New organization may attempt to revive bingo games :

Principal pulls plug on boosters

by Scott Perry
Times Editor and
Susan Allen
Staff Writer

With a state police investigation into illegal bingo games at Prestonsburg High School in progress, efforts may be underway by a newly formed booster club to revive the controversial games. Other school booster clubs, meanwhile, have apparently been asked by the school principal to cease their fund-raising activities.

Articles of incorporation were filed July 23 establishing a group known as Boosters for Academic Excellence, Inc. Prestonsburg High School principal Robert May was listed as the corporation's sole incorporator. May has come under state police scrutiny for his alleged involvement in a group known as the Prestonsburg Academic Athletic Association, which operated weekly bingo games at Prestonsburg High until last April, when the legality of those games was questioned.

Asked Tuesday if the new organization was an effort to meet state legal requirements for operating bingo games in Kentucky, May said the booster club "might" attempt to revive the games. May said the group was planned as a means of raising funds for school related activities.

Under state law, bingo is permitted in Kentucky only if sponsoring organizations are tax exempt under charitable organization status. To attain that status, groups must apply for federal tax exemptions and show a five-year history of charitable existence.

In the articles of incorporation filed for Boosters for Academic Excellence, Inc., the corporation is identified as being formed "exclusively for that "No part of the net earnings of the corporation shall inure to the benefit of, or be distributable to its members, trustees, officers or other private persons, except that the corporation shall be authorized and

Robert May said Tuesday the organization was not associated with the high school or the Floyd County Board of Education, adding that the group's corporate address—the same address listed for Prestonsburg High School—was "temporary." May also said that, though articles of incorporation had been filed, organization of the booster club was not yet final. Corporate articles list an eight-member board of directors including Dick Leslie, Ron Hampton, Janet Whitten, Carolyn Ford, John Patton, Robert May, Delores Ousley, and Brenda Fish. All but one of those directors, Janet Whitten, are listed in board records as employees at Prestonsburg High School. The articles of incorporation list the addresses of each director at 546 North Lake Drive, the address of the high school.

While the new fund-raising group forms, other long-established booster organizations apparently are being shown the door at Prestonsburg High.

In a letter last May addressed to "all Prestonsburg High School booster organizations," Prestonsburg High principal Robert May asked those organizations to "cease operations." May apparently based his request on the issues surrounding illegal bingo and operations of the Prestonsburg Academic Athletic Association, alleging in his letter to booster clubs that "the charges that have been made against the Prestonsburg Academic and Athletic Association also apply to all booster organizations that use charitable, religious, educational and scientific purposes, the making of distributions to organizations that qualify as exempt...under the Internal Revenue Code..."

The corporate articles also note

Board to pay $30,000 share :

Suit settled before trial

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

After hours of negotiations, an out-of-court settlement was reached Monday in federal court at Pikeville in a lawsuit filed by a Floyd County teacher against the board of education, the superintendent individually and the former board chairman.

Joyce Reynolds Blackburn was awarded $90,000 in compensatory damages; reinstatement in the school system; tenure; and a two-year contract to perform psychological testing for Floyd County students, said her attorney, Ned Pillersdorf.

The settlement also gave Blackburn the right to return to federal court if the board of education failed to provide the testing for students, as required by federal law.

Blackburn filed suit August 17, 1989, alleging she was not rehired by Floyd superintendent Ron Hager "in an attempt to punish and intimidate (Blackburn), and intimidate other teachers from expressing their views about the operations of the Floyd County School System." The lawsuit claimed Blackburn was viewed as a leader in an October 1988 work stoppage by teachers.

"I see this (settlement) as a victory for teachers and finally students in Floyd County," Blackburn said Monday. "Parents need to know that the school system is required to provide psychological services to any student having problems. Now, if they don't do what federal law requires them to do, the board can be taken back to federal court."

"And, this will also show teachers, tenured and non-tenured, that they do have recourse if they are punished for exercising their first amendment right of free speech," Blackburn said.

Blackburn said she would not agree to the settlement until the provision was included that the board could be taken back to federal court

Creating a second Certified City in Floyd County

Martin bids to become second certified city

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

Floyd County could become one of just five counties in Kentucky to have two certified cities within its boundaries if the city of Martin is approved into the program.

A state evaluation team was in Martin Tuesday reviewing the city's application package and making recommendations for improvements. The Certified City Program has been sponsored by the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce for eight years and is a program coordinated to challenge cities to improve themselves. Kentucky is the only state where the chamber sponsors this program, usually it is done by a state economic development cabinet.

There are 98 certified cities in the state. Prestonsburg has been one since 1985 and twice has earned "Gold City" status. Martin is one of 24 cities seeking admittance into the program for the first year. Cities must be re-certified each year.

According to Jim Sawrie of the Kentucky State Chamber, "the purpose of the program is to systematically evaluate the city's strengths and weaknesses and to set up a schedule of work to improve the area and attract new businesses while promoting existing businesses."

"Cities are not competing against each other," he added, "they are competing against themselves. This program helps them to locate their potential for growth."

Members of the team and the ar-eam they evaluated included: Cathy Guess of the Department of Natural Resources and Environmental Protection, solid waste; Sherry Pryor of Kentucky Utilities, water and waste water management; Teresa Mullins of the Pike County Chamber of Commerce, organizations; Mikah Meeker of the Fivco Area Development District, city planning; Steve Byars of Columbia Gas, industrial development; Debby Gaetz of the Kentucky Tourism Cabinet, tourism; and Sawrie, downtown revitalization and community appearance.

While here the team was shown a video tour of the city and also a video of the Red, White and Blue Day Parade. After listening to testimonies Found at Dewey :

Medical waste is probed

by Tess A. Whitmer
Assistant Editor

An investigation is being conducted at Dewey Lake following the discovery of discarded medical paraphernalia there Friday.

According to state police reports, visitors to the lake found a brown medical dispenser bottle containing an unknown substance floating in the water near the Goble Branch launch ramp. They notified the state park office who then notified David Chaffins, area coordinator for the Kentucky State Department of Disaster and Emergency Services (DES).

Chaffins requested divers from the Prestonsburg Fire Department to search the area on Friday morning to see if any more material could be found. Three divers spent five hours scanning the area about 25 feet from the bank, but found nothing more in the water.

Bob Carpenter of the local DES office discovered a vial and a hypodermic needle on the shore near the area of the ramp.

Chaffins said they obtained some information from the labeling on the items and were following up on that lead. He said they were also researching the type of substance in the bottle.

The dumping of medical waste in a waterway is a criminal act and Detective Les Stapleton of the Kentucky State Police is investigating the crime.

Searching for evidence

Divers prepared to enter the waters of Dewey Lake Friday in an attempt to find medical waste suspected dumped in the area of the Goble Roberts boat ramp. The search was prompted by the discovery of a medical dispenser bottle, a vial and a syringe on and near the shoreline. No more evidence of the alleged dumping was found and an investigation is ongoing. (photo by the Army Corps of Engineers)

Engineer updates board on review

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Structural conditions at two Floyd County school were found to be safe after an engineering firm's inspection of the two facilities.

Frankie Francis, Floyd County director of buildings and grounds, gave Floyd County board members copies of reports by Buell-Fryer Associates Inc.

on Martin Elementary and Prestonsburg High School at last Tuesday's board meeting.

The reports found no structural damage at either facility, but recommended that loose rocks on the high school's exterior wall be repaired and that the floor at Martin be "more closely evaluated."

Parents at Martin Elementary requested the inspection when they discovered that the floor on the second story had dropped several inches.

Francis requested the inspection at Prestonsburg High School after it was reported that bricks on a second story window had fallen to the ground.

An update on the Adams Middle School settling problem was given to the board by architect Randy Burchett. Burchett reported that concrete had been pumped under the structure at the sixth grade wing in an effort to stop damage being caused by settling.

"The cause of this settling is now being investigated and a report of this will be available within the week," Burchett said in a written report to the board. "Please be advised that corrective measures must be done and that possible liability may be involved."

Burchett reported that has notified Ervin Akers, the construction manager for the project; David May; Hall & Clark Insurance Company; and Akers & Akers Construction that the settling had caused damage to the school's footers, foundation, block wall, brick veneer, concrete slab and the ceiling.

The board directed Burchett to notify the contractors to begin correcting the problems immediately. Burchett said repairs should begin this week.

In other business, the board:

- approved permitting the Floyd County School District to be the governing agency for an extended school services grant for the Hindman Settlement School;
- approved submission of the district's grant application for extended school services for the 1991-92 school year;
- authorized Ron Hager, James Francis, Birchell Duff and Jerry McGeary to purchase state surplus property;
- rejected a recommendation to retain Kaiser-Taulbee and Associates for engineering services and agreed to contact Buell-Fryer when services are needed; and
- heard from Debra Hayes, Dolores Smith and Terry Ratliff, and Carol Stumbo during the public comment session of the meeting.

Floyd water clean, says Ky. authorities

Groundwater contamination from farm chemicals and fertilizer is a rarity in Kentucky according to results of a testing program involving nearly one-third of the state's counties. Among those counties was Floyd, which received a clean bill of health for its groundwater.

Only around four percent of the more than 2,000 water samples submitted from 37 counties had significant nitrate concentrations. Just three of 672 samples screened for triazine herbicides had results over the levels allowed under federal standards.

Floyd County submitted 85 water samples from across the county, but the heaviest concentration of samples came from the Middle Creek, German Bridge and Endicott areas. The tests revealed no serious contamination, no nitrates and no triazine herbicides.

Nitrate is a compound that can come from a variety of sources, including poorly constructed wells, failing septic systems, animal wastes, nitrogen fertilizer runoff and natural biological sources.

Sponsors of the testing program were pleased with the results, noting that the findings were even better than the results of a nine-county pilot water testing effort last year. In that initial phase, objectionable nitrate levels were present in roughly six percent of the samples.

The Kentucky Farm Bureau, the Kentucky Association of Conservation Districts, the University of Kentucky College of Agriculture and the Kentucky Department of Agriculture are jointly sponsoring the program.

tenure. Blackburn returned to college during that time to work toward her degree as a clinical psychologist. She can provide testing under the supervision of a Ph.D psychologist.

She will be employed in the system beginning with the 1991-92 school year.

Superintendent Hager would not comment on the settlement Monday, saying he did not know the full details. F.C. Bryan, head counsel for the board of education, would not comment.

Board members Eddie Billips, Tommy Boyd and James Duff were present during the negotiations Monday, but said the attorney would issue a statement.

Boyd said Tuesday, however, that it was not the board's decision not to rehire Blackburn.

"The superintendent never put her before the board to be rehired," Boyd said. "It wasn't the board's fault."

Billips said Tuesday that the board would pay $30,000 of the settlement and the district's insurance company would pay $60,000.

Federal Judge Joseph Hood dismissed prospective jurors at 4 p.m. Monday, saying the case had been settled "saving a four-day trial."

Trooper activities prompt review board considerations

A recent automotive fatality in Floyd County involving a state trooper has raised some questions as to whether the state police should be permitted to conduct their own investigation of the incident without closer public scrutiny.

Because of this accident, and a shooting involving another state trooper which occurred two days later, David Short of Lexington, director of the mineral law center at the University of Kentucky, proposed creating an independent, seven member board to review such cases.

Representative Jim Maggard, (D-Jackson), told the Lexington Herald Leader Monday, that he wanted to propose legislation to empower the House and Senate to appoint a review panel.

"I've got nothing against the state police," Maggard told the Herald-Leader, "but anytime somebody conducts an investigation funded by taxpayers money, it should be reviewed by an unbiased panel."

State Senator Michael Moloney (D-Lexington) disagreed with Maggard, noting such a decision was premature as the results of the investigations in both cases were still pending. Moloney also told the Herald-Leader reporter that, "in effect, the state already has a civilian review board, it's called a grand jury."

State Representative Ernesto Scorsone, (D-Lexington), and State Senator Benny Ray Bailey, (D-Hindman), both see the proposal as unnecessary at this time.

"It seems to me like, in terms of disciplining themselves, they seem to be conscientious and, historically, have done a pretty good job," Bailey said.

Newly appointed state police Commissioner Judge Ray Corns told the Herald-Leader that he did not object to the concept of a civilian review board but would want to review its parameters and "pros and cons."

Floyd residents get free admission to Horse Park

Residents of Floyd, Franklin, Edmonson, and Estill counties will be the guests for a "County Day" celebration at the Kentucky Horse Park. The event is scheduled for August 4.

Admission is free to the Horse Park for residents of the counties involved. Among attractions covered in the park's general admission are the park's movie presentations, the horse museum, the horse-drawn tour, the Parade of Breeds, the walking farm tour, and the Hall of Champions; home of the champion thoroughbreds John Henry, Forego and standardbred Rambling Willie. A valid school grounds, school facilities or Prestonsburg High School students in its operation."

May asked all booster organizations to meet certain requirements if they wished to remain associated with the school. Those requirements include:

- Proof of federal tax exempt status.
- Proof of federal employer identification number.
- Proof of state sales tax exempt number.

"A valid contract with the Floyd County Board of Education granting permission to the organization for use of school grounds or facilities for fund-raising purposes.

"A statement from the Floyd County Board of Education clarifying who is responsible for the funds generated and spent by booster organizations.

Several school booster clubs contacted this week by the Times indicated they were unaware of the letter while others declined comment.

State police special investigator Johnny Ray said earlier this month that no other booster organizations were the targets of investigations other than those operating bingo games in Floyd County.

Contrary to May's list of requirements, state law does not require booster clubs to maintain tax-exempt status, employer identification numbers or sales tax exempt numbers and they may be organized as profit-making entities.

Steve Yater, an attorney with the state Department of Education, was highly critical Tuesday of May's letter to local booster organizations, calling it "disgusting."

"To send out a letter like this and create fear among legitimate booster clubs is disgusting," Yater said. "I don't see how an adult with an education in a public school system can do this. A letter like this doesn't serve any community or school purpose. It's inaccurate and wrong and the school board should call him in and put a stop to it."

Yater said booster clubs and school related organizations are "exempt from state sales taxes under KRS 139.496 and KRS 139.497 and the IRS could care less about school booster clubs. They've never sought to control them. There's a big difference between gambling and gaming and car washes and bake sales," he added. "The concern was a gambling operation that Mr. May was running."

"If Mr. May is going to engage in the unauthorized practice of law," Yater said, "he ought to be right about it." Yater said the only two parts correct about May's letter were a requirement for board approval on the use of school facilities and a need for an accounting of funds raised by booster clubs.

Floyd County School Board chairman Ray "Shag" Campbell said Tuesday that he had "no knowledge" of May's letter to booster clubs. "But," Campbell added, "you can bet if it has something to do with the school, the board will be involved."

from various community and business leaders, evaluation team members were paired up with local people in their respective areas to study the strengths and weaknesses of each.

The City of Martin will not know until early October whether they have been accepted into the program. According to Sawrie, not many applicants are approved their first time, but after making the changes recommended by the evaluation team they get in the second year.

Conley, Akers will wed

The gracious custom of an open wedding will be observed.

driver's license from one of the counties involved admits the driver and the other family members to the park.

Other County Days are scheduled to be conducted throughout most of 1991, said Lee Cholak, the park's executive director. By the end of the year, all 120 counties will have been honored with a County Day.

Tourism Secretary Ron Gentry said the program was designed to make more Kentuckians aware of the Horse Park's attractions.

"We want all Kentuckians to know the Horse Park belongs to them," he said.

Coffee Break

by Scott Perry

This just in from the July 24 edition of the Congressional Record in reference (from a House colleague) to efforts by Chris Perkins and others to provide federal funding for "demonstration" road projects, including Route 23 between Prestonsburg and Paintsville....

"It (the demonstration project) has become an art form, most of the projects demonstrating nothing more than the Congressman's ability to get money for his district."

Maybe we've missed something. Is there another reason for having our interests represented in Congress?

In the event that our district is split by redistricting and counties north of Floyd are lumped in with Ohio River counties represented now by Kentucky Congressman Jim Bunning, Eastern Kentucky voters should know that Bunning voted against federal funding for Route 23.

Bunning may have pitched a perfect game when he was in baseball, but he threw a wild pitch here. Mark your scorecards appropriately.

A Kentucky man, paralyzed in a shooting which followed a drinking binge at a Lexington motel, is suing the motel on grounds the staff at the inn shouldn't have let him drink.

The victim has also asked leniency for the relative who shot him. What's wrong with this picture? While we agree that establishments which serve alcoholic beverages need to closely monitor how and to whom those drinks are sold, it is beyond reason to expect those businesses to assume the guilt for individual actions.

Only in America, land of the free, home of the lawsuit, can a person go wrong and make everyone but himself pay for it.

The devil-made-me-do-it syndrome.

Hogwash. We're truly sorry this man is injured.

We have no sympathy, however, for his cause.

In explanation, we defer to an ancient proverb...

"He can see a louse as far away as China but he is unconscious of the elephant on his nose."

Concerned Citizens for a New Prestonsburg High School have vowed to block progress on all school construction projects in Floyd County if the school board does not proceed with plans to build a new high school at Middle Creek.

Since anyone can file suit for just about anything, we must consider the threat to be serious even if we have trouble understanding the reasoning.

A spokesman for the organization told the board last week that his group's "position is clear and always has been. We want the best for the youth of our district and all of Floyd County."

We assume that "best" is defined here as a new school at Middle Creek or no new schools anywhere.

We can't seem to locate that version in our dictionary.

Hard to believe it, but it's been a year since the Iraqi invasion of Kuwait.

Criticism of the U. S. involvement in the Gulf War lingers, particularly from those who feel the job against Saddam Hussein wasn't finished. Despite the problems the region still faces, some good has arisen from the ashes of the war.

Middle East countries which have been at each others throats since Eve ate the apple are sampling a new recipe called peace.

Okay, it's too early to predict how the casserole will come out, but at least the right ingredients are there.

The unlikely coalition that helped punish Iraq for its infringements seems to be at least willing to discuss carrying the fragile alliance a step further toward a lasting peace for the area.

A lot of things could go wrong before anything goes right in this process.

Cross your fingers and wait.

They call themselves the "Dirty Dozen."

The uniforms say "Paintsville." The record books say they're state champions.

For the record, though, they are really just one of the above...state champs.

They fell just shy of making the Big League baseball nationals in Miami after a more than successful showing in the sectionals this week in Augusta, Georgia.

This team of 16-18-year-olds is a coalition of the Big Sandy's best, with players from Johnson, Floyd, and Martin counties.

There are only ten of them, one more than the number required to field a team, so they adopted their two coaches, businessman Paul David Brown and former Major Leaguer Johnnie "Peanut" LeMaster to make an even "dirty" dozen.

They became the first Kentucky team ever to win a game in the Big League sectionals when they topped Tennessee 6-5 on Sunday.

The (Ashland) Daily Independent, in an editorial Monday, said the team was from Northeastern Kentucky.

Nice try, guys.

The Herald-Leader and Courier-Journal ignored their accomplishments altogether.

Surprise, surprise.

Big Sandy's boys of summer.

State champs. History-makers.

Hip, hip, hooray.

I attended my first Fiscal Court meeting in Floyd County, and, after this one I can gladly say it will not be my last.

I have heard of corrupt politics so much on TV and in the press that I had grown tired of it. I believe in giving everyone their turn to speak and I try to listen.

To the voters of Floyd County—we are a body. We have four magistrates and a set of rules and guidelines which must be followed, if this job as magistrate is done correctly.

I served as a steward for our union where I worked and not one time did I ever turn my back on a fellow member. As a steward, I listened to their grievances and took them before the committee and fought for them. In case our magistrates have forgotten, let me advise all of them—you four magistrates work for the betterment of Floyd County, not just a very few or someone who may help you in the next election, but all of Floyd County.

After all, we pay your salaries—not judges or Congressmen or the Governor. It is the small people whom you seem to be turning your back on. As a steward, I could be removed by a vote. May I remind you, come election time, so may you.

In response to a recent letter by Mr. Allen regarding the gas prices in the area. Right on! I couldn't agree more and it's time that our state, local and maybe federal officials get involved in investigation of these eastern Kentucky gas moguls who are cheating the public with their price gouging. There's got to be a law about windfall profits or something that can be invoked.

We have traveled all over the east coast from Florida to New York and the only place gas was a high as eastern Ky was around New York City. In Frankfort, gas was 8-12 cents less a gallon. In Louisville last week, gas was 98.9 and 99.9 cents a gallon and there's no way it costs that much more to truck gas from Ashland here than there is it is further to go to Louisville. It's time these local fuel Führers answered the public's questions. I'm sure the truckers would like to know why diesel goes up and down so much, especially when it's less refined and costs less to produce than gas. Remember, folks there is no such thing as a free car wash!

I am writing this letter as a means of expressing some of my feelings concerning the death of my mother, Ruby Lafferty. As I am sure most of your readers already know, my mother was killed in an auto accident on July 14 at the Lancer-Watergap intersection. The other car involved was driven by a Kentucky State Trooper.

I read your editorial concerning the accident. I wholeheartedly agree with your column. I, too, feel that the answers are in the hearts and minds of those involved. Unfortunately, the only one who can honestly know in their heart what happened is the trooper in question. I realize that hundreds of photos have been taken, measurements made and reconstructions done, and witnesses interviewed. Alas, the answer still lies with those involved. My mother cannot tell what truly happened. Nor can my grandfather as he has been critically injured with multiple fractures. Perhaps the answers lie with the driver of the red S-10 pickup, but I doubt it. He simply made a U-turn. This is a crime which many of us have committed and have been pursued at a high rate of speed? I think not. This brings us to the trooper. Perhaps he has the answer in his

AAA opposes the nickel increase in the federal gas tax proposed as part of the House version of the Surface Transportation Bill.

Taxpayers can be rightfully skeptical that any additional gas tax would be directed towards highway construction and maintenance.

No gas tax increase is justified unless and until the balance in the Highway Trust Fund and last year's nickel increase in the federal gas tax are fully spent on transportation.

Congress should help boost taxpayer confidence by spending down the accumulated billions in the Highway Trust Fund prior to contemplating new funding mechanisms.

If sound long-term legislation cannot be enacted quickly, a simple two-year extension of the current surface transportation program makes sense.

It's time for Congress to restore the "trust" in Highway Trust Fund.

As I stare out my window at my beautiful flowers, I recall all the hard work and love that my husband Jeff and I have put into our home. We have lived here for close to 16 years now. This is the only home our daughter, Kelly, has ever known. I love this place and this land. It has been in the Wells family for many, many years. Our "roots" are here. I can look around and see memories of loved ones now gone. I can remember building our house, I can recall all the aches and pains from planting trees and flowers. I can remember the day we brought Kelly home from the hospital, I recall earlier days as she played in the yard. This is our home, not just a meaningless place we live, but our home. We have worked so hard to have it. So, why am I so sad? Why do I shed tears as I look out my window? Well, I may have to leave this home. You may wonder, is it for financial reasons? Job changes? Disputes with neighbors? Highway changes? Well, it is due to none of the above; but rather to the medical waste incinerator, operated by Medisin, that is located very close to our home. Recently, my husband became seriously ill, with what has been likened to Legionnaire's Disease, a type of pneumonia caused by environmental conditions. Thank God that he recovered. Thank God for Dr. Furcolow and his ability to diagnose Jeff. Jeff's physical pain was a nightmare—an endless headache for days, temperatures as high as 104°, chills and sweats—but the mental pain we have all suffered has been much worse. Is the air we are breathing dangerous? Is it safe for our little girl to play outside? Will her life be shortened because of this incinerator?

The owners of Medisin will say I am overreacting. They say everything is "safe." But is it? Why does my family experience difficulty in breathing? Why do we have skin rashes and continuous itching? Why does Kelly have hives and coughing? Why have I had five cats literally lay down and die with no clue as to why? Others in my community have experienced unknown illnesses and irritations similar to ours.

We are trying to fight this incinerator, but we need your help and support. Are you afraid to fight these politically strong, socially well-known men? If that is the case, then can you at least offer a prayer on our behalf so we may be strong and united in our effort? Because, you see, we must lay our fears aside; we must fight to save our children, our homes, our neighbors that we love so much; our heritage. Should we have to give up everything we cherish to put another dollar in the pockets of these greedy businessmen? Do they have no conscience?

Tbeg them to do a little soul searching, take a moment and think of the lives of the children. I extend a personal invitation to Burl Wells Spurlock, Edward R. "Ted" Nairn, and Clarence C. Traum to come meet my family, visit my home, become familiar with "life" and the meaning of a "home" once again, because certainly it has become a lost memory for them. Has the love of money clouded their hearts from seeing what really matters to honest, hardworking folks? How can they look into the innocent eyes of their own children and not think about the possibility of this incinerator taking our children to an early death? Can they not "feel" the agony we are concerned with every day that incinerator continues to operate?

Please, let me stress to the readers of this letter, this is not only our problem, but is also a problem to all Floyd Countians. The wind will carry these hazards in all directions that the wind blows. If this continues to operate, it will continue to grow. The problem will only get worse. They are counting on us to look the other way, to grow weary of fighting power. We must band together. We must not give up. You may ask, "But what can I do?" Well, there is plenty:

*Attend every fiscal court meeting and voice your opposition to the incinerator.

*Call Mr. Spurlock, Mr. Nairn, and Mr. Traum and ask for their reasons for participating in a business which poses a health hazard even to themselves and their families.

*Call and/or write to your state representative, Gregory D. Stumbo and your congressman, Carl C. "Chris" Perkins. Remember these men's availability to help when it election day comes.

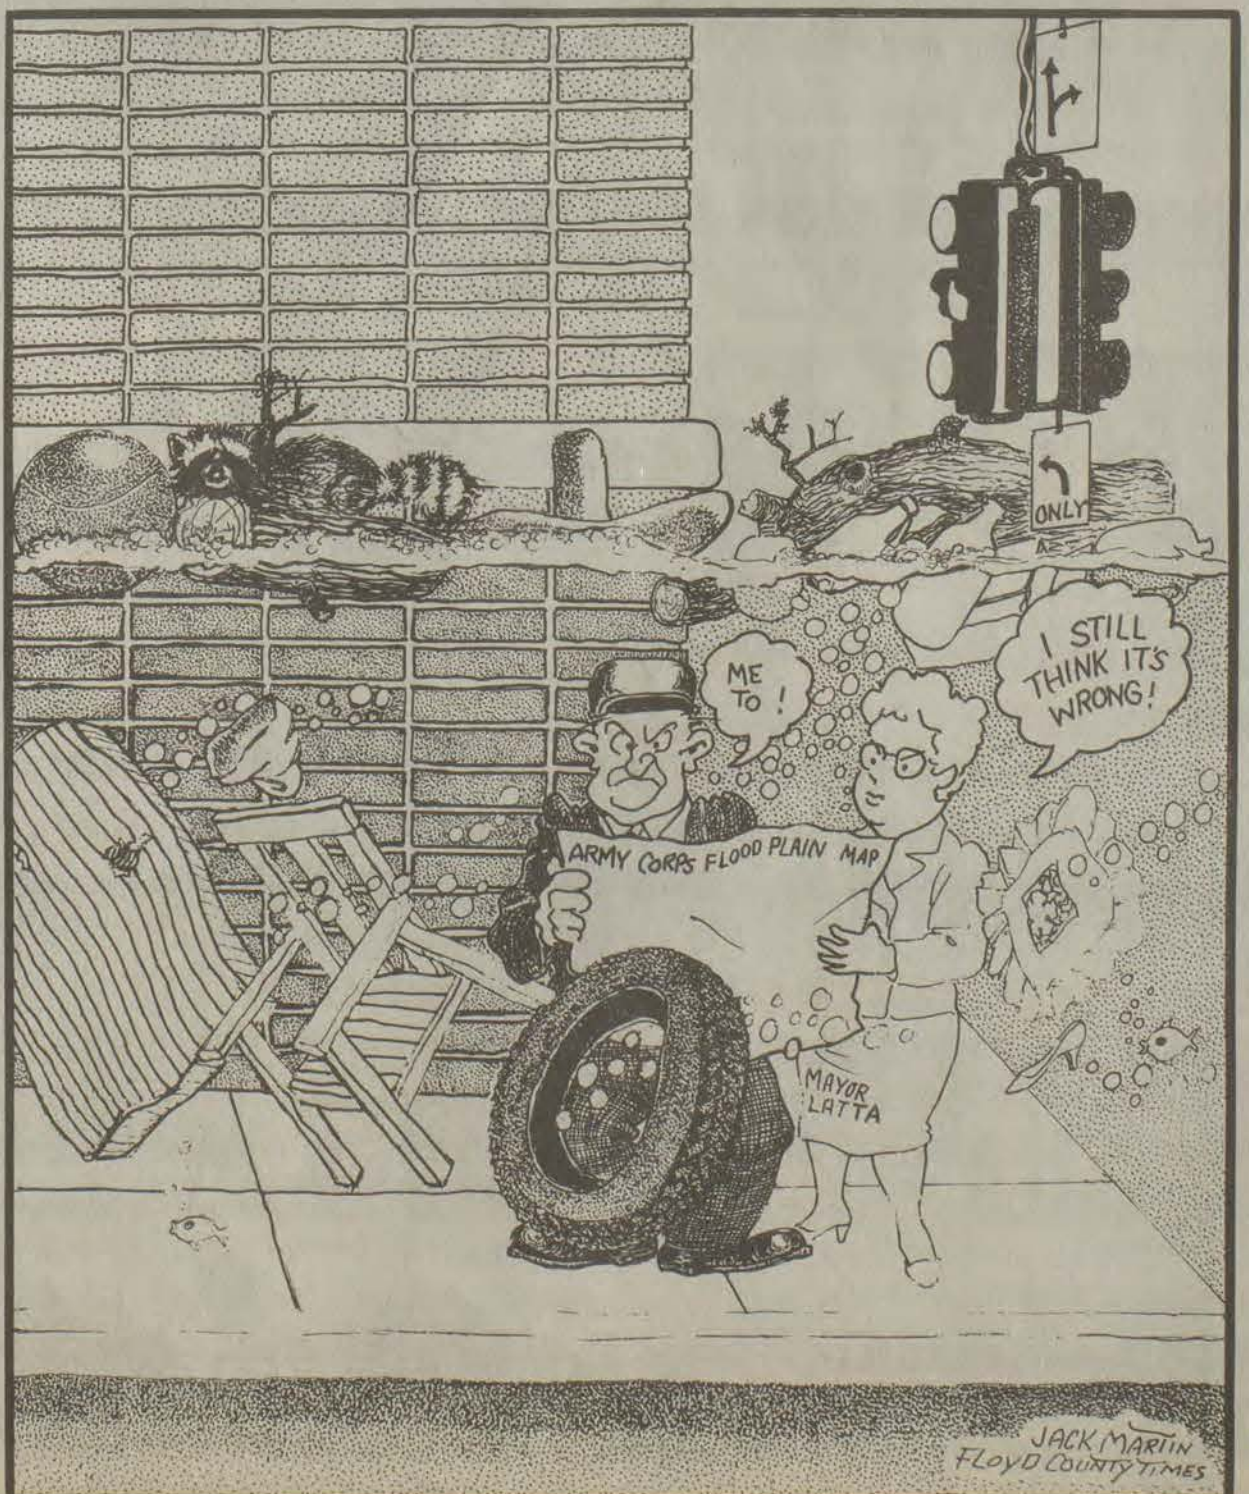

*Support those of us who are fighting this incinerator through Floyd County In Action. Fighting together can make all the difference.

The one thing that certainly remains a mystery to me is Clarence Traum's position as an officer of the corporation which manages Medisin. Isn't this in direct conflict to his position as administrator of the hospital? Isn't his primary concern supposed to be for the health and well-being of the patients at Highlands Regional? What about the health of the employees?

I can not advise you or your family of other actions that could be taken, but as for my family and me, we can no longer, with a clear conscience, support the businesses in which these men play a prominent role while they continue to cold-heartedly avoid our pleas.

I earnestly plead again, especially with Mr. Spurlock and to Mr. Nairn, to recall their own upbringing and childhood memories of home and family and their roots here in these beautiful mountains of eastern Kentucky. After all, aren't home, family, neighbors and our heritage all that really matters? If we don't protect Eastern Kentucky and what it stands for and what it means to us, it can be for certain that no one from the outside will. Is making a dollar worth the price we all will have to pay if Medisin continues to operate?

Action Petroleum wins marketers awards

Action Petroleum, Inc. of Prestonsburg, was awarded two of The UNO-VEN Company's 1991 marketer awards. The company was recognized by UNO-VEN for having the largest lubricant sales improvement and largest lubricant sales volume of all of UNO-VEN's 76 brand marketers during the previous year.

The awards were presented to Paul Whitt, vice president and general manager, of Action Petroleum, by Sam Bailey, general manager/sales, at an awards banquet at The Ritz-Carlton hotel in Chicago.

Action Petroleum is a major supplier of 76 brand lubricants to the mining industry and also provides gasoline and other petroleum products to full service dealers and convenient store outlets in eastern Kentucky. The company was originally founded in 1946, and in 1982 was purchased by Mr. B. W. McDonald, who continues to be its owner and president.

During the awards ceremony, Bill Troyer, area manager, for UNO-VEN stated, "Action Petroleum, by showing the greatest increase in lubricant sales, has now become our largest marketer of lubricants. The company's success as a 76 brand marketer is due to the hard work and determination of its owner, B.W. McDonald, and Paul Whitt."

The UNO-VEN Company operates a modern 153,000 barrel-per-day refinery near Lemont, IL. The company markets 76 brand products through approximately 200 petroleum marketers, who supply an additional 3,300 independently-owned 76 brand retail outlets in the Midwest.

Champion marketers

Representatives of Ashland Oil received the UNO-VEN Company's 1991 marketer awards during the company's awards ceremony held recently in Chicago.

Floyd County is first stop for Kentucky Chamber

The Executive Board of the Kentucky Chamber of Commerce made Floyd County the first stop on their visitation tour of local Chambers. State members held a luncheon-meeting with Floyd County Chamber members on Friday, July 12 at May Lodge.

Speaking for the interest of businesses, the state Chamber is able to do, on a statewide basis, what most local chapters are not able to do. When it comes to legislation, they are the spokespeople for the business community.

The purpose of these visitations is to discover what local chapters are doing and to make contact with individual members. As chairman of the board Bill Robinson put it, "Frankfort is 25 square miles surrounded by reality, we came here to find out about reality."

Robinson stressed that the state Chamber's job was never over and they are continually addressing issues dealing with taxes, regulations and compliance deadlines of same.

Ken Oilschlager, executive director of the Kentucky Chamber, noted that economic development was their primary emphasis. "Not only do we need to attract new businesses, but we need to encourage existing businesses to flourish and make jobs better," he said.

Oilschlager said that the state Chamber had set four priorities, and they are challenging the local chapters to get involved in all four. They are:

- 1.) The Education Reform Act, stressing higher education and re-training programs;
- 2.) Health care, extension to the entire population of the state and a long term, competitive delivery system;
- 3.) Economic development, stressing that local communities must be willing to do things to get it and learn what competitive means; and
- 4.) Environmental issues, such as coal mining controls and chemical limitations. Oilschlager stressed that it was "not the Chamber's position to oppose all environmental issues, but to bring reason to them and to give the companies time to meet the controls. We want to be part of the planning of such legislation and not just reacting to it."

Seven members of the Kentucky Chamber, 20 members of the Floyd County Chamber and two members of the Johnson County Chamber were present at the meeting.

Black Lung Bill passes subcommittee test

A comprehensive bill that would improve the benefits system for miners suffering from Black Lung and their widows has passed a key House subcommittee, Congressman Chris Perkins' office recently announced. The Black Lung Benefits Restoration Act of 1991 passed in almost identical form as it was introduced at a markup Wednesday of the House's Subcommittee on Labor Standards, Perkins said.

The bill as it stands now would change the system in a number of ways. Here are some highlights:

•Limits on Opposition Evidence: Limits the evidence that any party adverse to the claimant can submit against him to one, single opinion from a physician and only one X-ray reading to supplement that opinion.

•Widows/Dependents: A widow or dependent would receive benefits if one of the following occurred: the miner worked 25 years or more in the mines; if the miner died in part or whole from black lung; if the miner was receiving black lung benefits or had a favorable case pending when he died.

•Attorneys: The bill would establish a fee system for attorneys and the benefits paid to them. Attorneys have frequently cited claimants' abnormally low approval rates (less than 5 percent of black lung cases are approved today) and the long delays in case rulings as reasons why they are reluctant to take them on.

A minor amendment to the bill was offered by the subcommittee chairman, Re. Austin Murphy, a Democrat from Pennsylvania, requesting a study be done on the research and development of artificial human lungs.

The bill will now go to the full Education and Labor Committee for consideration where it will come under closer scrutiny.

"The reality of this is that we're going to have to find some way to pay for this bill. The budget's not like before when you could delay paying for something until later. It's pay-as-you-go now, and it will be very difficult to come up with a plan to finance it. I'm going to do everything in my power to keep it moving," Perkins said.

Tall tale campers hit Missouri trails

Members of the Tall Tale Campers group who spent a week in Branson, Missouri were George and Laura Vaughan and don and Maxine Goble of Prestonsburg, and Walker and Thursa Keathley of Ashland.

While there they visited Silver Dollar City and Mutton Hollow. They saw the following Country and Western stars perform at their respective theaters: Mel Tillis, Loretta Lynn, Boots Randolph; Box Car Willie, Ray Stevens and the Ozark Mountain Jubilee at Presley Theater.

En route home, they spent two nights at Land Between the Lakes in Western Kentucky.

They were joined there by Dallas and Ruby Sammons of Prestonsburg and Mr. and Mrs. Estill (Eck) Branham of Bowling Green. The group also visited Kentucky Dam Village where they ate dinner on Sunday and visited Lake Barkley Resort before returning home on Monday.

New highway bill includes Eastern Kentucky projects

A number of highway projects that would directly benefit Eastern Kentucky were approved last Thursday by a key House committee.

The highway programs are part of an immense $153.5 billion surface transportation bill that was approved at a markup of the House Committee on Public Works and Transportation. The bill will set the parameters for highway and mass transit construction in the United States for at least the next decade, said a spokesperson for Congressman Chris Perkin's office.

A breakdown of individual highway programs included in the bill which directly benefit Eastern Kentucky is as follows:

• The East-West Transamerica corridor — The coast-to-coast highway would run from California to Virginia and follow the recommendations made by area officials to have it go through southern and southeastern Kentucky. Congressman Perkins requested a feasibility study last year for the interstate highway, known as I-66 at that time, to pass within 25 miles of Hazard, Jenkins, and Pikeville as it made its way through Kentucky.

The new highway would, in effect, give Eastern Kentucky two major east-west interstates, one in the north (I-64) and the proposed one in the south. This, said Perkins, "would make the potential for development practically endless."

Funding would go toward the engineering phase over the first five-year period and then toward actual construction in a similar five-year span.

• I-73, I-74 — The proposed interstate highway would tie in Eastern Kentucky with adjoining states and make it a central transportation route for the southeastern U.S. The route of the interstate has been set from Bluefield to Williamson, W. Va. as it travels north along the Tug Fork River on the West Virginia side from Williamson to the I-64 connector near Huntington.

However, the road's course from I-64 connector to Portsmouth, Ohio has yet to be determined, with two proposals being offered for the road's eventual path. One of them would have the interstate travel along the Ohio River on that state's side until it reaches Portsmouth. The second plan would send the road through Boyd and Greenup counties as it makes its way to Portsmouth.

Along with the expected four-laning of U.S. 23, it will be the second major north-south artery serving the region. Perkins said the general route has already been mapped out, meaning that construction would take place on many parts of the road in the next five years.

The bill will authorize highway spending and will be subject to a yearly review by the House Appropriations Committee, the full House, and the Senate. It is expected to be put on the fast track in the House, according to committee staff sources, who added consideration of the bill on the House floor will most likely take place as early as next week.

Understanding the Struggle :

Part IV in a series: The Brezhnev Era (1964-1982)

by Dr. Thomas Matijasac
PCC History Professor

The rule of Leonid Brezhnev in the U.S.S.R. will be remembered as a time when Soviet influence was at its height in world affairs. Ironically, it was also an era of economic and cultural stagnation in both the Soviet Union and East-Central Europe.

Brezhnev was far less cruel than Stalin but he was just as rigid in his Marxist orthodoxy. He was firmly committed to Soviet domination over her satellites and he frowned upon any hint of innovation, be it economic or artistic.

Early in his reign as General Secretary of the Communist Party in the U.S.S.R., Brezhnev was confronted with a crisis. The Czechoslovakian Communist Party fell into the hands of a reform faction led by Alexander Dubcek in January 1968. Dubcek promptly began to loosen the tight state controls over the Czech economy and he lessened state censorship in the areas of literature and drama. These moves led to a brief flowering of the arts in the capital of Prague and to hope throughout the entire nation that democratic reforms would soon follow. After some hesitation, Brezhnev decided to crush the liberalization movement in Czechoslovakia. On July 15, 1968, the Warsaw Pact passed a resolution demanding that Czech leaders restore order within their country. A little over a month later, Soviet troops in cooperation with the armies of Hungary, East Germany, and Poland invaded Czechoslovakia in order to enforce strict conformity with the Soviet-brand of Communism. Within short order the Czech Communist Party was purged of its reform members and Gustav Husak, a political opporunist, was made General Secretary of the party.

Brezhnev's actions in destroying the Prague Spring made it clear that real reform would not be tolerated within the Warsaw Pact. The notion of "socialism with a human face" was alien to Brezhnev. Having lost hope for political change within the established system, the people of East-Central Europe began to organize outside the system.

On January 1, 1977, over 200 citizens of Czechoslovakia published an open letter to their government known as Charter 77. In their words, the Charter "is a free, informal, overt community of people of divergent convictions, various religious beliefs, and different professions, united by the will to contribute...to the maintenance of respect for civil and human rights in our country and elsewhere in the world." Members of the Charter 77 movement, including writer Vaclav Havel, were frequently harassed or thrown in prison but they were never silenced.

In neighboring Poland, workers remained restive due to a shortage of consumer goods and a declining standard of living. Bloody riots broke out in 1968, 1970 and 1976 but each time the workers were crushed by Polish security forces. During the summer of 1980, Polish workers in the port city of Gdansk began a strike to protest new price increases for food products. The strikers soon found a spokesman in the person of electrician Lech Walesa. On August 31, the Polish authorities agreed to the demands of the striking workers and allow them to establish the Solidarity labor union.

Within a short period of time, Solidarity gained ten million members and it began to publish its own newspapers which pushed for democratic liberties. The union also formed an alliance with the Polish Catholic Church which strengthened its position in confronting the Communist regime.

Brezhnev looked with disfavor upon the Polish experiment with free speech and he let the Polish government know that if it would not move against Solidarity, he would. In the hope of saving Poland from invasion, General Wojciech Jaruzelski seized control of the government and placed all of Poland under martial law. Walesa and hundreds of other leaders of Solidarity were thrown in jail. Demonstrations of any kind were quickly broken up by storm troopers using tear gas and water hoses.

Even though Solidarity lost its legitimacy in 1981, it continued to function secretly. In July, 1983 martial law was lifted but many of the Solidarity leaders remained in prison for another year. Throughout the period of martial law, Poles continued a campaign of nonviolent resistance to show their support for the outlawed labor union. Workers would observe moments of silence at their factories, electricity would be mysteriously cut off during certain times of the day, and illegal publications were preferred to official news releases.

Brezhnev proved he could control the governments of East-Central Europe through the threat of Soviet military action, but he was never able to crush the spirit of the people he dominated. But the time of his death in 1982, central planning and a lack of innovation were seriously crippling the economy of the Communist bloc. Those economic problems would eventually impede the ability of the Soviet government to rule over her satellites.

BLUEGRASS STATE GAMES

The Floyd County Times

Wednesday, July 31, 1991 B 1

A Look At Sports
by Ed Taylor
Sports Editor

BLUEGRASS GAMES WERE VERY ENJOYABLE

For the second weekend in a row I had the privilege of spending time in Lexington. The previous weekend I covered the Babe Ruth state tournament. This past weekend I had the pleasure of attending my second Bluegrass State Games. Needless to say, I thoroughly enjoyed myself.

This year, unlike last year, I went to Frankfort to take in the opening ceremonies of the Games with the lighting of the torch at the Old Capitol. Pam Shingler, former editor with the Floyd County Times and now employed with the Kentucky Press Association in Frankfort, acted as my guide. We walked from her office on Capitol Avenue to the Old Capitol and I got to see, for the first time, parts of our state's Capitol. I had never been to Frankfort before and I must say I was really impressed with the "old" city.

What a site to see all the senior citizens at the Old Capitol taking in the events of the day. I am glad our senior citizens are able to get out and enjoy such trips. I'm thankful that we have a state government that allows them to be part of the great atmosphere the games generate. They certainly are the "Pacesetters." Think of the years they spent working in the '20s, '30s, '40s and other years to make a place for you and I. Hats off to all of our senior citizens.

After the ceremonies were concluded, Pam and I had lunch on the sidewalk in the Old Capitol section. Just to sit outside and enjoy a lunch with a former co-worker was very enjoyable.

Then we visited some of the antique shops in the square. (Of course, it was still a site seeing tour, who could afford anything else?). There is a lot of nostalgia in Frankfort.

After saying good-bye, I headed back on I-64 toward Lexington to check in at my motel and make preparations to cover the opening ceremonies of the Games. It was better this year than last year, even though they did not have a celebrity guest like last season. Hey, I enjoyed listening to C.M. Newton, Dr. J (Julius Erving) or Scottie Pippken would have been enjoyable also, but neither was able to make the Games. But Newton did very well.

It was good to see Kenny Rice at the pregame activities. He was a busy person, doing interviews and reports. Floyd County should be proud of him. I ran over to where they were having the picnic and got right in line and through without any problem whatsoever. However, if I had waited another hour, I probably would have been standing in line all night. Thousands of athletes and family were lined up for a long ways. Hey, we're talking about six food lines.

All the kids seemed to be having a great time, and it was good to see them enjoying all the activities that was provided for them. But that's the way the Bluegrass State Games are — a lot of fun for everyone.

Saturday morning I was up early and headed for Shilto Park to cover some softball games. After four games, I decided to make my way to the UK campus where three-on-three basketball, archery and track and field were going on. I spent most of the afternoon there and then headed back to the softball field at Gainesway Park behind Bates Creek High School. I thought I would have no problem finding my destinations as I had them so carefully marked. I missed Bates Creek Road, because I forgot that I was supposed to go west on Circle 4 instead of east. Well, when I found Bates Creek Road after a journey around the loop, I made a wrong turn off the ramp and headed back into town. Well, feeling tired and hungry, I headed back to my room to rest a moment and to find something to eat.

I enjoyed the time covering the games and look forward to next year where Floyd County will be represented by even more athletes. Until Friday, Good Sports everyone!

The Bluegrass State Games :

Getting better and better and...

Over 17,000 athletes gathered in Commonwealth Stadium for the opening ceremonies of the Seventh Annual Bluegrass State Games as Governor Wallace Wilkinson proclaimed "let the games begin" to the roar of all those present at the festivities.

The Games, which concluded

Kentucky's 120 counties followed onto the field. The "voice" of the University of Kentucky Wildcats, Cawood Ledford, acted as master of ceremonies for the huge crowd of spectators that watched the events of the evening unfold.

The Bluegrass State Games ceremonies actually got underway in Pacesetters walk.

The lawn of the old capitol was the scene of the torch lighting with the Old Capitol building serving as a backdrop for the ceremonies. Special speakers were recognized before the actual lighting took place.

Over 15 runners were to bear the torch in the approximately 35 mile

There were many activities going on around the stadium area as kids could have fun in the "Moon Walk." A live band, the Sensations, provided the music as they entertained those that had a ear for music. Several of the local television stations were on hand filming live reports of the days events. Some of the kids were having evenings events finally got underway as the stands were full and the Nation Guard band had all their instruments fine tuned. Othello Pumphrey sang the National Anthem accompanied by the 202nd Army National Guard band and Pumphrey had Kentuckians feeling proud with "My Old Kentucky Home."

After the singing of the National Anthem, the Kentucky Army National Guard Black Hawk helicopter squad flew over the stadium to a standing ovation of the crowd.

Something new added this year, and an enjoyable routine to watch, was the Bluegrass Tiger All-Star Cheerleaders, a group of young ladies from the Central Kentucky area.

Ledford reminded those in attendance that "eight years ago the Bluegrass State Games were only a dream and seven years ago it became a reality." The Games were born out of the desire of Cola-Coca and Valvoline Oil companies. Carl Frey, Chairperson of the Bluegrass State Games Board of Directors spoke of everyone "gathering for a spirit of competition and friendship."

"The Games have grown stronger and are more visible than before," said Frey. The Bluegrass Games have become a time of honor and tradition.

Frey thanked Governor Wilkinson for his support to the Bluegrass State Games.

Executive Director Shirley Watts paid homage to the National Guard and said that, "the National Guard has played a big part in the Games. Also, the hundreds of volunteers have helped make it all a possibility."

It was estimated that there were between 700 to 800 volunteers to help with the games at various sites around Lexington.

University of Kentucky President Charles Weddington, extended a warm welcome to all those who were in attendance and expressed how proud UK was to join with the state of Kentucky in hosting some of the events on their campus.

Sea of people!

That's the way it seemed at the 1991 Bluegrass State Games this past weekend as thousands of fans and athletes filed into Commonwealth Stadium for the games' opening ceremonies held in Lexington. Several dignitaries were on hand to help open the games. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

Sunday afternoon, had the largest number of participants since the games first began. It can be rightly said that the "games are getting better and better."

The Senior Citizens Pacesetters lead the way as athletes from 106 of Frankfort at noon with the lighting of the Games' torch that would be carried from the Capitol to Commonwealth Stadium for the lighting of the games' torch. Over 3,200 senior citizens from around the commonwealth gathered to take part in the Governor's run from Frankfort to Lexington.

After the ceremonies ended in Frankfort the activities began in Lexington at Commonwealth Stadium around 2 p.m. as athletes appeared registering and picking up their respective shirts and forms.

their faces painted and a juggler entertained the crowd.

At 4 p.m. a picnic was held for all the athletes and their parents. Medical aid was available and on hand for any emergency situation.

Inside the stadium at 8 p.m. the

Harold All-Stars Roll Over Pendelton Co 17-1 In Little League Tournament

After the Little League All-Star tournament had concluded at Paintsville the Harold All-Stars, players from the Harold-Allen-Prater All-Star team, and others in the league headed for Anderson County for the Anderson County Little League Invitational.

Harold faced Pendelton County in the quarterfinals and posted a 17-1 win behind the pitching of Brandon Castle. Castle struck out 16 batters in the game besides blasting two home runs. Lance Jones and Wesley Collins each had round trippers in the game.

Harold scored eight runs in the second inning to add to a 2-0 lead and went on top 10-0.

Chad Case led off the inning with a walk, but was caught stealing at

Stone Takes Gold Medal In First Bluegrass Games Chess Tourney

Chess was a new sport added this year to the Bluegrass State Games list of events, and Garrett's Rodney D. Stone came away with a gold medal as he claimed first place in the junior division. Stone played five games in the meet. First place is determined by the number of games that you win and how tough your opponent is.

According to Stone, he has played in other tournaments before, but this is the first time in the Bluegrass Games since this the first time the sport has been offered. He plays chess in the club he belongs to at Allen Central High School.

second. Derek Stanley doubled and came in to score on Matt Kidd's double. Brad Kidd and John Ortega drew back-to-back walks to load the bases. Shannon Potter walked to score Kidd. Collins then hit into a fielder's choice, forcing Ortega at third base. Castle scored Potter and Collins with a double. Jones then hammered a two-run home run. Case then was safe on an error. He stole second, third and then stole home for the eighth run.

Pendelton County scored their lone run in the bottom of the second inning when Jones singled off of Castle and stole second, third and he scored on a passed ball.

Harold pushed across three runs in the top of the third inning when Brad Kidd led off with a walk and stole second. Collins' base hit scored Kidd and Castle cranked out a two-run home run to make it a 13-1 game. Again in the fifth, it was the bat of Castle. Potter singled leading off the fifth. Collins walked and Castle hammered his three-run home run.

Harold completed their scoring with a run in the sixth inning. Matt Kidd walked to lead off the sixth. Brad Kidd singled and Potter's grounder to second base was mishandled allowing Matt Kidd to score.

Castle gets the win while Herbst was the loser. Herbst had six strike outs in going the distance for Pendelton County.

Wins Gold in long jump...

Sense Of Accomplishment Drives Clay To Take Part In Bluegrass State Games

Bridget Clay, head girls basketball coach at Prestonsburg High School, recalled her days as a student/athlete at the local high school and remembered the days that she won the regional women's track and field long jump and high jump events. Those memories fired up the desire in Clay to compete once again. So, she signed up to take part in the past Bluegrass Games in Lexington.

"I signed up for the high jump event but decided not to take part because I didn't have any place to practice. I did get to practice my long jump at Clark school.

Clay's training and knowledge of the field paid off for her as she "brought home the gold" in finishing first in the women's long jump with a jump of 14-feet and 10-inches.

"The girl in front of me jumped 14-feet and seven-inches and I knew I had to beat that," explained Clay. "So, on my second jump I landed at 14-feet and 10-inches."

In the long jump event, a participant gets three chances to jump. Clay recorded a jump of 14-feet and four-inches in her first attempt and on her final jump she had a 12-feet and eight-inch jump.

"I had been landing at 15-feet all the time I was practicing for the event," Clay said. "But when I got there I began to get nervous and my legs tightened up on me. It was a lot of fun and I really enjoyed it. I had played in the games before on softball teams, but I wanted to do something on my own. It had been 15 years since I tried anything like this."

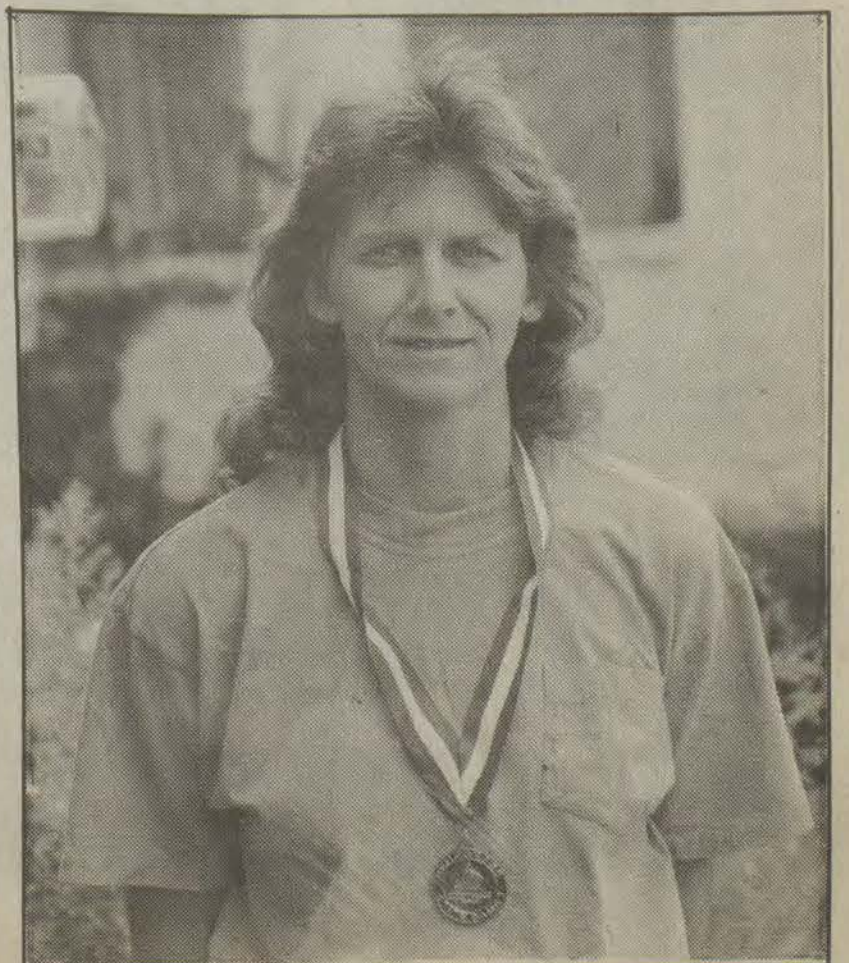

Clay, like many, sites the absence of a track and field facility in Floyd County to practice on as keeping people from getting more involved in the sport.

"Track and field is a great sport," she says. "I could have went to Pikeville and practiced for the events I suppose. It would be nice if we had the facilities here and not have to drive to Pikeville."

Clay hopes to get her sister Jamie involved in next years games and would like to see a program started at Prestonsburg High School.

For Bridget Clay, basketball coach and former long jump champ, the games were just a lot of fun.

Professor, teacher, archer!

Ron Carter, right, posed with his son Brian during a break in the Bluegrass State Games archery shoot at Shively Field in Lexington. The father and son combo was the one of two who took part. Both father and son won gold and silver medals in the meet. The elder Carter teaches archery at PCC. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

Carter Boys Bring Home The Gold

Ronnie Carter not only teaches archery at Prestonsburg Community College but he also excels in it during competition. Carter has been teaching archery at the local college for the past four years while actively shooting for the past eight years.

"I usually hold classes in the fall, spring and summer," he said during the Bluegrass State Games in Lexington over the past weekend. "I expect we will have around 32 students this coming fall."

Carter, along with son Brian, were part of the many that took part in the archery events at the Bluegrass Games. Both won gold and silver medals this past weekend at UK's Shively Field.

The elder Carter placed first in the 18 and over Bowhunter's Freestyle Unlimited Flight Seven with a score of 85. The younger Carter was first in the Bowhunter's Freestyle Unlimited Flight Five with a score of 95. Brian also placed second in Field Archery Flight Three with a 250.

"I am proud of Brian and what he accomplished in his first competition and for the first time in the Bluegrass Games," said the elder Carter. "He has only been shooting for about six months. Even though Carter has been shooting in the Games for the previous three years, this is the first medals he has won in the games."

Carter likes the more modern bows because they are more accurate. He also says that persons just getting into, or who have intentions of trying, the sport of archery, the type of equipment they use is very important.

"Archery bows need to be designed to the person," he says. "There is a difference in equipment. I would suggest that anyone that is interested take a class on archery and be sure to get the proper equipment."

Carter says that a person's size and strength dictates the type of bow he should shoot with.

"It's not like a rifle," he said. "It involves the eye, pull and poundage."

Carter holds his classes on Monday and Wednesday's at PCC and the cost for the course is $27.50 per person. Each participant receives one credit for the course.

Ledford then introduced Governor Wilkinson and he sort of reprimanded those that did not stand when Pelphrey sang "My Old Kentucky Home." Said Wilkinson, "My Old Kentucky Home is just as important as the National Anthem and therefore everyone should have been standing."

Governor Wilkinson stated that the Games would not be possible if it were not for the sponsors. "Also the Fayette Urban Council has played a big part in the Games," he said. "Kentucky loves a challenge and that has been true for 200 years. It is no different in competing whether is for jobs or horseshoes or any events. Kentuckians are ready."

"I am proud of the Kentucky Games and all those who participate," said Wilkinson. "It is one of the largest and most successful Games in our nation."

The Games guest speaker was UK Athletic Director C.M. Newton. Newton is a former Alabama coach where he won three SEC titles and made four appearances in the NIT and two trips to the NCAA. He later became head coach at Vanderbilt.

"I have seen a lot of sporting events but none match this," he said. "The Bluegrass State Games are something all in Kentucky can be proud of. I am also impressed by the support by state government of the Games."

"We have a two-year-old here taking part in the games, William Camp, who is barely out of diapers," Newton went on. "Then we have the oldest participant, Bernice Sharpener, who is 89."

"I have been around sports all my life and I am aware that the emphasis has been put on winning. Wasn't it Coach (Adolph) Rupp who said 'if we're not here to win why keep score'. The Bluegrass Games must be fun and it makes it enjoyable to compete."

Newton spoke of the other goals they have at UK and that is to see the athletes work hard in another area — the classroom.

"I am proud of our coaching staff we have here at UK," he stated. "They are doing what I want our coaches to do — develop an attitude of an athlete being an all around person."

After Newton concluded his speech, he assisted 66-year old Ernie Southworth of Stamping Ground in lighting the huge torch to signify the opening of the games. Governor Wilkinson gave the Oath of Athletes to all the participants. A huge display of fireworks shot into the air as the opening ceremonies came to a close.

On Saturday evening in downtown Lexington, a street dance with "The Sensations" was held for all athletes and parents.

The 1991 Bluegrass State Games was certainly one of the greatest events to take place in our great state. Next year will be even greater!

WMDJ "Cleans Up" Dirty Dozen In 24-11 Mercy Game In Bluegrass Outing

Henry Webb collected four hits in driving in four runs to lead the WMDJ softball team to an easy 24-11 "mercy" win over the Dirty Dozen in softball action at Shilto Park in Lexington. The radio team collected 19 hits in the win including a two-run homer by Barry Hall in the first inning. Hall also doubled in a run in the second inning.

WMDJ scored 12 times in the first inning as they put the game in the win column early. Pete Castle carried a hot bat with two hits including his first inning triple that scored two runs. Jeff Burchett had a lead off triple in the second inning for the winners.

Webb, who was perfect at the plate, had a third inning triple driving in two runs. Brian Jones collected a second inning double that was good for two runs batted in. Jones had a lead off double for WMDJ in the fourth inning.

The defense shined for WMDJ in the second inning with runners on first and third and one out. Dale McKinney's team turned an outstanding 6-4-3 double play to get out of the inning.

Rusty Offutt had a fifth inning home run for the Dirty Dozen driving in two runs. Murry Vandiver had a third inning two-run triple and Von Horton doubled for the Dirty Dozen in the fourth.

Burchett was the winning pitcher and Horton took the loss.

The Dirty Dozen committed six errors in the game while WMDJ had three. WMDJ left eight runners on base while the Dirty Dozen stranded six.

The Dirty Dozen tried to rally in the bottom of the fifth inning to avoid a mercy loss. Four runs crossed the plate in the inning as the rally fell short.

High School Training Pays Off In Bluegrass For AC Runners, Throwers

It may have been a rough track and field season for the Allen Central Rebel track and field team this past year, but it seemed to have paid off in the Bluegrass State Games this past weekend in Lexington. Six members of the Allen Central team took part in the Seventh Annual games and came home with some hardware around their necks.

Jason Samons placed first in the 100 meter run for 14-year olds. Samons posted a time of 12:56 in winning first place and a Gold Medal. Samons was one of the promising young sprinters for Dewey Jamerson's team this past season. He will be a freshman next year at Allen Central.

Samons also came home with a silver medal after placing second in the 200 meter dash. Samons posted a 26:01 in the run.

Tim Slone, 17, won a bronze medal in discus with a toss of 112-feet and two-inches. Slone, a late-comer to the sport, improved quickly over the past two seasons at Allen Central and was having to throw behind Brian Wallen who placed second in the state this past year. Slone won a bronze medal last year in his first try in the games.

A young thrower who has a lot of promise is Levi Wells. Wells won a silver medal for second place in discus with a toss of 98-feet and two-inches. Wells will be an eighth grader at Maytown this coming year and is expected to be groomed for the high school ranks in the next couple of years. Wallen had been working some with Wells and has proclaimed Wells as a thrower to watch out for by the time he is a junior in high school.

Wells is an accomplished shotput thrower also and placed second in the shotput competition with a throw of 33-feet and two and a quarter-inches.

Determination is the way you have to describe the play of Todd Howard. Howard, too, shows a lot of promise as a sprinter for the Allen Central team. Howard won two bronze medals in the 800 meter run and then again in the 1500 meter run. Howard posted a time of 3:00.67 in the 800 meters and ran a 5:59.54 in the 1500 meters. He finished fifth in the 3000 meters race.

In the women's competition Jessica Wade finished fourth in the women's 3000 meter run. Wade will be back next year at Allen Central as Jamerson expects a strong women's team next spring.

Ken's Edges Parrish Lumber 14-13 In Bluegrass Games

Ken's Sport Shop collected 18 hits enroute to a 14-13 win over Parrish Lumber in softball action at Gainesway Park in Lexington. The game was all part of the Bluegrass State Games that took place all last weekend.

Ken's, who two years ago won the Bluegrass State Games in Class B softball, had to hold a late seventh inning rally by Parrish Lumber to edge out the win. Ken's held a 14-9 lead going into the top of the seventh when Parrish Lumber scored four times and left the tying and go ahead runs on base.

Trailing 1-0 going into the bottom of the first inning, Ken's struck for four runs for a 4-1 lead. A lead off walk and a base hit by Kane Hale put the first two batters on base for Ken's. After Jimmy Blankenship went out deep to right field, Mike Howard picked up an RBI single. Greg Shepherd doubled behind Howard scoring Blankenship. Mike McQuate singled home Howard and Shepherd.

Parrish Lumber went out in order in their half of the second and Ken's added another run on a base hit by Jeff Cole and a run producing double.

Parrish Lumber took their only lead in the third inning when they pushed across seven runs for a 8-5 lead. With one out, Parrish collected five consecutive base hits off of pitcher Tim Rice. In the inning, Parrish Lumber had eight hits in scoring seven times.

Ken's scored two runs in the bottom of the third inning with the help of some shaky fielding by Parrish to pull to within one run. With the bases loaded, Shepherd came in to score when Rice's ground ball to third was misplayed. Cole's sacrifice fly accounted for the second run when Ronnie Little crossed the plate.

It was 9-8 after the fourth inning when Ken's scored twice on three hits. Hale singled and Blankenship followed suit. Howard collected his second hit of the game with a RBI double scoring Hale. Blankenship came in to score on a sacrifice fly off of the bat of Shepherd.

A lead off triple for Parrish Lumber in the top of the fifth went by the way side as Ken's held the runner without scoring.

Hale provided the big bat for Ken's in their half of the fifth inning when he blasted a mammoth home run over the left centerfield fence. Hale's shot cleared an added fence that stood about 12 feet high and the ball landed in a grove of trees between the field and apartment houses. Hale picked up three RBIs on the clout and gave Ken's a 13-9 lead.

The local team added what proved to be the winning run in the bottom of the sixth on Little's one out double and Jerry Fultz RBI single.

Howard collected three hits in the game as did Hale. Rice, Fultz and Cole each had two hits apiece

King Racks Up Seven Medals In Gymnastics; Mayo Collects Six

Thomas King and James Mayo won their share of medals at the Bluegrass State Games in Lexington this past weekend. King came home with seven medals, ninth best in the state, and Mayo carried six home with him.

King, 16, placed first in three categories in the Male Class II Division. He was first in floor, parallel bars and pommel horse. He won silver medals in vault, rings, high bars and all around.

Mayo won first in the Male Class IV/C Division for seven through nine year olds in parallel bars and rings. He finished second in floor and vault. Mayo had one third place finish in pommel horse. In all around, Mayo placed second.

Daniel Workman won a bronze medal for third place in floor in the same class of competition.

Father and son act!

John Stout, left, and his father Stevie were one of two father and son teams in the archery shoot at Shively Field in Lexington as they took part in the Bluegrass State Games for the first time. Both won gold medals in the event. (Photo by Ed Taylor)

Father And Son Win Gold In First Bluegrass Games

"Last year we went to watch the Bluegrass State Games and we really enjoyed it," said Stevie Stout of Martin, who along with his son John, took part in the archery events held at Shively Field on the campus of the University of Kentucky. "With the help of Buzz Allen and Randy Polk we decided that this year we were going to take part in the games."

Both father and son came away with gold medals in "Field Archery" and a taste of what it is to be part of such great events as the Bluegrass State Games affords.

Stout said that he became interested in archery when his son wanted a bow for Christmas one year. "So, I got him one and thought I'll just get me one also and shoot with him."

Stout says that both spent some time at Archer Park practicing for the Games and found that Allen and Polk have been willing to share their experience in archery with them.

"I was amazed at how such games as the Bluegrass Games could be ran so smoothly," stated Stout. "They really got it down to where it works. It takes a lot of people to run it."

Stout and his son are just two of many who, once they draw the "string," are hooked on one of the fastest growing sports in the area.

Calling Afield

August 8 is the date for the next "live call in" show on the Kentucky Afield TV program. The popular format allows viewers to channel their questions and concerns directly to a panel of experts from the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources.

According to show host Dave Shuffett, the August 8 program will deal specifically with the department's nongame wildlife programs, such as bald eagle restoration, osprey hacking (relocation) and endangered bat distribution. The tentative line up of guests includes David Yancy, wildlife biologist; Wayne Davis, chief of the departments environmental section; and Lauren Schaaf, director of the Division of Wildlife.

Where the Bottom Line Is Less!

Bassin' with the Pros

Topwater Fishing can be Good in Calm or Windy Conditions

Bass anglers everywhere love the excitement of catching fish on topwater lures, where the explosion of a strike is seen as well as felt. Many describe it as one of bass fishing's greatest thrills.

What a lot of anglers don't realize, says well-known tournament pro Cliff Craft, is that topwater fishing can be extremely effective in both calm and windy conditions.

"Most fishermen seem to limit their topwater fishing to one or the other," explains the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler, "but all that's needed is to change lures and you can fish on both calm and windy days."

When a lake's surface is calm and smooth, as it frequently is early in the morning or late in the afternoon, Craft suggests using quiet lures that do not make a lot of commotion. Surface plugs without propellers that can be "walked" slowly across the water are among the best choices.

"You want to work these lures very slowly and deliberately," says Craft, "and when you do, you'll frequently see bass come up under or behind the lure and follow it."

"They'll strike at their chosen time. I remember times where you received far more strikes if you never moved the lure at all. You just let the plug sit there, and all of a sudden, about 20 seconds later, a bass would really blast it."

"Those fish were sitting under the lure watching and waiting until they wanted to strike."

Just the opposite seems true on windy days, explains the Evinrude pro. The most productive lures when the water has a ripple or even waves are very noisy plugs that create a lot of commotion.

"I like to use chuggers that pop and spit water when you move them," says Craft, "the propeller lures that buzz and churn across the surface, and I retrieve them fast with a lot of action."

"Here, I believe you're exciting the bass and are getting reaction strikes. Because the surface is rough, the bass may not see the lure as well, so they rely more on their hearing."

"Strikes in rough water are often very hard and savage, again possibly because the fish don't see the lure quite as well."

As every topwater fisherman has experienced, bass often miss when they strike fast moving surface lures. When this happens, Craft suggests anglers stop the retrieve at that spot because a second strike frequently follows within seconds.

"If there is no second strike, you may catch the fish by casting a plastic worm into the same spot. If the fish continually miss, you may consider changing to a smaller version of the same lure."

PATIENCE IMPORTANT WHEN CHASING BIG BASS

It may come as a surprise, but the main ingredient in establishing a big bass pattern doesn't include rods, reels, or lures.

Instead, the most important ingredient is patience.

That's the opinion of well-known tournament pro Cliff Craft, a former Lake Lanier, Georgia, fishing guide who has caught dozens of trophy-sized bass.

"I believe patience is the most important aspect of trophy bass fishing because you often go hours without a strike," explains the Evinrude Outboards Pro Staff angler. "You start wondering if you're doing the right thing, but you don't know because you haven't caught anything."

"You just have to trust your instincts and keep doing it. As far as actual fishing techniques are concerned, Craft offers several suggestions: use big lures, work very slowly, and fish the thickest cover available."

"There is a lot of truth in the saying, Big bass like big lures, so I change to spinnerbaits with larger blades, jigs with longer trailers, or larger plastic worms and lizards," Craft explains.

"These lures are simply too big for small bass to hit, which is why you can go hours without a single strike. When something does finally hit, it's a bass that is large enough to swallow the offering."

Fishing these lures slowly and in extremely thick cover will put them — and keep them — in front of big bass.

"Large bass are not overly aggressive," notes the Evinrude pro, "and they usually stay in very heavy cover where they can ambush their prey more easily."

"You have to look for these areas, and when you find them, fish much more slowly than usual. I don't believe big bass spend that much time actually studying lures. They're just not as active and you may have to tempt them repeatedly before they finally hit."

In addition to thick cover, says Craft, big bass are often found very close to deep water dropoffs, such as around ditches, creek channels, and steep points.

Bluegrass State Games Hand Out 3,569 Medals: Floyd County Gets 28

Some 17,638 Kentuckians tested their mettle at the 1991 Bluegrass State Games and walked away with some 3,569 medals to show for their efforts.

The seventh annual games was the largest to date in terms of participants who came to Lexington this weekend to participate in the 22 sports offered this year. About 15,500 persons competed in the 1990 games.

The most medals went to Fayette County, which ended up with 647 medals, followed by Jefferson County with 462 medals. The top 10 counties and number of medals earned by participants including Fayette and Jefferson are: Kenton, 342; Boone, 138; Madison, 121; Scott, 115; Campbell, 112; Jessamine, 97; Franklin, 90 and Woodford, 86.

Floyd County placed 28th out of the 107 counties taking part in the games. Twenty-eight medals were brought back to Floyd County.

Athletes came from 107 of Kentucky's 120 counties to participate in the Games. The oldest and youngest participants were in track and field. Bernice Shropshire, 89, from Paris, competed in two track and field events along with two-year-old William Kemp from Murray.

Although the Bluegrass State Games is open to all ages, the majority of this year's individual participants were from 10 to 18 years old.

Track and field was the most popular individual competition with more than 828 participants, followed by tennis with 566 athletes competing.

Softball was again the largest team event, drawing over 4,520 individuals. Soccer was the second largest team sport with 3,920 participants.

The Games is sponsored by the state of Kentucky and is organized by the Lexington-Fayette Urban County Government, with the help of more than 700 volunteers.

The Bluegrass State Games, funded by Valvoline Oil Company and Coca-Cola, is one of 41 state games held nationwide.

Polk wins bronze

For Allen It Was Frustrating In Bluegrass Games, But He Enjoyed Every Bit Of It

Kenneth "Buzz" Allen is used to bringing home the gold when he shoots in the Bluegrass State Games archery division. But this past weekend, Allen had to settle for a silver medal in a second place finish at Shively Field on the campus of the University of Kentucky.

"I just didn't have a good shoot at all on Saturday," said the former medal winner. "It was just a bad weekend."

On Sunday in the Animal Shoot, Allen placed second and won his silver medal making the trip to Lexington not all in vain. "I enjoyed myself anyway," he said despite his finish, "and that's all that matters."

Allen, who first entered the Bluegrass Games in 1988, won a gold and silver in last year's games. He had won a gold medal the previous three years and this is the first time he has failed to come "home with the gold."

Allen says that he got into the sport just for the fun of it and enjoys jolting around the area with fellow bowman Randy Polk to take in all the meets that he can.

Allen shot in the 55 and over Freestyle Unlimited

Another Floyd County native that has excelled at the sport is Polk, like Allen, he has been a consistent entrant into the Bluegrass Games.

Polk won a bronze medal in the Field Archery, Bowhunters Class on Saturday. Polk, who usually shoots his best in the animal shooting, experienced a bad day Sunday at the Airport Road site.

Rec Area Closed Due To Vandalism

The Army Corps of Engineers has closed the recreation area below Grayson Dam to all public use except fishing between 10 p.m. and 7:30 a.m. because of destructive vandalism.

Rigor said the area was developed by the Corps of Engineers for day-use only, but it had been left open around the clock to accommodate general public use.

He said this relaxed policy has resulted in 32 acts of vandalism in the past two years at a cost of $7,000.

Lake Manager Wayne Rigor, an employee of the Corps Hunting District, said the entrance gate to the area will be locked at 10 p.m. and reopened at 7:30 a.m. The area includes a picnic shelter and restrooms.

People will be permitted to walk into the area after 10 p.m. for fishing only. Anyone who obviously is not there to fish will be subject to a federal citation and a fine, Rigor said.

Small World

by Aileen Hall

Dixie Steele Hurley has been deceased for a few years but there are still many people in the area who remember her pleasant manner and her patience with those about her. As a registered nurse, she lived in Betsy Layne and worked at Pikeville Methodist Hospital.

One day, Dixie needed a ride to the hospital and asked her brother, Carl Steele, if he would mind to take her.

"Sure," he answered, and then he remembered that his friend Roy Smock was wanting to go look for some new shoes. They drove by Roy's house and found he was just starting to take a nap.

"If you want to go with me," Carl said, "we'll drop Dixie off at the hospital, then we'll see if we can find the shoes you want." Roy got his jacket and slipped on a pair of loafers.

When he'd settled into the back seat he was so comfortable he thought he'd just continue his nap, so he lay down. But somewhere between Harold and Coal Run, a car pulled out in front of Carl and he had to apply the brakes really hard.

He heard a thump in the back but was so concerned with avoiding a collision that he hardly noticed. Also, Dixie had reminded him she thought she might be late for work.

Carl didn't know that Roy was still involved in his nap and was totally unaware of how far they'd come.

As they were driving into Pikeville, he looked back to ask a question and was startled to see the back seat was empty.

"Roy!" he exclaimed. "Where are you?"

"I'm here in the floor," Roy answered. "And where are you?"

ALL GROWN UP

Ryan Barnette is six years old now and lives in Morehead with his little sister, Lindsey, and his parents, Melody and Jerry.

When Ryan was four, he overheard his parents talking about a young man next door. He was getting married and leaving his parents' house to start a home of his own.

"I'm not ever going to get married," Ryan announced. "I don't ever want to leave home."

"Oh yes, you will," Melody insisted. "You'll change your mind when you're all grown up."

Then one day in January, Ryan and his mother were watching television when she remembered he had a birthday coming up. She hugged him and said, "Ryan, I could just cry to think my little boy is going to be five already."

He looked a little bewildered as he glanced at her and asked, "Mommy, do I have to leave home when I'm five?"

THINGS WE LOVE

Many people enjoy expressing what's close to their hearts by the use of bumper stickers.

It's not unusual to see such messages as "Let me tell you about my grandchildren," "I love my dog," or "I love my cat."

But, I was following a man in a pickup truck a few days ago and I couldn't quite make out the message on his vehicle. We had to stop for the red light in Allen and I got close enough to see that his bumper sticker boasted, "I love my heat pump."

I guess it's good to be happy with what you've got, but I couldn't help thinking he must be a young man who didn't have a dog.

Kim's Korner

I can always tell when it's getting close to football season, the nights get cooler, which makes for perfect game watching weather. On Sunday morning, while talking to a friend, we were both commenting appreciatively on the weather and how cool the nights were getting.

by Kim Frasure

Now I'm beginning to wake up at 5 a.m. without the use of an alarm clock, which means the start of school is not so far off. I can also tell it's time for school to start because my children are eager and wishing to return.

My oldest has had a list made for two weeks, it includes a backpack, pencils, pens, scissors, etc. There's not a day that goes by that her father and I don't hear, "Is today the day to buy school supplies?" Of course if it were, she'd never be able to find them on the first day of school.

So, we put the school supply shopping off until at least the weekend before the kids are to begin. Now the school clothes shopping is a horse of a different color. We've got to start shopping for those soon.

Our youngest daughter has put in her order for only jeans and T-shirts, no dresses, no ruffles, no shoulder pads and no lace. She's dark haired and has also requested that her hair be spiked and blonde before school starts. Yeah, right!

Thank heavens she's seven and I have some control over these wishes. I can, however, see her returning home from college one day wearing a black leather jacket, chains, jeans with holes in the knees and a halter top, riding a Harley and having her hair spiked and blonde. Mother's have nightmares as well as dreams for their children.

The motorcycle and clothes wouldn't bother me, it would be the hair style. But, what can I say, I have always been told my day was coming and everything I've put my parents through was sure to come back at me in spades.

But, I was at least 29 before I turned my hair fuchsia pink. Oh, I forgot, my freshman year in high school I had my hair green for awhile, too.

Oh, well, I guess Tiff comes by it naturally. Now the only thing to do is jerk out the old photo album and let her learn from Mom's mistakes. Think it will work? Nah, me neither. But it could make an interesting subject for a book.

Till next week...Stay natural.

Local students gain experience at OLW

Although it's summertime, which means relaxation for most college students, Shonna Hall, David Bailey, and Michelle Hicks are spending their summer break gaining experience in the healthcare industry.

Hall, Bailey, and Hicks are all working at Our Lady of the Way Hospital through a co-op program for college students interested in a healthcare profession.

Hall, a junior at Alice Lloyd College, is from Beaver (Knott County). She is majoring in pre-pharmacy and is working at Our Lady of the Way in community education, medical records and the laboratory.

Bailey, a junior at Morehead State University, is studying respiratory therapy. This summer, he is assisting the respiratory therapy and materials management departments. Bailey is from Maytown.

Hicks, a freshman nursing student at Prestonsburg Community College, is working with the accounting/billing, medical records, and community education departments this summer. Hicks is from Hueysville.

Each stated that the experience is helping them gain confidence, learn insights into the healthcare profession and make good professional contacts.

Hall was directed to Our Lady of the Way by Alice Lloyd College. Bailey and Hicks come to OLW through the Christian Appalachian Project.

Poison Oak

by Clyde Pack

On Evening Shade the other night, Wood Newton's son got "grounded for life" because he shaved half his dad's mustache. Grounding is apparently the most popular form of parental punishment these days. I wish we'd had it when I was a kid.

When it came to handing out punishment, Dad was the one my little brother Joe and I dreaded most. Mom's disciplining, more often than not, ended up as a swat on the tail and a, "Wait 'til your daddy gets home."

I can remember once, though, when this harmless pattern changed. It involved my cousin J.B. and my Aunt Fannie who were visiting us on a hot July day in the late 1940s.

Now, as a ten-year-old, I wasn't necessarily a chicken or anything, but I did exercise a bit of caution when it came to certain things. Like, for instance, even though others did, I wouldn't even attempt to ride Milt Ratliff's spirited black mule that he kept pastured in the head of Slaughter Pen Hollow. Nor, would I take too big a running go when I'd swing on the sea grass rope that someone, eons ago, had tied to the limb of the big elm which stood above the road in the head of Society Row.

My one fool-hardy act, though, caused Mom to literally stripe my bony little legs. Actually, I'd like to think it was J.B.'s and Aunt Fannie's fault that the whole thing happened, but in retrospect — and in all fairness — I'm not too sure I can blame any of it on J.B.

It all started between the old dairy barn and Claude VanHoose's house where there was a culvert with a brown ceramic tile about 30 inches in diameter. This was the place where we'd dig sod from the bank, make a dam and baptize all the new kids who moved into the neighborhood.

Anyway, as I said, this was July and there was no water in the creek. J.B. and Joe and I were kinda messing around the culvert and yelling into it and listening to our voices echo, when — right out of the blue — J.B. asked, "How long is this thing anyway?"

"Well," I said, it's real long. It goes all the way under Claude VanHoose's house, under ours, under George Reynolds', under Green's and comes out way down behind Milt Ratliff's.

As we poked our heads back in it, we could see the light from the opening in the other end. It looked about the size of a dime.

"Ever crawl through this thing?" J.B. asked.

"You crazy? It's plumb full of copperheads and water moccasins," I answered.

"You're just chicken," he said, as he scampered on all fours into the hole and disappeared.

"Am not," I said, as I scampered right behind him.

All I can figure is that I was, by some mysterious means, struck with temporary insanity. As J.B. and I headed for the light at the end of the tunnel, little rocks and pieces of broken glass biting into our hands and knees, I heard Joe yell behind us, "I'm telling!"

He did too. J.B. was 10 or 12 feet in front of me, and when he finally popped out the other end, Aunt Fannie popped him across the back with the longest switch I think I'd ever seen. Boy! I was glad my mom would never do that.

Wrong! She was there, and she had a switch, too.

Whap!

Luckily, I'd managed to stand upright before she could get to me. It was my legs she got and not my back.

"J.B.," yelled Aunt Fannie, "you don't have a lick of sense!" Whap!

"Clyde Roy, I'll wear you out," said Mom. Whap!

Whap! went Aunt Fannie.

Whap! went Mom.

Aunt Fannie would whap J.B., Mom would whap me.

There's no doubt about it. If Aunt Fannie's arm hadn't given out, Mom would have beaten me to death. I'd much rather have been grounded.

Michael Taylor, presiding. Thomas Foy, Director of Music and Youth, was accompanied at the piano by Mrs. Lisa Carter as he led the group in the singing of "S-M-I-L-E," "Jesus in the Morning" and "I Know a Miracle." Mrs. Patsy Evans led a discussion of why people should be thankful. It was reported that Mrs. Dolley Pettrey is showing improvement from a recent broken bone, and that she, her husband Bill Pettrey, and her sister, Mrs. Rebecca Rasnick, will probably be coming home from Lexington where she has been in a nursing home, within the near future. Gratefulness was expressed for her improvement and for the manner in which their home has been cared for by friends during their stay in Lexington.

Mrs. Lucy Regan, for several years a board member of the Kentucky Baptist Children's Home and who continues to serve in drives for the benefit of the children there, talked of the "Miles for Pennies" drive, which is being conducted statewide. Containers for collecting pennies have been placed in the local church.

Rev. Taylor gave an in-depth and worthwhile discussion on the subject of "Jealousy." The gist of his remarks was that jealousy can mean the ruination of a church, a family and Christian life in general. He read several Scripture verses which supported his points and added that one of the main causes of jealousy is insecurity.

The second decade of the Prestonsburg Kiwanianes began with Mrs. Ruth Hall as president. The club sponsored the beautification of the Prestonsburg Water Plant. A picnic was held at the home of Mrs. Peggy Spurlock. The Kiwanianes served coffee when Governor Bert Combs brought state government to Prestonsburg.

1962:

Mrs. Jane Howard succeeded Mrs. Hall as president. The club made a contribution to the new Prestonsburg Community College. The Christmas party was held at May Lodge, Jenny Wiley State Park, with Mrs. Kathryn Frazier and the Patsy Teenagers furnishing the program.

1963:

The president's gavel was passed to Mrs. Betty Francis. A rummage sale netted $134 for the benefit of the American Red Cross. The annual summer picnic was held at the home of Mrs. Ruth Hall. The club co-sponsored with the Prestonsburg Kiwanian Club a float for the Christmas parade with the theme of "The Gathering of the Greens."

1964:

Mrs. Maria Hill became the president of the Prestonsburg Kiwanianes. Emphasis was placed on the raising of funds for worthy causes. The club decided to continue the co-sponsoring of the float for the Christmas parade.

The President's gavel was passed to Mrs. Kay Cooley. "Ditty bags" were furnished by the club for soldiers in Vietnam. A contribution was made to the Children's Theatre.

1969:

Mrs. Thelma Music became president of the Prestonsburg Kiwanianes. Miss Jane Wright was sponsored by the club as the "Miss Floyd County" candidate. The Founders' Day program was held at the Prestonsburg High School.

1970:

Mrs. Nancy Martin was president as the club entered its 20th year. Assistance in the community's beautification program was given. The summer picnic was held at Mrs. Martin's home with entertainment furnished by performers from the Jenny Wiley Amphitheater.

The preceding reports furnish an idea of some of the many projects sponsored by the Prestonsburg Kiwanianes in their efforts to improve their community. In the near future, a report on the activities for the years 1971-1991 will be given.

Local realtors address real estate issues at Lake Barkley

Local realtors Ellen Holbrook, Dorothy Harris, Linda Moore, Juanita Music and Norman Jones were among over 300 realtors who gathered at Lake Barkley State Resort Park for the summer quarterly meetings of the Kentucky Association of Realtors June 19-21. The association is the largest trade organization in the Commonwealth with over 8,400 members.

Members were updated on federal legislative issues affecting the real estate industry and the interests of those who own property in Kentucky. These included wetlands and the property transfer tax, expanded banking powers, new federal and state regulations on real estate appraisal, changes to FHA (Federal Housing Administration) loan requirements regarding closing costs and mortgage insurance, and the Super IRA (Individual Retirement Account) which will benefit the first-time homebuyer.

Realtors heard a presentation by Don Paris, chairman of the newly-created Kentucky Real Estate Appraisal Board, on appraisal regulations for Kentucky as mandated by law in the 1990 Kentucky General Assembly. Participation in educational programs included sessions on fair housing, financing, goal setting and employing a personal assistant.

In other meeting sessions, member services, education foundation, professional standards, election committee, by-laws and computer sub-committee, realtors Community Service Programs of the Big Sandy Board were reported to realtors from other parts of the state in an idea exchange.

Ellen Holbrook is president of the Big Sandy Board of Realtors.

The recipes in this week's column are all from readers who live out of state. While talking to Anna Bell of Washington state recently she mentioned a recipe she has for salsa that can be kept for a long time in the refrigerator. I forgot to ask for it and, as I know she reads this paper each and every week, I will ask now: Will you share it with the rest of us, Anna Bell?

Cabbage Patch

Mary Witt, extension home gardening specialist with the UK College of Agriculture, says that most of your tomato problems are mostly poor environmental conditions. A few of these problems will include blossom drop, sunscald fruit, blossom-end rot and cracks in the fruits.

Blossom drop is caused by excessively high or low night temperatures. Most tomatoes will not set fruit unless temperatures are between 55 and 75 degree Fahrenheit for at least part of the night. This is seldom a problem in this section of Kentucky, since our summer night temperatures seldom drop below 55°. Sprays that supposedly prevent drop may help, if the temperature does drop too low. Sprayed fruits often are misshaped and seedless. If your tomato plants are well mulched, the temperatures will not do much, if any, damage.

Blossom-end rot is caused when our weather conditions prevent the proper distribution of calcium in the plant. The result is a leathery spot on the blossom end of the fruit. Low soil moisture and hot dry winds causes the calcium to move into the leaves and by-pass the fruit. Frequent watering and (here again) a good deep mulch will help prevent a tomato problem. There is also a good spray for this problem if all else fails.

Cracks in the fruit develop when the fruit grows too fast (yes, it can grow too fast). Planting crack-resistant varieties, plus watering and, again, mulch will prevent rapid fluctuations in the soil moisture, which causes the rapid growth that causes the cracks in the fruit.

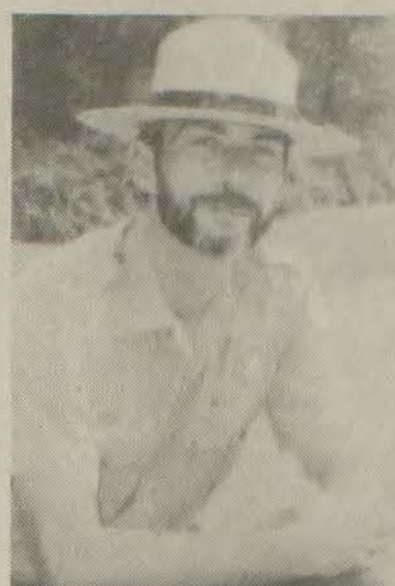

Sunscald is often started by insects, or defoliate plants, and the fruits are then exposed to the sunlight.

Yellow or white patches develop as symptoms of this problem. I never support nor cage my tomatoes, and, as I try to keep them insect free by mulching, I have few if any sunscald tomatoes.

What this information, which was passed on to me to give the readers of the "Cabbage Patch" column, is basically what I have been preaching all along — water, mulch and feed your plants by organically building up your gardens with mulch and tilling in green manure (grass or other plants) and compost. The mulch should always be tilled into the soil at the end of the growing season and it then becomes compost in the garden.

My neighbors' tomatoes are beginning to ripen and just guess who is eating her fill of them (!!!), along with fresh corn, cukes, squash, potatoes and onions.

Women's health test scheduled at "For Women"

Those attending "For Women," the all-day conference scheduled for eastern Kentucky on September 21st, will be given the opportunity to take the Women's Health Test. The test is a companion to the Heart Test and the Cancer Test Programs which gained national prominence on ABC television's 20/20 last fall. It is a written questionnaire which establishes a woman's health profile based on personal and family health histories, lifestyles and stress levels which, when computer analyzed, project a variety of health probabilities and risks.

The test begins with a confidential, research-based questionnaire that takes less than 10 minutes to complete. Based on individual responses to the questions, a specially programmed computer generates a personal report which includes recommendations to help a woman improve her health and well-being while reducing her long-term risk of disease or disability due to special causes. It also addresses key female health issues, answering any special questions that a woman may have on a variety of subjects.

Everyone faces risks that can affect the chances of living a long and healthy life. And many of these risks can be reduced with proper prevention and early detection. That's what the Women's Health Test is all about. It provides a personalized assessment that can help a woman, often in partnership with her family physician, control known health risks.

The test and the individualized report will be available at no cost to everyone attending "For Women" as part of a day-long program of personal health and well being presentations and workshops. The program will also include a presentation on stress management by Kathy A. Nielsen, a nationally recognized educator who has worked with major corporations such as AT&T, Avon and McDonald's.

Also on the program will be renowned plastic surgeon, Henry G. Wells Jr., M.D. discussing "Options in Plastic Surgery." Other topics will include the management of a family budget, family health and the newest approaches to make-up and grooming.

"For Women" is scheduled for the Convention Center at Jenny Wiley State Park near Prestonsburg and advance registrations are $20.00, including refreshments and lunch. For further information and reservations, call 1-800-533-HRMC, or, outside the 606 area code, (606) 886-9558.

28th annual Owsley reunion held

The 28th annual Isaac N. and Millie Jane Owsley reunion was held June 29th, at Miamisburg Mound Park in Miamisburg, Ohio. There were 122 family members and 11 guests present. The Owsleys formerly resided at Estill, and their gravesites are in the DeRossett cemetery near there.

This year's business meeting was held before the buffet style meal. Opening the meeting was the reunion President, David Pennington of Columbus, Ohio. The minutes and financial report were read by Secretary-Treasurer, Laurie Gayheart of Washington Court House, Ohio.

A card was read from honorary family member, Oliver Schein of Dietzenbach, West Germany. He included a recent photo of himself, and expressed a desire to return to the United States next year for a visit. Oliver was an Exchange Student in 1989, who lived with Owsley family members, and attended our reunion that summer.

This year, t-shirts saying "Owsley Family Reunion 1991" were made available by Margaret Edwards of Middletown, Ohio. They sold out very quickly, with the exception of a few adult smalls, which are still available through Margaret.

A family newsletter, "The Owsley

Outreach," was started, with the first issue sent out a few weeks prior to the reunion. This issue included the families beginnings, tracing home locations and dates through the births of each of Isaac and Millie's thirteen children, to the final homeplace in the Garrett-Estill area. A family feature article in each newsletter will focus on one of the Owsley's children and their descendants. The first child featured was the eldest daughter, Julie Belle Owsley Edwards, and the second issue this fall will feature the eldest son, Jim Owsley, and descendants. Any info on this family may be sent to newsletter editor, Margaret Edwards, 7548 Hinkle Rd., Middletown, Ohio. Margaret was made official family historian at this year's reunion. She and her husband, Cecil, have been gathering family info through the years that has been of special benefit to the newsletter.

This year, silver dollars were given to Joseph Carioti, (parents from Warren, Ohio) 10 months old, as youngest descendent present; Martha Owsley of Indiana, oldest member present at 88 years young; Rob Skinner received one for coming the farthest, traveling from his Armed Services location in South Korea. Martha Owsley received another for having the most children in attendance. The proposed date of June 27th, 1992, was set for the next reunion, again to be held at the park in Miamisburg.

Family members present from Kentucky were Kenneth & June Hutchinson, David & Michael White, all of Martin; Bruce & Wanda Jarrell, Bruce Lee, Todd & Shae of Ashland; Debbie Habern of Betsy Lane; Lloyd & Bobbi Jean Edwards of Prestonsburg; Bud & Faye Carter of Dayton; Gary VanHoose & Lara of Lexington.

Leedy family to hold 96th national reunion

The Leedy family will celebrate their 96th annual national reunion Saturday, August 10, at Leedy Park, located one mile west of Ankenytown, Ohio — off state Route 95, on Yankee Street.

John (Lidi) Leedy came from the Canton of Bern, Switzerland to be the first Leedy settler in America c1737, in Lancaster and York counties, Pennsylvania. The reunion honors this man, his wife Elizabeth and their four sons and two daughters who now have more than 60,000 relatives. Many pictures of the family ancestors will be on display.

Past President Eugene R. Leedy and his wife recently discovered a wealth of historical information about their branch of the family's pre-Ohio origin in Morrison's Cove, Bedford County, Pennsylvania, and of the Abraham and Catherine Long Leedy Farm, now popularly known as "The Mansion Farm" at Waterside, Pennsylvania. Four individual families occupy the same number of mansions which were spread over the original farm. The oldest home was built in 1815.

Nearly 200 descendants attend this reunion annually, coming from many cities in Ohio, Arizona, California, Florida, Georgia, Indiana, Kansas, Kentucky, Maryland, New Jersey, North Carolina, Pennsylvania, Texas, Virginia, and West Virginia. Other families closely related to the Leedys are Beal, Bechtel, Binkley, Byerly, Driver, Fall, Flory, Frantz, Garber, Kogley, Landis, Long, Miller, Myers, Neher, Swank and Zook.

Music and readings will again be some of the entertainment provided by the family members. Tables will be available for exhibiting family heirlooms, such as pictures, books, documents, records or other articles owned by early members of the Leedy and related families.

Already, plans are being made for the Leedy Family Centennial Reunion in 1995. All members should plan to attend — as this will mark 100 years of diligent effort to preserve their legacy to the Knox-Richland County area and to the nation.

Leedy Park will be open at 9 a.m. The covered-dish meal will begin at 12:30 p.m. with a business meeting at 2 p.m. President Jack Davis of Mansfield, Ohio will preside.

For further information, contact the secretary, Wanda Robertson, Rt. 1 Box 114, Ashland, Ohio 44805 or phone 419-895-1006

NAR outlook forecasts continued growth in housing

The housing industry will experience steady growth the rest of the year, bolstered by favorable mortgage interest rates and strong consumer expenditures. As a result, activity in the second half of 1991 will be busier than that for the first half, according to the latest monthly economic outlook by the National Association of Realtors.

The association's July issue of the "Outlook for the Economy and Real Estate" predicts that sales of both existing and new homes, as well as housing starts, will increase in the months ahead, setting the stage for notably stronger growth in 1992. Although housing activity in general will remain below that for 1990, an upturn in the industry will continue to lead the nation's economy out of the doldrums, the report notes.

The outlook anticipates gradual declines in mortgage rates, due to an overall easing of concern over rising inflation. "Since long-term interest rates take account of inflation, the fall in inflation should provide room for these rates to fall," the outlook says. However, it notes that the Federal Reserve Board likely will not substantially loosen its monetary policy.

Second quarter data is expected to show a 10.6 percent jump in sales of existing single-family homes from the first quarter, rising from an annualized rate of 3.093 million units to 3.420 million units. This likely will be followed by an increase to a rate of 3.487 million units and 3.558 million units in the third and fourth quarters, respectively. Sales of new single-family homes are expected to rise 5.0 percent from the first quarter rate of 464,000 units to a rate of 483,000 units in the second. Further increases are predicted, to a rate of 502,000 units in the third quarter and a rate of 543,000 units in the fourth.

Increases in activity also are anticipated for construction of detached homes. Starts for single-family homes are expected to reach a rate of 827,000 units in the second quarter, 847,000 units in the third, and 862,000 units in the fourth. Multifamily construction will continue to be constrained this year by a credit contraction, the outlook notes. However, it does predict some easing of lending policies in 1992, which should boost both residential and commercial development.

Enclosed is a copy of the outlook, which includes an economic commentary by NAR Chief Economist John A. Tuccillo.

The outlook contains the following predictions for the real estate industry and economy in general for 1991:

- Sales of existing single-family homes are expected to total 3.389 million units, rising 2.8 percent from sales for 1990.
- Sales of new single-family homes are expected to total 498,000 units, dropping 6.7 percent from 1990.

- Housing starts are expected to total 1.010 million units, dropping 15.3 percent from a year ago. A total of 815,000 starts for single-family units is expected, dropping 8.9 percent from 1990. Starts for buildings with two-to-four units are expected to total 38,000, rising 0.1 percent from 1990; and starts for buildings with five or more units are expected to total 157,000 units, falling 39.7 percent from 1990.
- The national median existing-home price is expected to reach $99,200, rising 4.2 percent from last year. The national median new-home price is expected to be $122,000, declining 0.2 percent from 1990.

- Interest rates for fixed-rate, 30-year mortgages are expected to average 9.4 percent, down from 10.1 percent in 1990. Interest rates for one-year, adjustable-rate mortgages are expected to average 7.3 percent, falling from an average of 8.4 percent last year.
- The annual growth rate of the real (inflation-adjusted) gross national product (the total value of the nation's goods and services) is expected to decline by an average rate of 0.2 percent, compared to an increase of 1.0 percent in 1990.
- Consumer price inflation is expected to grow at a rate of 4.3 percent, compared to 5.4 percent in 1990.
