Burchett, Stumbo square off in judicial race :

New face a guarantee in circuit court

by Mike Rosenberg
Editorial Assistant

The face of justice in Floyd County is changing. After nearly thirty years on the bench, Circuit Court Judge Hollie Conley has decided to step down.

On November 5, a successor for Conley will be chosen by Floyd County voters. The candidates for the position are Paul Burchett and Harold Stumbo.

Burchett, a Prestonsburg attorney, was born in Prestonsburg and has two children. He ran for state Senator in 1983 and was defeated.

Stumbo is currently the District Judge for Floyd County. He hails from the McDowell area and has four children. He has been Commonwealth Attorney and Floyd County Attorney.

The circuit judge hears all civil and criminal cases except minor felonies, misdemeanors, traffic, juvenile and claims cases involving less than $4,000. These other cases are heard in district court.

Burchett

The next judge inherits a huge caseload. The Floyd circuit ranks seventh in the state in number of cases filed. In fiscal year 1989-90, 1,163 cases were filed in the county. The average caseload for a Kentucky circuit judge is 880 cases per year, according to Pat Sims of the Administrative Office of the Courts. Each of the six circuits with larger caseloads than Floyd County cover two or three counties. Recently, the Floyd County Times asked a series of questions to both candidates for the position. Their responses follow.

Floyd County Times: Why do you want to be elected Circuit Judge?

Burchett: I chose as a goal to be Circuit Judge about 10 or 12 years ago. I almost ran for the office in 1983, and decided not to out of respect for Judge Conley...You've got to have someone who is qualified and has some level-headed judgment about them to make the court system operate properly. I'm not trying to say that I'll make every decision right...but the bigger person is willing to say, "I made a mistake on that," and then go back and correct it. I would like to be that kind of judge.

Stumbo: I feel it would be more interesting to serve as Circuit Judge.

FACT: What do you see as the pros and cons of the present setup in Circuit Court?

Burchett: The biggest thing that's wrong with the Floyd County Circuit Court system as it stands is the caseload...Right now, Judge Conley is setting cases for June of next year...So, one of the problems we've got to deal with is how to speed that process up. It's not fair to the people to have to wait two or three years to get their case litigated...However, the American legal system is still the best in the world. It still works most of the time. If there is a deficiency in the system, there is a problem with the personnel. It's important to know that someone's qualified to do the job and that somebody's going to do it.

Stumbo: I really don't know of anything that bad about about it, except that we should have some type of system worked out where people

Passenger injured :

Garrett man dies in mishap

A 33-year-old Floyd County man was killed in a one-car accident Tuesday night and a passenger in the car is in critical condition.

David L. Allen, 33, of Garrett was pronounced dead on arrival at Our Lady of The Way Hospital after he lost control of the vehicle he was driving which struck a utility pole and overturned, said trooper Ghomer Prater with the Kentucky State Police.

Bobby Gayheart, 38, of Eastern was transferred to Good Samaritan Hospital in Lexington where he was reported in critical condition Thursday.

Allen was traveling North on KY 7 near the Sleep Haven Motel at Garrett when the accident occurred. Allen was thrown from the vehicle. He was pronounced dead by Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson from multiple head, neck and chest injuries.

The Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad was called to the scene and used the Jaws of Life to free Gayheart from the vehicle. Floyd County Sheriff's deputies and members of the Garrett Fire Department were also at the scene.

The accident is under investigation by KSP trooper Mike Thorpe.

Drowning in well probed by police

The death of a 63-year-old Martin woman is under investigation by the Kentucky State Police after she reportedly climbed into a ground well and drowned.

Aggie Click of Stephens Branch was found in the well near her home by her grandson at approximately 10 a.m. Wednesday. Members of the Floyd County Emergency and Rescue Squad removed Click from the well and she was pronounced dead at the scene by Floyd County Coroner Roger Nelson.

A rescue squad spokesman said the diameter of the well opening was 18 inches and was six and a half feet in depth. Her shoes and a metal folding chair were found beside the well, the spokesman said.

It was reported by the rescue squad that Click drank coffee and talked with family members earlier Wednesday.

Nelson said the water level inside the well was four and a half feet deep and Click died due to asphyxiation from drowning. He said no foul play is suspected.

Unusual 'furnishing' creates a stir in Cow Creek neighborhood

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

A former roommate's odd piece of household furniture has made a Cow Creek couple's home the target of weird rumors and has local residents worried.

Vickie Collins and Matthew Kinsley, residents of Cow Creek, have a coffin in their living room and they are the talk of the neighborhood—not all of it good.

"We're going to get rid of it," Collins said Wednesday. "Everybody's talking about us, saying all kinds of things."

Collins said the coffin originally belonged to Avery Lowe Jr. who used to live with the couple. She said when Lowe moved out, he left the coffin.

"We got stuck with it," Collins said. Residents became concerned and contacted the Floyd County Sheriff's Department after the coffin was observed on the front porch.

Deputy Ed Rickman answered the complaint and asked for assistance from deputy Linzie Hunt.

"Ed contacted me by radio and asked me to come to the scene," Hunt said. "I asked him if he thought anything was wrong and he said, 'It's the most unusual thing I've ever saw.' I went to the house and made them open it up. You could tell people had been in it because it was dirty.

"The lady told me she wouldn't let it stay here if there was anybody in it," Hunt added. "I told her I wouldn't let it stay there if anybody was in it."

Collins produced an invoice for the coffin that said it was a 1977 model and came from Miller Funeral Home in Gallipolis, Ohio in May 1977. A brass plaque on the lid said it was donated by Preston Funeral Home of Paintsville.

A spokesman for the funeral home said Thursday that someone from Cow Creek contacted them last year and asked for a coffin for Halloween. The spokesman said the funeral home had acquired about a dozen older coffins as part of an inventory buy out and gave them away during Halloween. He said the plaque was a form of advertising.

The casket appeared to be pretty worn with the interior stained and a dent in the lid. Collins said the only persons ever in the coffin were "her friends that passed out" after parties at the home.

Rumors that a "curse" had been placed on Floyd County Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson after inquiring at the home about the coffin, gave him something to laugh about.

"I've never been up to that house," Thompson said Wednesday. "But, I'm sure I am cursed and cussed every day in this county."

Deputy Hunt said the department is monitoring the situation.

Letter called "erroneous" :

Booster issue eyed by state

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

The state's Office of Education Accountability (OEA) will address the Floyd County Board of Education concerning a letter allegedly sent to Prestonsburg High School booster clubs by principal Robert May.

Dr. Penney Sanders, director of OEA called May's letter "erroneous" and said it will be brought to the attention of the board of education.

"The Office of Education Accountability has reviewed principal May's May 9 letter to all Prestonsburg High School booster clubs," Sanders said Wednesday. "We find it to be erroneous as to facts and the interpretation of KRS 528.130 and 528.140.

"Since the Prestonsburg Athletic Academic Association (PAAA) is currently under investigation by the Kentucky State Police," Sanders added, "no further comment will be made regarding the matter other than to say that it will be properly addressed by OEA through the Floyd County Board of Education."

Kentucky Revised Statutes 528.130 and 528.140 deal with the operations of charitable gaming activities including bingo. The PAAA used to operate a weekly bingo game at the high school until an investigation by the Times revealed the group failed to meet state law criteria to operate the games. The board of education suspended the games in April and asked for a state investigation into the operation.

Pot harvests grow for local officers

by Susan Allen

With autumn harvest just around the calendar's corner, the Floyd County Sheriff's department has stepped up its efforts to eradicate marijuana fields in the county.

The latest effort by the department led to their largest marijuana find this year Tuesday after an anonymous tip led them to a secluded mountain top at Wheelwright.

Sheriff Paul Hunt Thompson and five deputies cut and removed 160 marijuana plants Tuesday evening at Hen Pen near Melvin. The plants were found growing on a remote hillside in two different plots. Officers hiked approximately a half mile up steep terrain to locate the patch.

The plants were destroyed Wednesday. Deputies Ricky Thornsberry, Lloyd Powers, Mike Slone, Bill Howell and Dewayne Jarrell headed Tuesday's effort.

Tuesday's find was one of several the sheriff's department made over the past week.

Deputies Lloyd Powers and Homer Neeley found over 20 plants in five locations last week that resulted in two arrests. Plants were found at Corn Fork, Abbott, Lancer, Auxier and Banner.

Johnny R. Boyd, 22, of Corn Fork was arrested July 24 and charged with producing and cultivating marijuana after plants were found behind his residence.

Mike R. Hall of Hall Branch at Banner was arrested July 23 and charged with producing and cultivating marijuana after Powers found marijuana plants growing near his home.

Heads-up officer leads cops to arrest of Indiana fugitive

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

An Indiana man is awaiting extradition to his home state after an observant state employee recognized his name from a warrant in the Floyd County Sheriff's Department.

Frank McGuire Jr., 31, whose address was listed as Highland Heights in Prestonsburg, was arrested Wednesday at 1:15 p.m. by deputy Mike Conn at the Floyd County Courthouse while he was applying to get a Kentucky driver's license to replace his Indiana license.

Sheila Lee, license examiner for the Kentucky State Police, notified the sheriff's department that McGuire was applying for his driver's license after she confirmed it was the wanted man.

Conn served a fugitive from justice warrant on McGuire for theft and forgery charges in Indiana and escorted him to the jail where he remained Thursday.

Robbery suspect observed at Paintsville jewelry store Thursday

by Terry L. May
Appalachian News-Express

A man matching the description of a suspect wanted in the Sunday burglary of a Pikeville jewelry store was observed outside Castle's jewelry store in Paintsville Thursday.

Pikeville Police reported that the man was seen outside the Paintsville store for a long period of time, but left scene before police could question him. Pikeville officials also announced that a $500 reward is being offered for information in the case.

According to Pikeville City Police Det. Ray Akers, the suspect may be responsible for several Sunday morning capers throughout a four-state area, and is believed to be hiding somewhere in the Wise, Virginia, area.

Police still do not have a name for the suspect but they do have a detailed description of a man that matches the description of a person being sought for robbing stores in a four-state area.

Akers said the subject is a white male, approximately 6'2" to 6'4", 245 pounds. He is thought to be in his 30s to 40s, has "a pitted complexion," long, dark hair in a ponytail, mustache and goatee and a receding hairline. He was last seen wearing jeans and a gray tank top with a black bandana and black gloves.

Akers also said that the man wears lots of jewelry. "He has rings on every finger, two or three necklaces." One necklace he has been observed wearing bears an obscene message.

He fled the scene Sunday in an early 1980s gray Buick with a black or maroon vinyl top. The license plates on the car were concealed by a plastic bag.

The Sunday morning burglary was cut short when the man noticed he was being observed. Two eyewitnesses saw the burglary and called the police. The store's alarm also activated.

A woman was also seen with him Sunday morning. She was described as being 5'3", 120 pounds, with black shoulder-length hair and wearing a white t-shirt and jeans. She was walking up and down Caroline Avenue, apparently acting as a lookout for the man. One witness said the woman seemed to be "eying" The Diamond Corral, another jewelry store located a few feet from Hefner's.

The man is suspected of having taken hundreds of thousands of dollars worth of merchandise from stores in Kentucky, Virginia, Tennessee and North Carolina, Akers said.

He continued that the man normally "pulls up, breaks the front door out, gets stuff and takes off." Akers added that the robberies usually occur on Sundays.

Anyone having information about the robbery should contact Akers at the Pikeville Police Department at 437-5111 or the Kentucky State Police at 437-7311. The suspect was armed with a handgun during the Pikeville robbery.

Mullins store robbed

Snappy Stop convenience store at Mullins was robbed by an armed gunman early Wednesday morning.

State police reported that a white male entered the store at approximately 1:40 a.m. and demanded money from an employee. The subject then fled from the scene with an undetermined amount of cash.

The suspect was described as being 5'9", weighing 130 pounds with long brown hair, bushy beard and mustache. He was seen wearing blue jeans and a blue flannel shirt. He has a tattoo of a backward Swastika on his right forearm.

The case is under investigation by Kentucky State Police detective Ken Slone, sergeant Jeff Blanton and troopers Terry Thompson and Mike Thorpe.

Trash boom installed at Paintsville Lake

The Corps of Engineers at Paintsville Lake has recently installed a trash boom across Little Paint Creek in the head waters of Paintsville Lake. This trash boom should catch and hold any trash flowing down Little Paint Creek that would normally flow into the lake. This would also enable the trash to be more easily collected and properly disposed of.

The Corps, with this trash boom can hopefully eliminate the trash flowing out of Little Paint Creek and into the lake.

them to cease their fundraising activities. May's letter said that charges made against the PAAA "apply to all booster organizations that use school grounds, school facilities, or Prestonsburg High School students in its operations."

State Department of Education attorney Steve Yater said Tuesday that May's letter was "disgusting" and emphasized there was a difference between "gambling and gaming and bake sales and car washes."

Board attorney Cliff Latta said Wednesday that he was unaware of the letter, but that it appeared from the media account of the situation that May's letter was "out of line."

A group called Boosters for Academic Excellence filed incorporation papers with the Secretary of State office last week and May was listed as sole incorporator. May said Monday that the group "might" revive the weekly bingo games and that the booster club would be used to raise funds for organizations at the high school.

The issue is expected to be addressed at the August 13 meeting of the board of education. The meeting will be held at Betsy Layne High School and begins at 6 p.m.

Successful graduates

The Floyd County Library's Summer Reading Program participants gathered Wednesday, July 31 for their close-out picnic at Archer Park. Approximately 115 children signed up for the course, and 62 of those read the required 40 books or more. One young boy read 127 books, and several others read 70 or more. Pat Dempsey, course coordinator, handed out trophies and goodie bags filled with coupons and such, to all those who completed the assignment. (photo by Tess Whitmer) could get more speedy trials. The system of justice would be better served.

FCT: What will you try to change in the system if you are elected?

Burchett: I don't know that I would make a whole lot of changes. I admire Judge Conley because he has been a very hard-working judge. The only thing that I might try to do is, some way, schedule more trials than are scheduled now...One of the things that I intend to do is meet with the local Bar Association and ask them if they have any suggestions about how we could speed the process up...I think the key thing for the Floyd Circuit Court is efficiency.

Stumbo: I would try to change the system so people could get speedier trials.

FCT: What do you see as the biggest challenge facing a newly elected judge?

Burchett: Other than the tremendous caseload, getting yourself acclimated to the position of being a decision-maker rather than an advocate...When you stand up behind the bench, you don't take sides and you have to adjust your thinking to do that. But I think the primary thing, again, is the caseload. It's just a tremendous volume of work. It is not a job you can do and go home at noon every day.

Stumbo: The docket of criminal and civil cases poses the most complex problem. Just the sheer number of them.

FCT: There have been complaints about the slowness of cases coming to trial and the overwhelming caseload. What could be done to solve these problems?

Burchett: The legislature and the Supreme Court have recommended that we get another circuit judge. That help may not come for a couple of years. So, in the meantime, what we've got to try to do is arrange a schedule so that about three or, if possible, four days a week a trial actually goes on...You've got to push it and stay on top of it. You can't just let it try to manage itself. You've got to manage that docket yourself and manage that court yourself so that it does keep moving and people get their opportunity to have their day in court.

Stumbo: I think not so much time should be allowed for the preparation of cases. I don't think we should have to continue cases so much.

FCT: As a voter, why should I vote for you?

Burchett: I'm 43 years old. I think I still have the energy and efficiency left in me to handle that job for eight years. My opponent is 60 years old. It's unlikely that he would serve a full eight years...I don't think his health would allow him to handle the kind of caseload that we've got. I don't think that I'm the greatest thing that ever came down the pike, but I'm the better of the two choices for the office of circuit judge.

Stumbo: Because I seek justice in the courts. My record speaks for that. The court system should be open to the poor as well as the rich. Equal justice for all with compassion.

FCT: If you could choose any words to describe yourself, what would they be?

Burchett: In terms of the law, I think that I'm pretty knowledgeable. I'm hard-working — the workload doesn't bother me a bit...Most importantly, I've always been compassionate with my fellow man...Compassion for your fellow man and compassion for the people who come before you in court for whatever reason I think is a real key quality for a judge.

Stumbo: A simple, decent man who tries to right a wrong when he sees one.

FCT: Anything else you'd like to add?

Burchett: If I'm elected, I certainly intend to serve the full eight-year term of office and if the people are satisfied with the job I've done after eight years, I'll seek another term. This is not something I'm seeking just as a feather in my crown because I've held a lot of other political offices. It's a job I want to work hard at and do properly, not just to be able to say I retired as a circuit judge.

Judge Stumbo had no additional comments.

Hall arrested for cocaine possession

by Susan Allen
Staff Writer

Floyd County Sheriff's deputies Linzie Hunt and Lloyd Powers arrested a 25-year-old Endicott man Sunday night for possession of cocaine.

Edwin J. Hall was arrested after cocaine was found in the vehicle he was driving. Deputies stopped Hall's vehicle, which was traveling East on KY 122 near Price. Acting on a tip, officers searched the vehicle and found an "eight ball" of cocaine valued at $250.

Hall was also charged with possession of marijuana, less than eight ounces and driving under the influence.

Area lottery players win big

According to Jeff Riley, Regional Manager of the Prestonsburg Lottery Office and Vickie Compton, Prestonsburg Office Claims Clerk, the following lottery players are just a few of the big winners from Eastern Kentucky and the surrounding area during the month of July:

Don Baldwin of Martin and Vint Dyer of Salyersville both won cash from the Pick 3 game. Baldwin won $700 and Dyer hit for $600.

Tommy Boyd of Stanville won $815 playing Lotto America.

Tim Bostic of Salyersville scored with Scratch and Match, picking up a cool $1,000.

Liberty of thought is the life of the soul—Voltaire

Editorial :

Captains courageous

by Scott Perry

The U.S. House of Representatives okayed a 23 percent salary increase Wednesday for their Senate counterparts, upping the annual take to $125,100—the same salary level now enjoyed by U.S. Representatives.

We don't have much of a complaint about the salary level—what good would it do—but we do question the method by which the pay hike slithered, yes slithered, through channels.

First, the Senate approved the raise during a rare nighttime session two weeks ago.

Yesterday, House members approved the raise by voice vote, apparently after House leaders successfully blocked an attempt to record the vote by roll call.

Thanks to that parliamentary maneuver, we'll never know which of our representatives voted for or against the pay increase.

One Representative, Vic Fazio, of California, called the salary increase vote "courageous."

Yeah, right.

Wonder if he made that assessment with or without the bag over his head?

Yipes, stripes!

Two Louisville men face criminal charges from a recent incident involving "gunplay" and a California woman could get six months in jail and a $2,000 fine for "firing" on a restaurant diner and a parking enforcement officer.

The weapons used in both incidents?

Squirtguns.

Okay, today's versions of water pistols can create some panic because many too closely resemble the real thing.

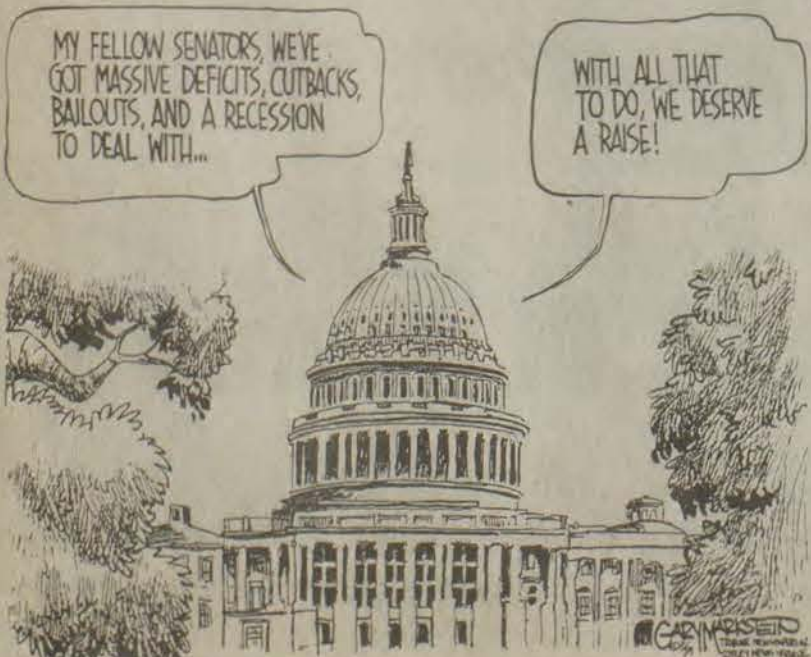

But criminal charges?

Let's see. You can buy an Uzi without delay, but mess with a 69¢ squirtgun and you're liable to find yourself behind bars.

A water balloon "grenade," no doubt, will get you the electric chair.

It's a wonder our generation, which grew up playing army, cowboys and indians and Davy Crockett with realistic-looking sidearms, isn't wearing stripes and busting rocks in Leavenworth.

Water, water everywhere, but not a drop for ammo.

Recently, the Lexington Herald-Leader accused State Representative Greg Stumbo of "playing politics" in his proposed plan on congressional redistricting which would allow Eastern Kentucky to retain its two Congressional seats.

Rather than be criticized for his actions, Greg Stumbo should be applauded for looking out for Eastern Kentuckians, the people he was elected to represent.

It is critical for those of us living in the mountains that we continue to have two Congressmen in Washington to continue to get federal assistance for worthwhile projects as we currently have with Chris Perkins and Hal Rogers.

The Herald would rather lump all Eastern Kentucky into a single Congressional district and give Central Kentucky more clout than it already has by giving the Bluegrass an even larger Congressional district. The Herald, which claims to be a regional newspaper and representative of Central and Eastern Kentucky in order to sell more papers, really shows its true allegiance to the already-wealthy Bluegrass on this issue.

To me, the absurdity of the whole matter is that the Lexington Herald is "accusing" an elected official of "playing politics." Really, isn't that what an official is supposed and expected to do?

Thank you, Greg Stumbo, for looking out for the interests of Eastern Kentucky.

Kentucky has become a rich, fertile farmland. Our people have become "farm animals" and are rewarding our government rich dividends in taxes, loss of rights and support of a system that suspends rights and privileges and, in some cases, endangers lives for enterprises that make our leaders extremely wealthy and powerful. Instead of the people being able to turn to our government for help, we often have to turn our heads in disgust and shame since we have allowed special interest and influence to direct our government. Our system has become so dictatorial that I have even heard of foreign citizens returning to third world countries to escape the tyranny.

Where is our hope? We must encourage our youth to study issues and vote for people for reasons other than name recognition and break the bonds of tyranny by putting "We the People" back in our government instead of "I the Person." Our potential is great to allow special interest and narrow views to prevail over our rights to enjoy our freedoms and privileges.

I am searching for the true identity of my grandfather, Joseph Murry Osburn, who supposedly was born in Iowa between 1843-47, grew up near the Cumberland River in Kentucky, and died in Hempstead County, Arkansas, in 1912. He died before I was born, but I grew up on tales of his mysterious and colorful life.

According to my father, he was a "full-blooded Frenchman" and came from Bradith County near a little town that sounded like "Dirks." Since there has never been a Bradith County, Dad must have meant Breathitt. I have searched Breathitt County records and have found no Osburns at any time. He had 10 brothers and 2 sisters and his father's name was John. One sister married a Boohoo. (I believe that to have been Boohoo.) Census records say that his father was born in Massachusetts and his mother was born in Pennsylvania. His father was a lieutenant in the army during the Civil War.

When the Civil War broke out his father and brothers enlisted, but I don't know whether they were Union or Confederate. Joseph was left at home to look after his mother and some younger children. One day his mother sent him to the mill with corn to be ground. On the way two boys which I think were his cousins, took him off his mule and whipped him. That night he crawled through their windows and killed them. He then fled and joined the Union Army. Later he saw his father and three brothers killed on the same day in a battle near Jackson, Tennessee. He served as a spy for the Union Army and was with Sherman when he went through Georgia, but he has no military record. I have searched the Kentucky Adjutant General Lists and I cannot identify the father and brothers. After the war, he left Kentucky and there is a 14-year gap before he shows up in 1879 in Red River County, Texas. As far as I know, he never corresponded with the family back in Kentucky.

I have just returned from my second trip to Frankfort doing research and I learned that Breathitt County has had two courthouse fires, so criminal records of the 1861-62 era do not exist. In my 10-year search I have exhausted every clue that I can remember and my only conclusion is that he changed his name. I know that there must have been many such incidents in Kentucky in those years and I realize that I am asking for a miracle, but maybe, just maybe, such a story has been handed down in some family in your area.

Please, can somebody out there help me? My address is 1518 Pecan Street, Hope, Arkansas 71801. My phone number is (501) 777-4228.

FEEDING KENTUCKY'S CHILDREN

Kentucky received good news this week concerning our state's children. The state will receive $253,821 in start-up funds to expand the school breakfast program. With the millions of government dollars flowing to all kinds of assistance programs, this amount might first seem insignificant. But these funds mean that 12 Kentucky counties who did not have any school breakfast program now have the ability to start one. Additional funding also means that schools now have the resources to promote the program and educate potential users of it.

The money going to Kentucky is part of a total $5 million going to school districts in 30 states, the culmination of a bill I introduced in May 1989 to amend the Child Nutrition Act of 1966.

It is my belief that there is no greater responsibility than ensuring the health and well-being of our Nation's children. Students should be given every advantage to learn, without going hungry. This bill is one way I have expressed this belief, resulting in a relatively small amount of money that will help feed a whole lot of children.

Before this legislation took effect, only one-third of children living in poverty had access to the school breakfast program. It is now available to more than 45,000 schools, and enables 4 million children to participate every day. The number of children eating school breakfast has already increased 15 percent.

In Kentucky, Allen, Boyle, Campbell, Estill, Fayette, Lee, Livingston, Madison, McCracken, Montgomery, Nelson and Scott counties have received some of these school breakfast funds.

State, Big Sandy jobless rates rise

More than 36,000 job seekers flooded Kentucky's job market in June, pushing the civilian labor force to a new record and causing unemployment rates to climb in 86 of Kentucky's 120 counties.

Rates fell in 31 counties and remained the same in Franklin, Garrard and Pulaski counties from May to June, according to the Cabinet for Human Resources' monthly labor trends report.

Kentucky's revised May jobless rate of 6.9 percent rose to a preliminary 7.2 percent in June — much higher than last June's 6.1 percent. Nationwide, the rate grew from 6.6 percent in May to 6.9 percent in June.

Locally, in the Big Sandy area development district, the unemployment rate increased from a revised 11.3 percent in May to a preliminary 11.9 percent in June. Rates range from 9.8 percent in Johnson County to 19.3 percent in Magoffin County, third highest in the state. Floyd County's jobless rate was 10.9 percent in June, up from 10.0 percent in May. The jobless rate had just fallen slightly from 10.2 percent in April.

The rise in unemployment is considered normal for the summer months, as students looking for summer work enter the work force.

The dubious distinction of the state's highest unemployment rate went to Elliott County, with a 25.1 percent jobless rate, followed by Breathitt County with 19.3 percent. The state's lowest unemployment rates were in Oldham County (2.9 percent) and Fayette County (4.1 percent).

Unemployment statistics are based on estimates and are compiled to measure employment trends rather than to actually count people working.

Burritos meet broadcasting for fundraiser

Sam an Tonio's Restaurant in Prestonsburg will team up with Whitesburg's non-commercial FM station WMMT for a fundraiser at the restaurant on Monday August 12, beginning at 6 PM. The event will raise funds to help WMMT build an FM translator in Prestonsburg.

WMMT, 88.7 FM, is the listener-supported radio station of the Appalshop media center in Whitesburg. The station serves eastern Kentucky and southwest Virginia with a wide variety of programming, mostly done by volunteers such as Prestonsburg's "Alligator John" Spurlock. WMMT does not accept advertising, but it has drawn contributions from a wide range of individuals and businesses in its listening area.

Recently WMMT received a grant from the US Department of Commerce to improve its coverage by building a series of eight FM translators. A translator is an auxiliary transmitter which receives the main signal and rebroadcasts it at low power on another frequency. The device is generally installed on a hilltop where the signal is strong. The translator then beams the signal to lower-lying areas that otherwise would be blocked from receiving it by the hills. In Prestonsburg's case, the translator will be installed on the tower of radio station WQHY.

When built, the translator will send WMMT's programming into the town of Prestonsburg and the surrounding area. This programming is probably the most diverse of any station in eastern Kentucky and southwest Virginia. The station airs bluegrass and traditional mountain music, classic and contemporary rock, blues, gospel, country, Latin and African music; it also runs news and public affairs features, both locally-produced and national. The station relies on volunteers to design and carry out its programming. Over 40 people contribute air time each week, and over 200 people have been on-air volunteers since WMMT began operations in 1985.

WMMT's federal grant will pay for about three-quarters of the cost of building the translators. The remainder must be raised locally — about $3,000 in each of the eight communities where translators are to be built. (The others are Pikeville, Paintsville, Harlan and Barbourville, Kentucky, and Norton, Coeburn and Big Stone Gap in Virginia.)

To help cover the cost of the Prestonsburg translator, Sam an Tonio's has offered the use of its Prestonsburg restaurant for a fundraiser on Monday night, August 12. Beginning at 6 p.m., WMMT staff and volunteers will serve guests and share information about the station. Live music will alternate with special taped segments from WMMT air personalities. Program Director Jim Webb, also known as "The Ducktor," will emcee. The public is invited to visit, learn more about WMMT, and help make the Prestonsburg translator a reality.

For further information, contact Jim Webb or Rich Kirby at WMMT, 306 Madison Street, Whitesburg 41858, or call 606 633-0108.

Area projects clear penultimate hurdle

Over $13 million in funding, including funds for a Floyd County flood control project, was approved Wednesday by the House of Representatives. The funds were included in a conference report of the Energy and Water Appropriations Development Appropriations for fiscal year 1992. The bill easily passed the House 393 to 32, said a spokesperson for Congressman Chris Perkins' office.

If the bill receives Senate approval, $150,000 in funding will be utilized to continue the design of Beaver Creek's flood project, which includes the left and right forks.

Other projects in Eastern Kentucky will receive a big chunk of the funding including $8,070,000 for continuation of South Williamson's flood proofing and floodwall construction; $3.5 million for "finish-up" work on Yatesville Lake, including funds to build a permit office, visitors center, cultural resource presentation and to provide part of the cost share of Barker Marina; $600,000 for continuation of the Salyersville cut-through project which the Senate had eliminated funding for this year's work; $500,000 to begin engineering on an extensive flood control project in Pike County; $300,000 for preconstruction engineering and design of the Hazard flood control project; $225,000 to continue the study of flood control solutions for West Liberty in Morgan County and $160,000 to continue the study to solve Jackson's flooding problems.

In addition, Congressman Perkins received $200,000 to look at the economic potential of expanding recreational activities on existing reservoirs along the Levisa Fork of the Big Sandy River, the Little Sandy River, the Upper Licking River and the Kentucky River's North Fork.

OLW joins the smokefree era

Our Lady of the Way Hospital, a 39-bed primary care facility located in Martin, Kentucky, will be going completely smokefree on December 1, 1991.

The Joint Commission on Accreditation of Healthcare Organizations (JCAHO) has revised their standards on smoking and will be requiring all hospitals who participate in JCAHO accreditation to "disseminate and enforce a hospital-wide no-smoking policy."

On January 1, 1991, Our Lady of the Way enacted a partial no-smoking policy which restricted employee and visitor smoking to designated smoking areas (vending area and outside of the building). The measure was taken to enforce a healthy environment within the facility.

The smoking committee for Our Lady of the Way chose to make the smoking changes in phases. According to Billie Turner, RN (chairperson, Smoking Committee), "The choice to become partially smokefree in January was done to prevent the final result (a completely smokefree hospital) from being so drastic. We knew that Our Lady of the Way would eventually have to be completely smokefree, and by already having visitor and employee restrictions in effect, the change due to JCAHO regulations will not be as difficult. In many ways, we are a step ahead of other organizations who are facing the same regulation changes."

Our Lady of the Way Hospital will be making the switch to smokefree as a joint effort with the Methodist Hospital of Pikeville, Kentucky. Robin Sandlin-Harvey (director of Development and Public Relations, Our Lady of the Way) and Penny Stratton (director of Development, Methodist) both agree that strength is in numbers and that by going smokefree at the same time, communities will better understand that this regulation is not an individual choice but rather a regulation with which all hospitals must comply.

To assist the surrounding counties with this change, and to encourage employees, visitors, and patients to quit smoking, Our Lady of the Way has started FreshStart smoking cessation classes. The classes are free and open to the public.

Each class has four sessions which are held in the Our Lady of the Way Education Building. Each session begins at 6:30 p.m. and ends at 8 p.m.

For more information about the smoking regulation changes or about the FreshStart classes, please call Our Lady of the Way, 285-5181, ext. 346 or 388.

Love and devotion

Members of the new Agape House (Prestonsburg Adult Day Care Center) gathered this week at Billy Ray Collins' Playhouse Restaurant to honor Evonne Rowe, who had devoted 573 volunteer hours since April to residents at the center. Former P'burg resident reunites with co-worker

When Flossie Ernst was admitted to Green Acres Nursing Home in Kenton, Ohio, recently, she recognized the pin of Norma Seaman, an RN working there. Although there was 17 years between their time at the now-closed General, they greeted each other as old friends, Ernst having graduated in 1938 and Seaman in 1955.

The former Flossie Spradlin, Mrs. Ernst grew up in Prestonsburg. After graduating from the old (Louisville) City Hospital and marrying Phillip Lee Ernst, she spent many years in Louisville and worked in most of the hospitals here. For the past five years she has resided in Ada, a small town in northwest Ohio.

Norma Kunz Seaman, a native Louisvillian, spent nine years as a missionary in Pakistan with her husband, Alan, and their four children. After nine years pastoring United Methodist churches in Ohio, the couple served in Nigeria for three-and-a-half years, returning in 1990. Mrs. Seaman works only part-time at the Kenton nursing home and does missionary speaking about her former work.

Correspondence may be sent to Mrs. Ernst at Green Acres Nursing Home, 117 Cemetery Road, Kenton, OH 43326. Mrs. Seaman lives with her husband at 12629 State Route 347, Marysville, Ohio 43040.

Understanding the Struggle:

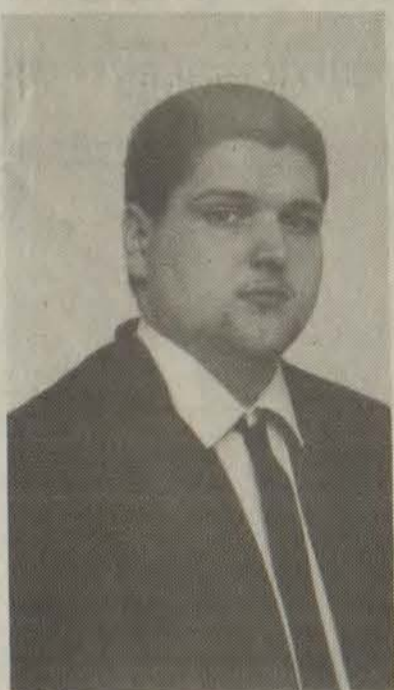

The Revolutions of 1989

(Part VI in a Series)
by Dr. Thomas Matijasik
PCC History Professor

When Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev came to power in 1985, four of the six satellite nations were led by old Stalinist dictators who were determined to resist change at all cost. Gorbachev was determined to introduce economic and political reforms in the U.S.S.R. and he hoped that the states of East-Central Europe would support his efforts. The notions of perestroika (restructuring the economy) and glasnost (openness) quickly captured the popular imagination.

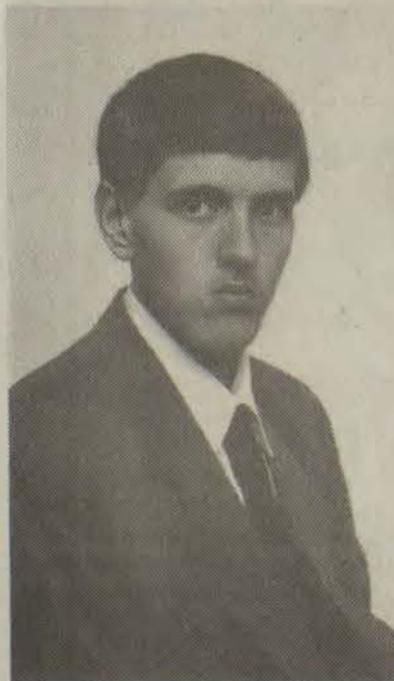

The leaders of Hungary and Poland moved rather quickly to liberalize their governments. In Poland, the Communist Party began to realize that it was impossible to rule without the support of the people. Massive strikes during 1988 were destroying the Polish economy. Unable to control the workers, the Polish government turned to Lech Walesa and Solidarity for help in ending the labor unrest. In exchange for Walesa's assistance, Communist leaders agreed to legalize Solidarity and it began a series of negotiations that led to the holding of elections on June 4, 1989. Of the 261 contested seats in the Polish Parliament, Solidarity won 260. Polish President Jaruzelski resigned from the Communist Party and Tadeusz Mazowiecki, a member of Solidarity, was chosen as the first non-Communist prime minister in forty years.

Changes in Hungary actually originated from inside that nation's Communist Party. As early as 1987, party member Imre Pozsgay began to assert that Hungary must look to the capitalist West for democratic models. With encouragement from Russia's Gorbachev, the Communist Party replaced Stalinist dictator Janos Kadar with reformer Karoly Grosz. Pushed by Pozsgay to go further the Communist Party of Hungary held its last meeting in October 1989 in which it legalized opposition parties, arranged to hold free elections in 1990, condemned the 1956 Soviet invasion, and then voted to change its name.

He was selected by Centre College and NASA for the project because of his outstanding ability in mathematics, physics and computers. He was trained in Huntsville, Alabama at the Marshall Space Flight Center. A sophomore at Centre College this fall, Croot will declare a major in physics and mathematics.

The quiet revolution in Hungary inspired dissidents in East Germany and Czechoslovakia to strike for freedom. Party boss Eric Honecker in East Germany and President Gustav Husak of Czechoslovakia were both relics of the past. They disliked Gorbachev and had no intention of liberalizing their regimes. But when Hungary opened its borders with Austria in 1989, thousands of East Germans decided to visit Hungary and slip across the border to the West. In just three days, 30,000 people fled into Austria. When the Honecker government began to obstruct traffic to Hungary, East Germans began to flee to Warsaw, Poland and Prague, Czechoslovakia. The tide of refugees became so great that these nations permitted the East German refugees to leave for West Germany rather than bare the financial expense of caring for them.

Most citizens of the German Democratic Republic (East Germany) did not want to flee. They wanted change at home. Demonstrations spontaneously erupted in Leipzig during the summer. When Gorbachev visited Honecker in October 1989, he warned him that if he put off reforms any longer, it could lead to disaster. As thousands took to the streets in the week that followed, Honecker resigned as leader of the Communist party. Three weeks later, the entire leadership of the East German Communist party resigned their positions and they were replaced by reformers.

On November 9, the government announced it was easing travel restrictions between East and West Berlin. By midnight, thousands of people were making their way across the Berlin Wall into the western half of the city. The next day, hundreds of young Berliners were climbing the Wall or chipping at it with hammers, rocks, or what ever was available. It was clear to everyone that the Communist leaders of the D.D.R. could no longer control their people.

Inspired by recent events in East Germany, youthful Czechs took to the streets of Prague. Earlier in the year a march to commemorate the death of Jan Palach, a young man who had set himself on fire to protest the 1968 Soviet invasion of his country, was broken up by police using tear gas and water hoses. On November 17, 1989, as many as 50,000 protesters jammed Wenceslas Square chanting anti-Communist slogans. Police beat many of the demonstrators when they tried to hand them flowers. The protest leaders responded by calling for a general strike.

On November 19, various groups opposed to the Communist government met at the Magic Lantern Theater to form Civic Forum. Vaclav Havel, an internationally known playwright quickly emerged as the group's leader. As the protests grew in size and strength, Alexander Dubcek, the leader of the Prague Spring of 1968, traveled to Prague and joined Havel at his Magic Lantern headquarters.

On November 27, millions of Czechoslovakians across the country joined in a general strike. That evening, crowds of up to 500,000 people cheered as Havel demanded the government's resignation.

Havel's attacks upon the government were often humorous and without malice toward individual Communist leaders. A longtime advocate of non-violent resistance, Havel was more interested in gaining the rights of free speech and free association for his people, than he was in gaining political power for himself. On December 7, 1989, most of the Communist rulers of Czechoslovakia voluntarily resigned and a new, non-Communist cabinet was formed. Three days later, Havel was named president. Havel immediately began negotiations with the Soviet Union designed to rid Czechoslovakia of Soviet troops. Free, multiparty elections were held in June 1990 with candidates loyal to Civic Forum winning 48 percent of the vote. In all, some 46 political parties participated in the election.

In Rumania, long-time dictator Nicolae Ceausescu refused to share power. When demonstrations broke out in the city of Timisoara, he ordered the army and security guards to fire into the crowd. Thousands were killed. Four days later Ceausescu was shouted down when he attempted to address a rally in Bucharest. Faced with a mass uprising, Ceausescu attempted to flee the country. He was arrested by local police in the town of Tirgoviste and turned over to the army. After a speedy trial, he was executed on Christmas Day, 1989.

After witnessing the events in the rest of the Communist bloc, the rulers of Bulgaria decided that mild reform was preferable to open revolt. In essence, the Communists of that state were to save themselves by making a few concessions to their people.

Yugoslavia had freed itself from Soviet control in 1948, but ethnic rivalries became involved in the competition between democratic and Communist forces within the country. Non-Communist governments were elected in Slovenia and Croatia in 1990. They demanded greater autonomy from the Communist-dominated central government whose Serbian majority refused to grant concessions.

The revolutions of 1989 would not have been possible without the approval of Soviet leader Mikhail Gorbachev. By the same token, the people of East-Central Europe showed great courage. The revolts in Poland, East Germany and Czechoslovakia were based upon mass movements. They were, for most the part, peaceful affairs. Genuine heroes like Lech Walesa and Vaclav Havel emerged from these struggles. The people took to the streets to demand democracy, not vengeance. Only in Rumania did the rage of the masses lead to widespread bloodshed.

State funds help tourism, promotion

The state Department of Travel Development has disbursed $889,000 in state funds to help non-profit tourism organizations carry out promotional activities.

Through its Matching Funds Program, the department provided grants to 110 organizations throughout the state for the fiscal year that ended June 30, said Tourism Secretary Ron Gentry.

Recipients included nine regional tourism organizations that received grants ranging from $42,500 to $88,000 to print regional brochures, undertake regional advertising campaigns, and other promotional activities. The amounts varied because some regions spent more for regional promotions than did others, noted Travel Development Commissioner Mimi Lewis. In all cases, the regional groups received 80 percent state funds for their projects. Floyd county groups receiving grants were the Prestonsburg Tourist Commission, which received a grant of $3,139.68, and the Jenny Wiley Summer Music Theatre, which received $8,708.

The Matching Funds Program supports a variety of promotional activities that range from media advertising to attendance at travel shows to printing brochures. The program's guidelines were altered in recent years to encourage regional promotions by offering 80 percent state funding, compared to the maximum of 50 percent that a local promotion can receive. Applications are reviewed by committees of local tourism and civic leaders, with their recommendations being submitted to the Travel Development Department for final decision-making.

"We believe the Matching Funds Program has been one of the department's true success stories," Lewis said. "This program has made the department an active partner in local and regional tourism promotion."

Local art group discusses future of their program

Floyd County Arts met last week to review by-laws and regulations of incorporating. Board members were asked to read over the guidelines and prepare any questions they might have for the next meeting.

Duna Combs discussed the interpretation of original work and reproductions and asked that artists' reproductions not be displayed at area exhibits. After a discussion, the group decided to have different types of exhibits, both open and restricted. Those guidelines will be established as the group organizes.

Also discussed at the meeting was the need for a building to house the newly-formed group. Members of the group expressed the urgency of finding a place for the work to be exhibited and for a working studio. They also discussed forming a committee to look into the situation.

Brenda Crouch, founding member, reported on the completion of one of the group's projects. Names and addresses of area artists have been submitted to the Floyd County Chamber of Commerce for a brochure to be included in tourist mailings by the Chamber.

Other business included a discussion of future exhibitions planned during the Highlands Folk Festival and the Jenny Wiley Festival.

The group encourages area artists to participate in the next meeting which will be held August 8.

Summer Music Theatre gets rave reviews

by Don Lowe

Jenny Wiley Theatre is like having "Broadway in your own back yard." That was the review from one of this summer's theatergoers at Jenny Wiley.

There are many other people talking about this season as well. Media people throughout the region have given many positive comments on the season's shows.

Terry L. May, a writer for the Appalachian-News Express in Pikeville, has this to say about Gypsy, "An excellent production combined with a great cast in a wonderful outdoor setting made for a great evening of entertainment. The last act was simply the best. The parts of Mama Rose and Gypsy (played by Tatiana Michele and Jennifer Lampert respectively), especially in the final scenes, were fantastic."

Roslyn Stanely, of the Williamson Daily News in Williamson, West Virginia, said she enjoyed Jesus Christ Superstar.

"I loved it. The performance of Judas (played by Steve Ewing) was outstanding," said Stanely. "The dance numbers were so entertaining and difficult and the new sound system made it all sound so wonderful."

Don Lowe, also with the Appalachian-News Express in Pikeville, saw Is There Life After High School? and loved it.

"I remembered mostly everything they did in the show as something I did in high school," said Lowe. "It brought back wonderful memories. Tatiana Michele's homecoming queen number was breathtaking."

While all the shows have received positive reviews from the press and public, this season's most talked about show would have to be Big River.

WYMT-TV 57 Mountain News co-anchor Sherry Sparks attended a Big River performance and said, "I really enjoyed the music especially the singing of the actors who played Jim, and the slave mother Alice and her daughter. (played by Ken Early, Meshelle Murphy, and Sonya Leslie respectively) Their singing overwhelmed me. Overall, I thought it was a very good show."

Tess Whitmer, of The Floyd County Times, agrees with Sparks, "I think Big River is the best show I've seen at Jenny Wiley in the last three seasons. The actors were perfectly fitted in their parts. The singing was tremendous."

Kelly Moore, a CPA with Kelley, Galloway and Co., PSC, in Pikeville, was the theatergoer who said it best when he coined the phrase, "The theatre on general is like having Broadway in your own backyard."

Performances of Big River, Gypsy, Jesus Christ Superstar, and Is There Life After High School? run alternatively through August 17.

Beware phone fraud, says AT&T spokesman

AT&T is warning customers that thousands of American consumers are being ripped off by telephone con artists who trick them into revealing their calling card numbers or accepting long distance charges.

The annual bill for telephone scams directed at consumers is estimated by industry experts at more than $1 billion.

Calling card thieves usually find their victims in busy public places such as bus, train or airline terminals. The victim can be any unsuspecting caller who makes a calling card call from a public phone.

Frequently, card number thieves simply stand close to their victim in order to watch the calling card digits being entered on a touch-tone phone. If a caller speaks the calling card information to an operator, the thief tries to listen in.

Some unwary customers receive a call at home from a fraud artist posing as a phone company or law enforcement investigator. The fraud artist requests the customer's calling card number and provides a phony explanation of a supposed toll fraud investigation or problems with the company's database.

These phony investigators also sometimes use the "Just say yes" scam, instructing victims to accept charges for international calls when an operator calls for verification. The thief assures the customer he or she won't be billed for the calls.

After stealing calling card numbers, the thieves usually find an available public phone from which they sell discounted long-distance calls to locations around the world — billing the calls to the victim's card number.

If customers are tricked into accepting charges for calls, they are billed for the calls.

These con artists can be very intimidating and even threaten to cut off a customer's phone service if the customer doesn't cooperate. Customers should know they are responsible if they willingly accept third-number charges.

While these fraud schemes are often centered in larger cities, victims are being reported across the country and anyone can be a target.

AT&T offers these phone fraud tips to consumers:

* Protect your telephone calling card number just as you would a credit card number. At public phones, be careful not to let anyone see you keying in your calling card number or overhear you reading the number to the operator.

* Do not use your telephone calling card as identification for purchases to avoid sharing your calling card number.

* Beware of individuals who call you at home requesting your telephone calling card number or asking you — as part of an "investigation" — to accept charges billed to your telephone number. Do not give out your number to these callers and do not accept charges for calls of a suspicious nature. If you receive such a call, hang up and call your long-distance company immediately. If you're served by AT&T, you can call toll-free: 1-800-CALL-ATT. (No legitimate phone company will ever call asking you for your calling card number. Your phone company already has the number.)

* You should call your long-distance company if your calling card is lost or stolen.

Good weather, condition promote pasture growth, fungal infections

The weather situation that fostered good growing conditions for grass pastures this year created a double whammy for cattle grazing those pastures, according to an animal scientist at the University of Kentucky.

"Unseasonably warm temperatures and high humidity in May and June provided unusually good growing conditions for grasses," said Nelson Gay, associate chairman of the Animal Sciences Department in the UK College of Agriculture.

"But," Gay added, "the weather also favored development of fungi that produce organic compounds (alkaloids) in grasses. These compounds create toxic reactions that cause a blood circulatory problem or reduce cattle performance."

Pastures produced abundant seed heads this spring, he said. Since ergot alkaloids develop on infected seeds, pastures that were not mowed to remove the seed heads may have high concentrations of the organic compounds.

These alkaloids can create a toxic reaction that restricts blood flow to the extremities. Affected beef cattle shed tail hairs and tail switches. In extreme cases, animals develop "fescue foot," a dry gangrene.

"Weather conditions also favored development of an endophytic fungus that spends its entire life within the plant tissue," Gay said. "When tall fescue grows well, the endophytes also flourish; so higher levels of the organisms are present in the grass. They produce organic compounds that cause a malady known as 'fescue toxicosis.'"

Cattle grazing tall fescue pastures with high levels of the endophyte have reduced weight gain and lower competition rates; calves have lower weaning weights.

"About 90 percent of the 5 to 6 million acres of tall fescue in Kentucky is infected with this endophytic fungus, which spreads only through the seed," Gay said.

"However," he added, "tall fescue is the predominant pasture in Kentucky. In many cases, it is the only pasture available. I urge producers to take pasture samples and have them tested to determine the level of infection. Your county Extension office has information on collecting and submitting samples."

"Fescue toxicity is a greater problem during the summer," Gay said. "So we recommend that, where possible, producers take animals off tall fescue pastures in June, July and August. It is especially important to keep the breeding herd off highly infected pastures during the breeding season."

State property tax rate drops

Revenue Secretary C. Emmett Calvert announced that the 1991 state real property tax rate is 18.7 cents per $100 of assessed valuation.

The state rate is revised each year to limit the increase in revenue over the previous year to four percent in compliance with the law commonly known as House Bill 44. As property values increase and new property is created, the previous year's rate produces real property tax revenue exceeding the statutory limit. Accordingly, the tax rate usually declines each year. The 1991 values were also increased by the current real property reassessment program.

The 1990 real property tax rate was 18.9¢ per $100 of assessed valuation.

(Sort Of) Happy Birthday

As I sit down to write my column, I know that all over the country, teenagers by the thousands are celebrating a monumental occasion. Today, the cultural icon of my generation turns ten.

by Mike Rosenberg

Happy Birthday.

MTV.

The both adored and maligned video television network signed on the air at midnight, August 1, 1981, with those world-famous recording artists, The Buggles (who?), and their song "Video Killed the Radio Star."

The rest, as they say, is history.

Countless bands from around the world owe their success to MTV. The look became as important as the sound of a band. Would bands like Duran Duran and Poison have skyrocketed up the charts as they did without help from their videos?

Nah. Besides the music, the new kick on MTV is social consciousness. Among the rapid-fire edits and striking images from the videos themselves, MTV sticks in five or ten second messages on voting, recycling, human rights and various other things.

I'm not saying it's a bad thing the station does this. I'm just a little worried. The ideas that MTV presents in these shorts are good ones, but I don't know if I like the idea of a generation's mindset shaped by ten second commercials.

I've heard my age group called the "MTV generation." I guess it's true. Not much else positive to identify us has come along in the last ten years. Like every generation that's come along, we're "the leaders of the future" and "the fate of the world is in our hands." When the time comes for us to take the reins, I hope that we know more than just what kind of makeup Paula Abdul wears or what kind of cymbals Lars Ulrich of Metallica plays.

If the world is looking for leaders, we need more than U2 for role models.

Woof, Woof

I had the pleasure the other night of seeing "101 Dalmatians" for the first time since I was about four. It was good to see a movie that wasn't blaringly loud and that I could just sit back and enjoy.

Most "kid" movies these days rely on noise and slapstick for effect. Music in movies now tells us how to react, who to cheer for and basically tells us the plot. Watching this 1960 flick was really refreshing, relaxing and downright fun.

In a world of Turtles, I'll go to the dogs.

Mountain Voices — by Willie Elliott —

WITH NOTHING TO SAY

Sooner or later anyone who has anything to do with writing comes upon a time when the only thing he/she can produce is a blank screen or a clean sheet of paper. The more a person presses for an idea the fewer things that present themselves for a topic. Time was, when the sight of a Macwrite or PageMaker screen would set me on a topic. Not his week, I don't know if it's writer's block or the blahs. I told myself that I needed a vacation. But I am on vacation. If I took a vacation from a vacation that would mean going back to work. NO WAY!

Nothing is happening. It must be dog days because this week I feel like a dog. Linda told me how refreshing it would be to sit out by her pond and read. The only things that got any refreshments were the gnats and I was the main course. Swatting gnats and being watchful for snakes made reading about as relaxing as watching Roseanne Barr sing the National Anthem. While I was being eaten alive by the gnats, Linda and Ryan went on a rock hunt. Yes, they went up and down the creek hunting rocks with "pleasing" designs to make a walkway. I'm having nothing to do with rock hunting or building a walkway. I don't know what those two will think of next, but I'm sure it will be interesting.

Linda finally came in long enough to cook a meal. She turned on the wrong burner and almost burned the house down. I told her we would just have soup and sandwiches or eat out the rest of the summer. I would rather do that than have our house burned. We're the only family that has to pay higher premiums during the school year because Linda plans to cook then. People talk about TV dinners, Linda invented the radio dinner; a bologna sandwich and a soda.

Finally I decided I had to do something to perk up my attitude toward life. I went to the library and checked out a book entitled "Laughing Matters: A Celebration of American Humor." I'm sure this is a fine book, but the material did not seem that funny to me. For example, this is a selection from Woody Allen's Notebooks — Thought: Why does man kill? He kills for food. And not only food; frequently there must be a beverage. On a normal day I would roll at that line. This week it did nothing for me.

I suppose I will just have to work myself out of this mood I have found myself in. I can hear people complaining now. Boy, that wasn't a very good column this week. All I can say is this: What did you expect from someone who is in a lousy mood and has writer's block.

Floyd students participate in EKU summer program

Two Floyd County residents are among approximately 300 Eastern Kentucky University students participating this summer in EKU's Cooperative Education Program.

EKU's co-op students apply principles and theories learned in the classroom to practical, on-the-job situations.

Participants also receive a salary from the participating employer, which may help cover college expenses. They may also earn academic credit for their work.

Co-op officials at EKU said the University's program was unusual because of the close ties between academics and co-op. Faculty members monitor students' performance on the job and insure that the co-op job is a rich learning experience.

Co-op officials also said many people don't realize that the majority of co-op students are paid for their working hours in addition to the academic credit they receive.

Since EKU's program began in 1973, more than 11,000 students have been placed with employers in Kentucky and throughout the United States.

Local students participating in cooperative education at EKU are Jill Selena Layne of Betsy Layne and Amy Elizabeth Hayes of Stanville. Both women are working at Highlands Regional Medical Center as food service helpers.

Smile Awhile — by Sarah Hopson —

A LESSON ON LIFE

After reading "Life 101 - Everything We Wish We Had Learned About Life In School - But Didn't" by John-Roger and Peter McWilliams, I have concluded that I'm a bigger sap than I originally believed myself to be.

Whenever a book cover boasts "Two Months on the New York Times BESTSELLER List," I'm first in line to buy a copy when it goes paperback. Furthermore, reading that Larry King and the L.A. Times were touting its contents made it even more enticing.

Was I ever wrong! Part One of the book contained one page chapters featuring quotations about life by esteemed individuals such as: Pindar, Abigail Adams; Thomas Alva Edison and Roseanne. Yes, folks, I do mean the revered National Anthem soprano herself. That alone was the first inkling that I'd invested six bucks unwisely.

One quotation from this blockbuster bestseller was found on page 34. "Joe, never feel guilty about having warm human feelings toward anyone." Do you know who said that? If you guessed Ben Cartwright from the old Bonanza TV show, pass Go and collect your money.

If I'd wanted adages on how to live a full, more satisfying life, I wouldn't have had to buy a book because - as I now know asking my husband would have been a cheaper approach. Yet, after laboring through the entire 379 pages, it would have been less painful had I asked them. Unfortunately, I did.

"What are you reading?" Jimmie asked.

"A book about life."

"Why read about something you're living!"

"What if I'm missing something that I really need to know?"

"You could have asked me."

"All right," I said, as I thumbed to the chapter concerning purpose.

"What is my purpose in life?"

"Sara," he said. "You know that one. You're a wife and a mother and sort of a part-time housekeeper and cook."

"But what's my goal?"

"To be a better housekeeper and cook?" he asked, warily.

"Okay, Wiseguy. How do you feel about indifference? They cover that in the book, too."

"Who cares, Sara?"

"Don't you care to know that guilt is simply anger directed at ourselves — at what we did or did not do. And resentment is anger directed at others — at what they did or did not do?"

"I knew that."

"You never told me," I hurtfully muttered.

"Would you have felt less guilty or less angry if I had?"

"Maybe."

"Okay, Sara, let's have a deep philosophical discussion," he said, as he turned off his TV program.

"You're angry with me, aren't you?"

"Why would you say that? I've just been watching this mini-series for the past few days and this is the last night, I'm tired, and my legs hurt. Why would I be angry?"

"Now you're trying to make me feel guilty."

"Did you learn that from the book?"

"In all honesty Jimmie, I didn't even like it."

"Then why did you read it?"

"I always like to finish what I start."

"That's admirable, but it's only a book."

"That's true, but if I'd told you I'd paid six dollars for something I didn't read, what would you have said?"

"Well, after I'd finished telling you a fool and his money are soon parted, I'd have called you a quitter."

Just as Oscar Wilde said, "Life is far too important a thing ever to talk about." If that's true, the book was a waste of time and money. I wish I'd just asked Jimmie before I bought it.

Soapbox

Some weeks are harder than others coming up with a subject for this column. I've polled people for ideas, but haven't got much I can write about. If I had kids like Kim Frasure does, I'd never lack for something to write about. She suggested I come over and hang out at her house for a few hours and I'd surely come up with something.

by Tess Whitmer

Well, I don't have kids, or even a roommate, but I do have a cat, and if he could talk...

Living with Tess isn't always easy, but I'm grateful I have a home. When Tess is home, she is usually lovable, unless I happen to accidentally slip between her feet when she's walking. That's when she'll let out the most awful sound and swing her foot at me, hoping to turn me into a hairy projectile. But I'm too quick for her, I just scurry away and then look at her in my most pitiful look and she caves right in.

I don't know how many times I've had to spend the whole night outside because Tess was too inconsiderate to get out of bed and come open the door for me at one o'clock in the morning. I don't mind too much because there is this real friendly girl-cat that lives next door and she lets me sleep on her porch. Her pet-lady feeds me real good, too.

The other day I had the unique opportunity of turning the tables on Tess. She had just come home from the theatre and it was kind of late. The next day being trash day, Tess decided it was time to haul out the accumulation of garbage she'd been procrastinating about gathering up.

Around the house she went, emptying trash cans, and, of course, it was the perfect chance for me to get under foot. By the time she went outside she was grumbling almost continuously. I wanted to come out with her, but she had the door almost shut and I couldn't squeeze through. In my attempt to wiggle out, I guess I nudged too hard because, the door shut completely.

How was I supposed to know there was an automatic locking device on the door? After all, I'm just a cat.

I jumped up into the window just in time to see Tess coming back up the driveway. She went straight for the door and pushed — locked. She then started patting her pockets looking for her keys — inside.

"Monster!" she screamed. "Open this door right now!"

I might be able to shut doors, but I have yet to learn how to open them. Now opening window screens, that's something I've accomplished. So I sat in the window and meowed, trying to tell her to just come on in.

If she were a cat she would have just taken advantage of the situation and ran around the yard for a while, or went over and slept on the neighbor's porch like I do.

She finally took the hint and started trying to pry the screen off. I don't know how she managed not to squash her fingers sticking them under that screen. I've certainly hurt my little paws a few times doing that. I guess it's easier to get out than in, since you can just push on the screen and it pops right out.

Amidst a bunch of cursing, she finally got the screen off and shoved the window all the way up. I discovered then that Tess is far from as graceful as I am. You should have seen the way she wallowed through that space which was big enough for 10 cats to just glide right through.

When she made it through she landed on the washing machine and the lid dented and then popped back up and made the loudest sound. It never does that under my weight.

She began talking to me really loud, even though I was standing right next to her. I guess she figured that the neighbors were going to call the cops and tell them someone was breaking into the apartment next door. She probably thought the police wouldn't believe that a cat locked the door and would think she was stupid for locking herself out like that.

People, they should spend less time being concerned with what other people think and more time being cute and cuddly, like me. Tess is a pretty good human-pet though, she feeds most everyday and only locks me out of the house about twice a week. I've learned what her ear looks like though, and if I hurry I can usually get in the house when she comes home, before she closes the door.

Watson chosen for literacy team

JOYCE O. WATSON

Joyce O. Watson, mathematics and German teacher at Allen Central High School, is one of two Kentucky teachers chosen to participate in the national Computer Equity Expert Project which is a current major national education project. The goal of the project is to increase girls' involvement with computers, mathematics, and science. With acceptance, Mrs. Watson has agreed to serve the next year and a half.

To begin participation in this project, Mrs. Watson is attending a six-day seminar at MIT in Cambridge, Massachusetts, to begin July 26th. The seminar will address gender equity in computers, mathematics and science classrooms, what the problems are and how to solve them. Educators will be represented from across the country.

Throughout Mrs. Watson's participation in the project, she will be part of a national network of educators who are concerned about equal education for girls. In the fall, she is expected to share her expertise within her own school as well as the district, and in the state in workshops and school computer equity team efforts. Later in the year, she will attend an additional project.

The Computer Equity Expert Project, carried out by Women's Action Alliance in New York City, is funded by the National Science Foundation, I.B.M., Hewlett Packard, Xerox, American Express and Chevron.

Since accepting this endeavor, Mrs. Watson was included in the original ten Appalachian teachers invited to participate in the Oak Ridge National Laboratory Math and Science Initiative. This program is sponsored by the Appalachian Regional Commission, the U.S. Department of Energy and Oak Ridge National Laboratory.

Kentucky Opry

By Billie Jean Osborne

This Monday will be a big one at the Jenny Wiley Theatre! The all-star cast from the Floyd County Schools will take the stage for the final performance of the musical "Friends Forever." I invite you to bring friends and family to support these students. They have worked all summer for this opportunity.

Many folks passing through the area have commented about the Kentucky Opry's show. Their thought was, the show would be the same each Monday night. Not so, it changes with each performance. We will always be bringing music from the top ten charts as well as new classics each time. You fell free to give us your comments, we are working to entertain you. Summer is rapidly passing so come on out Monday night and join us at the theatre.

Kentucky hospitals currently have a total of 15,633 licensed acute care beds in service. Based upon the latest hospital occupancy rates (1990), more than 8,700 of those beds (roughly 56 percent) are unoccupied on a daily basis.

A Look At Sports

by Ed Taylor—Sports Editor

JIM ROSE COMING TO WHEELWRIGHT: MAYBE NOT!

"The Saga of Jim Rose" continues as to whether the sought after coach will make it to Wheelwright as head basketball coach or not. The latest rumor has it, and it is more fact than rumor, that he has decided to remain at Knott County Central for another try after securing his old job back. Rose was dismissed from his coaching duties by the Knott County Board of Education in March just before his team was to play in the district tournament. After a hearing, Rose was declared innocent of charges lodged against him and even won "back pay" owed him. Rose's Patriot team went to the Sweet 16 this past spring. Rumors are that Rose got tired of waiting for the Floyd County School Board to hire him after having his application in for the job for several months. Rose then decided to remain at Knott County.

Now, there remains still the hiring of a coach at Wheelwright and the townspeople in the Left Beaver area are anxiously awaiting the word as to who it will be.

There were three other applicants for the job. Roger Johnson, Zenith Hall and Jackie Pack. Whether the head coaching job will be filled by one of the three is anybody's guess. The question coming out of Wheelwright is why is the board taking so long in naming a new coach. The players, more than anyone, are very concerned over who the new coach will be.

The Trojans will return a very experienced team lead by standout Harold Johnson. A lot of teams would like to have Johnson playing underneath for them. He is a solid All-District, All-Conference and, this year, perhaps an All-Regional player. Wheelwright can be a strong contender this year with the right coach. Others returning are Layne Bailey, Paul Hall, Jimmy Helton, Steven Shelton and Mike Newsome. Some promising players out of last year's freshman class will be able to contribute this year: John Hall, Charles Johnson and Mickey Johnson.

These players deserve more than they are getting. They deserve to know who the coach will be and the board owes that to them. So, it is a good question they are asking in Wheelwright—who will be the new basketball coach?

ED MOORE SAYS HE IS GIVING UP COACHING...

For well over 20 years, Ed Moore has been giving his time to the Drift Little League program. He has contributed more to Little League baseball than anyone else I know of in Floyd County. Now, he says this past season was his last.

"I just can't get out in the hot sun like I used to," he said earlier in the year. "My health is not all that good and this will be my last year."

Moore wanted to coach until his grandson, Chris, was through the Little Leagues and this past year was Chris' last. Moore coached the Drift Giants to a second place finish in the Beaver Creek South Division. He says one of the thrills he gets from coaching is when a former player (and there have been many) comes up to him and talks of the days they played for him and how they appreciated all he did for them.

Ed Moore has paid his dues in the Little League coaching ranks and he has been a credit to the game.

When they holler "play ball" next summer, I hope that the officials of the Beaver Creek Little League Association will take a special day and honor the coach that has given so much of his time to the kids in Little League baseball.

REDS NEED MORE THAN JUST ANOTHER STARTER - TRY NEW ATTITUDE!

What has happen to the Cincinnati Reds? Why haven't they made a trade for another starting pitcher? These and many other questions have followed the Reds' season, which up to this point (and it doesn't seem it is going to change) has been disappointing to say the least.

The Reds need more than just another starter! They can go out and trade for a David Cone from the New York Mets or a Dennis Martinez from Montreal, but a trade of that magnitude will not turn things around for the Reds. What needs to be changed is their attitude. It's pathetic! For instance, watching the Cubs and Reds on the tube Tuesday night in the late innings (seems I always make it home in time for the late innings), Cubs announcer Steve Stone revealed that Barry Larkin said that if the Reds trade Eric Davis he wanted to be traded also. In other words, if Davis can't play for the Reds, Larkin can't either. So what if Davis is batting anemic .246. So what if Davis had driven in 28 runs all season long. So what if Davis is about to set a new strike out record. So what if Davis can't hit with runners in scoring position. For Larkin, that's alright, he's his buddy. That's ridiculous! Why not make Davis and Larkin a package deal to someone and throw Rob Dibble in with the two. That way Chris Jones might, just might, get a shot at an outfield position that is being played by two minor league players anyway — Glenn Braggs and Billy Hatcher.

When does one player dictate to the brass who they can trade or not trade? Come on Larkin, the millions have gone to your head. You're not Ozzie Smith yet.

It seems all the bickering the Reds are going through hasn't helped the team. I certainly believe that Davis does not want to play for the Reds and therefore, why try. You would think that he would want to have a good year to show some other team that he can play the game. But since the millions have come his way, his quality of play has dropped.

Dibble is a mental case. He now says that he will see a shrink. I wonder who convinced him he needed the treatment.

And then, lo and behold, my hero Chris Sabo, goes and pushes an autograph seeker into a window. Not Chris! I have two poster size photos, Chris, of you hanging on my wall in my office. Now, they will have to come down in protest of what you have done. Chris, you have been around Dibble too long.

MORE DISTURBING NEWS...

I wanted to deal with this before all the Bluegrass State Games began and I just didn't have time to follow up on it. One thing I have always enjoyed seeing is the way opposing players shake hands after an afternoon or evening of competition. From Little League on up, you see the two teams forming a line and shaking hands.

Even before high school football games, several teams have pregame prayers.

Now comes the National Football League and issues a new rule that bans football players in the NFL from shaking hands with opposing players, talking to opposing players after the games and meeting at midfield and having a post-game prayer time. The reason — it makes the fans uncomfortable. The powers-that-be in the NFL are fearful of something more than making fans uncomfortable.

We certainly have come a long ways from what we used to be in sports. Men are constantly taking out the things that are good, decent and harmless out of the games and allowing corruption to go on. I personally think that the new ruling by the NFL is one of the stupidest rules any professional sport has come up with. I also do not think it will end in the professional ranks, but will eventually filter down to the college, high school and summer leagues. That would be a real shame.

For Chris Burke...

All-Star Games A Learning Experience

Prestonsburg junior Chris Burke just returned from participating in the Kentucky Junior All-Star tournaments in Louisville, Los Angeles and Los Vegas. For the 6'7" Blackcat center, the basketball season couldn't begin soon enough for him. You see, Burke is looking forward to helping lead the Blackcats on the hardwood and back into the 15th Regional tournament and beyond.

Burke was fortunate to be named to this year's Junior All-Star team (sophomores last year). It was an opportunity to see some of the country and play basketball also.

"We had some free time when we were out on the West Coast," Burke explained. "I really enjoyed the trip out there and it was a lot of fun. The best time was getting to play in UNLV's gym. It was really something."

Burke said that he also had the opportunity to slip some quarters in a few machines in Vegas. "I had both pockets loaded down with quarters that I won. We weren't suppose to play the machines, but I did. I just couldn't quit."

"We had some time to go to the beaches out there and that was very enjoyable as well as going to Vegas. Vegas was all lights. If you're not 21 you can't do much in Vegas." The team also had a chance to tour Beverly Hills.

The Kentucky Junior All-Star team placed fourth in the Louisville tournament where Burke averaged around six points per game. In Los Angeles Burke's team had a 2-2 record. However, in Las Vegas the team won the tournament, winning all six games. Burke made the trip home with a good sized trophy to remember the trip by.

"I had a chance to play with some great ball players," Burke said. "Darnell Burton can do anything he wants to with a basketball if he puts his mind to it. He was a crowd rouser. He could shoot the three-pointer or go in for a dunk."

Burke said that he was used at different positions in the tournaments and that was good learning experience for him. "I played under the basket, out on the court and in the corners. The experience will be invaluable to me and I know that it will help me this coming season."

Burke said that he had some blocked shots and "I had some of my shots blocked also."

"I played against the seven-footers and they would block your shots underneath but it just makes me want to take the ball stronger to the basket. I learned a lot from it. Playing more positions than just underneath the basket helped me a lot."

Burke hopes to be able to use the summer experience and show some leadership for this year's Blackcat team. "I just want to do better on offense. I believe the tournaments have made me a better coordinated player and I realize I am going have to be."

The Blackcat center said that his best game came against Ocean View, a California team, when he scored 12 points and had a good defensive outing. "I was playing better in that game and things were going pretty much my way," explained Burke, "but there was a game I would rather forget and that was against another California team. I didn't do anything in that game. I didn't score, I was tired and slow and just didn't contribute at all."

Burke was quick to recognize the difference in West Coast teams and the style of basketball played in Kentucky.

"They are a more finesse team and play a more deliberate style of offense," he explained, "except for the team from Hawaii, they would pull up three feet behind the three-point line and shoot the ball."

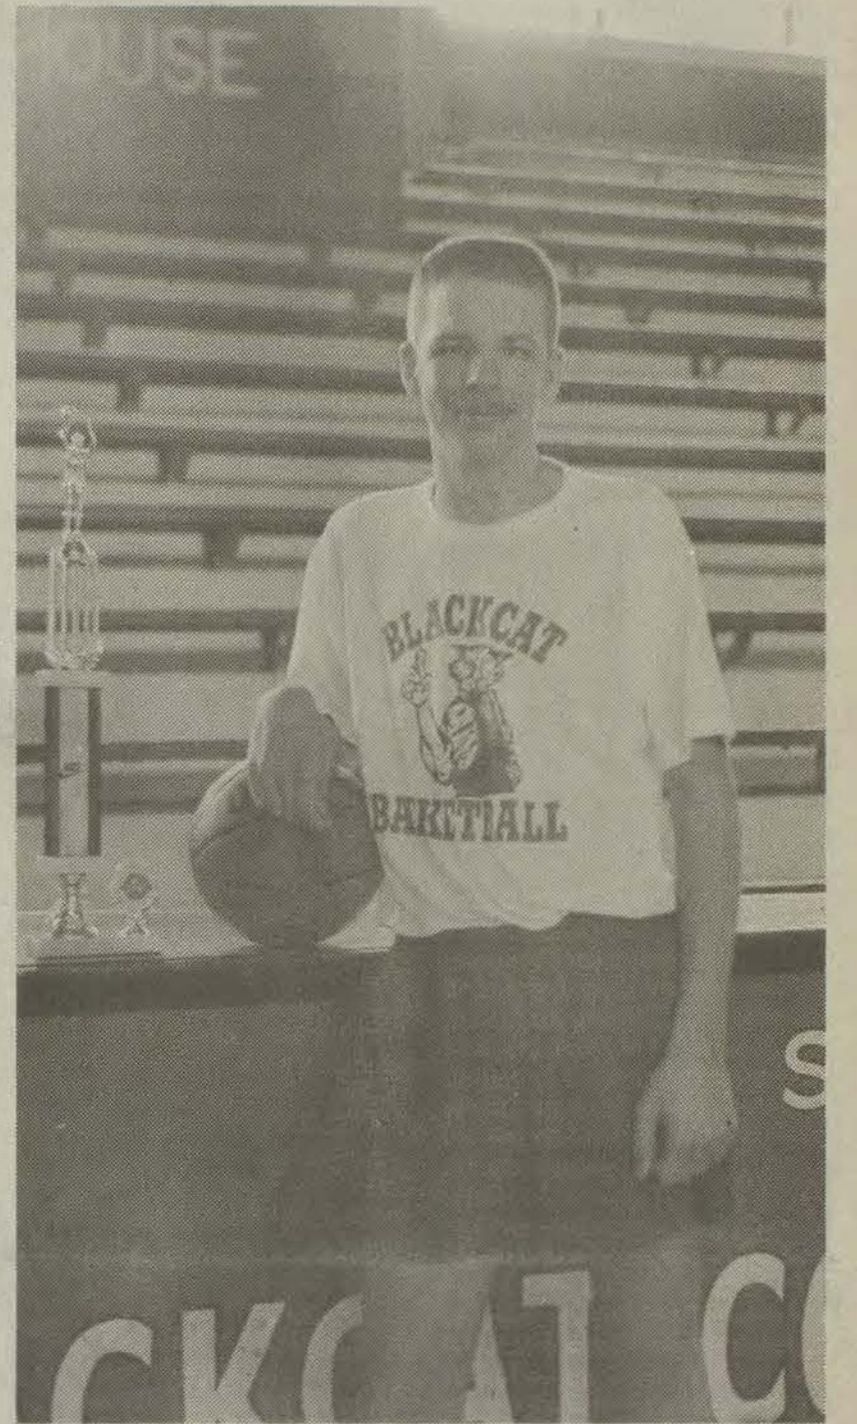

Many major college coaches were on hand to view the tournament games and look over some of the top players all over the country. "I didn't get to meet any of them personally, but I saw them there. Hugh Durham from Georgia and John Thompson from Georgetown were there."

Burke said that he learned something's as a person by playing in the tournament. "It made me want to be a better person and try and make things better for Eastern Kentucky."

Burke said that he made a lot of new friends and that no one on the team were enemies.

"I just want to thank everyone that gave donations so that I could go on the trip," said Burke. "Coach (Gordon) Parido, I want to thank him and my parents (Charles and Patricia Burke)."

Stepp Excited About Taking Lawrence County Helm

The Lawrence County Bulldogs will be getting a new basketball coach and to say that he is excited about the venture would be an understatement. As of 1 p.m. Wednesday afternoon, Orville Stepp became the Bulldogs new basketball coach.

Stepp, a 1968 graduate of Marshall University, had just returned to the teaching profession last year as he taught special education at Betsy Layne last season.

His prior coaching experience was in Ohio where he coached at Cedarville High School for three years. He also taught in Martin County for six years at Warfield Elementary. After a venture in mining, Stepp decided he wanted to return to what he really loved — coaching.

Minnie Sluggers Outslug Rangers To Capture Pee Wee Title

The Minnie Sluggers had to play the KC Rangers close but they came away with a pair of close victories to win the Minnie Pee Wee tournament title. The Sluggers posted a 5-4 win in the first game and handed the Rangers a 2-1 loss in the second game.

In game one, the Sluggers scored two runs in the bottom of the sixth inning for their 5-4 win. The Sluggers led 3-0 through the first four innings when the Rangers scored three times to tie the game and then scored a sixth inning run for a 4-3 lead, setting up the bottom of the sixth comeback for the Sluggers.

Dusty Tackett was the winning pitcher and Fred Gray suffered the loss. Gray had a double in the game for the Rangers.

The Sluggers, who were supposed to be in a rebuilding year, won the tournament last year and eliminated the Rangers in game two with a 2-1 win.

Jason Spriggs made what proved to be a game-saving catch in center-field in the sixth inning when the Rangers had a runner on base.

"It would have cost us the ball game," said Sluggers coach John Lawson, "if he hadn't caught it."

The Sluggers went through the double elimination tournament undefeated with a 4-0 record and finished the season with a sparkling 26-2 record. The two losses came at the hands of the Rangers, who finished at 24-4. All four of the Rangers losses came from the Sluggers.

Both teams tied for the league championship with identical records. "We're trying to get a county All-Star tournament together at Minnie," said Lawson. "We're talking to Martin and Prestonsburg about it."

The tournament is scheduled to be played at the Minnie Park on August 10-11. So far, three teams have been added: Minnie, Harold and Mud Creek. If Martin and Prestonsburg play, all five Floyd County Pee Wee leagues would be represented and make a great tournament.

For more information on the tournament, contact Frank Goins at 377-2986 or John Lawson at 377-6634.

More Winners of Bluegrass State Games B-3

"I am really excited about returning to coaching," he said of his new position at Lawrence County. "It was an opportunity I just couldn't refuse. With my physical background and coaching experience, I just couldn't pass up this opportunity to get back into coaching."

"I hate to leave Floyd County," he explained. "It has been great to have taught in the Floyd County school system but it is something that I feel I need to do. I have played and coached basketball all my life and I just have to get back into it."

Stepp said that he was assistant baseball and football coach during his time in Ohio but as of yet he doesn't know if he will be asked to assist at Lawrence County or not. "I definitely want to have a good working relation with the other coaches at Lawrence County," says Stepp. "Coaching is something that once it gets in your blood you long for it."

Stepp said that he heard about the opening at the Lawrence County school and applied for the job. "I guess they liked me and I liked them so I signed a contract yesterday."

"Lawrence County has a great support groups. The boosters club and parents are great and even though the basketball program has been down the past two years the potential for a great program exists. It will take a lot of hard work on the part of everyone."

Stepp doesn't know who his assistants will be but that will be named later he said.

What style of basketball will the former Martin Countian bring to Lawrence County?

"It will depend on the talent that comes back this year," he said. "My background as a coach and player is that of an up-tempo game. I like to run the basketball and play a man-toman defense. But all that is dependent on the players that you have coming back."

Stepp said that he is not familiar with the players that will be returning from last year. "That is good and bad," he stated. "It's good in that everyone including myself will be starting out on an equal basis. It's bad in that I don't know what the returning players can do."

"I'm looking forward to it. Lawrence County is a fine community and I am sure we will have the backing of the parents and booster club. And really, that is what its going to take."

Stepp wants to go into the county and set up the junior high program and just offer his input into the system. "I'm not going to go in there and tell them how to run their program, but just to make some suggestions so that it will be easier for the kids when they do reach the high school level. I can't go into the middle school and order anything done, but I can make suggestions."

Lawrence County has a middle school, Blaine and Fallsburg as feeder systems. "I have been told that I will be able to have some input into the junior high system."

Stepp hopes to stress the fundamentals of the game of basketball in the lower grades and work with the existing coaches to help build a solid program at the Lawrence County school.

Stepp's coaching philosophy is that of not embarrassing the players. "I will never holler at a player or use profanity at a player in order to correct his mistakes. I don't believe they should be abused in front of other players or fans. If a kid makes a mistake, I will take him aside and point out his mistakes and how to correct them."

Stepp

The new Bulldog coach says that he expects some problems in establishing his coaching philosophy at Lawrence County. "Anytime you undertake something new, you will have some difficulty. Time will be a problem the first year because we will have only a short time to get ready," said Stepp.

He plans on meeting with the coaching staff at Lawrence County and then meet with the players. "Some of the players will be playing football but those that are not playing will be doing something to get in shape for the upcoming season."

Stepp is a physical fitness person that believes in players being physically fit to play the game of basketball. "Basketball game is a physical game and an intellectual game. The sport has changed so much in the past years that it takes intelligence to play the game."

That is why Stepp says that athletics will not be number one but academics will.

Stepp has plans to run his own basketball camp next season and feels that the lack of a team camp for the Bulldogs this year will set them behind other schools that did go to camp. "It will make it harder starting out," he stated. "Camps are great and I firmly believe in them."

With a degree in physical education, guidance counseling and special education, Stepp feels that he is qualified to be able to relate to the players. "One thing that I do want to relate to them is that everyone has to give all. I will stress physical fitness and being in shape."

"I have watched basketball games in Floyd County, Martin County and Lawrence County. I have observed what works and what doesn't. I have been a student of the game and pride myself in knowing what doesn't and what does work."

Stepp said that he applied for the Wheelwright head coaching job but did not get any response from the application. However, he is happy with where he is heading and looks forward to moving to Lawrence County with his wife Mary and son Damion. Damion played grade school basketball at Prestonsburg Elementary and played for the Beisy Layne freshman team last year. "Damion is a good student and if he can make the team at Lawrence County he will be treated as everyone else."

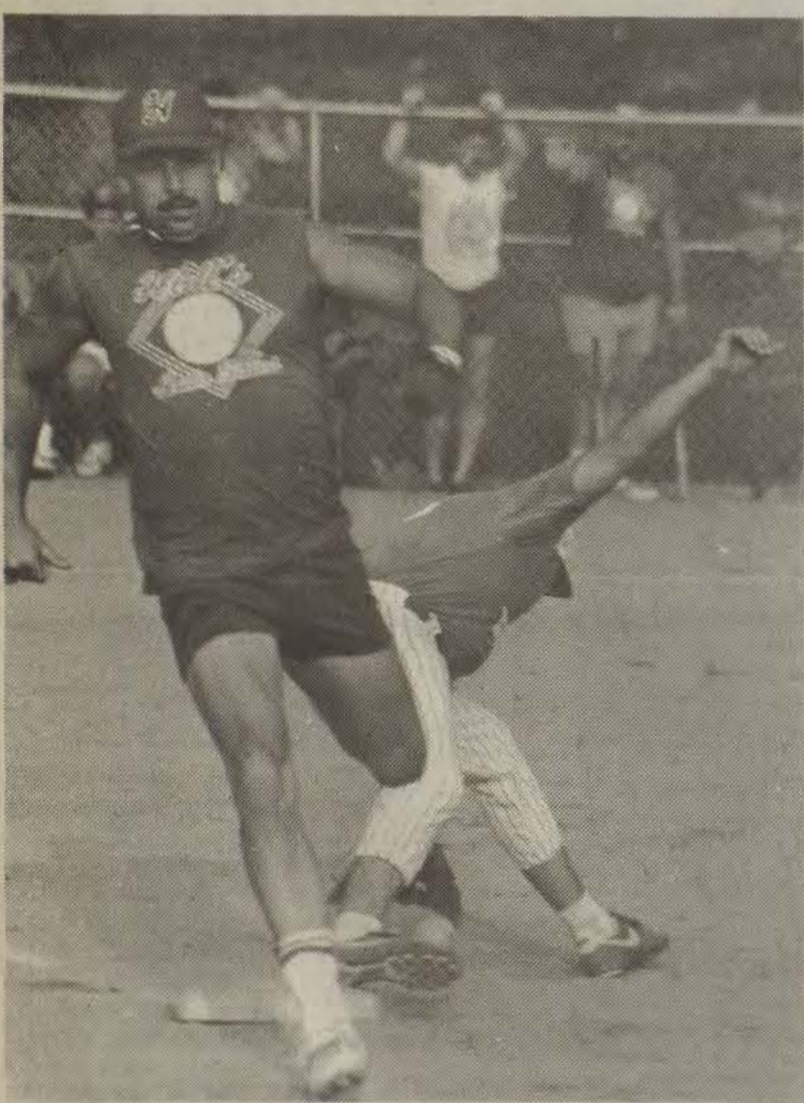

Stepp's other son, Aaron, played for Coach Bill Letton's Blackcats at Prestonsburg last year. Aaron will be heading for West Liberty in Wheeling, West Virginia.

"I just look forward to the opportunity to get back in the coaching business and I plan on giving a 110 percent to the job," said Stepp.

Definitely Safe!

No question about this play at first base. The runner for Hall's Auto Sales was there by inches. However, Hall's fell to Kerns 9-3 in regional tournament softball play. (photo by Ed Taylor)

Hunting and fishing license sales hold steady, revenues increase

Revenues from hunting and fishing license sales rose 5.6 percent in 1990, John Turner, director of the Interior Department's U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service, has announced. The total sales of hunting licenses decreased slightly from the previous year while fishing license sales held steady.

A total of 15,806,864 people purchased hunting licenses during fiscal year 1990, compared with 15,858,063 in 1989. Fishing license purchasers numbered 30,731,821 in fiscal year 1990, compared with 30,302,244 in 1989. Income from the sale of licenses and associated permits, tags, and stamps in 1990 reached an overall total of $784 million, compared with $740 million in 1989.

In making the announcement, Turner said, "nearly 50 million Americans enjoyed hunting and fishing activities last year. These sportsmen and women, through the purchase of licenses, tags and stamps, provided vital funding to enhance outdoor recreation opportunities for all Americans." Hunting and fishing are two of the activities highlighted in the Interior Department's recently announced outdoor recreation initiative, "Enjoy Outdoors America."

"Interior Secretary Lujan and I recognize the valuable contributions of our hunters and anglers not only to their own pastime, but to the conservation of this country's natural resources. We look to them as prime examples of good stewardship and conservation of this Nation's wildlife and wild lands. I would like to see more and more Americans showing the same type of commitment," said Turner.

Money from the sale of fishing and hunting licenses, permits, tags, and stamps is used to fund state fish and wildlife programs. License sales figures are compiled annually by the U.S. Fish and Wildlife Service from information submitted by state fish and wildlife agencies. State funding through the Federal Aid in Wildlife Restoration and the Federal Aid in Sport Fish Restoration programs, both administered by the Service, is apportioned in part by the number of paid fishing and hunting license holders in each state.

Kentucky Afield

By Russ Kennedy

Kentucky Afield Call-in to Focus on Non-Game Wildlife

Back in the early 1950s, Ron Rhody, an employee of the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife, had an idea: produce a television show that would educate and entertain the growing population of outdoor enthusiasts in Kentucky.

In 1953, Rhody's idea became a reality when Kentucky Afield premiered on WAVE-TV in Louisville. After moving to KET in 1985, the program became statewide.

Today, Kentucky Afield is one of the most-watched KET programs, and is the longest running series of its kind in the country. Now hosted by Dave Shuffett, a former bureau chief for Lexington's WLEX-TV, Kentucky Afield features segments which focus not only on hunting and fishing but on issues concerning wildlife and their habitats. That will be the topic for a live, one-hour call-in special, airing on KET at 8 p.m. Thursday, August 8.

Even before hosting Kentucky Afield, Shuffett often hit the airwaves with news of Kentucky wildlife.

"On slow news days, I would usually check with the Fish and Wildlife people and do a 'critter' story," he said. In 1989, he became host of Kentucky Afield.

As host, Shuffett has been in outdoor situations that would make TV news reporting seem like a safer occupation. He has been attacked by a buck deer on camera, been surrounded by thousands of bats in a cave, and wandered around a Louisiana bayou — complete with alligators — on an out-of-state venture to acquire river otters.

The August 8 call-in focusing on non-game wildlife is a new addition to the program's usual two specials on fishing and hunting annually.

"There's a whole gamut of things that the department does that we don't talk about on the other call-in shows — endangered species, the non-game program, land acquisition, habitat issues, environmental issues," he said. "These are things we'll talk about on the call-in — the other side of Fish and Wildlife. People need to know these things in order to appreciate the obvious."

As a man who was taught to love the outdoors at an early age, Shuffett believes this part of Kentuckians' education shouldn't be ignored.

"My dad used to take me fishing on the Green River when I was knee-high to a grasshopper," he said. "As I grew up, I left hunting, fishing, and bird watching, and did everything else under the sun. I've been a golfer, I've ridden bare-back bronco in the rodeo circuit..."

"Now I'm back doing what I loved as a youngster. Even if I hadn't wound up here, I would still have the appreciation for the outdoors that was instilled in me at an early age. Kids need that kind of appreciation because it's crucial for the future of our environment."

Kentucky Afield, a KET and Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources co-production, airs each Thursday at 8 p.m. Beginning August 17, it will repeat each Saturday at 10:30 a.m.

Catfish Fry For Fun And Cash

The 6th Annual Memphis Farm Fresh Catfish Cook-off Festival is scheduled for October 4, 5, & 6, 1991 at the Agricenter International located on Germantown Road, Memphis, Tennessee.

The event was previously held on Mud Island, then moved in 1990 to a site in front of the Great American Pyramid. Having outgrown both locations, the Agricenter R.V. area was selected as the best facility for this rapidly growing festival and contest.

Changes to this year's contest include the addition of a professional restaurant team division, increased prize money (double that of last year), a kiddie carnival with rides and activities for small children, pony rides, a fishing rodeo and continuous live musical entertainment. There will be a covered concessions area that will provide a place to sit, eat and enjoy the scheduled entertainment.

Adult admission is $3, children under 12 will be admitted free. There is plenty of free parking for the event which will be situated in the R.V. area of the Agricenter grounds. Attendance is estimated at over 30,000 for the three day event.

"This will be a festival for the whole family to enjoy — we have something for everyone," states Lou Savarin, president of the Memphis Catfish Contest Association. "The facilities are greatly expanded and improved this year, there's lots of free parking and the site is accessible to all areas of the city. We anticipate at least 60 teams to compete this year, with approximately 40 amateur teams and the balance from restaurants and hotels."

Teams interested in competing in this year's event are encouraged to call or write Lou Savarin at (901) 276-8401, Memphis Catfish Contest Association, 2219 Madison Avenue, Memphis, Tennessee 38104. Competition will be held in both amateur and professional divisions, with categories for fried and other preparations. Prizes will also be given for hushpuppies and showmanship. Trophies will be awarded to the winners in both divisions. A portion of the proceeds will be donated to the Homeless Children's Program.

Entries will be accepted on a first come, first served basis, so interested teams should act now due to a limited number of contestant spaces. Approximately 22 entries have already been received.

Patching Broken Athletes Appeals To Chris West As He Attends Trainers Camp

Chris West, a junior this year at Prestonsburg High School, enjoys taping ankles and just doing whatever he can to see the football and basketball teams through a season. West was one of the athletic trainers chosen to work the recent Bluegrass State Games in Lexington the past weekend.

"I have been the manager for the basketball team for the past two years and football for one year," explained West, "now I want to be the teams trainer and do what I can for the team."

West plans on attending college when he graduates (two years to go) and take sports medicine. He enjoys the challenge the position presents to him in caring for ankles and icing down bruises or sprains.

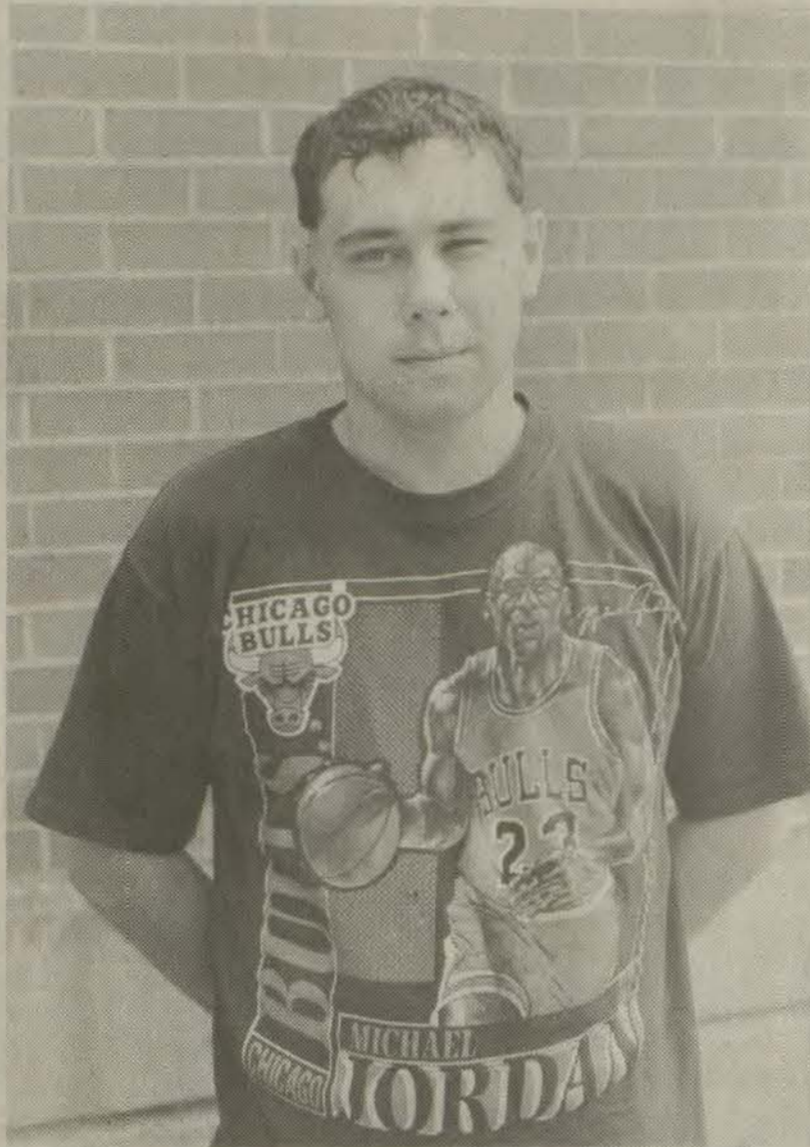

West helped out with the softball and soccer teams in the Bluegrass State Games and said that "there were a lot of injuries in the two sports."

West has been invited by University of Kentucky officials to attend a two-day clinic beginning on August 16. West has attended other clinics around the Bluegrass state.

"I've always liked it, and it is just something I want to do," he said. This coming season will be his first as student athletic trainer for the football and basketball teams.

"I guess determination is what I need to become a athletic trainer," said West. Determination is what West has as he is bound to accomplish the feat of being involved in sport medicine.

West said that he is evaluated at all the clinic he attends and that he wants to become certified as a trainer. He has had training in CPR which is a requirement for a trainer.

He says that he has his "fanny pack", an apron that holds the tools of the trade such as scissors, twizzers, tape and other needful items.

"Just to be able to help a team out is all that I want to do," he says, "and if taping an ankle or applying ice to a sprain will I help, I am willing to that." That is determination.

HOROSCOPE

August 4 through August 10

By C.C. Clark

LEO (July 23 - August 22)

A spouse or other loved one could become quite angry if you don't explain your actions regarding a specific situation. Be careful when dealing with contracts.

VIRGO (August 23 - September 22)

Financial matters will be an important priority for you this week. You'll be looking for ways to provide for your future. A friend will invite you on a fun outing.

LIBRA (September 23 - October 22)

Be yourself, especially when dealing with authority figures. Give them the respect they deserve and the favor will be returned. You'll be meeting someone new this week.

SCORPIO (October 23 - November 21)

You will be determined to get what you desire no matter what the consequence. Make sure you know what you want or things may not turn out in your interests.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 - December 21)

The romance sector is looking positive for you. You may rekindle the dying embers of a current relationship or you may find a new love interest developing.

CAPRICORN (December 22 - January 19)

It's easy to become impatient with co-workers, but keep in mind they really are trying their best. You will need them as allies later on in the game.

AQUARIUS (January 20 - February 18)

Watch details closely this week, especially in your immediate work environment. Don't fret too much about something over which you have no power or control.

PISCES (February 19 - March 20)

This is the time to take on a leadership role and really show your stuff. Don't let emotions get in the way of making an important personal decision.

ARIES (March 21 - April 19)

You will make a positive difference in someone's life. Others will notice your good deeds and will tell you how much they appreciate your diligent efforts.

TAURUS (April 20 - May 20)

No matter what happens this week, nothing will destroy your good mood. Things that would normally drive you crazy will just slide off your back. You'll be carefree.

GEMINI (May 21 - June 20)

Your hectic schedule continues, but you have a better handle on things. Children will figure prominently into your activities, and you will enjoy the fun and games.

CANCER (June 21 - July 22)

It's time to make those home improvements you have been putting off. It's amazing what a new coat of paint can do to improve your spirits. Throw a party.

ENTERTAINMENT NEWS

Leslie Nielsen

Betty White and Leslie Nielsen will team for a romantic comedy called A Change of Heart. White stars as a conservative widow diagnosed with a terminal illness. Distraught, she decides to go to Mexico for a little fun, relaxation and distraction. And that's where she meets a handsome widower (Nielsen) and begins to loosen up. Romance ensues and Evelyn feels grateful for this bit of happiness in the time left her. Ed Begley Jr. co-stars in the project, with Jonathan Sanger (Twin Peaks) directing from a teleplay by Lynn Roth. A Change of Heart will air sometime next season.

Baby Talk, the Ed Weinberger (Taxi) series that has had so much trouble coming into the TV world, has announced a new lead actress, Mary Page Keller (Duet, Life Goes On). Keller is the third mom the ABC series has had in its first 12 months of life. First, there was Connie Sellecca, who left the series abruptly last August citing "creative differences" with Weinberger. She has since found a berth in P.S., I Luv U, a CBS series set to debut this fall. Then came Julia Duffy, who was with the series this winter and spring, but who got a better offer from Designing Women, where she will be seen this fall, also on CBS. Now it's Keller's turn to play the single mother of precocious Mickey, the tot whose thoughts (in Tony Danza's voice) can be heard by the audience. Perhaps the writers simply need to place Mickey in a large day-care center, thereby explaining, once and for all, an endless round-robin of caregivers.

Woody Allen is directing a series of commercials for an Italian supermarket chain and doesn't care who knows it. "Let people think what they want," he says, deflecting criticism of "selling out." Allen cites the facts that he has a large family and seldom shows a profit from his movies.

Congratulations to Richard Dreyfuss, Anjelica Huston and Francis Ford Coppola, all recent recipients of Rudolph Valentino Awards, given annually by the Motion Picture Association of Italy. Coppola, incidentally, is the first director to receive the award.

The week of Sept. 16, look for a new syndicated series titled Street Justice, starring Carl Weathers and Bryan Genesse. Producers term the show a mix of drama, light comedy and action. Weathers, of course, is familiar to fans of the early Rocky features and Action Jackson. Genesse is an alumnus of the soap opera The Bold and the Beautiful and played a British rock star in Blake Edwards' Skin Deep.

Lee Remick left legacy to treasure on tape

By Steven Alan McGaw
 Last month saw the passing of Lee Remick, an actress who consistently delivered intricate, completely believable performances in a wide body of performances over her long career. From her debut in A Face in the Crowd to latter-day TV works like Nutcracker: Money, Madness and Murder, Remick was always honest and credible in her performances. Check out these two Remick gems:
Anatomy of a Murder (1959)
 There are lots of reasons to watch this fine film, and Remick's clever, sexy performance as a hot-blooded soldier's wife who may or may not have been raped is right at the top. And what a cast: James Stewart, Arthur O'Connell, George C. Scott, Eve Arden and Ben Gazzara. Otto Preminger directed, with a terrific jazz score by Duke Ellington.

Wild River (1960)
 Montgomery Clift plays an agent of the Tennessee Valley Authority trying to convince an elderly woman to sell her property to make way for new projects. While staying among the country folk, he falls for beautiful, suspicious country-girl Remick. Clift was always a fascinating actor to watch, and his romantic scenes with the shy Remick are quite alluring. Director Elia Kazan's deft depiction of 1930s Tennessee is excellent, and fine supporting performances come from Jo Van Fleet and Albert Salmi.

Paintsville Wins State Crown; Advances to Sectional Finals

By Jason Blanton

Editor's note: Paintsville lost in the sectional finals Monday night in Georgia.

They call themselves the "Dirty Dozen." Now, you can call them state champions.

The Paintsville Big League (16-18 year-olds) team won the 1991 Kentucky Big League title Thursday evening, 14-11 over Hazard/Laurel County.

Paintsville, after suffering some injuries during the season, finished the state tournament with only 10 players plus the two coaches; hence the nickname.

"It feels great," said Paintsville Manager Paul David Brown. "These kids have overcome a lot this year. We didn't play well throughout the year but they hung tough and now the kids are state champions."

Brown also coached the Paintsville Little League Senior League team to a state title in 1987.

"We entered the state with only 10 kids. Some of the teams got together to make a team and this bunch didn't quit."

Hazard and Laurel County combined teams after Hazard won the district title.

In the championship game, Paintsville pounded out 22 hits.

Paintsville trailed 6-4 after two innings and took the lead for good with a four-run third inning.

Mike Eldridge started the inning with a walk and, after a sacrifice by Sean Williams, scored on a double by Jamie Hinkle. Hinkle scored on a sacrifice fly by Billy Elam, tying the game at 6-6.

Paintsville grabbed the lead for keeps when Hatler Riddle singled and scored on an error off of the bat of John Clark, of Prestonsburg. Clark gave Paintsville an 8-6 lead as he scored on a single by Ray Collins, also of Prestonsburg.

Paintsville led 10-8 through seven innings and iced the game with a three-run seventh.

Hazard/Laurel County made it close, as they scored three runs in the bottom of the seventh but Ray Collins shut the door to gain the victory.

Clark led Paintsville at the plate as he went 4-for-5. Hinkle, who homered in the sixth, and Riddle each collected three hits.

"It was a see-saw game. We would go ahead then they would take the lead. I'm just glad we got enough runs to win," said Brown.

"We weren't supposed to win this year. We have five kids that couldn't even start on the high school team. Yet, they are able to come out and play against teams that have a lot more kids."

"It feels marvelous," said former major leaguer Johnnie LeMaster. "These kids...you just couldn't be more proud of them. Paul David (Brown) is the heart and soul of this team. We've got 10 players and two coaches, we've been outmanned and out-armed every place that we've but the kids got the job done."

After his years in the majors, LeMaster is giving back to his hometown.

"I think everyone should give back to the community. Paintsville gave me a lot. Tonight, I can say I think baseball was invented in Paintsville."

"Basketball is supposed to be king in Kentucky, but tonight baseball is number one."

Paintsville finished the state tournament undefeated.

Sectional tournament

The 10-member Paintsville 16-18 year-old baseball team and its two coaches advanced to the championship of the sectional Big League tournament.

Hatler Riddle did his best Dennis Martinez impersonation Sunday night, throwing a no-hitter while facing one more that the minimum amount of Louisiana batters in Paintsville's 6-0 victory.

The only thing that separated Riddle from perfection was two walks, but one of the Louisiana runners was erased on a Paintsville double play. So, he ended up facing only 22 batters.

The night before, Riddle was removed from the game in the second inning after serving up seven walks.

"Hatler was thrilled," said Manager Paul David Brown, after the game. "He knew the whole game of his situation. He hung in and we had a couple of good defensive plays."

Paintsville jumped out to a 2-0 lead in the second inning. Riddle knocked in the first run with a single, scoring Jamie Hinkle, who reached on a fielder's choice. Billy Elam reached on an error and scored on a sacrifice fly by John Clark for the second run.

Paintsville added four more runs in the fourth inning. Clark and Ray Collins walked and came home on a three-run homer by Joe Collins. Mike Eldridge singled and later scored on a double by Sean Williams, setting the final score.

"I never thought we would get this far," Brown said. "This bunch, the further we go the more intense they get."

"The boys are excited. They wanted to get back at Georgia," said Brown. "After our first game, they've played hard and now they've (the players) got another chance."

After a 1 1/2 hour bus ride this night before, Paintsville dropped its first game to the host Georgia team, out of Athens, 12-4 but came back to defeat Tennessee, 6-5, late Saturday night.

Rocky Blankenship led off the fifth inning with a solo homer, which proved to be the winning run. At the time, Blankenship's home run gave Paintsville a 6-2 advantage.

Tennessee battled back and scored single runs in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings.

Clark, who came on to pitch in the second inning, settled down in the bottom of the seventh and got the last out on a strike out to secure the victory.

According to tournament officials, the win was believed to be the first by a Kentucky team in Big League sectional play.

"We were tired after the bus ride and really didn't play like we have been," Brown said Saturday night. "After the loss, we got back on track and played better."

"I never would have dreamed we would be down here and be one of the last three teams left," Brown said. "But, we are down here and we'll go as far as we can."

Governor's Open to be held in Frankfort

A field of 240 will play in the 27th annual Governor's Open Golf Tournament, September 6-8, at the Juniper Hills Course in Frankfort, Ky.

Entries for the popular event will be limited to the first 60 professionals and 180 amateurs. The pros will be competing for more than $10,000 in prize money, making the Governor's Open one of the more attractive golf tournaments in Kentucky.

Co-sponsors of the tournament are Kentucky Central Life Insurance Company, based in Lexington, and the Holiday Inn-Capital Plaza, Frankfort.

The tournament is stroke play for 36 holes over the par 70 Juniper Hills course, which measures 6,150 yards.

The 20 pros with the lowest scores will share the prize money, with $3,000 going to the winner, $1,500 for second, and $1,000 for third. There is a senior's division for players over 50 years of age with the three leaders earning cash awards.

Amateurs will vie for gift certificates and the enjoyment of testing their skills in top-caliber competition. They are placed in flights based on handicaps.

The Open will be preceded by a pro-am, with two pros teamed with four amateurs for 18 holes. Twenty pros will also share prize money in this event, the 10 best individual scores and the 10 who are members of the five best teams.

Rob McNamara of Frankfort, won the pro division of last year's Open with a five-under par 135 score. He edged Mike Bibb of Danville, by one stroke. Jamie Miller of Louisville and Scott Eilers of Lexington, were two strokes back. McNamara followed an opening round 69 with a closing 66, overtaking Bibb in the final holes.

An amateur, Bruce Walters of Pikeville, was the low scorer last year at 133, shooting 67 and 66 for the two rounds. He won the amateur division for the third time in four years.

Like McNamara, Walters had to come from behind late in the tournament to win, as Bobby Fannin, Jr., Lexington, had 135. Jeff Baechler of Louisville, was third with 139.

There was a tie in the pro senior's division. Gary Feldman of Springfield; Bill Dameron of Big Stone Gap, Virginia; and Eddie Tyree of Louisville, all had 143 scores. Tyree is a three-time winner of the Open.

Participants will enjoy a dance the night of the pro-am and a cookout the following night.

Spectators are welcome at no charge.

Entry forms for the tournament are available at most golf courses in Kentucky. Or write, Juniper Hills Men's Golf Association, 800 Louisville Rd., Frankfort, Kentucky 40601. Gene Hilen is the host pro at Juniper Hills. The deadline for entering the tournament is August 15.
