New president :

Floyd is chosen for PCC

The University of Kentucky Board of Trustees named Deborah Lee Floyd, Tuesday, as president of Prestonsburg Community College.

Floyd is currently vice president of student development at the Collin County Community College District in McKinney and Plano, Texas, a position she has held since 1985.

At Prestonsburg, she will replace Henry A. Campbell as president of the 2,700 student community college. Campbell is retiring this month after serving 27 years as PCC's president.

Floyd, 39, a native of Longview, Texas, has extensive academic and administrative experience in developmental education, continuing education, student affairs, counseling and related areas.

She holds leadership roles in several professional organizations, including the American College Personnel Association, the National Council on Community Services and Continuing Education and the National Council on Student Development.

The latter organization honored Floyd with its President's Leadership Award for Service in 1990.

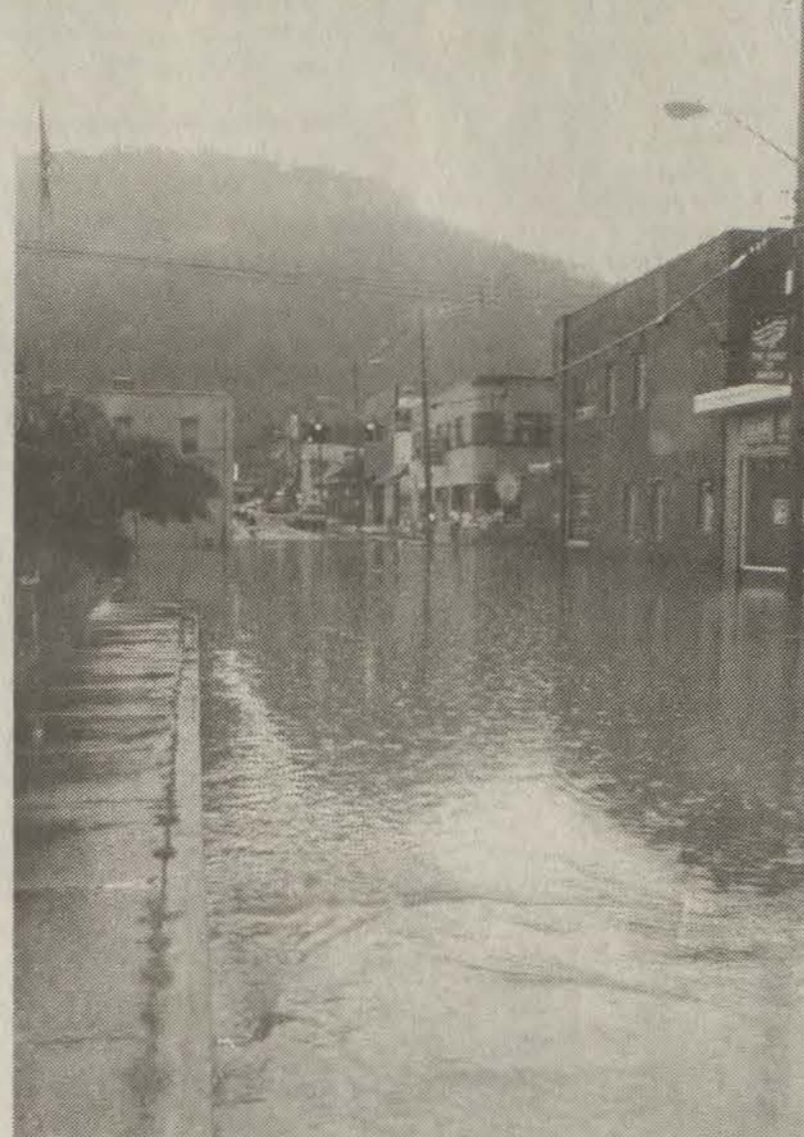

Floyd is active in community organization in North Texas and in 1991 was a nominee for the Volunteer of the Year Award given by the Volunteer Center of Plano.

Floyd received bachelor's and master's degrees from East Texas State University and a doctor of education degree from Virginia Polytechnic Institute and State University in 1979.

One goes down, one may go up

Gas prices for customers of East Kentucky Utilities, Inc., have decreased. The Public Service Commission has granted East Kentucky Utilities a purchased gas adjustment to reflect a $25,464 decrease in wholesale costs from its supplier. The average annual decrease per residential customer is $28.24, retroactive to May 1.

Another case pertaining to a Floyd County gas company is awaiting judgment by the Commission. Martin Gas is requesting $54,599 in additional annual revenues. The proposed rates would increase the average monthly gas bill from $49.50 to $60.68. The hearing, which was originally slated for June 12, has been rescheduled to July 3, according to Mary M. Brent of the Public Service Commission.

Streets closed

A late afternoon downpour in Floyd County Monday caused roadways in Prestonsburg to be blocked by water. Streets on South Lake Drive, North Lake Drive and downtown were closed to traffic for about an hour. It was reported that Prestonsburg received 1.6 inches of rain in less than an hour. Grocery clerk thwarts bomb-scare robbery

by Tess Whitmer
Assistant Editor

A would be robbery was avoided Saturday morning when an employee of Sav-More startled the suspect into fleeing the scene.

At approximately 9:30 a.m. on June 15 an unidentified female entered the Sav-More store in downtown Prestonsburg carrying a green duffel bag. According to Prestonsburg Detective Jeff Stumbo, the woman went to the office and handed the store comptroller, JoAnn Holbrook, a note stating she had a bomb and wanted all the money.

The woman was carrying a remote control device and Holbrook asked her if the "bomb" was in the bag. The woman said "yes" and set the bag on the counter. According to Stumbo, Holbrook then grabbed the bag, apparently startling the suspect who fled the scene in a white car.

Holbrook refused comment about the incident, but Joyce Kretzer of the store's home office in Paintsville, said Holbrook's action did not follow store policy.

"She's fairly new and I don't think she even realized what she was doing at the time," Kretzer said.

The fire department and the police department were called to the scene moments after the woman fled. Firefighters evacuated the building and examined the contents of the duffel bag, finding two beer bottles wrapped in towels.

"What amazed me," Stumbo said, "was that someone tried this so close to the police station."

Stumbo said he has several leads and requests anyone with information about the incident to call him at the police department. All information is kept confidential.

Special meet set

A special meeting of Prestonsburg's City Council has been set for Thursday, June 20 at the city municipal building.

The meeting agenda includes proposed additions to fire department policies; designation of a fire department safety officer; and proposed purchase and installation of fire and street department equipment.

The special meeting will begin at 6 p.m.

Students to provide 'color' to waste issue

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Educating children about the disposal of solid waste in Floyd County will reach a new level when programs begin in the Floyd County school system in September.

A coloring book describing the effects of litter and outlining the proper disposal of waste has been developed by the solid waste department and will be distributed to all students in grades K-4.

Also, each school will have recycling containers for students to separate recyclable materials in their schools.

The programs are a joint effort between the Floyd County Solid Waste Department and the board of education to educate students about the importance of reducing solid waste; proper disposal of the waste; and the benefits of recycling.

Kathy Hamilton, an employee of the solid waste department, authored and illustrated the 25-page book that

Appellate judge orders bond reduced :

Murder suspect sues trial judge

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The suspect in a 12-year-old murder case has been released from custody on bond ordered reduced by a Kentucky Court of Appeals judge, and he has filed suit against his trial judge on allegations of false imprisonment.

The actions this week are the latest in a legal bout between Wendell Ray Newman, 37, of Jack's Creek and Floyd Circuit Judge Hollie Conley, judge for Newman's trial on a charge of murder.

The unusual case, which has occasionally bordered on bizarre, stems from the 1978 shooting of Walter Hall, of Letcher County. Hall's death was originally considered accidental but evidence found during an exhumation in 1989 led to a charge in 1990 against Newman of complicity to commit murder.

Complicity charges against two others were dismissed in May, 1991, and the charge against Newman was upgraded to murder in an indictment returned last Monday.

Newman was released on bond Tuesday after Court of Appeals Judge Janet Stumbo signed an order Monday reducing Newman's bond from $175,000 to $10,000. Stumbo's order said Judge Conley "erroneously" increased Newman's bond by ordering him to post an additional $75,000 "peace bond."

Judge Conley ordered the bond increase on April 15, the day Newman's trial was scheduled to begin, because of rumors that Newman had allegedly threatened potential witnesses in the case.

The case was continued because Newman's attorney, Daniel Taylor III, of Louisville, claimed Hall's head, which was to be used as evidence in the trial, was missing. Taylor said a pathologist hired by Newman wanted to examine Hall's skull.

Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson and state forensic pathologist, David Wolf, said the head was removed and retained as evidence in the case after the 1978 autopsy. Nelson and Wolf said in April that the head was never "missing" and all parties involved knew it was in the custody of the medical examiner.

The lawsuit filed Tuesday by Newman claims that Judge Conley would not follow the appeals court ruling because Conley would not sign a release for Newman on Monday after Taylor went to Conley's home. Taylor said Tuesday he went to the judge's home because Conley had left the courthouse shortly after Taylor arrived at 2 p.m.

"Whereupon the defendant, Conley, Judge, refused to sign the tendered order in furtherance of the Court of Appeals direction to him, became extremely hostile and ordered plaintiff's counsel and his four witnesses from his premises, saying, among other things that they had interfered with his supper, and that he was not 'in Court,'" the suit claims.

Newman seeks $64,000 in damages for 64 days of "false imprisonment" and damages for humiliation, mental pain and suffering. Newman was lodged in the Floyd County Jail April 15. The suit also asks that Judge Conley remove himself from the case because of Tuesday's lawsuit.

Newman's attorney filed a motion May 8 asking Judge Conley to dismiss himself from the case because Newman claimed the judge was biased because Newman would

New bids to be sought for controversial site

The mass site preparation contract for the controversial new Prestonsburg High School will go out for bids beginning Friday.

According to the invitation to bid, bids for the contract will be accepted until July 9 at 4 p.m. and opened "as soon as practical thereafter."

Rebid of the site preparation package was recommended by the state Department of Education in February because only one bid for the project was received.

The Floyd County Board of Education instructed project architect Randall Burchett to rebid the project at its March meeting.

The Middle Creek site of the new high school came under fire after the board purchased property outside the city limits of Prestonsburg.

Board member Eddie Billips has proposed an alternative plan to keep the high school at or near its present location. That proposal drew criticism from a local citizens group that formed to see the high school is built at the Middle Creek site.

The board voted to purchase the site for $400,000 in October 1990 from businessman David May. A reservation for May to retain the rights to any coal uncovered during excavation resulted in Billips filing a lawsuit in December challenging the validity of the deed.

May later relinquished his rights to the coal.

Final encore is tribute to former Governor Chandler

by Scott Perry
Times Editor

They say Stephen Foster wrote it at Federal Hill in Bardstown, but "My Old Kentucky Home" was Happy Chandler's song.

Appropriately, Chandler's rendition of the state anthem, a version which stirred the emotions of thousands of Kentuckians through the past, was played during his funeral Tuesday.

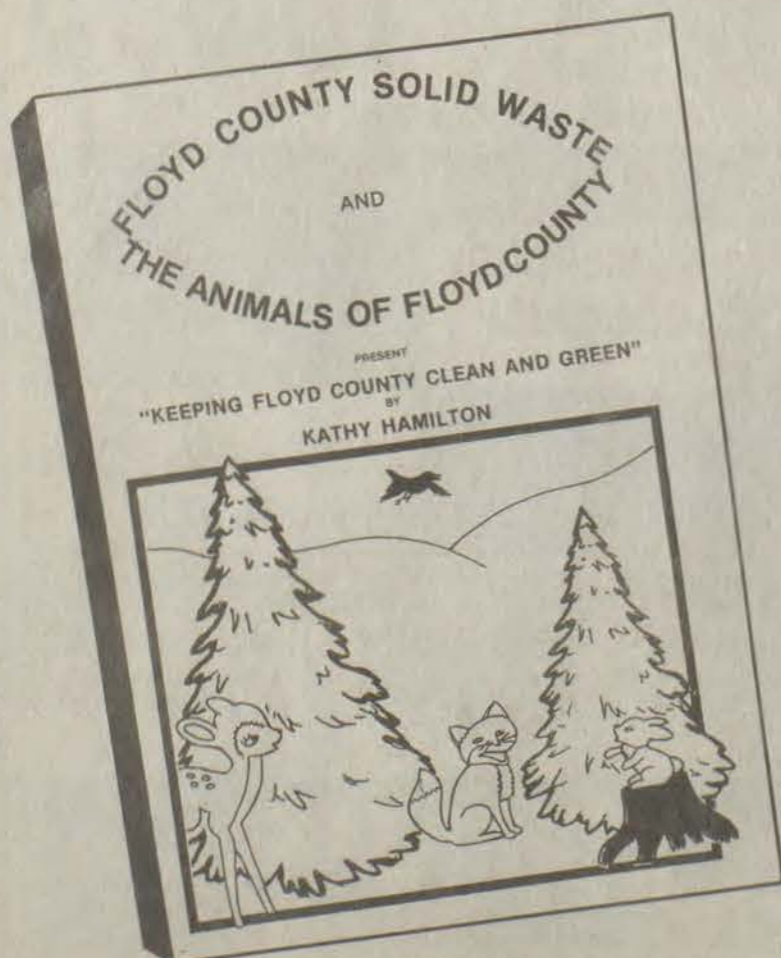

Albert Benjamin "Happy" Chandler, 92, died early Saturday morning at his home in Versailles. His legacy includes two terms as Kentucky Governor, elected in 1935 and 1955; a stint as United States Senator, from 1939 to 1945; as Commissioner of Major League Baseball from 1945 to 1952; as Kentucky's Lt. Governor, from 1931 to 1935; and as a state senator from 1929 until 1931.

Chandler was elected to Major League baseball's Hall of Fame in 1982 and is credited with playing a major role in breaking a 70-year color barrier in professional baseball when, as Commissioner in 1947, he backed the Brooklyn Dodgers' effort to allow Jackie Robinson to play in the Majors.

In politics, Chandler was adamantly anti-tax...he repealed the state's sales tax in his first term as governor...and he increased public support for education, built hospitals—including the medical center which bears his name in Lexington—developed a rural road program, and started a retirement program for state teachers.

Perhaps his greatest political rival, Floyd County native Bert T. Combs called Chandler "a great Kentuckian, a man who has left his mark on the state in many ways."

Funeral services for Chandler were held at 1 p.m. Tuesday, June 18, in Memorial Hall on the University of Kentucky Campus in Lexington.

Training exercise

Prestonsburg firefighters conducted a training session Friday at an abandoned home on North Lake Drive. "Good parent" survey conducted

Members of the parenting class at the David School recently conducted a survey to determine societal attitudes on parenting. Okie Thompson and Donnie Hicks, the developers of the survey, surveyed different types of people to gather a proper sample.

"We surveyed married people, single people, widowed people and divorced people. We surveyed people from the city and people from the country. We surveyed children, teenagers, adults and elderly people. We surveyed parents and non-parents," said Thompson and Hicks.

When the data was compiled, general attitudes about parenting came to the front. The following are some of the conceptions about parents that were determined:

- * A good parent listens to a child's problems.
- * A good parent does not allow children to do whatever they want.
- * A good parent learns from their parents.

- * A good parent does not buy a child everything he or she wants.
- * A good parent treats children of different ages differently.
- * A good parent cannot be chemically dependent.
- * A good parent teaches responsibility to their child.
- * A good parent obeys laws.
- * A good parent holds a job.
- * A good parent provides a safe home.
- * A good parent values their own health.
- * A good parent doesn't neglect their children.
- * A good parent is protective.
- * A good parent is concerned about the environment.
- * A good parent can be anyone who cares for a child.
- * A good parent doesn't allow sons to do more than daughters.
- * A good parent gets their child immunized.
- * A good parent disciplines their child.

The survey also determined that rich parents are not better than poor parents.

The survey also found uncertainty in several areas. Uncertain attitudes in the survey were whether or not a good parent takes advice from other parents, goes to church or allows a child a pet.

The survey was also undecided as to whether or not married parents are better than single parents, whether single parents can fill the role of both parents, and whether country parents are better than city parents.

Hammond to speak at Alzheimer's meet

Jim Hammond, county attorney, and Dan Rowland, assistant county attorney, will discuss legal considerations for Alzheimer's Disease at the Big Sandy Alzheimer's Support Group meeting on June 20, at 7 p.m. in the Martin Room at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Alzheimer's Disease is a progressive, age related brain disease that impairs thinking and behavior. An estimated 4 million American adults are affected. The disease eventually leaves its victims totally unable to care for themselves.

Before the full decline of mental capacity, the Alzheimer patient is able to make decisions about the future management of his life and assets through careful financial and legal planning. It is beneficial for the Alzheimer patients and their families should devise a plan that meets their needs as soon as possible. Professional financial and legal advice will be required.

For more information, call the Alzheimer's Association at 886-1330.

Court system is toured by BADD group

Members of the BADD Club (Blackcats Against Doing Drugs) and other eighth grade students of the James D. Adams Middle School were recently given three tours of the Floyd County Court System.

Jim Hammond, county attorney for Floyd County, conducted the tours and explained the different functions of county government. Tours were arranged by Greg Ratliff, prevention specialist for Mountain Comprehensive Care Center in Prestonsburg. Other members of the prevention staff include Vikki Woodward, Rose Adkins, Karen Petry, Keith Hembree, and Russell Hall.

The tours are one of many activities that BADD has participated in this school year. Recently, BADD students marched in the Festival of FACES parade. The group also held a dance for their members.

The club is sponsored by teachers, Gwen Hammond and Janie Lyon. Each tour consisted of 60 students.

Sister Eileen has been in Kentucky for thirteen years. She worked in special education in the Staffordsville Public Schools and did part-time retreat work at the Dwelling Place Monastery during her earlier years there. Presently she is a part-time sixth grade teacher at Mountain Christian Academy at Martin. She is treasurer of the monastery and a member of the monastery formation team. Before going to Kentucky she was a teacher in southern Indiana schools and at Madonna Day School, a school for mentally handicapped children in Memphis, Tennessee.

not buy a coal permit from Conley for $20,000.

Conley denied Newman's remarks in May and said he had never discussed a coal transaction with Newman.

Judge Conley refused to step down at a May 10 hearing and ordered the case back to the grand jury because the charge against Newman was changed to murder. The grand jury returned the murder indictment last week.

Judge Conley could not be reached at his office or home Tuesday for comment.

A civil suit only represents one side of an issue.

Shaving cream celebration

The end of the school year last Thursday was a happy day for students, but turned out to be a sad day for merchants in downtown Prestonsburg. Students descended on the downtown area spraying shaving cream on store fronts and throwing cans and garbage in the streets. "I don't know why it happens," said Mike Meade, head of the city's Public Works Department. "It's a pretty sad thing that shouldn't happen." Four Public Works employees worked Thursday evening and Friday morning to clean up the debris, Meade said. No damage to any businesses was reported. (photo by Susan Allen)

Child support collection efforts get money to where it belongs

Every day in Kentucky, an average 56 divorces become final, according to the most recent figures available. While most divorces address the issue of child support, some others do not.

At the same time, in cases of unmarried Kentucky couples, the separation of parents seldom ends with a child support order in place at all.

State child support collection officials are using Father's Day (June 16) to encourage Kentuckians who aren't receiving or providing financial support for their children to do something about it.

"Today, we have an array of services that can help mothers and fathers collect overdue support, but in many cases, the family must formally ask that we become involved," said Commissioner Mike Robinson, whose Department for Social Insurance oversees Kentucky's child support collection program.

Kentuckians receiving Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC) benefits automatically have their cases marked for child support collection, but in non-AFDC cases, the government's intervention must be requested.

"Obviously, recovering tax funded AFDC benefits in non-support cases is important," Robinson said, "but we strongly encourage any family not getting its due financial support from an absent parent to seek our assistance."

Child support collected for non-AFDC clients go directly to the family. Payments collected for AFDC recipients go to cover those assistance payments.

If non-AFDC parents want state help, a visit or phone call to the area child support office is all it takes to start the process.

"There are vital pieces of information needed by caseworkers in order to have a successful collection effort," said Maxine Stricker, director of the state Division of Child Support Enforcement.

That information includes the absent parent's full name, address, birthdate, employment and income information and social security numbers of all family members.

"Parents trying to collect child support can get this information from old insurance policies, check stubs, credit cards, tax returns and relatives."

Other child support enforcement programs include the consumer reporting program, which permits the notification of child support non-payment to lending institutions, and the tax intercept program, which intercepts and reroutes tax refunds of delinquent parents.

Contact your county attorney or the local child support office in Prestonsburg at 18 S. Front Street, 886-2871.

Big Sandy Community Action Program to meet

The Big Sandy Area Community Action Program Inc. is required by the Kentucky Cabinet for Human Resources to be the lead agency in conducting interagency meetings. The meetings are held in an attempt to avoid duplication of services and to maximize benefits of social services to eligible clients.

Lizzie Hamilton, art teacher at Betsy Layne, submitted 15 entries and Akers was chosen as the overall winner. The logo will be used on shirts, caps, cups and posters for the event. The logos are to depict areas in relationship to Kentucky and Floyd County.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

Friday is the first day of summer.

It is also, appropriately, the longest day of the year.

Not that it has any more than the normal 24 hours, it's the longest day because it has more minutes of daylight than any other day.

Scientifically, June 21 is known as the summer solstice. That's when the sun reaches its northernmost point in the northern hemisphere.

For us folks in Kentucky, that means a few more minutes of daylight.

For folks in, say, Alaska, the longest day of the year lasts a bit longer... try four months.

Twenty-four hours of sunshine. Wow.

We'll take our extra minutes, though, and be thankful.

Four months of daylight is one thing, but the flipside is four months of lights out during the winter.

Forget that.

V-A-C-A-T-I-O-N, gonna have a ball.

Took a long weekend to visit the Queen City and its attractions last week with stops at King's Island and the Cincinnati Zoo.

We set very few criteria for such excursions and make only a bare minimum of advance plans. In fact, we have only two "musts" for these outings...

(1.) Beer must be sold.

(2.) It must be cold.

Both our stops this weekend fit the bill.

At King's Island they have their own brand...King's Island Draft...and the sales stands are conveniently located near all the wild and crazy rides where one can sip on a cold one while watching total and complete idiots risk their necks on attractions with names like "The Beast," "King Cobra," "The Vortex," and "Scooby Doo's Merry-Go-Round."

After an active day of soaking up the suns and watching the daredevils, a fella gets the notion to try one of the rides himself.

That's the cue it's time to leave. On to the zoo.

Our favorite activity at the zoo is to grab a cool one and visit the Insect House. Not that we are necessarily bug fans, but the Insect House is one of the few air-conditioned attractions at the zoo. Besides, all the bugs are enclosed in glass cages and the smell is markedly more pleasant than it is in the elephant house where, for your traveling information, beer and other refreshments are not permitted.

Before leaving the zoo, we always make a point of visiting the gorillas and telling the children that these are their true parents and, if they don't behave, we'll send them back.

Our third stop for the weekend was to be a Reds ballgame but, if you'll recall our mentioning above that we don't make a lot of advance plans, the Reds were out of town.

We visited the Oldenberg Brewery instead.

Got an invitation this week to tour the Morehead State University-Pocahontas Development-Martiki Coal Agricultural Complex in Martin County.

The tour will include visits to an 82,000 laying hen operation, a 4,500 hog operation and an inspection of a 130-head cattle herd. On July 8.

We think the MSU project is the answer for future use of reclaimed stripmine land, but we'd have set the tour during a time when the pickin's would be a little less "ripe." "Casual dress is suggested for all events," the invite notes. You bet.

Pike County, we have decided, is the per capita capital of the world.

It has had more per capita articles written about it, per capita, than any other area in the known universe.

To wit (that's legal talk for "for instance"):

-Pike County has been tabbed as having more Pepsi Cola drinkers, per capita, than anywhere else in the world.

-Pike County has been designated as having more millionaires, per capita, than anywhere else in the U.S.

-Pike County, according to the latest scientific data revealed by the Lexington Herald-Leader, may have had more bank robberies, per capita, than any other Kentucky county.

-Pike County, according to our own investigation, has more Pike Countians, per capita, than any other location this side of Columbus, Ohio.

What most inquiring minds would like to know is if this per capita business is per annum or per chance. We suspect it's more per-lume...of the variety one might detect in a skunk.

Joseph Martin of Macon, Georgia, in his June 12 letter to the Floyd County Times, seems to want the board of education to replace any teacher who asks for a pay raise with "more dedicated ones" so that our school programs won't be hurt. It's odd to me when Mr. Martin talked about what mattered the most about his own education, he kept coming back to the influence of teachers, not programs: "These people had an impact beyond measure." I have trouble understanding why people can't see that a teacher and what that teacher knows and shares with students is more important than any program. WSAZ aired an interview last weekend with five of the best students in the tri-state area. When these valedictorians and salutatorians were asked what could be done to improve education, they didn't mention computers or elaborate equipment. Their answer was a simple one — hire better teachers and pay whatever you have to in order to keep them from leaving the classroom and going into private industry.

Mr. Martin is right about one point. Floyd County has had its share of dedicated teachers. I was lucky enough to have some of them — professionals like George L. Moore and Francis Turner and Paul Luxmore — people who stood for something and were willing to fight for their beliefs. Like Mr. Martin, I want to thank those people for what they gave me. I know that their main interest was students, but if I could, I would roll back time and do more than just thank them. I would make sure that they were paid in a way that showed what they meant to me. They deserved more. Paying them a decent salary wouldn't have destroyed that dedication. If we value teachers as we say that we do, why aren't we willing to pay them accordingly? If I am ill or in trouble, I don't go shopping for bargain doctors or lawyers. I want the best and I know that I will have to pay for it. Why should dedication mean poverty?

There are dedicated teachers in Floyd County today, but they aren't sitting in a classroom quietly. Last summer, they put their professional careers on the line when they stood on picket lines throughout this county. They were willing to risk everything. Yes, the August teacher strike was about money. Good teachers in this district deserve higher salaries. We aren't ashamed of that, but the truth is that is not all it was about.

I don't think teachers risked what they did just for a few dollars more on a monthly paycheck. If it had been just a question of more money, parents would not have cooked food and brought it to the picket lines. Students would not have offered to walk the picket lines. I remember the first morning of the strike at Wheelwright High School when a group of us stood huddled across from the school. Those teachers were worried about students. They felt a real responsibility to them. You can't tell me those people aren't dedicated. It takes courage to teach the lesson that was being taught that day — that you have to fight for what you believe in. If these are money-hungry teachers that Mr. Martin is referring to, then I am guilty. The truth is that I am proud to be one of them.

The Friday, May 31, special edition to the Floyd County Times, "Floyd County: A Portrait of Home," was insightful and inspiring. Having office at six o'clock this afternoon. I don't know of any other group in this county that spends the kind of time teachers do trying to improve the school system.

Floyd County isn't the wealthiest district in the state, as Mr. Martin said. Teachers realize that. We also know there is a great deal of money being wasted in this district, money that is being used to repay political favors and make a political machine function. We have some of the highest paid administrators in the state of Kentucky. We have a debt of nearly $300,000 hanging over this district because money appropriated for flood repairs was used for something other than for what it was intended. We have parents who spend their free time raising money for sidewalks and playground equipment. Almost every weekend in Floyd County, I see students standing precariously in the middle of our highways collecting money for a school trip or clubs. I want to know why.

Despite what some people in the administration have tried to tell me, I know that parents care about their children in this county. I know it because I have seen angry parents storm a school when they thought that their children weren't being treated fairly. I also know that if one of their children were in physical danger, these parents would lay down their own lives to save their children. What I don't know is why more parents in this county aren't genuinely angry and outraged at what is happening to their children in the schools; why they don't see that when their children have to spend hour after hour in a school that is not clean or doesn't have the kind of teachers and equipment that it needs, that it is the same as someone breaking in their house and stealing from them — except what is being stolen, in this case, is their children's future. It is not a time to be quiet or a time to try to convince ourselves that children are not being harmed, and that we can help those young people the most by being too noble to ever discuss the issue of money. I have to say to Mr. Martin that I am not ashamed to be one of those teachers that he mentions in his letter. I am only ashamed that it took me so long to become one of them.

left Floyd County for a period of four years to continue my education, I have returned to find a county and a people who are concerned about their future. However, here, as with much of the world, in the midst of our growth and progress, there is a major problem developing: our garbage!

Yes, we have a landfill that will last at least for the next thirty years or longer. We don't have to worry about the toxins that seep from the refuse or that much of the material that is placed in the landfill now will not decompose, but will remain much as it is, compacted and sealed for the next 100 years.

Is the landfill the only answer? What options have our Solid Waste Commission and Fiscal Court explored? Is there a long-term plan for our waste?

What about a county-wide consumer recycling program? Many counties in Kentucky, and all over the nation, have begun similar programs. Our neighbor, Pike County, is one of these. Is Floyd County behind the times? Let's recycle for Floyd County's future. Let's bring this oversight to the attention of our Solid Waste Commission and our Fiscal Court on Friday, June 21.

On Sunday, June 9, the Kentucky Sheriffs' Boys and Girls Ranch at Gilbertsville, located in the heart of the lakes area, opened with 111 boys from the Purchase area. This camp is completely free for underprivileged children, ages nine through 13.

All 120 counties in the Commonwealth are encouraged to send their needy children to this camp by working through their county sheriff's office.

1991 has been a slow year for charitable contributions which the Ranch is completely dependent on, but, with the grace of God, the Ranch will be able to accommodate at least 1,000 children this summer. In the past 15 years, over 12,000 children have attended the camp.

Teaching respect for themselves, others and law enforcement officials, plus an excellent drug preventive and child abuse preventive program are part of the week's activities. After a full week of recreation, hiking, camping and excellent food, the children are given a free Ranch t-shirt to take home.

The Ranch is striving to prove that service to humanity is the best work of life.

For more information about the Ranch program, call (502) 362-8660 or the local sheriff's office.

I'm hoping you can help me locate some relatives of mine that are located in the Kentucky area for family history purposes.

I'm trying to locate members of the Drew J. Maynard family. He lived in Logan County at his death in 1971, but he had a sister that still lived in Kentucky. I need to locate some of her family. He was from the Louisa or Inez area.

I am very concerned by the lack of a county-wide recycling program in Floyd County. Pike and Martin counties have shown us that a program is possible and can be effective.

Recycling will help reduce our use of landfill space, and it will encourage a healthier place for our children to live.

I urge all citizens to let our local representatives know that we want county-wide recycling in our community.

CableVision raises money for schools

Prestonsburg CableVision has raised $1,334 for the Floyd County School System, according to Lester Errett, general manager of the company.

Customers who responded to the "Cable + You = Money for Our Schools" promotion which ended May 24, wrote their checks for the first month's service fees directly to Floyd County Schools. In addition, Cable Vision also waived the connection fee for customers who ordered cable or upgraded their existing cable services.

"Besides providing free cable to the schools in our area, this is just an additional way we can strengthen our educational resources in the community," said Errett.

Floyd County History

Henry and Rebecca Jones Mosley's Descendants Floyd County, Kentucky

Henry and Rebecca Jones Mosley came from Hawkins County Tenn., to Floyd County, Kentucky sometime after the 1830 Census. There is no known record of birth and death of them. Tradition has them expiring and being buried on a cemetery at Orkney, Kentucky. They apparently were from a mixed blood race. They said Indian and Portuguese, and are listed on the 1830 Census as Melungeon (Mixed Blood). They had about seven children and Henry was a Farmer and Trapper.

One of their sons was Nathaniel Mosley who shows up in Floyd County, Kentucky, and had married Mary (Polly) Moore, the daughter of John and Rachel Bridgeman Moore. They had about fourteen children. The record shows Nathaniel born in Tenn. about 1825 and is buried at Orkney, Kentucky. One of their children was Thomas (Tom) Mosley, born in Floyd County in 1859 and died in 1951—buried on Stumbo Cemetery at Minnie, Kentucky. Tom married Susan Bunch in May 1883. Susan was born in Boyd County Kentucky in 1871, died in 1937. Tom was a farmer and also did some carpentry work. He was best known as an old time mountain preacher. He was a lay minister in the Old Regular Baptist Church. In addition to Preaching he is known for his performing many marriage ceremonies. Polly's grandfather, John Moore Sr., fought in the Revolutionary War.

Tom and Susan's children were: Benjamin, Cora, Charlie, Mary, Wamie, Gustava, and Minnie (Bird). Charlie was born in Floyd County, Kentucky on May 25, 1888. He married Melvina Newsom May 24, 1911. Melvina died in October 1972 and Charlie died in August 1979. Both are buried in the Stumbo Cemetery at Minnie, Kentucky. They both belonged to The Old Regular Baptist Church. Charley had been a coal miner, a barber, watch tinker and gunsmith. Melvina was the daughter of John and Emily Moore Newsom. She and Charlie had three children, Clyde, Valis and Kinnel.

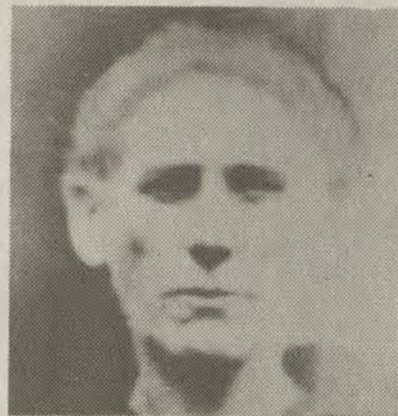

Clyde married Estelle Johnson April 3, 1937. She was the daughter of Willie and Grace Wells Johnson. Clyde and Estelle had 8 children, Gordon, Gene, Glenda, Judith, Charles, Yvonne, Sharon and Alice. 19 grandchildren and 9 great-grandchildren. Clyde was a mine foreman for the better part of his mining career. Valis was a miner, but he and his wife both retired from Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Dayton, Ohio. Valis' wife was Geraldine Blankinship and they had one child, Linda, who was married to Dee Hudson. They had three children, Rick, Debra and Rita. Valis and wife also had four great-grandchildren.

Kinnel married Edna Reedy and had four children, Dennis, Gary, Cathy and Freddy. They had 9 great-grandchildren. Edna died in 1963 and Kinnel married Mary H. Moore. They had no children. Mary had 7 daughters by previous marriage.

Kinnel was a World War Two Vet and later worked in mines.

Fitting ATVs:

A necessary safety precaution

All terrain vehicles (ATVs) have many uses and promise new adventures to young and old alike.

But, they aren't toys, and riding one can be potentially hazardous, especially for young people, said Larry Piercy, extension safety engineer with the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture.

One aspect of riding an ATV that many people may not think about is the "fit" of the particular machine to the rider.

Because Kentucky has been one of the leading states in ATV fatalities with 47 occurring since 1984, Piercy has developed a pilot project in nine Kentucky counties to teach young people about safety with ATVs. Next year, the program will be expanded statewide. How to "fit" an ATV to a rider is one aspect of that safety program.

How can a rider determine if his ATV is the right size for him?

Clearance between ATV seat and inseam while standing up on the footpegs should be at least three to six inches. The purpose of this clearance is to permit the rider to stand up and absorb shocks through the legs while riding rough terrain. It also minimizes the chance that the rider might be struck by the seat and thrown over the handlebars.

When sitting, the upper portion of the legs from the knee to the hip should be roughly horizontal. If the knees are significantly above the hips, turn the handlebars in both direction to see if they will contact the knees or legs.

Foot length is important. With the heel of the right shoe against the footpeg, the rider should be able to use his toe to depress the foot brake with a simple downward motion. This also applies to the left side of the ATV where the gearshift is.

Riders should not have to lean forward to compensate for a short reach when they grasp the handlebars. Also, with the hand in the normal operating position, riders should make sure their thumb can easily operate the throttle. The first joint of the middle finger should extend beyond the brake lever to allow the rider to effectively use the lever in an emergency.

New chapter, new officers

The Department of Kentucky American Ex-Prisoners of War met in Frankfort Kentucky National Guard Center for the purpose of swearing in the newly elected officers for the ensuing year. E.H. Ted Stumbo (right) of Harold was installed as the first state commander. Charles Everson of Louisville (center) was installed as senior vice commander and Parrish J. Reynolds of Lexington as junior vice commander. Eddie Akers of the Prestonsburg VFW post attended the ceremony.

Local witnesses attend district convention

Jehovah's Witnesses from the local congregation were in attendance at the three-day "Lovers of Freedom" District Convention of Jehovah's Witnesses at the Thompson-Boling Assembly Center in Knoxville, Tennessee, June 14-16.

Some 13,000 delegates heard a program highlighting the Bible's promise of permanent freedom.

The principal address of the convention, "Hailing God's New World of Freedom," was delivered on Sunday by Daniel L. Sydlak of the Witnesses' Brooklyn, New York headquarters. Sydlak raised the question: "If it is possible, would you not like to live in a world free from fear, hunger, pollution, sickness and war?" He then pointed to a freedom that can widen out far beyond what humans now experience. He emphasized that such freedom "will come in God's New World as promised in the Bible at Romans 8:20, 21 and 2 Peter 3:13."

Residents from seven states were in attendance. Friday's program feaured the keynote address, "The Purpose and Use of Our God-Given Freedom," as well as a live dramatic presentation entitled, "Set Free to Promote True Worship." Saturday's highlights included a symposium, "Freedom with Responsibility in the Family Circle," the baptism of new ministers and a powerful portrait for Jesus Christ as "The Greatest Man that Ever Lived."

The Knoxville Convention was one of a series of 114 conventions scheduled for 61 different cities in the continental United States this summer. The total attendance is expected to exceed 1,400,000.

The first state legislation prohibiting the employment of women in coal mines was passed by Illinois law makers in 1879, according to "Labor Firsts in America," a U.S. Labor Department publication.

Campers beware of ticks

A camping trip to the woods is something that almost all American families plan sometime in their lives. Yet, this pleasant experience can turn into a tragedy.

The leading actor in this tragedy is not the mountains, water or people — it is that small, biting, insect-like animal, the tick. Ticks normally attach themselves to warm-blooded animals and, in the process of sucking their blood, may infest the host animal with a disease. In this case, the disease is Rocky Mountain Spotted Fever (RMSF).

RMSF is found in the Rocky Mountain states and in areas of Maryland, Virginia, the Carolinas, Georgia, Kentucky, Indiana, Illinois and Tennessee. In addition to the ticks, the disease is normally found in wild animals, birds and dogs. The disease does not harm the tick, but it can be transmitted from an infected animal to a human by the tick's bite.

People usually come in contact with infected ticks while walking in wooded areas. It takes about one week for the infected person to develop the symptoms. These symptoms include fever, headache, muscle aches, skin rash and delirium. The characteristic rash, which gives the disease its name, appears first on the hands, feet, ankles and wrists. The rash then spreads to the rest of the body.

If the disease is not treated, it can be fatal. Fortunately, treatment, especially early, can be quite successful. Antibiotics, such as Tetracycline, are very effective against the organism causing the disease. The germ is called a rickettsia. It is not a virus or a bacterium, but is in that same general class.

The best way to handle this disease is to avoid it. That does not necessarily mean that you have to avoid the woods or stop camping. It does mean getting rid of any ticks you contact during your excursion. After any walk in grassy or wooded areas, a close inspection of your body is a must.

You should pay particular attention to places where clothing ends, such as the neck, the waist, the wrists and the ankles. If moving ticks are spotted, they should be quickly but gently removed. If the tick has already burrowed into the skin with its head, do not squeeze it and tear it away. Remove ticks with tweezers. Ticks should be searched for even if it has been several hours since exposure. An important step in preventing these infections is to use protective clothing such as long-sleeve shirts and long pants, and to use insect repellent sprays and lotions. Pants should be tucked into boots or socks and shirts should be tucked into belts. If you do return from a tick-infested area and have the signs or symptoms of skin rash, fever and headache, contact your doctor immediately.

Regional Disaster Training

Awarded chief of staff

Ms. Teresa Anderson of Fairborn, Ohio, the daughter of John F. Anderson and Florence Bilitier Anderson, previously of Floyd County, was recently awarded the chief of staff award for administrative support at the Wright Laboratory of Wright-Patterson Air Force Base, Ohio. Approximately 2,040 civilians within the Wright laboratory competed for this award. The award was given to Anderson for her contributions, ingenuity and superior performance in the line of duty. Anderson is currently embarking on a new career as a security specialist for the Wright Laboratory.

The threat of thunder

Thunderstorms can come up quickly in warm weather. The National Safety Council reminds swimmers and boaters to stay away from the water during thunderstorms or any other severe weather conditions.

If lightning starts while you are swimming or boating, get out of (or off of) the water immediately and seek shelter away from metal objects, large trees and open areas.

Moped operators must have a valid Kentucky license

Owners of mopeds and motorcycles look forward to summertime when they can take their vehicles out more often. Too often, though, those who use these two-wheeled vehicles, especially mopeds, have not familiarized themselves with state law.

A moped is a motorized bicycle whose frame design may include one or more horizontal cross bars supporting a fuel tank so long as it also has pedals or a motorized bicycle with a step-through type frame which may or may not have pedals. It does not exceed more than two brake horsepower or has a cylinder capacity exceeding 50 cubic centimeters. A moped has an automatic transmission (no clutching or shifting required by the operator after the drive system is engaged and cannot exceed 30 miles per hour.

In Kentucky during 1989 there were 170 accidents involving motor scooters and motorbikes (mopeds), six of those accidents resulted in fatal injuries.

Anyone operating a moped upon a highway must have a valid Kentucky operators license. Application for renewal license shall be made every two or four years during the applicant's birth month.

Questions regarding the licensing of a person to operate a moped or the operation of a moped may be directed to any state police post.

1991 "Fireflies for Science" campaign

The summer of 1991 will mark the 31st annual Fireflies for Science Campaign.

St. Louis-based Sigma Chemical Company established the Firefly Club to give children and adults the feeling of being part of the scientific world by indirectly participating in research.

This annual project involves Scout troops, 4-H Clubs, Church groups as well as hundreds of individuals. The club members capture fireflies and send them to Sigma Chemical in special mailing containers to aid research and earn money for themselves or their special group projects.

The tail, or lantern, of the firefly contains two rare chemicals, luciferin and luciferase, which are activated by Adenosine Triphosphate (ATP) to produce the light.

ATP is the energy-storage chemical found in living cells. Researchers take advantage of this natural biochemical reaction by mixing the firefly chemicals with ATP contained in the cells of the sample they are studying. The larger the amount of ATP that is present, the greater the amount of light produced.

The need for firefly chemicals continues so that scientists can study bacterial counts in waste-water treatment facilities, as well as medical research on cancer, heart disease, and genetic disorders.

Membership in the club is open to any individual or group. Firefly collectors are paid weekly at the rate of a penny for each firefly turned in, with incentive bonuses added for levels above 5,000. For example, for 30,000 fireflies a person can earn a cumulative total of $360.

For more information, contact the Sigma Firefly Scientists Club at 1-800-325-3010, extension 3433.

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor—Sports Editor

APPLAUSE, APPLAUSE...

The Beaver Creek Little League coaches voted at their Sunday evening meeting to form an A and B All-Star team this year in a move to strengthen their chances to advance in the upcoming District Little League tournament. The coaches voted 5-3 to make the change that saw the league field a North and South All-Star team in the past. The two teams — North and South — did not place the best players on one team. With the change, the A team will field the 14 best players in the league whether the players hail from the North or South Division. Then, the players nominated for the All-Star team that were not named to the A squad will play on the second All-Star team.

With the best of the league on one team, the league feels their chances of winning the tournament will be greater and I agree. I think it is a move that should have been made years ago. The kids that go to these tournaments want to come home winners — not to go and play two or three games and then lose. No, they want to be winners.

I have been pushing for a Floyd County All-Star team, but because of district alignments, that will not be necessary. The Beaver Creek coaches and league director Jad Deaton did a wonderful thing in changing the All-Star format. They are to be congratulated for the move. I know that some will not understand it and some of the parents will probably complain because their child did not make the team, but when you form an All-Star team, you want your best on it.

Beaver Creek will be a very competitive team in the upcoming tournament because of the vast amount of talent they have. Even their second squad will be strong. I for one applaud the move!

HOW ABOUT A PEE WEE ALL-STAR TOURNAMENT?

Some time back I wrote in my column the need for a county-wide Pee Wee League All-Star tournament. I still think this is needed. We have five Pee Wee Leagues in Floyd County — Minnie, Harold, Mud Creek, Prestonsburg and Martin. Five All-Star teams could meet in a double elimination tournament and crown one team as Floyd County champions.

Some of the coaches in the Martin as well as the Minnie league want to see it become a reality. As a matter of fact, Lynn Hall, league director at Mud Creek, wants to hold a Pee Wee All-Star tournament this year and is presently seeking teams to take part.

Is there a difference in leagues? Yes. In the Martin League, the coaches pitch to their teams. In the other leagues, the players pitch. According to Coach Carner Hall of the Martin Tigers and an advocate for the tournament, that is something that could be overcome in a couple of practices.

If you are interested in entering the Mud Creek Pee Wee All-Star tournament, contact Lynn Hall at 587-1637. It would be a great tournament.

ALLEN PARK DUGOUTS ARE BEING USED FOR WRONG PURPOSES

So says Harold Case of the Floyd County Babe Ruth League. Seems that some of the players are using the dugouts for rest rooms and parents are having to clean them out with disinfectants. Case says that the field has been neglected since high school baseball season has ended. "About all that is done to the field now is the grass is mowed," says Case. "The infield hasn't been dug in some time and had become very hard. The park is dirty and needs to be cleaned up."

One player at the Little League field was hit by a foul ball coming from the nearby Babe Ruth diamond. The lack of netting creates a dangerous situation at the Allen Park, according to Case. "Part of the fencing on the right field line is down and permits overthrown balls at first base to enter the fan section on the Little League field."

"We need some water hook-ups at the field so we can water the infield down," continued Case. "The lighting is bad and some of the lights needs replacing."

Perhaps Case has a good point. The Allen Park could be a showplace for baseball fans as well as those that visit the park. A permanent concession stand should be built by the county so that the park's picnic tables will not be tied up. The dangerous tiles that lie in between the diamonds continue to lay there and are a threat to the kids that play on them because of their jagged edges.

While most of the attention and money goes for other parts of the park, the area most used has been neglected.

On the Little League field, lights in left field continue not to burn, creating shadows for night games. Fencing around the dugouts that could be locked needs to be installed. Bike riders need to be kept off the infield to keep it from being damaged. A press box of some design needs to be built so that radio coverage of games could be possible.

Now that baseball season is drawing to a close, perhaps some of these things could be accomplished. I cannot see our county spending $5,000 on fireworks for a "Day In The Park" when it could be used on improving the park.

KENTUCKY JUNIOR ALL-STARS COMING TO PRESTONSBURG

Some of the top basketball in the state of Kentucky will play on June 28 at the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse as the Kentucky Junior All-Stars come to town.

The juniors-to-be team will feature two 15th Region players, Chris Burke of Prestonsburg and Shelby Valley's Jeremy Johnson. Darnell Burton, the much publicized sophomore of last year will also make an appearance.

The ticket price hasn't been set yet, but it should be sometime this week. Everyone plan on turning out for the games and let's show the rest of the state how much we appreciate our basketball.

RUMORS, RUMORS CONTINUE

"Who will coach at Wheelwright?"

"You mean football?"

"No, dummy, basketball!"

Several names have surfaced lately and, as it gets close to naming a new head coach, who it will be is anyone's guess. I personally believe they already have an idea and are waiting for the appropriate time to release the name.

Whoever it is, the good folks at Wheelwright deserve the best the school board can hire. In fact, in talking to some of the people up there, they are expecting a quality coach.

Certainly whoever takes the job will have some very talented players coming back. A new program may be hard for the players to handle initially, but the right coach can get the job done. A desire to be a good team will have to be a high priority for this coming basketball season at Wheelwright.

REDS ARE ON THE MEND BUT DAVIS IS HURT - AGAIN!

So, what's new for Eric Davis and the Cincinnati Reds? The Reds placed the struggling centerfielder on the disabled list, which has become an annual thing for Davis. Marty Brennaman said it, "If Davis doesn't hit the Reds don't repeat."

Big Lou has said that he knew his team would struggle after winning the World Series. Now that his team is hitting the ball (stinging would be more like it) he isn't overly concerned. All this from a manager who was ready to draw his starting lineup out of a hat. Lou, you gave up on them hitting the ball just like everyone else.

Rob Dibble has appeared before National League President Bill White, and awaits the judgment of the former St. Louis Cardinal first baseman. White will be watched on this call and some protest may come out loud and clear if he allows Dibble to slip by. Dibble needs to serve his punishment just the same as any other ball player.

Hey, did you notice that Randy Myers is not the closer for the Reds anymore but Dibble is? Why? Because Dibble threw his little tantrums and got his point across. Now the Reds' brass are trying to appease the childish reliever and hopes he changes his mind and chooses to stay with the ball club. How baseball has changed over the years.

Hooray for Baseball Commissioner Faye Vincent in his announcement that he wants to see the designated hitter dismantled in the American League. He wants to see the pitcher have to go back to the plate and learn to hit. Says Vincent, "Some players will bat four times in a game and ride an exercise bike the remainder."

See where baseball has lost some of its appeal with the fans? The high salaries have not made the players any more popular with those who have to work for a living and then read in the papers about the big money players chasing the fans in the stands and getting in trouble with the law. And they banned Pete Rose for what he did!

VACATION TIME IS HERE!

After countless numbers of baseball games this spring and summer, I am ready for a much needed vacation. This weekend, Nancy and I are planning to head to Georgia for a week's vacation in the peach state.

While I am gone, I need all coaches to call in the game results to the Times office so they may still be reported in the paper. When I return, I plan to report on all the All-Star teams we will have in the county as well as trying to find out who the new Wheelwright coach will be.

I love my job, but I am ready for a rest.

Until I return, good sports everyone, and be good sports!

Rebels Athletes Honored At Banquet

Allen Central High School officially closed their 1990-91 athletic programs with their First Annual Academics/Athletic Awards Banquet recently at the Right Beaver school.

Guest speaker for the banquet was former Allen Central student Kenny Rice, who is now sports director for Channel 36, WTVQ, in Lexington. Rice spoke to the students and parents that assembled in the school foyer about success and failure. "You don't have to be in Lexington, New York or any other large city to be successful," said Rice. "You can be successful right here in Eastern Kentucky." Rice told of the start afforded him by Gorman Collins at WDOC and working under the popular C. "Ollie" Robinson, long time sports announcer for the local station. Rice did delayed telecasts for the Conley Cable system in Garrett.

Allen Central principal Jody Sword thanked all the student/athletes at Allen Central and expressed "how proud I am of their accomplishments this school year." Mr. Sword mentioned that academics comes first at Allen Central but that "athletics takes time and builds discipline in a high school."

The Allen Central principal also left the students and parents with a challenge for the 90s and beyond. With a new state law, each school will be allowed to form its own council made up of students, parents and the school principals.

"We will be organizing next year," said Sword, "and we will need you parents for support and assistance. We will need your input, thoughts and just for you to get involved. In the past, parents have wanted to just ease out of being involved in their children's school, but I challenge you to get involved."

Mrs. Joyce Watson, teacher at Allen Central, spoke about how Allen Central High School has raised its reputation throughout the area as well as in the state of Kentucky. She spoke of how Allen Central had taken first place academically in district and regional competition and had sent four students to state competition.

Bonita Compton, head women's basketball coach at Allen Central, went to the podium to hand out awards to the women's basketball team that won the 58th District tournament for the second consecutive year. The Lady Rebels were also the Floyd County Conference Champions.

Coach Compton handed out awards recognizing Stacy, "Mini" Moore as the Most Improved Player on the Lady Rebels team. Most Valuable Player recognition went to Stacy Moore. "Despite what many things people thought about the wars that Stacy and I might had, we still had a close relationship."

Compton commented on how the women's basketball team dedicated the season to Coach Judy Eversole, former Lady Rebel coach who passed away last year, and that the Lady Rebels did not let her down.

Clinch division title...

Fifth Inning Single Gives Martin Reds 11-10 Win

It wasn't an easy game. Then again, it wasn't expected to be an easy win for Lonnie Robinson's ball club. Even though they are firmly settled in the number one spot of the North Division of the Beaver Creek Little League, the Martin Reds knew they had their work cut out for them against a very good Martin Cardinals team. They knew it would take a good outing to clinch their second straight division title.

The Martin Cards did not make it easy for the Reds. As a matter of fact the Cardinals almost put off the celebration trip to Zeplin's for another day. However, to get to those subs, the Reds scored four times in the bottom of the fifth inning to pull out a 11-10 win over the Cards.

Missy Scott was the unlikely heroine for the Reds as she entered the game in the late innings and came to bat with the bases jammed and her team tied with the Cards at 10-10. All Scott did was lace a grounder between third and short to drive in Rusty Young with the winning run. It was a time of celebration for Scott. Not only did she drive in the winning run, but it was her first base hit of the season.

The Reds fifth inning unfolded as Sam Bentley drew a leadoff walk and scored on Kevin Robinson's double off the fence in left-center field. Phillip Robinson followed with an RBI single, scoring Kevin. With one out, Rusty Young reached on an error at first base when Cardinal first baseman Kalem Yates dropped a throw to first. B. J. Caudill walked to load the bases for the Reds — setting up Scott's heroics.

The Cardinals looked like a team that will make some noise in the upcoming league tournament this Saturday at the Martin Park. The Cards pushed across eight runs in the top of the third to take a 9-5 lead over the front running Reds. Nick Samons and Mike Hall singled leading off the inning. With two outs, Timmy Yates walked to fill the bases with Redbirds. Gary Scarberry singled home Samons and Hall came in to score on Brad Dasner's base hit leaving the bases loaded. Ethan Blackburn walked to force in Scarberry. T. Samons drew a bases-loaded walk scoring Dasner. Osborne singled home Blackburn while Sammons and Osborne scored on Hall's second hit of the inning to give the Cards their 9-5 lead. Jason Shannon came on in relief of Caudill and retired the Cardinals.

The Reds tallied two runs in their half of the third to make it a 9-7 game when Kevin Robinson blasted a triple to right center and scored on Phillip Robinson's ground out RBI. Jason Shannon walked and scored on Caudill's base hit.

The Reds took a 4-0 first inning lead on Shannon's two-run double and Phillip Robinson's RBI single. The fourth run scored on Rusty Young's ground out.

The Cardinals scored a single run in their half of the second when T. Sammons drew a bases-loaded walk off Caudill, forcing Timmy Yates

"Stars" To Shine At P-burg Gym June 28 In KY Jr. All-Star Series

Hold on to your seat basketball fans, the season is not really over! The All-Stars are coming to Prestonsburg on Friday, June 28, and what a lineup of talent is in store for you. The Kentucky High School Junior All-Stars are making tracks to the Prestonsburg Fieldhouse as some of the state's top players in the coming basketball season go on display for the "hoops" crazy fans to see.

Game one will feature the Kentucky Junior All-Stars, made up of this past year's sophomores (juniors this coming school year), against a group of 15th Region All-Stars. The games are a continuing series of exhibition games for the All-Stars as they prepare for the upcoming National Junior All-Star tournaments in Las Vegas and Los Angeles.

Such players as Lexington Dunbar's Darnell Burton, a 6' 5" sophomore, will be showcased along with Alvin Sims of Paris High School. Local flavor Chris Burke (6' 8") of Prestonsburg will also be a member of the touring squad. Shelby Valley's Jeremy Johnson (6' 4") will also represent the 15th Region on the team.

Prestonsburg coach Gordon Parido views the All-Star Classic as a chance for Burke to play against some quality competition, which can only help him this coming basketball season.

"I would like to see Chris grow about two more inches," said the Prestonsburg mentor. "He handled himself real well in the game at Scott County last weekend. He held his own. It is a little different for him to have to play these games because he has to play out of position some and come out on the floor and guard his man."

"I am very pleased with the way he played. Chris needs to put on some weight to go with his height," continued Parido.

Coach Parido says that Burke is on a weight program and seems to be getting stronger, especially in his leaping ability.

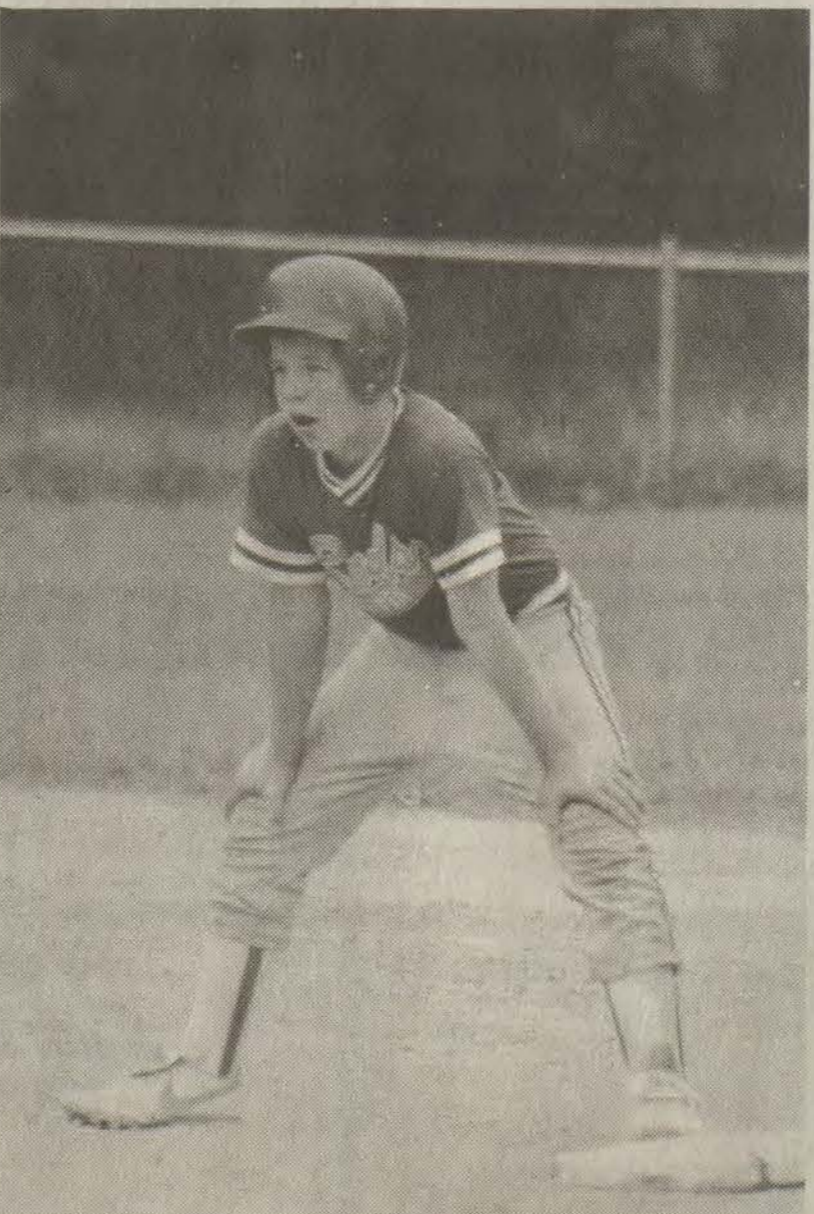

Shelby Valley's Johnson was one of the top sophomores in the 15th Region last year and will be a key player for Bobby Osborne's Wildcats this coming season. Johnson, a strong inside player as well as outside, did not play in the Scott County game but will be available June 28 at Prestonsburg.

In the second game of the evening, fans will get to see some of the states top seniors for next year. The two teams will be made up of East and West All-Star squads. Such household names as Bourbon County's Corey Williams, Jason Goad of Boyd County High School, John Branner of Newport Catholic High School, Tim Mason of Bullitt East High School, Benji Sams of Laurel County High School, Johnny Williams of Jenkins High School, Dusty Adkins of Scott County High School, Jerome Hoozier of Bullitt Central High School, Brad Arrington of Knott County Central High School, Jason Bullett of Pulaski County High School and Estill County's Brian Kaiser will make up the East All-Stars.

The West squad will be composed of University Heights Academy's Darren Allaway (6' 8"), William Unseld (6' 7") or Warren Central High School. State champion Fairdale High School's Carlos Turner will be in action at the Prestonsburg gym. Tic Rogers (6' 3") of Hart County and Demarcus Doss (6' 3") of Franklin-Simpson High School will dress out for the West team.

Mike Fralix (6' 1") of Caldwell County High School as well as Webster County's Joey Davenport (6' 1"). Others include: Brad Devine, Muhlenberg High School, Kevin Maggard (6' 2") of Daviess County High School, Bobby Langhi (6' 6") of Marshall County High School and Lee Wilson (6' 6") of Iroquois High School.

The list of 15th Region All-Stars has not been released yet.

Astros Are "Astronomical" In Stunning 11-10 Extra Inning Win Over Braves

Don't try to tell the Drift Astros that they are a young team and are not supposed to beat the contenders. They won't believe that. The Astros put a damper on the Martin Braves' drive to repeat as South Division champions this year in the Beaver Creek Little League. The Astros posted a 11-10 extra inning win over the front-running Braves and surprised everyone. The game went eight innings.

"We had a lot of chances to win the game," said Braves' coach Steve Jenkins. The Braves' Thomas Jenkins tripled in the bottom of the sixth inning with just one out and the Braves failed to bring him home. Again in the bottom of the eighth, the Braves loaded the bases but failed to tie the game.

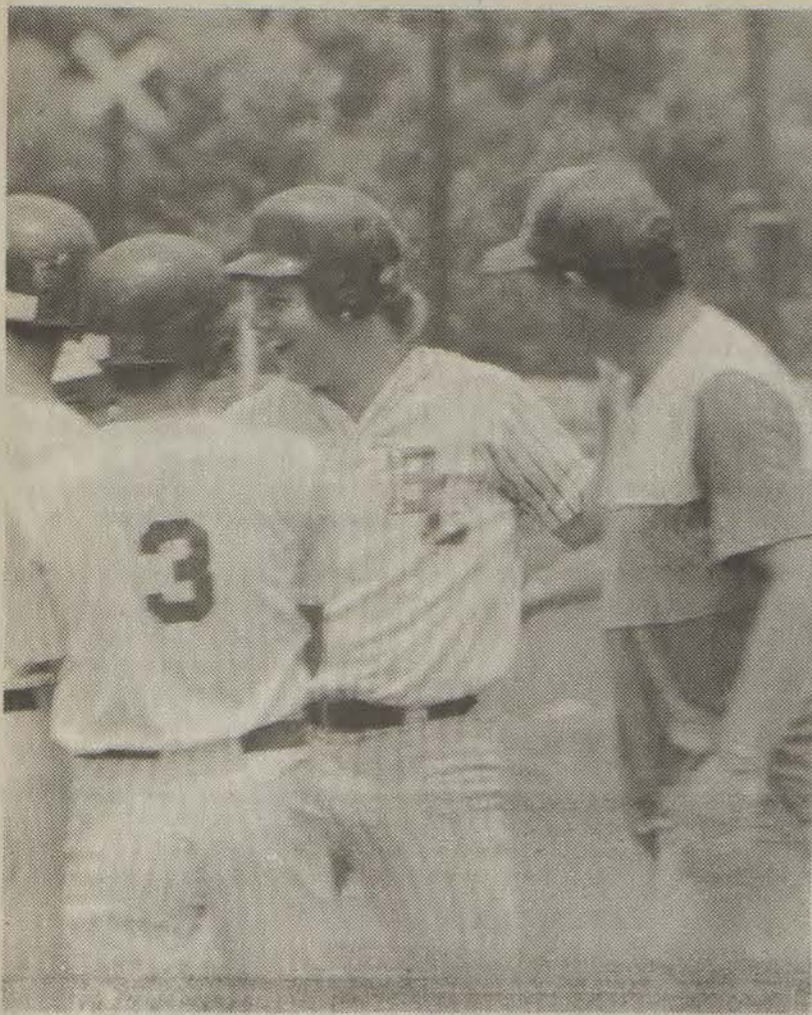

The Astros scored seven times in the top of the eighth as the Braves pitching corps ran into some control problems. Walks, hit batsmen and a two-run single by Josh Hall accounted for the Astros runs. The seven-run eighth snapped a 4-4 tie and gave Maynard struck out two and issued four base-on-balls.

Josh Hall had two hits for the Astros along with two RBIs. Jenkins had a two-for-three outing along with Martin and Cornette. Each had two hits and two RBIs.

The Braves have been playing hard trying to keep pace with the Drift Giants, who have led the South Division all season. When the Martin Reds defeated the Giants, the "hope lamps" began to burn brighter for the Braves. The Giants went to Garrett and faced another powerhouse Pirate team. The Pirates dropped the Giants for their second loss in a row and their third of the season, putting the Braves in the driver's seat and a division repeat with a win over the 2-8 Astros. However, things did not materialize as the Astros defeated the Braves.

FIELDS VS HAPPY'S

It was "upset city" in the Perkins League when number five Fields handed front-running Happy's a 13-6 setback. Fields scored three times in the fifth and seventh inning in collecting 26 hits in the game.

Moocher Kazee had a second inning home run for the losers. Brett Huff homered in the third for the winners.

Keith Rowland had a second-inning triple for Happy's while Gary Lemaster doubled in the fourth.

Brandis Bradley was the winning pitcher, giving up but two hits. Nick Coleman was the losing pitcher.

Ivel Reds Fall 26-0 To Allen Astros In HAP Season Ending Tournament

The Allen Astros scored 11 times in the second inning to take a 19-0 lead and handed the Ivel Reds a 26-0 loss in the opening game of the Harold-Allen-Prater Little League tournament at the Allen Park Saturday.

Wes Samons was the winning pitcher for the Astros. Brad Bailey suffered the loss. Samons fanned seven Reds batters while giving up two walks. He yielded but two hits to the Reds. Bailey struck out three in the two innings that he worked and Bailey walked six. Tom Taulbee came on in relief of Bailey and worked two innings, fanning one batter and issuing six walks.

Samons had three hits in the game which included two triples — one in the first and again in the second in driving in five runs. John Ortega had first-inning triple as did Ronnie Kidd. Kidd had four runs batted in for the Allen club. Sammy Nelson collected a third inning three-bagger for the winning Astros and finished with two RBIs.

Nelson was a perfect four-for-four in the game, doubling in the second and fourth innings. Billy Mitchell, Ortega and Eddie Rowe had second inning doubles. Brandon Castle doubled in the third. Ortega also collected four hits in the game.

Shawn Deskins had one of the Reds two hits — a fourth inning double.

Rebels

Coach Compton also recognized the Lady Rebs women's softball team on completing their second year. Teresa Gibson, who was playing in an All-Star game at Phelps at the time of the banquet, was voted the team's Most Valuable Player.

Johnny Martin, head boys basketball coach at the school, presented the certificates of appreciation and trophies to his basketball team, vowing that "the Rebels will be tough next year."

Stewart Hall was chosen as the Most Improved Rebel this past basketball season. The team's Most Valuable Player Award went to senior Ronnie Sammons. Said Coach Martin of Sammons: "I am proud to have been Ronnie's coach for the past four years. He never pouted on me or got mad. He was a consistently fine basketball player."

The Rebels successful football team received a tribute when Coach Dewey Jamerson surprised everyone by not naming an individual as the team's Most Valuable Player. "As the coach, there is no democracy. The players did not get to vote on the MVP award. I guess that I am a dictator, so I have named the entire Allen Central football team as the Most Valuable Player because it was a team effort all the way."

Allen Central was named EKMC Conference Champions and they had their first winning season at 6-5. John Martin, senior, was named the team's Most Improved Player.

"To say that the Allen Central football team had a successful season is an understatement," said Jamerson. "This team will always be special to me because we worked hard together and it was our first winning season."

Coach Jamerson then recognized those that took part in the Rebels successful track and field program this past spring. Jessica Wade was named the girls' Most Valuable Player and Missy Goble was voted the team's Most Improved Player.

Brian Wallen received the Most Valuable Player recognition for the boy's track and field team. Robert Jervis was selected as the men's Most Improved Player.

"The track and field future at Allen Central High School looks good," said Jamerson. "This year we had 35 to 40 participants out and we kept them out. That is an accomplishment."

Wallen, along with Kenny Crum, represented the Floyd County school in the State Finals. Jessica Wade was the first girls' regional winner the school has had.

Wallen placed first in the region in discus for the past four years. Crum, in his first year at shot put, placed second in the sectionals to win a berth in the state finals. Tim Slone also had a great track and field season with a second place finish in the regionals at Boyd County.

"Our parents worked hard to help this program," added Jamerson. "It has been a good first year back at Allen Central." Jamerson was assistant football coach at Betsy Layne the year before.

The baseball team was presented certificates by coach Anthony Moore. Moore cited the parents of his players for their support during the baseball season and said that the Rebels would be getting better. Moore also expressed his appreciation of Mr. Sword's support for this year's baseball team.

Most Valuable Player honors went to Robbie Sexton and Brad Scott received the team's Most Improved Player trophy.

In golf, Moore presented Stewart Hall with the team's Most Valuable Player award and Ben Moore was the squad's Most Improved Player.

Stacy Moore was the girl's Most Valuable Player in cross country this fall. Arlen Cathers was the MVP for the boys. Most Improved Player for the girls was Jenny Wiley and for the boys, Kenny Scarberry.

Mrs. Charlotte Moore, Peggy Francis and April Gayheart presented the Allen Central Cheerleaders with their awards. Mike Frazier was the school's Mr. Rebel and farewell was said to the Rebel Rousers.

Mr. Sword applauded Rita Osborne and Lisa Hambley for their efforts in putting the banquet together and expressed his desire to see it carried on annually. Also present for the banquet was school board member Orville Duff, who assisted in presenting the awards.

home. The Redbirds pushed across their final run of the game in the fifth on a one-out bases-loaded walk to Hall.

The Cardinals had a chance to tie the game in the top of the sixth when Scarberry singled with one out. Dasner reached on an error at second base, sending Scarberry all the way to third. On a bouncer to Shannon on the mound, Scarberry came raced home with what would have been the tying run. Shannon fired a strike to Reds catcher Kevin Robinson and Robinson put the tag on a sliding Scarberry. Several fans questioned the call by the umpire, claiming the tag was high. Ethan Blackburn bounced to second for the final out of the game.

The Cardinals put two runners on in the fourth inning but failed to move them.

Jason Shannon was the winning pitcher, coming on in relief of Caudill in the third. Caudill worked two and a third innings fanning one batter and walking five. Shannon struck out four and walked three. He allowed but one run on two hits in the final four innings he worked.

Scarberry suffered the loss in going the distance for the Cardinals. Scarberry had six strikeouts and issued seven walks.

Phillip Robinson drove in four runs for the Reds and Kevin Robinson doubled and tripled. Nick Samons and Hall had two hits for the Cards as did Scarberry.

The win improves the Reds record to 11-1 and clinched the division title. The Cards fell to 7-5.

Floyd Countians Brought Home 23 Medals In Last Year's BGS

While Fayette County led all counties with 502 medals in last year's Bluegrass State Games, Floyd County was number 25 out of 102 participating counties. Athletes from Floyd brought home a total of 23 medals, which tied them with Estill and Whitley counties.

Athletes in three-on-three basketball, archery, track and field, softball (boys and girls) and other events were winners of gold, silver or bronze medals.

Surrounding counties Pike, Magoffin, Martin and Johnson each had representatives at the games. Pike came home with three medals; Magoffin, nine; Johnson, one and Martin County, none.

Floyd had 158 participants in the games last season and that number looks to increase at this year's games.

Last year, over 15,000 took part in the three-day event that is rapidly growing to exceed all the expectations of the Bluegrass State Games officials.

Softball was the largest drawing sport in the games last year. The sport drew over 4,000 participants and soccer was a surprise second with over 3,000 taking part. Fencing drew the smallest group of 30. Archery seemed to be popular not only with Floyd Countians but others around the state.

The philosophy behind the Bluegrass State Games is to provide Kentuckians of all ages and skill levels a wholesome avenue for positive development through sports and physical activity; to promote and develop local amateur athletics and to provide the amateur athletes an opportunity to showcase their talent and receive statewide recognition.

The Bluegrass State Games are under the auspices of the Commonwealth of Kentucky. The organizing agency is the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government.

The games are under the leadership of a Board of Directors made of representatives from Valvoline Oil Company, Coca Cola Company, IBM, the Kentucky High School Athletic Association, the University of Kentucky and the Lexington-Fayette Urban County and State governments.

The games are funded by two sponsors, Valvoline Oil Company and Coca Cola.

Former Governor Martha Layne Collins started the games in 1985. The idea was presented to Collins by 1984 Olympic Kayaker Leslie Klien following a ceremony honoring Kentucky Olympians.

The state games trend began in 1977 with the New York Empire State Games which now attracts over 75,000 participants.

The final competitions are held in Lexington. Thirty venues in Lexington and surrounding counties are used for the competitions.

Six sports were included in the first Bluegrass State Games: track and field, equestrian, tennis, bowling, soccer and softball. Approximately 2,000 athletes participated in the final competitions.

In 1986 15 sports were offered. The nine new sports were: volleyball, shooting, archery, canoeing/kayaking, cycling, diving, gymnastics, roller speed skating and swimming. Approximately 8,000 athletes participated in the finals.

In 1987, 18 sports were included in the Bluegrass State Games. Three new sports were added that year: croquet, horseshoes and table tennis.

In 1987, the Governor's Pacesetters program was initiated. The Pacesetters is a statewide walking program for persons fifty-five years of age and older. Pacesetters from across the state will participate in a "state walk" in Frankfort on Friday, July 26.

In 1989, two new sports were added, adult Three-On-Three Basketball and Fencing.

In 1990, nineteen events will be included in the state games. Roller Hockey/Skating events will not be included in the 1990 games.

Participant ages have ranged from three years old to 89 years of age.

The Bluegrass State Games is one of the 41 state games held nationwide. The Bluegrass State Games is a member of the National Congress of State Games. In February 1990, the National Congress of State Games became an official member of the United States Olympic Committee.

Awards are presented to the first (gold), second (silver), and third (bronze) place finishers in each event within each sport.

In 1989, approximately 14,000 athletes from 102 counties participated in the state finals in Lexington.

In 1990 over 15,000 athletes from 102 counties took part in the state finals.

Three new events were added in 1991 — chess, wrestling and golf.

Three New Sports Added To Bluegrass State Games

Three new sports — golf, wrestling and chess — have been added to the roster for the 17th Annual Bluegrass State Games, July 26-28 in Lexington.

The announcement was made on the steps of the state capitol last Thursday during kickoff ceremonies for the summer games, which drew more than 15,000 participants last year from 102 Kentucky counties, including Floyd.

The addition of the new games brings to 22 the number of sports represented in the three day event, according to David McAnelly, Chief of Staff to Gov. Wallace Wilkinson, who was unable to attend the press conference.

The new sports, McAnelly said, should help attract more participants to the event and result in every county being represented by amateur athletes.

Interest in the added sports is growing rapidly across Kentucky, said Carl Frey, chairman of the BGS board, in explaining why the three will be on this year's schedule. Frey is vice president of marketing for Valvoline Oil, a corporate sponsor of the games.

Frey announced, too, that the golf competition will take place at Lexington's newest golf course, Carney Hills Links.

Opening ceremonies for the games will be July 26 at 8 p.m. at the University of Kentucky's Commonwealth Stadium in Lexington. A family picnic at 2 p.m. will precede the official opening.

Earlier that day, the games' torch will be lit in Frankfort, and a team of runners will carry it to Lexington for the opening. Also on July 26, senior citizen participants will take part in non-competitive walking and a festival at the Old Capitol in Frankfort.

Ken Sumner, representing Coca-Cola, the other corporate sponsor, said negotiations are underway with a celebrity athlete to lead the opening ceremonies.

The games are open to persons of all ages and skill levels. Past participants have ranged in age from three to 89, the governor's aide said. Competition is based on age, gender and skill level, and disabled athletes may compete with either disabled or non-disabled athletes.

Besides the newest competition, BGS participants may enter contests in archery, three-on-three basketball, bowling, canoeing/kayaking, croquet, cycling, diving, equestrian, fencing, gymnastics, horseshoes, shooting, soccer, softball, swimming, table tennis, tennis, track and field, and volleyball.

The games are organized by the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government with more than 700 volunteers working with the various sports.

Entry booklets may be picked up at the Floyd County Times here in Prestonsburg or at any SuperAmerica stores and Valvoline Instant Oil change stations across the state. They will be mailed to persons calling 1-800-722-BGS.

Deadline for entering most sports is July 12, but some sports do have earlier deadlines, according to officials.

Potter Three-Hits Wheelwright As Clark Supplies Offense

The Betsy Layne Babe Ruth team remained unbeaten as they posted a 21-6 win over Wheelwright in the Floyd County Babe Ruth League Monday afternoon at the Allen Park.

Chris Potter went the distance for the Betsy Layne club and Barry Clark provided the runs with a second inning grand slam. Clark had a total of six RBIs in the game.

Stars "Shine" In 11-9 Win Over Blue Jays

McDowell coach Carlos Elswick said that his ball club "has been hitting the ball real good" of late and he expects his team to make some noise in the upcoming Beaver Creek Little League tournament at Martin June 22-30.

Elswick's club posted a 11-9 victory over the Martin Blue Jays for just their third win of the season for his young team. "It will be different for them in the tournament," he said, "and I expect we will surprise a lot of people when we play."

Scott Johnson was the winning pitcher for the Stars, striking out eight batters while giving up six walks. Johnson came on in relief of Justin Paige who worked just two-thirds of an inning, loading the bases. Johnson struck out J. Baker to end the inning. Johnson also had a good night at the plate, collecting two hits including a fourth inning run-scoring triple. Johnson doubled in the first inning, driving in a run. Ryan Shannon hit a first inning home run for the Stars, Shannon had two hits in the game.

Moore Slams Two Home-Runs As Drift Whitewashes Cardinals

Chris Moore hammered two home runs and hurled a complete game, as the Drift Giants defeated the Martin Cardinals 25-0 in the Beaver Creek Little League Monday.

Moore hit his seventh and eighth home runs of the season against the Cardinals, and smashed his third grand slam of the year in the fourth inning. Moore connected again in the Giants fifth — a three run shot. He was a perfect five-for-five at the plate and finished the game with 10 runs batted in.

Not only did Moore lead the Drift offense but he picked up the win in a route going performance. The big right hander had his fast ball working as he fanned 16 Cardinal batters. The 16 strike outs gave Moore a total of 72 strike outs in just 28 innings of pitching. Moore issued four walks and gave up just two hits in the game.

Justin Hopkins had two doubles in the game for Ed Moore's Giants. Hopkins doubled in the fourth and fifth innings, as he also had five hits in the game in five plate appearances. Hopkins had eight RBIs in the game.

Jeremy Huff had a fifth inning triple for the Giants, driving in a run. John Stumbo had three hits in the game, as did Kris Branham. Branham picked up two RBIs. Steven Hamilton and Brandon Howell collected two hits each.

Kalem Yates had one of the two Martin hits — a fourth inning triple. Damron picked up the other base hit.

Gary Scarberry suffered the setback, striking out four and walking eight.

Drift continues their half game lead over the Martin Braves in the South Division of the Beaver Creek Little League. The Giants will host the Braves on Tuesday, in what could be a title deciding game. The game is scheduled to begin at 5:30 p.m. at the Minnie Park. The Giants close out their season with the Wayland Dodgers on Thursday.

The Martin Cardinals will try to upset Lonnie Robinson's Martin Reds this Friday at Martin at 5:30 p.m. This will conclude the regular season for the Cardinals.

Special duty

It's been a few years since I did special duty at the hospital but it was an experience I'm not likely to forget.

My father was in his eighties and had developed some health problems. His doctors determined that surgery would be required and so it was scheduled for an early morning hour at Highlands Regional Medical Center.

Two sisters and I discussed among ourselves who would go to be with him through the ordeal. I said, "It won't be a problem for me to leave my job," and so it was decided that I would go.

I set my clock for an early hour as I wanted to be there before they put him to sleep. It was important to us that he know one of the family was with him.

I started in plenty of time but the road was busy with so many people going to work. I found myself in a traffic jam on the main drive through Prestonsburg as two cars had collided and couldn't be moved until police came.

The delay made me late in arriving at the hospital and I was disappointed to find they had given my father medication that caused him to drop off to sleep. "Don't worry," a nurse assured me, "he's just out lightly and they'll wake him when they come to get you here."

I sat in a chair at the foot of his bed. His room was semi-private and shared by another patient older than himself.

His roommate, a Mr. Shiloh, was almost completely invalid. He had wanted to sit up for a while so a nurse and an orderly helped him into a chair at the foot of his bed. We sat facing each other.

After a brief introduction and a few questions about my profession he said, "Your daddy told me about all of you last night."

He was wearing a hospital gown with no robe. His legs were long and skinny and he kept tucking his gown around his knees. He talked about himself and where he lived but said he'd had a stroke and the symptoms were still a shock to him.

"Is there anything I can do for you while I'm here?" I asked. I was touched by his inability to move about.

No, he didn't need anything—and still he worked at his gown tail.

"I'd be glad to get you a soft drink or the newspaper," I suggested. But no, he wanted neither of those.

He continued to talk. "My wife and I were great square dancers but she died some months ago, and now I won't ever be able to dance again."

My father stirred and I glanced to my left to see if his eyes opened. Then I looked straight ahead again to see Mr. Shiloh still pressing his gown around his legs.

"Sissy, there is something you can do for me."

"Sure, anything at all."

"Come and get my underwear out of this drawer for me."

I pulled out the drawer to see a pair of bright yellow boxer shorts. I wondered if he'd be able to handle them.

As if reading my mind, he said, "You'll have to help me."

"Who took your underwear off?" I asked.

"The nurses."

"Then maybe they don't want it back on you." I was beginning to feel a little uncomfortable.

"But it's my underwear," he asserted.

Maybe this is why he keeps fidgeting with his gown, I thought. I went to the door and looked up and down the hallway, but there wasn't a nurse in sight. Perhaps I could help him get his feet through the openings, though both were pressed flat on the floor.

I knelt down. "Can you lift your foot, Mr. Shiloh?"

While he braced both hands on the chair arm and tried to raise one foot, many questions ran through my mind. What if my father wakes to be shocked and falls out of bed? What if a doctor pops through the door and wonders what I'm doing with this old man's underwear?

He finally got the foot up and I slipped one leg of his shorts over it. "Now, can you raise the other foot?"

He went through the same process again, and again I asked myself: Why didn't I stay home and send both sisters? Why didn't the whole family come so someone could watch at the door?

The other foot came up and I slipped the yellow underwear to his knees. How did I ever do it? I asked myself. Now I'll step into the hall and maybe he can manage.

But he was bracing himself with one hand to stand up. It seemed easier for him to stand on both feet than to lift one foot at a time. With his free hand he was holding his gown out and the shorts dropped back to his ankles. "All right, Sissy, bring them on up!"

"Mercy on us all!" I murmured as I reached for the crumpled garment. Then I squinted my eyes together and took it to his skinny waist to release the elastic band.

I slid back into my chair just as two nurses came to wake my father and say, "We've come to get you."

He seemed pleased to see me there and to have me with him when the surgery was over. He did well and I left him and his roommate late in the day.

When I went by the hospital the following day, my father was sitting up in bed and saying he felt fine. I looked over at his partner who was again in the chair. "How are you doing, Mr. Shiloh?"

"Pretty well," he answered, "but I'd like you to help me with something while you're here."

"I'll get you a nurse," I promised, "but I'm in an awful hurry to get back to my office."

Kim's Korner

We've experienced the dilemma of retainment in our household this year, and, to tell you the truth, as parents, making this major decision has torn our insides out.

by Kim Frasure

Our youngest daughter has experienced difficulty in reading. At the end of this year she was beginning to really pick it up and run with it. It just so happened that it was not soon enough for her to complete the book she needed in order to be promoted.

With As and Bs in all her subjects and being on the honor roll, her being retained was somewhat confusing. So, many conversations and meetings with her teacher and principal were necessary. Even though our daughter had received As and Bs, even in reading, she wasn't on her grade level.

We wanted so much to do "the right thing." We're lucky where her age comes in, she's the youngest, or was, in her class and the smallest. These circumstances helped a great deal in making our decision.

I think peer pressure, even at the young age of seven, has a tremendous affect on a child. We've sat her down and tried to explain to her that next year, even though she's gonna be in the second grade once more, she's not going to experience the difficulties she's had this past year.

Her subjects and her tasks will come easier for her, she won't have to struggle and, all in all, being in the second grade again will be so much easier on her.

Her remark, "Oh, I'll be the smartest one, huh, Mommy!?"

She seems to be handling the situation a whole lot better than I. Dear Lord, how I want to do what's right, not hurt my child in any way.

The more my husband and I discussed the matter, the more it became clear, our seven year old was going to repeat second grade. I can't help but have this fear of her in her teens in her senior year saying to me, "just think, I could've been out of school by now, but no, you held me back."

My reply, "just think, we've had you one whole year longer and hasn't it been great!?"

I'm not worried, we did "the right thing." Thanks Mrs. Harmon and Ms. Duncan for the consoling and conversations.

Till next week...

Who wants to go to France anyway

You'd think that with school being out and all, a teacher like myself could take a break from educational stuff. Well, that's easier said than done, especially when articles like the one written recently by George Will of the Washington Post keep appearing in the daily papers.

The gist of Will's column was that our concerns for national security are grossly misdirected. He seems to feel that we need not worry about an invasion from some foreign military power as much as we need to fear our current public education establishment.

Apparently, what prompted this conclusion was something he had read in a new book by Vanderbilt's Chester Finn called We Must Take Charge.

Will seemed upset with the fact that, according to Finn, only 37 percent of the 18 to 24 year olds tested could find France on an unlabeled map. He also seemed appalled that 60 percent of the high school juniors tested had no idea why the Federalist Papers were written. And, he just couldn't believe that American 13 year olds finished dead last in tests comparing their math and science skills with those of students from five foreign countries and four Canadian provinces. In a word, he thinks that the education our kids are receiving is lousy.

So, what does all this mean to us? Since it's not likely that Eastern Kentucky's students were included in such testing, what I'm wondering is, are our kids that far behind, too? Will suggests we find out by requiring a national testing plan.

Well, for reasons too numerous to go into here, I'll predict that that'll never happen. So, to find out just how well they're doing, maybe we ought to devise a test of our own to give to our own kids. Right now, while school is out, would the the best time, too. I mean, those over-taxed little brains should, by now, be well rested, right?

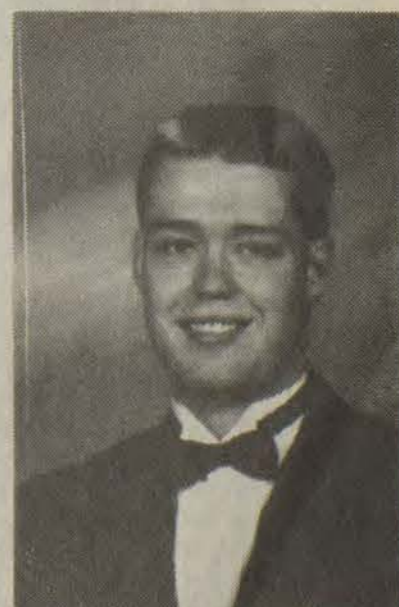

But, ask them something they can relate to, and be nonchalant about it and maybe they won't even know they're being tested. Say something like, "If you're in Paintsville, in what direction would you have to travel to get to Lexington? If they guess right, double check. Ask them in what direction they'd need to go to get back to Paintsville. If they answer this one correctly, give them ten points. If they say, "Why on earth would I want to do that?" give them fifteen.

Ask them "If North is at the top of a map and South is at the bottom, how is it that folks in Prestonsburg can get in their cars and run up to Pikeville?"

Ask some history questions. Ask them, "Why, if the North won the Civil War, are there more Rebel flags on display than Yankee ones?"

Test them in math. Say, "If there are ten loaded coal trucks traveling north, single-file (and sometimes two abreast), at 43 MPH on US 23 between Paintsville and Louisa, how come they're always in front of you and never behind.

After posing such subtle questions, we might just be surprised to find that our kids aren't that far behind after all. Besides, when you think about it, how many times in a lifetime does one pick up a map that's unlabeled? Anyway, who wants to go to France? Or Paris either, for that matter?

Retired Teachers meeting

The quarterly luncheon meeting of the Big Sandy Retired Teachers' Association (BSRT), composed of Floyd, Pike, Johnson, Martin, Magoffin and Lawrence counties, was held Thursday, June 13, at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, with registration beginning at 9:30 a.m. Georgia Muncy, president, conducted the meeting. The devotions were given by Glen Salyer, who read from the 13th chapter of Corinthians. Salyer said that "One of the greatest things in this world is to be a Christian," and added that "What this world desperately needs is love." He ended his discussion with prayer. The Pledge of Allegiance was led by Flora Sue Rudd.

In the absence of Delphia Hicks, Imogene Caldwell read the minutes and gave the treasurer's report. Imogene Salyer read a poem entitled "The Flag Goes By."

Ethel Fetterley presented the program, which consisted of Steve Sansom, director, and several members of his Magoffin County school choir, who sang, "Why Not Me?" "Forever and Ever," "I'm Going to Be Somebody" and other numbers arranged by David Kazee, of Salyersville. Fetterley presented Donna Stevens and Shelly Marshall of Magoffin County who, in turn, presented a group of small girls wearing patriotic outfits who danced to recordings of the Boogie-Woogie and sang "God Bless the USA." At the close of their program, they distributed balloons and small flags to the group.

The president gave the roll call by counties, with Floyd County having the largest number present.

Russell Boyd, who recently completed a year as president of the Kentucky Retired Teachers Association (KRTA), spoke briefly. Virginia S. Goble, a member of the executive committee of the KRTA, gave a in-depth report on the state meeting she attended in Louisville on June 3. She said she was present during the installation of Robert Kelly, who will serve as KRTA president for 1991-92. She told of the new state building being erected and of the forthcoming publication of the KRTA's own newspaper, adding that the first issue should be available in September, and that it would contain legislative issues.

Glen McDowell spoke on the subject of Health and Insurance, with emphasis on long-term health care, and advised members to contact Robert Moore, 929 Wolf Run, Lexington, for further information on this matter.

Edith Hall, of Lawrence County, on behalf of the nominating committee, consisting of Alma Lowe of Floyd County; Imogene Salyer of Magoffin County; Luttie Williams of Martin County; Erma Ward of Johnson County and June Elswick of Pike County, presented the names of the following officers for 1991-92: Ethel Fetterley, president; Danese Amburgey, president-elect; Edith Hall, vice-president and Delphia Hicks, secretary-treasurer. Norma S. Stepp serves as the liaison person and Docia B. Woods as publicity chairman of the six counties of the BSRT.

Georgia Muncy, president, presented plaques to H.C. Dutton, former member of BSRT; Russell Boyd, former KSRT president, and Charles Spears, former president of BSRT (in absentia) for their dedicated endeavor on behalf of retired teachers. Boyd expressed his thanks to the BSRT for the confidence given him, and for the group's cooperation during his tenure of office.

It was announced that the next pre-retirement meeting would be held at Prestonsburg Community College on October 12, and that the KRTA annual workshop would be September 12 at May Lodge.

Norma Stepp, liaison, invited those present to lunch in the Lodge cafeteria. The blessing was said by H.C. Dutton.

County Kettle

By M.L. Harmon

Recently I used several recipes sent in by Thelma Spencer and did not give her credit for them. I really do not know what I would have done without her help. I did not do it on purpose. I have had so many great recipes sent in for this column by so many good cooks and as I have been trying to get as many as possible in each week I have become lax. I'm sorry I have not always stated they were submitted by:, but some do ask that I do not use their names and being human, I sometimes forget who asked to and who asked not to. So bear with me I may yet sometime in the future do one page right. If I ever do, I would probably either faint or quit writing. NOW on to the goodies.

1/4 tsp. pepper
1 green onion, cut into 1-inch pieces
1 large clove garlic, cut in half lettuce leaves

Cook pasta according to package directions; drain. Rinse with cold water; drain. Combine pasta and sliced green onions with pepper strips, ripe olives, cherry tomatoes, carrot and tuna. Set aside. Combine oil with remaining ingredients except lettuce leaves in an electric blender, and process until smooth. Pour over salad mix and toss gently. Cover and chill at least 8 hours, stirring occasionally. Spoon over lettuce leaves using a slotted spoon. Yield 6 to 8 servings.

PEACH MELBA MERINGUES

2 egg whites
1/4 tsp. cream of tartar
1/2 c. sugar
Melba sauce (recipe follows)
1 (16 oz.) can peaches in light syrup, drained
1 tbsp., toasted almonds
Beat egg whites at room temperature in a small bowl at high speed until foamy. Add cream of tartar, and beat until soft peaks form. Gradually add sugar, 1 tablespoon at a time, beating until stiff peaks form. Spoon mixture into 6 mounds on a baking sheet lined with brown paper. Shape into circles using the back of a spoon, mounding the sides at least 1/2 inch higher. Bake at 225° for 45 minutes. Turn oven off, and let meringues cool at least 1 hour before opening oven door. Carefully remove meringue shells from brown paper; cool completely on wire rack. Spoon melba sauce evenly into meringue shells. Top each with a peach half, cut side down. Garnish with almonds.

MELBA SAUCE

2 c. thawed raspberries
1 tsp. raspberry liqueur
2 tbsp. powdered sugar

2 tsp. cornstarch
Mash and strain raspberries, combine with remaining ingredient in a small saucepan. Cook over medium heat, stirring constantly, until mixture comes to a boil, cook 1 minute. Cool completely.

3 tbsp. oil, divided
2 tbsp. soy sauce
2 tsp. cornstarch
2/3 c. chicken broth
2 tsp. sherry (optional)
1/2 tsp. sugar
hot cooked rice

Trim off large leaves of broccoli, and remove tough ends of lower stalks. Wash broccoli thoroughly. Cut into flowerlets; set aside. Slice steak diagonally across grain into 2 x 1/4 inch strips. Pour 1 tablespoon oil around top of preheated wok or skillet, coating sides. Add meat and stir-fry 2 to 3 minutes; remove from wok. Pour 2 tablespoons of oil around top of wok. Add broccoli, and stir-fry 2 to 3 minutes; remove from wok.

Combine soy sauce and cornstarch; add chicken broth, sherry and sugar. Add to wok, and cook over medium heat until thick and bubbly. Add meat and broccoli to wok, and stir-fry 2 minutes. Serve over rice.

Cabbage Patch

By Nell Harmon

Recently I stated to my editor that this column would be hard to write this summer as I am unable to raise a garden, for the first time. She suggested I visit some of my neighbors and write about theirs. A great idea!

I haven't visited any gardens, yet, but as I pass by I am really eyeballing them. The prettiest, cleanest and most well kept one, belongs to A.J. (Jackie) Crider, a teacher at the Prestonsburg High School. His garden is weed-free, with healthy, sturdy plants, and he uses marigold and other flowers, for beauty and pest control. I have never seen any spray or dust on his plants, maybe I didn't pass it at the right time and maybe he, like me, doesn't use them. The only thing I did notice is, his crops are in the same area as they were last year. He did not rotate. I have not really noticed whether he has rotated his crop or not in the past.

Each plant takes from and adds to the soil certain nutrients each year. If you do not rotate you will end up with soil that is over loaded with some things and under nourished with other vitamins, mineral, soil bacteria, etc. needed for flavor, quality and disease resistancy.

One lady who lived here when I first moved to this area, told me she had tomatoes and potatoes in the same patch for 13 years. She couldn't understand why the potatoes were small and diseased, and her tomatoes were bitter, when her sons' were of top quality. She stated he was always moving his plants around in the garden, instead of leaving them in one spot where they did well.

James Baldrige also has a beautiful garden this year. He also has sturdy, healthy looking plants in his garden. The only fault I find with his gardening is his habit of covering the entire thing with a powder puff. The way I feel about garden dust is "If it will kill the bugs, it will kill the people." Each year more and more adverse findings are being published about insecticides on garden produce.

A good rule of thumb is "A healthy plant is a bug-free plant," unless the potato bug moves over to the tomato patch and eats all the tomatoe leaves and buds. How many remember being given, as a child, an old tin can with coal oil in it, to see who could catch the most hard-shelled potato bugs. It worked!
