Billips says proposal will save dollars :

Council endorses in-city school plan

Floyd County Board of Education member Eddie Billips received the support and endorsement of the Prestonsburg City Council Monday night, after telling the council that he would like to keep a proposed high school within the city limits of Prestonsburg.

Billips told the council that property adjacent to the Prestonsburg High School football field could be used for a new school, and would reflect an estimated three million dollar savings for the board of education.

"What I'm saying is, we can save approximately three million dollars in building this school. We can purchase the property north of the football field for less than it will take to run utilities to the Middle Creek site," said Billips. "If we can build a new school building there, we can use the football field and the gymnasium. If we don't have to build those facilities again, we can use those funds to build and develop a new school, a multi-

Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta and several council members said that they would support any effort to Billips said that the present high school building could be renovated and used as an elementary school, allowing the board of education to sell or renovate the Prestonsburg Elementary School. Billips also said that property at Middle Creek (the

Derek Hicks, a resident of Middle Creek, questioned Billips' reasons for changing the proposed high school site, saying that construction costs would be lower at Middle Creek and adding that many Middle Creek residents would welcome annexation by the city.

City officials told Hicks that they would be happy to annex the area, and asked that Hicks circulate and return a petition requesting the annexation.

Bill Roberts, a Floyd County resident, told Billips and the council that he felt Prestonsburg High School students would be better served at the Middle Creek site because, "They need to be isolated, too many people have access to those kids, and they have too much access to people they don't need."

Following the report from Billips, council members approved a motion to support and endorse Billips' efforts to find an alternative site for the

Pair pleads guilty to bus-shooting charge

Two men entered guilty pleas to wanton endangerment charges Tuesday in Floyd County Circuit Court for an October 1989 shooting incident involving a Pike County school bus.

Paul Clark Combs and Scott Burke pleaded guilty to the charges but, charges are still pending against Randy Prater, who was indicted with Combs and Burke.

The incident occurred October 13, 1989 when a bus carrying 19 members of the Belfry High School football team was returning from a game in Lexington. Coaches aboard the bus reported hearing breaking glass and discovered someone was firing shots at the bus.

Kentucky State Police reports said a red pickup truck with one headlight out pulled from behind the bus and fired shots at the vehicle. Police determined the shots were fired from a high powered air rifle.

Combs, Burke and Prater were arrested after an investigation by the KSP and the Prestonsburg Police Department.

Combs and Burke were given a one-year jail sentence in the county jail after entering pleas Tuesday, according to David Woods with the Floyd County Commonwealth Attorney's office.

The two men entered their pleas one day before their trial was scheduled to begin in Floyd County Circuit Court.

In a court action Monday, a Goble Roberts man was found guilty of cultivating marijuana after a jury trial.

Pat Moore was found guilty on the cultivation charge and the jury voted to fine him rather than sentence him to jail, according to Assistant Commonwealth Attorney Jon Johnson. The jury levied a $3,000 fine. Johnson said the case involved over 15 marijuana plants.

In another case, Clifford Jarrell entered a guilty plea Friday to second degree assault charges. Jarrell was indicted in September 1989 for assaulting Jack Clark Hyden. Jarrell received a four-year sentence that is to be probated in exchange for restitution on Hyden's medical bills.

Another case was dismissed last week when a key witness for the commonwealth could not be located.

Theft by unlawful taking charges against Mary Ann Williamson, Hilton Newman, Billy Williamson and John Slone were dismissed Thursday after the key witness could not be located, Johnson said. The case involved the alleged theft of coin changers out of Pepsi machines.

"All I want to do is go home, get some rest and enjoy some peace," said Eddie Watkins of Middle Creek, one of Floyd County's first soldiers to return from active duty in the Persian Gulf War.

"The first thing I want to tell people is that I am not a .50 caliber machine gunner," joked Watkins as he hugged his mother, "I am a Dragon gunner."

Watkins was featured in Stars and Stripes when he was the northern most soldier in Saudi Arabia. The writer referred to Watkins as a .50 caliber machine gunner, a point Eddie is quick to clarify. A Dragon gunner operates a wire guided projectile, normally used to disable and destroy tanks and other heavy artillery.

Watkins returned to Fort Campbell with 900 other members of the 101st Airborne, 2nd Brigade last Saturday, March 9, and returned to his home in Floyd County Tuesday afternoon.

He was greeted by signs, hugs and handshakes.

"After months of sand, worms and bad food, it is good to be home," said Watkins. "When we got to Bangor, Maine it took us about 45 minutes to get through the airport terminal there. There weren't any military families there, it was just people wanting to shake hands and stuff like that. We went from walking in a big bunch to

Murder charged :

Floyd man dead, Pike man jailed

A Pike County man has been lodged in the Floyd County Jail following the weekend shooting of a Floyd County man at his home at Price.

According to state police reports, Ralph G. "Jerry" Newsome, 26, of Virgie was charged with murder in connection with the Saturday morning shooting death of Gregory Dean Perry.

Police said Newsome allegedly shot Perry once in the forehead with a .357 caliber handgun shortly after 10 a.m. Saturday. Perry was found lying near the road in front of his home.

Newsome allegedly shot Perry after an argument about a construction job the men had worked on. The murder weapon was found, in a carrying case, in a pickup truck owned by Newsome. Newsome reportedly remained at the Perry home until police arrived.

Perry was pronounced dead at the scene by Floyd County Deputy Coroner Glen Frasure.

Newsome was charged with murder and lodged in the Floyd County Jail. No bond had been set for Newsome as of press time Tuesday.

County judges to review new state waste laws

Eastern Kentucky county judge executives will meet today at the Prestonsburg Holiday Inn to review new solid waste regulations.

The meeting, scheduled for 1 p.m., will be conducted by the Cabinet for Natural Resources and discussion will center on Senate Bill 2 passed by the General Assembly in the 1991 Special Session.

Idea session gets plans for Opry 'house' moving

A Friday afternoon meeting to "brainstorm" for ideas to be used in designing a new multi-story facility to house the Kentucky Opry was successful, according to the architect designing the structure.

Randall Burchett, of Randall Burchett and Associates Architects, said approximately 15 people gathered to give input toward building design.

"The main thing we wanted to talk about was what rooms are needed and more importantly what the Kentucky Opry needs," said Burchett.

Prestonsburg Mayor Ann Latta agreed that the meeting was productive, saying, "We did very well for a first meeting. Billie Jean Osborne brought several music teachers with her and their input went a long way."

While no specific measures for the building were agreed upon, Burchett said he felt he would be able to begin preliminary sketch work on the building.

"This building, by its nature, must be more than one building in one," said Burchett. "We need to design it so that rooms could possibly be divided to allow several groups, such as bands and choirs, to practice at the same time. Also, there will probably be a separate entrance for Kentucky Opry performances and the education facilities. We are really just beginning on this, but the meeting was a really good first step."

Burchett said that preliminary sketches and schematics could be ready for review and revision "in a couple of weeks."

Appalachian News-Express

State Auditor Bob Babbage said in Pikeville Tuesday that a review of several school construction projects in Pike and Floyd counties may reveal issues of importance statewide.

Nine members of Babbage's staff recently spent a week in Pike and Floyd counties gathering information on school building projects. They returned to Frankfort with several copies of documents, and are working to compile a report on the projects.

When his staff completes the report, probably in the next few weeks, Dr. Penney Sanders' "Office (of Education Accountability) will be well-versed and ready to continue with the investigation, if it needs to continue... and it probably will need

Staying home

More elderly Floyd Countians are getting to stay home thanks to a homemaker program implemented by the Big Sandy Area Development District. "Tiny" is able to remain at home thanks to care provided by homemaker Ida Estep of Dwale.

Growing old brings with it fears of debilitating illness and losing one's mental faculties. Growing old alone makes one fear trying to accomplish daily tasks. The ultimate concern is of not being able to live in your own home.

About 150 residents of Floyd County are able to continue living at home, thanks to an assistance program provided through the Big Sandy Area Development District's Division of Aging Services.

A qualified homemaker makes weekly visits to homes, providing anything from personal care services to running errands for clients.

Ida Estep of Dwale is the key to 13 Floyd Countians being able to live at home who otherwise might be placed in a nursing home to ensure their health and safety.

ladies Monday who rely of this service, it becomes obvious how valuable it is to their lives.

"Ida is indispensable," said one of her patients, identified as Mary. "Her help to me is indispensable. She calls me before she comes over to get my grocery list; she picks up my mail; she realizes when I'm out of my medicine; she goes to the drug store and she'll cook me something to eat if I'm not able."

"She has personality plus she's kind, loving, courteous and has a strong desire to be helpful," Mary continued. "She makes it possible for me to stay in my home. If I didn't have her help I don't know what I'd do. She means everything to me."

Mary, who didn't want to reveal her true name or age, sits at her kitchen table getting ready to start calling appliance stores to price television sets. Her 13-year old set recently stopped working. She walks with the aid of a cane and the effects of arthritis are clearly visible in her hands. She also suffers from osteoporosis.

But, she is mentally sharp, mentioning who won the boys and girls 15th Regional Basketball Tournament and keeping up with University of Kentucky Wildcats.

Mary never married and taught in the Floyd County school system until her retirement. She worked as a grade school teacher, assistant principal and in the central office. She keeps in touch with her brother and sister and said her nephews visit from time to time.

Congressman Chris Perkins told a crowd of Left and Right Beaver residents that he would work to bring flood control protection to those areas. to continue," said Babbage. In Floyd County, questions of who is doing the work and who is getting paid have plagued similar building projects, and even prompted one contractor on the Left Beaver High School project, Triple B, to sue the school system for allegedly paying someone else for work the contractor said he actually performed. Babbage said his office is working to "produce a compilation of the facts, after having looked at all the construction projects." He said the review was prompted by "a number of concerns and questions" which were expressed by school officials, members of the general public and media. "It is our job to settle those questions and make recommendations," said Babbage, whose office has no power to enforce the law, or prosecute anyone for breaking any laws. After the review is completed, the report will be turned over to the appropriate agencies for action, if any action is in order. It will also be forwarded to the governor, and made available to the media, Babbage said. One agency which will probably be interested in the report is the new Office of Education Accountability, established by the 1990 legislature to be a "watchdog" over how school systems operate, including how they spend the taxpayers' money. Babbage called the state's new head of the Office of Education Accountability, Dr. Penney Sanders, "a very capable person," and said that his office is working alongside Sanders' office in the review. A member of Sanders' staff worked with Babbage's staff during the week-long fact-finding mission in Pike and Floyd counties last month. "In the past, we haven't always had that level of cooperation between state agencies," said Babbage. Babbage said that his office takes a look at such issues from time to time upon request. The review is not a normal assignment of the office, but similar to other special reviews that they have conducted. "We want to be of assistance to statewide decision making," said Babbage. "We take a look at the bigger picture. . . There are issues which have been raised here that relate across the board." Babbage was in Pikeville Tuesday for a fundraiser. He is a candidate for Secretary of State on the Democratic ticket in the May primary.

proposed school facility within the city limits of Prestonsburg. Councilman Mike Vance voted against the motion, saying that he felt the motion was premature. In other business Monday, council approved the second reading of a personnel policy regarding sick leave and vacation time for city employees. The measure allows equivalent sick leave and vacation for city employees whose scheduled work week differs from 40 hours per week. Three ordinances were also given first reading approval at the meeting. An ordinance establishing annual salary of the mayor of Prestonsburg at $7,200 per year was approved along with first readings of ordinances establishing an "employee leave time bank" and first reading of a previously discussed solid waste collection ordinance. The "employee leave time bank" was proposed for employees who had expended all leave due to a medical crisis. The ordinance would allow city employees to "donate" sick leave days to a "bank" for other city employees. Councilman William O. Goebel said that city employee Forest Bentley and his wife Janie were recently involved in a serious auto accident which might require more time off than Bentley had accumulated. Goebel also said that anyone wishing to contribute to the Bentley's medical bills could make arrangements through the Prestonsburg city clerk. The solid waste ordinance would establish collection systems and billing rates for commercial and residential customers in the city. The ordinance also initiates the use of "herbie curby" polyethylene waste containers for use by residential customers, reflecting a two dollar increase in monthly garbage bills. Before adjourning, council members approved two motions regarding the purchase and implementation of an emergency service vehicle. The proposed city ambulance service had apparently been delayed at the state level, as city attorney Larry Brown explained that the city must obtain a certificate of need for the service, despite an attorney general's opinion that a municipality does not need such a certificate to operate an emergency response ambulance service. Council members approved a motion to seek the certificate of need and followed the motion with a second motion to seek license without the certificate. All members of the council were present for the meeting. The next regular meeting of the Prestonsburg City Council will be 7 p.m. Monday, March 25 at the Prestonsburg Municipal Building.

a single line, there were just so many people there to greet us. All of the support that everyone has shown really meant a lot to us over there." When asked how he and others felt when they first heard that Iraq had agreed to pull out of Kuwait, Watkins said he and his fellow soldiers were both "happy and frustrated." "We were happy that it was over, that no one had to die," said Watkins, "but, we were also frustrated because we had been there for so long and we didn't really get to show what we could do. When you spend three years training for your job, and there has to be a war for you to do your job, you want to do your job. I guess we got mad that the Iraqi's gave up so quick, but a lot of their soldiers were students and others that just got drafted so they weren't very motivated. They just wanted to give up." Watkins and company spent much of their seven months in Saudi Arabia near the King Fahd Airport, "somewhere in the middle of the desert, about two hours from Dhahran." Watkins mother, Dorenda, had only three words to say regarding the return of her son. "I love it."

basic tasks for those she helps: she constantly adds the extra touch that makes them know she loves her work.

"I'll tell you what," Mary began, "the other morning, when it was so cold, Ida saw some flowers blooming over the hill. She went down over the hill and picked me a bouquet. She told me I deserved to have a bouquet of flowers," Mary said, misty-eyed. "That's the kind of person she is."

Ida's homemaker job takes her from Salisbury to Estill five days a week, seeing some people five times a week and some only once. But, no matter how much or how often she's in their home, they know how much it means for her to come.

"I think it's great to have somebody like Ida," said 86-year old "Tiny". "I can stay here at my home with her help and my daughter, Audrey. If Ida didn't help out, my daughter said I'd probably have to go to a rest home. She said she didn't want to do that, but my children are old too."

Tiny has a son, William, in addition to her daughter Audrey. William, who is 70-years old, lives and works in West Virginia. Audrey spends nights with her mother and takes care of her ailing husband during the day. Audrey also helps run errands for her mother when possible. Tiny, dressed in pink, sits in her favorite chair anxiously waiting for her Siamese cat, Scratch, to come out to play for the morning. She keeps a crocheted "cat toy" on a string by her chair to dangle in front of Scratch. She talks about her painful arthritis but appears to take it all in stride as a part of getting older.

"It's not so bad getting old, if it wasn't so painful," Tiny said. "I don't want to leave my home, but, I may have to."

Tiny is reassured by case manager Regina Dye that Ida will be available to help her as long as she needs her.

"You can have Ida here as long as you need her," Dye said.

Ida's busy schedule involves helping out with household chores and she keeps a close watch on any change in the health of her clients and reports that to Dye. A high energy level, coupled with a genuine concern for those she helps, makes Ida's job as enjoyable for her as it does Mary and Tiny.

"You can really get attached to these people," Ida said. "I really look forward to coming to work everyday. I enjoy helping the people I see each week. I have 13 people I help throughout the week and they know if they ever need me before it's time to visit, they can just call. I'll get the word to the proper people to make sure they get what they need."

Case manager Dye and program director Greg Hamlin are welcomed sights in Mary and Tiny's homes. They view the pair as guests they know will do what they can to get them the assistance they need and as friends.

Dye talked to both women Monday about the Guardian Angel program offered by Big Sandy ADD.

Guardian Angel is a term to describe an electronic monitoring device the patient wears to alert a designated person something could be seriously wrong with the patient. The device has a button the patient can push if they are in need of immediate attention. When it rings in, it will signal that something is wrong at that address and help will be dispatched to the scene. Both women tell Dye they are interested in the program.

Homecare provided through Big Sandy ADD offers a host of services to persons over 60 who could have to be placed in a nursing home because of functional limitations or lack of adequate support in the home.

In order to qualify for the service, applicants must first be assessed to see what care is needed and a case manager is assigned to the case.

To qualify, a person must be at least 60 years old; be at risk of being placed in a nursing home; or be someone in a nursing home who could return home if assistance was available.

The program is funded by a combination of federal, state and local money. A fee for the service could be charged depending on that person's income. Most people who receive homecare are not billed, but many do make voluntary donations.

The program also offers respite care, which means someone can be sent to the home, after normal working hours, to care for the person when the usual companion needs to be away from the home. Other services include: doing yard work, heavy housework or home repairs; escorting patients to a doctor's office or other necessary appointments; home delivered meals; and helping with laundry, shopping, cooking and types of personal care.

"This is an excellent program that a lot of people don't know exists," said Hamlin. "We have 150 applicants in Floyd County waiting to be assessed. Our program is also in Pike, Martin, Johnson and Magoffin counties."

Hamlin said the program works in conjunction with local home health agencies and health departments that have home assistance programs. When a patient's needs change, other home care agencies are contacted to see if additional or alternate care can be given. Admittance to a nursing home is a "last resort," Hamlin said.

The program is interested to hear from individuals who would be willing to volunteer or contract services ranging from lawn care to home repairs to respite services.

Anyone interested in these programs can contact Marcy Martin or Hamlin at 1-800-886-1068 or (606) 886-9402.

The Floyd County Sheriff's Department is investigating a Tuesday morning burglary of the Mud Creek Diner.

According to Deputy Danny Jarrell, the burglar(s) broke into the diner through a window, taking approximately $1,200 in quarters from a dollar bill changer, four to five cartons of cigarettes and the cash regis-

The diner is owned by Dock Reynolds of Grethel. The burglary remains under investigation by Deputy Danny Jarrell of the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

Prestonsburg's plan to build a home for the Kentucky Opry is a welcome idea that downtown merchants ought to line up behind.

The proposed civic center, to be located on the mid-town municipal parking lot, could be the impetus for breathing new life into the downtown area economy while the Opry draws the tourism spotlight to Floyd County.

Smalltown U.S.A. has suffered the slings and arrows of economic misfortune for most of the last two decades.

Prestonsburg has hit the bulls-eye in this effort to turn the tide.

The parade home for troops participating in Operation Desert Storm is underway, and America awaits their arrivals with open arms.

While it may be a physical impossibility to get all of Floyd County's gulf war vets together at the same place at the same time, we should start planning now to show our appreciation for their sacrifices.

Let's set aside a day for an old-fashioned tickettape parade.

How about the Fourth of July?

March Madness.

It isn't just for basketball anymore.

Crazy things happen in March, and they have for a long time.

Julius Caesar was, you'll remember, slain on the Ides of March by members of the Roman Senate who, rumor has it, were upset that Caesar was taking all the credit for education reform, economic development and new bridges and roads.

Mother Nature has a habit of freaky behavior in March, giving us snow and sleet one day and suntan weather the next. Birds have been seen flying in frenzied circles lately, trying to decide if they should build their nests or beat it back to Dixie.

The oddest of March oddities, however, comes once every four years. That's when candidates for governor begin their assaults on state voters and voters, in turn, seek answers to truly meaningful questions.

For example:

Is Dr. Floyd rich or Poore and did he change his style of dress to prove that clothes do, indeed, make the man?

What kind of parents would name their son Brereton?

Do you pronounce Scotty's name BAYsler or BAZZler?

What kind of parents would name their son Gaitwood?

What will Republicans, already distraught at having to make a choice in the primary, do when they discover that their choice is either Larry or Larry?

What kind of parents would name their son Martha?

Unfortunately, March Madness tends to carry through May in these cases. Seems like it would be more appropriate to set election day a little earlier.

April 1, perhaps?

Quote of the week:

"I don't think a public forum is the proper place to try a disciplinary case against an attorney."—David Yewell.

Yewell is president of the Kentucky Bar Association and, you guessed it, an attorney. The comment was made in reference to a possible challenge of a state secrecy rule which gags public disclosure or discussion of complaints against lawyers.

In Florida, a federal judge threw out that state's gag rule, contending it violated the First Amendment and that protecting lawyers' reputations did not justify suppression of free speech.

Hip, hip, hooray. Mark one up for Average Joe who has no comfort of secrecy under laws which are, more often than not, written by lawyers, enacted by lawyers, enforced by lawyers and adjudicated by lawyers.

What, praytell, makes a lawyer's reputation any more sacred than a plumber's?

Let there be light.

Was our victory so devastating in the three-day Persian Gulf war to allow the Shiite Moslems to take over Iraq in civil war as they did Iran?

Guess who gets to pay the trillion dollar war debt to repair the damages? Did you guess? Right, we do! Guess who gets to pay Israel $669 million for not fighting in that war? Right again, we do!

Guess who gets to pay various countries in the Gulf area a hundred billion dollars to send a token force to help us in this war? We do!

Guess who paid a hundred billion dollars to prop up a sick King in Iran—we did! Guess who spent another hundred billion dollars in helping Saddam Hussein fight an eight-year war with these same Shiite Moslems? We did. Guess who led Saddam Hussein down the primrose path in his conquest of Kuwait—we did! He helped us stop the world leader in terrorist attacks on innocent people.

Guess who has asked us not to put this evil Arab ruler back in power in Kuwait? Why, that was Israel, Syria and Egypt and Iraq. Guess who has paid their war debt to us on schedule? Why, that was Finland and Iraq.

Guess who has the greatest leader in all the world—right again, we do. The polls say 90 percent of all people in the country and probably more in the world, support this great man. And we are not out of the bushes yet.

Guess what the ABC's of war are? If you said, A-get on the side of the people who represent your beliefs best or know which side to get on, B-know where you are going before leaving home, or C-be consistent so your neighbors will know how to adjust to you. You were correct.

Guess who failed in the ABC's of the Persian Gulf war? Right again, we did! When the Shiites take Iraq in a few days, will they hold 54 of our people hostage for more than a year—as they did in Iran?

During my adult life I have witnessed the United States at war on two occasions. First, during the Vietnam War and second the war which is now coming to an end in the Persian Gulf.

Anyone who has witnessed the support for these two different wars certainly sees a dramatic difference in the support our military effort and our soldiers are receiving in this current war. It seems as if every person you meet on the street, every home and every business is displaying the American Flag or symbolic ribbon and it is very apparent that we are all feeling pride in our nation and in exhibiting our patriotism. I am confident that our support for the troops will continue and that they will be welcomed home to a celebration that these heroes rightfully deserve.

There is a question of whether our patriotism will fade with our concern for events in the Persian Gulf. I hope not and I have a suggestion on how to perpetuate this celebration of pride in America.

Statistics tell us that approximately half of the eligible voters are registered and approximately half of these actually vote. Voting is a privilege of citizenship; it is not required, but for a patriot it is an obligation. We have asked young men and women to possibly sacrifice their lives for our nation and yet too many are unwilling to sacrifice a few minutes twice a year to cast a vote.

Kentuckians will soon be asked to decide who will lead their cities, judiciary and state government. It is time to put action behind our words and the first act is to register to vote; second, study the candidates, then vote. I am a candidate for office and will solicit votes as will all candidates. The point is that there must be voters and their preference will always control so long as they are qualified voters. Those not registered to vote should register; those who are registered should vote. Let's pledge our efforts to a continuation of patriotism and support for the principles that make us the greatest nation on earth.

It is 1991. Now that the Middle East war is over let our American flag be held high. We miss our loved ones. And friends. And all because of a cruel person wanting to take over our world. His name is Sadom Whosame (Saddam Hussein). The scud missiles are really beginning to bug me. Every time you turn on the T.V. they are destroying something. Colors of red, white, blue, and yellow ribbons are being put around the old tree in front of the house. People are wearing ribbons to support the men and women. Now I know why there are 50 stars on the U.S. flag. They stand for 50 good reasons for America in this world. So please, give peace a chance!

Now is the time to award a veterans bonus for those young Kentuckians who served in the Persian Gulf. We should not wait for over 20 years like we did for Vietnam veterans.

We all feel a great relief to know the leadership of the United States of America has restored freedom to Kuwait. The entire episode has rekindled pride in America, proven the worth of the All Volunteer Force, and quieted the critics of defense spending on weapons systems and people. We certainly got our money's worth.

Perhaps we should call or notify our legislators now on the need to recognize our veterans sooner, rather than later.

The Department of Military Affairs has the mechanism in place to quickly implement this plan.

A Persian Gulf Veterans Bonus is a small token of appreciation that recognizes the troops and their families.

I have just finished reading about Mark Hardy who spoke at the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce. All that he said sounded very nice, if only sanctions worked.

Sanctions have never worked in my lifetime. They may slow down the economy or food supply, but sanctions have never closed any country down. There is always some group of people or countries who will "smuggle" needed items in.

South Africa has had sanctions for several years now. Have they shut down? I have not seen any evidence. Those supporting sanctions in South Africa forced many large companies like Ford, IBM, etc. to move out. To what avail? Thousands were left without jobs, mostly blacks. We tend to listen more to loud mouths and agitators than to the common people. The blacks in Soweto say a lot but do very little to help themselves or others.

Only a week before the defeat of Saddam Hussein, the cameras showed marketplaces full of fresh fruits, vegetables, people cooking foods at local markets and streets. If people's lives are upset, they adjust to that situation. We do the same. Sanctions do not work and President Bush certainly gave ample time for diplomacy and sanctions. It is very difficult for diplomacy and logic to work when negotiations are one sided. Sanctions against Jordan won't work but perhaps withdrawing our Foreign Aid of $80 million would make a dent. Why we are giving $80 million to Jordan is beyond me.

Let's write words of praise and congratulations to the president, Gen. Schwartzkopf, Gen. Powell and the wonder troops that performed so admirably.

The president said he wouldn't allow one hand of the military to be tied behind their back and in this war we see how well military leaders can work if we allow the military minds to do what they do best, plan and execute war strategy.

Our troops are coming home and the support has been tremendous. Flags and yellow ribbons are everywhere.

The tree in the Municipal parking lot, decorated with lights and yellow bows, is beautiful. The banners "Spirit of America" on the poles in Prestonsburg, bought by donations from businesses and individuals, shows our patriotism.

A lot of publicity has been given to all these displays, but I have yet to see any mention of the posters "Support the Troops—Our Thunder and Lightning." Over 8,000 of these posters were printed and distributed free by the Darby family, owners of State Wide Press.

I am glad to display mine and to say thank you to Bill Jack and Keith Darby. I hope you will also tell them how much you appreciate them.

God bless you!

Two weeks ago, I was diagnosed as having breast cancer and had a mastectomy. The good news is that I'm lucky... the disease was caught so early that it had not spread.

Since that time, I have resumed campaigning for the Democratic Nomination for State Treasurer. I say this not for sympathy or votes. I say this to give encouragement to women in this all-too-common situation.

Yes, I feel a little uncomfortable standing in front of a group speaking, but day-by-day it is getting easier.

My advice to all women over 40—please, please, please have regular mammograms. They work. Early detection of my breast cancer has given me the confidence to get up quickly and resume my life!

Thank you for letting me share these thoughts with your readers.

Other Voices

by Don Harkes and Liz Natty

Some say that as one nation, we should have laws that are as uniform as possible, enacted by the federal government. Others say that decisions should be made at the lowest level that includes the entire class of affected parties or that (with the possible exception of national security) all decisions should be made at the local level.

This issue is not just about control, but about responsibility, and about giving people who have to live with the consequences of decisions a meaningful voice in those decisions.

It is also about assuring sufficient technical support for decisions (for example, environmental decisions), without substituting decisions of technicians for public value judgments. Since 1980, the federal government's emphasis has been on pushing more decisions from the federal level to the state level and down to the local level. This has not always been the case. For example, the seventies was a decade of environmental decision making at the federal level. Policy makers argued persuasively that federal minimum standards were necessary to ensure a "level playing field" for industries competing with products manufactured in other states and to prevent states from "racing to the bottom" by competing to outdo each other with lenient environmental regulations in an effort to decrease operating expenses and attract industry. There is now broad acceptance of the need for national (or indeed, international) minimum standards to prevent environmental degradation for the sake of short term economic development.

However, many thinkers have concluded that people, getting together in their communities, have the best chance of reading decisions in a way that will truly serve the public interest. Daniel Kemmis, mayor of Missoula, Montana, in his book, Community and the Politics of Place, cites Thomas Jefferson in support of his model of people solving their problems at the local level. Kemmis argues that a face-to-face, hands-on approach to problem solving offers the best chance for people to rise above their particular interests to pursue a common good. And Kentucky's own farmer-philosopher-poet, Wendell Berry has eloquently written of the benefits of communities making decisions for themselves based on what is best for the people and the place they inhabit.

Kentucky communities recently have faced many issues that raise the question of what level of government should make decisions regarding those issues, such as control over local landfill siting, permit conditions, and capacity; decisions about acceptable conditions for housing prisoners (especially for state prisoners in county jails); and choices for spending money obtained through the coal severance tax. In the issue of school reform, more decision making has been assigned to the local level, although a degree of control is retained by the state, particularly the power to intervene in those districts that fail to meet the new standards for performance over the next few years.

How well do you think your city or county government handles the decisions it must confront? Do you feel it should have decision making authority in areas now controlled by the state and federal governments? Should there be more state or federal government control over matters in your community? The Kentucky Local Governance Project is interested in what you think about this and other issues of local governance. Write the Kentucky Local Governance Project, 433 Chestnut St., Berea, Kentucky 40403.

Changing the public image of the Eastern Kentucky area

The public image of Eastern Kentucky — conceptions, misconceptions and ways to make it more positive — will be on the agenda at a March 19 meeting in Mt. Sterling.

Howard See of Louisa, chairman of the Public Relations Committee of the East Kentucky Corporation, said the committee is developing strategies to put a more positive focus on Eastern Kentucky life and activities.

Boz Johnson, former news director for WSAZ-TV, Huntington, and a former associate professor of journalism at Marshall University for 12 years, will be the speaker at the meeting, set for 11 a.m. at the Days Inn.

Johnson is currently the vice president of Charles Ryan Associates, a public relations firm.

The East Kentucky Corporation was created by the General Assembly to promote economic development in 43 counties in eastern and southern Kentucky whose economy has depended primarily on the coal industry.

The Corporation is headquartered in Hazard, and its next semi-annual meeting will be there March 26 at the Holiday Inn.

Members of the public relations committee from this area are: Mayor Ann Latta, Burl W. Spurlock, Roger Recktenwald, Delores Smith, and Keith Akers, Prestonsburg; County Judge Executive Homer Sawyer, Dr. Grady Stumbo, and Mike Mullins, Hindman; Kitty Pauley, Pikeville; Henry Clay Sizemore, Salyersville, and Mayor James Silliman, Jr., Pippa Passes.

Coming home!

E5 Marlin C. Scaggs, aboard the USS Theodore Roosevelt in the Persian Gulf, called his mother last Friday and said he'll leave his ship behind and be on the first available plane that will get him home.

He will be visiting his mother, Mrs. Evonne Roe of Prestonsburg and his sister, Mrs. Sheila Berger. He will then travel onward to Corpus Christi, Texas for two years shore duty.

His ship will be in later, since it did not go to the Persian Gulf until December. E5 Scaggs served as Crew Chief on Missile Command on the flight deck. Scaggs has been in service 12 years.

Mrs. Roe also has a grandson, Anthony Scaggs, who is still in the Gulf. His father is the Rev. Scaggs of Pochontas, Arkansas. He is stationed with the USS Arcadia.

"Trim the trash" seminar set

The garbage thrown away in the U.S. each year could pave a highway 24 lanes wide and one foot deep that would stretch from Boston to Los Angeles. So says the "National Wildlife Federation Citizen Action Guide."

The "Trim the Trash" Seminar will be held March 22, at the May Lodge at the State Park. Registration will begin at 9 a.m. with the program starting at 9:30 a.m.

"Programs offered for the day will include top notch speakers and workshops on Composting, Shopping to Reduce Garbage, Glass Recycling and new legislation on disposal of waste.

"The 'Trim the Trash' Seminar is an educational effort aimed at having people learn how to reduce, reuse and recycle their garbage.

"There are very simple steps and procedures the average person can use to cut down the flow of useless garbage."

"Each person has a responsibility to reduce the amount of garbage, or solid waste, that is tossed aside," said Frances Pitts, county extension agent for Floyd County.

In an effort to show people how they can lessen their household wastes and at the same time improve the environment, a day-long seminar is planned.

"It is possible for a person who follows the tips presented at this seminar to reduce the garbage they carry to the curb by 1/4 to 1/3," said Pitts.

The "Trim the Trash" Seminar is sponsored by the University of Kentucky Cooperative Extension Service and the Northeast Area Extension Homemakers Association.

Register by calling the Floyd County Extension Office at 886-2668.

There will be door prizes, and literature concerning the garbage problem will be distributed.

Rates go down; gas rates go up

Two area gas companies received approval from the Public Service Commission to increase their gas rates to customers, and one area gas company was granted permission to lower its rates.

Elsie Neeley Gas Company, Inc., will increase its cost per residential customer to $64.19 per year. This will reflect a $3,911 increase in wholesale costs from its supplier.

Martin Gas, Inc.'s increase will reflect a $17,685 increase in wholesale costs from its supplier. The average annual increase per residential customer will be $55.06, which became effective on March 1.

ATTENTION SMOKE TESTING AND SEWER SURVEY City of Martin

For the next few weeks, beginning around March 18, 1991 inspection crews will be conducting a physical survey of the sanitary sewer system in Martin. This study will involve the opening and entering of manholes in the streets and easements. An important task of the survey will be the "SMOKE TESTING" of sewer lines to locate breaks and defects in the sewer system. The smoke that you see coming from the vent stacks on houses or holes in the ground is NON-TOXIC, HARMLESS, HAS NO ODOR, AND CREATES NO FIRE HAZARD. The smoke should not enter your home unless you have defective plumbing or dried up drain traps. If this occurs, you should consult your licensed plumber. In any event, if the harmless smoke can enter through faulty plumbing, the potential exists for dangerous sewer gases to enter your home. Should smoke enter your home, you may contact a member of the smoke testing crew working in the area and he will be pleased to check and see if the smoke present is from smoke testing. If you have any seldom used drains, please pour water in the drain to fill the trap, which will prevent sewer gases or odors from entering the building.

Some sewer lines and manholes are located on the backyard easements or along property lines. Whenever these lines require investigation, members of inspection crews will need access to the easements for the sewer lines and manholes. Homeowners do not need to be home and the workmen will not need to enter your house.

Photographs are to be made of leaks occurring in the system. We anticipate the smoke testing will require approximately two (2) weeks in your area. Your cooperation will be appreciated. The information gained from this study will be used to improve your sewer services and may reduce the eventual cost to taxpayers.

Kentucky maintaining top national ranking in man-hours lost

Kentucky ascending from the cellar to the penthouse in the area man-hours lost due to strikes, has maintained its top national ranking throughout the administration of Gov. Wallace G. Wilkinson.

Wallowing in 47th place among the continental states in 1981, the commonwealth began a long climb toward the top which dramatically accelerated in 1984, the year the Labor Cabinet began placing a full-time emphasis on labor-management cooperation through its Office of Labor-Management Relations.

Resting at 38th nationally in 1983, it jumped to 22nd by 84's end and then to 18th in 1986.

In 1987, according to Grant Thornton Studies, Kentucky claimed a share of the number one ranking and has maintained it ever since. The top ranking indicates that work stoppages in manufacturing facilities, with 1,000 or more employees, was negligible enough to give the state a factor value of 0.000 percent, the best possible ranking a state can achieve in any given category.

"Much of this country's negative labor-management relations history was written right here in Kentucky, so needless to say, we are very pleased that we have been able to maintain our top national ranking," said Labor Secretary Otis Reed, Jr.

"But while it is probably fair to say that the full-time emphasis we place on labor-management relations has had a positive impact, most of the credit has to go to those members of labor and management who have realized that a cooperative relationship is more productive than a constantly adversarial one," he said.

Near the heart of that full-time emphasis the cabinet places on cooperative relationships is the establishment of area and in-plant labor-management committees throughout the state. The Labor Cabinet provides assistance to committees and continues to seek an improvement in the image of labor-management relations in the Commonwealth as it relates to economic development.

Two new area labor-management committees and another in-plant labor-management committee have been established since June 1990.

Kentucky's program continues to rank in the top five nationally as evidenced by Harvard University which singled out Kentucky for an intensive study.

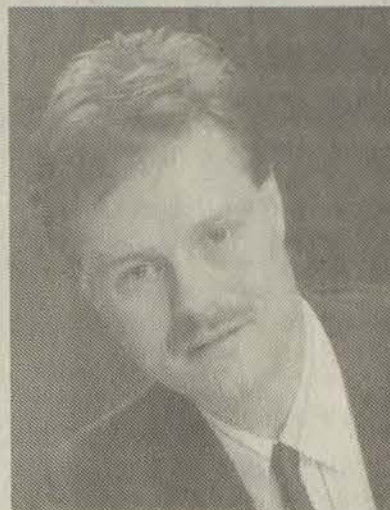

On March 9, 1990, Gov. Wilkinson signed House Bill 311 into law, creating the Labor-Management Matching Grants program, budgeting $280,000 to assist these committees in their goals of improving labor-management relations.

The 1990 Labor-Management Conference, for years the national model for events of its kind, drew record participation from both labor and management. The conference format places members of labor with representatives of management together in a relaxed atmosphere of education and recreation and has been lauded as a tremendously successful tool in establishing cooperative relationships.

For more information about Kentucky's Labor-Management programs, contact the Kentucky Labor Cabinet, Office of Labor-Management Relations, 1049 U.S. 127 South, Frankfort, Ky. 40601. (502) 564-7127.

Porter wins awards

Local photographer, Steven G. Porter, brought home several awards for his work in the 38th Annual Convention of the Ohio State Chapter of the Professional Photographers of America, February 27-March 4, in Columbus.

Porter entered four portraits in the competition. Each was awarded the "Gold Corner" of acceptance. Two of the portraits received the Red Ribbon of High Achievement. The other two gained a Green Ribbon of Outstanding Performance.

The four portraits will be going to the National Convention in Dallas, Texas for national judging on June 1-6.

He is currently working toward his "Master of Photography" Degree and National Certification through Professional Photographers of America.

Porter, along with his wife, Angela, own and operate Porter Studio in Prestonsburg.

Technical training to improve UPS services

With the assistance of the Workforce Development Cabinet, United Parcel Services (UPS) of Kentucky, has begun training over one thousand of its employees statewide to use the Delivery Information Acquisition Device (DIAD). DIAD is a state-of-the-art, handheld unit that replaces the UPS driver's clipboard and delivery records.

The DIAD system will enhance the tracing and tracking services UPS provides to customers, allowing the driver to more accurately and efficiently record needed information while making deliveries.

The Workforce Development Cabinet's Department of Adult and Technical Education coordinated the statewide training project. The Cabinet provides employee training services as an incentive to retain and attract business and industry and upgrade workforce skills to be competitive with the global marketplace. Coordinating/monitoring services may involve assisting a company in determining training needs, curriculum design, funding resources, and locating training facilities, equipment and instructors.

Gary Werenskold, Commissioner of Adult and Technical Education, states, "The DIAD training is being conducted at 19 different UPS operating facilities throughout the state and will involve all package drivers and the majority of full-time management workforce." The number of trainees includes 854 package delivery drivers, 95 staff managers and 85 operational managers. They will receive up to 32 hours of classroom training.

The DIAD is designed to perform automatically many tasks that the driver now does manually. "It will virtually make delivery a paperless process," states Commissioner Werenskold.

The statewide training project was coordinated through the Kentucky Tech Region 6 office and is funded through a cooperative effort between the Workforce Development Cabinet, the Bluegrass State Skills Council, and UPS.

IRS warns of call from fake agents

The Internal Revenue Service has warned taxpayers that people posing as IRS agents may be calling Kentucky residents and telling them to pay taxes for a new car or other prizes they supposedly have won.

The impostors tell the people that they have won cars or other prizes, but they must pay taxes before receiving them. The callers give false names and instruct the victims to pay the money through Western Union.

There has been one incident reported so far in Kentucky, but the bogus phone calls have been reported in other states.

The IRS Inspection Service in Kentucky requests that anyone receiving a suspicious call requesting tax money for a car or other prize supposedly won, to immediately telephone the IRS collect at (502) 582-5298.

Solid waste bill touches variety of issues

From folks who throw their garbage over the hill to school children to serious recyclers, Kentucky's new solid waste management law affects virtually all citizens of the commonwealth.

Many legislators and others have criticized Senate Bill 2 for falling short of a total solution, but the 161-page bill, passed in the General Assembly's special session, addresses — or begins to address — the state's massive garbage problem.

Across the state, local officials should be scurrying to plan for their role in the legislation, which becomes effective in mid-May — 90 days after its February 21 passage date.

The bill requires much of local governments, particularly those that have dragged their feet on solid waste issues. Cities and counties must declare themselves as solid waste management districts or align with their neighbors as such districts and come up with a five-year plan for managing their citizens' wastes.

The district, according to the bill, can consist of several counties or a city-county or an individual city or county. Whatever the configuration, the districts must devise their plan by June 1 or risk having it done for them by the Cabinet for Natural Resources and Environmental Protection.

Though some may approach it kicking and screaming, the solid waste management plan forces local governments to take responsibility for wastes generated by their citizens and to examine their disposal needs well into the 21st century.

In the plan, local officials must identify the solid waste problems and come up with solutions designed to reduce the generation of waste by 25 percent and to deal safely with what's left. To keep them on track, the bill also requires revising of the plans every five years.

The Cabinet, in turn, is charged with devising an overall plan of waste management for the state that incorporates the district plans.

The bill also requires local clean up of illegal garbage dumps within one year and regular monitoring to keep them from reappearing. In turn, state money is made available to match clean up efforts.

Though a Cabinet proposal to mandate door-to-door garbage collection was dropped from the bill, counties are required to provide a formal garbage disposal option of some kind to their citizens by 1994. Monetary assistance will be available from the state through grants, loans and bonds.

Also required is the formation of local advisory committees made up of residents and representatives of business and industry.

Besides their responsibilities, districts have the right, under the bill, to react to applications for construction and expansion of local landfills prior to the Cabinet's approval. The Cabinet can still override a district's reaction, in line with its state plan, but the district is allowed legal recourse.

Also in response to local concerns, the bill authorizes the Cabinet to hire on-site inspectors to make sure that landfills are operated according to regulations.

Throughout the planning and landfill-permitting processes, local governments, the Cabinet and applicants are required by the bill to give adequate public notice of their intentions and to arrange for public hearings.

To meet the goal of reducing the amount of waste generated, the bill provides a number of incentives to local governments and individuals to recycle and to use recycled materials.

Important to this effort is the creation of the Kentucky Recycling Brokerage Authority, effective July 1 and composed of representatives from state and local government, the waste industry, legislators and environmental groups. The authority's charge is to explore markets for recycled goods and assist districts in promoting recycling.

Education of the public about solid waste and recycling is a prime component of the bill. Instructed by the bill to establish an education program are the Department of Education, Kentucky Environmental Council and the Natural Resources Cabinet. The DOE will concentrate on programs for school children.

Recycling by all state agencies is also mandated, as is their use of recycled goods whenever possible. Even companies doing contract work with the state are required to use recycled materials as much as possible.

The bill does not significantly change the waste industry's role since administrative regulations adopted last year are widely regarded as extensive. The Cabinet remains the overseer of landfill operation, construction and expansion.

Operators and shareholders in private landfills will now, however, have to undergo more stringent background checks to make sure they have not previously violated environmental regulations either in Kentucky or elsewhere.

To stem out-of-area garbage as much as possible, existing landfills, under the new legislation, cannot accept more than five percent more waste than they received in 1990. Exceptions can be made, though, for areas experiencing industrial growth.

In addition, the bill contains a strong conflict of interest clause that prohibits any elected or nonelected government official or his/her spouse from engaging in the business of solid waste management or recycling. (One mayor has already resigned because of his recycling business.)

Commercial haulers of trash must obtain a special license from the Transportation Cabinet. Their vehicles must also have a special license and must display a placard saying they are for waste hauling.

To verify the origin, weight and types of waste hauled, transporters will also have to keep complex records, or manifests, of their loads from pick up to delivery at a landfill or transfer station. Copies of the manifests are to be on display at the waste facility and submitted quarterly to the Cabinet. Waste facility operators are instructed not to accept waste without the manifest.

Exempt from this provision are private citizens who are not hauling trash for pay.

Knowing their constituents, the legislators and Cabinet representatives even included in the bill a system of resolving conflicts within and among solid waste management districts through the state's Department of Local Government.

Besides the recycling authority, the legislation creates three other citizen/government committees to study and make recommendations on issues relevant to solid waste management.

The Solid Waste Reduction and Management Plan Advisory will keep tabs on all aspects of the legislation. The two-year committee is to include the Natural Resources Secretary, serving as chairman; one senator, one representative, and nine persons appointed by the governor. The governor's nominees must represent cities and counties, industrial waste generators, private recycling industry, environmental advocacy organizations and the public at large.

The Solid Waste Management Legislative Task Force, made up of legislators, is charged with monitoring the bill and recommending added, relevant legislation to the 1992 General Assembly.

Addressing a proposal that did not pass muster for Senate Bill 2 will be the Task Force on Container Deposits, to be established by April 1 by the Legislative Research Commission. This group, by law, will include six legislators and seven other citizens, representing local government, recycling and container industries, environmental groups and the Natural Resources Cabinet.

The committee's task will be to review what other states have done regarding deposits on recyclable containers, such as bottles, jars and cans, and make recommendations for Kentucky by October.

Spring forest fire season is March 1 through May 15

March 1 marks the beginning of Kentucky's official spring forest fire season.

Traditionally, twice as many forest fires occur in Kentucky during the spring than in the fall. "That means we need the help and cooperation of all Kentuckians to prevent this continued loss to Kentucky's forest resources," said Carl Bradley, secretary of the Natural Resources and Environmental Protection Cabinet.

From March 1 through May 15 it is illegal to set fire to any flammable material capable of spreading fire, which is located in or within 150 feet of any woodland or brushland except between 4:30 p.m. and midnight.

Air pollution regulations or local ordinances in some locations in the Commonwealth make ALL outdoor fires illegal.

Last year was an unusually light year for forest fires. Kentucky recorded 22,326 acres damaged by 1,260 fires in 1990. These fires, however, still caused more than $1.9 million in damage to timber. Losses to wildlife, recreation and watershed values also occurred as a result of these fires.

"Every forest fire last year was caused by man and could have been prevented," said Donald Hamm, director of the Division of Forestry. Arson-type fires accounted for half of last year's fires. Burning trash, brush piles and other debris was the second-leading cause of fires, and carelessness with smoking materials was the third-leading cause. Campfires, equipment use and railroads also caused fires.

Forest fires can be prevented by obeying these laws:

- * burn only after 4:30 p.m. and only when wind is calm,
- * clear site down to bare soil where fire will be set,
- * have tools and water on hand to control fire,
- * don't leave fire unattended until it's out.

The Constitution offers a chance for Americans to reaffirm the principles for which this country stands, those rights and liberties which we tend to take for granted: freedom of expression, freedom of worship, freedom of choice, the right to vote, the right to associate with whom-ever we please. Two centuries after those early national leaders completed their struggle to produce a uniquely American Constitution, we have an opportunity — a duty to recommit ourselves to these values of freedom, justice and equality for all. This information is supplied by the John Graham Chapter, NSDAR.

Aging pets need special grooming, food, and companionship

One of the things that animals and humans have in common is that the process of aging affects them both.

One of the reasons that the field of geriatrics has expanded so rapidly in recent years is that better medical care and better nutrition have prolonged life expectancy of both humans and animals.

And because human knowledge has extended the lifespan, it is up to humans to make the quality of that extension more bearable. Growing old is not always a pleasant experience.

All of the tissues, organs and systems of the body are affected by aging. There are no exceptions. There is a decrease in metabolism, a decrease of organ reserve, a decrease in the volume of water retained in the cells, of minerals in the bone and of neurons in the brain.

Muscle mass and tone will likely be lost, blood vessels will start to harden, dental disease will likely increase and loss of bowel tone will cause increased constipation. Output of the heart decreases, the senses of sight, hearing and taste become less efficient, and the efficiency of the body's immune system is lowered.

Energy levels are not as great. Veterinarians studying the process of aging have come up with some simple steps to increase the vitality of your pet's older years.

They recommend you keep excess weight down by exercising the pet regularly and not overfeeding. Because the pet's digestive system cannot assimilate food as well as it could when your pet was younger, they suggest you feed your pet three or four times a day in lesser amounts, rather than one large meal.

Groom your pet daily. Skin becomes less elastic as your pet ages, and the coat becomes dryer, more brittle and dull. Frequent grooming stimulates better skin tone and better hair coat.

Supplement your animal's diet with additives that help reduce deficiencies caused by aging—brewer's yeast, vegetable oil, vitamins B 1, B 12, C and E are important.

Provide dental care, both professional (at least once a year) and at home.

Annual examinations will allow your veterinarian to recognize and deal with problems that may occur as your pet ages. Yearly vaccinations are important to the aging animal, because your pet's immune system may not be as competent as it was when your pet was younger.

Feed a balanced diet, tailored to your pet.

Provide companionship. Your pet senses it isn't as young as it used to be, and may be ashamed or simply give up. Your encouragement can go a long way toward keeping it on feed and happy. Your veterinarian is well trained in geriatrics for animals, and can assist you in developing a plan to make your pet's golden years into growing years. Special foods which meet nutritional needs of older animals are now available, as are geriatric vitamin/mineral supplements.

These, combined with your veterinarian's knowledge of the aging process and his or her ability to recognize deficiencies and problem areas, can make your pet's latter years more healthy at less total cost than you may realize.

Pike employee receives award

Patricia Ann Slone

A dietary worker who studied art under Charles Schultz has been selected to receive the February Spirit of Service Award at the Methodist Hospital.

General dietary worker Patricia Ann Slone won the monthly award after her fellow employees voted to honor her.

Slone has worked at Methodist for 15 years, but has a total of 23 years of hospital experience. She has worked as a nurse's aide in other hospitals, but has only worked in the Nutritional Services Department at Methodist.

She is a graduate of Albion Senior High School in Albion, Michigan and attended Art Instruction School for three years. During her art studies, she reported that she studied under Charles Schultz of Peanuts Fame.

She is married to Oscar Turner Slone who works as a certified orderly at Riverview Manor Nursing Home. They have three children: twins, Turner and Matthew Brian, and Jennifer Ann.

The Spirit of Service Award is an honor given monthly to Nutritional Services employees at the Methodist Hospital. The award is to honor the person within the Department who best displays kindness and co-operation with fellow employees.

Misuse of child safety seats common, AAA says

The good news is more and more concerned parents are using child safety seats to protect their children. Unfortunately, misuse of these safety seats still allow preventable injuries or deaths of improperly protected children.

Use of child seats has risen to 82 percent over the past decade. However, surveys estimate that 30 to 65 percent of safety seats are used improperly.

In checking for correct use of a safety seat, the Blue Grass AAA Foundation for Safety recommends:

* The child is facing the correct way. A seat designed for infants (up to 18-20 pounds) always faces the rear.

* The lap belt is properly threaded through the seat.

* The child is buckled in correctly.

* Straps and belts are snug.

"Many times the driver just doesn't know that even a small deviation from the safety seat manufacturer's instructions can endanger a child's life. It's important the seat be used properly and installed correctly for the child to have the maximum protection," said Lilla Mason, Executive Secretary for the Blue Grass AAA Foundation for Safety.

"Often, it's a matter of information," said Mason. The Foundation offers materials for public education on proper child restraint in vehicles. One such source is the "Fragile...Transport Safely!" brochure, which answers questions about proper safety seat use, how to shop for the type of safety seat needed, and what to do when a child becomes too big for a safety seat.

For a free copy of this brochure or for more information about safety seats or other child restraint protection, call the Blue Grass AAA Foundation for Safety at (606) 233-1111 or 1 (800) 432-0996.

Math-A-Thon

Students and faculty at Allen Elementary School participated in their fourth annual St. Jude Children's Research Hospital Math-A-Thon Program. In 1988 the program at Allen Elementary School generated $429.95; in 1989 the program grew to $644.37 and in February of 1990 nearly $1,100 was raised to help the children at St. Jude. This year's program will be concluded at the end of February. The program was under the coordination of Mrs. Phyllis Craft.

Area job training program sees increase in federal aid

Eastern Kentucky Concentrated Employment Program will share in $56 million in federal aid for employment and training services during the fiscal year beginning July 1.

The agency, which services Bell, Breathitt, Carter, Clay Elliott, Floyd, Harlan, Jackson, Johnson, Knott, Knox, Lawrence, Lee, Leslie, Letcher, Magoffin, Martin, Menifee, Morgan, Owsley, Perry Pike and Wolfe counties, will receive $6,174,874 for its job training program and $3,040,664 for its summer youth program.

Each state's allocation under the federal Job Training Partnership Act (JTPA) is based on a formula which includes the number of unemployed and economically disadvantaged residents. Kentucky's share of the 1991-92 JTPA budget is about $6.6 million less than in the current year, due to improved economic conditions here.

However, next year, the funding is expected to decrease because the job market is expected to improve, according to Kentucky Governor Wallace Wilkinson.

"We'll receive less of the JTPA pie next year because our economy is in better shape than in many of our sister states," Wilkinson said. "That's a spin-off of bringing in new industry and creating employment opportunities."

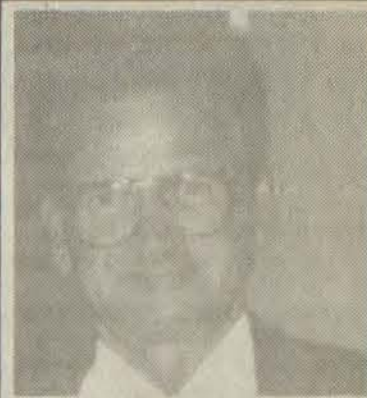

Last fiscal year nearly 78,000 Kentuckians enrolled in JTPA programs.

Of the $56,010,287 Kentucky expects to receive for the next fiscal year, $27,522,668 will go to the state's 11 regional service delivery areas (SDAs) for programs for low-income, underemployed and unemployed Kentucky adults and youth. An additional $13,410,523 will go to the SDAs for summer programs for youths 16-21 years of age who are members of low-income families.

In each region, a local private industry council, composed of government and business representatives, decides the type and number of funded programs.

For statewide programs, the state Cabinet for Human Resources will have $7,314,292 to help dislocated workers make the transition to new jobs; $2,822,838 for education programs; $2,117,128 for incentive awards and technical assistance to SDAs; $1,058,564 for programs for older workers; and $1,764,274 for administration and oversight of Kentucky's programs.

Tour De Heart benefits AHA and cyclists

Cyclists from across the state will be peddling for pledges in the fourth annual Tour De Heart, a special fundraising event sponsored by the American Heart Association, Kentucky Affiliate on April 20 and 21.

The weekend bike tour consists of a 60-mile trip from E.P. Tom Sawyer Park in Eastern Jefferson County along scenic Kentucky roads to General Butler State Park in Carrollton. The return trip the next day makes up a total of 120 miles. A $30 registration fee for each participant covers food and lodging for both days.

Each Tour De Heart participant is expected to raise a minimum of $150 in pledges to support the AHA's research, community service and educational programs. Cyclists raising more than $300 will select between bicycle-related or general prize items according to their amount raised in pledges. The Grand Prize, a three-day cruise for two to the Bahamas, will be awarded to all cyclists raising at least $2,500.

In addition, business teams of two or more cyclists may enter the Tour de Heart representing their company. The corporate team raising the highest amount in pledges will be awarded a corporate Tour De Heart Corporate Cup. Last year's corporate cup went to the B.F. Goodrich team in Louisville which raised more than $11,000. A Tour Team Cup is also available for cyclists in groups of two to six riders. For the past two years a team of riders from Southeastern Kentucky has won the Team Cup. Last year they collected more than $6,000.

Registration will be limited to the first 280 riders, and the deadline for receiving registrations is April 12. Registration forms can be obtained by calling the American Heart Association at 502/589-3956.

Tour De Heart will help raise funds for the fight against heart disease, the number one cause of death in Kentucky. It will also be a memorable weekend of exercise and fun for enjoying springtime in Kentucky.

Chase appointed asst. vice president of AH Healthcare

Appalachian Regional Healthcare, Inc., has announced the appointment of Regina R. Chase as assistant vice president for administration.

Chase's new responsibilities include assisting with the supervision and direction of broad managerial activities ranging from credentialing of physicians to development of administrative policies to a number of diverse system-wide administrative services.

Vice President for Administration Lilly H. Crawley states, "Ms. Chase's impressive experience and strong skills in health care management and administration will be of great value throughout the corporation. I am delighted that she has chosen to join Appalachian Regional Healthcare."

Prior to joining ARH, Chase was clinic manager/physician referral coordinator for the Department of Psychiatry at the University of Kentucky's Albert B. Chandler Medical Center. She is a graduate of Duquesne University, Pittsburgh, Pennsylvania, with a bachelor's degree in history and government.

ARH operates hospitals, ambulatory clinics, pharmacies, and home health services in Hazard, Harlan, Whitesburg, Middlesboro, West Liberty, McDowell, and South Williamson, Kentucky; Man, Beckley, Grafton, and Hinton in West Virginia; and in Wise, Virginia.

Chase is a resident of Lexington.

Legislation is introduced to assist small coal operators

A bill was introduced last week by Senator Mitch McConnell to update and improve a federal program which assists small coal operators. McConnell said that the Small Coal Operators assistance Program (SOAP), created 14 years ago to improve the competitiveness of small coal operators, fails to meet the needs to today's coal industry.

He also said the program failed to keep up with changes in the industry and is critically underutilized.

Utilization of and funding for the SOAP program has fallen significantly over the last six years. Assistance has been averaging only $1.6 million a year since 1985, even though $10 million could be made available under the current legislation.

"Not only is the small operator an important part of Kentucky's coal industry, he is an important part of our national energy mix," McConnell noted. "The Persian Gulf conflict has forced us to focus on developing domestic sources of energy and reducing our dependence on foreign oil. Improving the competitiveness of the nation's small coal operators is a good step in that direction."

McConnell noted that the current program provides assistance only to operators producing less than 100,000 tons of coal a year. "By penalizing operators who exceed that limited level of production, the program defeats its own purpose of encouraging growth," McConnell said. "My bill redefines small operators as those producing no more than 300,000 tons, thus making more operators eligible for assistance and giving them more room for growth."

Key care for kids

If your child carries house keys to school, don't allow the child to wear the keys so that they can be seen by others. A sure clue of a child going home to an empty house is the telltale house key. Instead, The National Safety Council suggests putting the key on a chain around the child's neck and tucked inside their clothing.

Explain to your child never to lend the key to a stranger — or even a friend. It is important to understand the responsibility associated with a house key.

Work out a plan with your child in case the key is lost. There should be an extra key somewhere in a safe place, such as a neighbor's house.

A Look At Sports

STATE TOURNAMENT ALL THAT'S LEFT OF HIGH SCHOOL BASKETBALL

It's sad, but all things must end for a season. The 1991 High School Basketball season will conclude with this week's state tournament at Rupp Arena in Lexington. I'm sure that it will be one of the strongest fields in a long time. The atmosphere and competitiveness makes the Boys' State Tournament something special. It's easy to get caught up in the hurrah of it all.

I remember the only year that I attended a state tournament. The 1990 session when Prestonsburg went to the Sweet Sixteen at Rupp. I had the chance to go to my only state tournament. Boy, was I excited. Then it happened. The old flu bug hit me and hit me hard. But I went anyway. It was a battle just to muster up enough energy to go to the first round game—Prestonsburg vs Madisonville and Travis Ford. After the Prestonsburg game I left, returning to my motel. "Do you want to go back home," Nancy asked. "No, I'm sick to go home," was my reply. The next day we left Lexington, the Boys' state tournament and headed back home. Boy, did I hate to leave. But, I just couldn't hold my head up. Someday, maybe I will be able to go again.

Today it all gets underway. Wish I could be there to see it all!

HAPPY BIRTHDAY TO A FRIEND

Saturday will be Delmar Hall's big "5-0". The old boy turns 50 this weekend. Delmar and I go back a ways. We played a lot of basketball together. He can sit and talk about basketball more than any person I know. He loves the game. A big happy birthday to my friend Delmar Hall.

WEDDING BELLS ARE RINGING

The news is out. The McDowell Lady Daredevils' coach will have a new name next year. Coach Cassandra Keathley has decided it is time to "jump the broomstick" and is planning to marry Ronnie Sammons (Betsy Layne fame) either April 6 or April 20. She will have to work around her softball schedule.

We wish Coach Keathley the best. We appreciate her and also her contributions to the girls' basketball program at McDowell. She has certainly turned it around from what it once was.

I wonder if she will have 15 bridesmaids in the wedding party? That's how many players she has. Good luck, coach!

WQHY WILL AIR STATE TOURNAMENT

Radio station WQHY will be on hand live at Rupp Arena to air the 1991 Boys' State Basketball Tournament that gets underway today at 1 p.m. Jim Allen, Ted Meadows, Joe Back and Tommy Boyd will bring you all the play-by-play action throughout the tournament. They will have those special interviews with some special folks.

TWO THINGS NEEDED AT ALLEN CENTRAL

Next basketball season there are two things I would love to see come to Allen Central. The "Judy Eversole Memorial Girls' Invitational" and a press box built at the gymnasium.

What school would be better suited to host such a tournament in honor of a lady that gave so much to the girls' sport. Either a four team or eight team format could easily work out. I hope the officials at Allen Central will ponder on this possibility.

As for the press box, several games of the Rebels are covered by radio and the media and they lack the facilities to take care of the media. They have several spots where a press booth could be built. Think about it.

CONGRATULATIONS TO MCDOWELL, BETSY LAYNE

You did a great job of representing the 58th District in the recent regional tournament at Belfry. You played hard and didn't quit. Coach Junior Newsome and Coach Johnny Ray Turner are outstanding coaches and to them we say thank you for a great tournament.

Good sports everyone and be good sports. Until Friday.

Former Martin Alumni Mike Reitz To Lead Harrison Co. In Sweet 16

When the Harrison County Thoroughbred basketball team takes the Rupp Arena floor Thursday afternoon in a 2:30 p.m. scheduled start, coach Mike Reitz will be leading his chargers onto the floor. Harrison County, winners of the 10th Region tournament this past weekend, will face a tough Bowling Green team in the afternoon's second game.

Mike Reitz, a former Martin Purple Flash, coaches the Harrison County team that pulled off an upset in the semifinals of the regional tournament in defeating Tollesboro and UK recruit Chris Harrison, 93-79. Reitz's team then wiped out the tournament hopes of Maysville with a thrilling 92-90 come from behind win to capture the 10th Region title. Reitz's squad trailed by as many as 13 points before the comeback. Ironically, Reitz coached at Maysville when he led them to the state tournament in 1988.

Reitz's son, Chris, plays for his father and scored 21 points in the championship game. Chris Reitz hit six three-pointers in the game. It was Reitz sixth try that tied the game at 90-90. Jerry Fogle hit the winning shot just before the buzzer to give the Thoroughbreds the win.

Reitz is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Henry Reitz of Martin. He taught at Allen Central and moved to MMI and Maysville as head coach before moving to Cynthia. Harrison County is 24-7 on the season. They defeated Prestonsburg earlier in the year.

Slow start ends Bobcats season; fall to Elkhorn City, 67-60

The Betsy Layne Bobcats season came to an end Friday night as they fell to the Elkhorn City Cougars 67-60 in the semifinals of the 15th Region basketball tournament at Belfry.

The senior oriented Bobcat team had been a team whose adopted motto "we will not be denied" came to a halt with the loss. The loss ended a dream season for coach Junior Newsome's squad at 21-9 overall.

The Cougars opened the game as if the championship of the 15th Region were riding on this game. The Cougars jumped to a quick 11-2 lead after the score was tied at 2-2. Betsy Layne experienced some cold shooting in the opening quarter as their basket seemed to have a lid on it.

It was the hot shooting of freshman Todd Conley that did in the Bobcats as the hot shooting "star" canned 25 points to lead the Cougars to victory.

Betsy Layne shot 44 percent for the game, hitting 25 of 56 field goal attempts. Elkhorn City was one percentage point better with 26 of 57 attempts for 45 percent. The Bobcats were out rebounded 33 to 28.

Betsy Layne trailed by seven, 51-44, going into the final stanza. Chris Newsome, who led the Bobcats in scoring with 24 points, hit a three-pointer to start the fourth quarter and came back with another field goal to close the margin to two points, 51-49.

Elkhorn City went back up by five, 58-53, with 3:12 remaining when Phillip King fouled out with 18 points. The loss of King was a blow to the Bobcats offense as well as on the boards. Newsome's second three-pointer cut the lead back to two, 58-56. The Cougars outscored Betsy Layne 9-2 in the closing two minutes to post the 67-60 win. Betsy Layne desperately tried to get back into the game with the three-point shot. Adam Gearheart's three-point attempt was blocked by Conley and Keith Hall had a try attempt blocked also. Elkhorn City hit five straight free throws within the final minute to seal the win.

It was an uphill climb for the Bobcats all night long as they fell behind 22-8 at the end of the first quarter. The Cougars went to the dressing room with a 35-23 advantage.

Betsy Layne began climbing back into the contest in the third quarter on the shoulders of King and Newsome. King pumped in eight points and Newsome nine. The Bobcats cut the margin to seven points three different times: 47-40, 49-42 and 51-44.

Mike Fraley pulled down 11 rebounds for the Cougars to lead in that area. Conley scored 10 of his 25 points in the first quarter to establish the 14 point lead. Conley hit two three-pointers in the period.

Betsy Layne's entire starting five played their final game for the Bobcats. Gearheart, King, Hall, Eplin and Newsome are all seniors. Keith Hall failed to score for Betsy Layne as the point guard played a good floor game. Berne Eplin tossed in four points and Gearheart finished with 12.

Besides Conley's 25, Tyler Bailiff led all scorers with 26 points. The win improved Elkhorn City to 22-9 on the season. The two teams met earlier in the year with Betsy Layne coming away with the win.

Hylton scores 41, Belfry Returns To Rupp

It was "The J.J. Hylton Show" at Belfry High School Saturday night in the finals of the 15th Region basketball tournament. A standing room only crowd (and there wasn't much standing room) saw the 6 foot 3 inch junior fire in a career high 41 points to lead the Pirates past upset-minded Elkhorn City, 69-65 and earn the right to represent the 15th Region in the upcoming Sweet Sixteen High School basketball tournament at Rupp Arena beginning Wednesday at 1 p.m.

The high scoring Hylton wasn't taking any chances with the championship game, as he took charge earlier. The Pirates, after winning easily over Paintsville in the first round, had to go into overtime to defeat Shelby Valley in a struggle in semifinal play.

Elkhorn City freshman sensation, Todd Conley, really struggled in the first half of the game after having a brilliant two previous games. The hot shooting Conley wasn't so hot in the beginning scoring only one point in the first half. Conley was 0 for 11 in the half.

Belfry built an early lead behind the scoring of Hylton, but found itself having to once again hold another opponent to win. In fact it became a come-from-behind effort for the Pirates in the fourth quarter trailing 64-63.

Belfry held a 44-36 lead in the third period with 5:01 remaining. Mike Fraley scored underneath and was fouled. Fraley canned the free throw to make it 44-39. Conley, finally finding the range, hit a three-pointer and followed that with a field goal and three points the old fashioned way to take a 47-44 lead. It was the hard work of Mike Fraley on the boards to also spark a Cougar comeback.

Hylton and Chris Phillips scored back to back baskets to give Belfry the lead back, 48-47. Tyler Bailiff made it 49-48 with a score as the lead exchanged hands five times until the Pirates took a lead of 53-51. Hylton buried a three-pointer to give Belfry a 56-51 lead. Larry Puckett's try at the buzzer cut the lead to two.

Belfry moved out to a five point lead, 59-54, on a basket by Tim Kinzer and Mark Williamson's free throw. Elkhorn then outscored Belfry 7-0 to assume a 61-59 with less than five minutes remaining.

Williamson tied the game for Belfry with a basket, and Conley's free throw gave the Cougars a one point lead, 62-61. Hylton put Belfry up by one and Conley came back with a jumper that propelled the Cougars back out in front.

Each team exchanged turnovers on their next possession. With 40 seconds remaining, Hylton scored on a three-point play to give the Pirates a two point lead, 66-64. Fraley hit the back end of a two shot foul to make the margin one, 66-65. With 18 seconds showing on the scoreboard, Hylton, a 78 percent free throw shooter, made one of two shots to give Belfry a two point margin. Conley then launched a three-pointer that just missed with four ticks on the clock. Hylton was fouled and connected on two free throws to put the game and the championship in the win column for the Pirates.

Belfry trailed 4-2 in the early going of the game but caught fire and rolled out to a 20-12 first quarter lead. The Pirates held a half time lead of nine points, 35-26.

Hylton set a new Belfry High School scoring record when he reached his 728 career point high in the second quarter. The 6 foot 3 inch

Johnson's free throws send Shelby Valley Past McDowell, 55-54

The game was theirs to win. The quarterfinal game of the boys' 15th Region Basketball tournament at Belfry against Shelby Valley was McDowell's to win—but they didn't. Jeremy Johnson canned three of four free throw attempts to give Shelby Valley a hard fought 55-54 win over the McDowell Daredevils Thursday night.

It was a heartbreaking loss for the Daredevils who came into the game and tournament with the worst record of any of the schools. The Daredevils were 11-19 and was facing a team that had lost only three times and had beaten them by 50 points previously. The Wildcats were a solid choice to upend coach Johnny Ray Turner's Daredevils by a 20-plus margin.

That's why these games are played. The precise free throw shooting of Johnson with 16 seconds remaining salvaged the victory. If the Daredevils were intimidated by the Wildcats, it wasn't evident.

Another question mark remained before the start of the game. How well could Stacy Hall perform with a heavily taped ankle? Hall was doubtful for the tournament, but did play. It was the determined play of the outstanding Daredevil guard that inspired the rest of the team. Hall scored 26 points and hit a key three-pointer that tied the game at 50-50 with 1:36 to go.

McDowell held a 47-46 lead after trailing 46-43. A basket by Hall and free throws by Barry Hall and Dale Hinkle put McDowell up by one, 47-46. Johnson, after Chad Bowling and Mitch Harris fouled out, took a charge for the Wildcats and hit back to back baskets to give Shelby Valley a 50-47 lead with 1:55 remaining in the game. Following Hall's game-tying try two Shelby Valley free throws followed a McDowell turnover, putting the Wildcats up 52-50. With 36 seconds remaining, Hinkle grabbed an offensive rebound and stuck it back in to tie the game, 52-52.

Johnson hit his first free throws with 28 seconds remaining in the game to make the score 54-52. The Wildcats applied full court pressure and forced Earl Cook to dribble the ball out of bounds with 21 seconds on the clock, turning the ball back over to Shelby Valley. Johnson was fouled again and hit the front end of the two shot foul to give Shelby Valley a three point cushion.

McDowell had the ball with 16 seconds to go and plenty of time to get a shot off. However, McDowell squandered away the time and the ball was knocked out of bounds with two seconds remaining. The best the Daredevils could do was a lay up by Cook to make the final margin 55-54.

Shelby Valley's trapping defense caused McDowell all kinds of problems. McDowell held a nine point advantage, 41-32, late in the third quarter when Shelby Valley turned up the heat. The Daredevils turned the ball over on five consecutive possessions with the Wildcats scoring on four of them to tie the game, 41-41, on a three point play by Bowling.

Barry Hall missed two free throws at the end of the quarter that could have given McDowell the lead. Shelby Valley outscored the Daredevils 5-2 to take their 46-43 lead.

McDowell had seven first quarter turnovers but managed to stay close to the Wildcats after falling behind 5-2 early in the period. Two baskets by Stacy Hall and one by Doug Hopkins gave McDowell the lead at 8-5. The two teams were tied at 11 apiece at the first stop.

McDowell seemed to have solved Shelby Valley's pressure defenses as Stacy Hall scored the Daredevils first 10 points of the second quarter to give his team a 19-13 lead. The scored was tied 27-27 when McDowell went on a 6-0 run. Two free throws by Hopkins and Stacy Hall gave McDowell a six point lead, 33-27, going to the locker room at the half.

McDowell (11-20) was 19 of 31 from the field for a 61 percent shooting night. The Daredevils hit 13 of 17 free throw attempts. Turner's ball club made just one of three three-point attempts.

Shelby Valley (25-3) shot a cool 42 percent for the game, hitting 20 of 47 attempts from the field. They were 15 of 26 from the charity stripe and went 0-11 from three-point range.

Stacy Hall led the Daredevils with his 26 points as he closed out a great high school career. Hinkle hit for nine points and Matt Johnson scored eight.

Bowling scored 17 points to lead the Wildcats. Kevin Hall finished with 9 points. Johnson added eight points with seven coming when the Wildcats need them, in the final two minutes of the game.

Martin Honored by NAIA as Player of the Week

David Martin, 6' 7" center, a senior at Alice Lloyd College, from Prestonsburg, has been named "Player of the Week" by the National Association of Intercollegiate Athletics (NAIA). The recognition was awarded Martin for his significant role in the last three Alice Lloyd College victories.

Martin's accomplishments in last week's contests include 79 points, 37 rebounds, 6 assists and 4 blocked shots. His field goal percentage last week was 80 percent. He registered 81 percent from the charity stripe.

Besides last week's recognition, Martin, in 27 games this season, leads District 32 in individual rebounds with 10.93 rebounds per game and is third in field goal percentage with 61.

Martin's consistent hardwood performance is exceeded only by his classroom excellence. He has recorded a 3.56 grade point average in biology and expects to attend Medical School in Kentucky or West Virginia next year. He and his wife, Sabrina, are the proud parents of a two-year old son, Josh.

"This honor came as a complete surprise," explained Martin, upon hearing the news of the award. "But I don't want to take the credit alone. I want to thank my teammates and my coaches for their support."

Jim Stepp, Alice Lloyd's head coach, says Martin is "the finest basketball player in the history of this institution...leading his team to a school record 20 wins."

Martin has exhibited outstanding leadership in college organizations. He is a member of Alpha Chi, National Academic Honor Society, and a member of Student Government. His work-study assignment (all students are required to work at Alice Lloyd College) has been as tutor and lab assistant in biology.

Coach Stepp is amazed at Martin's energy and discipline and at "how well he has successfully managed his life."

Long term goals for Martin are to complete Medical School and return to Prestonsburg as a family practitioner.

Martin's parents, Wendell and Sandra Martin, teach in the Prestonsburg elementary school district. They have one other son, Tim, who is a freshman at Morehead State University.

If David Martin's past is an indicator of future success, the he will surely reflect credit to his vocation and to the community in which he chooses to reside.

Ward is a former Floyd County assistant coach at Wheelwright. Another Floyd Countain, Mike Reitz team will be in the up coming Sweet Sixteen — Harrison County. Harrison County will face Bowling Green in the second game Thursday at 2:30 p.m. If both Belfry and Harrison County win first round games they will meet each other in the quarter finals Friday evening.

Conley, despite a slow start, led the Cougars in scoring with 23 points. Twenty-two coming in the second half. Bailiff finished with 17 points as he ended his career as a Cougar. Fraley added 14 points and pulled down 18 rebounds.

Blackcats to play 40 game schedule as baseball nears

With the final high school basketball games in the books, it is time to turn our attention to the spring sport and America's favorite pastime — baseball.

The high school baseball season gets underway March 26 and will run through the second week of May when the district tournament gets underway. The regional tournament is scheduled for May 20-24 and sectional play is scheduled for May 27-31.

Coach Russell Shepherd's Prestonsburg Blackcats will play 40 regular season games, including 16 doubleheaders. The Blackcats open their season on May 26 at Archer Park with the Hornets of Magoffin County.

April 19-21, Prestonsburg will take part in the Pikeville Invitational tournament. Game times are scheduled for 4:30 p.m. with some games starting earlier on weekends. Prestonsburg will play their first doubleheader against Johns Creek at Johns Creek on April 1.

The schedule is as follows:

Crappiethon good reason to hang out "gone fishing" sign

Lake Barkley and Kentucky Lake are Crappiethon country and the tournament is about to begin. Sponsored by Crappiethon USA, the 1991 tournament offers $457,700 in prizes.

This year, for the first time, the contest will be a weight tournament. In the past, the tournament was always a tag fish tournament.

To qualify for prizes, contestants must have a 1991 Bounty Hunter Badge registered in his or her name prior to catching a qualifying crappie, in addition to following other guidelines regarding fishing methods and equipment. Specified equipment qualifies contestants for bonus prizes.

You don't have to be fishing experts, either. In past years first time fishermen have won prizes. Two years ago a five year old won $2,000 for a nationally sponsored fish. With prize like that, a trip to this toumey could be well worth hanging a "gone fishing" sign on your door!

Spring is a good time for crappie fishing. During March and April, their spawning season, crappie come in close to the bank and gorge themselves on minnows. After the spawning season they move into deeper water.

NOW THAT WAS SUPER!

Wasn't it great to see a Super Bowl that lived up to its billing? For the first time in years, the Super Bowl was an outstanding, well-played game. With several lead changes, the game coming down to the last play and a one-point margin of victory, football fans enjoyed a truly super NFL championship.

I'll admit that I had picked Buffalo to win the game, based on the offensive abilities of Jim Kelly, Thurman Thomas, James Lofton and Andre Reed. I really thought that the Bills had too much offense for the Giants. What I — and many other folks — hadn't counted on was the ability of the Giants' defense to shut down that potent, no-huddle offense. The Giants' offense controlled the ball more than twice as long as the Bills' offense did.

What I also hadn't counted on was the composure of Giants' quarterback Jeff Hostetler. Hit time and time again by Bills' defenders, Hostetler was able to keep his head in the game and complete crucial short-yardage third-down passes. He hit Stephen Baker with a nice pass to the corner of the end zone to bring his team within two points at the end of the first half. Although I can't argue with the selection of Otis Anderson as the recipient of the game's Most Valuable Player trophy — Anderson had one heck of a game — I think Hostetler was really most valuable. He showed everyone that he is in a class with the best of the NFL's quarterbacks.

There was no real goat in the game either. It would be unfair to single out Buffalo kicker Scott Norwood, who missed the potentially game-winning kick with just a few seconds on the clock. He made an important kick early in the game, along with a couple of extra points. He shouldn't be blamed for the way the game turned out.

What we did end up with were two well-balanced teams playing a balanced game. When the two played in the regular season, the Bills won by four points. If the Bills and the Giants played six games in a row, I believe that they would split three games apiece. Two teams that closely matched make the perfect formula for a truly Super Bowl.

Giant Flag Displayed

Just before every game of the 15th Regional basketball tournament at Belfry, a huge American flag, was brought onto the floor. The flag was so large, several people worked to unfold it. It was unfurled while the National Anthem was played. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

15th Region Tournament Is No Place For Faint Hearted

The 1990-91 15th Regional Basketball Tournament is now part of history. The tournament, played at Belfry High School, brought in the fans to a full house each night, despite its location. The road to Belfry was not only long, but the two mountains that had to be conquered each night made it seem a lot farther than it actually was.

Many had reservations about the tournament being held at Belfry, which is near the West Virginia line. Reservations of course were because of the distance to Belfry from the other participating schools. Traveling the roads to Belfry was no fun by any imagination. However, I have to confess that basketball fans certainly saw some excellent basketball.

I for one do not like the blow outs. The run away's. The laughter's. The no contests. Those kind of games were non existent except for the Paintsville/Belfry game (a 17 point rout). Two games went into overtime — Johnson Central/Elkhorn City and Belfry/Shelby Valley. Betsy Layne won over Millard by two points. Shelby Valley nipped McDowell by one point. Belfry had to hold off Elkhorn City before winning by just four points. There was plenty of exciting basketball in this year 15th Region tournament.

The folks at Belfry High School went out of their way to make fans feel comfortable. Some doubted the reasoning behind having a split session on Friday night. But, if you were at Friday night's first and second game, you would have seen that there was no way that everyone could have gotten in that gym and watched their teams play. Betsy Layne and Elkhorn squared off in the first game and both sides were completely full. Once the gym was emptied, fans from Belfry and Shelby Valley filled both sides. It was great! And of course the finals saw hardly any standing room.

An All-Regional Tournament Team was named after the game Saturday night. J. J. Hylton, Shawn Hager, Mark Williamson from Belfry were named to the 12 player team. Other's named were: Phillip King, Betsy Layne; Stacy Hall, McDowell; Tyler Bailiff, Todd Conley, Elkhorn City; Chad Bowling, Jeremy Johnson, Shelby Valley; Jody Salisbury, Johnson Central; Chris Lyons, Paintsville; James Damron, Millard.

Shelby Valley won the team free throw trophy by hitting 81 percent of their free throws. Walt Preston of Paintsville won the individual free throw trophy with 100 percent.

First place cheerleaders trophy went to Belfry High School and Johnson Central took second place.

Each player from the Belfry and Elkhorn City teams received individual first and second place trophies. Plaques were presented to Coach Raymond Justice Jr and Randy McCoy.

After the pregame prayer, a giant American flag was unfurled on the floor for the playing of the National Anthem.

Tournament manger was Paul Dotson of Belfry High School, who, along with his staff, did an excellent job with the tournament.

Belfry will represent the 15th Region for the second consecutive year in the Sweet Sixteen in Lexington which begins today at 1 p.m. All Floyd Countians, as well as all in the 15th Region, should support the Belfry Pirates.

Tates Creek Has Parkway Connections

The 1991 Boys' State Basketball tournament gets underway today at 1 p.m. at Rupp Arena in Lexington. Floyd County does not have a team in the Sweet Sixteen but has a "country kin" connection with the Lexington Bates Creek squad.

Prestonsburg Attorney Paul Burchett has two sons playing for Bates Creek — senior Paul Burchett Jr. and freshman Brad Burchett.

"I suppose that I am the only father that has two sons playing for one team in the state tournament this year," Burchett said. Burchett mentioned that Ralph Willard, head coach at Western Kentucky University, will have two sons playing in the upcoming Kentucky classic, but for separate teams. Willard's son Keith plays for Bates Creek and his younger brother Kevin plays for Bowling Green.

The Eastern Kentucky connection goes farther than the two players. According to Burchett, the wife of Nolan Barger, head coach at Bates Creek, is from Whitesburg. The Bates Creek cheerleader sponsor is Sandy Ratliff, formerly Sandy Peters from Martin. Her husband David hails from Betsy Layne. Lindsey Davis, father of Jonathan Davis, another player on the Bates Creek team, is a former minister from Paintsville.

Burchett says that he tries to drive the Parkway at least twice a week to watch his sons play basketball. "I drove 7,000 miles this year and I've only missed three games," explained the Prestonsburg attorney. Burchett even made the trip to Myrtle Beach when the Bates Creek team played in a tournament there.

"The thing is that I have three more years to drive it," he said. Burchett said that he plans on making all the games he can. Son Paul is the sixth man on the team. Paul is averaging eight points per game and is the three-point shooter for the Creekers where he hits 45 percent of his attempts. Brad is a freshman and plays freshman and junior varsity as well as varsity basketball.

"Brad was telling me that in all the freshman, junior varsity and varsity games he has played, they total 65 games this year," said Burchett. Coach Tom Bryant of Centre College is interested in the older Burchett.

The Creekers will open the tournament today at 1 p.m. against regular season opponent Scott County. "We beat Scott County back on January 4 about one or two points on their floor," explained Burchett. Burchett expects the tournament game to be a good one.

Burchett says that in recent years he was able to take his sons in one on one basketball at his home at Sugar Loaf. "But now it is hard to beat them. One day, Paul said that I had beaten him for the last time and he was right; I haven't beaten him since."

Harrison County also has a "parkway connection." The Thoroughbreds are coached by former Martin alumnus — Mike Reitz.

Bassin' with the Pros

HOME LAKE JINX HAUNTS PROS

Surprisingly, the one lake bass pros do not want a national tournament on is their own home lake, the water they know best.

"What happens," explains Evinrude Pro Staff angler Burma Thomas, who has been victimized by the home lake jinx, "is that everybody predicts you to do well but because you know so many different spots to catch fish you never settle down long enough to catch them."

"You spend your time running from one place to another instead of fishing."

Not long ago, Thomas experienced the home lake jinx herself at Alabama's Lake Guntersville, where she lives and fishes weekly.

"During practice I had found one place that held enough big bass to win the tournament," she remembers, "so on the first morning I went straight to it. The trouble was, the bass didn't bite, and I got scared, so I started running. The fish didn't bite in my second spot either, so then I really started running."

On the second day, Thomas settled down and did not run as much, but by then she felt she had no chance to win. On the third and final day of competition, she returned to her original spot and stayed there. She caught 21 pounds of bass and managed to finish fifth.

"Those bass were there all the time," the Evinrude pro laments. "I just didn't give them time to bite, and that's what happens to practically everyone on their home lake. "We always say bass fishing is a mental game, and this type of experience really proves it. The pressure is enormous, and the only way to get over it is to slow down and settle down."

Thomas says the jinx is created because an angler fishing the water he knows best probably has more confidence in his ability to catch bass than at any other tournament. When those bass don't bite immediately, the confidence quickly shatters.

"The problem is compounded by the fact you start to second guess yourself because you have so many places you can go," she says. "If they don't bite at the second spot, you simply run to a third, and the longer you go without catching a fish, the more rattled you become."

"You begin to ask yourself if you should go to spot A or spot B or spot C. You might actually visit all three places, but you don't stay long enough to catch anything."

"I know a top pro on the men's circuit who actually went three complete tournament days without catching a bass on his home lake because he kept running the entire time and never stayed in one place."

Thomas thinks one way to fight the home lake jinx is to make a game plan that only incorporates a few choice fishing spots, and to stay with that plan, regardless of what the bass do. That at least eliminates much of the running.

"Still, you want to win on your home lake," the popular lady pro explains, "and staying in one or two chosen places when the fish aren't cooperating is hard to do."

JIGGING SPOONS CAN LEAD TO FAST BASS LIMITS

Bass tournament pro Jack Chancellor will never forget seven action-filled minutes he spent on the Alabama River During the 1982 Bass Masters Classic.

That's the length of time it took him to catch 11 bass.

"I'd been fishing a plastic worm all morning and had not caught a fish," remembers the Johnson Outboards Pro Staff angler, but at seven minutes before 11 a.m. a bass hit and missed the worm right at the boat as I was reeling in for another rod with a silver jiggling spoon, and just flipped the spoon out into the water.

"It never touched bottom, as a bass grabbed it. I landed that bass, and from then on it was just one fish after another as fast as I could bring them up."

"Then," recalls Chancellor, "the 12th bass that hit came loose and I remember thinking that I wouldn't catch another bass there. Sure enough, I didn't."

When that bass escaped, Chancellor stopped fishing to begin culling his limit. The total elapsed time for him to catch the 11 bass had been just seven minutes.

"Actually, I've done that several times," explains the Johnson pro, "although only that once during a national tournament. There have been occasions where two friends and I landed and released more than 100 bass a day, all of them caught on a jiggling spoon."

One reason jiggling spoons, which are simply small slabs of metal with a treble hook attached, are so effective in the autumn months, Chancellor believes, is because the lures look like baitfish.

"In the fall, bass often concentrate in large schools as they follow swarms of baitfish around a lake. A spoon, dropped into the school and jiggled, looks like an injured minnow. One bass hitting that spoon seems to trigger a feeding response in the other bass, so you can often catch them as fast as you can get a lure in front of them."

The actual technique of jiggling a spoon is simple, says Chancellor. All that's required is to drop a spoon to the desired depth, then make it jump by a quick upward snap of the rod tip. The more pronounced the rod tip movement, the higher the spoon will jump.

"You don't always want to make a spoon jump a lot," cautions Chancellor. "There are many times when I barely jiggle my rod tip so the spoon moves less than six inches up and down. It all depends on the mood of the bass, so try different jiggling motions until you start catching fish."

"Normally, you lower the spoon back down with your line tight, too, so you can feel strikes. Most will occur as the spoon is falling after you jig it."

Chancellor's favorite spoon jiggling spots in the autumn are on the ends of deep points, around river sandbars, and into deep brush. He tries to fish the lure as vertically as possible right over the boat's gunwale.

"Don't worry about getting the lure snagged in deep brush, either," the Johnson pro continues. "Most of the time, just jiggling the rod lightly will free a spoon."

1. Which team limited Kelly Coleman to his lowest point total in 1956 and eliminated Wayland by one point enroute to the state title?
2. Where was the first State Tournament held?
3. Who are the only men to play, coach and referee in the state tournament?
4. Which region has never won a state championship?
5. Which championship winning coach has had entries from three different regions?
6. Which two coaches won the title in their only years of high school coaching?
7. Which was the first black team to play a tournament game?
8. Only one championship game score (26-13) has been repeated. What school was the victim both times?
9. Which referee worked ten straight State Tournaments?
10. Which former Sweet Sixteen star received the first NBA citizenship award?

IT'S A FACT....

Wayland's "King" Kelly Coleman still holds the single game scoring record when he scored 68 points against Bell County in the consolation game of the 1956 state tournament.....The former Wayland Wasp also holds the third spot with 50 points against Shelbyville in 1956.....Coleman holds the present day record for total points scored in a state tournament with 185 also in 1956.....Richie Farmer of Clay County is second with 137 in 1988.....Coleman holds many other State Tournament records, including the record for the most field goals in one game — 27.....most field goals in one half — 14 — and also the second spot with 13.....most field goals in a tournament — 69.....and most free throws in a state tournament, 47.....Wayland holds the record for most points in a half — 72 and most points in a quarter — 38.....Wayland made four trips to the spring classic and won four while losing four....."King" Kelly Coleman is an inductee in the Kentucky Hall of Fame.

McDowell Grade School Revives Junior Majorettes

The last time the McDowell Grade School had majorettes was back in 1984. But this year the squad was revived to perform at grade school basketball games and also the girls high school varsity contests. Kitty Moore and Patti Hicks decided it was time to get the squad back on the floor performing and that is just what they did. Tryouts for the squad was held in early November and 14 girls tried out. Two judges had the honors of choosing the seven girl team — Libby Hall and Judy Looney — both former music teachers at the school. The girls began to practice at least six hours a week. Both sponsors of the newly activated squad were former junior majorettes and high school majorettes at McDowell. "We've always loved majorettes and twirling, so we wanted to provide the same opportunity to junior high school girls as were once provided," said the sponsors for their reasons for starting the junior majorettes again. The two sponsors also said they would like to congratulate the junior majorettes "on a job well done this year and to say thanks for making our first year a great success." Both sponsors say they are determined to keep majorettes and twirling alive at McDowell grade school.

FISH TAGGING IN FULL SWING

In late winter and very early spring, just before the annual angler onslaught begins, the state fish and wildlife department's fish-tagging crews are hard at work all across Kentucky. "Tagging fish is one of the methods we use to monitor what's happening with a fish population," says Kerry Prather, central district fisheries biologist for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources. Crappie and largemouth bass, Kentucky's leading game fish, are the species most often tagged for study and evaluation. Tagging efforts are focused on bodies of water where biologists are anxious to learn more about the fish populations present; "study lakes" is the actual term applied. "When we're working a lake, we try to stay well away from anglers, if at all possible," said Prather. "That's another reason we tag early in the year." Tagging operations are not feasible during the coldest winter months because fish are so deep that they're unaffected by the low-voltage, electro-fishing gear. But ideally, the work of the tagging teams is complete by the time the spring season "cranks" up. Electro-fishing and tagging procedures provide a wealth of valuable information. Biologists can learn about a particular species' abundance, and how that species compares to other species' population levels. By taking scale samples, scientists can further compare its size and age to determine how well the fish is growing. "By studying the returned tags, we also can estimate how many sport fish are being taken and make judgments to insure the quality of future populations," Prather said. "For example, if we tag a thousand crappie at a particular lake and get back six hundred tags over the course of the fishing season, we know the harvest rate is extremely high," he continued.

enough fish are being taken, officials may recommend increasing creel limits. Many people mistakenly assume when they see electro-shocking boats on a lake that some kind of deep, dark, mysterious problem exists, and that's not necessarily true. Tagging and return programs are simply a means of gathering the information necessary to properly manage a species or fishery. Another false assumption is that fish — and subsequently the quality of fishing — are harmed by the "shocking" method of collecting sample fish. But, that's not true either. Here's the way it works. A jon-boat is outfitted with electric "worms" — strands of cable which hang down into water from long poles attached to the front of the boat. At a spot where target fish might be present, a low-voltage current is sent through the cables into the water causing nearby fish to be momentarily — and very mildly — stunned. As the stunned fish drift to the surface, dipnetters at the front of the boat quickly scoop the shocked fish into the boat where the fish are measured, weighed and painlessly fitted with a numbered tag. In minutes, the fish are returned to the water where they quickly swim away under their own power. Though the effects of the ordeal may linger for just a little while, in only a few hours the tagged fish are completely back to normal, their behavior and feeding patterns affected only briefly. The whole key to success in the KDFWR's tagging studies is angler participation in returning tags from caught "sample" fish. Pre-addressed, postage paid envelopes for tag returns are available at most bait shops, sporting goods stores and marinas. By answering the few simple questions on the outside of the envelope and returning the tag to the state and wildlife department, anglers are helping to insure outstanding Kentucky fisheries for the future. What's more, each returned tag nets the fisherman $5 for the effort. Returning a tag of reward almost offsets the cost of an annual fishing license and greatly aids the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

Sweet Sixteen Tournament

By EARL COX Sports Columnist

The State Tournament. The Sweet Sixteen. The Greatest Show on Earth. No matter what it's called, the Boys' State Basketball Tournament is an experience that lasts a lifetime. There simply isn't anything on Earth to compare with it. In no other state is there such a show, where 16 teams gather to decide a state champion over four days. Ask Clem Haskins. He led Taylor County to the State Tournament and then went on to an All-American career at Western Kentucky University, a productive career in the National Basketball Association and now coaches the University of Minnesota. But nothing — nothing — compares with playing in Kentucky's State Tournament, Haskins told a Louisville audience last summer when he was inducted into Kentucky's Athletic Hall of Fame. It may have been significant, too, that when he was inducted into the Dawahares-Kentucky High School Athletic Association Hall of Fame, Haskins brought his entire family to watch, enjoy and share his honor. The same was true a year later when his daughter Clemette was inducted into the Dawahares-K.H.S.A.A. Hall of Fame. None of his immediate family was on hand for the Kentucky Athletic Hall of Fame induction — and that certainly is not to denigrate the Athletic Hall of Fame. I serve on both selection committees.

to Louisville to see the Sweet Sixteen. "One year I caught a ride in the back of a pig truck," said Jock. "By the time I got to Louisville, I smelled so bad nobody would get near me. But I had a good time at the Armory." When Sutherland guided Lafayette to the state championship, he cried like a baby — and announced that he was getting out of coaching. After all, what more was there to accomplish? He had just won the state championship of Kentucky! The building Jock referred to is the Jefferson County Armory, now called Louisville Gardens. The Armory is one of seven buildings that have been the site of the State Tournament. It started at Centre College, moved to the University of Kentucky's Buell Amory, then to UK's Alumni Gym, to the Armory, to UK's Memorial Coliseum, back to Louisville when Freedom Hall was built and then to Lexington's Rupp Arena. Under an agreement made secretly by Louisville's Mayor Jerry Abramson and Lexington's Mayor Scotty Baesler and forced upon the K.H.S.A.A. by the two politicians, the tournament now alternates between Rupp Arena and Freedom Hall. The plan was hatched by Baesler. Some people have seen 50 and even 60 of the State Tournaments. One reason people keep going year after year is that the tournament is a great social affair. It's the only time of year when Kentuckians from Paducah to Ashland get to renew their friendship. My first State Tournament was in 1946 when several of my friends and I played hooky from old Irvine High and hitch-hiked to Louisville where we watched Breckinridge Training (from Morehead State College) win the championship. There was heck to pay when we returned home, but fortunately our principal also was the basketball coach so he was understanding. Two years later we didn't have to hitch rides as our school won its only trip to the State Tournament. I can attest that it's a once-in-a-lifetime experience and one that always will be remembered. I have seen every tournament since 1946, including parts of the two that came when I served in the U.S. Army. I'm often asked the best players I've seen, the best teams, etc. I don't like to single out teams and players because there have been so many great ones. But I don't mind telling anyone who asks that Cliff Hagan put on the most dominating one-man show in 1949 when he led Lawrence McGinnis' Owensboro Red Devils to the championship against Ralph Carlisle's Lafayette Generals. Hagan dominated the scoring, rebounding and defense. His performance was on a par with that of Bill Walton, when he hit something like 15 of 20 shots one year in St. Louis to lead UCLA to a national championship. So congratulations to this year's regional champions! Your names will go down in the record books — and you'll never forget YOUR State Tournament.

Woodrow Burchett: another decade of a colorful career

humorist, philosopher, politician, and Kentucky legend

by Aileen Hall

When Prestonsburg Attorney Woodrow Burchett celebrates another birthday Saturday, March 16, it will mark another decade of an exceptional life and a colorful career. Born with a rare wit, he has used it to make friends from all walks of life.

He isn't affected by traits of van-

Herald-Leader calls him "the Sage of Cow Creek" and often uses his witticisms and quotations to fill his regular column.

Different people have other names for him. Former Governor Bert Combs calls him "Scrooge." Their friendship began many years ago when Combs opened his law practice in Prestonsburg and their offices were side by side. They developed a mutual respect and have remained friends, political allies and fellow attorneys.

When Combs served as governor, he appointed his Floyd County ally to the Public Service Commission. For part of this tenure he served the commission as chairman, a role that was rotated with the members.

Early in his career, Burchett was named City Attorney for Prestonsburg, and after that was elected for three successive terms as Floyd County Attorney. For eight years, he was Floyd County Chairman of the Democratic Party.

Probably no other person has kept his finger on the pulse of American politics more than he. Whether it be local, state or national, he will make an analysis and express it with candor. Sometimes he uses emphasis, as he did in a predication of the recent Senate race between Sloane and McConnell. He said, "Harvey Sloane would lose — even if he ran unopposed." He says what he thinks, even when it involves his own party, and he isn't often wrong.

Governor Julian Carroll appointed him to the Kentucky Harness Racing Commission. He was vice chairman for part of this tenure where he says, "I served with dignity and ignorance." He must have done well for he was reappointed to the commission by Governor John Y. Brown.

One of Burchett's proudest achievements has been as a member of Kiwanis International, a service organization he has supported for more than 50 years. In 1945 he served as a lieutenant governor for the Kentucky-Tennessee District.

In 1950 he made a speech for a December meeting of Kiwanis in Prestonsburg that included some special observations and predications. This was such a popular feature that it became an annual event and later expanded to clubs in Paintsville, Ashland and Lexington. He has his largest audience in Lexington where he was first heard by Dick Burdette of the Lexington Herald-Leader.

In a speech back in 1964, he said, "I don't propose to be a prophet...and this practice has been spawned by the necessity for a program at the last meeting of the year when attendance reaches an all-time low, and when those attending are too full of Christmas turkey and spirits to object to anything."

That talk included another observation: "About the age of 50 is when you feel your oats and corns at the same time." He also predicted, "There will be little change in women's fashions, but women's designs will always be the same." His audience loved the light touch and kept coming back for more.

Another area of his life that he cares much about is his membership at Irene Cole Memorial Baptist Church. He might joke about politics, his friends and many things, but he displays a rare seriousness about his church. "I'd like you to include this affiliation," he says. "It's an important part of my life." His role as trustee, finance chairman, Sunday School teacher and solid supporter covers a span of 45 years.

It was 55 years ago that he won the heart and hand of Narcie Sturgill whose family was prominent in Floyd and Knott County politics, her father was Henry Sturgill, and an uncle, Troy B., was Floyd County Sheriff for a time.

They were married in 1936 and have three children, Woodrow Burchett Jr. lives in Delaware, Ohio; Sarah Elizabeth (Sally) Allen lives in Prestonsburg; and Martha Ann Hart lives in Anchorage, Kentucky. There are seven grandchildren and three great-grandchildren. One grandson was lost in a tragic automobile accident some months ago.

There are now four Woodrow Burchetts. Woodrow Jr. has a son, Woodrow III who has a son, Woodrow IV. The youngest is two years old and lives with his family in Versailles.

The Burchett patriarch boasts that he has lived in Floyd County all his life. "I built a house on Cow Creek," he says, "and never was made to leave."

The truth is that he loves where he lives and what he does. Anywhere else in the world that he could go would find him homesick for this special spot he calls home. After a day at the office and in the battles of court, he is ready for the peacefulness he finds with Narcie — with their animals and flowers and the good country neighbors around them.

A lot of things have changed since Woodrow Burchett was born, March 16, 1911. He has observed it all with a keen eye and described it with an even keener wit. "I have a great past, but maybe not much future."

You get the feeling that he feels pretty grateful to have lived for 80 years, and that he treasures each day a bit more now. "I still practice law," he says, "but I don't accept any long drawn-out cases."

Then with a twinkle in his eye, he adds, "I don't even buy any green bananas."

Kim's Korner

Would someone please tell me when the preteen syndrome came into effect!

And, if it holds true, do all little girls experiencing this syndrome have their Daddies wrapped around their little finger?

This is currently being experienced in my household.

Sometimes I feel as if my 10-year-old daughter and I are Muhammad Ali and Joe Frazier.

Yes, sports fans, it's the fight of the year. In this corner, we have the big-overgrown, ridiculous mother.

And in the other corner, is the choice of tonight's fight — the sweet, lovable daughter.

And, of course, tonight's referee, Daddy!

The major factor for tonight's fight — quote, unquote — "this stupid ugly outfit Mom went and bought!"

Forget, sports fans, that it's an outfit Mom thought she'd love, spent mega bucks on, and thinks looks adorable on the battling contestant.

"It is not!"

Dad hears the verbal barrage, back and forth, until battle fatigue sets in.

"Why can't I wear what I want?"

"You do! I just pay for it. You choose what you wear everyday," Mom replies.

Then the argument over wardrobe is settled and Mom sits down to rest.

The 10-year-old exits and then comes out of the now "do not enter" or "enter at your own risk" room, and her hair is sprayed stiff.

"How much of my hair spray did you use anyway?" asks Mom.

"Shew! Just a little," the daughter replies.

"You don't need to use so much," Mom tries to explain.

And Fight No. 2, round 1, begins.

"I can't do anything right," the daughter screams.

Mom Screams — calm down.

"I'm trying to give you some pointers here, not telling you anything else."

Dad enters and points to each corner. "Okay girls, let's go to our respective corners."

It's amazing. There's 20 years difference in our ages. I'm still hip. Of course, it's the wrong term to use, I'm sure. But, I'm not going to send her to school in ruffles, banana curls, and anklets for crying out loud.

Why is it 10-year-olds, in this day and time, are going on 21? They know more at 10 than I did at 16, no joke.

I just wish mothers didn't seem to appear so uncool and unable to please. There has to be a happy medium at some age. The terrible two's, frivolous fours, sassy sevens, and treacherous tens.

What's next? So far, thirty's dirty and I'm exhausted!

The fight's over and the winner — it's a tie. We'll mix new with old to please.

Till next week, the thrill of victory and the agony of defeat shall continue...

Joint replacement restores mobility

Jean England

A relatively new procedure in the Medical World is performed at the Methodist Hospital by the skilled hands of two orthopedic surgeons.

Joint replacement surgery only began in the early 1960's and with constant advances in technology, the surgery is readily available to those patients in the Eastern Kentucky area who need it. Joint replacement surgery is a way to restore free movement to joints effected by arthritis.

Arthritis patients know that movement of joints is a terrible task once arthritis invades the area. Several methods of treatment are available to people who suffer from this disease.

The first step in treatment begins with anti-inflammatory medication such as aspirin. An exercise program and physical therapy will improve the function of the joint. When the disease progresses past the stage where anti-inflammatory drugs will help, injections of cortisone into the joint can help relieve pain associated with the stiffness caused by arthritis.

Dr. Krishnama Raju and Dr. Steven Shockey both practice at the Methodist Hospital and both doctors are board certified orthopedic surgeons. Dr. Raju said that joint replacement surgery is needed when the pain of arthritis can no longer be eased with medication or when arthritis has caused severe deformity that interferes with the function of the joint. Dr. Shockey reported that before the surgery is performed a complete physical examination is a must. He said that a history of the patient is very important along with X-rays in making the right decision about surgery. Dr. Shockey said the basic decision about surgery comes to a functional assessment of the particular joint. Both doctors agree that joint replacement surgery is the last resort, but both said that the surgery can enable a patient to perform the specific tasks that he or she wishes.

Ashcamp resident Jean England is a believer in joint replacement surgery. England said that at the surgeries she has had at Methodist have kept her from being crippled. "I'd have been in a wheelchair if it hadn't been for him," she explained. The "him" she is referring to is her physician Dr. Raju. At this time, England has had four surgeries. She explained that she has joint replacement surgery each year. The surgeries were performed on her right hip, right knee and both wrists. The surgeries began in 1986 and since that time, England said she has been able to do many things she enjoys such as holding her great-grandchildren.

Simple, day to day tasks that we take for granted were hard for England, now she said she can even cook better than before and she can wash dishes and sweep.

England came to Methodist because, "there ain't no use of going anywhere else when you've got the best. I feel like we have as good of doctors here as in Lexington, so why run so far," she said.

One of Dr. Shockey's patients, Arthur Scott, said his right hip was replaced in August of last year. Scott reported that just a few short weeks after surgery he was up walking and putting weight on his leg. Although Scott has had some major health problems since the surgery, he said his repaired hip is in good shape.

Pop bottles and scrap iron

Being a coal miner he couldn't have afforded it, but even if he could have, I doubt that my dad would have given me an allowance. So, when I was a kid growing up in a 1940's coal camp, I got my pocket change and spending money the hard way—I earned it.

Even though most families in Society Row raised their own odd-job help, and the older boys always got the precious few big jobs—like mowing grass, cutting weeds or washing upstairs windows—we younger entrepreneurs were not dismayed.

Gene Miller, who ran the Northeast Coal Company store, was paying 15 cents a case for pop bottles, and scrap iron brought whatever we were skilled enough to bargain for.

With every household containing six or seven pop drinkers, Society Row was a virtual goldmine for discarded bottles.

Pepsi, Coke, Spur, Nehi, 7-Up, Dr. Pepper, Grapette, Orange Crush—they were all worth money to us, and it was not uncommon to be able to gather up three or four cases a week by just paying attention to where most folks put them.

Of course, all the kids in the neighborhood would just drop them wherever they happened to be when they took that last swallow. So, the rope swing under the big sycamore between the dairy barn and Claude VanHoose's house was always good for eight or ten. The pump rock in front of Virgil Green's house would net us three or four and a stroll along the road, checking against the fences and the ditch line, would almost always add another dozen or so.

On those rare occasions when we were shy a couple to fill a case, we checked a few back porches in the neighborhood. Some people would throw away their bottles in a most peculiar way; they would put them in nice little rows next to their back doors, or even put them in pop cases.

If by some chance even a check of the neighborhood porches proved fruitless, we could always pick up a few from the back porch of the store—before we marched through the front door to sell them.

Now, selling scrap iron was another deal altogether. In the first place, scrap iron was mighty hard to come by. So, we didn't bother to go hunting for it. When we found scrap iron, it was by chance. Someone would throw away an old cook stove or a bicycle rim all bent out of shape, and we'd just happen to find it and carry (or drag) it home.

In the second place, everybody had a scrap iron pile behind their house, and every member of the family contributed to it. Dad would bring home an old piece of junk iron he'd found beside the road someplace, or one of my older brothers would toss a piece of something or other onto the pile from time to time.

Anyway, about every month or two, an old man with a horse and wagon and a peg leg would come and buy it.

When we had a pretty-good-sized pile, sometimes, he'd give us two or three dollars. Most of the time, though, he'd just offer us a flat 50 cents and we'd take it. After all, that was more than we got for three cases of pop bottles.

Anyway, we wheeled and dealt enough to always have a little extra show fare or some loose change to rattle in our pockets if we wanted to impress someone.

Senior Citizens celebrate St. Patrick's Day at luncheon

On Wednesday, March 6, at 11 a.m. members of the Archer Senior Citizens Center gathered, once again, at the Holiday Inn here, for their monthly luncheon. Mrs. Patsy Evans, the center's director, welcomed the guests and Mr. Tim Collins of the Holiday Inn served as Master of Ceremonies.

The St. Patrick's Day theme was tastefully carried out, with emphasis on the table's centerpieces, which held mirrors, on which containers made from Shamrocks held green and yellow balloons and white streamers.

With appropriate music in the background, guests were served Irish Stew, vegetable salad, a desert of green and white parfait, tea and coffee.

Following the meal, Mr. Collins awarded prizes to Toots Parsley, who had traveled the most during this past year; Imogene Pelphrey and Joe Scott, the "dating couple;" Maxine Bierman, for being the nearest 'kin to a Patrick relative; Burieta Gearhart, Myrtle Allen, Otela Smiley and Mabel Jean LeMaster, all of whom were wearing shamrock corsages, guessed for the lucky number and Mrs. LeMaster won the prize.

A round of applause was given to Ralph, Chris and Scott, who served the food to group. Their smiles, words of cheer, and fast service was appreciated.

Two employees of the Floyd County Times, Mrs. Janice Shepherd, photographer and staff writer, and Mrs. Docia B. Woods, society editor, were recognized. Mrs. Woods received a gift for her many years of dedication in reporting society and senior citizens news.

Taking part in the program, either with readings or the telling of short stories were Tim Collins, Orville Cooley, Ora Reynolds, Minnie Pearl Robertson, Maxine Bierman and Sylvia Nunnery Purdy.

Hokey-Pokey and the Bunny Hop were enjoyed by some of the guests.

Mrs. Evans said the next luncheon at the Holiday Inn for this group will be on Wednesday, April 3, at 11 a.m.

Those attending included the following members and guests: Patsy and John Evans, Ora Bussey, Jerry Midkiff, Delia and Bill Nolan, Lucy McGuire, Roberta Taylor, Orville

Ousley, Euorene Roe, Burieta Gearhart, Roberta Sloan, Lillia Mae Price, Gladys and Orville Cooley, Toots Parsley, Irma and Troy McKenzie, Vivian Fraley, Nola Stepp, William Wilson, Otela Smiley, Jean Pelphrey, Irvine Harris, Geraldine Hager, Annabelle Maggard, Ada Meade, Thelma Wallen, Sylvia Purdy, Katherine Stratton, Shirley and Bill Callihan, Ora Reynolds, Wilma Ross, Loretta and Deward Stephens, Victoria Lafferty, Minerva Cooley, Maman Leslie, Carl Adkins, Goldia Williams, Myrtle Allen, T. ## Gift of appreciation

Retired teachers urged to help Opry

Members of the Floyd County Retired Teacher's Association held their regular luncheon-meeting Thursday, March 7, beginning at 9:30 a.m. at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, with Ruby Akers, president presiding and welcoming those in attendance.

The devotional was given by H.C. Dutton, who read the 100th and 146th Psalms from the Old Testament, and led the group in prayer. The Pledge of Allegiance was led by Alice O. Martin.

The president presented Billie Jean Osborne, director of the Kentucky Opry, who discussed her life and the experiences she has had in her years of teaching music, and also discussed the preparations she has been making on behalf of the Kentucky Opry. She outlined ways in which retired teachers may help in this endeavor. Then she sang "God Bless America." The group voted to make a $100 donation to the Opry fund.

During the business session, the minutes were read by Imogene Caldwell. She stated that the FCRT Association now has 149 members, and that there are 276 potential members. Nadine Hicks gave the financial report. She said that $390 had been realized from the sale of the Retired Teachers' Cookbooks.

The president asked for reports from committee chairmen: Melvina Thompson, membership; Elmer Martin, insurance; Virginia S. Goble, program; Delphia Hicks (in absentia), public affairs; Michael Auxier, (in absentia), legislation; Alice O. Martin, notification; Carlos Haywood (in absentia), nominating and elections; Danese Amburgey, pre-retirement; and Docia B. Woods, publicity.

Delegates for the KRTA convention, to be held in Louisville April 2-3, were elected as follows: Ruth Reynolds, Roberta Fugate, Ruby Akers, and Imogene Caldwell. Alternates elected were Alice O. Martin and Norma S. Stepp. Two additional alternates will be elected at a later date. Virginia S. Goble, a member of the KRTA's executive board, is automatically a delegate.

The president reviewed the achievements to be attained in order for this organization to receive the bronze star awarded by the KRTA.

The discussion regarding the possibility of lifetime membership was continued from the last meeting and it was decided that lifetime membership should not be considered at this time.

The group voted to donate $25 to the N.O. Kimbler Scholarship Fund.

The continuation of the publication of the Retired Teachers' Cookbook was discussed, and members were asked to contribute more recipes. Shirley Vanderpool, Violet T. Moore, and Edith Hopkins agreed to help with these. The president said the main reasons why the other cookbooks had sold so well were the following: the desire of mothers to have recipes by their children's former teachers; the desire of families to have cookbooks to which family members have contributed and the publicity given by the Floyd County Times.

Miss Akers, president, said the new cookbooks would be ready by the June meeting. She asked that recipes be mailed to Mrs. Alice O. Martin, Langley, Kentucky 41645.

Mrs. Norma S. Stepp gave a report on the Floyd County History Book, which is being sponsored by the Floyd County Bicentennial Book Committee. She stressed the need for histories of one-roomed schools of this county for possible publication in this forthcoming book. Persons interested in writing these accounts should contact Mrs. Carolyn Traum at the Bookworm in Prestonsburg.

The president said a request for retired teachers to serve in the tutoring of adults, in preparation for the GED tests, had been made and persons interested in this endeavor should call 886-1323.

Mrs. Virginia S. Goble presented Mr. Russell Boyd of Johnson County, who is serving as president of the Kentucky Retired Teachers' Association. Mr. Boyd brought greetings to the group and told of the progress being made in the KRTA. He added that a newsletter, published by him and Mr. Frank Hatfield, director of KRTA, would be received along with the KEA Journal by members of retired teachers' groups.

He expressed his appreciation for the success of the KRTA workshop held here this past year, which he stated had the largest attendance of any in Kentucky. He also said that the KRTA was in the process of buying property on which to locate its headquarters, and also of having a toll-free telephone installed for use by retired teachers needing assistance.

A.C.H.S. shows their patriotic colors!

Mrs. Judy Slone's sophomore homeroom led the Red, White, Blue Marathon held at Allen Central High School, February 6. This sophomore class collected contributions of $56.55 to be used to buy items to send to Floyd County troops and others stationed in the Persian Gulf. As the school winners, this class received a large yellow ribbon, a "We Support the Troops" banner, and decorated the fence in front of the school with a "God Bless Our Troops" slogan to show the support of A.C.H.S. and the community.

Ms. Jeanie Smith's freshman homeroom trailed the winners by ten cents. This freshman homeroom had a total of $56.45!

On this day, students, faculty, and staff wore patriotic colors. Each homeroom with contributions of $7 or more received a banner which read "We Support our Troops" and a yellow ribbon to display in their homeroom.

Altogether, this one-day project generated $351.59 in contributions, shattering the original goal set at $100.

Chris Lafferty, a sophomore, lead the school in to the Red, White, Blue Day Marathon events by singing the national anthem.

This project was done in support of the American Red Cross Chapter at Martin, and funds will be used to primarily support the soldiers from Floyd County in the Gulf area as well as other areas of service. Mrs. Thomasine Robinson, with the Martin Red Cross, assisted the school with yellow ribbons; Druther's Restaurant of Martin and Chevron of Eastern, donated styrofoam cups to decorate the fence. Coordinating this project at A.C.H.S. was faculty member, Ms. Patricia Watson.

Red, white, and blue winners

Students in Mrs. Judy Slone's sophomore homeroom at Allen Central High School displayed their patriotic spirit by collecting the most money, $56.55, to purchase supplies for troops in the Persian Gulf.

It's only a dime!

Mrs. Jeannie Smith's freshman class at Allen Central High School came within 10 cents of being declared the homeroom winner during the school's Red, White, and Blue Marathon held February 6. Students in this class collected $56.45.

Allen Central students place second in historical pictorial map contest

A Floyd County high school was among the students from the 7th Congressional District who competed in the local level of an outstanding educational program entitled Discover Early America: The National Historical Pictorial Map Contest.

Students in Caralita O'Quinn's class at Allen Central won second place in the high school division of the contest. First place winner was Robert Fannin's junior class at Phelps High School. Winning the middle school division of the contest were Nancy Cooper's eight grade class at Lewis County Junior High School in Vanceburg, first place, and her class at Tollesboro Middle School in Tollesboro, second place.

Coordinator of the district competition was Professor Robert D. McClinch. The judging of the maps took place at Prestonsburg Community College on February 23 with Dr. Thomas D. Matijasac serving as map judge.

Now in its third successful year, the Discover Early America map contest has been highly acclaimed by students, teachers, and administrators. Implemented in every congressional district in the nation, the contest is designed to encourage students to study geography in relation to historical events in early America. Elementary school students compete by class, middle school students by class or in small groups, and high school students in small groups or as individuals.

Students participating in the Discover Early America map contest completed special outline maps of the original 13 colonies, creating ways to illustrate significant events, personal, and places that shaped the Colonial and Founding periods of our history. Key criteria of the competition are historical accuracy, artistic creativity, and imagination.

Each winning school at the congressional level receives a $100 cash award and enters the state level of competition scheduled for March 10th. The winners at the state level receive a cash award of $500 and enter the national level of competition scheduled for Washington, D.C., in May.

Annual FOP power lift great success

The Fraternal Order of Police sponsored the second annual Power Lift for Easter Seals on Sunday, February 24 at the Jeffersontown Community Center. This event was a great success with $4,587.90 pledged to the programs of the Kentucky Easter Seal Society.

Fifteen participants recruited sponsors for pledges for each pound lifted. The lifter raising the most funds for Easter Seals was Chris Flowers of the St. Matthews FOP Lodge with a total of $573.50. Flowers was awarded a trophy and hotel weekend package from Holiday Inn Downtown for his efforts for disabled children and adults.

Trophies were awarded in each division with first place finishers as follows:

180-Under Division - David Quinlan; 181-199 Division - Steve Williams; 200-229 Division - Larry Ethington; 200-229 (Open) Division - Tom Olympia; 230-Up Division - Gary Burden and 230-Up (Open) Division - Danny Hendrick.

According to Captain Mike Hettich, FOP National Trustee and Easter Seal liaison, pledges were double last year's figure and he looks forward to continued growth in the coming year. The FOP has been a long time supporter of Easter Seals and continues to raise funds for programs necessary to provide services to Kentuckians with disabilities. Last year over 24,000 disabled children and adults receive services through Easter Seal facilities across the state.

County Kettle

By Marie Harmon

At this time I am not feeling on top of the world because I have not bounced back from the cancer scans I just went through. I am happy to say they were both negative, but it seems like I am letting my age get the best of me. I dare say I will be feeling better by the time this is all typed up, or at least by the time it is published.

If you are looking for something to warm you up on these cold wintery days, try a bowl of steaming hot soup or stew.

COUNTRY BEAN SOUP

by Reba McCracken

2 lb. Navy beans
2 1/2 qts. water
1 1/2 lb. meaty ham hock
1 1/2 med. onions chopped
1 bay leaf
2 or 3 tsp. salt
1/2 tsp. pepper

Sort and wash beans. Cover with water, 2 inches above beans and let soak overnight. Drain the beans. Combine beans, 2 1/2 qts., water, and remaining ingredients except salt, bring to a boil. Cover reduce heat and simmer 3 hours. Remove the meat from the bone; chop and return to the soup. Add salt to the soup. Yields 2 1/2 quarts.

NOTE: This soup freezes well. Dry beans will cook faster if the salt is not added until they are done.

1/4 c. cold water

Combine first two ingredients: dredge beef in flour mixture and brown in hot shortening in a Dutch oven. Stir in next seven ingredients, and bring to a boil. Cover and reduce heat, simmer 1 1/2 hours or until meat is tender. Add 1 1/2 c. water, potatoes, carrots, and onions. Cover and simmer 25 minutes or until vegetables are just tender.

Combine 3 tbsp. flour and 1/2 c. water in a small bowl; stir until smooth. Gently stir flour mixture into stew. Cover and simmer 5 minutes or until stew has thickened. Yields 2 1/2 quarts.

PORK IS A YEAR AROUND FAVORITE, WHETHER IT IS CHOPS, RIBS, BACON, ROASTS OR SAUSAGE. Pork must be cooked DONE, other wise it is dangerous. So many recipes I have been given are for uncooked pork and I will not submit them for publication.

To preserve pork's delicate flavor and juiciness, cook it until it is done BUT avoid over cooking. A meat thermometer should be used on large cuts of pork.

By Marie Harmon

The first robin, who usually struts around in my yard at the end of February with the mistaken conviction he's the harbinger of spring, doesn't fool me for a minute. Neither does the more modest crocus. I've seen both the robin and the crocus this week, along with the plum trees in bloom, shivering in the snowstorm we had the third and fourth of this month.

Like most gardeners, I have learned to watch for the blooming of the "sarvis" tree. This "sarvis" tree is widely known as the Serviceberry tree. The delicate white flowers of the Serviceberry are a sure sign that the ground is ready for garden planting. This one tree has several different names in different sections of the country—Juneberry, sarvis, May cherry, sugar plum, sugar pear, wild pear shadblow shad, and half a dozen other names, depending on where it grows. Serviceberry is a good name for this tree because service is what it provides.

Adapted by many soils and climates, self-pollinating, thickly veiled in lovely blooms at the time other trees are just waking up, serviceberry trees furnish reddish purple fruits that are good in many cooked dishes, or eaten raw. The main problem with this fruit is beating the birds and other wild life to them.

The beautiful white tree we see on a mountain side is the true harbinger of spring — the "sarvis". There have been at least four we could see from our house, across the river and up on the tops of the mountain. For the past few years there are only two. I would hate to see them all disappear.

So far this year, I have made no great plans for a garden this upcoming summer. By the time the serviceberry blooms, I will know if I will be having surgery or not. To not be outdone completely, I did set out a couple hundred onion sets, planted early peas, and sowed seed for cabbage and Broccoli plants, and of course began a lettuce bed, Saturday, March 2. Sunday I happened to look up at the top of my large plum tree and was pleasantly surprised to see it in full bloom. We all know the ground was white with snow on Monday morning.

I have read several ways to keep fruit trees from blooming and leafing out too early in the late winter warm spells. So far none have worked for me. My peach trees are showing green as the leaves are budding out, but the apple and nut trees are not showing any swollen buds.

Veterans Affairs

Editor's note: Following are representative questions answered daily by VA Counselors. Full information is available at any VA Office.

Question—Is there a time limit for applying for service-connected disability compensation from the Department of Veterans Affairs?

Answer—There is no time limit; however, the date of application is a factor in establishing the effective date of payment. Claims approved within one year of separation are retroactive to the date of separation. Thereafter, the effective date is the date the claim is filed.

Question—My mother receives a VA widow's pension and has recently lost her sight. Can the VA offer her any additional assistance?

Answer—Widows who qualify for death pension may receive increased benefits if they are blind, in a nursing home, or helpless or so nearly helpless as to require the regular aid and attendance of another person.

Question—As the widow of a World War II veteran, I received Dependency and Indemnity Compensation until my remarriage to a non-veteran. My second husband died recently. Am I entitled to restoration of VA benefits from my first marriage?

Answer—No. As of November 1, 1990, a surviving spouse of a deceased veteran who remarries cannot have those benefits restored when the second marriage is terminated by death or divorce.

Conquistadors

Fourth and fifth grade students of Mark and Faye Newsome at Stumbo Elementary School were surprised by a visit from Stephen Sherwood, a Peace Corps worker in Honduras, and Holly Schneider, an artist from Pennsylvania. Sherwood introduced students to the lifestyle and the language of the Honduras by showing slides and teaching them Spanish words. As Ms. Schneider drew pictures of animals common in Honduras, Sherwood taught students the Spanish words for them. Then the students would name the animals in English. Sherwood and Schneider were houseguests of the Ernest Newman family at Grethel during their visit.

Third graders celebrate smoke-free class of 2000

The quest for a smoke-free society by the year 2000 is moving another step forward thanks to the cooperative efforts of three of the nation's largest voluntary health organizations and more than 400 Kentucky elementary schools. The Tobacco-Free Young Kentuckians Coalition has named March as Smoke-Free Class of 2000 Month in Kentucky, and participating schools across the state will be planning special activities to celebrate the occasion.

Four Floyd county schools will participate in the project. They are Allen Elementary, Auxier Grade Elementary, Clark Elementary and Prestonsburg Elementary.

The Smoke-Free Class of 2000 project is the educational and awareness program developed by the three health organizations in response to the U.S. surgeon general's call for a smoke-free society by the year 2000. At the turn of the century when the students participating in the project graduate from high school, they will become the nation's symbolic smoke-free generation.

Award winner

Brandon Gearheart, third grade student at McDowell Elementary, recently won an award for earning the most stickers on his "A" award sticker chart. The contest was sponsored in his homeroom to promote exceptional work. The award was presented by his homeroom teacher, Jerri Turner. He is the son of Sandra Gearheart of Printer.

In Kentucky, the program was well received in its first two years, and now with the Smoke-Free Class of 2000 in third grade, free educational kits were distributed to 425 elementary schools, comprising more than 1,250 third grade classrooms.

"The Smoke-Free Class of 2000 project helps children make a decision not to smoke, rather than focusing on the health effects of smoking," said Barbara Phillips, M.D., chairperson of the tri-agency Tobacco-Free Young Kentuckians Coalition. "We hope that if children reject smoking at an early age, the decision will be reinforced long before they encounter the pressure to start smoking. That can happen as early as the fourth grade," Phillips said.

Gregory the Dragon, a character created especially for the project by the Disney organization last year, is being featured again in the third grade materials. Included in the materials are a short story, a poster featuring Gregory the Dragon, a certificate of recognition repro sheet, a student pledge repro sheet, discussion questions, and suggested art activities.

"By using these new materials, the students will gain new skills and understanding to help them avoid smoking," Phillips said. "For example, they will positively express their opinion for a smoke-free environment. They will understand and express that other people's smoke makes eyes water, hair and clothing smell bad and is not good for our bodies. And the students will feel free to remove themselves from a smoke-filled environment."

During Smoke-Free Class of 2000 Month in March, participating schools across Kentucky will plan special activities such as poster contests, songs, skits, school banners, and other means of expressing what they've learned through the project.

The American Cancer Society, American Heart Association, and American Lung Association are already planning for next year's fourth grade activities, and they anticipate continued growth in the number of participating schools.

Woman's club discusses spring rummage sale

The regular monthly meeting of the GFWC/KFWC Prestonsburg Woman's Club's executive board, was held Thursday, March 7, at 7 p.m. at the club's Arts and Crafts House at Archer Park.

The main topic of discussion was the rummage sale, which is planned for April 1, 2, and 3 at this clubhouse. Members were requested to bring donated rummage there on March 22 and 23.

Present were Linda McGuire, Kathy Lowe, Sandy Burchett, Earlene Nelson, Elizabeth Ramey, Sue Goble, and Phyllis Herrick.

The regular meeting of the club began at 7:30 p.m. with Linda McGuire, president, presiding, welcoming the members and leading the Pledge to the American Flag. Kathy Lowe led the group in the Lord's Prayer.

Mrs. Lowe introduced the speaker, Debbie Patton, dietitian at Our Lady of the Way Hospital at Martin. She spoke on "Nutrition for the Nineties," a special project of the KFWC president. She recommended several ways to improved one's diet, including the reduction of fat, sodium and sugar intake and the increase of fiber and carbohydrates.

On behalf of the club, the speaker was presented with a gift.

The minutes of the last meeting were read by Sue G. Martin, secretary. In the absence of Dorothy Harris, treasurer, the financial report was given by Kathy Lowe.

Mabel Brown, chairman of the Arts and Crafts House, reported that the Woman's Club sign for the Clubhouse has been repaired and is now ready to be hung in place. Maxine Bierman, chairman of the Arts and Crafts department, said that the kiln, owned by this club, had been taken to Louisville by Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Burchett for repairs and was now in working order.

It was reported that a class in painting would be taught on Monday mornings, beginning at 9:30 on March 11. The two-hour class will continue for six weeks. The instructor for this course will be noted artist, Mrs. T.A. (Duna) Combs of Maytown.

Judy Burchett, chairman of the Education Committee, reported that she had met with counselors and teachers regarding scholarships awarded eligible students by this club each year. She said that applications for these scholarships had been distributed and should be returned to her within one week and added that the selection will be made by the club's April meeting.

The president read a report from Eileen Burchett, chairman of Community Improvements, which stated that "In response to We Are Floyd County (a group of business and civic organizations and other groups, with the purpose of coming together in work and cooperation to improve Floyd County in education, environment, and image) the Woman's Club will address the litter issue, using the slogan (by club member, Mrs. Dorothy Osborne) 'Pick up; Tidy up; Clean up Floyd County.'"

Mrs. Burchett added that letters regarding this are to be written to each household and place of business, and are to be handed out by club members. She added that bumper stickers will be distributed.

The president, Linda McGuire, announced that a museum of Floyd County History will be set up during the forthcoming Festival of FACES. She said that if club members have items suitable for this museum, they should call her or Kathy Fitzpatrick.

Other ways in which this group may assist the Festival of FACES were discussed. More information will be given in April.

In other business, Maxine Bierman volunteered to donate an American Flag for the Arts and Crafts House. Phyllis Herrick, who has been compiling a history of the Prestonsburg Woman's Club for the Floyd County Bicentennial History Book, said the P.W.C. history would be available for a small fee during the next meeting. Mrs. Herrick added this tribute to the club:

"The story of our formative years is that of far-sighted, courageous women, who undertook programs and projects, and supported legislation that changed the course of live in this country and the world. As we honor the past and celebrate present accomplishments, we must plan for the future. This history should serve as a source of pride and inspiration, as we determine a course of action for the 21st century in an ever-changing society."

The Federation will be celebrated during the April meeting. Mrs. Kathy Lowe has written a skit entitled, "Reliving Club History," which will be presented during that time.

The president appointed the following nominating committee to select officers for the club year, 1991-92: Kathy Lowe, Earlene Nelson, Mabel Brown, Sue Martin, and Burieta Gearhart. The committee is to make its report during the next meeting.

Real Estate

Recession will be short-lived, growth expected in 1992, NAR says

Declining interest rates, stable inventories and moderate inflation indicate the recession still is likely to be relatively mild, according to the National Association of Realtors' most recent economic outlook report.

While many questions remain about the war's effect on the economy—in particular, oil prices and consumer confidence—most of the evidence suggests a turnaround at mid-year. For all of 1991, the economy is expected to contract by 0.2 percent, and grow at a rate of 2.7 percent in 1992, according to NAR's February "Outlook for the Economy and Real Estate."

One positive sign is that the real

(inflation-adjusted) gross national product (GNP) declined less than expected during the fourth quarter. Also, inventories fell during the fourth quarter instead of accumulating, as is usually the case early in recessions. "This implies that business in general will be under less pressure to slash production over the next few months," the outlook report says.

With consumer confidence still low, though, another decline in consumer spending is expected this quarter. However, Federal Reserve Chairman Alan Greenspan said recently that a further easing of monetary policy may be forthcoming if money supply growth continues to stall.

On the bright side, despite the flare-up in oil prices, the outlook says inflation should remain moderate. Consumer price inflation is projected to reach 4.5 percent in 1991 and 3.5 percent in 1992, almost two percentage points lower than 1990's rate.

New-home sales and housing starts are expected to reach bottom during the first quarter of 1991. But, by the second half of the year, a recovering economy, rising incomes and lower mortgage rates will spur home building and renew demand for new homes.

Although existing-home sales are expected to be down in 1991 from last year, lower rates and a stronger economy will spur home resales as well. This will carry into 1992, when sales are projected to increase by 10 percent.

Enclosed is a copy of the outlook, which contains other predictions for the real estate industry and general economy for 1991, including:

- Sales of new single-family homes are expected to total 493,000 units, dropping 7.6 percent from 1990.

- Housing starts are expected to total 1.040 million units, dropping 14.0 percent from a year ago. A total of 833,000 starts for single-family units is expected, dropping 8.1 percent from 1990. Starts for buildings with two-to-four units are expected to total 23,000 units, falling 38.0 percent from 1990; and starts for buildings with five or more units are expected to total 185,000 units, falling 30.7 percent from 1990.

- The national median existing-home price is expected to reach $95,000, declining 0.3 percent from last year. The national median low-income price is expected to reach $123,400, rising 0.6 percent from 1990.

- Interest rates for fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages are expected to average 9.1 percent, down from 10.1 percent in 1990. Interest rates for one-year, adjustable-rate mortgages are expected to average 7.5 percent, falling from an average of 8.4 percent last year.

- Real gross national product (the total value of the nation's goods and services) is expected to fall by an average rate of 0.2 percent, compared to an increase of 0.9 percent in 1990.

- The civilian unemployment rate is expected to be 6.5 percent, up from 5.5 percent last year.

The National Association of Realtors, the nation's largest trade association, is the voice for real estate, representing more than 800,000 members involved in all aspects of the real estate industry.

Ky. Housing Corp. board adopts 1991 low-income tax credit plan

The Board of Directors of Kentucky Housing Corporation recently adopted the 1991 Low-Income Housing Tax Credit Allocation Plan for $4.6 million. KHC developed this allocation plan based on identified rental housing needs of low-income Kentuckians.

According to KHC Executive Director John G. Martinez, "The allocation plan is a very important part of the solution to the rental housing needs of the Commonwealth's low-income residents. The effectiveness of the 1991 plan is a reflection of the Wilkinson administration's commitment to ensuring an equitable allocation of resources between urban and rural areas."

The low-income housing tax credit was created by the Tax Reform Act of 1986 and is one of the last remaining tax incentives for the construction, rehabilitation and preservation of low-cost rental housing. The 1986 tax act required that state housing agencies administer the low-income housing tax credit program. KHC administers the program for the Commonwealth and has produced 8,285 low-cost housing can claim the credit against their federal tax liability for 10 years.

The 1991 plan gives preference to projects located in underserved counties and projects that address the needs of special populations. Project selection criteria also emphasize serving very low-income tenants, providing rental housing for homeless, encouraging energy efficiency and providing low-income housing beyond the initial tax credit compliance period.

Set-asides provided in the plan make tax credits available more equally to projects in urban and rural areas during the first two of three allocation cycles. The Commonwealth's population is generally split 50-50 between the 10 most urban counties and the other 110 rural counties. Ten percent of the tax credit allocations is available only to nonprofit sponsors.

The 1991 tax credits will be available over three allocation cycles. The first submission deadline is March 15. Developers will be notified whether their projects earned a commitment by March 29. Sixty percent of the state's total allocation of $4.6 million will be made available during this first cycle.

The second allocation cycle has a project submission deadline of April 22 with notification to developers by May 10. The third and final allocation for tax credits will be July 15 with notification to applicants by July 29. The final two cycles will each have 20 percent of credit available for allocation. The third cycle will provide tax credits without regard to geographic set-asides. A project that does not receive a commitment of tax credits during the first cycle will be reconsidered during the final two cycles unless the developer withdraws it.

Informational workshops on the Low-Income Housing Tax Credit Program will be conducted in Lexington February 14 at the Marriott Griffin Gate Resort and in Louisville February 15 at the Radisson Hotel on Hurstborne Lane. Each workshop will be conducted from 9:30 a.m. to 4 p.m. EST. Housing developers, both for-profit and nonprofit, who would like to know more about the Low-Income Housing Tax Credit Program should contact Edwin Miller at (502) 564-7630, (800) 633-8896 (in Kentucky only) or (800) 247-2510 (for hearing impaired only).
