejecting a fund-raising proposal last week which would have students sell candy to pay long distance phone bills and other expenses at Adams Middle School.

The request, offered reluctantly by principal Thomas Tackett, should not be denied and forgotten, though. It should be dissected, autopsied and cured.

Raising money for extra-curricular activities is one thing, having children hawk items for school bills is another and whatever necessitated such a proposal should create considerable concern.

Public education in this country is supposed to be cost-free, or a reasonable facsimile thereof, for students. Moms and Dads foot the education bill and administrators must account for how those funds are applied.

We hope Tackett's request was a plea for help, that he didn't seriously expect students to go door-to-door to help pay school bills. We hope, too, that the board will recognize that the problem won't go away by simply denying requests and members will find the cause and the cure, quickly.

Kentucky is fighting another war, and we'd like to see some of the support our Persian Gulf troops are receiving overflow onto this battlefield.

The villain in this war is illiteracy and the victims continue to pile up.

There are heroes, too. Lennie Burchett, of Prater Creek, is one.

At 25, Lennie Burchett has decided to face illiteracy and to learn to read.

Make no mistake about it, Burchett's decision wasn't any easier than looking down the barrel of a loaded gun. With a bullet, you know your options. Live or die.

With illiteracy, you live a lie, and life is often spent covering up inadequacies.

It takes guts to take a stand against illiteracy.

Lennie Burchett will beat it, and that makes him a war hero.

We hope his success and courage will encourage others to enlist in the fight.

I have never written a letter to any newspaper before, but I have been reading with great interest the past weeks' articles written about the Prestonsburg High School project. You see, I am not from "the North end of the county," but I am part of this county and my children attend school in this county.

I have read the article written by John Sammons and I have taken classes under him at PCC. I thought he was a fair man who looked at both sides of any argument, but now my opinion differs. He now talks of a new high school for Prestonsburg, a new grade school for Prestonsburg, a new central office in Prestonsburg, but what about the REST of the county?

You know, not all the students at PCC come from Prestonsburg; they come from other parts of the county too.

Why does "the rest of the county" have to fall in line behind Prestonsburg to get new schools? Don't the children in "the rest of the county" deserve just as much as Prestonsburg?

You are probably saying, well if you were getting a new school you wouldn't refuse it. A few months ago I would have said you are right. I thought that our school was in the worst shape of any in the county and we must demand a new school for our own children, but then I toured all 20 schools in the county and I changed my mind quickly. I saw there were schools in much worse shape than ours.

I think this attitude of the "north end of the county" has got to change. Don't the people in the "north end of the county" care about the children in the "rest of the county"? The time has come for the attitude of what's best for the whole county!

I challenge this group in Prestonsburg that has the "north end of the county attitude" to tour all the schools in the county and see their conditions. I realize that not everyone has that attitude. Let's pull together county wide; let's get good schools, adequate supplies and equipment for all schools in Floyd county. Let's work together as hard for one school in the most needed areas of the county as for "the north end."

Let all children in Floyd County get the best education possible in order to attend any college they so choose with the same amount of educational opportunities. We gladly invite anyone to attend the monthly meeting of Floyd County Parents for Better Schools the first Thursday of each month. Let's all work together for all Floyd County.

Recently reassessment notices went out to property owners in Floyd County in accordance with KRS 132.450. I am not familiar with this ruling but I cannot believe that a 23 acre, unimproved Rocky Hillside with no access to a road could be construed as a "farm—$40,000.00." Nor can I believe that at least three practically identical properties could be assessed in such a haphazard manner, i.e., 27 acres $67.00, 21 acres $107.33, 23 acres $214.29. Surely KRS 132.450 does not advocate "pulling assessments from a gnat" to save time and trouble for the property valuation office.

I am outraged as to what happened during the last school board elections. Mr. Billips came around door to door handing out campaign promises, but didn't bother to mention that he was against the building of a new Prestonsburg High School. How convenient for him.

He claims to have won the election on that issue alone; however, I can't see why he won. He hasn't done anything but cause hard feelings among the people in district one. People should remember one thing: UNITED WE STAND—DIVIDED WE FALL. According to what Mr. Billips wants we are sure to fall.

I have always heard that Prestonsburg was the heart of Floyd County, but yet, Prestonsburg doesn't deserve to grow and develop because Mr. Billips doesn't want it to. It just doesn't make any sense to me. The children in district one need a new incentive for staying in school, and the only thing that could make a difference is a new school.

Give them a reason to be proud of their county and not a reason to leave. These years are crucial and memorable for our teenagers. Mr. Billips, I am willing to make sacrifices for my children, aren't you? Therefore, if you're not, then perhaps you should think twice about why you wanted the position that you have.

I went to Frankfort to the opening ceremonies for the Vietnam Memorial. It is a beautiful sun dial where the shadow is said never to fall on the names of the twenty-two Kentuckians who are Missing-in Action (MIA) or Prisoners-of-War (POW). However, there was something missing. Something vital that depicts the plight of those who still serve in the war—the P.O.W. Flag.

You can see it flying at other Vietnam memorials, other government buildings, and even at gas stations and people's homes, but why not at our state's capitol. Kentucky is the only state who has the only P.O.W. still recognized as alive by our United States government—Col. Charles E. Shelton.

I urge everyone to write to: B.G. Michael W. Davidson, Adjutant General, Dept. of Military Affairs, Boone National Guard Center, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

Ask him why the POW Flag is not flown at the Frankfort Vietnam Veterans Memorial. I urge you to demand him to correct this obvious oversight.

General Assembly News

By Pam Shingler

Week Five:
Kentucky General Assembly Special Session
DUI, garbage and Medicaid dominate legislative action

Kentucky's state representatives fought two sometimes bitter battles over drunk driving penalties and solid waste management during the fifth week of what is legally called—and indeed is—an extraordinary session of the General Assembly.

After earlier tabling a controversial drunk driving bill that almost evenly split the house, the representatives showed an amazing spirit of compromise in resurrecting the bill and passing it, 99-0, on Tuesday.

The approved version, destined now for senate consideration, takes away the major bone of contention, an administrative per se clause that would have resulted in the automatic revocation of an operator's license shortly after a drunk driving arrest.

The compromise gives judges the right to immediately suspend licenses of drunk drivers who are between 18 and 21 years old, those who refuse a breathalyzer test and those who have been convicted of DUI within five years.

Rumblings in the senate, however, indicate the bill will yet again change form before it clears all the hurdles to become law.

House members showed another side, taking compromise to the extreme, some said, as the senate-approved bill on solid waste management underwent considerable change in committee and floor debate before passing by a vote of 86-14.

Through Thursday, the House Committee on Natural Resources and Environment deleted and added to the senate bill dozens of times. More amendments were introduced and discussed Friday on the house floor.

One of the biggest casualties was the section of the senate bill that would have required counties to arrange for garbage collection for all residents, a regulation known as universal collection.

The committee version also lightened some of the senate's stricter provisions, such as extensive background checks, that would have heavily regulated the waste industry and more tightly controlled the inflow of out-of-state waste.

By week's end, the committee's work was drawing criticism, like flies on a landfill, from the governor and other legislators. Gov. Wallace Wilkinson accused waste industry lobbyists of damaging the bill, and Senate President Pro Tem John "Eck" Rose of Winchester stepped down from his podium on Thursday to address the issue.

"It's hard for me to believe that the General Assembly that achieved greatness on education reform should turn its back on this legislation," Rose told his fellow senators, who had waded through more than 100 amendments before passage.

Rose claimed that the primary reason for the bill's trouble in the house committee was that many people "don't understand it." He also said the press has "played a role in that misunderstanding."

Defending the bill on the house floor Friday, Rep. Mark Brown of Brandenburg said that, contrary to critics' opinions, the bill had "not been thrown together piecemeal. The heart of the bill is the control it gives to counties."

Rep. Jim Maggard of Jackson was among those who admitted to a reluctant yes vote. "There's a lot of things in this bill I don't like," Maggard told the house members. "But a lot of things (in the bill) will put us back on track, on a path of cleaning up our environment. Basically, this is the best piece of legislation we can come up with in this session."

Rep. Richard Turner of Tompkinsville said his vote was "a reluctant yes because of the lack of mandatory collection."

House majority leader Greg Stumbo of Prestonsburg took the opportunity to praise the bill and throw some darts. "We never get everything we want," he said. "I would have liked to have seen universal collection and a bottle bill. But we have set a policy. For the first time, we are going to deal responsibly with our (waste) problem."

Referring to the problems the bill has encountered in passage, Stumbo said, "When we come for a special session in the future, we ought to have many of these (kinds of) details worked out beforehand."

He also admonished the leaders of the Cabinet for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection to be "more tolerant" and use more "common sense" in dealing with solid waste problems. He cited the Addington Corp.'s new landfill at Green Valley, which has not been approved for opening.

In the fifth week, the senate cleared three bills previously passed by the house. HB 6 makes specific the state's vote-buying law, which the state Supreme Court had ruled to be vague. HB 7 stiffens the parole eligibility requirements for persons convicted of murder. The senate unanimously approved both bills.

The third bill, HB 18, which passed the house, 95-0, met with some resistance in the senate. The bill codifies rulings on a nuisance lawsuits for damages.

Sen. Kelsey Friend of Pikeville, in opposition, claimed the bill was designed to protect Ashland Oil Co. from Kentucky environmental lawsuits similar to one in West Virginia where they awarded three residents more than $10 million in damages allegedly caused by the company's refineries. Seven senators voted against the measure.

On Wednesday, the senate also unanimously approved a bill, sponsored by Sen. Benny Ray Bailey of Hindman, that would expand Medicaid hospitalization coverage to virtually every Kentuckian who cannot now afford it. Money for the expansion would come from taxing health care providers and then securing matching federal Medicaid funds.

Bailey added that the tax would be returned to the providers twofold because of the matching money.

The bill would extend hospitalization to an estimated 340,000 Kentuckians presently ineligible for Medicaid, whose incomes are at or below the federal poverty level. The coverage would not, however, include non-hospital health care, such as doctor's appointments or medication.

Hailed as a landmark piece of legislation, the bill is expected to be fully accepted by the house.

Plodding into the sixth week of the special session, the legislators still have to consider confirmation of the governor's most recent nominations to the Kentucky Lottery board and the state school board.

One lottery board nominee, James Potts, superintendent of Powell County schools, took himself out of the running Thursday, after an Attorney General's informal opinion that a superintendent's responsibilities restrict such activities. No objections have thus far been raised to the appointment of Pikeville lawyer Charles Baird.

The four latest appointments to the school board are to be interviewed by the senate in the sixth week of the session. They are Audrey Haynes of Frankfort, Wade Mountz of Louisville, Helen W. Mountjoy of Utica and Tom Gish of Whitesburg. Four previous nominees either resigned or were rejected by the legislators.

The General Assembly ended its fifth week, prepared for a long weekend with Monday, Feb. 18, off for President's Day. They were to reconvene on Feb. 19.

The United States Senate Interim Report on the Southeast Asia Prisoners-of-War/Missing-in-Action (POW/MIA) issue released on October 29, 1990 by the U.S. Senate Committee on Foreign Relations Republican Staff stated on page 9:

1) living U.S. citizens, military and civilian, were held in Southeast Asia against their will after the U.S. Government's statement on April 13, 1973, that no prisoners remained alive; and

2) the information available to the U.S. Government does not rule out the probability that U.S. citizens are still being held in Southeast Asia.

Our government left live POW's in Southeast Asia and forgot them. We now have POW/MIAs in the Persian Gulf. Will they be abandoned as government policy and considered just the cost of war?

Why are our leaders afraid of the truth? Why are POW/MIA documents still classified? Some classified papers are 45 years old.

The "Truth Bill", H.R.-3603 would declassify all POW/MIA information sanitizing sources and any information that would compromise national security. HR-3603 had 160 co-sponsors including Congressmen Perkins, Natcher, and Bunning from Kentucky. Why did the other representatives not co-sponsor the "Truth Bill." Were they asleep or afraid of the truth?

Congressman John Miller (R-Wa) has agreed to reintroduce the "Truth Bill" in the 102nd Congress.

Contact your Congressman and ask him to co-sponsor the "Truth Bill". He must stand for the truth or admit to being afraid of it. We need some politicians with some pride and honesty now!

Concerned Americans are leaving Kentucky in a convoy on May 24 (Friday) going to Kansas City, MO. for Rolling Thunder Freedom Rally. This is a rally to move our government to take action that will account for our POW/MIAs. If you are an American and want our heroes brought home then please come with us. We have left POW/MIAs after every war. We must make sure we never abandon our fellow Americans again. When good men and women do nothing, evil will prevail.

Contacts across Kentucky are: Elmer "Shorty" Wright, Owensboro, Ky., 502-926-7628; Charley Datilio, Louisville, Ky., 502-896-1544; Danny "Greasy" Belcher, Preston, Ky., 606-674-6799; Jim Calhoun, Ashland, Ky., 606-324-8183.

This could be the largest rally ever in support of our POW/MIAs. Do what is right; go with us on May 24th.

Concerning the Construction Management Program for the Floyd County Schools that have been built and that are now under contract, I, as a general contractor here in Prestonsburg, am wondering why Martin Engineering (Sam Martin) and Akers & Akers (Ervin Akers) were the only construction companies that had the opportunity to work as construction managers on all these new school projects.

As far as qualifications for the job, my company, J & R Construction Co., Inc., is as well qualified as any other construction company. With our previous work history, our office is well equipped and staffed to do this type of job, and we are presently involved in other counties throughout the state.

Again, my concern is why have these two construction companies been the only ones to have this opportunity? We, J & R Construction Co., Inc., have completed several jobs that were construction management projects: the Bluegrass Middle School in Hardin County, the Bus Maintenance Facility for the Perry County Board of Education and the Letcher County Schools.

I don't understand why the construction management for a project is not put out for bid. A general contractor must submit a bid.

I understand that normally the construction manager is paid a fee of 5 percent of the total cost of the contract price. My feelings are that this part of the project should be let out for bid, too. Then maybe it would be bid for less than the 5 percent fee, and save the School Board some money. This money could be put back into the actual construction cost of the school instead of giving it to a construction manager.

Dear Editor:

I am Joan Shelton, the daughter of Col. Charles E. Shelton who is the only official Prisoner of War (POW) listed alive in Southeast Asia by the United States government. I recently moved back to Kentucky, the state in which my daddy was born and raised, only to find in grave disappointment that at the Vietnam Veterans Memorial of Kentucky in Frankfort, that there is a very important part of any U.S. war memorial missing—a Prisoner of War Flag.

There are still 2,296 Americans unaccounted for in Southeast Asia, and unfortunately, eight POWs and 27 Missing-in-Action (MIA) in the Persian Gulf. What does it take and how many more missing until we will fly the POW flag at the Kentucky Vietnam Veterans memorial. My father is a Vietnam Veteran—a Prisoner of War gone almost 26 years. Besides bringing him and the other heroes home—let's honor them and fly their flag.

If you believe as I and many other Americans, then write: B.G. Michael W. Davidson, Adjutant General, Dept. of Military Affairs, Boone National Guard Center, Frankfort, Ky. 40601.

We must not forget our POW/MIAs, past or present. Our Kentucky Vietnam Veterans Reunion (L.Z. Bluegrass) is May 17, 18, and 19 in Frankfort, Ky. We would like to fly the POW/MIA flag then and from now in honor of our heroes.

Methodist hospital to sponsor nursing incentive scholarship

If you have always wanted to be a registered nurse but couldn't afford the college tuition, help is available from a scholarship fund established by the General Assembly and further promoted by the Methodist Hospital.

The 1990 Kentucky General Assembly established the nursing incentive scholarship fund (NISF) with the intent to provide scholarships to Kentucky residents who wish to attend an approved registered nurse and licensed practical nurse education program in the state.

The scholarships are now available, but preference will be given to applicants who are low-income, unemployed Kentucky residents and licensed practical nurses who wish to further their education and become registered nurses.

There is only one catch! Scholarship applicants are required to obtain a health care facility as a sponsor and the Methodist Hospital wants to be the sponsor for all area applicants. In return, the applicant will agree to work at Methodist for one year for each academic year that scholarship funding is given. Applicants who participate through the Methodist Hospital will receive full pay and benefits when they finish the educational program and begin working.

Scholarship applications for the 1991-1992 school year must be completed and returned to the Kentucky Board of Nursing by May 1.

For applications or additional information, write to the Nursing Incentive Scholarship Fund Committee, Kentucky Board of Nursing, 4010 Dupont Circle, Suite 430, Louisville, Ky. 40207-4875 or contact Dottie Carter or Juanita Deskins at the Methodist Hospital at 437-3500.

In Memory of Hiwatha "Hank" Green

Born: March 29, 1926; died: February 19, 1990

It takes a lifetime to learn how to live, How to share and how to give.

How to face tragedy that comes your way, How to find courage to face each new day.

How to smile when your heart is sore, How to go on when you can take no more.

How to laugh when you want to cry, How to be brave when you say goodbye.

How to still love when your loss is so great, How to forgive when your urge is to hate.

How to be sure that God's really there, How to find Him, seek Him in prayer.

We Love and Miss You.

Free quit-smoking program at Our Lady of the Way

Our Lady of the Way Hospital will offer a free quit-smoking program called Fresh Start beginning Monday, February 25. Fresh Start developed by the American Cancer Society, is a straightforward approach to smoking cessation which consists of four sessions held on Mondays and Thursdays: February 25, 28 and March 4, 7 from 6:30 p.m.-8:00 p.m. in the Health Education Building (across from OLV Hospital).

The program provides participants with strategies for conquering smoking addiction. It also teaches methods of weight control and stress management, enabling new ex-smokers to handle the problems they cite most often as obstacles to smoking cessation.

Instructors Judy Hamm, RN, and Joan Shalpin, Community Health Education at OLVH, are certified in offering the Fresh Start program.

The program is free, but participants are asked to register by calling the Health Education Office at 285-5181, Ext. 358, between 8 a.m.-4:30 p.m.

Intervention is effective method for helping the alcoholic or drug abuser

The common assumption was once that substance abusers couldn't be helped until they "hit bottom" and asked for assistance. But on their way down they often dragged their jobs, families and self-respect with them. Many also lost their lives.

But the downward spiral of chemical dependency has been reversed for countless numbers of people through intervention, one of the most important innovations in decades for dealing with substance abuse.

An intervention is a way for people concerned about someone with a drinking or drug problem to join together and confront that person in a loving, but firm manner. An intervention is far more effective in dealing with the substance abuser than issuing empty threats or pleading with him to stop drinking or using drugs.

Those measures are based on the assumption that the chemically dependent person is suffering from a moral weakness or lack of willpower rather than a disease.

When people say they don't have the nerve to confront a husband or wife through an intervention, then they need to ask whether they would allow that person to suffer if he or she had some other treatable disease.

The alcoholic or drug abuser is suffering from an illness that is just as life threatening as cancer, emphysema, or cardiovascular diseases.

Intervention usually begins with a family member — most often a spouse — who reports that someone is experiencing a problem with drugs or alcohol. An intervention is recommended if that person is unlikely to seek help on his or her own.

The next step is to begin getting together the people most affected by that person's drinking or drug use. The group usually includes children, other relatives, close friends and, in some cases, the employer. Those experiencing their own problem with drugs or alcohol are excluded.

The key to a successful intervention is careful preparation. Each person is asked to describe how the drinker or drug abuser's problem has affected his or her life, citing specific examples rather than generalizations. Instead of blaming him for always being late, group members should recall when he missed an important appointment or forgot Suzy's graduation because he'd been drinking or using.

Each group member must also be willing to clearly state what the consequences will be if the drinker or drug user won't seek help. They can include forcing him to leave home, firing him from his job or denying or forbidding him to see his grandchildren.

The reactions of the drinker or drug abuser confronted during an intervention are mixed. Sometimes they're very angry and others may just cry and listen.

Most interventions are successful with the drinker or drug user going directly into treatment. Generally, they are more receptive to treatment because the intervention has helped to break down the denial that other patients still have to overcome.

Even when someone initially refuses help, they may seek treatment within the next several months, particularly if the family has adhered to its ultimatums.

But even if the alcoholic or drug abuser never seeks help, the intervention is never a failure. Alcoholism and drug addiction can devastate an entire family. So when family members take action to help themselves through an intervention, they have the comfort of knowing that they've done everything they can. It enables them to get on the process of rebuilding their lives.

Intervention is an important step that anyone close to the alcoholic or drug user should consider because without help the consequences of continued alcohol and drug abuse is disastrous.

For more information regarding substance abuse call the CAREUNIT at Our Lady of Bellefonte Hospital (606) 836-3148.

Bert Combs named Friend of Education

Bert T. Combs has been selected to receive the third annual Friend of Education award for an individual from the Kentucky School Boards Association (KSBA). The award was presented on Friday, February 15, at the Galt House East in Louisville, during the KSBA Annual Conference Opening Session at 1:15 p.m.

A former Kentucky governor and former judge on both Kentucky and U.S. Court of Appeals, Combs represented the Council for Better Education in Franklin and Kentucky Supreme Court cases which led to the Kentucky Education Reform Act.

Combs led the Council on a "journey through the Combs decision, the Supreme Court ruling and finally passage of House Bill 940," at no cost for himself and minimal cost for his staff, according to Jack Moreland, president of the Council for Better Education and superintendent of the Dayton Independent Schools.

The Council nominated Combs for the award established by KSBA to recognize a long-term commitment to and involvement in promoting public elementary and secondary education.

Combs served as Kentucky governor from 1959-63. When elected, he received the greatest plurality ever given a candidate for that office up to that time.

He was appointed a judge of the U.S. Court of Appeals for the Sixth Circuit by President Lyndon Johnson in 1967. Since his resignation as judge in 1970, he has been a member of the law firm of Wyatt, Tarrant and Combs.

From 1978-80, Judge Combs served as a member of the U.S. Arms Control and Disarmament Agency, appointed by President Jimmy Carter.

A native of Clay County, he graduated from Clay County High School and attended Cumberland College. He is a graduate of the University of Kentucky College of Law.

Combs is a member of many professional, civic and fraternal organizations. He has a deep interest in programs for handicapped children. In 1963, he received the Joseph P. Kennedy International Award for outstanding contribution and leadership in the field of mental retardation.

Keeping yourself in control when a loved one is deployed

If your family member has been deployed to Saudia Arabia, you may feel that you are caught up in a situation over which you have no control. Although you can't control what is happening with your family member, there are things you can do to maintain control over your own life. Each of these is simply a suggestion to get you started. After you read each one, try to list two or three ways you can follow through and add to the control you have over your life.

Although I cannot control the world situation, I can control many aspects of how it affects my life.

I need to take care of myself so that I can continue doing the things that are most important.

I need to simplify my lifestyle.

I need to allow others to help me.

I need to take one day at a time rather than worry about what may happen in the future.

I need to look to others for love and support.

I need to frequently remind myself that I am doing the best that I can at this very moment.

Dedicated To My Sister

Born Feb. 21, 1974 - Died May 4, 1989

Why?

A world of mystery, A mind of thoughts, thoughts of why, and thoughts of what made this beautiful creature come to this decision.

Waking up to a beautiful day that seemed so nice, but hearing that awful sound made that day full of prayers to God upon this creature, going to this place of healing the sick, a room filled with why? and how? This room filled with anger and yet sadness, the only sounds in this quiet room were the tears falling from everyone's faces. The time was getting closer, everyone felt it, but could not believe that it would be true, this beautiful creature had died, me and my mother knowing that this creature did not want to die this way. But it did.

This creature was my sister, "Renee".

Utility customers to see rate hike

At its February meeting, the Public Service Commission authorized a reconnection increase and a rate increase to two Floyd County utility companies.

Beaver-Elkhorn Water District will increase its reconnection fee to $25, its meter reading check fee to $25, and its service connection charge from a 5/8 inch meter to $425. Connection charge for a 3/4 inch meter will be $450. The order was entered on February 11.

In separate action, the Public Service Commission granted Elzie Neeley Gas Company a rate increase to its residential customers. Those customers will see an annual increase of $2.08. The rate adjustment reflects a $140 increase in wholesale costs from the company's supplier. The rate increase became effective February 4.

A Look At Sports
by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

NEW SCOREBOARD IN PLACE, NEW FLOOR COMING

The Allen Central Fieldhouse has a different look because the new scoreboard, donated by the Pepsi Cola Company, is hanging in place and working fine. Now fans at the upcoming district tournament will not have to be looking just one way to know the score. It also will help the players on the floor to know the time remaining in the game.

More good news for the Allen Central fans! The old floor will become history after this basketball season. A new wooden floor will be installed during the summer months as the fieldhouse continues to get a new look.

KING AND BOYD OUT!

I hated to hear the news that I received today (Tuesday) that Phillip King will be out for two weeks because of an injured wrist. The quick forward will miss the upcoming district tournament and I know that this has to be much on the mind of the coaching staff and players at Betsy Layne. The rest of the team just needs to pull together and try to fill in and take up the slack created by his absence. This is a talented Betsy Layne team. I believe they will rise to the occasions.

On the same day, Coach Bill Newsome told me that his leading scorer Briana Boyd will be lost for the year to the Lady Bobcats. Briana has been through so much. She injured her knee at the Phelps game last week and surgery will be required to correct the problem. I wish Phillip and Briana the best and hope they will have a speedy recovery. King could be back by regional tournament time. I am concerned when any player in our county is injured. I feel close to them after having followed their playing days in high school. Here are two players that want to play but can't, when we have players that can play but won't. It's sad!

LATE CONFERENCE FINISH HAS COACHES READY TO PULL HAIR

Why don't we fix it so that the Floyd County Conference race is all over with around the last of January — or no later than the first of February. Here we are a week away from tournament time and still the final standing are not known.

Blame the weather! Right! But let's schedule the games so that it affords some make up time earlier than what we are facing now. This Friday at the Floyd County Board of Education board room, the final results should be known. Friday, five days before the start of the 58th District tournament.

I'm sure the coaches will like that. At least they could better prepare their teams for the tournament if they knew who they would face.

POLL SHOWS MANY THINK ROSE GOT ROOKED

We did a little poll around the county on some baseball fans to see if they thought Pete Rose got a raw deal on being excluded from the ballot to be elected to the Hall of Fame. In Friday's sports section we will share those insights with you.

CONTEST STILL GOING ON

Look in today's sports section for the coupon to enter the Rick Pitino Basketball/T-shirt giveaway. All entries must be in by February 27. Drawing will take place at the finals of the district tournament. Two basketballs, personally autographed by the man himself, will go to some lucky winners. However, if you do not register, it is a sure thing you will not win. So get with it and send in your coupon today.

HOW THE SPORTS ANNOUNCERS SEE THE UPCOMING TOURNAMENT, FRIDAY

Sports announcers have their favorites and sleepers and will share those with you Friday in this column. Until Friday, good sports and remember it pays to be good sports.

Floyd County basketball: Final seven days, part three

One week from today the 58th District high school basketball tournament gets underway. As of yet the final tournament brackets have not been determined because of cancellation of games over the weekend. However, if all goes as planned the final results will be determined at a meeting this Friday morning.

In this report we want to look at where each team needs to improve in order to win the district tournament this year. Also, who has the advantage coming off the bench and does the home team, in this case Allen Central, have the home court advantage.

NEEDED IMPROVEMENT DEPARTMENT

The Allen Central Rebels need to learn to take care of the basketball more in cutting down their turnovers. Lack of defensive rebounding has been a problem for the Rebels also. Big Mike Allen could be a big factor on the boards but needs to exert himself more. Chuck Laferty and Tony Soler seem to carry the load in rebounding.

Betsy Layne, an excellent defensive team, needs to play it for 32 minutes. The Bobcats seem to take control of the game defensively, but seem to let it get away from them later in the contest. Good rebounding team but needs to be more consistent.

Prestonsburg always plays hard. However, they seem to find ways to do the little things to get themselves beat. Lack of board work, turnovers or missed free throws seem to be problems for the Blackcats. This is not a bad ball club. They just need to work on the little things that hurt them so often.

Wheelwright is like Prestonsburg, they make a good showing but fail to do the little things that will bring victory. They are an up tempo team

Cougars' 12-0 run in third; hands Rebels 64-59 setback

Allen Central coach Johnny Martin displayed his displeasure over the way his team was performing at Elkhorn City Monday night. The Rebels looked like they were in a frozen state as they were guilty of standing around, not only on defense, but offense as well.

The Rebels kept pace with the taller Cougars but allowed Elkhorn City a 12-0 run late in the third quarter and a 15 point lead, 46-31. Mental lapses on defense seemed to bother this Rebel team. Trailing by three, 34-31 with 3:43 remaining in the third stanza, freshman Todd Conley hit a jumper and Kevin Puckett followed with a basket.

Rebel guard Ronnie Sammons set for a shot from the three point range only to have Conley block the shot, grab the ball and run down court for the basket. He was fouled on the play. Conley connected on the free throw to give Elkhorn a 10 point lead. Conley wasn't through. The next trip down the floor the big guard hit a three-pointer and Puckett followed with a score and it was 46-31 Elkhorn.

Todd Lucas hit a three-pointer for Allen Central just before the period ended to cut it to 46-34.

Tony Soler scored the first basket of the final quarter for the Rebels and, after Mike Fraley shuffled in a basket, Soler hit again to make it 48-38. Tyler Bailiff took control then, scoring the next six points to extend the lead to 54-38. Bailiff took an in-bounds pass and the big 6-5 senior took the ball in mid air and stuffed it in the hoop. After Ronnie Sammons' basket for Allen Central, Bailiff dunked the ball again and the lead was 16 points, 56-40.

Allen Central cut the lead in half with a run of their own as the Rebels found the range from the 19' 9" line. Lucas hit a trey and Soler followed with a three-pointer of his own. Stewart Hall topped off the rally with two free throws.

Joey Thacker scored underneath and Sammons' three-pointer cut the lead to 58-51 with 1:58 remaining. Bailiff connected on two free throws to give the Cougars a nine point advantage, 60-51. However, that was short lived as Lucas hit his third trey and cut the lead to six.

Fraley's bucket with a minute remaining made it eight points but Soler, with a good move inside, kept it at six points with 52 seconds to go.

Broken wrist makes King doubtful for tournament situation with King. "The doctors said he would have to sit out two weeks," says Newsome, "and he may be able to return by the regional tournament if we get there."

Newsome seemed concerned about how to replace the much looked to player. "You don't replace someone who averages 20 points per game and pulls down 13 rebounds a game for you," said the Bobcat mentor.

Newsome said the Bobcats will use their remaining two regular season games to try and regroup and work on what will work for them in the tournament. Betsy Layne has two regular season games left as of press time (Phelps last night) and Shelby Valley this Friday night at home.

"It came at a time when we were playing good basketball," Newsome remarked. Betsy Layne had won nine of their last 10 games and is on a three game winning streak. The Bobcats had a previous winning streak of six in a row before falling to Belfry at home.

The victory over McDowell might have given Betsy Layne the conference title outright, but a bigger loss occurred when King went down. Hopefully, if the Bobcats reach the regionals at Belfry, King will be able to play.

While all the other county teams are experiencing defections in their camps, the Betsy Layne Bobcats received some bad news about their outstanding senior forward, Phillip King. King suffered a broken wrist against McDowell last week when he fell to the floor. According to Betsy Layne coach Junior Newsome, it doesn't look good for the high scoring forward to be able to play in next week's district tournament.

"Right now he has a soft cast on his left wrist," explained Newsome. "He has to go back to the doctor Monday."

Right now it is just a wait and see

Boyd, second Betsy Layne player to suffer injury

Lady Bobcats' final two regular season games or for the tournament.

"It is a big loss to us," said Coach Bill Newsome. "Briana will be hard to replace."

Newsome said that other players will have step forward and pick up the scoring void left by the loss of Boyd.

Boyd has been a hard luck player having to undergo knee surgery two years ago and just returning to basketball play last season. Boyd has been a spark for the Lady Bobcats team, leading the team in scoring and assists. Her coach labeled her as too selfish, saying that sometimes he had to gripe at her to get her to shoot the basketball. Boyd was a strong outside shooter and could hit from three-point range consistently.

The loss of Boyd will dampen the hopes of the Lady Bobcats team to capture the 58th District tournament next week. However, several players are capable of stepping forward and taking up the slack left by Boyd, who is a senior this year.

Bad news continues to flow into the Betsy Layne High School basketball program as Lady Bobcat Briana Boyd will have to undergo surgery on her right knee this Friday and will miss the remainder of the basketball season.

That means the high scoring guard, who was averaging 23 points per game, will not be available for the Lady Cats come from 21 down to slip past Phelps, 70-68; Boyd hurt

Calling it the best game his team has played all year, Betsy Layne coach Bill Newsome was jubilant to say the least over his team's 70-68 win over the Lady Hornets of Phelps.

The win was sweet but the victory was a costly one because the Lady Cats' leading scorer, Briana Boyd, was lost for the rest of the year with a knee injury that will require surgery this Friday. Many area basketball fans will remember that Boyd went through the same operation two years ago and came back last season to play again.

Betsy Layne got down by 21 points in the first quarter before making their miraculous come back. It took some lectures from the bench to get the Lady Cats going.

"I called three time outs," said Newsome. "That probably wasn't the smartest thing to do, but it got the job done." Betsy Layne trailed at the first stop by 14 points, 21-7. In the second period, it was a different story. The Lady Bobcats roared back to close within five points, 38-33, at half time and outscored Phelps, 26-17 in the second quarter.

Phelps held a three-point advantage entering the final quarter, 50-47. Betsy Layne caught the Lady Hornets and took the lead midway of the fourth.

"We got the lead and held it in the last quarter," explained Newsome. "They made a little run near the end to cut it to two points."

"Overall, it is the best game we have played this season. At first, carelessness was getting us in trouble. That is when I called the first timeout. Then I saw that we weren't mentally ready to play Phelps," recalled the Betsy Layne mentor. Newsome had praise for his team for the effort they put forth after getting down 21 points.

"They could have folded. They could have quit," he said, "but they didn't. They hung in there and came back."

Boyd scored 17 points in the game before getting hurt in the fourth quarter. The Lady Cat's leading scorer went for a lay up but twisted her knee when she came down and had to leave the game.

"It turned blue right there," said Coach Newsome. "She was in a lot of pain."

Shelia Hall had 18 points to lead the Betsy Layne team in scoring. Nancy Shepherd added 17 and Nikki Webb tossed in 15. Tina Rice, who

Allen Central nails Leslie County 74-65 behind Lucas' 21 points

The Allen Central Rebels rained treys down on the Leslie County Eagles last week in high school basketball at the Allen Central gym. The hot shooting Rebel squad connected for nine three-pointers in defeating the visiting Eagles 74-65.

Todd Lucas tossed in 21 points to lead the Runnin' Rebels to the victory. Two other Rebels had good games, with Chuck Laferty and Stewart Hall scoring 18 points each. Hall hit four three pointers in the game and Lucas connected on three. Laferty had two.

The victory for Allen Central was of the come from behind variety.

Trailing by five in the third quarter, 38-33, the Rebels caught fire and then caught and passed the Eagles. Laferty and Lucas hit back to back three-pointers to give Allen Central a one point lead, 39-38. The lead went back and forth before the Rebels ran off eight unanswered points to take a seven point lead, 49-42. Lucas and Laferty each hit treys and Sammons added a field goal in the spurt. Tony Soler's basket made it 51-44 after Chris Helton's basket. Leslie County then scored the next seven points to tie the game at 51-51 at the end of the third period. Reggie Stidham had five of the seven points on a field goal and three-pointer. Greg Couch scored the other two. Lucas and Laferty put Allen Central back out front, 55-51 with back to back field goals. The Rebels went up 59-53 and outscored Leslie County 10-0 to move out by 15 points, 69-54.

The Rebels, however, could not stand prosperly and allowed the Eagles to fly right back in the thick of things. A 11-2 run pulled the Eagles to within six, 71-65, as Helton scored eight straight points and Collett tossed in a three-pointer. Allen Central staged a good defensive effort in the final minute to hold off the Eagles 74-65.

Overview

60th District Tournament looks to be one-sided as Belfry, EC are favored

The 60th District Tournament will get underway Wednesday, February 27 at the Elkhorn City High School as four other teams will try and unseat the Belfry Pirates, last year's 15th Region champions. The task may be harder than some will want to admit.

The Pirates are definitely a favorite, not just to win the 60th again, but to repeat as the region's representative in the Sweet Sixteen at Rupp Arena this coming March.

Belfry gave some of the local teams a ray of hope earlier in the season with some uncharacteristic play. However, the Pirates came off an extended football season in which five of the Pirate basketball players played. The Pirates were slow in getting in synch with basketball skills.

Now Belfry is playing some very good basketball and carries the role of "tournament favorite." J. J. Hylton leads a very talented young Pirate ball club. Hylton makes the Pirates go. A threat inside or outside, Hylton can do it all. Jim Dotson plugs the middle for the Pirates while Shawn Hager plays the point guard. Mark Williamson and Timmy Kinser round out the starting five for Belfry.

Feds Creek, who beat Belfry early in the season at home, has probably the best chance to upset the Pirates with high scoring Rodney Fuller. Fuller has taken up the slack left by the loss of Jody Thompson last season. But Fuller is not all the Viking's team. Add talented Shannon Keene, a 5-10 junior, and you have two of the quickest teams in the region. Fuller is a deadly outside shooter and hits well from three-point land. Keene, a smart ball player, knows how to fill the basket outside also. Although Feds Creek is not a big team, Danny Justice is a force inside despite his 6-2 frame. Feds Creek could very well have something to say about who wins the 60th District.

Another team that has a boat load of talent but has been up and down this season is Randy McCoy's Elkhorn City Cougars. Tyler Bailiff, 6-5 senior, knows this is his last year to make a move to Rupp Arena. The Cougars have a talented freshman, Todd Conley, 6-4.

The main strength of this year's Cougar team lies in their size. Two players at 6-5; two at 6-4; two at 6-3, make Elkhorn one of the bigger teams in the 15th Region. If there is a weakness on this year's Cougar team it is at the point guard and two guard spots.

Johns Creek has size but hasn't been consistent for coach Eugene Lyons this season. Big Bill West has been the most consistent for the Bearcats this season but even with West Johns Creek has struggled. Johns Creek finished last in the conference in the 60th District and therefore must play Belfry on Thursday night.

Phelps will face Feds Creek in the tournament opener on Wednesday night with Elkhorn City waiting in the wings to face the winner. Once again Elkhorn City could face Feds Creek in the semifinals of the tournament, something that happened last year. The Vikings disposed of the Cougars in the semis last season. Coach McCoy would like to see it go differently this year. The edge should go to Elkhorn since the game will be played on their home floor.

In girls play, only two teams stand out in this one and that is number two Belfry and number three Elkhorn City. The Lady Pirates face last place Phelps, on Thursday night. Johns Creek plays Feds Creek in the first round with the winner facing Elkhorn City on their home floor.

A Belfry and Elkhorn City showdown is sure to develop in the finals of the 60th District. Look for Elkhorn City, knowing what it takes to win the big ones, to repeat as tournament champions.

Cougars

After Bailiff hit underneath, Stewart Hall shot a three-pointer that went into the basket came out and into the air, the horn sounded, the ball fell back into the basket for a trey and a final score of 64-59.

Allen Central suffered a letdown inside the final two minutes of the second quarter when they gave up some easy baskets to the Cougars for a 30-23 halftime lead. Allen Central trailed 24-23 before the 6-0 run. The Rebels experienced some coldness in the second period, scoring only six points. Chuck Laferty had four of the six with Sammons hitting for two.

While the game was played at what seemed a snail's pace, the Rebels were able to play with the bigger Elkhorn City team. Fraley gave the Cougars the first lead at 2-0 and Sammons immediately erased that with a three-pointer. Bailiff hit underneath and Sammons then hit one from 18 feet out to give Allen Central a 5-4 lead. Two buckets by Bailiff put Elkhorn on top 8-5. Laferty and Hall answered with two field goals and the Rebels reclaimed the lead at 9-8 as the lead seemed to change hands with each possession. The teams were tied at the first stop, 17-17.

Rebel coach Johnny Martin thought that his team looked good at times. "We played good in spots," he said. "We were standing around on offense an awful lot and that did not please me. I thought at first it was selfishness, but if a player stands around and doesn't come to meet the ball there's nothing else to do. We were not running our offense like we should have."

A strange thing about this game was the absence of very much free throw shooting by either club. In fact, Allen Central did not go to the line until 2:28 remained in the game.

Stewart Hall then hit two free throws. Those were the only two free throws the Rebels shot in the game.

Elkhorn City attempted only four and hit all four attempts. Allen Central hit nine three-pointers in the game with Lucas getting three. Hall and Soler had two each.

Game scoring honors went to the Cougar's Bailiff with 20 points. Conley and Fraley each tossed in 15 points.

For Allen Central, Tony Soler had 14 points to lead the Rebels. Ronnie Sammons finished with 13 and Stewart Hall added 10. Todd Lucas scored nine.

Allen Central was two for two from the charity stripe and Elkhorn City was perfect at four for four.

The Rebels will close out their regular season this Friday night with a road game at Hazard.

Betsy Layne

recently returned to the Lady Cats lineup scored three. Rice also has been out with an injury.

Allison Preece took game scoring honors with 28 points. Christy Coleman scored 14 points for Phelps.

Betsy Layne hit 18 of 32 free throw attempts and the Lady Cats had no three-pointers which is uncharacteristic of this team.

The win gives Betsy Layne a 10-12 record, but more than that, it serves as a confidence builder with the district tournament on the horizon.

Betsy Layne will finish their season tomorrow night against Sheldon Clark.

57th District Tournament Pairing

February 27, 28 and March 1, 1991

Real battle looms in 57th district as three of region's "biggies" meet

The 57th District tournament is a week away from starting and already the battle plans are being drawn by coaches Alvin Ratliff of Johnson Central, Bill Mike Runyon of Paintsville, Danny Adams of Magoffin County and Sheldon Clark's Roger Harless.

Johnson Central will square off against Magoffin County in an 8 p.m. game on Wednesday, February 27. The taller Golden Eagles are one of the favorites to capture the 15th Region crown this season. However, the Golden Eagles have struggled in the two previous regular season games against the smaller Hornets.

Magoffin County is a young team this season and has really had to play hard to win at all this season. However, Danny Adams has his team playing much better basketball and will be a team not to be taken lightly in the 57th District.

Jesse Russell leads the Hornets on offense. Russell has been the main spark for Magoffin County since the season began. Chester Humphrey has come on since the early part of the season and is playing better basketball. Humphrey is hard to stop down low.

However, the height of Johnson Central has been the strength of this ball club. That plus the effective defense the Golden Eagles play. They will get after you from the time the ball goes up till the final whistle blows. Jason Hurt plays the point for the Eagles. Avery Fairchild is one of the region's best and teaming with 6-11 Jody Salisbury, the region's tallest player, makes the Eagles a force to be reckoned with.

Bill Mike Runyon's Paintsville Tigers, the surprise in the 15th Region this year, will face a very young Sheldon Clark team. Coach Harless has put together a good season with this young Cardinal team. Although Brian Pinson (moved on to Paintsville) has departed the premises at Sheldon Clark, the Cards still remain a dangerous team in a short tournament. John Slone, Kevin Fields, Max Hale and J. R. Hammonds are a very talented foursome. The Cards may lose some coming off the bench, but the Cards play tough man to man defense and pressure the ball constantly.

Paintsville has the "dynamic duo" of Todd Porter and Chris Lyons. Both players have been the team leaders for the up and coming Tigers. The Tigers, playing this one on their home floor, have had some high scoring games with the Cards and this one shouldn't be any different. Paintsville won both meetings between the two clubs during the regular season. Paintsville should take this one also.

With the absence of Magoffin County girls basketball, three teams will vie for the winner's spot in the girls division of the 57th District. Of course the Sheldon Clark Lady Cardinals will be a hard team to unseat. The Lady Cardinals will face the Lady Golden Eagles of Johnson Central in a February 27 game at Paintsville. Ina Bowen, one of the candidates for "Miss Basketball" in the state of Kentucky and a future Western Kentucky Lady Hilltopper, will lead the vastly talented ball club of coach Robin Hammon. Katrinia Preece, Linda Slone and Angela Bailey bring experience and a tough offense to stop.

The Lady Eagles will have to take care of the basketball and play a near perfect game to topple the defending champions. Led by Susan Roberts and Janet Blair, the Lady Eagles will face one of the most successful girls programs in the state. Roberts and Blair lead the offense for Johnson Central.

Paintsville got the first round bye and will face the winner of the Sheldon Clark/Johnson Central game on March 1. Paintsville, a young team, looks to the likes of Sherri Green and Stacy Logan for their offense. Meredith Mullins is a force in the middle for Paintsville and once she has the ball down low, she is hard to stop. Mullins will be the key to a game with Sheldon Clark, because of her height, she will have to battle Bowns on the boards. Melissa Arnold and Jennifer Davis also start for the Lady Tigers.

The 57th District. And the winner is. Wait until it's over, this one is a toss up in the boys division and Sheldon Clark the winner in the girls.

Basketball

mistakes you make. Case in point: having McDowell beaten at home and, instead of holding the ball with a three point lead and 21 seconds remaining, they force the ball on a break and turn it over. That may seem unimportant at the time, but how you react in close situations makes for winning or losing.

McDowell just needs to put together a complete game. Something they are very, very capable of doing. The Daredevils need to be stronger on defense. There doesn't seem to be good blocking out on the defensive boards for the Daredevils, giving opponents a second and third chance at the basket. Turnovers are a problem for McDowell as well as the full court pressure.

For the women, playing as a unit for Wheelwright is a must. They are an inexperienced team and seem to freeze up when challenged on defense. The Lady Trojans are lacking in blocking out on the boards and have a tendency to run out of steam.

McDowell is another team that panics when pressured. Instead of passing over a zone press, they try to dribble through it. Their passing of the basketball is very weak and the Lady Daredevils seem to telegraph and those type of teams are vulnerable to making a lot of mistakes.

However, when you play an up tempo game, you must be able to compensate in other areas of your play for the every pass. Not quick to regroup after turnovers. Needs more points from the guards to help relieve pressure inside.

Prestonsburg likes to run the players in and out frequently. That doesn't seem to allow the players time enough in the game to get caught in the flow of the contest.

Uncertainty on the Allen Central team may be their area of improvement. Passing the basketball, when to pass or not pass, seems to be a problem with the Lady Rebels. Sometimes uncertainty of shots — when to shoot and when not to shoot — creates a problem. Pressure defenses keep the Lady Rebs uncertain.

Betsy Layne just needs a team leader. This is a good ball club that is in need of someone to help lead it. The chemistry just doesn't seem to be there like it should be for players of this quality. Determination to win is very important in a ball game. Seems to be gone here.

BENCH STRENGTH

The Rebels of Allen Central go about three deep off the bench. Carl Watkins, Jeremy Clark and Larry Patton have been the most often used for coach Johnny Martin's club.

Betsy Layne can go five deep without hurting themselves. Jody Coleman, Jonathan Tackett and Shawn Wallen are the first to see action for the Bobcats. Bradley Akers is another who coach Junior Newsome calls on from the pines.

Wheelwright can go about three deep in looking for help on the bench. Jimmy Helton and Steve Shelton help relieve the guards. Mike Newsome sees playing time in the post area.

Prestonsburg has perhaps the deepest bench in the district. Robert Hammond, James Derossset, Joe Whitt and freshman Cory Reitz give some quality minutes off the bench for Coach Gordon Parido's team.

McDowell, who earlier was not able to go very deep, now can because of the playing of some younger players. Scotty Stanley has been a big spark off the Daredevils' bench. Earl Cook has seen a lot of playing time lately and super sub Dale Hinkle could start for a lot of clubs.

The deepest bench for the girls has to be Prestonsburg's. Maybe this is where running the players in and out pays off. The Lady Blackcats of coach Bridget Clay are very deep off the bench. Led by (and you don't know what constitutes a starter on this team because you don't who is going to start) Raquel Cain, Kerri Merion, Stephanie Music, Stephanie Allen are starters that come off the bench. Very talented.

Allen Central has some very young players who see a lot of action. Pam Webb is a very underrated player for the Lady Rebels. Rhonda Leedy has been making a good contribution to Allen Central's team. Who could forget Jenny Yates. The "Human Flash". Very quick.

McDowell is mostly sophomores on the bench but with experience. Nikki Mullins has been coming around to become a very strong player for coach Cassandra Keathley's team. Carrie Newsome adds depth at the guard spots while Michelle Hall and Shelby Howell play strong forward positions.

Betsy Layne, like McDowell, has a bench full of good young players. Ashley Stanley leads then Dee Dee Martin, Amanda Hamilton, Christy Johnson and Missy Johnson also see a lot of playing time. All are freshmen.

Wheelwright will play a lot of young players. Renee Hall is the first into the game for Wheelwright.

Another freshman, Kathy Isaac sees considerable playing time for coach Donnie Daniels' team. Melissa Tackett, a seventh grader, as well as freshman Kandi Holbrook get the nod from Daniels.

HOME COURT ADVANTAGE

None, says coach Johnny Martin. "Not for this Rebel team. But I am glad that we are hosting it this year."

So, what about all the yelling about a team having a home court advantage? The old saying that the home court "is worth 10 points" may not be true in this year's 58th District Tournament if coach Martin is right.

Last year's tournament was held at Allen Central with Wheelwright the host school. However, the Rebels took home the district trophy because, say some, "it was on their home floor."

In 1989 McDowell won the district on Prestonsburg's home floor. Who did they beat in the finals? Prestonsburg. The two teams met in the finals of the regional tournament and who won? Prestonsburg! On who's floor? Prestonsburg!

Coach Martin says that his team plays better on the road.

room with a 30-27 halftime lead. Allen Central held a 27-26 lead on Stewart Hall's three pointer but the Eagles scored the final four points of the period to take the lead. Leslie County led at the first stop, 12-11.

The lead exchanged hands eight times in the first quarter as both teams opened hot. Stewart Hall had three treys in the second period to keep the Rebels close at halftime.

Game scoring honors went to Leslie County's Chris Helton with 27 points. Couch finished with 18 points and Reggie Stidham tossed in 10 points.

The game was practically foul free until the final quarter. Allen Central only had two free throws through the first three quarters of the game. Allen Central shot 10 charity tosses for the game connecting on seven. Leslie County shot 12 free throws making seven.

TWO NEW STATE RECORDS SET IN 1990

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources registered two new state record fish in 1990.

Marty Riehemann of Fort Thomas, established a new state record for a warmouth bass he caught in a Boone County farm pond. Riehemann's warmouth weighed one pound and four ounces — eclipsing by a quarter-pound the old record set in 1974 by Robert Hayes of Hustonville.

Gary Tracy of Frankfort posted a new record for a yellow bass with a fish he caught at KDFWR's Game Farm Lake in Franklin County. Tracy's yellow bass weighed 15 ounces — erasing the 14 ounce record established by Michael MacDowell of Hopkinsville in 1987.

Both anglers were still fishing with live bait when they made their state record catches.

The oldest Kentucky state record — set by Lorne Eli of Dawson Springs for a five pound white bass — has stood since 1943, although B. B. Hardin of Mt. Eden tied that record in 1957.

Kentucky's state record smallmouth bass, an 11-pound, 15-ounce beauty caught from Dale Hollow Lake by David Hayes of Leitchfield in 1955, still stands as the current world all-tackle record.

HOW TO SUBMIT A STATE RECORD APPLICATION

There are several things an angler needs to remember when submitting an application for a fish he believes to be a new state record. First, to qualify for a state record, the fish must have been caught by "sportfishing" methods; that is, by rod and reel or on pole and line. Fish caught in commercial nets, for example, aren't eligible for consideration as state records.

Secondly, the fish must be weighted on a scale certified "legal for trade" (state records are determined by weight, not length) and the weighing must be witnessed by three persons other than yourself. Usually, the meat or seafood department of your local grocery store will be happy to assist and witness the weighing.

Finally, the species must be verified by one of the fish and wildlife department's district fisheries biologists.

Applications for state record fish are available from the district fisheries biologists and from the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources, #1 Game Farm Road, Frankfort, KY 40601; phone (502) 564-4336.

MARCH COMMISSION MEETING

The Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources Commission will convene March 3-4, 1991, at the agency's central office in Frankfort. The 1991-92 deer season regulations will be among the items considered at this meeting.

Also, three newly-appointed commission members, Sam C. Porter, Jr., Bowling Green; George H. Foster, Valley Station; and Dr. Roland Burns, Rush, will be sworn in at 1 p.m. on the opening day of the two day session. The new members represent the second, third and eighth wildlife districts, respectively.

Commission meetings are open to the public.

Wheelwright, Prestonsburg look to settle final conference standings

With the postponement of the basketball games this past weekend, the conference final standings are still not settled. The conference will take one more step in doing just that as the Wheelwright Trojans of coach Monroe Jones travel to Prestonsburg to face up coming Prestonsburg tonight at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse.

The teams last met Tuesday night (February 12) at Wheelwright with Prestonsburg coming away with a 57-50 win over the host Trojans.

Prestonsburg needs a victory to keep pace with coach Johnny Ray Turner's McDowell Daredevils, who play Wheelwright tomorrow night at McDowell. A Prestonsburg victory would assure the Blackcats of at least a tie for the number two spot in the conference standings, regardless of how McDowell might fare against the Trojans Thursday night.

On the other hand, Wheelwright needs a victory to tie Allen Central for fourth place in the conference. Two victories, tonight and tomorrow night, would give Wheelwright fourth place outright.

The game tonight will pit a team that has started playing under more control - Prestonsburg, opposed to a team that likes to move it up and down the floor.

The Blackcats will have to do what they did last week in order to win this one and that is stop the high scoring machine of the Trojans. Wheelwright's Harold Johnson scored 23 points, but had been averaging over 30 a game. What was lacking for Wheelwright was the lack of scoring from some of the other players. Shane McCoy was the only other Trojan to hit double figures for Coach Jones' club. Layne Bailey, who was starting to find himself, really struggled against the Blackcats. Bailey was scoring at a 17 ppg clip until the Tuesday night affair. Bailey only managed two points in the contest after scoring 26 the game before against Sheldon Clark.

As always, Prestonsburg has been led by a balanced scoring of three or four players. They don't get the high 30's consistently from one player, but the point spread is evenly distributed. John Clark leads the Blackcat attack with a good 18 ppg average. Close behind him come Worthie McGuire and Jason Crisp. But it was the good play of Chris Burke in the middle and in the final period that sparked the Blackcats to the win. Burke scored 16 points against Wheelwright in the first meeting and 12 game in the second half.

Both teams realize what is on the line for the upcoming game. Wheelwright must be careful and not think too much of the upcoming game tomorrow night at McDowell. The Trojans need to play one game at a time and they definitely need at least one win. Prestonsburg also realizes that a tie for the number two spot would help make this season a fairly successful one — but not in terms of wins. The Blackcats have been hit hard by adversity this season. Lost to the Prestonsburg squad will be Aaron Tucker, who will be out for the remainder of the season. That was a big blow to the Blackcat offense.

"It hurts to lose him," said Coach Parido. "Especially when he was playing good basketball and the team was playing so well."

As for the rest of the Blackcat team, well, they know what has to be done. Look for a good game. Not a high scoring affair but a close one.

Game time is 8 p.m. tonight and the game can be heard over WKKZ and WMDJ radio stations.

Bassing With The Pros

ANGLERS USUALLY FISH RIGHT OVER BASS

A day on the water without catching a bass does not necessarily mean you were in the wrong spot.

The chances are, you fished right through bass, quite possibly a school of them.

That's the opinion of tournament pro Ken Cook, a member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff and a former fisheries biologist for the state of Oklahoma. He bases his beliefs on years of electro-fishing studies of bass in large reservoirs.

Electro-fishing, also known as "shocking," is a standard technique used by scientists to collect shallow water fish. Electric current sent into the water temporarily stuns fish so they float to the surface where they can be counted or collected. Because largemouth bass are basically shallow water residents, they are especially susceptible to the procedure.

"Electro-fishing taught me two primary things about bass," says Cook, who has since become one of the top money winners in tournament fishing. "The first is that there are nearly always some bass in shallow water, and the second is that anglers are particularly inefficient at catching them."

"Quite a number of times we followed a bass angler down a shoreline with our electro-fishing boat," the Evinrude pro continues, "and it always amazed me at how many fish the angler did not catch."

"We'd be right behind him and shock up bass that had to have seen his lure. Frequently, we would bring up a dozen or more bass from a spot he had just fished."

Result's like this changed Cook's own approach to bass fishing.

"The electro-fishing actually gave me a tremendous amount of confidence in realizing that if I found a good piece of cover, such as a long, fallen tree in the water, there would be one or more bass there."

"I didn't have to wonder about it. I simply knew fish were there."

That, in turn, notes Cook, made him slow his fishing. He began to take more time working each piece of structure and cover, giving the bass more opportunities to bite. His catch rate improved, as did his standings in the tournaments.

"The question of whether an angler is fishing too fast is something each fisherman has to answer for himself every day," explains Cook. "Do you fish faster so you can present your lure to more bass and theoretically catch the aggressive ones?"

"Or do you slow down and work each individual piece of cover more thoroughly? Not as many bass may see your lure, but those that do will see it more often."

"I believe the answer is really a combination," concludes the Evinrude angler. "First, realize bass are present, and then make each cast as efficient and effective as possible in covering that structure."

FOLLOW THESE TIPS WHEN BUYING A NEW BOAT THIS YEAR

It's that time of year when bass fishermen start looking at new boats.

After all, most hunting seasons have closed and cabin fever has reached its peak. The next event to look forward to is spring, and that means bass fishing.

"Buying a new boat can be one of the best, or one of the worst experiences of your life," says Guy Eaker, a well known tournament angler and member of the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff. "I know, I've seen both sides."

Strangely, perhaps, Eaker's advice on boat buying does not include looking for specific features on the boat itself.

"The first thing I would look at is the manufacturer's warranty," he emphasizes. "Some manufacturers don't offer any warranty, and others have one-year or two-year warranties."

"A few offer a five year warranty, and this is what I recommend. If you're going to have problems with a boat, it will occur within that first five years, and you shouldn't have to pay for it."

"You also know that a manufacturer who offers a five year warranty is a serious manufacturer who has faith in his own product. A fisherman will give a boat a lot of use in five years."

Another trip the Evinrude pro suggests is that boat-buyers attend a professional bass tournament to look at the boats the pros are using.

"We put our boats through tremendous abuse," says Eaker, "and if the boat is going to develop structural problems, we're going to find them."

"When you look at a pro's boat, look for stress cracks, particularly on the transom around the engine. These are just hairline cracks caused by stress and mean the transom is weak. You don't want problems at the transom, believe me."

Other places stress cracks may appear, Eaker notes, are at the corners of the front and rear decks and behind the seats.

"It will also be helpful to talk with a tournament angler about specific features of the boat itself," Eaker continues, "such as length, interior design, storage space, and overall handling."

"Although bass boats may look alike to the untrained eye, they have very distinct differences."

59th District Tournament

February 26- March 1, At Pikeville

Wildcats, Panthers to meet in first round of 59th District

In what should be a perfect championship game for the 59th District Tournament, the Shelby Valley Wildcats will face Howard Wallen's Pikeville Panthers in the first round of the district tournament at Pikeville on Tuesday, February 26. However, the two teams will not meet in the finals. In fact one of the top teams will not be going to the regional tournament in March. And that is too bad. Both teams are the victims of a "draw" rather than seeding in tournament play. This has been the minus side of having to draw for a tournament spot.

From the standpoint of Shelby Valley and Pikeville, who favor seeding, Millard and Mullins vote to draw and take their chance of not having to play one of the two powers in the 59th. Millard will face Mullins in the second game of the tournament.

Every district representative that goes into a regional tournament should be the strongest two teams in the district. Now sometimes that doesn't happen. Sometimes there are upsets. But this way, one power does stay home without being upset.

Shelby Valley has a 0-2 edge over the Panthers in regular season play.

The Panthers have been playing great basketball of late and made a good showing in the recently completed Class A State Tournament reaching the semifinals before falling to eventual champion University Heights.

Lee Jones, Chris Smith, Murray Garvin, Jess Baird lead a potent Panther offense. Baird is perhaps one of the best three-point shooters in the 15th Region. Jones is quick and deadly from outside. Garvin can score underneath. Put it all together and you have a combination that is hard to beat. Pikeville does so many other things well to win also. The Panthers are a very good passing team and unselfish with the ball. Pressure defense is the name of the game for Coach Wallen's squad. The up tempo style is to the coach's liking. Wallen said earlier in the year the up tempo speed is the only kind of "basketball I like."

Shelby Valley is a very dominating team in all aspects. They will dominate the tempo, the boards and plays extremely hard on defense. The game will be a classic match up. All-Region candidate Chad Bowling is certainly one of the best guards in not only the 15th Region but in Eastern Kentucky. Bowling is smart and sees the court so well and can beat you a number of ways. His three-point shooting and driving the lanes make him a hard player to guard.

Mitch Harris, underrated in the region, runs the team from the point guard position. Harris can score from the outside and, despite his size, rebounds very well.

Jeremy Johnson and Kevin Hall add to a deep starting line up for coach Bobby Osborne. Not only are the Wildcats a strong starting unit, but the bench is strong. Chad Justice and Brian Marrs along with Rodney Kiser give the Wildcats depth.

This will be one of the top if not the top games in all four of the districts that make up the 15th Region. It is too bad that it has to be played in the first round.

Millard, not a slouch team by any means, will face an improved Mullins Tiger team. Coach Joe Marson's Tigers are counting on the scoring of Coy Scarlett and Jamie McPeck to lead them past the Mustangs.

Millard is a team that likes to run the court. The Mustangs (appropriately named) look to their youth this season from a team that went 20-11 last season. J. D. Hopkins leads the Mustangs as they gallop up and down the court. Mike Robinson and David Little are also involved in the Mustang offense. The strong point of the Mustangs team is their quickness.

Strong Move To Basket!

Prestonsburg swamps young Johns Creek 71-28 as Slone scores 35

It was a big night for the Prestonsburg Lady Blackcats as they recorded their 13th win of the season with a 71-28 win over a young Johns Creek Lady Bearcats' team.

Prestonsburg Senior Kathy Slone scored 35 points, pulled down seven rebounds, dished off two assists and picked up six steals in leading the Lady Blackcats. Prestonsburg has only lost six games.

After the score was tied three times in the first quarter at 2, 6 and 8, Racquel Cain put the Lady Blackcats ahead for good with a layup basket and a three-pointer to give Prestonsburg a 13-8 lead. It was 19-10 after one quarter.

The Lady Cats continued to build on their lead and extended it to 14 points 30-16 at halftime. It was all Prestonsburg action in the third with a 22-6 rout of the Lady Bearcats to mount a 30 point third quarter lead, 52-22.

Cain finished with 15 points for Prestonsburg to go with Slone's 35. Cain had two treys in the game. Stephanie Allen, although she only scored two points, had a team high 11 rebounds.

Prestonsburg played the game without starters Amy Reed and Melissa Bailey.

Coach Bridgett Clay explains. "Amy (Reed) was sick with a sore throat and Melissa (Bailey) was also sick and wasn't feeling good at all. Even Kathy (Slone) was sick and that's the reason that I didn't start her. But she said that she felt like playing. I put her in and she didn't have any problems.

"We played well as a team," the Lady Blackcat mentor stated. "We passed the ball well and ran our offense the way we should. Something we did do was have a season high of 11 team assists. If we had made some of our lay ups, we would have had 15 or more."

Clay cited the good play of Stephanie Allen and her team-leading 11 rebounds. "Stephanie had a real good game for us on the boards and she played a good defensive game," continued the Lady Blackcats coach. "I believe she had four block shots in the game."

Slone reached a milestone in her basketball career by reaching the 1400 point plateau since playing basketball for Prestonsburg.

Jonda Collins led the Lady Bearcats with 12 points. Pam Pinson added six points.

Prestonsburg improves to 13-6 overall and is 4-3 in the Floyd County Conference.

Wheelwright will be at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse tonight in conference play. Prestonsburg will close out their regular season Saturday night with a home game against Lawrence County.

Floyd County traveling squad continues to grow as defections have fans puzzled

Since the 1990-91 basketball season began back in November, several players have either quit or been suspended from playing basketball this season. The sudden departures have county basketball fans puzzled. Leaving a basketball team is something that is uncommon in Floyd County.

Perhaps a player gets tired of the rigors of practice and the game schedule. Or it could be the lack of playing time or not feeling part of a team. Other interests could be a reason to give up the uniform and hang up the sneakers.

Whatever the reason it is not good. It teaches our kids that if things don't go your way you can "always quit." If that is accepted in the game of basketball, more than likely it will carry over to other phases of life such as a job, college and other areas.

Dropping out is not the answer.

Thirteen players have dropped out of basketball since the season began with Allen Central leading the way. The Rebels have lost four boys and one girl player since the beginning of the year. McDowell has had three leave as has Prestonsburg. Each player has his or her reasons. Here is a list of those we know about:

First grade

Goldie Hamilton teaches first grade at Betsy Layne Elementary and it's no wonder her 24 students love her. For the most part, she makes learning a picnic.

At the beginning of a school year she has them adopt a beautiful tree near their classroom and they're able to observe it during the different seasons. They see the leaves turn from green to a flaming gold; then, as winter comes, they watch them fall to the ground.

In the spring they can see the new buds appearing, and then the leaves, as the process starts all over again.

Mrs. Hamilton keeps a camera ready and often takes pictures of the group with the tree or whatever object they are studying.

There are many other studies that can't be photographed but are made enjoyable in other ways. For instance, she wrote a jingle they could memorize to help them know and remember the vowel letters. She also came up with a game to teach them the vowel sounds.

"Sometimes," she says, "we have two different vowels used together — in words like real, meal, sail or soap. In those cases, the first vowel gives the word its name — or its sound." She gave them several examples, emphasizing each time how the first vowel determined the sound. She could see their expressions and knew they understood.

To let them express what they'd learned, she put a list of words on the chalk board and said, "Come up here, Chad, and show the others what we mean by the long vowel sounds."

He pointed to the word "seat" and said, "We've got these two vowels here. One's in the front, and one's in the back; and the one in back makes the one in front do the talking."

High powered help

The recent article about Delmon

Howard brought a comment from his niece, Linda Ferrell of Betsy Layne.

"I enjoyed your story about Uncle Delmon," she said, "and I wondered if you knew about the time he bought himself a tractor to work with."

Mr. Howard was raised on a Johns Creek farm and never lost his fascination for the soil. He had a strawberry patch, a small orchard and a garden — but he didn't have any high powered equipment to till the ground.

After observing some of the farming successes of the Bill Layne family, he decided he'd do much better with a garden tractor and he bought himself a John Deere model.

He climbed in the seat, turned the key and immediately shifted into high gear. The machine was headed straight toward a clothes line so he rolled off backward and the tractor was stopped by an apple tree.

One of his neighbors came and helped him turn it off.

Bug swatter

What on earth is this flu-like virus going around?

At first, I thought I was allergic to something. I've never sneezed so much in my life.

Then my left eye began to water. I mean — my eye runs better than my shower. And the coughing drives me nuts.

I hear that the hospitals are full and that the younger children are developing pneumonia with this nasty bug.

All four of us in my household have it, and I think we now own stock in the Kimberly Clark Tissue Company.

We can be spotted a mile away because we all have Rudolph the Red Nose syndrome.

Last night, we could have been accused of sneezing in rhythm. It was actually hilarious. My mother-in-law jumped to her feet and held her arms high to direct us, and we said "all together now."

Try sneezing and laughing at the same time.

I thought my entire insides were going to jump outside my body. This thing is awful.

Hopefully, though, at 3:15 today (Monday) Dr. Larry will prescribe some wonder drug and this bug will bite the dust.

Prom Frenzy

It's that time again — planning, arranging, and living in a frenzy. Sunday night at 6 p.m. the Floyd County Times will hold its second Prom Fashion Show.

Last year's was a shock. It was amazing to see how many people turned out to view the '90 fashions. The proceeds were divided among the area high schools and I was thrilled that Floyd County also supported the event.

This year's fashion event will be even bigger. So far, I've lost a total of an entire weekend of sleep due to this darn bug and trying to arrange this fashion show in my head. I just hope it all comes together nicely.

We're sure going to have more models, more business booths, and lots more activities this year. It's going to be a fun and exciting time. I just hope we can generate more dollars this year to be divided between our five Floyd County High Schools.

According to what I have been told, these high schools have been having a difficult time raising money for their proms. So, you folks turn out en masse to help these young people. You'll also have an evening to remember.

Till next week...see ya' at the fashion show.

New booklet explains citizens participation in local government

A nation without a voice cannot speak and the voice of a nation is its citizens. Two ways for that voice to be heard are through citizens voting in primary and general elections and through citizens participating in city and county government.

In an effort to encourage Kentucky citizens to join in the conversation heard 'round the long table of politics, the Mountain Association for Community Economic Development (MACED) has released a publication, "Beyond Voting—A Citizens Guide to Participating in Local Government." The 100-page guide is a product of MACED's Kentucky Local Governance Project. Co-directors of the project are Don Harker and Liz Natter. The project aims to help local governments be more democratic, responsive and accountable to the people they represent.

The guide explains as simply as possible how local government should work under existing laws. Written in a question-and-answer format, it provides information on such topics as:

Is a public body allowed to go into closed session at any time?

What kinds of records can I get from a public agency, and how do I obtain them?

How do I bring an issue to the attention of fiscal court?

The simple answers to these questions are phrased in language that anyone can understand. For instance, the guide explains that special taxing districts, such as fire protection district can be created by the fiscal court upon petition by 25 percent of the voters living in that district. The tax district may also be dissolved upon petition by 30 percent of the voters living in that district. When the fiscal court receives the petition, it must hold a hearing to decide whether to dissolve the district.

Harker and Natter said they decided to write the guide after discussing problems many citizens in counties across Kentucky have had in getting local officials to respond to their concern and needs.

"Those discussions revealed a significant failure of local government to function in a way that serves the public interest and involves the community as a whole," said Natter. "This guide is just a first step in bringing the necessary reforms to make local government work for all Kentuckians," said Harker. "We will continue to work with the citizens of Kentucky to bring the public's trust and confidence back to a government that functions in such a way as to deserve it."

Harker and Natter are now preparing guidelines for more open government proceedings and a code of ethics that citizens' groups can discuss with their local officials.

"MACED undertook the Kentucky Local Governance Project as a means of encouraging economic development in the Commonwealth," said Frank Taylor, president of the nonprofit development organization based in Berea. "Development only occurs if a broad base of people have stake in designing and benefiting from it."

"Kentuckians from east to west are rich in creativity, resilience and a strong sense of home," said Taylor. "They want a better life and are willing to work hard for it. If tapped, they can be a tremendous resource for development. Look at what's happening in the school system. Most of it languished for years because decision-making was in the hands of a few people. Organizations like Forward in the Fifth have shown the value of including parents and communities, not to mention teachers, in improving the education of our most valuable economic resource, our children. The draftees of the Education Reform Act, and the legislators who voted for it, knew what they were doing when they required that parents be included as members of council to govern local schools."

Taylor encourages local officials to use the guide also as a basis for maintaining an open dialogue with their constituents on public issues. "There are officials out there already working closely with citizens, and we salute them," he said. "Sure, the more people who are involved in the process of governing, the more difficult and time consuming the job becomes. But it's a dynamite combination of perspective and talents that Zella Greene loaned me a cookbook that has her recipe for dill pickles. "Heavenly Dishes" by the ladies of the Highland Avenue Freewill Baptist Church is one of the best cookbooks I have ever seen. The pastors wife, Janet Austin, was very pleased when I called and asked permission to use some of the recipes and comments.

The first recipe in the book is my favorite and was submitted by Carrie Branham;

1 cup good thoughts
1 cup kind deeds
1 cup consideration for others
3 cups forgiveness
2 cups well beaten faults

Mix these thoroughly. Add tears of joy and sadness, and sympathy for others. Flavor with little gifts of love—fold in 4 cups prayer and faith to lighten the other ingredients and to raise texture to great heights of living. After pouring all this into your daily life, bake well with the heat of human kindness. Serve with a generous smile.

Where golden houses are

I hate to keep harping on this business of getting old, but it seems that every time I turn around, there's something else there to remind me that it's really so. It's like every time I shave or walk up a large flight of stairs (which has now come to be defined as having four or more steps), Mother Nature screams it loud and clear. Every day that passes, my face looks more like a road map leading to the old folks home, and after the slightest exertion, you'd think I'd just jogged two miles.

It seems that ever since Elvis die' (if, indeed, he did) I'm reminded more and more of my own mortality. I'm reminded more and more that things definitely do not stay the same.

And now, this. Until now, there's been — for the last 27 years at least — a sort of stabilizing presence in my life. Now comes the news that it too seems to have left me — or at least is about to very soon.

I'm referring to a letter I got a few days ago from Joseph M. Farrell, M.D. family physician; family friend.

It began, "This is a difficult letter for me to write and probably for you to read. "Since I could see his signature at the bottom, I knew he hadn't died or anything. When I read on, though, I doubt that I could have felt much more devastation if the message had said that he had.

"I will retire as your doctor on March 31." I read it in silence, then handed it to my wife, Wilma. When she read it, she cried. Dr. Farrell is her doctor, too.

For more than a quarter of a century, Dr. Farrell, whose practice is in Huntington, has kept us going, not only with his medical expertise but also with his good, sound advice.

My first thought was, "He can't do this to us. What will we do? He knows us both so well."

I mean, when Dr. Farrell began treating us, we were both just — just children. We were only in our twenties.

To say the least, the letter was depressing.

I'm sure that his hundreds of other patients feel the same sense of loss over his letter that Wilma and I do, but coming at a time in my life when my body parts that don't hurt don't work, I'm afraid it's doubly hard on me.

I suppose we must be fair, though. If anyone ever needed a rest, Dr. Farrell does. After all, a person can only poke, probe and "check one's motor" just so many times.

In his poem "Roofs," Joyce Kilmer said, "They say that life is a highway and its milestones are the years." And now and then there's a toll-gate where you buy your way with tears. It's a rough road and a steep road, and it stretches broad and far. But at least it leads to a golden Town where golden Houses are."

Perhaps I need to view this latest change in my life — this yet another reminder that I'm getting old — from such a perspective. As much as I hate to, I must accept this change and simply thank Dr. Farrell for all he's done for me and mine to make our own rough roads a little smoother over the years. I feel certain that the life he's led and the kindness he's shown to his fellow man will surely someday lead him, too, to a town where golden houses are.

John Graham Chapter and Good Citizen meet

The John Graham Chapter NSDAR met Tuesday, February 12, at 3:30 p.m. for a business session and dinner at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park with the regent, Mrs. Carl R. Horn, presiding.

The DAR rituals were led by the chaplain, Mrs. J.G. Stepp; the Pledge of Allegiance to the Flag of the USA by the regent; and the national defense message by Mrs. Ray Brackett.

Mrs. Virginia S. Goble, Good Citizen chairman, introduced the guest speaker, Robert Hammonds, Prestonsburg High School senior, who spoke on the topic, "Our American Heritage and My Responsibility to Preserve it."

Hammonds, son of Frank and Phyllis Hammonds of Banner, was presented the DAR Good Citizen medal, a certificate and an identification card by Mrs. Goble. Mrs. Norma J. Neeley, Prestonsburg High School faculty member in charge of selection of the Good Citizen award, was recognized by Mrs. Goble.

The regent read the annual report for the 1990 year, which will be introduced in the KSDAR State Yearbook. According to 33 state reports filed, the John Graham Chapter should receive the NSDAR silver honor roll certificate and the highest KSDAR honor roll certificate.

The registrar, Mrs. Goble, reported that several application papers were being processed and Mrs. Brackett reported on material sent to the Breathitt County regent.

The secretary read correspondence from the Sixth District press chairman and genealogical state chairman, Wathena Miller. Mrs. Brackett and son, Stephen R. Brackett, had compiled and indexed the 1836-1950 James Wallace Preston and Miranda Jane Borders Bible and Borders Cometary to be bound and placed in the NSDAR Library in Washington, D.C.

Mrs. Stepp reported that Fannie Runnels, Virginia S. Goble, Norma S. Stepp, Frances P. Brackett, Dorothy Osborne, and Alice Harris represented the John Graham Chapter at the dedication of the convention center at Jenny Wiley State Park on February 9 as part of the "We Are Floyd County" program, which was attended by more than 100 fellow Floyd Countians.

The regent announced that the 95th KSDAR State Conference will be held March 19-21 at the Marriott Resort in Lexington with delegates to be Eleanor Horn and Virginia Goble. Alternates will be Norma Stepp, Opal May, Dorothy Osborne and Vivian Hale, with Frances Brackett serving as delegate from the state office of registrar. Brackett and KSDAR state chaplain, Mrs. Charles Gibson, will conduct the annual memorial service on March 20 for 150 deceased DAR members and Goble will give the memorial for the late Lena T. Porter, former state KSDAR librarian and past regent of the Pikeville chapter.

Attractive, useful border shrubs

Grow a fence you can eat around your garden. Grow something that produces food you will enjoy—besides looking attractive and providing privacy. Attractive fruit and berry shrubs turn your ordinary garden or property border into hedges with a harvest. These plants will create a living fence, giving foliage and flowers for looks, and tasty food for eating. What's more, being perennials they will only need to be planted once.

Think of all the advantages a row of bush cherries, blueberries or beach plums will deliver instead of the wood or metal fence. With a little training nearly every popular berry plant, fruit bush or small tree can serve a purpose for you.

Autumn is the ideal time to set these plants out because they usually make root growth before freezing temperatures set in. This enables them to become established before warm weather. This doesn't mean you have to wait until autumn with a little extra watching and watering they should live if set out early this Spring.

The Nankin cherry is one of the better cherries for this project. They are an effective 7-foot shrub that often starts to bear fruit the second year after planting.

Raspberries and blackberries will need more pruning, but they are heavy producers and their fruits are good eaten as is, canned, made into jellies, jams and especially pies.

Currents, which grow 4 to 8 feet and are just covered with yellow flowers, supply fruits high in vitamin C. They are good either as jelly or dried like raisins.

Dwarf fruit trees are also ideal if planted with vines and bush type fruits to furnish the privacy. The more different varieties you can use, the more fruit, color and different foliage you will have.

These edible hedges also serve as good windbreaks, and seem more friendly along property lines and patios. They help to curb loud noises, improve the air and, on top of all this, they will even give you delightful and different scents.

Cookbooks sold out: more on the way

It has been reported that most of the cookbooks, published recently by the Floyd County Retired Teachers Association, have been sold. Ruby Akers, president of the FCRT, said that plans are being discussed regarding publishing more of these and that they should be ready by the June meeting.

She explained that part of the reason these cookbooks are so much in demand is because many teachers who contributed recipes want their married sons and daughters to have copies of their own in their homes.

Serious complications can result from Hard or German Measles

Many people confuse Rubeola, which is the so-called seven-day Red or Hard measles with Rubella, which is the three-day, or so called German measles. To save further confusion, during this discussion the Rubeola, or seven-day measles will be referred to as the Hard measles, and the Rubella, or three-day measles as the German measles.

Both Hard measles and German measles can produce serious complications. Because of these complications, vaccination against all measles is strongly urged. German Measles is usually such a mild childhood disorder that many people may not know if they have had it or not. Vaccination against German Measles is important because if a pregnant woman becomes infected with the virus causing this disease, severe damage to the unborn child can result.

Let's talk for a moment about Hard measles. Hard measles lasts about ten days. At the onset, the child may be very sick with a high fever, harsh, scratchy cough, runny nose, and puffy, light-sensitive eyes. During this time, the temperature may reach 104 degrees. Following this, a red rash appears over much of the body. Itching is seldom severe. After another three or four days the rash begins to fade. Following this, most children recover completely. Occasionally there are serious complications. There may be pneumonia or other complications such as ear infections. Some children can develop inflammation of the brain which can leave them mentally retarded. Each year, many children died as a result of measles, before measles vaccine was made.

The American Academy of Pediatrics recommend that every healthy infant be vaccinated against both types of measles at 15 months of age.

Children over this age who have not been vaccinated should also be immunized.

Vaccination is especially important for children in day nurseries, kindergartens, or the elementary grades of school, or in other groups where exposure to measles may occur. If one child in a classroom has measles, all the other children who are unprotected usually will become infected. They then carry the infection home to younger brothers and sisters who have not been vaccinated.

German Measles is usually a very mild disorder, in itself, which lasts about three days. A rash often occurs, but may be so faint that it goes unnoticed. There may be a painful swelling in the glands at the back of the neck and behind the ears, accompanied by a slight fever. The mildness of this disease in both children and adults usually is no cause for alarm. However, there is one frightening exception. If a woman gets the disease in the early months of pregnancy, the child may be born with severe birth defects. These include cataracts of the eyes, heart defects, deafness, liver damage, improperly formed bones, and physical and mental retardation. In some cases, the mother will lose or abort the baby. Occasionally, the infant will be born dead.

The live virus vaccine does not cause the illness itself. However, there are instances when a person will react to the vaccine several days after the immunization takes place. If this does occur, it usually happens in susceptible young adult females. This reaction takes the form of tenderness and swelling of various joints. The discomfort usually is not serious and will quickly disappear.

Rubella vaccine must never be given to the pregnant woman or to a woman who might become pregnant within two or three months after receiving the vaccine. Because it may be difficult to determine if the woman is pregnant, particularly in the early stages of pregnancy when the virus is most damaging, and because of the difficulties assuring that a woman won't become pregnant in the two or three months following vaccination, many doctors are reluctant to vaccinate an adult woman unless she is on birth control.

Just how do we treat this disease?

STATEMENT OF FINDINGS AND PUBLIC EXPLANATION

Floodplain Management
(Executive Order 11988)

The U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (HUD) has reviewed the development(s) below, as required by Presidential Directive (Executive Order 11988), and determined that Federal Mortgage Insurance should be granted therein.

Highway #122, McDowell, KY
50 Unit Low Income Public Housing Development
Floyd County Housing Authority
Prestonsburg, KY.

Since these developments are located in a base (i.e., 100-year frequency) floodplain established by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), HUD is required by Presidential Directive (Executive Order 11988) to deny assistance to these developments unless there are no practicable alternatives to doing so. Analyses by HUD indicates there are not practicable alternatives. The basis for these determinations is as follows:

1. It is not possible to carry out the mission of HUD and participate in the growth plan of the community without participating in developments in the base floodplain.

2. The developments are in compliance with local planning and zoning requirements.

3. Urban infrastructure (such as streets and utilities) to serve the developments are in place.

4. The severity of anticipated flooding will not seriously endanger life or property.

5. The proposed construction will not displace or redirect flood waters or seriously impact other areas.

NAR housing affordability index rises to highest point in thirteen years

A decline in the median home price and an increase in the median family income pushed up the National Association of Realtors' Housing Affordability Index in November to its highest point in thirteen years, the association reported recently.

NAR's Housing Affordability Index, which measures the ability of a typical family to purchase a median-priced resale home, was 115.6 in November, up from 113.3 in October. At 115.6, the index shows that a family earning the national median income of $35,467 in November had 115.6 percent of the income needed to qualify for conventional financing covering 80 percent of a home priced at $91,300, the median existing-home price for that month.

The November index rose due to a change in three major components of the purchasing power measurement—the median resale home price, median family income and the average mortgage rate. Not since December of 1977, when the index was 116.0, has it been higher than November's reading.

"Home sales activity belies true market conditions, which, according to our index, are better than they've been in thirteen years," said NAR President Harley E. Rouda. "However, consumers are realizing this, as evidenced by the increase in existing-home sales during November," he said.

"I don't understand all of the negative talk about it not being a good time to buy a home right now. Mortgage interest rates are available at below 10 percent, which is a very preferential rate, and has occurred only 20 percent of the time over the last ten years," Rouda, a Realtor from Columbus, Ohio, said.

Improvements in housing affordability conditions were posted in all of the regions between October and November.

"What's striking here is how the objective conditions facing potential buyers are all so good," said NAR Chief Economist John A. Tuccillo. "Interest rates generally are down from last fall, and, especially in the higher priced areas, home prices are attractive," he noted.

In the Northeast and in the West, while borrowers' purchasing power increased from October to November, the typical family still fell short of having sufficient income to buy the median-priced home. These two areas have the nation's highest median prices.

In the Northeast, a family earning the median income of $41,565 had 91.9 percent of the income needed to buy a home priced at $133,600, the Northeast median price for November. In October the index for the Northeast was 90.1.

In the West, a family earning the median income of $37,825 had 82.2 percent of the income needed to buy a home priced at $138,700, the median-priced home for the West in November. In October, the index for the West was 80.1.

In contrast, housing affordability conditions were much more favorable in the Midwest and the South during November. A family in the Midwest earning the median income of $36,279 had 148.3 percent of the income needed to purchase a home priced at $71,700, the Midwest median price for November. In October, the index for the Midwest was 148.1.

In the South, a family earning the median income of $31,924 had 114.2 percent of the income needed to buy an $83,200 home, the median price for the South in November. The October index for this region was 112.9.

Half the existing single-family homes sold in November for more than the median price of $91,300 and half sold for less. Similarly, half the families in the United States earn more than the median income of $35,467 and half earn less.

The interest rate used to compute NAR's Housing Affordability Index is a composite of closing rates for both fixed-rate mortgages and adjustable-rate mortgages on existing homes, as reported by the Federal Housing Finance Board. It barely rose from 9.96 percent in October to 9.97 percent in November.

When calculated with the board's effective fixed-rate mortgage interest rate of 10.39 percent from November, the index was 111.6. When calculated with the effective adjustable-rate mortgage interest rate of 8.98 percent for November, the index was 126.0.

Meanwhile, the median home price dropped from $92,900 to $91,300 between October and November, the median family income rose $114, from $35,353 to $35,467, and the income needed to qualify for a loan covering 80 percent of the typical home declined from $31,201 to $30,689.

Changes in the national median home price, median family income and average mortgage rate between October and November resulted in a $11 decrease in the monthly mortgage payment to $639 in November.

When NAR's monthly affordability index measures 100.0, the median family income equals exactly the amount needed to qualify to purchase a median-priced home, using conventional financing and making a 20 percent down payment. Because the
